3. POLITICAL

DE RUGGIERO was over here on some de-Fascism programme I believe, but he avoided my Office. The visits I received from SARAGAT and CORSI were profitable and of great interest. I think it would be useful if these visiting officials could be told to contact this office when they come over to SARDINIA.

EMILIO LUSSU came to see me on the 22nd September and was interviewed alone without an interpreter. After a shaky start he talked freely. He was interested in the English and American Party systems of politics and agreed that strength depends upon having two main Parties, not a host of small ones.

He said he had admitted he was a Republican and would like to see considerable changes in Italy. A strong Action Party both in SARDINIA and Italy was his ideal, i.e. A Party of the Left which would absorb all others except perhaps the rather negligible Christian Democrat opposition. Not quite the ideal two balanced strong Parties.

He did not make any particular complaint about conditions at CARBONIA but he asked pointedly whether I had seen the mines and was interested to hear that I had done so. He said that he had just visited the local Salt Works and had seen 500 salt workers. He described their plight as being miserable, their chief difficulty being lack of shoes. I pointed out that everyone wanted boots or shoes - coal miners, copper miners, farmers who trod on the prickly pears and so on. In fact, about 200,000 pairs of boots and shoes were really needed. I also said that I thought local manufacture should be more enterprising and there should be a large scale use of wooden-soled clogs. He agreed, but put the salt workers' needs first and there is no doubt that if anything can be done to produce two or three thousand pairs of boots or shoes for this group it would be a helpful political move.

LUSSU went on to say that conditions in SARDINIA were a good deal worse than in the rest of Italy and he said that he had visited Southern Italy and all of Sicily extensively. I told him that I did not agree that conditions in SARDINIA were much worse than those prevailing in Italy and went on to tell him that I had covered about 12,000 miles by car in the course of six months in Italy this year myself, and seen a great deal of the conditions there. This was perhaps a mean advantage as, obviously, he could never have been able to cover anything like this distance on account of lack of transport, and it shook him visibly.

I said I thought farmers in SARDINIA were holding back their grain. He agreed and said that they required to be educated not to do this. I hope he will help.

He was very friendly and quite frank and he said he would come and see me again as it appears he is likely to be in SARDINIA for two or three weeks.

I regard LUSSU as something of a visionary. The last thing he has seen is uppermost in his mind, for example, he was very concerned over CARBONIA, now it is the salt workers that want shoes before anyone else. There is, however, immense sympathy for him and his courageous stand against Fascism gives him great influence in SARDINIA.

Subject: Sardinia Report.

Apart from normal activity the past ten days in Sardinia can be highlighted in the following manner:

1. Trip to Sassari to investigate rumors of fascist nature of new youth movement.
2. Visit of E.I.A.R. representative, Ing. Franco Marietti.
3. First meeting of Italian Press Commission.
4. Radio and press campaign for ACC on prospected food reductions.

1. Rumors circulating around the Island and a recent report from our Sassari representative concerning a new youth movement called "Nuova Italia" brought a hurried trip north. I was accompanied by Captain Wagstaff of ACC. After attending to distribution of publications and arranging some details concerning our photo display shop, spent the day with Captain Wagstaff obtaining information on "Nuova Italia". The movement turned out to be monarchic in nature with roots in the Italian Democratic Party on the Continent which publishes "Italia Nuova". However, it is interesting to note that the movement has gathered impetus here among university students and might bear watching. Certain of our informants claim that fascist money filters into this organization. While this could not be established there is a distinct smell of the old school in their proclamations and definite hostility toward the present government.

2. Our trip to Sassari was interrupted by a message urging quick return to Cagliari because of the arrival of Ing. Franco Marietti of E.I.A.R. I have already written you about Marietti's visit and only want to add that he has just this day left the Island after an attack of intestinal grip and a heartbreaking time trying to obtain passage. Far from clarifying the radio situation, at the moment it appears just as complicated as ever. In his desire to take over, Marietti gave the Italian Command to understand that by the 1st of October E.I.A.R. would assume full responsibility for Radio Sardinia. But as difficulties began to unfold, Marietti became more and more aware of the impractical side of this procedure: of operating without facilities which are at the disposition of the Military. The Italian Command is more than anxious to unload onto E.I.A.R. On the other hand E.I.A.R. doesn't see how it can take over under the circumstances. Which leaves us here in a muddle. E.I.A.R. must decide at once what it wants to do and make arrangements with the Italian Command.

585.02

3. On the 15th of September was held the first meeting of the Sardinian Press Commission which I attended as consultant and observer for PWB. I am enclosing two copies of the minutes of this meeting as written by Avv. Antonio Maxia, president of the Commission. One of these copies might be turned over to Col. Mura. The meeting was conducted under assumption of the arrival of 30 tons of newsprint which has been ordered by ACC for October 1st distribution but which to date has failed to arrive. Worse, no notice has been received by ACC that the paper has even been shipped. We're hoping against hope.

4. Early last week I was summoned by Colonel Pennycuik, Regional Commissioner, to discuss the matter of a prospected reduction in food rations for heavy workers. Outlined for him a press and radio campaign, including talks by prominent political and agricultural leaders. The campaign is now in full swing, the principal themes: Sardinia practically untouched by war as compared with Continent and other countries; obligation of Allies to newly liberated territories; shipping facilities and widening picture of the war, etc. Announcement of the reduction will take place on the 25th. Our campaign will have done much to prepare the ground. Colonel Pennycuik is most grateful for PWB effort and cooperation.

Giuseppe <sup>S</sup>ARAGAT, the Italian Socialist Minister, made a speech in CAGLIARI on 11th September. He explained the principles and aims of the Socialist Party and pointed out the difficult task which faced the Italian Government after twenty years of Fascism. He thanked the Allies for the material aid they had given, and were giving, to Italy but said that there was not much moral aid given by the United Nations. He made reference to the bad conditions of miners at CARBONIA which he blamed on the Fascist Party. He mentioned that the farmers had not done their duty in turning over their grain to the Granai del Popolo. He also said that the Government would strongly oppose any separatist movement in SICILY.

His Excellency CORSI, Under-Secretary of Merchant Marine, also made a short address in which he enumerated the disasters brought about by the Fascist Government.

These two Ministers came to see me and I pointed out to them our food difficulties and lack of response from the farmers. They seem to have made a genuine effort to be helpful.

Chief of the Italian Government

As per orders of the assembly of the Sardinian Party of Action, at which the Sassari population took part and the delegates of all political parties were present, I send Your Excellency the order of the day which was unanimously approved.

If the proposal of the formation of an armed Sardinian division, equipped by Sardinia, should find a favorable acceptance on the part of Your Excellency's Government, we mean to initiate immediately the work of propaganda for recruiting and financing the same; in the meantime, we await your authority and indispensable decision.

It is also necessary that the establishment of a unified regional department be instituted, which would have the authority to accept contributions so as to guarantee reimbursement in the future of those sums expended for the formation of the SARDEGNA Division.
