The UIW welcomed Bonomi's recognition of the right of women to participate in the political life of the nation, but added that «such affirmation of principle has not been supported by any practical measures.»

Delay in the inclusion of women in new voting registry lists might hinder the effective participation of women in the forthcoming elections, the order of the day said.

Asserting that in recent months Italian women had demonstrated their capacity for coöperation with Italian and Allied authorities for the solution of Italy's problems, the order of the day declared that no positive results could be achieved without the active collaboration of women, not only as functionaries, but also as leaders. LABOR CONFEDERATION TO MEET IN NAPLES

ROME, December 22 — Democratic election of officers will be one of the main items on the agenda of the four-day Italian General Confederation of Labor convention which will open in Naples on January 28.

The convention will be the first free national gathering of trade unionists in Italy since the suppression of bona fide labor organizations by the Fascist régime.

Posts on the Confederations's executive committee, which up to now have been shared equally by the Socialists, Communists, and Christian Democrats in accordance with the July, 1944, three-party trade union pact, will be filled by the secret ballot of convention delegates elected freely by the membership of the labor body's affiliated unions throughout liberated Italy.

Another question which is expected to occupy an important part in the convention proceedings is the principle of the non-political character of the trade unions. This principle was amply discussed and widely supported at the pre-convention meeting held in Rome last September.

The delegates will also be called upon to discuss such problems of national interest as land reform, democratic social legislation, and labor's part in the economic and social reconstruction of Italy. (UNN)

GENERALS SENTENCED TO 20 YEARS

ROME, December 22 — Lt. Generals Riccardo Pentimalli and Ettore Del Tetto today were sentenced to 20 years in prison following their conviction of abandoning their posts in Naples immediately after the armistice September 8. The High Court of Justice found them not guilty of seven other charges, conviction on three of which would have resulted in a death sentence.

Del Tetto, 55-year-old officer, wept when the sentence was pronounced. During the trial, he wept at all references to his family, who are in Piedmont in enemy-occupied territory. The 59-year-old Pentimalli, who, like his co-defendant, wore civilian clothes during the trial, remained impassive throughout. His brother, also a general in the Italian Army, was present during the trial.

While the public prosecutor, Pietro Traina, asked for the death sentence «with profound regret, but clear conscience,» the defense pleaded «chaos» as the reason for the actions of the two generals. Ferruccio Lizzi, one of defense counsel, insisted that «in the utter state of chaos in which the Italian nation and army were struggling during September 9, 10, and 11, one could not have asked more from the Generals.» (UNN)

MUSSOLINI'S FRIEND GIVEN 30-YEAR JAIL TERM

ROME, December 22 — Comely Cornelia Pizzato Tanzi, alleged mistress of Il Duce, today was found guilty of collaboration with the Germans and of betrayal of Italian Patriots, and sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment.

The accused appeared stunned when the verdict was read. The seven-man special court deliberated for an hour and a half. When the judge began to read the verdict, Signorina Tanzi covered her face with her hands and leaned against the rail of the prisoners box for support.

The defense's main points were that his client did not make the telephone call by which it was asserted she revealed the location of several Italian Patriots to the Nazis, and that, had she been guilty of the charge, she would have tried to escape to northern Italy, instead of remaining in Rome, where she was subsequently arrested. BRITISH EXTEND CONTROL IN ATHENS

ATHENS, December 22 — British troops and tanks today crossed Piraeus Harbor in assault craft, landed on the northern rim and drove inland, bringing this area under British control.

A communique issued by the British commander, Lt. Gen. Ronald Scoble, said «further progress has been achieved in clearing areas in the city and in the Port of Piraeus.

«Yesterday, 100,000 meals were served to civilians living in the control zone. British troops have been enthusiastically received by civilians in areas cleared of insurgents. In Piraeus, a large delegation headed by the mayor visited naval headquarters to tender their thanks to the British authorities.»

The British headquarters revealed also that 3,000 ELAS prisoners were evacuated by sea to an undisclosed destination. A Reuter report said that 1,000 ELAS prisoners are still on the mainland.

Some fighting continued today in the city itself. Allied tanks in positions at the foot of Mount Likabettus, in the center of the city, shelled ELAS concentrations in the neighborhood of the military academy, now a main ELAS area.

Reuter said that in an attack described as «very successful and very accurate,» rocket-firing Beaufighters flattened the main prison block of the Averoff Prison, which has been in ELAS hands since Monday.

Unloading operations at the port of Piraeus have started again. British headquarters said that 700 union stevedores have been employed, and added that numberless applicants volunteered to help the British soldiers unload.

Stiff resistance, however, developed from ELAS strongpoints in the northern basin of the harbor. ELAS machine gunners and mortar crews, holed up in industrial plants and warehouses, have thus far succeeded in preventing a link-up of British detachments from clearing the harbor completely.

In the territory held by guerrillas under the command of General Zervas, an EDES army of from 15,000 to 20,000 was reported today to be on the move. Zervas informed the British authorities that ELAS forces already had entered his territory in Epirus and were massing on the Dhriskos Ridge overlooking the town of Yanina, which has been his headquarters. The British said that Zervas charged that Albanians were among the force threatening EDES territory.

Meanwhile, the Bulgarian telegraph agency said yesterday, in a dispatch from Sofia broadcast by Radio Moscow, that it «has been authorized to deny in the most categorical manner» reports that Bulgarian troops had taken any part in the fighting in Greece.» The dispatch also denied that «Bulgarians have allegedly entered Greek territory in order to aid various political movements.»

The British Resident Minister for the Central Mediterranean, Harold Macmillan, returned here yesterday from a visit to the Supreme Commander Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander.

BBC Reporter John Nixon said today that no ELAS guns have fired from inside the city or from the outskirts into the city since General Scobie's warning of all-out action against them came into force.

An earlier Reuter cable said that copies of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's speech on Greece in the House of Commons were to be dropped in the Athens area today.

Referring to the distribution of soup to the starving population of Athens yesterday, a distribution which was interrupted by guerrilla sniping, the BBC correspondent in the city said:

PAPANDREOU STATES POSITION

LONDON, December 22 — Greek Prime Minister Georges Papandreou, in an interview yesterday with the Athens correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, declared that for six months his government made a series of concessions to EAM (National Liberation Front) leaders in the hope of « conciliation and concord. »

Papandreou insisted that the present fighting represented the uprising of an « armed minority bent on imposing a Nazi-like tyranny, » and said that as a result of her intervention, Britain «has never in history been held in more intense affection by the masses of the Greek people. Never has she done Greece a higher service than she has rendered this December with her troops in standing up on behalf of an unarmed government...»

Papandreou added:

«We had long since recognized the EAM leaders' intention gradually to seize power under the cover of conciliation. But not until the first shots were fired did we give up hopes that reason and patriotism would prevail.»

Listing the concessions that he claimed had been taken in answer to EAM demands, Papandreou said that amnesty had been granted for «guilty ringleaders of mutinies» in the Middle East last spring. He maintained that the new national army was not to exceed ELAS (National Liberation Militia) in size, and that the EDES bands (right-wing Partisans) would be included in determining the size of the national army.

«When the EAM and ELAS profess as an excuse for the insurrection the fear of right-wing reorganization and an eventual bid for dictatorship, I denounce them as mendaciously insincere,» he declared.

The Security Battalions which cooperated with the Nazis are in prison Papandreou said. The gendarmie had been disarmed, he added.

Papandreou denied that the first shots in the civil strife that broke out December 3 had been fired by the police. He said that he could produce a number of proofs that the revolution had already been «decided on» when the first bloodshed occurred. (Reuter)

LUBLIN POLES DISOWN ARCISZEVKI'S CABINET

MOSCOW, December 22 — A dispatch from the semi-official news agency Polpress today, as quoted by an Associated Press correspondent here, said the Polish National Council will meet at Lublin this month to take action on «the unanimous demand of the Polish people» for the conversion of the Polish Committee of National Liberation into a provisional government.

The agency quoted a Lublin newspaper as having written: «The people want to establish officially that no other authority can exist in Poland... FRENCH-RUSSIAN PACT APPROVED

PARIS, December 22 — The French Consultative Assembly yesterday approved the new French-Soviet Alliance after General Charles de Gaulle described the pact as a «necessity» and «directed in the interests of all peoples.» The proposed alliance now goes to the French Cabinet for ratification.

Asserting that France is determined to take her part in the formation of a world security organization, De Gaulle added that he expects the United States to take the leading rôle in the operation of such an organization.

The present war, De Gaulle said, was due, in part, to «France's hesitant policy toward Russia, which permitted Germany to have war dreams and to materialize them.

«The lack of unity between France and Russia between the two wars was responsible for the success of the separate invasions of each» he added. «History shows that when France and Russia, the two nations most exposed to German aggression, are not allied, there is danger to both.»

Loud applause greeted De Gaulle's praise of the resistance of Britain. He declared that France must remain in alliance with Britain.

ROOSEVELT STRESSES ATLANTIC CHARTER

WASHINGTON, December 22 — President Roosevelt characterized the Atlantic Charter today as a step toward world betterment, and said: «The objectives of the Atlantic Charter are as valid as when they were announced in 1941.»

Mr. Roosevelt permitted direct quotation on that point during a press conference discussion of the Charter — which he said Tuesday never existed as a formal document.

In some instance, the President added, the objectives, have not been attained, but they still stand, just as do the objectives of documents which go back many centuries.

He said he thought that the Charter would take its place in history as a major step forward — just as President Woodrow Wilson's 14 points constituted something we all should like to see attained. They, too, he said, were a step forward toward a better life in the world.

The Chief Executive began the conference by declaring that several persons had asked him to say how Americans at home in this Christmas season can most help the fighting forces. Then he read this statement:

«We can best help the Christmas season of our fighting men if we carry on our respective tasks, doing those things which will contribute to winning the war at the earliest possible moment.

«Therefore, I urge that each of us resolve to keep on the job, and maintain the steady output of supplies needed by our men on the fighting fronts.» (OWI)

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, setting forth the basic points of French foreign policy, declared that France's ties with Britain and the United States, together with the Russian alliance, should be the foundation of a worldwide security organization. International control of German war industry was the key to prevention of future German aggression, he said.

Bidault also announced the appointment of Paul Boncourt as chairman of a French commission to examine the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

A resolution unanimously adopted by the Assembly called for a series of agreements, similar to the French-Soviet Pact, to be concluded with other members of the United Nations.

The resolution said: «The Provisional Consultative Assembly addresses its patriotic greetings to the President of the Provisional Government of the French Republic, and to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, for the successful conclusion of a treaty of alliance between France and the U.S.S.R. which it approves fully. It is our wish that this treaty, which is from now on an important part of the war effort and collective security, be completed by a series of similar pacts testifying to the close solidarity of France with the other United Nations, and constituting a necessary part of the future international organization of security and peace.» (OWI)

RUSSIA AGAIN DENOUNCES ARGENTINA

MOSCOW, December 22 — Argentina was accused again today by Pravda, official Communist Party organ, of aiding Germany against the United Nations. The newspaper questioned the effectiveness of measures so far taken «against the present Argentine pro-Fascist government,» and called the South American nation an «asylum for Hitlerites.»

Spread over five columns of Pravda's foreign page, the article said that proof of its charge «can be seen in the incessant supplies of food and war material sent via Spain to Germany, as well as the freedom of action given Hitlerite agents and spies in Argentina.»

The paper said that Argentine leaders persisted in «following what once were Hitler's grandiose plans for German domination of Latin America. Hundreds of millions of dollars already have been transferred to Argentina by German criminals. The flood of Hitlerite criminals from Germany to the Argentine increases. There they intend to evade the reckoning for the crimes committed by them, and to prepare a fresh and even more monstrous world slaughter.» (OWI)

MOSCOW, December 22 — Argentina was accused again today by Pravda, official Communist Party organ, of aiding Germany against the United Nations. The newspaper questioned the effectiveness of measures so far taken «against the present Argentine pro-Fascist government,» and called the South American nation an «asylum for Hitlerites.»

Spread over five columns of Pravda's foreign page, the article said that proof of its charge «can be seen in the incessant supplies of food and war material sent via Spain to Germany, as well as the freedom of action given Hitlerite agents and spies in Argentina.»

The paper said that Argentine leaders persisted in «following what once were Hitler's grandiose plans for German domination of Latin America. Hundreds of millions of dollars already have been transferred to Argentina by German criminals. The flood of Hitlerite criminals from Germany to the Argentine increases. There they intend to evade the reckoning for the crimes committed by them, and to prepare a fresh and even more monstrous world slaughter.» (OWI)

SWISS CONDEMN NAZI SPY

BASLE, December 22 — The Swiss Territorial Court here today sentenced to death German-born French citizen Alfred Carnet, for conveying military information to the Germans which resulted in the shooting of several people, including Swiss nationals. (OWI)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 22 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In southern Belgium, yesterday, all enemy attempts at halting our attack were again frustrated. Yesterday, Saint Vith, one of the enemy strongpoints which were encircled and left behind our front, was captured in a concentrated attack. The garrison was made prisoner.

Our spearheads advanced farther westward and established several bridgeheads across the Ourthe.

In the Stavelot sector, grim fighting developed against enemy tank forces which were brought up from the Aix la Chapelle sector and attempted to strike at our northern flank.

In central Luxembourg, the attack also makes good progress.

The enemy suffered heavy losses by lightning thrusts of motorized formations into his communications.

Our successes in Belgium forced the enemy command to withdraw strong forces from the previous attacking fronts.

At Aix la Chapelle, the enemy therefore launched only a certain number of diversion attacks.

At Dillingen and Enzdorf, he was even forced to evacuate his Saar bridgeheads to release additional troops.

In the Bitsche sector, the enemy did not continue his attacks.

Northwest of Weissenburg, he was ousted from a certain number of pillbox groups.

In upper Alsace, grim fighting is in progress west of Kaysersberg.

Yesterday, London and Antwerp were again subjected to an extremely heavy bombardment.

At the small St. Bernard, local fighting developed resulting in a failure of the attacking enemy forces.

Italy:

In central Italy, northeast of Faenza, the fierceness of the enemy attacks abated.

In the Bagnacavallo sector, the enemy, in numerous and grim attacks, succeeded in a small sector in pushing back our troops towards the northern banks of the Senio.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, the Bolsheviks continued their attacks with strong infantry and tank forces at the focal points of the defensive battle.

At Stuhlweissenburg and east of Lake Velencze, the attacking enemy formations were halted by counter-attacks of our tanks after small initial gains; 38 enemy tanks were destroyed during the fighting.

At the southern frontier of Slovakia, east of Gran, motorized Soviet forces, proceeding through a small front gap, made gains in a northerly direction.

At Szeheny and on the upper reaches of the Sajo, enemy attempts at breaking through were frustrated except for some small penetrations.

South of Kaschau, our troops repulsed fierce enemy attacks.

In Kurland, southwest and south of Frauenburg, the enemy yesterday morning launched a major attack after having laid down a barrage. The divisions in this sector stemmed the Soviet onslaught for the third time. In some sectors only, the attackers achieved small penetrations which [illegible] fiercely fought for.

ment was to be optimistic in tone yet to remain vague for reasons of military security, today a number of specific claims of victory are made. Some of them follow.

Latest Claim Concerning Prisoners: The largest claim of this sort so far received from German sources is a DNB despatch, raising to 23,000 the earlier German claim of 20,000 American prisoners taken during the new German drive.

A still later despatch, coming from Transocean, repeats the figure of 23,000, and then mentions the additional claim that «at some points, the number of dead and wounded Americans is many times that of the prisoners captured.»

Paratroops Behind 1st Army: The latest claim concerning the German paratroops, landed behind the lines of the American 1st Army, is a DNB flash tonight, which speaks of «considerable confusion» caused by the paratroops. The same statement declares:

«Whole columns of enemy supply units were captured by German spearheads. According to reports so far received at least seven large American units were destroyed or shattered so badly that they are of no further value.»

Three Claims by «Informed Sources»: Still another dispatch over German Morse tonight attributes the following three claims to «informed Berlin sources:»

1. «The first seven days (of the new drive) had the following result: the collapse of the American front in the sector of the German offensive.»

2. The need to draw swift Allied reinforcements from other sectors has forced a «slackening of the intensity of the fighting in the Aix-la-Chapelle sector and the Saar front,» with consequent relief for the hard-pressed Germans there.

3. A new, not yet clearly explained type of strategy is claimed: «The German operations indicate a new offensive not conducted after the old pattern but, instead, screened on all sides and resembling a massive compact wave of German divisions.»

Eastern Front: The German Soldiers' Radio (Soldatensender) announces as the chief event on this front «a big Soviet attack against the German bastion at Kurland, after a pause of three months.» The Transocean correspondent Von Olberg elaborates this theme at greater length; he interprets what he calls this «new phase on the Eastern Front» as a Soviet attempt to sweep the German Army in the Libau area out of the Baltic region.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Italian Front: The commentator of the Fascist Radio describes the British Army's present offensive as a decisive bid to break out into the Po Valley. «Pressed by the urgency of achieving an operational success,» says the commentator, «General McCreary has brought up fresh forces to reinforce his severely-tested units» (meaning the Canadian and New Zealand troops). «Whilst the Canadians paid with heavy losses for an infiltration of 300 metres near Bagnacavallo, the main Anglo-American forces exerted extremely heavy pressure in the Faenza area...» The commentator asserts that this push has also been checked by local German reserves, in spite of the «numerous new batteries brought up to the line,» and claims that «the new, large-scale attack by the British Army has not reached the objective it had set out to achieve.»

«Bandits in Rome»: The Fascist Radio discusses an article in the Rome paper Il Popolo, about the danger Romans run of being attacked by thieves and other criminals when going to midnight mass on Christmas Eve. Searching for reasons for such a state of affairs, the commentator asserts that it might be the work of convicts who escaped from prisons after the Allied occupation; alternatively he suggests that it might be caused by the poverty prevailing

German bombers supported the operations of the Army, particularly in Hungary. Escorting fighters shot down 18 enemy planes. The air defence forces brought down additional 56 planes over Kurland.

British terror planes attacked localities in western Germany and in the Baltic regions. Residential districts were heavily damaged, particularly in Trier and Bonn.

The Americans dropped bombs without ground visibility, particularly in southern Germany. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Western Front: The news of the German offensive continues as a leading item. Whereas yesterday the treatment was confined to a brief dispatch [illegible] three claims to « informed Berlin sources: »

The police are accused of keeping aloof just as they did when Caretta was lynched.

Price Control and Black Market: An inter-ministerial committee dealing with economic problems has met to draft a series of decrees to combat inflation and black market. They include the abolition of war indemnities, this being « the main cause of increase in prices; » a reduction of at least 10 per cent in prices at the distributing centres of « Provvida, » as well as at food and clothing societies and factory supply centres; coöperative societies for the distribution of products, run, administered, and controlled by the workers, to be formed everywhere in the Republic; the employers' confederation to be dissolved and, lastly, an appeal made to all labor organisations to coöperate in the fight against the black market.

GERMANS COUNTER-ATTACK AT LAMONE RIVER LINE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 19 — German Forces have counter-attacked with heavy tank and artillery support in savage efforts to hold the last eight-mile remnant of their outflanked and broken Lamone River defenses north of Faenza, it was announced here today.

The enemy counter-attack, launched from the southern end of their exposed positions, at first drove back advancing New Zealand forces across the Rimini-Bologna railway line. By clinging as long as possible to these outlying waterline defenses, the enemy not only seeks to gain time for the preparation of the Senio defenses, but also attempts to delay the massing of the Allied forces necessary successfully to breach these river positions.

On the 5th Army front, activity was confined to the right flank, especially in the Tossignano area, south of Imola, where the enemy has held back advancing British forces by heavy artillery fire and constant infiltration. (PRO)

GERMAN ADVANCE IN BELGIUM CONTINUES

LONDON, December 19 — The German counter-offensive, launched four days ago along a 60-mile front in Belgium and Luxembourg, swept forward today as Allied forces were blinded by low clouds and fog which blanketed the Ardennes battlefront.

Although a security silence of battle details has been maintained, press dispatches reported that one German break-through in the north has been sealed off, and that two German salients in Luxembourg have been held with some ground recaptured by American forces. Large numbers of German half-tracks were last reported to have reached Stavelot, five miles southwest of Malmédy, Belgium, and 15 miles from the starting point.

American forces were reported to have fallen back before strong forces of 70-ton German tanks in an orderly fashion, but hitting back with anti-tank guns and bazookas. These American stands forced the German attacks columns to proceed with caution. German prisoners taken in the battle area are of fine morale and good training.

Despite the poor weather, more than 300 Flying Fortresses dropped over 1,000 tons of bombs on a series of strategic road and rail junctions opposite the 1st Army front. The roads behind the German lines were filled with vehicles and troops rolling forward to exploit the new German penetration.

Nazis Still Gaining Momentum

Press dispatches said that the German advance has not yet developed its full force. After conserving its strength for many weeks, the Luftwaffe has kept up active patrolling over its own lines in an effort to prevent Allied fighters from bombing German troops. But Allied aircraft have taken a tremendous toll of road convoys converging on the front.

An unconfirmed report in the Swedish newspaper Stockholms Tidningen said today that Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, commander of the German Armies on the Western Front, had been slightly wounded. The Swedish report also said that Von Rundstedt was opposed to the hazardous German offensive, as it would demand the entire reserve strength of the German armies. The order for the German thrust was reported to have been issued by Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler.

GERMANS COUNTER-ATTACK AT LAMONE RIVER LINE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 19 — German Forces have counter-attacked with heavy tank and artillery support in savage efforts to hold the last eight-mile remnant of their outflanked and broken Lamone River defenses north of Faenza, it was announced here today.

The enemy counter-attack, launched from the southern end of their exposed positions, at first drove back advancing New Zealand forces across the Rimini-Bologna railway line, half a mile north of the main Po Valley highway and on the northern outskirts of Faenza.

In continuing heavy fighting, however, the 8th Army forces maintained their pressure in the enemy flank — torn open along a four-mile stretch along the Emilia highway back to the Senio River — and penetrated beyond the railway once again in thrusts northwest of Faenza.

Farther north, the enemy directed more small-scale counter-attacks against the Canadian forces holding a three-mile-wide bridgehead across the Canale Naviglio, a connecting watercourse between the Lamone and the Senio Rivers.

Heavy fighting also continued in the area around Bagnocavallo, 9½ miles northeast of Faenza, where the Germans are utilizing another canal, the Fosso Vecchio, to defend the alternate road to Bologna through Lugo and Bagnocavallo.

German defenses across the Po Plain, although based on what seems a maze of rivers and canals, are everywhere backed by the line of the Senio River. The Senio flows along a course virtually parallel to the Lamone at distances of from four to 2½ miles until it joins the Reno River to flow into the Adriatic just south of the great Comacchio Lagoon.

On the other sector of the 460-mile Western Front, German resistance stiffened considerably, particularly against the 3rd and 9th Army fronts where the Germans are standing firm and are laying down a heavy artillery barrage. The Germans threw in a series of counter-attacks against French forces in the Colmar sector of the Alsace Plain. The French, however, held their positions, and in some sectors made slight advances.

North of the German offensive in Belgium, the U. S. 83rd Division sent the first patrols across the Roer River barrier at the city of Düren. One mile to the south, American troops captured Rölsdorf and invested the town of Lendersdorf, directly south of Rölsdorf and less than a mile from the Roer. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

RUSSIANS ADVANCING INTO CZECHOSLOVAKIA

MOSCOW, December 19 — Russian troops have driven through German defenses in mountainous and wooded country east and southeast of Kosice, along a 70-mile front in Czechoslovakia, and have captured a number of border towns, tonight's Soviet communique reported.

Other Russian columns, advancing north and northwest of the communications center of Miskolc, have crossed the Czechoslovak border, while a third force south and southwest of Kosice are advancing northward on Slovakian territory. At some points, the Russians were reported 50 miles south of the Polish border. These three Soviet spearheads have captured a total of 3,600 German an Hungarian troops in two days of hard fighting.

Press dispatches reported that Czechoslovak Patriot forces have been active behind he German lines in these sectors, blowing up military plants and attacking German rail communications.

While the slow and heavy battle continued for the Hungarian capital of Budapest, two Russian columns were said to be poised for a double threat to Vienna. One was massing north of the Danube above Budapest, and the other on the shores of Lake Balaton, to the southwest of Budapest.

No material changes were reported on other parts of the Russian Front. (OWI-Radio Moscow)

AMERICANS CAPTURE VALENCIA ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILLIPINES, December 19 — American 77th Division troops, driving against the last major Japanese force on Leyte Island, northwest of liberated Ormoc, captured the important town of Valencia yesterday, General Douglas MacArthur's communique reported tonight.

The additional destruction of 14 ships and small craft in the carrier plane sweeps over Luzon last Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, raising to 41 the number of enemy vessels sunk in the three-day attack, were announced today at Pacific Fleet Headquarters at Pearl Harbor.

The communique revised downward from 66 to 61 the number of vessels damaged.

Another Japanese admiral — the 79th since May 17 — has died in action. The Japanese news agency Domei, identified the latest casualty as Vice Admiral Hiroshi Nakagawa. No details of his death were revealed.

SUPERFORTS HIT KYUSHU, SHANGHAI, NANKING; CHINESE ADVANCE IN KWANGSI PROVINCE

WASHINGTON, December 19 — China-based Superfortresses attacked three Japanese targets in medium forces today, a 20th USAAF communique reported. Bombs were dropped on the Omura aircraft plant on the Japanese homeland island of Kyushu, and key targets at Nanking and Shanghai.

Results were unobserved at the Omura plant, as bombing was done through heavy clouds. The earlier attacks at Nanking and Shanghai were made in clear weather on docks and engineering works, with results described as excellent.

Enemy air opposition in the China coast assaults was weak and meager. Five Japanese planes were shot down, three of them probably destroyed; nine others were damaged, the communique said.

Yesterday's Superfortress assault against the Mitsubishi factory at Nagoya resulted in «serious damage,» the 20th USAAF said today. Photographs indicated a concentration of the bridge, when fighters and medium bombers of the 14th USAAF and a unit of the Chinese American wing hit the vital Peiping-Hankow rail crossing Saturday. All planes returned safely from the operation, Mai. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer announced.

A communique today from Southeast Asia Command Headquarters at Kandy, Ceylon, said that British 15th Indian troops have linked the two bridgeheads previously captured across the Kaladan River, south of Buthidaung, while pressing eastvard into central Burma.

On the west coast, advance troops driving toward Akyab were more than 20 miles beyond Maungdaw. Allied warships were shelling the Japanese retreating two miles ahead of the Allied troops.

BBC said today that British heavy bombers attacked Japanese positions on Great Coco Island, 250 miles southwest of Rangoon, at the northern end of the Adaman Islands in the Bay of Bengal.

Meanwhile, two Chinese armies in north Burma, one coming from Burma and the other from western China, are steadily approaching each other, with little more than 80 miles of road separating them. If these armies meet, it will open the first land route to China since 1942. However, the road is damaged to the extent that supply convoys cannot be expected to operate from India to China for several months.

The Chinese force on the Bhamo road from Burma is approximately 30 miles northwest of Nankham, while the other, moving from China, is some 50 miles northeast of the at city. Both are reported to be meeting light resistance.

M.A.A.F. AGAIN STRIKES SILESIA REFINERIES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 19 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF carried into the fourth successive day their concentrated attacks on synthetic oil and aviation gasoline refineries at Blechhammer, in German Silesia, it was announced here this afternoon.

In the four-day period the heavy bombers have attacked every enemy oil refinery still operating within their flying range, today's announcement said.

The bombers were challenged on the second day of their intense attack on German oil production centers by formations of up to 150 fighters, the largest encountered by the MAAF in over four months. In the past two days, losses of over a score of heavy bombers were incurred by the attacking flights, either from fighter action of from intense flak.

No enemy interceptors were met on today's mission, but flak was reported.

Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force carried out attacks on enemy strongpoints and gun positions in the Bologna area, where an enemy command post was destroyer. Bad weather over the valley of the Po caused the cancellation of most Tactical Air Force missions.

Yesterday, formations of 750 heavy bombers that attacked synthetic oil refineries, rail yards, and other targets in Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Poland suffered losses of 23 aircraft, it was announced here today.

Although the losses exceeded those sustained two days ago — when 15th AAF bombers were attacked by one of the largest formations of enemy fighters encountered in over four months — yesterday's Liberator and Fortress flights encountered only 25 to 30 enemy aircraft, three of which were destroyed. Flak was reported to be intense over most of the enemy targets, and presumably accounted for the increased losses.

SUPERFORTS HIT KYUSHU, SHANGHAI, NANKING; CHINESE ADVANCE IN KWANGSI PROVINCE

WASHINGTON, December 19 — China-based Superfortresses attacked three Japanese targets in medium forces today, a 20th USAAF communique reported. Bombs were dropped on the Omura aircraft plant on the Japanese homeland island of Kyushu, and key targets at Nanking and Shanghai.

Results were unobserved at the Omura plant, as bombing was done through heavy clouds. The earlier attacks at Nanking and Shanghai were made in clear weather on docks and engineering works, with results described as excellent.

Enemy air opposition in the China coast assaults was weak and meager. Five Japanese planes were shot down, three of them probably destroyed; nine others were damaged, the communique said.

Yesterday's Superfortress assault against the Mitsubishi factory at Nagoya resulted in "serious damage," the 20th USAAF said today. Photographs indicated a concentration of bomb bursts directly on the target. Two enemy planes were destroyed, six probably destroyed, and three damaged. No American planes were lost in the action.

Hankow Attack Coördinated

Smoke still hangs over a three-mile stretch of the Hankow waterfront after yesterday's attack by Superfortresses. Two hundred bombers and fighters of Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's 14th USAAF took part, making it the first coördinated attack on that target. Incomplete reports show that, apart from damage to the waterfront, 15 Japanese aircraft were destroyed in air combat and three more on the ground.

Chinese forces driving southeastward into Kwangsi Province were within six miles of the city of Chin Cheng Kiang, 81 miles west of Liuchow, former U.S. air base, the Chinese High Command reported tonight.

The column advancing on Chin Chen Kiang passed south of Hochih, 90 miles northwest of Liuchow where the Japanese are making a stand against another Chinese column, the Associated Press said.

Four spans of the Yellow River bridge north of Chengsien were knocked out and one locomotive and a number of railroad cars were destroyed in yards south of

The Chinese force on the Bhamo road from Burma is approximately 30 miles northwest of Nankham, while the other, moving from China, is some 50 miles northeast of the at city. Both are reported to be meeting light resistance.

M.A.A.F. AGAIN STRIKES SILESIA REFINERIES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 19 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF carried into the fourth successive day their concentrated attacks on synthetic oil and aviation gasoline refineries at Blechhammer, in German Silesia, it was announced here this afternoon.

In the four-day period the heavy bombers have attacked every enemy oil refinery still operating within their flying range, today's announcement said.

The bombers were challenged on the second day of their intense attack on German oil production centers by formations of up to 150 fighters, the largest encountered by the MAAF in over four months. In the past two days, losses of over a score of heavy bombers were incurred by the attacking flights, either from fighter action of from intense flak.

No enemy interceptors were met on today's mission, but flak was reported.

Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force carried out attacks on enemy strongpoints and gun positions in the Bologna area, where an enemy command post was destroyer. Bad weather over the valley of the Po caused the cancellation of most Tactical Air Force missions.

Yesterday, formations of 750 heavy bombers that attacked synthetic oil refineries, rail yards, and other targets in Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Poland suffered losses of 23 aircraft, it was announced here today.

Although the losses exceeded those sustained two days ago — when 15th AAF bombers were attacked by one of the largest formations of enemy fighters encountered in over four months — yesterday's Liberator and Fortress flights encountered only 25 to 30 enemy aircraft, three of which were destroyed. Flak was reported to be intense over most of the enemy targets, and presumably accounted for the increased losses.

Wellingtons, Halifaxes, and Liberators of the Royal Air Force, continuing their daylight attacks in Yugoslavia, yesterday dropped hundreds of tons of bombs on German transport columns along the Bloce-Klopot road leading from the Podgorica pocket just across the Albanian frontier.

Beaufighters of the South African Air Force yesterday attacked and destroyed a 400-ton armed enemy schooner in Kalogag Harbor, on the Podgorski Channel on the northern Yugoslav coast. (PRO)

R.N., R.A.F. ATTACK IN DALMATIANS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 19 — Four British destroyers, aided by rocket-firing Beaufighters of the Royal Air Force, attacked German gun positions, barracks, and harbour installations in the Isle of Lussin, one of the northernmost of the Dalmatian group in the Adriatic, it was announced here this afternoon.

The combined air and naval assaults, in which light coastal forces were employed, were aimed at destroying German fighter and submersible installations in the port. The assault took place at dawn December 17, and the air actions was reported yesterday. (PRO)

CANADIAN PRIVATE AWARDED VICTORIA CROSS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 19 — Ernest Alvin Smith, a private in the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, was awarded today the first Victoria Cross bestowed on an enlisted man of the Canadian Army in this war, it was announced here this afternoon.

In the battle of the Savi River bridgehead, just east of Cesena on the Plain of the Po, Private Smith knocked out a German Panther tank with a Piat anti-tank weapon, and single-handedly stood off several assaults by German infantrymen following the tank into battle. (PRO)

THREE U. S. SOLDIERS DECORATED IN ROME

ROME, December 19 — Brig. Gen. Thoburn K. Brown, Rome Area Allied Commander, today pinned military decorations on three American servicemen in a retreat ceremony in Piazza Venezia.

While Lt. Col. Howard K. Dodgen, Rome Area Allied Command staff, read the citations, the Distinguished Service Cross was given Private William H. Ott, an infantryman. Near Oratoio, Italy, last July, a German machine-gun opened fire on Pvt. Ott's patrol. Though severely wounded, he ordered his men to seek cover while he single-handedly attacked the enemy gun position. Through his efforts, four Germans were killed and the machine-gun silenced, enabling his patrol to complete its mission successfully.

T/Sgt. Milton C. Lehman, Stars and Stripes correspondent, was awarded the Legion of Merit for covering his assignments in the campaign for the liberation of Rome. On the day of the arrival of 5th Army troops in Rome, Sgt. Lehman and his group published and distributed 50,000 copies of Stars and Stripes. This accomplishment, according to the citation, was one of the outstanding journalistic events of the year.

The third soldier to receive a decoration was T/5 Nathaniel T. Ackerly, who was severely burned in Rome in October when by extinguishing a fire in his vehicle, in complete disregard of his own safety, he prevented the explosion of 1,200 gallons of gasoline stored nearby. (PRO-RAAC)

BOMBERS HIT COUNTER-ATTACKING GERMANS

LONDON, December 19 — Fighter-escorted RAF Lancasters, following up an earlier attack by more than 300 Flying Fortresses, attacked the German rail center of Trier on the Moselle River, east of Luxembourg, this afternoon, hurling about 1,000 tons of explosives on the city. Trier has been one of the major supply centers for the German counter-offensive against the American 1st Army.

Meanwhile, road and rail junctions in a line from Trier north to Gemund, which have been providing supplies to the counter-attacking Nazis, were blasted today by the 360 Fortresses of the 8th USAAF, escorted by a small force of Thunderbolts. Nearly 1,000 tons of bombs were dropped on the German contingent in the first mission of its kind in the European war, it was officially announced tonight.

SHAEF reported tonight that hundreds of Thunderbolts, Mustangs, and Spitfires were unable to get off fog-shrouded fields to support Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' 1st Army troops facing the German counter-thrust. So the Flying Fortresses were summoned, and bombed enemy forces by means of their "magic eye" radio beams from above the clouds.

The small force of Thunderbolt fighters with the bombers could not get down through the cloud bank to strafe or dive-bomb, and German fighters could not get up through it to attack the Forts.

DUNKIRK BATTLE SETTLES DOWN FOR WINTER

LONDON, December 19 — Dunkirk may not be avenged until the end of the war, as nothing decisive is happening at the moment in this bleak, desolate and almost forgotten corner of France, a Reuter correspondent said yesterday, describing how the town has settled in for the winter.

Describing how he saw a procession of people with their sheep and cows leave this coastal fortress more than two months ago, the correspondent said: "It might have been another Calais, but Captain Scheinder, naval commander of the German garrison of 15,000, is made of tougher stuff.

"We have been firing shells and mortar bombs into Dunkirk for weeks. We take occasional prisoners, and get odd deserters, but nothing extensive is being done to wipe out the memory of 1940."

The dispatch said that it is a "fantastic, dead-end sort of war here," adding: "The Germans cannot use the port, and we do not waste men and weapons in maintaining a major offensive, because it would be of little strategic advantage. But we must have a force there to contain the Germans."

Now and then the Germans raid an Allied observation post and patrols are sent into German lines; "little boats are much used, for there is a great deal of water," the dispatch added. (Reuter)

YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE PODGORICA

LONDON, December 19 — A special communique from Marshal Tito's headquarters today announced the capture of Podgorica, one of the biggest towns in Montenegro and an important road junction 10 miles north of the Albanian frontier.

The fall of Podgorica means that the main escape route north for German forces has been cut. At this town, the main Adriatic coastal highway joins the main lateral road which branches southeast to Skoplje and northeast to Belgrade.

At the northern end of the corridor, Yugoslav forces increased the pressure against the main German bastion of Zagreb by taking the nearby stronghold of Remeke. Other forces, driving up the Una River Valley, are now approaching Lapac, due south of Zagreb.

Encircled German forces near Zvornik, on the Drina River, made further futile efforts to break out to the north in the general direction of Hungary. (OWI-Reuter)

ALLIED PRISONERS FORCED TO BUILD RAILROAD

LONDON, December 19 — Sixty thousand British and Australian prisoners were forced by the Japanese to work under terrible conditions on the construction of the Siam-Burma road and railway, British War Minister Sir James Grigg said today in the House of Commons. His statement was based on information given by United Kingdom prisoners of war who were rescued when United States naval vessels sank a Japanese transport ship last September.

Stating that Britain had asked the protecting power to make the "strongest possible protests regarding past conditions in Siam and Burma," Sir James Grigg added that no reports were available on the men who had been sent to other work camps in various parts of Siam, but it has been ascertained that some Red Cross supplies have been reaching prisoners in Siam and Singapore during the past two years.

Elaborating Sir James Grigg's remarks, a War Office statement on the ordeal of the prisoners said they were all sent through the sweltering heat from Singapore to Siam in metal cattle-cars. They were so crowded that no man could lie down during the five-day journey. What sleep they Allied 2nd TAF pilots, concentrating their activities near Düren yesterday, saw many enemy aircraft but found them unwilling to fight, it was announced today. One mission of eight rocket-firing Typhoons sighted 30 ME-109's south of Düren but the enemy refused to fight. But an Allied group flying reconnaissance over Cologne met vigorous defense and fought several combats, destroying one enemy craft and damaging four for the loss of one Spitfire.

An Air Ministry communique today said that a strong force of RAF Lancasters last night attacked shipping in the Baltic port of Gdynia. Nuremburg and Münster also were bombed, and intruder aircraft attacked airfields well behind the enemy's lines, destroying at least one enemy plane. Five RAF aircraft are missing. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

Elaborating Sir James Grigg's remarks, a War Office statement on the ordeal of the prisoners said they were all sent through the sweltering heat from Singapore to Siam in metal cattle-cars. They were so crowded that no man could lie down during the five-day journey. What sleep they got was taken leaning against each other. At the end of the rail journey they had to march up to 50 miles through the jungle to reach the labor camps.

In each bamboo hut at the camps 200 men had just enough room for sleeping at length on platforms on each side of a center gangway.

The men were compelled to work if they could move at all, and in some cases sick men were even carried on stretchers from the camp to work. They had to work for at least 15 hours a day, and later, when the task work system was introduced in April 1943, each man had to move one cubic yard of earth and rock a day, increased later to 1½ cubic yards. Rations were meager, but sometimes included a little meat. One pig's carcass had to serve 1,200 men. No clothing was issued, and the prisoners were compelled to go naked or wear loin cloths made out of old rags.

Disciplinary measures for officers and men alike included severe beatings for even trivial offenses. Some of the prisoners of war were tortured or killed.

The Jungle camps were disease infected, and there was an appaling amount of sickness. In one group of 1,500 men, the death rate in December, 1942, averaged five a day. The Japanese themselves erected a memorial at Tamakan to approximately 25,000 men who had died on the railway. Of these, less than a thousand were Japanese, the remainder being represented as "English, Australian, and Dutch."

LIBERATED ITALY

CONGRESSIONAL SPOKESMAN PRAISES ITALIANS

AN ALLIED AIRFIELD, SOUTHERN ITALY, December 19 — Representative John M. Costello (Democrat, California), acting chairman of the U.S. House Military Affairs Committee touring the Western and Italian Fronts, today praised the Italian people for their work in reconstructing their country.

In a message to the Italian people, made as the Congressional party left here for the U.S., Costello said:

"One of the things that has impressed me most in a week of traveling through Italy is the way the Italian people, even in the most recently liberated territory, have started rebuilding their towns and putting their fields to harvest.

"It is this spirit which will reëstablish Italy in her place among the great nations of the world. Of course, the Allies are doing all they can to help the Italians, but until the enemy is driven completely from your land, military demands on transport and supplies must take precedence over everything else. Indeed, even after the enemy in Europe is completely beaten, another formidable enemy remains in the Pacific. This enemy, Japan, will likewise make tremendous demands on United Nations' resources.

"I can see, however, that Italy already is well on the way toward doing the bulk of her reconstruction job herself. I am confident that Italy, with her centuries of culture behind her, will complete the task."

The Congressmen arrived in Italy a week ago and two days ago made a 100-mile tour of the Italian battlefront and of the area recently liberated by Allied forces.

Mrs. Clare Booth Luce (Republican, Connecticut), the only woman member of the Congressional party, did not return to America with the delegation. She was "grounded" on doctor's orders until an earache, which developed during the tour, cleared up sufficiently to allow her to travel by air. She was in Rome today visiting various charitable institution, including orphanages, with Myron Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican. (UNN)

PENTIMALLI-DEL TETTO DEMAND RETRIAL

ROME, December 19 — The High Court of Justice trying former Lieut. Generals Riccardo Pentimalli and Ettore Del Tetto tomorrow morning will deliver its decision on a request of defense council that the Court suspend current proceedings and declare for a retrial.

The request followed Public Prosecutor Traina's announcement, made toward the end of todays' session, that he had been authorized by the High Commissioner for Sanctions against Fascism to say that penal action is pending against a group of high Italian Army and Navy officers whose names have appeared in the trial.

The group mentioned by the Public Prosecutor included Admiral Ferdinando Casardi, Brig. Gen. Enrico Carlino, Brig. Gen. Ettore Marino, Gen. Emilio Radice, Colonels Maggi, Fioluci, Di Stefano, Menè, and others.

Defense lawyers requested that their clients, and the officers declared by the prosecutor to be subject to epuration proceedings, be tried collectively. Del Tetto's lawyer, Guido Tedeschi, declared:

« The defense has called in as witnesses most of the persons mentioned by the prosecution because the prosecution did not bring them here as accused parties. »

First prosecution witness to be called to the stand today, the fourth since the trial began, was Colonel Sollmene. He testified that on September 9 he was called by

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789231

Del Tetto to a Naples hotel shelter and there given orders to deploy his forces in defense of the city's public buildings and utilities. The next day, Solimene added, there was a clash with the Germans and 32 of them and four trucks were captured.

Solimene said the Germans were released the following afternoon.

In reply to a question by President Lorenzo Maroni, Colonel Solimene said the function of the mixed Italian-German patrols on duty in Naples was to protect German soldiers from the civilian population.

Col. Paolo Della Rocca, officer in command of the artillery base in Naples, told the court that on the night of September 10 there was an exchange of gunfire between German and Italian soldiers outside the barracks of an artillery regiment. A German lieutenant was killed. A few days later, he said, 15 Italian officers were shot in reprisal by the Germans.

Bersaglieri Regimental Commander Lucio Soli said he had carried out Del Tetto's orders to recapture coastal batteries taken over by the Germans at a considerable loss of men and material. Later, he said, his forces were overwhelmed by the Germans.

«On the 11th,» said Colonel Soli, «I tried to get in touch with Del Tetto by telephone. Failing this, I sent an officer to the hotel where Del Tetto was staying. The hotel was closed. Since then, I have had no further contact with the general.»

Soli stated further that he had been ordered to evacuate the regimental barracks and destroy all his military equipment. This he refused to do, he said, and proceeded to defend the barracks till his men had to give way in the face of German tank attacks. Soli testified that on September 26, together with other Bersaglieri officers, he organized popular uprisings against the Germans.

Federico Sborni, who took command of a transport pool after the Fascist commander had fled, asserted that when he appeared before Del Tetto for orders the former general told him to «turn everything over to the Germans and get into civilian clothes.»

Del Tetto denied having any knowledge of the incident recalled by Sborni and stated that he had never seen the witness before today. He also denied having given the order attributed to him. Colonel Solimene, recalled to the stand, confirmed the deposition made by Sborni. (UNN)

The local bishop headed a band of cheering Partisans, armed with all types of weapons, who greeted the liberating New Zealanders. But with fighting still going on nearby, the bulk of civilians resorted to shelter in basements, where they had been hiding for several weeks.

Civilian casualties in dead and wounded were heavy. Hospitals were overcrowded immediately after the liberation. Allied authorities arranged import and distribution of medicines and surgical supplies at the earliest opportunity.

Among the first arrivals in the town was a Psychological Warfare Branch sound-truck, which broadcast the latest world news to large groups concentrated in the central areas. Newspapers from Allied territory were distributed.

When they entered the town, the New Zealanders encountered sniping, and much mopping-up was necessary. Many prisoners were taken after the entry, and a great many German deserters were found sheltered in ruins. (UNN)

PAPANDREOU RECOMMENDS REGENCY; FIGHTING IN ATHENS CONTINUES

ATHENS, December 19 — While heavy fighting continued both here and along the Piraeus road, Prime Minister Georges Papandreou, in an effort to settle the political disunity in Greece, sent a telegram to King George of the Hellenes recommending the establishment of a regency with Archbishop Damaskinos of Athens as Regent.

Late press dispatches reported that the main road between the Greek capital and the port of Piraeus had been cleared, apart from snipers' fire at a few points.

ELAS opposition stiffened in the northwestern districts of Piraeus, but small naval craft were bringing supplies from Allied ships lying off the harbor.

Lt. Gen. Ronald Scobie's communique today said that the British and Greek garrisons at the Averoff Prison in the northeastern suburbs of the capital — which was attacked and set ablaze yesterday by the insurgents — had been successfully withdrawn, together with some of the political prisoners.

A widespread hunt was going on inside the city tonight by British, Greek, and ELAS forces for Jean Rallis, quisling ex-premier of Greece, who escaped during the fighting for the prison. In addition to Rallis, it was estimated that 235 prisoners, mainly political, had escaped.

Rallis was arrested October 13 by order of the government of Premier Papandreou.

Heavy fighting continued around besieged RAF headquarters at Kifishia just outside the city, in which a large number of RAF staff officers and non-combatant personnel are trapped. A press dispatch said that insurgent forces had broken through the wire surrounding one of the compounds.

Meanwhile, 5,000 men here were reported to have responded to the Greek Government's call up for the new National Guard.

Although the King of Greece's reply to Premier Papandreou's telegram recommending the establishment of a regency had not been received, an agency message late tonight quoted the Greek Minister of the Navy as stating that the question might be settled within the next few days.

Another correspondent said that ELAS representatives had told the Greek Government that they were prepared to accept General Scobie's military conditions, after they had settled outstanding political issues.

«On the 11th,» said Colonel Soli, «I tried to get in touch with Del Tetto by telephone. Failing this, I sent an officer to the hotel where Del Tetto was staying. The hotel was closed. Since then, I have had no further contact with the general.»

Soli stated further that he had been ordered to evacuate the regimental barracks and destroy all his military equipment. This he refused to do, he said, and proceeded to defend the barracks till his men had to give way in the face of German tank attacks. Soli testified that on September 26, together with other Bersaglieri officers, he organized popular uprisings against the Germans.

Federico Sborni, who took command of a transport pool after the Fascist commander had fled, asserted that when he appeared before Del Tetto for orders the former general told him to «turn everything over to the Germans and get into civilian clothes.»

Del Tetto denied having any knowledge of the incident recalled by Sborni and stated that he had never seen the witness before today. He also denied having given the order attributed to him. Colonel Solimene, recalled to the stand, confirmed the deposition made by Sborni. (UNN)

UNIVERSITA' POPOLARI RESUME ACTIVITIES

ROME, December 19 — The Universita Popolare Romana, representative here of a cultural institution which flourished in many Italian cities before Fascism, will reopen its courses December 31 after 18 years of inactivity imposed by the Mussolini régime.

Similar adult education programs recently have resumed activities in Bari, Naples, Reggio Calabria, and Florence.

The «popular universities» cater to the cultural needs of those people who have not had access to or the benefit of a formal education. Courses are free. Lecturers are usually men who are prominent in the academic, artistic, scientific, and political life of the country. (UNN)

GERMANS LOOTED AND WRECKED FAENZA

FAENZA, December 19 — The Germans looted and wrecked everything they could lay hands upon in Faenza before they were driven out two days ago by a New Zealand surprise drive over a secretly-built road through difficult country, a UNN correspondent reported today.

Last night the Germans concentrated every available weapon on the town, adding further destruction to the heavy damage it sustained during the earlier fighting. Hardly a building remains unscathed, and the majority are wrecked beyond repair.

Systematic demolition of the best buildings and an organized looting program were carried out by the Germans before they left. Shopwindows in the streets are shattered and gaping. Rubble is piled high in Piazza Grande, one of Faenza's finest centers, which is the scene of the worst destruction. The famous porcelain factory and the ceramic museum, for which the town is famous, have been badly damaged.

The German made preparations to evacuate several days ago. Widespread destruction and looting followed. Then the German High Command reversed its decision, and ordered the defense of Faenza with every possible means. This

COMMONS TO DEBATE GREECE TODAY

LONDON, December 19 — The House of Commons will hold a special debate on Greece tomorrow, it was announced today, several hours after Prime Minister Churchill had declined to make a statement on the situation in Greece.

According to a late message, however, Churchill will speak tomorrow, although it is not known whether he will comment upon Greece, or generally review the war.

In the forenoon, the Prime Minister told the House that he was not at present in a position to make a statement about Greece. Continuing, he said:

«I think that if I were to make a statement there would be a request for a debate. Otherwise, people would not like it. They would say they were hearing only one side... Therefore, what we have to consider is not a statement, but a debate. We have had a debate and decision only a little while ago. We could not find time for that in the remaining two days.»

Churchill was asked if he did not think the Greek situation was «deteriorating.» He answered:

«I don't think the situation is deteriorating. I think it has greatly improved. But one would rather wait until a more suitable occasion occurred, than have another debate very soon after a full one has been held in the House.»

(Churchill was evidently referring to the debate in the House on December 8, after which the Government received a confidence vote of 279 to 30.)

Sir Percy Harris, member of the Liberal Party, asked:

«Is the Prime Minister aware that the country is greatly disturbed about the situation in Greece, and would like, before the adjournment for Christmas, the very latest information as to developments there, preferably cheering news of a satisfactory settlement?»

Churchill again replied that he had no statement to make.

Asked again if «it is not desirable that Commons should try to influence events in Greece before we rise for Christmas recess, particularly in view of the fact that a very large body of opinion associated with British Government is committed to try to bring about an armistice.» Churchill answered:

«I don't intend to discuss the Greek issue at the moment. As far as opinion of the country is concerned, of course anyone can always say what the opinion of the country is, but before others of a different opinion accept his views some processes usually have to be gone through in the country. As to the very serious concern that there is said to be in the country there is, of course, a sharp division in this country not only on affairs in Greece but in other countries, and that division naturally causes heart-searching and sharp criticism. But I don't know that this would be allayed by debate, and I am at the service of the House. If the House likes to use the machinery provided, we are entirely ready to discuss the matter.»

The Prime Minister was then asked if it «would not be wise to stop all shooting in Greece.» He answered:

«I am afraid that we cannot always stop shooting by saying we would like it stopped.»

Sir Richard Acland, member of the Commonwealth Party, asked Mr. Churchill to discuss the recent reported disarmament of lorries belonging to Belgian insurgents en route from Mons to Brussels. Mr. Churchill replied that «precautionary measures were taken by the British Army, but disarmament was mainly carried out by Belgian authorities.»

Mr. Churchill then commented that a «great battle» is now proceeding on the Western Front, and that he would report on all war fronts after Christmas.

SENATE CONFIRMS APPOINTMENTS

WASHINGTON, December 19 — The Senate today confirmed President Roosevelt's nomination of Joseph C. Grew as Under Secretary of State, and that of five Assistant Secretaries of State. Grew was formerly United States Ambassador to Japan.

The other appointments confirmed were those of:

Nelson A. Rockefeller, Will L. Clayton, Archibald P. MacLeish, Brig. Gen. Julius Holmes, and James C. Dunn.

Just before the debate in the Senate was resumed after a two-weeks' deadlock, the President spoke on the telephone to Senators Claude Pepper and Joseph F. Guffey. Two

«This declaration is entirely in line... with what we had hoped for», the Polish Ambassador said. «The declaration places the whole matter in the right light and focus, because it stresses what I regard as the most important of all points».

The U. S. policy calling for a «strong, free, and independent Poland» with the right to control its internal existence «means that it does not narrow the problem of Poland to a frontier dispute,» Ciechanowski asserted.

Stettinius' second point—that boundary disputes should be left in abeyance until the war is won—is «entirely in keeping with the views of the Polish Government», the Ambassador said. Stettinius had qualified this point by adding that it does not mean that «certain questions may not and should not in the meantime be settled by friendly conference and agreement».

As to Stettinius' assurance that it is America's intention to assist liberated countries, including Poland, Ciechanowski said: «In a country so devastated as Poland, this is a matter of paramount importance. The Polish nation, its armed forces, and all Poles will be greatly encouraged to see this restatement of the basic principles of U. S. foreign policy, in which they have full confidence, and which expresses the aims for which they are fighting». (OWI)

LONDON, December 19 — Broadcasting an appeal to Belgian miners to remain at work as their contribution to a victorious war against Germany, Georges Le Clerc, Secretary of the Belgian Council of Independent Miners, attempted yesterday to forestall the coalfield strike called for tomorrow by the Communist-controlled Miners' Syndicate.

The Syndicate has threatened the work stoppage if it is not recognized as a trade union with negotiation powers.

Le Clerc's broadcast said that some miners «without authority» have tried to start strikes before, but have failed because «the great mass of miners disapproved of their provocative actions and attempts of causing trouble. (OWI)

The President said, however, that all the United Nations had signed the obligations outlined in the Charter in a United Nations Declaration of Washington.

When the principles of the Atlantic Charter were evolved, Mr. Roosevelt added, the corrected version was sent to the British and American governments for release to the press. (Reuter)

POLISH AMBASSADOR EXPRESSES CONFIDENCE

WASHINGTON, December 19 — Jan Ciechanowski, Polish Ambassador to the United States, said yesterday that the Polish Government-in-London has full confidence in the foreign policy of the United States.

He made the statement in comment on the declaration, yesterday by Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, that the United States favors a strong Poland free to settle its internal problems as its citizens see fit. Ciechanowski described the declaration as «heartening».

Stettinius, commenting on the Polish frontier problem, said that any settlement would be acceptable to the United States if the United Nations concerned were in agreement. He added that U. S. policy prohibits the guarantee of any specific frontier, but calls for co-operation with other United Nations in the establishment of a world security organization.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 19 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Yesterday, our troops engaged in the winter battle in the West continued their attacks along the whole front. Tank formations, through the gaps punched into the battered and torn U.S. 1st Army, penetrated deep into the enemy lines. Enemy reserves were smashed in a night tank battle.

German fighter and bomber squadrons, protecting the movents of our troops, brought down 24 enemy planes in dogfights.

In the other parts of the Western Front, the positional warfare continued at the previous focal points.

London, Antwerp, and Liége were again subjected to the intensified fire of our long-range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, the British 8th Army was unable to continue its costly major attacks. Yesterday, it confined itself to thrusts on both sides of Faenza and Bagnocavallo. All attacks failed.

Eastern Front:

On the Hungarian Front, between the Drau, Lake Balaton, and Budapest, numerous enemy thrusts collapsed in our defensive fire.

Between the Danube Bend at Waitzen and the southern frontier of Slovakia, our formations frustrated strong Bolshevik attacks after having lost a little ground.

Counter-attacks at the Isthmus of Ipolysag resulted in gains in the face of stubborn enemy resistance.

South of Szeszeny, in the Bück Mountains and on both sides of the Sajo, the Bolsheviks continue to exert pressure.

South of Rosenau and at the Ungvar-Kaschau road, attacking enemy formations were halted after some slight initial gains.

In the other sectors of the Eastern Front, there was only local fighting.

Air:

U.S. terror planes yesterday attacked towns in western Germany, upper Silesia, and southeastern Germany.

In the night, the British flew into the Baltic territory and launched nuisance raids on western and southern Germany.

Air defense forces brought down 15 four-engined bombers.

According to the reports thus far received, the number of four-engined terror bombers brought down on December 17 increased from 24 to 45. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

German Offensive in West: The large-scale German counter-attack in Belgium and Luxembourg continues to dominate the propaganda scene throughout the day. The main trend in treating this event is to stress its surprise element, its success, and the fact that it is not merely diversionary, but a serious effort to clear German soil of invaders.

Psychological Aspect of New Drive: This aspect is being heavily stressed by German comments. Transocean reports that American circles, being «fully taken by surprise,» must admit that the «great German offensive battle in the west strikes Americans at the worst psychological moment.» This offensive is said to play a rôle in reversing American optimism about an early termination to the war.

German Press Reaction: The pre-eminent rôle of the new offensive in German propaganda for home consumption is indicated by the DNB report that the Berlin press is «dominated by news» of this topic. The newspaper Völkischer Beobachter explains the «heavy setbacks of the past months» as the result of the huge preparations and gathering of strength which were required by the present «outbreak of power.» Calling the supposed success of the offensive a «German miracle,» the same paper gives the credit to home front efficiency, as well as to the German soldier himself.

Eastern Front: The German Home Radio tonight broadcasts that the double battle north of Budapest and north of Miscolc is continuing «with undiminished violence.» Soviet break-through attempts are said to have been «frustrated by the extraordinarily bitter and successful defence put up by the German and Hungarian units.» The use of new reserves on this front, as well as on the Western Front, is also mentioned.

The Russian-French Alliance: The recent pact made at Moscow by General de Gaulle evokes strong comment. According to the German Overseas Radio this morning, German political quarters state:

«The pact proves that France has come under Bolshevik influence in the political, military, economic, and psychological field. This treaty assures Moscow of the right to interfere in all measures concerning the foreign policy of France.»

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Italian Front: The Fascist Radio reports from Faenza that «small resistance groups, barricading themselves behind sandbags and inside buildings, were eliminated only after fierce fighting...». The commentator adds that Faenza, too, has given the enemy the welcome he deserves.

Mussolini's Visit to Milan: The Duce's three-day visit to Milan is still the main topic of the various Fascist radio stations. All commentators emphasize the immense importance of the Duce's once more getting into direct contact with the people. Pennino, for instance, says in his press review that Mussolini's speech could not be adequately commented on by the papers because they had to devote most of their space to the demonstrations, ceremonies, etc. which went on in Milan for three days, as well as to the moral effect the visit had on the people of the Republic. The Corriere della Sera writes that «an understanding has been reached» between the Duce and the people, and that, «after many a dissension and dispute... we are once more united...» Spampanato says the Duce's presence in Milan has changed the temper of the people. He significantly adds that «the Duce's emotion was great because ... not all who applauded him were Fascists. In fact, Fascists were in the minority. It was the people who applauded him, including those enemies of Fascism who have now realized which way they should turn... The people understood that only Mussolini can help them ... and they are asking him for the assistance which he alone can give».

These are only a few selections of the spate of comments, messages, speeches, declarations, and greetings which have been pouring over the various radio stations for the last four days.

Here and there a cloud is visible, as when Colonel Colombo, after asking the Duce to come back to Milan soon, declares that «in the period of waiting—which, we hope, will be a short one—we shall improve our forces of rescue, already powerful today, but destined to become overwhelming under you to-morrow...».

A Fascist Radio commentator tells of an anonymous Swiss journlist who, having paid a visit to the Duce's residence «surrounded by a double ring of neo-Fascist soldiers and German SS» wrote that the Duce suffered from ulcers and was frequently forced to stay in bed. He saw a man who was unrecognizable, his face «contracted with pain...» The commentator ridicules the journalist, stating that a sick man could not have stood the fatigue of the three-day tour.

Riots in Sicily: The Fascist Radio reports further incidents in Catania and Palermo, as well as in other centres of the island. In the two towns mentioned there were demonstrations against the High Commissioner's decree forbidding meeting.

Eastern Front: The German Home Radio tonight broadcasts that the double battle north of Budapest and north of Miscolc is continuing «with undiminished violence.» Soviet break-through attempts are said to have been «frustrated by the extraordinarily bitter and successful defence put up by the German and Hungarian units.» The use of new reserves on this front, as well as on the Western Front, is also mentioned.

The Russian-French Alliance: The recent pact made at Moscow by General de Gaulle evokes strong comment. According to the German Overseas Radio this morning, German political quarters state:

«The pact proves that France has come under Bolshevik influence in the political, military, economic, and psychological field. This treaty assures Moscow of the right to interfere in all measures concerning the foreign policy of France.»

These are only a few selections of the [illegible] ments, messages, speeches, declarations, and greetings which have been pouring over the various radio stations for the last four days.

Here and there a cloud is visible, as when Colonel Colombo, after asking the Duce to come back to Milan soon, declares that «in the period of waiting—which, we hope, will be a short one—we shall improve our forces of rescue, already powerful today, but destined to become overwhelming under you to-morrow...».

A Fascist Radio commentator tells of an anonymous Swiss journlist who, having paid a visit to the Duce's residence «surrounded by a double ring of neo-Fascist soldiers and German SS» wrote that the Duce suffered from ulcers and was frequently forced to stay in bed. He saw a man who was unrecognizable, his face «contracted with pain...» The commentator ridicules the journalist, stating that a sick man could not have stood the fatigue of the three-day tour.

8TH ARMY CUTS INTO GERMAN FLANK

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 20 — Eighth Army forces, in bitter fighting, have driven back German tank and infantry formations north of Faenza and cut nearly a mile into the flanks of the enemy defenses along the eight-mile remnant of the Lamone River line, it was announced here today.

German forces were reported by patrols to have barricaded the streets of Tossignano, and to have set up strong defenses on all approaches to this village, entered by British forces over a week ago, but recaptured by the enemy as a result of successful infiltration tactics. (PRO)

GERMAN ARMOR SLOWED DOWN; AMERICANS BLUNT NAZI SPEARHEADS

LONDON, December 20 — What may well be a decisive battle in the struggle to breach the fortress of the Reich is raging tonight in the area between Monschau and southern Luxembourg. Since first light on Monday, the Germans have been pushing against the American line which, for weeks, has been edging closer to the Reich.

The general direction of the German drive is toward the communications area between Liége and Aachen. An operational silence cloaks the movements of the Allied armies, but correspondents told of four main enemy columns moving west. Heaviest of these was an armored force, including paratroopers, which struck through the heavily wooded country southeast of Aachen, near the Belgian border.

This force was reported to be held by the American 1st Army, but elements of it have yet to be accounted for. Rocket-firing Allied aircraft, flying in misty weather, disrupted mechanized columns which sought to move through the Monschau Forest, and left behind a trail of havoc.

Germans Approach Malmédy

Two other German columns with armored spearheads and moving close together probed toward the Belgian town of Malmédy, 22 miles south of Aachen. These columns, confronted by Allied armor, split into two and endeavored to by-pass Malmédy, but up to a late hour tonight no official news was forthcoming as to the headway which had been made by the enemy.

Farther to the south, the German force which was reported today to have reached Stavelot, four miles southwest of Malmédy and 22 miles southeast of Liége, and an equal distance from the German frontier, is heavily engaged in battle.

The fourth main column, which moved in the direction of the Belgian town of St. Vith, also was double-headed, one spearhead striking toward Maaspelt, four miles from St. Vith, and the other, heavily supported by the low-flying Luftwaffe, advancing toward St. Vith itself. This force was reported yesterday to be held by a massive Allied front which had checked its further progress. St. Vith is five miles inside Belgium and 10 miles southeast of Stavelot.

The battle in this region is raging with concentrated fury. Both armies are using artillery on an unprecedented scale, and both the Luftwaffe and the Allied air forces are ranging the lowering skies in constant close support.

While this battle is reported to be the most bloody and desperate of the last seven months of hard fighting, and while Allied communiques have given the outside world only brief pictures of the fury unleashed in the historic area of

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 20 — Eighth Army forces, in bitter fighting, have driven back German tank and infantry formations north of Faenza and cut nearly a mile into the flanks of the enemy defenses along the eight-mile remnant of the Lamone River line, it was announced here today.

Allied troops have cleared the enemy from the village of San Rocco, a mile north of Faenza and approximately the same distance northwest of the winding Lamone River. The Allies also have secured the line of the Rimini-Bologna railway for a distance of nearly four miles northwest of Faenza.

Allied advances are continuing in this crucial sector, where German forces are attempting to maintain their hold on the Lamone River although both flanks of their defenses are exposed to strong 8th Army penetrations.

Polish and Indian troops of the 8th Army now have cleared the enemy from the entire area south and east of the Senio River, and south of the main Po Valley highway.

These forces reported close contact with the enemy troops holding the west banks of the Senio, evidently being prepared by the Germans for their next main delaying line across the Po Plain.

Along the northern sectors of the 8th Army front, where the enemy is clinging to a series of short stretches of three interconnected canals, which link the Senio and the Lamone Rivers, no changes were reported today.

Allied patrols in the coastal sector penetrated deeply into the lowlands bordering the Comacchio Canal, where German forces have taken up positions along the Casal Borsetti-Alfonsine road.

On the 5th Army front, no large-scale activity or appreciable change in positions was reported. Fire fights between patrol forces occurred in both the central sectors and along the right flank of the mountain line.

They described the dense, built-up fighting areas behind the Allied front, which are guaranteed to absorb the momentum of any German attack, no matter how savagely mounted or fanatically pressed.

LATE BULLETIN

GERMANS USING 13 DIVISIONS IN OFFENSIVE

SHAEF, December 20 — The Germans are using from 13 to 15 divisions — nearly half of them armored — in their counter-offensive along the Belgian-Luxembourg frontier, it was disclosed here tonight.

Fronts are shaping on both flanks of the German thrust, but one report said there is a gap of 25 miles in the center with no solid front.

To the south, the 3rd Army is building up its threat to the Saar Basin, and the bridgeheads across the Saar have been additionally strengthened. Farther south, in the 7th Army sector, some Maginot Line forts in the area of Bicher have been re-occupied by German troops. (OWI-ABSIE)

The counter-offensive was not unexpected, a Reuter correspondent said, quoting a remark by General Eisenhower a few weeks ago that the battle of Germany would be fought out west of the Rhine.

Another correspondent reported a senior Allied officer as saying: « Things look better now. The German offensive still is rising in tempo and has not reached a climax. Handled properly, the war can be won right here. »

Meanwhile, in other sections of the long, steel wedge which is pressing toward Germany, the Allied advance continued slowly, although in accord with the new aggressiveness of the Nazis in the Aachen area there has been a noticeable stiffening in resistance.

Enemy counter-attacks were put in against the 3rd Army but in spite of this, General Patton's men have consolidated their positions in the Dillingen foothold and have made progress in the Saarlautern bridgehead, and yesterday captured 40 pillboxes and fortified houses.

In the Saargemund area, further small gains were made by the Allies beyond the German frontier. Farther east, beyond the frontier town of Wessenburg, the Americans threw back two German counter-attacks with heavy losses.

North of Aachen, the normally quiet front has come to life again between the Dutch frontier and the area north of Aachen. German patrols reached Allied positions in the areas north of Geilenkirchen, and shells and mortar bombs came over in showers. Here the front is still wet and fog-bound.

In the far south, French 1st Army troops made headway today in clearing the Germans from holdout positions in the Vosges Mountains and on the Alsace Plain.

SOVIETS DRIVE DEEPER INTO CZECHOSLOVAKIA

MOSCOW, December 20 — Red Army forces continued their drive northwest of Miskolc and captured several localities in Czechoslovakia, tonight's Soviet communique announced, adding that yesterday Russian forces captured 1,010 Germans and Hungarians on this sector of the front.

The communique said that on other sectors of the front there were no essential changes, but late press dispatches said that the threat to the Czechoslovakian railway town of Kosice had increased, and that the Nazi escape routes from this vital communication center were under artillery fire.

Moscow correspondents pointed out today that unless the Germans held Kosice, the way would be open for a northward drive by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's army in the direction of Marshal Koniev's forces in southern Poland. Marshal Malinovsky's northern flank, advancing from the south, is reported nearing the outskirts of Kusice. It already has been reached by General Ivan Petrov's troops in the east. Other Red Army troops are reported to be moving into position west of the railway hub.

The official Soviet Army paper, Red Star, said this morning that groups of battered Germans roaming the mountains in the Kosice sector are being dealt with by Soviet infantry.

While there is a comparative lull in other sectors of the front in Hungary, partly due to bad weather, the Red Army has linked up four gaps, the breaching of any one of which would take the Soviet forces to the borders of Austria.

JAPANESE RESISTANCE ON LEYTE ENDS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 20 — All "integrated" Japanese resistance has ended on Leyte Island, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight. The Yamashita Line, once-powerful enemy defense position in the Ormoc Corridor of north west Leyte, has been completely destroyed.

The American 77th Division has advanced four miles

Sundas of the East Indies destroyed or heavily damaged three small freighters.

Twelve grounded planes were destroyed on airfields on Negros and Palawan Islands in the central Philippines, while four more planes were destroyed on Jolo, in the Sulu Archipelago. In sweeps over Borneo, 15 enemy planes were caught on the ground and three bombers were shot down.

Two new air attacks — on Sunday and Monday — on strategic Iwo Jima in the Volcanos were reported from Pearl Harbor naval headquarters tonight. (OWI-Reuter)

CHINESE FREE PUSHAN; SUPERFORTS HIT TOKYO

CHUNGKING, December 20 — Chinese forces, advancing along the Kwangsi-Kweichow railway in south China, freed Pushan, an important height west of Hochih, and continued their advance against determined Japanese opposition outside of Hochih, the Chinese High Command reported today.

Three Saipan-based Superfortresses bombed Tokyo today before dawn, an Associated Press correspondent reported from 21st Bomber Command headquarters.

Two other Superforts hit Nagoya early yesterday, some 12 hours after the second major attack on that city, the correspondent added. The War Department has made no comment on these latest attacks.

Dispatches from the Burma front reported that British troops, opening two new drives, advanced 15 and 18 miles, respectively, through Japanese defenses, aided by Allied air support.

One force, driving south from Pinlebu, in the hills between the upper Chindwin and the Irrawaddy rivers, has advanced 15 miles toward the road-hub town of Shwebo, 140 miles northwest of Mandalay. The other column gained 18 miles southeast from the Gawlaik sector to the vicinity of Pyingaing.

Meanwhile, from the Southeast Asia Command headquarters at Kandy, Ceylon, a communique reported that on the west Burma coast, West African troops have occupied Kandaung, six miles southwest of Buthidaung, and that forward patrols are within four miles of Indin, on the coast 25 miles southeast of Maungdaw.

First revised totals from the co-ordinated 14th USAAF and 20th Bomber Command attack Monday on Hankow disclosed that 42 enemy aircraft were destroyed, including 21 downed in combat. Five American planes were reported missing.

Maj. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer's headquarters also reported that Thunderbolts sank a large Japanese freighter and probably sank a destroyer and two large freighters in deck-level attacks at Hongkong yesterday.

Other action yesterday in south and central China by 14th USAAF planes and by craft from Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's Chinese-American Wing was reported, with seven Japanese fighter planes and one bomber destroyed. The Allies lost two planes. Railway yards at Pengpu and Hwaiyuan, northeast of Nanking, were among the targets.

Commenting on Monday's co-ordinated attack on Hankow, General Chennault said today that the attack was a supreme example of the craftiness of the new China theater setup, and marked the turn in the strategy of the air war in China. (OWI-Reuter)

M.A.A.F. ATTACKS CONTINUE FOR SIXTH DAY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 20 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF carried into the sixth consecutive day their attacks on strategic targets in Czechoslovakia, Germany, and Austria in strong assaults on unidentified targets in the Pilsen, Regensburg, Linz, Salzburg, and Villach areas, it was announced here today.

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 20 — All "integrated" Japanese resistance has ended on Leyte Island, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight. The Yamashita Line, once-powerful enemy defense position in the Ormoc Corridor of north west Leyte, has been completely destroyed.

The American 77th Division has advanced four miles north of Valencia, former Japanese headquarters, whose capture was announced yesterday, while the 1st Cavalry Division pushed three miles south of Lonoy, leaving a one-mile gap between the two U.S. forces, the Associated Press reported.

Another 1,541 Japanese dead were counted yesterday.

Meanwhile, Admiral Chester Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, who yesterday assumed the rank of Admiral of the Fleet under Congressional and Presidential authorization, and who is presently conferring with Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander-in-chief of the new British Pacific Fleet, revised his figures of the three-day attack last week by his carrier planes in the Luzon area. A total of 102 Japanese vessels were sunk or damaged at a cost of 27 American planes.

On Mindoro Island in the Philippines, General MacArthur reported that there was no opposition to American ground action and that 13 Japanese planes were destroyed between Sunday and Monday.

In attacks on Japanese shipping and aircraft throughout the Southwest Pacific area, Allied aircraft and naval units destroyed seven enemy vessels and 34 more planes. Air patrols off Luzon destroyed a small freighter. Light naval units operating in the Visayan Sea in the central Philippines sunk three enemy barges. A patrol plane in the Lesser

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 20 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF carried into the sixth consecutive day their attacks on strategic targets in Czechoslovakia, Germany, and Austria in strong assaults on unidentified targets in the Pilsen, Regensburg, Linz, Salzburg, and Villach areas, it was announced here today.

Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker sent a message to returning crews congratulating them on their sustained efforts against "the most distant, difficult, and important" targets within the range of Mediterranean-based bombers.

Liberator and Flying Fortress bombers have flown more than 6,000 sorties in the past six days, in flights of up to 600 miles radius, it was said.

Although bad weather again hampered operations in the fog shrouded Valley of the Po, fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force concentrated on enemy gun positions and rail and road targets in the Spezia-Genoa area.

Enemy supply routes were hit in the Padua-Mestre area, and in attacks on the Brenner Pass line south of Trento, where four rail cuts were effected.

Yesterday, Medium and fighter-bombers of the Balkan Air Force and heavy and medium bombers of the RAF continued their hammering attacks on the German forces fleeing through Yugoslavia, it was announced here today.

The Halifaxes, Liberators, and Wellingtons of the RAF divided into three forces to attack the Matesevo bridge along the escape route from the Podgorica "Pocket," where some 20,000 Germans are trapped just across the border from Albania, also German road convoys along this route, and the rail yards at Sarajevo — junction point which the isolated enemy forces are attempting to reach.

Mustangs and Beaufighters of the Balkan Air Force have been attacking these enemy troops relentlessly, and have received commendation from Yugoslav forces for their heavy blows against the 21st Mountain Corps, the German troops involved.

In TAF operations yesterday, against the enemy battle line in the Plain of the Po, some 14 light anti-aircraft guns and several enemy strongpoints were knocked out. (PRO)

U.S.N. TO FETE ITALIAN CHILDREN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 20 — More than 30,000 orphaned children in Italy, Sicily, Corsica, southern France, and North Africa will be feted this Christmas by the officers and men of U. S. Navy forces in the Mediterranean.

The children, all left homeless by war, will be given candy and food which has been contributed out of the rations of every American sailor in the theater. The Christmas parties will be held in orphanages and other insititutions in Rome, Naples, Leghorn, Palermo, and other Mediterranean ports on Sunday and Christmas Day.

Each child will receive gifts of a toy, candy, soap, cakes, and cookies. Quantities of clothing, made over in convents from worn-out dungarees, also will be distributed.

Seabees, service units of the fleet, have made more than 15,000 toys from salvaged material, while sailors of the other branches of the service contributed the same number.

Captain Robert J. White, Chaplain of the 8th U. S. Fleet, is in charge of the program. (PRO)

HEAVY NAZI CASUALTIES AT PODGORICA

LONDON, December 20 — Yugoslav forces which liberated the Montenegrin town of Podgorica, 25 miles inland from the Adriatic coast, yesterday, inflicted enormous losses on the Germans, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

Further heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy in still another sector when, in four days of fighting, more than 3,200 Germans «were put out of action» in Srem, in the northeastern section of central Yugoslavia.

The communique said that the Yugoslav Air Force, striking at German reserves near the road and rail hub of Vinkovci, 40 miles south of the Hungarian border, assisted ground forces in attacks on enemy troops and communications lines. Vinkovci has been deeply outflanked by Soviet forces which form a semi-circle around this important communications center.

In central Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito's forces in the Drina River sector southeast of Vinkovci are continuing to exert pressure against a German group which is surrounded near Zvornik, 75 miles southeast of Belgrade.

Yugoslav forces in western Bosnia checked German troops which attempted to break through from the Busovaca-Zenica sector, 50 miles northwest of Sarajevo. Marshal Tito's troops captured the German stronghold of Remete, four miles east of Zagreb, the communique added.

BULGARIAN WAR CRIMINAL TRIALS START

SOFIA, December 20 — Speedy justice will characterize trials of Bulgarian regents, ministers, and deputies accused of collaboration with the enemy which open before two special People's courts here today, Radio Sofia said last night.

A statement by a People's prosecutor read over the radio asserted that the accused will be defended either by counsel of their own choice or by prominent members of the council of advocates appointed ex officio. Defense counsel has been appointed even for those being tried in absentia.

Radio Moscow said, «The negotiations took place in a spirit of complete mutual understanding.» Colonel General Zhdanov signed for the Soviet Government, and Prime Minister J. K. Paasikivi for Finland. (OWI)

HUNGARIAN RESISTANCE TO NAZIS INCREASES

WASHINGTON, December 20 — Hungarian soldiers are deserting and the Hungarian people are refusing to cooperate with quisling authorities, according to recent reports from neutral sources.

A large number of Hungarian soldiers have «gone underground» in Budapest because «they do not wish to fight the Russians and refuse to have anything in common with the Germans,» the Swedish paper Sydsvenska Dagbladet Snällposten said. The Hungarian people are disgusted by the German looting of their factories and civilian supplies, and «long for the arrival of the Russians,» the account added. (OWI)

PARCELS REACH PRISONERS OF WAR IN JAPAN

WASHINGTON, December 20 — The first shipment of Red Cross supplies sent to the Far East by way of a Soviet port has arrived in the Japanese city of Kobe, according to a Japanese message quoted by Basil O'Connor, chairman of the American Red Cross, yesterday. This shipment, like others reported reaching Japan from the United States and British Red Cross groups, is to be pooled for Allied prisoners of war of all nationalities.

He announced that a shipload of 300,000 American and Canadian standard Red Cross parcels, plus clothing and food, was unloaded at Kobe early in November, according to a report he had received from the Japanese delegate of the Red Cross International Committee. Fifteen per cent of the cargo will go to prisoners of war and civilian internees in the Philippines, the delegate reported. (OWI)

FINLAND TO DELIVER GOODS TO RUSSIA

MOSCOW, December 20 — Under a pact signed in Helsinki last Sunday, Finland has agreed to deliver to the Soviet Union within six years after 19 September 1944 — date of the signing of the Russo-Finnish armistice — goods and equipment to the value of 300 million dollars, in compensation for damage caused by Finnish military operations on and occupations of Soviet territory, Radio Moscow said today.

The reparations agreement was signed in accordance with the armistice pact.

Goods and equipment delivered will include various machinery and sea and river-going craft with a total value of 175 million dollars. Other materials — timber, paper, cellulose, and cable products — are to be worth 125 millions.

The broadcast added that calculation of the value of the goods will be based on world 1938 prices, plus 10 per cent additional for processed goods and 13 per cent additional for machinery and ships.

Soviet port has arrived in the Japanese city of Kobe, according to a Japanese message quoted by Basil O'Connor, chairman of the American Red Cross, yesterday. This shipment, like others reported reaching Japan from the United States and British Red Cross groups, is to be pooled for Allied prisoners of war of all nationalities.

He announced that a shipload of 800,000 American and Canadian standard Red Cross parcels, plus clothing and food, was unloaded at Kobe early in November, according to a report he had received from the Japanese delegate of the Red Cross International Committee. Fifteen per cent of the cargo will go to prisoners of war and civilian internees in the Philippines, the delegate reported. (OWI)

SFORZA DECLINES MINISTERIAL POST

ROME, December 20 — Count Carlo Sforza today declined a ministerial post as Italian representative to the United States government. In a letter to Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, Sforza said:

«My first impulse was to accept this mission to the United States because, with the memory of three years there in the service of Italian liberty, I felt certain that I could be useful to our country. But I should be very sorry if, in spite of myself, my arrival should give rise to fresh arguments.»

Count Sforza added that he was sure of his own political and moral conduct.

«I wish only to be the upholder of a fruitful understanding between Italy and the great English-speaking democracies—an understanding which is necessary if the desire of the future is to create not a second armistice, but true peace.» (UNN)

IL DUCE'S ALLEGED MISTRESS TAKES STAND

ROME, December 20 — Cornelia Pizzato Tanzi, friend and alleged mistress of Benito Mussolini, took the witness stand here today to testify in her own behalf. She is charged with collaborating with the German occupation forces and, specifically, with betraying Italian Patriots and war materials hidden in the Villa Strohlfern.

The matronly defendant admitted under direct examination that she had been friendly with many officials of the Fascist Ministry of Propaganda. In previous depositions, she admitted that she had remained in «the closest possible touch» with Alessandro Pavolini, Fascist propaganda minister; Giovanni Orgera, ex-governor of this city; and Giuseppe Pizzirani, leader of the Roman Republican Fascists.

Other witnesses, testifying today before the Court of Assizes, stated that during a telephone call to one of her friends, Signorina Tanzi was overheard to say:

«Italians now are complaining about the Germans. Poor Germans! They are so tired. I don't want to call them Germans. I call them Heroes. They did right in sending so many Italians to Germany for education. It will do them good.»

Signorina Tanzi also testified that she met Mussolini when she first came here to present him with a copy of a book that she had written. She described her relations with the former Il Duce as being strictly in the field of «artistic activities.» After several audiences with Mussolini in his office at Palazzo Venezia, she stated, she did not see him after 1936. SCOBIE ISSUES ULTIMATUM TO «ELAS»

ATHENS, December 20 — Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, British commander in Greece, today warned the population of this city and the port of Piraeus, by means of leaflets dropped from aircraft, that if at 0900 hours tomorrow morning ELAS guns were still firing in the city, its suburbs, or Piraeus, they would be attacked with all the arms at his disposal. These arms, he added, included airplanes, land artillery, naval guns, and rockets.

The attack will continue until the guns have been destroyed, and he ordered all civilians within 600 yards of the gun positions to evacuate to a place of safety. No other warning would be given, General Scobie said.

The city was comparatively quiet today and a communique tonight said that British troops still were making progress in clearing up centers of insurgent resistance astride the Athens-Phaliron road.

In the port of Piraeus, the BBC said, more than 700 Greek dock workers are unloading military supplies from small boats.

ELAS Capture R.A.F. H.Q.

It was officially announced today that the RAF headquarters at the hillside resort of Kifissia, 10 miles northeast of here had been captured by the insurgent forces after a 36-hour battle, but that the continuance of air operations had not been affected by the attack.

The British armored relief column brought a number of RAF and Army personnel back to the city, including RAF staff officers.

Press dispatches said that ELAS forces overran the headquarters before the British relief column arrived. Two of the main buildings were blown up by the insurgents, trapping some 350 British troops. However, the relieving column rescued most of them, and it was believed that casualties were not heavy.

A late Reuter report said tonight that 150 women political prisoners, who had been missing since yesterday, may have perished in the fire which broke out in their cell block in the Averoff Prison after ELAS troops dynamited the walls.

The officer commanding the British detachment was quoted by the news agency, as stating that his order to open all the cells could not be communicated to the women's prison block, which had been isolated by the ELAS forces.

Although quisling ex-premier Jean Rallis still was at large today after his escape from the Averoff Prison, the ELAS newspaper said that two others of the escaped prisoners — Gen. George Bacos, former Minister of National Defense, and Georges Pirounakis, former Supply Minister — had been captured and executed.

Elsewhere in Greece, General Scobie's communique reported that the British garrison stationed at Volos had been evacuated without incident.

Greek Premier Georges Papandreou told the BBC correspondent this morning that he had not then received a reply to his telegram to the King of Greece, recommending that he approve the appointment of the Archbishop of Athens as regent. The correspondent said that this proposal had met with strong and widespread support throughout the country. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

CHURCHILL QUESTIONED ON GREEK SITUATION

LONDON, December 20 — Prime Minister Churchill was further questioned on the Greek situation in the House of doubt that complete and effective coöperation will go on in all aspects of the war.

«We had a certain task thrown upon us, and we are discharging it to the best of our ability».

In answer to a question of whether steps were being taken to bring about a greater accord, the Prime Minister said: «That would be the justifiable conclusion».

In connection with tomorrow's debate on the Greek question, Mr. Churchill served notice on his critics that, if they wanted a showdown, it would have to come on a vote of censure with his coalition government's standing or falling on the outcome, the Associated Press said tonight.

The opposition Labor Party accepted the Prime Minister's challenge and agreed to the debate on the vote of censure.

Labor Party leaders called a special meeting to draft the party's policy. Earlier, when the Liberal faction pressed without success for a full-dress debate, the Premier acknowledged a sharp division in Great Britain on the issue which caused «heart searching and criticism», the Associated Press said.

The Prime Minister maintained that this division would not be delayed by a new debate.

Mr. Churchill won a 279 to 30 victory in his last test of strength on a vote of confidence in Parliament. (OWI)

EDEN MAKES FULL STATEMENT ON GREECE

LONDON, December 20 — British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, replying to today's emergency debate in the House of Commons on Greece, said that Britain could perhaps have been censured for not having intervened in Athens on behalf of law and order at an earlier date.

Dealing with the question of why there has not been more collaboration with the Allies, Eden said:

«A European Advisory Commission was set up on our initiative to agree on plans for surrender terms to Germany, and post-occupation plans for Germany and other enemy states.

«As regards the general machinery on international collaboration, I spoke on this matter only a fortnight ago. There is nothing we should welcome more than closer machinery of collaboration than there is now. We would welcome quarterly meetings of foreign secretaries of the great powers, as we used to have before, to deal with some of these matters, and the Prime Minister and I have said over and over again that we would go anywhere and take any steps to further such results.

«I do not think the charge can lie against us that we have not tried very hard to promote this machinery and get it going in a more satisfactory manner».

On the decision to enter Greece, Eden said:

«I do not know what other decision we could have taken. We knew there was a risk, but I still think the decision was right. Before we took that decision, we consulted the United States and they agreed. Our Soviet allies also approved the decision. There is no question of our having done this without consulting our allies.

«It also is true that for reasons of operational security we did not describe our plans and intentions in detail to our Greek allies. We could not give them a clear answer to their many appeals that we should go to Greece. We did not want to reveal the details of our military plan.

«The only criticism that could be made is that we ought to have taken contingents of other nations with us. As we neared the date for entry into Greece, we told the Greek leaders of the operations to some extent, and invited their collaboration regarding guerrilla bands in Greece.

CHURCHILL QUESTIONED ON GREEK SITUATION

LONDON, December 20 — Prime Minister Churchill was further questioned on the Greek situation in the House of Commons today following an emergency meeting last night in which a special demand for a debate was made.

Questioning began this morning when Mr. Churchill was asked whether there was now complete coöperation and accord between the British, United States and Soviet governments on the British policy in Greece. He answered:

«The burden of attending to troubles in Greece has fallen upon Great Britain, and we have not so far been able to discharge this task without criticism even here at home, which added to our difficulties. The three great powers are in entire agreement upon the general aims which bind our alliance, and we have every need to keep in closest association in this dangerous and momentous stage of the war».

Mr. Churchill was then asked if he did not «agree that there is danger to implementation of proposals of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference if certain powers assign themselves spheres of influence and other powers are not brought into coöperation during the war».

«I think that is a topic that obviously I should not attempt to deal with now», he replied.

Again Mr. Churchill was asked «whether there is, in fact, complete coöperation?» He said:

«There is now complete coöperation. Whether there is complete agreement upon every aspect of these matters is another question altogether, but I have not the slightest

Caserta Agreement Cited

«The two leaders, General Saraphis, of ELAS, and General Zervas, of EDES, were invited to Caserta to meet the Supreme Commander and a formula known as the Caserta Agreement was drawn up.

«The items in this agreement show the immense trouble taken to get agreement between all parties in the Greek Goverament and the guerrilla leaders before we went to Greece. The agreement was signed by the two generals in the presence of EAM leaders.

«The following decisions were recorded unanimously: firstly, all guerrilla forces were to be under General Scobie's orders; secondly, the guerrilla leaders agreed to forbid any units to attempt to take the law into their own hands — agreed to abandon past rivalries and form a national union for coördinated activities.»

There was complete agreement, Eden continued, between the guerrillas and the Greek Government of all parties.

«Before the actual entry into Greece, no issue divided the Greek ministers. We went to Greece with neither strategic, economic, nor any other advantages in view, and without any ulterior motive.

«I do not know why some members always eagerly suggest we have some sinister purpose. Certainly we have interests in the Mediterranean, but this action was taken solely to take supplies to Greece because we knew the position there.

« Had Greece been self-supporting, it is quite likely we should not have gone there. Certainly, we should not have gone in for the present vast organization in Greece. Without that food, the Greeks could not escape starvation and their industries would be restricted. Without that aid, there would have been mass starvation all over Greece, and we should have been asked why we did not do something to help our allies. Those are the reasons why we went into Greece.

« In the week ending November 24 alone, the British landed over 20,000 tons of food in the Piraeus alone, and nearly 20,000 tons at other places. In the same week, vast quantities of clothing and footwear also were landed. »

Turning to the armistice terms, Eden said that General Scobie had asked that ELAS supporters in Athens and Piraeus cease resistance and hand in their arms. They have not asked that guerrillas outside Athens be dissolved except by subsequent agreement after the end of the war.

They were not trying to impose a right-wing or left-wing government, he said; all they wished was for the ship to be kept on an even keel. Eden said he was convinced that the British troops had used every possible means to avoid unnecessary loss of lives, probably at a considerable cost to themselves.

« We Want to Stop Conflict »

« We want to stop this conflict as speedily as possible, » he said « by whatever means. Otherwise, apart from tragic loss of life, we cannot get supplies in. »

That ended the debate, which was on a motion for adjournment, which enables any matter to be raised without a subsequent vote.

Foreign Secretary Eden also discussed the Franco-Soviet pact, UNRRA aid to France, the Burma campaign, and Yugoslavian relief.

Eden said the British Government was consulted before negotiations began for the French-Soviet pact. He said the pact « was welcomed as an additional link between two European allies. »

« It seems clear that there is no question of any conflict between the Franco-Soviet pact and the future world security organization which all parties are seeking to establish. ».

He said that arrangements are being discussed for the dispatch of relief supplies from the Allied military authorities to Yugoslavia. He also said that he contemplated an early transfer to UNRRA of responsibilities for providing Yugoslav relief.

Eden spoke of the recent Japanese advance in southwest China as « being a grave menace to our Chinese allies. »

« I am glad to say that, for the time being at least, the situation is easier. Outside China, Chinese troops have made notable contributions to victory by the capture of Bhamo in Burma. »

LABOR PARTY URGES PEACE IN GREECE

LONDON, December 20 — Arthur Greenwood, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, urged the British Government today to find an immediate and peaceful solution to the situation in Greece.

Britain went into Greece with the perfectly good motive of feeding the Greek people, he said. Having got involved in this struggle, the Government could not escape it and they have got to see it through.

« I think they have a great part to play in establishing an armistice, » the Labor Party spokesman said. « From that time, things can march along to what the Prime Minister has looked forward to — the rights of the Greek people to determine their own future, freely and fairly. » (OWI-BBC)

ment. Other liberties he emphasized are freedom of speech and of the press.

He said he would like to see a permanent body, like the International Labor Office, established by the United Nations, probably within the framework of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, that would collect data of how and to what extent these rights were being safeguarded and make reports and generally help to raise moral standards.

He expressed the hope that the U.S.S.R., after the war, would put into full operation its 1936 Constitution, which had been postponed owing to fear of aggression and internal disorder. This 1936 Constitution established freedom of religious worship, of speech, of the press, of assembly, of demonstrations, the inviolability of a person's home, and the secrecy of correspondence.

Viscount Cranborne, replying on behalf of the Government, said the present moral degradation of Germany is the greatest problem facing the restoration of Europe. The peace terms must render Germany harmless, he said; otherwise, there is not the faintest chance of future peace or for the moral regeneration of Germany.

« If, after the war, Germany shows by her deeds that she has undergone a complete change of heart, she should be brought back to the comity of nations, but at present there is no sign of it. While she remains a homicidal maniac she will be kept in a straitjacket, » Cranborne added. (Reuter)

TEMPLEWOOD URGES EUROPEAN UNITY

LONDON, December 20 — Viscount Templewood (the former Sir Samuel Hoare) said in the House of Lords yesterday that the unifying forces in Europe stand in urgent need of strengthening, and that every European citizen should be assured of certain fundamental rights and liberties, without which European civilization cannot continue.

Viscount Templewood was making his first speech in the House of Lords after his elevation to the peerage. As Sir Samuel Hoare, he recently was ambassador to Spain and a former Foreign Secretary.

German influences, leaving behind corruption, bitter hatreds, and vendettas, have heavily undermined all moral standards, he added, and it is obvious that before there can be a moral revival in Europe there must be an end to the fear of military aggression.

The first step that should be taken to bring Europe back to civilization, Templewood said, is to obtain for Europe, and the world if possible, a guarantee of certain liberties — equality before the law, no preferential treatment for members of any particular party, a unified system of justice, no special courts, religious freedom, and non-discriminatory admission to professions and public employ-

NEW STATE DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS SWORN IN

WASHINGTON, December 20 — After the new State Department officials had taken their oath of office today, Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, said that « no stone will be left unturned to make the Department strong and fully equipped to discharge future responsibilities.

« A vigorous, alert, and forward-looking leadership in the conduct of foreign relations by our government is more essential now than at any other time in our history, » Stettinius added.

The Secretary of State told reporters that further departmental changes are in prospect. He said that it was his aim to bring the best qualified men in America into the State Department, and to make it the best possible arm of the government. In the reorganization, he said, crossing lines of responsibility were cleared away.

Under Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew and four Assistant Secretaries were sworn in by Associate Justice Stanley Reed of the Supreme Court. Brig. Gen. Julius C. Holmes, one of the five new assistant secretaries, was absent from the ceremonies as he is in Paris finishing his job as Deputy to General Dwight Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of Allied Forces. He will return here February 15, Stettinius said.

Sworn in today were William L. Clayton, Nelson A. Rockefeller, Archibald MacLeish, James C. Dunn, and Grew. (OWI)

BELGIUM BACKS FRENCH-SOVIET ALLIANCE

BRUSSELS, December 20 — Authoritative Belgian circles — in a statement quoted by a Reuter dispatch yesterday — said the new French-Soviet alliance contained no article to which Belgium could not fully subscribe.

Recalling that Germany had twice within a generation submitted Belgium to invasion and occupation, the statement added that « more than any other state, Belgium wishes Germany could be reduced to a position from which she could no longer menace the peace of the world. »

The statement also recalled: « At the time of the Dumbarton Oaks agreements, Belgium rejoiced to see the Great Powers laying the bases of an organization of collective security. » With the same feeling, said the statement, « and great sympathy. » Belgium welcomed the Anglo-Soviet Treaty.

The new French-Soviet agreement, « by its double military and economic character, is regarded as a capital factor for the elaboration and maintenance of future peace within the framework of the inter-Allied agreements visualizing the organization of collective security and reconstruction of the world, » the statement concluded. FRENCH-POLISH PACT STILL HOLDS

PARIS, December 20 — The 24-year-old French-Polish Alliance is not affected by the new French-Soviet Treaty, the French Radio said yesterday. The broadcast said the new pact states, among other things, that its provisions do not affect obligations contracted previously by either of the parties.

The French-Polish Treaty, the broadcast commented, « therefore remains valid, and it is to be expected that the friendship between the two nations will continue to deepen. » (OWI)

QUISLINGS LOSING CONTROL OF NORWAY

LONDON, December 20 — Norwegian quislings, harassed by Patriot sabotage and hunted by the Norwegian Home Front, are losing control of the country and are desperately attempting to secure their personal safety.

The Swedish Sydsvenska Dagbladet said last Sunday that many quislings were attempting to flee the country. Even Gestapo informers have sought contact with the Patriots, but « have been marked by the Norwegian Home Front. »

The paper added that the number of German deserters in hiding in Norway was increasing, and that since Norwegian civilians will have nothing to do with them they « are left to wander in the forests. »

The Stockholm Aftontidningen said recently that many quislings had tried to « get clear » of membership in the Nazi Party, adding, « in this they are disappointed, and the camouflage many tried is useless. The Home Front is on its guard. »

Another press report said that 20 informers have been liquidated in recent weeks in Norway. (OWI)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 20 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On the whole of the attacking front in the West, yesterday, our armies, in deeply echeloned formation, cleared up the enemy strongpoints left behind and pushed forward their spearheads. At many points, isolated enemy reserve forces were engaged which had hurriedly been brought up and thrown into the battle. According to incomplete reports, more than 10,000 prisoners were captured, 200 tanks destroyed or captured, and 124 planes shot down.

In the Aix la Chapelle sector and on the Saar, the American pressure diminished.

In the Bitsche sector, northwest of Weissenburg and east of it at the West Wall, the enemy continued his costly attacks on our western fortifications.

In upper Alsace, our troops are enguged in grim fighting.

On the whole front of Alsace-Lorraine, yesterday, a total of 37 enemy tanks was destroyed.

An enemy destroyer was sunk by the naval weapons of the Navy.

London, Liège, and Antwerp were subjected to an extremely intense bombardment with our long-range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, yesterday evening, the attacking British formations achieved a minor penetration, north of Faenza, which was sealed off. In the early morning hours, they resumed their attacks with fresh forces.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, south of Lake Balaton and north of the Danube Bend at Waitzen, grim local fighting is in progess. The Bolsheviks continued their attacks on our protruding front bulge at the Matra and Bück mountains, but did not achieve the breakthrough which they had planned.

Between Sajo and Hernad, our troops smashed numerous enemy thrusts.

In the southern part of eastern Slovakia, the incessant and brisk fighting did not result in an important change of the situation.

In the other sectors of the Eastern Front, the lull continues.

Air:

In the West, the enemy air activities were limited to attacks on the area near the front.

Wilhelmstrasse Statement: The following is the vague but optimistic statement of the German Foreign Office (as reported by DNB) concerning the new drive:

«The date on which more precise information can be given about the positions of the attacking German formations is probably not very far removed... The German Command is still interested in veiling German movements and positions in secrecy. In any case, it is certain that German operations are progressing well.»

Sertorius Analysis: The daily report on the Western Front, sent by the correspondent Sertorius, is not only more cautious than German propaganda as a whole but, stressing the need for vagueness, does not differ very strikingly from Allied reports, concerning specific gains of ground. He refers to these gains merely as «a further extension in depth of the German area of penetration.»

His report concludes with what may perhaps be intended as a caution against German over-optimism: «The battle launched by the German attack is still far from a climax. New and heavy fighting is imminent. The first offensive will doubtlessly be followed by other phases, at least as rich in tense situations as the past one.»

Eastern Front: Colonel von Olberg reports only «limited fighting activity» along most of this front, and describes the battle for Budapest as «stagnant.»

Americans Portrayed as «Finance-Hyenas»: The German Home Radio declares of American economic experts in France: «The American finance-hyenas want still further to pillage this already famished country.»

And if any of the Duce's prophesies did not come true, it was due, according to Augusteus, «to the treason of which Britain availed herself» in order to win her battles. He then turns to the «other frog» of the BBC, «Candidus,» whose announcement that he would no longer broadcast to Italian listeners, Fascism being dead, is termed «a substantial success.»

Western Front Still Featured: The German offensive into Belgium continues to an overwhelming extent to be the leading propaganda item. Optimism and confident predictions continue to be the key-notes, especially in commentaries and semi-political sources, in conspicuous contrast to the very reserved and moderate claims made by the more strictly military report of Sertorius.

Neutral Comments: German propaganda makes much of neutral awe of the new German offensive. Neutral newspapers are quoted at length in order to give the public an apparently more objective and detached confirmation of the claims made by German newspapers. For example, the «German Soldier Radio» quotes a Swiss newspaper as saying: «The German counter-offensive, which has now started, has changed the war situation in an unexpected and total fashion.»

Transocean says that Swedish reporters in the United States stress «without exception» that the drive has «com-

«Vindex» of Radio Tevere also discusses Colonel Stevens, calling him an ostrich. He does not seem to hear the crowd cheering Mussolini. «In Belgium, the American armies advance backwards towards Berlin; in Italy, the Italian divisions are going into action.» In a later broadcast, Radio Tevere again compares the statement by «Candidus» that Fascism is dead to the reality of Mussolini's enthusiastic reception by the Milan crowd.

German Offensive: In his daily press-review, Pennino finds that most of the headlines of the republican papers hail the German offensive which, coupled with Mussolini's recent visit, «have restored confidence to Italians.» He goes on to say that at the present stage «a decisive turn in events» is expected.

Italian Front: The Fascist Radio reports that «the activity of the British 8th Army has considerably increased in the Faenza region.» The same radio mentions a Canadian push on the Emilia highway in a northerly direction, and claims that it has been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Partisans Doomed: In a despatch from the Piedmont district, war reporter Borsoni asserts that «the rebel bands in the mountain areas, especially in the upper Piedmont valleys, are doomed.» He attributes this success, not only to the intervention of Alpini battalions and regiments of the Littorio Division, but also to the work and «wise manoeuvering» of the Piedmont High Commissioner, Dr. Paolo Zerbino.

WESTERN FRONT

« THE HOUR HAS STRUCK »
(By Eric Wenzel)

For military reasons it has been impossible to give this report before. Since the early morning hours of December 16 German tanks have been rolling along the roads in the German-Belgian border area. They are breaking through garden fences and climbing over hedges. The infantry crawled out of their holes in the grey of dawn and dashed on the American lines. Artillery fire is bursting from thousands of barrels. Overnight, towns and villages of the threatened German west have come alive. It seems as if a hurricane had started. Messengers hasten over roads to regiments and companies.

The sky is ashen grey and plains as well as hills are wrapped in a grey pall. No sound of engines comes from the air, while on the battleground the roar of war increases from hour to hour. Field Marshal von Rundstedt's order of the day passes from hand to hand.

« Comrades of the western front: the great hour has struck ». At this moment the veil has been lifted from so many preparations. The new offensive has started, the German offensive. « Strong assault armies this morning started against the Anglo-Americans », the order of the day said. In the battlefield around Dueren nothing has changed. There was strong artillery fire on both sides; before the Roer, the Americans have been brought to a standstill.

Destiny must now be fulfilled somewhere else. The faces of the soldiers reflect what they think, feel and do. They are all fighting with a new spirit. It looks as if engines are running twice as fast, as if the guards of the field gendarmes are twice as watchful to see that the traffic to and from the front is unhampered. Troop transports are rolling to the front, which there is now only a single pulsation: Victory or Death. When night fell, the noise of battle was not silenced while flares and flashes along the front increased. On all sides fire from bursting shells was observable. Overhead missiles of V-1 went whizzing on their way to unknown targets in the enemy's land. New positions are being entered in the maps of the German battle command.

According to the latest reports, the frontlines have been improved. All arrows point towards the west. Some breaches were extremely successful. It is of no use, however, to say anything definite because everything is in flux as always at the beginning of military operations. One German People's Grenadier Division has so far sent one conclusive report stating that its day's aim was exceeded by several kilometres.

THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE
(By Walter Plato)

BERLIN — Fundamentally, a new situation has prevailed along the western front since Saturday morning. The German command is fighting its first great offensive battle, since mobile warfare at the German border became stationary in September. This battle comprises for the time being an area between Hohe Venn and the northern part of Luxembourg and led on the first day to a break through the first American positions. Apart from this operation, local German counter-thrusts in Upper Alsace continue. A German offensive has begun just when great losses in manpower and even greater exhaustion of material on the part of the United States First Army in the battle at the Roer had forced General Hodges to slow down his attacks.

The four United States Armies have carried out no fewer than six offensives since last September. Four of these took place in the Aix-la-Chapelle area, while the Anglo-Canadian Armies have remained inactive for the past few weeks. In all these large-scale attacks, the Americans gained only minor tactical advantages and more or less extensive territorial gains but nowhere were they able to breach the German front.

The German command was able to gain control of all these penetrations, and beyond that, to maintain freedom of action and to distribute divisions according to its own plans. Only a minimum force was used to ward off enemy attempts at breaking through, while a large number of divisions were held in readiness for operative use. The right wing of the United States First Army suffered severe losses last week when a major attack in the Monschau region collapsed in a German counter-attack. Thus, this wing which had been weakened by the removal of formations for the battle of Dueren was further drained. The fact that the German offensive broke loose nearby shows that Eisenhower made wrong calculations as to the German command having taken advantage of this mistake.

At present, however, it is not yet possible to reveal the names of the places on the German front of attack in the eastern foothills of the Ardennes. The tactical and operative effects of the German offensive cannot therefore yet be

The right wing of the United States First Army suffered severe losses last week when a major attack in the Monschau region collapsed in a German counter-attack. Thus, this wing which had been weakened by the removal of formations for the battle of Dueren was further drained. The fact that the German offensive broke loose nearby shows that Eisenhower made wrong calculations as to the German command having taken advantage of this mistake.

At present, however, it is not yet possible to reveal the names of the places on the German front of attack in the eastern foothills of the Ardennes. The tactical and operative effects of the German offensive cannot therefore yet be dealt with. It is, however, clear that carefully prepared German attacks scored successes during the first twenty-four hours which surpass by far those the Americans had scored during their four offensives in the Aix-la-Chapelle region. GERMAN OFFENSIVE SURPRISES AMERICANS

BERLIN — Strong German forces since early this morning, December 16 have been waging an attack on the Eifel front, it has been disclosed by a military spokesman of the Wilhelmstrasse this noon. The attack is said to have been started after short, though heavy fire preparation on a broad front. Squadrons of German bomber and fighter formations supported this operation. In the first twenty-four hours, forty-six Anglo-American planes were downed

This report is composed of items from enemy, clandestine, neutral and certain Allied broadcasts made between 1900 yesterday and 1900 to-day; if made before or after that period, the date is given, in addition to the hour. in the course of bitter aerial combats over a narrow offensive strip. German formations in the first offensive thrust over-ran American emplacements. The big offensive battle, which is now in full swing, apparently came as a complete surprise to the Americans. The German operation is said to have taken a favorable course.

STRATEGY OF GERMAN OFFENSIVE

BERLIN — Despite the continuing pressure of the American First Army on the Roer front, especially near Dueren, the fact was clear yesterday that while the fighting here is ferocious it is of local importance only. Obviously, American measures in the whole area of Aix-la-Chapelle are already under the impact of the new German large-scale offensive between Trier and Monschau. In any case, the American action at the Roer was carried out with decidedly less pressure than in the past few days. The German command could, therefore, decide to give up a few positions on the west wing of the river flanks, which were continually threatened and required comparatively strong forces. Troops from these positions could thus be withdrawn to the east bank of the Roer. Attempts by the Americans to interfere with these movements failed, with the enemy suffering heavy losses. UNBROKEN GERMAN VITALITY

(By Suendermann)

BERLIN — The fact that the German armed forces have made a new attack in the west, taking the whole world by surprise, will not miss its effect on world opinion, Stabsleitler Suendermann declared at a press conference on Monday noon. He referred to the words of the Reich Press Chief at Vienna at a meeting of the Union of the National Journalists Associations, where Dr. Dietrich emphasized that while the Germans of 1914 were deceived, those of 1944 were not. When the Reich Press Chief made this statement a few days ago, nobody had thought that it's truth would be demonstrated so soon. Out of the fiercest defence, the Germans had developed a new offensive. Nobody could have imagineda stronger expression of unbroken German vitality.

