GENERAL REPORT.

I have purposefully laid over in bi-monthly report on the Italian Air Forces in view of your visit with a V.I.C. and S.Y.C., the result of which, I feel certain, provided conclusive evidence of the vast improvement in their work.

In my humble opinion I do not expect any marked deterioration in the near future and any fluctuation which may become apparent from time to time will I am sure be of only local concern and, therefore, of very minor proportions.

The two outstanding problems from the Italian Air Forces point of view are still, of course, (a) a guarantee that they eventually receive the status of an air, and (b) that pay may be increased for all ranks to correspond as nearly as possible to that accorded to R.A.F. ranks.

ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

The visit on April 2nd of Prince Achille, Count General of the Realm, Signor Guido, the Italian Minister for Air and other V.I.P's was on the whole popular and favourably received, although a few with Republican tendencies accepted it in the light of it being necessary but which had to be carried out.

The suspicion aroused by alleged telephone of 23rd to Trindisi have proved, as I expected, unfounded.

I am, Sir,
Your very obedient servant.

Report on Robert Oboe 20 dated 17/1/45.

There is little to report as the morale of the Italian personnel here appears to remain quite high.

During the month of March the bomber-transport squadrons broke their previous best operational record and this has given everyone great satisfaction.

2. The difficulty regarding the hydraulic systems of these a/c already reported has now been overcome and serviceability is reasonably good.

3. A marked improvement in the food and clothing situation is also obvious.

REPORT OF VISIT.

Mr., I have the honour to submit the following report:-

our visit accompanied by other officers of our Commission and a forerunner to other visits by General ~~AMICO'S~~ American representative at L.H.A.M. high ranking Italian Air Forces of ours from Rome and Pari and also of a representative from the 'Aviazione Italiana', has had a most favourable reaction on the personnel of the Baltimore Squadrons, who can no longer complain that they have been left out in the cold; a complaint so often voiced last winter.

Changes such as the grant of pay given to officers retaining their rank but filling establishment posts vacated by a higher ranking officer which at first appear to be of no consequence, are now accepted in their true spirit, that of wishing to give them as many concessions as are practicably possible. Remuneration which is to be given to the airmen who brought their planes over from ITALIAN OCCUPIED TERRITORY, comes under the same category.

Morale, on the whole, has been fairly good and the main interest this last fortnight seems to lie in the war news in Italy which are followed generally by animated discussions on the future of Italy, raising doubts in some quarters as to the recognition of their war effort by the Allies. I gather that P.D.-90, on the Stommo would be keen on Italy declaring war on Japan, if some clarification of Italy's position after the war were forthcoming.

OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST AND -

(1) The American Colonel who paid a visit to the Squadrons with General GATTA, promised than ever assistance from his commander-in-chief General AMICO.

(2) General GATTA has just lost after having spent winter with the Stommo. On this visit he observed the reaction of ~~against~~ the ~~newfound~~ Japanese question.

(3) Lt. Col. Mori has been to Lecce to arrange for aircrew replacements.

(4) 250lb aviation medium capacity and general purpose bombs are for the time being partly substituted for 500lb British bombs, owing to shortage of the latter. However, if four 500lb American bombs A-364 can be installed on Baltimores, these may be used in future.

(5) The C.I.O. of 254 Wing is forwarding enlargements of the operational photographs you requested.

(6) The S.M.C. of 254 Wing, at the request of R.A.F., is to assess the health of the Italian Baltimore airmen as a result of the new sampling ration scheme.

(7) In view of the fairly high percentage of V.D. cases at the Italian Baltimore Squadrons, an arrangement whereby a small number of controlled prostitutes be allowed to live and co-habitate exclusively with the Squadron personnel is being considered.

(8) P/Wt WATTS who is in charge of the R.S.U. has contacted R.A.F. with a view to posting to our Commission two Italian Corpo di Fattori fie on 254 Wing acting as interpreters on his section, and then arranging for them to be attached to 254 Wing as N/Scts. I have pointed out that our establishment for Fattori will probably have to be raised in order to include these two men due to the difference in the trade groups they should remain in Group 1.

