GENERAL

1. At 0235 this morning a violent explosion occurred in Via XX Settembre, Rome, in front of the British Embassy. The blast, which was heard in all quarters of the city alerted the Public Safety authorities who arrived on the spot soon after. The front side and the first floor of the building had collapsed, and from the debris the carabinieri recovered a certain Nicolino Palitta, a 25 year old cab-driver from Nuoro (Sardinia). He was seriously injured and was immediately taken to the hospital, where he was judged to be in danger of death. Besides the Carabinieri, also the firemen, all of the police flying squads and the Allied MP arrived on the spot. Some of the buildings adjacent to the Embassy were damaged. The carabiniere on guard at the Embassy declared that just before the explosion occurred he had seen two suit-cases tied together placed on the side-walk in front of the Embassy. He then hastened to notify the other guard on duty, and a member of the Embassy staff, a certain "Jack" ran off to remove the suit-cases, but the carabiniere himself and two other members of the Embassy staff followed him and arrived just on time to prevent him from doing so. On the suit-cases there was a sign saying: "Beware - Mines". While the four guards were returning towards Via Palestro to take a decision on what should be done, the explosion occurred, and they were knocked down on the ground. When Palitta was rescued from the debris, the carabiniere expressed his astonishment as he and the other guards had seen nobody walking in Via XX Settembre. This report is given in "Messaggero", which adds that a possible explanation of the explosion might be that Giolitti, passing by the Embassy, noticed the suit-cases, wanted to take them, touched them and thus set off the mines. All morning papers, excluding "Globo", report the accident. First press reactions are as follows. "Tempo": "From whatever side this insane action comes, it arouses regret and is to be deeply deplored. "Buonsenso": Who may have committed this execrable criminal attempt? Certainly, no Italian may have had the intention to shake in such a serious way the Italo-British relations. It is natural, therefore, to think that the hand of the criminal was moved by a foreign interest", as was also the case in the Viminal riot. "The Rome population trembles with anger for this new crime committed against

"Popolo": The base terroristic attempt will arise a wave of unanimous execration in Rome and the whole of Italy.... It is to be wished, however, that the prompt and severe investigations by the Police will succeed to discover the authors of the criminal action and to identify the possible abettors". 2. The President of the Council of Ministers yesterday received a syndical and political delegation of the city of Pola. The delegation asked the Govt to help the population of the city until the UN had made a decision, and pointed out that in case this decision were negative, 25,000 out of the 32,000 Italian inhabitants of Pola would leave the city. (Mess.)

3. The contract for the sale to Italy of 40 "Liberty" ships will be signed today. Soon after the ships will enter the dry-docks for a check-over. (Mess.)

4. Today's Council of Ministers will discuss a draft bill aiming to foster building construction. The bill allots 60 milliard lire to local Govt and para-statal organisms in order to finance, up to 60% of the total expenditure, the construction of popular houses. The bill allots an additional 10 milliard lire, in order to foster also private enterprise. (Mess.)

5. A spokesman of the French Foreign Ministry declared yesterday that if negotiations now going on in Rome were successful, France would renounce her claims on the Italian assets assigned to her by the draft peace treaty, Reuter reports from Paris. As a compensation, the Italian Govt will subsidy the 20 thousand Italian workers who are being employed by the French coal mines.

6. The representatives of the Socialist, Communist, Christian-Democrat, Republican and Action parties held a meeting at the Socialist Federation building of Reggio Emilia yesterday, to examine the problem of public order in that province. They resolved to form a Commission having the task to study various proposals and then present to the authorities the conclusive viewpoint of the five parties with regard to the suppression of violence and criminal deeds in the province. (Italia Nuova)

7. "We understand that the Foreign Minister, Hon. Nenni, has asked the consent of the Govts of France, Turkey, Russia and United States, for the new Ambassadors that Italy may send to those states. The new representatives whom the consent has been asked for are: Ivan Matteo Lombardo (Washington), Cuttroni (Paris), Brunns (Ankara) and Brosio (Moscow). The appointment of Hon. I. I. Lombardo to the Washington Embassy has caused some surprise in the political circles, as he was elected - as it is known - Secretary of the Socialist party by the Florence Socialist Congress." (Popolo)

8. The final text of the wage agreement was signed yesterday by the representatives of the CGIL and the Confederation of Industrialists. The basic wages set on 23 May 1946 have been increased by 35%, but when stipulating the collective labor contracts, the National federations, in agreement with the local

The basic wages set on 23 May 1946 have been increased by 35%, but when stipulating the collective labor contracts, the National federations, in agreement with the local organisms, may increase them by an additional 15% so as to consider the particular industrial conditions of each region. The vacation period for workers has been raised to 12 days. Following the Govt's assurance that prices to be paid by the Govt itself to building construction contractors would be increased, the Industrialists agreed that the document should apply also to the building construction workers. The industrialist also agreed that the document should apply to the Sicily industry workers. By this agreement, the two Confederations undertake to respect the wage truce for a six-month period, during which wages should not be changed unless by means of the sliding scale of wages. (Popolo)

GIORNALE DELLA SERA (Monarchist)

1. "Behind the rhetoric of humanitarian speeches: Russia and the U.S. are trying to know who has the atomic bomb" is G.d.S.'s headline to a report on yesterday's session of U.N.O.

2. G.d.S. reports that 400 tons of grain were stolen yesterday from a Govt's depôt in Verona.

3. G.d.S. reports that the Italian Police yesterday killed a Polish Lieutenant Stanislao Kolmanski as they were about to arrest him for illegal traffic of weapons.

4. G.d.S. reports that General Anders, the Commander of the Second Polish Corps in Italy will leave tomorrow for England. His new H.Q. will be in London.

GIORNALE D'ITALIA

1. In a leading article entitled "The Parliament" R. Pasqualino-Vassallo reports that Saragat accused the Italian Communist Party in his recent polemics with Togliatti of intending to substitute the Fascist totalitarism with a proletarian one, similar to the Russian example. The writer concludes from Togliatti's answer (that there is no totalitarianism in Russia but a direct Govt and a worker Democracy) that there is no Parliament in Russia and no participation of other classes in the directorship of public affairs than the worker class. The Russian regime is not even similar to a Parliamentary system, continues the writer, for its lack of independence of thinking and of actions of the delegates. Nevertheless Togliatti and his Party agreed with the institution of an Italian Parliament and even with the second Chamber, as he knows quite well that political institutions can be transplanted from one country into an other but with due consideration for the special historical and psychological conditions of the latter.

2. Regarding the proposal to abolish bread rationing for the upper classes and to increase the daily ration for the lower classes to 400 grams, the paper stresses that it should not be permitted that "our daily bread" become the means to divide the Italian people into two different castes.

3. The paper states that the voters of all Parties with

The paper states that the voters of all Parties with exception of the well organized and most active Communist Party show a certain weariness and listlessness with regard to the decision to be taken in the administrative elections. The paper admonishes all voters not to let the first trenches go to enemies.

TRIBUNA DEL POPOLO

1. Referring to Lucifero's proposal made in the first sub-commission for the Constitution to admit all kinds of State and private schools, Luigi Miranda writes that a Liberal continues Fascist work: the dispersion of the unitarian State. Everybody knows that Catholic schools don't limit their confessional instruction to religious matters, states the writer. The school is a public institution belonging to the competence of the State which does not personify Catholic or Protestant civilization but civilization "tout court".

2. The paper reports from Florence the arrest of the so-called Polish gang which was composed of two British subjects, Tom Bugley and Allan Smith, two Greeks and four Italians. This gang led by the Greek Andrea Hausbarion was provided with false documents and operated as Allied Police Agents in Naples, Milan, Bologna and Ancona.

VOCE REPUBBLICANA (Republican)

1. Claudio Rocchi answers today to those who accused the Republican Party of pursuing a double-dealing policy, saying that if the Republican Party blamed the Christian Democrat and the Communists for the arrest of the Partisan Leaders of Northern Italy, it was only because this measure was thought not Democratic by the Republicans and because it is true that the Partisans had "not even a hunting gun" of their own and therefore could not threaten the Security of the State. It adds that "Democracy means the right to pursue a free opposition" and that therefore the Republican Party was free to blame the Govt's decision of arresting the Partisan Leaders even if participating in the Govt.

2. After saying that the Monarchists are raging to see the Republican banner flying above the Rome Capitol "as geese rage when they see a red handkerchief", F.G. prays "God save Rome and the Romans by preventing the candidates of the 'Catholic Monarchist Bloc" from winning the Rome Administrative Elections.

MORNING PAPERS (October 31)

AVANTI! (Socialist)

1. The leaders of capitalism declare that war expenses, military defeat, destructions, the loss of Italian capital abroad and in the colonies accentuated general poverty and they try to make forget that the distribution of riches can be regulated by means of taxes, writes Gaetano Russo. The history of Italian finance shows that the Italian tax system did not take care of social justice, asserts the writer.

2. Referring to Manlio Lupinacci's article in yesterday's "Risorgimento Liberale" (see Digest 30 October, page 7), "Avanti!" says that Liberals are preoccupied by their isolation. The Conservative clique tries in vain to survive and to find a "refugium peccatorum".

3. We published scrupolously the communications of the Govt about the Biella incidents with exception of the last one as we are not prepared to admit insults with regard to those who fought together with us during the war of liberation and who are above every suspicion from the political as well as from the moral point of view, asserts S.P. Asking why the Biella partisans are still arrested, the writer says that the Govt should avoid applying the same systems which were used by Fascism and making the impression that its actions are influenced by the fact that the arrested are adversaries to the Government.

4. A. calls a "scandal", last-night's decision of the second penal section of Cassation to agree with the appeal made by the President and the General Procurators of the Fascist Special Tribunal and to revoke, thereby, the order of arrest for the first and imprisonment for the others.

BUONSENSO (Uomo Qualunque)

1. In a leading article signed "G." (Giannini) and published under the title: "We resume work even in Milan", while announcing that a special issue of "Buonsenso" will appear today in Milan, entrusted to the directorship of Eduardo Stolfi, decorated for acts of valor during the Partisans War, the writer adds that the Milan, just as the Rome issues of "Buonsenso" must be considered as a "resumption" of the old tradition of honest Italian journalism prior to the war of 1914-18, represented by such newspapers as "Perseveranza", "Popolo Romano" and "Capitan Fracassa", independent from the corrupting influence of political parties and Big business interests. The writer concludes by saying that the spirit underlaying the "U.Q." press is not to fight for the conquest of political power, but to persuade and cooperate, with the only purpose of saving the country.

2. Hon. Antonio Capua, Deputy at the Constituent Assembly, publishes another article under the rubrik: "Policy of Oil - Criminal policy - Social aspect of the question", (See Digest October 25, page 4), in which he denounces the great injustice and serious social inconveniences of the total collective storage of oil, especially in Calabria region, where in several areas oil is the only agricultural produce. The compulsory delivery of this produce is causing great uneasiness both among workers and land-owners.

GLOBO (Economic)

1. G. says that the re-opening of railroad communications with Central European Countries has made it possible for Italy to export 20,000 tons of pirits to Czechoslovakia and to promise a further amount of 50,000 tons for next year.

2. G. says that a commercial agreement between Italy and Sweden will be reached in the second half of November and will foresee Swedish exports of raw cellulose, wood paste, wood, nickel, iron and steel for Italian oranges, lemons, dired fruits, wines, vermouths, brandy, hemp, rayon clothe and hats.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. The draft-law approved by the first sub-commission for the Constitution encourages the development of two dangerous types of schools: schools for certain castes and schools for certain parts of the people, writes Paolo Vitterelli.

2. Under the heading "two kinds of weights, two kinds of measures" the paper stresses that the president and the general procurators of the Fascist Special Tribunal were released yesterday whilst antifascist partisans are still arrested without any motive.

ITALIA NUOVA (Liberal)

Under the heading "Indivisible Justice", I.N. writes: "By its solemn protest against the Peace Treaty drafted in Paris by the victors in name of Force and not negotiated freely, the Italian Liberal Party tells to the world the great sorrow of the Italian people for the mutilation of the Italian metropolitan territory, for the sacking of the Italian colonies fructified during tens of years by Italian work, for the confiscation of Italian property abroad,

In an article entitled: "Every day life of Hon. De Nicola", the paper gives some information about the simplicity of every day life of the Provisional Head of the Republic, as well as about his high intellectual qualifications and culture. The residence of Hon.

De Nicola is the sumptuous Palazzo Giustiniani, he gets up early in the morning and devotes several hours to juridical and scientifical studies. The official receptions begin after 1000 up to 1330 and from 1800 to 2030. He is a very sober man, who neither drinks wine or liquors nor smokes, and he has only the ambition of serving with all his forces the cause of Italy.

Commenting on the Communist and Socialist press campaign against Milan's "Nuovo Corriere della Sera" and their demand for an internal commission to control the paper, P. after recalling that a similar action was taken by the Fascists against the same paper in 1925, agrees with the Director of the "Nuovo Corriere della Sera" that this measure would be a limitation to the Freedom of the Press, and writes: "We therefore cannot but join the staff of the Milan's paper and agree with them that 'no one has the right to control or censor their work for which they are responsible in front of their own conscience only'".

RISORGIMENTO LIBERALE (Liberal)

1. Italy is a strange country as capitalism flourishes in a tropical manner after three years of a Govt which is composed of Socialists and Communists, and after a frenzy which had its accents more on revolution than on reforms, writes Enzo Storoni. It would be useless to discuss whether the present situation and its feudal aspects are the result of Governmental policy or the result of the lack of such a policy. Italy's great chance, continues the writer, is that the Italian industry can work already for peace production whilst all the other countries remain still in a war like state and continue their war production. The writer suggests that the Govt should stop blattering menaces about nationalisations; agrarian, industrial and bank reforms; apocalyptic taxes and changes of the currency, if it has not the intention to carry them out. Such menaces will only keep away Italian riches abroad instead of employing them usefully in the country. Moreover, the Govt should accomplish its main-task to collect at least ordinary taxes. Why did the ordinary income not increase from 40 to 800 milliards after three years of Communist Ministers of Finance, during which period meat prices increased from 30 to 500 lire and wages from 100 to 20,000 lire, asks the writer.

2. "Giornale d'Italia" asserted that in 1921 the recently arrested Andreoni got a 14 year imprisonment-sentence for having carried out Togliatti's and Scoccimarro's order to stop a Turkish diplomat agent in an Italian train who carried anti-Russian documents to London, writes the paper asking whether it is true or not that a member of the present Govt and a Party leader organized in Italy aggressions against diplomats in the exclusive interest of a foreign State.

Under the heading: "How we used to travel and how we shall travel", Vero Roberti writes an article on the reconstruction of the Italian railways, in which, after recalling that in Oct. 1945 it was taking 33 hours to go from Rome to Milan and saying that it takes now 12, he reports that some 1,200 passenger carriages will be in service next year and that railway traffic will almost be normalized.

1. In a leading article under the heading: "The right road of the School", commenting on the five articles of the organization of the School drafted by the 1st Sub-commission of the Constituent Assembly, Lucio Lombardo Radice says that the positive principle asserted in the said articles is that concerning the supremacy of the state on the organization and regulation of the School system, with special reference to the elementary, middle and higher education. In this connection the writer remarks that a few Catholic groups have affirmed on the contrary the principle that Church and family have an absolute and exclusive competence of and responsibility for public education, and that private scholastic institution must be absolutely free from State interference. The writer reports that a compromise has been reached concerning the latter question, but he says that this is not the right road to choose for a good organization of public education in Italy and especially for assuring to all citizens the accession to all grades of education.

2. In an article entitled: "More speedy allotment of uncultivated lands to peasants", it is said that the proposals submitted by Minister Scoccimarro during his interview of 24 October with President De Gasperi, have been favorably considered. Therefore the Prefects have been directed to take a direct action whenever unjustified procedural causes for the allotment of uncultivated land to peasants is retarded. A decision has been taken concerning the adoption of uniform criteria on the appraisal of the stage of land cultivations. Lands subject to reclamation, will be considered from now on as uncultivated lands.

3. In a marginal note the paper voices a protest against the decision taken by the Second Penal Section of the "Cassazione" for having granted the amnesty to Guido Cristini, Enea Nosedà, Francesco Dessy and Vincenzo Balzamo, respectively former president and General Attorneys of the Fascist Special Tribunal. A protest is voiced also against a certain Avv. Crispo, who during an audience of the Court has accused both Luigi Longo (former Vice-commander of the Voluntary Corps of Liberation) and Giorgio Amendola, (former member of the Clandestine Executive Commission of the Central Liberation Committee of Rome) as mandatories of murder.

PUBLIC RELATIONS BRANCH

R/108/372/PRB October 30, 1946.

Daily Digest of Rome Press.

GENERAL

1. De Gasperi yesterday received the new High Commissioner for Sicily, Giovanni Selvaggi, who will leave for Sicily today.

2. The Council of Ministers will meet tomorrow, and will examine the internal situation of the country, especially with regard to the partisan secession and the Milan happenings. If the results of present investigations are in the negative, Andreoni will be released. As for Milan, the report on the investigation carried out by the Communist party (see yesterday's Digest, page 7, Unità) was presented by Scoccimarro to De Gasperi only yesterday afternoon, (Messaggero). "Popolo" adds that De Gasperi immediately instructed the competent offices of the Ministry of the Interior to read Scoccimarro's report and to check it with the evidence already in possession of the Ministry. If it is deemed necessary, the President of the Council will order a new investigation on the spot to be carried out possibly by a magistrate. The possibility of the opening of a parliamentary investigation is not to be excluded. In Rome political circles, "Popolo" continues, it was pointed out last night that the documentation offered to the Govt by the Communist Party did not contain any organic or sensational element such as could be expected on the basis of the propaganda previously made by the Communist party.

3. The Inter-Ministerial Committee for Reconstruction yesterday approved a plan for railways restoration presented by the Minister of Transport, Ferrari. The plan, to be carried out in a three-year period, calls for the employment of 300,000 workers per year, for the expenditure of 400 milliard lire equal to war damage suffered by the railway system and for the additional expenditure of 150 milliard lire to improve the system and to electrify some lines, such as the Messina-Palermo, the Piacenza-Verona, the Turin-Milan, the Milan-Verona and the Rome-Bari. 2068
The 400 milliard expenditure includes the restoration of: 3,174 kms. of double-track line; 1,324 kms. of single-track line; 3,943 masonry bridges; 811 steel bridges; 1,216 steam locomotives; 1,202 electric locomotives; 766 motor-locomotives; 6,700 passenger wagons, and nearly 150,000 freight wagons. The plan also calls for the construction of 20,000 apartments which will regard to the partisan secession and the similar happenings. If the results of present investigations are in the negative, Ambrosini will be released. As for Bailie, the report on the investigation carried out by the Communist party (see yesterday's Digest, page 7, Unità) was presented by Scoccimarro to De Gasperi only yesterday afternoon, (Nenni-pero). "Popolo" adds that De Gasperi immediately instructed the competent offices of the Ministry of the Interior to read Scoccimarro's report and to check it with the evidence already in possession of the Ministry. If it is deemed necessary, the President of the Council will order a new investigation on the spot to be carried out possibly by a magistrate. The possibility of the opening of a parliamentary investigation is not to be excluded. 3. The Inter-Ministerial Committee for Reconstruction yesterday approved a plan for railways restoration presented by the Minister of Transport, Ferrari. The plan, to be carried out in a three-year period, calls for the employment of 300,000 workers per year, for the expenditure of 400 milliard lire equal to war damage suffered by the railway system and for the additional expenditure of 150 milliard lire to improve the system and to electrify some lines, such as the Messina-Palermo, the Piacenza-Voghera, the Turin-Milan, the Milan-Verona and the Foggia-Bari. The 400 milliard expenditure includes the restoration of: 3,174 kms. of double-track line; 1,324 kms. of single-track line; 3,943 masonry bridges; 811 steel bridges; 1,216 steam locomotives; 1,202 electric locomotives; 766 motor-locomotives; 6,700 passenger wagons, and nearly 150,000 freight wagons. The plan also calls for the construction of 20,000 apartments which will accomodate 25% of the State Railway staff and will render available on the market an equal number of apartments for the requirements of the population. Up to date 177 milliard and 250 million lire worth of works have been or are being carried out. This plan will have to be co-ordinated with those prepared by the Ministries of Public Works and Agricultura. This report is given in Unità, which also publishes a picture of Minister Sereni with the following caption: "Comrade Ferrari, Minister for Transport, who has given a powerful impulse to the restoration of the railway system destroyed by war." "Popolo" observes that the CIR, on approving the plan in principle, has however subordinated its application to the approval by the Council of Ministers, to an evaluation of the country's general economic situation, and to the availability of the materials required.

4. The Food Requirement Inter-Ministerial Committee met again yesterday and, after having confirmed that it was necessary to enforce the rationing of oil, butter and fat, and having studied the possibility of fixing a single national price for milk, considered the state of wheat supplies, which was not satisfactory. In fact during the first four month of the present agricultural year, 15 million quintals of wheat have been consumed, while none of the 8 million quintals promised by UNRRA has been received. Three technicians, including Raimondi and Mastidda, have been entrusted to proceed to Argentina and examine the possibility of purchasing there the 13 million quintals of wheat which the Govt intends to import. (Mess.). "Avanti!", which gives the report on the meeting under the headline: "UNRRA cannot furnish us the wheat she had promised to send", adds that the Committee considered the possibility of fixing two prices for bread, one political (which is lower owing to State subsidies) and the other economic. The former should apply to the poorer categories of citizens while the latter should apply to the richer ones. The Committee also resolved to divide restaurants into four categories, and that they should collect the bread and "gettoni di ristorno" ration tokens when serving meals. The supplying of pastry, butter and oil apart from the meals is forbidden. Fines up to 100,000 lire for owners of restaurants, suspension from work for waiters, and fines up to 10,000 lire for consumers are the punishments foreseen for those who offend the above rules.

5. The Directorate of the Libertarian Federation has published a protest against the official communiqué issued yesterday by the Presidency of the Council of Minister with regard to the "Amendola case". The Federation rejects the "squadrista" qualification pinned on the MP, and demands that the investigation be carried out in a spirit of absolute independence, without favoring those political groups which are clearly interested with finding that evidence of guilt "which after 5 days from the arrests has not yet been discovered". (Tempo)

6. The old cruiser "Duca", which had been sunk in the port of Leghorn by the Germans, was put on auction by the Ministry of Navy, complete with armour and guns. (Tempo)

7. UNRRA has cancelled the allotment to the retailers of 400,000 mousetraps made in the U.S., as they were found to be infected with the "Bubulino" bacillus, "Momento" reports from Milan.

8. The Representation in Rome of the Austrian Federal Govt yesterday stated to ONBIS that it had no news either concerning ...the possibility of purchasing there the 13 million quintals of wheat which the Govt intends to import. (Mass.).

"Avanti!", which gives the report on the meeting under the headline: "USSR cannot furnish us the wheat she had promised to send", adds that the Committee considered the possibility of fixing two prices for bread, one political (which is lower owing to State subsidies) and the other economic. The former should apply to the poorer categories of citizens while the latter should apply to the richer ones. The Committee also resolved to divide restaurants into four categories, and that they should collect the bread and "generi di finestra" ration tokens when serving meals. The supplying of pastry, butter and oil apart from the meals is forbidden. Fines up to 100,000 lire for owners of restaurants, suspension from work for waiters, and fines up to 10,000 lire for consumers are the punishments foreseen for those who offend the above rules.

5. The Directorate of the Libertarian Federation has published a protest against the official communiqué issued yesterday by the Presidency of the Council of Minister with regard to the "Ambroni case". The Federation rejects the "squadrista" qualification pinned on the FF, and demands that the investigation be carried out in a spirit of absolute independence, without favoring those political groups which are clearly interested with finding that evidence of guilt "which after 5 days from the arrests has not yet been discovered". 7. UNRRA has cancelled the allotment to the retail are of 400,000 sandwiches made in the U.S., as they were found to be infected with the "botulino" bacillus, "Momento" reports from Milan.

8. The Representation in Rome of the Austrian Federal Govt yesterday stated to OMGUS that it had no news either concerning the sentences allegedly uttered by the Austrian Councillor Pfeil and reported by a foreign news agency, or regarding the text of the speech which Pfeil, according to the same agency, was said to have delivered at a meeting of the Austrian Popular party. (see yesterday's Digest, General No. 8).

9. The Constituent Assembly First Sub-Commission yesterday approved some articles of the draft Constitution, stating that private school is free and has a full right to the freedom of teaching, that all citizens have the right to all grades of instruction, with no conditions but that of their disposition and profit; that primary and post-elementary teaching (to be carried out in an eight-year period) is compulsory and free, at least until the 14th year of age; and that the State must spread by any means popular and professional education, and must support private enterprises devoted to this task.

In a leading article entitled: "Change-Currency: Rise-Prices", the writer says that these sentences are the two sides of an equation. In this connection he quotes an example of the behavior of agricultural producers with regard to the change of currency. Because the said agriculturists have hoarded most of the 400 milliard of paper money issued by the various Italian Governments, they are up against the proposition of giving in their money. The change of currency was a great mistake, says the writer, and when ever this news is confirmed in official quarters, rise of prices and progressive inflation are the necessary consequences. He entreats therefore the Government to abstain from taking such a step while there is still possibility to do so.

INDIPENDENTE

In a leading article under the heading: "Stalin, a Sphinx", commenting on the interview granted by the Head of Soviet Russia to Hugh Baillie, President of the United Press, Villalta says that Stalin is a man of sibylline sentences subject to different interpretations. This is the reason why we should put to ourselves the question: "Should we believe him?".

VOCE REPUBBLICANA (Republican)

In headline: "After the arrest of Carlo Andreoni and his comrades - Those responsible for these arrests are seeking a "post-facto" justification - Was it the M.R.P. (Movement of Partisan Resistance) a great nuisance for Communists, Fusion-Socialists and Christian Democrats? A governmental "communiqué" which does not prove the would-be unlawfulness of Biella Partisans - The text of the program and manifesto of the M.R.P.". In addition to these documents the paper informs that at the National Meeting of Partisans held in Milan on 1 September, the representatives of the M.R.P. were not allowed to take the floor, from which it draws the conclusion that Andreoni and his comrades were arrested because they wanted to tell the truth.

GIORNALE DELLA SERA (Monarchist)

1. Under the heading "Always the Fascists", G.d.S. comments on the communiqué issued by the Press Office of the Communist Party and printed in yesterday's "Unità" according to which those responsible for the murders in Emilia and for the terror spread in that region were "Fascist and Monarchist elements and industrialists operating with the complicity of the Government", saying that "we already knew the Communist view-point on the situation as we already had read it in a "Tass" communiqué the previous day", adding that "it is not the first time, and it will not be the last, that the Soviet Information Agency "Tass", 'Unità', 'Radio Moscow' and the 'Press Office of the Communist Party' are echoing to one another for the diffusion of Communist opinion." and that "if they continue doing so they would render the Italian Minister of Interior perfectly useless".

As for the truth contained in this communiqué, G.d.S. reports that the police yesterday arrested two high-ranking Communists for having attacked the monks of S. Bologna Church: one was the Provincial Secretary of the Communist Party and the other a correspondent of Milan's "Unità".

"We all have enough of Fascists and fascism, under whatever disguise they might be" is the article's conclusion.

2. Under the heading "Hell in Puglia with the negro bosses", G.d.S. prints an article by its correspondent in Manfredonia, Giovanni d'Alò on the situation in Puglia under the American troops of occupation. After saying that it is a common sight to see negro soldiers play with Italian babies, he writes: "The Italian Police make from time to time round-ups of "segnorine" but they have been several times hampered by the negro M.P. who have taken under their 'liberator protection' the international women of pleasure of the area and even sometimes have ordered the Italian Authorities to free "segnorine" held in custody".

He then relates that sometime ago an Italian who saw a girl with a negro G.I. and told her "Still roaming are you? Why don't you rest a little" was apprehended by negro M.P.s and clubbed nude on the outside of a balcony. He adds that an M.P. had to fire his revolver in the air to disperse the protesting crowd which

How many humiliations for our poor Fatherland!"

3. Under the heading "Every step is an error" G.d.S. comments on the Govt's measures against Partisan Leaders of Northern Italy and on the interior troubles of the country asserting that "one cannot say if we definitely are on the verge of a ministerial crisis... but the situation unquestionably is such that it could produce surprises from one moment to another".

MORNING PAPERS (October 30)

AVANTI! (Socialist)

Lucio Lussatto criticizes the second sub-commission, charged with the elaboration of the draft-constitution, for its decision about the elections of the second Chamber. Indirect elections in it by fewer small communities, he says, which are much more numerous than big ones. This decision is a new kind invented by bourgeoisie and the old leading classes to reduce and to stop universal suffrage and Democracy, asserts the writer.

POPOLO (Democratic)

1. In a leading article entitled: "We need that they become more and more hateful", the paper takes part in favor of a young "qualunquista" writer, Renato Moretti, and says that "Unità" has falsified several points of a speech delivered by the latter, such as the following sentence. "We have in Italy not only anti-fascist, but also and above all anti-Italian opponents...". According to the paper, this sentence was misconstructed, in a report published by "Unità", as follows: "He who has fought fascism has fought also Italy". The paper adds that Communism, Socialism, Action Party and similar movements existing in Italy today are "Fascism in action", because they are an embodiment of tyranny.

2. In an article under the heading: "Great Britain and Deluxe Fruits", Mario Ferruguti, a technical agriculturist, criticizes both Hon. De Gasperi and Hon. Sforza, because of their alleged incompetence in matter of agriculture, while he praises Mr. Kenny, Director of UNRRA, because he has secured to Italy heavy American tractors particularly suitable for Italian agriculture. Recalling the fact that Italian deluxe peaches are sold in London 340 lire per kilo, the writer urges to expand the cultivation of deluxe fruits. But, in his opinion, the agricultural policy adopted by the present Govt is not such as to favor the spreading of fruit cultivation.

GIORNO (Economic)

1. It reports that a Roumanian Commercial Delegation ordered 3 tugs from Italian shipyards. These tugs will be paid in free currency 78,000 dollars each.

2. The Greek Trade Delegation is on its way

RIFORMA (Pro-Badoglio)

1. In a leading article entitled: "We need that they become more and more hateful", the paper takes part in favor of a young "progressist" writer, Ugo de Moretti, and says that "Unita" has falsified several points of a speech delivered by the latter, and in the following sentence: "We have in Italy not only anti-fascist, but also and above all anti-Italian opponents...". According to the paper, this sentence was misconstructed, in a report published by "Unita", as follows: "He who has fought fascism has fought also Italy". Segni, because of their alleged incompetence in matter of agriculture, while he praises Mr. Kenny, Director of UNRRA, because he has secured to Italy heavy American tractors particularly suitable for Italian agriculture. Recalling the fact that Italian deluxe peaches are sold in London 340 lire per kilo, the writer urges to expand the cultivation of deluxe fruits. But, in his opinion, the agricultural policy adopted by the present Govt is not such as to favor the spreading of fruit cultivation.