At the time when the enemy is going about distributing German provinces and debating how many Germans shall be deported as slave laborers, at this period, the German Armed Forces again attack in order to drive the enemy from the soil of the Reich. As Suendermann stated, the liberation of German territory from the enemy is also the fight for Europe. Each blow against the enemy who has penetrated into Europe is an additional stone in the building of new European liberty. (Transocean - 1545 - Dec. 18)

"WAR AGAINST GERMANY NONSENSICAL"

FROM THE EIFEL MOUNTAINS — The most interesting deserter of the past few days has been an American, Private Arthur. He declared he came over to the German lines on his own, by waving a white flag made of three handkerchiefs. He said he had nourished the idea for weeks of ending the war for himself. But there was never a favorable opportunity for him to walk away. Several days ago his group, holding a position on a little brook, was moved away. Under the pretext of removing several wounded and supplying them with medicaments, he went back to the brook. The young American said emphatically that neither cowardice nor fright caused him to take this step. He merely deserted his unit from the conviction that the war against Germany was nonsensical. His motives were based on his political convictions; he said he was anti-Jewish.

BOLOGNA A SECOND CASSINO

It may be seen from numerous statements by prisoners that the Allies admit that they suffer extraordinarily high losses not only on the western front, but also in the fighting in central Italy. The soldier James L. McPhail, for example, declared: This fighting costs us unusual sacrifices. At Bologna, one regiment suffered such high losses that Bologna may be considered to have become a second Cassino for us. (German Overseas Service - 0845)

BOLOGNA PREPARES FOR CHRISTMAS

A growing feeling of security from British advances inspires the population of Bologna.

After three months' experience the people of Bologna put their confidence in the solid German defences in Emilia and on the Apennines. In addition to that the press gives great prominence to news reporting that Indian and British troops have been transferred by air from Italy to Greece.

The town of Bologna is preparing for Christmas and New Year. This time Bologna will have a Christmas marked by the ringing of church bells and the roar of guns. The windows of the stores are stocked with merchandise and food. Chickens, geese and ducks are hanging at the entrances of stores like clusters of grapes. Meat, wine and fruit are in abundance. Some stores have decorated their windows with artificial snow and fir-tree branches and displays of childrens' toys made by local craftsmen. Boys gaze at the small wooden cannons in the shopwindows while the big cannon are firing a few kilometres away from the town. (DNB in German)

EASTERN FRONT

BATTLE FOR BUDAPEST SHELVED

(By Von Olberg)

BERLIN — The battle for Budapest is becoming ever more stationary in character on all three fronts. Large-scale attacks have ceased not only on the south-eastern front where, as a matter of fact, no major attack has been launched for several weeks, but also in the area between the Danube and Lake Balaton, and on the north-eastern front east of the Danube Bend. All that the Russians are doing at present is to make a few purely local efforts to break through the German-Hungarian lines with concentrated forces at some points. But, owing to the constantly growing German-Hungarian defensive strength these efforts have not only failed but the attacking forces, usually of regimental strength, were in most instances driven back to their original positions.

Thus, there is a growing impression that the Soviet command has apparently shelved the battle for Budapest for the time being, owing to the lack of reserves.

During the course of operations developing with increasing violence opposite the southern and south-eastern frontier of Solavkia it is evident in any case that the Soviet command aims at its next success here. But, it also becomes evident that Soviet reserves are no longer available in their former strength. Significant in this connection is the appearance of the Sixth Russian Armored Guard Army which was originally engaged at the Danube bend near Varch for a break-through on Budapest. Now after refilling its ranks, it fights on the Eipel front. This shifting of armored forces to distant battlefields is typical when a shortage of experienced troops occurs. On the other hand this shifting confirms our opinion that the conquest of eastern Slovakia

FIGHTING NEAR BAGNACAVALLO

The heaviest fighting is still taking place on both sides of Bagnacavallo, where two Canadian divisions have today launched repeated attacks. After a series of violent skirmishes, in which the enemy suffered heavy losses, the Canadians succeeded in gaining only 200 metres of ground.

West of Faenza, light thrusts of the Eighth Army were easily broken up by the German defence, which captured a hundred prisoners.

In the other sectors of the front, activity was limited to artillery duels and patrol clashes.

Now after refilling its ranks, it fights on the Eipel front. This shifting of armored forces to distant battlefields is typical when a shortage of experienced troops occurs. On the other hand this shifting confirms our opinion that the conquest of eastern Slovakia is now to be forced by all possible means.

Numerous Soviet attacks were attempted in the large bulge from Ipolysag to the Kosice highway. There was also heavy fighting for the Eipel sector. Between Matra and the Bueck mountains, the impetus of the attacks in the Najo and Hernand valleys, as well as frontal attacks on German-Hungarian positions in the Matra and Bueck mountains and against the west bank of Barsony, clearly show the tendency to invade Slovakia from the east, in order to open the way to Slovakia for the Sixth Ukrainian Army standing at the Dukla pass. Only then might a large-scale offensive on Budapest be launched with full force from the northeast. For the time being, however, the tenacity of the German defence has checked these plans. HUNGARY—SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE

NO REDS IN BUDAPEST FOR CHRISTMAS

BUDAPEST — There are no Christmas decorations in the shops of Budapest this year. People hurry through the streets burdened with anxiety for their country, their relatives and friends. Enemy propaganda thinks that as a result of this attitude, the inhabitants would welcome the Bolshevik because that would mean the end of the war for them, but this is far from being the truth.

The workers of the capital hold to National Socialism, which respects the century-old Hungarian traditions and ensures equal distribution of burdens and worries. They also realize and must realize that Bolshevism would mean the end of all they have been used to. Now December nights are filled with the lights and thunder of war. Still, there will be a Christmas spirit in the city, if the population succeeds in keeping out the red menace.

« JOIN THE HUNGARIST LEGION! »

The Hungarian and German soldiers have already checked the Bolsheviks. Today, every Hungarian has an opportunity to be worthy of the name « Hungarian » on the field of honor; to fight in the spirit of our ancestors with traditional bravery for the life of our fatherland. The movement of the Arrow Cross Party has always, in all its actions, served the unity of the nation and its interests. It wants to be the first to obey the command of our time; to ease the fighting front, the party and the movement have offered all the forces at their disposal, and first of all, those members wishing to fight. Hungarist leaders and party members are volunteering for front-line duty, in order to emphasize the ideology of heroism with their own example. The party branches have set up recruiting offices all over the country, to list and direct the volunteers. Every honest Hungarian brother should report: everybody who feels that there is only one duty today: to fight for the new, great Hungarian realm. Workers, peasants, professionals, civil servants, free lancers, soldiers, and armament workers, we are calling all of you to fight the holy battle for liberty. Youth between 16-21 years of age, and men between 21-47 years of age may enlist in the legion of volunteers. We are calling and expecting you, Hungarian brothers, to fight for your family, and for the future and happiness of our nation.

During his stay at Koeszeg (in western Hungary), Jenoe Szoelloesy, the Hungarian Deputy Premier, received representatives of the press and spoke to them about topical political and military problems. He said that perfect calm and order prevailed in the capital; that production went on without interruption in the offices, factories, and workshops. He paid tribute to the exemplary and patriotic behavior of the workers.

« The Hungarian workers stay at their working places in spite of the occasional bursts of Soviet shells from long-range guns; many of them take up arms and join the ranks of the fighting Honveds. »

The Deputy Premier emphasized in the course of further conversation that politics must play a secondary role in these decisive hours and that all our strength must be employed in halting the invader, and in expelling him from the country. « From this, we may conclude that at present the government is solely occupied with military problems. »

To the question of how the Deputy Premier was viewing the military situation, he said: « I am confident. We are uniting all our forces, re-organizing our army; we partly re-train it and, with the help of our great allies, the German Reich, partly re-equip it. It is my belief and faith that soon the military situation will turn in our favor. There is no reason to despair... » repeated Jenoe Szoelloesy, the Deputy Premier. (Radio Budapest - 2040)

MUSSOLINI SPEAKS

Here is the text of the speech delivered this morning by Mussolini: « If some of our enemies — of our multicolored enemies, for besides the white bastards there are in their ranks people of all races — had been present at the parade which led today through Via Dante, they would have been convinced that, in spite of the greyness of this year, bright spring is about to begin for our country.

« I feel it in your enthusiasm, I can read it in your eyes. The echo of the Milan demonstrations has been heard by the soldiers of the four divisions which are undergoing a period of training in Germany, subject to stern discipline and earnest preparation, and preparing to liberate their Fatherland.

« Each of you must feel he is a soldier and as such he will follow this motto: 'All and everything for Italy'. »

DUCE VISITS « ETTORE MUTI » BARRACKS

This morning, Milan experienced another great day, when Mussolini visited at the « Ettore Muti » barracks, the « Aldo Resega » battalion, and afterwards went to the hospital for wounded and disabled soldiers.

The manifestation had its epilogue when Italian armored units marched before the Duce, and the Milanese once again expressed, by their enthusiastic tribute, their faith in and their devotion for their leader.

The crowds paid tribute to the Head of the nation as they had done the day before, expressing their confidence in the coming victory and in the future of the country.

Mussolini, who had arrived at the « Ettore Muti » barracks, heralded by the bugle call to attention, was visibly moved by the welcome he received. His car was surrounded by an enthusiastic crowd, eager in its devotion and its faith. The cordons of the National Republican guards were broken and the people crowded around the Duce, repeating cries of devotion and admiration.

Moving at a very slow pace, Mussolini's car reached the « Ettore Muti » barracks, where he reviewed the « Resega » Battalion.

The Milanese filled the Via Dante, where the barracks are located, and fresh cheering broke out when the Duce left. Men, women, and children crowded around him, telling him of their faith in the victory of Fascist Italy against the enemy for the liberation of the sacred soil of the fatherland.

The Duce then took his place on a tank, from which he reviewed the Fascist armored forces, ready to be employed on the southern front against the invaders.

Every unit was greeted with loud cheers by the crowd. The Duce seemed very moved by the warmth of the demonstration, which reached its climax when a Bersaglieri unit marched at its characteristic double quick time.

When the parade was over and the Duce was ready to continue his tour, the surrounding crowd detained him, repeating again and again its fervent expression of loyalty and faith.

The Duce then made a short speech in which he expressed his heartfelt thanks and his praise for the proud attitude of the people of Milan and his certainty that this sentiment will receive its reward from the country.

The Duce sent a greeting to the four Italian divisions, trained in Germany, who are giving their courage and their lives in the struggle for the liberation of the fatherland from the invaders.

Accompanied by the Secretary of the Party, Pavolini, and Under Secretary Barracu, the Duce proceeded to the hospital, where lie the wounded and disabled soldiers and where Gold Medal Borsani is also under treatment. The Duce went immediately to the ward where Borsani is lying, and had a long and cordial talk with him. Borsani's little daughter, Raffaella, was present. The Duce took her in his arms and kissed her. He visited all the other wards, stopping to talk with the patients and interesting himself in the accounts given by the soldiers of the action in which they had been wounded.

Every soldier received a gift, together with a laurel sprig. (Fascist Radio - 1300)

DUCE'S INTEREST IN THE WORKING CLASSES

Late in Sunday afternoon the Duce personally took into consideration problems affecting the working classes. The Duce is particularly interested in these problems which are of paramount importance especially in view of the serious moment which the Social Republic is going through.

The Duce received representatives of Milanese industrial workers who were introduced to him by Naddeschi, Secretary of the Fascist Labor Union, who reported in full on the work carried out by the workers' commissions. The Chief of the Republic took a lively interest in the report.

At the end of the conference, the Duce addressed a few

The house of Giuseppe Mazzini has been re-opened in Genoa. It has now been restored, since the damage caused to it by enemy air-raids in September last. On this occasion, the President of the Centre of Mazzini studies officially opened the academic year.

RAILWAYMEN IN THE FRONT LINE

Railwaymen working in the Milan, Genoa and Turin sector fully deserve the praise given to them by Minister Liverani, which can be shared by railway men of other sectors not mentioned in the report.

These men, since the enemy has chosen as a favorite target our railway lines and communications, lead a hard and perilous life. Today it is more dangerous to travel on a train of workers going towards the place where they work, or on a train carrying supplies to a town, than to be sent on patrol operations beyond the fighting line.

Yet the Italian railwaymen continue to work calmly at their post: obscure and willing heroes, they persevere in their duties and calmly look death and danger in the face.

The country owes to their self sacrifice the fact that it still has the benefit of a limited railway service. The employees of the railways, which before the war were the first in the world, besides their well-known technical ability, can be proud today of the civic courage and devotion to duty which they are showing now.

Thus Fascism, which had made of the Italian railway service a perfect instrument of technical and economic power in the nation's service, has known... (disturbed)...

These railway workers, who offer every day to their country a sacrifice of dead, wounded and maimed, deserve the admiration and the gratitude of all Italian people.

HELP FOR REFUGEES FROM ALLIED OCCUPATION

Under the central presidency of the National Institute of Asssitance to Refugees, the first meeting of the regional sections has been held. President Ercolani outlined the programme that the sections will have to follow for the solution of the problems concerning the renewal of activity in the regions at present invaded by the enemy.

The commissions invite students and technical experts residing in Republican Italy to send plans, studies, monographs, etc., relating to economic, social, agricultural, commercial and industrial problems, which need to be studied to facilitate the development of these activities in every province.

The best entries will receive adequate rewards.

The weight of these parcels must not exceed five kilos and should not contain any perishable articles. They should, if possible, be packed in boxes or small cases.

The delivery of parcels should be made not later than December 31, and are to be handed over to the Republican women's « Fasci. » The despatcher will receive a receipt signed by the soldier in question that the parcel has been handed in. (Fascist Radio - 2000)

When the parade was over and the Duce was ready to continue his tour, the surrounding crowd detained him, repeating again and again its fervent expression of loyalty and faith.

The Duce then made a short speech in which he expressed his heartfelt thanks and his praise for the proud attitude of the people of Milan and his certainty that this sentiment will receive its reward from the country.

The Duce sent a greeting to the four Italian divisions, trained in Germany, who are giving their courage and their lives in the struggle for the liberation of the fatherland from the invaders.

Accompanied by the Secretary of the Party, Pavolini, and Under Secretary Barracu., the Duce proceeded to the hospital, where lie the wounded and disabled soldiers and where Gold Medal Borsani is also under treatment. The Duce went immediately to the ward where Borsani is lying, and had a long and cordial talk with him. Borsani's little daughter, Raffaella, was present. The Duce took her in his arms and kissed her. He visited all the other wards, stopping to talk with the patients and interesting himself in the accounts given by the soldiers of the action in which they had been wounded.

DUCE'S INTEREST IN THE WORKING CLASSES

Late in Sunday afternoon the Duce personally took into consideration problems affecting the working classes. The Duce is particularly interested in these problems which are of paramount importance especially in view of the serious moment which the Social Republic is going through.

The Duce received representatives of Milanese industrial workers who were introduced to him by Naddeschi, Secretary of the Fascist Labor Union, who reported in full on the work carried out by the workers' commissions. The Chief of the Republic took a lively interest in the report.

At the end of the conference, the Duce addressed a few words to those present. (Fascist Radio - 2215)

NEW ORGANISATION OF SYNDICATES

Following the transfer of all the professional syndicates to the General Confederation of Labor, Technique and Arts, a new juridical organisation of the syndicates themselves is being studied, with the aim of decentralising the inter-provincial syndicates, whenever this is possible. In the meantime, as the accountants' syndicate of Milan is inter-provincial, the elective assembly for the appointment of the secretary, of the board of directors and of the revisors, scheduled for the 18th instant, is postponed to a date which will be communicated later. HELP FOR REFUGEES FROM ALLIED OCCUPATION

Under the central presidency of the National Institute of Asssitance to Refugees, the first meeting of the regional sections has been held. President Ercolani outlined the programme that the sections will have to follow for the solution of the problems concerning the renewal of activity in the regions at present invaded by the enemy.

The commissions invite students and technical experts residing in Republican Italy to send plans, studies, monographs, etc., relating to economic, social, agricultural, commercial and industrial problems, which need to be studied to facilitate the development of these activities in every province.

The best entries will receive adequate rewards.

PARCELS FOR SOLDIERS

With the idea of facilitating the despatch of parcels to combatants for the forthcoming holiday, the Republican women's «Fasci,» in agreement with the military authorities, have organized a special service to collect and carry the parcels sent by their families to soldiers of the different units operating on the Italian front.

The weight of these parcels must not exceed five kilos and should not contain any perishable articles. They should, if possible, be packed in boxes or small cases.

The delivery of parcels should be made not later than December 31, and are to be handed over to the Republican women's «Fasci.» The despatcher will receive a receipt signed by the soldier in question that the parcel has been handed in. (Fascist Radio - 2000)

BLACK BRIGADES IN ACTION

The locality which was the goal of one of our recent actions is many kilometres from the capital of the province, and about seven hundred meters above sea level. Roads lead to it from three different directions. This was the seat of a group of outlaws, who carried out robberies of every kind at the expense of the inhabitants, who asked for nothing better than to be liberated from the constant vexation of these scoundrels.

The village which we had the task of mopping-up was a typical example of an infested region and our aim was to prevent the escape of the outlaws. We had consequently to induce the mountain groups to converge towards one point, against which we should later exert the pressure of our whole unit. Our action started in the open country instead of in the village itself. This system was not devoid of risk and personal, tactical and transport danger. But the men of the Black Brigades are used to these difficulties and face them with courage and coolness.

Skirmishes took place around the farm houses. The bandits thought they were menaced from the side they believed to be most secure. The tactics followed by our commander had been successful. The outlaws were obliged to fight exactly where we were waiting for them and many were killed and wounded; about thirty of them were forced to surrender and only a few made good their escape. After we garrisoned the village, the peasants brought us the arms and supplies hidden by the outlaws. The actions of the first period of the « squadrismo » are renewed. They are reflected in today's work of liberation, for the benefit and the revival of our country.

Communiqué:

December 6th: At the moment when a military convoy was passing along the newly-reconstructed Ceprano- Belvedere railway line in Calabria — which occurs every other day — two railway engines and three wagons were derailed, causing serious damage to military and railway material. The incident was apparently caused by the removal of a railway track, an act of sabotage carried out shortly before the convoy was due by a squad of Fascists operating December 6th: Between Molfetta and Giovinazz, on the highway leading from Bari to Foggia, a well-camouflaged obstacle swung out and resulted in the destruction of a heavy British truck with a double trailer loaded with war material. The driver and a Canadian non-commissioned officer were wounded. According to information received later, it appears that shots were also fired at the truck. The command of Molfetta offered a reward for information about the authors of this act of sabotage which, according to this command, is not the first to be carried out in this region.

December 6th: On the walls of the streets of Catanzaro, leaflets printed clandestinely were postered, demanding the return of Fascism and criticizing the Anglo-American invaders.

December 8th: Besides information already published by the newspapers regarding the incidents and the risings which took place in Catanzaro, we now learn that in Palermo also the posters calling to arms some classes of citizens, were torn down at many places in the city. On other posters, words of protest were written against the enemy and the Italian traitors in his service.

December 10th: Near Monte Pacoli, in the neighborhood of the Grosseto road, a tanker loaded with fuel for the supply of military vehicles was set on fire. The enemy command believes this action was due to Fascist sabotage.

December 10th: Near the station of Orte, a big esplosive device blew up before a building requisitioned by the enemy command. The building was damaged.

THE FRANCO-RUSSIAN PACT

The Franco-Russian pact asserts the sincere wish of the two peoples to continue war against Germany in the common interest, but they have not been told what that common interest was.

In principle, the pact is valid for twenty years, but there is a conventional clause which distinguishes diplomatic acts from military ones.

Moreover, the contracting parties have signed a whole series of secret agreements, which will not be revealed either to the French or to the Russians.

The spokesman recalled the plans for the formation of a Scandinavian bloc, which Moscow torpedoed on the ground that the latter was directed against the Soviet Union.

COMMENTS and SPEECHES

WILHELMSTRASSE PRESS CONFERENCE

BERLIN — As was to be expected, yesterday's statement in the House of Commons on the Polish question was the main topic of discussion at today's German Foreign Office press conference. Von Stumm began his detailed comments on Churchill's speech by saying that it was addressed less to Members of Parliament and the Poles, than to Britain's ally, Soviet Russia. It was not addressed directly to Poland, insofar as in actual fact it expressed nothing but Britain's official lack of interest in Poland's fate.

Von Stumm connected Churchill's speech directly with his latest statement in the Commons on the Greek question. London has now sacrificed Poland to Soviet aspirations in order to retain Greece as a British sphere of influence uncontested by Moscow, and to secure Soviet non-interference in Greece. For strategic reasons and for reasons of regard to the British guarantee to Poland, which has been so shamefully betrayed by the course of events, Churchill's assertion that the region east of the Curzon line consists largely of the useless Pripet Marshes is not likely to offer consolation to the inhabitants of Galicia, Volhynia and Vilna, von Stumm said. Churchill generously compensates the Poles by allotting them an area which on the map runs exactly from west of Pillau via Stettin to the Oder. Von Stumm said that this distribution of territory as well as Churchill's resettlement plans are being publicised and justified with unparalleled cynicism.

Churchill even goes so far as to make a statement, unrivalled in its brutality, that Germany's past and future casualties in this war will provide enough space for re-settled Germans from the east. With particular emphasis von Stumm pointed out that Churchill simply plans but to annihilate the German people without class distinction. He is working for a political and a material jungle in Europe. Von Stumm expressed the opinion that every German would take proper notice of Churchill's attack against the German people. United States soldiers in the west and in Italy will be made to feel, in their own persons, the German soldiers' reactions to these destructive plans. Von Stumm described as also noteworthy the fact that Churchill admitted in his speech that he knew nothing of the intentions of the Russian armies. Von Stumm made a point of drawing the correspondents' attention to Churchill's view, that if the Poles continue to disagree among themselves there is a danger of positively chaotic conditions developing should the Red Army advance further into Polish territory. Thereby Churchill indirectly characterizes the Red Army men as the same kind of murderers, assassins and bandits as he called the Greek partisans a few days ago.

Finally, von Stumm placed particular emphasis on the desire expressed again and again in Churchill's and Eden's speeches for a Three Power Conference at the earliest possible date, which Churchill regards as the only way out of all the difficulties.

Following his statement on Churchill's speech, Von Stumm gave the correspondents a brief survey of the Commons debate and Eden's speech. He said that it was significant that hardly one MP supported Churchill. One MP described the reaction to Churchill's speech with the phrase, « a horrible, shame-faced, frigid and ugly silence followed upon Churchill's speech. » Von Stumm said that Eden's speech, containing largely repetitions of Churchill's statements, was less interesting. It struck an even more pessimistic note than did Churchill's, and it expressed Britain's yielding and impotence in the face of Moscow's demands.

Von Stumm connected Churchill's speech directly with his latest statement in the Commons on the Greek question. London has now sacrificed Poland to Soviet aspirations in order to retain Greece as a British sphere of influence uncontested by Moscow, and to secure Soviet non-interference in Greece. For strategic reasons and for reasons of transport policy, Greece is far more important to Britain than Poland is. Von Stumm's view on both of Churchill's speeches expresses the fact that Britain reserves to herself the right to exert influence on the appointments of the chiefs of various emigre governments. In Italy, Count Sforza was rejected; in Greece Papandreou is supported; in Belgium, Pierlot is kept in office; in the case of Poland, the new Arciszewski cabinet is considered so irrelevant that it is not even mentioned by name.

On the other hand, Churchill's statement on Greece contained a sharp attack on the communist «mob democrats,» while in his treatment of the Polish affair, Churchill stabs the democrats of the Polish Emigré Government in London in the back. Von Stumm then said that naturally, Churchill blames the Poles themselves for the Polish tragedy and not the failure of the British guarantee. If Mikolajczyk had stayed there would have been no Lublin Committee, Churchill argued. Churchill now feels himself justified in striking a pessimistic note, a tone which was even stronger in Eden's speech.

As regards Churchill's renewed acceptance of the Soviet version that Moscow is interested in a «free and independent Poland,» von Stumm said: After all, Stalin knows nothing freer and stronger and more independent than a Soviet Ukraine, and therefore a Soviet Poland.

In von Stumm's opinion, Churchill's high-sounding tirades on the justification and compensation for the Curzon line are a clear expression of his guilty conscience with respondents' attention to Churchill's view, that if the Poles continue to disagree among themselves there is a danger of positively chaotic conditions developing should the Red Army advance further into Polish territory. Thereby Churchill indirectly characterizes the Red Army men as the same kind of murderers, assassins and bandits as he called the Greek partisans a few days ago.

AIMS AND EFFECTS OF BRITISH POLICY

(By Hans Fritzsche)

Ladies and gentlemen,

Illusions are undoubtedly the most cumbersome and dangerous luggage that one can carry with one into a fight. We Germans of the present generation have learned to do without this luggage. We entered this war with the realistic consciousness, free from all illusions, that it was going to be a life-and-death struggle. And after the calamities of last summer and autumn we deliberately renounced all dreams and mobilized that power of resistance the effect of which the enemy, still laboring under the illusion of victory, has termed the «German miracle».

This miracle, the full extent of which is not yet known to the enemy, is the result of a methodical concentration of the total strength of our people, inspired with the conviction that this effort is indispensable and will be crowned with success.

In contrast with this wonder-working German realism, England is pursuing at present a policy of pure illusion. We have been for years at a loss to understand what, according to the avowal made yesterday by Eden, impelled England to start spontaneously a war against the attempt to unite the peoples of Europe, when, as the war takes its course, she drives all the peoples of Europe into the hands of Bolshevism.

Never before, however, has this obvious contrast between the aims and effects of British politics and warfare been more drastically emphasized in England itself than by a speech on the Polish issue delivered yesterday in Parliament by Winston Churchill.

That must have been a strange session of Parliament described by an English commentator as a sad, bitter, small debate. A strange feeling of sadness brooded over the House!

Another member expressed the opinion that Parliament had listened to Churchill's speech in a terrible, attentive but cold silence. And a third member stated that Churchill's speech contained the seed of a future war.

What was the matter with that speech? Well, Churchill tried to make the former Polish exile government in London, long since disappeared, comprehend that they ought to have reached an agreement with Moscow at all costs, that they could very well yield to the Bolsheviks the easternmost third of Polish territory since Poland would be generously indemnified by parts of German territory in the west.

With overwhelming eloquence and satanic arguments Churchill tried to persuade the Poles, and in his bestial brutality he even attempted to make the exchange of territories acceptable to them by saying that they should not be afraid of a mixed German-Polish population in their new territories, for millions of Germans would be killed. But this proposal for an understanding between Polish émigrés and Moscow, formulated with so much senile hatred and meeting with a cool reception even on the part of English members of Parliament, was nothing but a ghastly illusion, although imbued with a very realistic blood-thirstiness. For Moscow is far from desiring an understanding with the Polish émigrés in London and is entirely indifferent to the terms offered for this purpose.

Moscow has already created a docile instrument for its policy in the shape of the Lublin Committee and would not dream of taking a step backward by putting up with the unnecessary complication of a democratic fiction.

Thus Churchill offered to the Bolsheviks one half of Poland which he does not possess and the lives of many millions of Germans protected by the Wehrmacht, and for the sake of the Bolsheviks he gave the Polish émigrés advice termed dishonorable in Parliament, but all this sacrifice was in vain! It was made for an illusion, the non-existent possibility of re-establishing a balance in Europe with the aid of Bolshevism as his ally.

More than one Englishman may have drawn a breath of relief when British soldiers in Greece fired on communist bands and attacked them with guns, tanks and aircraft, in the belief that the British lion was at last showing his claws again.In reality however, Churchill may well have felt that his people could not be expected to put up with the surrender to Bolshevism of one British strongpoint after another without as much as an attempt at resistance.

Those who still entertained illusions as to the significance of English resistance to the aspirations of the communist bands in Greece, might have begun to see things in their true light when, yesterday, Churchill made one sacrifice after another on the altar of friendship with Bolshevism, a series of sacrifices the more senseless as Moscow is already busy putting into effect the theoretical concept of a Soviet-Poland with which it can deal direct, without Churchill's services as a go-between.

The value, however great or small, of these sacrifices of Churchill's culminates in renewed and altogether credible protestation of faithful subservience to Moscow.

Yet in my opinion this Churchill speech is important in still another respect for us and the other peoples of Europe. It proves once more the correctness of our old contention, voiced by us immediately after the secret understanding between London and Moscow had become known, that England is neither able nor willing to protect Europe against Bolshevism.

Winston Churchill used a miserable trick when he accused the present Polish exile government in London of having frustrated the attempted understanding with Moscow. In point of fact it was Churchill who in his blind hatred of Germany brought Bolshevism as his ally into Europe, yielding to it by direct negotiation at the conferences in Teheran and Moscow a great number of valuable positions, and now he seems surprised only at the fact that Bolshevism is not satisfied with these concessions agreed upon in conferences, but is pocketing in addition whatever it can, even in territories allegedly protected by English and American arms.

There is a lingering crisis in Belgium, an open crisis in Greece, and, to boot, some English opinions openly welcome the pact concluded by de Gaulle with Stalin. They take this pact to be nothing but a continuation of the alliance which linked France and Russia prior to the last war.

It dawns only slowly upon the English that such a pact with Bolshevism is something essentially different from an agreement with Russia, since its conclusion is inevitable the starting point for the formation of a thousand

These, however, are facts which are only now becoming clear to certain Europeans who listened with deep emotion to the hymns accompanying the establishment of the Atlantic Charter.

It is highly gratifying to see political views, previously disbelieved by the world at large, proved correct by the trend of events, for instance our assertions as to the essence of Bolshevism and the motives of British and American warfare. It is true that this gratification would be marred by a feeling of bitterness, if to be right in the end would in the present instance be tantamount to hoisting the flag of truth on a heap of ruins, excellent illustration of our thesis though the latter may be. But the real state of things is quite different.

The correctness of our theories concerning the foundations of European community of life has become discernible to the whole of Europe at a time when the principal champions of these theories, we Germans, are experiencing amidst formidable difficulties a resurrection of our strength which has completely shattered all expectations of the enemy.

Thus at the very moment when among the vicissitudes of a hard war large territories have been lost in Europe, it is being realized more clearly than ever before that over the camp of fighting Germany floats the flag of Europe.

When four years ago the last English forces were chased from European soil, the fact of England's manifest weakness dealt a heavy blow to the English illusion under which so many peoples of our continent labored.

Now that British soldiers, covered by Americans and Bolsheviks, have reappeared in Europe, this English illusion receives another blow by the realisation of the miserable treachery committed by England, Churchill's England, against Europe.

And above all illusions hovers the dim beginning of an understanding that the peoples of Europe are actually interlinked by an indissoluble community of fate and that they can, must and will make use of their own strength!

Victory bells were supposed to ring in England from this evening until Christmas. There were to be fireworks and festivals of light and joy were to be celebrated. Such were the plans made in October in the premature flush of victory. In place of that, the neutral papers give very gloomy reports on the English mood in the week preceding Christmas. Instead of joyous feasts, every English family receives one egg for the first time for six months and, as far as the fireworks are concerned, everybody thinks of « V-2 » which, at the end of the year, reminds England in a very painful way of the crimes she perpetrated in the bombing terror. How England suffers from the retaliation is best illustrated by the fact that the British Government has promised high rewards to every pilot who succeeds in finding or destroying the launching platforms of « V-2 ». Each American or British flying officer who fulfils this condition will receive a gift of half a million dollars or an estate in Canada.

The Allies felt certain that there would not be a sixth war Christmas. The Allies maintained that there would only be a bit of shooting in October. It was considered impossible that the Germans would live through another winter. The enemy now experiences a disappointment which is near to panic. This disappointment has resulted in war weariness on an unprecedented scale and pessimism throughout the whole country, which can scarcely be concealed. England rejoiced too early over victory and, still worse, drew premature conclusions from a war allegedly won. As long as victory did not seem assured to the minds of the Allies, there was unity in the enemy camp owing to military necessity. The enemy coalition seemed firmly welded and without fissures. Their unity was that of a gang of bandits keen on aircraft, in the belief that the British lion was at last showing his claws again.In reality however, Churchill may well have felt that his people could not be expected to put up with the surrender to Bolshevism of one British strongpoint after another without as much as an attempt at resistance.

Those who still entertained illusions as to the significance of English resistance to the aspirations of the communist bands in Greece, might have begun to see things in their true light when, yesterday, Churchill made one sacrifice after another on the altar of friendship with Bolshevism, a series of sacrifices the more senseless as Moscow is already busy putting into effect the theoretical concept of a Soviet-Poland with which it can deal direct, without Churchill's services as a go-between.

The value, however great or small, of these sacrifices of Churchill's culminates in renewed and altogether credible protestation of faithful subservience to Moscow.

Yet in my opinion this Churchill speech is important in still another respect for us and the other peoples of Europe. It proves once more the correctness of our old contention, voiced by us immediately after the secret understanding between London and Moscow had become known, that England is neither able nor willing to protect Europe against Bolshevism.

Winston Churchill used a miserable trick when he accused the present Polish exile government in London of having frustrated the attempted understanding with Moscow. In point of fact it was Churchill who in his blind hatred of Germany brought Bolshevism as his ally into Europe, yielding to it by direct negotiation at the conferences in Teheran and Moscow a great number of valuable positions, and now he seems surprised only at the fact that Bolshevism is not satisfied with these concessions agreed upon in conferences, but is pocketing in addition whatever it can, even in territories allegedly protected by English and American arms.

There is a lingering crisis in Belgium, an open crisis in Greece, and, to boot, some English opinions openly welcome the pact concluded by de Gaulle with Stalin. They take this pact to be nothing but a continuation of the alliance which linked France and Russia prior to the last war.

It dawns only slowly upon the English that such a pact with Bolshevism is something essentially different from an agreement with Russia, since its conclusion is inevitable the starting point for the formation of a thousand ties designed to make a country ripe for Bolshevism.

Mr. Eden declared yesterday that it is an old tradition of British politics always to act as leader of a coalition opposing the strongest power on the continent. This makes it comprehensible why England has always enjoyed the sympathies of the small European peoples who were wholly averse to protection by some continental system which might cost them a certain curtailment of their liberty of action. For centuries England has regarded these sympathies of the small European states as an absolute certainty. Now she has definitely lost them. At a time when vast European areas were occupied by German troops, England endeavored to rally the crowd of the eternally dissatisfied, increasing their numbers by means of persistent propaganda; but to-day the great English illusion cherished by the European underground movement has been superseded by a more realistic appraisal of English activities. In the first years of this war and even in the years immediately preceding it the peoples of Europe were offered protection by an England boasting of the support not only of her American but also of her Bolshevik ally. To-day they see an England further weakened by these two allies, so warmly praised by her a short time ago.

Not without cause did Churchill lament the lack of an unequivocal American attitude in the matter of certain European problems. In reality America is interested in our old continent only in so far as she can hope to eliminate a competitor and conquer a new market for her exports.

(By Dr. Rudolf Semmler.)

Victory bells were supposed to ring in England from this evening until Christmas. There were to be fireworks and festivals of light and joy were to be celebrated. Such were the plans made in October in the premature flush of victory. In place of that, the neutral papers give very gloomy reports on the English mood in the week preceding Christmas. Instead of joyous feasts, every English family receives one egg for the first time for six months and, as far as the fireworks are concerned, everybody thinks of «V-2» which, at the end of the year, reminds England in a very painful way of the crimes she perpetrated in the bombing terror. How England suffers from the retaliation is best illustrated by the fact that the British Government has promised high rewards to every pilot who succeeds in finding or destroying the launching platforms of «V-2». Each American or British flying officer who fulfils this condition will receive a gift of half a million dollars or an estate in Canada.

The Allies felt certain that there would not be a sixth war Christmas. The Allies maintained that there would only be a bit of shooting in October. It was considered impossible that the Germans would live through another winter. The enemy now experiences a disappointment which is near to panic. This disappointment has resulted in war weariness on an unprecedented scale and pessimism throughout the whole country, which can scarcely be concealed. England rejoiced too early over victory and, still worse, drew premature conclusions from a war allegedly won. As long as victory did not seem assured to the minds of the Allies, there was unity in the enemy camp owing to military necessity. The enemy coalition seemed firmly welded and without fissures. Their unity was that of a gang of bandits, keen on robbery and murder, which is united until it has carried out its thievish plans. Such a brotherhood nearly always ceases when the loot comes to be divided. One gangster tries to double-cross the other and if shrewdness is of no avail, they resort to other means, namely to threats, blackmail, force and terror.

Today, the world is witnessing a play in which the Soviets, British and Americans perform the parts of gangsters double-crossing each other. But they are unfortunate enough to be quarelling about the sharing of the skin of a bear which has not yet been killed and which, as things are, they never will kill. The Allied quarrel about the booty which, according to the enemy programme, was naturally to be postponed till after the war, started too early, owing to the wrong prophesies and speculations in London and Washington. The consequences have been serious since the European peoples who some months ago cheered the tank spearheads of their liberators, realized from present developments what the world of to-morrow will look like after a German defeat. There would be civil war instead of unity, misery instead of welfare, and chaos instead of a just order.

It is evident that England must be the scapegoat when there are frictions and disagreements among the Big Three in the enemy camp, since England is the weakest member in the enemy coalition. England has today reached a deadlock from which she cannot find a way out. She is so dependent upon the Soviet Union that there is no longer any independent English foreign policy. That the world power of the British Empire rests on a weak foundation is proved by the fact that Churchill, like a beggar, must implore Roosevelt and Stalin for a meeting. Roosevelt is not willing to go to London and Stalin has no mind at all to leave Moscow.

Churchill's last speech shocked the world by the disclosure of the criminal plan of deporting millions of Germans from their homes. Such plans are meant to prove British strength and self-confidence to the outside world. In fact, they conceal Britain's uneasiness at the present time.

According to English and neutral newspaper reports, London is apprehensive of the dangers which the political events of recent days entail for the existence of the coalition. She feels uneasy about the fact that Allied unity in the political field rests on a very frail base. The Churchill crisis in the field of internal policy adds to the irritability and nervousness of the English population.

As for us, we assess all this at a comparatively low value. We only mention the present political tension in the enemy camp because we attempt to convey a complete picture of the situation. We would perhaps otherwise not consider these events worth mentioning. We actually need not base our speculations on the disagreements in the enemy camp. We know exactly what our military strength is and also know what reserve we have. This is sufficient. We know that we are sufficiently strong to stage a « come-back » and that we are able to recapture the championship which was once in our hands. The enemy also is aware of this fact, and that knowledge may add to British uneasiness. England faces a winter similar to that through which we lived once when, after the brilliant offensives of 1941, we were confronted with a serious winter crisis which brought us to the verge of the abyss. Our enemies, similar to ourselves in 1941, believed themselves near to victory, but they will feel the reverse more than we, because mistakes may be made at the beginning or in the midst of a fight, but not in the last round. The worst mistakes are those which occur at the eleventh hour. They cannot be corrected and we shall prove it in the west.

MUSSOLINI IN PIAZZA SAN SEPOLCRO

The Duce this afternoon was once again among his most faithful followers in Milan, those who never accepted the shame and the treason of the surrender passively and always had their eyes and their will turned to Italy's unfailing rebirth. A large crowd of people and Black Shirts was waiting in Piazza San Sepolcro as the announcement of the Duce's imminent visit spread like fire throughout the city bringing enthusiasm everywhere.

Young heroes of Bir el Gobi, Black Shirts of the « Aldo Resega » Black Brigade, the Group « Honor and Battle », Legionaries of the « Muti » Legion, « White Flames », « Avanguardisti » who will soon know the honor of the battle, young Italian girls, Army and Black Brigade women's auxiliaries were singing their songs on the rebirth in the square bedecked with pennants bearing the colors of the Tripartite. The Duce arrived in Piazza San Sepolcro at 1515 hours. The ardent devotion and unbounded love of the youth, of the Black Shirts and of the people revealed themselves in a demonstration which lasted for a long time. The Duce, who was accompanied by the party's secretary, the head of the province and the Federal Commissioner immediately began his inspection to the various offices of the Republican Fascist federation, cordially talked with workers and employees and listened to reports on the activities of the political and relief services. On ending his visit the Duce highly praised the Federal Commissioner for the work done. Then he went on the balcony of the palace, welcomed by the crowd in the square with a most ardent demonstration.

Mussolini spoke to the Black Shirts and people as follows:

worthy of this name will never be beaten until he has laid down arms ».

The Duce's speech, followed with religious attention by the crowd, was often interrupted by ardent demonstrations and at the end was welcomed by a fresh explosion of enthusiasm. Then Mussolini left Piazza San Sepolcro while demonstrations continued. (Fascist Radio - 2330 - Dec. 16)

MILAN WELCOMES MUSSOLINI

(By the Vice-Secretary of the Party, Pino Romualdi)

Milan, proud of her work and of her faith, today welcomed with deep emotion Benito Mussolini, Duce of Italy, of our nation, which has been great and will be great again, redeemed by the bloodshed and sacrifices of all faithful Italians.

In Milan, the Duce found his own Fascism and his own people, who have not betrayed him, and whose faith increases daily, fighting with desperate stoicism against the black betrayal carried out by the Monarchy; his people who find themselves in him, in his words and in his courage as an undaunted Italian, after the horrible tragedy which seemed to have destroyed the essence of their souls.

To these people, the Duce spoke, speaking essential words, making the moral and historic point of this dramatic situation, which Fascism and the Fascists have courageously faced and are now ready to overcome, fighting in the shadow of their own banner, which is the only standard of Italy, which has come back to live on the field of honor.

All comments on this powerful speech, delivered in an atmosphere of tension which stresses its importance, we shall leave to the Italians who, today, are far from us, and to the foreigners above all, who fear this Republican Italy, standing with her soldiers and her workers at the last ditch of the revolution, of this formidable clash of ideas which will decide the fate of all the peoples of the earth. For us, it is enough to have heard, in the deep and human sound of Mussolini's words, the beating of his indomitable heart, the feeling of his Italian genius which expresses all that is best in our people, our people who, betrayed and disliked by all during the centuries, must finally regain in the world, after so much suffering, a place worthy of the intelligent and creative power of their work.

In this work, and to this end, all Italians are called to collaborate. Fascism shuts the door in no-one's face, while making sure, as is logical and natural, that no one should enter the temple of its work who might undermine it with any new betrayal.

After polemics of all kinds, which have been indulged in during the last few months, with the aim of creating more or less good alibis, the Duce's words penetrated all the fogs in which it was still possible to hide. The picture is clear, and the political, economic and moral programme of the Social Italian Republic is crystalline. At the side of the party which, the Duce asserted, is and remains responsible for the total direction of the State, Italians of good faith, who feel they were betrayed by the Monarchy and by capitalist plutocracy, can work and fight, contributing their ideas and their blood to the common cause. However, the anti-Fascists, responsible for the betrayal, together with the Monarchy, who, in invaded Italy, maltreat the basic values of the Italian nation and persecute their brothers who continue to believe and to fight even under the invader, will never enter the ranks of the party. It would be foolish and above all immoral, in regard to our comrades who wear the Black Shirt, who shed their blood to safeguard the order and dignity of the contry.

In the words of the Duce, the Italians and all the nations who believed in the propaganda of the « liberators », can find a perfect and dramatic picture of the real meaning of this « liberation », which is nothing but political slavery, economical servitude and moral abjection. We revolt against this liberation, and with us all Italians conscious of the situation. We revolt with our soul and with our arms, claiming the right moreover, in the name of all our suf-

Mussolini spoke to the Black Shirts and people as follows:

« Comrades — Now that I have not the screen of a few sheets of paper before me, I feel that I am more directly communicating with your spirit. I speak to you and we look each other in the eyes: we feel that our souls are vibrating in unison because only one flame is burning them deeply for Italy which was great and should return great at the cost of whatever sacrifice.

« Comrades — It is not possible to return to this city of yours and ours after many years, one cannot return in this place without being taken by an intimate, irresistible sense of emotion. This square is connected with an event not only of Italian history but of world history as well. Today, during the swift drive through your city I had the clear impression of the tremendous injuries which have been inflicted on it by a barbarous and abject enemy. The Milan people have shown their capacity to withstand these blows with pride, have once again shown to be able to receive refugees from all regions of Italy within the walls of this city, have shown that the soul of Milan considers all Italians from the Alps to the far distant islands as brothers. As the enemy was advancing northward an ever increasing hostility met him and sharp shooters shot on him in an increasing number. Florence has given an example which fills all Italians with pride. This example has been followed by Forlì and I am sure that all other cities would do the same tomorrow, because by now everybody knows the timber of these liberators. They bring nothing but political servitude, economic slavery, moral abjection. A people ly faced and are now ready to overcome, fighting in the shadow of their own banner, which is the only standard of Italy, which has come back to live on the field of honor.

We revolt with our soul and with our arms, claiming the right moreover, in the name of all our suffering, to fight side by side with our ally against the invader, who must not, at all costs, « liberate » and then destroy our patrimony of the Po valley. With us all European peoples must revolt, because they know by now, for they have experienced it, what it means to abandon oneself to the mercy of the armies of Anglo-American plutocracy. Now is the moment for the men who are languishing and suffering in the midst of this tragedy, today even more desperate and bitter owing to the spate of imperialism, to feel that only Mussolini can open the door to hope. In the midst of this struggle between bourgeois plutocracy — by now out of date but which continues its existence, supported by the material power of its gold — and the levelling and destructing extremism of Bolshevik anarchy, there is this man, this Italian, with the inexhaustible fount of his ideas, the clearness of his public spirit, his courage and his superhuman tenacity as a revolutionary and a builder. From the ruins of betrayal, he is creating a new Italy. It is possible that he may create a new life and a fair peace for all nations.

Comrades of invaded Italy, comrades of the Provinces, who are shedding your blood daily to safeguard revolutionary order and for the victory of our faith, you have listened to the expressive power of the Duce's words. Now, we who have seen him strong and powerful while he spoke, and felt the love of the people around him, we can tell you that the Duce is the Duce of always, the man of the sacred days of all our battles, the man of the unforgettable moments through which we have lived. He weaves with inexhaustible faith and insuperable mastery, the subtle threads of our life as a people. Your comrades have not fallen in vain, you may be sure of this, just as you may be sure that the sacrifice of the Italians who answered his call will not be in vain, the call to defend with their weapons, with their bare hands, this proud Republican Fascist Italy, which means to live and which will live, because it is just and destined that it should be so!

THE CELEBRATIONS IN MILAN

Milan today commemorated Aldo Resega, with the participation of the Duce. The new formations of the party rallied in Piazza San Sepolcro and then marched through the street to the Lirico theatre where the celebration had its climax. Aldo Resega was dear to all Milanese for his ardent love for the fatherland and for his exemplary honesty, and today it seemed that the new banners as well as the new ranks reflected his countenance as well as his spirit. The people followed the ranks of Fascists and flocked to the Lirico in overwhelming numbers. Many thousands of citizens had to stay outside the theatre and joined the impressive mass of people who had already rallied in the square to follow every moment of this very important celebration. The city around the walls of the theatre, full of ardour, waited for the Duce in order to express to him an unbounded devotion. Before reaching the theatre he had to stop repeatedly in the streets and acknowledge the salute of his people of Milan. Then he appeared to the packed theatre. The salute here was a roaring explosion, full of the deepest feeling.

The theatre was full of flags, tricolors as well as flags of the Tripartite; gathered there were his loyal followers of all times, mothers of fallen heroes, badly disabled ex-servicemen, combatants who are today recovering from wounds in order to return to the front, youth delegations, and delegations of factory committees. Diplomatic and military representatives of Greater Germany and of the Japanese empire had their place in reserved boxes. Enzo Grossi, the sinker of two enemy battleships, was among the combatants. Father Eusebio was among the apostles of the rebirth. The party secretary, the Milan federal commissioner, the head of the province and the Mayor of Milan were close to the Duce. Cheers united all hearts in an unforgettable demonstration of entusiasm. From the high speaking box the Duce truly looks the leader of our people and the pilot of our fortunes, strong, calm, gigantic as ever.

After repeatedly acknowledging the salute of the Milan people the Duce delivered his speech in a clear and incisive voice. The speech lasted about one hour, and at the end the voice of the leader was even more vibrant than at the beginning. He spoke without a single pause. Commentators will speak of the importance of what the Duce said this morning to the Italian people and the world. Our eye-witness report will be confined to this point: never has a speech had deeper impression on ourselves. This is supported by the demonstration which greeted the speech when it ended. It has brought us in spirit to Piazza Venezia, when Italy instituted her revival, a revival which was resumed today. Mussolini wanted his closest collaborators nearer the rostrum. The party secretary ordered the salute to the Duce. When the Duce left the theatre his loyal followers once again repeated their solemn pledge. In the streets crowds applauded the revival of the third era of the cause and of the fatherland.

From the Lirico theatre, the Duce went directly to the government palace. We have already spoken of the great longing in the city for this return of the Duce and it is therefore easy to imagine the enthusiasm of the crowd. The great and generous heart of the city was open as in springtime, for by a happy coincidence the sky too suddenly cleared this morning and Milan was in brilliant sunshine. After a brief halt at the government palace, Mussolini, surrounded by hundreds of thousands of men and women who had assembled in the Piazza del Duomo and neighboring streets, with no armed forces, with no invitation card, in order to see him and to listen to him.

What is the exact meaning of this return of the Duce to the great popular rallies, to the familiar conferences with the people, to his talks with Italians full of honor, within a comparatively short time after the events in invaded Italy with the war in Europe and in the Far East — events which were summarized by Mussolini in so far as the past and present are concerned, an oratorical synthesis of vital significance? That is not for us to say. But there is no doubt that this return is an indication, the expected indication.

After July 25, 1943, the Duce's contacts with the people were constantly of an indirect nature. He has been present with his decisions, his will, his determination, in the formation of the young republic, in the reconstruction of the army, of legislation and of social justice.

Though he spoke to armed units, leaders, the people and allied nations, he spoke over a microphone; though he continued to be at the centre of our life, the most striking personality ever seen by Italians in the history of their « Risorgimento » and unity; though he dominated, alive and active, all opposition and polemics of the politicians of the oppression, he was still a Mussolini self-dedicated to seclusion and reluctant to show off, the very same Mussolini left us by the treason of the monarchy, of some Marshals and politicians who had offered a shameful surrender and a harder war to the weary and irresponsible section of the Italian people.

Enemy radios said that Mussolini did not speak because the situation and the war did not allow him to make any promises or guarantees to the people. It was said that Mussolini lost his control of the people forever after July 25, it being added that this control was the secret of his advent to power...

(Monitor's Note: At this point a voice interrupted to say: « Attention, Provinces of Vercelli and Aosta, 2020 hours, limited danger. »)

Now, if Mussolini has spoken it is because he had something to say to Italians. Italians, whether much or little concerned in what he said, all Italians will find promises and guarantees in the speech delivered by the Duce at the Teatro Lirico. And in his return to the people, the people will undoubtedly find an indication of our united revival against enemy coalition, which has not won and which will not win.

« THE REVIVAL OF THE REPUBLIC »
(By Bruno Spampanato).

The speech delivered by Mussolini in the Teatro Lirico of Milan, allowed the people of the second most important Italian city — today the most important of the Republican territory — to regain contact with the chief of the state. The greeting received by Mussolini was not only a tribute paid to the Duce. It also expressed approval of his policy, the only policy which today may be called national, from the Alps to Sicily.

In his speech, Mussolini vindicated the honor of the Italian people, who did not betray, but were betrayed. He recalled clearly and with the responsibility of a chief, that the revival of the Republic, particularly in the field of war, is not only sentimental, but confirmed by facts and illustrated by figures. These stand to prove that even in the present very difficult circumstances, Republican Italy is already contributing soldiers, work and many sacrifices to the cause of the Tripartite. It was fair of Mussolini to recall that the Republican Fasci were the vanguard of this revival, re-opening a chapter in Italy's history, when it seemed irreparably and definitely closed. Mussolini, wished however to recall the principles of the Republic, in order to reconfirm the necessity of moral unity for Italians, the primary condition of his policy.

The theatre was full of flags, tricolors as well as flags of the Tripartite: gathered there were his loyal followers of all times, mothers of fallen heroes, badly disabled ex-servicemen, combatants who are today recovering from wounds in order to return to the front, youth delegations, and delegations of factory committees. Diplomatic and military representatives of Greater Germany and of the Japanese empire had their place in reserved boxes. Enzo Grossi, the sinker of two enemy battleships, was among the combatants. Father Eusebio was among the apostles of the rebirth. The party secretary, the Milan federal commissioner, the head of the province and the Mayor of Milan were close to the Duce. Cheers united all hearts in an unforgettable demonstration of entusiasm. From the high speaking box the Duce truly looks the leader of our people and the pilot of our fortunes, strong, calm, gigantic as ever.

After repeatedly acknowledging the salute of the Milan people the Duce delivered his speech in a clear and incisive voice. The speech lasted about one hour, and at the end the voice of the leader was even more vibrant than at the beginning. He spoke without a single pause. Commentators will speak of the importance of what the Duce said this morning to the Italian people and the world. Our eye-witness report will be confined to this point: never has a speech had deeper impression on ourselves. This is supported by the demonstration which greeted the speech when it ended. It has brought us in spirit to Piazza Venezia, when Italy instituted her revival, a revival which was resumed today. Mussolini wanted his closest collaborators nearer the rostrum. The party secretary ordered the salute to the Duce. When the Duce left the theatre his loyal followers once again repeated their solemn pledge. In the streets crowds applauded the revival of the third era of the cause and of the fatherland.

From the Lirico theatre, the Duce went directly to the government palace. We have already spoken of the great longing in the city for this return of the Duce and it is therefore easy to imagine the enthusiasm of the crowd. The great and generous heart of the city was open as in springtime, for by a happy coincidence the sky too suddenly cleared this morning and Milan was in brilliant sunshine. After a brief halt at the government palace, Mussolini, accompanied by the party secretary, the head of the province and the mayor, drove to the Diaz square to pay an unheralded visit to the communal canteen of Milan. Thousands of workers, men and women, were crowding the large halls waiting for their meal and the visit took place among indescribable demonstrations, which reached their climax when the Duce approached the children, the old people and the women present and spoke to them most cordially. It is impossible to report how the workers rallied to the Duce. His name was invoked with tears in the eyes and when he left the mess, he had difficulty in driving through the crowd. Then he went to Piazza San Sepolcro in order to fulfil a promise made to his legionaries in Milan. The historic square was crowded to capacity, surrounded by gigantic structures, the landmarks of the reconstruction. Mussolini then addressed the people: (Repetition).

« AN INDICATION »

On his return to Milan Mussolini found himself again in the hearts of the Lombard people, a patient, industrious and tenacious people, which had waited for more than a year amidst ruins and suffering the indication of revival. Now this indication has been given by himself with his own voice and presence, to his dear Milan « comrades », as he called them this morning in the impassioned conclusion of the speech, under the eyes of thousands of people.

solini left us by the treason of the monarchy, of some Marshals and politicians who had offered a shameful surrender and a harder war to the weary and irresponsible section of the Italian people.

Enemy radios said that Mussolini did not speak because the situation and the war did not allow him to make any promises or guarantees to the people. It was said that Mussolini lost his control of the people forever after July 25, it being added that this control was the secret of his advent to power...

(Monitor's Note: At this point a voice interrupted to say: « Attention, Provinces of Vercelli and Aosta, 2020 hours, limited danger. »)

Now, if Mussolini has spoken it is because he had something to say to Italians. Italians, whether much or little concerned in what he said, all Italians will find promises and guarantees in the speech delivered by the Duce at the Teatro Lirico. And in his return to the people, the people will undoubtedly find an indication of our united revival against enemy coalition, which has not won and which will not win. « THE REVIVAL OF THE REPUBLIC »

(By Bruno Spampanato).

The speech delivered by Mussolini in the Teatro Lirico of Milan, allowed the people of the second most important Italian city — today the most important of the Republican territory — to regain contact with the chief of the state. The greeting received by Mussolini was not only a tribute paid to the Duce. It also expressed approval of his policy, the only policy which today may be called national, from the Alps to Sicily.

In his speech, Mussolini vindicated the honor of the Italian people, who did not betray, but were betrayed. He recalled clearly and with the responsibility of a chief, that the revival of the Republic, particularly in the field of war, is not only sentimental, but confirmed by facts and illustrated by figures. These stand to prove that even in the present very difficult circumstances, Republican Italy is already contributing soldiers, work and many sacrifices to the cause of the Tripartite. It was fair of Mussolini to recall that the Republican Fasci were the vanguard of this revival, re-opening a chapter in Italy's history, when it seemed irreparably and definitely closed. Mussolini, wished however to recall the principles of the Republic, in order to reconfirm the necessity of moral unity for Italians, the primary condition of his policy.

The chief of the state said that in the Republic, all groups, which loyally adhere to it, have not only the right of citizenship, but also that of examining and controlling measures adopted by the government and local organisations, and their application, just as if they were people entrusted with public charges.

Mussolini spoke about the future social developments of this revolutionary and national Italy, of this new Italy of the people. The present war against plutocracy constitutes a necessary phase during this period of development.

From the Italian horizon, Mussolini passed to the European one, and in this field all Italians should be grateful to the chief of the Republic because for the first time, after long and painful months, through... Italy, risen from her infinite misery, from her ruins, from her crisis, was able to speak to Europe. Her words speak of blood and hardships but they mean that we shall regain our place in Europe, Africa and the Mediterranean. Mussolini explained to the people how this goal will lead to victory. These were the only words which could be said to the Italians and the only man who could say them was Benito Mussolini. The people of the Republic have listened to them, as to encouragement from the leader before the decisive struggle. But our brothers of the invaded territories will have listened to them as to a message of faith, faith in an Italy which will finally be returned to all Italians. (Radio Fante - 2215 - Dec. 16)

THE CALL OF THE COUNTRY

The speech of the Duce will be known in the history of Italy as the Speech to the Milanese, or as the Speech of December 16.

It will also be known in the history of Italy as the speech that marked the revival of the Italian nation. The order given by the Duce to all Italians is to fight against the enemy, against the invader, as well as against all those who have fought against the vital interests of the nation.

All the papers of the Fascist republic, present the speech of Mussolini as a great national and international event. They instance the salient phrases of the speech which reflect the sentiments of the people in arms against the invaders, as well as the impression which the words of Mussolini made on all Italians.

All feel the joy and certainty in our national re-birth. The enthusiasm expressed yesterday by the crowd of Milan is shared by all who in other Italian cities listened to the words of Mussolini.

The sentiments expressed by Mussolini are the best demonstration of the determination of the Italian people to fight until final victory is won.

The people fully understood the importance of yesterday's manifestation and regained contact immediately with their leader, the man who had given to them the greatness of recent history. All fears have fled, thanks to the decided words of Mussolini, who expressed the feeling of the nation, a feeling made of confidence, certainty and determination, for the future of the fatherland.

Mussolini made an appeal to the people of Milan and to the whole country. This appeal was heard in all towns and villages of the country, where the people, somehow aware of this great historic event, had gathered in crowds before the loud-speakers. They felt the powerful breath of fate blow over them, and animate them: the flame of independence and of liberty has become their law, as social justice has for some time already become.

The people felt their Duce's return to them and to the daily contact with their needs and problems. The people regained all their confidence when they found themselves gathered around Mussolini, in whom they see the certain guarantee of final victory. The words of the Duce were the words of faith felt by all Italians. They expressed their certainty in the future of the Italian nation, which will know how to regain the place and the honor of which the traitors bereft her.

The people have accepted the Duce's order: they will follow it blindly, because they know that on the aspirations of this man, stands Italy, with all her glory and her hopes.

« CHURCHILL EATS HIS HAT »

As a result of the sudden and striking illumination afforded by the speech delivered by the Duce in Milan, not only were the old ideas of legionnaires and their faith in resurrection and power re-affirmed, not only was the deep significance of the fate of the fatherland clearly stressed, but the present situation in Europe has been definitely defined.

The Allies had hoped to spend Christmas out of the trenches. This had been repeated over and over again in the mighty Anglo-American capitals and people on both sides of the Atlantic had got excited about it: they really believed it would be possible. Now, however, it is quite clear that Anglo-American soldiers will spend Christmas in the muddy trenches. And not only Christmas, but, as Churchill himself declared, spring and summer also.

The military situation of the Allies, the Duce pointed out in his speech, has become much worse in the last few months. To this military situation perfectly corresponds the political one which has become somewhat critical, and such a situation has been brought about by the invasion itself.

What is the meaning of liberation in Belgium, Italy, Greece? Ruins, misery, despair and civil war. The liberated Greeks bring at the English liberators are merely Russian calm inspired by the confidence with which he discussed future developments of the war. Undoubtedly the audience that heard him was not the immense gathering that filled the Piazza Venezia to capacity but a considerable crowd revealing by preparedness and enthusiasm its disassociation with the collective bleatings of an amorphous mass, even to a trained listener to broadcasts...

I have the impression that Republican Fascism is something very vital and that should the war end in favor of the Tripartite Nations a political aristocracy will arise in the Social Republic, which will give Italy complete unity and a maturity which it was not possible to achieve during the hasty process of our independence. Weak nations gain strength and wisdom in suffering and pain, in the same way as suffering and pain give virility and self-control to men.

These absolutely objective considerations have undoubtedly been made also by the politicians of democracy and Bolshevism who have certainly noted the deep significance of these open and latent manifestations which reveal that a national trend towards Fascism is gaining hold, even in Anglo-Saxon occupied Italy.

The comparison of the present with the past supplies such a clear evidence to the Italian people that it cannot but bring them to meditation and repentance, as well as to the reconsideration of prejudices which led certain sections of the population to be opposed to Mussolini's movement in principle as they did not understand that its vitality was a guarantee for the existence of a rational structure in which Italians might be able to satisfy their fundamental individual and collective demands, whether of moral or material character — though not without toil and anxiety, following a very complicated international situation.

Then the famous binomial Italy-Fascism, which enemy propaganda had succeeded in convincing many Italians was an irreconcilable term, can be identified in a single cry, of liberty...

Mussolini said this morning that, were the Axis armies to return southward, they would find more Fascists than when they left. All Italians, in fact, are Fascists, exasperated as they are by such humiliation and moral poverty...

Mussolini interpreted the feelings of all Italians and... had the courage to admit that Italy has betrayed, though he fixed the proportions of the treason for which the Italian people have no responsibility, while that of some leaders and classes is obvious... Mussolini was not optimistic but attuned his words to a sincere reality when he revealed some bitter truths about us, our weaknesses, the weak points of the enemy and hinted that in the new phase the break of the political front of the so-called United Nations...

Mussolini did not announce the miracle decisive of the war, but confirmed the increased war capacity of the Tripartite and the overcoming of a crisis which...

Calm is the virtue of the strong. Mussolini showed this morning that he possessed this calm, and shows it to that part of the Italian people who works for the cause of the Tripartite although deprived of the possibility of seeing its actual manifestations. The crisis has been overcome — he said. The Anglo-Americans and the Bolsheviks have no easy way before them. Mussolini is the political brain of the Axis, as clear, calm, determined as in better times when he challenged England in the Mediterranean.

This is « Vindex »'s impression, who is not an exceptional man and feels that his opinion is shared by many people. If Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt are concerned it will be for a good reason, this time at least.

Briefly, the Duce reviewed the entire situation which is developing in Europe; as yet, nobody had realised its gravity. Each Ally wants to have possession of the whole continent.

Churchill's conservative principles, however, cannot go beyond a certain point without causing unavoidable reactions on the part of Marshal Stalin.

At the present moment Great Britain is abandoning Poland in the most shameful way, throwing her in the clutches of the Muscovite Moloch. France announces an agreement with Russia, and Churchill is working to unite France, Belgium and Holland in an anti-German coalition first, and then in an anti-Russian one.

Churchill, according to an English expression repeated by the Duce, is eating his hat. He has had to put up with the Russian penetration into the Mediterranean.

The Casablanca policy has entered its final stage, which is bound to be a failure. (Fascist Radio - 2300)

STRATEGY OF THE ANTI-FASCISTS

(By Spampanato)

Nobody will certainly accuse us of bad faith as regards opinions and politicians not our own. Every time Churchill has spoken at the House of Commons, the newspapers of the Social Republic have published in full, or practically in full, his speeches, taking them from Reuter. The point is that we are so sure of being right that the arguments and declarations of the enemy merely help us in our task of explaining them to the people.

This does not refer only to speeches: each political event which takes place in occupied Italy is faithfully reproduced by our press, which always gives an accurate and objective account of what has happened. On the other hand, through our radio we have always taken great care to let the people know what were the intent and plans of our enemy. This was done not by means of an ideological and interested propaganda, but impartially reporting from London and Washington broadcasts.

Is the same being done as regards the Social Republic? No. I was able to follow what Rome papers said, until a few weeks ago; the Italian Social Republic, its events, its laws, its reorganization, and its social measures were completely ignored. The name of Mussolini is hardly ever mentioned. In other words, the Italians of occupied Italy must forget that there is a Republic. They must not even think that there may be other reasons for the country's crisis, besides the failure of the Royal government.

The strategy adopted by anti-Fascism is to take advantage of the rancours and disappointments of people at mistakes that have been committed. They try even to cancel the remembrance of the many good things brought about by the Fascist regime.

We do not believe, even for a minute, that Mussolini's speech of Saturday was reproduced by papers of invaded Italy, but we do hope that, either through loyalty or out of curiosity, the Italians are listening to our broadcasts and, therefore, that his speech has been heard there also. They must have heard the appeals addressed to patriotism, the national traditions, and the common sense of the Italians. That speech, in the public opinion of invaded Italy, must be the most dangerous and most unexpected obstacle to the fruitless toil of Bonomi and his followers.

But Mussolini's speech is not merely a speech: it is the demonstration of Italy's conscience and sense of honor through the many tragic and hard trials. It is the announcement of a new reality which is being laboriously built over the past. It is the cry of an Italy which does not want to die.

The speech of Mussolini precedes on the way to Rome two historic initiatives of the Social Republic: war and revolution, which only in Rome will find their conclusion.

« BONOMI'S PLAINTIVE SPEECH »

Bonomi made a plaintive speech last night over the radio to Italians whom the Monarchy has delivered into the hands of the Allies and plunged into misery and starvation. He mentioned the fact that thousands of Italians are serving their masters, entrusted with menial jobs in the rear lines of the Allied troops, only in order to attribute this shameful truth to the régime which raised Italy to the rank of an imperial power. He, however, was not ashamed of emphasising that our unfortunate fellow countrymen are obliged by the invaders to wear foreign uniforms, and will be led away to represent that glorious army of Vittorio Veneto, which Fascism is supposed to have destroyed. However he saw fit to forget that Fascism redeemed that army, whose members (and Bonomi himself among them), could no longer show themselves in uniform in public, in 1921, without provoking popular resentment. The so-called head of the government made hardly any mention of the acts of rebellion by the population against the invaders, but even though he refrained from going into details he traced a fairly accurate picture of the so-called liberty and so-called well-being granted by the Allies as a reward for royal betrayal. « So long as the war lasts », said Bonomi, « transport will be scarce and dangerous, and consequently there will be a lack of food, clothing and necessary raw materials ».

Bonomi's speech may be termed a funeral oration. Mussolini's voice, raised in Milan, echoes in the consciences of all Italians, north and south of the Apennines, as a warning.

« A CERTIFICATE OF INFAMY »

In the recent statements made by Churchill, one sentence particularly has struck us. Speaking of the Marshal of the betrayal, the British murderer No. 1 said: « I have no particular interest in defending Badoglio. I will only say that thanks to the armistice, we received from him the Italian fleet, which was handed over to us intact. »

These words, which renewed in everybody the humiliating and bitter remembrance of the shame suffered on the 8th of September, 1943, are also a blow in the miserable face of the traitor who thus receives, along with the enemy's contempt, not a certificate of gratitude, but one of perpetual infamy, a certificate which he fully deserves and which is proof of his shameful cowardice.

Italy was led to sacrifice and ruin, while our naval forces and those of our metropolitan army were all in action and more than sufficient to face the might of the enemy.

The Italian fleet, intact, which lifts its anchors to sail towards unconditional surrender, that same fleet which for ten years had cost the Italian people such an enormous sacrifice of energy and of money, the fleet which bases are probably very near the spots where the actions take place.

While the occupation of Rimini was in progress, Canadian patrols were being re-organised along the sea-front between municipal gardens and Piazza Tripoli. German rear-guards were resisting on the Viale Mantegazza Railway station-Via Dante-Corso Nuovo-Via Garibaldi line. The capture of Rimini was still uncertain. Among its desolate ruins, new focal points of resistance were constantly being formed, destroyed, and formed again. Anglo-American naval units, anchored at large, directed their furious artillery salvoes against every corner of the city and the harbor. The sun was setting and a milky, indefinite light was over the sea. The water merged with the sky in a monotonous and shining grey. Consequently, anyone sailing near the shore might hope to get about unobserved, for the light was favorable and the noise of guns covered all other sounds. The Canadian patrols were formed by forty odd men, whose faces were lined with hardships and toil, whose uniforms were torn and dirty owing to the guerilla warfare forced upon them by the German grenadiers. They were scattered here and there, some of them along the coastal road, others in groups of three or four, waiting on the beach. They were calm and unsuspecting, protected only by the fire of their ships' guns. The German automatic weapons were lying in wait for them behind the walls of the devastated houses, waiting for them to continue their cautious and diffident march.

All of a sudden, an insistent and fierce machine-gun fire is heard from the sea and a hail of bullets falls on the resting Canadians, killing some of them and dispersing the others, who do not understand this sudden fury and look towards the calm waters, from where the punishment seems to come. However, a blinding light prevents them from seeing anything.

The Reich soldiers are also amazed. They strain their eyes and they see a small craft sailing swiftly northwards. One must guess its presence rather than see it...

The error which is being committed in liberated Italy regarding problems resulting from Fascist and German domination, is that of believing that many of these problems can be solved even without totally wiping out the conditions which have been left as a legacy by Fascism.

If, in theoretical sense, the positions of Patriots in the North is of the strongest, and no doubts are to be entertained concerning their possibilities and their intentions, the common mistake of believing that the past will be wiped out, or that criminal leaders responsible for Italy's present situation may go unpunished, should not be made.

Nothing is clearer than the enemy's words in asserting once again, and in a definite way, the exact terms of a truth which unfortunately cannot be denied but only confirmed, as is demonstrated by this recent statement made by the enemy himself. Nothing is clearer than his own words in asserting before history the tremendous responsibility of the cowardly traitor. However hard and insensible his skin may be, he could not but feel on his despicable hide the lash of Churchill. With this certificate of infamy, delivered by the enemy himself, he must be hanged to the mast of one of the ships which he handed over to England and which, with the victory of the Axis, will be returned to Italy, together with our dignity, our honor, our power.

Besides, not all understand, that Fascism has directly or indirectly compromised, during the past twenty years, millions and millions of honest citizens, who should be re-educated through a continuous and pitiless criticism of the Fascist regime and its organizations. This enormous mass of deluded people will be given a new civic and national conscience, only by inducing them to carry out acts of sabotage, strikes and guerrilla activities against the Germans, and by daily unmasking the revolting aspect of Fascism. The great army of ex-Fascists must be taught to fight alongside the Patriots and uncorruptible anti-Fascists, and clamor for the heads of those Fascists who misled and humiliated them.

Woe to Italy, if this great mass of people should tomorrow be caught anew by the plutocratic group and by the infamous relicts of the Crown, which was the necessary accomplice of Fascism, of industrial magnates and financial magnates, and of large property owners, who have no intention of renouncing power and wish to continue to oppress the people.

In this field, the mistake which is being made south of Bologna by national liberation committees, who refuse to carry out epuration measures energetically, should be avoided. Energetic epuration is absolutely necessary, but it is necessary also to adopt adequate measures so as to insure that such an epuration be carried out in an integral manner. Only thus will the most urgent needs of the working classes be satisfied. By reading the Rome papers, it would appear that Roman Patriots, following certain political demonstrations which have been made recently, which have nothing to do with epuration and... the reconstruction of the army

« WORLD CHRONICLE »
(By Prof. Dr. J. R. von Salis)

(The initial phrases of this speech were almost inaudible and can be rendered only in a condensed form).

In his introductory remarks, Prof. von Salis says that military success has brought the Allies from El Alamein and Stalingrad to the gateways of Germany, but now for the first time economic and social phenomena have appeared as direct consequences of the war. Both England and Russia have suffered extensive devastation in this war, and not only in these two states but also in the rest of Europe economic and social post-war problems are assuming importance. The United States of America, says von Salis, has been spared this destruction, but its close alliance with England and Russia and the task of establishing five million American soldiers at present on overseas service, into the national economic life confront America with the same problems. Therefore, according to Prof. von Salis' view, America is no less familiar than her European allies with the psychological and political difficulties connected with the functioning of a system of alliances built up in the course of the war. Then he continues as follows:

In Europe, whose fate affects us most directly, we already notice the tensions and convulsions which are inevitable in the period between the end of the war and the time when long-term solutions are found for the post-war problems in economic and social life, in home and foreign politics. These fields of activity are interlinked so closely that at times it is impossible to say which of the problems mentioned represent causes rather than mere complications or tensions. For instance, the resistance movements, having taken or still taking part in the expulsion of foreign occupation forces from various countries, are pursuing not only the purely military aim of vanquishing the external enemy, but are fighting at the same time for some ideal or programme related to home or social politics.

There is no doubt that in a country like France the resistance movement, has sprung from nearly all strata of the people, and has in its bitter and sacrificial struggle against the Germans brought into being a new spirit and new views as to the way in which the French state should be transformed. In all countries of Europe that have stood these tests and gone through sufferings of this kind, the active forces of resistance will play a rôle in political life and enforce their demands.

This is plainly visible even now in France and in Yugoslavia, two European countries which were not saved from defeat and collapse by the former legal powers and personalities, but where on the contrary entirely new political and military groups and leaders have arisen from the continuation of the struggle against a temporarily victorious enemy. In the instance of France the episodes of Darlan and Giraud, by which the Americans after their landing in North Africa had hoped to secure continuity in French politics, have shown that the former leaders had lost all their authority and that a new policy could be inaugurated only with unbiased and uncompromised champions of the simultaneous struggle against Germany and government returned home after four years' absence, welcome to their peoples. They cannot avoid being regarded more or less as representatives of the pre-war régime, whereas the liberated countries show a marked tendency to rid themselves of political cliques and personalities to whom the people attribute a certain measure of responsibility for the recent catastrophes. From this point of view the fact of de Gaulle having been unknown before 1940 constitutes rather a positive asset. He returns home with an unstained political past!» That is what the article in the Daily Telegraph says. It indubitably describes correctly the political state of mind prevailing among the populations of the liberated countries in Europe.

The tragic events now taking place in recently liberated Greece are a particularly striking example of the disaffection evinced by the politically and militarily organized forces of resistance in the homeland against the exile government just returned. The authority and administration of Papandreou is being supported by British troops in Greece on the ground of the legitimacy of Papandreou's government. Prime Minister Churchill has repeatedly defended in Parliament the policy pursued in Greece by the British government. His chief argument is that it must at all costs be made impossible for armed bands to usurp power and enforce upon the Greek people a political régime contrary to their liking. According to his statement, British policy aims at supporting the constitutional government so that at a given moment general elections may take place in Greece, enabling the Greek people to decide upon their future constitution in a perfectly free and democratic way. The attitude of the Churchill government is being discussed keenly in England itself and at the Labour Congress it was the object of attacks from various sides, but was energetically defended by the Socialist members of the government, particularly by the Minister of Labor, Bevin. For the rest, the exertions of the men sent to Athens, above all of Minister McMillan, to bring about a peaceful settlement of this quarrel between brothers, are evidence that the British government does not limit its activity to defending the lawful order in Greec against the attacks of the ELAS forces.

Difficulties have arisen in Italy also, where it is principally Great Britain which is claiming urgently that the problems related to the future constitution and régime of the country should be solved only when the country is completely liberated and democratic elections have been held. In view of the strong anti-monarchical and republican tendencies predominant within the anti-Fascist parties which have till now formed the government of new Italy, the demand that for the time being all discussion concerning the constitution to be adopted should be postponed, has led to considerable divergencies of opinion between the anti-Fascist personalities and the Allied Control organizations in Rome. In addition, there was the personal opposition of Count Sforza to British policy in Italy, which induced Churchill and Eden to consider Count Sforza as an impediment standing in the way of Anglo-Italian collaboration. Above all the British government was disinclined to accept Count Sforza as Italian foreign minister, and it stressed the fact that after all Italy was not an Allied country, but a vanquished enemy.

In the week under review the former Prime Minister Bonomi succeeded in forming a new government, which embraces four out of the six anti-Fascist parties, and in which both the Catholic Democratic Party and the Communist Party are represented by leading personalities, such as de Gasperi as foreign minister and Togliatti as deputy premier.

In America British policy in the liberated countries has been publicly criticized, even by the new Secretary of State Stettinius. Although on various occasions, especially in the French issue and now again in Belgium, the Americans have pursued a policy similar to that of the British in Italy and Greece, Washington seems now to advocate a policy of non-interference in regard to the internal conditions of the liberated countries It is obvious, at any rate, that despite the best intentions the

A similar development could be observed in Yugoslavia, where the exile government residing in London gradually lost its importance while Tito and the forces rallying around him in the country itself, showed an increasing capability of attending to the representation of Yugoslavia's interests, even in her relations to the great Allies.

The diplomatic correspondent of one of London's biggest newspapers, the Daily Telegraph, in a recent article examined the causes of de Gaulle's political successes, which last Sunday reached their climax by the conclusion of an alliance with the Soviet Union. The English journalist writes as follows: «Although de Gaulle's government, prior to its entering into office, was considered by the Allies with some anxiety as it was a yet untried administration, headed by a brigadier lacking political experience and consisting of political nonentities and youthful partisan-leaders, the present situation can be described as follows: One of the principal reasons for the strong position which de Gaulle has gained in his country and to which recent events in Greece and Belgium lend particular significance — these, are the exact words of the above-mentioned article — is the fact that he does not represent the lawful and constitutional government of France; it is not their legitimacy which makes the so-called legitimate exile governments, for instance the Polish government in London or the Belgian Greek people to decide upon their future constitution in a perfectly free and democratic way. The attitude of the Churchill government is being discussed keenly in England itself and at the Labour Congress it was the object of attacks from various sides, but was energetically defended by the Socialist members of the government, particularly by the Minister of Labor, Bevin. For the rest, the exertions of the men sent to Athens, above all of Minister McMillan, to bring about a peaceful settlement of this quarrel between brothers, are evidence that the British government does not limit its activity to defending the lawful order in Greec against the attacks of the ELAS forces.

In America British policy in the liberated countries has been publicly criticized, even by the new Secretary of State Stettinius. Although on various occasions, especially in the French issue and now again in Belgium, the Americans have pursued a policy similar to that of the British in Italy and Greece. Washington seems now to advocate a policy of non-interference in regard to the internal conditions of the liberated countries. It is obvious, at any rate, that despite the best intentions the transition from the former arbitrary police and occupation régime represented by the Rome-Berlin Axis and its allies to the constitutions of the future, based on the principle of national freedom and self-determination, will be neither smooth nor easy. This is due not only to the diversity of ideologies and the multitude of political parties, which characterize free democracy, but in no lesser degree to the economic distress caused by war and occupation. A further element of paramount importance is the fact that the war in Europe is yet far from its end and that consequently in the countries at present occupied by British, Americans and Russians, military requirements necessarily rank above all others. Administration, transport systems and police order are throughout subservient to warfare even now, securing supplies and the protection of Allied commands and control posts.

As the wording of the Franco-Soviet pact of alliance, signed in Moscow on December 10th between the Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov and the French Foreign Minister Bidault in the presence of Stalin and de Gaulle, has not been published yet, we can for the moment only report the fact itself. The great importance of the renewal of the alliance that in former times linked France and Russia, is incontestable. It supplements the pact of alliance concluded for twenty year between England and the Soviet Union and opens the way for a corresponding Anglo-French agreement. (Radio Beromuenster - 1910 - Dec. 15)

8TH ARMY FORCES MOVE UP TO SENIO RIVER LINE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 18 — New Zealand troops of the 8th Army — pressing westward after the badly-battered German forces swept from Faenza and the southern end of their Lamone River defenses — moved up yesterday along a four-mile front to face the enemy across still another water barrier on the way to Bologna, it was announced here today.

Although official reports gave no indication of the strength of the German dispositions along the Senio River, cutting across the Po Plain 24 miles southeast of Bologna, it is evident that the enemy will endeavor once again to exact the greatest possible delay through the employment of such a consolidated water-barrier defense.

the Reno River and its tributaries, more than 1,100 German prisoners have been captured.

According to today's reports, enemy troops are still holding out in the northern outskirts of Faenza, although New Zealand infantrymen and sappers have cleared most of the town of snipers and enemy obstructions and booby traps. In many parts of the town, small groups of enemy soldiers had barricaded themselves behind the sandbagged walls of buildings, and were cleared only after bitter fighting. Enemy forces shelled the town after its evacuation.

On the left flank of the 8th Army front, Polish forces continued their advance in the area between the Senio River and its tributary, the Sintria.

Three hamlets were taken by these forces in this area. They are San Mamante in Curiano, Casette, and Limisano.

On the 5th Army front, German patrols were active southeast of Bologna, as well as in the sector south of Imola. (PRO)

GERMAN COUNTER-OFFENSIVE CONTINUES

LONDON, December 18 — German forces continued their all-out counter-offensive today against the center of the American 1st Army front south of Monschau in an effort to relieve Allied pressure on the Cologne Plain and the Saar Basin.

A large force of German planes was thrown into the new attacks, and during the first 36 hours Allied aircraft and anti-aircraft batteries shot down 194 enemy craft.

Some German thrusts on the 60-mile front have been held, while others have surged forward and fanned out. The exact area of the German penetrations was not disclosed by Supreme Headquarters, and an operational silence has been enforced for security reasons. Press correspondents reported that the enemy attacks were made in the Honsfeld area in Belgium, and at Vianden and Echternach in Luxembourg.

The Germans were reported to have moved into line more infantry and tanks, involving some of the best units of the Wehrmacht. While strategic German reserves have been committed, press reports said that the enemy does not have sufficient forces to sustain the attack in strength for a long period at the current rate of attrition. The dispatches quoted front line American commanders as stating that German casualties range between 50 and 60 per cent of the attacking units.

American units have fought off heavy attacks with rifles, grenades, bazookas and machine guns. Long columns of American trucks and half-tracks are constantly shifting positions in the battle, which is officially described as fluid. Low clouds somewhat curtailed Allied air activity over the battle lines.

German paratroopers, dropped behind the American lines two nights ago armed with machine pistols and grenades, are being mopped up.

Although official reports gave no indication of the strength of the German dispositions along the Senio River, cutting across the Po Plain 24 miles southeast of Bologna, it is evident that the enemy will endeavor once again to exact the greatest possible delay through the employment of such a coördinated water-barrier defense.

Farther northeast, Canadian troops of the 8th Army closed in on the German stronghold of Bagnocavallo, 9 ½ miles from Faenza, and at the junction of the Canale Naviglio connecting the Lamone and Senio Rivers and the Ravenna-Bologna rail and highway lines.

In heavy fighting in this low vineyard country, criss-crossed with canals and drainage ditches, Canadian troops now hold the line of the Canale Naviglio along a five-mile stretch north of Bagnocavallo. They also have taken up positions along the Fosso Vecchio, a connecting watercourse, a mile south of this strategic village, now hemmed in from three sides.

Strong enemy reinforcements were concentrated in this sector just prior to the surprise New Zealand attack at the southern end of the German line. These German forces have fought stubbornly to hold the Canadian thrust, which threatens both the Ravenna-Bologna and the Ravenna-Ferrara road and rail routes. Patrols which pushed across the Fosso Munio, west of the Canale Naviglio at the northern end of this battle area, and within two miles of Alfonsine on the Ferrara road, were forced to retire in the face of strong enemy dispositions.

In two weeks' fighting in this crucial sector, where the Canadians have sheared through three successive German delaying lines based on the intricate canal system feeding

LATE BULLETINS

GERMANS GAIN 15 MILES IN BELGIUM

LONDON, December 18 — German forces, in their 60-hour-old offensive, have advanced 15 miles and were reported to be at Stavelot, five miles southwest of Malmédy, a Reuter correspondent at Supreme Headquarters reported, late tonight.

The dispatch said that Allied planes destroyed 20 German half-track vehicles in this area and that, «despite the news blackout, it was reasonable to assume that the Germans have pushed westward at least 15 miles.» (Reuter)

FIELD MARSHAL ALEXANDER VISITS LONDON

LONDON, December 18 — Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Supreme Commander in the Mediterranean Theater, recently returned here to receive his Field Marshal's baton from King George VI, it was disclosed tonight. During his visit, which lasted several days, he was recognized by comparatively few people.

It was also stated in press dispatches tonight that the Irish cities of Belfast and Londonderry had given Field Marshal Alexander the freedom of their cities. (Reuter)

The Germans concentrated 300 to 400 mo[illegible] guns of all calibers on comparatively small targets, while increasing numbers of flying bombs have been directed into American positions. The area of the German attack was difficult country, with large areas of forest, and with winding roads and little space to maneuver tanks.

On the 7th Army front in northeast Alsace, the five bridgeheads across the German frontier were resolved into two thrusts on either side of Wissembourg (Weisenburg). American forces have made contact with the enemy along the Siegfried-Line fortifications, and have captured Kapsweyer, east of Wissembourg.

The forces reaching the Siegfried Line dug themselves in while medium bombers flew ahead to soften the deep German defenses, consisting of rows of dragons' teeth and concrete pyramids, behind which are pillboxes and fortresses.

Along the Saar Basin front, 3rd Army forces pushed northward in a two-mile advance to capture Walsheim, nine miles northeast of Saargemünd.

Aggressive patrolling was maintained before the Saar Basin capital of Saarbrücken, while American forces in the Saarlautern-Dillingen bridgehead made slow advances.

Far to the north, 9th Army troops completed the capture of Würm and Beeck, four miles northeast of Geilenkirchen, after clearing the towns of the last remaining German strongpoints. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

SOVIETS REACH CZECH BORDER ON 70-MILE FRONT

MOSCOW, December 13 — Red Army forces driving northward have reached the Czechoslovak-Hungarian border on a 70-mile front, and are now fighting in Czechoslovak territory, tonight's Soviet communique announced.

As Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2nd Ukrainian Front pushed forward alongside units of General Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukrainian Front, the entire German salient in eastern Slovakia was in extreme danger of being outflanked. The Russian communique reported that Red Army troops had cleared the Germans from the wooded, mountainous area west of Satoraljaujhely, and had advanced to the Hernad River, 20 miles to the west.

German and Hungarian defenses were reported to be crumbling before the Russian thrusts by mountain artillery and heavily-armed but mobile infantrymen. Soviet troops are now in the first ranges of the Slovak mountains.

Driving northward from Miskolc, another Red Army force increased its pressure on the vital Czechoslovak rail hub of Kosice and pushed the Germans back in sharp clashes. Soviet tanks overran German machine gun nests, while artillery shelled German positions. German resistance was reported to be increasing as German reinforcements were being thrown steadily into the line.

The Soviet communique reported that the Russian forces advancing northwestward from Miskolc along the Lucenec rail line gained 10 miles today and captured the rail junction of Banreve, 30 miles from the Lucenec gap. Meanwhile, other Red Army troops, pushing northward from Hatvan, today continued their advance toward Lucenec from captured Paszto. The ground in this sector has become hard and the rivers have frozen, turning the previously marshy terrain into favorable tank country.

German reinforcements sent from Vienna to hold the defenses leading to the Bratislava gap are clinging to hillcrests and river defiles beyond the Ipel River line north of Budapest, press reports said. Hungarian and German losses have been heavy. Marshal Malinovsky has massed his forces along the Ipel for a westward drive to Vienna, the back door to the Reich.

At Budapest, Russian forces continued to edge their way through German defenses guarding the city, and Soviet [illegible] within six miles Enemy air activity over Mindoro was said to be negligible, but U. S. patrol planes strafed and set fire to a Japanese coastal vessel and two small freighters off the northeast coast. A third freighter was damaged off the east coast.

Construction of airdrome sites on Mindoro is proceeding satisfactorily, it was reported tonight. (OWI-Reuter)

SUPERFORTS BOMB HANKOW AND NAGOYA; BRITISH CAPTURE BURMA OIL CENTER

KANDY, CEYLON, December 18 — While American Superfortresses attacked the Japanese industrial center of Nagoya and enemy targets in Hankow yesterday, units of the British 14th Army continued their drive through the Chindwin River Valley in Burma and captured Indaw, oil-producing center of north Burma.

Indaw, 24 miles east of Mawlaik, the Chindwin town recently taken by the Allies, is between Sittaung and Kalewa.

Other 14th Army forces, after a 60-mile advance south through the Myittha Valley from Kalemyo, are now reported fighting almost 125 miles west of Mandalay. Elsewhere in Burma, forces operating east of Chindwin linked up with troops pushing down the railway corridor to Bhamo, forming the northern end of a pincer movement threatening to cut off Japanese units in the area.

The Superfortress assault on Nagoya, third-largest city in Japan, was made by a « sizeable force » operating from Saipan bases, the official announcement said. The city is a large enemy plane-producing center.

The Hankow attack was the first by the Superforts on the big Chinese city on the Yangtse River, although the great trading port — second only to Shanghai in size — was a target of other bombers on November 25. Hankow is about 600 miles from the mouth of the river, and 1,200 miles west of Nagoya.

In China, Chinese troops operating in the south-central sector of Kwangsi Province recaptured Wuyu Point, nine miles southeast of Hochih, and are now within a mile of Hochih itself, last night's communique reported. Several localities in the Yunnan sector were taken, near the Burma border. Enemy counter-attacks were repulsed.

U.S. SUBS SINK 33 MORE JAP SHIPS

WASHINGTON, December 15 — American submarines have sunk 33 more Japanese ships, the Navy Department announced tonight. These sinkings in the Far East and the Pacific include one light cruiser, three destroyers, six escort vessels, a minesweeper, a minelayer and 21 cargo ships. This new tally brings the total number of Japanese ships of all types sunk by U.S. submarines since the start of the war to 907, including 94 warships.

The 21 cargo ships ranged from a large tanker to medium and small cargo vessels.

Of the 94 enemy warships sunk to date, 13 were enemy cruisers and 43 were destroyers. (OWI - Reuter)

GERMANY, AUSTRIA, POLAND, HUNGARY BOMBED

ADVANCE AHFQ, ITALY, December 18 — Heavy bombers of the 15th AAF today attacked five strategic targets in Germany, Poland, Hungary, and Austria, including the Silesian synthetic oil refineries at Oderthal, without encountering more than two enemy interceptors, it was announced here today.

Today's attacks followed one of the fiercest air battles in months when up to 150 enemy fighters struck Liberator formations on the way to the Oderthal refinery target yester-

742 JAP PLANES DESTROYED LAST WEEK

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 18 — American forces in the Philippines destroyed 742 Japanese planes in seven days of operations up to and including yesterday, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight. On Mindoro Island, 23 planes were destroyed yesterday. No ground opposition was encountered.

Meanwhile, on Leyte, where bitter ground fighting continued, the U. S. 77th Division seized the Valencia airdrome yesterday.

The 7th Division completed the destruction of remnants of the enemy's 26th Division. A total of 905 enemy dead was counted in a single day. Over 2,000 dead were left by the Japanese in attempts to free themselves of the outflanking of the Yamashita Line north of Ormoc.

The overall figure of Japanese plane losses included those shot down by carrier-based airmen of Admiral William Halsey's 3rd Fleet and by anti-aircraft batteries during devastating sweeps throughout the Philippines preceding and during the landing on Mindoro.

The Superfortress assault on Nagoya, third-largest city in Japan, was made by a "sizeable force" operating from Saipan bases, the official announcement said. The city is a large enemy plane-producing center.

The Hankow attack was the first by the Superforts on the big Chinese city on the Yangtse River, although the great trading port — second only to Shanghai in size — was a target of other bombers on November 25. Hankow is about 600 miles from the mouth of the river, and 1,200 miles west of Nagoya.

In China, Chinese troops operating in the south-central sector of Kwangsi Province recaptured Wuyu Point, nine miles southeast of Hochih, and are now within a mile of Hochih itself, last night's communique reported. Several localities in the Yunnan sector were taken, near the Burma border. Enemy counter-attacks were repulsed.

The 21 cargo ships ranged from a large tanker to medium and small cargo vessels.

Of the 94 enemy warships sunk to date, 13 were enemy cruisers and 43 were destroyers. (OWI - Reuter)

GERMANY, AUSTRIA, POLAND, HUNGARY BOMBED

ADVANCE AHFQ, ITALY, December 18 — Heavy bombers of the 15th AAF today attacked five strategic targets in Germany, Poland, Hungary, and Austria, including the Silesian synthetic oil refineries at Oderthal, without encountering more than two enemy interceptors, it was announced here today.

Today's attacks followed one of the fiercest air battles in months when up to 150 enemy fighters struck Liberator formations on the way to the Oderthal refinery target yesterday. More than a score of Allied heavy bombers were lost, and 48 enemy planes were downed in the encounter above thick clouds.

The enemy ME-109 and EW-190 fighters, encountered in greater number than at any time in the past four months, struck at three groups of the heavy-bomber formations, coming in at low level to attack from the rear.

In one group attacked, 10 of the Liberators were reported missing, while total losses for the day amounted to 21 heavy bombers.

As Mustang and Lightning escort fighters tangled with the enemy formations, the enemy planes swooped and dived to almost ground level in their efforts to escape, so that the sky was filled with battling planes above and below the clouds.

Other targets attacked today included synthetic oil plants at Blechhammer, German Silesia, and Oswiecim, Polish Silesia, as well as rail yards at Graz in Austria, along the main line from Yugoslavia to Vienna, and undisclosed targets in the Vienna area and at Sopron in Hungary.

Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force, despite bad weather, hammered enemy rail targets, strongpoints, and guns in the Parma, Spezia, and Bologna areas.

from the Podgorica pocket just inside the Yugoslav frontier from Albania. It is estimated that 20,000 enemy troops are trying to escape from this area before they are cut off by Russian advances toward the Brod road. (PRO)

U.S. CONGRESSMEN VISIT 5TH ARMY FRONT

WITH 5TH ARMY, December 18 — The delegation of 16 U.S. Congressmen who visited this front yesterday left this morning for southern Italy.

During their visit to the front which included a 100-mile tour of the mud-soaked battle lines, the Congressmen were told by Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark, commander-in-chief of the 15th Army Group, that the mission of the 5th and 8th Armies is not only to drive the Germans from Italy, but to chew up and eliminate the 28 enemy divisions in northern Italy. The tour carried the party as far north as Loiano, only four miles from the fighting front.

At one point, a German shell exploded only a few hundred yards from the road on which the Congressmen were traveling.

After explaining the military situation, General Clark told the Congressmen that the reason why the Germans are making an all-out effort to hold their present battle lines «is so they can loot North Italy.» The enemy now is moving quantities of food and manufacturing equipment from the rich Po Valley into Germany.

General Clark asserted that some of the best divisions the Germans have are on this front. He added:

«We must not let any of those divisions get away to assist the Germans in France or in Hungary. We are going to strike, and strike hard.»

Civilian Coöperation Praised

General Clark said one of the biggest jobs in the immediate battle area is care for the Italian civilian population. He praised the coöperation of the people, and pointed out that, despite great military demands on transportation, food is being brought in regularly for Italians.

Questioned by Congressmen, the General praised the Allied Military Government for its work in the battle areas. To further questions, the General answered that the Psychological Warfare Branch was doing a fine job on the front lines.

The delegation, which is touring the Western and Italian Fronts, traveled yesterday in a convoy of 26 jeeps. Helmets and protective clothing were issued to them before they started the trip through the mud and snow-covered front.

The representatives and their entourage left Florence at dawn and drove to Altuzzo Hill which, General Clark pointed out, was in the heart of the enemy's once-vaunted Goth Line.

The party then traveled through all the former fortifications of the Goth Line, wrested from the enemy when the 5th Army broke the line in its drive to the Po Valley.

After a lunch on army field rations and a church service in recently-liberated Monghidoro, the representatives moved up to the front. They watched some Allied big guns fire shells into enemy-held territory. This drew counter-fire, one shell falling a few hundred yards from the Congressional group.

Returning, the Congressmen visited an evacuation hospital. Here they saw an Italian child who had been injured by a hand grenade receiving the same medical treatment given Allied troops.

General Clark told the Congressmen that lack of ammunition had never held up the advance of the Allied Armies in Italy.

«We always lacked the infantry, however,» General [illegible] added. «If one more infantry regiment had been em-

2,400 PLANES HIT REICH INDUSTRIES

LONDON, December 18 — More than 2,400 American and British bombers and fighters attacked German industrial targets and ground troops today as the skies over western Europe's battle lines cleared up and Allied troops were marshalled to meet the German counter-offensive launched with the greatest aerial support the Nazis have sent up since D-day.

The RAF struck three blows at German rail centers late last night and early this morning, in the wake of a day of bitter combat between German and Allied fighters, while 500 Flying Fortresses of the 8th USAAF, escorted by more than 600 fighters, later today carried on the aerial assault over marshalling yards at Cologne, Mainz, and Coblenz.

Approximately 1,300 RAF bombers dropped an estimated 7,000 tons of bombs on Munich, Ulm, and Duisburg, key points in the Nazi railway network. Large fires were seen both at Ulm and Munich, but heavy clouds prevented immediate observation of results at Duisburg.

Attacks also were made on Hanau to the east of Frankfurt and on Münster in northwest Germany. Night-fighters and Intruders supported the bombers, attacking airfields and destroying at least three German aircraft in combat. Seventeen RAF planes were reported missing by the Air Ministry today.

The 8th AAF operation — carried out under adverse weather conditions — was made at a cost of three heavy bombers and five fighters. Three German ME 109's were shot down by fighters in scattered dogfights over the Ruhr. Anti-aircraft fire was meager and no German fighters were encountered by bombers. More than 2,000 tons of bombs were dropped on the rail centers supplying the German counter-offensive on the American 1st Army front.

T.A.F.'s Greatest Day

Brig. Gen. Richard Nugent, commanding officer of TAC No. 29 at 9th Army headquarters, said today that Allied tactical air forces had their greatest day yesterday, destroying 109 German fighters, probably destroying 11, and damaging 48 others. In the same operations the Allies lost 38 planes.

Fighter-bombers of the 9th USAAF today destroyed 95 German tanks and damaged 26 others in what pilots called the greatest blow since their planes shot up the retreating German 7th Army in the Argentan-Falaise gap in Normandy, an American press service reported.

The blow to enemy armor was delivered in an offensive coördinated with the 1st Army as the Germans attacked toward Belgium, the Associated Press said.

A strong force of Lancasters tonight attacked German ships in the Baltic port of Gdynia in a flight that involved a journey of more than 1,600 miles, it was officially announced.

Meanwhile, the Germans renewed their flying-bomb attacks last night against southern England. Damage and casualties were reported by the Ministry of Home Security.

Holland-based Tempests of the 2nd TAF yesterday intercepted and destroyed 11 German aircraft over a wide area between the front lines and Münster.

Spitfire bombers of the RAF Fighter Command power-dived 5,000 feet to smash rocket sites in Holland today. Terrific explosions were observed by the pilots.

A new electrical bomb release instead of the manually controlled lever is giving Thunderbolt fighter-bombers twice their previous accuracy, it was revealed officially today. It had been evolved because wide errors had been noted on low bombing, and it proved so successful that 90 per cent of the Allied Thunderbolts now are equipped with it.

CONGRESSMEN VISIT BOMBER BASE

HQ, 15TH USSAF, December 18 — The touring group of United States Congressmen today inspected a heavy bombardment airfield, and learned how Allied Italian-based and British-based bombers are engaged in a coördinated program for the destruction of Germany's essential industries.

Maj. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, commanding the 15th USAAF, put the Congressmen through a briefing similar to that given bomber crews before they start on their missions.

Questioned by the legislators, he told how the work of the heavy, long-range bombers in this theater is coördinated with that of other Allied heavy bombers. Targets are selected on the basis of the harm their destruction will do to the German war potential, it was explained. As has been previously announced, the bombers are now concentrating on the elimination of Germany's oil industry.

The Congressional party arrived here from Florence, where they had spent the night after a day-long tour of the Italian battlefront yesterday. (UNN)

«EVERYTHING AT STAKE»—RUNDSTEDT

LONDON, December 18 — Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt told his troops in an order of the day that unless their new counter-offensive in the center of the American 1st Army front succeeded, «everything is lost,» a British United Press dispatch reported. The order said:

«Soldiers of the Western Front: Your great hour has struck. Strong attacking armies are advancing today against the Americans. I do not need to say any more to you. Everything is at stake.»

German broadcasters were heard tonight telling the world that the present German counter-offensive against the American 1st Army was planned, down to the last detail, by Hitler himself; this, they also hastened to explain, accounts for the Führer's long silence. (Reuter)

YUGOSLAVS CLEAR DRINA RIVER BANK

LONDON, December 18 — Yugoslav forces have cleared the entire right bank of the Drina River from Bajina Basta in the south to its confluence with the Sava in the north, it was reported here today. Thus, the withdrawal line through the Drina Valley can no longer be of any use to the Germans. Attempts by strong elements of the Prince Eugen Division to break out toward Janja have been beaten off by the Yugoslavs.

Fierce fighting continues on German defenses farther north before Vinkovci. Fresh developments in the area of Uzice, important communication center, whose liberation was announced yesterday, found Yugoslavs striking down from the Zlatibor Mountains, and driving back the enemy toward Mokra, Gora and Kremna along the railway to Sarajevo. ARISIO PLEADS UNPREPAREDNESS

ROME, December 18 — Prosecution witness General Mario Arisio, commander of the Italian 7th Army, told the High Court of Justice trying Lieut. Generals Riccardo Pentimalli and Ettore del Tetto on charges of aid to the Germans and dereliction of duty, that Badoglio's September 8 broadcast ordering resistance to the Germans found the Naples command « materially and spiritually unprepared for the task. »

« Even I, an army commander, » he said, « was not preinformed of the tenor of the broadcast. On the night of September 8 I did not give the order to act because I awaited further instructions from the Chief of Staff, with whom I was in constant touch. »

General Arisio then recalled how, on the morning of September 9, he issued orders to apply without delay the instructionss contained in "Memorandum 44".

« A first message was sent by air and by radio to Naples to cease hostilities against the Allies, » he said. « A second message ordering the application of the memorandum was sent, but I doubt that it ever reached Naples. ».

The witness testified that both Pentimalli and Del Tetto were acquainted with the contents of Memorandum 44, and that Del Tetto, who had taken command of operations in Naples, had, after September 9, begun to show a « certain passive acquiescence to the requests of the Germans. » Arisio continued:

« September 10 was the decisive day for Naples. Our troops reacted to the Germans, but our forces were decidedly inferior. Naples could not have become a second Warsaw. The commanders lost control of the situation, and the first desertions began to take place. On the 11th, word spread that the Göring Division was about to enter Naples. It was on that day that the military organization in Naples began to fall apart. »

Questioning of another prosecution witness, Colonel Giacomo Siccardi, disclosed that clashes between German and Italian troops in Naples prior to September 8 resulted in the latter's being confined to barracks. He also testified to an outbreak of anti-German student demonstrations backed by detachments of Italian soldiers in the days immediately preceding entry of Allied troops in Naples.

Additional prosecution witnesses questioned at today's session included Emilio Scaglione, journalist; Paolo Scarfoglio, who became the editor of the Naples daily Il Mattino on 25 July 1943; Colonel Dante Bedoni, commander of the Naples military district; und Pietro Caviglia, a major of the Public Security police.

Neapolitans Patriots Disillusioned

Scaglione, author of an article against Del Tetto captioned "I accuse", spoke of the disillusionment of Neapolitan Patriots over the former general's attitude toward the events which preceded the Italian armistice.

Scaglione, author of an article against Del Tetto captioned "I accuse", spoke of the disillusionment of Neapolitan Patriots over the former general's attitude toward the events which preceded the Italian armistice.

«We soon realized,» he said, «that he [Del Tetto] did not feel the ardent atmosphere which developed in Naples after July 25. On the morning of September 9 we went to see him and asked that groups of citizens be allowed to arm and to constitute a sort of national guard. Del Tetto declared he could not assume such a responsibility. I was surprised to note that he was treating the situation as if it were a question of ordinary administration.»

In the course of his testimony, Scaglione said that on the afternoon of September 10, 40 Germans were taken prisoner and accompanied to the Prefecture. «Later,» he added, «someone intervened and the prisoners were released.»

Scaglione said that from talks he had with Del Tetto he did not get the impression that the latter's actions could be construed as treason. «What seemed clear to me,» he added, «was that Del Tetto did not sense the tragedy of those days, and did not want to expose himself to any personal risk.»

Scarfoglio testified that he was astonished to learn that Del Tetto was angered by his, Scarfoglio's, articles in Il Mattino because of the possibility that such articles might create friction between Italian and German soldiers.

«Del Tetto insisted,» Scarfoglio added, «that Il Mattino carry articles exalting the alliance with the Germans and Germany's military might.»

BRITISH MAKE PROGRESS IN ATHENS

ATHENS, December 18 — British troops have made considerable progress in a double drive launched early this morning from the center of the city and along the coastal road between the port of Piraeus and the seaside resort of Faliron, Lt. Gen. Ronnld M. Scobie said today.

As a result of the regrouping of British and Indian troops in the Piraeus-Faliron areas, control was being regained rapidly on the Faliron-Piraeus coastal road, and on the main Faliron-Athens road, which ELAS troops have been holding in great strength.

The attack was launched shortly after midnight, when strong British forces, drawn from newly-arrived reinforcements, and supported by armor and aircraft, moved from Faliron toward the capital.

Late press dispatches reported that they were two-thirds of the way along the road already and had occupied a number of the main buildings on either side of the highway.

Heavy fighting was reported to be taking place for a large building on the right hand side of the road just past the ruins of Hadrian's Arch. ELAS snipers were holding out inside the building, surrounded by tanks and armored cars.

In the city itself, fierce fighting raged throughout the night after a lull of 24 hours. The city was lit with the

Before the main attack began, Sikelias Hill, south of the Acropolis, which had been strongly held by the insurgents, was cleared. At dawn, other British troops scaled and captured Stadium Hill, but heavy fighting in the area of the Stadium continued.

It was stated in British military circles this morning that the purpose of the latest operations was « to raise the siege on the center of the city by scouring the lines of communications with the base at Faliron Bay and securing direct lines with Piraeus. »

Although the communique made no mention of the fighting inside Piraeus, correspondents reported that in stiff street fighting yesterday, British troops had cleared the town right up to the railway line.

A Reuter correspondent said that this would mean that when the present operations in the Athens area have been completed, the British would have a through line from Athens to Piraeus.

General Scobie's communique reported that late last night ELAS troops, supported by artillery, launched a strong attack against air headquarters in Greece. The headquarters, consisting of a group of buildings within a compound, was being defended by men of an RAF regiment and other British troops.

In the Volos area, the communique concluded, the commander of a strong ELAS concentration had presented the commander of an Allied relief unit and a small Indian garrison with an ultimatum to leave the town.

Prime Minister Georges Papandreou announced this evening that various Greek political party leaders, both inside and outside his cabinet, would submit their views individually to King George of the Hellenes, now in London, on the proposal to appoint a regent. BRITISH MAKE PROGRESS IN ATHENS

ATHENS, December 18 — British troops have made considerable progress in a double drive launched early this morning from the center of the city and along the coastal road between the port of Piraeus and the seaside resort of Faliron, Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie said today.

As a result of the regrouping of British and Indian troops in the Piraeus-Faliron areas, control was being regained rapidly on the Faliron-Piraeus coastal road, and on the main Faliron-Athens road, which ELAS troops have been holding in great strength.

The attack was launched shortly after midnight, when strong British forces, drawn from newly-arrived reinforcements, and supported by armor and aircraft, moved from Faliron toward the capital.

Late press dispatches reported that they were two-thirds of the way along the road already and had occupied a number of the main buildings on either side of the highway.

Heavy fighting was reported to be taking place for a large building on the right hand side of the road just past the ruins of Hadrian's Arch. ELAS snipers were holding out inside the building, surrounded by tanks and armored cars.

In the city itself, fierce fighting raged throughout the night after a lull of 24 hours. The city was lit with the light of flares and the streets echoed machine-gun fire and continuous shelling. At the same time, RAF planes droned overhead.

The intensity of the fighting increased at dawn, when British troops drove down the Athens-Faliron road.

Political Prisoners Rescued

Late tonight, the great Averoff prison in the north-eastern suburbs of the capital was reported to be on fire following a severe battle between British paratroopers and ELAS troops who had forced their way into two or three of the main buildings, apparently bent on seizing the former members of the quisling government, including ex-Premier Rallis and former dictator General Pangalos, and freeing other political prisoners.

However, British troops evacuated 920 men and women prisoners under machine-gun fire to the administration buildings and there awaited the arrival of tank-supported British and Greek Government troops, smashing through minefields and road blocks, to come to their aid. It was stated tonight that «all the prisoners are in English hands.»

According to press dispatches, ELAS troops were reported to have been dislodged from three important heights.

In the Volos area, the communique concluded, the commander of a strong ELAS concentration had presented the commander of an Allied relief unit and a small Indian garrison with an ultimatum to leave the town.