I have asked both the representatives of the R.S.U. and the 'Union Jack', Mr Johnson and P/O Barber respectively, to call on you, Sir, before publishing their articles, and hope they will if they have not already done so. The 'Union Jack' representative appeared to be very keen on a 'write up' dealing with the R.S.U.

Report on Robert Giese 30 March 1945.

The morale of all Italian personnel here seems to be very good indeed and there is little to report.

1. The recent demand for units forced to provide 700 man for the American authorities has caused some consternation here and a minor labour difficulty has resulted. On occasions it has been very difficult to get all aircraft loaded in time to take off on missions, due to shortages and poor quality of labour. The Italian authorities provided civilians but these were not acceptable to U.S. 54 who control the provisioning for missions. General Giese has arranged for 100 men to be posted from Sardinia to make up deficiencies, until those native it appears the problem of loading is likely to be difficult.
2. A recent engineering problem has arisen which is likely to reduce our serviceability considerably. It appears that the Italians used the wrong type of hydraulic oil with the pure rubber washers employed on their systems. This has caused rapid deterioration of the rubber

- American authorities have caused some consternation here and a major labour difficulty has resulted. On occasions it has been very difficult to get all equipment loaded in time to take off on missions, due to shortage and poor quality of labour. The Italian authorities promised delivery but these were not acceptable to I.T.I. who control the provisioning for missions. General Guglia has arranged for 100 men to be posted from Sardinia to take up indiscipline, until these arrive it appears the problem of loading is likely to be difficult.
3. A recent engineering problem has arisen which is likely to reduce our serviceability considerably. It appears that the Italians used the wrong type of hydraulic oil with the pure rubber variants employed in their systems. This has caused rapid deterioration of the rubber with consequent increase in aircraft unservicability. The Italians are obviously very worried about this but the A.D.C.C. engineer officer and V.B.M.R. Gladstone at Bari are taking all possible steps to overcome this difficulty.

Sir,

The loss of Major Brasi has been acutely felt at I32 Squadron where in the capacity of Commanding Officer he was held in great esteem by his men. Lt. Col Roveda feels that Capt. Graziani the second in command is the only person capable of replacing him, a decision which has been received with mixed feelings by the majority on his squadron, due to his practice of bestowing favouritism on some and the taking of severe disciplinary measures on others.

Capt. Graziani is a first class operational leader and as, I am given to understand, he has shown signs, since occupying his new post, of wishing to regain the respect of his men, it would perhaps be just as well to allow him to carry on.

One further scrap of information with which you may already be cognisant and which, so far, has only affected the Italian Fighter Squadrons at Canne owing to the animosity to the Yugoslavs, is that the latter have been inciting the Italian personnel with communistic propaganda and have even suggested that they should desert from the Italian Air Force and join Tito's armies as volunteers.

I remember such cases of desertion taking place as far back as January 1944 at Pari, and if similar enticement were to spread in this area it may have disastrous effects on the morale of the I.A.F. personnel.

In future I shall send an extra copy of my report to Group Captain Stapleton and I shall most certainly Sir, take care not to raise the hopes of the Italians in regard to pay and rations.

I am Sir, your obedient servant J. D. J.

Report on Robert Oboe 20 dated 17.1.1945.

During the last fortnight, this station has been visited by the new Sir Minister and party. He seems an extremely popular choice and cheered up all personnel here. Is one senior officer said, "It makes us very happy to know we have a good leader". Col. Remondine was here on that visit and his popularity was unquestionable. The reception he received by all could leave no doubt in anyone's mind.

2. The bad flying discipline reported recently has been entirely eliminated with the return of Col. Tonalli from Cambria and Wing Cmdr. Alexander Rose arrival. There had a concerted drive on this subject when they knew that the situation was under orders to be punished.
3. The morale of the Yorker personnel is extremely good due to a series of very successful operations carried out recently. (no cage for slight damage) was lack of wings and I was met at every turnings and cheered up all for onward base. Is one senior officer with "It makes us very happy to know we have a good leader". Vol. commendation was here on that visit and his popularity was unquestionable. The suggestion he received by all could leave no doubt in anyone's mind.