Egitto (Economic)

1. G. reports that a Roumanian Commercial Delegation ordered 3 tugs from Italian shipyards. These tugs will be paid in free currency 78,000 dollars each.

2. G. reports that a Greek Trade Delegation is on its way to Italy to examine possibilities of trade relations between the two countries.

3. G. reports that a new water-supply-system in the provinces of Udine, Treviso, Belluno and Belluno will soon be started to bring water to 247,100 acres of land.

4. G. says that within the next 12 months Italy will be able to export the following items: 1,500 tons of tool-machinery, 150 tons of hydraulic compressors, 1,500 tons of road machinery, 500 tons of printing machinery, 1,500 tons of textile machinery, 3,000 tons of building machinery, 1,000 tons of excavators, 1,500 tons of laundry machinery, 500 tons of sewing machines, 20,000 typewriters, 500 tons of pumps, 1,000 tons of stoves, 500 tons of automobile jacks, 200 tons of automatic and plain balances, 1,500 tons of automobile parts, 1,200 tons of refrigerators and heating machinery, 5,000 tons of aspirators and paper machinery, 18,000 motorcars and trucks, 200 tons of automobile motors, 3,000 motorcycles, 50,000 bicycles, 200 locomotives, 200 tons of railway carts, 5,000 tons of taps, 100 tons of surgery instruments, 2000 astronomic and topographic instruments, 100 photo cameras and cinema cameras, 1,000 binoculars, 2 tons of lenses, 3 tons of cinema equipment, 50 tons of checking machinery, 50 tons of calculating machines, 10,000 watches, 22,000 tons of steel and cast-iron products, 500 tons of copper products and 500 tons of aluminium products.

5. G. reports that the Italian Board of Prices has approved an increase of 40% in the price of Italian automobiles.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

The Parties of the Left did not tackle intensively the problem of the nationalization because of the experiences the workers had with it during Fascism, asserts Vittorio Foa. The substitution of a private operator by a public one does not change very much if the State does not at the same time control productive activity. The working class realized that the political control of the State would be the main problem instead of the control by the State. The workers tried to perfect popular influence within the management of works and did not care to enlarge the nationalized sector, states V.F.

ITALIA NUOVA (Liberal) - N.N.

MESSAGGERO (Government)

In a leading article under the heading: "Have not the pretense of reforming the whole world!", the writer criticises a few aspects of the work accomplished so far by the Commission and Sub-commissions entrusted with the task of drafting the new Constitutional Charter of Italy, because in his opinion, the legislative authors of this historic document have heaped up in a number of articles of the document in question, too many philosophic- and sociological principles, the practical application of which would be extremely difficult in common legislature and politics.

1. One of the most urgent and tragic Italian problems is the question of the education of the youth which during twenty years has been poisoned by propaganda in the schools, churches, by radio press and cinema, writes Cesare Basini. Abusing their natural inexperience young Italians were trained for Fascist myth and are sent now for their Fascist attitude to concentration camps, literally thrown in the arms of Monarchists and of those political elements which try to hide their fascist past. Italian Democracy should have the courage, continues the writer, to re-educate those who had the misfortune to have been children when Fascism rose. The fault for the misguided youth should be attributed to those who opened the door for Fascism, the writer concludes.

3. Commenting on Monarchist propaganda for Roman elections the paper says that no Republican regime could liquidate in four months the inheritance of many years of Monarchy even if it would be Pericles' Republic and not the poor little Republic of De Gasperi.

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

There are hundreds of thousands of Italians who with a diploma or a degree are as jobless as the former because they cannot find in our social community the job for which they have studied and that they want to do. He concludes by urging the Govt to do something for the unemployed intellectuals and especially for the teachers and to "call them for the moral reconstruction of the country".

Daily Digest of Rome Press.

GENERAL

1. The Presidency of the Council of Ministers has issued an official communiqué on the partisan secessionist movement headed by Carlo Andreoni, stating that on 18, 19 and 22 October nearly 300 partisans coming from Lombardy and Emilia moved in the communes of Curino, Sostegno, Breseneglo and Massarano (province of Vercelli, Piedmont region). They posted manifestoes with the heading "UMF. Headquarters Cesare Battisti 1st Workers Division", and occupied some buildings. This zone had been the theatre of the partisan fight, and public opinion maintains that numerous arms were hidden in it. The tone of the manifestoes, the large availability of money and military organisation of the movement (which had even issued printed motor-car circulation permits signed "the commander of the area"), and the swift spreading of the secession induced the Govt to act promptly in order to check at the start any demonstration having an illegal and "squadrista" (i.e. like the fascist action squads) character. On 25 October the Milan Police First Flying Squad proceeded to Curino to disperse the secessionists and arrested the leaders of the Movement, Carlo Andreoni, Inzaroli Alfredo, Piazzotta Enzo named "Selva", and miss Ida Colombini, secretary of Andreoni. Most of the partisans returned home, and a company of Carabinieri is now rounding up those who took to the mountains. Also on 25 October the Milan headquarters of the movement were raided by the police and most of the ring-leaders arrested. Documents seized are being examined. With regard to some comments in the press, it is observed that the Govt did not intervene against a party or political movement as such, but against an illegal demonstration having a "squadrista" character which, if not checked at its start, could lead to graver consequences. In this spirit, the Minister of the Interior has instructed the public forces to intervene wherever should develop such attempts of a reviving squadrism, which is absolutely unbearable in a regime of freedom and orderly democracy. "Tempo" comments that the communiqué gives no evidence of the validity of the arrest of Andreoni and the other UMF leaders, and that the sentence "demonstration having an illegal and squadrista character" is astonishing if compared with the vague and circumspect words by Carlo Andreoni, stating that on 18, 19 and 22 October nearly 300 partisans coming from Lombardy and Emilia moved in the communes of Carino, Sestogno, Brezzanzo and Massarano (province of Vercelli, Piedmont region). They posted manifestoes with the heading "MRP. Headquarters Cesare Battisti 1st Workers Division", and occupied some buildings. This zone had been the theatre of the partisan fight, and public opinion maintains that numerous arms were hidden in it. The paper also writes that public opinion is much astonished with regard to the "Andreoni case", because they have been given proof that the method of the old police first to arrest the "enemies" of the Govt and then to manufacture carefully the evidence justifying the arrest still exists. "Italia Nuova" reports that the issuing of this communiqué was decided upon some days ago, but could not be done immediately as the Govt had no "evidence" whatsoever to justify its unusual swiftness in checking the demonstration. In a leading article under the heading: "Public Disorder", commenting on the discredit of the governmental authority brought about by the arbitrary actions accomplished by the parties in power, "Villalta" says that this is the very cause of the situation of chaos and misery from which the country suffers. At the moment when Randolfo Pacciardi is going to Chile in a capacity as extraordinary ambassador, it seems that the purpose of Hon. Nenni, Minister of Foreign Affairs is to fill the ranks of the diplomatic and consular personnel with former anti-fascist militants. 1. Under the heading "the agreement between Confindustria and CGIL may not be signed because the rigid attitude of the industrialists" the paper says that last night Confindustria asserted it was not prepared to sign the agreement except under the worst conditions for the workers. These conditions suggested especially by Sicilian industrialists will not be signed by CGIL. So Confindustria sabotaged the negotiations for the truce between workers and industrialists and placed itself against the country, says the paper.

3. Saragat, warmly welcomed in Naples, stressed in his speech yesterday morning that only the Republic would guarantee the future of Democracy and the emancipation of the working class.

In a leading article entitled: "Clarifying elements", it is said that in the chaotic political situation of the country an element of clarification has finally arisen: the Unity of Action Pact between Socialists and Communists, which has been lately re-asserted, re-newed and broadened. According to the paper the hope of the most liberal elements among the former Party coalition known under the denomination of "Ciellenchia" (Six Party-system) was to cause a break between Socialists and Communists, because a strong, efficient unity of action among these political formations would easily bring the country under their control. MESSAGERO (Government)

1. In a leading article entitled: "The syndical truce", F. Coppola d'Anna announces that negotiations between the Confederation of Labor and of Industry which have been going on for several months for the purpose of reaching a general wage adjustment which would permit a six months truce in the field of wage agitations, have obtained positive, although not definite result. Recalling his previous article published in "Messaggero" (See Digest October 27, page 5) the writer re-asserts that the main necessity for the realization of a reconstruction program of the country is to avoid syndical agitations, in order to increase production and to escape inflation. The agreement, the impending conclusion of which is announced today and which should be followed by others to be negotiated among the various Confederations which preside over the different branches of Italian organized labor, must be considered as a good auspice for a prompt economic recovery of the country.

2. In a note entitled: "Heads of Business and Management Councils", there is published the reply given to "Il Messaggero" by Hon. Giuseppe Togni, President of the Heads of Business Confederation, a new Syndical body established a few days ago. Hon. Togni said that the Heads of business represent the third element of production, that is the technicians, or Technical Managers of industrial, commercial or agricultural establishments. Labor and Capital, as it is well known are respectively the first and second element of production. The technical importance of the functions filled by Managers or Heads of business justifies their separate organization in the framework of the great syndical bodies of Italy. On the subject of the Management Councils, Hon. Togni has declared that they must be entrusted with advisory and not executive functions. The latter belong to the Heads of Business, whose action must not be handicapped by the said Councils, because this would affect the efficiency of the concerned economic establishments.

1. In a leading article entitled "Who votes for Saragat, votes for Togliatti" Panfilo Gentile stresses that the new pact of unity of action between Socialists and Communists is not as much an alliance as an amalgamation. The norms of the pact stipulate the constitution of a common central organ which will effect a unique party. Socialists will be the prisonners of the Communists as the latter have the Russian support and as they have a better disciplined para-military organisation. Referring to the eight points of the pact, P.G. asks whether there is any Italian who would not prevent the revival of the old regime.

He adds that "the C.G.I.L. does not only work for syndical purpose but also with political and revolutionary aims, is in the hands of the Communists, ... and has eliminated syndicalism from industries, agriculture, hospitals, banks, transports, Ministries and provincial administrations".

Socialists will be the prisonners of the Communists as the latter have the Russian support and as they have a better disciplined para-military organization. Referring to the eight points of the pact, R.G. asks whether there is any Italian who would not prevent the revival of the old regime.

T. prints an article by Epicarmo Corbino headlined "The Syndicates and inflation" in which the former Minister of the Treasury says that "if inflation is an element of profit for the industrialists, the progressive inflation of the currency is an essential element of life for the syndicates of workers" and in which he accuses the Italian Confederation of Labor (C.G.I.L.) of favoring inflation. He adds that "the C.G.I.L. does not only work for syndical purpose but also with political and revolutionary aims, is in the hands of the Communists, ... and has eliminated syndicalism from industries, agriculture, hospitals, banks, transports, Ministries and provincial administrations".

2. Commenting on the Govt's official communiqué on the arrest of the Partisan Leaders in Northern Italy, T. says that this communiqué which states that these measures were taken to prevent the "revival of Squadrismo" should have specified what kind of "Squadrismo" were the Partisan Leaders guilty of, so that the people might know whether to despise these partisans or to consider these arrests as a Govt's personal protest against the Partisan Leaders.

UNITA' (Communist) 2061

A four columns communiqué issued by the Press Office of the Italian Communist Party under the heading: "Provocations in Emilia Region", deals with the following points: 1) When acts of violence and crimes began to be committed in the provinces of Bologna, Modena and Reggio Emilia, the interested Provincial Federations of the Communist Party took care to investigate about the possible political or provocatory character of those misdeeds. But, according to the paper, they failed to meet with the co-operation of the competent local authorities and they finally discovered that monarchical and fascist elements were the instigators, leaders and financers of those gangs of would-be political outlaws. The crimes committed during the last few months in Reggio Emilia and Modena provinces are the result of actions made by criminal elements, with whom either the Communist Party or the ANPI (National Association of Partisans of Italy) have nothing to do. 2) A number of crimes perpetrated to the detriment of landowners and industrialists were intended by their authors as a means of extortion. According to "Unità", the purpose of these misdeeds was to extort money from the representatives of the wealthy classes in favor of clandestine fascist and reactionary organization. 3) The communiqué with mentions the following persons and organizations in connection the alleged political and criminal provocations in Emilia region: a) a clandestine organization called "Fiaccola" (Flambeau), headed by Cibellini Giovanni, called "Mario" - b) Pietro Ackermann son of Paolo Ackermann, a prominent member of "Fiaccola" - c) U.R.R.E. (Union of Red European Republics), of which the paper says that "it is believed" that it had at its head a former spy of Fascism and Nazism, Gaetano Isca Cordova - d) Boli Vincenzo, called "Pavone" (Peacock) - e) Olivieri Millo, called "Millo", f) Baldazzini Guido, - g) Bolognini.

GENERAL

1. "Avanti!" and "Unita'" give the full text of the pact of unity of action between the Socialist and Communist Parties, which "Messaggero" summarizes as follows. The two parties have, with due respect for their "full independence and autonomy", stated their common aims, which are: (1) liquidation of all fascist remnants and all attempts for the rebirth of the old regime; (2) defense and consolidation of the Republic and public freedoms; (3) industrial reform (nationalization of monopoly industries, great banks and public services; institution of the management councils); (4) agricultural reform (liquidation of latifundia and large land property; improvement of co-operative organizations); (5) improvement of the living conditions of the manual and intellectual workers; (6) defense of the personality and dignity of the worker (minimum indispensable to live, houses, schools, assistence and social insurence); (7) defense of the real value of the workers' profits, of pensions and of small incomes by means of the defense of the lire; (8) a foreign policy aimed to regain the country's political and economic independence. In order fully to attain the above aims, the pact of unity of action tends toward the democratic conquest of the majority of suffrages and the closest collaboration of the two parties with all other democratic forces. "Tempo" headlines: "A compromise solution. Autonomy and equality of the two parties. From nationalization to the conquest of power. Adoption of the democratic method.".

2. A sort of competition is developing between the U.S. and Great Britain to secure the Italian market, and the struggle is becoming more and more close in view of the impending signature of the peace treaty. It now seems to be certain that the International Bank will allot Italy a first loan of 500 million dollars which, added to the 100 million dollars loan which is about to be granted by the Import-Export Bank, will allow Italy to consider her internal situation with greater tranquillity. In the Wall Street financial circles the news of these loans has been welcomed with much sympathy, and practical plans for the working out of extensive commercial agreements are being drafted in Washington. In this connection, it is foreseen that the Italian Minister for Foreign Trade, Campilli, will make a journey to Washington before long. (Messaggero)

3. The criminal riot additional investigation will be carried out by the Chief of Police. As for the Slav elements who participated in the riot, it has been learned that on 9 October two persons wearing the Allied uniform were seen handing five Beretta pistols to Italian civilians. One of them was also heard asking his companion: "Imas jos druze?", that is "Have you more of them, comrade?" (Messaggero).

to call into session the "Joint Economic Committee" which was created by the Morgan-Jovanovic agreements for the solution of the various transitional problems, have been given no answers." This is enough to deduce that the Allied military authorities are clearly pessimistic with regard to the possibility of carrying out an orderly transfer of powers after the signature of the peace treaty, the report goes on, and we understand that Col. Bowman stated in a reports to Byrnes and Bevin that if things did not change, a situation would develop such as not to justify any optimism concerning future possibility of a permanent settlement of the Venezia Giulia question. It is believed in well informed Anglo-American circles at Trieste and Gorizia that, in view of the almost certain Yugoslav refusal to sign the peace treaty, Byrnes and Bevin may propose the UNO to maintain the present "statuquo" for an additional ten years, and then hold a plebiscite to know the will of the populations. "This is, in my opinion, the only logical solution" a British high-ranking officer declared at Monfalcone, adding immediately "But unfortunately one must consider the famous Russian veto upon which the destiny of Venezia Giulia and perhaps of the European continent will depend." This report is given in almost all morning papers.

9. Following the U.S. strikes, coal allotments to gas factories has been reduced by 20 per-cent., while allotments to other industries have been reduced by 27 per-cent.

The Italian Libertarian Federation has issued an order-of-the-day reacting against the calumnious statements published by the press concerning the MRP leaders, asking for their immediate release and affirming that the MRP's action was in agreement with the legitimate political action which any party is free to carry our in a civilized and democratic country. In a leading article entitled "Legality for everybody", the paper refers to the arrest of the leaders of the MAP at Milan. Legal proceedings should be the appropriate measures for those arrested, and not measures of public security. All the same it should be necessary not to loose the sense for proportions. Procedings must not be different for those who are protected by Government Parties as for those who are without any protection. Recalling the classical Latin sentence: 'Video meliora proboque deteriora sequor?' 1. The paper published the text of the Unity of Action Pact under a eight-column headline.

2. In an interview granted by Hon. Francesco Scotti, Deputy at the Constituent Assembly and representative of Lombardia Region in the National Committee of ANPI (National Association of Partisans of Italy) to Unita', it is declared that the M.I.F. leaders are would-be partisans, already disavowed by the ANPI and that they are in close connection with the National Democratic Front (qualified by Hon Scotti as one of the various "legal" Fascist Parties of Italy), as well with the Trostkist Magazine "Internationale". According to the interviewed, the would-be partisans of Biella and Milan were not unemployed people looking for a job, but plotters against the power of the State; arms and ammunitions were in their possession and they had worked out a plan for the purpose of getting hold of the Prefecture, and the Questura building of Milan. They received subventions from industrialists and they wanted to suppress the Labor Confederation, to cause the Constituent Assembly to be declared illegal, to call a new Referendum and to put again former Minister Corbino in power.

2. Under the heading: "Don Sturzo' errors and Giordani's incomprehensions" the paper reports that Don Sturzo' asserted in his article that a collaboration between Liberals and Christian Democrats would probably not be agreed upon by the masses of his Party", he answered most curteously that Don Sturzo was badly informed as Liberals and Christian Democrats voted in 30 per-cent. of the small communities for the same list. Don Sturzo was wrong a second time when he pointed out that Liberals oppose systematically Christian Democrats. Liberals don't agree with certain tactics of the Christian Democrats and with De Gasperi's weakness. Replying to Giordani the paper asserts that not the Liberal but Gronchi stressed in his interview given to "Tempo" on 24 October that social reforms should be brought about to the detriment of individual freedom.

Angelo Costa, the President of the Italian Confederation of Industrialists replies today to an article by Epicarmo Corbino, the former Minister of the Treasury (see digest 20 october page 5) saying that the Italian industrialists do not want inflation of the Italian currency and are doingall they can to prevent it, and that Corbino is rather "superficial" when he asserts the contrary.

GENERAL

1. Nenni was received by Admiral Stone, Chief Commissioner of the Allied Commission in Italy, yesterday.

2. Referring to the telegram-ultimatum sent to the Presidency of the Council of Ministers by the Emilia Trade Unions (see Digest of 22 October, General No. 9), on Wednesday the Forlì Trade Union sent to the same Presidency the following wire: "We are waiting with curiosity for the 5th of November". On the same day Undersecretary Cappa forwarded the wire to the CGIL with an endorsement saying: "I drew your attention on the unjustifiable and irresponsible tone of this telegram". On the other side, De Gasperi has received copy of a letter sent to the Secretaries of the Emilia Trade Unions by the CGIL stating that "to signal a term made necessary by technical requirements is quite different from giving a character of ultimatum to the telegram sent to the President of the Council of Ministers. This is a thing which we have categorically advised against and which we believe should be discarded in line of principle by the syndical organizations". The letter added that the CGIL believed the wording had distorted the intentions of the Trade Unions, and begged the secretaries to wire again to De Gasperi and "explain him the technical reasons" for the date they had fixed. The CGIL has also sent a letter to De Gasperi, stating that "Apart from the form of the telegram, which we sincerely deplore, we should acknowledge that the situation of the working classes is becoming always more serious and unbearable owing to the steady increase of the cost of living, which threatens to make vain the present effort to reach a wage truce". Unità headlines that "the CGIL, on clarifying the equivocation of the telegram, asks the Govt to take strict measures against speculation by making use of the support of the working classes". "Momento" stresses that the wage truce is endangered.

3. A U.S. specialized firm has been given a contract to print 500 and 1,000 lire bills for the Italian Govt in order to complete the quantity of bills required for replacing the currency now in circulation. The contract will be carried out in a four month period. It has been learned that the Govt circles intend to grant the restoration of the securities to bearer. (Tempo)

5. The AFHQ at Caserta announced yesterday that the Polish Second Corps will leave Italy by the end of November. (Mess.)

7. The Enquiry Commission for the alleged Italian war criminals has examined the position of about 40 Italians (military and civilian)who had been accused of having committed war crimes. The Commission has proposed the Ministry of War to forward the files concerning General Roatta, Governor Bastianini, generals Robotti and Magaldi, and Lt. Colonel Sorrentino, to the judiciary authority in order to ascertain their responsibility. (Mess.)

8. Hon. Micheli, Minister of Marine, has sent a letter to the Minister of Industry, Morandi, tendering his resignation from the office of President of the INA (Insurance National Institute). "Avanti!" comments that the resignation took place with some delay, but anyhow will serve as an example for other persons who hold various offices simultaneously.

9. Negotiations between Italy and France to renew the present trade treaty will take place in December (Avanti!).

10. The Constituent Assembly Second Sub-Commission approved the principle that the two Houses will have equal power to propose laws, and that also private citizens may propose laws, provided that their proposal is supported by 300,000 electors. The Third Sub-Commission, as a conclusion to the debate on the right to strike, passed the following article: "The Third Sub-Commission, acknowledging that it is urgent and necessary to have the law recognise the right to strike and therefore abrogate the fascist restriction, does not deem necessary to have this matter ruled by the Constitution Charter". "Avanti!" gives this report under the headline "will the Second House neutralize the First one?"

11. The Legislative Commission of the Constituent Assembly yesterday discussed the draft law passed by the Govt concerning the wording of the oath of fidelity to the Republic. General Bencivenga (Qualunquista) declared that in his opinion the oath was absolutely useless in a democratic regime as the citizens acted according to their conscience. Andreotti (Christian-Democrat) affirmed that the oath was a constitutional matter and therefore should be discussed by the Constituent Assembly. The Communists and Socialists instead declared that the draft law on the oath should be considered as a provisory measure, and therefore should be included in the powers of the Govt. The Constituent Assembly, they said, should then discuss the definite wording of the oath together with the text of the new Constitution. The Legislative Commission finally resolved, by ten votes against nine, to have the plenary Assembly of the Constituent discuss the draft bill. This report is given by "Unita", which remarks that it will therefore be difficult for servicemen to take the oath by the fixed date of November 4th. The paper also reports that in political circles this resolution

AFTERNOON PAPERS (October 24)

CAPITALE (Christian Democrat) - N.R.

ESPRESSO (Independent) - N.R.

GIORNALE DELLA SERA (Monarchist)

1. What was Truman's exact idea to take up again Roosevelt's four freedoms at a moment in which the Italian Peace Treaty weighes like a marble tomb, not only on the four freedoms but on every freedom, asks the paper in a comment on Truman's speech. Is that what Roosevelt meant by freedom of the speech when De Gasperi obtained just the permission to speak at Paris and was then shoved out of the doors? Have the Italians in Istria, who are being deported by Yugoslavs, their freedom of faith? Is there freedom of want in Italy where all factories have been sistematically dismounted which could become riv l..firms of the British Industry? Is there freedom from fear for Italy, with Yugoslav troops on her territory, and her frontiers open to all invaders from the East as well as from the West?

2. The Slav Communist hunchback Marco Cohnrivic was the first to open fire at the Viminal, reports the paper.

GIORNALE D'ITALIA

1. Has the Interministerial Committee for Reconstruction (C.I.R.) really the intention to aid reconstruction, or does it want to prevent it, asks Eliseo Jandolo commenting on the scale of State subventions foreseen by C.I.R. for house owners.

2. Commenting on the discussions at the Confederation of Industrialists about the final text of the wage agreement, the paper states that these discussions take too much time. In the meantime discontent is still increasing. There is no reason for protracting the discussions about single questions if the main problem has been solved, all the more as the workers cannot wait any longer, asserts the paper.

A leading article signed "Nemo", appears under form of a review and a comment on a book entitled: "I committed the aggression against Greece", written by General Vincenti Prasca, a friend of Field Mashal Badoglio, who was appointed as military leader in the war waged by Mussolini against Greece in the years 1940-41. General Prasca says that he accepted the appointment in a spirit of service and duty, although he was aware of the bad preparation of the war, of the serious dissensions existing between the High Command and the War Staff and of the objectionable justifications of the motives that prompted war. This general was at the end found responsible for the ill-success of the military operations and was dismissed from his post. He highly praises the valour of Italian soldiers who fought heroically for a cause unworthy of their sacrifices and openly emphasizes that the war on Greece was a war of aggression, unworthy of the Italian traditions of civilization and culture.

OSSERVATORE ROMANO (Vatican) - N.N.

QUOTIDIANO (Independent Catholic)

In a leading article entitled: "Conservative spirit?", replying to an article appeared in "Avanti!" of yesterday, in which the catholic parties were reproached to be born with conservative spirit and aims, F. Alessandrini replies that the essential reformation provisions on behalf of the working classes are embodied in Pope Leo XIII's Encyclicals: "Rerum Novarum" and "Quadragesimo Anno", which are an integral part of the program of Italian Christian Democracy. The writer adds that he acknowledges the historic merit of Socialism, consisting mainly in having started the organization of the working class for the purpose of the defense of its general interests, but remarks that owing to the materialistic spirit of the movement, caused by the influence of Marxian doctrines, both Socialism and Communism are wanting in spirituality, namely in one of the most vital elements for building up an orderly and stable social and political system.

TRIBUNA DEL POPOLO - N.N.

VOCE REPUBBLICANA (Republican)

In a leading article entitled: "Before signing", Randolfo Pacciardi remarks that while the Conference of the United Nations in New York will consider again, but only "pro forma", the Peace Treaty with Italy worked out at Paris, Yugoslavia has flatly declared by the voice of Kardelj that she is not satisfied with taking possession of Fiume, Zara, Pola, Istria, and that she is willing to get also the territory of the Trieste Free State. Otherwise she will not subscribe the Treaty. The writer proposes that before subscribing this barbarous "Diktat", the Constituent Assembly of Italy should forward an appeal to all Parliaments of the victor nations, asking them for revision and justice. Such a document, the writer adds, would offer at least a basis, both juridical and moral, for future "revisions". But it would be still better that these particular and minor revisions should be embodied into the largest revision, that is the establishment of the Federative Union among all peoples of Europe and of the World.

Gaetano Russo writes in a leading article entitled "Savings and credit" that the institution of an efficacious public control should be necessary for national savings as well as a movement for an organic study of the great public and private financial problems.

BUONSENSO (Uomo Qualunque)

1. In a leading article under the heading: "Policy of the Oil - Criminal Policy", Hon. Antonio Capua, Deputy at the Constituent Assembly, deals with the announcement made by the Govt, that the total collective storage of oil and of a partial storage of animal fats have been restored. The writer recalls that at the time of the last political elections, the proposition of restoring Free Market for all agricultural produce was shared by Hon. Segni, the Minister of Agriculture and was proclaimed, at least in the southern section of the country, by the Christian Democrats. He adds that the situation brought about by this governmental decision is immoral, because as a consequence of it a few categories of producers are subject to the collective storage regime, with great damage for themselves and progressive impoverishment for entire regions of Italy. The discredit of the institution of collective storages, aggravated by the unjust Gullo-Mentasti law, and made even worst by the provisions lately enacted by the Govt concerning a total compulsory delivery of the produce as well as a compulsory official price enacted without the consent of the producers, will increase the chaos and uneasiness which characterize the economic situation of the country, is the conclusion of the article.

2. In a note "An advice to all parents", reference is made to a greetings item published in "Unità" addressed to Ilio Bosi, on the occasion of his appointment to the post of General Secretary of the "Federterra". In this item it was said that "Ilio Bosi will give to "Federterra" a contribution of the great experience gained during his 14 years of jail". In this connection Buonsenso remarks: "This is a very precious item for parents, indeed! To educate and train their sons for a profession, parents could from now on send them to jail, where they will be enabled to learn all professions, included that of Secretary General of a Confederation".

3. G. says that trade relations between Italy and the South African Union are gradually increasing, and adds that in the first seven months of 1946 Italy exported 1,028,401,000 lire worth of goods to South Africa and imported 421,502,000 lire worth of South African products. 2655

1. Riccardo Lombardi explains in a open letter of more than five columns addressed to the Secretary of the Confederation of Labor his program for the reconstruction of the country. He points out that CGIL should not defend the interests of single categories of workers only but of the whole working people including the unemployed. The leadership of CGIL by the three parties of the masses causes very often compromises which paralise the actions of the Confederation. The writer, who rejects the maintenance of the "dismissals blocking", favors the institution of a voluntary labor corps and a public control for economic societies.

2. The Sicilian Savarino, an enraged adversary of the continent, found for his paper (Giornale d'Italia) the Neapolitan "Milanese-eater" Carlo Scarfoglio as a formidable ally, writes Micron. The collaboration of these two journalists represents a kind of "New Kingdom of the two Sicilies" in the journalist sphere, which will render a very bad service for national pacification.

ITALIA NUOVA (Liberal)

1. I.N. makes a survey of De Gasperi's policy as Foreign Minister from his appointment on December 1944 to his substitution by Nenni a few days ago, commenting as follows: 'From 1944 to 1946 our governments have not even had the slightest strategic idea or the smallest tactical plan for the defense of Italian interests. They have lived day by day pursuing no policy, but the one of submission to the victors. ... Our Peace, therefore, looks like our defeat. The Democratic Italy has not done a pace forward since 25 July 1943, the day on which Fascism was overthrown. De Gasperi not only did not defend Italian interests at the Luxembourg Conference, but even increased the hostility of the victors against Italy. He has been abandoned by everyone, even by the French Christian-Democrats. ... Our Delegation performed a very bad job at the Paris Conference; our representatives worked badly and inattentively, every one for himself, without any collaboration, without any practical scheme, without any actual chief. Therefore, they made it possible to the victors to render Italy powerless with the pretext that they wanted to prevent a further Italian aggression. ... And the article concludes: "He who wants to serve Italy's Foreign policy today must place himself above all the Italians, act with dauntless courage and think of the future generation; remember this Mr. Nenni".

"which theoretically is an independent organism but actually is under Communist control, to exert on the Govt a pressure similar to that which De Gasperi has organized on the Govt from the inside and the outside of it".... wondering if "the Italian workers who are tired with syndical questions must today sacrify their tranquillity and their economic advantages, to follow Di Vittorio's strategical plans".

ALSCAGERO (Government)

In an article entitled: "What are they plotting on the other shore of the Adriatic? - Yugoslavia and Albania would simultaneously prepare a concerted action against Trieste and Greece - Mines laid down in the Otranto canal might be part of an aggression plan - Strong impression aroused in London as a consequence of the incidents lately caused to two British destroyers", it is reported that in the governmental circles of London as well as among the public in general, a great concern reigns after the incidents occurred to the British destroyers in the Otranto canal, in which 8 marine were either injured or killed. People wonder as to whether this is simply a part of the war on nerves, or an indication of a more serious plan of hostilities prepared and directed by Moscow, of which Yugoslavia and Albania would be advanced patrols.