«The United States government continues to adhere to its traditional policy of declining to give guarantees for any specific frontiers. The United States government is working for the establishment of a world security organization through which the United States, together with other member states, would assume responsibility for the preservation of general security.

«Thirdly, it is the announced policy of the United States government, subject to legislative authority, to assist the countries liberated from the enemy in repairing the devastation of war, and thus bring to their peoples the opportunity to join as full partners in the task of building a more prosperous and secure life for all men and women. This applies to Poland as well as the other United Nations.

U. S. JAPANESE TO RETURN TO WEST COAST

WASHINGTON, December 18 — Loyal American citizens of Japanese descent, who were banned from the west coast areas of the U.S. almost three years ago, will be permitted to return to their homes under terms of an order issued here last night. Lifting of the ban becomes effective 2 January 1945.

A statement accompanying the order made it clear that lifting of the ban on Japanese residence along the Pacific coast will not apply to «any person of Japanese ancestry about whom information is available indicating a pro-Japanese attitude.»

All others will be permitted the «same freedom of movement throughout the United States as other loyal citizens and law-abiding aliens,» the statement said.

Persons of Japanese ancestry were excluded from the American west coast soon after the attack at Pearl Harbor, when the possibility existed of enemy attempts to land on the American mainland. A War Department statement pointed out that since that time a series of American successes has pushed back the Japanese forces almost within the shadow of their own homeland.

«Although hard fighting is ahead in the Pacific,» the statement said, «it can no longer be said, as it could be said in 1942, that an enemy invasion of the west coast on a large scale is a possibility.»

Harold Ickes, U. S. Secretary of the Interior, who supervised the original relocation of the Japanese families, estimated that 35,000 persons of Japanese descent will be affected by the lifting of the ban.

He said that large numbers of them will prefer to remain in the areas to which they were first evacuated, rather than go back to their original homes.

«It is the responsibility of every American worthy of vitizenship ... to do everything that he can to make easier the return to normal life of these people,» he said. «In a real sense, these people too were drafted by their country...» (OWI - BBC)

INSIDE GERMANY

HITLER REMOVED AS SUPREME WAR LORD

LONDON, December 18 — Adolf Hitler has been removed as Germany's supreme war lord and has been forced to devote himself to «home affairs.» The direction of Germany's war effort has been placed in the hands of Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, of Gestapo chief and Deputy Führer Heinrich Himmler, and of Propaganda Minister Joseph Paul Goebbels.

This report, received here today through German underground channels, is reported to be a summary account given to a gathering of important Germans in Berlin by Hitler's former adjutant, Storm Troop Group Leader (S. A. Obergruppenführer) Wilhelm Brückner.

The account stated that during the early days of the Allied landings in Normandy, Field Marshal von Rundstedt, Himmler, and Goebbels, accompanied by an armed escort, demanded to see Hitler at his headquarters in Ober-Salzburg.

After an hour of exchanging harsh messages, Hitler received the deputation. Rundstedt declared that it would be possible to carry on the war only if Hitler refrained from all further interference with military affairs. Supporting Rundstedt's demand, Himmler told the Führer that the SS completely agreed with the army. Goebbels then assured Hitler of the loyalty and discipline of the Nazi Party, the army, and the people, but warned him that he must not interfere in the conduct of the war.

Hitler, who took over personal command of the German Army from General Walther von Brauchitsch on 19 December 1941, flew into a rage, and the argument continued for six hours before it was finally agreed that he would devote himself to «home affairs.»

LONDON, December 18 — Adolf Hitler has been removed as Germany's supreme war lord and has been forced to devote himself to «home affairs.» The direction of Germany's war effort has been placed in the hands of Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, of Gestapo chief and Deputy Führer Heinrich Himmler, and of Propaganda Minister Joseph Paul Goebbels.

Hitler, who took over personal command of the German Army from General Walther von Brauchitsch on 19 December 1941, flew into a rage, and the argument continued for six hours before it was finally agreed that he would devote himself to «home affairs.»

When Hitler took over command of the German Wehrmacht three years ago, he led Germany into the defeat of Stalingrad and into the consequent disastrous defeats all along the East Front.

Conflicting interests of Himmler, Rundstedt, and Goebbels have since led to a series of disagreements as to which of them will become dictator of Germany. Himmler removed the training of all military personnel as well as Volkssturm members from the army and placed it under the leadership of Robert Ley, Nazi Party member and chief of the Reich Labor Front. This led to Rundstedt's accusing Himmler of assuming complete control of the army.

Goebbels, according to an American political commentator, is reported to be forming his own private army as a counter-balance to Himmler's Gestapo and secret service units. Secret service, espionage, and regular army troops are said to be involved in the conspiracy to overthrow Himmler now that he has assumed virtual military control of Germany.

The same commentator also stated that the German people have been ordered to fight to the death of their nation under appalling conditions of starvation and disease. They are fighting grimly for a decaying, disintegrating dictatorship. The high-ranking Nazi Party leaders are leading the state to total destruction in a vain attempt to save their own lives. WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 18 — Today's communique:

Fighting increased in intensity from the Monschau area southward to the southern end of the Luxembourg-German border with the enemy continuing his attacks.

Both infantry and armor now are in action and in some sectors the enemy has made use of small groups of parachutists. Gains were made by the Germans near Honsfeld, southwest of Vianden and south of Echternach.

During the enemy's efforts to give air support to his attacking ground forces we destroyed 108 of his aircraft for the loss of 33 of our fighters. Most of this action took place over Monschau Forest and adjoining areas although combats also developed farther north in the Rheine, Münster, and Bocholt regions. This resulted in air battles, in the course of which fighter-bombers operating mainly against road traffic in the Monschau Forest area and rail traffic radiating from Cologne destroyed or damaged a large number of locomotives, rail cars, armored fighting vehicles, and motor and horsedrawn vehicles, and much of the road traffic moving eastward on the road running along the Roer River to the east of Monschau. Other operations against road traffic were carried out between Monschau and Prum.

In the Saar Valley, Allied forces are making steady gains in the Dillingen and Saarlautern areas.

Northeast of Saargemünd, we made gains north of Walsheim.

Fighter-bombers attacked fortified towns in the Saar region and bombed ammunition dumps east of Coblenz. In the Bitsche area heavy fighting continues around Maginot Line forts. Enemy resistance slackened slightly but remains stubborn.

Northeast of Wissembourg our units captured a half-dozen villages inside Germany, including Schweighofen and Kapsweyer. Our forces are now facing the Siegfried Line defenses between Ober-Otterbach and Steinfeld, including fortifications, pillboxes, tank traps and wire entanglements.

Fighter-bombers operating in Kaiserslautern, Speyer and Pforzheim areas shot down four enemy aircraft and attacked rail lines, locomotives, rail yards, cars, and motor transport.

In the High Vosges Mountains our ground forces freed Kaysersberg.

On the Alsace Plain some ground was lost to strong enemy counter-attacks.

Fighter-bombers, one of which is missing, struck at barges, bridges, roadblocks and barracks in Colmar, Freiburg and Neustadt areas. A rail bridge at Freiburg was attacked by medium bombers.

Last night heavy bombers attacked industrial and railway targets in Ulm. (Reuter)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 18 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On December 16, at 1730 hours, strong German forces, after a short but powerful barrage, launched an attack proceeding from the West Wall and overran the advanced U.S. positions between the High Venn and the northern part of Luxembourg, in the first assault. The big offensive battle, supported by strong fighter formations, is in full swing. Details will be disclosed at a later date, so as to withhold information from the enemy, who was completely caught by surprise.

According to incomplete reports, fighter squadrons engaged in dogfights against enemy planes over the front area, brought down 48 enemy fighter-bombers. Anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force shot down an additional 21 enemy planes.

In the night, strong fighter-bomber and night-bomber squadrons struck effectively at enemy troop movements and supply centres.

In the other parts of the Western Front, the fighting continues in the Roer sector, west and south of Düren, in the pillbox positions at Saarlautern, at Bitsch, and at the West Wall near the frontiers of the Palatinate and Alsace.

In upper Alsace, our troops again penetrated into Kaysersberg in a counter-attack.

Liége and Antwerp were subjected to an extremely heavy long-range bombardment.

Italy

In central Italy, west of Faenza, the intensity and extension of the enemy attacks abated.

On both sides of Bagnocavallo, yesterday, the attack of Canadian units, launched with reinforced formations, again resulted in bloody losses and defeat.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, south of Lake Balaton, our troops repulsed strong Soviet attacks.

In the Szeszeny sector enemy attempts at breaking through, aiming this time in an easterly direction, were again frustrated. A front gap was closed in a counter-attack.

Between the Bück Mountains and the Hernad, we occupied new positions, which were held against fierce Soviet attacks.

Air:

over the roads in the German-Belgian border area. Infantrymen crawled out of holes in the grey of dawn and dashed against the American lines. It seemed as if a hurricane had started... According to latest reports, our front lines were improved. All arrows point to the west. Some breaches were extremely successful... One German Volksgrenadier division has so far definitely reported a gain of several kilometres beyond its goal of today.»

Hallensleben Statement: The prominent military analyst Hallensleben made the following statement via DNB: «The surprise which may upset Allied plans, is the fact that the Germans at the Western Front, after last summer's setbacks, have gone from the defensive to the offensive. With the present offensive, the German Command has succeeded in a surprise action which hardly has its equal in history.» He describes the German attack as consisting of big, carefully-gathered reserves and as of far more than «local character.» He mentions «strong German air activity» and «considerable gains of ground.»

Press Conference Statement: At a press conference on Monday noon, Sündermann said: «The fact that the German armed forces made a new attack on the west, taking the whole world by surprise, will not miss its effect on world public opinion. At a time when the enemy is already distributing German provinces, the German armed forces are again attacking in order to drive the enemy from the soil of the Reich.»

Eastern Front: While all attention is centred on the west, the Eastern Front receives relatively scant notice from German sources. Von Oiberg reports that the battle for Budapest is becoming «ever more stationary in its character on all three sectors.»

Bonomi's Speech: Radio Fascist's comment on the speech was that it was «plaintive» and Bonomi was abused for «serving his masters.» Comparing it with Mussolini's address, the commentator defines it as a «funeral speech,» whilst «Mussolini's voice reverberates as a warning in the consience of all Italians, north and south of the Apennines...»

«Hour Has Struck» on Western Front: The German counter-offensive on this front is to an overwhelming extent the feature of today's German propaganda, which treats it not merely as of local or diversionary significance, but as of the utmost importance.

Transocean quotes the following excerpts from the Order of the Day issued by Field Marshal von Rundstedt: «Comrades of the Western Front, the great hour has struck... Strong assault armies started out this morning against the Anglo-Americans... You all feel that everything is at stake. Carry on with your sacred duty of giving everything and of performing superhuman deeds for the Fatherland and Führer.»

«Extremely Successful» Breaches Claimed: The correspondent Wenzel reports: «For military reasons this report can be given only now. Since the early morning hours of December 16, German tanks have been rolling public opinion. At a time when the enemy is already distributing German provinces, the German armed forces are again attacking in order to drive the enemy from the soil of the Reich.»

HUNGARIAN

If the Battle Reaches Budapest...: The Hungarian Fascists seem to anticipate that fighting might soon reach the streets of Budapest. This explains the broadcast by Radio Budapest which, after accusing the Soviets of shelling and bombing non-military targets inside the city, has warned the inhabitants of Budapest not to blame the Germans «if, in the course of street fighting, which might take place at any time in the fluctuating battles for the possession of the capital, some buildings are damaged or destroyed by the defenders...»

RUSSIANS BREAK THROUGH NORTH OF BUDAPEST. THREATEN ENCIRCLEMENT

MOSCOW, December 9 — The 2nd Ukrainian Army has broken through German defenses northeast of Budapest on a 75-mile front and reached the Danube at Vac, 16 miles north of the Hungarian capital, Marshal Stalin announced tonight in an order of the day.

By this 40 mile advance, the city of Budapest is now three-quarters encircled and the German and Hungarian becoming precarious, as the Russians are driving on the road from either side of the town. The Russians are meeting strong resistance and the advance is difficult owing to marshlands.

At the southern end of Lake Balaton, Russian troops held strong German counter-attacks and gained ground. Heavy fighting was reported in progress on the western shores of the lake between Balatonszentgyorgy and the resort town of Keszthely. The Germans are resisting the Russian advance toward Nagykanizsa, a center of recently developed oil fields and on a rail line to Wiener-Neustadt in Austria.

Between the lake and the Drava River to the south, the Germans continued their disorganized retreat under a moving screen of Soviet artillery and mortars. Red Army troops are firmly established along the Drava although rain, fog and deep mud have limited Soviet advances.

After repelling 20 German counter-attacks Soviet troops fanned out towards the Drava and Mura rivers to form a strong line against enemy defenses south of Nagykanizsa. The Germans are also holding this line in an attempt to keep open an escape route for other German forces retreating in Yugoslavia.

The Soviet communique reported that 63 German tanks were knocked out or disabled yesterday and that 46 German aircraft were shot down in air combat or by anti-aircraft fire.

The complete 51st Hungarian Infantry Regiment surrendered to the Soviet Army yesterday in the Danube area, the supplement to the Soviet communique reported last night. The commander explained his decision was made after consultation with his officers and agreement that further resistance was useless.

On another sector, a platoon commander of the 2nd Hungarian Mountaineering Rifle Brigade surrendered with his detachment, telling his captors that he and his men «did not want to risk their lives for the Germans any longer.» (OWI - Reuter - Moscow Radio)

ALLIES MAINTAIN PRESSURE ON WEST FRONT

LONDON, December 9 — Steady Allied pressure was maintained on all sectors of the 400-mile Western Front today as the Allies alternated their thrusts at different sectors to keep the German Army alert night and day.

The American 3rd and 7th armies battled against the Saar Basin defenses along a 70-mile front from Luxembourg to just west of the Rhine, while American heavy bombers attacked communication centers funneling supplies to the German Army.

At the northernmost 3rd Army bridgehead over the Saar, 90th Division troops repelled a determined 10-hour German counter-attack at Dillingen, three miles northwest

RUSSIANS BREAK THROUGH NORTH OF BUDAPEST. THREATEN ENCIRCLEMENT

MOSCOW, December 9 — The 2nd Ukrainian Army has broken through German defenses northeast of Budapest on a 75-mile front and reached the Danube at Vac, 16 miles north of the Hungarian capital, Marshal Stalin announced tonight in an order of the day.

By this 40 mile advance, the city of Budapest is now three-quarters encircled and the German and Hungarian garrison have only two escape routes — to the west and northwest, and these are rapidly being threatened by the new Russian offensive.

Malinovsky's forces simultaneously forced the Danube south of Budapest, breaking through the German defenses on the west bank of the river to join the 3rd Ukrainian army at Lake Velencsei. Advancing northward along the west bank of the Danube, Red Army forces captured Ercsi, less than 12 miles from Budapest.

The Germans have shown no signs of making a stand. They have brought in new infantry and tank units from the Western Front and from Italy, as well as rushing up artificial fortifications, but they have been unable to hold the rivers and canals in southwestern Hungary.

In conjunction with the 2nd Ukrainian army's new offensive, the 3rd Ukrainian army launched a powerful attack between Lake Balaton and the Danube, where Red Army troops are trying to swing around the lake to reach the foothills of the Bakony mountains. Soviet artillery has been firing ceaselessly for the past 24 hours.

Over Marshlands

The most important bastion remaining to the Germans in the sector is the rail junction of Szekesfehervar, on the southwestern approaches to Budapest. German positions are in Austria.

Between the lake and the Drava River to the south, the Germans continued their disorganized retreat under a moving screen of Soviet artillery and mortars. Red Army troops are firmly established along the Drava although rain, fog and deep mud have limited Soviet advances.

After repelling 20 German counter-attacks Soviet troops fanned out towards the Drava and Mura rivers to form a strong line against enemy defenses south of Nagykanizsa. BUDAPEST RADIO STOPS BROADCASTING

ROME, December 9 — Radio Budapest stopped broadcasting tonight on its usual wavelength of 549 meters, Allied monitoring reports stated. Following his regular news broadcast at 2020 hours, the Hungarian announcer said that Radio Budapest would transmit on another wavelength. Transmissions will probably be made over the Vienna radio.

Following the Russian break-through both north and south of Budapest, the German news agency admitted that the Hungarian puppet government of Szalasi had deserted Budapest and had fled to the Austrian border town of Sopron. (OWI - Reuter)

DRAFT OF MEN UP TO 37 TO BE RESUMED IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, December 9 — James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization, ordered U.S. selective service boards today to resume the draft of men between the ages of 26 and 37, who are not essential to the war effort.

These men will be used to replace members of the armed forces released from military service to fill vacancies in war industries. Drafting of men in the 26-to-37 age brackets had been discontinued «until further notice» since last March. (OWI - Reuter) of Saarlautern. The Americans eliminated 12 more Siegfried Line pillboxes in a slow advance into the deep defense belt. At Saarlautern, practically all German resistance has been wiped out.

American infantry and armored units, which last night made four new crossings of the Saar River in the Saargemünd area, smashed into German fortifications on the river's eastern bank, expanding one bridgehead to a depth of one mile.

As rocket-firing Thunderbolt fighter planes today attacked German strongpoints all along the Saar line, 7th Army forces on the eastern flank of the 3rd Army made gains of three miles in an advance to within four miles of the German border. They have advanced well along the Tieffenbach-Ingweiler Pass through forest land and captured Mombronn.

To the east, they are moving across high, wooded ground on the northern Vosges some distance above the main road and railway from Saarbrücken to Hagenau. German opposition to this advance still is strongest in the Hagenau region and there has been continued heavy fighting near Merzweiler.

The 7th Army's southern flank and French 1st Army troops continued to mop up German remnants in the Vosges Mountains, which are already almost three-quarters cleared. French troops are within a mile of Kaysersberg, seven miles north-west of the German headquarters city of Colmar. American troops have reached Bennweier, five miles to the northwest.

Cologne Plain Reached

American 9th and 1st Army advances for the past two days have been small but they are now on the edge of the Cologne Plain, and on tactically important ground. The Germans consider the situation so serious that they have launched repeated counter-attacks, especially in the Bergstein area.

American 1st Army forces, which last night gained the important 600-foot ridge dominating the Roer River in the Bergstein area, threw off two German attempts to dislodge them. The ridge is an excellent point for artillery observation and American guns are hammering the Germans with precision.

In the battle for the Roer valley to the north, intensified enemy defense preparations and increasing movement along the Roer River have been observed. The Germans have withdrawn most of their artillery to the east bank of the river.

The last group of Germans holding out west of the Roer strongpoint of Jülich were cleared out today as a heavy cascade of artillery fire was turned on their positions. Allied fighter-bombers supported ground troops and strafed German positions from Linnich to Düren.

Press correspondents reported that the liberated port of Antwerp is now a scene of great activity, with scores of Liberty ships discharging cargo for the Allied armies. Numerous dock trains pulled huge loads of war supplies from the piers as unending convoys of loaded trucks left the area for the front. (OWI - Reuter - BBC - AP)

BRITISH WITHIN A MILE OF FAENZA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 9 — British infantry and armored forces of the 8th Army, advancing northeast from their bridgeheads over the Lamone river, pushed behind the German delaying positions and rolled back the right flank of the German 10th Army to within a mile of Faenza, it was announced here today.

British forces captured the village of Saint Prospero,

U.S. HEAVY BOMBERS HIT STUTTGART

LONDON, December 9 — Nearly 700 American aircraft, including more than 400 heavy bombers, today attacked railyards and an airfield at the communications center of Stuttgart, in southwestern Germany, 40 miles southeast of Karlsruhe.

Over 1,500 tons of bombs were dropped visually and by means of instruments by the Britain-based aircraft, on the marshalling yards which lie only 70 miles east of the fighting in the Strasbourg area, and about 100 miles from the U. S. 3rd Army front.

Flying conditions were difficult with temperatures varying down to 54 degrees below fahrenheit.

Only one enemy aircraft, a jet-propelled fighter, was encountered and that was destroyed. Four of the 400 American Flying Fortresses which made the attack are missing, but all the escorting fighters returned safely.

Today's attack on Stuttgart followed yesterday's double assault in daylight by escorted Lancasters of the RAF, on the marshalling yards at Duisburg, when a great tonnage of bombs was dropped.

The synthetic oil plant in the Meiderich district of Duisburg also was attacked yesterday by RAF Mosquitos, and Allied fighter-bombers and fighters, six of which are missing, struck at rocket bomb sites around the Hague.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers attacking Siegfried Line defences from Merzig to Saarbrücken, yesterday left eight German towns in flames, and shot down two enemy fighters.

The Associated Press quoted a staff officer of the 8th USAAF as saying today that the fighter strength of the Luftwaffe, despite heavy losses such as nearly 900 planes in November, actually is increasing, adding that, in his opinion, « they may run out of pilots before they do fighter craft. » (OWI-Reuter)

BAD WEATHER RESTRICTS MAAF OPERATIONS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 9 — Bad weather yesterday restricted operations of the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces to fighter-bomber and fighter attacks against enemy transport in north Italy and in Yugoslavia, it was announced here today.

About 200 sorties were flown by these aircraft. Medium and heavy bombers were grounded. (PRO)

MARSEILLE NOW GREAT ALLIED BASE

MARSEILLE, December 9 — Although the port here was the most systematically destroyed of all French ports, it is today the busiest, a New York Times correspondent said yesterday.

The dispatch said that the Germans did an unparalleled job of demolition and left behind them miles of utter ruin, which must have taken months to prepare.

« It is a fantastic experience to drive down the long waterfront and see every dock buckled up, every crane in midair, every storehouse flat, every slip a grave for a ship, and so many masts and funnels and prows sticking out of the watery graveyard that the wide harbor seems to be sprouting ships. » the dispatch added.

Despite the thorough destruction of the port facilities, the Allies are now able to berth there many Liberty ships at one time. In three months Marseille has become a great military supply base. (OWI)

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 9 — British infantry and armored forces of the 8th Army, advancing northeast from their bridgeheads over the Lamone river, pushed behind the German delaying positions and rolled back the right flank of the German 10th Army to within a mile of Faenza, it was announced here today.

British forces captured the village of Saint Prospero, which lies a mile southwest of Faenza on the Faenza-Florence railway, and then turned northwest to reach a small spur 1,000 yards south of Celle. Celle is a hamlet lying a mile and a half west of Faenza. This advance, which has hemmed in Faenza on three sides, was bitterly contested by the enemy.

The Germans continued to counter-attack in the Pideura area. This village was re-captured by the enemy and regained in house-to-house fighting. Pideura lies five miles south of Castel Bolognese, which is the next of the Po valley towns along the Emilia highway running northwest to Bologna.

On the northeastern end of the battle line, which runs across the Adriatic edge of the Po Plain, enemy forces continued to infiltrate along the southern shores of Valli di Comacchio, an extensive, shallow lake. Small formations of Germans were reported to have reached Casal Dorsetti, which is on the Adriatic, south of the Reno River estuary.

Along the 20-mile-long line of the Lamone River, which is still the main enemy delaying position, Allied patrols were held up by machine guns and mortars.

On the 5th Army front, activity was slight owing to thick fog, high wind and heavy rain. No changes were reported at any other point along the mountain battle line. (PRO)

DE GAULLE HOLDS MOSCOW INVESTITURE

MOSCOW, December 9 — Forty-three members of the French « Normandie » squadron, who are fighting alongside the Red Air Force on the Eastern Front, and a number of high Russian officers, were decorated by General de Gaulle at the French Embassy.

Earlier, General de Gaulle decorated four other members of the squadron who were in the hospital.

During the morning, Soviet Air Marshal Novikou decorated 19 French airmen, two of whom received the Gold Star award of the Soviet Union. (OWI)

CHINESE STOP JAP THRUST TOWARD BURMA ROAD

CHUNGKING, December 9 — Chinese troops in the South China area have repulsed the Japanese thrust toward the Burma Road fortress city of Kweiyang and pushed most of the enemy out of Kweichow Province, press dispatches reported today.

The Chinese War Ministry announced that the retreating Japanese were being pursued in the area of Liming Pass, northeast of the Kwangsi border town of Liucai, after being routed from Tushan.

Tushan, only 75 miles southeast of Kweiyang, had been enveloped by the Japanese in their drive along the Kwangsi-Kweichow railroad — a move which represented one of the most serious threats during recent fighting in China. An enemy victory in the drive would have resulted in severance of the Kunming-Chungking highway over which move supplies from India to the Chinese armies.

Although the Chinese troops apeared to have stopped and even routed the Japanese advancing on the Burma road, a Chinese military spokesman said that « the situation still is serious and we should not be too optimistic. »

The Chinese victory leading to the recapture of Tushan marked the first major Chinese victory in a year of continual retreats from the Yellow River south through Central China to the Kweichow front, one correspondent said.

In northern Burma, British patrols pushing down the railway from Myitkyina have reached Naba and advanced a mile beyond, the South East Asia Command communique reported today. Naba is 12 miles west of the Irrawaddy River port of Katha which is linked by a railway branching off the main line from Mandalay.

Dogged, skillful fighting is producing results in Burma, Major Eliot, military analyst for the New York Herald Tribune said today in an article reviewing the military situation in Southeast Asia.

He also said:

« There have been many disappointments and occasional false hopes in Burma and those have too often blunted the sense of real steady progress. We have come to fasten our attention too much on occasional vivid achievements like airborne landings behind enemy lines or capture of Myitkyina airfield. Now, with steady Allied advances, the Japanese position in upper Burma has been made definitely perilous, a factor that accounts partly for their desperate attempt to make an overland corridor to southeast Asia through China. »

Maj. Gen. Frank Merrill has been appointed deputy U.S. commander in the India-Burma theater under Lt. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, it was officially announced in New Delhi. General Merrill commanded the famous Merrill's « Marauder » group of fighters which helped break the Japanese advance in North Burma. (OWI)

NEW PACIFIC AIR COMMANDER

PEARL HARBOR, HAWAII, December 9 — Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon has been placed in command of the U.S. Strategic Air Force in the Pacific, directing all shore-based aircraft normally used in offensive blows against Japan, it was officially announced here last night.

General Harmon was recently named deputy commander of the 20th USAAF Superfortress force, under General H. H. Arnold. (OWI)

JAPS ON LEYTE SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 9 — The remaining Japanese forces on Leyte unofficially estimated to number between 40,000 and 50,000 men, are suffering heavy losses in the Ormoc trap, General Douglas MacArthur's communique said tonight.

TITO'S FORCES CROSS DANUBE

LONDON, December 9 — Yugoslav forces yesterday crossed the Danube near Sotin, about 30 miles west of Novi Sad, and continued their drive toward Vukovar to the west, Marshal Tito's communique announced today.

To the southeast, the important railway junction of Vinkovci was increasingly threatened by Yugoslav forces, who have repulsed several enemy counter-attacks, killing over 250 Germans and capturing many prisoners and much equipment.

In southeastern Bosnia, northeast of Sarajevo, Patriot forces occupied Han Pijesak and Vlasenica and continued to attack enemy communications in the Drina Valley.

West of Kragujevac, in western Serbia, enemy strongholds near Uzice were taken, and advance elements drove 4 miles beyond the town. The railine to Pozega is already under shellfire.

In Montenegro, fighting was concentrated near the Albanian border in the Matesevo sector, where the enemy made several attempts to break into Kolasin, about 55 miles north of Scutari on the Adriatic.

In Herzegovina, the Germans reinforced their positions at Nevesinje with troops from the Mostar sector.

Yugoslav forces have reached the Sisak-Zagreb railway, in Croatia, after wiping out a number of enemy strongholds, including those at Lekenik and Greda, both southeast of Zagreb. The drive toward Sisak continued. (OWI) off the main line from Mandalay.

Dogged, skillful fighting is producing results in Burma, Major Eliot, military analyst for the New York Herald Tribune said today in an article reviewing the military situation in Southeast Asia.

He also said:

« There have been many disappointments and occasional false hopes in Burma and those have too often blunted the sense of real steady progress. We have come to fasten our attention too much on occasional vivid achievements like airborne landings behind enemy lines or capture of Myitkyina airfield. Now, with steady Allied advances, the Japanese position in upper Burma has been made definitely perilous, a factor that accounts partly for their desperate attempt to make an overland corridor to southeast Asia through China. »

Maj. Gen. Frank Merrill has been appointed deputy U.S. commander in the India-Burma theater under Lt. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, it was officially announced in New Delhi. General Merrill commanded the famous Merrill's « Marauder » group of fighters which helped break the Japanese advance in North Burma. (OWI)

This advance, an American press service said, brought the 7th Division to within three miles of a junction with the right wing of the 77th Division, which landed south of Ormoc on Thursday.

The 32nd Division, hammering south down the Ormoc corridor, advanced past the high point at Tolibaw, 17 miles north of Ormoc, further compressing the ill-fated Japanese 26th Division toward the strong American forces south of Ormoc.

The official communique also announced that American airfields on the east side of Leyte Island have been cleared of the Japanese paratroopers. The paratroopers sabotaged installations in an effort to delay the Ormoc landings.

Announcing these gains, General MacArthur tonight paid tribute to the United States 6th Army, the 7th U. S. Fleet and the Far Eastern Air Force for the success of the amphibious landings, which had split the Japanese lines on the island's west coast.

A correspondent, describing this operation said: « There is no doubt that the Japanese were bewildered by this. They abandoned their positions on the hill opposite us, and ran toward the landing. « Then, when the shells from the naval guns fell about them, they ran back in our direction, only to meet the advancing 7th Division.

« The last we saw of them, they were taking to the mountain country. »

A New York Times correspondent said today that more divisions of United States troops are involved in the Leyte

ADMIRALTY SALVAGED 2,000,000 TONS OF SHIPPING

LONDON, December 9 — The achievement of the Admiralty's Salvage Department in reclaiming 2,474,094 tons of merchant shipping since 1939 was told in full here yesterday.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 765021

Ship Casualties in the first two months of the war were a greater problem than in all the previous 10 years. Steps were taken, however, to establish salvage bases along the coasts of Britain and an industry which had been practically dormant has become active again overnight.

When the Mediterranean area was opened, casualties in home waters simultaneously increased, because of increasing attacks by German aircraft. This new danger threatened docks and harbors. One or two ships sunk in awkward places could hold up the use of ports for weeks, or even months.

Soon after the Battle of Britain officers of the Salvage Department were involved in a new type of operation — the opening of blocked ports. At Tripoli, five days after its capture, passege was made for landing craft for tanks, and nine days later ships were coming in.

With the landings in North Africa, the Salvage Department was joined by the Americans.

Naples was the « high spot » of the campaign. The port was a shambles. Vessels were sunk all along the quays, and cranes and debris piled on top of them. The salvage operations resulted in a race between the U.S. and Admiralty salvage departments. Altogether, 170 wrecks were lifted and carried away from Naples harbor and its adjacent ports. (Reuter)

BRITISH PROGRESS IN GREECE

ATHENS, December 9 — Despite increased activity by rebel forces, British troops, supported by light sea and air forces, have cleared several sections in the fighting areas in Greece, a communique from the headquarters of Lt. Gen. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, said tonight. «Progress is being made,» the communique reported.

Press dispatches said that a fifth of Athens has been cleared of ELAS forces but that there still are about 10,000 rebel troops in the capital, while an additional 10,000 guerrillas are in the hills north of the city.

The greatest damage by rebel forces was the wrecking of an important bridge in the port of Piraeus yesterday. There were no details of how this was done other than that it was «deliberate,» according to the communique.

The rebels were cleared from strong positions in buildings and on high grounds by British infantry, tanks and light naval craft in an area south of Port Laontes at broadcast tonight said that two divisions of ELAS forces are moving up but that a majority of the 10,000 other ELAS men on the hills north of Athens apparently are not anxious to get into the fight. The broadcast said that the guerrilla forces inside Athens are extremists and of a different temper than the ELAS men in the country sections.

This view was strengthened by assurance today from General Serafis, commander-in-chief of the ELAS patriot forces, to General Scobie that he is still under General Scobie's command and will obey the latter's orders. A British military mission still remains at the ELAS headquarters in Lamia, 100 miles northwest of Athens.

Except for occasional shots, the center of Athens is said to be clear of fighting and, a Reuter dispatch reported, the city was quieter today than any day since last Sunday, when the ELAS agitation became intensive.

Briton Captured

The main body of guerrillas has been active mostly on the road between Athens and Piraeus. A BBC dispatch said that each night they block the road, which had been cleared in the daytime by British forces.

A truce for an hour was observed this morning to permit Red Cross trucks to distribute milk and medical supplies to hospitals where 250 wounded men of both sides are being treated.

A Reuter dispatch said that although British casualties in the fighting inside Athens are very light, 600 Greek policeman have been reported killed, wounded or missing out of the total force of 3,000. More than 900 rebel officers and men have been captured, the communique tonight reported.

A British dispatch rider was captured in Piraeus yesterday and an ELAS officer was reported to have telephoned British corps headquarters in Athens to say that any British troops captured hereafter will be considered by ELAS as prisoners of war.

On the Attica peninsula, rebels are reported to be using hand grenades and heavy bombs against British tanks. One ELAS battalion outside Athens, it was said, is known to have German 75-millimeter guns and shells.

Large groups of ELAS men are patrolling Salonika, where a general strike went into effect yesterday. The ELAS men are wearing steel helmets, a Reuter dispatch said, and the situation is «tense» despite the fact that the strike has not affected the public utilities.

Reports that Premier Georges Papanedreou has been negotiating with ELAS representatives to end the hostilities were denied tonight by Minister of Information Garoufalias. «The Premier has not received any one,» he asserted.

The only news emanating from the Greek Government today was that on Thursday, Papandreou appointed Brig. Gen. Spais, director-general of the Ministry of War, as Under Secretary of War to replace the EAM (Greek National Liberation Front) representative who resigned the post on Sunday.

Papandreou himself will continue to hold the portfolio of War Minister.

The rebels were cleared from strong positions in buildings and on high grounds by British infantry, tanks and light naval craft in an area south of Port Laontes at Piraeus. Aircraft support also was called on to use low-level machine-gun fire to help rout the guerrillas out of their strongholds, from which their hostilities consisted mainly of sniping.

Snipers, most of whom are wearing civilian clothes, have made the task of British patrols in Athens difficult. The communique said that one sniper-nest has been located in a church, and press dispatches reported that the ELAS men are concentrating on strongholds in hilly sectors to improve their sniping positions.

Two Divisions Move up

British unit commanders warned their troops today that any person in khaki is likely to be shot at by snipers and the communique said that a British ambulance driver was killed in the eastern suburbs of Athens, on the road to Piraeus, while assisting a wounded Greek civilian.

In these eastern suburbs, where rebel attacks have been intensive, regular Greek troops have repulsed many raids in which ELAS forces used heavy machine-gun and mortar fire.

A further advance by guerrillas outside the city was reported to be aimed at the southeast suburbs of Athens in an effort ultimately to capture the Acropolis. A BBC permit Red Cross trucks to [illegible] supplies to hospitals where 250 wounded men of both sides are being treated.

A Reuter dispatch said that although British casualties in the fighting inside Athens are very light, 600 Greek policeman have been reported killed, wounded or missing out of the total force of 3,000. More than 900 rebel officers and men have been captured, the communique tonight reported.

REHABILITATION OF GREECE HALTED

LONDON, December 9 — Allied efforts to reconstruct and rehabilitate Greece virtually have been stopped because of the fighting by the rebels, a BBC broadcast said tonight.

Describing the progress the Allies have made in the program to restore Greece to normal, until the fighting interfered in these operations, the broadcast said: «British army engineers had been directing repairs to major roads in all parts of Greece. Good progress had been made in repairing essential harbor facilities. With Allied help, several post services had been resumed between Athens and other points, and air-mail post-card service had been started to London, Washington, Ottawa, Cairo and an unnamed city in the Soviet Union.

British Royal Signals troops had begun repairs on telephone and telegraph lines on a big scale. Epidemic disease is at a minimum throughout Greece, thanks to the drugs and surgical supplies which have been placed at the disposal of the Greek Medical Service from Allied and International Red Cross stocks.» (BBC)

TWO ISLANDS PROCLAIM UNION WITH GREECE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 9 — The people of the two southernmost Dodecanese islands, Scarpanto and Kassos, Italian possessions since 1911, have abolished the military and civil Italian authorities by «a spontaneous movement of insurrection» and have proclaimed their union with Greece, a letter addressed by island notables to Admiral Sir John Cunningham, naval Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean, disclosed today.

The islands lie midway between Crete and Rhodes.

The communication, dated October 27 and signed by Christophe Saneliaridis, metropolitan of the two islands, and 29 representative citizens, declared that the people of the two islands had «assumed all powers by virtue of a solemn pact» formulated by Italian authorities and a «commission of the revolutionary movement» and other representatives of the two islands.

The letter said that they considered themselves «a people absolutely Greek by origin, from the points of view of language, religion, race, nationality and traditions.»

German troops evacuated the two islands on October 4, and a combined British force landed on October 17.

In his reply to the islanders, Admiral Cunningham said that it was «with greatest pleasure» that he recalled that officers and men under his command had «taken part in the liberation of Kassos and Scarpanto on behalf of the United Nations.» (PRC)

BRITISH PRESS ON CHURCHILL'S SPEECH

LONDON, December 9 — Although there was disagreement with passages in Churchill's speech on the Greek crisis, most newspapers here today agree with his statement that Britain must oppose any attempt to seize political power by force.

The Times, saying that Churchill «delivered a massive frontal attack on his critics,» said that British policy should pay more attention to left-wing opinion in Europe. Agreeing that the Greeks themselves must express their will in general election, The Times emphasized «that every endeavor is being made by the representatives of Britain, not only to secure the setting up of a wide coalition, but also to ensure that the coalition would embrace the policies as well as the support of the Left Wing.»

The Daily Telegraph approves of the British Government's policy, drawing attention to the fact that the ELAS band was trying to carry out a coup d'état, not to hold free elections but to prevent them.

«It is useless,» said the newspaper, «to talk as if democracy is already operating in Greece. It is the duty of the liberating power to see that when democracy is possible, it will be a reality and not a swindle.»

The Daily Herald said the Labor Party's vote against the Government foretold a political crisis, adding that most of the labor members signified their opinion by not voting at all. It further supported the views of Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Labor spokesman, that Britain should call all the Greek parties together with a view to conciliation and should send to Greece «a minister of high standing.»

Criticizing Mr. Churchill for denouncing Sforza, the Manchester Guardian said that «if that is the measure of Churchill's judgment one can only shudder. Reluctantly we shall have to assume that he may be an uncertain and even dangerous guide in our passage through the European maelstrom.»

On the other hand, the liberal News Chronicle, while rather critical of Government policy, said that «Mr. Churchill reaffirms to us his determination to promote the cause of European democracy.»

The Daily Mail said that the debate had cleared the air with regard to Britain's real intentions. Britain should take more care in the future to let the world know clearly just what her intentions are, it added.

Editorials today in leading newspapers in the U. S., commenting on Mr. Churchill's speech before the House of Commons yesterday, reiterated the necessity for unity of action among the Allies in formulating policies toward liberated countries.

The New York Herald Tribune said that while Churchill's explanation of the British position in the Greek situation was «plausible,» it does not explain why «a gang

Streamlined, with a sharply pointed nose, and four external fins at right angles to each other at the rear, the rockets are about 46 feet long and five a half feet in diameter.

The rockets travel so much faster than sound that they are not heard until after the explosion. Then there is a rumbling sound like thunder, which is similar to the noise it made through the air.

The weight of the explosive is about the same as the flying bomb, and the damage caused is about the same.

The Air Ministry said: «There is evidence that the Germans were forced to use the V-2 before it was fully developed, and its accuracy at present is not very great. The place at which the rockets land is being kept secret from the Germans, so that they will not be in a position to correct errors, either by the adjustment of the instruments in the rockets, or by other necessary modifications. Its military value at present is extremely doubtful.»

Supplies of rockets to their launching bases have probably been considerably curtailed by the Allied offensive against transport carried out for some time on the Rhine and Meuse fronts by British aircraft.

The warhead is in the nose, behind which are two large fuel tanks carrying alcohol and liquid oxygen, a turbine and combustion chamber, and other propulsion units.

As V-2 derives all its power from the fuel it carries, without depending upon external air for combustion, it can operate equally well at extremely high altitudes where there is practically no air.

The rockets stand vertically on a concrete platform for launching, and are fired by igniting fuel electrically from some distance away. They start their flight by climbing vertically, but gyroscope control causes them to curve from the vertical toward their target.

They eventually reach a height of 60 miles above the earth's surface, and come down in the same parabolic path that a shell would take. As they descend, they are slowed down considerably by air resistance, and become so heated by friction that they actually have been seen glowing dull red. (Reuter)

ICKES ASKS FOR OIL AGREEMENT

CHICAGO, December 9 — The best safeguard against another war would be a joint undertaking, by peace-loving nations, to keep down the supplies of oil to Germany and Japan to a point where they never could go to war again, Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes told the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations yesterday. He continued:

«This would be a much cheaper and more efficient device for policing the world in the interest of peace than by armies and navies. Moreover, economic considerations alone are sufficient to call for a world understanding on oil.»

Ickes said that the agreement concluded in August between Britain and the United States seemed to be a logical start recalling that the two nations had agreed to initiate an international conference for the purpose of effecting an oil agreement. At the same time the agreement provided for the setting up of an International Petroleum Commission, with recommendatory powers only, to study and advise on international oil problems.

There was evidence that the Middle East would eventually be found to be much richer in oil than the United States, Ickes said, adding that in Russia too great possibilities existed. There would almost certainly be important new discoveries in Venezuela, Colombia and the Netherlands East Indies. (Reuter)

RAF NOT FIGHTING GREECE

ATHENS, December 9 — Air Commodore Tuttle, British air officer commanding in Greece, said yesterday that the use, in Greece, of the RAF, «so beloved of the Greek that Britain must oppose any attempt to seize political power by force.

The Times, saying that Churchill «delivered a massive frontal attack on his critics,» said that British policy should pay more attention to left-wing opinion in Europe. Agreeing that the Greeks themselves must express their will in general election, The Times emphasized «that every endeavor is being made by the representatives of Britain, not only to secure the setting up of a wide coalition, but also to ensure that the coalition would embrace the policies as well as the support of the Left Wing.»

The Daily Telegraph approves of the British Government's policy, drawing attention to the fact that the ELAS band was trying to carry out a coup d'état, not to hold free elections but to prevent them.

«It is useless,» said the newspaper, «to talk as if democracy is already operating in Greece. It is the duty of the liberating power to see that when democracy is possible, it will be a reality and not a swindle.»

The Daily Herald said the Labor Party's vote against the Government foretold a political crisis, adding that most of the labor members signified their opinion by not voting at all. «Nor was the Prime Minister wholly satisfactory or wholly realistic in his discussion on Belgium and Italy,» the Herald Tribune continued. «Nevertheless, he outlined a policy and it was indorsed by the House of Commons.

«In other words, the United States has a definite responsibility for the policy which Mr. Churchill defended before Commons yesterday. It (the U.S.) cannot absolve itself of that responsibility by a statement of generalities, however high-minded and promising, as soon as the difficulties created by past decisions become present annoyances.» (OWI-BBC)

AIR MINISTRY RELEASES «V-2» DETAILS

LONDON, December 9 — Germany's long-range rocket now in use against southern England, travels at 3,000 miles an hour and has a warhead of 2,000 pounds of explosive.

Giving the first official details tonight of this weapon, the Air Ministry said that the rocket weighs about 12 tons and its present range is about 200 miles. It takes about five minutes to reach England from its launching bases — presumably in Holland — to the moment of impact.

RAF NOT FIGHTING GREECE

ATHENS, December 9 — Air Commodore Tuttle, British air officer commanding in Greece, said yesterday that the use, in Greece, of the RAF, «so beloved of the Greek people, is not against Greece but only against those elements which wish to usurp the freedom of the Atlantic Charter.»

His statement also said: «The most hateful order I have ever had to give was to use my air force against Greek nationals. I had hoped that the outbreak of lawlessness would be averted and even now my pilots have been instructed not to adopt the same tactics they would use against a real enemy.» (OWI)

NORWEGIANS DESTROY NAZI STOCKS WAREHOUSES

LONDON, December 9 — Norwegian Patriots have burned down a number of warehouses of the Swedish ball-bearing company in Oslo, destroying stocks of ball-bearings worth about 360,000 dollars, (90,000 pounds) the BBC reported tonight.

The Norwegian Government in London believed that the Germans had collected ball-bearing stocks from all over the country and stored them in the warehouses. The broadcast said that it is thought all stocks in Norway were destroyed at one blow. (BBC) dissolved. The majority of captured weapons are of German and Italian origin.

Unprovoked attacks on British troops are increasing and rebels have declared their intention of holding any of the British and Greek troops as prisoners.

Elsewhere in the country there are indications that rebel troops are still concentrating toward Athens. There have been no further reports of fighting breaking out other than between rival factions in the Drama area.

A general strike has been declared at Salonika. Relief measures have been brought to a standstill by this action.

In support of British and Greek troops, fighters and fighter-bombers engaged rebel machine-gun and mortar positions in the hills overlooking the suburbs of Athens-Piraeus. Three of our aircraft were damaged by the rebels' small arms fire.

Aircraft of the RAF based in Greece did not take part in this operation but continues to harry the Germans in Crete.

Attacks and widespread sabotage by Patriot groups continue in the Province of Veneto on communications lines leading to the town of Vicenza. At Lisiera, on the Treviso-Vicenza road, Patrict groups on the night of November 27 derailed a train carrying war materiel. A locomotive and four cars were destroyed.

A locomotive and five cars were destroyed by elements of the same Patriot group when a munitions train was derailed on the Treviso-Vicenza road near Carmignano di Brenta on the night of November 28. The next night they derailed a third train bearing supplies on the Vicenza-Tarvisio road, destroying a locomotive and two cars.

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 9 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

At Jülich, our bridgehead garrisons having offered a fierce resistance to enemy attacks throughout the whole day, withdrew to the eastern banks of the Roer. In the Huertgen and Vossenack sectors, U.S. formations which attacked on a broad front were mostly smashed. Small enemy penetrations were sealed off.

In the Saarlautern sector, Grenadiers recaptured some positions and cut off U. S. forces which had advanced to this area. South-east of Sarreguemines, a small bridgehead which the enemy had established during the day, was narrowed down by counter-attacks. In the forest area on both sides of the lower Vosges, the enemy continued his attacks with concentrated forces. They were either frustrated or collapsed in our main lines.

In Alsace, at the pass road leading from Col du Bonhomme to Kaysersberg as well as in the south-eastern foothills of the Wasgen Forest, between Mulhouse and Thann, German attacks alternated with those of the enemy. The situation remained virtually unchanged.

U.S. troops supported by tanks attacked the advanced bolt positions on the south-eastern front of the fortress Lorient. The fighting is still in progress. In front of our other fortresses in the West, there is harrassing artillery fire on both sides.

London continued to be subjected to our long-range bombardment.

Italy:

In central Italy, in the Faenza sector, the British continued yesterday their fierce attacks up to the evening hours. They succeeded in grim fighting in pushing back our troops to the western fringe of the town. The village Pideura was again fought for throughout the whole day. The enemy failed at all points to break through our positions. Strong enemy forces which attempted to cross the Lamone southwest of Russi, collapsed in our fire.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, in the Knin sector, enemy encircling attempts were frustrated. Southeast of Vukovar, the fighting for the enemy Danube bridgehead is in full swing.

In Hungary, between the Drau, Lake Balaton and the Danube, the Bolsheviks succeeded by fierce attacks in punching some minor gaps into our lines. Some big villages were recaptured by determined German counter-attacks. The enemy, from his penetration north of Budapest, increased his pressure in a southerly and northerly direction. The town Waitzen was captured by the Soviets after grim fighting which lasted throughout the whole day. The Soviets lost ten tanks. Northwest of Erlau and in the Miscolcz sector, repeated Bolshevik attacks failed.

Between eastern Slovakia and Kurland, there was only fighting on a comparatively small scale.

Air.

Bomber formations participated in the fighting in Hungary by day and night and, by plain hits on troop concentrations and movements, inflicted high losses in men and material on the enemy. German and Hungarian escort fighters brought down eleven enemy planes.

During the day, British terror bombers dropped bombs on western German territory causing damage to buildings, particularly in Duisburg. Our fighters engaging planes flying at a low altitude which were attacking the civil population of western and southwestern Germany with bombs and guns, destroyed eleven Anglo-American aircraft.

GERMAN

Goebbels Article: Last night the German Radio broadcast the weekly article by the Minister of Propaganda. It is Goebbels distinguishes between « blows which wound Germany » and blows which « shatter ». The Allies, he argues, can in the present (« decisive ») situation deal out only the blows which « wound, » owing to the « stiffened German defense. »

Greek Crisis: The Greek crisis continued during the broadcasts made both yesterday and today to be a leading propaganda item. It is treated mainly as a duel between pro-English and pro-Russian imperialisms. The former is regarded as a bully of small nations and violator of the Atlantic Charter: the latter is regarded as plotting to gain access to the Mediterranean through Greece and to Bolshevize Europe. A new point of view was added by the Nazi commentator Hertl, who explained the Greek revolt by blaming the long-established Nazi scapegoat the Jews: Jewish finance in Cairo is supposed to have instigated Greek Bolshevik rebellion in Athens. This item did not occur on any broadcasts except those for home consumption.

Western Front: Today German reports from this front exude a relative optimism. The German Overseas Radio tonight quotes a report saying:

« The Americans have once again begun large-scale operations in the Aachen area... in order to get out of the woods and push forward across the Roer. But even if they reach this objective, while suffering further heavy losses, they will still have to face a belt of marshland in which they would probably get stuck... The badly-battered 4th U.S. Tank division seems to be withdrawing... This had to be done because of heavy losses, out of all proportion to the territory gained. »

Eastern Front: The important break-through in Hungary, currently claimed by the Russian Radio, is not admitted by the Germans so far. Instead, a late D.N.B. report claims that the Germans are counter-attacking along a wide front between the Drave and Danube.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Italian Front: The Fascist Radio at 2000 tonight says that the British troops pushing forward in the Lamone Valley were « strongly counter-attacked by the Germans, who reached the eastern fringes of Faenza as a result of a successful manoeuver. »

In the Tyrrhenian sector, « units of negro mercenaries attempted to deceive the German defenders by advancing with a white flag. » However, they were « decimated » by the « swift reaction of German grenadiers. »

Franco Mystery: Along with the Greek crisis, the outstanding propaganda theme of both German and Fascist propaganda today is the question concerning rumors of Franco's resignation in Spain. Both radios cite items denying the resignation and denounce Bolshevik interference in Spain. A late Fascist Radio broadcast states tonight:

« Though all rumors of Franco's resignation still lack confirmation, the Paris newspaper Libération reports from Madrid that Franco has resigned as chief of state. The Spanish ambassador in Paris has denied this report. »

Degrees of Prostitution: The Radio Tevere commentator Vindex pays a grudging back-handed compliment to Sforza by saying that his « prostitution » to the Allies is less in degree than that of others. « England is very fond of Badoglio. He is one of those thorough traitors who prostitute themselves entirely, while Sforza, for instance, prostitutes himself only half-way. »

New Bonomi Government: This subject evokes several scornful comments in various broadcasts. Vindex, for example, calls the « birth of the second Bonomi government » a « forced birth » and stresses that the Socialists and Action Party refused to join in, « while the Communists bit at the hook, excited by the enticement of the ministerial tinsel. »

The Situation Is Grave: The announcement made tonight (saturday) that Radio Budapest is going to transmit on a different wavelength, only confirms the fact already known that, similar to other government institutions and offices, the radio station has been moved to a town near the western border of the country and possibly beyond it.

WAR FRONTS

FAENZA LIBERATED BY NEW ZEALANDERS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 17 — The town of Faenza has been liberated by New Zealand forces under the command of Lt. Gen. Sir Bernard Freyberg V. C., after a brilliant attack which decisively defeated the German 90th Panzer Grenadier Division. The New Zealanders also cut the main Po Valley road three miles west of Romagna, it was announced here today.

The attack was launched from ridgetop positions southwest of the town. The 2nd New Zealand Division captured the crossroads village of Celle after a battle which lasted [illegible] in which they were supported by fighter-bomber gola, three and a half miles southwest of Faenza, and secured all the high ground in this sector as far west as the Senio River.

Polish troops, advancing against strong resistance, crossed the Sintria River, a tributary of the Senio, and penetrated into the hills beyond.

New Zealand forces are now only about 25 miles from Bologna along the main Po Valley Highway, and their advance, coupled with the capture of Faenza, which has been the southern anchor of the enemy's line, may force the German abandonment of the remainder of their defenses along the Lamone River.

Canadian forces have already driven a salient two and a half miles deep through the Lamone River defenses and two secondary delaying lines northeast of Faenza. These troops now hold a three-mile-wide bridgehead across the Canale Naviglio, connecting the Senio and the Lamone Rivers, in the sector north of Bagnacavallo, nine and a half miles northeast of Faenza.

German forces still cling savagely to Bagnacavallo itself, strategically located at the junction of this canal and the Ravenna-Bologna rail line and highway. Enemy forces were reported to have concentrated all their available reserves in this sector, from which roads lead both to Bologna and to Ferrara.

Troops were shifted from the German 14th Army front south of Bologna as well as from further north in Italy to stem the Canadian advance, only to have the 8th Army strike again in the south, against the enveloped enemy flank positions in the Faenza area.

Successful 8th Army Tactics

Whether the German defenses southwest of Faenza had been weakened in order to strengthen the threatened sector, some 10 miles to the northeast, has not been disclosed in official reports here. The 8th Army tactics of alternating attacks first against one enemy flank and then the other, has been successful in breaking the German delaying positions across the Po Plain.

Most of the enemy formations brought up in the vain enemy attempts to hold the river defenses have been from units previously destroyed in heavy fighting, and reformed and retrained. The German 90th Panzer Grenadier Division, defeated by the New Zealanders in the battle for Faenza, had been previously captured en masse by General Freyberg's men in Tunisia on May 12, 1943.

FAENZA LIBERATED BY NEW ZEALANDERS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 17 — The town of Faenza has been liberated by New Zealand forces under the command of Lt. Gen. Sir Bernard Freyberg V. C., after a brilliant attack which decisively defeated the German 90th Panzer Grenadier Division. The New Zealanders also cut the main Po Valley road three miles west of Romagna, it was announced here today.

The attack was launched from ridgetop positions southwest of the town. The 2nd New Zealand Division captured the crossroads village of Celle after a battle which lasted all day and in which they were supported by fighter-bombers of the Desert Air Force and 8th Army artillery.

From Celle, a secondary road center between the Lamone and Senio rivers, the New Zealanders launched a night attack which cut the Emilia road from about a mile west of Faenza to the Senio River crossing. This crossing lies just over a mile from Castel Bolognese. Faenza was then attacked from the east across the Lamone River and from the southwest, where the New Zealanders had secured positions in a cemetery half a mile outside the town.

Although hemmed in on three sides, the Germans in Faneza were only driven out after fierce fighting.

More than 550 prisoners of war were captured in a 24-hour period at the height of the fighting, it was stated. Some 200, including five officers, of this total were captured at Celle. No figures of enemy prisoners taken in Faenza itself are available yet.

Today's announcement of the New Zealanders' victory is the first mention of these veteran troops, although they have been engaged in the preliminary engagements in this sector since British troops reached the outskirts of Faenza on November 24. Their presence in the line in recent weeks has been an official secret.

British and Indian forces of the 8th Army on the left flank of the New Zealanders attacked simultaneously with the New Zealand thrust. They captured the Village of Per- the Lamone River.

Canadian forces have already driven a salient two and a half miles deep through the Lamone River defenses and two secondary delaying lines northeast of Faenza. These troops now hold a three-mile-wide bridgehead across the Canale Naviglio, connecting the Senio and the Lamone Rivers, in the sector north of Bagnacavallo, nine and a half miles northeast of Faenza.

LATE BULLETINS

AMERICANS ADVANCE ON MINDORO

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 17 — American troops on Mindoro Island, 95 miles south of Manila Bay, made an advance of five miles today, it was announced in tonight's Pacific communique. In their two-day advance, the Americans have driven 11 miles inland since capturing the town of San Jose yesterday, securing their grip on southern Mindoro.

On Leyte, 77th Division troops outflanked the Japanese Yamashita Line north of Ormoc and advanced seven miles to the north. They are now within two miles of the Japanese 35th Army headquarters at Valences.

American 1st Cavalry and 32nd Division troops also made gains and captured quantities of ordnance, tanks, mortars and machine guns.

1ST ARMY CAPTURES 1,059 PRISONERS

LONDON, December 17 — American 1st Army forces have captured 1,059 German troops since the new enemy counter-attack against the center of the Allied front began yesterday, it was reported late tonight. (OWI)

On the 5th Army Front, enemy forces still clung to the Village of Tossignano, eight miles southwest of Imola in the Santerno River Valley, despite heavy air attacks and savage fighting which has raged in its streets since Wednesday last.

Elsewhere along the front, activity was confined to patrol actions and artillery duels. (PRO)

ENEMY COUNTER ATTACKS AT MONSCHAU

LONDON, December 17 — German counter-attacks along the quiet American 1st Army front from the Monschau area to the southern border of Luxembourg developed into a major offensive today as German infantry and armor spearheads made gains of up to two miles.

The enemy thrusts, made under cover of heavy artillery barrages, were led by an unprecedented number of tanks, which overran a series of American-held positions, and fanned out to the north and south. Last night and this morning scores of German paratroopers were dropped behind the American lines to cut communications.

One German attack was made in the area of the Belgian town of Honsfeld, two miles west of the German border and 12 miles southeast of Malmedy. The second penetration was made at a point southwest of the Luxembourg border town of Vianden, 14 miles south of the tri-country border of Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany, while the third was made just south of Echternach, 18 miles northeast of the city of Luxembourg.

The German offensive, aimed at relieving Allied pressure against the Cologne plain to the north, gained its initial success as it was made against a quiet sector. Swift American counter-measures were taken to halt the German advance and fighting still is going on. Slightly improved weather permitted Allied fighter-bombers to support ground action.

7th Army Successes

Seventh Army forces, 150 miles to the southeast, made a three-mile advance into the Palatinate and captured Rechtenbach after liberating Wissembourg (Weisenburg) to the south. Other 7th Army forces, 14 miles to the east, drove north of Lauterburg and in a one-mile advance captured Berg, most easterly point in Germany yet reached by an Allied army.

In the center of the 20-mile front along the German border, American forces entered Scheibenhard, while to the west of Wissembourg, an American column reached the road junction of Bobenthal.

Third Army forces today continued to make slow progress in their two-pronged drive above and below Saarbrücken, key city of Germany's industrial Saar. They steadily enlarged their position across the Saar River in the Dillingen and Saarlautern sectors to the northwest while other forces reached Gersheim, eight miles to the southeast of Saarbrücken. NAZI FORCES FACE RED ARMY TRAP

MOSCOW, December 17 — Marshal Malinovsky's troops, rapidly driving to encircle two large German forces in northeast Hungary, have advanced northwestward from Miskolc to capture Putnok, the Soviet communique announced tonight.

One Russian force, which fanned out to the west from just north of Miskolc, is driving on the Czechoslovak border pass of Lucenec, 30 miles to the west.

Another column of Russian troops turned their drive northeastward toward Lucenec after reaching the Danube last week, and were within 30 miles of the Czechoslovak town today after capturing Paszto. The German forces

The dispatch continued: «The Canadians are having a hard time, for the Germans are throwing in everything they have, including numerous Tiger and Panther tanks. At the same time, the position has been under heavy fire from German artillery accurately directed from the church towers of Bagnocavallo, which the Germans are using as an observation post.

«Competent observers believe that the enemy is using every one of the divisions at his disposal to hurl us back over the Lamone, his best defense line before Bologna. So far all his efforts have failed, the dispatch said.»

A London Daily Sketch correspondent recalled that: «Twice since the war began, once at Stalingrad and again at the Gothic Line, the 98th German Infantry Division has been virtually destroyed. It has now made its third, and possibly final, appearance on this front. Hurried from Bologna to be hurled against the Canadian bridgehead beyond the Lamone west of Ravenna, the division has again been severely thrashed. (EMPAX)

BRENNER LINES CUT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 17 — All through-lines at Innsbruck and Rosenheim, at the head of the Brenner Pass Route through the Alps from Italy, have been cut as a result of the past two days' air attacks by the 15th AAF, it was announced here today.

Photographic reconnaissance of the rail yards, 60 miles south and 30 miles southeast of Munich, showed that four strings of bombs had struck across the main yards at Innsbruck, knocking out all the tracks and most of the sidings. Only slightly less damage was wrought at the Rosenheim yards, nearer to Munich.

Royal Air Force Wellington bombers combined with Mustangs, Baltimores, Beaufighters and Marauders of the Balkan Air Force to attack the Matesevo-Podgorica escape route, in Yugoslavia. Along this route a German corps is struggling to make its way from the «Podgorica Pocket» just over the Albanian frontier.

In addition to bombing bridges and cratering roads, the planes hammered at nearly 200 crowded German vehicles in daylong attacks. (PRO)

97 NAZI PLANES SHOT DOWN

SHAEF, December 17 — The 9th USAAF today shot down 97 German aircraft when, despite the unfavorable flying weather, the Luftwaffe put up what was probably their greatest tactical air effort since D-day, it was announced late tonight.

In a day of intensified air activity, the Luftwaffe flew about 450 sorties in the 9th USAAF area compared with about 1,112 flown by American pilots for a loss of 31 aircraft.

Tempests of the 2nd TAF also were active and shot down nine enemy planes and damaged two others.

Last night, Black Widow night-fighters, operating beyond the 3rd Army front, attacked a long enemy convoy moving toward the front, setting many vehicles ablaze.

Photographs taken during yesterday's bombing of the Stuttgart-Kornwestheim rail center by 8th USAAF Fortresses show the marshalling yards and locomotive repair depots were well hit, a communique reported today.

A heavy concentration of high explosives and incendiaries covered the important repair depot, causing a number of fires and explosions. The marshalling yards were heavily loaded with cars at the time of the attack so that severe damage to rolling stock was achieved.

Observation of results of yesterday's daylight RAF operations was hampered by clouds although a British air communique said «bombing was well concentrated» during mis-

The German forces edged between these two Soviet spearheads must be withdrawn into Slovakia before the Russian columns meet or face encirclement and annihilation.

Meanwhile, General Ivan Petrov's armies are advancing toward Kosice from the southeast as Marshal Malinovsky's forces are driving on the large rail junction from the southwest. Both forces have made considerable gains in the past week and have presented the Germans with a second threat of encirclement.

The battle for Budapest continued today and Soviet troops, edging closer toward the city through strong German positions, have captured Magyarod, six miles to the northeast. Press dispatches reported that Soviet bazookas and mobile guns are playing a big role in the fighting for the city.

Troops north of Budapest repulsed strong German counter-attacks as they swung northward toward Bratislava, 85 miles away. Their advance carried them across the Ipel River where they are now moving forward on the central Europe road to the Reich. (OWI-Reuter)

CANADIANS PRAISED FOR LAMONE CROSSING

RAF RAIL WRECKERS VERSUS ROCKET BOMBS

LONDON, December 17 — RAF flyers, operating on the railways as far as 100 miles east of The Hague, are fighting a daily battle against the German rocket-bomb engineers, said a correspondent of the Daily Express.

The task of the German engineers is to rush up sufficient projectiles, alcohol and liquid oxygen to the launching sites to enable the rockets to be fired. But their task is no easy one. Day after day the RAF fighters roar down on the railways running from east to west below the Zuyder Zee and cut the tracks. In the last 10 weeks the line has been broken in 440 places.

The damage is so bad that the Germans are now believed to be putting their rocket material on barges and towing it across, south of the Zuyder Zee.

Originally the rocket-bomb platforms were often set up at the side of the railway in order to reduce handling but now this method is no longer of any use, although the enemy still tries frantically to patch up the shattered rail tracks.

As soon as a line is cut, German «storm» units send a squad from the nearest headquarters to make repairs and these specialists have had so much practice that, given three days of non-flying weather, they can bring the supply picture back to something like normal.

The Germans have flak trucks waiting for the air wreckers in sidings or travelling with the precious rocket-bomb consignments, and the flyers face great risks. But the battle is vital and the RAF is gradually breaking the hearts of the fanatical, angry German engineers. (OWI)

BRITISH LINK UP ON CHINDWIN

KANDY, CEYLON, December 17 — British 36th Division forces have linked up west of Katha with 14th Army troops, who pushed 200 miles east across the upper Chindwin River, in four weeks, Reuter reported today. The dispatch said the junction took place in the Indaw railway corridor, where 36th Division troops advanced along the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway.

Fourteenth Army troops have also captured Pinlebu, a Japanese supply base, east of the Chindwin.

British destroyers shelled Japanese positions northeast of Udaung, 12 miles southeast of Maungdaw, today's Southeast Asia Command communique said. East of Kalapanzin, West African troops advanced east of Buthidaung against enemy shelling, while Indian troops occupied a feature in the coastal section. In the northern combat area, mopping-up operations in the Bhamo sector continued.

Eastern Air Command bombers carried out successful attacks on enemy bridges and other military targets along the Rangoon-Mandalay railway. Heavy bombers yesterday attacked Akyab. Other aircraft attacked communications in northern Burma. One Allied plane is missing.

ENEMY FIGHTERS ATTACK MAAF FORMATIONS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 17 — Escorting heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF in an attack on synthetic oil refineries at Blechammer and Oderthal in Silesia today, Mustang and Lightning fighters encountered formations of over 50 enemy interceptors and engaged them in the first large-scale air battle in over a month of MAAF operations, it was announced here this afternoon.

Although exact figures for the number of aircraft engaged, or victories or losses sustained, were not yet available, the announcement said that at least 50 dog fights had occurred in northern Moravia on the way back from the Silesian targets. From available information it was believed that the German Me-109 and FW-190 fighters had been unable to penetrate the heavy bomber formations in force.

Lightning long-range fighters of the 15th USAAF today attacked an important rail line from Rosenheim, southeast of Munich, in the first extensive foray by fighters from Mediterranean bases against ground targets in Germany proper. Other heavy bombers struck at targets in the Salzburg and Weis area in Austria. Tactical Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers concentrated their attack along the Faenza-Imola-Lugo sector of the 8th Army front, and areas southeast and southwest of Bologna on the 5th Army front. ization's 350,000 sorties against enemy rail lines near Milan.

In addition to the 350,000 sorties by Tactical aircraft, the planes of the 12th AAF have flown more than 10,000 troop-carrier sorties, in connection with airborne operations in the Mediterranean. (PRO)

WORK OF FILIPINO PATRIOTS PRAISED

WASHINGTON, December 17 — The work of Filipino Patriots accounts in large part for the weakness of the Japanese attacks on the great convoy which moved from Leyte Island to Mindoro Island, the Post said in an editorial today.

The editorial continued: «The Patriots are in possession of several vital airfields on Panay, Negros and Mindanao Islands close to the route of the convoy. Large parts of Cebu and Bohol (Islands) have been cleared of the enemy. This excellent work by local resistance groups is undoubtedly part of a systematic plan. The Patriots have kept in touch with General MacArthur's headquarters. In many instances they have been supplied with munitions, food and equipment by American submarines.

«Their gallant efforts have not only prepared the way for the invading American forces but have also helped greatly to keep the spirit of liberty alive through all the dark hours through which the Filipino people have passed...»

YUGOSLAV FORCES FREE LJUBOVIJA

MARSHAL TITO'S HEADQUARTERS, YUGOSLAVIA, December 17 — Yugoslav forces pushing up the Drina River Valley have freed the town of Ljubovija, 60 miles northeast of Sarajevo on the Serbian border, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

Meanwhile other forces under Marshal Tito liberated Uzice in western Morava and 60 miles west of Kragujevac.

The communique reported heavy fighting in the Drina Valley with the Germans losing heavily in equipment and men. Whole motor convoys are being wiped out, the communique said.

Fairly heavy fighting is continuing in Montenegro where the Germans entered Kolasin. Southeast of Kolasin the Germans attempted to break through from Mateso into Andrijevica.

In the Karlovac-Zagreb area Yugoslav troops repulsed enemy attacks towards Pisarovina, while in Slovenia the battle for the Ljubljana-Mesto communications lines continued.

The Trieste-Venice line of communications was destroyed in several places in the Slovenian coastal area, the communique said. (OWI)

FINE RECORD OF 12TH AAF

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 17 — The 12th AAF was congratulated today on completing 350,000 sorties in 25 months of operations in a message sent by Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commanding MAAF, to the 12th AAF commander, Maj. Gen. John K. Cannon, it was announced here.

General Eaker described the 12th AAF as « the scourge of the German soldier in the Mediterranean, » which had severed enemy lines of supply and attacked his troop concentrations and equipment in the front lines, as well as destroying or damaging a total of 4,914 enemy aircraft.

During its more than two years of operation, the 12th AAF has operated from bases in Africa, Pantelleria, Sicily, Italy, Sardinia, Corsica and southern France, and has dropped more than 175,000 tons of bombs on enemy targets in 12 countries. In this period, the 12th AAF suffered losses of 2,277 American planes.

The 12th AAF was first composed of Strategic and Tactical aircraft, and formed the American and major part of the Northwest African Air Forces. After the Italian invasion and the formation of the MAAF, the 12th AAF was split and its heavy bombers and escort fighters were incorporated in the 15th AAF.

The first commander of the 12th AAF was Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, leader of the first air attack on Tokyo and now commanding the 8th AAF in Britain. The first sortie of the 12th AAF was flown in support of the invasion of North Africa on November 8, 1942.

YUGOSLAV FORCES FREE LJUBOVIJA

MARSHAL TITO'S HEADQUARTERS, YUGOSLAVIA, December 17 — Yugoslav forces pushing up the Drina River Valley have freed the town of Ljubovija, 60 miles northeast of Sarajevo on the Serbian border, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

Meanwhile other forces under Marshal Tito liberated Uzice in western Morava and 69 miles west of Kragujevac.

The communique reported heavy fighting in the Drina Valley with the Germans losing heavily in equipment and men. Whole motor convoys are being wiped out, the communique said.

Fairly heavy fighting is continuing in Montenegro where the Germans entered Kolasin. Southeast of Kolasin the Germans attempted to break through from Mateso into Andrijevica.

In the Karlovac-Zagreb area Yugoslav troops repulsed enemy attacks towards Pisarovina, while in Slovenia the battle for the Ljubljana-Mesto communications lines continued.

The Trieste-Venice line of communications was destroyed in several places in the Slovenian coastal area, the communique said. (OWI)

SUPERFORTRESS PICKS OWN TARGET

SAIPAN, December 17 — A Superfortress unable because of engine trouble to reach Nagoya during Wednesday's attack on the Mitsubishi airplane works sought out instead a target of opportunity and bombed and probably destroyed an important Japanese war plant in Hamamatsu, about 55 miles southeast of Nagoya on Hikisahoso Bay, an American war correspondent said today.

The aircraft's commander said:

« We didn't want to dump our bombs into the sea; so we started looking for a target where we could do some good. »

The bombardier added: « We made a good bomb run over a likely-looking factory and laid a string of explosives right across the target, starting fires. »

Other B-29's, returning home from the Nagoya attack, reported seeing two explosions and intense fires in Hamamatsu — apparently the result of the lone plane's attack. (OWI)

LIBERATED ITALY

BONOMI CALLS FOR ALL-OUT WAR EFFORT BY ITALY

ROME, December 17 — Italy must direct all its efforts — manpower and resources — to the sole purpose of winning the war, Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, told the Italian people tonight in a broadcast over Radio Rome.

«This one purpose should unite all Italians without distinction of parties,» the Premier said. «Fight and win the war. On our participation in the fight, and from the victory against Nazi-Fascism depends, in truth, the liberation of Italy, the satisfying of her needs, the possibility of rebirth and of reconstruction.»

Premier Bonomi reminded the Italian people that despite rumors to the contrary, which he suggested came from the common enemy, «Italy is fighting for her liberation, and for nothing else.»

He stated that Italy cannot, as her great sister nations, «give herself up entirely to the preparation of a speedy victory, and spend this hard period preceding victory in a feverish constructive undertaking.»

«We have not the means to create armies, warships, airplanes; where Fascism passed, every trace of fecundity has been erased. We cannot abandon ourselves to the joy of fruitful labor because we lack everything, from the bread necessary for our life to the means of transportation which are indispensable. Therefore, our life is most hard, and our period of waiting soul-languishing. But Italians must realize that this state which is painful, and — especially in view of the approach of winter — fearful, is connected with the war.

Unanimous Feeling

«As long as the war lasts, means of transportation will be scarce and uncertain. And therefore foodstuffs, clothes and raw materials also will be scarce and uncertain. Human labor, in which our country abounds, cannot give its fruits due to the scarcity of the means which are necessary to make it productive. The war, therefore, is the cause of our discomforts, and the only source of the troublesome times in which we are living.»

The Premier emphasized «we must, therefore, cause the war to end, if we wish to re-open the way to reconstruction,» adding:

«But the war cannot end without victory. Who thinks otherwise, or dreams of an impossible compromise peace, betrays the cause of humanity, which is entitled, after so much bloodshed and such gigantic destruction, to the elimination of the one ideal and sentiment of the common motherland and united together in a clear-cut, simple, straight program of action: Win the war in order to open up to Italy, once more finally safe from a return of a nefarious past, the road to her rebirth and to her hoped-for progressive victory.»

Premier Bonomi paid a high tribute to Italian Patriots in the north who, he said, «with insufficient arms and amid the rigors of winter are conducting a guerrilla warfare which wears down the enemy, torments him and exhausts him.»

He continued: «The Government, which has since August entrusted to the Committee of Liberation of northern Italy the charge of conducting the struggle against Nazism and Fascism, grants now full powers to the Committee of northern Italy so that it may have the necessary authority to carry on the struggle until the final victory. And as the struggle must be maintained with proportionate means and with an assiduous, encouraging and solid activity, the Government has instituted the new Department for Occupied Italy with the express purpose of giving support with all the means at its disposal to the truly heroic fervor of the Patriots, and thus prepare with ever more frequent contacts with the population of northern Italy for the day, which we hope is near at hand, of the arrival of the liberating Armies.»

The Premier said that nearly 200,000 Italian soldiers are nearing the completion of their training, adding «very soon the first Italian Division, which Rome saw parading through the streets in perfect war armor, will take its place on the battle front next to the soldiers of the United Nations.»

«And before the start of the Spring», he said, «other divisions will be on the battle-line to represent that glorious Army of Vittoria Veneto which Fascism destroyed and which is being reforged in the atmosphere of liberty as if to prove that only in liberty can man renew his spirit and his arms, and the true and not only apparent strength of a nation founded.» (UNN)

FIRST AID TO INDUSTRY PLANNED

ROME, December 17 — Plans are under way for early «first aid» rehabilitation of industries essential to the Italian economy, the Italian government and the Allied Commission announced jointly yesterday.

Broad agreement already has been reached on what priorities are to be given various parts of the program.

Attention primarily is being concentrated upon the urgent requirements of transportation, electric power and agriculture, and upon those industries essential to the rehabilitation and maintenance of transportation, electric power and agriculture.

In this the ministries concerned — co-ordinated through the recently-established Committee for Reconstruction — are working in close co-operation with AC's Economic Section, including AC's sub-commissions for transportation, agriculture, public works and utilities, industry and commerce.

Even when implemented by purchases abroad, any schedule of civil rehabilitation supplies will be limited by the present difficult shipping situation, the announcement stated. (UNN)

SOUTH ITALY RETURNING TO NORMAL

The region of Campania has surpassed its goal in the Granaries of the People (Granai del Popolo) in which 3,087,000 quintals of wheat and 311,000 quintals of barley have been collected.

«The unanimous feeling of the Italians can thus be only this: let us hasten victory, and therefore wage war with renewed vigor. Victory is at hand, and with victory the beginning of our strenuous reconstruction. But we must meet victory with the unanimous effort of all Italians.»

Premier Bonomi pledged his Government's complete support to the war effort, declaring: «This war effort of Italy's — necessarily modest because 20 years of Fascism have destroyed the sources from which we derived armaments and equipment — will be defended by the Government over which I have the honor of presiding, against any attack. This is the supreme duty which we will firmly accomplish.»

Tribute to Patriots

The Premier said that victory must also have Italy's imprint, «and have also our name — a name which is most noble and pure — synonomous in centuries gone by of civilization and liberty.» He added:

«For this reason I should like to see all Italians putting aside their passions of the moment, become reconciled in Armies.»

The Premier said that nearly 200,000 Italian soldiers are nearing the completion of their training, adding «very soon the first Italian Division, which Rome saw parading through the streets in perfect war armor, will take its place on the battle front next to the soldiers of the United Nations.»

ROME, December 17 — Nearly 10,000,000 Italians in an area roughly corresponding to the old kingdom of Naples are making steady strides toward normal ways of life, the Allied Commission's Southern Region revealed today in a report of survey.

The region of Campania has surpassed its goal in the Granaries of the People (Granai del Popolo) in which 3,087,000 quintals of wheat and 311,000 quintals of barley have been collected.

More than 9,000 tons of rock phosphate fertilizer was received in the Southern Region in November. Except in Foggia, where the high density of livestock in available pasturage has had a damaging effect, the incidence of animal disease is normal, Brig. J.K. Dunlop, commissioner for AC's Southern Region, reported.

In Campobasso, potatoes amassed totaled 400 tons.

In the Naples area, the Montecatini plant at Portici is producing sulphuric acid and superphosphates, and another plant will start production in February, experts stated.

Control of salvaged shoes and military uniforms, and of textiles, nails and glue has been turned over to the Ufficio Principale per il Commercio e Industria.

Improvement in hemp production was shown by the 1,000 tons received from farmers in November, compared with 500 tons received in the preceding six weeks.

Prison Population Declines

Repairs to the Naples gas and water system are continuing, and an 80,000-cubic-meter gas storage tank will be working soon.

More than 400 miles of maintenance was carried out on roads currently essential to the military, 192 miles of provincial roads, and 63 miles on other roads.

The Salerno sewage system is being extended, and Battipaglia's is almost completed. Vesuvius ash has been cleared from most of Salerno Province. In reduction of crime Salerno Province has a particularly good record.

The prison population of the Southern Region has declined 700, and is now 12,889. All civil prisoners became the responsibility of the Italian government November 15.

Enrollment totals in Naples were higher than in the year before, and in Benevento only slightly less. In the shortage of schools, some conducted two or more shifts of classes each day. Substitute buildings were found in many places.

More telephone circuits have increased civilian use of telephone and telegraph. Bank deposits in the Southern Region have increased. Remittances from the United States amounted to 360,884 lire in November. (UNN)

NAZIS STOLE 490 PAINTINGS IN FLORENCE

FLORENCE, December 17 — The Germans stole 490 valuable paintings and 120 cases of sculpture from hiding places in the Florence area where thousands of pieces of art had been hidden, it was stated today by art officials of the Allied Military Government. Italian art experts placed a minimum value of a million dollars (250,000 pounds) on the art stolen by the Germans in this section.

Included among the German loot was Donatello's « St. George, » Michaelangelo's « Bacchus, » Titian's « Concert » and Rafael's « La Donna Velta. »

The Germans found the hiding places despite the ingenuity employed by Italian curators. AMG officials said that the operation of hiding the art was the greatest movement of art in history.

Art officials of AMG, in a report to the Allied Commission, said one of the first things AMG did after the liberation of Florence was to place armed guards over the hundreds of places where the art had been deposited.

No damage was done by Allied gunfire to buildings of art interest, AMG officials added.

The Germans, however, placed mines in many buildings such as the Palazzo di Parte Guelfa, the Church of St. Stefano and the Uffizi Gallery. Three of the four bridges destroyed by the Germans were more than just means of crossing the Arno. The Santa Trinita was known as the most beautiful bridge in the world. Its four statues and numerous carved shields have been reclaimed from the river. Under AMG auspices a study is now being made of records of the distinctive curve of the bridge's arches so that the structure can be rebuilt after the war.

AMG also supervised the repairs to the Ponte Vecchio, the city's one remaining bridge, and the excavation of the Colombaria library, which the Germans almost completely destroyed with electric mines. (UNN)

NENNI AIDS IN SOCIALIST PLANNING

LONDON, December 17 — Pietro Nenni, secretary of the Italian Socialist Party, today participated in the discussions of a special committee laying plans for the re-organization of the Socialist International. The committee is scheduled to meet again at the end of January.

Nenni, who, together with Oreste Lizzadri, has been attending sessions of the British Labor Party conference here, yesterday saw Count Carandini, Italian Ambassador to Britain. Later both he and Lizzadri were guests at a tea given in their honor by a group of members of the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

Following a visit to the more severely bombed sections of the city, Nenni paid tribute to the part played by British workers in the war and their attitude to international problems. He said he was impressed « by the fervor and the sense of responsibility with which the English delegates examined various international problems, particularly that of Greece. » (UNN)

ATHENS POSITION UNCHANGED

ATHENS, December 17 — Little change in the situation here was reported today in a communique from General Scobie, although further progress was made in clearing ELAS troops from the port of Piraeus.

In the city sector, the communique reported localized fighting only, adding that insurgent artillery and mortar fire continued throughout yesterday and that there was an increase in sniping.

An Associated Press correspondent said that British troops, advancing east of Castle Hill, keypoint of the Kallipolis Peninsula, now have established a firm link between Piraeus and here, and for the first time in 10 days, armored convoys were able to pass between here and the port area.

The same dispatch quoted a Greek Government spokesman as saying that Piraeus was completely cleared of « insurgents » with the exception of the refugee settlement. British authorities, however, felt that the port had not been satisfactorily cleared and mopping-up operations were continued.

Other reports said that the RAF has made a second attack on the ELAS-controlled radio transmitter which started up again sometime after the first attack. The

NAZIS LOOT IN GARAFAGNA

FLORENCE, December 17 — Plight of the population in the German-occupied zone of Garafagna was described today to a UNN correspondent by a Tuscan lawyer who recently succeeded in crossing the front lines with his family.

According to him, the Germans are completely ignoring the population's needs. There are no civilian authorities; food and medical supplies are lacking, and the people exist on chestnuts.

The Germans themselves are receiving very limited supplies because of Patriot activity in the Apennine passes, and are consequently looting the civilians ruthlessly and ceaselessly.

Continual labor roundups, not only of men but of women and children also, are being carried out to such an extent that people dare not approach even the cemeteries to bury their dead, but leave them under mounds near their houses with serious results to public health.

About 30,000 cattle, one of Garafagna's richest products, are menaced with extermination owing to the impossibility of finding shelter for them and the difficulty of feeding them.

The lawyer said only the hope of early liberation induces the population to bear the continual strain under which they are living. (UNN)

Other reports said that the RAF has made a second attack on the ELAS-controlled radio transmitter which started up again sometime after the first attack. The station is now reported to be out of action.

In western Greece, the Indian troops, who were attacked by ELAS forces last Thursday, have now been evacuated from Krioneri.

General Scobie, late last night, made the following comments on a telegram he had received earlier from ELAS Maj. Gen. Stefanos Sarafis accusing the British commander of trying to conquer and occupy Greece as the Germans had occupied it, and adding that ELAS would continue the struggle until « you realize your responsibility to history and cease your attacks. »

On Defensive

General Scobie said: The disarming of all armed civilians has been strictly adhered to, irrespective of their parties, including royalists. We continue to hold Security Battalion personnel as prisoners of the Greek State.

The National Guard has been called up by age groups and armed in accordance with a government decree, which was approved by the previous government. Officers of these battalions are approved by all ministers, including those representing EAM.

Orders have been issued to General Zervas to remain strictly on the defensive and to make no offensive move that might provoke war between his force and the ELAS troops.

It was stated categorically in my proclamation that I opposed any move that was aimed at usurping the properly recognised constitution of the government from whatever quarter the move might come.

My order for the complete evacuation of Attica, agreed to by General Sarafis at Caserta, was never implemented by him, and armed ELAS troops remained in the area of the capital contrary to his given word.»

The Socialist Party and the Union of Popular Democracy in the Salonika area have broken away from the EAM and the leaders of both groups have been arrested by ELAS forces, it was officially stated today.

POLISH PREMIER REPLIES TO CHURCHILL

LONDON, December 17 — The Allies must first give an explicit guarantee of Poland's future independence before territorial questions can be discussed, Polish Premier Thomas Arciszevski said today in an interview published in the Sunday Times. It would be «unjustified» to cut away the eastern part of Poland, the Premier added.

Arciszevski hoped that a settlement of the problems still could be reached and said that «a new set of proposals which we intend to submit in due time to the Soviet and other Allied governments after approval by the underground state in Poland itself» is being prepared.

The newspaper then quoted the Polish Premier as having said: «The Polish-Russian dispute can be divided into four parts: guarantees for the re-establishment of a sovereign Polish state, the frontier problem, civil administration in the territory liberated by the Red Army and the future of Polish-Russian relations.

«With regard to the first problem I greatly appreciate the favorable statements about the future of the Polish state by Mr. Churchill, but these do not seem to justify making the amputations of the eastern part of Poland, which is not all marshland but includes territory of vital importance, the preliminary condition of any Russian-Polish settlement.

«I believe we could base the future of a country faced with such enormous difficulties only on international treaties of an explicit character. My government intends therefore, to do the utmost to obtain first of all formal Allied guarantees for the re-establishment of the Polish state. When we have secured that we can undertake discussion of frontier adjustment.» (OWI)

The conference then suggested that the international organization proposed at Dumbarton Oaks be made a permanent body, that the rule of unanimity in voting procedure by participating powers in the conference be replaced by a two-thirds majority vote, that the assembly composed of all states should be given the right to initiate proposals for action by the security council on all matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security.

FLORENCE, December 17 — The United States Congressmen, touring the European battlefronts, left here today for a personal inspection of the Italian fighting front.

After a tour of command posts, they were to attend a brief nondenominational service in a church of a recently-liberated town.

Next on the schedule was a lunch of field rations. During the afternoon the party was to visit an advance observation post and inspect an evacuation hospital. (UNN)

CLOSE SOVIET-FRENCH PACT

PARIS, December 17 — The 20-year treaty of alliance and mutual aid pact between the Soviet Union and the Provisional Government of the French Republic, the text of which was made public tonight, binds the two nations to fight together until the defeat of Germany and to collaborate closely in the peace.

Under its terms neither nation will conclude a separate peace, or armistice, with Germany — Hitlerite or otherwise — and each will afford the other help and assistance in this present struggle by all means at its disposal.

The agreement provides for the re-establishment of peace on a stable basis and requires the existence of close collaboration between the USSR and France and with all the United Nations. It pledges the contracting parties to collaborate with a view to creating an international system of security permitting the effective maintenance of a general peace and guaranteeing the harmonious development of relations between nations.

Following the defeat of Germany, France and the Soviet Union have agreed to take any measures necessary to eliminate any new threat on the part of Germany; and to oppose any initiative of a nature capable of making possible a new attempt at aggression on her part.

In the event of either party becoming involved in a war with Germany, the other will give immediate assistance to the limit of its power.

« wholehearted endorsement » of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals and submitted four suggestions for strengthening the plans.

« Labor everywhere must with all its force and energy pursue the policy of advocating and supporting the basic principles proclaimed by the Dumbarton Oaks proposals » the statement said.

The conference then suggested that the international organization proposed at Dumbarton Oaks be made a permanent body, that the rule of unanimity in voting procedure by participating powers in the conference be replaced by a two-thirds majority vote, that the assembly composed of all states should be given the right to initiate proposals for action by the security council on all matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security. WASHINGTON, December 17 — President Roosevelt and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek exchanged messages on the third anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941, the State Department said yesterday.

Chiang's message, dated December 7, said: « On the third anniversary of the outbreak of the Pacific war, I take great pleasure in extending to you and the American people my warm greetings and best wishes as well as those of the Chinese people.

« The glorious achievements of American armed forces in the Pacific theater have won the deep admiration of all her Allies. We are proud to be your comrades-in-arms in this war against the evil forces of aggression. »

President Roosevelt in his reply said: « The satisfaction which we take in the achievements of our armed forces is accompanied by a solemn realization that such achievements are an integral part of a great co-ordinated effort wherein each success on the part of one nation is built and in large measure depends upon the splendid contributions of all the United Nations.

« We are proud to be fighting beside the Chinese people whose long unconquerable resistance to aggression forms a foundation stone of the democratic cause and who, we are confident, will worthily share in the approaching phase of final victory. » (OWI)

NAZIS ATTACK INTERNAL PEACE GROUPS

LONDON, December 17 — The Gestapo is making mass arrests in Hamburg in an attempt to smash a peace organization, Moscow radio said yesterday. The broadcast added that the Gestapo action is directed mainly against dock workers.

Suggesting that Hitler is not only alive but also active a German broadcast said yesterday that the Fuehrer has created a new medal, the Warsaw Shield, for those who took part in the fighting against the underground in the Polish capital between August 1 and October 2.

Evidence continues to accumulate from press and radio dispatches that the German annihilationists are determined to destroy Budapest before the Russians capture it. Brazzaville Radio quoted an official German spokesman as having said: «Budapest must disappear from the face of the earth. The work of destruction must continue. Not a house, not a room, should remain habitable for the Russians.»

An Ankara broadcast Thursday said Budapest is without water and a typhus epidemic is starting. The Berne correspondent of the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet said yesterday that Budapest is now occupied by German SS troops who seem to have the task of destroying it completely to prevent the Russians from using it as winter quarters.

The correspondent added: «There is every reason to fear that very little will remain of Budapest's beautiful buildings. There is smoke and fire over Budapest and tens of thousands of poor civilians are fleeing westward, crowding the roads as far as the Austrian frontier. The majority of Budapest's inhabitants did not want to evacuate, but were forced to when Nazi troops began destroying their homes».

Anti-war Sentiments

Following a tour of Volkssturm units by Nazi bosses — Ley, Rosenberg and Schepmann — a directive on the intensification of Nazi propaganda in the German Home Guard has been issued by Martin Bormann, Nazi Party chief of staff. Calling attention to the growth of anti-war sentiments in Volkssturm battalions, he ordered that party organizers are to be attached to each unit to give «political instruction.»

The line taken by Goebbels and Himmler is to continue the theme that Germany is going to win in the end, appearances to the contrary notwithstanding. One mid-week broadcast quoted an alleged Himmler speech, during his recent tour of the Hungarian defenses, to the effect that «the worst is now over.» He is supposed to have told an audience of soldiers: «We have succeeded in holding and pinning down the enemy both in the east and the west. We have had to take some heavy blows in the course of the fighting and have suffered greatly, but I happen to know the situation is still worse in the enemy camp. It is just a question of staying the distance.»

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 17 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

The strength of our defense on the front east of Aix la Chapelle yesterday again forced a fighting lull upon the enemy. The enemy's objective — the Roer sector west and south of Düren — was not reached by him. Our counter-attacks gained ground in several sectors.

In the positional war on the Saar, the attacking American divisions got stuck in heavy fighting for pillboxes and houses particularly in and around Dillingen, Saarlautern and Enzdorf. Between Saargemund and Bitsch the fortifications of which were again subjected yesterday to heavy enemy fire, our troops repulsed the bulk of enemy attacks.

On the Alsace frontier and to the east of it, fighting is in progress in the forefield of the western fortifications.

In the Upper Alsace, enemy attacks in the Kaysersberg-Urbeis area considerably increased in strength.

London and Antwerp continued to be shelled.

Italy:

In central Italy, focal point of the heavy defensive fighting yesterday was around and west of Faenza. Despite employment of strong artillery and tank forces, the gains of British attacking formations were confined to a narrow strip of land between the river Senio and the town of Faenza. In the fighting area on both sides of Bagnacavallo, strong enemy attacks were frustrated. The Canadians again suffered heavy losses.

Eastern Front:

In mopping up operations in Croatia, the bands lost several men in killed. Enemy pressure in the area between [illegible] was further increased.

The Military Situation: Commenting on the military situation during the past week, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung mentions increasing German counter-activity. By continuously changing the centres of gravity for their thrusts, the paper continues, the Allied High Command hoped to bring greater pressure to bear upon German resources and, at the same time, to make effective use of their air superiority. The present German counter-thrust, however, seems to have frustrated this plan, according to the paper, which adds that no clear picture can be gained of the general situation until Soviet offensive plans in other sectors of the eastern front unfold themselves. Then German countermeasures completed in the past few months will have a decisive effect.

Aside from the official communiqués, German news agencies and broadcasts had little to say regarding the situation on the various fronts.

Franco-Soviet Agreement: At a Wilhelmstrasse press conference, Braun von Stumm, German Foreign Office spokesman, dealt at length with the Franco-Soviet agreement. After discussing American, British and neutral reaction, he came to the conclusion that the pact serves interests which are largely Soviet. The following two reasons are given: Firstly, continuous fear from an enslaved and dazed Germany would firmly attach France to Soviet Europe, and secondly, by equipping the French army with Russian weapons and advocating the incorporation of the FFI into the regular forces, the Soviet Union would secure a firm foothold for Bolshevism in France, even after the dissolution of the Comintern. Von Stumm placed special emphasis on the fact that France was no longer in the same position as after the last war, when she had succeeded in building up the Little Entente to prevent the predominance of a single European power. Today, the members of the late Little Entente are solidly established in the Soviet sphere of interests.

In Hungary, the Bolshevists with strong forces attacked at the isthmus of Ipolyeag, between Eipel River and Matra Mountains. Our formations stubbornly defending themselves held the front intact despite initial territorial gains by the Soviets.

In the penetration area between Bueck Mountains and Hernad, heavy fighting against enemy forces which broke out in several places continues.

In the southern part of eastern Slovakia, the Bolshevists continued their attacks on both sides of the Ungvar-Kaschau road and extended them to the north. They were smashed or checked in our main fighting line.

From the remainder of the Eastern Front, no fighting of importance is reported.

American terror planes, penetrating into southern and southeastern Germany yesterday, dropped their bombs almost exclusively on residential districts. Damage was caused particularly in the city of Innsbruck, and in several places in the area of Stuttgart.

Greece: Von Stumm also commented on the situation in Greece. From various statements, broadcasts and newspaper articles he inferred that the British were already preparing the public for a change of policy towards the exile government, Britain no longer being able to support minority groups in certain countries. Von Stumm then quoted a Swiss paper saying that Greece was experiencing the novel spectacle of an organised revolution turning against the organisers...

Churchill's Speech: DNB quotes a Swiss paper condemning Churchill's cold-blooded statement favoring the exchange and removal of millions of Germans, Poles and Ukrainians in order to achieve a solution which would be even worse than the sham peace treaty of 1919. The paper adds that the debate on Poland in the House of Commons «has shown with frightening clarity what remains of the lofty aims of 'war for freedom and human dignity'.»

The Paris Radio also discussed the Polish question and demanded that France be consulted as a fourth power, along with the Soviet Union, the U.S. and Great Britain.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Sicily: The Fascist Radio claims that the riots organised by the separatist movement in Catania have spread to all the principal towns of Sicily. In Palermo, university students are said to have demonstrated against recruiting for military service.

CANADIANS EXPAND BREACH IN ENEMY CANAL LINE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 16 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, battling fiercely against increasing enemy concentrations, have doubled the width of their breach in the German delaying positions along the Canale Naviglio, and have borne down to within 300 yards of the German strongpoint of Bagnocavallo, 9½ miles northeast of Faenza, it was announced here today.

For the third successive day, official reports stated that the enemy continued to bring up reinforcements, apparently drawn from the 5th Army front or from farther north in Italy. These troops, supported by Tiger and Panther tanks and self-propelled guns, have been hurled in an almost continuous series of counter-attacks against the apex of the 2½-mile-deep salient driven by the Canadians through three successive layers of German defenses based on the Lamone River and the Vecchio and Naviglio canals.

In renewed attacks against the southwestern end of the of the main Florence-Bologna road some eight miles south of Bologna, as well as near the Prato-Bologna road some 14 miles southwest of the Po Valley city.

Small enemy attacks were also reported in the sector southwest of Castel San Pietro, in the Sillaro River Valley. (PRO)

SEVEN ALLIED ARMIES MAINTAIN PRESSURE AGAINST GERMANS ON 400-MILE FRONT

LONDON, December 16 — Three Allied armies on the northern end of the 400-mile Western Front threw harassing shellfire into German positions on the eastern banks of the three formidable water barriers of the Meuse, Lower Rhine, and Roer rivers as four other Allied armies fought against strong German resistance in the Saar and Upper Rhine River regions.

Units of three divisions of the 7th Army, which yesterday crossed into the Palatinate province of Germany, today battled against pillboxes and bunkers on the outer rim of the Siegfried Line defenses. The Germans were forced to switch a panzer division from another sector to meet the threat to the flank of the German forces fighting in the Saar Basin.

Heavy fire from Siegfried Line artillery in the Wissembourg (Weissenburg) - Lauterburg area was directed at the three small American bridgeheads. The new German armored units also offered stubborn resistance, and heavy fighting is reported west of Lauterburg.

Wissembourg, now threatened from three sides, guards the valley leading to the German industrial area of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, 35 miles to the north. A northward advance by 7th Army forces would overrun the main German communications and turn the flank of the Saar Basin defenses.

To the west of the 7th Army's 20-mile front along the German border, other 7th Army forces in the Bitsche sectors fought against German farms fortified with concrete emplacements six to eight feet thick. The Germans in this sector are sending panzers out as patrols, as well as using a considerable number of self-propelled guns.

In the Alsace Plain along the Upper Rhine, the Germans have reinforced their troops in the Colmar sector and have launched further counter-attacks against French and American positions, in an effort to divert Allied strength from the new drive into Germany. French forces, however, gained a mile in a southward thrust over soggy ground.

American 3rd Army forces today made gains measured in yards, as German heavy artillery was suddenly increased against the Saar bridgeheads at Dillingen and Saarlautern. Progress on the whole 3rd Army front in the Saar Basin was slow, and frequent German counter-attacks were held.

East of Saargemünd, 35th Division infantry beat off a heavy armored counter-attack north of Habkirchen. The ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 16 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, battling fiercely against increasing enemy concentrations, have doubled the width of their breach in the German delaying positions along the Canale Naviglio, and have borne down to within 300 yards of the German strongpoint of Bagnocavallo, 9½ miles northeast of Faenza, it was announced here today.

In renewed attacks against the southwestern end of the enemy's line across the Plain of the Po, British and Polish forces of the 8th Army secured a foothold on the low ridges southwest of Faenza, to increase the pressure on this flank of stubbornly-held German defenses.

A surprise Canadian attack northeast along the Bagnocavallo-Alfonsine road following the Canale Naviglio's west bank caught German forces off-balance and resulted in expanding the 8th Army bridgehead across this watercourse to 3,000 yards, official reports said. A simultaneous attack by Allied troops along the east side of the steep-banked canal extended the 8th Army line in this sector to conform with the new Canadian gains.

The renewed Allied pressure southwest of Faenza was countered yesterday by a heavy enemy counter-attack supported by strong artillery concentrations and the massed fire of Mark IV and Mark VI tanks. Despite the heavy fire power of the enemy's 75 and 88-millimeter guns, these counter-assaults launched south from Celle, a village a mile and a half west of Faenza, were without success, and more than 200 enemy prisoners were captured. Polish forces gained their objectives farther southwest only after the bitterest hand-to-hand fighting.

On the 5th Army front, German forces continued their attempts to dislodge Allied forces from forward positions in the sectors south of Bologna. Sharp clashes occurred east

LONDON, December 16 — Three Allied armies on the northern end of the 400-mile Western Front threw harassing shellfire into German positions on the eastern banks of the three formidable water barriers of the Meuse, Lower Rhine, and Roer rivers as four other Allied armies fought against strong German resistance in the Saar and Upper Rhine River regions.

Units of three divisions of the 7th Army, which yesterday crossed into the Palatinate province of Germany, today battled against pillboxes and bunkers on the outer rim of the Siegfried Line defenses. The Germans were forced to switch a panzer division from another sector to meet the threat to the flank of the German forces fighting in the Saar Basin.

Heavy fire from Siegfried Line artillery in the Wissembourg (Weissenburg) - Lauterburg area was directed at the three small American bridgeheads. The new German armored units also offered stubborn resistance, and heavy fighting is reported west of Lauterburg.

Wissembourg, now threatened from three sides, guards the valley leading to the German industrial area of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, 35 miles to the north. A northward advance by 7th Army forces would overrun the main German communications and turn the flank of the Saar Basin defenses.

To the west of the 7th Army's 20-mile front along the German border, other 7th Army forces in the Bitsche sectors fought against German farms fortified with concrete emplacements six to eight feet thick. The Germans in this sector are sending panzers out as patrols, as well as using a considerable number of self-propelled guns.

In the Alsace Plain along the Upper Rhine, the Germans have reinforced their troops in the Colmar sector and have launched further counter-attacks against French and American positions, in an effort to divert Allied strength from the new drive into Germany. French forces, however, gained a mile in a southward thrust over soggy ground.

American 3rd Army forces today made gains measured in yards, as German heavy artillery was suddenly increased against the Saar bridgeheads at Dillingen and Saarlautern. Progress on the whole 3rd Army front in the Saar Basin was slow, and frequent German counter-attacks were held.

East of Saargemünd, 35th Division infantry beat off a heavy armored counter-attack north of Habkirchen. The

3RD ARMY BREAKS THROUGH AT DILLINGEN

LONDON, December 16 — Overcoming heavy opposition, 90th Division troops of the 3rd Army broke through the main German defense line in Dillingen and overran 13 blocks of houses and captured 14 pillboxes, it was reported late tonight.

On the 7th Army front, German forces were reported tonight to be abandoning the whole Palatinate border line and to be rushing back to the main Siegfried Line defenses. Fighter-bombers smashed targets ahead of the 7th Army, which is closing up to the border on a 30-mile front. (Reuter)

Germans to the southeast are holding the American advance from Maginot Line forts which have disappearing guns that swing on revolving turrets.

Far to the north, American 1st Army troops made slow progress against minefields and barbed-wire entanglements in the Monschau region, southwest of Düren. One 1st Army column continued to be held up by a roadblock below Simmerath.

All along the 1st Army sector, infantry forces edged up to the Roer River in gains up to 1,000 yards, as the Germans concentrated considerable shellfire into American positions northwest of Düren. The enemy are blowing bridges still intact as their rear-guard troops cross the Roer to the east bank. (OWI-Reuter-AP)

RED ARMY DRIVES TOWARD CZECHOSLOVAKIA

MOSCOW, December 16 — The Red Army drive toward Kosice in eastern Czechoslovakia which threatens to encircle a large number of German forces in northeastern Hungary, continued today as Russian forces captured a large rail junction 20 miles from the Czechoslovakian border.

A junction of Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's forces with General Ivan Petrov's forces, who are advancing from the east, would collapse the German front based on Kosice and Presov, and would outflank the German armies in southern Poland.

Strong Czechoslovak Patriot forces in advance of the Red Army have been attacking German communications and petrol supplies, and have inflicted heavy German casualties.

The Soviet communique announced tonight that Russian troops in northeast Hungary have captured 810 German and Hungarian troops.

Press dispatches reported street fighting in the eastern and northeastern suburbs of Budapest, as a big tank battle raged on the western banks of the Danube to the southwest of the Hungarian capital.

There were no material changes on other sectors of the front.

A special naval communique tonight reported that three German destroyers, two having a displacement of 1,800 tons and the third 600 tons, were sunk in the Baltic Sea by forces of the Red Banner Fleet. The Soviet vessels took more than 200 German officers and seamen prisoner.

The air arm of the Red Banner Fleet bombed and sank six German transports in an attack on enemy shipping at Libau, Latvia, on Thursday. The six ships sunk had a total displacement of 24,000 tons. A 5,000-ton German transport vessel was damaged. (OWI-TASS)

AMERICANS GAIN 7 MILES ON MINDORO; LEYTE OPERATION "COMPLETED"

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 16 — American forces who landed on Mindoro Island, 85 miles south of Manila Bay, yesterday, have captured the town of San Jose and have made a broad advance of seven to nine miles against negligible Japanese resistance, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight.

Operations on Leyte, first landing point in the Philippines, have been completed for all practical purposes, Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner in the Philippines, stated tonight.

Press dispatches reported that the 24-mile long convoy sailed for two days past Japanese strongpoints on the islands of Mindanao, Negros, and Panay with little enemy opposition.

Less then 24 hours after the convoy started on its 600-mile journey through enemy waters Japanese aircraft made an attack which was beaten off. They later returned to make a second attack, but were driven off again.

JAP SNIPERS BEING CLEARED FROM BHAMO

KANDY, CEYLON, December 16 — Only a few snipers remained today out of a Japanese force of 1,200 which had held out in Bhamo, 80 miles south of Myitkyina in Burma. The town was captured yesterday by Chinese troops.

In the Arakan sector of Burma, the 15th Indian Corps has continued its advance against strong opposition and has entered a village 16 miles south of Maungdaw after the occupaton of Buthidaung.

Aircraft of the Eastern Air Command attacked an enemy supply area near Lashio yesterday. Other aircraft bombed and strafed troops and stores near Namkam, in northern Burma, and damaged communications. Heavy bombers caused large fires and an explosion during an attack on dumps, camps, and railway targets at Kamchanaburi in Thailand (Siam).

An American press dispatch from Chungking reported today that in the Thailand and Burma border area inclement weather prevailed on all China fronts yesterday, but that operations by fighter aircraft and medium bombers were continuing.

Chinese troops have reached the area of Japanese-held Hochih, in northern Kwangsi Province, 100 miles west of the former American air base at Liuchow, a communique from the Chinese High Command said today.

Destruction of 12 Japanese planes by American airmen in the week ending December 13, with 30 others damaged or probably destroyed, was reported in a communique from the 14th USAAF. Not a single American plane was lost in these operations, the communique said.

The 14th USAAF also destroyed 12,400 tons of enemy shipping during the week, and sank a Japanese destroyer, which was attacked in Hong Kong harbor by Mustang fighter-bombers December 8.

The crew of one of the two Superfortresses previously reported missing from Wednesday's bombing attack on Bangkok, Rangoon, and Nagoya, Japan, was rescued after 17 hours in the water by an American destroyer. The Superfortress was shelled by the destroyer before it would sink. (OWI - Reuter -BBC)

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 16 — Escorted Liberators and Flying Fortresses of the 15th USAAF today attacked one of the few remaining enemy oil sources, at Brux in the Sudetenland, and a target at Innsbruck, Austria, at the head of the Brenner Pass line, in the relentless continuance of bad-weather bombardment of the Reich, it was announced here this afternoon.

Instruments were used to identify the targets through a heavy overcast, and results of the attacks were not observed, the announcement said.

Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force dived through heavy clouds over the Italian battle area to support British troops of the 5th Army in mopping up stubborn enemy resistance in the Tossignano area south of Imola.

Yesterday, more than 1,000 fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force attacked enemy communications and battle lines in the Valley of the Po, it was announced here today.

In the concentrated attacks, 64 rail cuts were made, several road and rail bridges were destroyed or damaged, and 10 road points were cratered, as well as three heavy and nine light enemy guns destroyed. In the continuing attrition attacks on enemy transport, 16 locomotives, 149 rail cars, and 60 vehicles were destroyed or damaged.

In close-support attacks against German positions across the southeastern end of the Po Plain, two enemy tanks engaging advancing Canadian troops were knocked out by bomb hits. (PRO)

AMERICANS GAIN 7 MILES ON MINDORO; LEYTE OPERATION « COMPLETED »

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 16 — American forces who landed on Mindoro Island, 95 miles south of Manila Bay, yesterday, have captured the town of San Jose and have made a broad advance of seven to nine miles against negligible Japanese resistance, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight.

Operations on Leyte, first landing point in the Philippines, have been completed for all practical purposes, Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner in the Philippines, stated tonight.

Less then 24 hours after the convoy started on its 600-mile journey through enemy waters Japanese aircraft made an attack which was beaten off. They later returned to make a second attack, but were driven off again.

As the convoy, predominantly made up of warships, neared Mindoro, lights were seen on the shore, indicating the complete surprise obtained by the American force. They were blacked out only after destroyers and rocket ships bombarded the island's flat shoreline and troops moved ashore.

Less than 90 minutes after the first assault wave landed, troops advanced over a mile inland against little opposition. No Japanese artillery was encountered on the beaches of the 3,750-square-mile island. The beaches were littered with landing ships, quantities of armor, artillery, and anti-aircraft guns within two hours after the original landing. Bulldozers, tractors, and trucks were at work, and engineering parties were speeding inland.

The Americans landed on the southwest corner of Mindoro, which is high and mountainous, but which is dry with an average rainfall of only three inches a month. (The rainfall on Leyte to the east averaged over 23 inches during November.)

