Since that day other nations, faithful to the principles we defend, have united with us. FRANCE JOINS UNITED NATIONS

Following is text of address from the President read by Secretary Stettinius in ceremonies this afternoon at the Department marking Third Anniversary of United Nations Declaration and the adherence of France to the Declaration:

"Dear Mr. Secretary: On the Third Anniversary of the United Nations I extend my most cordial greetings to the representatives of the Nations who are assembled for the occasion. It is a matter of profound gratification to all of us that at this ceremony France will formally adhere to the Declaration by United Nations.

"France was the first ally of our country in our own war of liberation. For 150 years her traditions of liberty have been an inspiration to free men everywhere. In this war all the brutalities of four years of Nazi occupation could not quench the flame of her unconquerable spirit or suppress the resistance of her people to the enemy and now, France stands beside us a strong ally--once more in the first rank of the free and peace-loving nations of the world. The United Nations have gone far since that day three years ago when we made our compact. Then the enemy's military strength was at its zenith and was being ruthlessly used in an all-out attempt to conquer the world. Together we have reversed the early years of retreat and beaten back the enemy--in Africa, in Eastern and Western Europe and in the Pacific. Together we have laid the foundations for a United Nations peace. We still have far to go. We know that it is only as United Nations that we have it within our power to win complete and final victory in this war and then to win the peace. We know that by maintaining and strengthening the United Nations we shall do both."

Secretary Stettinius made the following statement at the ceremonies: "It is a magnificent manifestation of the growing strength of the United Nations that we should mark today the Third Anniversary of the Declaration by United Nations by receiving the signature on behalf of France of His Excellency, Ambassador Henri Bonnet. While his signature will be the 36th formally appended to this declaration, the whole world knows that the people of France have in spirit and in fact always been associated with us. France was one of the first nations to challenge the Nazi aggressors. Through four years of German oppression the French people maintained their heroic resistance behind the enemy lines. The members of the resistance movement and the soldiers of the reborn French Army contributed in vital measure to the successful liberation of their homeland by our Allied armies. They wrote in blood and sacrifice another glorious chapter in France's record of devotion to liberty. The Nations signatory to the Declaration by United Nations welcome the formal adherence of France to this compact."