MOMENTO (Independent Leftist)

The symptoms of a dangerous aggravation of the Italian internal situation are still increasing, states the paper. The truce for salaries which seemed to be established is once more in danger. The Chambers of Labor in Emilia send one ultimatum after the other to the Govt. Partisan agitations begin again in several zones of Northern Italy. Public order and the safety of the citizens are rather precarious in Emilia, and the peasants in Central and Southern Italy show already impatience for the results of the protracted discussions of the commissions charged with the proceedings for the allotment of land. All this people do not serve social stability, as they might happen to believe, but serve the cause of revolution, concludes the paper.

IL SAGGIATORE (Government)

In an article entitled: "What are they plotting on the other shore of the Adriatic? - Yugoslavia and Albania would simultaneously prepare a concerted action against Trieste and Greece - Mines laid down in the Otranto canal might be part of an aggression plan - Strong impression aroused in London as a consequence of the incidents lately caused to two British destroyers", it is reported that in the governmental circles of London as well as among the public in general, a great concern reigns after the incidents occurred to the British destroyers in the Otranto canal, in which 8 marine were either injured or killed. People wonder as to whether this is simply a part of the war on nerves, or an indication of a more serious plan of hostilities prepared and directed by Moscow, of which Yugoslavia and Albania would be advanced patrols.

MOMENTO (Independent Leftist)

The symptoms of a dangerous aggravation of the Italian internal situation are still increasing, states the paper. The truce for salaries which seemed to be established is once more in danger. The Chambers of Labor in Emilia send one ultimatum after the other to the Govt. Partisan agitations begin again in several zones of Northern Italy. Public order and the safety of the citizens are rather precarious in Emilia, and the peasants in Central and Southern Italy show already impatience for the results of the protracted discussions of the commissions charged with the proceedings for the allotment of land. All this people do not serve social stability, as they might happen to believe, but serve the cause of revolution, concludes the paper.

RISORGIMENTO LIBERALE (Liberal)

1. Replying to don Sturzo's article in yesterday's "Popolo", R.L. asserts that Liberals do not oppose Christian Democrats for dogmatic reasons and also not in order to attract voters, but for the continuous abjurations of the program which the Christian Democrat Party promised its voters to carry out. Christian Democrats contrast with Liberals scarcely in social matters, but very often in politics because Christian-Democrats fear to oppose openly the Communists, says the paper, adding that don Sturzo was very badly informed when he wrote his article.

2. The problem of the Italian diplomatic relations with the Spanish Govt can be seen from two different points of view, says the paper. The realistic point of view considers only the fact whether the diplomatic relations are in the material interest of the country or not. The agreements, credits, commercial exchanges etc. between Germany and Russia were made by both parts under the realistic point of view of the interest of the respective countries. The idealistic point of view rejects any relation with countries in which there is no freedom of the press and of political propaganda and where political opponents are shot. The idealistic point of view, however, does not make any difference between "good" and "bad" tyrants so that the application of the idealistic point of view would prevent Italy from keeping diplomatic relations with all countries in which the freedom of the press is not guaranteed and where the shooting of political opposers is in the common practice. Mr. Facciardi, therefore, can not be idealistic with regard to Franco and at the same time "Real-politiker" with regard to Tito, concludes the paper.

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

Commenting on Togliatti's latest article in "Unità", (See Digest 23 October, Page 9, Para 1), and answering to Togliatti's assertions that "Giordani, Genella and Andreotti are anti-Communists", Gullo Andreotti writes today an article headlined "We and Togliatti" by which he tries to explain the reason of the recent polemics between the Christian Democrats and the Communists. He gives the following arguments: "There are Mayors and syndicalists of many provinces who come to Rome and discuss with ministers and government technicians; do you think they do all this for the people? - Not at all! they instead write manifestoes and messages of challenge against any Government's organization. One Chamber of Labor of Emilia has even had the front to cable to the President of the Council the insolent phrase "We are awaiting with CURIOSITy for 5 November" (See General above). The Communist Party continues its anti-Christian Democrat activity by publishing and diffusing any kind of libels against De Gasperi and the Christian Democrats even by means of its official press. ... Togliatti now accused the Christian Democrats with making "double dealing". This is evidently a counter-attack. ... As for Togliatti's mention to the Scoccimarro-De Gasperi meeting of 19 October, we must precise that "Unità" started the quarrel the very next morning by publishing a false summary of the meeting and continued by pursuing a bitter polemic against the Christian Democrat Ministers in the Government".... and where the shooting of political opposers is in the common practice. Mr. Pacciardi, therefore, can not be idealistic with regard to Franco and at the same time "Real-politiker" with regard to Tito, concludes the paper.

UNITA' (Communist)

In a "corsivo" article entitled: "Small rural property and State contribution", and signed "D.Z.", the writer deals with the Draft-law that Hon. Segni will submit to the meeting of the Council of Ministers on the question of favoring the expansion of small agricultural holdings by means of special Govt contributions. The writer remarks that although the purpose of such a law would be just in itself, it is unpractical for several reasons, the most important of which, in the opinion of the writer, is the following: the financial contribution of the State for the acquisition of agricultural holdings by peasants, will favor the speculation, that is the increase of the price of land. To avoid such an inconvenience, the writer suggests to appoint a special commission empowered to fix the price of rural property to be sold to the peasants under a regime of State contributions.

GENERAL (Concluded)

12. Most papers report that a new secessionistic movement of partisans is under way under the sponsorship of the MRP (see yesterday's Digest, General No. 6), which has its headquarters in Milan at Via Ionte Napoleone, 13. The official reason for the secession is to create labor fields for work of reconstruction in the Biella zone but, "Messaggero" observes, this zone is among those most spared by the revages of war and one of the richer of Italy. The movement, which has declared to be anti-communist, is composed of extremist marxist, anarchists and trotskyites. The MRP has flooded Milan and other cities of the North with manifestoes attacking the Italian Partisans National Association and presenting ten demands to the Rome Government. "Momento" reports that the operation plan of the movement would develop according to the following lines: organization, deployment, overthrowing of the Italian Partisans National Association and fight for seizing control of the Government.

GENERAL

1. The Council of Ministers will meet tomorrow and De Gasperi will report on the findings of the investigation concerning the Viminal riot. Dr. Battino, Head of the Political Office of the Rome Questura, has sent to the Investigating Commission a long report, stating that fire was opened from a building at Via Palermo; that during the demonstration the workers were supplied with arms and hand-grenades by foreign elements, precisely Slav; that clubs were distributed by a truck at Via Genova, and that the behaviour of the police was moderate and prudent, as was shown by the number of injured persons. Concerning the threatening order of the day sent to the Govt by the Emilia Trade Unions (see Digest of 22 October, General No. 9), De Gasperi communicated to the Confederation of Labor that he deplored the disrespectful tone of the demand, which was most unjustified since the Govt was already examining the problems of prices and rationing. Minister Nenni will report on the Trieste question and will announce the composition of the Italian Delegation which is to go to New York. Ambassadors Cattani, Tarchiani, Quaroni and Lupi Iolli di Soragna will be members of the said delegation. (Messaggero). "Avanti!" adds that Nenni has declared he has no intention of going to New York as head of the Italian Delegation.

2. The Parliamentary Group of the Christian-Democrat party yesterday afternoon concluded the discussion of the peace treaty and passed two orders-of-the-day. With the first the Group expresses to De Gasperi its gratitude and solidarity. With the second one, the Group, after having protested against the materialistic concept of international relations which inspired the draft treaty, (a) reaffirms its solidarity with the population of Venezia Giulia and other territories detached from the mother country, (b) "expresses the opinion that, at the present stage of things, neither the Parliamentary Group nor the Party could assume the responsibility for proposing to accept the peace conditions which we have news of now", (c) appeals to the Four Foreign Ministers and to the United Nations to reconsider the position of Italy which is ready to co-operate with other people on the ground of freedom, democracy and peace. To the telegram sent to him by the Italian Foreign Minister, Nenni, the U.S. Secretary of State Byrnes replied as follows: "Italy has already given proof that the years of oppression could not suppress the democratic spirit of her people. Such a spirit, I trust, will enable her to overcome difficulties which resulted from war, and to work with all free and peace-loving peoples. The Italians can count on the full support of the American people and I shall be happy to work with you to strengthen ever more firmly the close ties which bind our countries."

Undersecretary to the Presidency of the Council of Ministers, Chiaro, reaffirmed that the Govt wanted the law to be inspired to the criterion of an ample freedom of press, and urged the Commission to speed up its work so as to enable the Constituent Assembly to discuss the Press Law together with the new Constitution. 5. The new Constitution. The Constituent Assembly First Sub-Commission yesterday approved the following articles: (a) "Art and science are free and also free is their teaching. Every citizen has a right to receive an adequate instruction and education to develop his own personality and to carry out the social tasks." (b): "Elementary, medium and superior instruction are among the more important functions of the State. In order to ensure a partial control of education and to guarantee the community, the law disposes that the legal titles for admission to superior studies and for professional qualification be issued by means of State examination". The Second Sub-Commission approved the principle of self-convocation of the two Houses. In the Third Sub-Commission, Di Vittorio proposed the acknowledgment of the political general strike, which should be an arm in the hands of the masses for defending democracy against a comeback of reaction. The Christian-Democrat Secretary of the CGIL, Rapelli, and other Deputies of the same parties opposed Di Vittorio's proposal arguing that syndicates should remain non-political organizations. The members of this movement bear a star on their chests with the Garibaldi title (Partisan Resistance Movement) and have made road works and received supplies from Milan and Biella. All expenses for the materials will be paid with funds offered voluntarily by the wealthy people of the Biella industrial zone. Commander "Selva" has declared that if the Govt should interfere with his work, ten thousand partisans, who are waiting for his order to arm themselves, will be mobilized. 1. The decision whether to be for or against Communism was for every Party one of the most important questions during the Italian referendum, asserts Ruggero Moniglione. The Christian Democrats and All Liberals and Democrats were anti-communistic as well as the masses which voted for Socialist Party. The electoral autonomy of the Socialist Party showed that the working people made the difference between serious socialism and the folly of a Communistic speedy, tic revolution. Four-fifths of the people, therefore, voted against Communism. The fact that several important Ministries were confided to Communists who contrast with the overwhelming majority of the country is the cause for the present impotence of the Government, asserts the writer.

There was a Nedic Government, a great State under Pavelic and the Natsche which fought with the Germans against Russia. 1. We cannot share Bevin's opinion about the peace forced upon Italy, comments Antonio Borgoni on Bevin's speech at the House of Commons. It will not be necessary to wait for the judgment of history to realize that this peace is neither just nor intelligent. Bevin's opinion that Trieste should be considered as a problem of international commerce means the opening of the flank to those who consider the Trieste question exclusively as a strategical one.

2. It seems that the groups of Chetniks, who have been in Emilia several weeks, will replace the Polish who are about to leave, says the paper. These Serbian partisans fought first under General Mihailovitch against Pavlovic's Ustascha and afterwards together with the latter against Tito's partisans. It would seem unworthy to us to deliver these 60,000 Chetniks to Tito but we cannot admit that they remain in Italy all the more as they are armed by the Allies and concentrated in Italian provinces, concludes the paper.

BUONSENSO (Bono Judicque)

1. In a leading article entitled: "Responsibility of yesterday and tomorrow", commenting on the speech delivered by Hon. De Gasperi at the Parliamentary Group of Christian Democracy, the writer recalls the negative results of the action carried out by the former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Italy during the months of May and June last, when the cause of Trieste and the Colonies was irreparably lost, because of the absence of De Gasperi and Sforza from Paris. Recalling that on that occasion the politicians holding responsible positions in the Government of State affairs neglected the most important interests of the nation for the sake of securing to themselves a success at the poll, the writer adds that the noble speech delivered afterwards by De Gasperi at the Peace Conference in defence of the country's interests, could not possibly make amends for the sins committed before by him, the consequences of which will be felt not only by Italians of today but also by future generations.

2. In a marginal note entitled: "Strange inquiries at the A.R...R.", a protest is voiced against the unjust investigations to which the personnel of the A.R...R. (Agency for Recovery and Sale of War residues) is submitted, apparently for purpose of mere dismissals.

4. G. reports that an Italian company has bought 22,050 Lbs of American raw nylon to be manufactured in Italy. The price of purchase was almost half the price of raw silk and the paper wonders if this event means the end of the Italian silk industry.

5. G. reports that Italo-Swiss trade relations have almost reached their pre-war standard and that Italy stands in fourth place in Switzerland's trade after the United States, Argentina and France.

6. G. says that the Italian radio industry works now at slow rate because the power of absorbtion of radios in Italy is inferior to the output and that the "National Association of Electrotechnical Industries" has decided to export Italian radio surplus. The Ministry of Commerce was yesterday informed that 100,000 radios and 500,000 radio lamps worth 150 million lire and 450 million lire worth of separate pieces were available for export.

Under the headings: "What happens at Biella?", I.N. reports that three hundred men arrived a week ago in Biella saying they were ex-partisans entrusted by the Government to repair roads and art works. They are all armed and are requisitioning for their food and lodging; everything they need paying regularly. They have a "Headquarters" which issues the requisition orders and the disciplinary measures. The "National Association of Italian Partisans" has not recognized this movement and the Government knows nothing of it. The paper says that they seem to be squatters from Emilia, Lombardia and Venezia Giulia and adds that the Govt should do something about this because "Italy is not a Far West where men can plough the earth with guns on their shoulders".

1. It is really exaggerated to say, as Togliatti did in his article, that the Christian Democrat Party is supported by the masses which want to go towards socialism but don't want yet a Socialist leadership, states Paolo Vittorelli. Togliatti should know that the Christian Democrat Party is formed by two bodies which have a common soul, the faith. The two bodies are formed by the Party members of which seven-tenths voted in the referendum for Republic and by those who voted for Christian Democrats without being Party members and of whom seven-eighths voted in favor of Monarchy. If Togliatti will not forget these facts he will avoid the delusions which pushed his French companions to break the agreement with the French Christian Democracy.

confronting the country has made a few declarations, that is: Unemployment and food supply are the most important and urgent problems to be solved at the present moment. In Emilia region a good many murders and other crimes were committed, but they have no political character. The police made many investigations, arrests, discoveries and seizure of arms and ammunition. It is a firm purpose of the Govt to resume and intensify the action of repression against black market. The stern measures approved by the Council of Ministers in this regard, will be inexorably carried out.

Two phantom-Parties which had no prospect to succeed by their own forces participate in the Block. The directorship of the Block has been taken by the Communists who had less voters in Rome than the Socialists. The Popular Block took for its propaganda-aims the name and the image of Garibaldi, the hero of the freedom of the peoples, in order to complete the democratic masquerade. I though that this sacrifice would have partially contributed to the revival of Italy. I did not think we could have ended in victory a war which we started with those who lost it, but I believed that the fact that we should have accepted without any discussion all the terms of the armistice would have been of benefit to our country....

We were wrong. He who does wrong must pay. We were the allies of injustice and oppression and it was just that the defenders of Justice, Liberty and Democracy should punish us. We nevertheless had one duty: to believe in the word of the victors. We have obeyed and have bet on this with the blood of our sons. ...

At the Military Academy I learnt a little English; I have almost forgotten all of it now except one phrase which strongly impressed me. It is a motto: "RIGHT OR WRONG, IT IS MY COUNTRY". I admired the British for this phrase, and I thought that if I had become their prisoner, I would have affirmed proudly that this motto is as true for an Italian as it is for an Englishman....

It happened now that the word on which we had believed, and on which we bet the lives of our sons is untrue and is a lie. ... We have not been judged worthy of any consideration and not even of a little respect: the word given to an Italian is not worth anything."

And the letter, which is signed: "A father", concludes: "What on earth would these men who would accept this indignous peace treaty ever teach to the younger generation? - Would they ever dare speak of Justice, Liberty, Faith in the given word, or International Justice to anyone from the very moment they would sign the 'act of betrayal'? UNITA' (Communist)

1. Hon. Umberto Terracini interviewed by "Unità" on Constitutional on the work made by the Sub-Commission entrusted with the discussion of the Second Chamber issue, has made the following statements: It is only too well that Republicans and Christian Democrats have agreed in favor of the proposition that the Second Chamber should prevail over the first, that is to the detriment of the political powers conferred on the Parliament. Communists consider such a stand as undemocratic and also politically very dangerous, because the Parliament could be at the discretion of a veto by a House not appointed directly by the people. Such a stand, according to the interviewed is in contradiction with the program set forth by Christian Democracy before the election of the 2 July. Owing to the disparate opinions prevalent among the members of the Sub-commission in question, the conclusions reached by the same on the subject of the Second Chamber are arbitrary, incoherent and impractical. They would not offer a basis for a strong and steady Republican regime.

2. In a "corsivo" note entitled: "Have I well understood my colleague in journalism?", replying to an article published in "Il Popolo" by Hon. Giordani, General Director of Christian Democracy, "U.N." remarks that Giordani incurred a contradiction when he stated that Communists are responsible for the alleged 35,000 murders committed in Emilia region. "U.N." recalls further that in Sicily, where the members of Christian Democracy greatly outnumber Communists, horrible crimes are taking place, which often remain unpunished.

GENERAL

1. The Council of Ministers met again yesterday, and adhering to a proposal made by the Interministerial Committee for Reconstruction resolved to convoke at Rome in November an Economic National Conference having informative and consultative authority on economic and financial problems on which the Government is to take action. The date for the opening of the Conference will be set in agreement with the President of the Constituent Assembly in order to avoid a simultaneous meeting of the Constituent and the Economic Conference. Nenni then took up again the question of measures proposed by him against those local government employees who had been cleared of epuration charges but now were considered "undesirable". Nenni's project was opposed by many Ministers and the discussion was referred to another meeting of the Council. Ministers Gullo (Communist) and Micheli (Chr. Dem.) will study the project, which should not lead to the reopening of epuration proceedings. (Messaggero). "Italia Nuova" headlines that Nenni has reopened the epuration of local government employees, and in its editorial affirms that this move complies with the intention of the three mass parties to keep the country in constant agitation and thus justify the all too numerous exceptional laws, and is also a threat against those persons who are to carry out most delicate tasks during the present local elections. "Unita" reports that the Council of Ministers has appointed Mario Assennato (Communist) as new Undersecretary for Industry and Commerce. The paper also affirms that the Directorate of the Communist party had resolved that Antonio Giolitti (former Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs) should fill this post, but Giolitti believing himself not competent for the new office, refused it.

2. The Directorate of the Socialist party held another meeting last night, reportedly by demand of the members of the "Socialist Initiative" trend of the party (Zagari, Matteotti, etc) who, being dissatisfied with the resolution issued by the Directorate after the previous meetings, stressed that it was necessary for the party to reconsider its policy in order to clarify the attitude to be adopted within the Government. 4. The Executive Giunta of the Confederation of Industrialists issued yesterday an order of the day approving the recent wage increase agreement and inviting the Government to follow a policy of allowing the increase of production. The order of the day also expressed the wish that the creation of the "Region", recently passed by the Constituent Assembly Sub-Commissions which are drafting the new constitution, will not harm the Italian economy and will not impair the economic unity of the country. A special commission of the Confederation has been entrusted with the task of examining the problems of management councils, compulsory arbitration on labor agitations and coal imports. (Tempo)

The gang of forgers includes a cousin of Starace, who was secretary of the Fascist party. The Accursio printing office reportedly operated in close cooperation with another printing office located at Naples.

The Constituent Assembly First Sub-Commission has passed the following article: "Labor and its concrete participation in the economic, social and political organizations is the foundation of Italian democracy". 1. In a leading article under the heading: "The March on Palazzo Chigi", the paper says that a deep apprehension reigns in the Old Palace where the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Italy has its seat, because of the impending entering of a new Minister. The reason lies in the fact that most of the Italian Political Parties, when they partake in a Government, entrust such official positions as Ambassador, Plenipotenziary Minister, General Consul and the like to party-members, irrespective of professional aptitudes or preparedness for such appointments. In this article it is remarked that the disastrous outcome of the Italian official participation in the Peace Conference, is due in a large extent to the "political ambassadors policy". The writer takes a firm stand against the adoption of such a system, which has a deteriorating effect on our diplomatic service. To offer an example in this connection, the writer reminds that when some one was taking the position that the Foreign Office should adopt a system similar to that which is in force at Palazzo Chigi, Bevin replied that he would continue to employ professional personnel for the conduct of Great Britain's foreign policy.

2. In a short news item from Lucca it is reported that as the result of a collision between a motor-truck of the S.I.C. In a leading article entitled: "Generosity", Roberto Suster says that the act, by the United States, of refunding occupation expenses to Italy, was highly appreciated by public opinion in this country. American citizens of Italian extraction were instrumental in the accomplishment of such a generous act. Although their voice was not heard at the Luxembourg Palace, they did their best to alleviate the situation in Italy. In sharp contrast with the humanitarian spirit of America, stands the cold indifference of England, the hypocritical enmity of France and the implacable duress of other nations who would be willing to have the Italian country wither from the face of the earth.

MORNING PAPERS (October 19)

AVANTI (Socialist)

Referring to Pietro Nenni's appointment as Foreign Minister, Sandro Pertini says that the main task of the Socialist Minister will be the maintenance of peace for Italy. A Socialist Minister at the Chigi Palace will be the best guarantee to avoid war for foreign or Italian imperialism, continues the writer recalling Nenni's program which he explained in one of his last speeches which proposed (a) revision of the Peace Treaty before its signature, (b) loyal policy of international solidarity with regard to all powers, (c) conclusion of commercial agreements with other countries in order to obtain raw materials for the Italian industry and to sell its products, (d) organisation of new emigration to Europe and America.

UOMO QUALUNQUE (Uomo Qualunque)

In a leading article under the title, "De Gasperi's illusions", the writer asserts that the Italian Premier and Christian Democracy in general suffer from an inferiority complex, whereby their political action is paralyzed by the fear of coming into conflict with communists. On the other side the political and social action of the Communist Party is of such a compromising and subversive character, as to render impossible in a long run all co-ordinate and constructive governmental policy. This party pretends, according to "Buonsenso", that the Govt. ignores the recruiting of communist armed bands which is happening now in the Emilia region. The writer concludes that the situation has become so serious that De Gasperi will be compelled, perhaps in a month or so, to come to a definite breaking with Togliatti's Party, the policy of which, with regard to Christian Democracy is wholly based on threats and extortions.

ITALI. LIBERA (Action)

1. Paolo Vittorelli writes that the Italian Parties of the Left will probably soon take the same decision as the French Communists did when they broke with the MRP and the block of the three parties. The necessity to avoid ambiguity will induce Left wing Parties in Italy to form popular, Republican or democratical blocks for the next administrative elections, asserts the writer.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785016

2. Replying to the statement in "Quotidiano" that "Italia Libera" accentuated its anti-clerical inspiration, L.d. says that its position could only be "anticlerical" if one would admit the existence of a "clerical danger".

3. The paper publishes a photostatic reproduction of a Christian Democrat placard which proclaims that, induced by Chiesa in section of Christian Democrat Party, the High Commissioner for Food provided an extraordinary distribution of 450 quintals of polenta flour for Chiesa in community.

ITALIA NUOVA (Liberal)

1. Under the heading "Working is not enough", Riccardo Sabino says: "We work, we produce, we sell and we trade with foreign countries... but this is not enough: we must also have our workers protected politically against the new Leftist constitution..."

2. Under the heading "Or land or death!" and "Sicily: great manoevers of the proletarian revolution", Mario della Valle, "Italia Nuova's" correspondent in Palermo reports on the new troubles in Sicily saying that "well organized and armed groups of men with a vanguard, infantry, cavalry and a rear-guard are proceeding to occupy lands and that the local authorities do not attempt in any way to enforce the law.

MESSAGGERO (Government)

In a leading article entitled: "A Socialist at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs", commenting on the appointment of Hon. Nenni as Minister in office at Palazzo Chigi, the writer remarks that Nenni's republican and Mazzinian political education as well as his keen patriotic feeling acknowledged even by Benedetto Croce, are a guarantee that he will be able to defend not only the legitimate national interests, but also the dignity of the country during his term of appointment. His patriotic stand was reaffirmed a few days ago at Genzo, during a commemoration speech delivered in honor of Filippo Turati, one of the greatest Italian socialists. The delusions that our country has endured at the Paris Peace Conference have shown that the would-be humanitarian principles of Anglo-saxon propaganda are worthless, because they identify the interests of the Fatherland with those of plutocracy. Italy asks the new Minister of Foreign Affairs not to give up her legitimate rights on the Lybian issue as well as on all other questions of national interest and to fight against the

NOLNTO (Independent Leftist)

1. Many Socialists are Foreign Ministers in Europe and Socialists participate in nearly all European Governments but there are very few signs of socialism to be seen in the international relations, laments "I." commenting on Pietro Nenni's appointment as a Foreign Minister. Churchill and Eden could not have acted worse with regard to Italy and with regard to justice than Atlee and Bevin did at the Peace Conference. The sense for international solidarity appeared considerably also in Socialist parties. The paper welcomes Nenni's program and stresses that the realisation of this program will be Nenni's first constructive task.

2. Referring to the Corsi case, the paper asks for a minimum of loyalty in the fight between the political parties.

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

Under the heading "Two years of Foreign policy", P. sums up De Gasperi's activity as Minister of Foreign Affairs from December 1944 up to the present, pointing out his "policy of friendship with all Allied powers".

MOVIMENTO LIBERALE (Liberal)

1. Referring to the discussion of the Govt about the status of butter rationing, Pantilo Gentile writes that Italy will starve suffocated by the obstinate ignorance of the twelve dilettanti who rule the destiny of unfortunate Italy.

2. Nicimaro stresses the resemblance between the present tendency of Italian political Parties to form political blocks and the totalitarian groups such as the Dollfuss "patriotic block" or France's "Telange". The next step of the Italian political blocks will be to divide the population into those having full political rights owing to their membership in the parties participating in the Govt and those having restricted political rights owing to their different political opinion.

UOMO (Independent)

1. Ettore della Riccia says that if it does not rain soon the population of Rome will have to endure serious privation of water during this winter and that electricity will even become scarcer for the same reason. He also announces an increase in the price of cooking-gas.

2. In a note from Milan under the title: "A serious threat to the resumption of national production - Why electric power is lacking", it is said that, according to information drawn from competent sources, the drought from which the country is suffering now, is not the only cause for the lack of electric power throughout Italy. Other causes to be accounted for are: the insufficiency of thermo-electric centrals, the speculation policy and a lack of co-ordination in the activity of the Electric Companies, both in the production and distribution of the same power. The only remedy, in the opinion of the paper, would be immediate and energic action on the part of the Government.

In a note from Bologna entitled: "The second day of the 'Federterra' Congress - Peasants who ask for the land are acting within the law", it is reported that the following speakers took the floor yesterday at the Congress: Spagnolini and Fabbri, Secretaries of the Milan's Federation, Angelo Santini and Zini of the National Secretariat and Brandani of the Rome's Federterra. The latter denounced the existence of hundreds of thousand of hectares of uncultivated land in Latium. A delegation of the Front of Youth headed by Cesare Fredduzzi brought greetings to the Congress. After the end of the Congress a mass-meeting was held in Piazza Maggiore.

Daily Digest of Rome Press.

GENERAL

1. At the opening of yesterday's Council of Minister, De Gasperi announced Nenni's appointment to the Foreign Ministry. Nenni will formally take office today. Christian Democrat Pella will replace Scoca at the Undersecretariat of Finance, and Undersecretary Brusasca (Chr. Dem.) will be transferred from Industry and Commerce to Foreign Affairs. Socialist Stampacchia will be Undersecretary for Navy. The Communist Party has reserved the right to name the new Communist Undersecretary for Industry and Commerce. The Council then examined the food situation, and the High Commissioner for Food, Montesi, reported that the cereals campaign was satisfactory. As for wheat, 20 million additional quintals were necessary despite the good harvest. 8,300,000 quintals have been promised by UNRRA, and the remaining quota should be purchased on foreign markets. Montesi then said that the sugar ration would not be reduced, and that the enforcing of butter rationing was not certain yet, while for the pork rations it was a case of choosing between their total or partial suppression. He also reported that measures had been taken to ensure the supply of milk to the great consumption centers and that a single price would be fixed for milk. Montesi again affirmed he was against fixed price-lists as he believed the action of regional Price Committees was the best for checking price increases. After a lengthy debate, the Council approved the measures proposed by Montesi. A Commission composed of Campilli, Morandi, Fiorelli, Soreni and Segni will study further measures to submit for approval to the next Council of Ministers. Morandi then announced that textiles obtained from the manufacture of UNRRA cotton would be distributed by the end of November. The Council resolved to convert into a law the De Gasperi arbitration on share-cropping. Provincial Commissions headed by a magistrate and including a representative of the land-owners and a representative of the share-croppers will be set up in order to take into consideration, on applying the law, the particular economic conditions of the various provinces. Decisions taken by these Commissions will be compulsory. Minister Segni was entrusted with the task of preparing the relative draft-decree. The Council of Ministers will meet again today. The rumor reported by some papers that De Gasperi would relinquish the portfolio of the Interior is groundless. (Rossi/ere)

2. At the close of its labors last night, the Directorate of the Socialist Party issued a resolution stating that it deemed impossible further delay on Nenni's assumption of the Foreign Ministry approved the line of foreign policy hinted at by the President of the Party (Nenni) and assured him the valid support of the party in the difficult task he was about to carry out in the interest of the Country. As for the "Corsi case", the resolution goes on, the Directorate believed that some instructions contained in the telegram sent by Corsi (See yesterday's Digest, General No.5) had been misunderstood and that not always was it possible to conciliate the exigencies of workers demonstrating to achieve more humane living conditions, with the exigencies of the community. Hinting then at a similar circular issued by the Communist Minister of Finance, Scoccimarro, the resolution affirms that nobody could think of blaming Scoccimarro for "instigating strike-breaking", and that therefore the Corsi case should be judged on the same level, as Corsi also concerned himself solely with the collective interest. The resolution ends by recalling to the comrades representing the party and the working class in the Government and public administrations that the direct appeal to the sense of responsibility of the syndical and political organisms was still the most efficacious way of developing successfully their action. (Avanti!)