Mindoro, roughly the size of Corsica, is the seventh island in the Philippine group to be landed on by General MacArthur's forces. The others are Leyte and Samar and the islets of Homonhon, Saluan, Dinagat, and Panoan, all in the Leyte-Samar area. (OWI-Reuter)

GENERAL WILSON PRAISES MINESWEEPERS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 16 — General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, retiring Supreme Allied-Commander, Mediterranean Theatre, praised the rôle of Allied minesweeping flotillas which have cleared some 4,000 mines from Mediterranean waters in the past 11 months, in a letter addressed to Admiral Sir John Cunningham, Mediterranean Naval Commander-in-Chief, which was made public today.

A detailed report covering the activity of the various minesweeping craft disclosed that through the maintenance

15TH U.S.A.A.F. HAS LOST 2,400 PLANES

WASHINGTON, December 16 — The Italy-based 15th USAAF has lost approximately 2,400 planes in combat and suffered 16,000 casualties while flying 150,000 sorties, the War Department announced today.

Summarizing operations by the force since its activation 1 November 1943, the Department said that planes of the 15th had flown more than 150 million miles and dropped 300,000 tons of bombs on 630 industrial and military targets in 12 countries.

The force's Flying Fortresses and Liberators, with their fighter escort, destroyed 3,660 enemy aircraft in combat and more than 2,000 on the ground during the 13 months ending December 1, the report said.

The ratio of aircraft losses to sorties flown is only slightly more than 1½ per cent. The total of 16,000 casualties includes prisoners who were later returned to freedom from liberated countries.

The 12th Tactical Air Force in 15 months of flying from Mediterrannean bases, the War Department announced, dropped 127,371 tons of bombs and destroyed 752 enemy planes in aerial combat. The 12th lost 1,173 planes to anti-aircraft fire and in aerial combat. The announcement did not report the number of enemy planes destroyed on the ground.

During the seven months through November 1944, in Italy and southern France, 12th USAAF fighter bombers destroyed or damaged 13,065 motor vehicles, 14,526 railroad cars, 1,074 locomotives, and more than 1,100 bridges, the report disclosed. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE SJENICA

LONDON, December 16 — Yugoslav troops have liberated Sjenica, on the Montenegro-Serbian border, Marshal Tito said today. Sjenica is 30 miles northwest of Novi Pazar.

In Montenegro, Yugoslav troops supported by Albanian units have occupied Tuzi, and have reached the Cijenva River on a wide front.

Northwest of Sarajevo, several enemy columns were routed near Derventa. Yugoslav troops in that area have reached the Doboj-Derventa rail line at several points, and destroyed over a mile of the track.

The communique said that a German column which attempted to break through from Ogulin, 55 miles southwest of Zagreb, was beaten back with considerable losses.

Other Yugoslav forces, in the northwest tip of Yugoslavia, destroyed five «technical objectives» and cut the Ljubljana-Celje section of a main railway with branches into Italy, Austria, and Hungary.

Two Yugoslav divisions have crossed the Drava River to work in unison with the Soviet forces moving forward in the Lake Balaton region, according to General Velebit, Marshal Tito's representative in London, in an interview quoted by The London Times. These forces, the General said, are forming a flank guard to the Russian forces pushing forward in the region of Lake Balaton. (OWI)

U.S. MATERIEL FLOWS TO U.S.S.R. THROUGH PERSIA

WASHINGTON, December 16 — More than 4,380,000 tons of war implements and goods from the United States have been delivered by rail and truck through the Persian corridor to Russia, the War Department announced today.

The announcement also demonstrated the growth of the capacity of the gulf ports of Bandar Shahpur and Khorramshahr since January, 1943, when the U.S. Army took over operations at those points. At the time, the monthly capacity of the two ports was only 95,000 tons. Fifty days were required to unload a vessel.

By October, 1944, the capacity of the twin ports increased to 265,000 tons, while ships were unloaded in seven days.

The application of American railroad methods increased the tonnage carried by the railroad to Teheran from 165,000 in 1942, to 894,787 in 1943.

American Army engineers also faced many problems in establishing and maintaining the largest trucking company in the world at the land terminus of what was, in December, 1942, the longest supply route in the world. Hard-surfaced roads had to be constructed. One hundred technicians and 2,500 enlisted men constructed the 435 miles of highway. (OWI)

HEAVY BOMBERS HIT REICH RAIL CENTERS

LONDON, December 16 — British and American fighter-escorted heavy bombers this afternoon continued their attacks against strategic rail centers in western Germany to halt reinforcements and supplies to the German armies on the Western Front.

RAF Lancasters attacked the industrial and rail center of Siegen, 45 miles east of Cologne, while more than 100 Flying Fortresses bombed marshalling yards north and south of Stuttgart. The two key yards for military traffic across southern Germany, Kornwestheim to the north and Untertürkheim to the south, were both well hit, the communique said.

Fighter-bombers of the 9th USAAF in 1,000 sorties yesterday blasted vital German oil reserves and railways behind the battle lines, carrying out their share of the war against German transportation. Other tactical aircraft, making their deepest penetrations into Germany, flew from Netherlands bases to hit transportation targets at Uelzen, southeast of Hamburg.

Fifty-two tanks, one quarter of the tank strength of a panzer division, were destroyed in a matter of minutes by 9th USAAF Thunderbolts. The tanks were caught on flatcars en route to the front. Press dispatches reported that this was the largest single bag of tanks destroyed since the St. Lô break-through. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

WITNESSES ACCUSE DEL TETTO

ROME, December 16 — Three prosecution witnesses at the trial of Lieutenant Generals Ettore del Tetto and Riccardo Pentimalli testified at the third session today that General del Tetto ignored German acts of violence in Naples soon after the armistice, and took no affirmative action to stop them. The two generals are on trial before a special court on identical charges, which include aiding the enemy and dereliction of duty.

The first prosecution witness, Giuseppe Benevenuto, a lawyer who, before the armistice, was an infantry major in the Naples Territorial Command, said that on September 9, a day of great confusion, the command had completely lost its head. He remembered the disapproval expressed by several high officers because of General del Tetto's acquiescence to acts of violence committed by the Germans.

Signor Benevenuto stated that one officer expressed such violent disgust with Del Tetto's conduct that he smashed his rifle on the floor of the barracks.

Dr. Davide Mile, an official of the Questura in Naples, related that he hurried to see General del Tetto on the afternoon of September 10 when a group of Germans, in tanks and armored cars, moved against the offices of the Italian Command in the Hotel Bellavista. He found the general descending to an air raid shelter. He quoted the general as saying:

«Who cares about the Germans?»

Without the assistance of General del Tetto, Dr. Mile said, the defense of the building was hastily organized by officials of the Questura. This defense actually drove back the Germans, the witness added.

Details of Del Tetto's arrest were supplied by the third witness, Professor Antonino Tarzia, Naples Partisan leader, who reported that the general was taken into custody at a convent where he had been hiding. He testified that members of the anti-Fascist Parties received their instructions from a «Resistance Committee» which had been organized for a rising against the Germans in the days immediately preceding the arrival of the Allies.

The trial will be resumed Monday at 0930 hours. (UNN)

WORKERS TO DISCUSS WAGES, BREAD RATION

ROME, December 16 — Suggestions made in a recent memorandum by representatives of the Italian Workers' Confederation will be discussed on Monday at the Italian Ministry of Industry. The memorandum, which suggested improvements in the standard of living, was presented by the Confederation to the President of the Council.

Chief among the suggestions now to be officially discussed is that of a review of workers' wages in the light of the increased cost of living. It was maintained by the Confederation that wage scales have lagged behind the mounting cost of living.

As a method of fighting the black market, the Confederation recommends that the bread ration be increased, particularly for children and workers, and asks for a survey of bakeries and flour mills. It is contended that co-operative mills and bakeries have produced a better quality of bread, have improved the output, and also have saved greater quantities of flour.

The memorandum suggests, further, that this surplus flour should be used to increase the rations of the general population and to improve supplies in factory messes, and communal centers for feeding children and sick persons. (UNN)

«ELAS» OFFERS TO WITHDRAW FROM ATHENS; SCOBIE REPLY INSISTS ON DISARMAMENT

ATHENS, December 16 — Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, tonight rejected an EAM (National Liberation Front) proposal for a truce in the two-weeks-old civil strife and, according to a BBC broadcast, insisted that the ELAS (National Liberation Militia) lay down their arms as the first condition of a settlement.

A memorandum delivered at noon today to British headquarters set forth the EAM position in the crisis. After accusing reactionary forces inside Greece of plotting a Fascist dictatorship and maintaining that the bloodshed is «the result of inflexible insistence by the reactionary right on the unilateral disbandment of ELAS forces,» the memorandum proposed four steps for ending the conflict:

Caserta Agreement Quoted

1. Temporary withdrawal of ELAS forces from here and the Piraeus to a pre-determined line, pending formation of a government of national unity.

2. The Greek Mountain Brigade to be similarly withdrawn from the city area to a line defined by mutual agreement.

3. Officers and men of the former «Rallis Battalions» (who collaborated with the Nazis during the occupation) to be disarmed and imprisoned, pending trial.

4. British forces in Greece to be used only in execution of missions defined in the Caserta Agreement, which did not envisage their employment in the internal affairs of Greece.

fulfillment of these conditions, and declared that, once this is done, there should be no difficulty in effecting a settlement.

The Greek Ministry of War called up all men in the 1934 to 1940 classes. Previous call-ups had been restricted to areas under British or Greek Government control.

Reuter reported today the text of a telegram sent to General Scobie on December 8 by Maj. Gen. Stefanos Serafis, commander-in-chief of ELAS forces, and officially made public here this afternoon. The telegram accused the Government of Prime Minister Georges Papandreou of taking no action against known German collaborators, and said that many of the collaborators still were in power. It said that the conflict was «not a struggle of anarchists, but of free people fighting for their freedom and independence.»

«For the past two years,» the message said, «we had to meet with force any attempt to impose dictatorship.» Demanding that the King be placed on trial, the telegram alleged General Scobie was trying to «conquer and occupy Greece» and was «taking the place of the Germans.»

«As free men fighting with our fighters in Athens, we shall continue the struggle wherever necessary until you realize your responsibility to history, and, reconsidering your decisions, cease to attack,» the message concluded.

There was no lull in hostilities, and sharp clashes were reported in several sectors of the city during the night and today. ELAS artillery kept up a continual shelling of the center of the city. As dawn broke, fighting intensified, with the clatter of machine guns, mortar bomb explosions, and the drone of fighting planes being heard in many sections of the city.

Omonias Square, the main objective of ELAS forces, remained in British control despite repeated ELAS attacks, Reuter said. Control of the square is essential to any all-out ELAS attack against British troops inside the city.

General Scobie's communique today said that last night an ELAS strongpoint east of the main Piraeus harbor had been cleared.

It was announced here that approximately 3,800 casualties have been suffered by ELAS forces since the outbreak of fighting two weeks ago. Of these, 2,800 have been taken prisoner by Greek regulars and British troops, and an additional 1,000 casualties are estimated to have been suffered, including 600 killed. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

4. British forces in Greece to be used only in execution of missions defined in the Caserta Agreement, which did not envisage their employment in the internal affairs of Greece, according to the memorandum.

General Scobie late tonight made public the text of the Caserta Agreement, which is the basis of present negotiations with the EAM. He said that EAM leaders unanimously had agreed to prevent any attempt by units under their command to take the law into their own hands.

In addition, he declared, the EAM leaders had their forces under British command, and had agreed to take no action regarding Athens except with General Scobie's permission.

The Caserta Agreement also provided for handling of the so-called « security battalions » as enemy formations unless they surrendered promptly, and for coördination of activities of all guerrilla forces in a national union, « in the best interests of the common struggle. »

The EAM memorandum also accused General Scobie of having « crudely involved himself in the internal affairs of an Allied country », a step which EAM said was « in contravention of a formal agreement and the proclaimed object of the Allied war effort. »

Within a few hours after publication of the terms here, General Scobie, according to BBC, issued a statement accusing the EAM of ignoring his demand that ELAS supporters here and in the Piraeus cease resistance and hand in their arms. According to the broadcast, the statement insisted on

PUBLIC DISCUSSIONS OF DUMBARTON OAKS PRAISED

WASHINGTON, December 16 — U.S. Secretary of State Edward Stettinius at a press conference yesterday issued a statement praising and encouraging public discussion all over the world of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals for an international security organization. The statement said:

« On October 9, 1944, the Dumbarton Oaks proposals were made available to the peoples of the world for full study and discussion. The popular response has been spontaneous and general in many countries. It has been a source of encouragement to all who share our conviction that this people's war must lead to a people's peace, unless we are again to be deprived of the fruits of victory.

« I am particularly gratified by the understanding and vigor with which the proposals have been discussed and continue to be debated by our own people. Much of that discussion has been fostered by organized groups of citizens, conscious of their responsibility to promote public understanding of the great national and international issues which confront us.

« These organized efforts to promote a clear understanding of the proposed international organization for the maintenance of peace promise well for the future. U.N.R.R.A. ANSWERS CRITICISMS

LONDON, December 16 — Thousands of hungry people in Europe have not been fed by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration because their governments have not asked for help, an UNRRA official told the Daily Express today. He was replying to criticism in the House of Lords that UNRRA has not been developed with sufficient energy.

Supplies are being sent only to Greece and Italy, he added. Neither France nor Belgium has sought aid. In other countries, only partly freed, the military authorities have not yet given UNRRA permission to work. UNRRA may not go in unless invited by the government concerned.

Most liberated countries, however, have asked UNRRA for some services. Between 1,600 and 1,700 doctors, nurses, and welfare workers have been sent to them. The UNRRA mission to Poland is awaiting permission from Russia to cross Soviet soil, and the Czechs have already asked for help when their country is freed.

Earlier in the day, Herbert H. Lehman, Director General of UNRRA, was received in audience by King George. (Reuter)

CIVILIAN PRODUCTION IN U.S. FROZEN

WASHINGTON, December 16 — America's War Production Board tonight banned all further civilian production above present restricted levels.

In an order whose effects will be felt throughout the nation's industry, the Board ordered output for civilian use « frozen » at the present rate. Production of civilian goods is sufficient for all essential requirements, the Board ruled, and added that today's action is intended to halt inroads on essential war-production facilities.

At the same time, the War Manpower Commission, in an unprecedented step, prohibited all war workers deferred from military service from changing their jobs. Men between the ages of 26 and 37 — who are now not subject to military service — will be eligible for conscription if they enter work not important to the war effort, the Board ruled.

Officials said that without today's orders, the nation would have faced a deficit of 225,000 men in war industries by next March. (Reuter) of the land-owning classes in Polish policy, and increase proportionately the influence of the peasants, and that this partly accounts for the embittered opposition of the present Polish Government-in-London. But such changes might easily result in creating sounder political foundations than those of the Pilsudski Régime, and in re-building, even within somewhat narrower geographical limits, a stronger, a more progressive, and a closer-knit Polish nation.

« The true friends of Poland are not those who seek to restore and perpetuate a situation which, both domestically and internationally, had already become untenable.

« It is natural that Russia should seek to maintain on the Baltic coast, and elsewhere in eastern Europe, bases or strong points necessary for her own security and that of her neighbors; and it would be also natural that Poland should be associated with her in this task. »

Admitting that a strong case can be made out for the Curzon Line and for the separation of East Prussia from Germany, today's Manchester Guardian said:

« If the Allies agree that this must be done, then at least there must be a far more carefully thought-out scheme for the transference of the German population than anything hinted at in Churchill's words yesterday. »

Describing the question as « a terrible dilemma for which Churchill cannot in fairness be blamed, » the paper suggests that the only sure remedy is an early meeting of the « Big Three, » to be followed by frequent and regular meetings until the new world organization is established. (Reuter)

U.K. PRESS COMMENTS ON POLISH QUESTION

LONDON, December 16 — Commenting on Prime Minister Churchill's statement yesterday in the House of Commons, The Times today pointed out that two current illusions continue to fog discussion on the Russo-Polish frontier question. The paper said:

«First, is Russia seeking to acquire a large expanse of legitimately Polish territory? This illusion is wholly unfounded. The area in dispute contained, before 1939, only 2,500,000 Poles out of a total population of over 11,000,000.

«It seemed unlikely from the outset that the frontier, wrested from Russia in an hour of military weakness from defeat, would be allowed to stand when Russia recovered her strength. The return of those territories to Russia which would be involved in the acceptance of the Curzon Frontier is no more than a rectification of what was done against many friendly warnings in 1921.

«The second illusion is, that the inflated frontiers of 1921 were a source of strength to Poland.

«It is true that the acceptance of the Curzon Line might substantially weaken the hitherto powerful influence that the only sure remedy is an early meeting of the «Big Three,» to be followed by frequent and regular meetings until the new world organization is established. (Reuter)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 16 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the Roer sector, west and south of Düren, yesterday morning, the fury of the enemy attacks abated. At midday, the U.S. 1st Army resumed its attacks with strong forces. Our troops frustrated the attempt at breaking through towards the Roer in grim fighting. Some hundred prisoners were captured.

Northeast of Monschau, the house-to-house and forest fighting continues.

In the Dillingen and Saarlautern sector, the enemy continued his stubborn attacks on some pillbox groups.

Between the Saar and Bitsch, the enemy made small gains northeast of Sarreguemines [Saargemünd]. Bitsch is subjected to extremely intense enemy artillery fire. At the northeastern frontiers of Alsace, our troops occupied new positions in the forefield of the West Wall.

In upper Alsace, the situation remained virtually unchanged, though the enemy continued his attacks in the Rhine plain at Sélestat [Schlettstadt] and in the High Vosges throughout the whole day.

Italy:

In central Italy, on the left flank of our front, the enemy, having brought up fresh forces, continued his major attacks.

West of Faenza, our brave formations frustrated attempts of British divisions at breaking through, in bloody fighting, in part by counter-attacks.

On the Naviglio, the enemy gained only some hundred meters in a small sector.

On the flanks, his attacks were frustrated.

Eastern Front:

On the Budapest front and at the enemy penetrations in northeastern Hungary, our troops offer a stubborn resistance to the attacking Bolsheviks.

Air:

According to incomplete reports, German fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force brought down 87 enemy planes when warding off Soviet air attacks on Libau, on December 14 and 15. This brings the total score of Bolshevik planes shot down by air defence forces of the Air Force and Navy, within two days, to 100.

Yesterday, U.S. terror bombers attacked Kassel and Hanover, as well as some localities in south and southeastern Germany, Rosenheim among them.

Damage was caused, particularly in residential districts.

In the early evening hours, the British made a terror attack on Mannheim-Ludwigshafen. At the same time, fast British fighter-bombers dropped bombs on Hanover and Osnabrück. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

No Allied Christmas in Bologna: A German propaganda trend, exemplified in many items of late, is to emphasize sarcastically the pace of the Allied drive in Italy, especially the slowness in the advance towards Bologna. Thus, Transocean states today:

«Italy is absolutely confident regarding the stability of the Italian front. Twenty million people are looking forward to Christmas and New Year, feeling certain that there against the Allies in general, and is using the carving up of Polish territory to incite small nations against Britain and Russia.

Western Front: The main characteristic of today's events on this front, according to the correspondent Walter Plato, is the «further increase of Allied pressure on the Aachen area and the Saar sector, ordered by Eisenhower at the most unfavorable time of the year». Eisenhower's aim is interpreted as being the «substitution of mobile warfare for the present stationary condition in the west, which has been lasting since September».

Eastern Front: Colonel von Olberg reports a «lull» in the battle of Budapest, southwest and southeast of the capital. «One can, therefore, speak of almost complete calm outside of Budapest».

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Speech by Mussolini: On Saturday morning the Duce delivered a speech lasting about an hour, but saying little that was new, in the Teatro Lirico, Milan. A ceremony preceded the speech, which was transmitted through megaphones to the crowd thronging the streets and squares in the neighborhood of the theatre.

The Duce began by declaring that he would not waste time with empty words, but would attack his chief subject outright, the events of 25 July 1943, and its results. «The unconditional surrender of September 8th...,» he said, «was engineered by the Monarchy, by the Court, by the plutocratic section of the Italian middle class, and some of the clergy, who had joined forces with Freemasonry and the general staff, which no longer believed in victory...»

He denied that Italy was no longer able to wage war; as it happened, it was «invaded» Italy which declared war on Germany 40 days after the surrender. No peace had come to Italy, which had been turned into a gigantic battlefield.

He turned then, to the question of loyalty. Italy, he argued, had not betrayed its German Ally. Most Italian units offered no resistance to the Germans disarming them, and tens of thousands actually went over to them. The trials now taking place in «invaded» Italy proved this. Where they had failed, he went on, was in their absence of large-scale resistance to Badoglio's orders. He admitted that, for this reason, hundreds of thousands of soldiers had been sent to German concentration camps, where they had had to undergo much moral and material suffering. He sought to minimise Italy's responsibility towards Germany, by comparing it with the treachery of the Finns, the Rumanians, and the Bulgarians. He refuted indignantly the German and Japanese tendency to underestimate Italy's war effort. Italian soldiers and workers, numbering 786,000, were actually helping in the German war effort, apart from the several hundreds of thousands of «military internees» and millions of workers «who had already been in Germany at the time of capitulation.» «The Italians of the Republic...,» he said, «were justified in walking with heads held high, and ought to be appreciated by the two other members of the Tripartite.»

He dealt next with matters of internal policy. He claimed that the Fascist movement has always been republican in character and that he, himself, had made a mistake by sparing the Monarchy in 1922. Enlarging upon the Verona programme, he once more emphasized the necessity of a one-party system in facilitating the carrying out of a social reform and socialisation.

He refuted the Sicilian Separatist movement unless it

« Italy is absolutely confident regarding the stability of the Italian front. Twenty million people are looking forward to Christmas and New Year, feeling certain that there will be no surprises at the front. Here it is believed that the Anglo-Americans have failed in their plans to spend Christmas in Bologna. »

Unknown Gibberish of « Tito Bandit »: The German Radio is constantly picturing Allied rule in Rome not only as malignant, but also as absurd and confused, and hence it uses all items calculated to enhance that impression. For example, this morning the German Overseas Radio says of the « so-called Allied Commission for the Mediterranean » in Rome that « its new Serbian member is a Dalmatian Tito bandit who can speak only a Dalmatian dialect and, consequently, cannot be understood by any of his Allied friends. He has already drawn up a number of resolutions — the contents of which are, naturally, incomprehensible. »

Churchill Speech Exploited: The speech by Churchill, backing Russian claims to Polish territory and Polish claims to German territory, is being exploited by German propaganda in order to prove Allied dissension and Allied bad faith. For example, the two longest commentaries of today, by Fritsche and Hertl, are devoted to aspects of the Churchill speech, which Fritsche calls « diabolic ».

German propaganda is using the proposed carving up of German territory in order to unite Germans behind Hitler

Enlarging upon the Verona programme, he once more emphasized the necessity of a one-party system in facilitating the carrying out of a social reform and socialisation.

He refuted the Sicilian Separatist movement unless it meant separation from Bonomi's Italy.

The Duce then reviewed the present régime of « invaded » Italy, saying that the people of the North did not want the « ridiculous republicans » supported by the Anglo-Americans.

Turning to the military aspects of the war, he admitted that there were anxious moments, at the time of the fall of Paris and Brussels and the surrender of Finland, Rumania, and Bulgaria, when it seemed possible that the Allies might march into Berlin by Christmas. He claimed, however, that the danger had passed, and that the Germans were once more on the upward path...

The Duce reiterated the well-known Axis propaganda regarding the political rift between the Allies, and the implications of a Bolshevik advance into Europe.

Tentatively, he mentioned the possibility of the Po Valley's being overrun by Alexander's armies. In that event, he visualizes a force of resistance « which would make life practically intolerable for the Allied armies ... and turn the whole of the Po Valley into another Athens... »

He ended his speech with a nostalgic reference to the lost colonies and to his belief in a return to Africa, after final victory.

CANADIANS CROSS THE LAMONE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 13 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, striking at the left flank of the German 10th Army in a heavy, surprise attack, have established a bridgehead nearly four miles wide and over a mile deep across the Lamone River, principal German delaying position across the southeastern end of the Po Plain, it was announced here today.

Despite determined enemy counter-attacks, in which lumbering Tiger tanks and self-propelled guns sought vainly to shear through the northern edge of the Canadian bridgehead, the 8th Army forces pushed westward to within a mile of Bagnocavallo, 10 miles northeast of Faenza and within 20 miles of Ferrara, hub of the highway network extending Fighters and fighter-bombers of the Desert Air Force aided the Canadian troops in warding off the enemy counter-thrust against the northern edge of their bridgehead across the Lamone, and after 24 hours of heavy fighting, the two Canadian forces consolidated their hold across the stream into a continuous position along a 6,000-yard front.

Enemy forces along this sector southwest of Ravenna have been driven 2,000 yards from their Lamone River defenses, and have taken up new positions west of a small ditch running northwest from Bagnocavallo. The new battle line cuts across the Ravenna-Bologna railway at a point just a mile from Bagnocavallo.

More than 300 enemy prisoners were taken in the course of these operations, and some enemy armored fighting vehicles were knocked out, reports said.

Along most of the 5th Army front, activity was principally confined to patrolling.

1ST ARMY ATTACKS SOUTH OF DUEREN; 7TH REACHES RHINE AT SELTZ

LONDON, December 13 — American troops battered key German defenses at either end of the 400-mile Western Front today and in two attacks forced further Nazi retreats back into Reich territory.

First Army troops struck in a dawn attack in a sector 22 miles southwest of the fortified German town of Düren. Within three hours they had advanced up to two miles and taken three German villages guarding the approaches to the Rhineland — Rolleshroich, Bickenrath, and Simmerath. The action took place in a sector which had been quiet for three months, and which lies a few miles east of Rötgen, first German town to be seized by Allied troops on the Western Front.

The new attack at the southern end of the enemy's Roer River defense line carried the American troops to within 2½ miles of the river and widened to 20 miles the front against the German fortifications guarding the vital industrial centers to the east. Farther north, American troops reached a point within a half-mile of Düren, while a few miles below the town other 1st Army troops consolidated their 1,000-yard front along the west bank of the river. The bulk of the German forces in this sector have been withdrawn across the water barrier.

Far to the south, 7th Army troops reached the Rhine in their sweep from Hagenau, after taking Seltz, 15 miles southwest of the German industrial center of Karlsruhe. These units were also reported within three miles of the Palatinate. The Germans blew up a railroad bridge across the Rhine in this sector in the face of the new threat.

Seltz lies a mile west of the Rhine, and its capture followed the break-through of the Maginot Line in the northeastern corner of Alsace. The river marks the French-German frontier at this point.

German troops in the area were reported falling back to Siegfried Line defenses, leaving only rear-guard units to slow the American push. Seltz, which was taken after

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 13 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, striking at the left flank of the German 10th Army in a heavy, surprise attack, have established a bridghead nearly four miles wide and over a mile deep across the Lamone River, principal German delaying position across the southeastern end of the Po Plain, it was announced here today.

Despite determined enemy counter-attacks, in which lumbering Tiger tanks and self-propelled guns sought vainly to shear through the northern edge of the Canadian bridgehead, the 8th Army forces pushed westward to within a mile of Bagnocavallo, 10 miles northeast of Faenza and within 32 miles of Ferrara, hub of the highway network extending across the Po Delta to northeastern Italy.

The surprise Canadian attack southwest of Ravenna came as German forces launched a heavy counter-attack against British positions 11 miles southeast of Bologna, and temporarily gained possession of Castel Nuova, a mountain hamlet on the western edge of the Sillaro River Valley, one of the most important entryways to the Po Plain flanking Bologna.

Only after bitter fighting were British troops able to restore their positions in this strategic salient thrust to within four miles of the Emilia Highway, main supply artery for both the German 10th Army and the bulk of the 14th Army. Reports indicated that the enemy had suffered heavy casualties, and that some enemy prisoners had been taken in this costly German counter-blow.

The Canadian forces crossed the Lamone River, swollen with recent rains, at two points northwest of Russi, some eight miles below Faenza on the winding stream. The attacks, formulated on the tactics of the «right punch» which have been employed with consistent success by Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander in the Campaign of Italy, achieved «complete surprise,» official reports said. Previously, German forces had been engaged in battling back strong British tank and infantry formations which had been closing in on Faenza, anchor position of the German south flank.

More than 300 enemy prisoners were taken in the course of these operations, and some enemy armored fighting vehicles were knocked out, reports said.

Along most of the 5th Army front, activity was principally confined to patrolling.

Other reports told of a desperate attempt by the German Command to halt the advance with panzer reinforcements thrown into the line between Saargemünd and Karlsruhe. Tanks and other motorized units are being used in coöperation with heavy guns of the Siegfried Line along a 40-mile front, dispatches said, and it appeared that the

BATTLE ENDS IN BARRACKS COMPOUND

ATHENS, December 13 — ELAS (National Liberation Militia) troops who broke into the main British barracks compound early today, have surrendered to British troops, Reuter reported tonight.

The ELAS forces scaled a 10-foot wall and fired stores of oil and gasoline before tanks drove them into one corner of the compound. Only a small body of troops were involved, the report said. (Reuter)

Germans would put up a stiff fight to ward off the threat to their southern border.

The American 3rd Army also registered gains during the day and blasted its way into Germany at a new point when it crossed the 60-foot-wide Blies River, northeast of Saargemünd.

The Germans are putting up heavy resistance at Dillingen, and threw in several counter-attacks in a futile attempt to neutralize the serious threat to the Saar by 3rd Army troops, who now hold several bridgeheads over the Saar over the Saar River. American troops captured a Siegfried Line strongpoint north of Dillingen, and found it equipped with a heavy-caliber gun that could be swung in all directions and could also be raised or lowered in its fortified emplacement.

Fighting continued in the eastern outskirts of Saarlautern, and 3rd Army troops gained 700 yards in bitter fighting.

Far behind the battlefront, the final chapter of the liberation of the fortress city of Metz was concluded with the capture of the last great fortress — Jeanne d'Arc — held by the Nazis. The garrison surrendered to American units today. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

SOVIETS TIGHTEN GRIP ON BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, December 13 — Continuing their pressure on the outskirts of Budapest, Red Army troops were today reported fighting in Ujpest, northern industrial district less than four miles from the heart of the Hungarian capital.

Meanwhile the northern wing of the Russian offensive is driving toward Bratislava and Vienna, and the southern wing is lined up about 40 miles below the Austrian border.

Commenting on the battle for Budapest's northeastern approaches, a Reuter correspondent said today that a yard-by-yard battle rages as the Red Army stabs deeper into the German-fortified zone, which is comparable to the defense arcs protecting German towns in the west.

The Soviet communique announced tonight that northeast of the capital, troops of the 2nd Ukrainian Front captured several populated localities and three railway stations. North and northwest of Miskolc, Red Army troops captured a number of populated localities in their continued offensive.

Reports reaching here today indicated the seriousness with which the Germans regard the threat to Vienna and the southern regions of the Reich created by Malinovsky's break-through north of Budapest. Red Star, Soviet Army paper, said that following on the emergence of Red Army units on the Danube north of the capital, the Germans have begun a hurried evacuation of military and industrial objectives from the near-frontier areas of Austria.

Tonight's communique reported the capture of 1,700 German and Hungarian officers and men in yesterday's fighting in the areas north of Miskolc and northeast of Budapest. On other sectors there was patrolling and, at several points fighting of local importance.

During yesterday, 29 German tanks were destroyed and 11 enemy planes were brought down in air combats and by anti-aircraft fire. (Reuter - Radio Moscow)

AMERICANS GAIN ON LEYTE; SINK 3 TROOPSHIPS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 13 — American troops are making gains against the Japanese north of Ormoc on Leyte Island, inflicting « extraordinarily heavy » losses on the enemy, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight. The northward advance was made along the Yamashita line.

Three Japanese troopships trying to land in Ormoc Harbor were sunk, the communique added. Loaded ships came in darkness, apparently unaware that the Allies had the town, and they were sunk by shore fire with all on board.

ALLIES BRIDGE KALADAN RIVER

KANDY, CEYLON, December 13 — Allied troops fighting in the Arakan district of Burma have advanced more than 25 miles southward down the Kaladan River Valley and have established a bridgehead across the river south of Kaladen Village, the Southeast Asia Command communique announced today.

Another Allied force in Burma which is pushing toward Mandalay has crossed the Chindwin River at Kalewa, in upper Burma, and entered Schwegu under fire from Japanese positions east of the village. A Bailey (pre-fabricated) bridge 1,000 feet long has been erected across the Chindwin to facilitate the transport of supplies for the advance. The bridge, believed to be the longest of its type ever constructed, was attacked yesterday by Japanese planes, of which five were shot down. The bridge was undamaged.

Nothing was reported from British troops in the central railway-corridor approach to Mandalay, where Indaw and Katha were recently occupied. In their drive down the railway corridor to Mandalay from northern Burma the Allied troops are about 150 miles from their objective and the same from Myitkyina, starting point of the concerted drive.

An American officer directed the artillery fire against Indaw and Katha in support of the British and Chinese troops which captured the two villages. Officials called the operation « a truly amazing example of Allied co-operation ». The officer, Lt. Col. Trevor Dupuy, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

An American press correspondent in a dispatch today from headquarters of the 20th U.S. Bomber Command in India says the command this week completes its first six months of Superfortress operations against the Japanese from bases in the China-Burma-India Theater. Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, commanding officer of the unit, in a summary of the six months of operations, said that the Superfortresses « have performed in the worst flying weather in the world and over the longest lines of communication used by any air force, and have proved to be the best airplanes that have ever been built by anyone ».

In China, Chinese forces are approaching Hochih, 100 miles northwest of the captured American airbase at Liuchow, a communique from Chungking announced today.

Chinese forces advancing southward from the Kweichow Province border after recapturing the town of Nantan, are near Cheho, 14 miles northwest of Hochih, the communique said.

Attacks on the Peiping-Hankow and Tientsin-Pukow railroads in north China by planes of the 14th USAAF last Saturday and Sunday destroyed 37 locomotives and damaged seven, Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters announced today. Locomotive shops and a power plant for a steel works at Ysiyuan also were bombed.

B.A.F. FIGHTERS ATTACK ENEMY MOTOR TRAFFIC

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 13 — Airacobra fighters of the Balkan Air Force yesterday attacked a concentration of some 700 enemy motor vehicles at the northeastern end of the Podgorica « pocket » just over the Albanian border in Yugoslavia, it was announced here today.

Because of bad weather and intense small-caliber flak, observation of results was difficult, but smoke and debris were seen from the repeated attacks, in which Mustang fighters later joined. (PRO)

A «sizeable force» — estimated as over 100 — of Saipan-based Superfortresses today bombed Nagoya, Japanese seaport and rail center 165 miles west and slightly southwest of Tokyo, and aircraft plants and industrial targets near Tokyo. Moderate flak and slight fighter opposition was encountered. It was the fifth attack on the Japanese mainland by Superfortresses from Saipan Island.

The War Department called the visual bombing another «in the mounting aerial drive on enemy strategic targets.» Heavy explosions and large fires were reported by returning crews, the War Department added.

An Associated Press correspondent, describing the attack, said the Superforts upset enemy defenses when they feinted toward Tokyo and then cut northwest to Nagoya, withdrawing over Nagoya Bay after making their bombing runs.

He said today's Superforts went into action in the face of a westerly wind slowing their speed and probably increasing the accuracy of their bombing. The planes flew 3,000 to 4,000 feet lower than they did in the previous Tokyo assaults.

In 1940, Nagoya, with a population of more than 1,300,000, was the center of the Japanese aviation industry. The Mitsubishi heavy industries, which manufactured aircraft engines, hydro-eletric and general industrial equipment was situated there. Nagoya also has been important

U.S. HOUSE COMMITTEE ARRIVES IN ITALY; ANGLO-AMERICAN HARMONY CITED

NAPLES, December 13 — Fourteen members of the Military Affairs Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives arrived here today by plane for a five-day tour of Italy, during which they will inspect military installations in many parts of the Italian Theater of Operations, visit the 5th Army Front, and have a private audience with Pope Pius XII.

The delegation, consisting originally of 17 representatives, arrived after a six-day trip in France. They visited

Western Front operations at Verdun, Liége, Metz, and Luxembourg, and indicated today that they plan to continue in Italy this program of seeing the military problems for themselves, « so we can tell the folks back home what the armed forces are doing over here. »

Soon after the arrival of the delegation — many of whom have never before been in Italy — John M. Costello, Democrat of California and Acting Chairman of the Committee, told the Congressmen that during this tour they can get within a mile of the front lines, or in the foxholes if they desire, to experience the rigors of the man in the fighting lines.

He said he had been told by high-ranking officers of the AFHQ that such a request by the representatives would be granted if feasible.

« By seeing these problems, we can realize what the Allied staff has accomplished in this theater of operations, » Mr. Costello asserted. « We felt it was advisable to come over to see this theater because only on the ground can one see what a big job is — the tremendous obstacles that have to be overcome. »

J. Parnell Thomas, Republican of New Jersey and leader of the minority-party group in the delegation, echoed the strong desire of the committee to study first-hand and on the scene the current phases of military operations.

« I think we have had our eyes opened in France, » Mr. Thomas said. « We know that you in Italy will show us everything you have. In that way, we will be able to go home and tell the folks what the armed forces are doing over here. »

Fighting in Europe Is Tough

Mr. Thomas asserted that their tour of installations and operations in the Western Front area showed them that the fighting is « tougher than we expected; it's tougher than we ever thought it might be. »

« When we get back home, we can tell our people how tough the fight is, and, I think, that is what we have to do, » he added.

The delegation was greeted by Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, Commander-in-Chief of MAAF; Admiral Sir John Cunningham, Commander of the Allied Fleets in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations; Lt. Gen. Sir James Gammel, Chief of Staff at AFHQ, representing Field Marshal Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, Supreme Commander of the Mediterranean Theater of Operations; Vice-Admiral H. Kent Hewitt, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Naval Forces in the Mediterranean; and Maj. Gen. Miller G. White, Acting Chief of Staff, MTOUSA.

These high Allied officers spoke warmly, at luncheon, of the cooperation of all British and American forces and other Allies in producing the highest type of military unity and efficiency.

Admiral Cunningham cited the esprit de corps among U.S. and British naval forces in the Mediterranean theater. He invited the Congressmen to see the work of the U.S. and British navies in the Mediterranean, and, he added, « you will not see them lacking. »

Admiral Hewitt and General Eaker also lauded the combined activities of the British and U.S. forces.

R.A.F. TELLS OF EFFECTIVENESS OF LEAFLETS

ROME, December 13 — The story of 250 million Psychological Warfare Branch leaflets, representing 500,000 pounds in weight, dropped by RAF night-bomber groups in Italy over enemy-occupied Europe this year, was told today in an announcement by RAF headquarters here. The announcement said:

« Wellingtons, Liberators, and Halifaxes that make up the group have dropped their "blizzards of truth" from Czechoslovakia to Crete, and from Bordeaux to the Black Sea ports.

« This type of operation is known as "nickelling." The word is said first to have been used in the last war as the code name for a particular leaflet written by Lord Northcliffe, and it has stuck. Countries "nickelled" by this group are: Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Albania, Greece, France, and Italy.

« The campign began in July, 1931, when the Wellingtons dropped leaflets to the German and Italian troops in Cyrenaica. But, as our bombardment of Europe with high-explosives has increased in intensity, so has the assault on the Nazi mind. Rumania got 25 million "nickels," Bulgaria 12 million, and Hungary, so far, has had 40 million.

« The policy varies with the objective. The "back-room boys" of the Psychological Warfare Branch, who prepare the leaflets, may decide in one instance that the military situation calls for an immediate and concentrated "bombardment." Thus, on D-day in the south-of-France invasion, and during the following week, the flying postman brought almost 19 million leaflets to that area.

« Speed of dissemination is often vital. There was an occasion during the present Battle of the Balkans when an event took place in Budapest, of which it was considered the inhabitants should be made aware as quickly as possible. It was Friday afternoon. The same evening the leaflet was written and printed, and the following night the "nickels" were fluttering down in their millions over the capital. Apart from such blitzes, there is the steady flow — unrecorded publicly — of hope to the oppressed. Patriots, wherever they may be fighting, learn by this means of the victories of their Allies on fronts with which they have no contact.

News for the Wehrmacht

« And to the German soldier, too, the "nickel" has become his only reliable news source. There is incontrovertible evidence to show that he looks forward to what his superiors have called "doses of poison" and expresses disappointment when they do not arrive.

« Principal cause of non-arrival is, of course, the weather, but the RAF usually manages to maintain a weekly service at least. On occasions this is stepped up to three deliveries a week.

« Otherwise, the German soldier, his incoming and outgoing mail heavily censored, his own official sources often patently tainted, is sometimes found to be a couple of months behind in his knowledge of events.

« There is one special form of "nickel" which is beginning to produce spectacular results, as faith in the Führer reels under the shocks of reality. This is the "safe-conduct" pass, dropped in carefully-selected areas where German troops are known to be concentrated. Mr. Eden has stated in the House of Commons that of all the prisoners taken in the invasion of France, more than 40 per cent were found to be in possession of these surrender passes.

« How effective then is this campaign of "long-range" truth? A full and documented answer to this question cannot be compiled until the war ends, but there are plenty of indications that the German High Command is taking it very seriously. It is a military offense for a German soldier to be found in possession of a leaflet. These are to be handed to his superiors, but, before that, they must have been torn up and their message obliterated.

It is a military offense for a German soldier to be found in possession of a leaflet. These are to be handed to his superiors, but, before that, they must have been torn up and their message obliterated.

«The same rigorous prohibition applies to civilians under Nazi control. For instance, the day after a night delivery by the RAF of a million and a half leaflets, the citizens of Budapest read in their morning paper, Pester Lloyd, an order by the Government warning them of the penalties for reading enemy propaganda, and describing the leaflets as "more dangerous than bombs."

«The "nickels," weighing from 10 to 15 pounds, are loaded aboard the bomber, and when — allowance being made for the speed of the wind and the height of the aircraft — the correct point on the route has been reached, a member of the crew rips open the packets and stuffs the contents down the flare-chute.

«Other methods have been tried — such as a converted parachute flare — but after experiment, the simpler method was found to be the most efficient.

«The job "of nickelling" however, requires a high degree of skill. The leaflets, when they are released, may be carried miles away from their target, though, incidentally, even then their effect is not wholly lost, since their message may find its way by word of mouth.

«These "blizzards of truth" will go on until they are no longer necessary. And, in propaganda's contribution to the final defeat of the enemy, the share of the RAF will be a large one.» (UNN)

8TH U.S.A.A.F. CONCENTRATING ON RAIL LINES

LONDON, December 13 — The 8th USAAF is now concentrating its attacks on the principal southern routes used by the Germans to bolster their Western Front positions, an 8th USAAF spokesman said today.

Repeated heavy bombing attacks on Ruhr rail centers have forced the Germans to push nearly all their Western Front traffic from the industrial areas of central and northern Germany over the southern routes, the spokesman said. Traffic shunted around to the north of Hanau and Frankfurt must pass through Giessen, already hit twice this month by the 8th USAAF. Traffic shunted to the south of Hanau must pass through Aschaffenburg and Darmstadt, which were attacked yesterday.

Attacks on these objectives, coupled with the successful attack on the rail hub of Stuttgart three days ago, immediately affect the supply and reinforcement of German forces facing the U. S. 1st and 3rd Armies, the spokesman said.

A British press service correspondent in Basle reports a German railway expert as saying that the bombing of Aschaffenburg and Hanau was one of the severest blows the German railway system has yet suffered. An eye-witness was quoted as saying that both railway centers were damaged extensively, and that rolling stock, tracks, and warehouse were devastated. It is reported that no trains are running to Hanau or Aschaffenburg.

Huge fires were left burning in the German arms city of Essen last night by 12 strong formations of British Halifaxes and Lancasters which flew out from Britain to attack what is now one of the most heavily bombed districts of the Ruhr. Bombing was done through thick clouds.

Coastal Command Mosquitos yesterday attacked German shipping in a Norwegian Fjord. Swooping in at five miles a minute, they set a merchant ship and a smaller vessel ablaze, without loss to themselves.

Nine bombers and nine fighters of the 8th USAAF force are missing from the 2,200-plane attack yesterday on the Leuna synthetic oil plant near Merseburg and marshalling yards at Darmstadt, Hanau, and Aschaffenburg, it was officially announced today.

American Thunderbolt pilots told an Associated Press correspondent yesterday how, in a matter of minutes, they had wrecked a fourth of the tank strength of a German armored division — the biggest bag of tanks in a single action since the St. Lô break-through.

The Thunderbolts caught 62 tanks and armored vehicles near Euskirchen, 22 miles south of Cologne, as they were being rolled up to the front Monday on two trains in a desperate Nazi attempt to stop the American 1st Army's advance toward the Roer River. The fact that the Germans were using flatcars to haul tanks so close to the front was cited as another indication of the enemy's gasoline shortage, the correspondent added.

Aerial reconnaissance photos show that the Heinkel bomber repair plant and adjacent buildings and facilities were badly damaged in the 8th USAAF's attack on the Boblingen airfield near Stuttgart Saturday, is was officially announced today. (OWI-Reuter)

YUGOSLAVS CLOSE ANOTHER ESCAPE ROUTE

LONDON, December 13 — Partisans operating in the West Morava Valley in south-central Yugoslavia have liberated Pozega and pushed 10 miles westward to Uzice, where fighting is under way, today's communique announced.

This action closes another of the escape routes used by the Germans fleeing from southern Yugoslavia to the north.

Farther north, Partisans are closing in on the Drina River town of Zvornik. Some 65 miles above Zvornik, other Partisan units scored further successes in the drive on «They appear to be perfectly willing to go into the Pacific Theater if they get a furlough home, particularly after 18 months overseas,» he noted.

He added, however, that not all men could be relieved from European duty, and that furloughs must be conditioned upon military demands. But, he asserted, one group of men should not be required to do all the fighting in the war. (UNN)

LABOR MEMORANDUM SENT TO BONOMI

ROME, December 13 — Giuseppe Di Vittorio, one of the general secretaries of the Italian General Confederation of Labor, today submitted to Premier Bonomi a memorandum containing a number of urgent measures, the adoption of which the Confederation considers necessary to improve conditions among Italian workers.

CHRISTIAN DEMOCRATS BACKED COALITION

ROME, December 13 — A statement by Vice Premier Giulio Rodino yesterday in the newspaper Il Quotidiano said the Christian Democratic Party did everything it could to maintain the Italian six-party coalition because of its conviction that only by their loyal cooperation can the problems facing the country be solved.

When it appeared impossible to form a government with all the parties of the coalition Rodino said, the Christian Democrats took a decided stand against participation in a cabinet with only the Liberals and Labor Democrats, tion in a cabinet with only the Liberals and Labor Democrats, «because such a solution would have been in contrast with the spirit of harmony our party has always advocated.»

The Vice Premier said his party also decided against entering a government with only the Socialists and Communists, on the ground that this action also would have undermined the unity of the coalition. Even when there was talk of a De Gasperi Government, he asserted, the Christian Democratic Party realized that it was its duty to support Bonomi as the most suitable man to head the new government.

The attitude of the Christian Democratic Party members in the government, he said, will be based on the necessity of restoring public faith in the law and security for the citizens.

«Violence and arbitrariness must be repressed,» he declared. «We must reëstablish the authority of the State.» (UNN)

U.S. TROOPS IN EUROPE SHOULD NOT GO TO PACIFIC

NAPLES, December 13 — Representative John M. Costello, Acting Chairman of the U. S. House Military Affairs Committee, who arrived here today, said in a press interview today that American troops fighting now in the European theaters should not be called on « to carry the same burden in the Pacific » if other U. S. troops are available.

Asserting that he was speaking only for himself, and not for the committee, Mr. Costello said that he had found that American troops in Europe want relief from overseas duty.

CHRISTIAN DEMOCRATS BACKED COALITION

ROME, December 13 — A statement by Vice Premier Giulio Rodino yesterday in the newspaper Il Quotidiano said the Christian Democratic Party did everything it could to maintain the Italian six-party coalition because of its conviction that only by their loyal coöperation can the problems facing the country be solved.

When it appeared impossible to form a government with all the parties of the coalition, Rodino said, the Christian Democrats took a decided stand against participation in a cabinet with only the Liberals and Labor Democrats, tion in a cabinet with only the Liberals and Labor Democrats, « because such a solution would have been in contrast with the spirit of harmony our party has always advocated. »

The Vice Premier said his party also decided against entering a government with only the Socialists and Communists, on the ground that this action also would have undermined the unity of the coalition. Even when there was talk of a De Gasperi Government, he asserted, the Christian Democratic Party realized that it was its duty to support Bonomi as the most suitable man to head the new government.

The attitude of the Christian Democratic Party members in the government, he said, will be based on the necessity of restoring public faith in the law and security for the citizens.

« Violence and arbitrariness must be repressed, » he declared. « We must reestablish the authority of the State. »

NAPLES GENERALS TO BE TRIED TODAY

ROME, December 13 — Former Maj. Gen. Ettore Del Tetto, who was military commander of the Naples area prior to the granting of an armistice to Italy, and Lt. Gen. Riccardo Pentimalli, who commanded the Italian 19th Corps in Naples during the same period, will stand trial tomorrow before the Italian High Court of Justice on charges relating to the military situation in Naples at the time of the armistice.

The two accused are charged specifically with failing to take the necessary measures for the defense of Naples; avoiding combat with the Germans; withdrawing troops from the city, confining some of these troops to barracks and issuing orders to others forbidding « provocation of the Germans; » with hindering, by threats of reprisals, any form of popular action against the enemy; and, finally, with having removed themselves to private houses, entirely abandoning their commands. Both trials had been postponed from October 23.

Del Tetto was arrested on November 15 of last year, and was later dishonorably discharged from the Italian Army. It is alleged that, during the period of emergency following the German occupation of Naples, he did nothing in the city's defense, dressed in civilian clothes, left his post, and went into hiding in a monastery. He was accused of high treason to the Procuratore del Re by a group of Naples citizens.

General Pentimalli is stated to have failed to organize the defense of Naples in good time. Earlier in the war, he served in Croatia as a Divisional General. Like his co-defendant, he was arrested shortly after the liberation of Naples. (UNN)

RAVENNA PATRIOTS CALLED BEST ORGANIZED

RAVENNA, December 13 — Allied officers have reported that the Provincial Committee of Liberation in this province was one of the best organized and most efficient patriot bodies yet encountered during the advance of Allied Armies to the north, a United Nations News correspondent states.

Founded just over a year ago, the committee began by securing representatives in every branch of the Fascist government. The patriots were thus able to watch every move of the other Fascist officials and to counteract or forestall many of their orders, the correspondent said. Pro-German propaganda distributed among the citizens of the province was countered by the publication of an underground newspaper, which attained a monthly circulation of 80,000.

Citizens were warned not to coöperate with the Germans, and the Fascist attempt to mobilize manpower for work in Germany or for service in the other work units was foiled by timely instructions to men of military age to hide themselves.

Regular pensions were paid to the widows and orphans of victims of the Nazi-Fascist terror and grants to the families of active Partisans totalled more than 91,000 lire.

Partisans themselves were largely supplied by members of the committee, who organized the collection of food, clothing, and other supplies, and delivered them to Partisan headquarters, often in the face of greatest danger. Agents, many of them women, made regular trips through the German lines carrying food and other vital stores to the fighting units.

These couriers were also the chief means of liaison between Partisan groups and Allied headquarters. (UNN)

«ELAS» TROOPS ATTACK BRITISH BARRACKS; NO REPLY TO PEACE PROPOSALS

ATHENS, December 13 — Heavy fighting raged in several sections of the city today between ELAS (National Liberation Militia) forces and British troops, as leaders of the National Liberation Front (EAM) failed to reply to peace terms submitted last night by Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

The terms, given to an EAM emissary after Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean Theater, had arrived here, call for immediate disarmament of all ELAS supporters in the Athens-Piraeus area and complete adherence to the orders of General Scobie.

Late press dispatches said that Field Marshal Alexander left here yesterday by plane.

Two major armed encounters were reported last night and today. In the first, ELAS troops scaled a 10-foot wall to attack the main British military barracks, located in a large compound in the eastern suburb of the city. British tanks were thrown into the battle after the ELAS forces had fired stores of oil and gasoline, and late reports said that the invading units had dug in themselves at the north-eastern corner of the compound.

Artillery emplacements inside the compound, from which British forces were said to be shelling ELAS positions, are still in the hands of the British, despite attempts of the assaulting troops to seize them.

Another battle was fought in the Piraeus (port of Athens) area, where British reinforcements landed last night. They were reported to have made some progress in clearing the area, which has been under the control of ELAS formations for several days.

Little Change Reported

General Scobie's communique reported little change in the situation. It said that two determined attacks had been made before dawn today against a Greek brigade in the eastern sector of the city and British units holding the center of the city. Both attacks were repulsed.

Reporting progress in the Piraeus, General Scobie added that « elsewhere in the city all activities yesterday were confined to clearing snipers from areas already occupied by our troops. »

The communique said that the RAF had silenced a 75-mm. gun firing on the center of the city, while in another sortie an ammunition dump was hit. No change in the situation was reported in the rest of the country, although the communique said: « Tension continues in the Salonika and Patras areas, and there has been a considerable movement of guerrilla forces throughout the country. »

Reuter reported that shelling of the center of the city was increased today from heavy artillery recently moved into position by ELAS forces. Another report said that there is fighting within 1,500 yards of the Hôtel Grand Bretagne, where headquarters of both British military officials and the Greek Government are located.

A BBC report said that, while planes and tanks are being used by the British, they are hampered in their operations by the policy of avoiding damage and suffering to civilians as far as possible.

Large fires are burning unchecked in the city as a result of ELAS dynamiting and the use of incendiary shells. Local firement are reported unable to control the fires.

For the first time, EAM began radio broadcasts on a wavelength normally used by Radio Athens. The initial broadcast consisted of a series of announcements, one of which denied that an ELAS commander, General Seraphis, had placed himself at the disposal of General Scobie, and another which maintained that the British minister had been given assurances yesterday that food distribution would not be impeded by ELAS forces.

The broadcast also carried an appeal from the Greek Confederation of Labor to the British Labor Party, currently meeting in London. It asked that the meeting « denounce the crimes of General Scobie against our heroic martyred people who have given everything for the Allied cause, » and demanded that « justice be done to our people, and that

In view of what has happened in Greece, I shall personally reconsider my position in the Cabinet as to the first steps to be taken when we enter upon other people's territory. »

Pointing out that it was British policy to see a broad government in Greece, and that Greek stability is vital to the Balkans, he concluded: « The British Empire cannot abandon its position in the Mediterranean. »

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in reply to a question in the House of Commons, said today that there had been reports that Germans and Bulgarians are serving with ELAS forces, but he had no statement to make at present. « I am answering with reserve, because I don't wish to make things more difficult than they are, » he said.

A communique from the military liaison in charge of Greek relief here, said yesterday that plans had been made for bringing food and other relief to practically every part of the country before fighting broke out. Great progress had been made in repairing important port installations and in restoring main roads, the communique said, warning that the work of reconstruction would have to stop unless order returned to the country. SMUTS BACKS BRITISH ACTION IN GREECE

PORT ELIZABETH, December 13 — In a speech here tonight, Field Marshal Jan C. Smuts expressed profound concern about the state of Europe, its peoples, and their future, and declared that the British Government was perfectly right in establishing law and order in Greece.

« Many British troops have been killed, » he said. « The iron hand of Germany has disappeared, only to be replaced by armed bands of guerrillas which are an enormous tax on the people.

« They are ruthless. They behave like brigands. There are shootings and hangings of those who do not agree with them. Starvation is spreading among the people.

« A situation is developing which, if not dealt with drastically, may imperil victory.

« If these private armies are not disarmed, there will be lawlessness, chaos, anarchy, and civil war in Europe, instead of the peace to which we are looking forward. »

Dealing with the charge that the British Government was interfering in the internal affairs of other countries, Smuts said that the Greeks could not be left to fight it out, and said: « The British Army is an army of occupation. Its duty is to maintain order. »

The field marshal said that the end of the European war did not seem likely until spring or summer. (Reuter)

British Labor Asks Armistice

In London, meanwhile, the Labor Party passed a resolution by a vote of 2,455,000 to 137,000 expressing regret over the situation. It called upon the Government «to take all necessary steps to facilitate an armistice without delay, and to secure the resumption of conversations between all sections of the people who have resisted the Fascist and Nazi invaders, with the view to the establishment of a provisional national government which would proceed to a fair and free general election as soon as practicable, in order that the will of the Greek people may be expressed. The conference looks forward to the establishment of a strong democratic system which will bring peace, happiness, and reconciliation to our generous and heroic Greek allies.»

In the course of the debate, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, speaking as a member of the War Cabinet, said British policy was based on an agreement with Russia whereby the Soviet Union undertook the «main problem of Rumania» and Britain undertook the «main problem of Greece.» Both proposals, he said, had been submitted to President Roosevelt.

He accepted responsibility as a member of the Cabinet for the decisions in Greece, and said, «I cannot bring it to my conscience that any one of the decisions was wrong tonight. Field Marshal Jan C. Allied Armies in Italy:

Southwest of Ravenna, Canadian troops of the 8th Army established two bridgeheads across the River Lamone against strong opposition. After a day of heavy fighting, in which a number of strong enemy counter-attacks were repulsed, these two bridgeheads have joined up.

British troops of the 5th Army have driven off a determined enemy attack against their positions on Monte Cerere. After making a temporary penetration of our forward positions, the enemy was thrown back with heavy losses.

Elsewhere, patrols have been active.

Naval:

It is reported from the Aegean that on the evening of December 11, His Majesty's Destroyer Liddesdale intercepted an enemy force believed to consist of three landing craft attempting to land men on the Island of Symi, north of Rhodes. One landing craft was blown up and sunk, and the others destroyed. During the action, the Liddesdale came under fire from the enemy batteries on Rhodes, but suffered no casualties or damage. East of Saargemünd, we advanced to within a mile of Obergailbach.

Northeast of Hagenau, our forces overcame enemy delaying effort and drove forward through the Rhine Valley as much as eight miles.

Maginot-Line defenses were penetrated, and Selz reached before any determined resistance was met. At several points, our units are within five miles of the Franco-German border.

Fighter-bombers striking into Germany blew up a fuel dump at Zweibrücken and attacked railway targets between Landau and Karlsruhe and at Monsheim, west of Worms.

Yesterday afternoon, escorted heavy bombers attacked Witten, industrial and railway town in the Ruhr.

Last night, a strong force of heavy bombers attacked Essen, and light bombers struck at Osnabrück.

In all air operations yesterday, 21 enemy aircraft were shot down. (Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 13 — In the Adriatic coastal sector, numerous Patriot groups from Cervia are operating in close collaboration with troops of the 8th Army.

These Patriots, belonging to the «Settimo Garavani» detachment, contributed considerably to Cervia's liberation, and are now carrying out continuous reconnaissance and patrol actions, combined with daring raids, under the direction of Allied and Italian officers.

The activity of the sappers has been especially noteworthy. During recent operations, and together with Allied patrols, they destroyed several railway tracks, killed a number of Germans, and captured an enemy agent. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 13 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

The fourth battle at Aix la Chapelle continues with undiminished fury.

Yesterday, south, and southeast of Jülich, the U.S. 1st Army continued its attempts at breaking through towards the Roer area with strong infantry and tank formations. The Americans, owing to the valiant resistance of battle-proved German formations, became entangled in fierce house-to-house fighting or were halted in the mud-soaked and shell-holed ground after having suffered heavy losses.

Our troops, so far, have destroyed 70 enemy tanks in the new battle.

In the Saarlautern area, yesterday, fierce fighting was again in progress on both sides for advanced pillbox groups.

Between Sarreguemines and the Haguenau Forest, particularly in the Rohrbach sector and between Reichshofen and Woerth, the enemy formed strong spearheads with his formations. Northwest of Rohrbach, the enemy was halted by the counter-attack of a tank division which had already often distinguished itself.

In the remaining parts of the front, the enemy attacks were halted in the forefield of the western fortifications.

In upper Alsace, our troops attacked in several sectors and ousted enemy forces from their positions.

Greater London continued to be subjected to a long-range bombardment.

Italy:

In central Italy, the British did not succeed in broadening their Lamone bridgehead, despite fresh attacks.

Southwest of Faenza, repeated enemy attacks collapsed.

South of Bologna, numerous enemy reconnaissance thrusts were indicative of a speedy resumption of fresh major enemy attacks.

Eastern Front:

In northeastern Croatia, the southern banks of the lower Drau were cleared of the enemy.

Southeast of Vukovar, grim local fighting is in progress against Soviet forces supported by bands.

In Hungary, south and east of Lake Balaton, the enemy limited himself to local attacks, which were frustrated, except for some minor penetrations.

The focal point of the enemy major attacks continues to lie in the sector north of Budapest and at Miscolc. The Soviet divisions which attacked at several points were repulsed or halted after some initial gains. The attempted break-through was frustrated.

In the southern part of eastern Slovakia, at the Ungvar-Kaschau road, renewed Bolshevik attacks collapsed with heavy losses to the enemy. Our infantry narrowed down penetrations which the enemy had achieved in the mountainous forest land during the previous days, despite stubborn enemy resistance.

In the remaining parts of the Eastern Front, the day went by without important events.

Air

In the Arctic Sea, German torpedo-planes torpedoed three large vessels which formed part of an enemy convoy, despite strong fighter opposition and the barrage from anti-aircraft batteries. The ships may be considered sunk.

U. S. terror formations bombed localities in upper Silesia, in the Rhine-Main area, and in central Germany. Considerable damage was caused to buildings, particularly in the residential districts of Darmstadt and Hanau.

Other British terror attacks were launched on Witten and Essen.

Air Defence forces brought down 58 planes, 39 of which were four-engined bombers. (Radio Berlin)

Speech by Goebbels: The German Minister of Propaganda today gave an address in an unspecified industrial town in western Germany which Transocean describes only as a town «much endangered by the war from the air.» His topic, also, was the war from the air, consistently referred to as the «enemy war terror.»

Goebbels treats his topic with a tone of great urgency, calling the burden of the air war «heavy and painful» for the German people and the «problem to which the utmost priority is being given.» He ventures the prophecy that in the future «it will be possible to master the problem of the air war» but refrains from giving any particulars as to how this is to be done. Sforza and the Frontier Problem: Commenting on a Sforza article in the American magazine Life, the Fascist Radio ridicules Sforza's assertion that «there is no frontier-problem in Italy, nor anywhere else. Frontiers are a memory of the past...» According to the commentator, Sforza's obsession lies in inviting foreign countries to help themselves to Italy. Internationalism, he continues, is a foregone conclusion even in Soviet Russia, which, quoting the Daily Mail, is a nationalist and imperialist country par excellence. Himmler refers to the year 1944 as « the most difficult year of the war, » and the months of August, September, and October as the « most difficult » months of all. He believes that, inasmuch as the difficulties of these months « have been overcome, » Germany can now « look forward to the coming year » with a confidence based on « accumulated new strength. »

Western Front: The commentator Sertorius begins his report this evening with the direct admission that the American 1st Army has « managed to push forward to the Roer, on both sides of Düren. » He attributes this Allied success to the increase in material used by the Americans. In addition to this threat to the German lines, the correspondent predicts a forthcoming threat from the American 9th Army against the Jülich-Linnich sector. This « large-scale attack » is « expected hourly » now.

Eastern Front: The correspondent Colonel von Olberg, after a silence of some days, returned this evening to make his daily report on this front. He expresses the hope that the German armies, which are coming up from the Balkans, will bring relief to the German position in Hungary by attacking the southern flank of the Russian armies there. He no longer stresses that the Germans will hold Budapest, but instead cautiously refrains from « making any definite forecasts » about the Budapest drive, because the situation on the extreme left wing of the Soviets is « still too fluid. »

Fate of Journalists in 'Invaded' Italy: At a congress in Germany, of the Union of National Press Associations, delegates reported many cases in which journalists had died in the "so-called" liberated countries for having done their duty towards their fatherland and the new Europe. This applied to Italy as well as to Rumania and Bulgaria. In the latter two countries, journalists are said to have been ill-treated and persecuted by Bolsheviks and Jews.

The Holy See and Communism: In the Fascist Radio's press review, Pennino discusses the Wednesday editorial of the Regime Fascista (Farinacci's paper), dealing with the Vatican's recognition of de Gaulle's provisional government, and its implications. After blaming the Vatican for having refused recognition to the Italian Social Republic « on legal grounds », the writer tries to prove that the Vatican's indifference to the persecution of Pétainist priests in France means a complete change-over in her policy. This, says the writer, might be due to the failure of democracies in liberated countries, which induced the Vatican to seek closer relations through de Gaulle's France with Communist Russia and thus save what is left. The writer then suddenly turns to the background of this war, summing it up as « a submission of Christian civilisation to Israel's revenge. » He concludes his article with the warning that without confidence in the cause and without the protection of God, « the Jewish cyclone would surpass even the Deluge. »

U.S. TROOPS LAND ON MINDORO ISLAND; JAPS' PHILIPPINE TERRITORY SPLIT

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 15 — American 6th Army forces landed today on Mindoro Island, 95 miles south of Manila Bay, splitting Japanese-held Philippine territory in two, General Douglas MacArthur announced late tonight.

The new American landing, made on the southwest coast, was almost unopposed, and initial objectives were taken easily, the communique said, adding that complete surprise had been obtained. Army and Navy planes covering the landing operations destroyed 250 Japanese aircraft, while other carrier-based planes virtually set up an aerial blockade of Luzon Island.

CANADIANS BREACH GERMAN CANAL LINE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 15 — Canadian infantrymen, pressing westward in an attack which has sheared through two strong enemy delaying-lines across the Po Plain northeast of Faenza, have breached yet a third line of enemy entrenchments, based on the Canale Naviglio, on a 1,500 yard front, a mile north of the Ravenna-Bologna railway, it was announced here today.

The Canadian forces attacked at night across the steep-banked canal where the enemy has hastily concentrated all available reserves of the German 10th Army, as well as the reformed 98th Infantry Division, withdrawn from reserve stations behind the German 18th Army on the Bologna front.

In very heavy fighting, a bridgehead 1,500 yards wide was established a mile northeast of Bagnocavallo, and despite heavy shellfire, Canadian infantrymen and sappers constructed a ford across the watercourse to enable tanks, anti-tank guns, and infantry reinforcements to pour across and strengthen the newly-won positions.

These reinforcements withstood the violent hammering of enemy counter-attacks spearheaded by Tiger and Panther tanks, and at latest reports, the Canadian forces had pushed inland from the canal for a distance of nearly 1,000 yards.

In the course of one of the heaviest of the enemy attacks, Canadian troops were forced to fall back back to the Bagnocavallo-Alfonsine Road, some 300 yards west of the canal and paralleling it. After reforming here, the Canadian forces again thrust forward to cut this important road and outflank the strong enemy concentrations holding Bagnocavallo, on the Ravenna-Lugo-Bologna highway.

The Canadian bridgehead, or rather series of bridgeheads, now extends from a base 10 miles wide along the western banks of the Lamone River, across the Canale Vecchio on a front of at least 3,000 yards, to an apex piercing the Canale Naviglio 2½ miles to the west. In these attacks, which have crashed through the left flank of the German 10th Army's main positions across the Po Plain, some 500 prisoners have been taken, and at least a dozen German tanks and assault guns destroyed or captured.

Surprise has been one of the principal elements in this Canadian punch, thrown at the enemy lines northeast of Faenza as the German 10th Army concentrated its strength

General MacArthur said that the daring move had carried American forces to the shores of the China Sea, cutting off the Japanese Empire to the south.

Infantry forces moved ashore at night while landing ships blasted the shoreline with rockets and escorting naval vessels laid down a heavy barrage, press dispatches reported. Naval and air bombardment preceding the landing was brief. The communique reported that engineer units were among the first ashore.

American troops on Leyte Island have been fighting about 300 miles from Manila and the new landing represents an advance of about 170 miles toward Manila Bay which is now flanked by American forces.

The communique reported that Filipino patriot forces launched an aggressive offensive on Mindanao, Panay, Negros, Cebu, Bohol and Sulu islands. They have liberated three entire provinces on Mindanao and have seriously disrupted the enemy's communication lines.

Pacific Fleet headquarters reported tonight that carrier-based planes, striking against Japanese air installations on Luzon Island north of Mindoro, destroyed 133 enemy aircraft on the ground and in the air. Together with the 91 planes destroyed in air attacks on Luzon yesterday, the two-day total was increased to 224.

Both fighter and bomber aircraft joined in the two attacks against Japanese air power on the key Philippine island.

7TH ARMY MAKES THIRD CROSSING INTO REICH

LONDON, December 15 — American 7th Army troops made a third crossing into Germany late today between Wissembourg and Lauterburg, and they are now battling against the outer defenses of the Siegfried Line, press reports said tonight.

CHINESE TROOPS CAPTURE BHAMO

to battle a threatening envelopment of Faenza [illegible]. Even now, some days after the first surprise assault, official reports carefully avoid mentioning the date on which any of the Allied actions have taken place. Although official situation reports made available here normally deal with events of the previous 24 hours, up to noon of the day prior to their issue, current reports are not so dated.

On the 5th Army front, action yesterday was confined to the right flank of the more-than-100-mile-long mountain line. British troops in the Monte Maggiore and Tassignano sector, in the Santerno River Valley south of Imola, met heavy enemy machine-gun and mortar fire, as well as counter-attacks, when they attempted to extend their positions gained in recent fighting.

Elsewhere along the Italian front, positions remained unchanged. (PRO)

7TH ARMY CROSSES INTO GERMANY

LONDON, December 15 — Racing around the eastern and western sides of the Hagenau Forest, two 7th Army columns have joined up to form an arrowhead thrust into Germany in the Wissembourg (Weissenburg) area, 14 miles west of the Rhine. Six Allied armies now are fighting on German soil.

Late press dispatches reported that a second crossing of the Palatinate border had been made at Lauterburg, at the northeast tip of Alsace, less than 10 miles from Karlsruhe.

The Germans retreated to the north and across the Rhine in advance of swift-moving American troops, but rear-guard troops fought hard to cover the retreat of the main body. American forces now are under fire from Siegfried Line artillery.

Reducing the gap through which German forces can escape from the Hagenau Forest back to the Siegfried Line, the two columns linked north of Sulz and continued their drive toward Wissembourg, a hub of road and rail lines leading to the Rhine Valley. A third column on their western flank surged northward to take the Maginot Line fortress of Lembuch, seven miles southwest of Wissembourg and two miles from the German border.

While American forces crossed the German border in the Lauterburg area, other units turned northwestward to reach Salmbach in a three-mile advance.

Thunderbolt planes pounded pillboxes in the German defense line north of Lauterburg, and medium bombers struck at enemy defenses above Wissembourg.

In an attempt to divert American strength from the drive into the Reich, German forces yesterday counter-attacked between Mülhouse and Colmar. German infantry and artillery forces were rushed over the Rhine to attack the heights overlooking two highways running from Ribeauville and Mülhouse to the interior of France. Late dispatches tonight reported that the German attack had been held, and that the Allied situation is much easier.

3rd Army Continue Advance

At the western end of the 7th Army's 35-mile front, 3rd Army forces in slow and hard fighting cleared the enemy from Rimlingen, east of Saargemünd, and advanced one mile to reach the border town of Erchingen.

Small gains were made in the Saarlautern area, where 95th Division troops captured a northern suburb of the Saar Basin city and fought to gain control of Ensdorf, on the eastern outskirts of the city. Three miles to the northwest, at Dillingen, 80th Division troops advanced slowly through Siegfried Line bunkers and pillboxes. A falling off of German artillery fire and counter-attacks in this area was reported.

American 1st Army forces today completed clearing the west bank of the Roer River above Düren by eliminating the Soviet troops are moving waist-deep through flooded fields to outflank enemy strongpoints.

Press correspondents reported tonight that Budapest is faced with «Stalingrad» fighting, as the Germans are making preparations for street-to-street and house-to-house fighting in the city. All main buildings not already blown up are being converted into strongpoints.

A swift break-through west of the last major barrier before Austria might save the city from the destruction of street battles, as it would cut the last two escape routes leading out of Budapest to the northwest and west. Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's forces are pressing hard against the heavily-defended German line between the city and Lake Velenczei.

Along the Danube in this sector, heavy fog has prevented the Red Air Force from supporting ground troops.

Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2nd Ukrainian Front continued its advance northwest of Budapest, and tonight's Soviet communique reported that Red Army troops captured Sahy, just over the border in Czechoslovakia.

The Free German Press Bureau in Stockholm reported today that General Heinz Guderian has arrived in Vienna to supervise the defense works of the Vienna Plain.

Troops on Marshal Malinovsky's northeastern flank continued their rapid advance northward from Miskolc in a drive which threatens to encircle all German forces in northeastern Hungary. The Soviet communique announced the capture of the vital town of Szendro, 20 miles north of Miskolc on the main rail line to Kosice toward which General Ivan Petrov's army in Slovakia is thrusting. The terrain beyond Szendro is open, and the country offers no major obstacles to impede the advance.

The communique reported that over 1,000 German and Hungarian troops were captured in yesterday's fighting in this sector. Red Army troops destroyed or damaged 15 German tanks, and 29 German aircraft were shot down.

A 6,000-ton German transport has been torpedoed in Danzig Bay by a plane of the Baltic Fleet air arm, and another transport has been sunk in the open sea by warships of the Baltic Fleet, a supplement to last night's Soviet communique stated. (OWI-Reuter-Radio Moscow)

ALLIES RECAPTURE BUTHIDAUNG, IN BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, December 15 — Allied troops have recaptured Buthidaung in the Arakan sector of Burma, as well as a village two miles to the south, it was announced here today. West of the Mayu Range, Allied forces have taken up positions 14 miles southeast of Maungdaw.

It was also confirmed here today that all territory vacated by Allied troops west of Kalapanzin before the monsoon season has been reoccupied.

On the Chindwin River front, troops of the 11th East African Division have captured Shwegyin, and also are pushing up the Shwegyin-Yeu road toward a village north of the town. Shwegyin is 10 miles south of Kalawa.

The British 36th Infantry Division has consolidated recently-won positions in the Indaw-Katha region, and sent out patrols which clashed with the Japanese in what were termed light actions. The Chinese 38th Division has recorded slight gains in the northern sector at Bhamo.

Chinese forces, after driving 40 miles into Kwangsi Province in their drive to repulse the Japanese attempt to invade Kweichow, have fanned out into three columns in preparation for an assault on Hochih, Radio Chungking reported today.

One column is reported to be heading straight along the railroad route, and has reached a point 15 miles from Hochih. The second thrust has taken Chinese troops 12 miles west of the city, while the third column is 18 miles to the southwest.

German soil.

Late press dispatches reported that a second crossing of the Palatinate border had been made at Lauterburg, at the northeast tip of Alsace, less than 10 miles from Karlsruhe.

The Germans retreated to the north and across the Rhine in advance of swift-moving American troops, but rear-guard troops fought hard to cover the retreat of the main body. American forces now are under fire from Siegfried Line artillery.

Reducing the gap through which German forces can escape from the Hagenau Forest back to the Siegfried Line, the two columns linked north of Sulz and continued their drive toward Wissembourg, a hub of road and rail lines leading to the Rhine Valley. A third column on their western flank surged northward to take the Maginot Line fortress of Lembuch, seven miles southwest of Wissembourg and two miles from the German border.

While American forces crossed the German border in the Lauterburg area, other units turned northwestward to reach Salmbach in a three-mile advance.

Thunderbolt planes pounded pillboxes in the German defense line north of Lauterburg, and medium bombers struck at enemy defenses above Wissembourg.

In an attempt to divert American strength from the drive into the Reich, German forces yesterday counter-attacked between Mulhouse and Colmar. German infantry and artillery forces were rushed over the Rhine to attack the heights overlooking two highways running from Ribeauville and Mulhouse to the interior of France. Late dispatches tonight reported that the German attack had been held, and that the Allied situation is much easier.

3rd Army Continue Advance

At the western end of the 7th Army's 35-mile front, 3rd Army forces in slow and hard fighting cleared the enemy from Rimlingen, east of Saargemünd, and advanced one mile to reach the border town of Erchingen.

Small gains were made in the Saarlautern area, where 95th Division troops captured a northern suburb of the Saar Basin city and fought to gain control of Ensdorf, on the eastern outskirts of the city. Three miles to the northwest, at Dillingen, 90th Division troops advanced slowly through Siegfried Line bunkers and pillboxes. A falling off of German artillery fire and counter-attacks in this area was reported.

American 1st Army forces today completed clearing the west bank of the Roer River above Düren by eliminating the last German strongholds — at a castle near Schophoven and a factory just south of Mariaweiler. Late dispatches reported tonight that the sole remaining German bridgehead south of Düren had been split in two by a thrust to within a few hundred yards of the swollen river.

Driving east and north from captured Gurzenich and Birgel toward the river and Düren, 1st Army troops met strong German opposition and threw back several counter-attacks. The Germans are fighting bitterly for every yard. Southeast of Monschau, 1st Army troops made gains of only a few hundred yards against enemy opposition and through thickly-sown minefields.

On the 9th Army sector along the Roer, ground action was limited, but increased German artillery and mortar fire during the last 48 hours was reported.

BATTLES RAGING IN OUTSKIRTS OF BUDAPEST; RED ARMY DRIVES ON KOSICE

MOSCOW, December 15 — The Germans have rushed reinforcements into Budapest and have thrown in heavy armored counter-attacks in an attempt to hold the Red Army drive into the Hungarian capital. The battle now is raging inside the German belt of fortifications, where continued their rapid advance northward from Miskolc in a drive which threatens to encircle all German forces in northeastern Hungary. The Soviet communique announced the capture of the vital town of Szendro, 20 miles north of Miskolc on the main rail line to Kosice toward which General Ivan Petrov's army in Slovakia is thrusting. The terrain beyond Szendro is open, and the country offers no major obstacles to impede the advance.

The communique reported that over 1,000 German and Hungarian troops were captured in yesterday's fighting in this sector. Red Army troops destroyed or damaged 15 German tanks, and 29 German aircraft were shot down.

A 6,000-ton German transport has been torpedoed in Danzig Bay by a plane of the Baltic Fleet air arm, and another transport has been sunk in the open sea by warships of the Baltic Fleet, a supplement to last night's Soviet communique stated. (OWI-Reuter-Radio Moscow)

ALLIES RECAPTURE BUTHIDAUNG, IN BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, December 15 — Allied troops have recaptured Buthidaung in the Arakan sector of Burma, as well as a village two miles to the south, it was announced here today. West of the Mayu Range, Allied forces have taken up positions 14 miles southeast of Maungdaw.

It was also confirmed here today that all territory vacated by Allied troops west of Kalapanzin before the monsoon season has been reoccupied.

On the Chindwin River front, troops of the 11th East African Division have captured Shwegyin, and also are pushing up the Shwegyin-Yeu road toward a village north of the town. Shwegyin is 10 miles south of Kalawa.

The British 36th Infantry Division has consolidated recently-won positions in the Indaw-Katha region, and sent out patrols which clashed with the Japanese in what were termed light actions. The Chinese 38th Division has recorded slight gains in the northern sector at Bhamo.

Chinese forces, after driving 40 miles into Kwangsi Province in their drive to repulse the Japanese attempt to invade Kweichow, have fanned out into three columns in preparation for an assault on Hochih, Radio Chungking reported today.

One column is reported to be heading straight along the railroad route, and has reached a point 15 miles from Hochih. The second thrust has taken Chinese troops 12 miles west of the city, while the third column is 18 miles to the southwest.

Eastern Air Command planes yesterday bombed a storage area at Mychaung, on the main Japanese line of communications in Burma. Areas at Kyautkaw on the Kalaban River were attacked Wednesday, it was announced.

In Washington, the War Department said today that a second Superfortress was lost during yesterday's attack on Rangoon. One big bomber was reported missing.

15TH U.S.A.A.F. BOMBS AUSTRIA, GERMANY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 15 — Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 15th USAAF today struck at five strategic targets in Germany and Austria in daylight attacks, it was announced here today.

The targets included Rosenheim, in Germany; and Innsbruck, Linz, Amstetten, and an area near Salzburg, in Austria. With the exception of the Innsbruck attack, the bombing was done by instrument through heavy clouds.

The heaviest bombing was at Linz, where both Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by Lightnings and Mustangs, attacked. They encountered moderate anti-aircraft fire.

At Innsbruck, rail yards at the northern terminus of the Brenner Pass, vital to the supply lines of Field Marshal Kesselring's troops, were hit. Good results were reported in the face of light to moderate anti-aircraft defense. No enemy planes were encountered, early reports indicated.

The most recent bombing of the Salzburg area occured on the night of December 6, while targets in the Rosenheim area were last hit December 9. Amstetten, 30 miles southeast of Linz, had never been attacked previously by Mediterranean-based aircraft.

Yesterday, Spitfires and Spitbombers of the Desert Air Force roared over the battlefield between Bagnocavallo and Alfonsine, across the Po Plain, at little over ground level to rake enemy trenches, fortified strongpoints, and tank concentrations in support of the Canadian thrust westward, it was announced here today.

Because of drizzling rain and low cloud, the fighters and fighter-bombers were forced to make their attacks at dangerously low level, the reports said. Ground force observers paid tribute to the daring and accuracy of the spectacular assaults.

Medium bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday struck an enemy fuel and munitions dump at Tortona, 15 miles east of Alessandria in northwestern Italy, to send it up in flames.

Coastal Air Force craft bombed three ships in the Gulf of Venice without observation of results, while other medium and fighter-bombers continued the stinging attrition attacks against enemy transport and communications in the Plain of the Po. (PRO)

LUFTWAFFE DECLINE FREES A.A. TROOPS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 15 — As a result of the decline of German air activity over Italy, surplus anti-aircraft troops are being given special training to make them available as infantry reinforcements, it was reported here today.

The special training, part of the infantry conversion training program, provides these and other surplus troops with a three-month course at what was formerly the finest of the Italian Fascist Blackshirt training areas, the announcement said.

More than 10,000 are expected to be enrolled in the courses within the next 60 days. (PRO)

CONGRESSMEN RECEIVED BY POPE PIUS; VISIT ROME MILITARY CENTERS

ROME, December 15 — The delegation of the Military Affairs Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives touring Italy was granted a special audience today by Pope Pius XII. The delegation also inspected a hospital, a rest center, and a replacement depot in the Rome area.

The day's program was among the busiest spent by the committee since it left the U. S. on November 29 to inspect American operations on the Western and Italian war fronts. Their activities began at 0900 hours and lasted until late in the evening.

Representatives John Rooney, Democrat of Brooklyn, and Joseph R. Farrington, Republican of Honolulu, who remained in France after fourteen members of the committee departed for Italy, rejoined the group here today, after a night in Naples.

Pope Pius spoke to the Congressmen for 10 minutes, while Army officers accompanying the Representatives waited in an anteroom before being received by His Holiness.

Before visiting Vatican City, the committee inspected a general hospital, where the Congressmen went to different wards to speak to patients who are American soldiers from their respective states. It was the first personal meeting of the Representatives and American enlisted men in the Italian Theater, preparatory to their visit to the 5th Army front. During their tour of military installations in the Western Front area, the Congressmen spoke to hundreds of enlisted men.

The facilities available to troops at the U.S. Army Rest Center also were inspected today by the delegation.

In the late afternoon, the Congressional party was driven to a new replacement depot, where a new U.S. Army infantry conversion program is now under way. There the party saw one of the best equipped training centers in Italy, formerly utilized by Mussolini as a Blackshirt training center, which now will be used to retrain American soldiers from other branches of service for the infantry.

The Congressional delegation was met by Brig. Gen. Lawrence Jaynes, commanding officer of the depot, who told them how the center was operating and that its purpose is to pass on to officers and men the latest battle doctrines gleaned from front-line sources and from techniques developed at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Brigadier General Jaynes said the new replacement idea was a major effort to support national policies of conserving manpower.

Later, the Congressmen were shown a display of both U.S. and enemy weapons and mines, and were taken on an automobile tour of the installation. Several Congressmen accepted General Jaynes' invitation to fire any weapon they wished to try and the first to volunteer was Representative Clare Booth Luce, who tried both the U.S. rifle and carbine.

After returning to the city in the early evening, the Congressmen were guests at a reception given by the U.S. Ambassador to Italy, Alexander C. Kirk. (UNN)

R.A.F. LANCASTERS ATTACK LUDWIGSHAFEN

LONDON, December 15 — Royal Air Force Lancaster heavy bombers tonight carried out a heavy attack against Ludwigsafen. The attack was officially described as "having been concentrated."

Ludwigsafen, situated on the left bank of the Rhine River opposite Mannheim, is the location of the I. G. Farben industrial works, stretching almost three miles along the Rhine banks. The last raid against the factory was made November 5.

Two key German rail hubs feeding the Western Front — Hanover and Kassel — were bombed today by over 650 Flying Fortresses of the 8th USAAF escorted by over 550 Mustang and Thunderbolt fighters, it was announced here this afternoon.

Kassel, in addition to being a Nazi rail center, is the home of large German tank-producing arsenals. It lies 74 miles southwest of Hanover.

The bombing was done under adverse weather conditions. With the Italy-based Flying Fortress and Liberator attack on Rosenheim, Germany, and on four strategic targets in Austria, the heavy attack marked a resumption of the Allied air bombardment of Germany following a short lull.

Meanwhile, Royal Air Force Lancasters dropped six-ton bombs on German E and R-boat pens at Ijmuiden, Holland.

An official announcement made here yesterday disclosed that the Germans used the international symbol of the Red Cross to camouflage an anti-aircraft battery which opened fire on a squadron of rocket-firing Typhoons of the Allied

Pope Pius spoke to the Congressmen for 10 minutes, while Army officers accompanying the Representatives waited in an anteroom before being received by His Holiness.

Pope Asks Charitable Peace

The Congressmen sat in a semi-circle around Pope Pius during the audience. John M. Costello, Democrat of California, and acting chairman of the committee, said later that Pope Pius told them that if there is to be a lasting peace it must be one of "charity and love," and that the visiting Congressional delegation, as a responsible body of the U.S. government, is in a position to assist in achieving that purpose.

His Holiness asked the Representatives to convey his Christmas greetings to President Roosevelt and, after he had received all of the escorting entourage, including Brig. Gen. Arthur McChrystal ,commander of INC, AFHQ, he gave the group a special blessing.

Pope Pius personally presented to each member of the group a rosary which he blessed. Myron C. Taylor, personal representative of President Roosevelt to the Vatican, attended the audience.

Mr. Rooney was not present at the special audience, but before the Congressional group departed from the Vatican, he appeared and was granted a private audience with Pope Pius.

After the audience, all of the Representatives except Mrs. Clare Booth Luce, Republican of Connecticut, toured the Sistine Chapel and St. Peter's. Mrs. Luce and Mr. Taylor visited one of the 200 soup kitchens operated by the Vatican for the poor, and the orphanage of Patronati di San Giuseppe.

An official announcement made here yesterday disclosed that the Germans used the international symbol of the Red Cross to camouflage an anti-aircraft battery which opened fire on a squadron of rocket-firing Typhoons of the Allied 2nd TAF last Wednesday.

The fliers were attacked from a building marked with huge red crosses as they flew deep into Germany in the area of Hanover. Despite the attack, the planes pressed home their assault on rail transport, damaged two trains with their rockets and destroyed a third.

Another attack in the same area yesterday was directed against a railway station and a factory.

Allied tactical aircraft continued to hammer vital enemy communications in Holland and the Ruhr. The main attack was concentrated on the Deventer and Zwolle rail bridges controlling the enemy's main rail lines into the Hague area. The bridges had been the targets of four previous raids.

Also troop concentrations and ammunition trains in the Ruhr and barges in the Zuider Zee were bombed.

THREAT TO NAZIS IN YUGOSLAVIA INCREASED

LONDON, December 15 — Yugoslav units fighting in Serbia tightened their grip around Uzice by reaching Kremna 14 miles southwest of Uzice, on the Vishegrad-Uzice railway line, to imperil the last German escape route, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

Fighting of undiminished violence continued in the Srem sector of Slovenia, and Yugoslav units seized the village of Brandovce.

In Bosnia, the enemy suffered heavy losses as Patriot troops cut their communications lines in many places.

In Croatia, in the area northeast of Zagreb, 200 German troops were killed and 60 captured in an attack on the Krizevci-Koprivbica railway line. An enemy counter-attack from the direction of Varazdin to the northwest was repulsed.

Yugoslav aircraft gave tactical support to Marshal Tito's drive on Vinkovci, in Slavonia, and ranged over the entire front in that sector. In one attack they destroyed 20 trucks and 42 wagons loaded with ammunition.

Yugoslav forces killed 150 Germans, including a colonel, in a night battle near Janja, 60 miles west of Belgrade, Marshal Tito's communique reported tonight. The night communique also reported widespread destruction of German transport in attacks by Partisans and Yugoslav regulars.

Two locomotives and 22 cars loaded with war material were destroyed by Partisan forces in northwestern Yugoslavia on the rail line extending from Ljubljana to Trieste. Several sections of another line leading from Ljubljana to Jesenice were wrecked by other Partisan forces.

In the northern part of the country, Partisan units, supported by aircraft, attacked German supply lines feeding the forces retreating across Hungary. The attacks centered in the Vinkovci area, a main road and rail hub on the east-west line between Belgrade and Zagreb.

South of Janja, the enemy stronghold of Kozluk was destroyed. (OWI)

BRITISH TRAINED PATRIOTS IN ALBANIA

LONDON, December 15 — British officers and men helped train and organize the Albanian National Liberation Army which carried on guerrilla warfare against first the Fascists, and later the Germans, it was disclosed here last night.

The first British mission entered Albania from northern Epirus, early in 1943, by parachute.

They started organizing Patriot activity, and by August were working in close coöperation with the Partisan Central Council training the first Partisan brigade. It was commanded by the Mehmet Shemu, veteran of the Spanish Republic's International Brigade, and was well-supplied with rifles, light mortars, and light machine guns.

The fall of Mussolini stimulated Albanian resistance, which in turn brought savage reprisals. Then came the Italian surrender and the German invasion of Albania. At the same time, splits developed in the Patriot ranks.

In October, 1943, Brigadier George Oswald Mark Davy landed in Albania with a complete staff and orders from General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson to kill Germans.

The result was that the Germans were compelled to keep nearly three divisions in Albania, and still the Patriots contrived to carry out coups and sabotage of all kinds.

By April of this year, there were seven Patriot brigades and 10 battalion groups in action, all trained by British liaison officers. These forces totalled 12,000 men, and by September the number had risen to 30,000.

Appreciation for the British help was recently expressed by the commander-in-chief of the Albanian Army of National Liberation, Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha, in a personal message of thanks to General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson.

The Secretary of State said that the United States is ready to deal with the reorganized Bonomi Government because it was formed by Italians. When the new government was formed, he said, the Italians could have taken another course if they had so wanted.

In response to the question of whether the Italian Government or Allied authorities are to be in charge of the punishment of war criminals in Italy, Stettinius said that it was in the hands of the Allied authorities.

The secretary was also asked whether the visit of British Minister of State Richard K. Law indicated that the Italian situation would be discussed. Although he pointed out that Law specialized in economics and relief problems, Stettinius replied that he did not know all the questions they would discuss. (OWI-Reuter)

LUSSU BLAMES RIGHT-WING SPLIT IN C.N.L.

ROME, December 15 — The recent ministerial crisis was chiefly due to the right-wing tendencies of the Liberal and Christian Democratic Parties, which caused internal conflict inside the Committee of National Liberation, Emilio Lussu, Action Party secretary, maintained in a broadcast over Radio Rome yesterday.

He added, however, «The Country has profited from the crisis, because it has given both parties time to steer, if not to the left, at least less to the right.»

Lussu said, the Liberal Party's participation in the present government had been encouraged by the attitude of the Christian Democrats, and he implied from this that «prime responsibility for this lamentable solution to the crisis» lay with these two parties.

Regarding the Communist Party's position, Lussu said the Party's anxiety over being left out of the Government had driven it to the mistake of believing that the Christian Democrats had decided upon a three-party government — with the Labor Democrats and the Liberals — and to the further mistake of believing that in offering its collaboration to Bonomi, it would be supported by the Socialists.

Of the Sforza case, Lussu said that it ought to be regarded as an issue concerning the Christian Democrats.

Lussu said that theoretically there was no question on the point «Can our democracy have the government it wants?» but that practically the whole problem lay in it.

Lussu concluded with a declaration that the best friends of Great Britain and European democracy were the Italian Democrats, and that «their enemies were always the same ones — no longer European but Africa adventurers — a nest of vipers whom the Italian people had not yet crushed.» (UNN)

U.S., U.K. AGREE ON ITALY, STETTINIUS SAYS

WASHINGTON, December 15 — Britain and the United States act together in all questions of policy affecting Italy, Secretary of State Edward Stettinius told his press conference today.

Stettinius made the statement when asked to reconcile U.S. approval of the new Italian Government with his previous statement on British objections to Count Carlo Sforza.

He added, however, « The Country has profited from the crisis, because it has given both parties time to steer, if not to the left, at least less to the right. »

CLASHES MARK SECOND DAY OF TRIAL

ROME, December 15 — Sharp clashes between the President of the court and Lt. Gen. Riccardo Pentimalli marked today's session of the trial of General Pentimalli and Lt. Gen. Ettore del Tetto on charges which include aiding the enemy and dereliction of duty.

The interchange between Court President Lorenzo Maroni and General Pentimalli came after General del Tetto, replying to questions by the public prosecutor, testified concerning a memorandum bearing on the defense of Naples issued by the Army Chief of Staff and identified in the courtroom as «Memorandum 44.»

The memorandum, read in court, spoke of probable criminal action by the Germans, with or without the aid of Fascists; and contained the following instructions: «Precautionary measures must be taken. Act only if provoked.»

Del Tetto said he had noted the contents of the memorandum after having been summoned for that purpose, along with other officers, by General Pentimalli. He denied, however, that Pentimalli at that time had issued special instructions for the defense of the city against the Germans. Also he denied having given orders to refrain from firing on Germans and disclaimed responsibility for the release of German prisoners.

Pressed by the prosecutor to explain why he had left his post in civilian clothes, Del Tetto replied: «There was no fighting between us and the Germans, and it should not be surprising that I was dressed in civilian clothes.»

Pentimalli, who followed Del Tetto to the stand, listened to the indictment against him, identical with that against his co-defendant.

Court Interrogates Pentimalli

In the course of a sharp, fast exchange between the accused and the court president, Pentimalli testified that he did not take over command of the 19th Army Corps headquarters in Naples until August 28. On November 24, he said, he was called to Potenza to be informed of the contents of «Memorandum 44.» He said he took word-for-word note of its contents, which, he said, included the advice to take personal initiative only in case of lack of liaison with other commands.

President Maroni: «The memorandum constituted an alert as to the intentions of the Germans. It is true, according to the memorandum, that you were not to make the first move, but it implied that if the Germans were to move first, which they did, you should have reacted immediately.»

Pentimalli replied that all he could do was to rely on the decisions of his subordinates. «Besides,» he added, «there was no clear-cut order to attack.»

President Maroni: «But even after the official announcement of the armistice, you let valuable time go by without taking any measures.»

Pentimalli said also that he had issued orders for the defense of Naples to Del Tetto, but added that nothing came of them because coastal defense troops had deserted, and those stationed inland were hemmed in by three German armored divisions. (UNN)

EDUCATION MAKES RAPID STRIDES IN FLORENCE

FLORENCE, December 15 — Because the citizens of Florence, before liberation, resisted Fascist pressure to take over the city's youth program, education here has made rapid strides, Capt. Samuel V. Noe, Allied Military Government education officer, said today. The commune, he added, kept its own youth program in the days before liberation and even continued to run its own playground.

Public schools now are nine-tenths in operation, with students getting a minimum of two hours' study each day, Captain Noe said, although many of the school buildings must be used for vital Allied purposes.

Captain Noe's report added that 60,000 copies of one series of elementary text books have been published, and several others have been approved as free from Fascist indoctrination.

In the field of higher education, the University of Florence, which reopened October 5, submitted its final report on epuration December 4. Fifteen faculty members have been suspended, and 27 have been referred for action to the National Committee on Epuration.

The new school year at the university will begin January 1 and among the students will be many Partisans now studying informally with their professors. Late this month, the heads of the university departments and full-time professors will meet and elect a new university rector. This is a procedure new to the university, since under Fascism the university head was sent from Rome by the Fascist Ministry of Education.

English-speaking professors of the university are conducting courses at a rest camp for Canadian soldiers with such success that it is planned to extend this course to all Allied soldiers. University credits will be given for the courses, Captain Noe said.

Captain Noe also reported that the National Institute of Optics, considered the most important of its kind in Italy, is in operation, as is also the Teachers College, the Academy of Fine Arts, the Conservatory of Music, and the lending library.

Another project of the commune is a night school for workingmen and women. This is expected to open within a few days, Captain Noe said. (UNN)

PEACE DISCUSSIONS IN ATHENS CONTINUE; BRITISH HOLD «ELAS» ATTACKS

ATHENS, December 15 — Fighting continues in several sections of the city and British and Greek leaders were reported tonight to be holding a series of discussions in an effort to arrive at a settlement of the crisis which plunged the country into civil war and conflict with British forces.

A statement issued tonight by the British Embassy confirmed reports that Harold Macmillan, British Resident Minister in the Mediterranean area, was engaged in conversations with Greek Government and other leaders.

The statement said that Mr. Macmillan already has talked with Prime Minister Georges Papandreou, with the Metropolitan Archbishop, and with Liberal leaders.

Other reports said that the British Ambassador, Rex criminal action by the Germans, with or without the aid of Fascists; and contained the following instructions: «Precautionary measures must be taken. Act only if provoked.»

Del Tetto said he had noted the contents of the memorandum after having been summoned for that purpose, along with other officers, by General Pentimalli. He denied, however, that Pentimalli at that time had issued special instructions for the defense of the city against the Germans. Also he denied having given orders to refrain from firing on Germans and disclaimed responsibility for the release of German prisoners.

Pressed by the prosecutor to explain why he had left his post in civilian clothes, Del Tetto replied: «There was no fighting between us and the Germans, and it should not be surprising that I was dressed in civilian clothes.»

Pentimalli, who followed Del Tetto to the stand, listened to the indictment against him, identical with that against his co-defendant.

Court Interrogates Pentimalli

In the course of a sharp, fast exchange between the accused and the court president, Pentimalli testified that he did not take over command of the 19th Army Corps headquarters in Naples until August 29. On November 24, he said, he was called to Potenza to be informed of the contents of «Memorandum 44.» He said he took word-for-word note of its contents, which, he said, included the advice to take personal initiative only in case of lack of liaison with other commands.

President Maroni: «The memorandum constituted an alert as to the intentions of the Germans. It is true, according to the memorandum, that you were not to make the first move, but it implied that if the Germans were to move first, which they did, you should have reacted immediately.»

Pentimalli replied that all he could do was to rely on the decisions of his subordinates. «Besides,» he added, «there was no clear-cut order to attack.»

President Maroni: «But even after the official announcement of the armistice, you let valuable time go by without taking any measures.»

Pentimalli: «I was uninformed as to the terms of the armistice. I did not know if they applied to the Germans also. Badoglio's broadcast of the night of September 8 said to resist offensive action 'from whatever source it may come.' The order could also be interpreted as referring to the Anglo-Americans. I therefore had to wait for instructions.»

To the president's statement that the armistice with the Allies would inevitably have resulted in the breaking of relations with the Germans, the accused said he did not possess sufficient troops to put up effective resistance and also lacked transportation facilities to carry out the concentration of those at his disposal in Naples.

«But,» argued the Court, «street fighting already had begun. It was your duty to take over command of the Naples base immediately, especially since, as you say, General del Tetto had lost his bearings. This is the most serious charge against you. The safety of the city and the security of its citizens were at stake. At St. Elmo the people organized resistance to the Germans, but you did not think of getting there immediately to take charge.»

Pentimalli: «At St. Elmo, there was only a mob without knowledge of automatic weapons. In all, there were 12 officers and 13 soldiers.»

The president charged that the accused was concerned only with his own safety.

Asked what he had done from the time of the occupation of Naples by the Germans to the day of the city's liberation by the Allies, Pentimalli replied that his participation in the Neapolitan resistance movement would have hindered its development.

PEACE DISCUSSIONS IN ATHENS CONTINUE: BRITISH HOLD «ELAS» ATTACKS

ATHENS, December 15 — Fighting continues in several sections of the city and British and Greek leaders were reported tonight to be holding a series of discussions in an effort to arrive at a settlement of the crisis which plunged the country into civil war and conflict with British forces.

A statement issued tonight by the British Embassy confirmed reports that Harold Macmillan, British Resident Minister in the Mediterranean area, was engaged in conversations with Greek Government and other leaders.

The statement said that Mr. Macmillan already has talked with Prime Minister Georges Papandreou, with the Metropolitan Archbishop, and with Liberal leaders.

Other reports said that the British Ambassador, Rex Leeper, also is holding discussions with leaders of the various Greek political parties.

One proposal given credence in press dispatches asked that a regency be established, with the Archbishop as regent or as head of the proposed regency council.

According to London press reports, the Archbishop would be designated mediator in the crisis. A Reuter dispatch pointed out that the Archbishop's «unflinching attitude during the German occupation» had won him the respect and confidence of all parties.

Reuter reported that an EAM (National Liberation Front) broadcast from here yesterday advocated the establishment of a regency to supplant the present monarchy. Reuter said also that the EAM reply to British Commander Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie's peace terms would call for an armistice, the resignation of Papandreou, and the establishment of a regency.

Fighting flared up in several sectors during the night, reaching its peak in the pre-dawn hours when a heavy rain failed to check the shelling and machine-gun and rifle fire. The most serious clashes were reported in the eastern sections of the city, between ELAS (National Liberation Militia) and British units.

In the Piraeus, British forces gained further ground after throwing back a heavy ELAS attack supported by mortar fire, General Scobie said in his communique.

General Scobie also reported an «unprovoked attack against Indian troops» on the Greek mainland north of Patras. He said that artillery fire continued to be directed against the center of the city.

Correspondents told of a small attack inside the city in the vicinity of Omnia Square, where ELAS forces tried unsuccessfully to force British defense positions.

Reinforcements on a big scale were pouring into the combat area, a BBC reporter said, adding that the British were bringing in both tanks and artillery. As a result of the reinforcements, the dispatch said, «strong British action is likely».

An American broadcast tonight described how an RAF Spitfire swooped over the center of the city this afternoon, strafed a park, and then roared over the city and back to its base. The broadcaster also told of 75-mm. shells falling around Constitution Square, and said that last night's assault on Omnia Square had resulted in the blowing up of several houses as ELAS units sought to erect roadblocks along the narrow streets.

Meanwhile, three additional classes of Greek militia reserves were called up, making a total of seven age groups who have been mobilized by the Papandreou Government.

General Nicholas Plastiras, head of the Greek government in 1922, who returned here a few days ago from an 11-year exile in France, said he came as «an ordinary citizen» and had «no statement to make on the present crisis».

Also reported to be in the city was British Air Marshal Sir John Slessor, Deputy Commander in the MAAF under General Ira C. Eaker. He conferred with Mr. Macmillan, General Scobie, and Air Commodore Geoffrey Tuttle, commanding the RAF in Greece.

The food situation is becoming critical, correspondents reported, and British and American relief operations are practically at a standstill. Food reserves have been established, but unloading of ships in the harbor has been stopped.

A Reuter report said that no additional relief ships will be sent into Piraeus, Salonika, Kavalla, or Velos for the time being, due to inability to unload. Relief trucks here and in the rest of the country are restricted to areas under British military control. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

CHURCHILL OUTLINES POLISH-SOVIET PROBLEM

LONDON, December 15 — Speaking on the Polish question in the House of Commons today, Prime Minister Winston Churchill said that the hopes he had entertained for a solution of the long-standing dispute between the Russians and the Polish government-in-London had failed.

Mr. Churchill supported the Russian demands for «reassurance about her western frontiers» and said that Premier Stalin and he had agreed that Poland should be compensated territorially «at the expense of Germany both in the north and in the west».

The Prime Minister said he was convinced that Stalin's statement at Teheran that he was resolved upon the creation of strong, independent Poland «represented the settled policy of the Soviet Government».

«Poland's liberation», Mr. Churchill continued, «may presently be achieved by the Russians, whose armies have suffered millions of casualties in breaking the German military machine. I cannot feel that the Russian demand for reassurance about her western frontiers are unreasonable».

He said that the additional complications produced by the formation of the Polish National Committee of Liberation at Lublin would not have arisen, but after endless discussions, the Polish Government-in-London failed to agree.

Tragedy of Disagreement

«In consequence, former Polish Prime Minister Mikolajczyk and other Polish ministers resigned, and the Polish Government has been reconstituted in a form which, in some re-extension in which they will be supported by Britain and Russia, bound together as they are by a 20-year alliance. This extension will mean, in the west and north, territories more important and more highly developed than those they lose in the east.

«We hear of one-third of Poland to be ceded, but that includes vast tracts of the Pripet Marshes, a most desolate region, which, though it swells acreage, does not add to the wealth of those who own it».

Churchill said that this, in outline, was the offer which the Russians—on whom the main burden of liberation still falls—made to the Poles. He could not believe that such an offer would be rejected by Poland. It would mean the transference of several millions of people from the east to the west—the total expulsion of Germans from areas to be acquired by Poland. There would be room for them in Germany, which now had from 10 to 12 million prisoners or foreigners used as slaves.

«After all, six or seven million Germans have been killed already in this dreadful war into which they did not hesitate, for the second time in a generation, to plunge all Europe and the world», the Prime Minister said.

He cautioned against further delay in settling the question.

Churchill said also that «there ought to be a meeting of the three great powers at the earliest possible moment». Both he and the Foreign Secretary, he said, were to go anywhere, at any time, where they can meet the heads of their two great Allies.

The Prime Minister said that President Roosevelt had been kept fully informed of the Russian and British view on the Polish question. He went on to say: «All I can say is, that I have received no formal disagreement during all these long months upon the way in which the future of Poland seems to be shaping itself or is being shaped, and no doubt, when the time comes, the United States will make their own pronouncement upon these matters».

EDEN REPLIES TO POLISH DEBATE

LONDON, December 15 — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, replying to the House of Commons debate on Poland, said today that for more than three years Polish-Soviet relations had been the most vexatious, anxious problem the British Government had had to deal with. «We entered this war voluntarily,» he said, «in fulfillment of our guarantees to Poland, and as the war progressed we have felt a growing esteem and affection for our gallant Polish allies.

«On the other side, we have a 20-year treaty with Russia. We have fought together in two wars, and in the end have fallen apart. If that happens again, the prospect for a European peace are very frail. So we have labored unceasingly to solve the Polish-Soviet differences. Now, the prospects are not so good as they have been.»

Eden said that Russia had never attempted to modify the Anglo-Polish arrangements. Marshal Stalin, on the contrary, had emphasised to ex-Polish Premier Mikolayczyk his desire that Polish treaties with Britain, France, and her relations with the United States should be continued and, if need be, reinforced.

The Curzon Line

The Curzon Line was originally drawn up at the Paris Supreme Council, and was intended only to show the minimum amount of territory to be assigned to Poland. The British delegation at the peace conference consistently maintained that any further extension eastward of Polish territory would be highly dangerous to Poland, and before the Treaty of Riga was signed, in 1921, Britain had several times warned the Polish government against such extension.

Continuing, Mr. Eden said that Britain had proposed the Curzon Line to the Soviets with Polish approval. Later

«In consequence, former Polish Prime Minister Mikolajczyk and other Polish ministers resigned, and the Polish Government has been reconstituted in a form which, in some respects, I am not able to applaud,» he said. «If Mikolajczyk had been able to return swiftly to Moscow, as he hoped and expected, Poland might now have her place in the ranks of the nations contending against Germany.

«In the British Government's view, Mikolajczyk and his friends remain the only light that burns for Poland in the immediate future. But confronted with obstinate, inflexible resistance of his London colleagues, he resigned».

Continuing, Mr. Churchill said:

«It is a source of grief to me that these forces have not been joined together more closely against the common foe. I cannot accept the view that arrangements proposed about frontiers are not solid and satisfactory, or that they would not give to Poland that abiding home I spoke about in February. If Poland gives Lwow and the surrounding area on the south known as the Curzon Line 'A'—if Poland makes this concession and these lands are joined to the Ukraine, Poland will gain in the north all of East Prussia, south and west of Königsberg, including Danzig, one of the most magnificent cities in the world.

«Instead of the threatened and artificial corridor built up so laboriously after the last war, Poland will stretch broadly across the Baltic along a front of 200 miles. The Poles are free, so far as Russia and Britain are concerned, to extend their territories at the expense of Germany to the west. I do not propose to go into the exact details about the Marshal Stalin, on the contrary, had emphasised to ex-Polish Premier Mikolayczyk his desire that Polish treaties with Britain, France, and her relations with the United States should be continued and, if need be, reinforced.

