WEEKLY FOOT INSPECTIONS.

(1) Owing to an increase in the disease of "foot rot" every man will have his feet inspected on the weekly bathing parade.
(2) The disease is a fungus infection of the foot spread from one man to another and acquired by walking with bare feet on an infected surface.
(3) The most common places in which infection is picked up are showerhouses and swimming pools. The fungus causing the disease can live on duck boarding and on concrete and tiled floors for some days.
(4) Any man who suspects that he is suffering from this complaint will report sick at once.

on the above subject. I do not know if you will have received a copy of the above letter. It draws attention to the increase in the above disease and suggests that as a precautionary measure there should be a weekly foot inspection. It also draws attention to various measures recommended in ARO 502/45.

In addition to these measures I would suggest that the use of showers and baths by both Italian and British personel is not a very good practice.

I beg to point out that foot inspections are not the responsibility of the M.O..