3. Hon. Saragat Nenni on behalf of the Socialist Party and Hon. Longo on behalf of the Communist party met yesterday and reached an agreement on the final text of the pact of unity of action. The text will be submitted before long to a joint meeting of the Directorates of the two parties for its ratification. (Lussu, Nenni)

4. "Il Messaggero" reports on a letter sent by Corsi to the Undersecretary of the Communist Party, Longo, who in a recent article published by Unita had charged him (Corsi) with having had partisans and men of the Left parties rounded up in Milan. According to the paper Corsi wrote that investigations and searches, which were meant to seize arms and not men, affected persons belonging to all parties, including the Liberal and Christian-Democrat parties. Corsi denied having ordered fire opened against the partisans and emphasized that after having suffered during twenty-five years the fascist violences, oppressions and threats, he was enduring the same treatment by those very persons in favor of whom he had fought. "Messaggero" reports on a letter sent by Corsi to the Undersecretary of the Communist Party, Longo, who in a recent article published by Unità had charged him (Corsi) with having had partisans and men of the Left parties rounded up in Emilia. According to the paper Corsi wrote that investigations and searches, which were meant to seize arms and not men, affected persons belonging to all parties, including the Liberal and Christian-Democrat parties. Corsi denied having ordered fire opened against the partisans and emphasized that after having suffered during twenty-five years the fascist violences, oppressions and threats, he was enduring the same treatment by those very persons in favor of whom he had fought. Corsi denied that during the Rome riot the workers had demonstrated against him, who had been the only one to defend them, and formulated the hypothesis that the demonstration had been organized to hit, through himself, the strongest opposer to the Socialist-Communists merger.

5. De Gasperi received yesterday the Prefect of Bolzano, Innocenti, who expressed a wish to be relieved from his office. De Gasperi agreed, thanked him for the intelligent actions he had carried out, and begged him to continue to study the problem of Alto Adige's administrative autonomy. (Popolo)

6. De Gasperi had a long conversation with Nenni and Lombardo yesterday morning. "Tempo" affirms that he asked them to clarify the attitude of their party towards the Government. The paper states that there is a latent government crisis going on, and that De Gasperi's conversation first with Nenni and Lombardo and then with Piccioni, Gonella and Scelba (Christian Democrats) have a real taste of advance "consultations". The issue at stake is whether the parties must participate in the Government unconditionally or not. "Tempo" further reports that Lombardo, interviewed by one of its staff, stated: "It is acknowledged that the parties are still influenced by a political concept which I deem unfit for the present times, which is that of constant intolerance in regard to the Government, unless the Government thoroughly applies all the political principles of their party. This is a curious thing, and it is evident that if this frame of mind persists, one cannot avoid the inconvenience of the so-called 'frequent crisis'."

ESPRESSO (Independent) - N.N.

GIORNALE DELLA SERA (Monarchist)

Criticizing the journalists of the Left for their false interpretations as to the reasons for the unfriendly reception of the Head of State and De Gasperi by Palermo citizenship, G.della S. says that three days before the arrival of De Nicola bread could not be made in Palermo because of the lack of grain. All Sicilians, however, knew that powerful trucks provided with government permits to run throughout Sicily, bought grain for exportation and paid 40,000 - 80,000 lire per quintal. This fact, together with De Gasperi's promise, made before the elections, to give autonomy to the island, created discontent and displeasure which the Sicilians expressed by whistling, states the paper, concluding that the Sicilian question has nothing to do with Monarchy and qualunquisti but that it is a problem of morality and good faith.

GIORNALE D'ITALIA

1. Commenting on the "Corsi case" (see yesterday's Digest, general, para. 5) Auditor writes that there is no reason to dramatize the case, as there will not be a Scoccimarro case since "Unità" will find a justification for the companion Minister's initiative.

2. Giuseppe Longo reports from Reggio Emilia the exhumation of persons who, shot in the neck and with bound hands, were buried beneath an already existing grave of three German soldiers. Persons murdered in Basso Emilia ten priests, several industrialists, among them Verderi di Sant'Ilario d'Enza charged with having voted for Uomo Qualunque; agriculturists, professionals, and other people, all belonging to the middle class. The writer concludes that these happenings have apparently ceased in the Reggio area after the serious declarations of the Bishop but incidents are continuing in Modena province with mysterious conflagrations.

In a note entitled: "Christian Democrat Majority against the acceptance of Peace Treaty - Next Tuesday De Gasperi will deliver another speech on the Treaty clauses", it is reported that the opinion prevalent in the parliamentary circles of Christian Democracy is that the Italian Peace Treaty under the form it was drawn up at Paris, cannot be accepted by Italy. It is hoped that substantial modifications may be introduced in the definite text, especially concerning the pecuniary clauses.

QUOTIDIANO (Independent Catholic)

In a leading article entitled: "Causes and Effects", F. Alessandrini asserts that the interview between Minister Scoccimarro and Premier De Gasperi had great importance from the standpoint of clarifying the problem of the relations between Communists and Christian Democrats. The former are always bewailing the fact that they are not understood by Italian parties in general and by Christian Democracy in particular, which in itself is hampering sincere co-operation. In this connection the writer recalls that as a follower of Marxian doctrine, the Communist Party cannot be reasonably considered as a democratic movement. Such a party must necessarily be factor of class struggle. In such manner we are able to explain the terrorist events that are taking place in the Emilia region, where communist feeling is rampant. The writer concludes that every one is entitled to say that, directly or undirectly, Communists are responsible for the unsettled situation, which we are lamenting in various section of the country.

TRIBUNA DEL POPOLO

Luigi Miranda commenting on an article, suggested by the Commission charged with drawing up the project of regional autonomies, says that the new regional law cannot quash national law but must be integrated with it. The writer points to possible contrasts between Central Government and Regional Assemblies and wonders how the Constitutional Court can judge matters of general interest to the State when only national Parliament should be competent. L.M. pleads finally for an open discussion of these problems in the press.

In a leading article entitled: "The 'pitiful' case", the writer makes a comparison between the cases of Under-Secretary Corsi and Minister Scoccimarro, which are today subjects of lively discussions in the political circles of Italy and especially in the Socialist and Communist Parties. Corsi's case is discussed because of the action taken, some time ago by the Under-Secretary at the Ministry of Interior, in defense of a group of workers unwilling to join a strike. Scoccimarro's case instead is discussed because at the time of the agitation among personnel of the Tax Collecting Offices, the Communist Minister wired to the Prefects, directing them to prevent the strike or at least to parry it, by trying to engage workers of other categories and especially unemployed war-veterans, who would take, where necessary, the place of strikers. The writer comes to the conclusion that these are very "pitiful

In a leading article entitled: "The 'pitiful' case", the writer makes a comparison between the cases of Under-Secretary Corsi and Minister Scoccimarro, which are today subjects of lively discussions in the political circles of Italy and especially in the Socialist and Communist Parties. Corsi's case is discussed because of the action taken, some time ago by the Under-Secretary at the Ministry of Interior, in defense of a group of workers unwilling to join a strike. Scoccimarro's case instead is discussed because at the time of the agitation among personnel of the Tax Collecting Offices, the Communist Minister wired to the Prefects, directing them to prevent the strike or at least to parry it, by trying to engage workers of other categories and especially unemployed war-veterans, who would take, where necessary, the place of strikers. The writer comes to the conclusion that these are very "pitiful" cases, showing that a consequence of the overpowering Party influence, is a regime of compromise and political unsincerity.

1. Commenting on Togliatti's interview in "Tempo" (see Digest 17 October, page 7), Franco Venturi writes that the Action Party with the exception of the Communist Party was the first to realize that partisan war should not be led and inspired by those who are traditionally enemies of the Italian popular classes.

3. There is no reason to be pessimistic about the future of the present governing class in Italy if this class considers unanimously the Democratic Republic as a conquest which is a definite probability, writes Leo Valiani in a comment on an article by Guido Gonella, Minister of Education. The experience, energy and concreteness required at present will be acquired in the course of governing. The governors must only be convinced that their future is closely bound with the future of the Republican State, asserts the writer.

Enzo Selvaggi makes a survey of the Italian political situation and of the government's crisis. He says that the crisis began with Togliatti's refusal to enter the Govt and with his maneuver at Paris against De Gasperi. This was then followed closely by "Corbino's bomb", by the riot at the Viminale, the internal crisis of the Republican Party and, a few days ago, by the charges issued against the Italian Premier by the Council of Ministers itself. The result of all this, continues Selvaggi, appears clearly in that (a) "we are not considered abroad as a country which gave all it could to the cause of Freedom, (b) we are subject to the strikes of the blackmailing weapon which is the diktat of the Paris Conference, (c) our internal economic situation is getting worse, (d) the State authority is almost powerless, as is clearly shown by the incidents in Emilia and Sicily, and (e) problems like allotment of living-bonus, housing shortages, inflation of the currency and increase of unemployment are still unsolved and it appears as if no solution can be taken". And Selvaggi concludes: "This is a survey of the Italian situation. How long

IL MESSAGGERO (Government)

In a leading article under the heading: "Management Councils", the paper says that, just as Political Democracy means the participation of the people in the life of the State, so "Economic Democracy" means participation of the working class in the management of business (Agricultural, Industrial, Commercial establishments). Recalling the Factory Councils, set up in Italy during the 1920-21 period, with a revolutionary program, the paper remarks that the Management Councils are bodies characterized by a more moderate and constructive purpose, that is the participation of workers in the management of economic establishments. According to Morandi's draft and the conclusions reached in the last National Meeting among the representatives of Management Councils, these bodies should be unified along national lines, so as to bring about a Planned Economy, in the interest of the economic development of the country.

Parties of the Left and the police have made several inquiries about the incidents and murders in Emilia and Scoccimarro reported about this subject to De Gasperi, states the paper, asking why the people have not been informed as to the results of these inquiries. Criticising Togliatti's assertion about the Italian middle class, R.L. states that according to the Communist opinion everyone who is not a Communist is denoted a Fascist. Totalitarians, including Togliatti, don't understand anything about the middle class which will always struggle for individual freedom and fight against imperiousness of every kind. The bloody epurations of officials and technicians in Russia demonstrates that bourgeoisie do not renounce their mission even under the hardest conditions. The paper then recalls that Mussolini also became furious about the impermeability of the middle class for his Fascist mysticism and concludes that it will be useless to try the insertion of bourgeoisie in the Communist experiment.

Pastore, Secretary General of the National Federterra. Pastore and Lizzadri took the floor during the morning session of the Congress. Vidimari, Vice-Secretary of the "Federterra", expounded during the afternoon session with his report on the Agrarian Reform, the main points of which are the following: to eliminate all parasitical groups from the leadership of the economic and political life of Italy, to secure for all Italians a better standard of life as well as Scoccimarro is charged with having taken an action hostile to the personnel employed by the Tax Collecting Offices, with the object of securing from tax-payers the collection of the amount of taxes, "Unità" asserts that the behavior of the Communist Minister on that occasion was quite different from that of Under-Secretary Corsi. Therefore the criticism brought forward by "Nuovo Giornale d'Italia" is wholly unfounded.

1. In his radio-speech on the new "Reconstruction Loan" yesterday, Minister Bertone drew a picture of the "financial and economic abyss" into which Italy has been precipitated. He said that money circulation exceeded 400 milliard lire, and that public debt, most of which was short dated, amounted to over one thousand milliard lire. He then outlined the characteristics and advantages of the new loan, confirmed that the extraordinary tax on personal property and the change of currency would be enforced, and warned that to invest hoarded currency on purchases of whatever goods were available could be a dangerous game, because the Government had undertaken to defend the lire and would defend it against all attacks and speculations. The Minister then hinted at some reassuring symptoms of financial revival, such as Italy's admission into the Bretton Wood plan which would keep the lire steady on international stock exchange markets; Italy's impending participation in the International Bank for Reconstruction, which would allow her to rely on considerable financial help; and the generous crediting of 50 million dollars made by the U.S., and 4 million dollars made by Canada as a partial reimbursement of the occupation cost. The Minister concluded by affirming that the higher the subscription to the loan, the quicker Italy could leave the dangerous zone, and that the loan should be the first stage towards the dawn of financial revival. 5. The Directorate of the Socialist party met on Tuesday and Wednesday to examine the questions of Nenni's assumption of the office of Foreign Minister and of the "Corsi case". Nenni was given authority to assume the new office but, "Momento" reports, with some reservations, as the members of the "Socialist Initiative" trend of the party opposed this move both because it might imply the full acceptance of De Gasperi's policy and because they even thought unadvisable a further Socialist participation in the Govt under present circumstances. Saragat, belonging to the "Social Critics" trend, stressed that Nenni could not carry out the policy outlined in his Genzo speech. However, all agreed that Italy should take a stand of absolute independence both from the Anglo-Saxon and the Russian block, and through a wise policy should try to open more outlets for its surplus manpower. As for the "Corsi case", the Directorate made no decision. Corsi, the Undersecretary of the Interior, had been charged, especially by the Communists, of "instigating strike-breaking" following a circular he had sent to the prefects of Northern Italy asking them to protect those workers who, during the recent farmers strike, volunteered to milk the cows, in order to protect the livestock and to assure milk for children, aged and sick persons. "Messaggero" reports that Nenni proposed closing the case by means of a declaration stating that when intervening in labor agitations, the authorities should not go astray of the law but should at the same time consider the wishes of the working classes. Corsi did not accept this formula, and rejected the accusation of "instigation", recalling that Minister Scoccimarro (Communist, Finance) had issued a similar circular in the expectation of a tax-collector strike. He asked the other members of the Directorate for an affirmation of solidarity for what he had done, and for a vote of confidence in what he was going to do, without which he would leave the office of Undersecretary of the Interior, and would give approval to the letter of resignation which, with a blank date, he had already sent to the party. Saragat and Simonini supported Corsi who, they said, being Undersecretary and not Minister of the Interior, was not responsible for the circular.

The fact is, however, that a temporary dissension broke out between the Parliamentary Republican Group, who accepted the reply sent by De Gasperi to Pacciardi's letter, promising also its co-operation with the present Government, and the Central Committee of the Party, together with Pacciardi and Nagrini, who considered the reply absolutely unsatisfactory.

The concealed purpose is to get the funds necessary to run the governmental machine until next Spring, with the hope that new elections might confirm the success of the mass parties now in power. In this connection the paper remarks that the main condition for the success of the next loan, is to prepare a real reconstruction plan: to build houses for hundred of thousands of homeless families, hospitals and asylums for poor and suffering people, to re-organize the railway and transportation services, to promote agriculture and industry and to give a certain orientation on the work of economic recovery of the country. Communists and Socialists want to activate the peasants with propaganda relying upon the desire of the peasants for land. The writer continues stating that it would not be to the advantage of Communists and Socialists to create new classes of proprietors.

2. The Allies used the right of requisition even after the war was over, says the paper, adding that requisitions are still going on. The expression "requisition" is wrong in defining more or less arbitrary occupation by foreign subjects and representatives, continues the paper, which agrees with the attitude of the Italian authorities of resigning themselves, as they don't wish to cause diplomatic incidents over a house. It should be necessary, however, to stress in every case, in every language, and in every country, that according to the Italian law these acts are illegal and acts of violence if they are not worse. The paper then reports the French request to evacuate the artists who live in villa Strochl-Fern and concludes that the French Command should evacuate the artists itself as the Italian demilitarist is not enabled to evacuate anybody.

Togliatti does not restrain his attacks on the bourgeoisie and among other things says that "all the bourgeois have been Fascists, have defended to the end the Fascist regime, and supported a regime which was leading Italy to destruction..." and that they will abandon the direction of the national life to other social groups. As for the Social-Communist policy with regards to the Middle Classes, Togliatti said that "intellectuals" technicians and little producers must make themselves independent from the big Capitalism". Then stressing his opinion on the formation of the "fourth mass-party", Togliatti asserted that "a strong mass party of the Right would very soon become Fascist" and that "although the Uomo Qualunque Party has not yet made its intention clear, the only

In a leading article entitled: "Structure of the Second Chamber", Vezio Crisafulli sets forth the different views that have come out during the preparatory work of the New Constitution, concerning the question of the organization and powers of the Second Chamber of the Republic. Socialist and Communist representatives in the Second Sub-commission entrusted with the discussion of this issue favor a Second Chamber appointed on a regional basis by direct popular vote and with special access to all competent personalities of the country. The right wing of the Sub-commission members favor a 2nd Chamber partly appointed by the Head of the State, while Christian Democracy favor a professional Chamber based on indirect election. The final decision of the Sub-commission was a Chamber appointed by indirect election. The constituency of the said Chamber will be composed of Regional and Communal Councils. The writer remarks that the criterion of professional representation and of indirect election does not satisfy the exigencies of the Communist Party, which stands for a real system of Parliamentary Democracy.

GENERAL

1. The President of the Republic, De Nicola, yesterday received Ambassador Reale who reported on the negotiations he had carried out with the Yugoslav delegates to the Paris Conference.

2. Yesterday morning De Gasperi received Minister Scoccimarro who expressed the Communist viewpoint concerning the internal situation. He said that the Communist Party was not satisfied with the functioning of the peripheric administrative agencies of the State, as they often acted in disagreement with the organisms of the central Government. Scoccimarro then pointed out some paradoxical situations: while the Communists are participating in the Govt, in some regions they are persecuted as "subversives" by the administrative organism. Scoccimarro particularly stressed that following the charges levelled against the Communists for the murderings occurring in Emilia, the Communist party had carried out a careful investigation, the findings of which indicated that responsibility for crimes should not be pinned on Communist elements, but rather on elements belonging to the opposite political array. Scoccimarro also criticized present relations between the Christian-Democrat and Communist parties, and emphasized the injustice of charges levelled against him by Christian-Democrat news papers and even by the Secretary General of the Christian-Democrat party, Piccioni. He disclosed that he was going to give an answer in order to make it clear that if the economic and financial program of the Govt had not been put into practice yet, the Christian-Democrat party also shared substantially in the fault. De Gasperi replied that Christian-Democrat criticism was also a retaliation, as the action of the Christian-Democrat party was not objectively valued by the Communists. (Nassaparo). "A sort of communist 'ultimatum' handed by Scoccimarro to De Gasperi", headlines "Italia Nuova", while "Buonsenso" remarks that Scoccimarro's protest was meant to prevent the Govt from carrying out its own investigation concerning the Emilia crimes. 2035

The Constituent Assembly Second Sub-Commission yesterday approved the following articles of the new Constitution: (a) The Govt of the State may dissolve the Regional Assembly when the latter adopts an attitude contrary to the unity of the nation and in a case of grave and repeated infringements of the law. (b) A chamber of financial compensation consisting of a representative per region will be set up in order to affirm the solidarity among the regions. This Sub-Commission also resolved that election to the Second House (old Senate) will be by electors. A Christian-Democrat proposal (also supported by the Republicans, Qualunquisti and Liberals) to have the members of this Second House elected according to their trade and profession, was rejected. The First Sub-Commission approved the following article: "The right to syndical organization is guaranteed. The right to strike is assured all workers. The law will set the procedure to be followed for calling the strike, for previous attempts of conciliation and for the maintenance of services absolutely necessary to collective life. The right to rest is guaranteed."

In a letter addressed to the Secretary of the Conference, the Yugoslav Delegation affirmed again that Yugoslavia would not sign the peace treaty with Italy if the present text were not changed. The London correspondent of "Il Messaggero" reports that it is clear that Russia intends to reopen the question of Trieste at the Council of the Four Foreign Ministers and that Molotov intends to annull all decisions taken by the 21 nations.

AFTERNOON PAPERS (October 15)

CAPITALE (Christian Democrat) - N.N.

ESPRESSO (Independent) - N.N.

GIORNALE D'ITALIA

In a leading article under the heading: "The New Loan - Provided that we undertake to issue it", Vincenzo Lucci explains that in face of the difficult situation the Italian Government is confronted with, it has only one alternative before itself: either to issue new paper-money and to run thereby the risk of inflation, or to issue a public loan, so as to absorb a huge mass of paper-money hoarded or in circulation, with which it would be possible to meet the necessities of the treasury for several months to come. In the opinion of the writer this would be the best road to chose under present conditions.

INDIPENDENTE

In an interview granted to the paper by Hon. Manes, former Under-Secretary of the Treasury Ministry with the first Pre-fascist Bonomi's Government, the interviewed states that the change of currency is a wise and urgent reform, already promoted by the late Minister Soleri and favored by the Allies. The operation in question was delayed only on account of technical difficulties. According to Hon. Manes the following provisions should be carried out in connection with the change of currency: a loan to provide for the needs of the Treasury, and tributary measures for the settlement of the State budget. In his opinion the Government was mistaken in adopting the political price of bread.

TRIBUNA DEL POPOLO

In a first article of a whole series entitled: "Planning Problems", Gaetano Stammati remarks that the necessity of working out a planned economy under the auspices of the State has been recognized by many countries of the world. Even Authors belonging to the Liberal Economic School have acknowledged the fact that modern States cannot abstain from interfering in the economic life of nations. The only distinction they establish in this connection is the following: to plan for competition or against competition. Of course, they are in favor of competition, but they recognize that the State has a right and duty to establish

The writer concludes that in the course of these last 30 years all statesmen have become aware of the enormous power that the State has to interfere with the public economy of the nations.

VOCE REPUBBLICANA (Republican)

GIORNALE DELLA SERA (Monarchist)

Under the heading "Cruelty of British old maids", Ester Lombardo after commenting on the anti-Italian activity of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst at the Paris Conference, as Ethiopian representative, writes as follows: "We have seen lots of Miss Pankhursts after September 8th 1943 and at the time of the landing of the American 5th Army at Salerno. It was impossible to talk to them. We Italians were in their opinion guilty of all the sins of hell and were not worthy of anything. They were finding our women dressed too well, but this was not true, they were finding our babies fed too much, but that was not true either because 1942 was a poor year. The winter of 1943 was sad and the people were many times without bread, but for the "British Misses" who were eating their five meals a day... no privation was too much for the Italians who declared war on them."

"I have known some who were burying meat in their garden in order not to let the Italians have it. I was told that at Positano, one of these "British Misses" took a piece of white bread out of the hands of an Italian baby because it was British bread. ... The list can continue for long like this."

"Never a smile came on the lips of these women, never a cordial gesture, only a few exceptions. They have certainly not contributed to the revival of the Italo-British friendship. ..."

"These Miss Pankhursts live in an "isolation" which is not splendid but only spiritual misery. ... They despise the people of Southern Italy, babies without shoes and women without clothes, and take this as an example that Italy is not a civilized country. They have a fixed idea of the civilization of the scottish shower and they do not want to change their minds. They bear in their chest a tired heart a little athrophised and look for England everywhere!"

"But you would object: "What is Ethiopia?" - Ethiopia is an other thing. If you look at it carefully you can see England through it!"

Referring to De Gasperi's plan to institute management councils, M.S. Giannini writes in a leading article that all problems which trouble Italian life today will directly or indirectly be touched by these councils. Only a few conservative elements are not convinced of the utility of management councils whilst all far-sighted industrialists ask for them.

BUONSENSO (Uomo Qualunque)

1. In a leading article under the heading: "To reject absolutism", referring to the stand taken in France by General De Gaulle in favor of an enlargement of the political powers the Head of the Republic is vested with, the writer asserts that the U.Q. Front is against all forms of State centralization and absolutism as that existing in Soviet Russia, as well as the old monarchical and absolutist regimes of Europe. According to the Liberal tradition, the U.Q. is favoring the establishment of a Head of the State system along the same lines as that existing in the U.S. of America, based on the direct election of the people. Popular control must act as a brake to keep within reasonable bounds the powers the President is vested with.

2. In a short marginal note entitled: "Noske's shadow", the paper recalls the actions taken by Noske, a German socialist called a traitor by communists the world over, because he was successful in preventing the establishment of a communist dictatorship in Germany soon after the Ist European War. Speaking to Hon. Corsi and Sandro Pertini, the paper says that sometime they will be called "Traitors" like Noske, because they are up against the establishment of a Communist dictatorship in Italy.

GLOBO (Economic)

1. G. reports that 4,500 tons of natural rubber supplied by UNRRA have arrived in Italy and will be delivered to the manufacturers next month. According to the paper, UNRRA's supplies of rubber to Italy will amount 20 thousand tons. This is very nearly the requirement of the Italian rubber industry.

2. The paper reports from Milan that negotiations are being carried out in that city for the constitution of a commercial company to handle commercial exchanges between Italy and Romania. This Company will facilitate imports into Italy of stocks of timber and petroleum.

3. The Hungarian commercial delegation, headed by the Hungarian Minister for Commerce, Endor Romai, arrived yesterday at Rome, where it was received by Minister Campilli. The Delegation is to immediately start negotiations for the stipulation of an Italo-Hungarian commercial agreement.

4. During an interview with one of the editors of "Il Globo", Doctor Costa, President of the Confederation of Industrialists, affirmed that, particularly after Italy's participation in the Bretton Woods monetary agreements, it would be a good thing if Italian foreign trade be relieved from the present system of clearings and compensations which, together with the Trade treaties, represent the greatest obstacle to Italian production. He also affirmed that it was not true that exceeding exports might impair the national market.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. The Christian Democrat Party, in France as well as in Italy, is the weakest one in the common front of Communists, Socialists and Christian Democrats in the fight for freedom and Democracy, writes Fernando Schiavetti adding that there is no doubt that loyal, well disciplined and well organised elements are in the Christian Democrat Party. These elements, however, constitute often but a small minority, continues the writer. Very large circles of the Christian Democrats sympathize with ideologies and reactionary feelings for Fascism which they blame only for certain excesses but not for its nature, asserts F.S.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785016

2. Referring to Manzoni's declaration 126 years ago that there is large class of loyals who are Christian by heart in Italy and that there are numerous good priests among the clergy who have a sincere enthusiasm for their religion, Giulio Ubertazzi asserts he is not sure whether Manzoni would repeat his opinion still today.

3. Diego Consoli, driver of prelate Giardini, was attacked and robbed of his private property and of the prelate's car by two individuals dressed in British uniforms with Polish distinguishing marks of the Anders corps, reports the paper from Rome.

ITALIA NUOVA (Liberal)

1. Enzo Selvaggi asserts that there is still today a large bourgeoisie in Italy which is potentially strong but which does not realize its possibilities and the necessity for its recovery. The accusations against bourgeoisie don't come from Party members or Party militants but from Party leaders who are with a few exceptions "bourgeois" themselves, betraying bourgeoisie, to which they belong, for their culture, for their system to live and for their tastes and refinement, stresses the writer.

2. Referring to murders in Emilia, I.N. suggested some time ago the start of investigations with a statement of the class the murdered belonged to, in order to be able to conclude from which class the murderers might come, says the paper. Minister Scoccimarro now declares that the responsible persons will not be found among Communists but among elements of the opposite political opinion, continues the paper. The paper wonders if the mayors have been killed by order of prefects and the parrish-priests by order of bishops. And what about the land-owners? asks the paper answering itself "These are so blinded by their anti-proletarian hate that they are capable of suicide after having predisposed everything to simulate a murder with the only aim nourishing with their corpses the provoking campaign of reactionary lies against the rosy Communist angels".

3. Food has been changed in Yugoslavia for arms and lire, reports Renato Gianni from Reggio Calabria, adding that a permanent stream of food of every kind is arriving from Sicily and Calabria.

1. Enzo Selvaggi asserts that there is still today a large bourgeoisie in Italy which is potentially strong but which does not realize its possibilities and the necessity for its recovery. The accusations against burgeoisie don't come from Party members or Party militants but from Party leaders who are with a few exceptions "bourgeois" themselves, betraying bourgeoisie, to which they belong, for their culture, for their system to live and for their tastes and refinement, stresses the writer.

2. Referring to murders in Emilia, I.N. suggested some time ago the start of investigations with a statement of the class the murdered belonged to, in order to be able to conclude from which class the murderers might come, says the paper. Minister Scoccimarro now declares that the responsible persons will not be found among Communists but among elements of the opposite political opinion, continues the paper. The paper wonders if the mayors have been killed by order of prefects and the parrish-priests by order of bishops. And what about the land-owners? asks the paper answering itself "These are so blinded by their anti-proletarian hate that they are capable of suicide after having predisposed everything to simulate a murder with the only aim nourishing with their corpses the provoking campaign of reactionary lies against the rosy Communist angels".

MESSAGGERO (Government)

In a leading article under the heading: "The course of history continues", referring to the closing of the Paris Peace Conference, as well as to the last speech delivered by Molotov and the act made by Yugoslavia to leave the Conference, the writer asserts that the conference was a failure. Great injustices were committed against Italy, but our country has to fulfill a great historic mission. There is not only the Italy of today, but also the Italy of tomorrow that the Great Powers will have to deal with in the future, concludes the article.

In a leading article under the heading: "Strikes", Guido Gonella, Minister of Public Education, fixes a clear-cut distinction between a legitimate, rightful use of the strike weapon for the defense of the workers' violated rights, and the strike conceived and practiced as a normal means for settling all economic controversies that may arise between employers and employees. Just as the resort to war may be justified only when a nation is compelled to have recourse to it as the only means to preserve its own existence, in the same way a strike must be considered as the "ultima ratio", for the settlement of class controversies. Hence the need of controlling the legitimacy of strikes. The writer concludes by expressing the hope that a compulsory arbitration on all economic controversies may be established in Italy to suppress strikes, without depriving the workers of their legitimate means for the defense of their legitimate rights.

An evidence of it, is the fact that all categories of workers of the land are called together in a congress at Bologna: land laborers, sharecroppers, land renters, small holding owners and technical agriculturist, all united in a great bond of solidarity. This class unity was brought about by the old "Federterra", which will strive to realize a more perfect unity of land workers in the future. 1. "The French line" said Nenni yesterday in the speech delivered in Genzo, "is a bad compromise between the Anglo-American and the Russian theses, a compromise which gives birth to a free territory having scarce vitality and leaving unsolved, between Italy and Yugoslavia, questions like that of the detachment of fully Italian cities." Nenni then referred to the Trieste Statute and to the failure of Italo-Yugoslav collaboration. "We cannot but deplore this", he said, "and hope that it will not be the same for the future". As for the colonies, he said that deluded love which turned into rancour, generally was the source of bad counsels. Great Britain, France and civilization had nothing to gain from Italy's ousting from what had been rethorically termed "the fourth shore". Above all, the Arabs had nothing to gain out of it. They knew Italy's two faces: that of Graziani, which had faded for ever, and that of the Italian workers who exceeded all other workers for their intelligence, initiative, courage and laboriousness. "Therefore", Nenni said, "some territorial clauses of the treaty are unjust to the point that we shall consider them still open until a just solution is found. This refers also to the economic clauses.... The treaty is this. What should we do now? First of all refer again the whole problem to the Four. Secondly, as we did for 25 years against Fascism even when it looked as if we were bumping against granite or steel, never give up the defense of our right, and include our territorial integrity and our political and economic national independence, among the permanent and absolute goals of our foreign and general policy. No hysterics, but no renunciations either", he added. "From now on Europe will find on her way an Italy wanting to collaborate in the work for common progress, to live peacefully with her neighbours, to base her action on the principle of international solidarity, not to bet on the Anglo-Americans against the Soviet Union or on the Soviet Union against the Anglo-Americans, but to bet on the union of all democratic forces of Europe and the world, to renounce the myth of empire and military power but at the same time to maintain valid her justified claims, being dedicated to making them triumph by appealing to right and reason." After having stressed that Italy's collapse was due to the foreign policy carried out by the Italian bourgeoisie since the times of the triple alliance,

After having stressed that Italy's collapse was due to the foreign policy carried out by the Italian bourgeoisie since the times of the triple alliance, Nenni disclosed that the two main problems he was going to tackle as Foreign Minister were that of the stipulations of commercial agreements with those big and small nations which were in a position to send raw materials to Italy and to import Italian products, and that of overcoming present difficulties hindering emigration. The Region has the power to integrate the general rules contained in the laws of the State, and to propose particular bills to the National Parliament. The Region will have a Regional Assembly and a Regional Council, elected by universal suffrage. The Finances of the region should be autonomous, but co-ordinated with that of the State. The Region cannot enforce import, export, or transit customs on inter-regional trade traffic. The draft bills passed by the Regional Assembly will have to be notified to the central Government, and they become valid laws after one month from this notification.