The Curzon Line

The Curzon Line was originally drawn up at the Paris Supreme Council, and was intended only to show the minimum amount of territory to be assigned to Poland. The British delegation at the peace conference consistently maintained that any further extension eastward of Polish territory would be highly dangerous to Poland, and before the Treaty of Riga was signed, in 1921, Britain had several times warned the Polish government against such extension.

Continuing, Mr. Eden said that Britain had proposed the Curzon Line to the Soviets with Polish approval. Later, the Soviets approached the Polish government with a proposal which was, in fact, the Curzon Line.

«We told the Polish government that we considered the terms left her ethnographical position unimpaired. The Polish government was urged not to refuse these terms. Two alternatives were recommended to the Supreme Council regarding the extension of the Curzon Line southwards. One was Line 'A' and the other line 'B,' farther east, which left Lwow to Poland. Our delegation favored line 'A,' and that is the line for which the Soviets are now asking. It was eventually adopted by the Supreme Council.»

The population of the disputed area, Eden continued, was about 10,700,000. The Poles had never constituted more than one-third of the total population of this area. It was true that the Russians eventually accepted the Treaty of Riga. «The point is, this area has been long disputed, and we advised the Poles not to go so far east as was allowed by the Riga Treaty.»

The Polish Corridor had long proved «quite unworkable.» He had long felt that the only solution was that East Prussia should go to the Poles, and the East Prussian population be shifted out. The movement would be difficult, but he was convinced it must be faced.

The only alternative to the policy suggested was to do nothing until the peace treaty, but, with the Russians advancing through Poland, either an administration would have to be set up to carry on the government, or Russia would have to administrate affairs directly.

«We know,» Eden said in conclusion, «that the Russians were prepared to make with the Mikolajczyk Government an arrangement similar to the one they have with the Czechs for civil affairs, and that is similar to the one we had with the French and Dutch. If we could have got an understanding between the Mikolajczyk Government and the Soviet on frontiers, we should have had a Polish administration capable of avoiding those incidents likely to arise where there is no agreement.» (Reuter)

U.S. OFFERS TO MEDIATE POLISH QUESTION

WASHINGTON, December 15 — A spokesman for the United States government declared here today, following Prime Minister Churchill's address in the House of Commons:

«Mr. Churchill's remarks about Poland attracted great interest in America. The United States government has made its position clear to the British, Soviet, and Polish governments. The American people and government have constantly hoped that the Soviet Union and Poland would settle the territorial problem between themselves.

«In order to facilitate a settlement, the United States government some time ago offered its good offices to the Soviet and Polish governments. This offer remains open, and, were the Soviet and Polish governments to accept it, the United States would make every effort to help them reach a mutually satisfactory settlement.

«Far from being indifferent to the problems of Europe, the United States government will continue to work for the establishment of the permanent organization of the United Nations which will enable all peoples to dwell in peace and security.» (OWI)

SENATE COMMITTEE FAVORS 6 NOMINEES

WASHINGTON, December 15 — The Senate Foreign Affairs Committee's favorable recommendation of six State Department nominations, including that of Archibald MacLeish, poet and Librarian of Congress, as Assistant Secretaries of State, was announced last night by Senator Tom Connally, committee chairman.

Senator Connally said he had received a proxy vote from Senator Robert Wagner favoring MacLeish and the vote broke the 10-to-10 tie previously recorded. Committee approval usually guarantees Senate confirmation.

The Committee had previously reported favorably on the nominations of Joseph C. Grew as Under Secretary of State and four assistant secretaries W. L. Clayton, Nelson Rockefeller, James C. Dunn, and Brig. Gen. Julius Holmes.

The nomination of Norman Armour as Ambassador to Spain to succeed Carlton Hayes was approved by the Senate yesterday. (OWI)

U.K. LABOR ASKS STATE CONTROL OF FARM LAND

LONDON, December 15 — The British Labor Party Conference today unanimously adopted the Executive Committee report urging State control of agricultural land as soon as possible, the retention of County War Agricultural Committees, and the planning of food supplies and rural development.

The report said that the necessity for the national ownership of agricultural land was too urgent to leave to «a gradual and piecemeal procedure over a long period of years.» Acquisition, the report said, should be carried out as rapidly, and on as large a scale as possible.

A resolution was carried regretting the failure of the British Government's Education Bill to make adequate provision for raising the age for leaving school to 16, and providing for free secondary education for all.

In northern Alsace, our units pushed north as much as six miles and reached Riedeltz, two miles from the border town of Wissembourg.

In this area and eastward toward the Rhine, more than 12 villages were taken against scattered resistance.

Our ground forces moved down the Rhine to less than a mile from the Franco-German frontier in the vicinity of Lauterburg.

Medium bombers attacked defenses in the Siegfried Line north of Wissembourg, and fighter-bombers struck at railway yards at Landau, and locomotives and rolling stock in the upper Rhine Valley.

On the Alsace Plain, south of Strasbourg, we gained approximately two miles near the Rhine.

In yesterday's air operations, seven enemy aircraft were shot down. Three of ours are missing. (Reuter)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 15 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On the Roer, west and southwest of Düren, our formations are engaged in grim defensive fighting against strong infantry and tank forces of the U.S. 1st Army which, since yesterday noon, has again been attacking on a broad front. The fierce fighting lasted till late in the night and flared up again this morning.

On the eastern fringe of the mountain forest south of Düren, the attackers, insofar as they had not been repulsed by immediate counter-attacks, captured only a stretch of mud-soaked and shell-holed ground.

Southeast of Rötgen, fighting is in progress for some villages lying within our front.

On the Saar, especially at Billingen and Saarlautern, yesterday, our troops, by their concentrated fire and by repeated counter-attacks, again prevented the enemy from achieving deep penetrations into our pillbox positions.

Between Sarreguemines [Saargemünd] and Bitsch, tank troops of the Army and the Waffen S.S. smashed numerous enemy attacks, inflicting heavy losses on the Americans.

North of the Hagenau Forest, the enemy pushed our bolt positions back a little in a northerly direction.

In upper Alsace, our formations continued their successful attacks in several sectors.

South of Rappoldsweiler, the enemy was ousted from a dominating height and the Hohenеck Castle, in the High Vosges, was recaptured. The enemy losses were high in both attacks. We captured more than 300 prisoners, among whom was a colonel.

London and Antwerp continued to be subjected to our harassing fire.

Italy:

In central Italy, in the mountains east of the Ligurian coast, enemy thrusts were frustrated.

Southwest of Imola, strong attacks of British formations were frustrated.

A battalion of the British 6th Tank Division which, in [illegible] had succeeded in penetrating our positions

North of Erlau, attacks aiming at opening the mountain outlets from a southerly direction failed.

In the sector between the Bueck Mountains and the Hernad, the enemy was halted by the fire of our grenadiers and mountain troops, after having made some slight initial gains.

On both sides of the Ungvar-Kaschau road at the Debica-Tarnow railway line in Galicia, Soviet thrusts failed.

Air:

Air Defence forces of the Navy brought down five Soviet bombers in defensive action against fierce air attacks on the port of Libau.

Yesterday, over western Reich territory, there was lively fighter activity on both sides.

Southwest of Faenza, the British, after an intense artillery preparation, launched a major attack. They made only slight gains during the fierce fighting which still is in progress.

In the Naviglio sector, Canadian formations having been reinforced by fresh forces, launched another attack, and again suffered heavy losses during the unsuccessful attempt at broadening their bridgeheads.

Eastern Front:

In northeastern Croatia, the southern banks of the Drau and the Danube were cleared of groups of stragglers and bands.

Southeast of Vukovar, other strong enemy attacks remained unsuccessful.

In Hungary, south and northeast of Lake Balaton, as well as at Budapest, the Soviets launched only isolated and unsuccessful attacks.

South of the Eipel River, at Sceczeny, strong Bolshevik forces have been attempting for days to break through our defensive front. All attempts at breaking through were frustrated by the stubborn resistance of our troops in grim fighting.

North of Erlau, attacks aiming at opening the northern outlets from a southerly direction failed.

Britain and the Bonomi Cabinet: The various Fascist radio stations are still emphasizing the relation between the British Government and the new Bonomi Cabinet. This time a comparatively new feature has made its appearance: the discussion of the still unpublished armistice terms. Commenting on the new cabinet over Radio Fante, General Teruzzi declares that the armistice terms are the greatest handicap the cabinet must face. The British dare not publish them, because that would mean dropping even a pretence of decent feeling toward the less powerful nations. According to the Fascist Radio, Bonomi is not in a position to have them published either, partly, because his English masters would not allow him to do so, and partly because of the reaction of the Italian people. The latter would certainly not stand for the terms, and would revolt against the forces of occupation, on the one hand, and against their Italian servants responsible for the terms, on the other. The idea of promising an eventual revision of the yet unknown terms, says the commentator, is a very comfortable attitude, taken by «perfidious Albion.» England will take good care, he goes on, that any slight modification of the clauses should appear of paramount importance.

The Bonomi Government and the monarchy are said to be equally guilty accomplices of this bargain. Churchill has himself declared in the House of Commons recently, says the commentator, that whilst «he made a mistake with Sforza,» the Badoglio Government, representing the House of Savoia, gave great facilities to the Allied armed forces. According to the commentator, this shows clearly enough who is guilty of Italy's unconditional surrender.

The British, of course, would like to have the new cabinet steer a rightward course, true to the Monarchy.

Nenni, on the other hand, in his letter to Bonomi, informing him of his party's refusal to participate in the new cabinet, says quite clearly that, by tendering his resignation to the Lieutenant of the Realm instead of the CLN, Bonomi attempted to destroy the equilibrium between the Committee and the Monarchy.

From the foregoing the commentator draws the conclusion that neither the Committee nor the Monarchy are representative of the Italian people. They are only tools in the hands of the British. Their political selfishness brought Italy to the verge of the chaos in which she finds herself today.

GERMANS BRING UP «ALL AVAILABLE RESERVES»

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 14 — German forces have brought up «all available reserves» in an effort to hem in the widening Canadian bridgehead across the Lamone River, the enemy's principal delaying line across the by nearly two score watercourses, including four major rivers flowing across the Po Plain.

On the 5th Army Front, activity again centered southwest of Imola, on the right flank, and south and southwest of Bologna. British forces fought their way into the hamlets of Borgo Tossignano and Tossignano, some seven miles southwest of Imola in the Santerno River Valley, despite heavy artillery fire.

Enemy forces again unsuccessfully attempted to seize strategic high ground in the Monte Cerere area, some 11 miles southeast of Bologna, in the Sillaro River Valley, evidently seeking to outflank the Allied salient based on the Monte Grande Massif, and to thrust to within four miles of the main Po Valley Highway on which the German armies depend for the bulk of their supplies. Enemy casualties in these attempts have been relatively high, official reports said, and the enemy seems for the moment to have abandoned these efforts.

The third focal point of activity on the 5th Army's more than 100-mile-long mountain front was on the flank of the Allied salient west of the Reno River, some 26 miles southwest of Bologna. Here, Allied troops unsuccessfully attempted to improve their positions, only to be halted by strongly defended enemy fortifications and entrenchments in the vicinity of Monte Castello. Heavy enemy artillery, mortar, and automatic weapon fire forced the Allied assault troops to give up their attacks.

Much of the 5th Army Front is now covered with snow. (PRO)

U.S. 1ST ARMY ATTACK GAINS 4 MILES; 7TH ARMY REACHES RHINE

LONDON, December 14 — Two divisions of the American 1st Army drove forward four miles today in their new attack south of Düren in the Monschau Forest. The troops which had been holding the forest line went over to the assault behind a heavy artillery barrage early yesterday in a drive which carried them to the headwaters of the Roer River.

Allied medium, light, and fighter-bombers supported the new attack today, striking at fortified German positions along and behind the battle line. The new attack, which lengthens the Allied front on the Roer to 35 miles, gained two miles before heavy enemy resistance was met.

The northern wing of the 1st Army continued to edge closer to the main German strongpoint of Düren, as both armor and infantry forces drove northeastward from captured Gey.

Allied headquarters reported that the German 5th Panzer Army has been brought up to the Roer in an attempt to hold the eventual Allied drive into the Industrial Rhineland.

The 9th Army captured a small town on the west bank of the Roer, further increasing their hold along the river barrier which has risen three feet in the last three days.

GERMANS BRING UP «ALL AVAILABLE RESERVES»

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 14 — German forces have brought up «all available reserves» in an effort to hem in the widening Canadian bridgehead across the Lamone River, the enemy's principal delaying line across the southeastern edge of the Plain of the Po, it was announced here today.

But, despite heavy enemy counter-attacks, to which the enemy committed the whole of his tank and infantry forces, the 8th Army troops have widened their hold across the Lamone to some seven miles, and have broken out to the northeast to cut the Ravenna-Ferrara Highway northwest of Mezzano.

Other forces crossed the Lamone at Mezzano, to clear the enemy from the western portions of this highway town, 6½ miles northwest of Romagna's capital.

In addition to their thrust northeast, the Canadians attacked frontally the enemy's secondary retrenchments along the Fosso Vecchio of Centrigo, and in savage fighting drove the enemy back along a 3,000-yard front toward a third water barrier, the Canale Naviglio, connecting the Lamone River at Faenza with the mouth of the Reno River skirting the southern edges of the Comacchio Lagoon. More than 100 enemy prisoners were taken in this engagement.

At the southern end of their bridgehead, Canadian troops pressed southwest to increase their grip on the Ravenna-Bologna rail line east of Bagnocavallo, nine miles northeast of Faenza. In this sector, Canadian troops are only some 30 miles from Bologna, along a secondary highway paralleling the Emilia Road. The difficult nature of this terrain is indicated by the fact that this secondary highway is intersected Monte Grande Massif, and to thrust to within four miles of the main Po Valley Highway on which the German armies depend for the bulk of their supplies. Enemy casualties in these attempts have been relatively high, official reports said, and the enemy seems for the moment to have abandoned these efforts.

7TH ARMY 10 MILES FROM KARLSRUHE

LONDON, December 14 — Driving seven miles in less than 10 hours, the 7th Army late today reached Lauterbourg and Scheibenhard less than 10 miles from the industrial city of Karlsruhe, it was reported late tonight.

Strengthened by reinforcements and artillery support rushed over the Rhine, the Germans launched a strong counter-attack between Mülhouse and Belfort, and have brought artillery fire on American positions north of Colmar. American and French troops have counter-attacked to restore breaches in their lines. (OWI-Reuter)

Seventh Army troops reached the Rhine at Selz and have begun to shell German positions on the eastern bank. Forces in this sector are reported to be north of Selz, although street fighting in the city remains heavy.

A pincer movement got under way as one American column wheeled westward along the northern edge of the Hagenau Forest to enter Neiderroedern, and a second force drove eastward from Neiderbronn to capture Mattstall, three miles from the German border. A third force, which advanced north from captured Hagenau, has taken Sulz and is swinging westward to join with the forces at Mattstall.

German resistance continued strong on the Alsace Plain south of Strasbourg and Allied troops were hampered by minefields and flooded areas. The Germans have brought more heavy artillery from the eastern banks of the Rhine in an attempt to keep open the escape corridor for their troops still in the Vosges.

On the Saar Basin front, 3rd Army troops continued to meet stiff opposition, particularly in Dillingen, three miles north of Saarlautern, where the Germans have thrown in several counter-attacks. The American bridgehead was considerably strengthened by armor which crossed the Saar last night. A second crossing of the Blies River northeast of Saargemünd was made today as American forces advanced a half-a-mile into Germany in the Habkirchen area. At Habkirchen, itself, the Germans are fighting from cellars inter-linked by passages which run the full length of the community. One German counter-attack was thrown back.

HEAVY FIGHTING SOUTHWEST OF BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, December 14 — While Soviet troops battered at the gates of Budapest from the southeast and the northeast, heavy fighting flared up on the road between Budapest and Lake Velenczei on the southwest approaches to the city, it was reported tonight.

The Germans massed artillery and tanks along the 30-mile railway embankment in this area after they realized the danger of encirclement developing from Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's drive across the Danube south of the Hungarian capital. Red Army forces are advancing across anti-tank ditches and several lines of deep trenches.

The Red Army's drive on the capital from the northeast at Ujpest was slowed by a great number of German reinforcements thrown into the battle in a series of strong counter-attacks. Under cover of Russian artillery softening the outer defenses of the city, Russian sappers are working on the huge minefield covering the northeastern approaches.

Marshal Malinovsky's northeastern flank continued its advance north and northeast of Miskolc, dislodging the Germans from Hungary's richest natural resources and industrial area in their drive to Czechoslovakia.

The Germans have started intensive mine warfare in this sector, and have rigged up high-explosive traps in mountain streams, as well as mining all roads. Stubborn German resistance was maintained from mountain machine-gun and mortar positions situated in solid rock and protected by boulders.

Red Army forces hold the mountain spur close to the Czechoslovak border and are fighting for a wide network of roads connecting the rich industrial towns in northeastern Hungary. Tonight's Soviet communique reported that the railway junction of Szerenes, east of Miskolc, as well as a number of other localities, were taken in today's fighting.

Russian and Yugoslav forces, 150 miles south of Budapest, are driving west between the Danube and the Szava Rivers, attacking the strongly-fortified positions before Vinkovci. The city is on the main line to Zagreb.

India-based Superforts attacked Japanese transportation facilities at Bangkok and Rangoon with results described as good and excellent. It was the third B-29 attack on Bangkok, and the second against Rangoon.

The Japanese Mitsubishi aircraft factory at Nagoya was attacked yesterday by more than 100 Siapan-based Superfortresses. Several direct hits on the factory were observed by crew members, and large fires were visible as the big bombers headed away from the target area. One bomber is missing from this operation and must be presumed to be lost, the announcement said today.

British troops of the 36th Division now are in complete control of the Indaw-Katha line in northern Burma, Southeast Asia Command headquarters said today.

The British drive to take Indaw and Katha represents an advance of 110 miles from Mogaung. They advanced through the narrow railway corridor running southwest from Mogaung between high hills that gave the Japanese excellent defensive terrain.

Indian troops, fighting in the Arakan Hills, have captured two features 10 miles northeast of Maungdaw. There was vigorous patrolling in the Kaladan and Pi Chaung valleys east of the coastal sector.

In the north-central sector, Chinese patrols scoured the area south of Bhamo and at Katha, on the Irrawaddy River, to the west. At Bhamo, Chinese troops made slight gains in the northern sector along the Irrawaddy.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek's forces still are advancing in their counter-thrust in southwest China, the BBC said today.

The retreat of Japanese units toward the border town of Wanting, where the Burma Road cuts into China, was officially reported in Chungking.

The report said that the enemy withdrawal began after an artillery duel in the Manpang region, northeast of Wanting, three days ago. Chinese forces have captured a high position about 12 miles north of Wanting, the High Command said. Wanting is fifty miles east of Bhamo, and 200 miles northeast of Mandalay.

CANADIANS CROSS DIFFICULT TERRAIN

WITH AAI, December 14 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army crossed two rivers, at least two canals and numerous swollen ditches in the 48 hours ending last night during their tireless dash across difficult terrain against a fiercely-resisting enemy, a UNN correspondent reported from the front today.

After fighting their way across the Lamone River they pushed on, despite severe shelling and strong armored opposition, to Fosso Vecchio across a series of canals and ditches over four miles of waterlogged country. The Germans put up a determined defense every inch of the way.

KESSELRING'S BODYGUARD AGAINST CANADIANS

WITH AAI, December 14 — The private bodyguard of Field Marshal Kesselring has been thrown hurriedly into the crumbling German line against the Canadians northeast of Bagnocavallo, a UNN correspondent reported. The attempt to halt the Canadians' advance failed.

After Kesselring's recent accident, his bodyguard was formed into what is officially named Kesselring's Machine-Gun Battalion. It includes replacements from several units.

A recent batch of 40 prisoners had been north of the Po only 48 hours before being captured, and were in the line only 12 hours before their positions were overrun by the victorious Canadians.

The prisoners' ages were between 27 and 42.

82,554 JAPS LOST IN LEYTE AND SAMAR

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 14 — The Japanese lost 83,554 troops in the American offensive here and on Samar Island between October 20 and December 12, General MacArthur said today. American forces suffered 10,409 casualties.

It was estimated that at least 30,000 enemy troops were killed or drowned in the destruction of eight convoys attempting to reinforce their Leyte garrison. Almost 34,000 other enemy dead have been counted on the islands. Only 253 prisoners have been taken.

The communique also reported that American troops have moved a mile north of Ormoc. The main enemy supply depots were captured during the advance.

After Kesselring's recent accident, his bodyguard was formed into what is officially named Kesselring's Machine-Gun Battalion. It includes replacements from several units.

A recent batch of 40 prisoners had been north of the Po only 48 hours before being captured, and were in the line only 12 hours before their positions were overrun by the victorious Canadians.

The prisoners' ages were between 37 and 45, and many of them had not fully recovered from wounds. (UNN)

T.A.F. FIGHTERS HARASS ENEMY TRANSPORT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 14 — Despite bad weather which made operations over the stormy Po Valley extremely hazardous, fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday struck at enemy strongpoints and communication lines as far north as the Brenner Pass, it was announced here today.

Neither heavy nor medium bombers were able to operate, but it was reported that both heavy and medium bombers of the Royal Air Force were employed to ferry urgent supplies to Greece. (PRO)

R.A.F. FLIES REINFORCEMENTS TO GREECE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 14 — Royal Air Force planes have flown «strong infantry reinforcements,» as well as hundreds of tons of supplies, to Greece in the past two days, it was announced here this afternoon.

Both medium and heavy bombers have been employed in the ferrying service, and have operated despite bad weather which has grounded the normal missions of planes of this type. British squadrons based in Greece have been engaged in day and night attacks against rebel strongpoints in the Athens area, this afternoon's announcement said.

It was emphasized that, although the RAF airmen have been ordered to spare the lives and property of innocent civilians, as much as possible, the fact that the rebel forces are mainly clad in civilian clothes has made this difficult.

It was reported that Air Marshal Sir John Slessor visited Athens yesterday to confer with Mr. Harold Macmillan, Lt. Gen. Ronald Scobie, and Air Commodore Tuttle, RAF commander in Greece. (PRO)

U.S. CONGRESSMEN INSPECT NAPLES HARBOR; FLY OVER CASSINO AND ANZIO

ROME, December 14 — The sites of some of the most bitter battles fought by Allied forces in Italy were seen on the ground and from the air today by members of the Military Affairs Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives on the second day of their five-day tour of the Italian Theater.

In the morning, the delegation inspected the port of Naples, the largest harbor in liberated Italy and one of the most important and active ports in the world.

Then, en route to Rome by air from Naples, the Congressional group passed over the Apennines ranges to view the scene of the Monte Cassino Abbey Battle and then moved up along the Mediterranean coast over the now-serene beachhead at Anzio, where British and U.S. troops doggedly held their gains for five months before the break-through in June leading to the liberation of most of the Italian 'Boot'.

The flight from Naples to Rome lasted 1½ hours—30 minutes longer than normally required — to enable the Representatives to study the terrain and to «see for themselves,» as they have requested, the tough obstacles that had to be overcome before the Allies could clear the Germans from central Italy.

Three planes, containing the Representatives, high-ranking officials, and the press, flew over the somber valley of memories in V-formation. The air entourage passed over the Volturno, and from a height of 5,000 feet the planes traversed the route of the push through the rugged terrain of Cassino, over the hill from which Allied artillery shelled the abbey which the Germans had turned into a fort, and over the abbey itself.

The planes then swung over to Nettuno and, as they approached Anzio, every person in the three carriers gazed quietly out of the windows. The Anzio battle site was introduced by artillery shell holes which pock-marked the green field as a memento of the grim fight.

The planes then dropped in altitude, encircled the beachhead, headed out for a mile over the sea and then swooped down to 800 feet over the battlefield and the town of Anzio, which, engulfed in the sun's rays, had an atmosphere of serenity almost belying its positions as an historic memento.

German Flooding Observed

Between Cassino and Anzio, the planes nosed out of the mountain clefts to give the Congressmen another view of the «destroy-the-land» policy of the Germans — the flooding of areas which otherwise would have been fertile.

Mrs. Clare Booth Luce, Republican of Connecticut, was ill today and unable to make the morning tours in Naples. She travelled to Rome by car, instead of by plane.

Last night, three members of the committee visited three medical installations in the Naples area. Representatives Ivor D. Fenton, Republican of Pennsylvania; Paul W. Shafer, Republican of Michigan, and Clifford Davis, Democrat of Tennessee, accompanied Maj. Gen. Morrison Stayer, Surgeon of MTOUSA, on a trip to the 300th General Hospital, the 225th Station Hospital, and the 17th General Hospital.

Dr. Fenton was a captain in the U.S. Army Medical Corps, serving overseas for 11 months in the first World War. He is a member of the American Medical Association. (UNN)

R.A.F. NIGHT-FIGHTERS DOWN 181 GERMAN PLANES

LONDON, December 14 — RAF Mosquito night-fighters have destroyed 181 German planes in the air, damaged many others, and destroyed and damaged several on the ground, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

They also have to their credit 30 locomotives destroyed and 177 damaged; six supply trains destroyed and 116 damaged; 11 motor vehicles destroyed and 25 damaged, the report said. (Reuter)

YUGOSLAV THREAT TO UZICE INCREASES

LONDON, December 14 — Yugoslav forces increased their threat to Uzice in Serbia with the capture of several important points yesterday, Marshal Tito's communique announced. Fifteen miles to the southwest of Uzice, units of the National Liberation Army broke into Rudo, on the Serbo-Bosnian border, and fighting continued for the last four positions safeguarding the Rudo garrison's escape toward Visegrad, 14 miles to the northwest.

In Slavonia, fighting continued in the Srem district for strongly fortified positions before Vinkovci, where the Germans are offering stiff resistance.

In east Bosnia, fierce battles were waged for the vital Sarajevo-Visegrad communications line.

The commander of the German 264th Division was killed in recent battles round the Otric sector in Croatia, where several important strongholds were liquidated in the upper Una Valley.

In Montenegro, fighting was centered on the Tara River, near Mojkovac and in the Matesevo sector.

In the Bosna Valley, the Germans attacked vigorously from the Lasva Zenica sector, northwest of Sarajevo toward Travnik, in an attempt to keep open their lines of communication.

A later communique issued from Marshal Tito's headquarters said that, in the past few days, Partisan forces have put out of action some 2,120 of the enemy in battles ranging from northern Yugoslavia down to the southern provinces near Albania.

German forces are reported vigorously to be attacking Partisan forces in the Travnik area, 40 miles west of Sarajevo, in an attempt to repel the repeated attacks against communication lines.

Partisan forces, the communique said, have captured several important strongpoints, which has further increased the threat to Uzice itself. (OWI)

Before the Congressmen left Naples, they also visited the ancient ruins of Pompeii after their one-hour inspection of the port of Naples. At the harbor, Col. J. D. Hines, of the 8th Port of Embarkation, guided the group in a motorcade to point out — with the assistance of aides in each car — the smooth operation of the port which was rehabilitated by the Peninsular Base Section in record time when Naples was liberated last year.

The group were told of the methods by which thousands of tons of incoming and reloading materials are handled in the port each day. They also saw sunken and enemy-scuttled ships in the harbor which were converted by the Allies into loading piers. They inspected quay walls which were restored, and the rail and road lines which were cleared and repaired by the Allies — all within two weeks after the Germans retreated.

During the tour through the port, the Congressmen observed many of the port's 16,000 Italian laborers at work, in addition to large groups of two Italian port battalions and American and British port troops at their assigned tasks.

CHURCHILL ADDS TO SFORZA STATEMENT

LONDON, December 14 — Prime Minister Churchill was asked in the House of Commons today about the interview he had with Count Carlo Sforza, and particularly about Sforza's statement that Churchill had urged the retention of Victor Emmanuel as King of Italy.

In reply, the Prime Minister referred to his previous explanation that the Government had thought it better to go on with the Victor Emmanuel-Badoglio Régime until the military situation was in a better condition. Nothing in his talk with Sforza, he said, went outside the lines of the statement made to Parliament.

He later added that « matters of internal policy, including the monarch, should be adjourned until Italy is free; as regards the future, that will be for the Italian people to decide. »

Asked whether Sforza had not made a distinction between the constitutional question of the monarchy and the personal question of the King, Mr. Churchill responded: « He certainly expressed animus against King Victor Emmanuel, with whom he had a very lengthy and not at all unnatural disagreement; but the statement I made to him was within the lines of the statement I made at the time of the publicity in Parliament. » (Reuter)

TRIAL OF TWO NAPLES GENERALS OPENS

ROME, December 14 — Former Lt. Gen. Ettore Del Tetto, 55, who, before the Italian armistice, was military commander of the Naples area, began his defense today before a nine-man Italian High Court of Justice on an indictment containing numerous counts including charges of direct aid to the enemy and willful neglect of duty.

On trial with Del Tetto, on the same charges, is former Lt. Gen. Riccardo Pentimalli, 60, who commanded the Italian 19th Corps in Naples before the Armistice.

Each may receive the death penalty on any one of the following three counts contained in the indictment: direct aid to the enemy, desertion of a military post, failure to carry out a direct order.

The trial, which had been postponed from October 23, is being held in the 450-year-old former administration building of the University of Rome. Several hours before the scheduled opening of the court a cordon of more than 100 metropolitan police, security police, and Carabinieri was thrown around the building.

Two defense lawyers, Carlo Mirabelli and Guido Tedeschi, argued that the High Court had no jurisdiction in the case, and asked that it be transferred to a military court, or that facts of a purely military nature be adjudged by military tribunal.

Following a brief recess, Lorenzo Maroni, president of the court, denied the request for a change of venue.

No Time for Planning Defense

Taking the stand in his own defense, Del Tetto declared that lack of time, insufficient, badly-trained troops, and limitations in his command made it impossible for him to work out an adequate plan of defense for the city.

Del Tetto testified he had no more than 2,000 men, many of them Carabinieri, for the defense of the city. Under questioning by the president of the court, he said it was impossible for him to work out a plan for the city's defense, since Naples is only part of a large coastal strip, the defense of which was in the hands of his superior, one General Marino. He placed responsibility on Marino for the defense of the whole coastal area, and thus of Naples.

« Further, » Del Tetto asserted, « had it been within my power to plan a defense, I should not have had sufficient time, because from 16 August 1943, when I was appointed to the command, to September 1, I had only nominal control over troops in that area. »

President Maroni questioned Del Tetto concerning a phonograph recording, assertedly made by the general, which ordered all Italian troops to maintain « the highest regard » for German troops, and « to defend » the Nazis against possible action by civilians. The accused replied that the record had been made by Nazi fifth columnists, « or else by some other official. »

Court was adjourned shortly before 1400 hours, and will reconvene tomorrow morning.

There were no more than 75 spectators in court this morning. Admission was restricted to those who could show a permit issued by the Rome police, and each person entering the building was required to show his pass at two

There were no more than 75 spectators in court this morning. Admission was restricted to those who could show a permit issued by the Rome police, and each person entering the building was required to show his pass at two control points.

Traffic was shunted well around the building where the court was in session, and one bicyclist, forced to make a detour, was heard to remark: «What? has the dictator returned?»

In the chilly courtroom, reporters and spectators wore their overcoats.

The trial itself, as in the case of the Caruso and Azzolini proceedings a few months ago, was conducted with less formality than usually is associated with courts in other countries.

The atmosphere of informality is enhanced by the easy manner of President Maroni, who is about five feet tall and nearly 70 years old.

In questioning witnesses or the accused, his manner is friendly and his tone conversational. He allows considerable latitude to both prosecution and defense lawyers in arguing points of law or fact, but his reprimand is sharp when they get out of hand.

The nine-man court is composed of three magistrates, in addition to the president judge, and five lay judges representing various political parties. One of the lay judges is Guido Laj, vice-mayor of Rome and a Christian Democrat. There are also two Socialists, a Communist, and an Independent.

FLORENCE TO HAVE NATURAL GAS SOON

FLORENCE, December 14 — Natural gas will be available to the civilian population here soon, following the development of a nearby natural gas field by Italian engineers with Allied assistance, it was announced today by Major E. H. Richardson, Allied Military Government engineering officer.

The gas will be made available first to hospitals, and then will be employed for transportation, since a large number of vehicles are equipped to run by gas. This will ease the heavy demand for gasoline, and will also make additional vehicles available for vital transport, Major Richardson said. He added that, later, the gas would be available to the public for cooking.

Rehabilitation of the manufactured gas works is continuing and Allied engineers expect that manufactured gas will be available early next year. The mixing of the natural gas with the manufactured gas is expected further to alleviate the cooking and heating situation.

In a report to Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, commanding officer of AMG for the 5th Army, Major Richardson said that the AMG engineers, with the coöperation of Florence city engineers, have cleared the Arno River of all debris from the four bridges destroyed by the Germans. This was achieved in time to prevent floods. Although the Arno reached its highest stage in 100 years on November 2, there was no flood.

Florence city engineers, Major Richardson reported, have repaired the sewer system and are keeping the water system, destroyed by the Germans before their retreat, in good repair.

The AMG official also stated that additional tram service for outlying districts of Florence will be inaugurated as soon as the new allotment of electricity is received. (UNN)

LULL ENDS IN GREEK FIGHTING; «EAM» BROADCASTS ITS PEACE TERMS

ATHENS, December 14 — Artillery, tanks, and machine guns were heard going into action in the center of the city tonight, as fighting flared up again between ELAS (National Liberation Militia) troops and British and Greek regulars after a 24-hour lull.

Shells are crashing in the city tonight, BBC reported, and there has been a fresh outburst of fighting in the Piraeus area adjacent to the naval wireless station.

Prior to the latest clashes, there had been relative quiet in the city, and the 12th day of the civil strife passed with only minor encounters reported. The city's streets are practically deserted, aside from military patrols, as authorities banned all civilians from being out-of-doors except during the two-hour period between 1200 and 1400 hours.

Four-fifths of the city are said still to be under the control of ELAS units. British and Greek mountain forces control approximately a three-mile-square area in the city's center, and an additional five square miles in the Piraeus, where British gains have been registered in the past few days, following the arrival of reinforcements.

More Greek regulars were reported by BBC to have arrived from the Middle East today, while fresh British forces came in by air transport accompanied by additional supplies. BBC also said that Greek national guard reserves have been called up.

The British commander, Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, in a communique today, reported no major developments during a quiet night which followed yesterday's operations.

«British troops made further progress in the Piraeus despite local rebel attacks and the situation in the city remains unchanged,» he said.

Reporting no change in the situation elsewhere in Greece, the communique added: «In yesterday's attacks by rebel troops on the center of the city, which achieved temporary local gains, the rebel forces employed were dressed in captured uniforms of regular Greek troops of a mountain brigade.»

Peace terms were broadcast over the ELAS radio this evening, according to a report of the American Broadcasting Station in Europe. The terms called for «an end of intervention by British authorities, the formation of a democratic government, punishment of traitors, and a purge of Fascists from all the state departments.

No official announcement that these terms have been submitted to General Scobie so far has been made.

Plastiras Arrives from France

There was another reported development on the diplomatic front when General Nicolas Plastiras, former Greek Liberal leader, arrived here after 11 years of exile in France. Plastiras, who was Greek Premier after the war with Turkey, had a two-hour conference with the present Premier, Georges Papandreou, and also is said to have talked with other leaders in an effort to cement political differences.

ELAS «town criers» went through the capital yesterday announcing that the city would be destroyed house-by-house before they would surrender, a Reuter dispatch said.

BBC declared that ELAS forces were loading trams with dynamite and turning them loose against the center of the city, in order to counter British tank and paratroop attacks.

The water situation was not regarded as serious, although the central pumping station is under ELAS

This will ease the heavy demand for gasoline, and will also make additional vehicles available for vital transport, Major Richardson said. He added that, later, the gas would be available to the public for cooking.

Rehabilitation of the manufactured gas works is continuing and Allied engineers expect that manufactured gas will be available early next year. The mixing of the natural gas with the manufactured gas is expected further to alleviate the cooking and heating situation.

In a report to Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, commanding officer of AMG for the 5th Army, Major Richardson said that the AMG engineers, with the coöperation of Florence city engineers, have cleared the Arno River of all debris from the four bridges destroyed by the Germans. This was achieved in time to prevent floods. Although the Arno reached its highest stage in 100 years on November 2, there was no flood.

Florence city engineers, Major Richardson reported, have repaired the sewer system and are keeping the water system, destroyed by the Germans before their retreat, in good repair.

The AMG official also stated that additional tram service for outlying districts of Florence will be inaugurated as soon as the new allotment of electricity is received. (UNN)

10,000 ITALIAN CIVILIANS WORK FOR 5TH ARMY

FLORENCE, December 14 — About 10,000 Italian civilians were employed during November by the 5th Army building roads, bridges, and hospitals, Lt. Col. T.A. Lane, Allied Military Government labor official, said here today.

While these construction projects are directly for the 5th Army, many will remain as permanent installations for the benefit of the local populations, the colonel added. He said also that a number of Italian Partisans employed now are in some forward areas.

Colonel Lane reported that civilian labor is receiving a far better wage scale than they received from the Germans for work on military installations. Italian labor, he said, was responding enthusiastically, and workmen were particularly encouraged by recent visits to Italy by labor delegations from the United States, Great Britain, and the Soviet Union. NAVY MEN BUY GIFTS FOR PALERMO CHILDREN days following the arrival of reinforcements.

PALERMO, December 14 — As was the case last year, poor and orphaned children of Palermo this Christmas again will be the recipients of toys, food, shoes, and articles of clothing bought with money raised by American and Italian Navy personnel.

More Greek regulars were reported by BBC to have arrived from the Middle East today, while fresh British forces came in by air transport accompanied by additional supplies. BBC also said that Greek national guard reserves have been called up.

The British commander, Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, in a communique today, reported no major developments during a quiet night which followed yesterday's operations.

«British troops made further progress in the Piraeus despite local rebel attacks and the situation in the city remains unchanged,» he said.

Reporting no change in the situation elsewhere in Greece, the communique added: «In yesterday's attacks by rebel troops on the center of the city, which achieved temporary local gains, the rebel forces employed were dressed in captured uniforms of regular Greek troops of a mountain brigade.»

Peace terms were broadcast over the ELAS radio this evening, according to a report of the American Broadcasting Station in Europe. The terms called for «an end of intervention by British authorities, the formation of a democratic government, punishment of traitors, and a purge of Fascists from all the state departments.

No official announcement that these terms have been submitted to General Scobie so far has been made.

Plastiras Arrives from France

There was another reported development on the diplomatic front when General Nicolas Plastiras, former Greek Liberal leader, arrived here after 11 years of exile in France. Plastiras, who was Greek Premier after the war with Turkey, had a two-hour conference with the present Premier, Georges Papandreou, and also is said to have talked with other leaders in an effort to cement political differences.

ELAS «town criers» went through the capital yesterday announcing that the city would be destroyed house-by-house before they would surrender, a Reuter dispatch said.

BBC declared that ELAS forces were loading trams with dynamite and turning them loose against the center of the city, in order to counter British tank and paratroop attacks.

The water situation was not regarded as serious, although the central pumping station is under ELAS control. Some mains have been damaged in the artillery encounters.

Royal Air Force planes continued their attacks against ELAS positions. They also showered the city with copies of Prime Minister Churchill's speech of December 5 on the Greek situation. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

CHURCHILL REPLIES TO COMMONS ON GREECE

LONDON, December 14 — Prime Minister Churchill told the Commons today that it is not physically possible to consult the Dominions about every step [in the action in Greece] which the fast-moving developments make necessary, but they have been kept closely and continuously informed of what is taking place. No expressions of dissent have been received from the Dominions, he said.

Churchill made the answer in reply to a demand for an assurance that the Dominions would be consulted in advance before further steps were taken.

In reply to another question, he disclosed that British losses in the liberation of Greece up to the end of November were less than 300 in killed, wounded, and missing, with eight minor vessels and 32 aircraft lost. Since that date, another 160 Army casualties, including 35 killed, were inflicted by the Germans.

Churchill said the answer was given to show the very heavy sacrifices made for the general liberation of Greece from the Germans and Italian Fascists. (Reuter)

LONDON «TIMES» URGES GREEK NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON, December 14 — «The attempt to establish law and order [in Greece] by means of the Papandreou Government backed by British arms, but with a writ that runs scarcely anywhere outside the center of Athens, has been a failure,» wrote today's London Times.

The editorial added that British public opinion is in broad agreement on two essential points:

«First, the establishment of a strong democratic system which will bring peace, happiness, and reconciliation to the Greeks; secondly, it is inconceivable that the British liberation armies, in the event of a lasting deadlock, should be asked to coerce or conquer a section of a liberated and Allied people which only a few weeks ago was engaged in active and gallant resistance to the Germans.»

Field Marshal Alexander, said The Times, should therefore put a stop to the fighting «by devising a formula of armistice and negotiation which will be acceptable to the National Liberation Front.

«The alternative course of continuing and extending the present hostilities indefinitely, with the probable consequence of uniting and consolidating the most extreme elements in EAM and ELAS and of rallying many Greek Patriots, whatever their politics, to new resistance, cannot be contemplated. Considerations of British 'prestige' must not become involved.» (Reuter)

BRITISH LABOR VOTES FOR MORE STATE CONTROL

LONDON, December 14 — The British Labor Party conference, today passed its Executive Committee's resolution reaffirming the policy of full employment and economic control.

The resolution stated the Party's conviction that full employment and a higher standard of living can be secured only within a planned economy through the maintenance and adoption of appropriate economic controls after the war, and, above all, by the transference to the State of the power to direct the main national industries.

The resolution also stressed Labor's view that the Government should control the Bank of England and the lending policy of the joint-stock banks, and set up a national investment board.

It was further agreed in the resolution that control should be established over the location of industry, that agreements should be made with friendly nations to stabilize foreign exchange, and that international trade should be extended to assist the agricultural and industrial development of countries economically backward in these respects.

Stand Against Vicious Competition

Emanuel Shinwell, MP, proposing the resolution, said that the Party was in complete accord with the established policies of the British Labor Party, which stood today, as it had always stood, for the abolition of a vicious competitive system, and for the establishment of the highest standard of life based on public ownership of indispensible national in-

Griffiths also assured the conference that Labor would insist on the disarming of the security police and the two Greek formations under British command now being used against ELAS — the Mountain Brigade and the «Sacred» Battalion. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

VELEBIT HOPES FOR NEW GOVERNMENT IN 2 WEEKS

LONDON, December 14 — Hopes that the United Provisional Yugoslav Government, as agreed on by Marshal Tito and Yugoslav Premier Ivan Subasic, will be established in Belgrade within two weeks, were expressed by General Vladimir Velebit, London representative of the Yugoslav Committee of National Liberation, at a press conference here yesterday.

It was certain, he said, that the future constitution of the country would be federal. He added, however, that it has not yet been decided by what means the people of Yugoslavia will indicate their choice between a constitutional monarchy and a republican form of government. A plebiscite, a constituent assembly, and parliamentary action under the existing constitution after the holding of the elections are all possibilities. In any event, King Peter will remain outside of the country until the decision is made.

On the question of supplies, General Velebit said that the chief source of anxiety is the situation of the people in the Adriatic coastal areas, who were never self-supporting, and whose country has been devastated and looted of transport by the enemy.

Shinwell said that should a Labor government be returned in Britain at the next election, it would use its authority not in the interests of one section of the community, but in the interests of every man, woman, and child in the country.

The conference also passed a resolution by a local Party branch, urging the Executive to make it clear that the Party's program at the next election would include the transfer to public ownership of the land, large-scale building, heavy industry, and all forms of banking, transport, fuel, and power.

The resolution was passed, in spite of an appeal for its withdrawal made on behalf of the Executive by Philip Noel Baker, Minister of War Transport.

A Reuter message stated that yesterday's moderately-phrased resolution passed by the Labor conference urging the British Government « to facilitate an armistice in Greece without delay, » was carried only after the delegates had received certain assurances on points of policy from James Griffiths, MP, miners' leader in Parliament.

The miners' leader suggested that, contrary to Prime Minister Churchill's view, a Greek Government would have to be formed under a new premier acceptable to all, and that clearly ruled out Papandreou, the incumbent.

Further reinforcements arrived last night and were in action early this morning.

Some progress has been made in the Piraeus, but elsewhere in the city our activities yesterday were confined to clearing snipers from areas already occupied by our troops.

RAF, in support of ground troops, silenced a 75-mm. gun firing at the centre of the city. In another sortie a rebel ammunition dump was attacked and hits were obtained.

There is no change in the situation elsewhere in Greece.

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 14 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

At Aix la Chapelle, yesterday, the U.S. 9th Army, owing to the heavy losses suffered during the last few days, did not continue its major attacks. In the Roer sector, south and southeast of Jülich and in the forest ground between Vossenack and Monschau, attacking formations of the U.S. 1st Army were stopped at first by our fire. Having resumed the attack, they succeeded in penetrating into some villages. The enemy lost 15 tanks.

In the Saarlautern sector, the fighting for pillbox groups continued to use up strong enemy forces in an extremely small sector. Between Sarreguemines [Saargemünd] and the lower Vosges, the situation was consolidated by German counter-thrusts and counter-attacks.

North of the Hagenau Forest, the enemy made small gains by fierce attacks.

In upper Alsace, mountain troops cleared the area of Reichenweier and the town itself of the enemy, and destroyed one enemy battery.

London and Antwerp continued to be subjected to the fire of our long range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, south of Bologna, our troops launched attacks on the enemy lines and captured many prisoners.

Southwest of Faenza, British attacks failed.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789621

North of Russi, the Canadian 1st and 5th armoured brigades established bridgeheads in the Naviglio sector at two points in fierce fighting. One of the two bridgeheads was smashed by immediate counter-attacks of our reserves, the other was considerably narrowed down. The Canadians left behind 300 killed, a figure which was checked, and lost more than 1,000 prisoners.

Eastern Front:

In northeastern Croatia, south and southeast of Vukovar, enemy attacks failed.

The focal points of the grim defensive fighting in the East continued to lie on the Hungarian fronts. In the northern and northeastern parts of the Budapest positions, German grenadier and SS formations smashed strong Soviet attacks. Between Waitzen and the Danube bend on one hand and the Matra Mountains on the other hand, enemy pressure continues to be exerted particularly in a northeasterly and northwesterly direction. Yesterday, the Soviets made only slight local gains.

North of Miscolcz, strong Bolshevik and Rumanian formations continued their attacks aiming at broadening and deepening their penetrations at the Rivers Sajo and Hernad. In this sector, as well as at the Ungvar-Kaschau Road, grim fighting is still in progress.

Air:

A German convoy brought down four planes out of an unsuccessfully attacking British fighter-bomber formation off the coast of northern Norway.

Yesterday, the enemy air activities over the Reich territory confined themselves to isolated attacks on areas near the front and to minor fighter raids. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Article by Goebbels: The German News Agency's summary of Goebbels's weekly article, which will appear tomorrow morning in Das Reich, is dramatic in tone and appeal. It calls the war the «greatest crisis of humanity in the occident,» and lays the blame for it on an anti-German plot of the «western democratic plutocratic world,» with «assistance from world-Bolshevism.»

«Peaceful» Germany: The article by Goebbels puts great stress on the allegedly peaceful and socially progressive aims of Germany since the advent of Hitler. «Since 1933, the German people tried peacefully to build up a new and better world in its own domain. The middle-class plutocratic enemies did not want this.»

Allied Losses: As a morale-bolstering factor for German consumption, Goebbels reviews the great losses suffered by the Allies, losses which he feels have been «purposely concealed from the world public.» These supposed losses include 15 million Soviets and England's «sacrifice of her national wealth, acquired during centuries.»

Greek Crisis: The outstanding interest in this topic today is the emphasis given by German propaganda to anti-British broadcasts over an Athens Radio supposedly held by the EAM rebels. This item occurs both in the German Home Service and in a Transocean despatch for overseas audiences. The latter, purportedly via a United Press report, quotes the new radio («Radio Free Greece») as saying: «Greeks, take up arms, fight for every house and hill, mount the barricades.»

The same broadcast is said to have accused the British of atrocities against disarmed ELAS soldiers, as well as of «torturing civilians» and jailing «women, children, and old men.»

Although German propaganda has always gone out of its way to appeal to Arab sympathies and to avoid any material which could possibly offend the Moslem world, Transocean attributes to Radio Free Greece the statement that the arrested EAM sympathizers are being «guarded by Arabs» who are «torturing them in the most cruel manner.»

Western Front: The correspondent Sertorius uses as his leading item tonight the «strong pressure of the American 1st Army against the Roer, on both sides of Düren east of

of noisy propaganda which has disgusted the sane part of the nation...»

Italian Front: According to the Fascist Radio, the fact that the commander of the 8th Army has shifted the weight of fighting no less than 12 times in his recent offensive, amounts to the admission of a setback. It is interpreted as being a sign of uncertainty on the British side, and also demonstrates the exceptional defensive qualities of the German troops.

Duce Receives Fascist Commander: Mussolini has received the commander of the Barbarigo battalion of the 10th MAS Flotilla, who conveyed to him the desire of his soldiers to return to the front, and their devotion to the Fatherland and the Duce. Mussolini then sent a message to the battalion, which on the Nettuno front, «side-by-side with its loyal allies, in three months of bitter fighting, contested to the utmost the capture of immortal Rome by overwhelming hordes of barbarians...»

Women's Unit Leaves For Front: The Fascist Radio reports the departure of a women's auxiliary unit, «specially trained and equipped» for operational areas. The unit is to join the «Monte Rosa» Division.

Britain's Future: A Fascist Radio commentator believes that the price Britain would pay for victory is so high that she might even find defeat a more profitable proposition. Whilst Britain is waging the war to keep her Empire, says the commentator, she has already virtually lost it to one of her allies, whereas her other ally has delivered irreparable blows to her prestige. As Britain will be in a bad shape after hostilities end, the commentator goes on, the United States will have to contribute by loans, food supplies, and other goods to the economic life of Britain. The debts incurred would have to be repaid on conditions and with interest decided upon by the United States. «Britain would be left stripped and empty-handed...»

HUNGARIAN

Appeal by Baron Kemeny: In an interview to the press, Baron Kemeny, Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, called upon Hungarian youth «to seize spades and arms to liberate the country from Bolshevik occupation, and thereafter build up the new Hungarist state...» He also said that «Hungarian youth wishes to live in an ideology of martial life...»

GERMAN

Article by Goebbels: The German News Agency's summary of Goebbels's weekly article, which will appear tomorrow morning in Das Reich, is dramatic in tone and appeal. It calls the war the « greatest crisis of humanity in the occident, » and lays the blame for it on an anti-German plot of the « western democratic plutocratic world, » with « assistance from world-Bolshevism. »

« Peaceful » Germany: The article by Goebbels puts great stress on the allegedly peaceful and socially progressive aims of Germany since the advent of Hitler. « Since 1933, the German people tried peacefully to build up a new and better world in its own domain. The middle-class plutocratic enemies did not want this. »

Allied Losses: As a morale-bolstering factor for German consumption, Goebbels reviews the great losses suffered by the Allies, losses which he feels have been « purposely concealed from the world public. » These supposed losses include 15 million Soviets and England's « sacrifice of her national wealth, acquired during centuries. »

Greek Crisis: The outstanding interest in this topic today is the emphasis given by German propaganda to anti-British broadcasts over an Athens Radio supposedly held by the EAM rebels. This item occurs both in the German Home Service and in a Transocean despatch for overseas audiences. The latter, purportedly via a United Press report, quotes the new radio (« Radio Free Greece ») as saying: « Greeks, take up arms, fight for every house and hill, mount the barricades. »

The same broadcast is said to have accused the British of atrocities against disarmed ELAS soldiers, as well as of « torturing civilians » and jailing « women, children, and old men. »

Although German propaganda has always gone out of its way to appeal to Arab sympathies and to avoid any material which could possibly offend the Moslem world, Transocean attributes to Radio Free Greece the statement that the arrested EAM sympathizers are being « guarded by Arabs » who are « torturing them in the most cruel manner. »

Western Front: The correspondent Sertorius uses as his leading item tonight the « strong pressure of the American 1st Army against the Roer, on both sides of Düren east of Aachen. » However, he claims that the Allies in this drive failed to make any headway « worth mentioning. »

Eastern Front: The correspondent Krebs tonight concedes that the Soviets « were able further to increase their pressure north of Budapest. In a somewhat later despatch, the correspondent Von Olberg devotes very little time in the drive on Budapest, and observes instead that « the encirclement of Slovakia is now the foremost task of the Soviet Command » in the area of Hungary and Slovakia. »

The New Cabinet. Commenting on the second Bonomi Cabinet, the Fascist Radio returns once more to the subject of British intervention. « When the previous government swung to the Left and began to play with the republican idea..., » the commentator says, « ...the British had to remind them that they were an 'armistice' government, representing a defeated nation... » Bonomi, however, is now said to be protected by the British. « The struggle against Fascism has exhausted itself in a few 'epuration' trials with a lot of noisy propaganda which has disgusted the sane part of the nation... »

Italian Front: According to the Fascist Radio, the fact that the commander of the 8th Army has shifted the weight of fighting no less than 12 times in his recent offensive, amounts to the admission of a setback. It is interpreted as being a sign of uncertainty on the British side, and also demonstrates the exceptional defensive qualities of the German troops.

Duce Receives Fascist Commander: Mussolini has received the commander of the Barbarigo battalion of the 10th MAS Flotilla, who conveyed to him the desire of his soldiers to return to the front, and their devotion to the Fatherland and the Duce. Mussolini then sent a message to the battalion, which on the Nettuno front, « side-by-side with its loyal allies, in three months of bitter fighting, contested to the utmost the capture of immortal Rome by overwhelming hordes of barbarians... »

Women's Unit Leaves For Front: The Fascist Radio reports the departure of a women's auxiliary unit, « specially trained and equipped » for operational areas. The unit is to join the « Monte Rosa » Division.

Britain's Future: A Fascist Radio commentator believes that the price Britain would pay for victory is so high that she might even find defeat a more profitable proposition. Whilst Britain is waging the war to keep her Empire, says the commentator, she has already virtually lost it to one of her allies, whereas her other ally has delivered irreparable blows to her prestige. As Britain will be in a bad shape after hostilities end, the commentator goes on, the United States will have to contribute by loans, food supplies, and other goods to the economic life of Britain. The debts incurred would have to be repaid on conditions and with interest decided upon by the United States. « Britain would be left stripped and empty-handed... »

HUNGARIAN

Appeal by Baron Kemeny: In an interview to the press, Baron Kemeny, Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, called upon Hungarian youth « to seize spades and arms to liberate the country from Bolshevik occupation, and thereafter build up the new Hungarist state... » He also said that « Hungarian youth wishes to live in an ideology of martial life... »

Great Success of Hungarist Legion: According to the Arrow Cross paper Oesszetartas, eager Hungarian youths are crowding the recruiting centres of the Hungarist Legion. The paper adds « young Hungarians wish to lead an honest life, weapon in hand. They choose death rather than slavery... »

Warsaw, Stalingrad, Madrid...: « In a radio speech last night, the Hungarian Secretary of State, Pal Vago, called upon the defenders of Budapest « to follow the example of the defenders of Warsaw, Stalingrad, and Madrid. » It was only a matter of determination, he said, for Budapest to become a second Stalingrad with the storming enemy checked at its gates...

The Rumanians Rejoiced Too Soon: The Hungarian Nazi paper Magyar Oerszem described how short-lived was the Rumanians' joy over the reoccupation of Kolozsvar (Cluj), capital of Transylvania. Within a few days of the occupation of the city, a Bolshevik general took command and the Rumanian town major « had to limit himself to the relentless flogging of Hungarian men and women... »

U.S. 1ST ARMY REACHES ROER; 7TH BREAKS THROUGH GERMAN LINES

LONDON, December 12 — The American 1st Army reached the Roer River above and below Düren today as 7th Army forces northeast of Hagenau broke through German defenses and advanced 15 miles in 24 hours.

Three American 1st Army columns advanced on Düren, the main German fortress on the Roer River, from the northwest, west, and south. One column advanced toward the northwest through thick mud and snow, and reached the outskirts of Mariaweiler, a mile from the German bastion. The second column drove directly eastward from Luchem and in a 2,000-yard advance captured the village of Merode, in the northern tip of the Hürtgen Forest four miles west of Düren. A few miles below the German stronghold, the third column forced its way through a wooded area to emerge on a 1,000-yard front on the west bank of the river.

The Germans have withdrawn the bulk of their armor and infantry to the east bank, but have left strong forces

Other 7th Army forces raced five miles north to Walburg, on the north side of the Hagenau Forest, after clearing Hagenau of the remaining German forces. On the western end of the 7th Army flank, troops captured Petit Rederchingen, three miles south of the German frontier east of Saargemünd.

On the southern sector of the long front, 7th Army and French 1st Army forces pushed to within 3 ½ miles of Colmar, Alsatian road and rail junction and headquarters of the Germany army. The Allied troops advanced despite heavy floods.

German tanks and troops counter-attacked again and again and their artillery has been firing ceaselessly in an effort to keep open the 20-mile-wide corridor across the Rhine. French troops now hold the west bank of the Rhine from the Swiss frontier to Kembs.

Two New Breaches into Reich

Third Army forces made two new crossings of the German border east of Saargemünd at Hebkirchen and Bliesbrücken. American heavy artillery is shelling the German industrial towns of Zweibrücken and St. Ingbert, five and seven miles inside Germany, from positions 13 miles away.

Repeated German counter-attacks against the 3rd Army bridgehead at Dillingen were beaten off and infantry forces recaptured several pillboxes which had been taken by infiltrating German forces.

The Americans advanced beyond captured Saarlautern to seize four German strongpoints in the outer rim of the Siegfried Line defenses. The Germans inside the city are using dug-in tanks and are firing from numerous pillboxes against American forces who are slowly clearing the city in some of the hardest fighting along the 400-mile front.

German artillery fire both at Dillingen and Saarlautern has been the heaviest yet encountered by the 3rd Army, and is adding to the destruction of this once thriving industrial area. During the past three days, the Germans have fired 18,000 shells against the American bridgeheads, but their fire has been returned on a larger scale.

CONCENTRATED AIR ATTACKS ON 5TH ARMY SECTORS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 12 — With the Italian front momentarily at a standstill, German forces yesterday concentrated artillery and air attacks against three crucial sectors of the 5th Army Front south of Bologna, it was announced here today.

The official reports described as «unusually heavy» the enemy artillery fire directed against the central sector of the 5th Army Front, where American forces are within little over eight miles of Bologna, center point of Po Valley communications.

U.S. 1ST ARMY REACHES ROER; 7TH BREAKS THROUGH GERMAN LINES

LONDON, December 12 — The American 1st Army reached the Roer River above and below Düren today as 7th Army forces northeast of Hagenau broke through German defenses and advanced 15 miles in 24 hours.

Three American 1st Army columns advanced on Düren, the main German fortress on the Roer River, from the northwest, west, and south. The Germans have withdrawn the bulk of their armor and infantry to the east bank, but have left strong forces behind to delay the Allied advance toward the Cologne Plain and the rich industrial Rhineland. Despite bad weather, Allied medium and fighter-bombers struck at German troop concentrations and strongpoints in advance of American forces.

As the 1st Army continued its advance to the river, 9th Army forces to the north patrolled the western bank from Linnich to Jülich while supplies and reinforcements were being brought up for the new assault across the river to the Rhine.

Seventh Army forces swept through Maginot Line defenses northeast of Hagenau, liberated yesterday, and after a 15-mile advance are fighting in the town of Selz, a mile from the Rhine. German resistance along the whole 30-mile front up the Rhine bank from Strasbourg to Selz suddenly collapsed, and American troops went through the Maginot forts against weak opposition.

Press dispatches reported tonight that the German flight across the Rhine already had begun, and that enemy resistance appeared to be cracking. The new advance placed American forces within 15 miles of Karlsruhe, a large German industrial and rail center east of the Rhine. The Americans are thrusting along a broad strip of level country which leads directly to the German city and is on one of the historic invasion routes into Germany.

effort to keep open the [illegible] Rhine. French troops now hold the west bank of the Rhine from the Swiss frontier to Kembs.

LATE BULLETINS

GERMAN ARMY IN TWO-WAY FLIGHT INTO REICH

LONDON, December 12 — The German Army has begun a two-way flight into Germany from northern Alsace — eastward over the Rhine and northward into the Siegfried Line, late dispatches reported tonight.

Seventh Army troops are closing up to the German border along a 40-mile front, and are coming under fire from Siegfried fort guns. (Reuter)

LONDON, December 12 — A strong force of RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes tonight bombed Essen, it was officially announced. Squadrons of Mosquitos attacked Osnabrück. (Reuter)

CHINESE RECAPTURE NANTAN

CHUNGKING, December 12 — Chinese troops counter-attacking today, recaptured Nantan, a railway town 25 miles inside the Kwangsi Province border, an American press service reported tonight. (OWI)

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 760021

Enemy air activity, principally confined to night attacks, was also much heavier than in recent weeks, as the Germans risked their dwindling fighter-bombers to bomb and strafe 5th Army forward areas and supply routes.

Fighting precipitated by enemy patrol infiltrations or raiding parties was reported at three points along the 5th Army's mountain battle line. Enemy raiders which struck at Allied positions on the eastern edge of the Idice River Valley — one of the valleys flanking Bologna to the east — were reported repulsed some eight miles southeast of the Po Valley city.

A German patrol which sought to penetrate Allied positions in the Monte Belmonte sector, where American forces hold strongpoints at the threshhold of the main approach to Bologna through the Savena River Valley, was likewise driven back. Fighting was also reported at a point 13 miles southwest of Bologna, west of the Setta River and the Prato-Bologna road and rail lines.

The official reports stated that enemy aircraft were «generally active» over the 5th Army Front Sunday night. Incendiary and anti-personnel bombs were dropped, and the low-flying planes strafed supply routes leading to crucial front sectors. For the first time in weeks, the enemy planes inflicted both damage and casualties, it was reported.

Enemy forces were said to be «extremely sensitive» to Allied patrol thrusts, and met with artillery fire and small arms Allied attempts to probe their positions. In the Sillaro River Valley sector, southeast of Bologna, enemy artillery laid down a concentration of more than 700 rounds in a quarter of an hour, it was reported.

On the 8th Army Front, positions remained unchanged, with the Lamone River — water barrier of the German delaying positions across the Plain of the Po — flowing deep and swift from rains. (PRO)

RUSSIANS CLOSING IN ON BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, December 12 — Red Army tanks and artillery battered German defenses on the outskirts of Budapest today as enemy rear guards fought to hold the Russians long enough to permit their main force, to escape from the city. German resistance is so fanatical that the Russians have been compelled to reduce the city's defense strongpoint-by-strongpoint.

German mobile guns and Tiger tanks remaining in the city are making desperate armored sorties against Soviet positions, but the Russians have combined armored thrusts with infiltration tactics to sap German strength before a final break-through.

The Soviet communique announced tonight that Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2nd Ukrainian Front had captured Gödollo, an important rail junction 10 miles northeast of Budapest, presenting a new thrust against the city's defenses. Gödollo is a central bastion controlling the mountain defenses protecting the northeastern and eastern approaches to Budapest.

Marshal Malinovsky's forces have cleared a considerable stretch of the Danube's bank north of Budapest, and they are massed for a decisive plunge across the river which will cut all escape routes leading out of the city. It also will bring Budapest under attack from all sides. The former main German lines of defense in this sector are already in Russian hands.

German troops retreating west and northwest of Budapest are being punished severely by Russian aircraft and artillery fire. They are abandoning all their heavy equipment and their wounded in their retreat.

The new offensive developed by Marshal Malinovsky's northeastern flank continued today as Red Army troops in a 10-mile advance captured the large rail-junction city of Sajeszentpeter. There are as yet no clear indications whether Red Army troops will thrust northward into Czechoslovakia, enveloping Lucenec and threatening the Kosice group, or its is difficult to do so with only the ordinary plane finder or sound detector,» the broadcast said.

«Furthermore, it is difficult for anti-aircraft shells to reach the enemy planes, and interception by fighter planes also is difficult.»

The broadcast said it required 20 minutes for a fighter to reach the level of the Superfortress.

It added: «Furthermore, because of the fact that the air is thin [at the Superfortress flight level] it requires a large radius for a fighter plane to make a turn, and thus making a full air turn is difficult. Because of these factors, our side is at a disadvantage.»

The German news agency, DNB, said today that essential Japanese war workers are fleeing Tokyo as a result of the repeated Allied air attacks on the Japanese capital. Under a new police regulation, DNB added, Tokyo personnel employed in armament production and transport are prohibited from leaving the capital without a special permit. Special restrictions have also been imposed on persons employed in the gas, water, and electric works, doctors, and air raid patrol workers. The agency added that 20,000 non-essential civilians have been ordered to evacuate Tokyo. (OWI - Reuter)

CHINESE OFFENSIVE IN KWANGSI CONTINUES

CHUNGKING, December 12 — Chinese forces are advancing down the Kweichow-Kwangsi railway in pursuit of Japanese troops retreating from Kweichow Province, the Chinese High Command said today.

After taking the railway town of Liuchai, just inside the Kwangsi border, Chinese pushed toward Nantan, 120 miles northwest of Liuchow, and former site of an important U.S. air base. Latest field reports said that the Chinese were less than 12 miles from Nantan.

According to a communique from Maj. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer's headquarters today, the 14th USAAF closely supported the Chinese infantry. Bombers pounded retreating Japanese troops in the Lung River Valley and enemy-held villages in the Kweichow-Kwangsi border area. After the enemy broke into the open, American fighters strafed them.

Nine enemy planes were destroyed, four probably destroyed, and eight damaged in a surprise attack on the Japanese airdrome near Canton.

Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's Chinese-American Wing was kept busy bombing enemy factories near Changsha and convoys and bridges in the French Indo-China area.

East African troops have driven to within 500 yards of the enemy stronghold of Shwegyin, today's Southeast Asia Command communique reported. Repeated heavy air attacks by the Eastern Air Command forced the Japanese to withdraw from hill positions five miles east of Kalewa.

Patriots Unconquerable

Far to the northeast, Chinese Communists continued to harass the Japanese forces which tried to force their way into Shantung. One report said that the Japanese found it «quite impossible to conquer the Patriots.» The Japanese have had to evacuate most of Shantung Province.

A 14th USAAF communique said that more than 30,000 tons of Japanese shipping were sunk last month, bringing the 14th USAAF's total since July, 1942, to more than 1,500,000 tons. In addition six naval vessels and 270 small craft were sent to the bottom during that period.

During November, the 14th USAAF destroyed 57 Japanese fighters and eight bombers, probably destroyed 13 fighters and one bomber, and damaged a total of 64 enemy aircraft.

In northern Burma, after yesterday's gains, troops of the British 36th Division have been consolidating at the railway town of Indaw. Further east, on the Irrawaddy,

4 JAP TRANSPORTS, 3 DESTROYERS SUNK

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 12 — American air forces, attacking a Japanese reinforcement convoy off northwestern Leyte yesterday and today, sank four transports and three destroyers, General Douglas McArthur announced tonight. Fifty Japanese planes also were shot down in this same action.

It was the first Japanese attempt to reinforce their battered forces since last Thursday, when a convoy attempting to land at the same time that 77th Division troops were driving ashore below Ormoc was wiped out.

The latest victory was the eighth for American air and naval forces since U.S. ground troops have pressed the battle on the west coast of Leyte, Associated Press reported.

In the seven previous convoys sent to the bottom, more than 30,000 enemy troops were estimated to have been lost.

The Japanese people were warned by Radio Tokyo, Sunday, to expect more and heavier Superfortress bombings.

In northern Burma, after yesterday's gains, troops of the British 36th Division have been consolidating at the railway town of Indaw. Further east, on the Irrawaddy, there has been patrolling in the Katha sector.

Since August 1, the British division has fought its way southward a total of 90 miles from Mogaung, 40 miles west of Myitkyina. No Japanese opposition has been encountered since the capture of Pinwe, 10 miles north of Indaw, at the end of last month.

A late Associated Press report from Chungking said Chinese troops from the north «streamed» southward today through Chungking for what appeared to be a full preparation for any new Japanese assault upon the Province. The populace showered the marching soldiers with gifts. At the same time, long trains of refugees continued their northward flight from Kweichow in all kinds of vehicles. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

2,200 U.S. PLANES ATTACK GERMANY AGAIN

LONDON, December 12 — The round-the-clock air bombardment of key German targets continued today as 2,200 American planes, including 1,250 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th USAAF, bombed the Nazis' principal synthetic oil refinery at Merseburg and rail yards at Hanau — the object of one of yesterday's assaults — and at Aschaffenburg and Darmstadt.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

The attack followed yesterday's record bombing by approximately 5,000 American heavies and fighters from both British and Italian bases.

The Associated Press said today's attack was the 19th on the Leuna refinery — all but one of which have been carried out by U.S. heavy bombers in daylight operations. Heavy clouds over the target at Merseburg required bombing by instruments. However, all the rail objectives were in the open and were hit visually.

Getting a perspective on the two-day record barrage, a staff officer said: « Our job now is to keep hitting them and destroying repairs as fast as the Germans can make them. »

Hard on the heels of the American assaults, RAF Lancasters, escorted by Mustangs, this afternoon attacked Witten, an industrial and railway town in the Ruhr. Six German aircraft were destroyed and others damaged.

German transport in the Ruhr areas has been tied up to such an extent by the air assaults that nearly all transport for the Western Front from the industrial areas of central and northern Germany must now go by a more southern route. It was against these routes that American heavy bombers from Britain have been hitting the past two days.

Giving the enemy no rest, RAF Mosquitos last night struck at targets in Hanover and Hamburg. One plane is missing.

Enemy air activity was directed against southern England last night and this morning, causing casualties and damage. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

M.A.A.F. HEAVIES MAKE BAD-WEATHER ATTACK

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 12 — Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today carried out a bad-weather attack, employing cloud-piercing instruments to locate their target, against the big Blechhammer oil refinery in southern Silesia, it was announced here this afternoon.

The synthetic refinery, largest oil producer within range of Italy-based bombers, was last attacked December 2, as part of a campaign to knock out Silesian refineries, now Germany's principal fuel source since the neutralization of western German refineries.

Yesterday's attacks by 15th USAAF Flying Fortresses and Liberators on Austrian targets cost 21 heavy bombers, presumably from exceptionally intense flak over the vital oil tank and ordnance installations struck, it was announced here today.

Bombstrike photos of the attacks indicated good results at the Moosbierbaum oil refinery and chemical plants, the Vienna South ordnance works and rail yards, and tank works at Kappenburg, 95 miles southwest of Vienna, it was said. Hangars, workshops, and administration buildings were hit at the Farndorf airfield — 35 miles southeast of Vienna — the other target struck in the 15th USAAF's share of a coördinated assault against the vital military works of the Reich.

Desert Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers concentrated some 600 sorties yesterday along the 16-mile sector from Faenza northeast to Alfonsine, across the Po Plain between the Apennines foothills and the Comacchio Lagoon along the Adriatic coast.

The planes were active throughout the day, hammering at targets selected by the ground forces. Gun posts, troops, enemy-occupied strongpoints in outlying houses, and tanks were hit, the air reports said. In one case, the planes were employed to repel an enemy tank attack as it was forming up, it was said.

The air force reports declared that it helped Canadian troops in the 8th Army sector between Faenza and Alfonsine, and that the day's effort « in direct support of the 8th Army offensive » had been « successful. » the German High Command to obtain information in regard to the Allied Armies in Italy, the official statement said.

With the Luftwaffe unable to carry out aerial reconnaissance and the enemy's continuous failure to pierce the Allies' security network in Italy, the Germans have adopted the cynical policy of recruiting masses of young and credulous Italians, who are given perfunctory training and then sent on dangerous missions inside Allied lines. These young Italian men and women are told that they will be able to cross the Allied lines with ease in the guise of refugees returning to their homes or relatives, and that even if they are arrested and convicted, only short sentences will be imposed upon them by Allied courts.

The fact that most of these untrained Italian youths will be apprehended and suffer the penalty of death is a matter of callous indifference to the German agents, who apparently hope that, if they send over a sufficiently large number of these dupes, some must get through to return with highly prized information, the Allied statement declared. So rare have these safe returns of the amateur spies been that one, an Italian girl now in Allied custody, told that she had been personally interviewed by Mussolini after she came back across the lines, and had been awarded the Iron Cross, Second Class, by Hitler.

Intensified Recruiting Methods

In describing the intensified enemy recruiting methods, the Allied announcement said that German recruiting agents made promises of large rewards, used clever propaganda to hide the danger of the missions or to make the work appear glamorous or theatrical, and often resorted to blackmail and threats.

Italian Republican Fascists, such as « Colone » David, a notorious accomplice of the German spy ring, aided the German recruiting agents in working through the purlieus of Italian towns and cities, the statement declared. Small cafes, and restaurants where black marketeers and petty criminals consort, are favorite recruiting grounds, but not even prisons or internment camps are overlooked, the Allied account said.

Italians are almost exclusively sought out for the perilous tasks the recruiting agents have to offer, for the Germans are unwilling to sacrifice their own countrymen in such numbers as the dangerous missions entail.

Some of the young recruits are sent to specialized schools, and are eventually well paid, but must go through a quick course in wireless telegraphy, Allied military organization, and the recognition of units and formations, and are sent across the lines to run the gantlet of the Allied and Italian security services.

The young Italians executed in accordance with international law by the Allied military authorities were named as follows: Masin, Lisandro Carmelo, Pizzi Lorenzo - all aged 20; Abate Nicola, Biagi Ruy Blas - both aged 21; Lancellotti Gino - aged 22. Trivulzio Paola - aged 26; and Macrelli Giannino - aged 27.

Today's announcement said that these youths were among « considerably increased » numbers of German-employed Italians who have been arrested in recent months. (PRO)

M.A.A.F. HEAVIES MAKE BAD-WEATHER ATTACK

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 12 — Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today carried out a bad-weather attack, employing cloud-piercing instruments to locate their target, against the big Blechhammer oil refinery in southern Silesia, it was announced here this afternoon.

The synthetic refinery, largest oil producer within range of Italy-based bombers, was last attacked December 2, as part of a campaign to knock out Silesian refineries, now Germany's principal fuel source since the neutralization of western German refineries.

Yesterday's attacks by 15th USAAF Flying Fortresses and Liberators on Austrian targets cost 21 heavy bombers, presumably from exceptionally intense flak over the vital oil tank and ordnance installations struck, it was announced here today.

Bombstrike photos of the attacks indicated good results at the Moosbierbaum oil refinery and chemical plants, the Vienna South ordnance works and rail yards, and tank works at Kappenburg, 35 miles southwest of Vienna, it was said. Hangars, workshops, and administration buildings were hit at the Parndorf airfield — 35 miles southeast of Vienna — the other target struck in the 15th USAAF's share of a coördinated assault against the vital military works of the Reich.

Desert Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers concentrated some 600 sorties yesterday along the 16-mile sector from Faenza northeast to Alfonsine, across the Po Plain between the Apennines foothills and the Comacchio Lagoon along the Adriatic coast.

The planes were active throughout the day, hammering at targets selected by the ground forces. Gun posts, troops, enemy-occupied strongpoints in outlying houses, and tanks were hit, the air reports said. In one case, the planes were employed to repel an enemy tank attack as it was forming up, it was said.

The air force reports declared that it helped Canadian troops in the 8th Army sector between Faenza and Alfonsine, and that the day's effort «in direct support of the 8th Army offensive» had been «successful.»

Official situation reports issued by the Army referred only to patrol activity in this sector, for the period covered by the Allied Armies in Italy communique issued today. (PRO)

EIGHT ITALIAN SPIES EXECUTED BY ALLIES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 12 — Eight young Italians, sent into liberated Italy as spies by the Germans, have been executed by an Allied firing squad after trial by Allied military courts, it was officially announced here today.

The announcement of the execution of the eight young Italians, all between 20 and 27 years, was coupled with a stern Allied warning that death by shooting will be meted out to those Italians, however young or misguided they may be, who permit themselves to be made the tools of German agents.

The Allied warning emphasized that not only were the names of the enemy recuiting agents, as well as their descriptions, habits, backgrounds, and methods, known to the Allied and Italian security services, but that only in rare instances have the spies they employed escaped Allied detection and capture.

The execution of the eight Italian youths caught in the pay of the Germans is only part of an Allied counter-espionage campaign to combat the «almost frenzied» efforts of

U.S. SENATE AUTHORIZES FIVE-STAR RANKS

WASHINGTON, December 12 — The United States Senate yesterday passed and sent to President Roosevelt for his approval a bill to create four five-star «Generals of the Army» and four five-star «Admirals of the Fleet.»

The legislation, an American news agency said, is designed to put U.S. officers on an equal footing with field marshals and comparable foreign officers. At present, the highest ranking American military and naval officers wear four stars.

Gen. John J. Pershing, commander in the last World War, would continue to be America's top-ranking officer, because his rank as «General of the Armies» — conferred by law — is above the proposed «General of the Army.» (OWI)

NEW ITALIAN CABINET SWORN IN

ROME, December 12 — Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi and the new Italian Cabinet were sworn into office at the Royal Palace today. The oath was administered by Minister for War Count Alessandro Casati in the presence of the Lieutenant General of the Realm and other high-ranking government officials.

Immediately following the inaugural ceremony, Prime Minister Bonomi presided over the first meeting of the Council of Ministers at which he greeted those ministers taking part in the cabinet for the second time under his leadership, saying that they «would bring to their posts the value of past experiences.» He also welcomed the «fresh energy» which the new ministers would infuse into the government.

He recalled his two pledges to the Allies — that of keeping inviolate State Institutions until freely chosen by the country, and that of recognition by every minister of the Armistice clauses of September, 1943.

These clauses, Bonomi added, are very hard, but since Italy renewed diplomatic relations with the Allied governments, they have been given a kindlier interpretation. This was due, he said, to the tact and understanding of Commodore Stone, Chief Commissioner of the AC, whose wise collaboration Italians will never forget.

The Council then approved the Lieutenant General of the Realm's decree authorizing the institution of a General Food Commissariat, depending from the Council of Minister's Presidency. (UNN)

[illegible] CNL VICTORY

«Hence their responsibility before the country, which is still at war; which is in the midst of a difficult international situation; which is hungry; in which Fascism has not yet been completely destroyed; and which is progressing very slowly, too slowly, towards its democratization.

«The six parties of the CNL, if they wish to accomplish their task, must first of all and above all maintain their unity.»

«Unity,» he continued, «can be maintained only if each party abstains from imposing on others its own particular point of view.» And if that unity is broken, he said, the people are at a loss to understand the situation and suffer as a result of it.

«That is why «our party,» he continued «right from the very beginning of the crisis, placed in the forefront the concrete problems of today, not those of tomorrow, or of the day after tomorrow.»

At a certain stage in the development of the crisis, Togliatti said, there appeared the probability of a solution implying the exclusion from the Government of the three parties «which take their place on the left» (the Action, Socialist, and Communist Parties) and even of all six of the parties of the CNL.

«In the second case,» he said «the plan of the enemies of the CNL would have met with success. In the first case, the CNL would have been split, perhaps beyond all hope of reconstituting it. In either case, a very tense situation would have arisen in the country, a situation incompatible with the state of war and the necessities of war.»

The Deputy Prime Minister said it is practically impossible to arrive at the designation of a President of the Council around whom the unity of all six parties of the CNL can be realized.

Elections will bring Solution

The principal reason for this, he said, is that the country has not yet been consulted. The result is a pretended «parity» among the parties which paralyzes them. After the national elections are held, he said, everything will be more clear.

The second cause Togliatti attributed to the fact that the joint-action pact between the Communists and Socialists did not function as it should have functioned during the crisis. Hence, he said, the necessity for strengthening the unity between Socialists and Communists.

The third cause was given as the failure of the Socialists and Communists to reach a political agreement with the Christian Democrats.

Togliatti said the Communist Party sticks to the position taken at Naples on the constitutional question. That position is summed up thus: «No irrational action, no hysteria, no rigid attitude on questions of form or procedure which do not interest us and do no interest the people, who even ignore the nature of the problem.»

Togliatti concluded with the statement that the Communist Party would defend the unity of the National Liberation movement against all attempts, from whatever source they may come, to weaken it. (UNN)

TOGLIATTI HAILS C.N.L. VICTORY

ROME, December 12 — The fact that, after 15 days of consultations, the Italian government has been reformed on the basis of the six-party program constitutes a « clear, undeniable victory for the Committee of National Liberation, » Palmiro Togliatti declared in an interview in the Communist newspaper L'Unità today.

« This victory is still more convincing, » he added, « when one considers that, during more than two weeks of crisis, and in spite of the difficult situation created in the CNL, no force capable of imposing its attention on the country appeared on the political scene. »

Togliatti pointed out that developments during the government crisis, and the manner in which the crisis was resolved, brought to light the fact that « the political life of the new democratic Italy continues to develop around the six parties of the Committee of National Liberation and their unity. »

« The Italian people, » he said, « look to the six democratic, anti-Fascist parties united in the CNL. » Outside of them, he added, there is « no other center » around which the political life of the country can revolve.

The Communist Party Secretary said that on the basis of this fact, the Committee of National Liberation and its leaders must realize that they are the real and only political leaders of Italy at the present time. He added:

« In the second case, » he said « the plan of the enemies of the CNL would have met with success. In the first case, the CNL would have been split, perhaps beyond all hope of reconstituting it. In either case, a very tense situation would have arisen in the country, a situation incompatible with the state of war and the necessities of war. »

ROME, December 12 — Count Carlo Sforza yesterday issued a four-point reply to what he termed « statements on my policy which have been made in the House of Commons by Anthony Eden, subsequently confirmed by Mr. Churchill. » Count Sforza's statement follows, in part:

« 1. My letter to Mr. Berle of September 23, 1943: I was not the author of that document. I merely set my signature on it, accepting the engagements therein...

The largest part of the two-hour conference with Mr. Churchill in London on October 11, 1943, was employed mainly to bear a strong pressure upon me so that I might be induced to accept King Victor Emmanuel III, regardless of his heavy responsibilities with Fascism, with the war against Britain and with the calamitous defeat. This shows that my political attitude on this fundamental internal problem (where I had reaffirmed, in a broadcast September 26, my definite repudiation of Victor Emanuel)...

« 2. My relations with Badoglio: Upon returning to Italy, everything confirmed in my mind the fact the elimination of Victor Emmanuel was instrumental for promoting an anti-German war and for postponing any institutional controversy. I suggested to Badoglio that the King abdicate...

The King refused, and I consequently had to stand out in opposition as regards to the King's position. When finally Victor Emmanuel withdrew from public life... though having realized the unpopularity Badoglio had left behind in the provinces abandoned to the Germans, I joined the cabinet he had formed and loyally collaborated with him.

« 3. 'Expulsion of Badoglio from his office:' Mr. Churchill seems to attribute such occurrence to me and to my 'intrigues'.

It was, instead, the Committee of National Liberation of Rome which, after the liberation of the capital unanimously demanded — with extreme frankness and with no intrigues — the elimination of Badoglio and his substitution with Bonomi. I took no part in this episode...

« 4. Conclusion: ...It is to me a relief to note that the incident, which is due to the attitude of the British Government, has no connection whatsever with my opinions and lines of foreign policy... but is only connected with my beliefs and deeds on matters of domestic Italian politics; beliefs and deeds which I have no reason to disavow. »

ITALIANS CLEARING 3,000,000 MINES

ROME, December 12 — The huge task of clearing an estimated three million mines laid by the retreating Germans in liberated Italy is being carried out today slowly but successfully by small groups of Italian Army experts and Italian civilians operating under a plan devised by the Allied Commission's Civil Affairs Section in coöperation with the Italian government.

These groups, trained by Allied military engineers and working with Allied equipment, already have cleared approximately a million mines. Southern Italy, Sicily, and Sardinia are reported clear of mines. The towns of Pescara and Pisa, both heavily mined, are also reported to be practically clear. But hundreds of thousands of mines still remain.

Allied Commission and Allied Military Government officers have organized mineclearing training schools for Italian civilians in Pisa, Pistoia, Spoleto, Perugia, Pescara, Chieti, Florence, and Lucca. More than 400 men already have taken the course in these schools, and about 1,500 are expected to complete the training.

Mines a Civilian Problem

German mines, laid indiscriminately by a desperate, [illegible] enemy, have been one of the most pressing civilian

Both companies were commended recently for their work by the Allied Commission.

Originally, two Italian engineer companies were assigned the task of mine clearing. They operated last spring and summer in Sardinia, and cleared mines on the mainland until the end of August.

The formation of civilian mine-clearing squads was achieved through the Italian government and the Ministry of War, which have assumed full responsibility for carrying out the plan.

Civilians were recruited locally in heavily mined areas and then sent to the nearest school for training. The first school was organized in badly mined Pisa October 3.

The civilian training course includes the use of mine detectors, methods of detection by prodding and visual means, and the study of various types of enemy mines. In many instances new types of mines, in which wood and plastics are used almost entirely, have rendered mine detectors useless. Although prodding is slow and tedious, it has been found the only efficient method of clearing mines.

After initial training, the squads practice on dummy minefields under the supervision of their instructors. Later, they must pass a comprehensive test before being allowed to work in actual minefields.

Paid During Training

Civilian recruits are paid while in training. When put to work clearing real minefields, they are paid as high as 185 to 200 lire a day and, in addition, receive bonuses of 5, 10 and 15 lire for each mine cleared. They are also to be protected by an insurance plan being formulated by the Italian government.

Instructors for the civilian mine schools include 30 officers and non-commissioned officers of the Italian Army, who have been trained in mine-clearance technique at British military engineering schools. A recent AC report said of these instructors:

« Among them are many brave, fearless men who, by their courage and leadership, have inspired the squads working under them. The instructors and workers feel they are doing something for their country and the war effort. »

To assist the instructors, the Allied Commission has prepared a training manual in Italian with sketches for use by the instructors.

AC reported today that 200 men now are being trained in the Pisa school, 60 at Spoleto, and approximately 130 at Chieti. These men will soon be assigned to heavily mined areas, which include Frosinone, Anzio, Grosseto, Viterbo, Pisa, Siena, Florence, and Cassino on the west coast, and on the east coast the whole coastal route in addition to Chieti, Pescara, Macerata, and Ancona.

It had been estimated by AC experts that the number of German mines left by the retreating enemy were as follows:

Sardinia and Sicily	500,000
Frosinone	500,000
Grosseto	50,000
Viterbo	50,000
Pisa	75,000
Siena	50,000
Florence	40,000
Chieti and Pescara	100,000
Macerata	40,000
Ancona	30,000
	1,435,000

Hundreds of thousands of mines spread throughout southern Italy and in rural areas and small towns and villages, will bring the total to an estimated three million mines.

Mines a Civilian Problem

German mines, laid indiscriminately by a desperate, beaten enemy, have been one of the most pressing civilian problems in liberated Italy. Although no longer a hindrance to the Allied Armies, the mines have caused an almost complete stoppage of civilian activity in some sections, in addition to causing considerable inconvenience. In some cases German mines placed at the approaches to a destroyed key bridge have prevented repairs to the bridge. In other cases, there has been almost a complete cessation of cultivating land vitally needed for food production.

In the wake of their retreat, in addition to their dead and wounded, and their dwindling supplies, the Germans have left hundreds of thousands of mines, minefields, and booby traps in and around towns, along railroads and highways, and in malarial breeding areas. Nazi entomologists and malaria experts, together with Nazi army engineers, have supervised the deliberate mining and flooding of these malaria breeding areas as reprisal against the Italian civilian population.

In several instances the Germans, after destroying electric power stations, mined the approaches to the stations to prevent repairs.

Two Italian Army companies are operating now in several heavily mined areas. As an example of their success, the commanding officer of the one company reported that his unit had lifted and devitalized 67,000 mines, clearing 41,000 of them during the month of October.

Paid During Training

Civilian recruits are paid while in training. When put to work clearing real minefields, they are paid as high as 185 to 200 lire a day and, in addition, receive bonuses of 5, 10 and 15 lire for each mine cleared. Florence	40,000
Chieti and Pescara	100,000
Macerata	40,000
Ancona	30,000
	1,435,000

Hundreds of thousands of mines spread throughout southern Italy and in rural areas and small towns and villages, will bring the total to an estimated three million mines.

Although no accurate records on mine clearance have been kept, the AC recently compiled an estimate, principally from reports and figures supplied by the Italian Ministry of War. The following approximate figures cover all work done by the Allied armies, Italian military units, and civilian mine-clearance squads:

Sardinia	400,000
Sicily	100,000
Southern Italy	100,000
Abruzzi-Marche	100,000
Lazio-Umbria	100,000
Livorno and Pisa	100,000
	900,000

Since these figures were compiled, it is estimated, 100,000 other mines have been cleared.

In a recent report, the Allied Commission, explaining the need for Italian coöperation in mine clearance in Italy, stated:

«Modern war brings with it modern weapons of defense and attack. One of the weapons of defense has been the mine. The enemy, since his retreat from El Alamein, has made full use of this weapon and has laid many thousands of mines from El Alamein, through Sicily and Italy, up to his present positions. The Allied armies have continually had to overcome these obstacles. Their activities are essentially restricted to clearing lanes through minefields and mine belts to enable the advance to continue and clearing lines of communication. The Allied armies cannot spare personnel to clear up minefields in toto, and naturally thousands of mines are left uncleared. » (PWB-AC)

UNITED NATIONS

PEACE TERMS GIVEN TO « EAM » FORCES; ALEXANDER, MACMILLAN VISIT ATHENS

LONDON, December 12 — Terms for ending the civil war in Greece were given today to a representative of the EAM (National Liberation Front), in Athens, the Foreign Office announced here tonight.

The terms were handed the EAM emissary at the headquarters of Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece.

Renewed attempts to end the civil strife followed the arrival in the embattled city of Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean Theater, accompanied by Harold Macmillan, British Resident Minister in the Mediterranean area.

The official communique, issued by General Scobie and released here by the Foreign Office, said the following conditions were laid down for termination of hostilities:

1. ELAS (National Liberation Militia) troops must carry out the orders of General Scobie as units of his command.

2. All ELAS supporters in the Athens-Piraeus (the port of Athens) area must hand in their arms and evacuate the area.

3. When these conditions have been met, Field Marshal Alexander will « initiate the necessary steps to put an end to the present turmoil in Greece and restore to all Greeks, whatever their opinions, peaceful enjoyment of their democratic liberties. »

The EAM emissary, identified as Miltiades Porphyronyennia, former Communist member of the government, has returned to EAM headquarters to submit the peace terms to other leaders.

Intensified ELAS Resistance

Meanwhile, dispatches from Greece indicated that there has been an intensification of ELAS resistance, apparently in an attempt to force a decision in the fighting before large British reinforcements said to be en route to the scene can be landed.

A communique from General Scobie late this afternoon said that some reinforcements already have disembarked.

General Scobie said that « there has been no slackening of rebel resistance. » He reported some progress in the Piraeus and central sectors of the city, but added that the « general situation has improved little. »

« Shelling by rebels' 75 mm. guns which started yesterday was renewed this morning on an increased scale, causing a number of casualties, including a few killed, » the communique said. « In the city sector, there has been extensive infiltration into the areas cleared during the past few days. »

The communique reported that snipers, in many cases dressed as civilians, are active on all routes out of the city, and disclosed that mines laid on the main roads Sunday night had caused a few casualties among British troops. Mortar fire was again used in the attack on Navy House, in the Piraeus, where British naval units are stationed.

Correspondent's reports said that ELAS units were holding all the high ground around the city, with the exception behind the stadium in the southeastern section of the city, while Spitfires, Beaufighters, and Wellingtons were reported to have been in action yesterday against ELAS strongholds north and west of the city and west of the Piraeus.

Distribution of International Red Cross Supplies has been halted by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, it was reported. The decision to halt the food distribution followed armed assault on Red Cross trucks and the wounding of two UNRRA agents and one Red Cross worker.

British casualties in the fighting have been small, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in the House of Commons today. Mr. Eden made no announcement of the actual number of dead and injured.

U.K. LABOR PARTY RESOLUTION ON GREECE.

LONDON, December 12 — When the British Labor Party resumes its conference here tomorrow, the first business before it will be an emergency resolution on Greece drawn up by the party executive.

The Greek resolution calls upon the British Government to take all steps necessary to facilitate an immediate armistice. Also it urges the Government to initiate talks between all the anti-Fascist parties in Greece with a view of setting up a provisional government, which would then arrange for a free general election as soon as possible.

GREEK LABOR GROUP ON ATHENS STRIKE

ATHENS, December 12 — The Greek General Labor Confederation has sent messages to trade union organizations of Britain, the United States, France, and the Soviet Union, stating that the Athens strike is intended to secure the formation of a stable government for Greece.

The message said that the « working class will continue its struggle until the formation of a stable government of real national union, willing to satisfy the demands of a struggling nation. » (Reuter)

MORRISON ELECTED TO EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

LONDON, December 12 — British Home Secretary Herbert Morrison has been elected to the Executive Committee of the Labor Party, it was announced here today, the second day of the Party's annual conference.

The results of the balloting announced today also show that Arthur Greenwood, deputy leader of the Party in the House of Commons, has been reelected treasurer.

Other newcomers on the Executive Committee include Aneurin Bevan, one of the Government's sharpest critics in Parliament, and Doctor Edith Summerskill, a member of Parliament and a vigorous champion of women's rights.

A special resolution describing the Government's housing plans and proposals as « totally inadequate, and indicating a lack of realization of the extent and gravity of the problem, » was carried at the conference yesterday.

The resolution, which had been brought forward by the executive committee on housing and town planning, urged a bold and definite program of housing requirements for a number of years ahead. The needs of bombed-out families should be specially catered to, and, pending the nationalization of land, procedure for the compulsory acquisition of land for housing purposes should be speeded up and simplified.

Another resolution was passed calling on the Government to purchase with State funds land required for national planning, reconstruction, and housing, and suggesting that the cost should be repaid by the local authorities, who would have the land and houses so purchased. (Reuter)

Correspondent's reports said that ELAS units were holding all the high ground around the city, with the exception of the Acropolis, and increased shelling of the center of the city reached a peak this morning when, a BBC dispatch said, shells crashed down every few minutes for a period of three hours.

Last night, heavy fighting flared up between British troops holding the post office, and ELAS forces entrenched in the town hall. A British tank set fire to the ELAS stronghold, but this morning the ELAS units still had control of the building and also had infiltrated into adjacent streets, according to Reuter.

A number of apartment houses have been taken over by ELAS forces, while six small hotels commandeered in the southern part of the city have been barricaded and machine guns mounted on their roofs.

An American press service report said that about 25,000 ELAS troops have surrounded British positions and have established road blocks on main routes into the city. The dispatch added that the fighting is more severe than at any time since hostilities first broke out.

Police forces in Athens have been placed under the direct orders of the military governor of Attica, Reuter said, and 3,000 reinforcements are anticipated as a result of yesterday's order calling up four classes of Greek reserves.

Air action against the ELAS positions continued, RAF planes were said to have silenced a 75-mm. gun position

U.S. FOREIGN POLICY OBJECTIVES OUTLINED

WASHINGTON, December 12 — Five objectives of American foreign policy were outlined to legislators today by Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, who pledged postwar foreign trade expansion and urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to approve without delay the appointments of six members of his staff.

ing in the crowded Senate caucus room in hearings having a potentially heavy impact on world affairs, Mr. Stettinius said the State Department has these five major objectives:

« 1. The fullest possible support for our armed forces in the conduct of our foreign relations, so that the war may be won at the earliest possible moment.

« 2. Effective steps to keep Germany and Japan, after victory by the United Nations, from again acquiring the power to wage aggressive war.

« 3. Establishment at the earliest possible moment of a United Nations organization capable of building and maintaining the peace — by force if necessary — for generations to come.

« 4. Agreement on measures to promote a great expansion of our foreign trade and of productiveness and trade throughout the world, so that we can maintain full employment in our own country and, together with the other United Nations, enter an era of constantly expanding production and consumption and of rising standards of living.

« 5. Encouragement of all those conditions of international life favorable to the development by men and women everywhere of the institutions of a free and democratic way of life in accordance with their own customs and desires. »

In a prepared statement, Mr. Stettinius said that the State Department's task of building a lasting peace « can be accomplished only in full co-öperation with the Congress and with the participation, understanding, and support of the American people. »

« With the wise guidance of Cordell Hull, » his predecessor, he intended to « build up the strength » of the State Department, the Secretary said.

« We need a State Department which can carry out in the interests of the United States a liberal and forward-looking foreign policy with level-headed and business-like effectiveness. »

He referred to his prospective assistants as members of a team which he and President Roosevelt had chosen, and said that each was « wholly qualified by character, experience, and abilities » for the responsibilities he had been asked to assume.

The six nominees awaiting Senate confirmation are Joseph C. Grew, Nelson Rockefeller, Archibald MacLeish, Will L. Clayton, James C. Dunn, and Brig. Gen. Julius Holmes. (OWI)

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 12 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

East of Aix la Chapelle, yesterday, the Americans again attempted to force their way through our positions by the use of huge quantities of material. The U.S. infantry and tank formations, which attacked on a front 15 kilometers broad, were heavily mauled by the defensive fire of all our arms, and achieved only slight penetrations into our main lines in some sectors. Our artillery smashed the enemy attacks on the wings in their first stage.

The grim fighting is still in progress.

In the Saarlautern area, the enemy suffered high losses during grim fighting for pillboxes. Southeast of the town, enemy attempts at crossing the Saar with strong forces were frustrated.

On both sides of the lower Vosges, the fighting increased in grimness and extension.

Around Sarreguemines and southeast of it, the U.S. 3rd Army made only little gains.

Northeast of Hagenau, grim fighting is in progress against the enemy, who had advanced.

In southern Alsace, yesterday, the enemy limited himself to unsuccessful local attacks at Kaysersberg and on both sides of Thann.

London continued to be subjected to bombardment by our long-range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, in the Lamone sector, north of Russi, grim fighting developed against British formations who attacked under strong artillery protection. The enemy finally succeeded in establishing a small bridgehead on the western banks of the river, after having suffered high losses.

In the swampland north of Ravenna, our troops repulsed a forward enemy formation.

South of Bologna, enemy thrusts failed.

The enemy, during our operations against bands in northern Italy, lost 900 killed and 1,200 prisoners from December 1 to December 10.

Eastern Front:

On the Danube front, northwest of Esseg, an enemy bridgehead was smashed.

In Hungary, between the Drau and Lake Balaton, Soviet attacks remained unsuccessful, except for some minor penetrations.

North of Budapest, attempts of enemy forces at breaking through were frustrated or halted by the support of the German Air Force.

A reconnaissance detachment destroyed 20 enemy tanks in the course of this fighting. Bombers destroyed 25 Soviet tanks, and immobilized another 12, besides numerous other vehicles.

North of Miscolcz, the enemy in face of the stubborn resistance of our troops, made only small gains on both sides of the Sajo.

In the southern part of eastern Slovakia, our troops frustrated strong attacks on both sides of the Ungvar-Kaschau Road, inflicting high losses on the enemy.

Air:

Yesterday, Anglo-American terror bombers, protected by an overcast sky, penetrated western and southwestern Germany and dropped bombs on various towns, particularly in the Rhine-Main area. Residential districts were particularly damaged.

The Burg Theater and the State Opera House were set on fire during an American terror attack on Vienna.

Night nuisance raids were made on northwestern Reich territory.

Thirty-three enemy planes, most of them four-engined bombers, were brought down by the anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force. (Radio Berlin)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

GERMAN

Greece: The German Radio continues to exploit the Greek crisis, but devotes far less time to it than heretofore. The crisis is exploited both as anti-British and as anti-Communist propaganda, and the military difficulties of the British and government troops are stressed to the utmost.

The most sensational new item on this subject is a claim from DNB in Stockholm, attributed to anonymous British sources, that some of Britain's Indian troops in Salonika have begun «cooperation with political formations closely connected with ELAS and EAM organizations.»

Dittmar Commentary: General Dittmar, the best-known Nazi military analyst, tonight delivered his weekly radio address. He includes what is for him an unusually optimistic statement: «For the first time over a long period, the German military command has been feeling itself freed from the shortage of manpower and of material at crucial points.»

Dittmar on Western Front: Concerning the battle in the Aachen area of this front, General Dittmar says: «The American command had counted on forcing decisive successes, wearing down the German adversary by means of an unparalleled concentration of material... They will find it pretty difficult to face the Germans with surprises... Thus far, the attackers have had to make far heavier sacrifices than the defenders.»

Concerning the more southern sectors of the same front, Dittmar minimizes the «enemy penetration into the fortified line of Saarlautern» as «localized.» He voices his satisfaction over the presumed failure of the Allies' «ultimate aim of over-running the German fortifications.»

Eastern Front: A new aspect of the battle of Hungary, where the Russians are admitted to be advancing at some points, is the claim of an important renewal of large-scale activity by the long-absent Luftwaffe. The Transocean correspondent Blücher alleges that almost 1,000 German planes intervened in the fighting for Budapest, destroying Soviet supply columns, vehicles, and bridges. In fact, the German Air Force is given credit for «playing an essential rôle in the successful defensive fighting in the Hungarian theatre during the past 24 hours.»

GERMANS BRING IN FRESH DIVISION TO COUNTER-ATTACK 8TH ARMY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 11 — German forces facing British and Polish troops of the 8th Army which have enveloped Faenza and threaten to roll back the enemy's entire Lamone river line across the Po plain, yesterday threw in a reserve Panzer Grenadier division in a series of heavy counter-attacks. These counter-attacks forced Allied troops to yield up to 400 yards.

The Germans used infantry, tanks and self-propelled guns against the tightening cordon of 8th Army troops southwest of Faenza. The main enemy thrust bore southward from the village of Celle, two miles west of Faenza, against British forces holding a road junction about a mile west

Although bad weather made flying hazardous, fighters and fighter-bombers of the Desert Air Force furnished close support to the 8th Army troops, pouncing on enemy concentrations forming up to strike at the Allied lines, and even roaring over the battle area to bomb and strafe the Germans as they clashed with the British columns.

With the failure of large-scale attacks, the enemy resorted to infiltration tactics, sending small parties forward to penetrate the British forward positions. Artillery fire took heavy toll of these enemy forces when they were detected and brought under concentrated fire. Enemy forces also attempted a second series of attacks, mostly against the central and southern portions of the contested ridge line, but without success.

Italian Patriots

Official reports today credited Italian Patriot forces with clearing the enemy from Porto Corsini, six miles east of Ravenna and formerly the chief supply center of German barge traffic for the enemy forces on the Adriatic coast.

Enemy forces were still reported to be active in the area south of the Comacchio lagoon. They infiltrated through pine woods to engage forward positions of the Allied forces north of Ravenna. Allied patrols reported considerable flooding of the reclaimed farmlands northwest of Ravenna, along the shores of the salt lake.

On the 5th Army front, British forces on the right flank further improved their positions south of Imola yesterday. Elsewhere, patrol activity increased, and southwest of Bologna, in the Monte Belvedere area, where enemy forces successfully counter-attacked American forward positions some weeks ago, the enemy was reported to be preparing extensive minefields and barbed-wire entanglements.

TAF MADE 1,400 SORTIES YESTERDAY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 11 — Medium and fighter-bombers and fighters of the Tactical Air Force yesterday flew 1,400 sorties, the highest in more than three months, in their support of Allied armies pushing toward Bologna from the southeastern end of the Po Plain.

Of this record total, about 500 sorties were flown in close support of the 5th Army forces closing in on Faenza, anchor of the enemy's Lamone River line across the Po Plain.

A small force of Flying Fortresses attacked German communication targets in the Klagenfurt area with unobserved results.

The main enemy thrust bore southward from the village of Celle, two miles west of Faenza, against British forces holding a road junction about a mile west of the Lamone River. The British forces were driven back from this point, but finally halted the enemy within 400 yards south of it. It was in this attack that the bulk of the 90th Panzer Grenadier Division, one of the finest enemy formations in Italy, was employed.

Despite the weight of their attacks, the Germans failed to attain their objective — a group of three hills stretching from San Prospero, within a mile of Faenza, southwest for three miles to the hilltown of Pideura. The northernmost and lowest of these three hills lies due south of Celle. The enemy attack against this position was brought to a halt just short of the northern end of the knoll.

Second counter-attack

Simultaneously with the main German attack, a second strong enemy force struck across the Tanna Creek, an eastern tributary of the Senio, towards the center and largest of the three ridges, three and a half miles southwest of Faenza. Although the impetus of their attack carried the German forces to the top of the ridge — on both sides of the hamlet of Castel Raniero — they were driven back.

Still a third enemy counter-attack was aimed at Pideura itself, on the southernmost of the three ridges, some five miles southwest of Faenza. This attack was put in at dawn, but was likewise repulsed.

LATE BULLETINS

ONE BULLET SAVES HAGENAU BRIDGE

WITH THE U.S. 7TH ARMY, December 11 — The rapid drive into the city of Hagenau today was made possible largely through the efforts of one American soldier, the BBC said tonight.

As the American forces approached the River Moder, a German army engineer rushed to the bridge to detonate the demolition charges. The soldier saw him and shot him dead with his first shot, permitting the bridge to be taken intact. (BBC)

7TH ARMY ADVANCES TOWARD GERMANY

LONDON, December 11 — American 7th Army forces which captured Reichshofen today, drove north of Neiderbronn tonight and are now within mortar range of the German border, a Reuter dispatch reported.

Other 7th Army units made a six-mile advance southeast of Hagenau along the southern fringe of the Hagenau forest and are within four miles of the Rhine. (Reuter)

General Wilson, who is going to Washington as chief of the British Joint Staff Mission praised the « Common and steadfast purpose » of the Allied troops, in a farewell message to the men of his command.

In a final general order to his troops the General said: « I wish to send my warmest thanks to all ranks in all services, military and civilian of the many Allied Nations who have served under me in this theater.

« It has been a unique experience for me to have been placed in command of this immense force drawn from so many different nations. The successes which we have been enabled to achieve together during the past year have, in my view, been due to the common and steadfast purpose which has united us all. I hope that this unity of purpose will be still further strengthened and increased in the months and years to come, not only until the war has been won but far on into the future.

« The symbol chosen by General Eisenhower for the original Allied Forces was a torch — a torch of freedom. I now hand this torch on to my successor, Field Marshal Alexander, and I know that I can rely on all to extend to him the same unwavering support which you have so generously given to me. » (PRO)

U.S. IST ARMY THREE MILES FROM DUREN

LONDON, December 11 — American 1st Army forces, which yesterday launched a powerful attack toward the Roer River, moved through minefields today to reach the outskirts of Merken three miles north of Duren. The control of Merken would complete Allied domination of the entire west bank of the Roer from Duren to Linnich. German forces are reported to be pulling back to the east bank.

Just to the south, American tanks and infantry closed up to the high ground overlooking the Roer and captured three small towns after hard fighting in snow and rain and through thick mud. They have reached positions less than a half mile from the river, as a force of 500 Allied planes struck at targets in advance of ground troops.

On the 1st Army's northern flank, 9th Army troops are patrolling the entire west bank of the Roer and a staff spokesman said that they were now ready to proceed to their next assignment on the east bank of the river. There has been no attempt as yet to cross the river in strength.

On the British 2nd Army front, the Germans cut another dyke yesterday southwest of Arnhem, causing flood waters to spread eastward. Allied planes yesterday breached a dam north of Nijmegen flooding German positions in that area.

Seventh Army forces, advancing north toward Germany, today captured the important supply and communications center of Hagenau, on a hard surface highway to Karlsruhe, Germany. Troops of the 79th Division, after a two-week battle on the town's outskirts, already have pressed on a mile north of the large Alsace city.

House-to-house fighting

To the northwest, 7th Army forces fought their way into the city of Reichshofen, while further south other forces occupied Griesbach. American units are still engaged in heavy house-to-house fighting in Merzweiler, between Reichshofen and Hagenau.

French and American troops advancing southward from Strasbourg have been forced to adjust their positions along the Ill River owing to flooding from recent snow and rain along the Colmar road. French troops made substantial gains through the Bonhomme Pass although poor terrain and flooded streams are making the advance difficult.

In the battle for the Saar Basin, American 3rd Army forces threw back 11 strong German counter-attacks within [illegible] around the Allied bridgeheads over the Saar in

The Associated Press said this was « the greatest fleet of four-engined craft ever mounted in aerial warfare. »

British Lancasters and Halifaxes, escorted by Spitfires and Mustangs, hit three German cities in the Ruhr before noon. The combined operations today shook Germany from three sides in the European theater. The RAF struck at railyards and a fuel plant at Osterfeld and refineries at Meiderick and Bruckhausen. One bomber is missing, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

USAAF headquarters said tonight that the armada of planes which flew across the Rhine today left England in five great forces, totalling nearly 300 miles long. Rumbling overhead for an hour and a half were more than 7,000 aircraft engines generating a total power greater than the output of four bolder dams. There were 16,800 airmen, more than in a combat division on the ground, participating in the operation. Twelve U.S. bombers and two fighters failed to return.

One fighter group left the bombers and dived down to explode eight locomotives near Kassel.