2. The bad flying discipline reported recently has been entirely eliminated with the return of Col. Banski from Ceylon and Wing Cmdr. Knockert from Africa. They had a concerted drive on this subject when they knew what the situation was and several offenders have been punished.
3. The morale of the Bomber personnel is extremely good due to a series of very successful operations carried out recently. One cause for slight dependency was lack of tyres and I was not at every turn in with complaints and requests for supply of new ones. A comment of 14 tyres received on 20/4/45 has caused a marked change in outlook of all on-boarding and flying personnel. Their pleasure was particularly noticeable, after the series of complaints already referred to.

Sir,

I am taking the initiative of submitting a short supplementary report, in and above the normal bi-monthly one, dealing with to-day's visit to the Baltimore Squadrons of the Italian Minister for Air.

As I was present during his tour of inspection and also during speechmaking and you will be pleased to know Sir, that he made an excellent all round impression not only by the sincerity of his 'pep talk' but also by the interest he displayed in the sanitary conditions on the camp--one officer exclaimed with surprise that Signor Gasperotto was the first Air Minister in his long military experience who had entered a tent to judge for himself under what conditions they were living.

The following points were raised in the Minister's speech: (a) The fact, on which he placed great emphasis, of his visit having been made at our suggestion, (b) the 2,000,000 lire monthly family allowances allotted to the I.A.F. (c) the increase in pay and rations, (d) the assurance of further concessions, (e) the need for discipline and no party politics whilst in the armed services, (f) the necessity for good behaviour at the cessation of hostilities and non participation in any demonstrations which may arise as a result of the armistice in Europe, (g) the Crimea Conference of which, although he is certain Italy must have been discussed, there had been no official announcement, (h) the confidence and esteem which he has in you as a friend of Italy and of the cause of the Italian Air Force, (i) the fact that the Italian Armed Forces must continue the struggle on the side of the Allies without respite and double their efforts for the recognition for which the Italian Government hopes, and which, if it had depended on you and the other members of your staff in Rome it would have had already received.

Sir,
 I have the honour to inform you that since my last report the return from home of Lt. Col. ROVEDA with concealed promises to his men regarding an increase in their allowances combined with the visit of General GAIZA and Col. FRANCOIS to the Baltimore Squadrone, has had an appreciably favourable effect on their morale.

Another stimulant to their morale has verified itself during the last fortnight in rather a strange manner in that, whereas only a few weeks ago the Italians were disappointed over the slow progress on the Italian front, they are now consoling themselves with the thought that if the present activity on the western and eastern fronts leads to an early cessation of hostilities in Europe, the North of Italy would automatically be liberated ~~and~~ and its preservation be further impaired by the ravaging which would naturally follow a large scale attack.

The only apparent drawback to this welcome change is the fact that they take politics so much to heart that any misinterpretation on their part can have far-reaching effects. In this particular instance they feel that a deaf ear is being turned towards Signor Bonomi's appeal that Italy's status be raised from that of belligerent to that of an ally and Signor De Gasperi's request to the Allies that terms of the Italian Armistice as well as economic and financial problems and the repatriation of Italian prisoners of war be re-examined.

The O.C. 254 Wing has suggested to a member of the Public Relations branch at present on this wing, that this officer in conjunction with a photographer of the same branch should write an article with photographs, on the activities of the Italian Baltimore Squadrons whose experience and results have so far proved them superior to the other squadrons on this wing. The Public Relations Officer is reluctant to do this as he says it has been covered before in Allied publications. I think any such articles are a splendid morale booster for the Italians, provided close up photographs of the crews who have relations in occupied territory are not taken, but, of course, I have pointed out to this officer that permission would first have to be granted by you. What is your opinion, Sir?