The Council of Ministers met again yesterday, and De Gasperi concluded the report on the Rome incidents, stressing that the posting to another station of the questore did not imply that the police had failed to fulfill their duty. The Council then discussed at length the Sicilian situation, and appointed lawyer Giovanni Selvaggi (an old republican) High Commissioner for Sicily. An investigation has been opened on the hostile demonstrations held during De Nicola's visit. "Messaggero" writes that these demonstrations were chiefly caused by the scarcity of food supplies. The Palermo Questore (chief of police) will be posted to another station. The Council then resolved that the Armed Forces swearing ceremony be held on 4 November, and provisionally to adopt the "Mameli" hymn as national anthem. The transfer from De Gasperi to Nenni of the portfolio of Foreign Affairs will take place on Wednesday or Thursday next. This move will cause a reshuffling of Undersecretaries. At the Foreign Ministry, Communist Giolitti will most likely be replaced by a Christian-Democrat. Giolitti will take over the Navy Undersecretariat, which is still vacant, and a socialist will replace Hon. Scoca as Undersecretary for Finance (Messaggero). "Buonsenso" headlines that "the Ministers are wasting time with empty discussions, while the examination of the two national 'little problems" of unemployment and food has been postponed to a next meeting". "Italia Nuova" writes that a republican Commissioner has been sent to Sicily to put the island on a "progressive" line, and that the President must be welcomed with huge manifestations of joy, otherwise the prefects will be removed. The paper remarks that no investigation has been ordered for the lack of bread, but that a severe inquest will be carried out concerning the faults of those who were unable to prevent "the incidents".

2. The Times publishes the text of a letter sent by Byrnes to De Gasperi, which states that the U.S. Government has resolved to reimburse Italy the funds in lire furnished to the American Army by the Italian Government, and that Italy will receive immediately a first instalment of 90 million dollars. The letter further affirms that it is the U.S. Government's opinion that Italy, being a co-belligerent country, has a right to this reimbursement, and that the people of the U.S. are fully aware of the contribution of Italy and her sons in the American life. "Unita'" headlines that 1,150 million dollars are still to be paid and that England has not yet started to pay the occupation cost. "Buonsenso" boasts that this move had been foreseen by Giannini more than one year ago in a chapter of his book "The Crowd".

3. The Committees of National Liberation (CLN) of Istria, Trieste and Gorizia have again appealed to the Government to demand formally and firmly the acknowledgement of the right to self-determination for the people of Venezia Giulia through a popular prebiscite. The leading article is headlined "Yours for Trieste" and Alberto Spaini, the writer, stresses in it the meaning of this fact for the people of Trieste "no longer allowed to shout 'Viva Trieste Italiana'" and the sadness of this decision for the Italian people.

2. G.d.S. explains why it is to the interest of rich people to invest their money in "Reconstruction Bonds" instead of keeping it because, - it says - they will lose plenty when they will have to change their money for new currency.

3. G.d.S. prints the result of its enquiry about the rationing of food saying that 59 out of 100 people are against it, 29 admit it partially, 10 approve. It also says that 71 per-cent of the people demand free trade of sugar.

1. Interviewed by G.d.I., C.G.I.L. Socialist representative, Lizzadri, asserted that C.G.I.L. is absolutely independent from all political Parties as its secretariat is composed of the representatives of three parties of the masses and as its directive committee is composed of nearly all parties. Lizzadri added that in about 30 per-cent of all problems which were important to the workers the parties of the masses followed C.G.I.L.'s orientation and did not precede it. Commenting on Lizzadri's declaration, the paper approves the legitimate right of the classes and pleads for the institution of similar organizations such as the American "Industrial Court" or the "National Arbitration Tribunal" in Italy. Concluding that probably C.G.I.L. was not strange to the demonstrations at the Viminale, G.d.I. stresses that C.G.I.L.'s main task should be to prevent such demonstration in the future.

Follows a Post Scriptum explaining that the article was printed before the news of the American reimbursement of 50 million dollars to Italy was published and saying that "the letter that Mr. Byrnes sent to Premier De Gasperi, although not being the reply we were waiting for on the drafting of the Italian Peace Treaty, is a unilateral manifestation of sympathy of the American Government, a manifestation that we highly appreciate..."

These operations, according to the writer, could not be carried out immediately, on account of their complex nature. The writer believes that most probably they will be postponed to the summer of 1946, after the new political elections. On the other hand, our public has no reason to expect from them either miraculous or disastrous results. They are however necessary and, according to the writer, they are mutually interdependent. Without the change of currency it would be practically impossible to enforce a general property tax-plan, under a form of a 10 or 15 per-cent deduction on the ready-money capital about Treaty: "( ) It is my opinion" - he says - "that this Treaty could not be accepted by any civilised people: it is a 'diktat' which is imposed on us by force; (b) it shows the lack of loyalty of the victors who have not kept that they promised; (c) it sacks Italy economically and politically and offers her as a 'no man's land' to the future wars of today's victors; (d) it states the undoubted defeat of the Allies who, worse than at Versailles have not been able to make Peace; (e) it demonstrates that the British Labor Government has forgotten the whole of the old and the interests of workers; (f) that the French Democratic Government has left aside the principles of Democracy and Latin Civilization and the interests of reconciliation of the two countries; (g) that the Russian Government has done nothing to the level of life of a people mostly formed of workers and peasants; (h) that the American Government has left, itself out, because of her ways, overcome by British machiavellism, the French cowardness and the Moscovit will of unreasoned peace after having fished since ely for it. America had more than any other country contributed to the Allied victory and had no intention of letting the struggle of her youth and the scattering of her wealth happen once again, but that her generals had won her diplomats have lost. (i) that the Big Powers had agreed together upon making life for the Italian Democracy impossible". 1. T. prints an interview by Alberto Consiglio - alias Rabeuf - with Minister of Public Works Romita. After asserting that there is a State program of reconstruction for a total amount of 400 milliard lire and that the reconstruction of houses is proceeding satisfactorily, the Minister of Public Works spoke about the Rome housing problem saying that in spite of the fact that Rome was in a very special situation owing to the fact that thousands of refugees and people of all parts of the country had moved into the capital during the war, public works are proceeding satisfactorily in Rome. Since June 194 - he stated - about 1.5 milliard lire have been spent on reconstruction of schools in the capital, 12 million lire for the partial reconstruction of the war damaged basilica of St. Lorenzo, 18 million lire for the repair of the roof of the Rome food market, 1.5 million lire for modernization of the sewage system and several other works for a total amount of 2 milliard and 250 million lire, which employed about 30,000 workers.

UNITA' (Communist)

1. In a leading article under the heading: "Who are the 'subversives'? Hon. Palmiro Togliatti asserts that under the present democratic and republican regime of Italy, communists could not be rightly considered as "subversives", that is as a kind of people aiming at subverting public order and at inciting rebellion against State authorities, as under the old monarchical and fascist regime. The writer adds: We are not complaining about the hostility shown to us by reactionary elements, such as the Liberal, U.Q. parties and the right wing of social Democracy, but we are denouncing an intolerable situation which has arisen in certain sections of the country and especially in Emilia region, very dangerous for the existence of the republican regime. Under a veiled form and without mentioning any person's name, Togliatti adds that since a few months it seems as if a "mot d'ordre" was passed to an entire category of State officials, whose specific duty is to defend the Republic, to vex, persecute instead communists socialists and republicans alike, that it to curb those very elements who shed their blood in defense of the Republic. As a conclusion, De Gasperi is warned against the dangers implied in such a political situation.

The article is preceded by a note commenting on an announcement which appeared in the paper "New York Herald Tribune", whereby the articles of Unita' on the Allied occupation in Italy are a subject of a particular attention for the Allied Command of Caserta. This attention, according to an information given by the New York paper, has induced the Allied Command to consider the convenience of preventing a further publication of Longone's articles. Daily Digest of Rome Press.

GENERAL

1. De Gasperi and Saragat were received by De Nicola yesterday.

2. Yesterday De Gasperi had a long conference with Nenni regarding present problems of internal and foreign policy. Afterwards Nenni confirmed to journalists that he would take over the Foreign Ministry early next week. Tomorrow he will go to Cuneo to inaugurate a monument for Filippo Turati and will deliver a speech containing some statements on foreign policy previously agreed upon with De Gasperi. (Messaggero)

2. The Confindustria and CGIL yesterday reached an agreement on a 35% increase of present basic wages for workers and employees. The "Christmas Bonus", the "thirteenth month", and a 12-day holiday period will also be granted. The agreement calls for a six-month wage truce.

3. At yesterday's Council of Ministers, Nenni declared that the authority given to the Minister of the Interior to dismiss from communal administration those fascists and collaborationists who after the amnesty demanded to return to their office, would not suffice. He added that it was not a case of reopening epuration, but only to give the Communes authority to pension off a certain number of officials, who were not too many. In fact there were 75 at Turin, 25 at Brescia, 10 at Florence, 20 at La Spezia, 30 at Ravenna, 12 at Verona, 12 at Rovigo, 9 at Vicenza, 24 at Venezia, etc. The Council debated the proposal and agreed to study further the question before making any decision. The floating of a "National Reconstruction loan" on 15 november was approved. The loan will be redeemable in 30 years, the bonds will cost 97.50 lire each, and the interest has been set at 3.50%. All present and future real taxes, including the impending extraordinary personal property tax and the inheritance tax, will not affect this loan. Italian banks have already subscribed for 100 milliard lire. The Council also resolved that the extraordinary personal property tax and the change of currency will be enforced successively to the loan. The Council expressed to the representatives of the CGIL and Confindustria and to Minister Campilli its deep satisfaction over the agreement reached concerning the wage increase issue. The President of the Council then read a report

The Council expressed to the representatives of the CGIL and Confindustria and to Minister Campilli its deep satisfaction over the agreement reached concerning the wage increase issue. The President of the Council then read a report by the Questura on the incidents which occurred in Rome last Wednesday, and the Council resolved to carry out three investigations in order to ascertain: (a) the reasons for the bad service rendered by the Police, (b) how the Genio Civile worked out the allotment of work; (c) if the contractors actually intended to exert a pressure on the Govt in order to retain conditions favorable to them, and establish at the same time what the amount of their profits was. The Council resolved to post to another station the Questore (Chief of Police) of Rome, Ciro Verdiani. "Risorgimento Liberale" headlines: "The Govt orders three investigations, and in the meantime the Questore pays for (the sins of) everybody." "Avanti!" and "Unith" emphasize that the report by the Questura indicated that lawyer Pleani (see yesterday's Digest, General No. 4) and a certain De Paolo had been arrested on the ground of having paid up to 1,000 lire per hour to members of the "Republican Democracy Movement" led by them in order to demonstrate against Pleani and Togliatti. "Popolo" affirms that, according to information obtained from official sources, the statement made yesterday by the Allied authorities concerning tear-gas bombs was correct only with regard to the Italian Armed Forces, but not with regard to the Police Forces. Therefore, writes the paper, the affirmation by the Chief of Police that police forces are not allowed to use tear-gas bombs is correct, and it is further to be pointed out that the ban applies also to the Carabinieri when on public order duty, although they belong to the Armed Forces.

4. The Constituent Assembly Sub-Commission yesterday approved the following articles of the new constitution: (a) The right to syndical organization is guaranteed." (b) "The State insures the workers' right to participate in the management of concerns employing them. The law sets the limits to this right." (c) "The Republic will provide for the protection of the worker by means of special rules, and will favor any international regulation pursuing this goal."

5. A large mine dump installed in the former American airfield of Lucrotta (Pesaro) has been exploding since yesterday noon. Traffic on the Adriatic railway and highway has been interrupted and cannot be resumed until all the ammunition has exploded. Damage amounts already to several million lire, and persons injured are seven. (Dispatches).

In a leading article under the heading of: "We fought for a world of robberies and quarrels", Lord Vansittart asserts that Tito, the dictator, by challenging the U.S. and Britain has shown that he has deceived himself into believing that he is far more powerful than he really is. There is an Anglo-Soviet Alliance Treaty, but the leaders of the U.S.S.R. are still going on with their calumnious campaign against British Commonwealth by means of the "radio". Not satisfied with the control over the countries of Eastern Europe and with the domination over about 200,000 Italians secured by means of Yugoslavia, Stalin threatens Greece, Persia and Turkey. We fought for a world of robbery and quarrels, but in spite of the awful lessons endured, the road of intemperance seems to prevail again as a method of international policy, is the conclusion.

2. In a "corsivo" it is said that Trieste mourns twice: first for the loss of her own independence, - second as a consequence of the deception suffered at the sight of the behaviour of De Gasperi's Government where has shown itself unable to uphold with dignity the cause of the nation.

Why did the police not use tear gas bombs, continues the writer stating that De Gasperi's declaration that the Allies did not want it has been denied by the Allies. How could the gang from Cinecitta reach the Viminale without being detected and without being dispersed before reaching the Viminale, asks the writer once more concluding that the State does not offer any security to the people if the State is unable to check even a small demonstration of six thousand people.

It appears that these men not only organised but also paid the mob. The paper infers from it that behind the Viminal accidents a large scale conspiracy exists. 1. In a "corsivo" under the heading of: "Serious inquiries about the causes of the Viminal events decided upon on the proposal of Scoccimarro's comrade", the paper boasts that it was perfectly right in urging the police to get to the bottom. It adds that two provocateurs have already been arrested: a former member of the Fascist groups of action and ex-agent of the Intelligence Service, Palermi, and a fascist spy, De Paola. It appears that these men not only organized but also paid the mob. The paper infers from it that behind the Viminal incidents a large scale conspiracy exists. Therefore the Minister of Interior and the Head of the Police are urged to get to the bottom and find out those who financed the organization of the mob and to investigate the social groups who have an interest in supporting the subversive action of Neo-fascism.

2. In a "corsivo" headlined "Lizzadri unmasks a dirty game and a clown - Antonini offered dollars for disrupting Italian Syndicates", a statement delivered by Hon. Lizzadri to the News Agency SIDI is published. The interviewed explains how the Italo-American Workers Committee of New York launched in 1944 a public subscription in favour of the syndical organizations of Italy. Nobody ever could know exactly the amount of sums collected by that means, but, according to Lizzadri, they were no less than 100,000 dollars. Antonini failed to distribute that money according to the original plan: a few thousand dollars were given to an un-known and would-be Syndical Committee, established for performing disrupting action to the detriment of the CGIL. Other thousands of dollars were given to the paper "Syndical Battles", organ of the Separatist Labor Confederation of Naples. The CGIL was given later a sum of 500,000 lire, following criticism published in America on account of the arbitrary employment of the funds made by Antonini. Lizzadri affirms that he was approached twice by Antonini's emissaries who offered him a considerable sum, provided it was employed for strengthening the socialist trend within the Confederation of Labor and to prevent this body from joining the Syndical World Federation. These disrupting manoeuvres were regularly denounced to the Board of Direction of the Socialist Party.

PUBLIC RELATIONS BRANCH

R/108/357/ENS October 11, 1946.

Daily Digest of Rome Press.

GENERAL

1. The Council of Ministers will meet today. Messaggero reports that De Gasperi will inform his colleagues on his intention to transfer the Foreign Ministry to Nenni, and make an ample report on Italy's international situation. De Gasperi will also report on public order and on the incidents occurred in Rome.

2. The Constituent Assembly Treaty Commission met yesterday. De Gasperi made a report on the Italo-Austrian agreement. Parri and Nitti expressed some concern with regard to the retention of full Italian sovereignty on Alto-Adige. De Gasperi explained that it was urgent to agree with Austria, because in some Allied countries strong trends favouring the assignment of Alto Adige to Austria were already developing. The majority of the Commission declared itself in favour of the agreement. Hon. Bonomi and others recommended precaution against the return of Nazi elements. The Commission resolved to refer the matter to the Constituent Assembly. (Messaggero)

3. The Secretariat of the Communist Party yesterday issued a communiqué, dealing with the recent conflict at the Viminal, and inviting the workers to ask the Govt to nationalize the great building concerns so that the Rome building work be delivered for ever from speculation, and the problem of unemployment be solved. The communiqué also declares that the Secretariat has directed comrade Scoccimarro to call De Gasperi's attention to the gravity of the internal situation now developing in the country, of which the Viminal conflict was nothing but an episode, to the attempts of sabotage of the democratic order and economic reconstruction committed by reactionary and philo-fascist elements, and to the increasing tendency to persecute the democratic and republican popular forces which was to be detected in that section of the Administration which depended on the Ministry of the Interior. (Unità)

4. "Popolo" reports that De Gasperi has categorically denied to a Reuter correspondent the news according to which 15 persons died on account of the Rome incidents. "I feared", he said, "that some sections of foreign press would exaggerate the

2. The Constituent Assembly Treaty Commission met yesterday. De Gasperi made a report on the Italo-Austrian agreement. Parri and Tarchi expressed some concern with regard to the retention of full Italian sovereignty on Alto-Adige. De Gasperi explained that it was urgent to agree with Austria, because in some Allied countries strong trends favouring the assignment of Alto Adige to Austria were already developing. The majority of the Commission declared itself in favour of the agreement. Hon. Lombardo and others recommended precaution against the return of Nazi elements. The Commission resolved to refer the matter to the Constituent Assembly. (Messaggero)

4. "Popolo" reports that De Gasperi has categorically denied to a Reuter correspondent the news according to which 15 persons died on account of the Rome incidents. "I feared", he said, "that some sections of foreign press would exaggerate the incidents. A man died yesterday and another died last night, but this is absolutely all, no one of the other wounded is in life-danger." "Messaggero" however reports that another man died last night and that the funeral of the three workers will be made at the expense of the CGIL on Sunday next. "Risorgimento Liberale" reports from Caserta that the Allied authorities have issued a communiqué denying De Gasperi's assertion that they had forbidden the use of tear-gas bombs. "Messaggero" refers to this communiqué and pleads for the adoption by the Police of modern means of defence, excluding arms. The paper adds that the primary investigation carried out both by the Ministry of the Interior and the Police excluded the responsibility of the workers for incidents occurred. The police have arrested yesterday a Roman lawyer, Francesco Alessi, who for electoral reasons was subsiding veterans to hold demonstrations at the Ministry of Post-war Relief and other agencies.

5. "Messaggero" and other papers report that the rumor circulated in Naples yesterday that the American authorities intended to requisition again a section of the port (Calata di Massa) and put it at the disposal of the American fleet in the Mediterranean. The paper adds that local authorities have started an action aimed to avoid the requisition.

9. The Milan police have arrested five persons involved in the criminal attempt against the premises of the Communist Group, (see yesterday's Digest, General No. 5).

10. At the Paris Conference the voting of the articles of the Italian peace treaty was over early yesterday morning. The correspondents of both "Messaggero" and "Unita" stress that this voting has a mere value of "recommendation", and that some problems are still open. "Unita" writes that the unanimity which was not reached at Paris should be achieved by the Four Foreign Ministers at New York, through a just settlement of the Allied economic control proposed by the Anglo-Americans, and of the questions of Italian property abroad, war reparations, and the Trieste Statute.

11. "Messaggero" reports that following the news of the approval of the article of the peace treaty concerning the Italo-Yugoslav frontier, outbursts of happiness occurred at Gorizia, Grado, Sagrado and Monfalcone, where the population suspended work and paraded through the streets hailing Italy. Yesterday afternoon the AMG intervened, with no understandable reason, to impede further demonstrations of joy by the population. The people were dispersed by means of streams of water from fire-hoses. No demonstrations were held at Trieste. Yesterday's

Yesterday afternoon the AMG intervened, with no understandable reason, to impede further demonstrations of joy by the population. The people were dispersed by means of streams of water from fire-hoses. No demonstrations were held at Trieste. Yesterday's issue of the local paper "Voce Libera" came out with a banner headline saying "Vanessia Giulia sentenced to death. Italy condemned to hard labor." The leading article of the paper, which had a black mourning stripe on top of it, said: "The sentence cannot be appealed to the Big Four, who are the responsible authors of it, but will sure be appealed some day before history. All has to be paid. We have heavily paid for fascism and our cowardice of having submitted ourselves to it. Those who, after so many declarations of friendship and after having deceived us at length, now clearly reveal themselves to be enemies or unable to overcome their war psychosis, shall pay. If it is not on Saturday, it will be on some other day."

AFTERNOON PAPERS (October 10)

CAPITALE (Christian Democrat) - N.H.

DOMANI SERA (Independent)

In a short note entitled: "No more traffic between Gorizia and Trieste" it is reported that, according to information coming from Zone A, the Allied Authorities have decided to stop the night traffic on the main communication road between the two towns, called of the Great Valley, because it is threatened by numerous bands of malefactors.

In a leading article under the heading: "People do not learn by mistakes" commenting on the statement made by De Gasperi in connection with the bloody accidents in Viminal Square, that "We must not exasperate that event", the paper remarks that, thanks to his dogmatic frame of mind, De Gasperi has shown himself to be able to remain in the Govt at all costs, against all and in spite of everybody. On the other side this is perfectly in line with his clerical education, which is making him to think of himself as a Saviour of the nation. But, being endowed with such a frame of mind, he is the man who never learns anything, even by making mistakes. However this method is very dangerous, if it is applied to practical government, the paper warns.

On the other side this is perfectly in line with his clerical education, which is making him to think of himself as a Saviour of the nation. After the elections Socialists pretended to be prepared to take the responsibility for the Govt only if they obtained the so-called economical Ministries, states the paper. They obtained these Ministries and Romita became a Minister of Public Works, but yesterday working masses whistled at Romita as though he were some reactionary Corbino, continues the paper concluding that Socialists and Communists are governing the country but that the working masses do not trust them and are ready to devour them in the first moment when they ask the slightest sacrifice.

GIORNALE D'ITALIA

1. Well then, it was a misunderstanding which yesterday caused two killed and 140 wounded, states Senti Savarino in a leading article asking why workmen were dismissed yesterday morning if Romita did not give the order to do so and if Corsi and Nenni [illegible] ead continuity of work. Why was this misunderstanding not cleared up at once, if it was only a misunderstanding, before demonstrations began in the streets before the Viminale. From where did the group come which carried placards with the inscription "Corsi to hang" and why was the inscription just against Corsi and not against any other Minister or Undersecretary, asks the writer stressing that the Govt should publish the answer to all these questions. If honesty and simplicity do not return in political customs, the failure of Democracy will be caused by the same parties which say they are its best paladins, concludes S.S.

2. We did not expect such a brutal speech from Bevin who declared at several times that Italy acquired her return ticket and that the new Italy should not be treated like the Italy of Mussolini, comments the paper on the last session of the Paris Conference. An imperialistic tory who is fond of annexations could not have spoken harder than the Labor member Bevin, states S.d'I. concluding that Bevin's speech was the open and solemn consacration of Great Britain's triumph which succeeded in eliminating Italian power from the Mediterranean denying all the promises and the principles of the Atlantic Charter.

INDIPENDENTE

In a leading article under the heading of: "We and the British", Roberto Suster remarks that the programme upheld by British Labor party leaders is based on a dogmatic and a would-be unfailing conception of politics, as if the human world was an inert and malleable paste to be shaped at their will. As a consequence of this policy, India and Egypt have been drawn almost out of the orbit of the British Empire and the traditional sympathetic feeling of Italy towards England has been alienated, as a consequence of the injustice committed by depriving this country of her African colonies. The writer asserts, by way of conclusion, that dogma is to be rejected as a method for governing men, and only a generous spirit of understanding of the aspirations of human consciousness should be considered as a guiding principle of fruitful reforms in the field of national and international politics.

QUOTIDIANO (Independent Catholic)

In a leading article under the heading of "Uneasiness", the paper criticizes the comments published by a few newspapers on the painful accidents of the Viminal Palace, because they revealed a partisan standpoint, inconsistent with the plain truth and national dignity. For instance, the writer argues, that morning paper which printed a four column headline, obviously with reference to the Govt, stating: "After having promised bread and work, they gave the crowd volleys of gun", has not accomplished a noble action. The article adds that the need of the present hour is to appease the spirits, in order to find a basis of solidarity and co-operation among all parties and classes of citizens.

BUONSENSO (Roman Catholic)

1. In a leading article under the heading: "Those who discharge guns against the crowd", the paper asserts that at the origin of such criminal events as the slaughter of a mob before the Viminale Police, there is always a lack of foresight on the part of the Govt in satisfying the people's needs. On a minor scale, the "role" of a Govt is much like that of a Father of family, who must be able to prevent the younger members of the household and provide to their future. Bad Govt leaders, whatever is party they belong to, are the direct promoters of disorders, which can then be repressed only by the force of arms. The paper protests also against what it calls a demagogical manoeuvre of the left elements of De Gasperi's Govt, who have launched a campaign against Hon. Scelba, Undersecretary at the Ministry of Interior, in an attempt to convert him into a scape-goat of the last criminal events.

2. This plan would provide useful occupation to thousands of workers, in a far more convenient manner than that applied by the Civil Engineering Department.

GLOBO (Economic)

1. The Italo-Polish commercial agreement was signed yesterday by Premier Alcide De Gasperi and the Polish Ambassador in Rome, Prof. Stanislaw Grabski. This agreement stipulates an exchange of 750 million tons of Polish coal worth 10 million Dollars, against Italian industrial and textile products and a certain number of films. Furthermore Poland will be allowed to buy in the next four years Italian industrial products up to a total amount of 40 million Dollars.

2. G. reports an interview with Hon. Rapelli, the Secretary General of the Italian Confederation of Labor, in which he says that he would be in favor of the nationalization of several branches of Industry, provided that the syndical freedom of workers were not hampered, and that the Govt enforced a stricter control on Italian exports abroad.

3. G. says that the Govt should grant subventions even to the light industry to expand the nation's reconstruction effort.

4. G. reports that an Italo-Polish-Czechoslovak agreement for transport of Polish coal to Italy through Czechoslovakia was reached a few days ago in Prague.

5. G. reports that Italian lemons and oranges meant for export into France must be examined by the "Osservatorio Fitopatologico" (Phytopathological Observatory) before going abroad.

6. G. reports that only 500,000 meters of war film out of the scheduled 4,500,000 meters (3,200,000 of which were to come from the United States, 700,000 from England and 500,000 from France) will be imported into Italy this year, owing to the fact that the Ministry of Foreign Commerce did not allow the American and British lots to be paid in Italian currency. The French lot will be bought through the special Italo-French clearing.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. Commenting on the formation of the "popular block" between Communists, Socialists and Action Party for the Rome local elections, Francesco Fancello reports that this block will not menace religious interests but will react most firmly against all attempts to trouble by artificial alarms the natural political exigencies of the Italian people. The Catholic masses will soon realize that their interests are not the same as those of the Water Company, of the Gas Company and of the speculators who are profiting by the "free" disorders of public services.

ITALIAN SITUATION (Action)

1. Commenting on the formation of the "popular block" between Communists, Socialists and Action Party for the Rome local elections, Francesco Fancello reports that this block will not menace religious interests but will resist most firmly against all attempts to trouble by artificial alarm, the natural political exigencies of the Italian people. The Catholic masses will soon realize that their interests are not the same as those of the Water Company, of the Gas Company and of the speculators who are profitting by the "free" disorders of public services.

2. The unemployed who demonstrated at the Viminale the day before yesterday did not revolt against their Govt - such as "Risorgimento Liberale" yesterday reported in a provoking headline of 8 columns -, says I.L., but demonstrated against a Govt which gave them class instead of salaries.

ITALIA NUOVA (Liberal)

1. Commenting on yesterday's incidents at the Viminale, I.N. says that "the riot was meticulously organized", despite the Ministry of Interior's assertion that the workers of the "Genio Civile" had no intention of making trouble. It also says that "it is rather curious that the Questura did not issue an official communiqué about the matter and did not disclose that thirty persons had been arrested, ten of whom freed later on, and that 3 of them were already sent to the Regina Coeli prison."

2. Under the heading "The time of bureaucracy", I.N. writes: "The 'mass' parties praise bureaucracy because it resisted Fascism and succeeded in saving the structure of the State, but in the meantime they attack it because bureaucracy now resists anti-Fascism. The 'mass' parties are therefore in contradiction with themselves because the Italian bureaucracy is still the same and continues today to do what it was doing before, that is to save the State's organization and tradition. The Fascists wanted the bureaucracy to be their slave and so do now the anti-Fascists, this is why bureaucracy opposes anti-Fascism with the same methods as it previously opposed Fascism. ...".

3. I.N. says that "the Govt, and only the Govt, bears the responsibility for the present economic policy which leads the country more towards ruin than towards reconstruction", and asks who "will punish those who are responsible for this policy which is based on misunderstanding and bad faith and therefore cannot prevent the country from falling into ruin, and the people from being hungry". It concludes by asserting that "the Italian people asks for bread, work and reconciliation" and that "they will not let themselves be fooled this time".

Commenting on what the writer calls "the great injustices implied in this treaty", (such as the 325 million dollar war reparations, the properties of Italian citizens in foreign countries subject to seizure, the mutilations of the national territory at the Eastern and Western boundary and the sad destiny of the colonies), the paper asserts that in spite of all contrary appearances, the future of Italy is always in the hands of the Italian citizens. 3. I.T. says that "the Govt, and only the Govt, bears the responsibility for the present economic policy which leads the country more towards ruin than towards reconstruction", and asks who "will punish those who are responsible for this policy which is based on misunderstanding and bad faith and therefore cannot prevent the country from falling into ruin, and the people from being hungry". It concludes by asserting that "the Italian people asks for bread, work and reconciliation" and that "they will not let themselves be fooled this time".

LABOUR (Government)

1. In a leading article under the heading of: "Not to despair", the writer criticises the action of the last Plenary session of the Paris Peace Conference in approving the Peace treaty with Italy, and asserts that it is almost certain that the Big-4 will ratify and apply it. Commenting on what the writer calls "the most injustices implied in this Treaty", (such as the 325 million dollar war reparations, the properties of Italian citizens in foreign countries subject to seizure, the mutilations of the national territory at the Eastern and Western boundary and the sad destiny of the colonies), the paper asserts that in spite of all contrary appearances, the future of Italy is always in the hands of the Italian citizens. The unity among all patriotic elements, above and outside the various parties which always exerted a deteriorating influence on Italian politics, could only rectify this situation in the future and redeem Trieste, the native town of Oberdan.