Important war plants

Frankfurt not only is the center of Germany's chemical industry, but also has important junction roads and railways. The Amsterdam-Cologne highway joins four other important roads to Hanover, Leipzig, Vienna and Basle here. Frankfurt also is an inland port.

Hanau has several industrial plants important to the German war effort. Like Frankfurt, it is is on the River Main. Giessen, about 35 miles north of Frankfurt, is a railway junction and has important industries.

The targets singled out by the Italy-based planes were the Moosbierbaum oil refinery and the south ordnance depot and freight yards in the Vienna area. Despite protective enemy smoke screens, the Moosbierbaum plant was located by the new instrument bombardment technique, and great columns of black smoke from bomb explosions rose above the smoke screen. The enemy ordnance plant was only partially obscured by smoke screens, and good results were reported.

RAF fighter-bombers, without loss, today continued their attacks on rocket sites in Holland. Direct hits were scored on a V-2 railway situated between a hospital and residential area.

It the Duren area before Cologne, Thunderbolts blasted a train of 25 flat cars with 50 tiger tanks aboard which were being rushed to reinforce the front under attack by the U.S. 1st and 9th armies.

Five freight cars loaded with petrol in the marshalling yards at Lingen, were hit by the 2nd Tactical Air Force.

The British Ministry of Home Security announced today that German flying bombs had killed 716 persons during November. The announcement added that 511 persons were wounded throughout the United Kingdom by the missiles.

The Ministry said that some damage and a few casualties were inflicted on southern England by flying bombs sent over last night.

Ruhr Coke Ovens

Explaining why the RAF today bombed German benzol plants the Air Ministry tonight said: « Now that all synthetic oil plants in the Ruhr are out of action for the time being, the most important sources of motor fuel in western Germany is in Ruhr coke ovens and tar distillation plants which produce benzol as a by-product. Eight of these are wholly or partly out of action.

The Germans have increased their concentration of artillery by 50 per cent, reports said, and are firing an estimated 6,000 shells a day into American positions.

House-to-house fighting was reported today in the northern suburbs of Saarlautern and troops of the 95th Division are making slow progress. Inside the city, the Germans have driven tanks into houses and are using them as strongpoints. An additional 25 German pillboxes were captured.

American forces southeast of Saargemund are fighting in a heavily-wooded area and have made gains of up to a mile. The German use of Maginot Line fortresses in this area has been overcome and American forces are now well beyond the French defense line. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

3,500 U.S. PLANES USED IN RECORD STRAFE

ROME, December 11 — More than 3,500 American planes from bases in Italy and Britain dropped an estimated 10,000 tons of explosives on Germany and German occupied territory today in the biggest air assault of the war.

A force of 1,600 heavy bombers from 8th USAAF bases in Britain, escorted by 800 fighters, dropped 6,000 tons on western Germany's rail centers at Frankfurt, Hanau and Giessen, while 1,100 planes of the 15th USAAF in Italy hit targets in the Vienna area.

WEST FRONT CAMPAIGN AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON, December 11 — Paris was liberated 60 days ahead of the Allied schedule and France and Belgium are being cleared of the enemy months ahead of the time originally set by Allied military leaders, Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said in a nation-wide broadcast last night.

Patterson, calling for increased war production, said needs for the accelerated battle pace must be met. «We are in the midst of a hard struggle, not at the end of it,» he said.

Describing the tremendous cost of the war in weapons and ammunition, the Under Secretary of War said: «In three months we used 300 million rounds of small arms ammunition, four and a half million rounds of 105 millimeter ammunition, one and a quarter million rounds for our 150 millimeter guns, four-fifths of our dump trucks, half of our mortars, and hundreds upon hundreds of tanks, fighter planes, bombers and jeeps. That was the expenditure that carried us to the borders of Germany, helped us to bag prisoners by the hundreds of thousands, saved countless lives of our men, and brought peace that much closer.

«But that was only a part of the war. Beyond that there were Italy, Saipan, the Marianas, the Philippines, the bombing attacks on Tokyo, the needs of our Allies at Warsaw and Budapest, the fighting in Burma and in China. Our soldiers everywhere are fighting grim and hard battles, winning them at a severe cost of lives and weapons but still saving lives by the prodigious use of weapons smashing the way through enemy lines wherever possible with materials instead of men.» (OWI)

U. S. CONGRESSMEN VISIT EISENHOWER

SHAEF, December 11 — The 17 United States Congressmen who are touring European battlefronts yesterday visited General Eisenhower at Supreme Headquarters.

The group, which constitutes the majority of the Military Affairs Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives, asked General Eisenhower about the American shortage of shells. He told them that fluctuating conditions of warfare and weather had upset previous estimates of shell requirements, adding that the main point was that more ammunition was needed in the shortest possible time.

General Eisenhower said that France will share with the other Allied nations in the eventual occupation of the Reich. (OWI)

RED ARMY'S SILENT MOVE ACROSS DANUBE

MOSCOW, December 11 — Red Army troops fanned out to the northeast and northwest of captured Miskolc in a maneuver which dispatches stated, threatens to cut off two large German forces between Kosice to the north and Lucenec to the west. Tonight's Soviet communique announced that a number of large towns and railway junctions had been taken in the new thrust.

At besieged Budapest, German forces were reported to be withdrawing from the blazing city leaving only rearguards. Russian artillery shelled the Hungarian capital from the north, east and south as Red Army planes bombed and strafed German columns falling back along the road to Vienna. The Germans, in their hasty retreat, are leaving their wounded and equipment behind.

German SS troops are reported to have been sent into the battle at the gates of the capital backed by tanks and mobile guns while the main German force retreated.

There has been no further news of Soviet progress on Chepel Island to the south of Budapest which forms a natural land spearhead into the city. Fighting is, however, believed to be heavy as the northern end of the island is vital to the German garrison.

The Russian move which gained them a foothold on Chepel Island and which brought them to the west bank of the Danube was made in absolute silence. Russian infantrymen embarked in pontoons and with muffled oars rowed across the stream at night. Russian sappers dragged hundreds of pontoons, each weighing a ton, across the island. They could not use motor transport for fear of detection. By dawn, they had surged forward sweeping German resistance from their path to form a bridgehead nine miles long on the western bank of the Danube.

The Soviet communique reported that 35 German tanks were knocked out of battle yesterday and that five German planes were shot down.

MARSHAL TITO'S HEADQUARTERS, YUGOSLAVIA, [illegible] Yugoslav forces are continuing to press [illegible]

The entire Japanese garrison of Ormoc has been wiped out and huge supplies of war material have been seized, tonight's communique said.

Headquarters of the 21st Bomber Command on Saipan revealed that two Superfortresses attacking Tokyo seven hours apart had rekindled fires in the enemy capital that could be seen for 85 miles, and set off explosions in the harbor area.

Other American planes struck again at strategic Japanese air installations on Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands, Pacific Fleet Headquarters at Pearl Harbor announced today.

Preparation of Guam as Admiral Nimitz' Pacific headquarters is almost complete and he will soon move there from Pearl Harbor, a New York Times correspondent reported today.

The dispatch added that during the past four months engineers and seabees assisted by almost all of Guam's 22,000 population have worked to made Guam, che actual heart of the Pacific war.

Guam is the southernmost of the Marianas group of islands and about 4,000 miles west of Pearl Harbor and about 1,560 miles from Tokyo. (OWI - Reuter)

CHINESE DRIVE JAPS FROM KWEICHOW PROVINCE

CHUNGKING, December 11 — Japanese forces have been expelled completely from Kweichow Province and driven back over the Kwangsi border, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Earlier it was announced that Chinese troops had recaptured Liuchai, just over the frontier in Kwangsi Province.

Less than two weeks ago, the Japanese were driving into Kweichow toward the Burma Road stronghold of Kweiyang. After penetrating about 70 miles into Kweichow they retreated to Liming and now to the border.

The deepest penetration of the Japanese was to within 70 miles of Kweiyang, a potential springboard for drives on Kunming, 300 miles southwest, or to Chungking, 200 miles northwest.

In Burma, Allied forces were reported to be closing in on strategic points from six directions in moves which, press dispatches said, were preparatory to a drive to liberate Mandalay.

British 14th Army troops which crossed the Chindwin River in the Sittaung area within the past few days, have closed to within 60 miles of British 36th Division forces, an American correspondent said. A junction of these elements would seal off many Jap stragglers in the north of Burma and forge a strong weapon for a drive on Mandalay.

The British troops driving south down the railroad from captured Mytkyina also took the rail junction of Naba, as reported two days ago. At Naba the forces split, one of them turning to the left along the branch line and advancing against meager Japanese opposition for nearly 20 miles to get inside the Irrawaddy River port of Katha. The remainder of the force continued along the main line known as «the railway corridor» to Mandalay. Today's Southeast Asia Command communique reported that the troops have taken the town of Indaw, a way-station on the corridor.

The Japanese have resorted to using mines along the railway approach to Mandalay, but opposition from troops has been slight, press dispatches reported.

Chinese troops which by-passed the Irrawaddy River port of Bhamo are now 40 miles south of it and constitute the other wing of the Burma advance on Mandalay.

YUGOSLAVS APPROACHING VINKOVCI

MARSHAL TITO'S HEADQUARTERS, YUGOSLAVIA, December 11 — Yugoslav forces are continuing to press toward Vinkovci, in Slavonia, and have reached points within five miles of the town, today's communique said.

To the south, other Yugoslav forces approached Zupanja, on the Sava River north of the Bosnian border. In the Vukovar sector, Yugoslav troops, who entered the town on Friday, have now occupied half of it and armored clashes and street fighting are continuing. In Slavonia, about 30 miles west of Vinkovci, a German column was routed near Dakovo and in the Drina River Valley German communications are being harassed by Yugoslavs from Serbia and Bosnia, the communique said.

As the Germans attempt to secure communications with Sarajevo, in central Yugoslavia, fighting in this area is becoming fiercer. Fighting is continuing against German columns which are driving north to Brod.

Yugoslav units have captured the town of Danilovgrad and are approaching Podgorica, the communique said.

Today's Southeast Asia Command communique reported that the troops have taken the town of Indaw, a way-station on the corridor.

The Japanese have resorted to using mines along the railway approach to Mandalay, but opposition from troops has been slight, press dispatches reported.

Chinese troops which by-passed the Irrawaddy River port of Bhamo are now 40 miles south of it and constitute the other wing of the Burma advance on Mandalay.

Meanwhile, by-passed Bhamo is receiving concentrated fire from heavy artillery as the Chinese pound out the last cores of Japanese resistance in the town, today's communique stated. (PWB-OWI-BBC)

HIGH GERMAN CASUALTIES OF NO AVAIL

LONDON, December 11 — Discussing Goebbel's latest article in Das Reich, today's Daily Telegraph reviews some other aspects of the course of the war apart from the prodigious effect, implicit in every sentence of the Goebbels «pep talk» of Allied air supremacy.

The paper said: «Casualties, for example, are a good barometer. Enemy losses during the past three weeks on the Western Front have been at only a slightly lower rate than during the previous five months, which included the period of (German) collapse in France and Belgium. As for the other front, though figures are not available separately, casualties totaling about 2,300,000 have been incurred. What has the enemy gained for that?

«In Italy, in spite of appalling weather, he has not succeeded in saving Ravenna. His losses in Yugoslavia have been extremely heavy, but have not secured the escape of the German army from the Balkans. Any reinforcement from the south is made difficult for the hard-pressed defenders of Germany's back door in Hungary.

«The pattern on the Western Front is the same as on the others. The enemy cannot keep the whole of it static, even in winter. That will continue to be the pattern. There is no gleam of hope in it for Goebbels. The view on the ground is no more encouraging than the view in the air ».

BOMBING OF OIL TARGETS VITAL WAR FACTOR

LONDON, December 11 — The present strategic bombing of Nazi oil production plants «may well prove to be conclusive in the final defeat of Germany,» Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair predicted today.

He continued: «Official Allied air communiques for weeks have told with significant consistency of attack after attack on synthetic oil refineries, storage tanks, railroad tank cars and the few fields still producing in an obvious effort further to deplete Germany's dwindling oil supply.»

Allied air attacks on German industry in western Europe have forced the enemy to withdraw the bulk of his fighter planes from Russia and divert many bombers to night-fighter work, Sinclair added.

The four years of attacks by Allied air forces on the Ruhr, the Renault works in Paris and industrial plants in western Germany had developed, «a threat to the heart of Germany,» Sinclair said, and had caused the enemy to deploy in western Europe less than a third of his available fighter planes as early as June, 1942, a proportion which has grown far higher since then.

«Hammer blows rained down on German aircraft centers by the 8th and 9th U.S. air forces and by RAF Bomber Command virtually reduced the Luftwaffe to impotence by the spring of 1944, which was a vital preliminary to our success on D-day», he said.

The deficiencies in armaments which the Germans were found to be suffering after the Normandy invasion were «largely due to the disruption of production achieved by the strategic air offensive,» Sinclair concluded. (OWI)

NAZIS MANOEUVRE TO SAVE FUNDS

WASHINGTON, December 11 — Important German industrialists have publicly broken with the Nazi Party and severed all connections with it on the orders of high Nazi officials, Radio Moscow reported quoting Berne dispatches. The industrialists have been ordered to save the capital acquired by Party leaders during their rule in Germany and will maintain secret contact despite their pretended withdrawal from the Party.

While the continuance of National Socialism after Germany's defeat is being planned on high levels, Goebbels has been considerably concerned with the huge losses suffered by the German armies. Retail coal labor has been transferred to the armament industry in large numbers.

ITALIAN ANTI-FASCISTS RETURN HOME

ROME, December 11 — Ten prominent Italian anti-Fascists who fled to Switzerland after the Italian armistice with the Allies on September 8, returned here today. Soon after their arrival here they conferred with Prime Minister Bonomi.

The group was composed of Senator Luigi Einaudi; Duke Thomas Gallarati-Scotti, recently named Italian Ambassador to Spain; Professor Francesco Carnelutti; Enrico Boeri; Luigi Gasparetto, former minister of war; Professor Concetto Marchesi; Professor Colonnetti; Cipriano Facchinetti, Stefano Jacini and the eldest son of Vittorio Orlando, president of the Chamber of Deputies.

Senator Einaudi told a UNN reporter today that he had escaped to Switzerland on September 23, 1943 through a pass in the Alps. On arriving in Switzerland, he was interned for five days before being freed. An estimated 40,000 Italians had crossed over into Switzerland following the fall of Mussolini, he added. About half of these, were former members of the Italian armed forces.

Jacini, former Italian Popular Party deputy and now a member of the Christian Democratic Party, brought to Prime Minister Bonomi the greetings of the Swiss section of the Italian Committee of National Liberation, of which he was the first president. Jacini said he crossed the Swiss-Italian border « without serious difficulty. » He related how he had taken part in many secret meetings of the CNL.

His position, he said, became untenable when Roberto Farinacci, Fascist Republican editor of the Cremona newspaper « Cremona Nuova », published a facsimile of his signature and those of his friends to the July 26 manifesto.

of the CNL. He also was interned on entering Switzerland but was soon released and sought shelter at the residence of the Bishop of Lugano.

Facchinetti said he went to France in 1926. In 1942 he was arrested in Marseilles and brought back to Italy to be lodged in the Regina Coeli prison here, where he remained till July 29, 1943. After the armistice he escaped to Switzerland. (UNN)

SOCIALISTS WILL KEEP PACT WITH COMMUNISTS

NAPLES, December 11 — Pietro Nenni, Italian Socialist Party leader, renewed the Socialist pledge of collaboration with the Communist Party and forecast a «Committee of National Liberation Victory in Milan,» when he addressed the Naples Socialist Assembly yesterday during a stopover here en route to London.

Speaking of Socialist-Communist collaboration, Nenni said:

«Certainly there will be difficulties in our relationships in the present circumstances, but they can easily be surmounted if members of both parties realize that disagreement between the two parties will result in a rebirth of Fascism».

Nenni regretted the decision of the Communist Party to enter the new four-party Bonomi government, but added that «Socialist action outside can coincide with the Communist action within the Government councils.

«Socialist opposition to the government,» Nenni declared, «will be constructive and will take into account the exigencies of war.

«The duty of the Socialist Party is to make the people democratically aware of the problems which Italy faces in liquidating Fascism,» and rebuilding Italy. (UNN) out the night. ELAS patrols were active during the night, mining streets and highways, particularly those leading to the northern suburbs.

This morning, RAF Spitfires again strafed the stadium in the eastern section which has been converted into a strongpoint by several hundred ELAS troops. These troops have taken up positions in the subterranean passages of the stadium. Yesterday's bombing by RAF Spitfires and Wellingtons in the foothills of the Imolto Mountains was intended to smash an ELAS attempt to enter the city from the southeast. The ELAS strategy was to split British forces in the center of the city, and Greek regulars in the eastern suburbs, according to a British United Press report.

Shells fall in City

Shells dropped in the center of the city this afternoon, presumably from ELAS artillery, the BBC said. Reuter reported that a «large-scale sweep of eastern suburbs» had been started at dawn today by British units.

A Turkish radio broadcast said that the Turkish steamer Konya, chartered to carry food supplies to Greece by Turkish welfare organizations, is being detained in port until the disorders cease.

Red Cross kitchens have been closed temporarily, a Greek radio broadcast said, but will re-open when peace is restored. The military authorities, in co-operation with British-American relief groups, are dealing with the food emergency. Food and fuel sufficient for three days will be sent to all civil and military hospitals, including ELAS hospitals, at the discretion of the Swedish and Swiss Joint Relief Commission. Medical supplies also are to be distributed.

Bakeries received flour today under terms of an ELAS guarantee that the trucks distributing the food would not be interfered with.

A Reuter report said that ELAS prisoners are placed in custody of Greek police and the Greek Mountain Brigade. Following reports of brutal handling of the prisoners, the report added, British inspectors are visiting police stations and prison camps to see that the prisoners are given fair treatment. BRITISH LABOR SUPPORTS CHURCHILL

LONDON, December 11 — The British Labor Party today voted to continue its support of Prime Minister Churchill's Government until the defeat of Germany. But once peace is won in Europe, the Party will insist on a general election in Britain in which it will stand for the principles of «no peace of revenge» and a post-war world built on the policy of collective security.

At the annual convention of the party Harold Laski, the chairman, made a plea for full-party participation in the solution of world problems arising from the war.

Laski also pledged support of the Labor Party in the war against Japan.

«We have no words too strong in which to condemn the ruthless cruelty of the Japanese,» he said. «We look with eagerness to the day when Japan no longer dominates the Asiatic world.

«Let us above all remember that this war has been fought in vain if it has not taught us the need to end the power of any people to gamble on the hopes of successful aggression. Collective security is the only road which can make possible the maintenance of a civilized way of living.»

Arthur Greenwood, leader of the Opposition said that «labor is in the war to the end.» Calling for continued co-operation with the Churchill Government, he said that it would be a grave mistake to withdraw support at the present time. (OWI-BBC-Reuter)

MORE BRITISH TROOPS FOR ATHENS

ATHENS, December 11 — Following yesterday's heavy fighting in the eastern area of the city, relative quiet prevailed today but press reports indicated that both ELAS (National Liberation Militia) and Government and British forces were calling up reinforcements to strengthen their positions.

A Reuter report said that additional British units are on their way to reinforce General Scobie's troops. All Greek reservists in the classes of 1914 through 1917, inclusive, residing in the Government-controlled sections of the city, had been called up by order of Prime Minister Papandreou, issued in his capacity as Minister of War.

It is estimated that there are from 15,000 to 25,000 ELAS troops deployed. They are entrenched in the eastern section of the city and in the northern approaches. They also control most of the Piraeus. Additional forces are said to be advancing on territory held by right wing EDES troops, commanded by General Zervas, in the Epirus district of western Greece.

Heavy rain caused a lull in the fighting last night, although demolition and spasmodic shelling continued through-

SOVIET-FRENCH PACT NEW TRIUMPH FOR FRANCE

WASHINGTON, December 11 — The agreement reached yesterday in Moscow between Marshal Stalin and General de Gaulle, constitutes another step in the resumption of traditional policy of co-operation between France and Russia.

Immediately after the defeat of Germany in the last war, France started to coordinate her common interests with Russia. It took Hitler's bid for power, however, to sufficiently arouse public opinion in France to permit a French government to re-establish the entente that had existed between France and Russia before 1914.

It was in May, 1932, that Herriot's cabinet secured from the Chamber of Deputies a ratification of a Franco-Russian non-aggression pact. Three years later, both countries decided that a mere non-aggression pact was not enough in face of the obvious danger of Nazi aggression. Therefore, a five-year pact of mutual military assistance was signed and, in February, 1936, it was ratified by Sarraut's government, which succeeded the government of Pierre Laval.

Five years later, another pact was concluded in London, when both Russia and the Free French Movement pledged themselves to mutual aid in the «fight against Germany until final victory was achieved.» The Soviet Union also pledged itself «after the victory over the common enemy, to support the restoration of the independence and greatness of France.»

«The new treaty,» said the London Times today, «marks a new and hopeful stage in building up a system of security in Europe. The Alliance extends and powerfully reinforces the momentous treaty into which Great Britain and Russia entered more than two years ago and which has been such a factor in waging war to a victorious issue, and in fashioning constructively the coming peace.

«It was always a British hope that the treaty would be a model and incentive for others.»

Logical Alliance

The New York Times described the alliance as a natural and logical partnership between the two countries most immediately menaced by Germany, and called it «a new personal triumph for De Gaulle and a new triumph for France.»

«It is natural that Germany's neighbors, who are most immediately menaced by her, should seek to cement alliances among themselves,» the paper added. «An alliance between France and Russia is the most logical of that kind, so logical, indeed, that such an alliance existed before the last war and before this war. The new pact serves both to reassure Russia and to demonstrate France's independence.»

The French press also hailed the alliance as an essential guarantee of European peace.

«This pact not only renews the former alliance between the two great powers but constitutes one of the principal elements offered to the United Nations for ensuring the peace for which they are fighting,» Liberation Soir said.

Will Keep an eye on Germany

Radio Moscow said yesterday that Germany was one of the chief subjects in the «very satisfactory discussions» between Marshal Stalin and General de Gaulle.

«On both sides very great satisfaction is expressed about the happy outcome of the very detailed and extensive negotiations which have enabled both powers to become acquainted with their respective war and peace policies,» the broadcast said.

«As may be imagined, Germany was one of the chief subjects of the discussion. In this connection, the Soviet and French governments entirely agree on the vital necessity for both countries of preventive opposition to any German initiative which might disturb the peace after the defeat of Hitler and his confederates.

«The whole European situation in the present and in the future was also carefully examined. On both sides it was felt that the pact not only renews the old alliance between two great continental powers, but constitutes one of the principal factors by which the United Nations will insure the peace for which they are fighting.»

Russian newspapers said yesterday that the Allied powers must completely liquidate Fascism in Europe to win the peace.

Hailing the victorious war-time alliance of Britain, The United States and the Soviet Union, Red Star declared that «freedom-loving nations face the task of clearing liberated territories of political time bombs. This time, Germany must be disarmed militarily, politically and economically.»

Pravda warned: «It is necessary to march vigilantly against the intrigues of Hitlerites in 'neutral countries' as well as the activities of collaborationists in countries liberated from German oppression.» (OWI)

CITIZENS REPAIRING MULHOUSE

NEW YORK, December 11 — The citizens of Mulhouse are rehabilitating their city and are handling their own civil affairs as French artillery fires on the Germans still remaining in the city's suburbs, correspondents reported yesterday.

Although Mulhouse is still in the front lines, its people are working to help the new French Army which is driving the Germans back across the Rhine. Local units of the French Forces of the Interior have taken over police duties. Civilians have taken care of transportation, housing and feeding as well as the general administration of the city.

People are cleaning away the rubble and are helping in the search for German troops still hiding in the city.

After four years of exile from Alsace, former Mayor Auguste Wicky has returned to resume the direction of civil affairs.

The French break-through into Alsace was so swift that the Germans were unable to dismantle the large factories they had taken to France after Allied bombings in Germany. (OWI)

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 11 — Today's communique:

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 11 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

British troops of the 8th Army have been engaged in bitter fighting southwest of Faenza, where a large-scale German counter-attack against our bridgehead over the River Lamone has been decisively defeated with heavy losses to the enemy.

In the 5th Army sector, patrols have been active without any appreciable alteration to the forward positions.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Light bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters of the Tactical Air Force, out in great strength yesterday, concentrated against rail communications on the Brenner Route, on the Udine Route into Italy, and in the Po Valley. Successful attacks were also made against enemy-occupied buildings, gun positions and road and rail transport in the battle areas of northern Italy.

Enemy defense positions in the Faenza area and a barracks near Bologna were attacked by medium bombers.

A small force of heavy bombers attacked a rail target in Austria, while strategic fighters strafed a rail road between Salzburg and Munich.

Small shipping in the Gulf of Venice was attacked by coastal aircraft.

In these operations five enemy aircraft were destroyed and 15 of ours are missing.

MAAF flew over 2,100 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

In the eastern suburbs some progress has been made in clearing areas, but the situation in Athens and the Piraeus remains unchanged. Offensive activity in the area is being increased by rebel forces. Sniping and mortar fire is on an increasing scale and has been directed against the Royal Navy headquarters in the Piraeus.

Supported by tanks, regular Greek units engaged in clearing areas in the eastern suburbs, destroyed or captured many weapons including two 37 millimeter anti-tank guns and dispersed a strong concentration of rebel troops.

Stiff opposition is being met in clearing the shore east of the port but further progress has been made in the Piraeus.

Around Salonika and Patras there is evidence of considerable guerrilla activities, but elsewhere in Greece no change has been reported.

Fortifications and earthworks have been reported being dug. (PRO) made one mile east of Luchem and fighting is in progress in Obergeich east of Langerwehe.

Medium bombers attacked fortified villages in Birkesdorf, Huchem, and Stammeln near Düren and fighter-bombers supported our ground forces in this sector.

Three miles northeast of Hürtgen our units are fighting house-to-house in Gey and in the village of Stross. Schafberg, in the same area, has been cleared.

In the Saar Valley, where fighter-bombers supported our ground forces, two counter-attacks by enemy infantry and tanks have been repulsed in the Dillingen area.

At Saarlautern our forces are still fighting in the town and improving their position east of the Saar River in that area.

Another crossing of the Saar has been made in Saargemünd and house-to-house fighting is in progress in the town east of the river.

Two enemy counter-attacks with infantry and armor were repulsed near Saarcinsmingen and our troops advanced through Le Grand Bois. We reached Rederchingen seven miles southeast of Saargemünd.

Our troops entered Hagenau against stiff resistance and fighting continues. Gains were also made south and east of the town.

Limited progress was made at the foot of the Vosges Mountains northwest of Colmar. Farther south, Thann has been cleared.

Medium bombers attacked a railway bridge at Neu Breisach. Transportation targets in northern and eastern Holland and in Germany were objectives yesterday for fighter-bombers. Among targets hit were railway yards at Wierten and Borken. Medium bombers attacked a canal lock at Zutphen. (Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 11 — Today's communique:

During violent clashes which took place in the Monte Cruppa zone between Patriots and Germans, the latter lost many men, including 6 dead. Patriot losses amounted to only a few wounded.

West of the Tagliamento, German SS and Fascist troops launched attacks from various directions on November 27.

In the direction of Forgaria, in Udine province, the enemy was stopped after bitter engagements; other columns were decidedly repulsed by the Patriots at Solimbergo; still others succeeded in penetrating into Medano and onto the high ground west of Peonis. Fighting, which is characterized by particular stubbornness on the part of the Patriots, continues in this area. (UNN)

Italy:

In central Italy, southwest of Faenza, fierce enemy attacks on our new positions collapsed in our concentrated fire. In the swampland north and northwest of Ravenna, yesterday, the fighting flared up.

Eastern Front:

On the banks of the Danube, our troops smashed the enemy bridgehead northwest of Vukovar. An enemy regiment was virtually wiped out. Strong Soviet attacks southeast of the town failed.

In Hungary, between the Drau and Lake Balaton as well as at the straits of Stuhlweissenburg, the Bolsheviks launched unsuccessful isolated attacks. Attempts by strong Soviet infantry and tank forces at broadening the penetration northeast of Budapest were frustrated in fierce fighting. In one sector, seventeen out of an attacking force of eighteen tanks were destroyed.

In the Miscolcz sector and in the southern part of eastern Slovakia, the Bolsheviks intensified their attacks by throwing several fresh rifle divisions and tank formations into the battle. Their attempts at breaking through were frustrated with heavy losses to the enemy by the steadfastness of our divisions. North of Miscolcz, countersteps have been taken to deal with local penetrations.

Air:

Yesterday, the Reich territory on both sides of the Rhine was the target of enemy planes flying at a low altitude. In addition, USAAF terror bombers attacked several localities, particularly the towns Koblenz and Bingen.

Sea:

Our submarines striking at the enemy communications, sank five ships totalling 34,000 tons and two destroyers. (Radio-Berlin)

GERMAN

Greek Crisis: The German Overseas Radio calls the situation in northern Greece a « powder keg » and says that « great numbers of Communists » have infiltrated into Salonika.

Meanwhile, over the overseas radio, Dr. Naumann of the Reich Ministry of Propaganda made a statement to a mass meeting, giving the following propaganda twist to the crisis: « Occupation by the Allies is followed by a wave of disorder and riots. Germany has never ceased to point out that the western world must decide whether to fight, like Germany, for existence or to become a victim of Bolshevism. »

Ghost Voice Heckles German Radio: During the above broadcasts, a mysterious ghost speaker interrupted with anti-Nazi comments, which the German Radio was apparently unable to eliminate. For example, when the German speaker said, « The food situation is desperate, » the unknown voice cried: « Germany's situation is desperate; soon it will crack. »

Western Front: German sources appear to be uncertain as to exactly where the next big Allied blow will strike on this front. Sertorius reports that in the battle area between the Meuse and the Eifel area « about two thirds of the Allied forces gathered here » (namely, the British Second Army and the American Ninth Army) are « still inactive » and are « regrouping. »

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 11th — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Yesterday, east of Aix la Chapelle, the U. S. 1st Army launched the fourth major attack after an intense artillery preparation. Grim fighting is in progress against the enemy who, at some points, penetrated into our main lines.

On both sides of Saarlautern, our fortified positions continue to be stubbornly fought for. The situation remained virtually unchanged. Between Sarreguemines and Hagenau, the enemy continued his attacks on a broad front with increased fury. He was halted by immediate counter-thrusts after having made a gain of some kilometers. In the southern part of Sarreguemines and in Hagenau, grim street fighting is in full swing.

In southern Alsace, our troops are engaged in grim defensive fighting at the previous focal points. Numerous enemy attacks were frustrated by their steadfastness or collapsed after some small gains.

Particularly London was subjected to the harassing fire by our long range weapons.

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

GERMAN

Greek Crisis: The German Overseas Radio calls the situation in northern Greece a « powder keg » and says that « great numbers of Communists » have infiltrated into Salonika.

Meanwhile, over the overseas radio, Dr. Naumann of the Reich Ministry of Propaganda made a statement to a mass meeting, giving the following propaganda twist to the crisis: « Occupation by the Allies is followed by a wave of disorder and riots. Germany has never ceased to point out that the western world must decide whether to fight, like Germany, for existence or to become a victim of Bolshevism. »

Ghost Voice Heckles German Radio: During the above broadcasts, a mysterious ghost speaker interrupted with anti-Nazi comments, which the German Radio was apparently unable to eliminate. For example, when the German speaker said, « The food situation is desperate, » the unknown voice cried: « Germany's situation is desperate; soon it will crack. »

Western Front: German sources appear to be uncertain as to exactly where the next big Allied blow will strike on this front. Sertorius reports that in the battle area between the Meuse and the Eifel area « about two thirds of the Allied forces gathered here » (namely, the British Second Army and the American Ninth Army) are « still inactive » and are « regrouping. »

The same correspondent observes an « increase in enemy pressure » in the direction of Düren and Cologne but evidently considers this a feint or a minor stroke, as he adds: « It remains improbable that, on the impending resumption of the offensive in the whole area east of Aachen, the enemy will shift his operative focal point just to this portion of the front. »

Eastern Front: It is unsual and perhaps also significant of untoward military developments in the Budapest sector, that German sources omit their long evening report on the eastern front. The latest mention of the Russian advance in Hungary occurs in the brief Wehrmacht communique issued in mid-afternoon, except for three sentences in D.N.B. at 2240, which merely speak of an intensified Russian attack in the Miskolc area without so much as mentioning Budapest.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Mussolini's Message — On the third anniversay of the alliance between Germany, Italy and Japan, the Duce addressed the leaders and peoples of the Tripartite nations. In his very short message, the Duce tried to excuse the inadequacy of Italian participation in the Axis war effort and promised to do better in the future. He admitted that «today the Italian skies are dominated by the enemy air forces» but voiced his hope that «thanks to German help,» the Republic will «in the next few months» be able to defend them. He ended the message by expressing his hope in final victory.

Fascist Cabinet Meeting — There was a cabinet meeting on Sunday under the chairmanship of the Duce. A number of decrees were approved, the most important of which are: a) treatment of Italian soldiers fighting in the German forces to be the same as of those fighting in the Italian forces, b) the constitution of a Republican Army, Navy and Air Force, c) new military titles to be given to general officers of the National Republican Army, d) all disabled soldiers and workers to be exempted from taxation. A number of decrees relating to social welfare were also approved.

The New Bonomi Cabinet — The Fascist Radio quotes Reuter as stating that the list of the new Bonomi cabinet has been submitted to the Allies for approval. A Berlin message describes the cabinet «as a triumph of Moscow. While Churchill had the satisfaction of seeing Sforza climinated, Stalin, on the ather hand, was able to place many of his men in important position...» The message adds that Togliatti's appointment to a Vice Premiership might lead to Bonomi's complete eclipse.

HUNGARIAN

Hungarist Legion to Be Formed — Radio Budapest announced the formation of the «Hungarist Legion.» Young men up to 26 years of age may apply. They will be exempt from joining the Hungarian army and are promised that they will be able to «fight in the most dangerous spots in a very short time...» The legion will be equipped with German weapons.

NEW AMERICAN ATTACK LAUNCHED TOWARDS ROER, GAINS REPORTED

LONDON, December 10 — American 1st Army infantry and armor opened a new attack eastward toward the Roer River at dawn today gaining over one mile on a 10-mile front in the first eight hours of intense fighting.

Pushing through snow six inches deep the Americans entered the outskirts of Schophoven midway between Julich and the major Roer River stronapoint of Duren. Directly south, other 1st Army troops implemented by tanks, fought their way into Pier, a half mile from the river.

American troops on the outskirts of the Hurtgen Forest [illegible] back and the Americans advanced through the town to capture the railroad station and a large fortress-like hotel on the eastern edge of the city.

Street fighting in Hagenau

At Saarlautern, Allied artillery and fighter bombers cooperated to repulse an enemy counter-attack on the eastern outskirts of the town. Strong forces of tanks and tank destroyers are now across the bridgehead reinforcing American infantry.

American 7th Army troops on the 3rd Army's eastern flank drove north toward the German border and have reached the outskirts of Rohrbach. Further to the east in the Bitsche Forest, troops liberated the town of Mutterhausen.

Close to the Rhine River, 7th Army forces entered the southwestern section of the five-way rail center of Hagenau, 15 miles north of Strasbourg, and are tonight reported to be fighting in the streets. The attack began this morning after German positions were shelled by heavy artillery. The German garrison in the city is estimated to be over 2,000.

Other 7th Army forces drove to within two and a half miles southeast of Hagenau after clearing the Germans from the road center of Bitschweiler. Infantry forces crossed the Moder River and invested the town yesterday.

Far to the south, American and French forces continued to push toward a junction on the Alsace plain to the rear of German remnants in the Vosges Mountains. French forces descending through the Schlucht Pass captured Munster, 10 miles west of Colmar where the German headquarters is located. (PWB-OWI-Reuter-BBC-AP)

HEAVY BOMBERS HIT RHINE TARGETS

LONDON, December 10 — Two key German communications centers on the west bank of the Rhine — Coblenz and Bingen — were blasted today by 500 American heavy bombers, escorted by 650 fighters, which struck in support of ground troops moving on the German river barrier.

Three bombers and one fighter are missing from the mission, carried through in cold so intense that bomb-bay doors froze shut and had to be cranked open by hand. Bombing was by instrument.

American troops on the outskirts of the Hurtgen Forest north of Bergstein edged toward the Roer River barrier and reached the outskirts of Gey.

On the American 9th Army sector, troops patrolled the banks of the Roer from north of Linnich to south of Julich after clearing the Germans from their last stronghold on the west bank of the river at Julich yesterday. German attempts to counter-attack against the northern flank of the 9th Army were again observed and crushed by heavy Allied artillery fire.

Far to the north, at the tip of the British 2nd Army salient in northeastern Holland, RAF Typhoons dropped several 1,000-pound bombs on a Lower Rhine river dam 12 miles northwest of Nijmegen, increasing the flooded area between the Lower Rhine and the Waal Rivers.

American 3rd Army troops and tanks by-passed the beseiged coal city of Saargemund to the south and have reached the German border at Neukirchen east of Saargemund. German tank concentrations in this sector have been hemmed in by Allied bombers and fighters.

Bitter fighting raged at the Dillingen bridgehead over the Saar, three miles northwest of Saarlautern. The Americans fought their way through strong Siegfried Line fortifications as the Germans stubbornly battled for each pillbox. German infantry, backed by tanks, counter-attacked American positions gaining some ground. They were later thrown

U.S. BOMBERS ATTACKED BY JET FIGHTERS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 10 — Jet-propelled enemy fighters, latest of German interceptor craft, yesterday attacked formations of 15th USAAF heavy bombers over Austria and Germany, where military installations at Linz, Pilsen and Regensburg were hit, it was announced here today.

None of the Liberators or Fortresses were hit in the encounter with the enemy, although eight of the interceptors attacked the bombers as they flew high above dense cloud formations. The targets were found by the use of instruments, which identified the oil refineries, rail yards and the Pilsen Skoda works.

Fighters and fighter-bombers continued their battlefield support and attrition attacks against enemy transport in the region of the Po. (PRO)

MARTIAL LAW IN HUNGARY

STOCKHOLM, December 10 — Martial law has been declared in all parts of Hungary still under Nazi control, following an attempted revolt against puppet Szhlasi regime, the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet reported today.

The unconfirmed dispatch said that mixed German and Hungarian military courts had been established and that sensational arrests and death sentences resulted from the attempted coup. The head of the revolt was said to have been a peasant party leader, Bajsci-Zsilinsky, who went underground when the Nabis took over control of Hungary in October. (OWI)

The Germans failed to throw up a strong defense of the rail centers, the returning pilots reported, and anti-aircraft fire was meager. A few German jet fighters were sighted but did not attack.

Royal Air Force Spitfire bombers attacked several German rocket-bomb installations today, including a hotel on the main street of a Dutch town used as a supply depot. Other targets included railway yards, and two storage and launching sites hidden in a wooded area, which received a direct hit in the pinpoint bombing attack.

A dam on the lower Rhine, less than 15 miles from Nijmegen, in Holland, was hit by 1,000-pound bombs in an attack by RAF Typhoons, which also destroyed a building believed to be a German headquarters in the same area. An enemy observation post was also hit, as well as a bridge over the Meuse.

Medium bombers of the 9th USAAF last night went for a German barracks at Baumholder, 30 miles northeast of Saarbrucken, where 30,000 enemy troops were billeted as front-line replacements. No bombers were lost in the attack and other raids in the same general sector.

An Admiralty communique today revealed a recent attack by carrierborne aircraft on enemy shipping north of Haugesund, on the southwestern coast of Norway. Two small supply ships were left in flames, and two enemy cargo barges were damaged, one of which was set fire. One plane was lost in the operation. (OWI-Reuter)

NAZIS' STEEL, IRON, COAL AREA THREATENED

LONDON, December 10 — The German armies in the Saar Basin are not only fighting for German soil but for 16 million tons of coal and thousands of tons of iron and steel.

The loss of this vital territory would be as big a defeat economically as it would militarily, for the Saar Basin produces 10 per cent of Germany's iron and steel and seven per cent of her coal.

The American 3rd Army is driving into the Saarbruecken area, which is one of the most highly industrialized in Europe, with a million people crowded in some 750 square miles.

Apart from the loss of vital raw materials from the Saar Basin if the area is captured, Germany will also be deprived of large engineering shops engaged in war work. Saar industry has been heavily hit already by the loss of Lorraine iron ore supplies which, during the occupation of France, fed Germany's blast furnaces.

The Allied bombing of plants and communications has cut production in this section, but the even greater destruction of the Ruhr valley mines and industries has increased the importance of the Saar Basin otuput to the German war machine. (Reuter)

8TH ARMY NEARER FAENZA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 10 — Heavy enemy counter-attacks yesterday held British troops of the 8th Army to gains of 500 yards just south of Faenza, it was announced here today.

Although British forces pushed forward toward Faenza from the Village of San Prospero, a mile to the south, and seized a road junction south of the Village of Celle, southwest of Faenza, in both cases heavy German attacks drove them back.

Enemy forces again launched heavy attacks against Polish troops holding the mountain Village of Pideura, five miles southwest of Faenza, but these assaults were repulsed.

German forces have concentrated large tank formations in the sector south and southwest of Faenza to hold back the Allied drive, which has enveloped the Po Valley town on three sides and threatens to roll back the whole right flank of the German Lamone River delaying positions,

Mitchell bombers attacked the lower stretches of the Brenner Pass line, along which a heavy flow of supplies is rolling toward the enemy front. (PRO)

5TH ARMY COMMANDER HAS TOUGH JOB AHEAD

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, December 10 — The appointment of Lt. Gen. Lucien K. Truscott, Jr., to succeed Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark as commander of the American 5th Army in Italy comes in recognition of his high military ability, the Courier Journal declared in a recent editorial entitled "Our New Army Chief Has a Tough Job."

General Truscott helped plan the Dieppe raid by British Commandos, which, despite its terrific losses, was of incalculable value in the landings in western Europe.

The editorial continued: "Placed in command on the Anzio beachhead at the time of the greatest crisis, when the Germans were attempting to drive the Allies into the sea, General Truscott repulsed the German attacks and turned disaster into victory.

"In North Africa, in Sicily, in Italy, he won distinction as Eisenhower's representative in the field and as a ground technician, and when the American 7th Army moved into southern France he moved with it and is somewhere near the Swiss border in the Vosges Mountains.

"It (Truscott's) is, however, a tough assignment. There are signs that the Italian front will not remain entirely static. The capture of Ravenna on the Adriatic coast by the 8th Army gives that army a sizeable foothold on the southeastern Po Valley. This advance in the east may relieve the pressure on the Americans in the center of the line. And for a change, northern Italy is enjoying a spell of comparatively good weather. There is still the possibility of a break-through onto the open plain, and Truscott may have ample opportunity to show his stuff." (OWI)

RUSSIANS DRIVING ON BUDAPEST FROM NORTH

MOSCOW, December 10 — Red Army troops, which yesterday reached Vac after a 40-mile advance, drove down the west bank of the Danube today to capture a rail junction seven miles north of Budapest, the Soviet communique announced tonight.

Troops of the 2nd Ukrainian Front continued their advance along a 30-mile front and have captured Dregely Palank, just south of the Czechoslovak border. Red Army forces today fought their way into 40 large localities on this sector, the communique reported.

Unconfirmed press reports stated that powerful Soviet armored and infantry forces already have broken into the outskirts of Budapest from the east. The Germans were forced to remove troops from this sector in order to reinforce their northern and southern flanks, the dispatches said, and Red Army troops broke through their weakened defenses. Soviet artillery and planes are shelling and bombing the city.

The Soviet newspaper Pravda today said that the Russian armies had now taken up their springboard positions for the final assault on the Reich. Marshal Malinovsky's forces are poised for striking across the Danube to cut the main road and rail line leading out of Budapest to the northwest.

The supplement to last night's Soviet communique reported that Russian planes and artillery broke the German defenses concentrated on the west bank of the Danube River below Budapest. Russian troops followed up the barrage so rapidly that the Germans were unable to dig in beyond the river. The Germans had lined the west bank of the river with a powerful defense belt and poured heavy fire on the advancing troops.

Allied forces have been held at this line and its eastern outposts for over two weeks.

At the northeastern end of the enemy line across the Adriatic end of the Po Plain, German forces still hold the road skirting the southern edge of the Comacchio Lagoon, north of Ravenna.

On the 5th Army front, slight clashes occurred on several scattered sectors. In one of these engagements, two miles north of Livergnano on the Florence-Bologna Highway, enemy troops used white phosphorous hand grenades, bursting with fiery, white-hot fragments. (PRO)

TAF BOMBERS HIT ENEMY TROOPS AT FAENZA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 10 — Medium and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force today carried out a heavy bombardment of German troops, gun positions and communications in the Faenza and Bologna areas and as far north as the lower stretches of the Brenner Pass, it was announced late this afternoon.

Five waves of Mitchell bombers swept over beleaguered enemy forces around Faenza, on the 8th Army front, and dropped thousands of fragmentation bombs on troop concentration areas. Other formations attacked German barracks in the Bologna area.

It (Truscott's) is, however, a tough assignment. There are signs that the Italian front will not remain entirely static. The capture of Ravenna on the Adriatic coast by the 8th Army gives that army a sizeable foothold on the southeastern Po Valley. This advance in the east may relieve the pressure on the Americans in the center of the line. And for a change, northern Italy is enjoying a spell of comparatively good weather. There is still the possibility of a break-through onto the open plain, and Truscott may have ample opportunity to show his stuff. (OWI)

RUSSIANS DRIVING ON BUDAPEST FROM NORTH

MOSCOW, December 10 — Red Army troops, which yesterday reached Vac after a 40-mile advance, drove down the west bank of the Danube today to capture a rail junction seven miles north of Budapest, the Soviet communique announced tonight.

Troops of the 2nd Ukrainian Front continued their advance along a 30-mile front and have captured Dregely Palank, just south of the Czechoslovak border. Red Army forces today fought their way into 40 large localities on this sector, the communique reported.

Unconfirmed press reports stated that powerful Soviet armored and infantry forces already have broken into the outskirts of Budapest from the east. The Germans were forced to remove troops from this sector in order to reinforce their northern and southern flanks, the dispatches said, and Red Army troops broke through their weakened defenses. Soviet artillery and planes are shelling and bombing the city.

The Soviet newspaper Pravda today said that the Russian armies had now taken up their springboard positions for the final assault on the Reich. Marshal Malinovsky's forces are poised for striking across the Danube to cut the main road and rail line leading out of Budapest to the northwest.

The supplement to last night's Soviet communique reported that Russian planes and artillery broke the German defenses concentrated on the west bank of the Danube River below Budapest. Russian troops followed up the barrage so rapidly that the Germans were unable to dig in beyond the river. The Germans had lined the west bank of the river with a powerful defense belt and poured heavy fire on the advancing troops.

The 2nd Ukrainian Front took over 5,600 German and Hungarian officers and men during the period from December 5 to December 9. Yesterday, 46 German tanks were destroyed while 24 aircraft were shot down, the communique said. (OWI - Reuter - Radio Moscow)

The communique added that British troops moved southeast and southwest from Naba railway station on the flanks of the town of Naba. On the Chindwin Front, East African troops are harassing the Kalewa-Yeu Road, east of Shweguin.

LEYTE PORT TAKEN BY AMERICANS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 10 — United States infantry forces today captured the port of Ormoc, located on the west side of this island, General Douglas MacArthur announced here tonight.

In the northeastern section of the Leyte trap, where rain has rendered the terrain almost impassable, the 32nd Division maintained its pressure, capturing a serviceable field battery and several large ammunition dumps and supplies.

Bad flying weather restricted flying, but successful attacks were reported on enemy shipping. Night-patrol planes damaged a light cruiser at Cavite and a small freighter west of Subic Bay. Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, Commander of the USAAF in the Pacific, said yesterday that well over 300 tons of bombs were dropped on Thursday in the Superfortress attack on Iwo Jima, and that bombing results were good despite a thick cloud cover.

He disclosed that this attack was the first combat mission of a new air command to be known as « Comstratair » (Command of Strategical Air Forces). This new organization, replacing the old Army Forward Air Command, em-

TITO'S MEN FIGHT IN DANUBE TOWN

MARSHAL TITO'S HEADQUARTERS, YUGOSLAVIA, December 10 — Yugoslav aircraft, in close support of their ground forces, successfully strafed German gun positions yesterday in the region of Vinkovci, important rail hub and Slavonia's key city, Marshal Tito's communique announced today.

Other Yugoslav troops, who forced a crossing to the western bank of the Danube on Friday, entered Vukovar, where street fighting is still raging. Vukovar is 16 miles northeast of Vinkovci and just over 30 miles from the Hungarian border.

Directly south of Vinkovci, German counter-attacks were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

In eastern Bosnia, Tito's men captured a number of fortified positions at the border town of Zvornik. To the southeast, in the western Morava River district, enemy positions were liquidated, thus tightening the ring round the important railway junction of Posega.

Fierce fighting continues on the Zagreb-Sisak railway line, where the Germans are bringing up reinforcements to secure one of their remaining escape routes to Austria. The railway line between Dvor and Kostanjica was cut in several places. (Free Yugoslav Radio)

U-BOAT MENACE NOT OVER YET

LONDON, December 10 — A warning that U-boats have new devices is given in the joint monthly statement on sea-war issued today by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

The text said: « Shipping losses from U-boat action have again been very small, and the number of U-boats sunk, in proportion, has again been satisfactory.

« The enemy has by no means abandoned the struggle and has introduced new devices, such as improvements in air intake and exhaust, which enable U-boats to remain submerged for long periods and so penetrate into areas denied to them for the past three years.

« Reports that U-boat construction has been abandoned are probably German-inspired and are untrue. On the contrary, improved types of U-boats may at any time be thrown into the battle, and the retention of our present command of the sea will undoubtedly call for unremitting vigilance and hard fighting. » (Reuter)

TERROR MOUNTS IN THE REICH

LONDON, December 10 — Reports filtering out of Germany indicate that the Nazis are encountering increasing difficulties within the Reich, and are resorting to open terror in order to press unwilling «volunteers» into the Volkssturm, and to enforce the evacuation of frontline cities.

A Zurich report said that the Volkssturm is so unpopular in many parts of southern Germany that only 10 per cent of those called up have presented themselves for enlistment. In Berlin, a Stockholm report said, of all the men eligible for the Volkssturm, 38 per cent did not register.

Disturbed by these failures, the Nazi Party has now openly threatened those who fail to volunteer. It has issued the following decree: «Herewith you are ordered to volunteer for duty in the Volkssturm. Every person is a coward who fails to register, and cowards will be exterminated from the populace of Germany.»

Another dispatch from Stockholm, quoting information from inside Germany, said that the Nazis resort increasingly to terror methods to force the evacuation of civilians from places in the path of the advancing Allied armies.

The dispatch said that 14 persons were shot by the local Nazi leader in Weiden, near Aachen, «in order to assist evacuation.» In the village of Markstein, in the same area, evacuees who tried leaping from vehicles into which they had been herded by the Gestapo had to be forced back at the point of the bayonet.

The Swiss newspaper Journal de Geneve yesterday confirmed previous reports that the former Mayor of Leipzig, Dr. Goerdeler, who had been arrested after the July 20 plot against Hitler, and whom the Nazis claimed to have executed, was still alive.

Goerdeler was reported to be still in the hands of Gestapo «interrogators,» who were trying to extract from him, under the use of drugs and daily injections, information pertaining to others, particularly industrialists, connected with the attempt to assassinate Hitler. (OWI)

WOMEN TRADE UNIONISTS MEET IN ROME

ROME, December 10 — Women trade union delegates, representing thousands of women working in Roman industries, met here today for the first time in Italian history.

The meeting, presided over by Laura Ingrao, of the Central Committee of the Union of Italian Women, was attended by more than 100 delegates of women workers in schools, printing firms, banks, hospitals and industrial factories.

Held under the joint auspices of the General Confederation of Italian Labor, the national trade union organization, and of the Rome Province All-Union Committee, the speakers emphasized the need for active participation by women in the reconstruction of Italian economy.

Nazzareno Buschi, secretary of the Confederation of Workers in Rome, urged all Italian workers to aid in the war effort. Asking for the right of all workers equally to share in the national production.

Buschi said: «Italian workers, like the workers of all countries, want a better life with freedom, peace and social justice.»

The major problem confronting women workers in all industries, Mrs. Ingrao said, was the inequality of position and wages between men and women. Explaining that in America, Britain and Russia women hold important positions in diplomatic, legislative, business and union fields on a par with men, Mrs. Ingrao said: «It is necessary for women to break down the barriers and to participate in union activities and in the economic rehabilitation of Italy.»

A resolution, adopted unanimously by all representatives, called for a women delegate to be a member of the internal committee of each union and for proportionate representation in those committees.

The resolution declared that application should be made for the regular payment of the high cost of living wage supplement.

At the same time, the resolution asked that the additional wage increase granted to male heads of families, also be granted to women family heads.

ITALIAN PATRIOT BRIGADE PRAISED

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY, December 10 — The Italian Patriot who has adopted the war name of «Bulow» and is commander of a successful Italian Patriot brigade, was slightly wounded on Thursday, a UNN correspondent reported. Immediately after making a speech to several thousand Ravenna inhabitants, he returned to the front where a bullet grazed his chest. Today he returned to duty.

The sterling work of this Partisan band continues and the Germans have been almost cleared from Porto Corsino. A senior Allied officer told the correspondent that the finest compliment to the Italian Patriots was paid a few days ago when the Germans sent five tanks and troop carriers against them in the Mandriole area.

«Patriots played a big part in ridding the Ravenna district of the enemy and I have an enormous regard for their fighting qualities,» the officer added. «They fight with a fierce fanaticism and their valor is unquestioned. Some have been with one of our units for the past six weeks and their presence is invaluable in this very difficult country.

«They have taken an enormous number of prisoners and when the full story of their activities is released, it will be found that Patriots did much to pave the way for the liberation of Ravenna.

«Their work is not done and I share "Bulow's" hope that they will fight alongside the Allies as we march through the Brenner Pass toward Germany. They have not flinched from the most dangerous missions.» (UNN)

ELAS FORCES ATTACK IN ATHENS

ATHENS, December 10 — ELAS forces, equipped with light artillery, mortars, anti-tank guns and large numbers of small arms, last night and again this morning made strong attacks against British and loyal Greek troops here. Their efforts to seize the center of the city were repulsed.

A communique from Lt. Gen. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, this afternoon reported stubborn opposition from rebel units. Some areas of the city, particularly sections in the eastern suburbs, have been cleared, he said, but the situation in most of the city and in the Piraeus remains unchanged.

The heaviest fighting took place in the eastern section of the city, where rebel forces, estimated to number 10,000, made their biggest attack since the disorders started.

Artillery and machine guns were used by both sides as ELAS units pushed toward the center of the city, where the British and Greek headquarters are located.

The attackers were thrown back after tanks, planes and artillery came to the support of the loyal Greek Mountain Brigade.

According to the BBC, ELAS troops were equipped with 75-millimeter guns, mortars and other weapons. British and Greek troops replied with cannon.

Some rebel troops filtered into the gardens of the old Royal Palace, an American press report said. They penetra-

Two of the RAF fighters were damaged by return fire when they attacked rebel positions on Stadium Hill.

British Land Forces Greece also called upon the RAF to carry out reconnaissance over the Salonika area, where rebel troops have likewise concentrated.

BBC said that the rebels now hold most of the Piraeus and still are in control of most of the police stations in the city.

British Royal Navy headquarters in the Piraeus was subjected to mortar fire and sniping, General Scobie's communique reported. Stiff opposition was encountered by British troops attempting to clear the port area.

Rumors circulating in Greece that units of the Royal Hellenic Navy and the entire Royal Hellenic Air Force in the Piraeus area have deserted to ELAS forces were denied today in a statement from Admiral Sir John Cunningham, Naval Commander in the Mediterranean, and Air Marshal Sir John Slessor, RAF commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean and the Middle East. The statement, issued at AFHQ, Italy, stated that there «was no truth whatsoever» in the rumors.

A broadcast by Greek Prime Minister Papandreou last night said: «Civil war will cease at whatever moment the leaders of the extreme left declare they are ready to keep their word in regard to the common program for disbandment and disarmament of Partisan forces.» Papandreou said that all members of right-wing military groups who attempted to join forces with British and Greek regular troops had been disarmed and interned.

He continued: «We consider it our mission to create a free state of justice in which equal rights and freedom of speech will be enjoyed by all, whether they be Communists, Republicans or Royalists, and in which no party will dominate the people against their will. We consider it our mission to hold an absolutely free plebiscite and to see that entirely free elections are held. We also consider it our duty to do our utmost for the economic revival of the country, which has fallen into ruins, and on this occasion I repeat the boundless gratitude of the Greek people to our great Allies for their help.»

According to the BBC, it was authoritatively stated here today that no peace approaches have been made to General Scobie by or on behalf of the ELAS forces.

A Reuter report quoted a Greek Government source for the statement that so far a total of 1,500 casualties had been suffered, in the fighting, while 2,500 ELAS prisoners have been seized.

Meanwile, ELAS troops were reported mining the northern approaches to the city. A Reuter report said some British vehicles had already been destroyed by mines. Digging of earthworks and fortifications also has been reported.

Elsewhere in Greece, there was relative quiet, although guerrilla activities were reported around Salonika and Patras. An Associated Press dispatch said that the Socialist bloc representing 60 per cent of the EAM (National Liberation Front) in Salonika refused to support a general strike there. MOSCOW, December 10 — A French-Soviet treaty of alliance and mutual assistance was signed here today at the Kremlin following several days of discussion between General De Gaulle and Marshal Stalin.

«Unanimity of views» had been reached in the talks which preceded the signing of the treaty, a communique said, adding that both governments have emphasized once again their determination to continue fighting until victory over Germany is achieved, and «their will to take jointly all the necessary measures for the protection of Europe them in the Mandriole area.

«Patriots played a big part in ridding the Ravenna district of the enemy and I have an enormous regard for their fighting qualities,» the officer added. «They fight with a fierce fanaticism and their valor is unquestioned. Some have been with one of our units for the past six weeks and their presence is invaluable in this very difficult country.

«They have taken an enormous number of prisoners and when the full story of their activities is released, it will be found that Patriots did much to pave the way for the liberation of Ravenna.

«Their work is not done and I share "Bulow's" hope that they will fight alongside the Allies as we march through the Brenner Pass toward Germany. They have not flinched from the most dangerous missions.» (UNN)

ELAS FORCES ATTACK IN ATHENS

ATHENS, December 10 — ELAS forces, equipped with light artillery, mortars, anti-tank guns and large numbers of small arms, last night and again this morning made strong attacks against British and loyal Greek troops here. Their efforts to seize the center of the city were repulsed.

A communique from Lt. Gen. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, this afternoon reported stubborn opposition from rebel units. Some areas of the city, particularly sections in the eastern suburbs, have been cleared, he said, but the situation in most of the city and in the Piraeus remains unchanged.

The heaviest fighting took place in the eastern section of the city, where rebel forces, estimated to number 10,000, made their biggest attack since the disorders started.

Artillery and machine guns were used by both sides as ELAS units pushed toward the center of the city, where the British and Greek headquarters are located.

The attackers were thrown back after tanks, planes and artillery came to the support of the loyal Greek Mountain Brigade.

According to the BBC, ELAS troops were equipped with 75-millimeter guns, mortars and other weapons. British and Greek troops replied with cannon.

Some rebel troops filtered into the gardens of the old Royal Palace, an American press report said. They penetrated within 600 yards of the Grande Bretagne Hotel housing the Greek Government, but were driven back by British gunners firing from the palace roof.

The battle followed entry of large numbers of ELAS troops into the city from the outskirts, where they had been entrenched for several days. Police barracks in the eastern section of the city were their first objective. It was here that fighting flared up, first against the Greek Mountain Brigade, and later against British units which went to the support of the Greeks.

A Reuter report late this afternoon said that British paratroopers were used to repel a strong ELAS attack launched from the stadium, where an estimated 300 rebel troops are entrenched in the underground passages of the arena.

An announcement from AFHQ, Italy, said that British forces called upon RAF heavy bombers today to attack concentrations of Greek guerrillas in the foothills outside the city.

Spitfires also bombed the Imottos mountain area, where the rebel forces have massed, the statement added. Spitfire planes maintained a constant patrol over the road leading north from the city, where rebels have erected roadblocks and other obstructions. Rebel troops manning these defenses or constructing blocks were heavily strafed by the patrolling fighters.

leaders of the extreme left declare they are ready to keep their word in regard to the common program for disbandment and disarmament of Partisan forces.» Papandreou said that all members of right-wing military groups who attempted to join forces with British and Greek regular troops had been disarmed and interned.

He continued: «We consider it our mission to create a free state of justice in which equal rights and freedom of speech will be enjoyed by all, whether they be Communists, Republicans or Royalists, and in which no party will dominate the people against their will. We consider it our mission to hold an absolutely free plebiscite and to see that entirely free elections are held. We also consider it our duty to do our utmost for the economic revival of the country, which has fallen into ruins, and on this occasion I repeat the boundless gratitude of the Greek people to our great Allies for their help.»

According to the BBC, it was authoritatively stated here today that no peace approaches have been made to General Scobie by or on behalf of the ELAS forces.

A Reuter report quoted a Greek Government source for the statement that so far a total of 1,500 casualties had been suffered, in the fighting, while 2,500 ELAS prisoners have been seized.

Meanwile, ELAS troops were reported mining the northern approaches to the city. A Reuter report said some British vehicles had already been destroyed by mines. Digging of earthworks and fortifications also has been reported.

Elsewhere in Greece, there was relative quiet, although guerrilla activities were reported around Salonika and Patras. An Associated Press dispatch said that the Socialist bloc representing 60 per cent of the EAM (National Liberation Front) in Salonika refused to support a general strike there. FRANCE AND RUSSIA SIGN ALLIANCE TREATY

MOSCOW, December 10 — A French-Soviet treaty of alliance and mutual assistance was signed here today at the Kremlin following several days of discussion between General De Gaulle and Marshal Stalin.

«Unanimity of views» had been reached in the talks which preceded the signing of the treaty, a communique said, adding that both governments have emphasized once again their determination to continue fighting until victory over Germany is achieved, and «their will to take jointly all the necessary measures for the protection of Europe from fresh aggression.»

In a farewell statement as he boarded a train here, General De Gaulle said: «I am sure the days we have spent here will leave their mark in peace for the good of all men.» He added: «Long live Soviet Russia.»

The Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, who accompanied De Gaulle to the station, replied in a similar vein. «I hope the treaty we have signed will be a splendid base for the development of Franco-Soviet relations and a new powerful blow against the enemy,» he said.

The talks — in which both Molotov and French Foreign Minister Bidault participated — covered the whole field of the conduct of the war and post-war peace organization.

The signing of the treaty was preceded by a banquet at the Kremlin, with Stalin as host. Correspondents described it as one of the most colorful of the banquets traditionally given by the Soviet officials to visiting statesmen. Stalin toasted the French Normandy regiment on the Eastern Front, which, he said, would soon expand to the size of a division.

The station was bedecked with the French and Soviet colors against a backdrop of heavy snow, a Reuter dispatch said, and a military band played the national anthems of both countries. (Reuter)

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, our attack against the enemy bridgehead at Vukovar made good progress.

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

GERMAN

Western Front: After reviewing the battle between Merzig and Saarbrücken, the «grimmest since the battle for Aachen,» Transocean correspondent Günther Weber describes the new tactics employed by General Patton's forces in the fighting for the Siegfried line. Weber says small tank and sapper formations are attempting a breakthrough between the groups of pillboxes in order to cut their rear communications.

Walter Plato writes that increased activity in southern Alsace points to the intention of the Allied High Command to force Upper Alsace as well as the Saar region.

«After the abandonment of the Roehr bridgehead near Jülich...» Plato goes on to say «the river now forms a dividing line between the Germans and Americans... The latter have laid a smoke-screen covering their own positions and the foreground, thus indicating preparation for an impending attack... »

The Battle of Budapest: Transocean reporter Karl Blücher writes that German resistance has once more stiffened north of Budapest and the Russians were unable to gain any more ground, after capturing Vac 24 hours ago. Soviet tank formations are now attacking in various directions, which makes the direction of the main thrust difficult to guess. From the southwest, the thrust from the expanding Danube bridgehead at Ercsi seems to be most dangerous.

From Budapest itself reporter Karl Klaus Krebs has sent a dramatic despatch about life in the beleaguered city. « The Hungarian capital... » he writes « is vibrating in all its fibres whilst the battle for its possession is slowly approaching its climax. The roar of German artillery is shaking the windows... sirens are howling hourly, chasing people into the shelters... traffic then is idle for 30-40 minutes, flowing only the stronger after the all-clear has sounded. Though the Soviets are standing at the gates of the city, its outer appearance has not changed... » He then goes on to describe the AA guns, tank barriers, and barbed wire entanglements along the Danube quay « ...the superficial impression of imperturbability, however, does not conceal the high tension felt throughout the city... » on the other hand « ...in a number of restaurants well-dressed men and women are dining at tables covered with white-linen tablecloths and only the wincing of an eyelid at the roar of gunfire reveals that this calmness is merely an expression of self-control... »

De Gaulle's Visit to Moscow: Dr. Siegried Horn, DNB diplomatic correspondent, commenting on De Gaulle's visit, mainly reiterates his view, already expressed a week ago, that the Franco-Soviet pact is a forerunner to the Soviet domination of Europe, with France as a chief assistant. He then adds that the Soviets would welcome France's concluding a similar pact with England, which would advance Soviet influence still further west.

The Greek Crisis: On Sunday, German broadcast and news agencies continued to devote much attention to the situation in Greece. Most of the straight news, however, came from Allied sources. The possibility of agreement between the conflicting parties is admitted, four out of the five ex-ministers belonging to the EAM being in favor of calling off the revolt and advocating the withdrawal of ELAS troops from Athens. The changed attitude is attributed to the intervention of Sophoulis, leader of the Liberal Party, who a few days ago, was supposed to have replaced Papandreou.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Italian POWs Employed in War Jobs in U.S.: The Fascist Radio complains that the U.S. is using Italian POWs in occupations directly connected with military operations. This is said to be contrary to the Geneva Convention and has enabled the U.S. to send more soldiers to the war fronts.

Italian Front: The Fascist Radio describes, in the course of a military analysis, the British plan to encircle Faenza. In spite of the large forces employed, says the analyst, the stubborn German defence halted the British troops in the outskirts of Faenza. Temporary penetrations into the main German combat zone were successfully sealed off by the defenders. Key villages changed hands several times but « German valour in the end emerged victoriously against vastly superior enemy forces... »

« The Purger Purged. » The Fascist Radio tries to point out that British objection to Sforza is due to the fact that « he had lately given proof of his sympathy towards comrade Togliatti... » in spite of « former pledges given to his overseas master. » This the broadcast plays up as another proof of the latent feud « between plutocratic and conservative England and Bolshevik Russia... »

Martial Law in Budapest: A joint announcement by the German and Hungarian military commanders of Budapest has declared martial law throughout Budapest. The death penalty will be applied against saboteurs, looters, rebels, and persons in illegal possession of arms, ammunition or explosives, as well as against « traitors who associate with the enemy or otherwise endanger the security or undermine the morale of the fighting forces... »

Plot Against Szalasi: Radio Budapest has admitted a plot intended « to remove the constitutional government of the country and the head of the state and to prepare certain areas likely to be occupied by the enemy for collaboration with the Soviets... » Three high-ranking officers, including a general, were sentenced to death and three others to long-term penal servitude. The chief leaders were two prominent Hungarian politicians, well-known for their courageous stand against German domination of Hungary. Endre Bajcsy-Zsilinszky, editor of the democratic weekly « Szabadsag » (« Liberty ») and at one time one of the leaders of the opposition party of Small Farmers, is to face court-martial and almost certain death, whereas Zoltan Tildy managed to escape.

He then adds that the Soviets would welcome France's concluding a similar pact with England, which would advance Soviet influence still further west.

The Greek Crisis: On Sunday, German broadcast and news agencies continued to devote much attention to the situation in Greece. Most of the straight news, however, came from Allied sources. The possibility of agreement between the conflicting parties is admitted, four out of the five ex-ministers belonging to the EAM being in favor of calling off the revolt and advocating the withdrawal of ELAS troops from Athens. The changed attitude is attributed to the intervention of Sophoulis, leader of the Liberal Party, who a few days ago, was supposed to have replaced Papandreou.

8TH ARMY ROLLS BACK GERMAN RIGHT FLANK

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 8 — British and Polish forces of the 8th Army, expanding their bridgehead over the Lamone River despite heavy rains and fierce enemy resistance, are rolling back the right flank of the enemy's river line toward Faenza, it was announced here today.

Leading Allied troops have now pushed northwest to within three miles of Castel Bolognese, next of the string of Po Valley towns along the main highway to Bologna lands, lies between Ravenna and the sprawling Estuary of the Po.

German forces are dug in along the west bank of the Lamone River for a stretch of 20 miles from southwest of Faenza northeastward to Mazzano, along the Ferrara-Ravenna Road. Heavy artillery, self-propelled gun, and mortar fire was exchanged by the enemy and Allied forces facing each other across this swollen stream.

It was revealed today that the 1st Canadian Corps commanded by Lt. Gen. Charles Foulkes, CBE carried out the successful attack on the «hinge» of the enemy defenses between the Lamone and the Montone Rivers which resulted in the German evacuation of Ravenna.

On the 5th Army front, troops of an Indian formation carried out further advances in the area south of Imola, but along the rest of the mountain battle line activity was reported to be less than at any time in recent weeks. (PRO)

SIEGFRIED LINE DEFENSES PENETRATED

LONDON, December 8 — American 3rd Army forces have penetrated the outer defenses of the Siegfried Line in the Saar Basin northwest of Saarlautern, and have driven a mile through the outer fortifications.

The Americans forced a breach in the German positions along a 600 foot ridge and are fighting in the Buchwald Pachterer Forest, which stretches several miles to the east. This is the first point at which the West Wall has been pierced, and its eight-mile penetration is the deepest yet made by the 3rd Army.

Behind the American forces, the hills have been continually raked with German artillery fire, said to be the most concentrated on any part of the 3rd Army front. The advance was made through mud, heavy rain, and bitterly cold winds.

American troops to the southeast are gradually pushing closer to the burning Saar Basin city of Saarbrücken as heavy artillery continued steady shelling. In an advance of two miles, infantry troops last night reached Furstenhausen, 3½ miles from the outskirts of the Saar capital, whose capture would place the Americans astride the Siegfried Line, and whose loss would be a psychological blow to the Germans.

The heaviest fighting on the 3rd Army front took place at Saargemünd, eight miles southwest of Saarbrücken, where American troops attacked to establish a bridgehead over the Saar River to clear the remaining third of the coal city.

Late dispatches tonight reported that American troops fought their way over the old railway bridge leading to the eastern section of the city. The reports also said that three new crossings in assault boats were made in the new attack — at Diedingen, four miles southeast of Saargemünd; Wittringen, one mile farther south; and the third, still farther south.

Strong German opposition has been met in the eastern part of the Maginot Line zone in the vicinity of the towns of Achen, Biningen, and Encherberg, scene of the recent tank battle. No complete reports of the number of tanks knocked out have been received. The town of Etting was captured by 4th Armored Division units which have now pushed north of the town toward Achen.

8TH ARMY ROLLS BACK GERMAN RIGHT FLANK

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 8 — British and Polish forces of the 8th Army, expanding their bridgehead over the Lamone River despite heavy rains and fierce enemy resistance, are rolling back the right flank of the enemy's river line toward Faenza, it was announced here today.

Leading Allied troops have now pushed northwest to within three miles of Castel Bolognese, next of the string of Po Valley towns along the main highway to Bologna and the heart of industrial north Italy. Attacking in early morning yesterday, when heavy ground fog limited visibility to 100 yards, Allied forces captured the village of Castel Raniero after stiff fighting, and pushed on a further 1,000 yards to capture a ridge midway between Faenza and Castel Bolognese.

The Allied forces also occupied the hamlet of Olmatello, one-half mile south of Castel Raniero, and in a sharp engagement captured Pideur, a hilltop community some two miles west of the Lamone River.

Everywhere along the threatened southern end of their Lamone River Line, enemy forces resisted fiercely, striking back at Polish troops on Monte San Rinaldo in an exceptionally sharp attack. This counter-attack was repelled with losses to the enemy.

At the northern end of the German front across the southeastern corner of the Plain of the Po, enemy forces were reported by Allied patrols to be attempting to establish defensive positions in the marshlands fringing the Comacchio Lagoon, northwest of Ravenna. This great salt lake, covering an area of over 100 square miles, and bordered on the west and north by large reclaimed farm- between the Lamone and [illegible] resulted in the German evacuation of Ravenna.

On the 5th Army front, troops of an Indian formation carried out further advances in the area south of Imola, but along the rest of the mountain battle line activity was reported to be less than at any time in recent weeks. (PRO)

JAPS ON LEYTE FACE ANNIHILATION

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 8 — Split as a result of the American amphibious landing yesterday on the west coast of Leyte, Japanese forces caught between the 7th Division, which made the landing, and the 77th Division moving up from the south are facing annihilation, General Douglas MacArthur said tonight.

The American forces which landed three miles south of Ormoc had reached the outskirts of the town tonight. To the north, the 32nd Division advanced down the Ormoc Corridor south of Limon against stubborn resistance. (OWI)

Driving southward from Strasbourg, French and American troops have cleared the Rhine River town of Gambsheim, while other Allied forces astride the Strasbourg-Colmar road made slight gains toward the German-headquarters city.

On the American 1st and 9th Army front on the western banks of the flooded Roer River, heavy rain has turned the entire area into a sea of mud. The 1st Army made two sharp attacks today and cleared the Germans from the high ground east of Bergstein, giving them observation across the Roer 1,000 yards away. Infantry with tank destroyers made the attack after an artillery barrage, and advanced in the face of heavy enemy fire to reach their objective.

Elsewhere on the Allied front, activity has been restricted, because of extreme weather conditions, to a series of probes on the Allied side and shrewd, though futile German counter-attacks. (OWI-Reuter-AP-MOI)

RUSSIAN GRIP ON BUDAPEST TIGHTENING

MOSCOW, December 8 — Red Army units tightened their grip on the Hungarian capital today and advanced on the main communications leading into Budapest from the south. Fighting outside of the city was described as extraordinarily severe, with the Russians attacking from the east and south, as well as 20 miles to the north. Foggy weather helped Soviet infantry and tank formations.

Marshal Fecdor Tolbukin's forces west of the Danube swung around the northeastern end of Lake Balaton and captured several important rail junctions in their advance toward Vienna, tonight's Soviet communique announced. Another Red Army column is headed northward in a drive to cut the escape routes running west out of besieged Budapest.

Two German divisions rushed from the Western Front and from Italy to plug the widening gaps in southwest Hungary have already suffered heavy losses in killed and captured.

Marshal Tolbukhin's southwestern flank tonight stood within 40 miles of the Austrian border. The Soviet communique reported that further advances have been made between Lake Balaton and the Drava River, giving the Germans no time to build a new defense line.

Soviet bombers were out from dawn to dusk in nonstop attacks on German troop concentrations and supply depots. The Germans in this sector between Lake Balaton and the Drava were reported to be retreating in disorder after the capture of Barcs yesterday.

Press dispatches reported that Marshal Tolbukhin's northwestern drive toward Austria seemed to have been temporarily deflected into a general movement on the Drava River line, aimed at cutting German escape routes from Yugoslavia.

On all sectors of the Eastern Front, Russian forces disabled or destroyed 33 German tanks and shot down three planes. (OWI - Reuter- Radio Moscow)

SUPERFORTS AND WARSHIPS HIT IWO JIMA; NEW LEYTE LANDING SPLITS JAP FORCES

WASHINGTON, December 8 — Superfortresses dropped their heaviest bomb load today when they joined U.S. warships and Liberator bombers of the 7th USAAF and Fleet Air Wing in a combined attack on the Japanese base on Iwo Jima, in the Bonin Islands, it was announced today.

A communique from the 20th USAAF reporting the B-29 assault said bombing was done by instruments because of heavy cloud formations and that results were not observed. No enemy action or anti-aircraft fire was encountered, and all planes returned, the communique added.

In the «coordinated attack» on the Japanese base, which is 750 miles from the Japanese homeland, Lightning fighters escorted the Liberators.

Troops of the 77th Division of the 24th U.S. Army Corps, who made a surprise landing yesterday three miles

At dusk, six more small enemy craft, loaded with troops, were sighted along the northwest coast of Leyte and sunk by U.S. planes.

Referring to the American Navy as a «ghost» fleet different from that of the Japanese fleet, which is rapidly being diminished to nothing, Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, said yesterday: «Most of this fleet, which our enemy said was sunk or damaged beyond hopes of repair, today is haunting our enemy in a most unghostlike fashion.»

A USAAF spokesman said yesterday, that the Japanese naval air force will never appear again as a formidable force. He pointed out, however, that stiffer resistance may be expected from land-based Japanese aircraft. He said Japan may be able to rebuild her depleted air reserves in some measure, and that, currently, Japanese land-based aircraft operate at a decided advantage because of a far-flung network of airfields reaching to Japan itself.

He explained that the Allies' objective is to reduce enemy air power to a point at which it would not constitute a danger to the achievement of the main objective. (OWI)

CHINESE RETAKE TUSHAN

CHUNGKING, December 8 — Chinese troops today recaptured the important stronghold of Tushan, 75 miles south of Kweiyang on the Chungking highway, the Chinese High Command announced today.

A Chinese spokesman disclosed that 4,000 Japanese troops who entered Kweichow Province had been routed. He said also that the Chinese had retaken Pachai, Hanho, and Shihpanchai, and that the enemy was in retreat southward toward Liuchai, 40 miles distant.

In a delayed dispatch from 10th USAAF headquarters in Myitkyina today, the Associated Press said that 30 tons of bombs were dropped during a 10-hour shuttle raid on the Japanese supply base of Male, 75 miles north of Mandalay. The fliers also dropped a new type of incendiary for the first time, and reported that smoke from the attacks could be seen for 60 miles.

A communique from Kandy, Ceylon, reported strong enemy resistance on the Chindwin front two miles northeast of Kalewa, as Allied troops continued to cross the Chindwin River to consolidate their east bank bridgehead.

The Chinese 38th Division made slight gains southwest of the besieged base of Bhamo, 60 miles from the Burma Road, the communique said.

Viewing this part of the campaign, Brig. Gen. Robert C. Cannon, northern area Chief of Staff of the Burma Combat Command, said Chinese troops are within 35 miles of the Old Burma Road and 65 miles of other Chinese advancing down the highway from China, a press dispatch said today.

Heavy bombers of the Eastern Air Command yesterday attacked targets at Maymyo, on the Mandalay-Lashio railway, while other aircraft bombed enemy installations southeast of Kalewa and also attacked dumps on the Japanese lines of communication to the Chindwin region.

Allied ground forces along the Kweichow-Kwangsi railroad zone in south China and in the Tushan-Nantan-Hochih area received assistance from the 14th USAAF today. An ammunition and gasoline dump were destroyed, a railroad bridge knocked out, a steel works bombed, 17 locomotives wrecked, and others damaged in the fighter sweeps.

Three enemy fighters were destroyed and five damaged out of 21 enemy planes, which attempted to intercept the Allied planes. All Allied aircraft returned safely from the missions. (OWI)

Troops of the 77th Division of the 24th U.S. Army Corps, who made a surprise landing yesterday three miles south of Ormoc, have seized the center of the Yamashita line from the rear and have split the enemy's forces in two, General MacArthur's communique reported last night.

Japanese soldiers in the valley to the north are separated from those along the coast to the south, the communique said. Both segments are now caught between American columns which are pressing in from all fronts.

A press dispatch said troops of the U.S. 77th Division pushed ashore behind the enemy «without a single casualty on the beaches.»

In a desperate attempt at diversion, the enemy landed parachute troops during the night in the vicinity of San Pablo, headquarters announced. Approximately 200 men were dropped, the majority of whom have been killed. Some sabotage damage was accomplished, but the effort was a feeble one and promptly was rendered abortive, the announcement said.

Further reports on the sinking of 13 Japanese vessels in a Japanese reinforcement convoy said that 52 enemy planes were shot down by U.S. fighters and 10 by Navy aircraft. Five American planes were lost, but all the pilots were saved.

High Command announced today.

NIGHT BAD-WEATHER BOMBERS SCORE VICTORY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 8 — Liberators and Flying Fortresses, flying bad weather missions deep into enemy territory, scored their first victory over enemy night interceptors in an attack on Austrian rail targets yesterday, it was announced here today.

More than half a dozen enemy fighters intercepted the heavy bombers as they flew in single formation over their target. Although the German fighters could be seen only by the flashes of their guns, the tail gunner on one of the Liberator bombers caught a maneuvering German plane, and sent it hurtling through the clouds in a burst of red and yellow flames.

The weather yesterday restricted MAAF operations to 300 sorties.

A squadron of Italian-flown Baltimore light bombers, flying with the Balkan Air Force, has carried out numerous attacks on German forces seeking to escape from Yugoslavia, it was announced here today.

The squadron, in which both air and ground crews are Italians, has joined Italian fighter and transport formations flying with the Mediterranean Allied Air Force.

Most of the Italian airmen are aviators of long experience, with some of the pilots having as many as 2,000 hours of flying time to their credit. The navigators of the squadron are younger men, many of them new graduates from the Regia Aeronautica at the time of the Italian armistice. One of the squadron veterans was a member of the famous Trans-Atlantic flight of Marshal Italo Balbo in 1933.

Among the targets the Italian fliers have attacked are railway lines, railyards, and enemy stores and dumps in Yugoslavia. In one mission, every aircraft in the formation was pierced by flak particles from heavy German anti-aircraft fire.

An Italian pilot, schooled in England, acts as liaison officer for the squadron with the Balkan Air Force. (PRO)

R.A.F. HEAVIES HIT DUISBERG TWICE

LONDON, December 8 — A strong force of RAF Lancaster bombers struck at German marshalling yards and oil refineries again today, carrying out two daylight attacks under cover of Mustang and Spitfire fighters.

The bombers concentrated their first attack on the German rail network funneling through Duisberg to the German armies in the Low Countries. A few hours later, they struck a synthetic oil plant in the Meiderich district of Duisberg.

At dusk last night, hundreds of RAF Mosquito bombers continued the greatest air offensive of the war against Germany when they dropped two-ton blockbusters on Cologne. In the 72-hour period ended early today, 14,000 Allied planes had taken part in the ceaseless bombardment of 13 of Germany's principal cities in an effort to seal off German reinforcements from the fighting fronts.

RAF bombers which two days ago attacked Leuna, Osnabrück, and Giessen dropped a great weight of high explosives and more than 350,000 incendiaries to start huge fires at all three targets, the Air Ministry announced today. The attack was made in appalling weather.

The big oil refinery at Misburg, near Hanover, suffered serious damage in the November 26 attack by the 8th USAAF when 110 German interceptors were shot down, it was reported today in a Strategic Air Force communique.

The plant's output had been cut earlier to 50 per cent, but it had remained the largest active refinery in Germany. Aerial reconnaissance photographs revealed that the largest laboratory building and nine storage tanks were destroyed in the latest raid, while a distillation unit, a cracking plant, and other buildings were severely damaged.

The Air Ministry announced also that Mustangs with escorting Beaufighters and Mosquitos on patrol against German shipping today shot down six enemy planes off the Norwegian coast, with the loss of one Mustang.

The announcement reported that in a recent attack on German shipping off Norway, RAF Mosquitos and Beaufighters bombed and strafed nine vessels in the Nordugulen Fjord, setting four afire. There was heavy anti-aircraft fire from ships and shore.

Another Coastal Command force simultaneously struck three merchant vessels in Orsta Fjord, leaving one « well ablaze. »

The BBC said that in the 24-hour period up to dawn today, the Germans aimed more rocket projectiles against southern England, causing damage and casualties.

YUGOSLAV-SOVIET FORCES SOUTH OF VINKOVCI

LONDON, December 8 — Yugoslav and Red Army troops, pushing westward along the Belgrade-Zagreb railway, have reached the region immediately south of the important communications center of Vinkovci in Slavonia, 50 miles south of the Hungarian border, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

The towns of Privlaka, Otok, and Vrbanja, all within 25 miles of Vinkovci, were captured in the advance as well as the smaller localities of Sremraca, Lipovac, and Komleinci. The communique said that 2,577 Germans have been killed and 316 taken prisoner in this sector to date, and that enemy counter-attacks from Brod were repulsed with a toll of 175 German dead.

In eastern Bosnia, the communique reported Yugoslav troops attacking the Sokolac-Vlasenica-Zvornik road along which the enemy is retreating toward the Sava River.

given in his honor by the Lord Mayor of Bucharest, General Victor Dumbrowski. The Soviet official added:

«I hope that our relations will be further consolidated in the future, and that the Rumanian Government, relying on Rumania's democratic forces, will succeed in uniting the Rumanian people on the road of rapprochement between Rumania and the Allies.» (OWI)

29,316 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED BY U.S.A.A.F.

WASHINGTON, December 8 — Since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor three years ago, the U.S. Army Air Forces destroyed at least 29,316 enemy planes and dropped 1,202,139 tons of bombs on enemy targets, the War Department disclosed today. The Air Forces flew a total of 1,563,290 combat sorties.

In the Pacific, the report said, 1,310,006 tons of enemy shipping were sunk by USAAF operations. Figures on ships sunk in other war theaters were not given.

Of the total bomb tonnage, 85 per cent was dropped on Europe, with Berlin receiving 13,717 tons, the city hardest hit. Ploesti in Rumania and its oil refineries were struck by 13,098 tons.

Breaking down the overall figure on enemy planes destroyed, the report said that in aerial combat 22,894 planes were destroyed, 5,986 probably destroyed, and 8,068 damaged. On the ground, 6,422 were destroyed, 667 probably destroyed, and 3,214 damaged.

During the three years of war, American plane losses were 13,481 — less than half those suffered by the enemy — and include 8,297 shot down in combat, 270 destroyed on the ground, and 4,924 knocked down by anti-aircraft fire.

USAAF personnel suffered approximately 86,580 battle casualties, including dead, wounded, prisoners, and sick.

EARTHQUAKE CAUSES DAMAGE IN JAPAN

WASHINGTON, December 8 — Radio Tokyo early today admitted that an earthquake, which seismologists in the United States and elsewhere said registered as one of the greatest in 24 years, caused a tidal wave and a landslide «on a minor scale» and the crumbling of cottages «over a limited area.»

The broadcast said the center of the quake was «somewhere in the Sea of Enshu,» off the west coast of Japan.

The earthquake was recorded yesterday at 0048 hours GMT on seismographs throughout the world, and was severe enough to have kept the instruments quivering for six hours. The Sea of Enshu washes the southeastern coast of Japan where Tokyo, Yokohama, and Japanese naval bases of Kobe and Osaka are located.

The last severe earthquake shook Japan on 1 September 1923, killing over 99,000 people and destroying large parts of Tokyo and Yokohama. At that time, America sent 59 million dollars to Japan for earthquake relief. (OWI)

CHURCHILL WINS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

LONDON, December 8 — Prime Minister Churchill's Government won an overwhelming vote of confidence in the House of Commons today when an amendment to the Speech from the Throne, criticizing the Government's policy on Greece and in the internal affairs of other European liberated countries, was defeated by 279 votes to 30.

Mr. Churchill received his ninth vote of confidence after declaring that Britain had acted in Greece only to avert rebel rule.

Aroused by denunciations of his stand, Churchill demanded the vote of confidence as a justification for the continuation of his policy.

Mr. Churchill had pointed out that such action would mean that Britain «will persist in this policy of clearing Athens and the Athens region of all those who are rebels to the constituted authority of Greece.»

He made it clear that the policy was not designed for Greece alone, but that Britain stood committed to the right of a people to chose its government in a free election, and that Britain would not tolerate the overthrowing of constitutional authority by violence.

Upholding the use of British tanks and troops against ELAS forces in Greece, Churchill said that Britain had acted to ensure that lawless bodies did not «descend from the mountains and install themselves, with all their bloody terror and violence, in power.»

Disclosing that plans for the liberation of Greece were laid at the Quebec Conference last August, although the Greek Government were kept in ignorance of these plans, Mr. Churchill said:

«The enterprise was marked by excellent timing and extreme efficiency, and crowned by complete success. British troops were welcomed enthusiastically in Athens. So also was the Greek Brigade, which had mutinied earlier, but had been freed from mutinous elements.»

ELAS Plotting For 2 Years

The Prime Minister said that during the two years preceeding the liberation, ELAS supporters had «devoted themselves principally to preparations for seizing power,» and a well-organized plot was developed for a march on Athens under the «plea of purging collaborationists.»

Faced with this prospect, the Greek Government, with its six EAM ministers, tried to arrange general disarmament, followed by the creation of a National Army, 40,000 strong. This plan failed because, although there was a ready response in all districts not dominated by ELAS, «the National Army was not ready to offer effective resistance to organized subversive forces. Also the Athens police, who had lived through German tyranny, were no guarantee of stability.»

While all this was coming to a head, peace and order reigned and 45,000 tons of relief stores, mainly American, were landed in a single week.

At a carefully chosen moment, ELAS forces began to filter into the Greek capital, and the six EAM ministers resigned.

«On Tuesday morning,» Mr. Churchill continued, «I directed General Scobie to assume complete control of Athens and the area, and to use what force was necessary to drive out the ELAS bands by which the capital was invested.»

Stating that General Scobie now has ample forces in Greece, or en route, the British Premier said: «It is not compatible with our honor or obligations to take to our ships, as we so easily could, and leave Athens to anarchy, misery, and tyranny.»

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden closed the debate by saying:

«Our purpose is to enable the Greeks to express their own will, but we must insist that it should be done through the ballot box and not by bombs.»

Contending that the Greek Government, formed at the Lebanon Conference, was wholly representative, Mr. Eden continued: «The Government consisted of 24 members, and all 24 are republicans. M. Papandreou himself was in exile before the war because he opposed the Metaxas Administration, and this is the man we are now told is a Fascist.»

Speaking of his recent visit to Athens, Mr. Eden said that leading representatives of the Greek Communist Party asked to see him, and: «They told me they were perfectly content with the unity of the Government, and its policy, and were perfectly loyal to M. Papandreou.»

After pointing out that the EAM ministers insisted on the demobilization of Greek regular units, but wished to retain their own brigades, Mr. Eden concluded:

«It is our hope that free elections may be held at the earliest possible moment, and we invite our Allies to ensure that those elections are free.

«We entered Greece knowing the risk and what political disputes there were; knowing the passions, not only of this war, but of the Metaxas Régime. We knew all this — bottled up — would burst, would burst in our faces.

«We thought it our duty to take that risk, and the responsibility. If we are holding the ring, we will invite our Allies to join us.

«I believe that the Greek masses are not interested in ELAS, or EAM, or EDES, but are very much interested in getting something to eat. In trying to help them we have become involved, against our will, in this internecine conflict.

«We beg those who are carrying it on to lay down their arms and play their part in the re-birth of their country.»

MORE GUERRILLA FORCES MOVE ON ATHENS

ATHENS, December 8 — ELAS troops have increased their attacks on British troops, Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie announced in a communique late tonight.

British troops slowly are clearing areas of the city, but more of the guerrilla forces continue to filter back. More then 900 officers and men of these forces have been captured and handed over to the Greek authorities, the communique said. Most of them were dressed as civilians.

The British Navy joined in the action yesterday, when a British destroyer and two British motor launches anchored off Piraeus opened fire on a strongly garrisoned ELAS strongpoint, a Royal Navy communique said today. A medium sized fire was started in what was believed to be a petrol dump.

General Scobie reported more numerous «unprovoked attacks» on British troops, and that the rebel forces have declared their intention to hold any captured British and Greek troops as prisoners.

There were indications from outside the capital that additional ELAS troops are moving towards the capital. The BBC reported tonight that 10 divisions were reported 15 miles from Athens, and that these forces appeared to be concentrating on the capital. It added that one guerrilla battalion outside the city has 75 guns at its disposal.

Strike in Salonika

The communique said that a general strike has been declared at Salonika, halting relief measures. It was reported

Stating that General Scobie now has ample forces in Greece, or en route, the British Premier said: «It is not compatible with our honor or obligations to take to our ships, as we so easily could, and leave Athens to anarchy, misery, and tyranny.»

He described the Allied interference in Belgium as «an attempt to stand between the friends of democracy and the anarchy of overthrow of the Belgian State.»

Pointing out the similarity of the proclamations issued by General Erskine, who was directly responsible to, and derived his authority, from General Eisenhower, Mr. Churchill expressed complete agreement with the Supreme Commander's decisions, and said that they stopped disorder and tumult along the Allied lines of communications. He continued.

«I have no hesitation in saying that, not only did we obey General Eisenhower's orders, but that we thought they were wise and sensible.»

The debate followed, and one speaker suggested that a general election should be held in Greece within two months after the defeat of Germany, and under international supervision.

Other speakers criticized the method in which the present Greek Government came into being, and some called for the sending of a minister of high standing to Greece to try to mediate between the various factions. Arthur Greenwood, deputy leader of the Labor Party, expressing agreement with the latter suggestion, said: «If there be any step that can be taken to stop this war between brothers who bled on the same field, then those steps should be taken without delay.»

The BBC reported tonight that 10 divisions were reported 15 miles from Athens, and that these forces appeared to be concentrating on the capital. It added that one guerrilla battalion outside the city has 75 guns at its disposal.

Strike in Salonika

The communique said that a general strike has been declared at Salonika, halting relief measures. It was reported that hunger drove hundreds of Athenians into the streets in search of food, despite snipers and the chatter of machine guns. British and American relief organizations succeeded in sending food to an overcrowded hospital where 250 men, women, and children of both sides have been taken since Sunday.

In support of British and Greek troops, fighters and fighter-bombers engaged rebel machine-gun and mortar posts in the hills overlooking the suburbs of Athens and Piraeus. Three of the aircraft were damaged. The Greek Air Force did not take part in these operations, because it is harrying the retreating Germans in northern Greece.

ELAS forces still hold their positions overlooking the Greek Mountain Brigade barracks, and at the foot of the Acropolis. A small battle is continuing in the neighborhood of the British Legation.

An ELAS announcement yesterday accused Greek Premier Georges Papandreou of violations of agreements regarding the treatment of the collaborationists. The first ELAS communique, printed in the newspaper Free Greece, said, in part:

«ELAS forces are attacking with assurance that the greater part of the capital is in their hands. The EAM has made a protest to several Allied embassies against the intervention of British troops.»

these

An order forbidding Greek civilians to take up arms on the side of Government forces was issued today by General Scobie. The order said that only the Mountain Brigade, the gendarmerie, the town police, and the National Guard were authorized to do so. All persons in civilian clothes bearing arms are to be arrested at once and disarmed, the order said.

It also was announced tonight that the Allied military command has begun proceedings against the ringleaders in the present internal strife. Special courts-martial are to be set up to try those arrested.

Last night's communique from General Scobie said that tanks and artillery were used against rebels entrenched in pillboxes and houses. Royal Marines also participated in clearing an area around the Navy House in the port of Piraeus.

General Scobie reported also that there was no evidence of the rebel troops' obeying his order to clear the prescribed area around Athens by midnight Wednesday night.

Premier Papandreou said yesterday:

«We are defending liberty against violence. There is evidence that the left wing is attempting a coup d'état. I am a democrat and a socialist, and the enemy is fascism. ELAS has become an independent army within the state. The development of this hard struggle convinces me it will not be very long before law and order are fully established. We are being helped by British forces. The help they are giving is not intervention.»

The Athens office of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration announced that volunteers wearing Red Cross arm bands were trucking bandages and other emergency supplies to the city hospital.

ENEMY DESERTERS STIR GREEK TROUBLES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 8 — «Irresponsible extremists,» in combination with numbers of German and Bulgarian Army deserters, many possibly planted by German agents, were responsible for the current civil strife in Greece, General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson declared yesterday.

General Wilson, retiring as Supreme Allied Commander, Mediterranean Theater, emphasized that Allied forces are «still at war with Germans» and were using air and naval bases in Greece against the Germans in Crete and the Aegean Islands.

The Allies also are endeavoring to bring relief to the Greeks and reconstitute normal conditions, General Wilson said, adding: «Irresponsible elements are trying to defeat these Allied ends, and have brought relief to a standstill and have hampered military operations.»

General Wilson indicated that the only way to effect public order was to disarm all irregular fighting forces, and British forces have suffered casualties in carrying out this task.

It was in the round-up of armed mobs, he said, that the German and Bulgarian Army deserters were discovered. Such elements gave the activity of the extremists a character «not much different from the Gestapo,» General Wilson declared. (PRO)

Lord Halifax, speaking to reporters after a conference with Secretary of State Stettinius at the State Department, did not define «understanding» or say whether these is now agreement between Washington and London on the future handling of political issues in Italy and Greece.

He did say, however, that he believed the result of the current clash of views would be to strengthen the unity of the United States and Great Britain, by making both sides be more careful hereafter to consult on every issue of common interest.

«I do not think we need to be unduly excited about what has happened,» Halifax said. «The note now should be one of substantial understanding in the certainty that it will be the purpose of the two governments to consult together on all future occasion and to share their friendly counsel at all times.»

Halifax said that he thought Prime Minister Churchill's speech in the Commons today stated the facts on Greece from the British viewpoint. He asserted that the situation in Greece boils down to this:

«It is a choice whether the Greek people are to have a free hand in selecting their government through free elections, or whether it is to be anarchy or a minority coup d'état in Greece. I do not myself favor anarchy or a coup d'état.» (OWI)

LONDON, December 8 — British, American, and Soviet labor officials said today in a joint statement, that «mutual understanding and unanimity» marked the work of the committee which completed preparatory plans for the world trade union conference to be held in February.

The committee, which completed its work in three days, confined itself to the preparation of agenda and recommendations on procedure. It was not concerned with the merits of the questions to be discussed.

The formation of a world-wide trade union organization, which is expected to replace the present international federation of trade unions, will be the major question on the agenda.

Delegates from America, Britain and Russia alone will represent 45 million workers, while delegates from liberated countries will represent other millions.

Labor leaders from countries still under German occupation also will be present, it was announced.

Invitations were not extended to Spain or Argentina, «as conditions there make free trade union movements impossible.» Representatives of Republican Spain, exiled by the Franco Régime, have been invited and will attend the conference. (OWI)

LIBERATED ITALY

CHURCHILL DENIES BARRING SFORZA FROM CABINET

LONDON, December 8 — Prime Minister Churchill said today during his foreign-policy speech in the House of Commons that Britain did not veto the appointment of Count Carlo Sforza as a potential Prime Minister or Foreign Secretary of the Italian government, but he added, "We do not trust that man."

Mr. Churchill said that under a joint agreement with the United States concerning Italy, barring of Count Sforza from the Italian cabinet could be only upon joint action by the Allies.

"The Italians, having unconditionally surrendered, have a perfect right to choose anyone they please for any office of state," Mr. Churchill asserted.

"If, tomorrow, the Italians were to make Count Sforza Prime Minister or Foreign Secretary, we have no power to stop it, except with the agreement of the Allies. All that we have to say about it is, we do not trust that man. We do not think that he is a true and trustworthy man; nor would we have the slightest confidence in any government in which he is a dominating member.

"At present, we have a joint agreement with America about Italy, and I should be very sorry if it were proved that we had broken away from this joint agreement. We have not done so. We did not think that his appointment would be a good thing in the extremely disordered and tumultuous state in which Italy was left on the morrow of her revolt against Germany."

"When, amidst the shifting tangles of Italian politics with six parties — none of them hampered by having been elected by anyone — we were suddenly told that Count Sforza was to become Foreign Secretary, the British Minister undoubtedly would say that we do not think that he was a good choice. What is the reason for this?"

Sforza's Pledge

Mr. Churchill explained that he had President Roosevelt's permission to quote a letter from Count Sforza to former Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, written 23 September 1943.

In this letter, Count Sforza said that so long as Marshal Pietro Badoglio was acceptable to the Allies, and was devoting Italian military resources to the struggle against Germany, it would be criminal to do anything to weaken his position. Count Sforza added: "I am prepared to offer my full support so long as he is thus engaged. I pledge my honor to do this myself, and to urge this course upon my many friends."

The Prime Minister said that while Count Sforza was en route to Italy, he had a meeting with him, in London, in the presence of Anthony Eden and Sir Alexander Cadogan. He continued:

Sforza Overthrowe Badoglio

"I went through this letter with Count Sforza almost line by line, and he assured me that it was his most profound conviction. But no sooner was Count Sforza back in Italy than he began a long series of intrigues, which ended in Marshal Badoglio's expulsion from office.

"Many may say that the ousting of Badoglio was a good thing, but that is not the point. I have no particular need to defend Marshal Badoglio, except that we got the Italian Fleet, and there was no moment of his tenure of office that he did not do his utmost to help drive the Germans from Italy."

Mr. Churchill said that ultimately Badoglio "fell" [illegible] which it was announced that the American "Trading With the Enemy" Act had been modified so that Italy could resume business transactions with the world, and to recognition of Italy's diplomatic status.

Mr. Churchill concluded his discussion on Italy's current political affairs by citing the "new evolution" by Italy's six parties in the recent cabinet crisis.

"I am told that Bonomi is going to form another government with the support of four of the six parties," Mr. Churchill asserted. "To Bonomi, our best wishes."

BONOMI DISCUSSES FORMATION OF CABINET

ROME, December 8 — Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi today discussed the program of his new government and the appointment of Cabinet ministers with leaders of the Communist, Liberal, Christian Democrat, and Democratic Labor Parties.

The four parties yesterday agreed to take part in a new Bonomi Government, while the Action and Socialist Parties stood firm on their earlier decisions of non-participation.

Today's talks also dealt with the possibility of setting up two vice-presidencies and a presidential committee, of forming new ministries and splitting up others.

Later today, Bonomi talked with Benedetto Croce, widely-known philosopher and member of the Liberal Party, and with Commodore Ellery Stone, Chief Commissioner of the Allied Commission.

The Action Party said today that its decision not to participate in the new Bonomi Government was based on Bonomi's failure to implement the program for which his earlier government was formed, thereby imperilling CNL unity. The Party added that it would continue membership of the CNL. (UNN)

CLARIFICATION OF POLICY IN ITALY URGED

WASHINGTON, December 8 — The Foreign Policy Association, a private research organization, yesterday urged clarification of Allied policy in Italy.

The association said the crux of the problem was whether the Italian people are to be held guilty for the crimes of the Fascist state, and therefore subject to close surveillance and punishment.

On that decision, the association said, "hinges the juridical status of the government in liberated Italy, the scope of its powers at home, and the extent of its ability to obtain aid and make commitments abroad."

The report, based on a survey prepared by C. Grove Haines of the association's staff, analyzed the serious economic plight of the Italian people and its relation to current political unrest. (OWI)

NENNI PLANS TO VISIT PARIS

ROME, December 8 — Pietro Nenni, secretary of the Italian Socialist Party, said today before departing for London that his visit to England is primarily to renew associations with the labor movement and has no connection with the current political situation in Italy. (The Socialist Party is not participating in the new Bonomi Government.)

Nenni will attend the Labor Party Congress beginning in London on Sunday. He said he planned also to visit Paris to hold discussions with leaders of the French Socialist Party and "review the problems facing the development of the new Italian democracy." (UNN) which he is a dominating member.

"At present, we have a joint agreement with America about Italy, and I should be very sorry if it were proved that we had broken away from this joint agreement. We have not done so. We did not think that his appointment would be a good thing in the extremely disordered and tumultuous state in which Italy was left on the morrow of her revolt against Germany.

"When, amidst the shifting tangles of Italian politics with six parties — none of them hampered by having been elected by anyone — we were suddenly told that Count Sforza was to become Foreign Secretary, the British Minister undoubtedly would say that we do not think that he was a good choice. What is the reason for this?"

Sforza's Pledge

Mr. Churchill explained that he had President Roosevelt's permission to quote a letter from Count Sforza to former Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, written 23 September 1943.

In this letter, Count Sforza said that so long as Marshal Pietro Badoglio was acceptable to the Allies, and was devoting Italian military resources to the struggle against Germany, it would be criminal to do anything to weaken his position. Count Sforza added: "I am prepared to offer my full support so long as he is thus engaged. I pledge my honor to do this myself, and to urge this course upon my many friends."

The Prime Minister said that while Count Sforza was en route to Italy, he had a meeting with him, in London, in the presence of Anthony Eden and Sir Alexander Cadogan. He continued:

Sforza Overthrowe Badoglio

"I went through this letter with Count Sforza almost line by line, and he assured me that it was his most profound conviction. But no sooner was Count Sforza back in Italy than he began a long series of intrigues, which ended in Marshal Badoglio's expulsion from office.

"Many may say that the ousting of Badoglio was a good thing, but that is not the point. I have no particular need to defend Marshal Badoglio, except that we got the Italian Fleet, and there was no moment of his tenure of office that he did not do his utmost to help drive the Germans from Italy."

Mr. Churchill said that ultimately Badoglio "fell a victim to Count Sforza's intrigues" and the six-party government was formed under Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi. Mr. Churchill noted that, while "none of these parties have the slightest electoral foundation, we did our best to help this new government."

The British Prime Minister recalled the efforts to assist Italy in reconstruction through modifications of some of the armistice terms. These modifications, he said, were designed to assist Italians economically, and to give Italy an opportunity to do her utmost militarly as a co-belligerent.

"During my trip to Italy," Mr. Churchill recalled, "I interviewed Bonomi and other persons, and I devoted much time to draft a series of modifications in the terms imposed on Italy by the victorious allies.

"These modifications I submitted by telegraph to President Roosevelt and, when we met at Quebec and at his private residence in Hyde Park (New York State), we drafted a joint declaration aiming to give to the Italians a very good chance to do their share as co-belligerents and also to provide, as far as within our possibilities, that the Italian people would not lack the essential elements of life."

Mr. Churchill apparently was referring to the joint Anglo-American declaration issued on September 26, in which Allied leaders declared that Italy would be treated as a co-belligerent to the extent that she actively waged war against Germany.

Parties stood firm on their earlier decisions of non-participation.

Today's talks also dealt with the possibility of setting up two vice-presidencies and a presidential committee, of forming new ministries and splitting up others.

Later today, Bonomi talked with Benedetto Croce, widely-known philosopher and member of the Liberal Party, and with Commodore Ellery Stone, Chief Commissioner of the Allied Commission.

The Action Party said today that its decision not to participate in the new Bonomi Government was based on Bonomi's failure to implement the program for which his earlier government was formed, thereby imperilling CNL unity. The Party added that it would continue membership of the CNL. (UNN)

CLARIFICATION OF POLICY IN ITALY URGED

WASHINGTON, December 8 — The Foreign Policy Association, a private research organization, yesterday urged clarification of Allied policy in Italy.

The association said the crux of the problem was whether the Italian people are to be held guilty for the crimes of the Fascist state, and therefore subject to close surveillance and punishment.

On that decision, the association said, "hinges the juridical status of the government in liberated Italy, the scope of its powers at home, and the extent of its ability to obtain aid and make commitments abroad."

The report, based on a survey prepared by C. Grove Haines of the association's staff, analyzed the serious economic plight of the Italian people and its relation to current political unrest. (OWI)

LABOR CONFEDERATION VOICES DEMANDS

ROME, December 8 — In a broadcast here tonight, a spokesman for the Italian General Confederation of Labor said the trade union body is preparing a memorandum formulating the current demands of Italian workers.

These demands, the spokesman said, include the extension of the cost-of-living bonus recently granted civil servents and employees of public agencies to all workers and to the sick and to pensioners; the launching of labor projects to provide work for the unemployed; an increase in the bread ration for children and workers; and effective measures to combat the black market. ARDEATINE CAVES REPORT COMPLETED

ROME, December 8 — The five month task of exhuming and identifying the bodies of the victims of the Ardeatine Caves massacre has been completed, Professor Attilio Ascarelli, head of the Investigating Committee, announced today. The Committee report, and the photographic material pertaining to it will be submitted to Allied authorities here.

Professor Ascarelli told a UNN reporter the victims of the March 25 massacre by the Germans total 335. Three hundred and twenty of these, he said, have been identified. Seventy-six of the murdered anti-Fascists, whose ages ranged from 14 to 74, were workers. Nine of them were under 20, and included 14-year-old Michele De Veroli and 15-year-old Duilio Cibei. The massacre was in reprisal for the slaying of 32 Nazis by a Patriot bomb.

Ascarelli suggested that the Ardeatine Caves be transformed into a final resting-place for the remains of the victims. Should this be impossible, he added, they should be buried in the ground adjacent to the caves. He also suggested that the graves bear a single, identical mark of identification. «Love of country and of freedom,» he said, «has cemented the brotherhood of the professional man, the soldier, and the worker.» (UNN)

ITALIAN UNIVERSITY WOMEN ASK TO VOTE

ROME, December 8 — A campaign to obtain the vote for Italian women was planned this morning at the first meeting of the Italian Association of University Women since the organisation was forced underground by Fascist decree in 1934. The meeting, attended by 30 women physicians, lawyers, engineers, and teachers, was held at the Botanical Institute of the University of Rome.

