THE KING'S CALL TO THE NATION

Sunday 6 July. A day of Prayer

It is officially announced that it is the desire of the King that Sunday July 6, should be observed as a National Day of Prayer and Dedication to Almighty God in view of the tasks and duties which the nation is called to meet.

The following statement is issued by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York:

His Majesty the King has summoned the nation to observe Sunday, July 6, as a day of National Prayer to Almighty God. Every citizen should prepare himself for that day by serious thought.

This nation made its great and glorious contribution towards the winning of the war: the sacrifices which we made for victory have sorely crippled us.

We turned hopefully to plan for justice and peace in the world and for social prosperity at home: we find that only by long and severe exertions can we secure the necessities of our national life.

The severity of the task demands that all thoughts of personal advantage and sectional interests should be subordinated to the common good, that all forms of distrust and dishonest dealing be laid aside, that all should freely give the best that is in them, that we should be united by a common code of honour, ideals and fellowship.

These things cannot be unless we all return to God and find our unity and strength in obedience to Him.

Accordingly we call on our fellow-citizens in the coming weeks:

To examine our national life and our own personal lives, frankly and sincerely, by the standards of the Ten Commandments and of Christ's teaching.

To repent of our irreligion which by denying God the honour due to Him distorts our personal lives and our common life.

To turn to God in prayer that He may teach us our duties to Him and to our neighbours and to the community.

To seek the daily help of God in our lives that in common obedience to Him we may meet each day's demands.

With such preparation, the National Day of Prayer will be a deliberate and intelligent act of humble prayer and sincere dedication to Almighty God. If thus the nation comes to God, we can face all that is asked of us in united faith, confidence, and hope.

GEOFFREY CANTUAR:

CYRIL EBOR:

The Moderator of the Free Church Federal Council (the Rev. J. M. Richardson) announces that he wholeheartedly endorses the statement made by the Archbishops, and commends it to the members of the Free Churches in the earnest hope that by such preparation all may make a real response to the appeal of the King.

The Right Rev. Dr. John Meenzie, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland states:

All who believe in God will gladly respond to this call. There never