2. In a "corsivo" note under the heading of: "Is there someone who knows it?", it is recalled that in Italy there is a numerous category of people who are enduring the tragic consequences of war, under a far more cruel form than that suffered by war-veterans. The writer refers to those Italian citizens who after having lost their properties abroad on account of war-reparation seizures, on their return to Italy have learned that they are not allowed to use their saved money, their investments and other patrimonial assets here, because they were blocked by virtue of an Allied Decree issued during war-time and still in force now. The Italian Govt has retitled that Decree, but even in our governmental circles no one is able to tell how long the legal validity of this Decree will last. Therefore the writer puts the question: "Is there some one who knows it?"

MOMENTO (Independent Socialist)

1. Leo Levi stresses the importance of Italy's participation in the agreements of Bretton Woods with regard to the stabilization of the Italian currency and the possibility to obtain loans and raw material from abroad.

2. "Who was interested in bribing public manifestations at the Viminale degenerate in violence?" asks the paper, adding that it is necessary to state that for the works in question the State paid 1000 lire per worker to the contractors who instead paid only 350 lire to the workers. The fact that in this case the undertaker was the State itself is a warning for all those who want every undertaking nationalized, concludes the paper.

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

1. P. says that "Italia Nuova's" articles are, in spite of the fact that this paper has become "independent", as demagogical as those of "Unità", and what if it were not for the Christian Democrat Party, "nothing would prevent the Italian Democracy from being crushed by the combined fire of the Rightist subversive elements "in tail coats", and of the Leftist ones 'in caps'."

2. P. answers to the "Avanti" and "Unità" accusations against the "profiteers and speculators of building enterprises", reminding them that the Ministry of Public Works has almost always been in the hands of the Socialists and of the Communists and that it has almost always been them who granted public works to the enterprises and who fixed the prices.

IL GIORNALE DELL'ITALIA (Liberal)

1. Referring to the incidents at the Viminal, G.L. stresses the deceitful attitude of the Communists who want at any cost to participate in the Govt with a certain number of key-Ministries in order to prevent the union of the bourgeois majority from consolidating and from participating in a Western block. As members of the Govt, Communists share the responsibility of the Govt for the desagregation of the workers at the beginning of the raw material from abroad".

2. Who was interested in having specific qualifications at the Viminal deteriorate in the future?" asks the paper, adding that it is necessary to state that for the works in question the State allowed 1000 lire per worker to the contractors who instead paid only 390 lire to the worker. The fact that in this case the entrepreneur was the State itself is a warning for all those who want every enterprise nationalized, concludes the paper.

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

1. It says that "Il Tempo's" articles are, in spite of the fact that this paper has become "independent", as demagogical as those of "Unità", and that if it were not for the Christian Democrat Party, "nothing would prevent the Italian Democracy from being crushed by the combined fire of the Rightist subversive elements "in frail coats', and of the Leftist ones 'in rags'."

2. It answers to the "Avanti" and "Unità" accusations against the "profiteers and speculators of building enterprises", reminding them that the Ministry of Public Works has almost always been in the hands of the Socialists and of the Communists and that it has almost always been them who granted public works to the enterprises and who fixed the prices.

IL POPOLO LIBERALE (Liberal)

1. Referring to the incidents at the Viminal, it stresses the deceitful attitude of the Communists who want at any cost to participate in the Govt with a certain number of key-Ministries in order to prevent the rebirth of a bourgeois majority from consolidating and from participating in a Western block. As members of the Govt, Communists share the responsibility of the Govt for the desperation of the workers at the beginning of the winter, continues the paper, and on the other side the Communists lead demonstrations of workers who protest against the lack of Govt which is caused by the Communists themselves.

2. Revilles criticizes ironically the incidents at the Viminal and writes that the stick of the corporals of the Italian Royal Army, of the Austrians and Croats, who oppressed the Italians, was condemned to be used to the honour of the reserve Democracy.

4. "Does Bevin really believe that the world does not realize that the peace approved by the twenty-one at Paris on 9 October 1946 is a replica of reprisals such as the Assyro-Babilonians could have imposed on 1946 before Christ?", writes the paper.

T. PO (Independent)

T. prints an interview by its reporter Aldo Biroldi with Count Carlo Sforza on the possibilities of Italian emigration into South America. Count Sforza said that "there is a great and general sympathy for Italy in all the South American Republics", that "there are huge possibilities for emigration into Brazil, Argentina, Colombia, Peru, Chili and Venezuela" and that "Venezuela is the country which might need Italian labor sooner than the other countries because of the development of her oil industry".

UNITA' (Communist)

In a leading article entitled: "Collusion of Forces", Pietro Ingrao replies in the affirmative to the question as to whether there are today in Rome fascist provocateur agents, who acted during the accidents that took place before the Viminal Palace. The Head of the police, the Questor and De Gasperi, (the latter in his capacity as Premier), the writer adds, should have a clear consciousness of the serious character of such a question. The provocation always presupposes a situation of uneasiness and irritation of the masses, but in the opinion of the writer, the elements of a real conspiracy on the part of the fascist and reactionary forces are clearly apparent in the Viminal case: a false news, the instigation of the masses and finally the hand-grenades and other arms used by a section of the people who took part in the demonstration. The Head of the police and the Minister of Interior are urged to remain on their guard against fresh attempts by the Rome fascists to renew the Viminal riots.

GENERAL

1. An estimated 8,000 roadmen demonstrated yesterday in front of the Viminal palace to protest against their threatened dismissal. The crowd grew excited, attacked the police standing on guard, over powered them, entered the palace and ransacked the offices. The Press Office of the President of the Council last night issued an official communiqué, stating that following the decision taken by the Genio Civile to suspend the works "a regia" in the Rome area owing to certain abuses which had been unanimously deplored by the press and public opinion, numerous conferences had been held recently at the Ministries of the Interior and Public Works and at the Rome Commune in order to draft a plan of real public interest which would re-employ the manpower which was gradually being dismissed. Undersecretary Corsi had already given assurances to the building units internal commissions that the Govt would take action before Saturday. The same delegation of workers was received the day before yesterday by Nenni who confirmed that yesterday, upon De Gasperi's return to Rome, the Govt would take the necessary steps. Following the promise that any agitation would be suspended, Nenni convoked for yesterday afternoon the delegates of the internal commission in order to notify them of the action taken by the Govt. But yesterday morning, on going to work, the workers found a printed notice dated 9 October announcing their dismissal as of Saturday next. This induced the workers to abandon their work and to proceed to the Viminal and the various ministries. While a delegation, which was introduced into Nenni's office, was waiting for him to arrive, seditious elements, among whom there were some refugees camped at Cinecittà, invaded the piazza in front of the Viminal, broke open the windows of the ground floor and entered the palace. The public forces then intervened to reject the demonstrators, and while calm was being restored owing to the action of persuasion carried out by Ministers Nenni and Mercalli, another and graver incident took place at the other side of the building, where the demonstrators attempted to disarm the Celere police. During this incident shots were discharged by both parties. This and other clashes, during which some hand-grenades were thrown, resulted in about 50 demonstrators and 29 policemen being wounded, one of whom died at the Santo Spirito Hospital. At 1200 hours, with the afflux of numerous police forces and with the peace-making

During this incident shots were discharged by both parties. This and other clashes, during which some hand-grenades were thrown, resulted in about 50 demonstrators and 29 policemen being wounded, one of whom died at the Santo Spirito Hospital. At 1200 hours, with the afflux of numerous police forces and with the peace-making intervention of the secretaries of the Trade Union and the members of the internal commissions, calm was restored. The representatives of the workers, during a meeting with Minister Nenni, deplored the episodes of violence which they attributed to uncontrollable elements. De Gasperi held a press conference last night and deplored the distorted accounts given and the lack of seriousness shown by the papers on this occasion. He said that the use of tear-gas bombs was not allowed by the Allies.

Late last night the Presidency of the Council issued another communiqué stating that the number of injured was 141, of whom 82 were among the demonstrators and 59 among the public forces. 18 were hurt by fire arms. One of the demonstrators died at the San Giacomo Hospital. The demonstrators under arrest, all of whom have had previous convictions for other offences, are 16.

2. "Unità" reports from Paris that the Peace Conference General Assembly is swiftly voting the articles of the Italian treaty, and it is expected that this work will be over today. The paper stresses that the zone of Trieste will be put under control of the UNO Security Council which will be represented by a Governor having dictator-like powers. Two Russian amendments to the Trieste Statute were approved, by which the Governor will be responsible for the application of the statute, and the legislative assembly will be elected with a proportional representation and with universal, direct and secret suffrage. The island of Saseno has been transferred to Albania. Allied forces in Italy will be withdrawn within 90 days from the signature of the treaty. Molotov delivered a speech affirming that the treaty should not contain any humiliating condition for Italy, nothing which might lead to an economic dependency of Italy upon more powerful states. "The colonial statute for Trieste has been approved", headlines the paper. "Italia Libera" headlines: "Italy's drama concluded at Paris. With a dreadful swiftness clauses have been approved which make the responsibilities of fascism fall on the entire Italian people. The spirit of the preamble distorted by the substance of the treaty." The correspondent of "Il Popolo", Cecchini, reports the statements made yesterday by Saragat at a press conference. Saragat recalled that the Conference had formally acknowledged Italy's co-belligerence and modified the preamble of the treaty. As for the western frontier, he stated that the settlement was not such as to satisfy the Italian people, and the Italian Govt still insisted on its viewpoint that ethnical principles should be respected. Turning to war reparation, Saragat declared he fully agreed Spaak's statement to the General Assembly of the Conference that "the treaty is hard and as far as war reparations are concerned it is unjust and twice unjust not only for Italy, but for the Allies themselves." Saragat concluded by affirming: "We shall continue to fight because we consider that the struggle of defense against the economic clauses now planned is not unjust. The Four have not yet made a decision, and we will do something to prevent the Italian economy from being upset."

3. On leaving Rome, Luigi Antonini, President of the Italo-American Council of Labor, yesterday declared to the press that

3. On leaving Rome, Luigi Antonini, President of the Italo-American Council of Labor, yesterday declared to the press that America, as a counterpart to the cordial help given to Italy, asked for a true friendship and the institution of a true democracy in Italy. "Foreign organizations should be absolutely free and their leaders should be real workers", he said. "In Italy, instead, it is not so, and this disappointed the American workers. For instance, after the flood plot the CGIL received initial help of 5,000 dollars, but when in the U.S. they had the feeling that the CGIL was dominated by political parties, help was discontinued." Antonini then declared himself satisfied with the method of distribution of the relief which America was

5. A [illegible]-bomb yesterday exploded in the premises of a Communist [illegible] at Milan. The five-year old son of the doorkeeper was killed. 9. Henry Kaiser will establish a "Kaiser-Fiat" factory in the U.S. for the production of 1,100 type FIAT automobiles. Next year's output has been fixed at 40,000 cars. These cars have a consumption of one gallon of gasoline per 27 miles and would cost less than 1,000 dollars. (INS)

According to the latest data given by the Press Office of the President of the Council, the results of communal elections are as follows: the Social-Communists gained the majority in 55 communes, the Christian-Democrats in 40 communes, the Independents in 18 communes, the Qualunquisti and Liberals in 4 communes. AVANTI! (Socialist)

1. Referring to yesterday's incidents at the Viminale, Sandro Pertini writes that it must be said quite frankly that the Govt did not take provisions with necessary energy to prevent the workers from coming in the present extremely difficult situation. There is no time to lose with useless celebrations and choreographic inaugurations, continues the writer adding that the President of the Council should occupy himself only with coordinating and controlling the work of every single Ministry. The writer concludes that it should also be necessary to establish order in Italy and to fight against all provokers of disorders, against every mania of hysterical manifestations and against every absurd request.

2. "A." comments in a leading article on yesterday's incidents in Rome saying that the Govt should accept Nenni's proposal to charge the cooperative companies with the execution of public works in avoiding private operations. The logical solution of the problem must be a plan, the will to execute this plan and to charge the workers directly with the direction of the operation, states the paper concluding that there is only one alternative either to live by leaving the limits of the bourgeois system or to perish together with the bourgeois society.

BUONSENSO (Uomo Qualunque)

In a leading article under the heading of: "Do not deceive the poor people", referring to the bloody tumults before the "Viminale", the paper says that what happened yesterday in Rome might take place as well in other centers of Italy where there are poor people hungry, jobless, discouraged and a police with scarce numerical force, almost unarmed, underpaid and disoriented on account of a lack of clear and precise directions. The duty of the Govt, the writer adds, was to provide work for all, but certain governmental measures, such as the enforcement of Commissaries on special industrial establishments, very soon caused unemployment and paralysis of production. Those who took part at the demonstrations before the "Viminale", according to "Buonsenso" were poor unemployed workers, and not royalists, as "Voce Repubblicana" insinuated. The article concludes by addressing an appeal to the Govt to take urgent measures for the resumption of work for all and efficiently help the employers of man power to re-organize and foster the progress of production in all branches of

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. Under the heading "a plan against unemployment", I.L. asserts that the lack of an economic-political plan caused yesterday's incidents at the Viminale. The workers realized that their salaries were nothing but alms as the work they obtained from the Govt was unproductive, continues the paper concluding that it was natural that the unemployed masses were preoccupied by the lack of governmental provisions and that they, therefore, easily became objects of demagogic speculators.

2. Commenting on the preparative sessions of Christian Democrat Roman sections, Mario Berlinguer criticises that the Christian Democrats treated the Fascist problem quite superficially but stressed the necessity of a Christian Democrat administration for Rome as "Rome is the capital of Christianity".

ITALIA NUOVA (Liberal)

1. "They had promised 'Bread and Work' and they give tommy-gun bullets to the crowd" is I.N.'s headline on yesterday's incidents at the Viminale.

2. I.N. comments on yesterdays incidents under the heading "Murder of people". It says that "no Italian can admit that a handful of instigators and political bureaucrats at the service of dim foreign interests should hamper and sabotage the effort of reconstruction of the country and let them continue to spread hatred among the people" and accuses the Govt. of having "fooled the people with a demagogic and unproductive policy of wealth instead of speaking to them with the severe but good language of reality".

3. IN.N. comments on yesterday's headline of "Voce Repubblicana" (see above) "A well ordered demonstration becomes a conflict owing to Communist and Fascist provocateurs" writing: "This is a brilliant example of journalist morality. Is it a fixed idea or ill-faith? We must from now on expect anything from the "topics".

MESSAGERO (Government)

1. In a leading article under the heading: "To change method", the paper says that one of the main duties connected with the bloody events of yesterday is to ascertain, through a careful, stern and quick investigation that is already going on, which individuals or agencies are responsible for having given suddenly and without proper authorization the order of dismissing 56,000 workers occupied in the digging works around Rome. But the writer adds that there is also a serious lack of organizing capacity and foresight in this bad affair on the part of the Govt, who should never have permitted such a great mass of workers to be reduced to a jobless state, with great danger for public order.

2. In a "corsivo" under the heading: "Bevin confesses himself", the paper criticises the statement made by the British minister of Foreign Affairs at the Peace Conference, concerning the alienation of Italian colonies, such as Cyrenaica, Tripolitania and Eritrea respectively in favour of "Senussi", Tripolitania's native populations and Ethiopia on the following grounds: "The "Senussi" are not the bulk of Cyrenaica population, self-government is not wanted by native Tripolitanean people, who know very well that it would cause disorder, hunger, misery for themselves and insolence by local leaders, and Ethiopia is practically a British colony.

POPOLO (Independent Leftist)

Deploring yesterday's incidents in Rome, L. accuses the Govt of having the whole responsibility for those conflicts. The people feel distrust and the unemployed masses, still increasing in an impressive manner, are adding an unlimited fear to this distrust, states the paper asserting that starvers and speculators can continue their criminal activity without being punished and that unclean patrimonies, accumulated during twenty years of Fascism, are not provided with special taxes.

MOMENTO (Independent Leftist)

Deploring yesterday's incidents in Rome, M. accuses the Govt of having the whole responsibility for these conflicts. The people feel distrust and the unemployed masses, still increasing in an impressive manner, are adding an unlimited fear to this distrust, states the paper asserting that starvers and speculators can continue their criminal activity without being punished and that unclean patrimonies, accumulated during twenty years of Fascism, are not provided with special taxes.

2. P. says that the Communists apparently do not want the Segni decree on occupation of land to be applied.

3. P. replies as follows to yesterday's article of "Unita" "How to shut the mouths of the Communists?" (See yesterday's Digest page 3, para. 2): "Are there indeed people who want to make the Communists shut up? - A, the poor people! If the Communists should shut up, and above all those of 'Unita', who would delight our lonesome days by repeating as a gramophone the voice of the 'master'...? - ..." "Unita" says that "Popolo" does not like to hear bad things on De Gasperi's foreign policy. Well, does 'Unita' like to hear bad things on Kardelj's foreign policy? - Is it not natural that each one should defend the Foreign Minister dear to his own heart? ...".

"One should not shoot at the people", proclaimed "Unita" a few months ago criticizing the "reactionary caste", says R.L. adding that today when the Govt is entirely in the hands of orthodox Parties, of the Parties of the CGIL and when Socialists, Communists and Republicans are controlling the most important key-Ministries, people are shot. The full responsibility for these incidents lies with the "Government of the Left", stresses the leader concluding that the arm of agitation slid out of the hands of the provokers and rose against their Government.

2. The capital sentence for Captain Simonetti supposed to have committed "war crimes" is proposing again in all its gravity the problem of the legitimacy of judgements by military persons of victor countries with regard to actions said to be illegal done by soldiers of vanquished countries, writes Federico Agata.

UNITA' (Communist)

1. In a leading article entitled: "To get to the bottom", Pietro Ingrao charges the "Kings of the building industry", for being responsible for the yesterday's bloodshed at the Viminal. The tragic economic situation confronting Italy could be cope done only by going to the bottom in the work of social reformation, by a nationalization scheme of all the means of production, so as to suppress the greedy exploitation of capitalists, who are responsible for all the misery we are enduring today.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785016

2. In a "corsivo" under the heading: "The technique of provocation - On whom does the responsibility lay?", it is said that the responsibility for the criminal events lies on the contractors of the Civil Engineering Department, who consciously caused the workers' revolt by a mass dismissal when they learned that the Government was going to give them notice of the breaking of the old public works contract, under a suggestion made by the Rome Chamber of Labor, because it was too advantageous to the contracting firms and expensive for the national treasury. The whole affair, according to the paper, was the result of a conspiracy set up with the help of agents provocateurs, in the exclusive interests of the capitalists.

3. The paper publishes the following rectification by Pietro Nenni: "Dear comrade Editor, In the special edition of last night's "Lotta", it was said: "Minister Nenni stated that it appeared to him that a column of former republican fascists coming from "Cinecittà" joined the people taking part in the demonstration". The news is not exact as stated in these terms. Owing to the fact that I was mingled with the crowd taking part in the demonstration and I was trying, together with the more serious workers, to prevent further excesses, I was not in a position to distinguish either the place where the people taking part in the manifestation were coming from, or the political party to which they belonged. It was the delegates of the Internal Commissions of the building-yards, who told me at 2 o' clock that the first acts of violence were committed by a group of refugees living at "Cinecittà". GENERAL

1. "I find that the treaty with Italy, and I am telling you this without reticence, is too hard", Spaak, the Belgian delegate, told the Paris Conference yesterday. He added that "the shades of Matteotti and Rosselli are protecting the new democratic Italy, which we must help to live and strengthen herself", and affirmed that the economic burdens imposed on Italy were excessive and that in the long run it would be better to have a vital Italy rather than some milliards squeezed out of her now. Bevin then spoke. "This pact is not hard", he said, "we have not been unjust towards Italy. We have taken into consideration new Italy, but could not pass the sponge on Mussolini's aggressions. As for Trieste, the parallel with Danzig does not fit and should not frighten anybody: Danzig could have been a good test if there had not been Hitler. It is not true that Great Britain wants to make a naval and strategical base out of Trieste. These are groundless affirmations." Bevin then supported the French line, and turning to the colonies he said that he would favor Eritrea's annexion to Ethiopia and the independence of Tripolitania and Cirenaica. He concluded by affirming that the economic section of the treaty was not hard if compared with damage caused by Italy to her former-enemy countries during the period of the aggressive war. "Italy will find her greatness because this is based on freedom and work and not on the slogans of fascism". Bidault stressed that this was the first time that France found herself in front of Italy as a former-enemy and this was against nature. He said that the true aspirations of the Italian people were peaceful and he did not believe (referring to the disarmament imposed by the treaty) that a spirit of aggression was surviving in Italy. As for the colonies, Bidault affirmed that Italy should not be excluded from the settlement of the issue: she should be offered the opportunity of making a better proof under UNO control. Kardelj reaffirmed that his country would not sign the treaty if Yugoslav claims on Trieste were not satisfied. The American delegate declared that he would support the clauses passed by the Economic commission. This report is given in "Messaggero" which headlines it with: "Good words for Italy, but the treaty remains unchanged". Other headlines: Momento "Yugoslavia will not sign the peace", Popolo "According to Spaak the treaty is too hard, according to Bevin it is not", Unita "Great Britain presents her

Italy and France. The latter may renounce the seizure of Italian property in her territory and her pre-war credits in francs, and asks to be credited with a sum in lire to be used for remittances which Italian workers in France will make to their families in Italy. Also yesterday, the American delegation, in a declaration presented to the Conference, stated that the U.S. intended: (1) to be satisfied with the payment of 25% of damage suffered by U.S. property in Italy, (2) to limit the seizure of Italian property in the U.S. to the sole regularization of some private claims, whose total will not be high, and to negotiate an accord with Italy on this matter. With this sole reservation, the 60 million dollar Italian property in the U.S. will not be touched.

AFTERNOON PAPERS (October)

CAPITAL (Christian Democrat)

In a short news item from Milan it is announced that on initiative of the "Automobile Club" of that city, the First Transport Congress of Italy will be held there during the first months of 1947. The Congress is called under the auspices of the said "Automobile Club", with the co-operation of the Engineers' College of Milan, the Touring Club of Italy and the Magazine "Inter-auto". The purpose of the Congress will be to study the various problems connected with the national reconstruction in the field of Land, Sea and Aerial Transport, with special reference to the utilization of different Transport means.

EPOCA (Independent)

Epoca prints an interview by one of its correspondents in Rimini with an ex-officer of the German Army now a prisoner of War, about the sentence passed by the Nuremberg Court against Nazi war criminals. The officer said it was "well done" and that Keitel, "the worst of all... merited more than any other to die."

FIGARO (Independent)

In a leading article entitled "What the word "Merging" means", the paper insinuates that the amalgamation policy carried out by a few political groups in Italy finds a counterpart in two different and hostile sections in which this country is divided in the economic field: the poor, the destitute and exploited on one side and the enormously rich and exploiter on the other. There was a time when the so-called middle-classes believed that they belonged to the "bourgeoisie", but today they have sunk to the lowest condition of the proletariat. Therefore, in the face of the political merging of the reactionary forces, it is necessary to bring about an amalgamation of all laboring elements, including the middle classes, who are an integral part of the labor world.

In a note under the rubrik "Porcupine", the paper remarks that in the Journalists' Meeting of Palermo, not only have the members voted unanimously in favor of the maintenance of the "Albo" (Official Register of authorized journalists), but the principle was asserted that only those who are registered in the "Albo" are entitled regularly to practise the journalist profession. The paper enumerates the various reasons for which such measures are disapproved by liberal minded people, first of all that of offering an opportunity to practise the profession to those people who, by their innate intelligence and geniality could be able to renew the spirit of journalism. The note concludes that the normal rules of law and justice are sufficient to govern the press.

conversion of the old British statesman to the pan-european plan, according to the Author of the article, was prompted only by political opportunism, owing to the necessity of building up a bulwark against the expansion of Russia's influence and power. Although proclaiming himself a keen supporter of the U.S. of Europe idea, the writer does not share Churchill's plan, because of the alleged imperialistic character of the latter. In his opinion, the conditions on which a steady union of Europe should be based, are the following: a) Equality of rights and duties for all members of the Union - b) All States of Eastern Europe should be entitled to join the Union - c) The Union should follow an independent political line with respect to the Anglo-saxon and Russian blocks.

1. Commenting on an article in the Florence paper "Il Ponte" in which Giuliano Gora compared the present reform of Italian diplomacy with Bevin's attitude after his appointment as a Foreign Minister not to dismiss any previously appointed diplomat, Emilio Lussu writes that any comparison between the present situation of Italian diplomacy and British diplomacy after Churchill's leave is wrong. L.L. asserts that the change of Government in Great Britain does not involve British Foreign Policy in spite of all differencies between Conservative and Labor Party in internal political matters. Constitution, Parliamentary institutions and public law have remained unchanged since Churchill's leaving. Italian diplomats who represented Fascist regime, considered as an infamy, cannot serve Italian Democracy, concludes L.L.

2. In a short note it is reported that a "Qualunquista" Deputy, Hon. Mastroianni, has submitted to the Government an official question for the purpose of securing to war-veterans and disabled former soldiers to be released from sanatariums for pulmonary sickness, a sufficient monthly pecuniary help until such time as they can resume their work. The present subsidy of 300 lire per month during a three month period after the release from sanatarium, is insufficient. A written reply is requested.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. Commenting on an article in the Florence paper "Il Ponte" in which Giuliano Gora compared the present reform of Italian diplomacy with Bevin's attitude after his appointment as a Foreign Minister not to dismiss any previously appointed diplomat, Emilio Lussu writes that any comparison between the present situation of Italian diplomacy and British diplomacy after Churchill's leave is wrong. E.L. asserts that the change of Government in Great Britain does not involve British Foreign Policy in spite of all differencies between Conservative and Labor Party in internal political matters. Constitution, Parliamentary institutions and public law have remained unchanged since Churchill's leaving. Italian diplomats who represented Fascist regime, considered as an infamy, cannot serve Italian Democracy, concludes E.L.

2. In a leading article Paolo Vittorelli writes about the Congress of the Conservative Party in England that the Conservatives realized there was a profound crisis of European Conservatism and wanted to renew their Party such as do so many Italian Parties.

3. Provincial Congress of Action Party at Perugia approved 2107 the following order of the day: irreconciliation of the Party with regard to the Government, substitution of high bureaucrats, reduction of military service in the army and a clear attitude in economic matters, reports the paper.

MESSAGGERO (Government)

1. In a leading article under the heading: "Is everything lost?", Mario Delli Santi asserts that in spite of the Paris dictat, Italians have no reason to despair about the destiny of their colonies, because the country does not intend to give up the struggle for the defense of her rights. In those over-sea lands, Italy has left immortal traces of her constructive power in all field of civilization. The most important thing is that the Govt and the Constituent Assembly should be alive to the fact that the colonial issue is no less important than the election, the black market, public order, morality and all other serious problems the country is confronted with. We must look far away, beyond the seas.

2. In a short note under the title: "Scattered shots against an agent of the U.P.", it is reported that last night an Allied M.P., while passing in a jeep in a street of the Quadraro quarter of Rome, near the Felice Aqueduct, was compelled to slow up the machine on account of a few stones obstructing the street. Soon after he was seriously struck in the head by a discharge of shots. The American Criminology section was promptly informed about this serious incident. The section at once started investigations with the co-operation of the "Carabinieri" of that zone of the city. A few suspected persons were arrested.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785016

This announcement is followed by an article by Enzo Selvaggi, the editor of the paper and the Leader of the Italian Democrat Party which explains why "Italia Nuova" was turned from a Party's paper into a Independent one. This article is concluded by: "Our fight will be for Peace and for the moral and political reconciliation of the Italians".

MOMENTO (Independent Leftist)

1. Referring to the last discussions of the Paris Conference about the Italian Peace Treaty, F. Paolo Giordani writes that the Italian Peace Treaty remains a Diktat in spite of innumerable Italian memorandums and in spite of the Italian help during the last few years of war, recognized by the Conference. The errors, committed at Versailles, have been repeated with exasperating obstinacy at Paris, continues the writter adding that reparations will be asked by the victors which prevent the vanquished countries from recovering and that the foolish Dannig corridor, indisputable cause for the last conflict, has been reproduced in the free territory of Trieste. T.P.G. quotes Marshal Smuts as having stressed that history agreed with his opposition to the decisions at Versailles and that this time the errors will be still more important.

2. The paper says it remains skeptical with regard to decrees of the Govt against black market until the first black marketeer has been sentenced to be shot.

RISORGIMENTO LIBERALE (Liberal)

1. Referring to the menacing new Fascism denounced by all papers of the Left, R.L. compares the present Italian situation with the situation in 1919-22 and adds that every dictatorship is not the result of diabolic ability of a magician but of the result of a political situation. The present Italian Govt does its best to reproduce such conditions, concludes the paper.

In an open letter from Bari under the heading: "Where the Republic has not yet arrived", Ruggero Grieco asserts that in the Southern sections of the country, specially in Puglia and in that large strip of territory placed between Capitanata and Terra di Otranto, Fascism is still rampant and victorious. There is over there the reign of "Uomo qualunque" and of the National Qualonist Party, which are identified by the writer as Fascist parties. The De Gasperi Govt is warned that serious measures must be taken to enforce the new republican and democratic regime even in those sections of the country, otherwise, the writer adds, all republican elements of the South will be compelled to consider this state of affairs and to carry out such measures as the situation requires.

Daily Digest of Rome Press.

GENERAL

1. The first returns of ballots cast during last Sunday's local elections indicate a social-communist majority. "Unità" writes that "once again the people have voted for a profound social renewal", and that "the workers' flag flies over the communes of Rimini, Gubbio, Crema and Cassino". Most of the papers report that the affluence of electors to the polls has been satisfactory, excluding the commune of Monte Santa Maria Tiberina where a section of the electors, writes "Il Popolo", abstained from voting to protest against the failure to elevate the Lippiano fraction to the status of an autonomous commune.

2. De Gasperi called on Admiral De Courten yesterday to discuss with him the naval aspects of recent developments at the Paris Conference. Later on De Gasperi had a long conversation with Bonomi. (Popolo)

3. De Nicola, accompained by De Gasperi and other Ministers, today will leave Rome by air for Palermo where he will inaugurate the Mediterranean Fair and pay a visit to journalists participating in the Press National Congress.

4. The Constituent Assembly Treaty Commission will meet tomorrow afternoon to discuss the Paris Conference proceedings and the Italian peace treaty. It seems that the Commission will also examine the Italo-Austrian agreement and Italy's participation in the financial agreements of Bretton Woods. The Constituent Assembly will convene late this month to ratify the Bretton Woods agreement. (Popolo)

5. During a speech delivered to the people of Cesena, Hon. Macrelli (Republican) announced that the change of currency was certain and pleaded for the adoption of rationing of clothing. He further declared that military service would be reduced to six months. (Messaggero)

6. A meeting to make a decision on the details of the new national loan was held at the Ministry of the Treasury yesterday morning. Ministers Bertone and Scoccimarro, the Governor of the Bank of Italy Einaudi, Dr. Menichella and the representatives of the various banks participated in the meeting. They agreed

Ministers Bertone and Scoccimarro, the Governor of the Bank of Italy Einaudi, Dr. Menichella and the representatives of the various banks participated in the meeting. They agreed in principle that the loan should be redeemable and unaffected by the extraordinary tax on real property or other possible taxes. The rate of interest will probably be set at 2.5%. (Popolo). "Messaggero" reports that the loan will most likely be floated on 15 November and that its definite draft will have to be approved by the Council of Ministers.