The IAUW suffrage campaign will be held during the first week of January in coöperation with other women's groups throughout liberated Italy.

Miss Annita Italia Garibaldi, grand-daughter of the famed Italian patriot and head of the associations's International Relations Committee, attended the meeting.

«We have made women's suffrage our first business and we will fight until we have achieved our aim» she said. «Italy's democratic reawakening will not be complete until women have been granted the right to vote.»

She asserted that «women have been ignored» under the present Italian election laws.

A bitter attack on the Bonomi Government's attitude toward women's suffrage was made by Dr. Teresita Sandesky-Scelba, head of the associations's Liaison Committee.

«Our exclusion from the election registry, in effect, puts us in a category with drunkards and idiots,» she said.

«Despite the oral promises made to us, we do not believe the government will grant us the vote. Our appeals to Prime Minister Bonomi about a month ago resulted only in delay. Proof of the Government's intentions is the fact that women will not be represented in the election registry lists now being prepared.

«We demand a juridical, economic, and de jure equality with men.»

A member of Prime Minister Bonomi's household said that Bonomi was not prepared to comment on the assertions made by Miss Garibaldi and Dr. Sandesky-Scelba, because of his preoccupation with the Government crisis.

The IAUW was formed in 1920 as a subsidiary of the International Federation of University Women, and is a counterpart of the American Association of University Women.

After the Italian association was dissolved by Fascist decree, the women met clandestinely as a librarians' group which they used as a «front» for their activities. (UNN)

A UP correspondent learned today that the Germans looted every shop in Ravenna with great thoroughness, and took away all portable goods. Groceries and other foodstuffs were the most popular with the enemy troops and today Ravenna, formerly a rich agricultural center where food shortages were unknown, is temporarily living hand-to-mouth. The correspondent added that the food situation, though serious, is not desperate. (UNN)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 8 — Today's communique:

The enemy offensive in the Aemilia region, mentioned in recent bulletins, has now been under way for several days, and is being continued relentlessly. The situation, however, seems to have become more favorable for the Patriots. The latter, in fact, are strenuously resisting enemy attacks from four directions between the Trebbia and Taro rivers. Farther west enemy pressure which had manifested itself as far as Romagnese has even been stopped. The Patriot division under the command of «Americano,» which is continuing to resist enemy attacks, has received more reinforcements.

It can now be disclosed that following the trap laid for two enemy columns on the Vittorio Veneto-Belluno road, Patriots destroyed eight motor transports, killed 12 Germans, and took three prisoners with a loss of only three men. Food supplies and ammunition were also captured. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 8 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Yesterday, after three weeks of unsuccessful attempts at breaking through, the enemy attacked only in the sector west of Jülich with strong forces He was again unsuccessful.

At Vossenack, grim fighting is still in progress for a height and some villages.

In the Saarlautern sector, our grenadiers recaptured advanced pillbox positions which had been lost during the last few days.

Fresh enemy attempts at crossing the Saar were frustrated by our artillery fire.

Most of the attacks which the enemy had launched on a broad front east of Saaralben, were also smashed within our main lines. The enemy lost 22 more tanks, and four armoured reconnaissance cars.

In central Alsace, in the Selestad and Rappoltsweiler sectors, the attacking enemy was repulsed to his initial positions by determined counter-attacks.

An attempt of strong enemy forces at smashing the southern pillar of our Vosges front, in the Maasmünster sector, was frustrated with heavy losses to the attacker.

Corporal Joseph Fink, of the 106th Tank Brigade Feldherrnhalle, with short-range weapons, destroyed seven Sherman tanks within 24 hours during the defensive fight-

In Hungary, extremely fierce fighting is in full swing along the whole battlefront.

Fresh Bolshevik attempts at breaking through in a westerly direction between the Drau and Lake Balaton were frustrated.

South of Budapest, encircling attempts of strong Soviet forces made only slight gains in the face of our stubborn resistance.

North of the Hungarian capital, the Bolsheviks, favoured by fog, succeeded in broadening their penetration. Their spearheads were repelled at several points, and 17 tanks were destroyed.

Northwest of Erlau and in the Miscolcz sector, enemy attacks failed.

In the southern part of eastern Slovakia, local fighting developed.

Nothing of moment is reported from the other parts of the Eastern Front.

GERMAN

Shift of Emphasis in Greece: The Greek crisis continues to be the chief propaganda item of the day and, as indicated in yesterday's items, continues to be treated mainly as a duel between pro-British and pro-Russian imperialisms. A slight shift of emphasis is, however, perceptible since this morning.

Whereas yesterday's items were mostly an attack on Communist expansion in the Balkans via the ELAS, today more time is devoted to attacking the British opponents of ELAS.

The German NPD agency today even quotes with apparent sympathy an ELAS statement accusing the supporters of the Greek Government of violating the Atlantic Charter and the Teheran Agreement, as well as the Lebanon Charter.

Several other items, in the various German overseas services, likewise portray Great Britain as a bully of small nations.

Goebbels' Article: Tonight, the German Radio has broadcast the weekly article by the Minister of Propaganda. It is entitled «The Decisive Round.» The title refers to the present military situation which Goebbels believes will determine the war. He distinguishes between «blows which wound» Germany and blows which «shatter.» The Allies, he argues, can from now on deal out only the former, owing to the «stiffened German defence.»

Ukraine Revolt: German sources are making the most of a reputed anti-Soviet revolt in the Ukraine. Transocean claims: «In Kharkov, rioting occurred against Soviet police troops shortly after a revolt by nationalist Ukrainians broke out in the Kiev region.»

AMERICANS GAIN THREE BRIDGEHEADS OVER SAAR

LONDON, December 6 — The battle of the Western Front entered its seventh month today. American 3rd Army troops made four new crossings over the Saar River northwest of Saarlautern to establish a third bridgehead over the main water barrier guarding the rich industrial region.

Hagenau, other 7th Army forces, slightly northwest of liberated Merzweiler, are meeting strong German resistance.

The Germans appear to be making a general withdrawal to higher ground north of Strasbourg, and have directed artillery fire from guns on the east bank of the Rhine on American movements. Strasbourg itself is being subjected to heavy shelling.

In the center of the Alsatian Plain, American and French forces have cleared the city of Schlettstadt (Selestat) after three days of street fighting. The Allied advance southward to Colmar, German Army headquarters, is being impeded by flooding of the waterways and by minefields and demolitions.

French 1st Army troops have driven through the important Schlucht Pass in the Vosges Mountains, and are now advancing toward Colmar. Algerian and FFI columns were last reported five miles from Münster.

The French 1st Army commander today stated that his forces had captured 15,000, and killed 10,000 Germans since the beginning of the current winter offensive for the Alsace Plain. He said that the equivalent of three German divisions had been destroyed, and that three divisions now facing the French 1st Army are at two-thirds normal strength.

The Germans are throwing more and more reserves into the battle for the Cologne Plain as American 1st and 9th Army forces are consolidating their positions on the west banks of the flooded Roer River.

Heavy Fighting at Jülich

On the 9th Army sector, heavy fighting continued on the outskirts of Jülich, key stronghold on the Roer River. Thunderbolt dive-bombers struck German positions with 11,000 pounds of bombs as American troops withdrew to give the air force a clear field.

Press correspondents said that SS « Elite » troops in this sector have retreated and left regular German Army units to defend German positions. A force of German Air Force veterans have been transferred to the army to fill gaps in the lines.

American 1st Army forces edged their way toward the Roer River from liberated Bergstein on the edge of the Hürtgen Forest. Just south of Bergstein, American units are meeting strong German resistance in the Vossenack area, where the Germans have the advantage of high ground.

On the northern flank of the 1st Army front, a developing German counter-attack against American positions at Lucherberg was broken up by a heavy concentration of Allied artillery fire.

AMERICANS GAIN THREE BRIDGEHEADS OVER SAAR

LONDON, December 6 — The battle of the Western Front entered its seventh month today. American 3rd Army troops made four new crossings over the Saar River northwest of Saarlautern to establish a third bridgehead over the main water barrier guarding the rich industrial region.

The crossings were made in assault boats in the face of enemy small arms fire, and have brought the Americans into the outer rim of strong Siegfried Line defenses.

American infantry are now over the Saar above and below Saarlautern. Troops who forced the second crossing south of the city late yesterday extended their bridgehead to a depth of more than a mile, while those who first hurdled the river at Saarlautern widened the base of their bridgehead to 2½ miles. Armor and infantry crossed the bridge to reinforce their positions on the Saar's east bank, despite heavy German shelling from 240-millimeter guns.

The major Saar Basin city of Saarbrücken continued to come under heavy American artillery fire and dive-bombing attacks today. For seven days, an average of 20 shells an hour, 24 hours a day, have landed in the flaming city.

Infantry and armored units have advanced toward Saarbrücken and reached points from six to eight miles away on the west, southwest, south, and southeast. To the west, the forest of Derkarlsbrunn was cleared of German forces, while American infantry drove into the outskirts of Saargemünd, vital mining town eight miles to the south.

American 7th Army forces driving northward on the 3rd Army's east flank captured Oberbronn, 12 miles to the northwest of Hagenau, and are now less than eight miles from the Saar border. In their outflanking drive around to Colmar, German Army headquarters, is being impeded by flooding of the waterways and by minefields and demolitions.

French 1st Army troops have driven through the important Schlucht Pass in the Vosges Mountains, and are now advancing toward Colmar. Algerian and FFI columns were last reported five miles from Münster.

The French 1st Army commander today stated that his forces had captured 15,000, and killed 10,000 Germans since the beginning of the current winter offensive for the Alsace Plain. He said that the equivalent of three German divisions had been destroyed, and that three divisions now facing the French 1st Army are at two-thirds normal strength.

The Germans are throwing more and more reserves into the battle for the Cologne Plain as American 1st and 9th Army forces are consolidating their positions on the west banks of the flooded Roer River.

Heavy Fighting at Jülich

On the 9th Army sector, heavy fighting continued on the outskirts of Jülich, key stronghold on the Roer River. Thunderbolt dive-bombers struck German positions with 11,000 pounds of bombs as American troops withdrew to give the air force a clear field.

Press correspondents said that SS «Elite» troops in this sector have retreated and left regular German Army units to defend German positions. A force of German Air Force veterans have been transferred to the army to fill gaps in the lines.

American 1st Army forces edged their way toward the Roer River from liberated Bergstein on the edge of the Hürtgen Forest. Just south of Bergstein, American units are meeting strong German resistance in the Vossenack area, where the Germans have the advantage of high ground.

On the northern flank of the 1st Army front, a developing German counter-attack against American positions at Lucherberg was broken up by a heavy concentration of Allied artillery fire.

LATE BULLETINS

AMERICANS CONTROL TWO-THIRDS SAARGEMUEND

LONDON, December 6 — American 3rd Army forces tonight control two-thirds of the coal mining city of Saargemünd, late reports said. The Germans are reported to have blown up all five bridges crossing the Saar River in their retreat to the east bank.

Other American forces are less than five miles from Saarbrücken, major city of the Saar Basin, with elements of three infantry divisions and two armored divisions closing around the city in a great arc.

Large tank battles are reported to be raging eight miles southeast of Saargemünd as American tanks, pushing to the northeast, clashed with panzer formations in considerable strength. (BBC)

ALLIED BOMBERS OVER GERMANY TONIGHT

LONDON, December 6 — The RAF Bomber Command tonight sent more than 1,300 aircraft over Germany with two marshalling yards and an important synthetic oil plant as the main objectives, Reuter reported tonight.

A V-2 component store and launching site, built in the center of a large Dutch town, were attacked today by the RAF Fighter Command without damaging nearby civilian property. Other Spitfire bombers attacked V-2 sites elsewhere in Holland. (Reuter)

The flooded areas northwest of Nijmegen on the British 2nd Army sector now cover an area of 29 square miles. The flooding, over a foot in depth, has caused some readjustment in forward Allied positions, press dispatches said. Since the defeat of the German paratroopers' infiltration attempt several days ago, there have been no further German assault attempts, as the flooded area inhibits military movement.

In the half-year since the Allied armies landed on the shores of Normandy, they have captured 750,000 German soldiers, press dispatches reported. Prisoners taken have averaged more than 4,000 a day. With the German killed or wounded, 1 1/4 million of the enemy have been put out of action in the six months' fighting, the reports said.

8TH ARMY CROSSES LAMONE IN STRENGTH

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 6 — As British and Canadian troops, aided by Italian Patriots, cleared up the few remaining enemy pockets of resistance in Ravenna, British and Polish forces of the 8th Army yesterday crossed the Lamone River in strength, to threaten from the southwest the strongly-held enemy town of Faenza.

The British and Polish troops crossed the Lamone, sole remaining water barrier of the smashed German delaying positions across the southeastern end of the Po Plain, on a wide front, and have already gained a foothold in the hills overlooking the town from the southwest, official reports said. Strong enemy resistance failed to prevent the Allied penetration of the river line in one of its most heavily defended stretches.

Allied forces were also pushing westward from the central area of the broken enemy line, and reported the capture of hamlets five miles west of Ravenna. Eighth Army troops reached the enemy's Lamone River defenses as far as 10 miles northeast of Faenza, but heavy enemy shelling and machine-gun fire repelled initial attempts to cross the stream. The Germans have reinforced their positions in this area in great strength, reports indicated.

One of the most important aspects of the Allied capture of Ravenna, it was pointed out by official reports today, is that Ravenna and its port, six miles to the east, had been a major link in the German supply system for the armies on the Po.

The loss of such a port and road center was described as a "serious blow to the enemy at this time. Official reports did not indicate whether Allied troops had occupied Porto Corsini, on the Adriatic, and linked to Ravenna by a six-mile navigation canal.

In the advance east of the Lamone River, Allied forces cleared the Faenza-Ravenna Road along the 12-mile stretch from the stream to Romagna's capital, and occupied the hamlet of San Michele, four miles west of Ravenna.

The village of Prangipane, a mile and a half northwest, and on a connecting road leading to Highway 16, main road to Ferrara, was also taken in the 8th Army advance. The enemy withdrawal in this area was said to be "badly disorganized," and 100 prisoners of war have been captured, as well as six armored fighting vehicles knocked out.

On the 5th Army front, Indian and British troops continued to improve their positions along the right flank, capturing a key feature overlooking the Imola approach road. (PRO)

RED ARMY WITHIN 40 MILES OF AUSTRIA

MOSCOW, December 6 — Today, on the third anniversary of the lifting of the siege of Moscow, Red Army troops have pushed their way to within 40 miles of Austria, registering a 12-mile advance in 24 hours.

Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian Front troops

Italy-based heavy bombers and fighters of the MAAF today joined in the battle of the Hungarian plains, with attacks on communications targets south of Vienna and key rail junctions along the Austrian-Hungarian frontier.

South of the Drava, Russian and Yugoslav troops seized the rail town of Sid, more than 60 miles northwest of Belgrade.

Radio Moscow said today that the Germans are devastating Hungary, blowing up factories, public buildings, and private houses as they retreat. Looting has developed on a large scale, shops being robbed of all stocks and then set on fire. (OWI - Reuter - Radio Moscow - CBS - BBC)

AMERICANS ON LEYTE INCREASE PRESSURE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 6 — Increased pressure against the Japanese on all sectors of the Leyte ground front by United States 7th Infantry Division troops was announced tonight.

For the second successive day, Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's 6th Army has turned back an enemy tank attack south of Limon at the head of the Ormoc Corridor.

The Japanese situation here is now regarded as critical with the Japanese reinforcement route through Ormoc Bay cut off by American warships and planes.

Three Japanese freighters attempting to move supplies to enemy forces on Leyte were sunk by American planes, the Associated Press reported. The enemy, in turn, attacked an American convoy near the island with fighters and bombers, the dispatch added.

A press dispatch from Leyte said today that barges and airplanes were being used to supply American troops in some front-line areas. Rain has turned the island's roads into quagmires, and at times whole sections near the front have been cut off for many days. Sometimes troops have had to carry supplies on their backs along roads virtually impassible even for an unincumbered man.

However, food and ammunition are being delivered in sufficient quantities to keep the American offensive going.

Japanese airdromes in the Manila area were among other targets that receivd attention from American planes. In the longer air strikes, a Japanese tanker and a small freighter were sunk off Borneo.

American planes sweeping over Japanese-occupied islands in the far Pacific have conducted new attacks against the enemy in the Marianas, Volcanos, Palaus, and Marshalls, Pacific Fleet headquarters announced tonight.

ALLIED CHINDWIN BRIDGEHEAD EXPANDED

KANDY, CEYLON, December 6 — Expansion of the Allied bridgehead on the east bank of the Chindwin is proceeding against enemy opposition, said today's Southeast Asia communique.

Chinese troops of the 38th Division made slight gains at Bhamo yesterday. In the southern sector, the Allied lines were straightened and positions consolidated.

A Chinese force in north Burma, pushing down the valley south of Bhamo for the last three weeks, has been unopposed, and Chinese forces advancing southeast from Bhamo toward the Burma Road have reached a point only 15 air miles from the China border, with only a few brushes with small enemy patrols or stragglers.

A dispatch also reported that the British 14th Army, in taking the River town of Kalewa, killed only five Japanese. A report from New Delhi said that the American 10th Air Force engineers have begun reconstructing a captured airfield within 500 yards of the Japanese lines near Bhamo.

RED ARMY WITHIN 40 MILES OF AUSTRIA

MOSCOW, December 6 — Today, on the third anniversary of the lifting of the siege of Moscow, Red Army troops have pushed their way to within 40 miles of Austria, registering a 12-mile advance in 24 hours.

Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian Front troops today continued their two-pronged armored thrust driving past the southern end of Lake Balaton.

Driving over terrain devoid of any features likely to help the defenders, Soviet armored columns captured another 40 inhabited localities between Lake Balaton and the River Drava.

Late Soviet dispatches indicated tonight that the Germans are bracing themselves for a desperate stand in the 30-mile corridor, extending south of Lake Balaton to the River Drava. They have been forced to bring in reinforcements from Italy to stiffen their rapidly crumbling defenses, the BBC said tonight.

In a program commemorating the anniversary, Radio Moscow said tonight:

«It was the beginning of the rout of the German armies. It was the first crushing blow upon the Hitlerites' war machine which laid the beginning of the inevitable rout of Fascist Germany.

«This battle culminated in the first victory over the enemy, and the further march of the Red Army; from Moscow to Warsaw; from Stalingrad to Budapest; from Tula to Tilsit.»

At the eastern end of Lake Balaton, the northward advancing prong of Marshal Tolbukhin's forces drove 10 miles along the west bank of the Danube to take Roczalmos, 28 miles south of beleaguered Budapest. In a day of hard fighting, more than 50 inhabited localities were captured.

Fighters of the 14th USAAF are now flying shuttle attacks between the Chinese Salween front in Yunnan Province and the Chinese lines in Burma, it was disclosed today.

The two Chinese armies in those sectors now are within 100 miles of joining. Fighters take off from China bases, bomb targets in front of the Chinese, push westward into Burma to 10th USAAF bases, refuel and rearm, and blast Japanese positions on the way home.

A 14th USAAF communique today said that its fighters attacked Japanese troop movements in French Indo-China, where the enemy is setting up a potential menace to China's gateway province of Yunnan.

Medium bombers of the 10th USAAF have bombed Mogok, the ruby center of the world, destroying 16 warehouses.

A Chungking dispatch reported that fighting is continuing in the Tuhshan area of the Kweichow Province, 70 miles southeast of Kweiyang, from where refugees are pouring in carts and trucks and on foot.

Last night's communique stated that Chinese forces engaged the Japanese north of the Chialao River and south of Tuhshan, and reported the re-capture of the small town of Pachai. The Japanese reported that they had captured Tuhshan, but this is not confirmed. The situation, however, is being watched anxiously, since the capture of Kweiyang would give the Japanese an air base within 200 miles of Chungking and 250 miles of Kunming. The occupation of

Kunming would make useless the new land supply route and the pipeline being built from India.

In widespread attacks ranging over central and south China and Formosa on Monday, aircraft of the 14th USAAF sank, probably sank, or damaged 16 Japanese freighters.

The Associated Press pointed out the added importance of these achievements in view of the adverse weather which has prevailed in the area and the loss of some of the best bases in southeast China to the enemy.

The communique reported also that Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's Chinese-American Wing was active bombing bridges, railroads, locomotives, and other installations.

Detailing the toll of Japanese shipping, the announcement said the best haul materialized Monday, when American planes sank a large freighter east of Shanghai, destroyed another, left two sinking, and damaged eight others on the Yangtze River at Pengseh. One freighter was probably sunk and another damaged off the southern tip of Formosa, while two were damaged in Amoy Harbor. (OWI)

1,600 PLANES CONTINUE OFFENSIVE ON REICH

LONDON, December 6 — The day-and-night air offensive against rail and industrial targets in Germany was kept up today when 800 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by an equal number of fighters, hit the Leuna synthetic oil plants near Merseburg and railroad marshalling yards at Bielefeld.

Objectives near Osnabrück were strafed by the American fighters as part of the operations. Four bombers and two fighters are missing from the operations. Adverse weather conditions prevented observation of the results.

Allied air attacks on marshalling yards are not the only way to choke German rail traffic, a BBC air correspondent wrote today. Attacks on locomotives, rail road trucks, bridges, and the rail lines themselves, and above all, the bombing of industrial areas, are designed to cut the railway system, he said. After heavy attacks, the German railways are at once subjected to an overwhelming strain.

Commenting on the scene in western Germany today — industrial targets reduced to rubble, canals drained of water, vital rail and road communications plunged into chaos — Wing Commander L. V. Fraser today said this is one outward sign of Britain's air might.

Fraser praised the long-term policy of building more and bigger bombers with which to strike at the industrial heart of the Reich when the immediate menace of invasion had passed. In 1940, only 41 heavy bombers were built, as against 2,869 during the first four months of 1944. The output of fighters showed a similar striking increase.

Thanks go also to the research carried out by British scientists, who toiled long to develop greater power and range and weight-carrying capacity for the bombers and fighters, Fraser added. (MOI-Reuter-BBC)

R.A.F. DEVELOPS NEW FLARE TECHNIQUE

LONDON, December 6 — RAF Coastal Command aircraft, using a new flare-dropping technique, are turning night into day to blast German convoys trying to move down the Dutch coast.

Squadrons have a "flare master" and so effective have been these floodlit attacks on German convoys, that the Germans have had to increase the normal number of escort ships by five times.

German convoys now find themselves in a pool of brilliant white light, far more powerful than the moon, and from the surrounding blackness come squadrons of Beaufighters firing cannons, rockets, and torpedoes. (Reuter)

NAVAL FORCES, PLANES STRIKE IN DALMATIANS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 6 — British warships and Balkan Air Force planes combined their strength in the attacks on the German F-boat and submersible depot at Lussin Piccolo, in the northern Dalmatian islands, it was announced here today.

Although the attack on the enemy installations by rocket-firing Beaufighters and Hurricanes was announced on December 4, this is the first mention of naval participation in the successful attack. Destroyers, armed LCT's, and motor torpedo boats were employed in the naval bombardment. (PRO)

TRUSCOTT NAMED 5TH ARMY COMMANDER

AFHQ, ITALY, December 6 — Lieut. Gen. Lucien K. Truscott, Jr., was named commanding general of the American 5th Army today, succeeding Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, Jr.

General Truscott, who has a record of six successfully completed amphibious landings from Dieppe to Anzio, is best known for his brilliant leadership of the U.S. 3rd Infantry Division during the Sicilian campaign. Under his command, a task force of 50,000 men landed in Sicily, and 3rd Division infantry troops under his personal command established a new record by advancing 34 miles across the island in 36 hours, fighting two engagements on the way, eventually capturing Palermo and Messina.

Leader of the assault troops in the landings on the south of France, General Truscott until recently was commander of the 6th Corps. He will be 50 years old next month.

A "soldier's soldier," his shiny helmet, battered leather jacket, and riding boots are a familiar sight in front-line positions. He is known to his staff as one of the most shrewd and carefully thorough tacticians in the army, combining a vast experience with an almost ruthless ability to produce results on the battlefield.

In May, 1942, General Truscott, then a Brigadier, was assigned as the American representative to Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's newly-formed Combined Operations Staff in England. In a few weeks, he assumed a major part in initiating plans for the Continental invasion and under his supervision the 1st Ranger force was conceived and trained.

He participated actively in the planning of the Dieppe Raid, and was the ranking American officer on the raid itself.

He then returned to America, where he assumed command of a special task force assigned to the difficult mission of capturing Port Lyautey in the North African invasion. Following the French capitulation, he was assigned as a Field Deputy to the Commanding General during the Tunisian Campaign.

In March, 1943, General Truscott was given command of the 3rd Division. He trained his men in Commando and Ranger tactics for the Sicilian landings, after which the 3rd Division joined the 5th Army at Salerno. Pushing north out of the beachhead, the 3rd Division spearheaded the initial crossing of the Volturno, and continued the drive up to Mignano where it was pulled out of the line after 59 days of continuous combat. 15TH U.S.A.A.F. HEAVIES AID RUSSIAN ADVANCE ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 6 — Liberator bombers of the 15th USAAF today struck at key rail yards in Hungary, Yugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia to disrupt communications behind the German forces falling back before the Russian advance into western Hungary, it was announced here this afternoon.

With clear weather, bombing was carried out visually, the report said. All the yards hit were on lines radiating south from Vienna, and included depots at Bratislava on the Danube, at Hegyeshalom, Sopron, and Szombathely near Hungary's Austrian frontier, and at Maribor in northern Yugoslavia.

Adverse weather curtailed Tactical Air Force close-support operations in the battle area in Italy, but attrition attacks continued against enemy road and rail transport in the rear areas.

Yesterday heavy ground fogs settled over the lowlands along the 8th Army front, sealing off the advancing Allied forces from air support, and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force attacked enemy positions south of Bologna in practically the only air action of the day, it was announced here today.

RAVENNA WELCOMES ALLIED TROOPS

WITH THE AAI, December 6 — The citizens of Ravenna gave the first Allied patrols a tumultuous welcome as the soldiers entered the city.

Women and children embraced the British troops, and the men stood bareheaded on the sidewalks and cheered.

The citizens told a UNN correspondent that before they left, the Germans made a through search of the town for valuables but, as this had been expected, the people had hidden their jewelry and the Germans found little.

Enemy rear-guards were left in Ravenna after the main body of Germans had moved out, and there was some sniping when the Allied troops entered. But the snipers were speedily mopped up, many of them being captured. Many Germans waited until the Allied troops were firmly established in the town and then gave themselves up. One German said that he had waited for weeks for a chance to desert.

Ravenna has not suffered greatly from air bombing or artillery fire. Many house are damaged, but few have been demolished, and the townspeople are already at work clearing up the debris. The world famous mosaics in the church of San Apollinare are intact,, although the outside of the church has suffered blast damage. The tomb of Dante also escaped damage, although the surroundings were badly scarred by artillery fire.

The ancient cathedral received a direct hit, but the shell was a « dud » which failed to explode and the damage done was slight.

The city is without electric power, as the Germans destroyed the power station.

Before they left, the Germans laid a great many mines, but the civilians marked each one and formed parties to warn the Allied soldiers as they approached. The inhabitants of Ravenna expected that the Germans would destroy the bridges over the river and the canals, and they had prepared a rope bridge. The liberating troops, however, crossed the river in boats, and even transported their vehicles in this fashion. (UNN)

GERMANS FLEEING FROM SERBIA

LONDON, December 6 — The combined Soviet and Yugoslav advance in Yugoslavia, flanking Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's drive through southern Hungary, has broken through the German defense lines around Mitrovica, liberated last Monday, and now is approaching the junction of Sid and the great railway hub of Vinkovca, on the main line from Belgrade to Zagreb, today's Yugoslav communique said.

A great number of places were liberated in the drive west and north of Mitrovica, and 1,130 Germans were killed in 24 hours of fighting.

As a result of these operations, German troops are in flight from Serbia with two main retreat columns moving north, via Visegrad in eastern Bosnia toward Sarajevo, and west by way of Brcko through the Lim River Valley.

In Albania, Patriots have liberated Skutari, last German stronghold in the country, and are now driving across the border toward Podgorica in southwestern Montenegro. The Germans have thrown reserves into the fighting north of Podgorica. (OWI)

ALBANIANS HAIL YUGOSLAV C.L.N.

TIRANA, December 6 — The national liberation war of Yugoslavia has been significantly helpful for Albania, Radio Tirana said today. The broadcast added:

« Fighting a common enemy and suffering together for the same objective, we have developed strong feelings of friendship with the Yugoslavs.

« Our forces with those of the Yugoslavs will carry the war against Fascism even beyond our borders, in mercilessly pursuing the enemy until he is annihilated.

WAR AGAINST JAPAN WILL BE COSTLY

NEW YORK, December 6 — The defeat of Japan will cost the United States 71,000 million dollars a year after Germany is defeated, Lt. Gen. Brehon H. Somervell, commanding officer of the Army Service Forces, predicted today. Speaking before a meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers, Gen. Somervell said:

« The war against Japan alone will be the greatest war this country, or this world, ever fought before the present war.

« New weapons are being produced, and they must be ready in large quantities for the Pacific war. For the first time, munitions are being used up faster than they are being produced. »

U.S. NAVY TOTALS 1,155 COMBAT SHIPS

WASHINGTON, December 6 — The U.S. Navy now has « fleet of 1,155 combat vessels and 50,000 service and other craft, making it « the most tremendous striking force the world has ever known. » Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal declared in an article to be published tomorrow.

Writing in the Army and Navy Journal on the third anniversary of America's entry into the war, Forrestal said:

« In the hands of ourselves and our Allies lies unprecedented power... The year 1943 saw all records broken in the tonnage of combatant ships added to our fleet. Now it is clear that 1944 will smash even that record.

« More than 1,450,000 tons of new fighting ships will have been produced by the end of December. Already we have on hand a fleet of 1,155 combatant vessels, backed up by 50,000 additional craft, including a huge number of landing craft.

« The expansion in our ships has been matched by the expansion of our manpower. In the past year, men have been inducted into the service at the rate of 2,800 a day — enough to man an entire pre-war navy every two months. There are more than 3,100,000 persons in the Navy, more than 475,000 in the Marines, and more than 169,000 in the Coast Guard. » (OWI)

U.K. NOT MODIFYING OBJECTION TO SFORZA

LONDON, December 6 — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden made it clear in the House of Commons today that the statement by Signor Ivanoe Bonomi, former Prime Minister of Italy, that Count Carlo Sforza had not worked against the Bonomi Government did not modify the British Government's objection to Sforza's appointment as foreign secretary.

A great number of places were liberated in the drive west and north of Mitrovica, and 1,130 Germans were killed in 24 hours of fighting.

As a result of these operations, German troops are in flight from Serbia with two main retreat columns moving north, via Visegrad in eastern Bosnia toward Sarajevo, and west by way of Brcko through the Lim River Valley.

In Albania, Patriots have liberated Skutari, last German stronghold in the country, and are now driving across the border toward Podgorica in southwestern Montenegro. The Germans have thrown reserves into the fighting north of Podgorica. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS REPAIR RAILWAY LINES

BELGRADE, December 6 — Tracks, tunnels, and other installations on railway lines around Belgrade are being repaired and supplies are being moved into the Belgrade area from surrounding localities, the Yugoslav Telegraph Agency reported today.

In the period of October 18 to November 5, eight bridges were erected on the line running from Jagodina and Paracin, and between Paracin and Stalac, the agency said.

A major problem was the repairing of the Stalac tunnel, which had been damaged during fighting in the area. In repairing the tunnel and a nearby large bridge, the Yugoslavs received the assistance of Soviet engineers. The Germans had attempted to put the tunnel out of operation by driving in several locomotives and then blowing up the entrances.

Four hundred Soviet engineers are working with the Yugoslavs to repair major railways leading into Belgrade. Work is now under way toward reestablishing traffic on the Nis-Belgrade line, which will make possible a link with the Soviet Union and Turkey, the agency said.

Almost all railway lines in Serbia have been placed in operational condition, the report added. (OWI)

U.K. NOT MODIFYING OBJECTION TO SFORZA

LONDON, December 6 — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden made it clear in the House of Commons today that the statement by Signor Ivanoe Bonomi, former Prime Minister of Italy, that Count Carlo Sforza had not worked against the Bonomi Government did not modify the British Government's objection to Sforza's appointment as foreign secretary.

He added, however, that the British Government had no objection to Count Sforza's being a member of the Italian Government.

Mr. Eden, who was replying to several questions on this subject, said: « I explained the attitude of His majesty's Government in regard to Count Sforza in my statement December 1. The statement subsequently issued by Signor Bonomi in no way modifies the views of His Majesty's Government. »

Ivor Thomas, Labor member, asked Mr. Eden: « But are these views of the British Government possibly modified by the very serious statement made by United States Secretary of State Stettinius, dissociating the United States from this policy, and will he now reconsider the matter? »

Mr. Eden answered: « I can assure you that my answers are revised up to the very last minute. »

Sir Richard Ackland, Commonwealth Party then asked of Mr. Eden: « Does he seriously intend to maintain that Count Sforza worked against the Bonomi Government when both Sforza and Bonomi say that it is not so? »

Mr. Eden replied: « I have said what our position is. »

When Daniel Lipson, an Independent Member, asked if the British Government had consulted the United States and Russian Governments before objecting to Sforza's appointment as a member of the Italian Government, Eden replied:

« No. The British Government have no objection to Sforza being a member of the Italian Government. He has been such a member for some time. The possibility of his appointment as foreign secretary was raised with the British Minister in Rome, who thereupon expressed what he knew to be the view of the British Government. His statement was subsequently endorsed, and the United States Government was informed immediately of what had pased.»

When Lipson asked if the United States Government had expressed agreement with the action taken, Eden said: «There was an Allied Commission in Italy and Britain's partners in this commission were informed.»

Suggestions by Thomas that Britain «withdraw gracefully» and admit «a blunder had been made» were met by cries of «No» from members of the House.

Mr. Eden declared, «I must repeat to the House, that I maintain the British Government have a perfect right to express an opinion to another government about a minister under conditions such as these.» (OWI-Reuter)

ITALIANS URGED TO MAINTAIN COALITION

NEW YORK, December 6 — The six Italian parties were urged yesterday to maintain the coalition «until total liberation» of their country and «election of the next constituent assembly,» by Don Luigi Sturzo, Italian statesman and founder of Italy's Christian Democratic Party.

«In my opinion, such a coalition represents implicitly and by common consensus that popular will which today has no way of legally expressing itself through means of national political election» Don Sturzo said.

«It is necessary, moreover, that the popular will in respect to which democratic America has bowed today, should be bowed to in Italy by the various parties finding a formula of common understanding.»

He added that the United States Government's position in regard to permitting the Italian people to work out their own problems of government had strengthened a «vacillating» policy, and would facilitate solution of the Italian crisis.

Don Sturzo termed the State Department's action «in not accepting the so-called veto of Count Carlo Sforza» by the British an «outstanding step.»

Urging his countrymen to preserve the Italian coalition as a means of expression of the common will, he said, «Italians ought to be very grateful to the U. S. Government for its declaration concerning the policy of non-interference in other countries, including Italy, in the solution of governmental problems, according to true democratic standards.

«This American policy of non-interference is not, and should not be interpreted as a passive policy in the face of eventual interference of other countries, but as an active resolve in bringing once more to life in the war-devastated countries the democratic spirit and methods.» (OWI)

Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British troops in Greece.

ELAS, consisting of former Patriot troops, is the military arm of EAM (Greek National Liberation Front.)

ROME SECONDARY SCHOOL STRIKE ENDS

ROME, December 6 — The several-day-old student strike ended here today with the announcement that secondary school students have returned to their classrooms following a conference between student-body representatives and the Rome Director of Studies, Prof. Raimondo Salaris.

The main point at issue in the strike — the number of lecture hours per day — has been settled to the satisfaction of the students, the announcement said. Henceforth, classroom hours will not exceed 29 per week, except for those courses requiring technical training in school laboratories. As the curriculum calls for two hours of physical training a week, the number of hours actually spent in classrooms is thus reduced to an average of 4½ per day.

The announcement added that the Director of Studies reserved the right to take disciplinary action against professors who deserted classrooms either in support of or protest against the strike. (UNN)

«ELAS» FIGHTS GREEK AND BRITISH FORCES; HEAVY FIGHTING REPORTED IN ATHENS

ATHENS, December 6 — British and Greek regular troops went into action today against left-wing guerrilla forces in street fighting in several sections of the city, as the ELAS continued to defy orders from both the Greek Government and Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British troops in Greece.

ELAS, consisting of former Patriot troops, is the military arm of EAM (Greek National Liberation Front.)

A communique today from General Scobie said that the British action is in «support of the civil power.» It added that ELAS troops, continuing to advance toward the center of the city, «overwhelmed police posts and even fired on British troops on guard duty.»

Fighting was reported heaviest in the southeastern district of the capital, the southwestern section not far from the port of Piraeus, and the area of the Likavittos Gardens, a mile north of the heart of the city.

Police Headquarters Besieged

Press dispatches said that in the center of the city there was fighting from rooftops, where guerrillas had mounted machine guns and dropped hand-made bombs, and that ELAS forces had laid siege to the main police headquarters and barracks in the city, and also had attacked the headquarters of the EDES, armed rightist Patriot group.

Other press reports said that British tanks, armored cars, and infantry, and the Greek Mountain Brigade — which the leftists have insisted should be disarmed — are moving out of the center of the city in concentric rings to meet the ELAS troops, thousands of whom are said to be still concentrated on the outskirts of Athens, while others are moving on the city from several directions.

The fighting broke out at 0500 hours after a night of comparative calm during which the streets of the city were illuminated by searchlights mounted on British tanks and flares dropped from planes in an effort to trace the movement of ELAS forces.

At dawn, firing began in the vicinity of Constitution Square, in the center of the city, and in the nearby sections of Hadjicosta and Psiro, when British lorries passing through the areas were fired on by guerrillas operating machine guns from sniping positions. British troops and tanks and regular Greek Army units returned the fire. The battle continued through the day.

About an hour later, a British platoon, proceeding down the Piraeus road, was fired on. A British officer was killed and another seriously wounded.

A mile north of the city, troops of the Greek Mountain Brigade, with armored cars in reserve, and Greek Government police have occupied one of the main EAM headquarters after a three-hour battle with ELAS men. A Communist headquarters in the main section of Athens was captured by British paratroops soon afterward, with 42 prisoners taken, including six women, BBC reported tonight. A British news service dispatch said that the Communist headquarters was seized in a move to wipe out opposition strongholds in the center of the city.

In the three sections of Athens where left-wing forces have established strong positions — particularly on the summits running west and east of the city — British troops are advancing street-by-street and are conducting house-to-house searches as they penetrate the area in the face of fire from rooftops, press dispatches report.

A BBC broadcast tonight from this city said that there have been some British casualties, but details are not yet known. British troops are on guard at all important points, and are stationed at street corners with their weapons ready. At intervals, small groups of guerrilla prisoners are marched through the streets under guard, the broadcast added. There also is a constant air patrol.

Dispatches said today that all police stations which had been captured from Greek police by ELAS forces were reoccupied yesterday by British troops, who also cleared left-wing units from a Greek Army depot and from the nearby Polytechnic School, from which they were firing at the Athens Police Headquarters.

There were reports tonight that clashes in Piraeus have subsided, and that ELAS forces holding positions on the main Athens-Piraeus road are withdrawing to the suburbs. However, an American press service said tonight that fresh bands of ELAS are streaming from the rural districts toward Athens.

Other press reports said that the general strike, called Monday by the EAM, has spread to the port of Patras, in the Peloponnesus, about 125 miles west of Athens.

Only a few of the day's press reports have been confirmed by official sources.

Liberals, Whitehall Back P.M.

Support of Premier Georges Papandreou's firm position in the crisis that Patriot groups must be disarmed was strengthened last night, when the Liberals decided at a cabinet meeting to remain in the present government, the British United Press reported.

«All parties, except those of the left which have resigned, are supporting the government,» Panayottis Kanellopoulos, Minister of Marine, told the press service. On Saturday, six leftist ministers quit the cabinet because, like the EAM, they disapproved of Papandreou's method of disarming Patriot movements.

After last night's cabinet meeting, according to an American press agency, Papandreou withdrew his offer to resign, having received new British assurances of support. Press reports from London said that a proposal by Papandreou that Themistocles Sofoulis, 80-year-old leader of the Greek Liberal Party, form a new government has been vetoed by the British Ambassador. Sofoulis was quoted as saying that all parties had agreed to serve under him, including members of the left and the extreme left, in a coalition cabinet.

«I agreed that this was a good solution, but the British Ambassador this morning informed me that, according to his latest instructions received from the British Prime Minister, any change at the present in the head of the [illegible] Sofoulis asserted.

SMUTS SUGGESTS NO QUICK PEACE TREATIES

CAPETOWN, December 6 — Field Marshal Jan C. Smuts tonight suggested that no peace treaties be concluded immediately after the cessation of hostilities, as was the case after the last war, but that comprehensive armistices be concluded and maintained by the great powers for some time.

The South African Premier, who addressed a conference of the United Party at Bloemfontein, continued:

«To make peace for the Continent, under such unprecedented conditions, requires more than the wisdom of men, even of such exceptional leadership as the Allied peoples enjoy today.

«They will be confronted with the most baffling situation in all history. One can only hope that they will not attempt too much, and endeavor to settle and determine what cannot be settled and determined today, but which will require a long time, and much patience, to sort itself out.

«To settle Europe in a temper of distraction, hatred, greed and revenge, of injured innocence, and inferiority complexes, which will prevail after the war, will be a superhuman task.

«Let the large-scale removal of frontiers, and the movement of large populations, remain in abeyance, while the problem of human salvage is being tackled first with all our resources.

«The great objective should be to save Europe herself, and to prevent her, in her utter moral and material exhaustion, from entering on a process of decay relatively to other continents, which would be an immeasurable calamity, not only for Europe, but for human progress and welfare as a whole.» (Reuter)

BELGIUM DEMANDS HARD PEACE FOR GERMANY

BRUSSELS, December 6 — Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak today demanded a hard peace for Germany, as the German problem was «a question of life and death» for Belgium.

Speaking in a foreign affairs debate in the Chamber of Deputies, Spaak declared that a recurrence of 1914 and 1940 must be prevented at all costs.

Spaak said that the cornerstone of Belgian foreign policy was friendship with Britain, and that an organization of Europe without a strong France was inconceivable. With Holland and Luxembourg, he said, Belgium would stand side-by-side with France in the task of reconstruction. (Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 6 — Today's communique:

In the Veneto and Aemilia regions, German reprisals against the civilian population, carried out in the attempt to suppress Patriot activity, are proving to be powerless. In fact, acts of sabotage and attacks on enemy lines of communication and other objectives are increasing daily.

News has been received of the brutal killing of many women and children in the village of Sassoleone, in the Bolognese area. The village was then burned down. In spite of this, Patriots in that area are striking back at the enemy, especially at his positions immediately behind the front lines.

On the night of November 25, Patriots attacked three German motor vehicles on Highway 12. One of the enemy soldiers was killed, and many were wounded. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 6 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On the Aix la Chapelle front, numerous prisoners were captured in local fighting.

In the Hürtgen area and at Vossenach, fierce forest fighting is in progress. Eleven enemy tanks were destroyed.

U. S. shock troops who, in the course of the last few days, had crossed the Saar at Merzig, were wiped out.

East of Saarlautern, the men of our pillboxes are engaged in grim fighting against the enemy who launched grim attacks. South of it and southeast of Forlbach, the enemy formations approached nearer to our western fortifications. They lost 18 tanks in fighting against our rearguards.

In Alsace, yesterday, a certain number of enemy attacks were again frustrated by the steadfastness of our troops. In the Harth Forest, French colonial troops again lost numerous prisoners.

German bombers repeatedly participated in the fighting in the West, dispersed enemy planes flying at a low level and prevented them from aiming when dropping their bombs.

Our bombers caused extensive fires and explosions by night-attacks on enemy strongpoints in the Aix la Chapelle sector.

Greater London was subjected to the fire of our retaliatory weapons by day and night.

Italy:

In central Italy, the enemy, after several unsuccessful attacks with concentrated forces, established a bridgehead in the Lamone sector, north of Russi. Grenadiers and infantry repulsed him in powerful counter-attacks, capturing a considerable booty and numerous prisoners.

Attempts of the Canadians, who fight in this sector, again to cross the river were frustrated with heavy losses to the enemy.

In southwestern Hungary, German bomber formations destroyed numerous Soviet vehicles and ferry boats, and an important bridge. They inflicted high losses on the enemy by bombs and guns. German and Hungarian escort fighters brought down 18 Soviet planes in dogfights.

On the other parts of the Eastern Front, between eastern Slovakia and Kurland, there was only local fighting of no moment.

Air:

Yesterday, a U.S. bomber formation attacked the Reich capital.

Other Anglo-American attacks struck at western Reich territory.

Particularly serious damage was caused to buildings in Hamm.

Enemy planes flying at a low level intensified their terror attacks on the civil population, particularly in the regions on both sides of the Rhine.

Last night, Soest was the aim of a British terror attack.

The British also made nuisance raids on western and southwestern Germany.

Air Defence forces brought down 42 enemy planes. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Hitler's Health Again: German sources seem to deem it necessary to continue to give the most striking prominence to items presenting the Führer as alive and in good health.

The German Overseas Radio carries an account of a meeting between Hitler and the Hungarian leader Szalasi. Although this item does not specifically refer to the health of the long-silent German Chancellor, its stress on his active participation in «all the political, military, and economic questions» concerned, appears calculated to point out that he has full and active possession of his faculties.

A Transocean despatch of this evening is more explicit in this regard. It discusses a photograph taken of Hitler's recent meeting with the Slovak Minister, and concludes that the photograph «disproves various rumors current abroad about Hitler's health.» The photograph allegedly shows him «looking unchanged,» and is also taken as disproof of the existence of «any-effects of the attempt on his life» [of July 20th].

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Italian Front: The Fascist Radio speaks of strong pressure by the 8th Army. Attempts to cross the Lamone River were frustrated with heavy losses to the Allies. It also mentions clashes between British forces and Fascist «partisans» in Ravenna after the evacuation carried out by the Germans.

What Is To Become of Britain? In the course of a radio press-review, an article by Ezio Maria Gray is quoted extensively, dealing with Britain's future after the war. After reviewing various British press comments on the same problem, Gray arrives at the conclusion that Great Britain will be squeezed between the forces of Soviet Russia advancing on the Continent of Europe and those of the United States, wishing to grab the rest of the world for themselves. Gray says this is mainly due to Mr. Churchill's anti-European policy, from which Great Britain will be the sufferer. This policy has delivered Poland to Russia, placed the Balkans under the Russian sphere of influence, intends to dismember Germany, leaves the Italians in doubt about the unity and independence of their country, and has placed France in a state of subjection. «The traditional British policy of balance of power has certainly been thrown to the winds.»

Northwest of Ravenna, our troops warded off the British attacks in front of new positions.

The town of Ravenna itself was evacuated without fighting, and thus saved from destruction.

Eastern Front:

In Dalmatia, northwest of Knin, our troops frustrated enemy encircling attempts. On the western slopes of the Fruska Gora in Syrmia and southwest of Vukovar, grim fighting is in progress.

In Hungary, the battle grew in intensity and extension. In the area between the Drau.Lake Balaton, and the Danube, our divisions prevented the enemy, in stubborn fighting, from making major gains and, repelling his attacks, inflicted high losses on him.

On both sides of Budapest, the Bolsheviks launched a major attack with strong forces.

South of the city enemy formations which had crossed to the western banks of the Danube were sealed off by a counter-attack.

East of Budapest, in the Hatvan sector, grim fighting also developed.

On the southern slopes of the Matra Mountains and in the Miscolcz sector, fresh Bolshevik attempts at breaking through were frustrated.

The alternative, for which the Axis is fighting, lies in «a strong, disciplined, and united Europe with a 'single' principle, quite different from the 'utopian' United States of Europe... A Europe which is truly constructive towards itself as well as towards the rest of the world. Such a Europe, however, can rise only out of an Axis victory.»

Roosevelt's Christmas Gift: Radio Fascist pokes fun at President Roosevelt's announcement that 1,000 Christmas parcels are to be sent to «invaded» Italy. This represents a gift weighing one gramme for each of the 25 million inhabitants. The President's generosity will cost the U. S. Treasury five thousand dollars all told. The commentator declares this a «very stingy form of charity», and described Roosevelt as «a careful administrator of U. S. public funds...»

Living Conditions in Florence: Persons arriving to northern Italy from Florence talk about conditions as being «wholly unbearable» in that city. Most of the public places ars reserved for the occupation troops. A modest meal consisting of one dish (minestra) and cheese costs 850 lire. Contrary to Allied information, there is no food distribution; local stocks have been exhausted. Light is available for two hours per day. There is a lack of water...»

The Cabinet Crisis: The Fascist Radio made little comment on the situation Wednesday. In a broadcast at 2000 it quotes the latest Reuter report according to which the new Bonomi report mentioned the exclusion of the Socialists, without adding any comment.

ADVANCE AHQ ITALY, December 7 — Troops of the AMERICANS FOUR MILES FROM SAARBRUECKEN

LONDON, December 7 — American 3rd Army troops drove to within four miles of Saarbrücken today in a northeastward advance to the outskirts of Forbach, French rail town and outpost of the Siegfried Line. American artillery has bombarded the major Saar Basin city for the eighth consecutive day, while mobile forces of a dismounted cavalry regiment drove into Forbach after a four-mile advance.

Other American forces driving on Saarbrücken from the west have reached the Saar River near Wehrden, five miles from the arsenal city. Long-range guns pushed up close behind the front are pounding German installations, road junctions, and Siegfried Line defenses.

Heavy fighting now is under way in Dillingen, site of the third bridgehead over the Saar, two miles northwest of Saarlautern, and within the outer rim of the strong Siegfried fortifications.

South of Saarbrücken, infantry and armored units are wiping out German rearguards in the American-held section of Saargemünd, while the last third of the city on the east bank of the Saar has still to be cleared. American forces have been reinforced and German troops, retreating into Germany, are being shelled.

Large tank battles were reported to be raging eight miles southeast of Saarbrücken in the area of Rohrbach and Bitsche, where the Germans vainly attempted to seal off penetrations made by the Americans. The Germans were forced to retire after losing four medium and six light tanks out of the 40 tanks sent into action. It was the heaviest armored opposition encountered by the 3rd Army in more than a week. The Americans have come up against the Maginot Line at this point in the Mombronn Forest.

On the 3rd Army's east flank, 7th Army troops pushed along the western slopes of the northern Vosges in an advance of more than three miles against scattered resistance. In the Hagenau area, American troops are overrunning undefended road blocks to the west of the city.

8TH ARMY FORCES LIBERATE MEZZANO

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 7 — Troops of the 8th Army, pushing northwest along the road to Ferrara, yesterday liberated the village of Mezzano, six miles from Ravenna, while Italian Patriots aided Allied patrols in clearing the last enemy resistance from the nearly 100 square miles of marshes and sedgelands north of Romagna's capital, it was announced here today.

With the capture of 300 prisoners, including an entire German company and its commander, enemy resistance east of the Lamone River was said to be virtually at an end. Leading Allied forces were within 34 miles of Ferrara, at the crossing of the Ravenna-Ferrara Highway over this stream. Retreating enemy troops demolished the highway span over the Lamone at Mezzano, and hold the portion of the little town west of the river, reports said.

With German forces driven back from their delaying positions all along their left flank, the enemy has formed a new line which follows the Lamone River for more than 20 miles, from the great Comacchio Lagoon southwest to the hill country just south of Faenza.

Although British and Polish forces have crossed the Lamone line at its southern end, and have penetrated inland up to two miles, enemy forces have, elsewhere, successfully resisted attempts to breach this water barrier. Allied forces again Tuesday night attempted to establish a bridgehead

ANTI-MILITARY BLOC RESOLUTION IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, December 7 — Senator Allen Ellender stated today in the Senate that «Britain is engaged by force of arms in dictating a choice of leaders in liberated Italy and Greece, and is thereby taking the lead in causing disunity among the Allies.»

Senator Ellender introduced a resolution which would place the Senate on record as opposing the formation of military blocs and regional alliances among nations in Europe as «inimical to international peace and security.» (Reuter) but other forces are meeting stubborn resistance in their northwesterly advance.

The southern 7th Army advance astride the main roads to Colmar brought American forces into Ostheim, five miles north of the German headquarters in Alsace. French 1st Army troops advancing through the Vosges passes west of Colmar have neared the mountain city of Münster.

Far to the north of the Allied line, American 1st Army patrols reached the outskirts of Pier, midway between the Roer River strongpoints of Jülich and Düren. To the south, infantry units repulsed German attempts to recapture the village of Bergstein, on the eastern edge of the Hürtgen Forest.

American 9th Army units on the northern flank of the 1st Army broke up a German troop concentration in the Randerath area west of Linnich, where enemy forces attempted to launch a counter-attack.

Patrols have been forcing the Roer River in the Jülich sector, testing the alertness of the Germans in their trenches and foxholes on the east bank. No American attempt, however, has been made to cross the Roer in strength.

R.A.F. MAKES HEAVIEST ATTACK ON REICH

LONDON, December 7 — More than 1,300 RAF bombers attacked Germany last night. Their main targets were the marshalling yards at Osnabrück and Giessen, and the Leuna synthetic oil plant, which lies a few miles from Leipzig. Berlin was also bombed.

In daylight yesterday, 800 American heavy bombers, escorted by the same number of fighters, attacked the Leuna plant and the marshalling yards at Bielefeld, and the oil center of Merseburg.

It was pointed out here today that last night's attack established a record in the number of heavy bombers used.

Osnabrück and Giessen are both of vital importance as rail centers to German armies fighting on the Western Front, an Air Ministry statement said.

Enemy supplies moving through Osnabrück, about 40 miles north of Hamm, are routed to German troops fighting on the Venlo and central Holland fronts, the statement continued. Giessen, at the northern end of the front, and 30 miles north of Frankfurt, is the hub of a railway network radiating in every direction.

The bombing of Leuna, a few miles from Leipzig, was well concentrated, the Air Ministry said, and large fires in the marshalling yards were observed.

Strong enemy resistance, both of fighter planes and anti-aircraft fire, was encountered at all the targets. At least 17 enemy planes were brought down, while 21 Allied aircraft are missing, said the Air Ministry.

Last night's RAF missions rounded out 72 hours of almost continuous assault on Germany by Allied bombers.

Today, six German aircraft were destroyed off the Norwegian coast by RAF Mustangs escorting Beaufighters and Mosquitos on anti-shipping patrols, the Air Ministry announced. One Mustang in missing.

Mosquitos Active

Press services reported that Belgian-based Mosquito bombers last night carried out a low-level strafing attack on the German village of Oberrath, a few miles north of Gedenkirchen. The village was the center of an enemy billeting area, and dozens of huts and houses were left in blazing ruins. To the north of the village, some Mosquitos virtually wiped out a column of 100 vehicles, while other aircraft carried out a similar attack against the nearby village of Wassenberg.

Allied fighters and fighter-bombers operating over and on the west bank of the Danube downstream from Budapest. The Germans said that the Russians used the big Danube island of Csepel as a stepping stone for the operation.

The Germans also said that a powerful force of Russian tanks, presenting a second threat to Budapest, was a little more than 20 miles north of the Hungarian capital. The Germans added that the Red Army forces had penetrated the German lines after their sudden swing southward.

Russian troops control the entire southern banks of Lake Balaton, after clearing the area of all German resistance.

South of the lake, Red Army units captured the important rail center of Bares, on the Hungarian bank of the Drava River, the Soviet communique reported. Earlier dispatches reported heavy fighting in progress in the area of Bares, which commands the approaches to the main road just inside the Yugoslav frontier. In this westward drive toward Zagreb, the Russians may seal off a large force of German troops fighting their way homeward from Yugoslavia.

Between Bares and Kaposvar, the railway junctions of Mike and Erdocsokoyna were captured, the communique announced. Russian troops are now 40 miles from the Austrian border in this sector and are driving toward Nagykanizsa, large Hungarian oil center.

The communique said that 1,030 German and Hungarian officers and men were captured in Hungary yesterday, and that on all sectors of the Russian front 38 German tanks were destroyed.

MANCHURIA, TOKYO ATTACKED ON ANNIVERSARY

WASHINGTON, December 7 — Marking the third anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, a large force of American Superfortresses today attacked Japanese-dominated Manchuria, destroying 26 enemy fighters. Another 13 were probably shot down and 24 damaged.

At the same time, the 21st Bomber Command announced that two Superfortress bombers on weather reconnaissance flights bombed Tokyo last night and early today, in separate strikes seven hours apart.

A communique from the 20th USAAF, whose planes made the attack on Manchuria, said that three B-29's were lost to enemy action in the attack on an aircraft plant at Mukden and other strategic military objectives. The attack, made in daylight, resulted in «unobserved to excellent bombing results,» the communique said.

Today's assault was the fourth to be made by B-29's on Manchurian targets. The Mukden area was visited last by 20th Bomber Command planes on July 29.

From weak to strong air opposition was encountered on this flight, while anti-aircraft fire was rated from meager to moderate and inadequate, by returning crews.

The two latest Superfortress attacks on Tokyo constituted the fifth and sixth visits to the Japanese capital by Saipan-based B-29's since the initial attack November 24.

The first plane in the attacks today on Tokyo was commanded by Lt. Colonel Robert K. Morgan, who led the first B-29 foray against Tokyo. Colonel Morgan reported that Tokyo was brilliantly lighted, «just like flying over New York.»

Both planes hit approximately the same target area — the triangle-like industrial heart of Tokyo, bounded by the waterfront and by the Sumida River to the west, and by the Ara River to the east.

«This is the most highly incendiary area of the Japanese capital, and contains the gas works and other prime targets,» Colonel Morgan said. «We aimed at the most brilliantly lighted district. The bombardier saw the bombs burst on that triangular area.»

Press services reported that Belgian-based Mosquito bombers last night carried out a low-level strafing attack on the German village of Oberrudi, a few miles north of Gellenkirchen. The village was the center of an enemy billeting area, and dozens of huts and houses were left in blazing ruins. To the north of the village, some Mosquitos virtually wiped out a column of 100 vehicles, while other aircraft carried out a similar attack against the nearby village of Wassenberg.

Allied fighters and fighter-bombers operating over and behind the western battle areas took a heavy toll of German transport, supplies, and base equipment in November, according to reports reaching economic experts in London. Claimed as destroyed or damaged were 1,081 locomotives, 5,238 railway vehicles, 51 oil cars, 2,315 motor transport vehicles, 102 horse-drawn vehicles, 143 canal locks, 17 bridges, 89 tanks, 214 armored fighting vehicles, and 260 guns.

A United States air communique today stated that from Tuesday's air operations against targets at Berlin and Münster, only nine fighters are missing instead of 22 as previously announced.

Britain's east coast guns went into action as flying bombs approached southern England tonight. Night-fighters were heard flying out to intercept the bombs.

AMERICANS LAND ON WEST COAST OF LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 7 — United States troops have gone ashore in force three miles south of the Japanese supply port of Ormoc, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight. Japanese air forces struck at the American landing party, but were unable to halt the operation.

Immediately after the landing in the Ormoc Bay area, American planes wiped out a 13-ship Japanese reinforcement convoy which had entered the bay, the communique said; an estimated 4,000 enemy troops were killed in the sinkings.

At the same time, Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, announced in a communique that American warships early yesterday repulsed a Japanese air attack on the Superfortress bases in Saipan in the Marianas. Six out of 10 Japanese planes were shot down in the raid that destroyed one Superfort and damaged two others.

Only a few bombs were dropped on the B-29 base, the communique said. In addition to the bombing which took place yesterday, the Japanese planes carried out strafing runs against American positions, killing one man and wounding several others.

Admiral Nimitz announced that enemy-held islands in the Marshalls were bombed in neutralizing raids on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, unsuccessful Japanese paratroop landings on Leyte were reported today by the Philippine correspondent of the Mutual Broadcasting System in a broadcast heard in San Francisco. Reuter added that Japanese troops dropped on the airfields at Burauen, Dulag, Tacloban, and San Pablo.

Veteran troops of Maj. Gen. Archibald Arnold's 7th Infantry Division driving up the west coast of Leyte have crossed the Palanas River and reached points approximately 10 miles south of Ormoc, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Soldiers of this division, veterans of Attu and Kwajelein, drove on beyond the river almost to the town of Balogo, a half-mile beyond the stream. Several weeks ago, patrols had gone through Balogo and reached Tabgas, 9½ miles south of Ormoc, an American press service dispatch said.

U.S. fighter planes attacked enemy defenses at Kanaga, six miles above Valencia on Ormoc Road, destroying buildings and supply camps, damaging road installations, and strafing bivouac areas.

Ten enemy planes, attacking shipping in Leyte Gulf, were intercepted by our fighters which shot down six. Anti-aircraft defenses destroyed two others. The extent of damage to American shipping was not revealed.

JAPS MAKE IMPORTANT ADVANCES IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, December 7 — The Japanese have occupied Tuyun, terminus of the Kwangsi-Kweichow railroad 53 miles east southeast of Kweiyang, a communique from American headquarters disclosed today. Fighters of the 14th USAAF struck at the Japanese columns invading Kweichow Province in a growing threat to the Burma Road and Kweiyang. The fliers left Tuyun burning.

Earlier today a special communique issued by the Chinese High Command said that the Japanese have captured Tushan, a rail center 75 miles southeast of Kweiyang, after suffering heavy losses. The communique made no reference to the deeper penetration.

The communique also added that the Japanese were in retreat southward from Pachai, 65 miles southeast of Kweiyang.

Meanwhile, in Burma, a communique from Southeast Asia Command headquarters today said that troops of the 11th East African Division have continued to expand and strengthen their bridgehead on the east bank of the Chindwin River.

Strong enemy resistance is being encountered two miles northeast of Kalewa. In the northern combat area, British troops continued their patrols south of Pinwe toward Naba.

The communique reported that Japanese installations on Great Coco Island in the North Andamans were attacked by Allied heavy bombers. It was also reported that Allied planes made their first landing on the newly-liberated airstrip at Bhamo, in north Burma, which will soon become a springboard for air attacks against the Japanese.

Commenting on the situation in Burma, Maj. General Howard Davidson, commander of the 10th USAAF, said today that the present serious deterioration of the Japanese position in northern Burma could be attributed largely to an aerial blockade of the enemy's north to south supply lines.

WEDEMEYER CALLS CHINA SITUATION «SERIOUS»

CHUNGKING, December 7 — Maj. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, commander of the United States forces in China, and chief of staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, said in a statement today that the military situation in China was serious. He said that American forces would remain in China.

The Brazilian fighter-bomber squadron, first of this Allied power's air force to see action in the present war, has flown 345 sorties and dropped 73 tons of bombs in its first month's operations.

Flying Thunderbolts, the Brazilian pilots have taken a toll of 124 enemy rail cars destroyed or damaged, as well as 13 motor vehicles, eight locomotives, and three rail bridges.

Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers of the 15th USAAF yesterday carried out their first round-the-clock bombardment of enemy targets when instrument-equipped planes last night attack Austrian rail targets hit in daylight blows a few hours earlier. They attacked in support of Russian Armies advancing in Hungary.

According to early reports, the railyards hit in the night attack were those at Klagenfurt, Villach, and Salzburg. No results were observed, as the bombing was carried out through cloud cover by means of the radar instrument. Enemy night interceptors were active, and some encounters were reported, although details are lacking.

In daylight assaults, a formation of Liberators was attacked by a flight of 15 to 20 ME-109's, which swept into the temporarily unescorted bombers in groups of five to seven abreast. Bomber gunners shot down 11 of the enemy aircraft, and Lightning fighters, which later drove off the enemy planes, claimed one more. No figure was announced for Allied losses in the engagement, although it was stated that some bombers were missing.

The total of Allied planes missing yesterday was listed as 19, six of them heavy bombers.

Balkan Air Force Mustangs attacked a bridge at Biove, on the escape route for German forces caught in the Podgorica Pocket just within the Yugoslav frontier with Albania. Other planes struck an enemy train in the Zenica area, and bombed a concentration of over 100 enemy vehicles.

SEVERE U.S. CASUALTIES ON WESTERN FRONT

WASHINGTON, December 7 — Under Secretary of War Robert Patterson said today that the Americans are suffering severe casualties on the Western Front, and are facing the grim prospect of more to come.

In his weekly war review, Patterson said that on the third anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor, United States battle casualties amounted to 552,018. The Under Secretary said:

«The fighting in the mud and cold of the Düren area on the plains fronting the city of Cologne has been heavy and bitter. But we have gone forward to capture villages from which the Germans had to be blasted house-by-house. This type of fighting ... is inevitably costly.»

Men under 19 years of age, Patterson announced, are now going overseas as infantry and armored replacements. He said that with the stepping-up of the tempo of operations the need for replacements had increased, and that military requirements necessitated revision of the policy whereby 18-year-olds were excluded from active duty with infantry and armored forces.

LIBERATED ITALY

BONOMI TO FORM NEW ITALIAN GOVERNMENT WITH PATRIOT REPRESENTATION

ROME, December 7 — Liberated Italy today was close to a new government after 12 days of crisis — a government to be headed again by Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, but a government with a broader base and a more aggressive program for the conduct of the war and the reconstruction of the nation.

First word of this development came tonight from Bonomi in a declaration that he had accepted the charge of Prince Umberto, Lieutenant General of the Realm, to form a government to be composed of representatives the Liberal, Christian Democratic, Labor Democratic, and Communist parties. Neither the Action nor the Socialist parties will participate in the new government, it was said, but its program resembles closely the six-party program laid down in the deliberations of the Committee of National Liberation.

The new government — its slate of cabinet ministers probably will be announced tomorrow — is to operate under an agreement on six major points, among most important of which is recognition of the Committees of National Liberation in occupied northern Italy as representative of Italian government in those regions. Here, as reported to a United Nations News correspondent, are these six points:

Points of Agreement

1. The government will increase Italian participation in the war effort.

2. The epuration of Fascists and Fascist influences said the government would be « strong, quick, and impartial » and there will be punishment for Fascist crimes.

3. The government will endeavor to speed the solution of such emergency problems as food, communications, and housing.

4. The Committees of National Liberation in Northern Italy will be recognized as representatives of the Italian government, and a High Commissioner will be appointed to assist the Patriots. He is reportedly to deal with such questions as supply for groups in areas as yet unliberated, and, after liberation, with demobilization and kindred matters.

U.S. WAR PRODUCTION IN THREE YEARS OF WAR

WASHINGTON, December 7 — Since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor three years ago today, the United States has raised and equipped an army of almost 12,000,000 men and spent 208,000,000,000 dollars on the war effort.

During those three years, America has produced 187,000 planes, 88,000 tanks, 1,800,000 trucks, and 43,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

By the end of this year, American shipyards in wartime will have produced more than 41,000,000 dead-weight tons of merchant shipping, and nearly 7,000,000 tons of naval and coastguard vessels.

One year after the Pearl Harbor attack, U.S. war production had been expanded to equal the combined output of Germany, Japan, and Italy.

Today, there are 18,000,000 men and women employed on the American home front in munitions and war-sup-

LIBERATED ITALY

BONOMI TO FORM NEW ITALIAN GOVERNMENT WITH PATRIOT REPRESENTATION

ROME, December 7 — Liberated Italy today was close to a new government after 12 days of crisis — a government to be headed again by Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, but a government with a broader base and a more aggressive program for the conduct of the war and the reconstruction of the nation.

First word of this development came tonight from Bonomi in a declaration that he had accepted the charge of Prince Umberto, Lieutenant General of the Realm, to form a government to be composed of representatives the Liberal, Christian Democratic, Labor Democratic, and Communist parties. Neither the Action nor the Socialist parties will participate in the new government, it was said, but its program resembles closely the six-party program laid down in the deliberations of the Committee of National Liberation.

The new government — its slate of cabinet ministers probably will be announced tomorrow — is to operate under an agreement on six major points, among most important of which is recognition of the Committees of National Liberation in occupied northern Italy as representative of Italian government in those regions. Here, as reported to a United Nations News correspondent, are these six points:

Points of Agreement

1. The government will increase Italian participation in the war effort.

2. The epuration of Fascists and Fascist influences said the government would be «strong, quick, and impartial») and there will be punishment for Fascist crimes.

3. The government will endeavor to speed the solution of such emergency problems as food, communications, and housing.

4. The Committees of National Liberation in Northern Italy will be recognized as representatives of the Italian government, and a High Commissioner will be appointed to assist the Patriots. He is reportedly to deal with such questions as supply for groups in areas as yet unliberated, and, after liberation, with demobilization and kindred matters.

5. Funds reverting to the State through seizure of property formerly held by Fascists is to be used for the relief of the poor.

6. An Advisory Commission is to be created as a first step toward eventual creation of a national Consultative Assembly.

Agreement of the four party leaders to back a government pledged to this program came late yesterday, after Bonomi had explained his readiness to proceed along what virtually were the lines laid down in earlier six-party conferences.

Communist Party members said the Communist decision to participate was in no sense an abandonment of the party's pact for joint action with the Socialists but meant, rather, that the presence of the Communist Party in the government assured that the joint Communist-Socialist program would be carried out.

A Socialist Order of the Day, however, explained that, after having heard and approved the report of its Secretary General on the discussions, the party «rejects the offer of Bonomi to enter the new government.»

Tomorrow, it is reported, the Socialist Party plans to explain its attitude. But it is believed the Socialists will do nothing which might hamper the freedom of action of the Communists, with whom they are allied.

The Action Party has evinced no change in its approaches, which is one of categorical refusal to join a Bonomi government.

Nor is it yet known whether or not Count Carlo Sforza is to have a portfolio in the new government. (UNN)

FIGHTING CONTINUES IN ATHENS, R.A.F. IN ACTION

ATHENS, December 7 — There has been more fighting in and around the city today, but a communique from Lieut. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie's headquarters, quoted by the BBC tonight, said that the job of clearing the capital and the port of Piraeus is progressing.

By nightfall yesterday, large areas in the center of the city and suburbs were freed, and are being guarded by British and Greek regular forces.

In some cases, field artillery had to be used to clear ELAS strongpoints sniping at British convoys, but material [illegible] properly was light.

Correspondents estimated that about 2,000 armed ELAS troops remain inside the city, and, although they are unable to hold any point in strength, their scattered fire from windows and rooftops made it dangerous for the British troops to travel except by armored car. According to an official Greek government newspaper, 3,000 prisoners had been taken by yesterday noon. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

STETTINIUS BACKS GREEK SELF-DETERMINATION

WASHINGTON, December 7 — Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, today expressed «full agreement» with Prime Minister Winston Churchill's statement on the Greek peoples' choosing their own form of government.

Stettinius declared that it is for the Greek people themselves to decide whether they «form themselves into a monarchy or a republic.»

The text of the State Department statement said:

«I was interested to note that, in his statement on the Greek situation of December 5, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons: 'Our position, as I have said, is extremely clear. Whether the Greek people form themselves into a monarchy or republic is for their decision. Whether they form a government of the right or left is for their decision. These are entirely matters for them.'

«With this statement I am in full agreement. It is also our earnest hope that the people and the authorities of Greece and our British Allies will work together in rebuilding that ravished country.»

The Associated Press pointed out tonight that Stettinius «deliberately refrained from endorsing another statement by the British Prime Minister, dealing with the use of British troops to prevent the formation of what Mr. Churchill called a 'Communist Dictatorship in Greece.'»

The Secretary of State was bombarded with questions at his press conference about expanding the statement to make it more specific with respect to the use of British troops in Greece.

He declined, however, to make any further comment, except to indicate that today's declaration is not being officially conveyed to the British Government.

When asked whether the United States Government condoned the use of tanks and planes against the Greek population, and whether any representations had been made to the British Government over the use of arms, Stettinius replied that he thought that his statement spoke for itself.

Pressed as to whether it would be correct to say that he endorses only that part of Mr. Churchill's speech which he quoted, and not any other part, he replied that he could not comment. (OWI)

By nightfall yesterday, large areas in the center of the city and suburbs were freed, and are being guarded by British and Greek regular forces.

In some cases, field artillery had to be used to clear ELAS strongpoints sniping at British convoys, but material damage to civilian property was light.

Armed members of Greek right wing organizations, who attempted to join forces with the British troops, were disarmed, as they were acting contrary to General Scobie's and the Greek Government's orders regarding the carrying of arms by irregulars.

Elsewhere in Greece, the situation was quieter, although the BBC reported fighting in the Drama area between ELAS troops and Nationalists.

The communique concluded that it had been confirmed that a German officer had been captured while commanding a detachment of ELAS forces.

Press dispatches reported Spitfires and Beaufighters in action again today, strafing guerrilla positions in the Arditos Hill section of the city. However, the bulk of the RAF activity has been directed in an effort to maintain order by displaying air power, rather than by using it. Yesterday, Spitfires dispersed one group of ELAS forces marching on Athens by firing warning shots over their heads.

An American press dispatch said that a warship yesterday joined for the first time in the fight against the guerrillas, when a Greek-manned destroyer fired upon a Piraeus police station which had been seized. Twenty-five members of the ELAS were reported killed.

SPANISH REPUBLICAN LEADER OUTLINES POLICY

LONDON, December 7 — Spanish republican leader Juan Negrin today outlined his party's long-range program aimed at the formation of a united bloc with the view of restoring a republican government and the ousting of «Generalissimo» Francisco Franco.

Negrin, Premier of Spain from 1937 to 1939, also issued a denial of rumors that he is withdrawing from political activity.

His three-point program is as follows:

1. To fight until Franco is overthrown.

2. To discourage the formation of Spanish governments which lack the support of all parties.

3. To consult groups and personalities of all parties in order to attain a common basis subordinating individualism, party prejudices, and personalities.

Alvarez del Vayo, ex-Foreign Minister under Negrin and now on the editorial staff of the New York weekly, the Nation, yesterday made public a cable from Negrin opposing the proposal to convene the Cortes (Spanish parliament) in Mexico City.

Del Vayo declared he is in complete agreement with the position adopted by Negrin, and added that the latter, who has been in London since 1940, has «worked assiduously» for the cause of the United Nations.

SWISS ACCUSED BY YUGOSLAV PAPER

BELGRADE, December 7 — An indictment of Switzerland's rôle in the war, accusing her directly of being pro-Nazi, was published yesterday in Borba (The Struggle), Yugoslavian newspaper, the Free Yugoslav Radio said today.

The war against Hitler's Germany, the editorial said, is not only the business of the countries who are at war with Germany, adding:

«The struggle for independence and the survival of nations for liberty and democracy is of equal concern to the whole of Europe, and of all peoples in this world.

«Under the appearance of neutrality, Switzerland participates in this conflict on the side of the greatest opponents of democracy and liberty.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

« Switzerland could not have been of so much assistance to Germany had she simply placed herself on Germany's side by entering the war against Great Britain and America. That is why the German press, which otherwise demanded the total mobilization of Europe, benevolently regarded Swiss neutrality in this war.

« Many who were looking for asylum in Switzerland were handed over to the bloody Nazi and Mussolini police... This democratic country, at the same time, has extended its protection to the criminals who have committed untold crimes in this war. » (PWB)

Last night, in the Athens-Piraeus area, ELAS activity was on a reduced scale. Government quarters in Athens, which are guarded by British troops, were being advanced on by ELAS troops before dawn today. Fighting continues, and is being opposed by British troops.

British troops, earlier in the morning, moved out to relieve a British detachment which was protecting the Acropolis. Moving in lorries, the relief party was attacked by light automatic fire and grenades. The fighting is proceeding, and armored cars and tanks were dispatched to the scene of the action.

Local action developed elsewhere in Athens.

Casualties have been suffered by British troops, and some of our soldiers have been killed.

Regular Greek forces are being employed in clearing ELAS troops from certain points of the town.

The situation is quiet in Piraeus.

Six hundred gendarmerie have returned to work at Kalamai, in the Peloponnese, in spite of the declared strike.

Also, At Kalamai, weapons which were issued to the newly-formed National Guard, and later taken by ELAS, have now been returned to the British authorities.

There have been no major developments in the remainder of Greece.

Evidence of a definite nature points to the fact that there are still a number of ex-German soldiers being employed in the ELAS ranks. (OWI-PRO)

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 7 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Southwest of Arnhem, the flooding reached such an extent that the enemy was forced to a hurried evacuation of additional parts of his positions, to the southern banks of the lower Rhine.

In the Aix la Chapelle sector, the number and fierceness of the enemy attacks abated. Our artillery struck with concentrated salvoes at fresh troop concentrations. Repeated attacks of U.S. regiments on the Roer sector at Jülich collapsed, with particularly heavy losses to the enemy.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 795021

On both sides of Saarlautern, grim fighting is in progress for some pillbox positions.

Northwest of Forbach, U.S. attacks resulted in only small gains.

Northeast of Saaralben, enemy attempts at breaking through were frustrated within our main lines. Battle-proved tank troops destroyed 25 enemy tanks and two armoured reconnaissance cars.

In the northern and northwestern parts of the Alsace front bulge, our troops improved their positions.

In Selestat and Gümar, street fighting is in full swing.

In the Vosges, numerous enemy thrusts were frustrated.

In the Mülhouse sector and the Hart Forest, the day went by calmly.

Italy:

Yesterday, the British 8th Army, owing to the high losses suffered, particularly by the Canadian formations, in their attempt at breaking through on the Adriatic coast, moved the focal point of its attacks toward the sector southwest of Faenza. Most of them were frustrated. The enemy, who temporarily had punched gaps into our lines, was ousted from our main lines, except for a minor penetration.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, in Montenegro and Western Serbia, our movements are being carried out according to plan.

West of the Fruska Gora, yesterday, strong enemy forces again attacked our positions south of the Danube.

East of Lake Balaton up to the sector northeast of Budapest, the Soviets continued their attacks with strong infantry and tank forces. Our troops frustrating attempts at enveloping Budapest from both sides, inflicted high losses on the enemy.

In the southern foothills of the Matra Mountains and in the Buekk Mountains, minor Bolshevik attacks failed.

In the Miscolez sector, grenadiers and mountain troops ousted the enemy from several penetrations.

Air:

Anglo-American terror formations dropped bombs on central and northwestern German territory during yesterday's major attacks. Damage was caused, particularly in residential districts of Bielefeld and Minden.

In the evening hours, British bombers launched a terror attack on Osnabrück. Giessen and once again, central German territory were also attacked.

Fast British fighter-bombers made a nuisance raid on the Reich capital.

Twenty-seven enemy bombers were brought down by the Air Defence forces. (Radio Berlin)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

GERMAN

Greek Crisis Featured: Today, the single outstanding propaganda item of both commentaries and news items, of home broadcasts and of despatches for abroad, is the armed clash in Athens between the forces of Great Britain and the Greek Government on the one side, and the Partisan and Communist forces of the ELAS organization on the other. The unusual prominence of this single item is accounted for not merely by the usual German exploitation of any incident embarrassing Allied unity, but by the fact that this item is used as a means to gather together at one focal point the threads of all the varied German propaganda trends on almost all subjects and countries. Thereby the German treatment of the Greek crisis becomes, in effect, a convenient synopsis of all German propaganda of recent months, rather than a purely Greek item.

unprejudiced sources, German sources today devote considerable time to anti-Allied interpretations of the Greek crisis quoted from the «neutral press,» actually in most cases newspapers of pro-Nazi sympathies. The most typical quotation, which sums up recent German propaganda about Belgium and all Europe, is the Portuguese statement that «the Brussels events repeat themselves in Athens... Bolshevik servants of Stalin lead all movements against public order in all countries occupied by the Anglo-Americans.»

These «neutral» comments give German sources an opportunity to point out that the neutral world has been too long in heeding German warnings concerning the «Bolshevik danger» to small countries. The conclusion implied throughout, already a long-established propaganda trend, is that Germany is a benevolent bulwark for small countries and neutrals against a tidal wave from the East.

The Plot Thickens: Still later German despatches add yet another dimension to what began as a simple Greek shooting fray. An evening NPD despatch not only notes Stalin's supposed use of Greece to enter the Mediterranean, but says that this is his answer to Britain's thwarting of his prior thrust towards the Mediterranean through Thrace. This thrust was reputedly made by Bulgarian troops under Soviet command, which had occupied Thrace after Bulgaria broke with the Germans. Churchill foiled this by forcing the Bulgarians to withdraw from Thrace, so that Stalin (always according to NPD) is now using the Greek EAM to achieve the same goal more adroitly.

America and Japan Enter the Plot: Adding ever more conspiratorial complications in successive despatches, the same German source makes much of a presumed meeting between the Russian Ambassador in Washington and the new Secretary of State, Stettinius. Here is the German explanation of why the American State Department is supposedly letting Britain down in Greece and, it is added, in the Italian crisis over Sforza. America needs Russian aid in the Far East against Japan, and must pay the price by refraining from backing against Stalin in Europe. This line ties in with the recent propaganda trend of playing up the lessened military power of Chungking China and the corresponding increase in America's dependence on Soviet good will in the Far East. Cordell Hull, described variously as «senile» and as a «living corpse,» is said feebly to have followed Anthony Eden in foreign policy, whereas the younger and more energetic Stettinius is portrayed as following an independent American policy calculated, as in the Greek, Italian, and Belgian issues, to make a rift in the Russian-British «honeymoon.»

Greece's Rôle in German Hopes for Victory: Hence, by evening the German comments on Greece, like infinitely widening ripples around the original splash, finally reach the proportions of portraying a world-encompassing plot, including Bulgaria, Thrace, America, Russia, Japan, and even Chungking China, a plot in which Greece itself disappears as only a minor aspect of those wider internal rifts in the Allied camp on which Germany now bases her only remaining hope for a victory or a stalemate peace.

The unusual prominence of this single item is accounted for not merely by the usual German exploitation of any incident embarrassing Allied unity, but by the fact that this item is used as a means to gather together at one focal point the threads of all the varied German propaganda trends on almost all subjects and countries. Thereby the German treatment of the Greek crisis becomes, in effect, a convenient synopsis of all German propaganda of recent months, rather than a narrowly Greek item.

First German Reaction: As is often the case when confronted with a new event at short notice, the first reaction of German propaganda is a tentative one, exploiting in a crude manner only the most simple and immediate propaganda aspect of the event and later abandoning or even contradicting this first reaction by a more complicated approach of wider ramifications. For example, in the current Greek context, the first German reaction, via an 08:45 overseas broadcast on Thursday, is to declare that, despite their internecine malevolence, the one issue uniting such divergent elements as Greece's Royalists, Liberals, and Communists is their common desire to be rid of British interference in Greece. However, a few hours later the German sources tacitly repudiate this first simple reaction by, instead, aligning some of the Greek elements with Britain and some with Russia (rather than all united against Britain.)

Hand of Stalin: The German propaganda line quickly settles down to citing all possible evidence indicating that the hidden hand of Stalin is behind the whole crisis. Stalin's motivation is allegedly that, in violation of Teheran pledges, he is using the insurgent Greek Partisans as a means to control Greece and, thereby, to gain a long-coveted position in the eastern Mediterranean.

Neutral Press Exploited: In order to appear to confirm this allegation by basing it on presumably un-Nazi and achieve the same goal, more artfully.

America and Japan Enter the Plot: Adding ever more conspiratorial complications in successive despatches, the same German source makes much of a presumed meeting between the Russian Ambassador in Washington and the new Secretary of State, Stettinius. Here is the German explanation of why the American State Department is supposedly letting Britain down in Greece and, it is added, in the Italian crisis over Sforza. It is true that the sailors are homesick for their ships... but they do remember that their weapons should be pointed against the enemy, and not their allies, that their uniforms should not be soiled by shame and disgrace...»

Activities of the 10th MAS Fleet: Radio Fante brings the news of the activities of units of the 10th MAS fleet against Partisans in the Carnian Alps and western Friuli. They are said to have been organized and led by British officers escaped from POW camps in September, 1943; the Commander of the band, a British general, was in close contact with London by means of radio. The 10th MAS inflicted heavy losses on the Partisans, captured hundreds of prisoners, including some Anglo-American commanders and the Italian rebel chief, Danilo, who was supposed to have killed 65 people personally. A considerable amount of booty was also captured.

Ravenna Monuments Ravaged: The appeal of the Bonomi Cabinet that the monuments of Ravenna be spared was unheeded by the Allies, reports the Fascist Radio: Allied bombers destroyed the small, isolated church of Santa Maria Porta Fuori with its 14th-century frescoes and a beautiful, 5th-century marble sarcophagus.

The Cabinet Crisis: «The Communists have declared that they would not participate in a cabinet from which the Socialists were excluded. So, for the second time in a week, Bonomi's hopes of forming a cabinet have vanished...»

RAVENNA LIBERATED BY 8TH ARMY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 5 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, carrying out a brilliant encircling movement which knifed through the enemy defensive line at its hinge between the Lamone and Montone rivers, have entered Ravenna, Romagna's second-largest city, and have cut the Ravenna-Ferrara Highway to the northwest, it was announced here this afternoon.

Outflanked by the sudden Canadian thrust, German forces withdrew from the city rather than be trapped in the coastal area south of the great Comacchio marshlands, an official report issued by the headquarters of Allied Armies in Italy declared this afternoon.

Ravenna, with a population of some 11,000, is capital of Romagna Province and one of the oldest towns in Italy, rich in history as once the capital of the Western Empire under the rule of the Goths. For Allied troops, as Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander pointed out recently, Ravenna is of prime importance as winter quarters against most forward positions of the 5th Army southeast of Bologna.

Earlier in the day, it was announced that troops of the 8th Army had yesterday forced a crossing of the Scolo via Cupa Canal, a temporary German delaying position between the Lamone and Montone rivers, to penetrate two miles deeper into the hinge of the enemy line, and cut the second of the three main Ravenna roads.

In their penetration of the «hinge» sector of the enemy's line across the southeastern corner of the Valley of the Po, 8th Army forces now face the enemy along a 10-mile stretch of the Lamone River northeast of Faenza, and hold a five-mile, curving line along the Ravenna-Bagno Cavallo railway in the crucial sector between the Lamone and the seaward end of the Montone River.

Along most of the railway line, enemy forces are strongly entrenched, especially just north of Russi.

On the 5th Army front, Indian division troops occupied a number of positions in the Senio River Valley, south of Imola, and reëntered the town of Casola Valsenio, originally occupied by 5th Army troops on November 29.

Patrols were active along the rest of the front. (PRO)

SAARBRUECKEN IN FLAMES; AMERICANS ADVANCE NORTHEAST OF SAARLAUTERN

LONDON, December 5 — Great fires raged in the key Saar Basin city of Saarbrücken tonight as nearly 6,000 shells from 240-millimeter guns were directed into the city, press dispatches reported. The heavy shells were reported to be hitting the city at a rate of 36 per gun per hour.

Third Army troops, wheeling on the Saarlautern pivot, struck eastward toward Saarbrücken and on the southwest pushed to within six miles of the city. They are reported to have entered Rouhlingen and Hundlingen, six miles south of Saarbrücken and three miles west of Saargemund.

The battle for Saarlautern ended this morning, and troops of the 3rd Army advanced a mile and a half to the northeast of the second major city in the Saar Basin. Rapid advances are not expected in this area, as the Allied troops now are facing the outer rim of the Siegfried Line defenses, and their Saar River bridge is under heavy German shell fire.

Troops of the 5th Division advanced to the Saar River between Saarlautern and Saarbrücken after a five-mile advance on a 10-mile front. They have reached a point 2½ miles from Volklingen, while 80th Division troops are within two miles of Forbach, to the southwest.

Press dispatches reported tonight that Allied forces are inflicting unprecedented losses on the Germans, and stated that the casualties suffered are the highest the Germans ever have sustained on the Western Front.

RAVENNA LIBERATED BY 8TH ARMY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 5 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, carrying out a brilliant encircling movement which knifed through the enemy defensive line at its hinge between the Lamone and Montone rivers, have entered Ravenna, Romagna's second-largest city, and have cut the Ravenna-Ferrara Highway to the northwest, it was announced here this afternoon.

For Allied troops, as Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander pointed out recently, Ravenna is of prime importance as winter quarters against the unfavorable weather of the eastern basin of the Po.

9-Day Campaign

The Princess Louise Dragoon Guards were the Canadian forces which swept across five miles of the marshlands west of Ravenna to cut the last of the three main roads connecting the Romagna capital with the rest of the Po Plain. According to front-line reports, as yet unconfirmed by official reports here, the Canadian troops entered Ravenna yesterday morning.

Simultaneously with the flanking move around the western edges of the city, the British 27th Lancers pushed across the Fiumi Uniti to enter Ravenna from the south, official reports said.

The encircling of Ravenna was the result of a campaign of more than nine days' duration to smash through the hinge of the enemy river defense line based on the Lamone and Montone rivers. Only on the three-mile strip between these two principal streams were the Germans without the protection of a water barrier for their delaying positions, and it has been on this sector that the 8th Army has concentrated its recent attacks.

Ravenna is the northernmost point yet captured by Allied troops in Italy, being three miles farther north than the of the Po, 8th Army forces now face the enemy on the 10-mile stretch of the Lamone River northeast of Faenza, and hold a five-mile, curving line along the Ravenna-Bagno Cavallo railway in the crucial sector between the Lamone and the seaward end of the Montone River.

AMERICAN 1ST ARMY LAUNCHES NEW ATTACK

LONDON, December 5 — The American 1st Army launched a new attack today on the eastern edges of the Hürtgen Forest, making a gain of 1,000 yards to reach the outskirts of Bergstein, late press reports stated tonight.

The Germans are holding the eastern section of the town, and also high ground overlooking American positions. (Reuter)

R.A.F. ATTACKS SOEST AT NIGHT

LONDON, December 5 — The RAF Bomber Command, after this afternoon's attack on Hamm, tonight sent a strong force of Halifaxes and Lancasters to hammer railway marshalling yards at Soest, 15 miles southeast of Hamm. This was the second successive raid on Soest.

Latest reports tonight disclosed that 91 German planes out of 100 that rose to intercept the 1,350 American heavy bombers and fighters over Berlin were destroyed, American headquarters announced tonight.

It also was announced that one aircraft is missing from this afternoon's RAF attack on Hamm. (Reuter)

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785221

Threatening a wider envelopment of both Saarbrücken and the Saar Basin, 3rd and 7th Army troops swung northward from liberated Saarunion to occupy a number of towns 12 miles south of the Saar border.

To the south, 7th Army forces continued to drive toward a junction with the French 1st Army on the narrow Alsace Plain behind the German remnants in the Vosges Mountains. American forces were reported to be continuing the battle for Schlettstadt (Selestat), while French troops edged northward against strong German resistance to points 25 miles below the American 7th Army.

Ninth Army troops fighting on the west bank of the Roer River in western Germany, are meeting stubborn resistance in the eastern outskirts of Julich. The Germans have concentrated infantry and tanks on the northern flank of the 9th Army, as the Americans continued to wear them down, and they have committed a large number of reserves to this sector with the aim of holding the American advance toward the vital Cologne Plain leading to the industrial Rhineland.

Far to the north, at the Nijmegen salient, press correspondents reported that a considerable area is under flood water between Arnhem and Nijmegen where the Germans blew up dams and dykes. Canadian 1st Army positions are reported to have been rearranged as the water reached a depth of over a foot.

After their attempt to flood the area, German paratroopers tried to infiltrate into Canadian positions. Fifty Germans were killed and 110 taken prisoner, press reports said. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

RED ARMY 52 MILES FROM AUSTRIA

MOSCOW, December 5 — Soviet armored spearheads have advanced 12 miles across western Hungary from Kaposvar, captured yesterday, and reached the shores of Lake Balaton on an 11-mile front, the Soviet communique announced tonight.

Russian units are now 52 miles from the Austrian border after capturing Murczali (Marcali), eight miles south of Lake Balaton. Other forces of Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian Front have swung northward from the Yugoslav border to capture the important rail junction center of Szigetvar. Infantry and armor reinforcements are reported to be pouring across the Russian bridgehead over the Danube south of Budapest.

Over the whole front of the offensive which now covers at least 100 miles of forest-covered hills, Marshal Tolbukhin's twin objective of over-running the remaining one-third of German-held Hungary and breaking German forces before they reach the Austrian border appeared to be successful. Reports stated here tonight that the enemy retreat between Lake Balaton and the Danube was approaching a rout, and that the Germans were rushing reserves into the lines.

The Soviet communique reported tonight that between the Danube and Sava Rivers, Red Army and Yugoslav troops fought their way into a number of towns 15 miles northwest of liberated Mitrovica.

On other sections of the Eastern Front, the Soviet communique reported patrol and reconnaissance activity with engagements of local importance. (OWI - Reuter)

6 JAP SHIPS SUNK; JAP TANK ATTACKS REPELLED

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 5 — American warplanes based on Leyte Island have sunk another Japanese destroyer and five small freighters in the Philippines area, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight.

Meanwhile, in a renewal of ground fighting, American ground forces repulsed Japanese night tank attacks on an American roadblock in the Ormoc Corridor. Enemy pockets

« The most remarkable aspect of the struggle for Leyte as it has developed is the persistency with which the Japanese are trying to reinforce their Ormoc army in rash defiance of the American control of the sea and air... It could scarcely be foreseen that the enemy would include in convoys medium-to-large transports with no greater protection than a few destroyers..

« It is the kind of cardinal error which has cost the Japanese so much in times of crisis. » (OWI)

ALLIED TROOPS CROSS CHINDWIN RIVER

KANDY, CEYLON, December 5 — Allied troops have crossed the Chindwin River from Kalema, and advanced a mile beyond in pursuit of Japanese troops, today's South-east Asia Command communique reported.

In the Bhamo area, troops of the 33th Divsion consolidated gains at the airfield near the town.

Chinese 8th Route Army troops operating in Shantung Province, in northeast China, have recaptured the important enemy strongholds of Shouchang and Hsinesien, in the western part of the province, press dispatches from Chungking said. Shouchang is a major transportation point on the Yellow River.

The Chinese High Command announced today that Chinese regiments from northwest China moved toward Kweichow Province as Japanese spearheads moved to within 60 miles of Kweiyang, the province capital.

Resurgent Chinese forces in Hunan Province, north of Kwangsi and east of Kweichow, were reported to be striking against the long Japanese supply lines in diversionary attacks.

A large Japanese freighter was damaged, another probably damaged, and a third vessel was left burning when the 14th USAAF attacked enemy shipping on the Yangtze River during the last two days. In addition, fighter planes damaged a floating dock.

The Chinese-American Wing under Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault destroyed 19 enemy trucks and damaged 13 others along the Siang River. Coördinated missions destroyed locomotives and rolling stock and bombed bridges in diverse areas.

Meanwhile, the Chinese press gave considerable prominence to the statement of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, who said that if the enemy drove deeper into Kweichow he [the enemy] would make « another strategic error in China. »

Chiang said the Chinese Army was prepared to deal a crushing blow to the enemy, and exhorted the nation to muster all resources to « turn the tide of battle in our favor and hasten final victory. » (OWI)

T.A.F. STRIKES SOUTH OF BOLOGNA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 5 — Medium and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday concentrated their full weight in an intensive « non-stop » close-support attack on German troop concentrations and positions in the Bologna and Faenza areas, it was announced here today.

Striking at times within 1,000 yards ahead of driving Allied troops, medium bombers and fighters combined in heavy attacks which raised havoc with enemy troop concentrations in the Bagna Cavallo area, 10 miles north of Faenza, near Faenza, Ravenna, and on the 5th Army front, at points within five miles of Bologna.

Gun pits, ammunition dumps, and enemy-occupied houses were hammered in the day-long assaults.

Although weather grounded heavy bombers, fighter-bombers of the 15th AAF attacked the Zenica rail bridge, reported to have been rearranged as the water reached a depth of over a foot.

After their attempt to flood the area, German paratroopers tried to infiltrate into Canadian positions. Fifty Germans were killed and 110 taken prisoner, press reports said. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

RED ARMY 52 MILES FROM AUSTRIA

MOSCOW, December 5 — Soviet armored spearheads have advanced 12 miles across western Hungary from Kaposvar, captured yesterday, and reached the shores of Lake Balaton on an 11-mile front, the Soviet communique announced tonight.

Russian units are now 52 miles from the Austrian border after capturing Murczall (Marcali), eight miles south of Lake Balaton. Other forces of Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian Front have swung northward from the Yugoslav border to capture the important rail junction center of Szigetvar. Infantry and armor reinforcements are reported to be pouring across the Russian bridgehead over the Danube south of Budapest.

Over the whole front of the offensive which now covers at least 100 miles of forest-covered hills, Marshal Tolbukhin's twin objective of over-running the remaining one-third of German-held Hungary and breaking German forces before they reach the Austrian border appeared to be successful. Reports stated here tonight that the enemy retreat between Lake Balaton and the Danube was approaching a rout, and that the Germans were rushing reserves into the lines.

The Soviet communique reported tonight that between the Danube and Sava Rivers, Red Army and Yugoslav troops fought their way into a number of towns 15 miles northwest of liberated Mitrovica.

On other sections of the Eastern Front, the Soviet communique reported patrol and reconnaissance activity with engagements of local importance. (OWI - Reuter)

6 JAP SHIPS SUNK: JAP TANK ATTACKS REPELLED

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 5 — American warplanes based on Leyte Island have sunk another Japanese destroyer and five small freighters in the Philippines area, General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight.

Meanwhile, in a renewal of ground fighting, American ground forces repulsed Japanese night tank attacks on an American roadblock in the Ormoc Corridor. Enemy pockets east of Ormoc were reduced, and other Japanese positions eliminated.

Heavy rains continue to handicap ground operations in the Philippines, but in spite of the adverse weather conditions, U.S. troops have cleared the Ormoc Corridor, leading to the Japanese-controlled harbor of Ormoc, and bypassed the Japanese stronghold of Limon, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported today.

Another 1,821 Japanese were killed and 180 captured in mopping-up operations in New Guinea and the Bismarck and Solomon Islands during the period from October 7 to December 1, it was officially announced.

Writing of the difficult fighting conditions on Leyte, a London Times correspondent said:

"Americans in every sector of the Philippines are fighting in difficult conditions. Bogged down by mud made worse by twice the normal rainfall for a wet November and December, some troops in the less accessible parts have had to be supplied from the air as in the worst days of the New Guinea fighting. As a relief to the depressing state of affairs brought on by the weather, there is the knowledge that the Japanese are not making headway, and that, by small stages, they are being forced back.

"Our Long Toms, similar to the artillery being used on the Western Front, are capable of raking Japanese supply lines from a distance of 15 miles.

The Chinese High Command announced today that Chinese regiments from northwest China moved toward Kweichow Province as Japanese spearheads moved to within 60 miles of Kweiyang, the province capital.

Resurgent Chinese forces in Hunan Province, north of Kwangsi and east of Kweichow, were reported to be striking against the long Japanese supply lines in diversionary attacks.

A large Japanese freighter was damaged, another probably damaged, and a third vessel was left burning when the 14th USAAF attacked enemy shipping on the Yangtze River during the last two days. In addition, fighter planes damaged a floating dock.

The Chinese-American Wing under Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault destroyed 19 enemy trucks and damaged 13 others along the Siang River. Coordinated missions destroyed locomotives and rolling stock and bombed bridges in diverse areas.

Meanwhile, the Chinese press gave considerable prominence to the statement of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, who said that if the enemy drove deeper into Kweichow he [the enemy] would make "another strategic error in China."

Chiang said the Chinese Army was prepared to deal a crushing blow to the enemy, and exhorted the nation to muster all resources to "turn the tide of battle in our favor and hasten final victory." (OWI)

T.A.F. STRIKES SOUTH OF BOLOGNA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 5 — Medium and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday concentrated their full weight in an intensive "non-stop" close-support attack on German troop concentrations and positions in the Bologna and Faenza areas, it was announced here today.

Striking at times within 1,000 yards ahead of driving Allied troops, medium bombers and fighters combined in heavy attacks which raised havoc with enemy troop concentrations in the Bagna Cavallo area, 10 miles north of Faenza, near Faenza, Ravenna, and on the 5th Army front, at points within five miles of Bologna.

Gun pits, ammunition dumps, and enemy-occupied houses were hammered in the day-long assaults.

Although weather grounded heavy bombers, fighter-bombers of the 15th AAF attacked the Zenica rail bridge, 45 miles northwest of Sarejevo, Yugoslavia. Medium and heavy bombers were also used for supply missions in the Yugoslav area.

The attacks directed against enemy transport were continued by fighters and fighter-bombers both in north Italy and in Yugoslavia yesterday. (PRO)

SINKING OF GERMAN HOSPITAL SHIP EXPLAINED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 5 — An official explanation of the sinking of the unlighted German hospital ship Tübingen, returning to Trieste without wounded aboard, by British aircraft of the Coastal Air Force, on November 18, was issued today by Headquarters of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force.

The official Allied report said that the attack on the German hospital ship, which had already been relieved of a total of 1,360 sick and wounded enemy personnel in accordance with International Law, was made when the Tübingen was sighted in the half light of pre-dawn off Pola Harbor, and poor reception signals resulted in orders to attack the craft.

The Tübingen was sunk as a result of the attack, but it is believed that casualties among the crew, the only personnel aboard, were very light.

German authorities have been notified, and the British Government has conveyed its regret over the incident, the official report said.

The Tübingen had been engaged in evacuating enemy sick and wounded from the port of Salonika, along with a companion ship, the Gradisca. In accordance with rights granted under Article 12 of the Hague Convention, the two ships were intercepted, the casualties removed to be made prisoners of war, and the ships then released to proceed on their voyage to Trieste.

A British Destroyer intercepted the Tübingen just west of Crete on October 27, and removed 1,023 German sick and wounded.

The Gradisca was intercepted off Chios on October 29, and 1,850 enemy sick and wounded were taken off the vessel.

Both ships were examined and released in accordance to international law, the official report said.

The Tübingen, instead of proceeding on to Trieste, her destination, put into the Yugoslav port of Bar, to embark 337 sick and wounded enemy personnel waiting at that base. When she left the Yugoslav port, she was again intercepted, and was taken into the Allied port of Bari, Italy, where the casualties were removed to be made prisoners. On November 17, the vessel was again released, with instructions to sail to Trieste.

It was while the German hospital ship was proceeding northward in the Adriatic that she was mistakenly attacked.

Off the Italian port of Pola, and within 50 miles of her destination, the Tübingen was sighted by the Coastal Air Force patrol.

Without illumination, the ship could not be identified by the flight leader of the aircraft in the murk of the predawn, and he reported it to his base, with request for instructions. The official report said that, «owing to atmospheric conditions, the message was received incorrectly, and indicated to the controlling officer at the base that a high speed launch had been sighted in the middle of the Gulf of Venice.»

When a check on reports indicated that no Allied craft of this type was in these waters, the order to attack was given, the report said. (PRO)

BERLIN ATTACKED BY HEAVY BOMBERS

LONDON, December 5 — The Allied air assault on Germany was kept up again today despite bad weather when approximately 1,350 American heavy bombers and fighters attacked industrial targets in Berlin and freight yards at Münster, and RAF Lancasters and escorts went for the railway marshalling yards at Hamm, it was announced tonight.

At least 85 German fighters were shot down when 100 Luftwaffe fighters challenged the American bombers and her fighters. One Mustang squadron attacked 50 German fighters diving toward a Flying Fortress formation and destroyed 11 of the enemy aircraft.

Today's American operation included attacks on munition and tank factories at Tegel, a suburb of the German capital. The attack on Berlin was the 186th since the start of the war. The last attack on the German capital took place November 27 and was made by RAF Mosquitos. Today's raid was the first daylight attack in two months by American heavies.

Returning pilots said the German fighters concentrated on the early arrivals over Berlin, and that later formations were not molested. Anti-aircraft fire was considerable, but not so fierce as on previous missions to the capital.

Twelve American bombers and 22 fighters have not yet returned to their bases, but 11 of the fighters are believed to be safe.

RAF Coastal Command Hallfaxes scored a direct hit on a medium-sized merchant vessel last night in Alesund Harbor on the west coast of Norway, the Air Ministry announced tonight. The ship was one of three attacked in the harbor during a day-and-night offensive against all enemy shipping along the Norwegian coast.

These ships are of vital importance, because an attempt will be made to evacuate German troops in northern Norway as their position becomes more precarious, the Air Ministry said, adding that it is possible that the process has already started.

The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today that Allied planes had sunk a German merchant ship en route from Norway to Germany off the Swedish west coast.

In a summary of operations by the 9th USAAF in November, it was reported that the unit was active 28 of November's 30 days. Fighter-bombers made 12,000 trips over the battle lines, while medium bombers struck 3,000 strong with a total of 5,200 tons on selected targets ahead of the American armies.

Eleven mediums and 119 fighter-bombers were lost, but the unit's bag included destruction and damage of 454 locomotives, 176 tanks, 2,798 railway cars, 40 barges, and 158 German planes.

In support of the Allied armies yesterday, American and British planes based in France, Belgium, and Holland pounded communications lines. American fighter-bombers worked on rail lines in and out of the Saar Basin, and smashed at rail yards in Reichshofen and east of Stuttgart. RAF Spitfires and Typhoons destroyed five locomotives and damaged more during 500 trips over the battle lines.

Damage was caused, but there were no casualties when German air activity was directed at southern England during the 24 hours ending at dawn this morning, the Air Ministry said today. (OWI - AP - BBC)

15,000 GERMANS KILLED IN R.A.F. ATTACK

BASLE December 5 — The Royal Air Force raid on Freiburg, in western Germany, November 27, resulted in the death of 15,000 Germans, according to an eyewitness account published in today's Nationalzeitung, Reuter said tonight.

The report said that the gas works and rail installations were so devastated that all traffic was suspended for three days.

The raid came as a complete surprise, and no alert could be given, as the first bomb put the sirens out of action, it was said. Three cinemas in which special performances were taking place for German soldiers received direct hits, and 3,000 were killed. The eyewitness also reported the railway station in ruins. (Reuter)

EISENHOWER TELLS GERMANS TO END RESISTANCE

LONDON, December 5 — The German people were told today by General Eisenhower that their continued resistance and the retreating German Army's «scorched earth policy» would only multiply the sufferings and hardships of Germany. The warning was contained in General Eisenhower's proclamation read over Allied transmitters in the second of the series of Allied Military Government broadcasts to the German people.

The proclamation pointed out also that the AMG will not give compensation for public or private property destroyed by German forces in their retreat. (OWI) where the casualties were treated. On November 17, the vessel was again released, with instructions to sail to Trieste.

R.A.F. Blasts Hamm

Continuing the non-stop aerial offensive, RAF Lancasters, Mustangs, and Spitfires this afternoon followed the Americans out again, attacking railway marshalling yards at Hamm, in the Ruhr. First reports indicated that the bombing was well concentrated. Three enemy fighters were destroyed in the operation, all British planes returned safely.

Hamm has the largest and best equipped marshalling yards in Germany, and is an important junction on the lines from Cologne to Duisburg, Dortmund to Berlin, and Aachen to Berlin. The city was the most frequently bombed of all RAF targets in 1940, and during the last few months the USAAF has made frequent large-scale attacks on it.

It was announced today that in yesterday's RAF attacks — which included strikes at Karlsruhe, Heilbronn, Hagen, and Oberhausen — 17 bombers failed to return. Six enemy planes were destroyed in air combats by the escorting fighters.

Of the 2,200 American heavy bombers and fighters that attacked eight rail targets yesterday at Kassel, Mainz, Giessen, Soest, Bebra and elsewhere, seven bombers and three fighters are missing.

SHAEF, December 5 — The American armies on the Western Front face an acute tire shortage which threatens to tie up one-tenth of all their vehicles by the first week in February, General Dwight Eisenhower disclosed here tonight.

SOVIET WARSHIPS CHASE GERMAN CRAFT

MOSCOW, December 5 — Russian warships of the Baltic Fleet sent German naval vessels scurrying for their home ports recently during a brief encounter off the Baltic coast, Radio Moscow announced tonight.

The Soviet warships were engaged in patrolling the flank of Red Army troops fighting along the coast when they sighted the German craft on the horizon. The Russian vessels attacked the enemy and, after a short exchange of fire, the German boats turned and fled to the safety of their bases. (BBC)

YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE GERMAN STRONGPOINT

LONDON, December 5 — Yugoslav troops have captured a German position on the Drava River near Osijek, southeast of Pecs, thereby clearing the last German stronghold in that area, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

In the province of Slavonia, northwest of Belgrade, Soviet and Yugoslav forces took Mitrovica, on the Sava River, the communique said. Mitrovica lies on a railway which branches from the Belgrade-Budapest line, and runs through Zagreb into Austria and through Ljubljana into Italy.