In conclusion, may I be permitted, Sir, to mention that in view of the fact that I type these reports myself and send them under sealed cover, I run the risk of being severely reprimanded by Q/CPT STAPLETON should he find out that I have been sending reports of a sensitive nature without his knowledge. My position is unenviable could it be clarified?

Report on Robert Oboe 20 dated 17.1.45.

The morale of the Bomber Personnel here seems to be quite high. This I think is due almost entirely to the increased operational activity during this month and consequent increase in interest. Further, I have fostered a competitive spirit between the Cant 2 and S.M. 82 crews which has improved ^{operations} considerably and seems to have raised the morale of all concerned by stimulating interest. To date 98 sorties have been flown.

2. The food in the mess where we normally mess i.e. 1st. Gruppo S.M. 82's has improved considerably recently, and this, I feel has led to a generally more contented frame of mind among personnel.
3. A report from S/L. Kaye, Ops, Officer F.I.S. states that the situation is satisfactory, and fighter personnel are particularly heartened by the work being done by the aircraft at CANN. I consider that the flying discipline at IECCE is very bad especially among

EMERGENCY SPECIAL REPORT.

Sir,

I have little to add to my first report on the morale of the Italian Baltimore Squadrons aircrews, except that "feelers" are being put out by their Commanding Officers to their H.Q. Iari and Air Ministry, Rome in regard to the Storno's contention that the rate of pay should at least equal that given to civilian tradesmen.

They are particularly bitter because special allowances due to the higher cost of living, are given to Italian personnel stationed at Rome who they consider are in a comfortable sedentary job, not experiencing the discomforts of camp life and often living with their families.

The attached report is forwarded in accordance with your Robert Oboe 20 dated 17th January 1945. While this may not be exactly what was asked for, it shows something of the R.A. mental process and matters influencing their thoughts.

2. The general morale of the bombers appears normal but since the visit of the Engineering Commission their chief topic has been the future of the Bomber Transport aircraft. During the above visit it was quite freely stated and agreed that the Cent Z was a very poor transport proposition. The Italians agree with this and are now looking forward to being re-equipped. This is causing much surprise but some Italians are very sceptical. I do not know whether they are aware of the latest ruling, but I do feel that it is time they were put in the picture. At present they are quite happy to patch up and carry on, in the hope that they will be re-equipped but I think the pilots and engineers are getting rather tired of continuous trouble with engines etc.

3. May I suggest that action be taken to acquaint Italians with the latest policy regarding the R.A. as it does not appear to have percolated through here as yet.

REPORT IN ACCORDANCE WITH ROBERT OBCE 20, dated 17.1.45.

The following are several points which cropped up during the course of casual conversation with Col. LEONE :

1. CENTRAL AIR FORCE'S STANCE TO ITALIAN PERSONNEL AT LEGGE.

The General said that the present Italian Air Force was to be liquidated, all old inefficient methods scraped, and a new Air Force formed with a reduced, compact organisation.

It is also understood that he said something about the new Air Force coming under the Command of only one General.

2. MORALE.

Col. LEONE said that the personnel of the Italian Air Force are greatly influenced by the present unsettled political and economical situations, although they realise that the former problem is not one in which they as members of the Forces can have or should have any direct participation.

The question of inadequate pay is also very strongly felt by all ranks. Many civilian workmen at the moment are paid more than even the senior officers receive. This situation has lowered the local prestige and personnel are in ~~succases~~ snubbed by the population.

The Italians are not being given any precise directives as to present or future policy, and are unable to see that their efforts, the work they are doing, are bringing any compensation in the way of helping to improve the general internal situation of the country.

It is understood that the Italian Fighters are going as far as to say in the memorandum they are sending to ROMI, it is thought to the Prime Minister, that they do not feel they can carry on with their task

The Commanding Officer of 254 Wing, to which the Italian Baltimores are attached, has said that one of the Italian squadrons has put up the best performance of those under his charge. The Italian personnel concerned has had to work under very difficult conditions and have said that they will find it most difficult to maintain their efforts without some added incentive.