8. U.S. Senator Connally appealed the Paris Conference General Assembly to recommend to the Big Four the adoption of the Trieste draft Statute which had been passed by the Political Commission because (he said, according to "Messaggero"), the U.S. was not disposed to make further concessions on this problem. Connally then explained the capacity of UNO's agent which the Governor of Trieste would be and warned that to mistrust the Governor meant to mistrust the UNO. Marshal Smuts praised Italy and Austria for the agreement they had reached and stated that by her co-belligerency Italy had well deserved to be admitted again among the European powers. The Australian delegate insisted that juridical rules be set down now for the revision of the peace treaties, because if the revision were not done at the table of a conference, it would be done on some battlefield. Most papers report U.P. and Reuters despatches from Paris affirming that the Italian Delegation has presented another memorandum dealing with war reparations. The figure of 325 million dollars, the memorandum reportedly says, exceeds by far the capacity of payment of the Italian economy and if the loss of property confiscated abroad is added, it becomes clear that the burden will be unbearable and will provoke the collapse of Italian economy. The memorandum demands that the total amount of war reparations be fixed considering Italy's capacity to pay and that an International Arbitration Court be appointed to examine the question of Italian property abroad exceeding the quota of war reparations due to each individual country. Headlines: "Momento": "Italy's last attempts to save what can be saved."; "Avanti": "Italy appeals"; "Unità": "An Italian memorandum proves that the amount of war reparations demanded of Italy exceedes the 325 million dollars fixed by the treaty". "Tempo" reports that a journey by De Gasperi to Paris is out of the question, and that the Italian Govt will present the Paris Conference a new report chiefly dealing with the military and naval clauses of the treaty. "Popolo" says that the Italian Govt circles are all but satisfied with the proceedings of the Paris Conference, as it has been bitterly noticed that all Italian proposals aiming to soften the economic burden of the treaty have been practically rejected by the Economic Commission.

9. "Messaggero" reports from Florence that the local "Nuovo Corriere" will publish today an interview with Togliatti, who has affirmed that the Communists are in favor of bestowing on the "Region" a section "even a large one" of the administrative functions of the State, but are contrary, "decidedly contrary" to making a small autonomous State out of each region. "Italy's political unity is too great a good, and also, let us say it, too

"Italy's political unity is too great a good, and also, let us say it, too recent a conquest to induce us to endanger it just to satisfy the hobbies of some academicians or the ambitions of some group of politicians. The working class is naturally for unity", Togliatti affirmed.

10. Yesterday the members of the Press National Congress which is being held at Palermo passed an order of the day supporting a permanent agreement between the Press Syndicate and the CGIL. In the afternoon De Secolo presented a motion concerning the official roll of professional newsmen. The motion states that (1) the Press Associations should exclude from their ranks those persons which during Fascism held executive or politically important posts; (2) the same criterion should be followed in revising the roll;

(3) a decree be issued giving political efficiency to measures taken by the rolls revising Commissions. (Messaggero)

11. The Liberals and the Italian Democrats ratified the merger of their two parties yesterday. The Directorate of the Liberal party issued an order of the day denouncing the absolute lack of a Govt action meant to restore legality, the abandonment of any criterion of impartiality in public administration, the lack of loyalty and solidarity among the parties holding the Govt. The order of the day also states that the Govt's action only succeeded at intimidating and paralizing private enterprise which instead should be the main tool for reconstruction, and concludes (referring to the peace treaty) by declaring that the Liberals will never renounce that unity of the country which was achieved through the Risorgimento and the sacrifice of blood of the entire nation. "Avanti!" headlines that afterCroce's "no", the Qualunquisti were beaten at the Liberal Council, and that the constitution of "a front against the Left" is being urged as in 1919-1920. "Momento" reports that the merger between Liberals and Qualunquisti has been postponed, but that a pact of unity of action will be agreed.

12. Piccioni delivered a speech to 400 Christian-Democrat representatives who convened in Rome yesterday to agree on the line of policy to be adopted for the 10 November local elections. He emphasized that if the Italian people had passed without convulsion and perturbances from an old dynasty to a Republic this was chiefly the merit of the Christian-Democrats, and stated that public order was not good because there was somebody who was working hard to keep the masses excited and the State permanently on alarm. "Avanti!" writes that by the latter statement Piccioni has "lent his own brick to that propagandistic building which reaction is constructing slowly".

13. The Confindustria and CGIL representatives met again yesterday under Minister Campilli's chairmanship. De Micheli (Confindustria) made a statement of protest against the attacks by the leftist press which had charged the Confindustria with sabotaging the economic life of the country. De Micheli stated that Doctor Costa did not act out of his own initiative but on the basis of previous consent and solidarity of all industrialists; that it was useless to continue negotiations if they were not carried out in a democratic way; and that before resuming negotiations (which had been suspendes and not broken) the CGIL should pledge to discuss on a technical basis without giving consideration to directives coming from the political parties represented in the CGIL itself. Lizzadri, Bitossi and Rubinacci protested against these statements, emphasizing that the CGIL was not influenced by any political party and had always based its action on technical and syndical ground.

The CGIL then issued a communiqué, affirming that the Confindustria intention "to sabotage a direct agreement and build up public opinion against the workers" was apparent; that the workers' demand were very modest if compared with the increase of the cost of living which had already taken place; and that negotiations could not usefully be carried on if the Confindustria did not renounce influencing public opinion with mockeries and did not pledge to reach an agreement on equitable basis. FIGARO (Independent)

In a news item from Gorizia it is reported that on Saturday night, on the eve of the Festival organized by the Italo-Slovene Anti-Fascist Union, three hand-grenades were thrown against the building where are located the headquarters of the Italo-Slovene Association as well as the offices of "Ansa", "Gazzettino" and "Informatore". During these disorders a few persons were injured and the police were compelled to make use of arms. Yesterday morning a bomb exploded along the railway line Aidussina-Gorizia, causing a derailment, but no victims.

1. In a leading article entitled: "The electoral law", Angelo Vincenti asserts that it is the duty of the Constituent Assembly to work out and issue a new electoral law, because the regulations contained in the Decree of 10 March, 1946 on which the elections of deputies for the Constituent Assembly were based, have become obsolete. This revision of the law, according to the writer, is necessary in order to assure an homogeneous majority in the future Parliament. On the other hand, the writer adds, it would be dangerous to entrust the Govt with the task of drafting the new law, owing to the great responsibilities implied in this act. Therefore it is urgent that the Constituent Assembly takes a direct action on this matter.

2. In a news item from Palermo it is reported that during the opening session of the National Press Meeting, the journalists extolled Trieste, as an indisputable Italian city. The assembly has approved a motion concerning a permanent "entente" with the CGIL for the defense of the interests of journalists.

VOCE REPUBBLICANA (Republican)

In a leading article under the heading: "To confiscate the House of Savoy's properties", the paper recalls the contents of a letter sent on 15 September by Randolfo Pacciardi, on behalf of the Republican Parliamentary Group and the Board of Directors of the Republican Party to De Gasperi, requesting various measures connected with the confiscation of the properties of the former Royal House of Savoy. The writer enumerates the various movable assets and real estate of this House as well as of former royal princes and stresses the urgency to carry out the confiscation, in order to prevent these assets, which must be considered as a public property, from being taken from national control. The paper concludes that De Gasperi will be held responsible for a prompt execution of the measures in question.

Referring to "Giornale della Sera" and "Buonsenso" which believed Sandro Pertini's speech anti-Communistic, "A." asserts that Sandro Pertini always held that the affirmation of socialism depends upon the unity of the proletariat. BUONSENSO (Uomo Qualunque)

1. In a leading article quoted from a Leghorn paper "Tirreno", under the heading of: "Insane persons and extremists" the writer says that there are only two methods of inducing weak people to do what we want them to do: the use of sheer force or of charm. Obviously the politicians governing Italy after the downfall of Fascism believed only in force, and this is the reason for the ill success of their politics. It would have been much better, the writer adds, if their policy had been based on the charm of spiritual values, such as those embodied in the ideal of the United States of Europe, which the U.Q. Front is fighting for. Under such conditions the Italian representatives at the Peace Conference would have been enabled to retort against the Big-4 the charges of imperialism, under which our country has been crushed. Of course the leaders of our Govt would have been charged with being insane persons and political extremists, but the poor and ridiculous result obtained in Paris would have been avoided.

2. In a short note under the heading of: "Corsi's Case", it is said that the expulsion of Under-secretary Corsi from the ranks of the Socialist Party is a political manoeuvre to the detriment of those leaders who are taking a firm stand against the amalgamation policy between the Socialist and Communist Parties. Such men as Corsi and Saragat are described as reactionaries, while the fusionist trend now prevalent within the Socialist Party is represented as a very moderate and politically harmless one. In such a way the leaders of this Party are trying to deceive both common people and bourgeoisie.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. Examining the reasons why Italy lost the war in such a manner and why the number of killed and wounded were higher than the inevitable number of killed in a war carried out in a honorable manner, Vittorio Foa writes that veterans accuse high military ranks of having been ignorant and servile and of having exposed soldiers to any risk without necessary reasons. The epuration failed because military capacities do not depend upon political subjected feelings, continues the writer concluding that the reconstruction of the army should be carried out under military and technical points of view.

2. Referring to Ugo La Malfa's prediction about the possibility of the Italian Republican Party's forming the fourth Party (see Digest 6 October, page 5), Francesco Fancello stresses that La Malfa's prediction's have failed twice already, the first time when he foresaw the crisis of Action Party and the other time when he predicted the end of Republican Democracy.

Montemuglieno comments as follows on "Unità's" assertion that there is asubstantial difference between "Free State" and "Free territory". "The difference is on the contrary merely theorical as there are many 'Free States' which are controlled and occupied by foreign countries exactly as 'Free Territories' are. For instance Czechoslovakia cannot make a move without previous authorization from the Soviet Govt, the same as Poland, Greece and so many other States". ... This is why - he continues - the theory of the 'Free Territory' of Trieste is supported by those who are the defensors of the Italianity of Trieste and why the theory of the 'Free State' is only supported by the Russians and the Yugoslavs, and also by their faithful Italian Communists. To whom, in fact, would the "Free State" demanded by the Slavs (see the speeches by Vishinsky, Kardely and Fijade) be of profit if not to the Slavs themselves? ... The 'Free Territory' must not necessarily be a colonial possession or a naval base as Malta or Gibraltar. It would be it if it were occupied by British troops or ruled by the British Government.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785016

It would in no case be so because Trieste would have a governor appointed by UNO and would have a garrison sent by UNO's Security Council. It might therefore perhaps have the honor of becoming UNO's Naval base but would in no case have the dishonor of becoming a passive base of one or more imperialistic powers. ... On the other hand the 'Free State' would be an organism opened to all foreign influences and would be without any effective defense. It would also become the shuttlecock of Italian, Yugoslav and international policies and this fact would not be without continuous incidents. Furthermore, a well armed State would permanently stand on the outskirts as it has sworn to get Trieste at any cost. It would also be a permanent threat to peace as was formerly Dantzig. The 'Free Territory' would be defended by UNO's Armed Forces this means that he who would attack it would attack the supreme unitarian organ of the nations and the supreme directorate of the civil world. Who would on the other hand defend the 'Free State' and who would guarantee it?" G. Montemagliano concludes by saying that Peace and economic freedom of the world through Trieste can only be preserved through the institution of the "Free Territory of Trieste" and not the Dantzig-like "Free State of Trieste".

MESSAGGERO (Government)

Cappa and Leonardo Azzarita to the Meeting of Journalists in Palermo, agreeing that all kinds of previous censorship of the press should be excluded, and that only the law should be considered as competent to control the freedom of the press. In a few countries of the world the standpoint is still prevalent that the "rôle" of the State is to direct, control and favor or prevent the expression of public opinion, so that newspapers are considered as organs or agencies with a public function, therefore they should be placed under State control. In Great Britain, instead, the press is not considered as a Social-political Institute. MOMENTO (Independent Leftist)

Commenting on De Micheli's words, expressed in yesterday's session of industrialists and workers at the Viminale, that it is indispensable before new discussions between the Confederation of industrialists and the Confederation of Labour can go on, that the parties represented in the Confederation of Labour clear up the orders and the directives to be given to their Confederation, the paper says that the present pause of the discussions between the two Confederations has also been caused by the very heavy accusations against the industrialists by the press inciting workers to violence against the leaders of the Confederation of Industrialists. "M." says that so delicate and important discussions should be carried out without personal polemics.

P. reports at length on yesterday's speech delivered by Attilio Piccioni to the Rome leaders of the Christian Democrat Party in which the Political Secretary of the Party emphasized the constructive policy of the Party and said that the Christian Democrats are carrying out their program of effective and integral justice and their equilibrating function between the parties of the Right and of the Left.

In a comment on the discussions between the Confederation of Industrialists and the Confederation of Labour, R.L. says that the remedy already tested for 30 centuries to reduce prices and to increase the purchasing power of salaries is to increase production and the quantity of goods. The paper accuses the Confederation of Labour of going with its agitations in the opposite direction, stopping work, reducing production and increasing the purchasing power of salaries.

2. Referring to the decision taken by the Paris Conference about Trieste, R.L. says that among so many interests and ambitions nobody remembered Italy and the fact that Italy fought for four years to liberate this region from the Habsbourgs. Nobody remembered the solemn declarations of the Atlantic Charter, continues the paper adding that the Big Three and their satellites may be content to have damaged Italy once more but that Italy will remember that.

Although considering that these anticipations are too optimistic for the Christian Democrats, the writer admits that under present conditions there is danger of a revival of the same reactionary forces that in 1922 gave up to Mussolini the control of the country. Furthermore the writer assumes that the right wing of Christian Democracy is reactionary and monarchist, just as the Popular Party at the time of Mussolini was favoring directly or indirectly the advent of Fascism. Considering the situation under this standpoint, both division and union are necessary and inevitable between conservatives and progressives, that is, between Socialists and Communists on one side and "Qualunquisti" and Christian Democrats on the other, the writer concludes.

1. ON occasion of national congress of Italian journalists at Palermo, Santi Savarino writes: in this funny country those who most clamorously proclaim democratic ideality are just the same who initiate the most antidemocratic laws in the world. Party papers, continues the writer, bring facts and opinion of course from the point of view of the respective Party and thereby create fanaticism in favour of Party ideals and interests of classes which often offend the truth and endanger Democracy. The best remedy against such a danger, asserts, S.S., are independent papers. We hope, concludes the writer, that dignity and freedom of the press will be defended at the present Palermo congress.

The negotiations were resumed by De Gasperi on a basis of perfect equality of right between the citizens of Austrian and Italian extraction of Alto Adige, especially in relation to the linguistic issue. The final agreement between the two countries was signed on September 5th at the Paris Conference for inclusion in the future Peace Treaty with Italy. UNITA' (Communist)

1. In a leading article under the heading: "To nationalize Public Services", Renato Bitossi criticises the scheme of compulsory arbitration for State and public service personnel, allegedly favored by De Gasperi Government, because it would prevent the free expansion of working class organizations. The writer recalls that both telephone and gas workers have submitted concrete proposals to the Government for the nationalization of their respective Public Services, so as to render them more efficient and to get rid of private speculators. Workers do not like today to be considered as a merchandise, they want instead to become responsible co-operators of the services to which they are attached, and it is only by taking account of this situation and acting accordingly, that the Government will be enable to settle the serious economic situation that the country is confronted with, the writer concludes.

It seems that an agreement, although for the moment only on principle for an amalgamation of the two movements has been reached between the Liberal and Democratic Parties, as well as for considering the possibility of extending the agreement to the U.Q. The establishment of a Free Territory of Trieste, according to the writer, is an absurdity, because it implies our renounciation to towns and villages that are Italian from all ethinical and historic standpoints. organ will cause also the deficiency of the dependent organs, asserts the writer, concluding that the situation of today demands clearness of provisions and energetic firmness of their execution.

2. Under the heading "America will be our best friend" Bonomi stated in an interview given to "T." that a great part of those who proclaim today Italy's condemnation feel that this sentence is neither useful nor just. It is true, continues Bonomi, that the delegation of USA demonstrated on many occasions its spirit of comprehension and often even of sympathy, but this sympathy had to be stopped always in front of insuperable limits. Everyone of the Four knows that the agreement has been accomplished by an extreme effort and the Conference does not like to risk the result by a new discussion, asserts B. adding that Italy may not count today on the American help for a revision of the projected peace, but that she may count on the American help for the interpretation and the application of the Peace Treaty in the future.

3. Violence is going on in the low region of Emilia, stresses the paper reporting from Reggio Emilia that several graves have been discovered in which former Fascists have been found who are supposed to be murdered. The paper asserts that armed people terrorize Modena region.

In a leading article under the heading: "Labor and ownership", Ezio Zanoco asserts that the problem of freeing men from the slavery of money is not to be solved by passing private property under State management and control, but in harmony with Mazzini's doctrine, by conferring a moral character to private ownership and by acknowledging the truth that labor is the only element by which private property may find a moral justification.

2. In an item from Novara it is reported that in the Low Novara Zone a number of agriculturists staged today a protest in favour of their own colleagues arrested for having failed to deliver their legal share of products to the "ammassi". A Delegation was received by the Prefect, who rejected the requested release of the agriculturists. Soon after an attempt to release the prisoners by sheer force was foiled by the police. During the demonstrations a worker belonging to the food control commissariat was recognized and badly beaten.

Referring to "Avanti's" photostatistic reproduction of a receipt for 50 lire issued by Roman section of Italian Democrat Party for aims of "anti-republican propaganda" (see Digest No. 347, 29 Sept., page 4(2)), Sandro Portini welcomes the intervention of the Govt and stresses that "Italia Nuova" finally confessed the authenticity of the document (see Digest No. 348, 1 October, page 6(2)). The necessary reforms cannot be realized and the Republic cannot be consolidated if the enemies of the Republic are allowed to endanger its existence, continues the writer adding that these enemies abuse the important posts they occupy in army, navy, State administration and in economic-

1. "Elementary school first of all" is the headline of Ernesto Carlotti's article.

2. The paper reports that the Association for the protection of Italian interests abroad sent a note to the Secretary General of Paris Conference denouncing the juridical monstrosity of art 69 of the Peace Treaty in which the Italian Govt agrees with the payment of reparations by the expropriation of Italian property abroad. It seems, continues the paper, that the Victors understood this expropriation as a facilitation for the Italian State avoiding a new charge for the already overcharged Italian finances and rolling off the debit to the Italian private property. This advantage will automatically be cancelled, concludes I.L., as an other paragraph of art. 69 calls for the Italian State to indemnify its subjects for these expropriations.

3. I.L. reports about a letter sent to numerous Republicans by new-Monarchist elements in which the writer speaks after utterances such as "granitic majority" and "provisions by H.M. the King" that "as soon as the present crisis of the Costituente passes we shall send you further instructions to inform you about the new referendum which will bring our legitimate King back to his throne."

4. General Baldwin, head of the Italian Mission of C.A.R.E., and Ing. Vicentini, General Director of E.N.D.S.I., signed an agreement between these two organizations. ITALIA NUOVA (Monarchist)

In a leading article under the heading of: "A Danubian Confederation?", Mario Ciassi asserts that the problem of establishing a Danubian Confederation presents itself to Italy today under a different aspect than in the past. The Danubian union, an old longing of the Czechs, would offer a neutral territory for passing from the West to Eastern Europe. This would be, in the writer's opinion, very advantageous for Italy too, for the following reasons: the very heart of Danubian Europe would form a united and economically independent territory very suitable to all commercial exchanges, while on the other side oriental imperialism would perhaps find there a stumbling stone, which would be a protection for our boundary, so strongly threatened by panslavism on the oriental side.

MESSAGGERO (Government)

1. In a leading article under the heading of: "What does remain in our pocket?", commenting on the extraordinary general property taxes contemplated in Scoccimarro's draft law, the writer sets forth the following calculation: under present tributary conditions, out of an aggregate income of 350,000 lire per year, 230,000 lire only remain in our pocket, but should the Scoccimarro draft be approved, this sum will be reduced to 70,000, equal to little more than 5000 lire per month.

2. In a item from Milan under the heading of: "Has the atomic secret been revealed?" it is reported that, according to a news item which appeared in an afternoon paper, the complete plans of the atomic bomb were gathered in Canada, and sent afterward to England, France and Italy, from where most probably they will reach Russia.

3. "The State and the Press", is the title of an interview granted to the paper by Hon. Paolo Cappa, Undersecretary at the Presidency of the Council of Ministers. The conclusion reached by Hon. Cappa is the following: "It is preferable to acknowledge to every citizen the right to write, edit and print, rather than to have the State watch and guide him in these matters".

ITALIA LIBERA (Independent Leftist)

Referring to the Congress of Journalists, beginning today at Palermo, the paper says that the freedom of the press does not mean the freedom of journalists to write what they like to write but the freedom of the citizen to know the truth.

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

French Communist paper "Humanité" pleaded for calling the Paris Conference not "Peace Conference" but "Conspiracy of force and injustice", reports P. adding the French Communist opinion that the campaign for an Italian Trieste was imposed by the Anglo-Americans supported by the Italian exasperation and the Vatican with the Christian Democrat Party and De Gasperi as its most violent agitators and with collusion of Italian Fascist organizations. With this action they played the game of Anglo-American trusts to the detriment of the working population of Trieste and against the Yugoslav Democracy, concludes P.

MOVIMENTO LIBERALE (Liberal)

1. Commenting on "Unità's" criticism about useless public works pursued by the Govt, R.L. states that the plans for these works were decreed by the Govt of the four Parties of the Left and that the Communist Ministers had the opportunity to oppose these plans during the respective discussions in the Council.

2. Interviewed by R.L., Luigi Einaudi explained the aims, advantages and obligations of the Italian participation in the International bank at Bretton Woods and stressed that after UNRRA supplies will have ceased, Italy may be enabled by the international bank to finance her import in the future.

TEMPO (Independent)

1. In a leading article under the heading of "Robbery and Misery", Arturo Labriola asserts that this country finds herself today under a regime of war-economy, chiefly because of the foreign occupation, by virtue of which paper currency may be issued at will, so as to cause a permanent inflation. Under such conditions the national economy becomes a game of chance, in which the black market triumphs and people become almost unexpectedly millionaires or they sink into misery. Fascism is still the permanent reality of our political life, and there are no forces capable of checking this race toward the national decay.

2. Under the heading: "Without passport at the French Border" S. di G. "Tempo's" correspondent in Chiavasso reports that hundreds and perhaps thousands of Italians especially from the Lombardia and Veneto regions are arriving everyday at the French border in the hope of crossing it. Most of these poor people are emigrants. One of these fellows, questioned by the correspondent at the Chivasso railway station about the causes of his emigration said: I want to leave the country because I starve. To the question: "Why do you not ask a regular emigration, with the Govt permission?" the reply was: "The Govt? Please do not mention it to me! I was tired of life, and when they talked to me about the possibility of reaching France, I felt as if I came to life again".

3. In an article entitled: "What the Constituent Assembly is doing", some details are given about the work of the various Sub-Commissions at the Constituent Assembly. The writer adds that it is hard to believe that the Sub-Commissions will finish their work in an 8 month period, therefore most probable the new elections will take place by the month of July 1947, that is, within a 12 months period.

4. In an interview on the increase of rent rates., Ing. Riccardo De Cataldo, President of the Traders' Union of Rome, has declared that the rents increase would fall in the last analysis on the consumers.

Nitti, Fascism is not dead after the disappearance of Mussolini. The Dictator and the Monarchical Regime have left a heritage of ruins, unemployment, speculation and crime. Fascist methods are applied in Italy, especially in the Southern part of the Country to fight communists, unemployed workers and farmers. But now it is high time to put an end to such methods! Under a Republican Regime it is intolerable that honest workers and communists are persecuted, beaten, sent to hospital with no justifiable reasons. De Gasperi has taken before the Constituent Assembly a formal engagement to respect and consolidate the democratic institutions of the Republic. We ask him to comply with his promise!

Of course there was an equivalent increase in the price of butter and cheese. AFTERNOON PAPERS (October 3)

CAPITALE (Christian Democrat)

1. The problem of many hundred thousands of Italians damaged by the war should be solved before this human and social question is transformed into a revolutionary one, stresses the paper.

2. Under the heading "Contraband at the Luxembourg Palace", Nico Verdone reports from Paris that international gangsters robbed trunks containing narcotic drugs, gold, jewls, concentrated extracts of perfumes and standard currencies from diplomats at the Paris Conference extorting beyond that, thousands of pounds and dollars from the robbed diplomats as the price for their silence. The writer specifies that especially delegates from Ethiopia, Albania and Levante-and Near Orient States are concerned in this affair as well as delegates from South America.

ESPRESSO (Independent)

In a series of notes under the heading of: "Diary", the paper reviews five events particularly important for the welfare and public order in Italy. The Council of Ministers met on 3 October to approve salary increases to be paid to State personnel. The same Diary deals with the end of the strike by the personnel of Gas Plants and the starting of a miners strike, the approval by the competent Sub-commission of the Constituent Assembly of the principle that "liberty is a fundamental condition of responsibility" and the grant, for the benefit of Italy, of a share of 180 million dollars in the international monetary fund.

FIGARO (Independent)

In a leading article under the heading of: "Blocks no - Blocks yes", the paper alleges that the system of hostile blocks is detrimental to Italy, both in the field of internal and international politics. This system applied to home politics is causing civil strife and dissents, and, in international politics is a cause of international war.

"This" kind of internationalization was certainly the worst of all possible solutions, continues the paper, and this kind of solution was chosen at the Luxembourg Palace by the judges of the world and the founders of the future universal justice! The behaviour and the insufficiency of the Military Police in this first year of experiments which made of Trieste the theater of the most numerous unexplained and unpunished crimes of the world will indicate to the Italians and the Slavs of the internationalized territory what nature their destiny will be in the future. The sentence is of pure British origin in spite of the French si . continues the paper, adding that the Foreign Office believes it could stop the Slav march to the West taking away the Trieste and Monfalcone ship-yards from Belgrad and Moscow. They preoccupied themselves with the door and did not realize that the wall around the door which prevented the Slavs from approaching to the Adriatic Sea and the Mediterrancan was broken down: The Istrian coast, Pola, Fiume, the islands, Dalmatia, the great maritime center of Cattaro and Albania left at the disposal of the Slav block makes the internationalization of Trieste useless, concludes the article.

BUONSENSO (Fede Qualunque)

1. M.M. Tuminelli, Deputy at the Constituent Assembly, is the Author of a leading article published in "neretto", under the heading of: "Progressive Liberalism", this phrase being, in his opinion, the most precise definition of the programme and aims of the U.Q. Front. All members of the Front, he says, are up against the political speculations of professional politicians, because these tactics are paralyzing all efforts toward the moral and material reconstruction of the country and are leading the country to a new dictatorship. Although not indifferent or hostile to the legitimate interests of the working class, the U.Q. Front is hostile to the practice of class struggle. A firm supporter of Roosevelt's Four Freedoms, the ideal of the Front is to bring about an equilibrium between the various classes of society for the triumph of Labor and the welfare of all those who are taking an active part in the daily struggle for production.

2. In a marginal note it is reported that Hon. Mastroianni, Deputy of the U.Q. Front, has made the following statement concerning the article approved by the First Sub-commission for the Constitution: "I declare that I am voting for the suppression of the article in question because it would offer all possible opportunities for the coercion of human liberty... I believe that we are not allowed to convert into a categoric imperative what should be only an aspiration or an orientation. Human liberty must find a limit merely in the law and moral sense".

The paper remarks that if the local authorities of the Duchy allowed the opening of a section of the U.Q., they acknowleged the legitimate character of the movement. ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. There are two possibilities for the future of the Italian army after its reduction by the stipulations of the Peace Treaty, writes Emilio Lussu, either to renounce the army which will be an enormous and useless charge for the budget of national reconstruction or to reform the army under extremely severe points of view. The reform of the army should be performed under political points of view, to change the army from a Monarchist instrument into a Republican one; under moral point of view to abolish Fascist corruption, and under technical point of view, to perfect the military education of the army, states the writer.

2. 1. In a leading article under the heading: "Let us speak very clearly", the paper replies to the intimation made by "Avanti!" to the Govt to speak clearly and take forcible measures for the defense of the Republic. The writer retorts that the fault of the weakness of the Republican Regime lies in the lack of unity among the four parties in power and in their unpreparedness to solve the political, social and economic problems confronting the country. The writer goes on saying that the said parties have deceived the expectation of the Italian people and it is no use for them to endeavor to find a scapegoat for their faults in the Italian Democratic Party. This Party has supported the Monarchist Regime as a guarantee of liberty, democracy and national unity and it does not practice obstructionist tactics against the Republic, which would be repugnant to their Italian spirit.

2. The following statements have been made by Enzo Selvaggi, Secretary General of the Italian Democratic Party and Director of "Italia Nuova", during an interview granted to the Newsagency ORBIS, on the subject of the political "rôle" of the Fourth Party: Our behavior toward the Republican Regime is characterized by a perfect loyalty. After the 13th of June, in compliance with the desire expressed by our noble sovereign on the eve of his leaving the country, we did our best to avoid irreparable political divisions among our fellow-countrymen. An amalgamation between the Liberals and the members of the U.Q. Front, would be a further and decisive step toward the formation of a unitarian bloc

An amalgamation between the Liberals and the members of the U.Q. This bloc would offer a guarantee for the democratic recovery of the country. The so-called "Fourth Party" will certainly concur in bringing about the so much needed equilibrium among the discordant political forces of Italy. Selvaggi also declared that he does not see any real difference between the policy of Minister Corbino and of his successor. The problem was not technical but political. The Left Parties wanted to have to deal with a less irreconcilable Minister of the Treasury, in order to lay on the Christian-Democrats the responsibility for the failure of the monetary and economic policy of the country.

What will be the nature of the new Senate suggested by the second subcommission of the Costituente, asks Panfilo Gentile, stating that the majority of the commission voted for the two-chamber system for avoiding the so-called dictatorship of a one-chamber Parliament. The writer criticizes the proposal of the commission in question that the senators will be selected by the electoral stressing that the second chamber would be useless if it were composed by the same political forces as the first chamber. The writer adds that under these circumstances also the second chamber would not have political independence with regard to the chamber of deputies.

Commenting on yesterday's decision of the third sub-commission for the Constitution which agreed to impose obligations on land-owners and to prevent the existence and the formation of great private land estates, the paper states that the Republic put itself with this article in a clear opposition to the property of lands ordaining its slavery and, thereby, after a short time its death.