The communique also said that in the liquidation of the German garrison of Knin, in the coastal province of Dalmatia, the Germans suffered tremendous losses.

In Montenegro, near the Albanian border, the fighting north of Podgorica continued with « undiminished violence, » the communique said.

Other Yugoslav action reported in the communique included attacks on railway lines in northwestern Bosnia and the capture of enemy strongholds in the Karlovac-Ogulin sector. (OWI)

SOVIETS REMOVING RUMANIAN MACHINERY

NEW YORK, December 5 — Soviet authorities in Rumania already have begun removing heavy industrial machinery to Russia, a Times correspondent said in a dispatch today. The correspondent wrote:

« This transfer of equipment and material from the vanquished to the victor is proceeding under terms of the armistice under which Rumania not only quit the Hitler line-up, but also joined forces with the United Nations against the Germans and the Hungarians. »

It is reliably reported, the dispatch said, that oil refinery equipment from the Ploesti and Campina districts is being taken, as well as parts of other factories. Under the terms of the armistice, the Soviets obtained the right to seize German properties in Rumania to improve war production, and to compensate for the enormous damage done by the Nazis in the Soviet Union. GERMAN GENERAL KILLED ON EAST FRONT

LONDON, December 5 — Maj. Gen. Constantin Degeon von Monteton, commander of a German Army training school, has been killed on the Eastern Front, the Nazi DNB agency said last night, when he was ordered to prevent a Russian « break-through. »

All these, with the exception of the Mount Hood, were lost as the result of enemy action, the announcement said. The ammunition ship accidentally blew up at an advanced base. The number of casualties caused when the ship exploded was not disclosed by the Navy Department. (OWI)

JAPANESE PLAN A.R.P. IN TOKYO

WASHINGTON, December 5 — In the wake of the Allied destruction of Tokyo's war industries the Japanese yesterday announced plans to prevent fires in the capital.

Radio Tokyo said that authorities have decided to build 39 additional fire-prevention roads. Previously, it was reported that wide avenues were to be cut in congested areas to serve as firebreaks, and to enable fire apparatus to move quickly to the scene of the bombings.

manufacture of the war weapons must be brought into Japan as soon as possible for production. But the broadcast said that the United States is trying to cut off Japan from her sources of supply, and that even the presence of one enemy submarine exposes her convoys to extreme perils in navigation.

Tokyo said, further, that Japanese submarines have found it extremely difficult to attack American supply ships en route to Leyte, because of the U.S. network of surveillance. (OWI)

FRENCH GOVERNMENT ON P.O.W. STATUS

PARIS, December 5 — The French Government would continue to apply the principles of international law toward prisoners of war and civilian internees, the French news agency, AFP today quoted French Minister of Justice Francois de Menthon as saying.

The statement was made in connection with the recent German Government threat to reconsider its attitude toward the Geneva Convention. De Menthon said:

« The Government has not yet been officially informed of this note. But it is nevertheless able to make known its point of view. As far as German war prisoners and German civilian internees in France are concerned, the Government will continue as hitherto to apply strictly the rules of international law.

LIBERATED ITALY

NO POLITICAL PRESSURE ON ITALY, SAYS U.S.

WASHINGTON, December 5 — The United States has informed both Britain and Italy that it expects the Italian people to develop their government « without influence from the outside. »

« This government has not in any way intimated to the Italian Government that there would be any opposition on its part to Count Sforza, » the Department of State reported today.

An Associated Press dispatch today said that one purpose of the assertion, evidently, is to reassure the people of Liberated Allied countries who may have read into recent developments in Italy an indication that the great Powers intend to meddle in their internal affairs.

The Department issued its formal statement in response to correspondents' queries on the United States position in the Italian cabinet crisis. The statement said:

« The positions of this Government has been, consistently, that the composition of the Italian government is purely an Italian affair, except in the case of appointments where important military factors are concerned. This Government has not in any way intimated to the Italian Government that there would be any opposition on its part to Count Carlo Sforza.

« Since Italy is an area of combined responsibility, we have reaffirmed to both the British and Italian governments that we expect the Italians to work out their problems of government along democratic lines without influence from outside.

WASHINGTON, December 5 — In the wake of the Allied destruction of Tokyo's war industries the Japanese yesterday announced plans to prevent fires in the capital.

Radio Tokyo said that authorities have decided to build 39 additional fire-prevention roads. Previously, it was reported that wide avenues were to be cut in congested areas to serve as firebreaks, and to enable fire apparatus to move quickly to the scene of the bombings.

The announcement came a day after the fourth Superfortress attack on Tokyo in 10 days. A dispatch today from a Superfortress base on Saipan Island quoted Brig. Gen. H. S. Hansell, Jr., commander of the 21st U.S. Bomber Command, as saying that substantial damage was done by the B-29's in two attacks on Tokyo's Musashino aircraft factory — but that the factory still is far from destroyed.

As far as Tokyo itself is concerned General Hansell said, cloud layers have prevented almost daily reconnaissance planes from obtaining accurate pictures of the destruction inflicted in the other two raids.

Bombing conditions during the attack last Sunday were extremely difficult even though the day was clear, he added, explaining that the bombers encountered winds of nearly 200 miles per hour at the level at which they came in over the target.

Calling upon seamen to enlist in the Japanese submarine service to protect their cargo ships transporting supplies to the battlefronts from U.S. Fleet attacks, Radio Tokyo admitted Saturday that U.S. submarines have been playing havoc with their supply ships.

(The United States Navy announced yesterday that U.S. submarines have sunk 18 more Japanese cargo ships and two combat vessels.)

Tokyo stressed the necessity of sending more and more reinforcements to Leyte, and that the materials for the

BONOMI CONFERS WITH C.N.L. LEADERS

ROME, December 5 — Former Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi conferred for 3½ hours tonight with the secretaries of the six parties of the Committee of National Liberation as another step toward solution of the 10-day old government crisis. No statement was made regarding their discussions.

The secretaries will report on the conference to their respective parties, who will in turn inform Bonomi tomorrow of their opinions.

The Italian Action Party, through its general secretary, Emilio Lussu, reiterated today its refusal to participate in any Italian government at the present time, even though it were to culminate from the six parties of the Committee of National Liberation. Lussu maintained that such a government, under present conditions, still would not be a real expression of the CNL.

Lussu's statement followed a 20-minute consultation with Bonomi at the Viminal Palace at noon. The Action Party spokesman said he had urged Bonomi to decline the task of forming a new government should his efforts to form it on the six-party coalition basis be unsuccessful.

Earlier, Bonomi saw Palmiro Togliatti, Secretary of the Communist Party.

The Action Party, in an order of the day late this afternoon, asked all political parties engaged in seeking a solution to the government crisis to «return the deliberation of the crisis to its proper place — the councils of the Committee of National Liberation.»

One of the reasons given for the request was that «discussions have arrived at a point where only the CNL can find a solution.» The order asserted also that discussions concerning the formation of a new government have now «fallen to the level of negotiations between Bonomi and the various parties.»

«A grave national crisis is being reduced to mere parliamentarism,» the order of the day added, asking all parties to remain «faithful to the promises made on the eve of the formation of the new government.»

Pietro Nenni, Secretary of the Socialist Party, said at a press conference today that he considered yesterday's declaration by the State Department of the U. S. on the American position on the Italian political situation to be «the political fact of most importance to our country at this moment.» (UNN)

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE AIDS AGRICULTURE

ROME, December 5 — The International Institute of Agriculture, one of the oldest world organizations in existence today, has furnished Allied authorities in Italy with valuable statistical information on the various aspects of agricultural economy, according to information released by the Institute today.

The Institute has functioned during the war through the regular publication of its four monthly bulletins in three languages, and has recently sponsored the compilation of a statistical work on world agricultural products covering the period from 1924 to 1929. Also, it has published pamphlets on national incomes, unemployment, monetary stabilization, and reconstruction. (UNN)

BRITISH TROOPS INTERVENE IN GREECE: REPORTS SAYS PAPANDREOU OFFERS TO RESIGN

ATHENS, December 5 — Soon after Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons this afternoon that there would be no hesitation in the use of British troops to enforce law and order in Greece, British forces intervened in many clashes between Greek police and left-wing elements here and in the outskirts of the city.

Intervention by British troops was made necessary «to avoid bloodshed» in a few cases, a communique from Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British Land Forces, Greece, said tonight.

«Tanks fired a few rounds into houses occupied by left-wing elements which were attacking a civil prison containing collaborators,» the communique added. «British troops who were guarding this prison in conjunction with some gendarmerie suffered casualties.»

This action climaxed a day in which there were numerous skirmishes between Greek police and ELAS (National Liberation Militia) units, who are protesting the Greek Government's order that all resistance groups turn in their arms by midnight tomorrow.

Conflicting Reports

There were conflicting press reports on the three-day crisis in Greece. Some dispatches said that the ELAS troops had seized 35 police precincts in the port of Piraeus and in

A Reuter dispatch said that the attack was carried out by 100 ELAS troops armed with automatic guns and seven machine guns. The fight lasted for four hours before the ELAS withdrew at 1100 hours, when British armored cars arrived and fired three or four rounds.

A statement by British military authorities in Greece pointed out today that ELAS men still are under the command of British forces in Greece, and from the technical point of view their refusal to obey orders designates them as mutinous troops.

«We are witnessing what is an attempt to achieve a forceful solution of the political question,» the statement said.

Press dispatches said that ELAS forces have seized positions in the Thessum section, and have gained control of prisons in the suburb of Vouliagmeni. Reuter reported that early yesterday RAF fighter planes made reconnaisance flights over the ELAS concentration areas. Another Reuter dispatch said that yesterday ELAS units disarmed several groups of the National Guard, formed recently by the Government to replace resistence movements.

An American press agency reported today that Premier Georges Papandreou offered last night to resign «in order to facilitate the situation» and that he had suggested that Themistocles Sofoulis, 80-year-old liberal leader, be asked to form a cabinet of national unity. There was no official statement.

Papandreou, a leader of the Social Democratic Party formed the current cabinet in Cairo last April, at the request of King George of Greece.

The general strike here and in Piraeus, called by the EAM yesterday, gained momentum today, and both places again were deprived of public utilities. While Greek dock workers continued their walk-out, British troops undertook the unloading of relief supplies at Piraeus Harbor. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

CHURCHILL CALLS FOR ORDER IN GREECE

LONDON, December 5 — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today, in a statement on the Greek situation: «We shall not hesitate to use the considerable British Army now in Greece, and being reinforced, to see that law and order are maintained.»

The question as to whether the Greeks form themselves into a monarchy or a republic must be left for them to decide later, he stated, but in the meantime «the authority of the constitutional Greek government must be accepted and enforced throughout the country.

«No government can have a sure foundation so long as there are private armies owing allegiance to a group, party, or ideology instead of the state and nation,» Churchill continued.

«Although these facts should be clear to all, the left-wing and Communist ministers have resigned from the Greek Government at this dangerous crisis rather than implement measures to which they had already agreed for the replacement of the EAM police and guerrillas by regular national services.»

The British Government wants to help the Greek people in every way, Churchill said, «but we cannot do this if the tommy-guns which were provided for use against the Germans are now used in an attempt to impose by violence a Communist dictatorship without the people being able to express their wishes.» (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

BRITISH TROOPS INTERVENE IN GREECE: REPORTS SAYS PAPANDREOU OFFERS TO RESIGN

ATHENS, December 5 — Soon after Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons this afternoon that there would be no hesitation in the use of British troops to enforce law and order in Greece, British forces intervened in many clashes between Greek police and left-wing elements here and in the outskirts of the city.

Intervention by British troops was made necessary «to avoid bloodshed» in a few cases, a communique from Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British Land Forces, Greece, said tonight.

«Tanks fired a few rounds into houses occupied by left-wing elements which were attacking a civil prison containing collaborators,» the communique added. «British troops who were guarding this prison in conjunction with some gendarmerie suffered casualties.»

This action climaxed a day in which there were numerous skirmishes between Greek police and ELAS (National Liberation Militia) units, who are protesting the Greek Government's order that all resistance groups turn in their arms by midnight tomorrow.

Conflicting Reports

There were conflicting press reports on the three-day crisis in Greece. Some dispatches said that the ELAS troops had seized 25 police precincts in the port of Piraeus and in the suburbs of Athens; while others asserted both that disorders are decreasing, and that fighting is increasing.

The communique tonight reported: «Sporadic fighting between the police and gendarmerie and left-wing parties has led to the evacuation of a number of police stations in the Athens-Piraeus area.» Earlier, General Scobie ordered the immediate evacuation of the ELAS from Greek police barracks.

Fighting between right-wing and left-wing elements also has taken place, the communique said, adding that «left-wing elements have abducted a number of Greek naval and army officers and civilians.»

While British troops with fixed bayonets are guarding important buildings inside Athens, and some streets are closed with barbed wire barricades, according to a BBC report, most of the day's clashes occurred outside the capital, where the ELAS groups are concentrated. The EAM (Greek National Liberation Front) announced today, however, that there had been a bitter skirmish inside the city, and that four civilains were killed when, according to the EAM, police fired on demonstrators late yesterday in one of the city squares.

A Royal Navy communique this morning reported that three British seamen were injured and a Greek interpreter attached to staff officers' headquarters killed when a mob attacked Anglo-Greek naval headquarters in Piraeus Sunday.

CRISIS HALTS U.S. AID TO GREECE

ATHENS, December 5 — Lincoln MacVeagh, American Ambassador to Greece, warned today that if there is a civil war in Greece, all American relief to the people of that country will necessarily be halted, according to an American press agency dispatch.

«We will give liberal support to any government the Greek people want,» MacVeagh said. «But with civil war hanging over the country, American aid to Greece has had to stop. The ships in Piraeus Harbor may have to move out, and all our relief work will have to cease. Thus, if real civil war breaks out and goes on for some time, the people of Greece may face more months of starvation.» (OWI)

ROOSEVELT REPORTS TO CONGRESS ON U.N.R.R.A.

WASHINGTON, December 5 — President Franklin Roosevelt, in his first report to the U. S. Congress on operations of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said today that relief will shortly be moving to several countries although emergency needs in liberated areas are now being met from military supplies.

The report pointed out the desperate conditions which prevail in many liberated countries, and added: «The enemy has been ruthless beyond measure. The Nazis institute a deliberate policy of starvation, persecution, and plunder which stripped millions of people of everything which could be destroyed or taken away.»

The President said that relief stocks are being acquired and personnel recruited to assure an efficient and equitable administration. As rapidly as active military operations permit, UNRRA is undertaking operations in the field, he added.

« UNRRA representatives are already in or on the way to liberated areas of Europe and are preparing to go to the Pacific and Far East, » the President declared.

The report recalled the plight of peoples in occupied Europe and paid tribute to the ceaseless resistance by the people of these countries, in which « 100 million people have been freed from the Germans after three to five years of Nazi looting, persecution, and brutality... The liberated peoples of Europe have helped liberate themselves from the Germans... »

Citing the emergency supplies which have been made available to these countries by the Allied armies for immediate needs since the beginning of the Allied offensives, the report declared:

« Even in theaters of active front-line fighting, the United Nations have not forgotten the needs of civilians. But military relief cannot be more than of an emergency and very limited nature...

« As liberated areas cease to be zones of military operations, transport can be released for import of certain requirements. UNRRA will help the governments of liberated countries which desire and qualify for aid to meet the essential needs of peoples in these areas. »

Self-Help Important

The report declared that UNRRA will not provide all the food and clothing that liberated areas will need. The people themselves will produce « over 90 per cent of their food, clothing, and other supplies they need... »

The President said UNRRA's role in the majority of cases is to help meet critical deficits of specific types of supplies in some areas. « Without such a program, there would be every reason to expect conditions to get beyond control, and famine and pestilence to sweep across large areas, taking millions of lives and endangering our victory, » he said.

Describing conditions found in the wake of the retreating Germans, the report said that in Poland the Germans adopted a policy of slow starvation for much of the population. The situation is serious in The Netherlands and Italy, with food shortages threatened in parts of France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Norway, with the metropolitan areas much worse off than the rural sections.

The Germans not only took the bulk of the foodstuffs from occupied countries, but wrecked or stole all means of transport, thus preventing the shipment of food from surplus areas into areas of critical shortages. The disappearance of consumer goods « and currency inflation deliberately promoted by the Germans have also tended in some countries to cause crops to be withheld on the farms even where they have been harvested. »

Turning to the clothing problem, the report said the lack of imports, aggravated by the German practice of requisitioning even essential clothing and textiles, made the plight of the occupied nations desperate. Shoes are even scarcer, with the result that « almost as many people have died from exposure due to lack of adequate clothing as have died from starvation. »

As regards health, the report said diet deficiencies, shortage of clothing and medicines, and damage and destruction of millions of homes have resulted in a rising death rate. « For example, malnutrition has contributed to the deaths of hundreds of thousands of children throughout Europe, » it said. It also cited the increased number of cases of rickets, tuberculosis, malaria, and diphtheria. The soap shortage has made cleanliness impossible. « Diseases spread by lice, such as typhus, have already risen to epidemic proportions in a few areas. » (OWI)

INTERNATIONAL AIR CONFERENCE ENDS

CHICAGO, December 5 — The International Civil Aviation Conference ended late Sunday as sub-committees completed the drafting of four documents which will be presented to delegates of the 54 participating countries for approval.

The four documents, as outlined by a conference spokesman, will be presented by each delegate to his country for ratification:

1. An agreement for the establishment of a provisional international civil aviation organization.

2. An agreement on the establishment of an interim authority until the plan for the permanent organization has been ratified by the 54 governments.

3. An agreement covering the first two freedoms of the air: the right of a foreign craft to fly over a state without stopping, and the freedom to land anywhere for servicing or other non-commercial purposes.

4. International air transport agreement providing for a mutual exchange among the signatories of all five freedoms of the air.

The other three « freedoms » of the air would allow a plane to: (1) discharge its traffic from home in a foreign state; (2) pick up in a foreign state traffic going to the home state of the aircraft; and (3) handle traffic moving between two foreign states. Action on these three « freedoms » has been deferred.

A sub-committee, several days ago, approved drafts of recommended technical standardization practices which will be attached to the main documents as a codicil.

It was agreed that states other than the United Nations, associate nations, or neutrals may be admitted to membership of the ICA, if four-fifths of the assembly approve, however, any member nation which was attacked or invaded by the applicant state can prevent the admission of that state. The conference must still select 21 nations to be represented on the council of the provisional organization.

Citing the achievements of the conference, Adolf Berle, head of the U. S. delegation, said: « First, we have achieved a world organization. We have an agreement, which seems to command general support, permitting free competition, and an important group of nations has agreed on the principle of open commercial trade known as the Five Freedoms of the Air. »

Berle added that the international organization has the jurisdiction to correct abuses, and has provided for the development of the international institutions of the air. (OWI)

U.K. TO PAY U.S. FOR EXTRA SUPPLIES

LONDON, December 5 — Great Britain expects to pay the United States in dollars for goods and raw materials received outside the scope of Lend-Lease, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today.

Asked if this action would have the effect of increasing the load of the foreign debt, or whether America would be prepared to accept goods in return for goods sent to Great Britain, the Prime Minister said:

« It is our wish that our current dollar expenditure, including payment for goods and raw materials not obtained under Lend-Lease, should be made, as far as possible, out of our current dollar receipts in respect to goods and materials produced in this country and otherwise. » (OWI)

BELGIAN P.M. BROADENS ADMINISTRATION

BRUSSELS, December 5 — Prime Minister Hubert Pierlot and the principal ministers of the Belgian Cabinet have made further progress in the task of broadening the administration, Reuter reported today.

The dispatch said, however, that political observers are still convinced that the life of the Government is undecided until the Socialists decide whether to break with the present cabinet and form a new coalition. Communist, Liberal, and many Socialist deputies are bitterly opposed to the administration in the field of foreign affairs, the report said.

The Belgian press has voiced considerable misgivings as to the real trend of the policy of regional agreements in the west, and of the ceding of Belgian bases to Great Britain and the United States.

Conferences between the Government and the executive committee of the Socialist Party continued today, the report said, adding that it was not yet known whether the Socialists accepted the offer of two further posts in the reconstituted Government.

The Communists, meanwhile, are expected to delay their decision on national policy until the results of the talks between Marshal Joseph Stalin and General Charles de Gaul-

In Alsace, at Sélestat, on the summits of the Vosges, and west of Thann, there is local fighting, with snow falling in some sectors. The situation generally remained unchanged.

Yesterday, the mopping up of the Harth Forest, north of the Hüningen Canal, was brought to an end. The enemy lost far more than 300 prisoners and many killed. GERMAN

Military Spokesman on General Situation: DNB quotes a German military spokesman who, commenting on the general military situation, stated that « the present Allied offensive had four focal points. In the West, the area east of Aachen, the Saar, and, of late, Italy, where General Alexander had started a great new offensive. In the East, the weight of the offensive fell unmistakably in the area of southwestern Hungary. » Referring to the situation on the northern wing of the Western Front, the spokesman declared that « the withdrawal of the German bridgehead at Venlo and the flooding of British positions in this area completely upset the plans of the Anglo-American High Command ... « since movements observed in the sector of the British 2nd Army indicated certain offensive plans on Montgomery's part. »

« The Führer in Best of Health: » This statement was made at a rally in Lower Silesia by Dr. Naumann, Secretary of State to the Ministry of Propaganda. He added: « I saw him a few days ago and, I can assure you, he still possesses the greatest optimism and energy and is wielding the destiny of Germany both militarily and politically with his experienced hands until victory is won... » Transocean also reports that the new Hungarian and Slovak ministers, Andras Mecser and Dr. Bogdan Galvanek, were received by the Führer on Monday in the presence of Ribbentrop.

Women in the Wehrmacht: Two leaders of German Women's Leagues have issued a joint appeal to women asking them to join a newly created corps of the Wehrmacht and so release soldiers in rear areas for fighting duties.

The Troglodytes of Bologna: This is how EP correspondent Bolthe von Hohenbach describes the swelling population of Bologna. There has been such a rush for underground shelters that the authorities admit only people who produce a permit. Sick people, large families, and the homeless are given preference. There are hospital wards and even chapels in these deep shelters.

Nobel Prize Winner Flees from « Occupied » Hungary: Transocean quotes the director of the Hungarian Office for Culture, Kalman Hubay, who revealed that the Nobel Prize winner and avowedly Anglophile professor, Szentgyoergyi, was forced to flee from Soviet-occupied Szeged in order to escape the fate of three members of the new town council. These men were shot by the Russians after having collaborated with them, and Szentgyoergyi, who had thought that his scientific reputation would enable him to collaborate with the Russians, has fled to Budapest.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

The Evacuation of Ravenna: Radio Fascist reported last night that the town of Ravenna had been evacuated « in order to prevent the destruction of precious historic and artistic monuments. »

The Italian Political Crisis: Fascist commentators review the letters written by the Socialist and Communist leaders, Nenni and Togliatti, in answer to Bonomi's request to join the new cabinet to be formed by him. Their repeated negative replies « have definitely brought about a stiffening in the situation without making any positive contribution to the solution of the crisis. »

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 5 — To-day's communique:

Worthy of special mention are the war activities carried out under difficult conditions by Patriots of the «Lombardy» Division, under the command of a leader nicknamed Americano.

Compelled by overwhelming enemy pressure to give ground in a north Apennine area, the Patriots were soon able to organize a series of counter-attacks, following manoeuvers carried out with discipline and determination.

On December 1, in answer to their call for aid, Allied planes supported the Patriot operations. The air operations, carried out under favorable atmospheric conditions, produced good results. Details of the combined operations are still lacking, but it is reported that special strategic objectives have been gained, and that important positions have been re-taken from the enemy. (UNN)

Last night, London was again subjected to the harassing fire of our long-range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, from the foothills of the Etruscan Apennines southwest of Faenza up to the Ravenna sector, our divisions are engaged in grim defensive fighting against fierce enemy attacks.

Yesterday, they also prevented the enemy from breaking through our front.

Eastern Front:

In Dalmatia, the enemy increased his pressure on the road centre of Knin.

At Vukovar, southeast of the Drau Eustuary, grim fighting is in progress against Bolshevik formations whose spearheads had crossed the Danube.

In southern Hungary, on both sides of the main road leading westward at Szigetvar and west of Kaposvar, our troops repulsed fresh Soviet attacks. Enemy forces which advanced northward were stopped between Lake Belaton and the Danube. Numerous Soviet attacks on our new positions were frustrated.

East of Budapest, the fighting flared up.

Northeast of Miscolcz, the Bolsheviks suffered heavy losses during unsuccessful attempts at broadening their penetration.

In southwestern Hungary, German bomber squadrons joined in the fighting, despite incessant bad weather conupset the plans of the Anglo-American High Command ... « since movements observed in the sector of the British 2nd Army indicated certain offensive plans on Montgomery's part. »

Their repeated negative replies « have definitely brought about a stiffening in the situation without making any positive contribution to the solution of the crisis. »

The main obstacle to the solution of the crisis is still Prince Umberto, whose authority to nominate the premier is questioned by all parties. Then, of course, there is another, although not quite so obvious difficulty: the fact that the anti-Fascist coalition based on the old Committee of Liberation is not considered to represent the will of the people. The six parties who formed this coalition are not concerned with the people's thoughts and wishes, the most important of which is the problem of food. The Allies, it is stressed, who had repeatedly expressed their wish to help the liberated peoples, have made it clear that lack of shipping space prevents them from keeping their promises, and Roosevelt has not cared to increase the bread ration either after having been reelected. All these facts, according to the Fascist radio, have done little to mitigate the hostility of some of the « men of the coalition » towards the Allies, and much to accentuate of the crisis. « The British veto of Sforza and the differences between Bonomi and the Socialists-Communists are further evidences that the Fascist apple is ripening in the apple-grove of anti-Fascism. »

Communism Has Failed In Italy: « In Italy alone has Communism failed to provoke disorder..., » runs a comment in French broadcast by the Fascist Radio, « owing to the more rigid Anglo-Saxon control, and the confusion prevailing amongst the political parties... »

GERMAN RESISTANCE IN SAARLAUTERN WEAKENING

LONDON, December 4 — The 3rd Army extended its bridgehead over the Saar River in the eastern section of Saarlautern today, as German resistance inside the city was reported to be limited to disorganized pockets, press dispatches said tonight.

German artillery behind the city and from Siegfried Line positions was reported to be shelling the bridge which the Americans captured intact last night. The Germans destroyed another bridge across the Saar in the same region, but Allied engineers built another under heavy German shellfire.

Eight miles to the south, other American units made another crossing of the German border, and have pushed northward across the southern and southwestern approaches to Saarbrücken, main Saar Basin city. The 3rd Army now has a 35-mile front inside Germany, and has strengthened its positions both above and below Merzig and Saarlautern.

the German positions themselves are also under the flood waters.

The disadvantages of mud, rain, clouds, impassable roads, and flooded rivers have failed to halt the 1st and 9th Armies' drive to gain the approaches to Cologne and the vital industrial Rhineland.

American 9th Army forces have consolidated their front along the Roer River after clearing the Germans from the western bank from north of Linnich to below Jülich.

On the southern flank of the 9th Army, 1st Army forces which captured Inden yesterday crossed the Inde River, and captured the towns of Luchem and Lucherberg after a hard, uphill fight.

On the eastern edges of the Hürtgen Forest, other 1st Army troops, after capturing Brandenburg, inched their way toward Bergstein, just before the Roer River to the south of Düren.

Press reports stated that anti-aircraft fire yesterday destroyed 41 of the 70 German fighter planes which attempted to strafe 1st Army positions before Düren.

Far to the south, American 7th Army units forced the Germans street-by-street from the communications center of Schlettstadt (Selestat), 25 miles southwest of Strasbourg. They have driven southward to liberate a town eight miles from Colmar, the headquarters of the German Army's rapidly diminishing Alsace bridgehead.

Driving northward from Mülhouse and eastward from the Vosges Mountains sector, French 1st Army forces made considerable gains and have mopped up German elements 20 miles northwest of Mülhouse.

ENEMY COUNTER-ATTACKS 5TH ARMY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 4 — German forces, continuing their sharp counter-attacks against key salients along the 5th Army battle line, yesterday struck at American positions southwest and south of Bologna, and succeeded in dislodging American forces from a hill feature overlooking the Reno River Valley 26 miles southwest of the Po Valley city, it was announced here today.

The principal enemy attacks were aimed at the right flank of a deep salient driven into the hills west of the Pistoia-Bologna Road by American forces late in November, and since reduced by severe enemy attacks which recaptured the two peaks of Monte Belvedere and Monte Corone, which formed the apex of the American penetration.

Although the official situation reports indicated that German counter-attacks near Bombiana, a village little more than four miles north of Porretta, had been broken up with enemy losses, the communique issued by Allied Armies in Italy declared that Allied troops had been forced to withdraw from a hill feature some 500 yards southeast of Bombiana. The communique referred to the enemy attack as «strong.»

The 3rd Army now has a 35-mile front inside Germany, and has strengthened its positions both above and below Merzig and Saarlautern.

Strong Defenses in Saar Basin

Despite the maneuver which gave the Americans a bridgehead across the swollen river and which brought them into the rich industrial region, 3rd Army forces still face extremely strong and intricate German defenses in the Saar Basin.

Other 3rd Army columns to the south of Saarlautern threatened a wider envelopment of the industrial area and Saarbrücken itself, as they gained two miles east of liberated Saarunion. At this point, the Americans were 11 miles to the east of the Saar River.

On the northern end of the 400-mile Western Front, the 2nd Army cleared the last German pockets of resistance on the western banks of the Meuse River before Venlo. It now holds an unbroken line along the Meuse from Roermond to the sea. The attack, which began yesterday morning, received heavy support from Allied artillery, and forced the Germans to ease the strong fire they were concentrating on the British troops.

In the Arnhem area, where British and Canadian forces hold a salient between the Meuse and the Lower Rhine Rivers, the Germans stated they have blown up dams, causing Allied troops to retreat to higher ground. Press correspondents reported that if the German report be true, which captured Linden yesterday, crossed the Roer River, and captured the towns of Luchem and Lucherberg after a hard, uphill fight.

On the eastern edges of the Hürtgen Forest, other 1st Army troops, after capturing Brandenburg, inched their way toward Bergstein, just before the Roer River to the south of Düren.

LATE BULLETINS

AMERICANS SHELLING SAARBRUECKEN

LONDON, December 4 — The German industrial city of Saarbrücken came under Allied shellfire tonight from heavy artillery located on commanding heights seized in the new 3rd Army thrust toward the Saar Basin, late press dispatches reported.

Saargemünd and Forbach also are being shelled from strategic heights three miles south of Forbach.

The new 3rd Army attack was begun before dawn today without preliminary artillery preparation, taking the Germans completely by surprise and gaining up to 2¼ miles along a 10-mile front. (Reuter) than a month, a high mountain escarpment within eight miles of the Po Valley city — enemy forces again failed to dent the 5th Army line.

Enemy JU-87 and JU-88 bombers were active in this area, bombing and strafing the upper stretches of the Florence-Bologna Highway, but without inflicting either damage or casualties.

A sharp engagement between infantry forces with small arms was reported in the vicinity of Monte Grande, six miles east of Monte Belmonte, and in the crucial 5th Army salient thrust into the Sillaro River Valley to within four miles of the Po Valley Highway near Castel san Pietro.

Heavy fighting continued yesterday in the battle which has raged for more than a week in the three-mile strip of lowland which forms the hinge of the enemy defenses along the Lamone and the Montone Rivers northeast of Faenza, on the 8th Army front. Here, enemy forces are utilizing every available building as a blockhouse to hold the 8th Army penetration into this single stretch of enemy line unprotected by a sizeable water barrier.

British and Indian troops of the 5th Army continued to press forward in the area of the Senio River Valley, south of Imola, where enemy forces are apparently slowly drawing back toward the Po Highway. (PRO)

RED ARMY DRIVES UP DANUBE'S WEST BANK

MOSCOW, December 4 — The Germans' position in Hungary is deteriorating rapidly as Marshal Fedor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian Army drives hard up the west bank of the Danube. In three days, his troops have taken over 3,000 prisoners.

Tonight's Soviet communique reported that the Soviets have fanned out in all directions from recently-captured Kaposvar, to seize over 100 inhabited localities, including eight railway stations.

In Yugoslavia, between the Rivers Danube and Sava, Yugoslav troops, in cooperation with Soviet forces, have driven up the Sava Valley from Belgrade to liberate, among many other towns and villages, the communications center of Mitrovica.

On the remainder of the Eastern Front, tonight's communique reported only reconnaissance activity and, at some points, fighting of local importance.

Intense patrol activity marked the fighting in the Latasano Valley, running north and south across the northwestern tip of Finland, a Helsinki communique said today.

Messages from here tonight emphasized the widespread confusion of the German and Hungarian forces in southern Hungary as they fled westward to Lake Balaton before the onrush of Marshal Tolbukhin's army. One dispatch said:

"The German retreat roads are resembling those in the Moscow and Stalingrad areas in 1941 and 1942. They are choked with wrecked German tanks, lorries, field guns, and German and Hungarian dead.

"The nearby plains are swarming with riderless horses, wild with fright, which once belonged to the proud and resplendent Hungarian cavalry. Long columns of prisoners already are marching to the east." (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

21 MORE JAP SHIPS SUNK

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 4 — A late dispatch tonight from General Douglas MacArthur reported that American naval units engaged three Japanese destroyers Saturday night in a light naval action, sinking one destroyer and damaging another. One United States destroyer was sunk, it was announced.

American submarines have sunk 20 more Japanese ships, including a light cruiser and a destroyer, the Navy Department announced today.

This announcement brought the overall total of

The enemy is seven miles west of Tushan, and 75 miles southeast of Kweiyang. The Chinese have confirmed the enemy's penetration and fighting into the Tushan area last night.

The sinking of a large freighter in the South China sea, 90 miles east on Hongkong, by a Flying Fortress of the 14th USAAF, was announced today at Maj. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer's headquarters in Chungking. An enemy gunboat was sunk and a tug damaged in other operations against Yangtze River shipping.

An increase of 400 per cent in the total tonnage of equipment carried over the Himalayas during October for Burma Road engineers by the Air Transport Command was officially announced yesterday.

The official statement said this huge rise over previous record figures was expected to be even larger in the coming months, as work on the supply route to China from India bases was pushed.

Meanwhile, U. S. Army Headquarters announced that Col. Robert Seedlock of the British Army had been appointed commanding officer of the Burma Road engineers, succeeding Lt. Col. Louis Dawson who has returned to Washington.

Headquarters also said that personnel employed on the Burma Road had been increased 330 per cent during the last three months, as work on the final stretch of the road was under way.

The announcement said further that, with some sections of the road still in Japanese hands, and the enemy drive toward Kweiyang threatening to cut the route in another place, engineers attached to the service of supply under the command of Maj. Gen. Gilbert Cheves were working on alternate routes from India connecting Myitkyina, Burma with Kunming through Tengchung and Paoshan.

The appointment of two veteran RAF leaders to command posts in Southeast Asia was announced by the Air Ministry in London tonight. Air Vice Marshal Leslie Norman Hollinghurst was promoted to Acting Air Marshal and Air Officer Commanding base air forces.

Air Commodore Alfred C. H. Sharp was named Acting Air Vice Marshal, and placed in charge of administration of base air forces in the Southeast Asia Command.

2,200 AMERICAN PLANES HIT WESTERN GERMANY

LONDON, December 4 — Approximately 2,200 American heavy bombers and fighters today attacked five rail arteries feeding supplies to the German front lines and industrial targets elsewhere in Germany. Today's targets included Kassel, Mainz, Giessen, Soest, and Bebra.

The Associated Press reported that German fighters came up to meet the attackers, but failed to molest the bomber formations. Heavy cloud obscured the targets, and bombing was by instrument.

Only one of the yards — Mainz — is on the Rhine. The others are far in rear of the German supply lines. The Soest rail facilities are seven miles southeast of Hamm, Germany's largest railroad center, which has been hit heavily by the 8th USAAF in recent weeks.

These attacks followed this afternoon's offensive strike by RAF Lancasters against railways in the Ruhr with a concentrated attack on Oberhausen. Spitfires and Mustangs accompanied the heavy bombers.

Last night, RAF Mosquitos attacked objectives in western Germany without loss.

The Air Ministry announced tonight that Spitfires of the RAF Fighter Command power-dived 5,000 feet through a rapidly closing gap in thick cloud to pinpoint-bomb a V-2 storage depot and vehicle park in Holland today.

The announcement added that these actions have not been announced in any previous Navy Department communique.

KANDY, CEYLON, December 4 — Chinese infantry with supporting artillery completed the capture of the air strip outside Bhamo, 170 miles northeast of Mandalay, today's Southeast Asia Command communique announced.

On the central Chinese front, however, Japanese troops are advancing in the penetration of Kweichow Province. Burma Road had been increased 350 per cent during the last three months, as work on the final stretch of the road was under way.

One hundred German jet-fighters appeared on the front early yesterday, but withdrew before cannon-firing RAF Tempests. It also was reported that more than 700 sorties were flown by the RAF 2nd Tactical Air Force, which destroyed many locomotives and railway beds.

130,000 GERMANS ISOLATED

PARIS, December 4 — More than 130,000 Germans are isolated in the rear of the Allied armies in France, according to the French Command of the Atlantic, a dispatch said yesterday.

The Germans are holding on to positions in or near the five ports of Bordeaux, La Rochelle, St. Nazaire, Lorient, and Dunkirk. The enemy garrison at Dunkirk, entrenched inside a five-mile perimeter, is being contained mainly by Canadians, while at other ports the enemy is being guarded

Militarily, the importance of the ports held by the Germans is not high, for the Allies now have other ports closer to the fighting fronts. (OWI)

BRITISH TROOPS IN WEST TO HAVE LEAVE

LONDON, December 4 — Thousands of British 2nd Army men who have spent six months or more on the Western Front or partly in any other operational theater will be granted seven days' leave during the first three months of 1945, it was announced tonight.

Opening of the key port of Antwerp is said to have been a basic factor in the operation of the leave scheme.

These eligible for leave will be selected by ballot, and there will be special travel arrangements for them in Britain to make sure that they reach home quickly. (BBC)

S.H.A.E.F. BROADCASTS A.M.G. RULES TO GERMANY

SHAEF, December 4 — The first of a series of 13 talks by the Voice of the Allied Military Government was broadcast this morning to the people of Germany by order of General Dwight Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force. In this message to people in territory to be occupied by the Allies, the AMG's principles of justice and order were explained.

The broadcast said that the AMG of Germany will be « firm and strict and just. Its aims will be, now, the destruction of the Nazi system and the militaristic system of armed aggression. »

It was pointed out that soldiers will rule the government with « humanity, justice, and civilized standards. » Listeners were told that they will be spared from the « corruption, personal greed, falsehood, and barbarity of your present rulers. »

The laws of the AMG will be published so that all will know what is the law, the message said. « Except when in conflict with these new laws, your existing laws will remain in effect.

Courts will be « conducted with fairness and promptness. Punishment for violations of the law will be orderly and swift. No punishment will be ordered without a fair trial. » (OWI)

NEW «BAD-WEATHER» BOMBING TECHNIQUE

GREATEST M.A.A.F. BOMBINGS YET TO COME

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 4 — Germany is due for the « greatest weight of bombardment they ever have received » this winter, Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker, Commanding General, Mediterranean Allied Air Force, predicted today.

Not only is the MAAF larger and more effective than it was a year ago, but, with the disappearance of strategic targets in southern France and, to a large extent, in the Balkans also, heavy bombers can now concentrate on targets in the German homeland, the Mediterranean Air Commander told Allied correspondents at a press conference held here. The development of radar target identification techniques will prevent the enemy from gaining any respite because of overcast winter weather, the general added.

Despite the increasing concentration of enemy flak guns in the homeland — and General Eaker pointed out that flak now accounts for 44 per cent of the Allied aircraft lost in action — and the still high numerical strength of the German fighter force, this intensified air bombardment of Germany will be carried out with an estimated loss of less than two per cent, the air commander declared.

As a result of attacks during the month of November, General Eaker said, the Brenner Pass Line, principal link between Germany and Italy, has been knocked out and kept inoperative for nearly an entire month. The two other routes through enemy territory linking Germany with its southern battle fronts — the Tarvisio rail line entering Italy from the northeast, and the Postumia route entering from the east — have been cut and kept inoperative for an even longer time, he said.

The Brenner Pass line, which passes through the deep chasm of the Sill and Eisach River Valleys, and shut in by 10,000-foot high peaks, is one of the most difficult and heavily-defended bombing targets anywhere, yet the combined hammering of heavy, medium, and fighter-bombers has produced as many as 35 cuts of all types in this line on a single day, General Eaker said.

Transformer stations have proved particularly vulnerable points in the rail line, which is electrified all the way. If three of the transformer points along the line are knocked out, the power for the locomotives cannot be fed through, and the line is closed.

The extensiveness of the Po Valley road and rail network, the most widespread in all Italy, has limited the effectiveness of the Tactical Air Force attacks on Po River bridges, although all the through routes are now blocked at one or more points, General Eaker said. Complete interdiction of enemy traffic in this area has not been possible, partly due to weather and to the enemy expedients, such as by-pass and loop lines, special ferries, and pontoon bridges kept in place only at night. Yet all Po bridges have been cut since, the general said, adding that it was certain that the enemy was « long past any possibility to supply and equip himself for offensive action » in Italy.

In addition to the attacks on enemy rail lines and road systems, the Mediterranean Allied Air Force has destroyed or damaged in 10 months of this year 25,867 motor vehicles, 3,174 locomotives and 16,667 rail cars, General Eaker declared.

Ploesti Oilfields Destruction

General Eaker, in reviewing the achievements of the MAAF in the past year, singled out the five-months-long attack on the Ploesti oilfields as one of the « greatest air battles of all time, » which not only reduced to 1/10th the enemy oil from the great fields, but « broke the spirit and the strength » of the Luftwaffe as well.

NEW «BAD-WEATHER» BOMBING TECHNIQUE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 4 — Flying Fortresses and Liberators, employing a new bad-weather bombing technique which is built around the Allies' sensational radar target identification instrument, made individual bomb runs in their attacks yesterday on targets in the Linz, Villach, Klagenfurt, and Innsbruck areas, it was announced here today.

The results of the bombing carried out despite massive cumulus clouds which obscured the targets to the eye, but not to the new cloud-piercing radar device — were unobserved, the reports said.

Rocket-firing Beaufighters and Hurricanes of the Balkan Air Force yesterday attacked enemy gun positions and a power plant at the German F-boat and submersible depot at Lusin Piccolo, in the northern Dalmatian Islands. The attack, made at water-level resulted in the destruction of an amunition dump on the island.

In other attacks against Yugoslav targets, medium bombers hit the Zapresic rail bridge, 10 miles northwest of Zagreb, and Aircobra fighter-bombers strafed enemy motor transport in the Podgorica «Pocket» just inside the Jugoslav frontier from Albania.

Heavy and medium bombers of the RAF were also active in day attacks in this area.

In night attacks on German transport in the Po Valley, Havoc bombers dropped more than 50 tons of explosives on motor convoys. (PRO)

As a result [illegible] General Eaker said, the Brenner Pass Line, principal link between Germany and Italy, has been knocked out and kept inoperative for nearly an entire month. The two other routes through enemy territory linking Germany with its southern battle fronts — the Tarvisio rail line entering Italy from the northeast, and the Postumia route entering from the east — have been cut and kept inoperative for an even longer time, he said.

Ploesti Oilfields Destruction

General Eaker, in reviewing the achievements of the MAAF in the past year, singled out the five-months-long attack on the Ploesti oilfields as one of the «greatest air battles of all time,» which not only reduced to 1/10th the enemy oil from the great fields, but «broke the spirit and the strength» of the Luftwaffe as well.

In a sustained campaign, carried out despite a concentration of 250 flak guns and 200 first-line fighters assembled by the enemy to protect the vital target, 13,000 tons of bombs were rained on the 11 refineries and marshalling yards around Ploesti, General Eaker said. He said that at Bucharest he had been told by a Rumanian oil official that the Allied air attacks had reduced output from the fields from 26,000 tons per day to 3,000 tons per day, when the Germans finally evacuated the area in the face of the Russian advance.

Even of the latter reduced amount of fuel, the enemy was able to move only 10-12 per cent back to Germany, because of destruction of marshalling yards, rail bridges, and the mining of the Danube barge route, General Eaker declared.

The cost in Allied planes of this great air assault was 361 bombers, with approximately 3,600 crewmen, many of whom, however, parachuted to safety. The attack on the Ploesti refineries was merely the outstanding feature of a campaign against all enemy oil installations within reach, General Eaker pointed out.

Some 40,000 tons of bombs were dropped on enemy oil targets all told, and for every ton of bombs dropped, 61 tons of oil were denied to the enemy, General Eaker said, adding that 61 tons of gasoline is 20,000 gallons, enough to fuel a full Panzer division for a whole day of combat.

General Eaker pointed out that the MAAF were working in the Balkans to support the Red Army, just as they had supported the 7th Army in southern France. During the past year, he said, the 15th Air Force alone has flown more than 45,000 sorties against German targets in the Balkans, dropping 75,000 tons of bombs, a great proportion of them against targets specified by Partisan forces. He pointed out that the 15th AAF had lost 480 heavy bombers and 155 fighters in these Balkan operations.

More than 7,000 sorties were directed against Yugoslav targets, which received 18,000 tons of bombs.

Yugoslav Patriots have also been sent, via air, some 12,000,000 pounds of supplies, he said.

In its 2½ years of operation, the MAAF has destroyed a total of 13,515 enemy aircraft, General Eaker said, and has suffered a total of 14,343 casualties, of which number 6,794 are either prisoners of war or returned to U.S. military control.

In summarizing the effect of the unrelenting pressure of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force's constant attacks on German targets, General Eaker said that the enemy shall « suffer the fear of falling bombs, broken rail lines, burning factories, short rations, short ammunition, fear starvation » with only a « hiding, skulking, and beaten air force » to intervene, until final surrender. M.A.A.F. COMMISSION IN BULGARIA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 4 — The Mediterranean Allied Air Force sent a mission to Bulgaria to investigate the mistreatment of Allied airmen in Bulgarian prisoner camps, Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker, Mediterranean Air Commander, disclosed here today.

The mission has reported excellent progress in its work, thanks to the coöperation of all the military and civil agencies in the area, and is expected to announce the time and place of the trial of the individuals concerned, the general said.

The air commander revealed that some of the culprits involved in the mistreatment of the Allied airmen had met death by violence, at the front, or by suicide when confronted with the evidence against them. All the other war criminals involved in the case are being apprehended, and will be brought to justice, General Eaker said. (PRO)

GERMANS USE CAVES FOR PLANE PRODUCTION

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 4 — The Germans are using tobacco shops, old breweries, and even caves in desperate efforts to continue the manufacture of fighter planes now that the Allied air forces have smashed most of the Luftwaffe's airplane factories, Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker declared here today.

Well-laid-out and integrated plants, with elaborate assembly lines and normal manufacturing facilities, are a thing of the past in Germany, the general said.

Heavy air attacks, by both 8th and 15th AAF, have destroyed the big aircraft manufacturing complexes, and the enemy has been forced to disperse construction and assembly units far and wide and without regard to economy or efficiency, he stated. As a result of 15th AAF bombing, the big Wiener-Neustadt plant of seven units near Vienna is now believed to have been broken up into at least 25, the Allied air commander said.

Production of German planes is now concentrated on only a few types — ME-109's, FW-190's, JU-88's, and the new rocket and jet-propelled planes, the general said. (PRO)

FASCIST TROOPS REFUSING TO FIGHT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 4 — Italian Fascist troops forced to fight for Germany on the Italian front are deserting whenever they get the opportunity, it was [illegible] today. An official statement said:

« It must also be remembered that large numbers have deserted to the Partisans, usually taking their arms with them; and many more, whose homes are in north Italy, have simply put on civilian clothes and returned home.

« The reasons for desertion are, of course, that the Italians have no wish to fight a lost war on the side of the hated Germans, though they are willing to fight on the side of the Allies and the majority of them are determined to drive out the invaders.

« Although all were tecnically volunteers, they were in fact pressed into service, and it is surprising that either the Germans, or even Mussolini or Graziani, have expected them to be of any value to the Axis. » (PRO)

YUGOSLAVS ADVANCING DOWN MORAVA VALLEY

LONDON, December 4 — Yugoslav forces which have liberated Cacak, 60 miles south of Belgrade, are continuing to advance down the Morava River Valley, Marshal Tito said today.

Germans in the central Yugoslav province of Bosnia are attempting to push northward to Brod, and are under continual attack.

In Bosnia, from bases at Zvornik along the Drina River, the Germans tried to move to the northwest, but were thrown back before they reached Tuzla, terminus on a northbound railroad leading to Brod.

In western Yugoslavia, along the Adriatic, Marshal Tito's forces have taken Knin, a key rail junction in northern Dalmatia which controls two main rail lines leading north to Zagreb. To the south, around Podgorica in Montenegro, continued German attempts to break through toward Sarajevo still are being repulsed. (OWI)

R.A.F. AIDED LIBERATION OF TIRANA

TIRANA, December 4 — An RAF strafing and bombing attack on a German column of 2,000 men at a critical moment in the fighting for the Albanian capital was a key factor in assuring a Patriot victory, a London Daily Mail correspondent wrote today.

« The scales might have turned against the Partisans, for all their superhuman gallantry, if the RAF had not put in a low-level bombing and machine-gunning attack at a critical moment in the fighting, » the dispatch reported.

Describing the Partisan battle to break into the city against heavy German defenses, the dispatch added: « The Albanians, using ancient weapons against tanks and every appliance of modern warfare forced them [the Germans] back, house-by-house, until one-third of the city had been taken. Then, as fierce counter-attacks threatened to drive the Partisans back, there came news that Germans, 2,000 strong, and escaping from Greece, were approaching from Elbasan. As they neared the bridge on the Elbasan-Tirana Highway, Spitfires came screaming up the valley almost over the heads of the Germans to blow the bridge sky-high and bomb and machine-gun columns held up by the broken bridge. Then, the Partisans opened fire... »

The battle continued for 26 hours. One thousand Germans were killed, hundreds taken prisoner, and 25 guns captured which were turned by the Partisans on their former owners. (Reuter)

FASCIST TROOPS REFUSING TO FIGHT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 4 — Italian Fascist troops forced to fight for Germany on the Italian front are deserting whenever they get the opportunity, it was announced today. An official statement said:

«A month ago, the first Italian Fascist troops began to appear in the line, heralding their arrival with a flood of deserters who came ahead to give us early warning of this increase in the enemy's strength.

«It had been known for some time that the Germans had raised, trained, and equipped four divisions of Italians, recruited mainly from internment camps in Germany, but it had not been expected that they would ever use them against the Allies. However, toward the end of October the Germans, no doubt feeling that they must try to get some return for their trouble, and especially for the equipment given the Italians, of which there is such a shortage at present on the Western Front, decided to employ a few selected battalions on the mountainous sector of the front, where an Allied attack was scarcely to be expected.

«The experiment has not been a success. From the first, the flood of deserters has been rarely less than 30 a day during the past month, and on one occasion a record figure of 108 arrived during a single period of seven hours. On another occasion, 61 members of the same company arrived together in our lines. These figures must be regarded as thoroughly satisfactory, since there have never been more than four or five battalions in the line, selected from two of the four divisions, — the Monte Rosa and San Marco Divisions, — and since the Germans have tried to make desertion more difficult by interspersing German units among the Italians.

In Bosnia, from bases at Zvornik along the Drina River, the Germans tried to move to the northwest, but were thrown back before they reached Tuzla, terminus on a northbound railroad leading to Brod.

At the same time, he took further steps to reorganize his government, naming Foreign Minister T. V. Chiang then called a cabinet meeting and urged China to rally against the Japanese.

He described the present military situation as «extremely difficult,» but added that the military developments at the front, including the penetration by the Japanese of Kweichow Province, «were within our anticipation.»

Chiang concluded: «The enemy inside Kweichow must be dealt a crushing blow and completely annihilated.»

JAP RADIO ON LEYTE BATTLE

WASHINGTON, December 4 — Importance of the battle of Leyte to the Japanese people was emphasized yesterday, when the Japanese Radio said that whether or not Japan is invaded depends on the outcome of Philippine fighting.

«America cannot cut our communications and invade Japan proper unless she occupies the Philippines; hence, the outcome of this battle will greatly affect the rise and fall of Japan,» the broadcast said.

The Japanese Munitions Minister has called on factory heads to « leave nothing undone to perfect the production system, and thus secure supplies for the Philippines operation. » (OWI)

THREE BRITISH LINERS SUNK

LONDON, December 4 — Two British luxury liners — the 20,000-ton Warwick Castle and the 10,000-ton Llandaff Castle — were sunk by German submarines over two years ago, it was announced here tonight. A third liner — the Windsor Castle — was sunk by a torpedo-carrying plane in March, 1943.

The Warwick Castle was sunk in the Atlantic Ocean in the autumn of 1942. She went down quickly in a gale, and many of her passengers lost their lives when lifeboats capsized.

The Llandaff Castle, with women and children aboard, was torpedoed in November, 1942. Burning oil covered part of the surface of the sea, but the ship maneuvered clear of it, and there was no panic. (Reuter)

BONOMI HOLDS FIRM ON POSITION

ROME, December 4 — Former Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi told the leaders of the Socialist and Communist Parties tonight that he had been assigned by Prince Umberto, Lieutenant General of the Realm, to form a new government, and that he, Bonomi could not disregard this task, despite refusal by the Socialist and Communist Parties to reconsider their positions.

He added, however, that he hoped he could form a new government as representative of the six parties of the Committee of National Liberation.

Bonomi's reiteration of his position was contained in his second letters in 24 hours to leaders of the Socialists and Communist parties, asking them to accept his proposal that the two parties and the Christian Democratic Party share two vice-premierships in the new cabinet he would form.

Earlier in the day, the Socialist and Communist parties unequivocally, but not unfriendly, rejected Bonomi's offer. However, the Christian Democratic leaders neither accepted nor rejected the proposal, pending further discussion of the offer by Christian Democratic officials.

Socialist, Communist Leaders Adamant

After the second letters from Bonomi, the Socialist and Communist leaders still refused to yield, and replied tonight to the former Prime Minister to that effect.

Refusing to accept Bonomi's offer, the Socialist and Communist parties, in separate letters, notified the former roots of Fascism, and regain for Italy the self-government to which it has a right to aspire. »

Declaring that the Bonomi proposal did not substantially alter the details of the government crisis, Nenni's letter continued:

« You must not ignore the fact that the crisis could have been resolved (in its incipiency) without your resignation. The CNL could have been the arbiter of the increasing difficulties of the past weeks. »

The Socialist letter added that the difficulties which the government faced were the result of a campaign of « vilification » carried on by « reactionary forces » against the CNL.

« The cabinet over which you presided did not offer adequate opposition to these attacks, » Nenni said, asserting that Bonomi, through his resignation, made the Lieutenant General of the Realm the arbiter of the situation, and thus, Nenni charged, Bonomi « attempted to destroy that balance of power between the monarchy and the CNL which was the substantial achievement of the June Government. »

« The work of achieving democracy and restoring the national dignity of Italy is not the privilege of a single man, but must be carried out by the CNL, » Nenni's letter emphasized. (UNN)

Director of Studies Professor Raimondo Salaris stated today that secondary schools may be forced to close. Deploring the attitude of the students, which he said was especially regrettable at the present time, he claimed there is no ground for the complaints, since the daily schedule does not consist, as the students assert, of a continuous five-hour string of lectures, but is split into shorter periods, and is no longer than the daily time-table in force during the past few years. Earlier in the day, the Socialist and Communist parties unequivocally, but not unfriendly, rejected Bonomi's offer. However, the Christian Democratic leaders neither accepted nor rejected the proposal, pending further discussion of the offer by Christian Democratic officials.

Socialist, Communist Leaders Adamant

After the second letters from Bonomi, the Socialist and Communist leaders still refused to yield, and replied tonight to the former Prime Minister to that effect.

Refusing to accept Bonomi's offer, the Socialist and Communist parties, in separate letters, notified the former Prime Minister today that their participation in a new government is not conditioned on the basis of being represented in ministerial posts, but on a concrete plan resulting in effective functioning of the Italian government.

The refusal of Bonomi's olive-branch in the form of an invitation to vice-premierships was contained in letters written by Palmiro Togliatti, secretary of the Communist Party, and by Pietro Nenni, secretary of the Socialist Party. Both letters, addressed to Bonomi, employed the Italian familiar pronoun « tu, » instead of the more formal « lei. » The letters generally were friendly in tone, and, while they were not couched in diplomatic phraseology, they were pointed by their bluntness.

Togliatti's letter said that the Communists reaffirmed that a solution could be found only within the councils of the Committee of National Liberation.

« You know well enough that we are considering essential elements of direction and practical functioning of government, and not ministerial posts, » he asserted.

Nenni's letter said, in part:

« The collaboration of the Socialists in a government based on the Committee of National Liberation is not conditioned on a question of ministerial posts, but on the development and implementation of a plan which will attempt to overcome all the obstacles which impede full realization of a war policy, democratize the nation, thus striking at the

He and 325 other Italians were massacred last May by the Germans in the Ardeatine Caves here. A field mass also was celebrated.

General Artale had been in charge of the optical department at the glass works at the time he was seized by the Germans. After September 9, 1943, he had collected and hid all the material he could save from the Germans. (UNN)

ROME SCHOOLS MAY CLOSE FOLLOWING STRIKE

ROME, December 4 — Pupils of Rome's secondary schools have gone on strike in protest against the addition of an extra hour to the daily curriculum.

Director of Studies Professor Raimondo Salaris stated today that secondary schools may be forced to close. Deploring the attitude of the students, which he said was especially regrettable at the present time, he claimed there is no ground for the complaints, since the daily schedule does not consist, as the students assert, of a continuous five-hour string of lectures, but is split into shorter periods, and is no longer than the daily time-table in force during the past few years. MARTIAL LAW IN ATHENS; E.A.M. CALLS STRIKE; PAPANDREOU MOVES TO STRENGTHEN CABINET

ATHENS, December 4 — Martial law was declared here today and in the port of Piraeus, as an aftermath to the clash last night between EAM (Greek National Liberation Front) and Communist Party demonstrators, and Greek police, in which 29 persons were killed and 149 injured, according to latest reports.

The tension increased today as sporadic outbreaks and shooting were reported in the suburbs here, and a general strike, ordered by the EAM, tied up all public utilities, halted the unloading of Allied relief supplies, and disrupted government communications.

British forces, consisting mainly of paratroopers and Sherman tanks, under the command of Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British Land Forces in Greece, patrolled the streets of the capital and repeatedly dispersed crowds which attempted to stage demonstrations in protest against the Greek Cabinet's order that resistance groups must be disarmed.

The British troops intercepted many large groups of ELAS (Liberaton Front Militia) men, moving into Athens with arms against the orders of the Greek Government and the Allied Land Forces Greece. Last night, 300 royalist ELAS troops were surrounded and disarmed by British forces, AFHQ. announced today. The ELAS men offered no resistance, and were ordered back to their original areas.

Another group of 1,200 ELAS men were disarmed by a British patrol north of the city tonight, the offical Greek News Service reported. The officers and ELAS troops were put into confinement, it was said.

Last night, the ELAS seized two government police barracks at Piraeus. A BBC broadcast said early today that Premier Georges Papandreou has ordered all Athens police to leave the city, and has replaced them with members of the Home Guard, who will take over maintenance of order in the capital.

While martial law tightened the grip on the dissenters, Premier Papandreou moved to strengthen his government by appointing five new ministers to the Cabinet to replace the six men who resigned Saturday in protest against the Government order to demobilize and disarm all resistance groups. Among the new ministers, according to an Athens announcement quoted by Radio Cairo, is Aristotelis Sideris, founder of the Greek Communist Party, who was named Minister of Labor.

Scobie Backs Government

General Scobie, in a proclamation today, told the Greek people that, with the vast majority of Greek citizens, he stood firmly behind the constitutional government, and would aid it to the limit of his resources until free elections can be held.

«Certain minority elements clearly indicated the intention to sacrifice Greece's interests as a whole and provoke internal strife, if possible,» General Scobie asserted.

Premier Papandreou appealed directly to the officers and men of the resistance groups, reminding them of their part in the liberation of Greece and urging them not to turn now against the people and the nation.

On the other hand, Dmitri Partsalides, secretary-general of the EAM, declared: «If necessary, we will fight for liberty against Papandreou and his gendarmes.»

Papandreou, in a strong plea, called for the end of disorder and for the restoration of a united front, «for we want all Greeks on our side.» As Athens was virtually a stranded city today — without gas, electricity, or communications — because of the general strike, Papandreou, reading his appeal for unity from a broadcasting studio by candlelight, told the strikers:

«By the general strike today you are inflicting suffering on our people ... Young men of Greece ... you cannot turn your weapons upon the motherland... We want all Greeks on our side, for we are fighting the Battle of Greece.»

The EAM's opposition to the Papandreou Government's order for disarming is based on the EAM's allegations that Papandreou had «gone outside the terms of the decree» of the disbanding of resistance groups after he had agreed with left-wing cabinet ministers as to terms regarding the manner in which disarming would be conducted.

The EAM demanded simultaneous demobilization of the Mountain Brigade, which was organized by Greek forces in exile in the Middle East before the liberation of Greece,

Will L. Clayton, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Administrator of Surplus Property.

President Roosevelt also said that «other appointments strengthening the State Department will be made in the near future.» He added that he intended soon to nominate Norman Armour, chief of the Division of Latin-American Affairs, to «an important diplomatic post abroad.»

Armour has been a diplomat for many years. He recently was American Ambassador to Argentina.

Grew has been a career diplomat for 40 years. He was American Ambassador to Japan from February, 1932, to 8 December 1941, the day after the attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japanese. Since then, he has served as director of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs of the State Department.

Grew served many posts in embassies and legations in Egypt, Russia, China, Mexico, Austria, Belgium, and Switzerland. He was American Secretary on the International Secretariat of the Peace Conference in 1918. He was Under Secretary of State from 1924 to 1927, and Ambassador to Turkey from 1928 until he headed the Ambassy in Tokyo in 1932.

Rockefeller will be in charge of relations with the American Republics. He will resign as Coördinator of Inter-American Affairs, but will direct the policies of that office during the time required to integrate its work into the government's permanent structure, and to terminate its wartime activities.

MacLeish will be in charge of public and cultural relations. He was assistant director of the Office of War Information from June, 1942, to February, 1943.

Clayton will be in charge of foreign economic affairs. Before he was appointed Assistant Secretary of Commerce two years ago, he was head of a large cotton factor firm in Texas.

President Roosevelt said that Dean Acheson will continue as Assistant Secretary of State, and will have «general responsibility for all matters concerning the Department's relations with the Congress, and will assume important duties in connection with our participation in international conferences.»

President Roosevelt said that he accepted the resignations of Berle, Long, and Shaw «with great regret.» He added that «all three have rendered outstanding service to the country in the posts which they have filled with great distinction.»

Berle will continue as head of the American delegation to the International Civil Aviation Conference at Chicago, President Roosevelt said. (OWI)

Papandreou refused on the ground that these formations were part of the United Nations armies, which were at the disposition of the Allied Mediterranean Command and that, furthermore, the Mountain Brigade was needed to form the nucleus of a new non-political national army in Greece.

The EAM charged that the formations organized in exile had right-wing tendencies. (OWI)

GREW NOMINATED UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE

WASHINGTON, December 4— President Roosevelt today nominated Joseph C. Grew, former American Ambassador to Japan, as Under Secretary of State. The President also announced the resignation of three Assistants Secretary of State, and the nomination of their successors.

When his nomination is approved by Congress, Grew will fill the vacancy left by the appointment of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as Secretary of State to succeed Cordell Hull, who resigned because of illness.

The three men who have resigned as Assistants Secretary of State are Adolf A. Berle, Jr., Breckenridge Long, and G. Howland Shaw. President Roosevelt nominated the following to replace them:

Nelson Rockefeller, Coördinator of Inter-American Affairs; Archibald P. MacLeish, Librarian of Congress; and American Republics. He will resign as Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, but will direct the policies of that office during the time required to integrate its work into the government's permanent structure, and to terminate its wartime activities.

DUTCH GOVERNMENT TO RESIGN AFTER LIBERATION

LONDON, December 4 — The present Netherlands Government will resign as soon as the entire country is liberated, Prime Minister Pieter Gerbrandy was quoted as saying today.

Declaring that the parliament elected in 1937 had expired in 1942, Prime Minister Gerbrandy stated that under the Netherlands Constitution, extension of the parliament was impossible, and that The Netherlands was now without a parliament.

After the country is liberated, he said, an interim parliament will be chosen, and will hold office until the election can be held.

"There must be a new government," he asserted, "in tune with the temper of the people, and the resistance movement must have a say in the formation of the new parliament." (Reuter)

NEUTRAL COUNTRIES

SWEDEN MAY CLASH WITH GERMANY

STOCKHOLM, December 4 — Sweden may soon clash with Germany in order to put an end to the inhuman conditions existing in Norway, a Swedish political commentator said quoting a member of the Swedish Riksdag (Parliament).

What is happening in Norway, the commentator said, is common knowledge. It is the total application of the scorched-earth policy by the withdrawing Germans.

«With every new report of the ill-treatment of our kinsmen in Norway and Denmark,» he said, «a biting cold wind seems to blow over Sweden. The whole nation has reacted against the happenings in those neighboring countries, spontaneously and with a force that cannot be ignored.»

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 4 — Today's communique:

It now is confirmed that 300 Germans were killed in the fierce battle which raged on November 5 in the Benedello zone of the Modena Apennines.

In the Val Cannonica, the Germans, in an effort to break the stubborn resistance of the Alpini, used heavy armament, including tanks and mortars.

During this period, savage reprisals were taken by the enemy on the civil population -- houses, huts, and everything else that the Germans found in their path were looted or burned. In spite of this, their intentions were foiled, and the Patriots suffered only light casualties. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 4 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Western Front:

In the Arnhem sector, our pioneers blew up the dikes on the southern banks of the Rhine, and flooded the enemy positions southwest of the town in an extended area. The enemy was forced to withdraw to high-ground positions, where he suffered high losses by our artillery fire.

On the left banks of the Meuse and north of Venlo, our troops have been offering a stubborn resistance to incessant British attacks for weeks. They withdrew only step-by-step, in face of strong enemy forces, and prevented their crossing the Meuse and the Reich frontiers.

Northeast of Geilenkirchen, the enemy battalions collapsed in our fire when they tried to advance.

East of Aix la Chapelle, most of the U. S. attacks were frustrated in counter-attacks.

In the Hürtgen area, grim forest fighting against fresh enemy tank formations is in full swing.

In Lorraine, in the forefield of the western fortifications at Saarlautern and on the upper reaches of the Sarre, our troops are engaged in grim fighting against the enemy, who resumed his attacks. Sarrunion, which had temporarily been lost, was cleared of the enemy.

Northwest of Lützelstein, the Americans penetrated the forest area of the lower Vosges, but were bogged down in front of our recently fortified lines.

South of Hagenau, yesterday, attacks failed with considerable losses for the enemy.

In central Alsace, pressure continued to be exerted on the northwestern and southwestern flanks of our front bulge.

In the centres of Selestat and Rappolsweiler, grim fighting is in progress.

In the southwestern and southern foothills of the Wasgen Forest, the enemy was prevented from advancing by the stubborn resistance of formations, which have been fighting for weeks.

North of the Hüningen Canal, in the Harth Forest on the upper reaches of the Rhine, an enemy formation was cut off. Some hundred prisoners were captured during the battle of annihilation which still is in progress.

In Alsace-Lorraine, our troops destroyed another 32 enemy tanks, and five armoured reconnaissance cars. Strong formations of German fighters and bombers supported the defensive fighting of the Army by numerous attacks on enemy batteries, troop concentrations, and columns.

Italy:

In central Italy, south of Vergato and at Faenza, our troops repulsed enemy attacks.

In the Romagna, they are engaged in grim defensive fighting against British divisions, which attack with extremely strong artillery support.

Balkans:

In the Balkans, on the upper reaches of the western Morawa and on the Drina front, enemy attacks were frustrated.

In Croatia, tank forces were dispersed.

Eastern Front:

In southern Hungary, at Szigetvar and west of Kaposvar, the Bolsheviks, who advanced westward, were halted by the stubborn resistance of our troops.

Between Lake Balaton and Duna-Foldvar, the Soviets gained ground in a northerly direction.

North of Erlau, the enemy again attacked unsuccessfully with several divisions.

Aachen. For instance, they could not force a crossing over the Roer river, which forms the outer fringes of the main German defences in this area. « Although these two armies are still pushing slowly ahead, the time is not far off when their large-scale attack will come to a standstill, unless something quite unexpected happens... »

Sertorius goes on to state that Patton's army is still battling in the forefront of German fortifications in the Saar region, whereas, in Central Alsace, the German defenders « yielded on a few points in elastic defence against superior U.S. forces... The enemy's plans of encirclement are dwindling rapidly, and he will wear himself out in costly frontal attacks to reach the line of the Upper Rhine. »

German Retaliatory Measures Against French Terrorism: Transocean quotes a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman announcing at a foreign press conference on Monday that Germany contemplated measures in retaliation for the French Government's execution of German citizens, as well as of French persons who once worked for German-French understanding. He also announced that the German consulate in Geneva had handed a note to the International Red Cross about the treatment of these persons, many of whom were murdered by « lawless communist partisans... » There were a large number of de Gaullists held in Germany against whom the Reich government would be compelled to take measures, unless persecutions in France and the occupied parts of Alsace and Lorraine ceased immediately. The responsibility in this case would rest solely with the French government.

Jewish Art-Dealers in the Wake of American Army: The well-known 'Axis Sally' complained in a recent broadcast that Jewish military interpreters in American uniform had made their appearance in villages in the Aachen area, forcing the inhabitants to sell them art treasures at ridiculously low prices. « This is regarded by the local population as a particularly characteristic feature of Allied occupation. »

Eighth Army Repulsed in Faenza Area: Late tonight, the Fascist radio summarized the fluctuation of fighting in the Faenza sector, « to which area the 8th Army has extended its front of attack. » It is reported that Allied armored units succeeded first in advancing as far as the Lamone river, on both sides of Faenza; after bringing up reserves, the British troops were able to cross the river, but a German counter-attack forced them back again. Similar Allied reverses are reported in the Russi area, and « in the direction of Ravenna. »

In an earlier broadcast it was stated that increased Allied pressure is expected shortly, inasmuch as Axis military reconnaissance reports « a large-scale traffic of men being moved to the front line. »

Notes on Bonomi Cabinet Crisis: The lengthy Fascist commentaries on the government crisis in Rome continue, with but slight variations. Outside the particular problem of Count Sforza's defeat, which is marked down as super ingratitude and ruthless connivance on the part of England, the existance of the crisis itself is shown to be the « inevitable » outcome of a multi-party policy. The picture of an insoluble dilemma is heavily stressed, and the Allies, who allegedly insist on a monarchy, are said to be arrayed against the « so-called » National Liberation Committee. The Fascist radio considers Bonomi a failure because « he went too far with the right wing, namely Monarchy and the Allies. »

But, the commentators contend, the Socialists and Communists (who « owe everything to the Allies ») are determined not only to resist Bonomi, but to struggle militantly and independently for their own ends. In this light, it is forest area of the lower Vosges, but were bogged down in front of our recently fortified lines.

South of Hagenau, yesterday, attacks failed with considerable losses for the enemy.

In central Alsace, pressure continued to be exerted on the northwestern and southwestern flanks of our front bulge.

In the centres of Selestat and Rappoisweiler, grim fighting is in progress.

In the southwestern and southern foothills of the Wasgen Forest, the enemy was prevented from advancing by the stubborn resistance of formations, which have been fighting for weeks.

North of the Hüningen Canal, in the Harth Forest on the upper reaches of the Rhine, an enemy formation was cut off. Some hundred prisoners were captured during the battle of annihilation which still is in progress.

In Alsace-Lorraine, our troops destroyed another 32 enemy tanks, and five armoured reconnaissance cars. Strong formations of German fighters and bombers supported the defensive fighting of the Army by numerous attacks on enemy batteries, troop concentrations, and columns.

Italy:

In central Italy, south of Vergato and at Faenza, our troops repulsed enemy attacks.

In the Romagna, they are engaged in grim defensive fighting against British divisions, which attack with extremely strong artillery support.

Balkans:

In the Balkans, on the upper reaches of the western Morawa and on the Drina front, enemy attacks were frustrated.

In Croatia, tank forces were dispersed.

Eastern Front:

In southern Hungary, at Szigetvar and west of Kaposvar, the Bolsheviks, who advanced westward, were halted by the stubborn resistance of our troops.

Between Lake Balaton and Duna-Foldvar, the Soviets gained ground in a northerly direction.

North of Erlau, the enemy again attacked unsuccessfully with several divisions.

At Miscolcz, other Soviet and Rumanian attempts at breaking through were frustrated.

Between Sajo and Hernath, German tank formations ousted the enemy from the northern part of his penetration.

Air:

Yesterday, the centre of gravity of the Anglo-American air activities lay in western and southwestern Germany. Particularly, planes flying at a low-level bombed and machine-gunned the civil population.

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

GERMAN

Western Front: Analyzing the situation on the Western Front, Transocean's commentator Sertorius writes that, in spite of the considerable reinforcements received, the U.S. 1st and 9th armies have still not been able to make up for the slow progress in the first days of the offensive east of a large number of [illegible] whom the Reich government would be compelled to take measures, unless persecutions in France and the occupied parts of Alsace and Lorraine ceased immediately. The responsibility in this case would rest solely with the French government.

Jewish Art-Dealers in the Wake of American Army: The well-known 'Axis Sally' complained in a recent broadcast that Jewish military interpreters in American uniform had made their appearance in villages in the Aachen area, forcing the inhabitants to sell them art treasures at ridiculously low prices. « This is regarded by the local population as a particularly characteristic feature of Allied occupation. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Eighth Army Repulsed in Faenza Area: Late tonight, the Fascist radio summarized the fluctuation of fighting in the Faenza sector, « to which area the 8th Army has extended its front of attack. » It is reported that Allied armored units succeeded first in advancing as far as the Lamone river, on both sides of Faenza; after bringing up reserves, the British troops were able to cross the river, but a German counter-attack forced them back again. Similar Allied reverses are reported in the Russi area, and « in the direction of Ravenna. »

In an earlier broadcast it was stated that increased Allied pressure is expected shortly, inasmuch as Axis military reconnaissance reports « a large-scale traffic of men being moved to the front line. »

Notes on Bonomi Cabinet Crisis: The lengthy Fascist commentaries on the government crisis in Rome continue, with but slight variations. Outside the particular problem of Count Sforza's defeat, which is marked down as super ingratitude and ruthless connivance on the part of England, the existance of the crisis itself is shown to be the « inevitable » outcome of a multi-party policy. The picture of an insoluble dilemma is heavily stressed, and the Allies, who allegedly insist on a monarchy, are said to be arrayed against the « so-called » National Liberation Committee. The Fascist radio considers Bonomi a failure because « he went too far with the right wing, namely Monarchy and the Allies. »

But, the commentators contend, the Socialists and Communists (who « owe everything to the Allies ») are determined not only to resist Bonomi, but to struggle militantly and independently for their own ends. In this light, it is observed that the parties of the left have a desperate « now or never » policy, and are intent on gaining a firm niche before the Allied occupation comes to an end. Their socialistic platform is said to be merely a clever façade; « they do not want to be by-passed by Fascism, and to appear as conservatives by comparison. »

This last theory coincides neatly with the most recurrent theme of current Fascist propaganda, namely, that in the Socialist Fascist Republic the accent is on « socialism. » Numerous examples of this alleged new phase are presented and today again there is pertinent emphasis on the appointments of working men and technicians to the office of provincial mayors.

Finally, the one-party system of Fascism is strongly defended as being the only solution for « Italy. » « The Italian constitution must be Fascist, Republican, and totalitarian, even if the errors of the past are to be taken into account. »

A rather unexpected left-handed compliment is paid to the Communist Party's firm control of Soviet Russia, in that the party, (whose members are decidedly in the minority) has « solved the problems concerning Russia, even through firing squads. »

AMERICANS IN TWO ROER RIVER BASTIONS; 3RD ARMY PATROLS IN SAARLAUTERN

LONDON, December 2 — American 9th Army troops have fought street-by-street through two of the three major strongpoints of the German Roer River defense line guarding the Cologne Plain and the approaches to the vital Rhineland, press dispatches reported tonight.

Americans have pushed into the central Roer fortification of Jülich, on the main highway to Cologne, while other units six miles to the north forced the Germans out of two-thirds of the stronghold of Linnich.

advance. Before the attack on the Saar Basin city was begun, Siegfried fortifications were heavily bombed and shelled and reconnaissance patrols reported an apparent large-scale German withdrawal from the fortress area.

Great fires burned in the city after the aerial bombardment. Two commanders, reporting by radio, said that the Americans had penetrated the city from two directions, and were backed by tank destroyers blasting at the fortifications.

To the northwest, 3rd Army troops directly threatened the industrial city of Merzig by extending their front along the river to 10 miles and gaining control of the western bank to the north and south of the Saar stronghold.

On the east flank of the 3rd Army, 7th Army forces drove northward into the outskirts of the large rail center of Hagenau, 17 miles north of Strasbourg and an equal distance from the Saar border. This last major German-held city in Alsace is threatened from the northwest, west, and southwest. Schweighausen, one mile west, was captured after heavy fighting, and units have freed towns seven miles to the northwest.

Strasbourg is still being heavily shelled by Siegfried Line guns on the eastern banks of the Rhine. A German attempt to reinforce their bridgehead in this area under a smokescreen was completely repulsed, and American and French forces are now battling for the approaches to the German-blown bridges.

Fighting their way south along the Alsace Plain, 7th Army tank and infantry units overcame blown bridges and anti-tank defenses in a five-mile advance. They are now within seven miles of Schlettstadt (Selestat) after capturing the villages of Sermersheim and Kogenheim. Other units swung eastward across the canal and captured Boofzheim, close to the Rhine. Troops driving through the Vosges passes have advanced to within two miles of Schlettstadt from the west after capturing Kinzheim.

Driving up the Rhine Valley from the south, French 1st Army forces advanced to within 30 miles of a junction with the 7th Army. To the west, at Thann, French troops contained the heaviest German counter-attack yet launched in the Vosges sector. The French are mopping up pockets of resistance near the Swiss frontier. ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 2 — Indian troops of the 8th Army have captured the fortified village of Albereto, center position of the three-mile hinge in the German Lamone and Montone River lines, it was announced today.

The capture of the village, key-point in a series of strongpoints the enemy has utilized to hold a sudden 8th Army thrust toward the highway network connecting Ravenna with the rest of the Po Plain, came only after three days of bitter fighting inside Albereto.

Flood waters began to subside along the decisive northern sector, but German resistance continued, and there was no sign of an American break-through at any point. The Luftwaffe made frequent attacks against Allied front-line positions.

Below Linnich, where the 9th Army had broadened its hold on the western banks of the Roer, German forces counter-attacked in Roerdorf and recaptured the town. Between Roerdorf and Flossdorf, very bitter fighting is in progress, although the Germans have no chance of escaping across the bridgeless Roer.

Brandenberg Under Assault

On the 9th Army's southern flank, American 1st Army forces battled on a 12-mile front extending from Inden, six miles northwest of Düren, to Brandenberg, seven miles southwest of the city. Most of Inden was held today by American troops while, to the southeast, other units captured the high ground overlooking Gey, three miles from the German bastion of Düren. On the eastern section of the Hürtgen Forest, the Americans have inched forward and now are attacking Brandenberg.

A British 2nd Army spokesman on the Cologne front said today that German casualties were higher than the High Command could replace with trained soldiers. Companies are down to 49 men, he declared, instead of their usual 160.

The southern wedge into Germany's Siegfried Line was broadened tonight as late reports said that 3rd Army elements entered the outskirts of Saarlautern following a two-mile the river to 10 miles and gained control of the west-east road to the north and south of the Saar stronghold.

On the east flank of the 3rd Army, 7th Army forces drove northward into the outskirts of the large rail center of Hagenau, 17 miles north of Strasbourg and an equal distance from the Saar border. JAPS BOMB AMERICAN POSITIONS ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 2 — A strong Japanese air attack against American positions at Carigara, at the northern end of the Ormoc Corridor, was reported from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters tonight.

U. S. 9TH ARMY ALONG ROER ON 7-MILE FRONT

LONDON, December 2 — American 9th Army troops now hold firm positions along a seven-mile front on the Roer River, late press dispatches reported tonight.

American forces hold all of Linnich up to the river, and contact has been maintained with the Germans on the east bank, but not in great strength. Flossdorf and Roerdorf have been completely cleared. (Reuter) stretch of a 35-mile enemy delaying line unprotected by a river barrier.

Albereto was captured as part of a general advance of up to 500 yards by Allied troops between the Lamone and Montone Rivers, which brought leading elements to within 500 yards of the southernmost of the three main highways leading west from Ravenna.

Nearly 100 prisoners were taken in the fighting in Albereto, Which is five miles northeast of Faenza.

Fifth Army forces, thrusting northward against the flanks of the enemy forces strung out across the southeastern end of the Po Plain, yesterday occupied without opposition Monte Giornetto, midway between the Sintria and the Lamone rivers and 11 miles southwest of Faenza. Allied positions along this whole right sector were «strengthened and improved,» the official reports stated.

On the more northerly and central sectors of the 5th Army front, southeast of Bologna, enemy forces continued their concerted attacks on the deep Allied salient pointing at the main Po Valley highway, chief supply artery for the German forces fighting on the eastern half of the Italian front. German forces still held Monte Castellaro, recaptured from 5th Army troops four days ago, while British troops repulsed two strong enemy raiding parties about a mile and a half southeast of this mountain position.

Enemy forces also continued their counter-attacks in the vicinity of Bombiano, west of the Pistoia-Bologna Road and on the northern edge of the Monte Belvedere salient, where the strongest German offensive in recent months recaptured this and a companion height. Enemy infiltration attempts following the failure of the attack against the Bombiano area were also beaten off.

Elsewhere on the 5th Army front, aggressive patrols maintained pressure against enemy positions. Enemy artillery was reported to have decreased, and in the Ligurian coastal area, smoke screens were employed by the Germans to shield their movements. (PRO)

RED ARMY 75 MILES FROM AUSTRIAN FRONTIER

MOSCOW, December 2 — Troops of Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian Front, in a sweeping 20-mile drive to the west below Budapest, today captured the communication center and German strongpoint of Kaposvar, 30 miles northwest of recently-captured Pecs. It is 75 miles from the Austrian border, and 130 miles from Vienna.

The capture of Kapesvar was announced in an order of the day from Marshal Josef Stalin, which included the taking of Szekszard, Paks, Bonyhad, Dombovar and 300 other localities.

Vice Admiral Gorshkov's Danube Flotilla was among the units mentioned in the order of the day as having distinguished themselves.

Press dispatches tonight said that this latest Red Army drive is aimed at outflanking besieged Budapest from the west, and smashing into Austria. One press correspondent said that the whole of the Germans' Danube line has collapsed, and that the Germans are in full flight, adding that the split of the German armies in Hungary and Yugoslavia is imminent.

In Czechoslovakia, Soviet forces have extended their bridgehead on the River Ondava and occupied more towns and villages. (OWI-Reuter)

U. S. HEAVY BOMBERS HIT COBLENZ; R.A.F. LANCASTERS ATTACK DORTMUND

LONDON, December 2 — More than 250 U. S. heavy bombers, escorted by 550 fighters, today dropped over 1,000 tons of bombs on three rail marshalling yards in the Coblenz area.

Over 200 enemy fighters came up to intercept them, and the escorting Thunderbolts and Mustangs reported the destruction in air combat of 28 Nazi planes, it was officially stated tonight. Eleven American heavy bombers failed to return, and eight fighters are missing.

Today's assault was the fifth in five weeks on this important road and rail junction standing on the Rhine where this river is joined by the Moselle.

RAF Lancasters, escorted by fighters, maintained the Allied air offensive against the Nazi's oil supply with a concentrated attack on the Hansa benzol plant on the outskirts of much-bombed Dortmund.

Swooping to chimney-top heights RAF Typhoons today fired 100 rockets onto a large factory building at Venlo in which 150 German machine gunners had barricaded themselves. The factory was demolished, it was officially announced.

Meanwhile, RAF Spitfires attacked a rocket storage site in Holland. One plane has been officially reported missing.

Last night, squadrons of RAF Mosquitos dropped many 4,000-pound bombs on industrial Karlsruhe. One of Germany's main marshalling yards with a daily capacity of handling 3,300 freight cars, it was a vital supply base for the German forces on the Western Front. In addition, its railway workshops were among the largest and most modern in the Reich.

Throughout yesterday, Allied air forces continued to give close support to the ground forces, attacking troop concentrations, communications, and supply dumps.

During November, 8th USAAF fighters destroyed 464 enemy planes in the air and 133 on the ground, it was officially stated tonight. Heavy bombers accounted for another 36 enemy planes.

American losses totalled 184 bombers and 108 fighters.

The greatest number of Luftwaffe fighters ever encountered by the 8th USAAF came up over strategic targets last month. A month ago more than 500 German planes attempted to intercept 2,000 American bombers and fighters. On November 27, the Germans sent up between 600 and 800 fighters for a furious battle with 500 Mustangs and Thunderbolts, which were on an offensive sweep over northern Germany. (OWI-Reuter)

CHINESE CAPTURE CHEFANG;
JAPS PENETRATE KWEICHOW PROVINCE

CHUNGKING, December 2 — Chefang, a Burma stronghold, has been captured by Chinese forces, while Japanese troops were penetrating Kweichow Province, the Chinese High Command announced today.

Chefang is 35 miles southwest of Lungling in western China, and 70 miles east of the Allied forces besieging Bhamo in northern Burma. A junction of Chinese troops on the Salween front and Allied troops in northern Burma would clear an overland supply route to China.

American liaison units of the Chinese Training and Combat Command and planes of the 14th USAAF assisted Chinese detachments in the seizure of the town which left only about 24 miles of the Burma Road to be taken before an assault on the border city of Wanting is launched.

Skirmishes in the Limingkwan Dawn Pass through which the Kwangsi-Kweichow railroad runs were reported. The pass begins just inside the Kweichow border north of Liuchai.

Today's Southeast Asia Command communique said that American-trained Chinese troops have tightened their hold on the north Burma stronghold of Bhamo, where 1,000 encircled Japanese troops are faced with annihilation. All entrances to the town are blocked, except for a small front on the Irrawaddy River, and the entire area is covered by Chinese artillery fire.

West of Bhamo, the British 36th Division has completed its occupation of Pinwe, which the Japanese abandoned before retreating southward along the railway toward Mandalay and Rangoon.

GENERAL CLARK INSPECTS BRAZILIANS

WITH ALLIED ARMIES, ITALY, December 2 — Lt. Gen. Mark Clark, newly-appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Allied 15th Army Group in Italy, recently visited front-line positions of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force with the 5th Army, it was announced today.

He was accompanied by his Chief of Staff, Maj. Gen. Alfred Gruenther, Maj. Gen. Joao B. Mascarenhas de Moraes, Commanding General of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force, and Brig. Gen. John N. Greely, military analyst for the U.S. Coördinator of Inter-American Affairs. (UNN)

5TH ARMY TRANSPORT SYSTEM SETS PATTERN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 2 — The transport system set up by the 5th Army in Italy, which has enabled this force to move two and a quarter million tons of ammunition, food, clothing, and equipment since last September, furnished the pattern for supplying the victorious Allied campaign in northern France, it was reported today.

A special transportation section was created as a part of Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's 5th Army Staff, to solve the tremendous supply problems imposed by the enormous expenditures of military matériel and the difficulties of the Italian terrain, an official 5th Army report issued here today declared. Under the direction of this special section, fully one-third of the 5th Army's officers and men have been continually engaged in what has really been the principal part of the Italian campaign, the day-in and day-out «battle of logistics» to feed and clothe and supply Allied troops better and faster than the enemy could supply his, the report said.

Among the statistics given in the report, it was disclosed that the 5th Army's artillery had expended ammunition at the beginning of the spring offensive to smash the enemy's Gustav Line at the rate of a shipload of shells per day. Much of this ammunition was moved forward by pack animals, one corps alone utilizing over 13,000 mules and horses to carry its supplies.

Because of the difficult mountain approaches to many of the forward positions, the infantrymen themselves were forced to carry a large part of the stores. The great bulk of the transport was supplied by great fleets of trucks, which imposed so large a traffic problem on Italy's narrow and shell-torn roads that a traffic expert was brought from one of America's leading state universities to study and make recommendations for its handling.

These trucks were burning 400 gallons of gasoline per minute when the 5th Army was moving through Rome on June 5, the report said. Pipelines from Naples were laid to carry this fuel when tank carriers were unable to move such enormous bulk.

The official report revealed also that one of the principal functions of the Anzio beachhead had been to give a «shot in the arm» to the Allied advance when it had breached the Gustav Line and over-extended its supply lines. With more than 20 days' fuel supplies for the entire 5th Army at Anzio, the Allied drive was able to go forward without pause. (PRO)

CRUISER «BROOKLYN» RETURNS HOME INTACT

NEW YORK, December 2 — The American light cruiser Brooklyn returned home today, its personnel intact and the vessel itself unscratched after three major Mediterranean landing operations. CRETE SUFFERED MORE THAN GREEK MAINLAND

NEW YORK, December 2 — Crete has suffered more from the German occupation than the Greek mainland, a delayed Associated Press dispatch from «Guerrilla Headquarters outside Khania, Crete» said today.

Since the British evacuation of Crete in May, 1941, the dispatch said that the Germans have killed an estimated 10,000 Cretans, deported 5,000, and destroyed more than 40 villages leaving thousands homeless. The dispatch continued:

«Crete has gone through her reign of terror under five German commanders. A sixth, General Heinrich Kreipe, is the only one who cannot be charged with brutality; he was kidnapped and captured by the British last April, three «General Friedrich Wilhelm Muller followed Brauer, and celebrated his appointment by killing another thousand villagers, razing seven villages, and dynamiting churches and springs.

«The present commander, a Colonel Bentak, is now marooned on the northwest tip of Crete with 15,000 German and Fascist-Italian troops. Although besieged by the guerrillas, this force only a fortnight ago razed seven villages and burned 22 persons alive, six of whom were bedridden.

«All this catalogue of horror is vouched for by British and American liaison officers with the guerrillas.

«The liberated area of Crete faces a bitter winter in which starvation can be avoided only if supplies are sent in immediately. The peasants now are pressing a good olive oil crop, but are desperately in need of wheat.» (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS DRIVE ON CACAK

MARSHAL TITO'S HQ, December 2 — Yugoslav forces now control the entire right bank of the West Morava River in Serbia, while other Yugoslav units are driving on the town of Cacak from the east and north, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

To the southwest of Cacak, the Yugoslavs are converging on Sjenica from the east, and German attempts to take the right bank of the Lim River have failed.

In eastern Bosnia, Marshal Tito's troops followed the liberation of Bijeljina with advances in which they took several strategically important positions. In the Moraca region of Montenegro, the Germans managed to break through as far as Pelevo Mountain north of Podgorica and to occupy Bioce. (OWI)

RUMANIAN G. S. STAFF CHIEF TO FORM NEW CABINET

BUCHAREST, December 2 — General Nicolai Radescu, chief of the Rumanian General Staff, has been asked by King Michael to organize a new cabinet following the resignation of General Constantin Satescu and his cabinet today, Radio Bucharest announced.

The announcement gave no specific indication of the issues which caused Sanatescu's cabinet to dissolve after a four-hour meeting today, but press dispatches from the Rumanian capital reported friction between the left wing parties and the National Peasant Party.

The left wing parties were said to have demanded stricter adherence to the Russo-Rumanian armistice terms. Their main complaint was that the National Peasant Party had not purged five ministries which it controlled.

The left wing parties, comprising the Communists, Social Democrats, and the Ploughmen's Front, declared that the national democratic bloc which they had formed with the Peasant Party and the Liberal Party should be regarded as dissolved.

General Sanatescu has been head of the Rumanian Government since August 23. He reshuffled the cabinet on November 4, eliminating the leaders of the Peasant and Socialist parties. (OWI)

Because of the difficult mountain approaches to many of the forward positions, the infantrymen themselves were forced to carry a large part of the stores. The great bulk of the transport was supplied by great fleets of trucks, which imposed so large a traffic problem on Italy's narrow and shell-torn roads that a traffic expert was brought from one of America's leading state universities to study and make recommendations for its handling.

These trucks were burning 400 gallons of gasoline per minute when the 5th Army was moving through Rome on June 5, the report said. Pipelines from Naples were laid to carry this fuel when tank carriers were unable to move such enormous bulk.

The official report revealed also that one of the principal functions of the Anzio beachhead had been to give a «shot in the arm» to the Allied advance when it had breached the Gustav Line and over-extended its supply lines. With more than 20 days' fuel supplies for the entire 5th Army at Anzio, the Allied drive was able to go forward without pause. (PRO)

CRETE SUFFERED MORE THAN GREEK MAINLAND

NEW YORK, December 2 — Crete has suffered more from the German occupation than the Greek mainland, a delayed Associated Press dispatch from «Guerrilla Headquarters outside Khania, Crete» said today.

Since the British evacuation of Crete in May, 1941, the dispatch said that the Germans have killed an estimated 10,000 Cretans, deported 5,000, and destroyed more than 40 villages leaving thousands homeless. The dispatch continued:

«Crete has gone through her reign of terror under five German commanders. A sixth, General Heinrich Kreipe, is the only one who cannot be charged with brutality; he was kidnapped and captured by the British last April, three weeks after he was appointed.

«The island has suffered a heavier load of occupation troops per capita than perhaps any other occupied territory. The pre-war population of 350,000 has had to support as many as 60,000 Nazi troops at one time.

«The record number descended on Crete just before the Allied invasion of Sicily, when an underground deception scheme, implemented by less than a dozen Allied liaison officers, led the Germans to expect that Crete was the Allied objective.

«First of the brutal Nazi commanders of Crete was the parachute expert, Col. Gen. Kurt Student, now on the Western Front. Every village in the areas where the British made their last stand was forced to yield hostages — men, women and children — who were slaughtered by the hundreds. In a single day, 1,200 fell before firing squads.

«An Air Force General, Waldemar Andrae, succeeded Student, and continued the oppression. After one British commando raid, he executed 56 hostages, including Titus Georgiades, former Governor General of Crete.

«The next commandant, a man named Brauer, wiped out an entire county, killing more than 2,000 villagers aged from two to 80. At one village, 155 out of 160 inhabitants were killed for the 'crime' that their village bore the name of the Cretan patriot leader Bandouvas.

NORWAY DENOUNCES GERMAN CLAIM

NEW YORK, December 2 — The Norwegian Government-in-London on Thursday denounced as «completely cynical and untrue» Germany's assertion that the forcible evacuation of Norwegians from the Arctic provinces had been «satisfactory.»

A dispatch from London published in today's Herald Tribune said the plight of the citizens affected by the evacuation is considered so grave that the Norwegian Government has asked the Allied shipping pool to divert two of its own ships for relief in the northern Norwegian region.

Radio Stockholm said yesterday that Prince Karl, brother of King Gustaf of Sweden, has announced that the Swedish Red Cross has made all preparations to house and feed Norwegian refugees if Germany gives permission for the rescue of tens of thousands of Norwegians who otherwise may be driven by the Nazis into homelessness and starvation.

The broadcast also contradicted German claims that the evacuations from northern Norway are voluntary, and that the Germans had «billeted the evacuees and given them food.» (OWI)

ITALY BEGINS SECOND WEEK WITHOUT CABINET; BONOMI COMMENTS ON EDEN STATEMENT

ROME, December 2 — Italy tonight completed a week without a Prime Minister or a cabinet as the government crisis continued following the resignation of Ivanoe Bonomi and his cabinet last Sunday morning. Discussions still were being held among the six parties comprising the Committee of National Liberation following the return of the Liberal Party, which earlier in the week had declared itself out of the proceedings.

Leaders of the Liberal Party this afternoon conveyed to Bonomi the decision of its national executive committee to participate in a government headed by Bonomi, even in the event of a regrettable lack of participation by other parties.

This decision was given to the former Prime Minister by Marcello Soleri, Minister Without Portfolio, and Secretary-General Manlio Brosio, both of the Liberal Party, when they conferred with Bonomi at the Palazzo Viminale.

Yesterday, however, Soleri declared that he had told Bonomi that the Liberal Party would participate in a possible government only on condition that «it was constituted on the basis of collaboration by all parties.»

This morning, Bonomi held talks with Mario Cevolotto, secretary-general of the Democratic Labor Party, in what was reported to be an attempt to break the deadlock that began last Sunday.

Members of the strong Christian Democratic Party stated today that representatives of their party from southern Italy would arrive here shortly to discuss the present governmental crisis with the party leaders.

In a statement issued tonight, Bonomi said that he doubted the accuracy of the text of the statement, made by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden last night, which said that Count Carlo Sforza had worked against the Italian government. Bonomi said:

«I believe that an error of transmission occurred in the passage of Minister Eden's speech referring to Sforza, and that it should read 'Badoglio Government,' instead of 'Bonomi Government.'

«This assumption is strengthened by the fact that I am bound to Sforza by old friendship, and that, although disagreeing on certain questions, I have no reason to believe that he has fallen short of this friendship.»

Pointing to the Japanese soldier's average two years of high school education, the report denied that the Japanese was a «stupid, insensate peasant» and said that his education was on the level with the American soldier's.

Between 40 and 50 per cent of all Japanese soldiers have studied English, and about one-fourth speak it efficiently. This ability to speak the language has often been used by the Japanese to trick the Americans, the report said.

Military training for the Japanese soldier begins at the age of eight when he receives two hours of drill a week along with his regular education. This drilling continues through his schooling, and, upon graduation, he may become a corporal. Training is often given in occupational areas, such as China, where trainees may often be under fire. POLICE METHODS REDUCE CRIME

ROME, December 2 — By adopting American and British policing methods, and employing picked Italian police under direct Allied command, the authorities have achieved a marked reduction of crime in Rome, military police chiefs of the Rome Area Allied Command said today.

Among methods now in use under direction of RAAC's Provost Marshal's office are:

1. Radio patrol cars respond immediately, day or night, to emergency calls flashed from military police headquarters.

2. Mobile teams of Allied military police and Italian civil police cover all sections of Rome during the 24 hours.

3. Metropolitani and Carabinieri are assigned to accompany military police squads, whether on foot or in vehicles.

4. Emergency telephone numbers have been established through which the Allied-Italian combined police can answer any complaint concerning an Allied soldier in any part of the city within 15 minutes.

5. Close Allied liaison with two special Italian police squads — the Squadra Buon Costume, or vice squad, and the Squadra Mobile, or criminal investigation squad. The former helps in tracking down venereal disease carriers, and the latter in major criminal cases such as the recent arrest of two deserter gangs.

6. Information is relayed by radio from Italian police sources to the Allied military police, thus eliminating delays.

In the suburban area, British military police are teamed with Carabinieri to capture fleeing criminals or highway robbers intending to hide here.

In the nearby provinces of Viterbo, Rieti, Frosinone, and Littoria, local Carabinieri accompany the mobile teams.

The RAAC provost marshal, Lieut. Col. Geoffrey White, and the (RAAC) American Provost Marshal, Lieut. Col. William P. Huntzicker, today joined in praising the performance of the Italian civil police under Allied direction.

«The Italian police are quite efficient,» said Colonel White, a former member of the London Metropolitan Police.

Colonel Huntzicker pointed out that the Metropolitani who have served as traffic policemen since liberation day have saved the Allies considerable manpower. (PWB-AC)

FRANCO-RUSSIAN TALKS ON GERMAN PROBLEM

MOSCOW, December 2 — The total defeat of Germany and the reduction of the country to a state of permanent harmlessness are the fundamental aims of the current discussions between Marshal Joseph Stalin and General Charles de Gaulle, a Reuter correspondent reported today. The talks may be expected to concentrate on these aims, particularly on the second.

According to the correspondent, it is from this angle that the conference will consider the immediate treatment to be meted out to Germany now and after the armistice.

The French leader arrived here today by train from Stalingrad.

A radio broadcast tonight said that, while General de Gaulle and Marshal Stalin were in conference today, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs V. M. Molotov also conferred.

«The future peace will be based primarily on the Dumbarton Oaks plan,» the Reuter correspondent declared. «As a prospective permanent member of the proposed Security Council, General de Gaulle doubtless will have his own views on the critical question of how permanent members should vote if one of them were directly involved in a case of aggression or threatened aggression.

«It has been suggested that within the Dumbarton Oaks framework, regional defensive agreements should be concluded between countries with common geographical, political, and economic interests. The French Government, like the British, is favorably disposed toward the conception of such an agreement in western Europe, just as Soviet Russia is weaving the meshes of a defensive network in the east.

«General de Gaulle will be a position to dispel any apprehension which might lurk in the Russian minds. Such a western agreement would not in any sense be a counterpoise to an eastern association of powers around Russia. Both would constitute jaws of a vice between which any aggressive tendencies in Germany would be crushed out of existence.

«General de Gaulle may go farther, and seek Stalin's agreement to the drafting of a Franco-Russian treaty of alliance, which would not only be a revival of the traditional Franco-Russian policy, but would form a counterpart of the Anglo-Russian 20-year treaty of alliance.

«There is no reason to doubt that the Russian Government would welcome the conclusion of such a treaty, subscribing to General de Gaulle's dictum that true European unity will be born of the actions of three great centers — Moscow, London, and Paris.

«However, it is understood that there is no question of such a treaty's being signed during his visit here. Things will not have reached that stage. But it is likely that the foundation stone will have been laid.» (Reuter)

SIX GREEK MINISTERS RESIGN; CHURCHILL BACKS SCOBIE STAND

ATHENS, December 2 — Disagreement with the Greek Government over the disbanding of the Greek guerrillas today led to the resignation of six cabinet ministers belonging to the left-wing EAM National Liberation Front.

Premier Georges Papandreou, expressing his regret at the resignations, reiterated his determination to stick to his task, and summoned the cabinet into another session tonight.

Agriculture Minister John Zevgos, one of those who resigned, protested what he called the « unilateral decision » of Maj. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, British commander of the Allied troops in Greece, who said yesterday that he stood firmly behind the present constitutional government until the Greek State could be established with a legal armed force behind it, and free elections held.

At the same time, General Scobie said that he was convinced that in many parts of the country there was no freedom of speech and no freedom of the press, and that terrorism and violence still existed.

Winston Churchill said tonight, in an official British Government statement: « The Prime Minister wishes it to be known that General Scobie's message yesterday to the Greek people, stressing the need for unity, and emphasizing our full support of the present Greek Government, was made with the knowledge and entire approval of His Majesty's Government. »

An official spokesman at General Scobie's headquarters said today that British troops would take no action in the Greek political situation « other than to maintain order and assist in the distribution of relief. » He added that it was impossible to tell how the situation would develop, but to be meted out to Germany now and after the armistice.

LONDON, December 2 — Confidence in the willingness and ability of a united Yugoslavia to play her part in the tasks of peace was expressed at a meeting here yesterday to mark Yugoslav National Day.

L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India, presided over a gathering which included King Peter and members of the British and Yugoslav governments.

Amery, president of the Yugoslav Society in London, said he believed that it would be only a matter of weeks before most of Yugoslavia is freed from the invader.

King Peter said that in spite of the brutal efforts of its enemies, the idea of Yugoslav unity had triumphed. It had been proved that the unity of Yugoslavia was not «the creation of Versailles» but was the expression of the people's own aspirations, he said.

Dr. Drago Marusic, Yugoslav Deputy Premier, referring to the regions which after the last war came under Italian control, said there was no doubt that these regions would return to their mother country, «not because Italy was an enemy and Yugoslavia an ally, but because this alone will be justice, and because it is also the unanimous will of our entire people.» He added that he could not but believe that it was also the will of their great allies.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY ON WAR GUILT

LONDON, December 2 — Neither the German nor the Japanese peoples as a whole can be acquitted of all responsibility for the crimes committed in their name, stated a resolution by the national executive committee of the British Labor Party, to be submitted to the party's annual conference on December 11.

The resolution urged that no enduring peace is possible unless there is continuing coöperation between the British Commonwealth, the U.S.S.R. and the United States. It welcomed the large measure of agreement reached at Dumbarton Oaks, and approved the setting up of a security council.

The International Labor Office must be further developed and strengthened, it said. There must also be a permanent international body to assure abundant food supplies, and better nutrition for all peoples.

New international institutions are required to regulate monetary and trading relationships between the nations and organize world transport, including civil aviation. The purpose which should guide international economic organization in all these forms, the resolution concluded, is to secure full employment and rising standards of living. (PWB)

EX-SPANISH PRESIDENT TO FORM GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, December 2 — Diego Martinez Barrio, former president of the Spanish Republic and now president of the Spanish Committee of Liberation, said here today that he planned to set up a new Spanish government in Mexico, the International News Service reported.

The newly constituted Spanish government when it is formed will ask other governments to recognize it and withdraw their recognition of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the dispatch said.

Barrio said that according to his plan, a congress of former members of the Spanish Cortes (Parliament) will be held in Mexico City on January 10 to appoint a president. In turn, the president will select a premier, and will then request other governments to recognize it as the true government of Spain.

Barrio emphasized that he hoped the transition could be made peacefully from the Franco Régime to the new Republican government, the INS report said.

«It is the aspiration of all parties,» Barrio asserted, «to make the transition peacefully and without bloodshed. We shall request Franco to abandon his authority and thus avoid a second civil war.»

The former Spanish Republican president pointed out that as many as 150 former deputies may utterd the congress in Mexico City. He said that 95 members are already there, and others are on their way. Only 100 are required to make a quorum, the INS report said.

Meanwhile, Generalissimo Franco has attempted to solidify his government by setting up a national state council as the nation's supreme legal advisory body, an Associated Press dispatch from Madrid reported.

The official decree promulgating the council said that the council will be convened by Franco, and that all members will be appointed by him. Among the members to be included in the new council, because of their present positions, will be:

The Roman Catholic Primate of Spain, the vice secretary of the Falange, the chief of the Army General Staff, the rector of Madrid University, the director of the Institute of Political Studies, the State's Attorney, the Supreme Tribunal, and the Director General of the National Court of Appeals.

The law, signed by Franco, said the council must be consulted on all projected laws providing fundamental changes in the nation's economic and political organization; the interpretation of state contracts or important administrative measures; and interpretation of all international treaties.

GERMANS ORDERED TO STOP DISCUSSING WAR

WASHINGTON, December 2 — Joseph Paul Goebbels, German Minister of Propaganda, ordered all Germans to cease public discussion of the war situation and to respect their leaders. The order was published in Das Reich and was broadcast over all German radio stations last night.

Goebbels, who assumed more of Hitler's power along with Heinrich Himmler, said: «The long duration of the war has certainly brought about deficiencies and bottlenecks. But we shall be better equipped to overcome these shortcomings, the better we conceal them from the enemy. It is, therefore, forbidden to discuss such things in public. The people must respect their leaders. The course of the war must not be impeded.»

Meanwhile, the continued silence and absence of Adolf Hitler has forced Nazi Party and German Army officials to convince the German soldiers that Hitler is neither dead nor insane, as the soldiers are beginning to doubt the validity of their oath of allegiance to Hitler. Posters are appearing on the streets of Berlin with the inscription: «The more the enemy shows himself, the more invisible becomes the Führer.»

Neutral reports from Sweden said that Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, commander of the German forces in the West, charged that Himmler, by leading the German High Command with Party members, has become its virtual chief. The reports said that Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the Supreme General Staff, was forced to refute the charge, after which Rundstedt asked to resign. High Nazi party officials then threatened Rundstedt into remaining at his post.

Rundstedt's suspicion that Himmler controls the German High Command was borne out today by an order, broadcast by the German radio, that Himmler's friend, Robert Ley, will take over control of military training duties. Military training had been performed previously by the German Reserve Army, but will now be placed under the command of the German Labor Service chief. The broadcast said that the measure was approved by SS chiefs and by the Home Army commander — Heinrich Himmler.

Berlin reports reaching Switzerland gave further evidence of the control which Himmler is usurping from other Nazi Party officials. Himmler reportedly held a conference of gauleiters of the western regions of Germany, as well as the Gauleiter of East Prussia, to discuss the progress of reprisals and evacuation of civilians from front-line zones.

Himmler's growing authority in Germany, gained during the unexplained absence of Hitler since July 20, has caused him to fear for his life. He is reported to have issued a secret order placing constant watch upon all who come into contact with him. Even senior SS leaders are under constant surveillance, probably by the Gestapo and by each other.

A German Foreign Office spokesman was quoted as saying that Himmler had abandoned Hitler's plan for a New Order in Europe, and that Germany was now buried under a mountain of suspicion and hostility. (OWI-Reuter)
