LABORATORY REPORT

AMTA, ON 10 R.L.U.

1. Three samples of atta were received for inspection and report on condition from recent deliveries to 10 R.L.U. by 14 C.R.A.S.C. SUP UNITS.

2. Sample A.

Very slight infestation with Tribolium, otherwise sweet and in good condition.

Sample B.

Tribolium infestation slightly higher than in Sample A above the atta being of similar quality.

Sample C.

The atta in this sample was found to contain larvae as well as the beetle and web; there was however no sign of deterioration.

3. As can be seen from details given above the atta received in, as always, infested with Tribolium, in all other respects the atta is fit for human consumption.

It is suggested that the difficulties that have given rise to the complaint on condition of the atta can be completely overcome by the normal procedure of sieving through a No. 20 sieve before use.

MILITARY HOSPITAL - NAPLES
Chemical - Bromatologic Laboratory

Naples, 19 Feb 46

N. 226/10

Examination of One sample of ATTA flour withdrawn on 15th February from a stock of 64 quintals stored at 10th Bulk Depot in Naples.

OFFICE ASKING FOR THE ABOVE EXAMINATION : Direzione Commissariato, Napoli.

REQUEST DATE : 15 Feb 46.

The sample of flour withdrawn for the analysis has got all characteristics of a deteriorated flour, not in good conditions, altered by long storage and bad conservation.

Its colour appears to be almost white, with evident mould, which gives to it a bad smell and a pungent, acid and rather bitter taste. The same flour is also infested by a large quantity of insects.

Having submitted the flour to a chemical test, we got the following data :

Moistness	grams 14.00 %
ashes on dry substance	" 1.65 %
Acidity on dry subst. in lactic acid	" 0.51 %

At the microscopic examination we could observe granules of maize starch, many cortical elements, various moulds and very many eggs of insects.

From the above, we can state that the flour, being infested by a large quantity of parasites and animals, and for reason of its old age which caused to it remarkable modifications in acidity and in nourishing qualities, is not fit for human consumption and therefore is not suitable to be made into bread.