1. The Political-Territorial Commission of the Paris Conference met yesterday and discussed the following drafts on the Status of the Free State of Trieste: (a) the text prepared by the Big-Four which does not contain any basic juridical proposition; (b) a new American proposition which was opposed by the Soviet Delegation; (c) a Yugoslav proposition in favour of which the Yugoslav Delegate, Pijade, bitterly attacked his opponents saying "You do not want Trieste to become a free state but only an Anglo-American base or dominion" and "The people of Trieste, the Yugoslav as well as the Italian, wants Trieste to be freely and independently incorporated in the Yugoslav Federation"; (d) a French proposition presented by the French Delegate, Couve de Murville, which - it is said - has previously been approved by the United States, Great Britain and France in order to obtain a two-thirds majority in the Assembly. The French proposition contains eleven points and can be resumed as follows: (a) UNO's Security Council will guarantee the integrity and the independence of the Free State of Trieste; (b) The Free Territory will be demilitarized and no Armed Forces will enter it without the consent of the Security Council; (c) A Democratic regime based on a People's Assembly and on a Council of the Govt will be established; (e) to (i) The Governor of the Free State will be appointed by the Security Council after consultation with the Italian and Yugoslav Govts. He will have right to veto when the independence or the integrity of the Free State or the rights of the citizens are threatened, and will have to ensure public order. All magistrates will be appointed by the Governor; (j) All citizens residing within the Territory on June 10th 1940 will have the citizenship of the Free State of Trieste; (k) Trieste will be a free port and there will be no exclusive custom with any country. The date on which all Foreign troops will leave the territory of the Free State will be notified by the Security Council. The British Delegate immediately approved and supported the French proposition while the Russian Delegate, Vishinsky, opposed it openly and suggested that the whole problem of the Status of Trieste should be left to the Big-Four.

It adds that there are about 14 million people who are affected by the strike of the gas workers, and that De Gasperi said that if gas workers do not resume work within 24 hours or if an agreement is not reached between the industrialists and the workers, the Council of Ministers will provide for the settlement of the question and for the prompt resuming of the service.

AFTERNOON PAPERS (October 2)

CAPITALE (Christian Democrat)

1. Commenting on Pietro Nenni's declaration that the moral authority of the Democratic State is more valid and efficacious than its material force, Auriga states that the new Democracy has not yet given social justice and freedom to the Italian people. After so many solemnly given promises by foreign countries peace has been imposed on Italy which will definitely strangle it, continues the writer adding that the purification of rancors and revenge desires should be the answer to the hostility which according to foreign countries will be the real hope for the future.

2. In spite of Truman's optimistic words to the West Point cadets that we are about to obtain a permanent peace we see only that the African territories of the vanquished are consumed by the victors, that in China war is permanent, that Persia is contested that Turkey is in a state of war, that Palestine is in confusion and that in Greece we can't find a state which could be called peace, states Casabianca. In the European countries under the Russian occupation we find Democratic Governments which certainly are not the ideals of Democracies, Germany and Austria are disjointed and Italy has been vivasected, concludes the writer adding that it is to be hoped that Truman will know elements and facts which others don't know and which justify his optimism.

He also reports that General Mark Clark is expected to visit the Republic at the end of October.

GIORNALE DELLA SERA (Monarchist)

Under the heading "Gay Life of German PWs in Italy", G.d.S. prints a report by its correspondent Giovanni d'Alò on the life of German PWs in the Rimini-Miramare's concentration camps. After stressing the discontent of the local population for the presence of these PWs in the neighbourhood, he writes as follows:

"The camp of Miramare is the biggest POW camp in Italy and contains 35 or 40 thousand PWs divided in 5 sections: (a) Ukranians, (b) Normal Germans, (c) Prisonners in transit, (d) Police or SS troops, (e) International political Prisonners, some of them Italians."

"The PWs in Miramare have a perfect journalistic equipment: they have receiving and broadcasting radio sets, a printing office, translators, columnists, writers, typists etc... They publish a daily paper: "Die Bruecke" (The Bridge) at 12,000 copies per day and two periodicals: "Christophorus" (St Christopher) for the Catholics and "Bereitschaft" (Readiness) for the Protestant. In Miramare's camp, they have also organized courses of studies, theater and lyric shows and symphonic and jazz orchestras."

Giovanni d'Alò then sums up his interview with German officers and soldiers:"(a) The Germans - he says - realize quite well the aversion of the local inhabitants against them but they say that they cannot be blamed for the fact that Allied Authorities have concentrated so many of them in such a small area. (b) They are obliged to make illicit traffic and blackmarket because the food given them is not always enough. (c) They says that those who assert that the German PWs occupy entire hotels, villas and other buildings are exaggerating, for there is only one hotel that they entirely occupy: the "Vittoria", and they cannot even be blamed for this because the Allied Authorities gave it to them. In other hotels there are only the servants of the Allied Personnel residing there. (d) There is nothing strange about the fact that they are living almost free: same thing happened to Italian PWs in Germany and Austria and also in the United States where many Italian PWs were engaged to American girls. (e) It is natural that they all want to return to Germany. (f) The Russian propaganda has impressed the Germans more than the Anglo-Saxon one. The Soviet representatives have been the first to set forth the necessity of maintaining United Germany. Moscow's representatives know the art of penetrating into the German people's souls that is through Nazilike demonstrations: military parades, concerts, military bands, banners etc... VOCE REPUBBLICANA (Republican)

1. General Arnaldo Azzi wonders: (a) Why the Italian Armed Forces have not yet made the oath of faithfulness to the Republic; (b) Why the National hymn has not yet been chosen; (c) Why emblems and signs of the Monarchy have not yet been replaced by Republican ones; (d) Why the members of the Italian General Staff, of the Italian Information Service, the chiefs of the Carabinieri and of the Guardia di Finanza who - he says - "have proved their faithfulness to the late Monarchy" have not yet been replaced by Republicans; (e) Why "those reactionary State employees who celebrated Umberto di Savoia's birthday" are still in charge; and (f) Why does the Govt keep in service Generals and officers who on September 8th 1943 abandoned their posts or who served with Mussolini's puppet Salò Republic or who escaped with the former King to Southern Italy and still pay them 132 milliard lire salary per year?

2. Under the heading "The citizens must not bear the consequences of private speculation", V.R. asks for the Municipalization of the Rome gas-works, saying that the Municipalized gas-works of Bologna made a profit of 14 million lire during the last three months and that the Geneva Gas Company, which ended last year with an 80-million lire deficit, will end this year with an 80-million lire profit.

3. Commenting on the statement by the Brazilian Ambassador in Rome, Mr. Lodi, that a large scale emigration of Italian workers to Brazil will soon be made available, V.R. warns the Italian Government to be careful and not to let any Italian emigrants leave before the settlement of the question for the guarantee of work.

MORNING PAPERS (October 3)

AVANTI! (Socialist)

"They speak in the luxembourg Palace about frontiers, reparations, punishments and war trophies and that is their way to circumscribe the area of the victors and that of the vanquished," writes Roberto Tremelloni adding that this deceitful way for peace construction will soon be destroyed by the pressure of economic realities as it was after Versailles. The peace discussed at Montreal could really be the peace peoples desire so much as the ultimate and profound causes of the war, the social discontent, are eliminated by the preamble of the constitution of the International Organization of Labour, asserts the writer.

BUONSENSO (Uomo qualunque)

1. In a leading article under the heading of: "The Head of the State", the writer sets forth his standpoint on the question of the powers to be conferred on the Head of the State, in comparison with the point of view held by Calamandrei, a prominent member of the Action Party and a stern censurer of the U.Q. Front. According to "Buonsenso" the President of the Republic should be elected by the people, either directly or by means of representatives with an imperative mandate as it happens in the U.S., but not by Parties, as it has been done in Italy for the appointment of De Nicola. To prevent the President from becoming a dictator, the writer asserts that it would be enough to establish an Institute for the control of the power of the Head of the State.

2. In a short note entitled: "Very bad example from Northern Italy", it is said that one of the main reasons why Franco hesitates to retire from power is the alleged example of bad faith shown by Italian Partisans and anti-Fascist elements during the last stage of the anti-fascist struggle in Northern Italy. According to the Franco version of these events, Mussolini and his followers were promised to have their lives spared if they would lay down their arms. As it is well known, in spite of this promise, they were slaughtered at Piazzale Loreto.

GLOBO (Economic)

1. Commenting on the news of the admission of Italy in the International Bank, G. says that the two possible benefits Italy would have out of it are: (a) the granting of a loan, (b) the stabilization of the rate of of exchange of the Lira.

2. G. says that the Italian production of tractors which in 1939 was 1,150 tractors and 1500 in 1942 will reach 3,000 units before the end of this year.

3. G. reports that the "Ansaldo" plant will build a 2,300-ton motorship for a Denmark shipowner payable part in free currency and part against 2,100 cows.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

1. Riccardo Loubardi asserts, without intending to dramatize the situation, that it will chiefly depend upon the arrangement that the three big powers will succeed in giving to the world and to Italy that civil war will occur in Italy or not, and that it will also depend upon the prudence of the Italian Democracy and upon the capacity of the big Parties of the Left in avoiding inflation in Italy.

2. Commenting on the benediction of the Uomo Qualunque Headquarters at Valdina (Messina Province) by the local parish-priest, the paper writes that the news about the support of the Church for the "Fronte dell'Uomo Qualunque" seems to be right.

3. Micron criticises Italo Zingarelli's polemics in yesterday's "Tempo" about the attitude of the Costituente with regard to foreigners to whom rights and freedom are denied in their respective countries. Micron asserts that there is no reason why foreigners should be "undesirable" only for the fact that they are foreigners, pleads for the application of all those rights in the Italian Constitution which civilization has acquired during centuries and denies the right to send the foreigners in question to concentration camps.

ITALIA NUOVA (Monarchist)

In a leading article under the heading of: "A liberal in Europe", Riccardo Sabino asserts that De Gaulle is the champion of Republican Liberalism in Europe.

MESSAGGERO (Government)

In a note under the heading of: "Extraordinary tax on the general property increase - According to Scoccimarro's plan there would be a complete confiscation of the increase above 75 millions", it is explained that the leading principle of this plan is the following: If a citizen has increased his general property assets during the period from 1 January 1936 up to 31 December 1936 above what may be considered as a normal saving increase, he is subject to a special tax, also on a basis of the general property increase. This extraordinary tax is applied on the general property assets above one million lire.

MOMENTO (Independent Leftist)

There is no serious control of the present commissions which judge the taxes to be payed by the tax-payer, deplores Federico Comandini adding that every tax commission and every fiscal organ must reach certain results already provided beforehand and must even surpass them and that the career of every official depends upon the results reached. The writer pleads for the suppression of all tax commissions, for the institution of a register of tax-payers and their taxes to be payed and for the reference of controversies to the ordinary judges.

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

In an article entitled: "A provisional situation", by Giulio Andreotti, it is remarked that the provisional situation

POPOLO (Christian Democrat)

In an article entitled: "A provisional situation", by Giulio Andreotti, it is remarked that the provisional situation characterizing all republican agencies and institutions at the present stage of the political evolution of Italy, is a matter of serious concern for those who want to build up a steady and strong democratic regime. In the last speech delivered at the Constituent Assembly, De Gasperi has proclaimed that the institutional problem must be considered as definitly closed, in order to avoid artificial conflict among the people of Italy. With the purpose of reaching a more steady political situation, the writer suggests changing the name "Provisional Head of the State" to "President of the Republic". He believes that it would be convenient to carry out as soon as possible the necessary changes concerning coat-of-arms, seals of the State as well as the oath of fidelity and the National Anthem, for which he suggests choosing the Piave Hymn.

RISORGIMENTO LIBERALE (Liberal)

1. The criminals at Nuremberg are condemned for having lost the war, asserts Roberto Lucifero as in case of their victory they would have condemned the victors of today not for their errors (and what errors!) but also for having lost the war. Referring to De Gasperi's utterance not to be a Facta, R.L. addresses himself to De Gasperi: No, De Gasperi, you are not a Facta, you are a Kerensky. Facta believed in something which was about to end, you disbelieve in something which is about to begin. You are Sancho Pancia with Pietro Nenni as Don Quixote and fighting against the windmills of your vanity. In the meantime a personage is wandering around in Italy, the freedom who looks for an author to write his book: the law.

2. The resolution of Communist Party's Central Committee published in yesterday's "Unità" demonstrates that the crisis is not only going on in Italy but is even increasing, asserts the paper adding that this crisis will continue as long as the Communists participate in the Govt and that there is no solution to this situation as long as the irresolute Christian Democrats want to have all without any risk. What does it mean "the new course" of the Communists asks the paper answering that the Communists want to have dictatorship of their Party with a totalitarian slavery of the Govt, the dissolution of the Socialist Party and the silence of the Christian Democrats.

TEMPO (Independent)

1. In a leading article under the heading of: "God's Justice", Alberto Consiglio, alias "Babeuf" commenting on the trial against the Archbishop of Zagabria, comes to the conclusion that the moral autonomy of both clergy and magistracy are two fundamental and indispensable guarantees of liberty.

2. "Inquiry on the middle-classes - the "Bourgeoisie" must govern our public life" is the headline of an interview granted to "Tempo" by G. Giannini on various subjects concerning the U.Q. Front. The national "rôle" of the Fourth Party, which according to Giannini is to be identified with the U.Q. Front, is to bring about a situation of equilibrium among the different parties. In the opinion of Giannini the Uomo Qualunque Front will be inspired by logic and plain commons sense. The negotiation for an amalgamation or at least for an "entente" with other political groups for strengthening the Front are under way. On the subject of the official acknowledgement of the

In a leading article under the heading of: "A Jurist at work", Pietro Ingrao recalls the rule implied in the old proverb: "To speak to daughter-in-law in order that mother-in-law may understand". This rule was perfectly observed by almost all the Italian newspapers having friends among our fascist generals and war-criminals, in connection with the comments voiced on the occasion of the Nuremberg trial. Only one of those newspapers (the writer never mentions it, but reference is to be found in the Digest "General" of October 2nd, 1946), in dealing with the Nuremberg trial, praising Baistrocchi's acquittal. The jurist's arguments in defense of such war-criminals as Goering, Ribbentrop, Keitel and co. forth are of no value, the writer says. The condemnation of these men is a shame for the tribunals of Italy, because they granted freedom to Baistrocchi, Messe and Roatta, who in the writer's opinion, are no less guilty than Jodl, Raeder, Doenitz and the other culprits of Nuremberg.

"Giornale d'Italia" compares Nuremberg's trial with the trial of General Baistrocchi saying that there is no crime in declaring war and that there are no moral crimes for which a person can be guilty. "Buonsenso's" article is headlined "Who is without fault?" and asserts that "the World's Common Man is not satisfied with the verdict... behind which there is fright and hypocrisy". The hardest problem to solve still remains the status of the Free State of Trieste and yesterday there were warm discussions on the matter between the United States and Russian representatives. The former insisted on the fact that both independence and integrity of the international zone be "guaranteed" by UNO. The Slavs aswered that such proposals are against the decisions taken by the four Foreign Ministers. After a long and inconclusive discussion the meeting was adjourned.

3. Hon. Corsi, the Undersecretary to the Ministry of Interior, yesterday referred to President De Gasperi on the question of the "undesirable foreigners". After saying that at least 150,000 Slavs have recently illegally crossed the frontiers and penetrated into Italy, he declared that "[illegible]

AFTERNOON PAPERS (October 1)

CAPITALE (Christian Democrat)

In a leading article under the heading: "Land to Peasants", by Enzo Guastalla, Art. 2 of the Royal Decree Gullo is criticized, concerning the irrevocability of the grant of land to peasants, without consideration of all possible unjust or technically erroneous decisions. According to the writer, if the interested parties will agree on a fair system of distribution, it may be foreseen that the Peasant Co-operatives will be granted, in a few years period, some hundred of thousands hectares of land, with a possibility of employment for about 100 000 workers.

TRIBUNA DEL POPOLO

1. In a leading article under the heading of: "Plans and Solutions", Gaetano Stammati considering the difficult situation that the Government has to contend with in the matter of public economy, says that the standpoint taken by Einaudi is the most suitable to present conditions. In the last analysis the economic problem has turned into a political one, that is in the question of finding a common line of action among the members of the Govt and the respective parties. Homogeneity of action is necessary not only for insuring public order, but also for securing to the country a serious and steady start in the work of reconstruction.

1. In a leading article under the heading of: "Personal Head or Board of Directors?", G.A. Belloni in discussing the question of the oath to Republic already considered by the paper, holds the standpoint that the oath to the Head of the State is connected with monarchical customs and traditions. In his opinion, the oath of fidelity taken before a Board of Directors of the Republic is the more logical one and at the same time the more consistent with the republican spirit. He tries to corroborate this contention by pointing out the example of Soviet Russia, Switzerland and of the Communes of Italy, where the effective leadership of the Republic actually is or was entrusted to a Board of Directors.

MORNING PAPERS (October 2)

AVANTI! (Socialist) - N.N. -

BUONSENSO (Uomo Qualunque)

The subject of a "noretto" is the discovery that a few American chemists were the manufacturers of most of the American cigarettes made in Rome and that a German chemist was responsible for the manufacture of those that were seized at Isola Liri. Those so-called "clandestine" factories used to handle the Italian tobacco in conformity with the taste of Italian smokers, by means of tons secretly imported from the United States. What is the meaning of all this?, the paper asks. That private initiative has proved to be more efficient than governmental action, is the reply. One hundred people have done more than the monopolies supported by Mr. Scoccimarro. The paper concludes that the Govt would do well to let free these "transgressors" and entrust them the Tobacco Monopoly, with a great advantage for the smokers and for the unemployed workers as well.

GLOBO (Economic)

2. G. says that article 71 of the Italian Peace Treaty which opens Italy to international airlines is against the principle of sovereignty of Nations and will hamper Italian air-traffic.

3. G. says that a decree on house rents will be drafted by the Government before the end of this year.

4. G. reports that a Swedish Trade Delegation arrived yesterday in Rome to reach an agreement with the Italian Govt on the emigration of Italian workers and technicians to Sweden.

ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

Fernando Schiavetti criticizes Conservatives, Liberals and also Qualunquisti for having begun the defence of freedom, only after the end of Fascist regime and for having lost many occasions between 1922 and 1946 to demonstrate their fervor for freedom.

ITALIA NUOVA (Monarchist) 1980

1. Palmiro Togliatti did not learn his propaganda methods in a Moscow revolutionary school but in USA as the Americans found out the very important function of pin-up girls in bathing dresses for propaganda aims of every kind, says Libero ironically commenting on Togliatti's finish of the electoral campaign by a dance and the election of a "Republican beauty" as well as the sumptuous party with the election of the most beautiful girl reader of "Unita". A catechistical speech of the leader was given between two numbers of such a show against the inauspicious Fascist Monarchy and the reactionary press which are both to blame for intending to prevent this new and enjoyable world.

2. The paper welcomes the control and the publication of the financial resources and measures at the disposal of the papers foreseen by the first subcommission for the Constitution and adds that it may be hoped that in this way it would be possible to state for which national, non-national or anti-national interests several papers are writing. "I.N." concludes that it is to be hoped that the Government would not be entitled to exercise this control but the Federation of the press fitted out with precise functions.

3. Working is necessary to achieve reconstruction, asserts the paper referring to the Govt's proposal to adopt the 40-hour week and adds that even the countries of the victors did not adopt such a measure.

MESSAGGERO (Government)

Riccardo Aragno publishes in a "corsivo" a letter from London under the heading of "The conservatives to the revenge", in which are revealed the alleged plans of Churchill at the eve of the Congress of the Conservative Party at Blakpool. The writer reports that there is a great discontent in Great Britain on account of the ill-success of the policy of the Labor Party, for the high cost of living, the failure of the nationalization plans, especially in the field of the steel industry and the alleged repression or hampering of private initiative. It seems that Churchill's plan is to merge the Liberal Party with the Conservative Party, and at the same time to change the name of the latter and displace the same toward the Left. This outcome, concludes the writer, would be, in the last analysis, somewhat of a victory of the Labour Party.

In a leading article under the heading of: "Ruling class and political consciousness", Guido Gonella, former Editor of the paper and now Minister of Education, remarks that the various Parties in power after the downfall of Fascism have shown that they are in want of a ruling class experienced to handle the affairs of Govt. This lack of experience and political preparedness is common to Christian-Democrats, Socialists, Communists and to the leaders of the Republican Party as well. Only the Liberal Party had men endowed with a political tradition, because from Liberalism there had emerged during the struggle for Italian independence most of our best statesmen. The essential fault of our new ruling class is that it is unripe and heterogeneous. The two main tasks, according to the writer, for overcoming the difficulties of the present hour, is to educate the masses and at the same time to try to bring about a conciliation between the trends of the parties in power, so as to prepare a new ruling class capable of making a real success of the Government of the country.

2. In a "corsivo" under the heading: "Liberty and Syndical Unity", Gennaro Cassiani insists on the necessity of a conciliation between Liberty and Syndical Unity, showing that this end has been brought into realization in Great Britain, Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Christian workers in the last meeting held in Rome approved a motion in favour of the establishment of a National Labour Council. This organization, according to the writer, could be instrumental in bringing about the desired end even in Italy, but the support of our Parliament would be necessary to this effect.

3. In a "corsivo" item from Paris sent by Vincenzo Cecchini, there is the following headline: "Trieste remains the stumbling-stone of Luxembourg - Italian preoccupations against a further compromise - Arguments of an interview between Bidault and Byrnes - Yugoslav manoeuvres baffled". The correspondent reports that according to the latest information, President Bidault has already prepared a draft Statute for Trieste. A long conversation has taken place between him and Byrnes, on the Trieste issue, it is believed. According to the Yugoslav Delegation, the treaty concerning Trieste could not come into force before the approval of the Big-4 and also of the countries contiguous to Italy, the territories of which were occupied during the last war.

country, is headlined as follows: "For the consolidation of the Republic and the new Italian Democracy - Fundamental objectives set forth today to the Italian people: to obtain a Peace Treaty fit to guarantee the political and economic independence of the country, deep democratisation of all national life, to impress a new direction to our economy". The Resolution deals especially with the following points: (a) "For the peace and independence of the country": the Resolution stresses the necessity of preserving the country from the deleterious influence of imperialistic groups and [illegible] establishing relations of peace and co-operation with the democratic countries of the world and particularly with the countries bordering on Italy and to prevent the division of the world into two adverse "blocks". For the Venezia Giulia issue it is recommended that direct negotiations be carried out with Yugoslavia. (b) "Against the enemies of the Republic and Democracy". In this connection the Central Committee denounces the alleged re-organization of clandestine Monarchist and Fascist groups with the complicity of officials of the State and of the armed forces and says that a democratic law to control the reactionary press would be welcomed. (c) "For a new direction of the national economy". The party proclaims that it is up against the policy of "non interference" by the State in the political life of the country, as experienced under the Corbino's Ministry and advocates instead an effective control of prices, the nationalisation of monopolistic industries and a new agricultural policy in favour of the grant of land to peasants. Finally the Central Committee advocates the unity of democratic forces and a strong effort aiming at the expansion of the Party and increasing its influence and power on the life of the country.

Daily Digest of Rome Press.

GENERAL

1. During the pro-Communist press fete which was held at the Rome Terme di Caracalla on Sunday, Togliatti delivered a speech. After having stressed the importance of the press and the necessity to develop it, he reviewed the history of the Communist mouthpiece, stating that it had always been "a torch of freedom, democracy and above all of truth". He then attacked the plutocrats who profusely gave their money to finance "yellow and false" newspapers, and affirmed that now, in 1922, plots were being laid down against freedom and that on some of the said newspapers signatures had already reappeared of men who were irremediably compromised with the past regime. Togliatti said that they were attempting again to suppress democracy by means of lies, in the hope of stopping the irresistible march of the people towards a true social justice. Recalling then the charge levelled against the Italian Communist party to be a totalitarian party, he declared that if this meant freedom, and if this meant that the power of the State was offered to the people for the people, the Communist party would not reject the charge. "Quotidiano" gives this report, under the headline of: "Totalitarianism and freedom according to Hon. Togliatti. The Communist press allegedly is.... the mouth of truth."

2. Workers of the Montecatini, Fertuscla and Valdineto factories staged a violent demonstration at Crotone last night to protest against the high cost of living. The demonstrators, who were armed with clubs, damaged some shops and then proceeded, together with the population which had joined them, to the Consorzio Agrario warehouses attempting to lay hands on the goods deposited there. Strong police reinforcements, also equipped with armored cars, arrived from Catanzaro and opened fire against the demonstrators who late last night were still carrying on their attack. At midnight the prefect of Catanzaro enforced the curfew. (Mess.)

3. It is expected that De Gasperi will leave for Paris on 10 or 11 October in order to participate in the conclusive phase of the peace treaty and supply personally all explanations which the "Four" might possibly ask. Saragat leaves for Paris today. The Council of Ministers will meet on Thursday or Friday next, to examine new work regulations for industrial factories, aiming at insuring an ever increasing employment of jobless manpower. The Minister of Labour has prepared a draft decree ordering the resumption of the 40-hour week. (Mess.)

5. "Unità", "Avanti!" and "Italia Libera" reproduce the text of an interview with De Gasperi published by the New York Times, according to which the President of the Council last Saturday made the following statements concerning the Trieste problem: (1) as already done for the colonial question, the decision on the Trieste problem should be postponed for one year. (2) During this year Italy would continue negotiations with Yugoslavia. In case an agreement should fail, Italy would demand a plebiscite on the ethnical line so that all could know the exact will of the populations concerned. (3) A plan for the internationalisation of the port and the adjacent industrial zone with railway conventions should be prepared. (4) If a solution commonly agreed upon were not reached in a year's time, the question should then be referred to the United Nations. The New York Times also reported that De Gasperi proposed to preparing the Italian treaty for signature, excluding the Trieste question from it. Evidently this plan implies the retention of the Morgan line for another year after the signature of the peace treaty, as well as the pursuit of Anglo-American, and Yugoslav occupation of Venezia Giulia. "De Gasperi proposes again his thesis for Trieste", headlines "Avanti!", while "Unità" writes that De Gasperi insists on the postponement of a decision for Trieste, and therefore on the continuation of Allied military occupation in Italy.

In a short item from Pisa it is reported that all the workers of that province have stopped work today from 1100 to 1115, in compliance with a decision taken by the Internal Commission of factories and industrial establishments. 1. In a leading article under the heading of: "The Schools in the South", Gaetano Napolitano asserts that justice must be done to the Southern section of this country even in the field of schools. Southerners appear to be backward, not on account of their mental laziness or of a lack of intelligence, but because the Govt failed to do its duty in providing them with sufficient schools. In order to give evidence of that, the writer publishes the following statistic table:

Number of Elementary schools:

- Northern Italy 65 000
- Central Italy and Abruzzi 29 000
- Southern Italy and Islands 38 000

He remarks that if the schools were equitably distributed throughout the country, we should have the following data:

- Northern Italy (20 schools per 3 000 inhabitants) 60 000
- Central Italy 9 iden 27 000
- Southern Italy 15 iden 45 000

In a short note by "Porcupine", the paper points out that the Republican Party becomes alarmed at the possibility that a Monarchical Party may be organized in Italy. Inasmuch as before the advent of Fascism, the Monarchical Regime was tolerant toward the existence of a Republican Party, the paper concludes that the old Monarchy was liberal, while the present Republic is conservative.

1 In a leading article under the heading: "The problem of the press", the writer proposes a scheme of regulations to be adopted for the Italian Press, especially concerning the Responsible Editor, the seizure of newspapers and the punishment for material [illegible]tory in conformity with what he deems to be the best reforms carried out also in other countries in the field of Press Legislation.

2. "Oath to Republic" is the heading of an article by Ugo Della Seta criticising the wording of the oath by which armed forces and civilian functionaries in Italy are bound to the Republic. This criticism is grounded mainly on the fact that the oath in question is taken before the Head of the State, which in the writer's opinion, is inconsistent with the republican spirit. The oath of fidelity should not be taken personally to the Head of the State, but to the Republican Regime.

Pacciardi is supposed to have reported the news to De Gasperi. As a conclusion the paper says that these accusations show that the agents and spies of Moscow, realising the failure of their efforts to bring about the sovietization of the country, are laying the blame of their ill-success on the U.Q. ITALIA LIBERA (Action)

The separation between the Ministry of Finance and of the Treasury still exists, states Leo Levi pleading that the one should know what the other is doing and recalling that the winter is not very far away.

ITALIA NUOVA (Monarchist)

1. Under the heading "How long will the 'political truce' last?" I.N. says that "the Communists are blackmailing De Gasperi waving new scarecrows before him".

2. Commenting on "Avanti's" photostatic reproduction of a receipt alledgely issued by the Italian Democratic Party for a 50-lire contribution "for propaganda against the Republic (See Digest No. 347, Sept. 29th, Page 4, Para. 2) I.N., after denying that such a receipt was issued by the I.D.P. and saying that it might as well have been the initiative of a provocateur, writes that the Party "has decided to divide the amount as follows: 20 lire to "Voce Repubblicana", 17.50 lire to "Avanti" and 12.50 lire to "Unita" so that (a) if the donator was a 'provocateur' his money would return to where it came from, (b) if the donator was 'a simple-minded romantic fellow', his money would subsidize the three major Italian anti-Republican newspapers according to their merit".

MESSAGGERO (Government)

In a leading article under the heading of: "National Debt and Treasury", Gustavo Ingrosso passes under review the situation of the National Debt up to 30 April 1946: Morgan Loan: - originally 100 million dollars, reduced afterwards to little more than 66 million. Internal Debt: 1,017 milliards and 141 millions. The floating debt (677 milliards and 720 millions) amounts to 2/3 of the total National Debt. It is worth while to compare this situation with that of the floating debt in 1930: 3 milliards and 671 millions, when it represented only 4,16% of the total internal debt (88 milliards and 102 millions). The wave of floating debt which threatens to ingulf us now, began in 1935 with the first war adventure of Mussolini. This situation, according to the writer, suggests two conclusions: The Govt should adopt a financial policy of large foresight and should react against the floating debt by increasing the taxes, so as to strengthen the organic structure of the State budget.

UNITA' (Communist)

1. In a note under the heading of: "120 000 Roman workers take part in the Festival organized for the benefit of their paper - Here is our force, here is our capital: the working masses advancing toward liberty, know very well that their press is a necessary weapon to win their battle", is the declaration of comrade Togliatti to the huge crowd", the paper asserts that last Sunday's festival marks a new stage in the long, hard march of "Unità" toward success. The paper adds that it is gratifying to remark that the 120 000 workers who heard Togliatti's message did know that 23 years ago this man was one of the founders of "Unità". Even people unfriendly to Communism must have wondered at the fact that, while this Festival was going on in Rome, other similar manifestations were held in a hundred other large and small towns of the country.

2. In a note entitled: "Reply to "Popolo" - The powers of the Second Chamber", a contributor of the paper signed "S.C.", differing with the point of view held by prof. Mortati in an interview with "Popolo", reasserts the contention that the prevalent tendency in modern democratic and parliamentary constitutions is to limit the powers of the second Chamber where it exists. The writer adds that Finland, Republican Turkey and the 1st Spanish Republic had not a second Chamber at all. Finally he addresses to Prof. Mortati the following reproach: You know that all this is true, but why do you not tell this to the readers of "Popolo"?
