Twining Cracked

Research by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has shown that the use of leaded gasoline is a significant source of lead exposure for children. The EPA has estimated that the use of leaded gasoline accounts for about 10% of the total lead exposure for children in the United States. The HHS has also found that lead exposure from leaded gasoline is a major concern for children's health.