Sir,

reaction of Italian Air Force personnel to the attack on Colonel BELMONDO published in the newspaper 'Voce Repubblicana'.

I was handicapped by having to institute discreet enquiries during casual conversation without previous knowledge of the subject in question. Colonel BELMONDO, however, is known to me and thus my approach was facilitated.

I found that Colonel BELMONDO is very popular in the Italian Air Force circles, and is not considered a Germanophobe. His failure to report at Forligno in order to join his unit in Sardinia after the Armistice on the 8th September, is unexplained by some and like the hope that Rome would be liberated in a matter of days after the Armistice, by others.

Other information gathered was that he was a member of the clandestine front and was given orders by General SAVALLI to keep an eye on the Italian Air Ministry in Rome with a view to preserving important documents and to keeping the archives intact.

It is the opinion of my informants that the attack on Colonel BELMONDO was unjustified and was instigated by an officer of the I.A.F. (no suggestions as to identity supplied) who must bear him a grudge and who took advantage of his extraordinary behaviour at the time of the Armistice.

If Sir, you wish me to submit a further report, the 'Voce Repubblicana' for my perusal would be of great value in permitting me to construct questions to any suitable answers which I may think interesting for transmission on to you.

of the subject in question. Colonel PRINCIDIO, however, is known to me and thus my approach was facilitated.

I found that Colonel PRINCIDIO is very popular in his failure to report at Forlino in order to join his unit in Germonphill. After the Armistice on the 8th September, is unexplained by some and explained as an act of wishing to remain with his family in Rome in the hope that Rome would be liberated in a matter of days after the Armistice, by others.

Other information gathered was that he was a member of the clandestine front and was given orders by General SARDUCCI to keep an eye on the Italian Air Ministry in Rome with a view to preserving important documents and to keeping the archives intact.

Colonel PRINCIDIO was unjustified and was instigated by an officer of the I.A.P. (no suggestion as to identity supplied) who must bear him a grudge and who took advantage of his extraordinary behaviour at the time of the Armistice.

If, Sir, you wish me to submit a further report, the receipt of a cutting of the article from the 14th January edition of the 'Voce Repubblica' for my perusal would be of great value in permitting me to construct questions to any suitable answer which I may think interesting for transmission on to you.

Sir, In answer to your request received today, I have the honour to submit the first of my bi-monthly unbiased reports on the morale of the operational aircrews on the Italian Baltimore Squadrons.

My impression is that a high percentage of the crews, who financially are poorly remunerated and who have little to gain therefrom, are helping the Allied cause for patriotic reasons and not because their conscience tricks them for having assisted a totalitarian government in the past, nor for any other political conviction. They have been told time and again that anything they do to help the Allied cause will have favourable reactions at the Pense Conference and it is this assumption added to the fact that as flying men they share with their counterparts of other nations their keenness for flying which more than anything else is proving a saving grace.

The reasons for their morale being at a fairly low ebb are varied and hereunder I enumerate those known to me in a few self explanatory words as they come to mind and, therefore, not necessarily in the order of importance:

- (1) They consider the political aims of the Italian Government uncertain and it is felt that little interest is taken in the activity of the I.A.F. The General opinion amongst aircrews who are strong Royalists ie one of non-confidence.
- (2) They distrust Communism and fear a repetition of events in Greece taking place in Italy.
- (3) They desire a further purge of Italian officers of high rank in order to facilitate the promotion of junior officers at present not given the opportunity to prove their worth.
- (4) Captain Scapellato, Flight Commander on 28 Squadron very unpopular with his crews.

therefrom, are helping the Allied cause for patriotic reasons and not because their conscience tricks them for having assisted a totalitarian government in the past, nor for any other political conviction. They have been told time and again that anything they do to help the Allied cause will have favourable reactions at the Peace Conference and it is this assumption added to the fact that as flying men they share with their counterparts of other nations their keenness for flying which more than anything else is proving a saving grace.

 - (5) The bombing of what they consider Italian territory.
 - (6) The lack of consideration given to the I.A.F. by Allied Forces not immediately connected with it, even in cases where I.A.F. personnel definitely identified itself through written credentials of its representative participation in the Allied cause.
O O U }
 - (7) The low rates of pay.
- With reference to (5), when I was with the fighters, Lt. Col. Fanali told me that he was eager to operate on the Italian front and in this respect he was backed by most of his pilots. The bombers, however, the nature of whose work is different, are not so keen, and I was told in confidence that the first time they were asked to operate over the Arsa Channel, one of the crews refused to go. They have, no doubt, seen sense since then as there have been no further incidents.
- The supply of Allied aircraft has been a great morale booster, as at one time when I first went to Leverano, I had occasion to mention to you Sir, on your visit after the arrival of the Spitfires that the fighter crews were under the impression that we, the Allies, were playing the double game of promising them a certain amount of material and then deliberately slowing up the progress of delivery in order to say that their effort was of no consequence.

Although it does not directly affect the Baltimore Squadrons I firmly believe that any further supplies of Allied aircraft will produce an all round morale raising effect on the I.A.F.

Furthermore, I consider that articles such as those which appeared in a communist publication some time ago and in the Voce Repubblicana, for which I hope Sir, to send you a report to-morrow, are a disturbing influence ~~to~~ the Italian military war effort.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant.

REPORT OF RECONNAISSANCE MISSION
TO ITALY, 20.

Having no previous information on the subject of the attack on Colonel RIVOLDI, the Commanding Officer of the Italian Bomber and Transport Wing at TICINO, Col. LUNG, was approached during the course of casual conversation and gave the following picture:

At the time of the Italian Ministry's large number of Italian Air Force personnel found themselves on the German side of the battle line. Colonel RIVOLDI was one of these, and up to the time the Allies moved into Rome, it appears that he played a double game by being a member of the Republican Air Force working with the Germans and at the same time doing all he could to assist the Allies. It also seems that the Colonel sorted out some of the bad types among the Regia Aeronautica personnel - those who were not good pilots or technicians and those whose past record were unfavourable - and did not take them into his confidence. Those bad types were, it seems, the ones who eventually denounced the Colonel for the part he played with the Germans. These people are also envious of the Colonel for having been reinstated in the Regia Aeronautica and given such a responsible position.

It is understood that a few hours before the Colonel was to have been arrested he was warned by a carabiniere and was able to Allies moved into Rome, it appears that he played a double game by being a member of the Republican Air Force working with the Germans and at the same time doing all he could to assist the Allies. It also goes that the Colonel sorted out some of the bad types from the Neapolitana personnel - those who were not good pilots or technicians and those whose past record were unfavorable - and did not take them into his confidence. These bad types were, it seems, the ones who eventually denounced the Colonel for the part he played with the Germans. These people are also envious of the Colonel for having been reinstated in the Regia Aeronautica and given such a responsible position.

It is understood that a few hours before the Colonel was to have been arrested he was warned by a carabiniere and was able to take the necessary measures to avoid this happening.

Then Colon. L. LEONI, Lt. Col. P. MILI and other senior Italian officers were in ROMA to meet the new minister and Gen. ALONI CAT, it is understood that they expressed their views on the subject and insisted that politics should not interfere with the functioning of the Regia Aeronautica and such imminent changes of COLS is bad for the whole set up. Apparently there are quite a few strong tendencies with no special qualifications at all who, with the help of influence from certain quarters, are doing all they can to get back to the Air Force.

Col. LIGGI said that two Italian writers were most annoyed about the attach on Col. RUMINDIO, who is very popular, and have the idea of sending a memorandum to the leading Italian newspapers asking them to take care of their facts before articles are published concerning the affairs of the Regia Aeronautica.

There appears to be no change whatsoever in the morale of any of the personnel of the R.A. at this station.
