Murray said this anomalous situation must be remedied to gain for the nearly 6,000,000 members of the CIO their rightful place and voting powers within an international organization.

He revealed that the CIO delegation of three to the meeting for the world TUC, will include Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO Political Action Committee, which took an active part in the campaign for President Roosevelt's reëlection. (OWI)

I.B.C. WARNED AGAINST NATIONALISM

RYE, NEW YORK, November 14 — The world's people must put their trust in a world order rather than nationalism to achieve economic security and prevent future wars, Henry Grady, head of the U. S. delegation to the International Business Conference, told the conference section on the commercial policy of nations today.

Advocating world organization against political and economic warfare, Grady presented an American viewpoint in opening the discussion on the multilateral system of trade. He said:

«The cure of military war is collective security. The cure for economic war, of which bilateralism is a potent form, is collective economic security.

«Both forms of security can only be effectively attained through adequate world organization and a determination of all the peoples of the world to put their stake in a world order, rather than nationalism, the ultimate and logical end of which is totalitarianism.»

Grady said that bilateral agreements forced «innocent» countries into barter deals. Bilateralism, he said, violates the most-favored-nation policy because it must, to be effective, use quotas and exchange allocations which discriminate against countries with whom agreements have not been made.

Bilateralism also pre-supposes government controls of international trade, Grady continued, because bilateralism is not possible except through government-enforced quotas and exchange allocations.

Grady also cited bilateralism as a bar to the free play of private initiative and said its result would only be a «decided net loss in prosperity and economic security to the countries concerned and to the world.» (OWI)

NEW GREEK DRACHMAS IN CIRCULATION

ATHENS, November 14 — The new Greek drachma has been put into circulation, and banks are crowded with people turning in old and useless notes of billions and trillions of drachmas, the London Times correspondent cabled today.

The Greeks are receiving new currency in notes of one, 50, and 100 drachmas, which are the only ones so far available, the correspondent said. In a few days, notes of other denominations will be issued, he added.

That the plan has won public confidence is evidenced by the fact that many Greeks are already exchanging British military money, until now the only currency in which any reliance had been placed, for new drachmas, the correspondent reported. (Reuter)

BERLIN SPECULATING ON HITLER'S WHEREABOUTS

PARIS, November 14 — Pierre Mendes-France, French Minister of National Economy, has announced that a national planning council to work out a long-term scheme for French economy will be set up shortly.

France is inevitably moving toward a greater degree of planning in her economic life, Mendes-France said. He added that private enterprise, labor and other interests will be represented on the council, which will consider, in formulating the plan, which industries will be left free, which state-controlled, and which modified between these two extremes. PLEVEN, BONCOUR GET NEW POSTS

PARIS, November 14 — Rene Pleven, French Minister for Colonies, has been appointed temporary Minister of Finance in place of Le Percq, who was killed last week in a motor accident, Radio Paris announced today.

At a meeting of the Consultative Assembly yesterday, Paul Boncour was appointed President of the Parliamentary Resistance Group, the French Press Agency reported today. (PWB)

ROOSEVELT ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF F.C.C. HEAD

WASHINGTON, November 14 — President Roosevelt accepted yesterday «with great personal reluctance» the resignation of James L. Fly as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, effective tomorrow, but he said: «You are only on furlough.»

Mr. Roosevelt added that he would need and knew he could expect Fly's help from time to time in the field of international communications. (OWI)

BYRNES TO REMAIN WAR MOBILIZATION DIRECTOR

WASHINGTON, November 14 — James F. Byrnes will remain as Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion until Germany is defeated, «in view of the importance of continuing the war at top speed and at the personal request of the President,» the White House announced today. (OWI)

ROOSEVELT TO TRIM INAUGURATION CEREMONIES

WASHINGTON, November 14 — President Roosevelt's fourth inauguration on January 20 will dispense with all the customary pomp and ceremony and, in accordance with America's war-time conditions, will be restricted to a simple ceremony on the south portico of the White House.

It will be the first time that an American President has been sworn into office at the White House instead of on the Capitol steps, where the ceremonies have traditionally been held. (OWI)

C.I.O. WANTS PLACE IN INTERNATIONAL T.U. BODY

WASHINGTON, November 14 — Solidarity «among all the labor organizations of freedom-loving nations in approaching war and post-war problems» was urged by Philip Murray, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, at a press conference here yesterday.

Murray announced that the CIO delegation to the meeting next month to prepare the agenda for the World Trade Union Conference here yesterday.

Murray announced that the CIO delegation to the meeting next month to prepare the agenda for the World Trade Union Conference in London next February will press for the creation of a new world labor body. An alternative would be a revision of existing bodies to include the CIO and all other genuine trade unions of the United Nations and liberated countries.

Advocating «full [illegible] economic warfare, Grady presented an American viewpoint in opening the discussion on the multilateral system of trade. He said:

BERLIN SPECULATING ON HITLER'S WHEREABOUTS

WASHINGTON, November 14 — All Berlin was speculating tonight on Adolf Hitler's whereabouts, and the question of what has happened to him is growing every hour, Allied and neutral press dispatches reported.

The circumstances surrounding the reading of Hitler's proclamation by Germany's executioner-in-chief, Heinrich Himmler, deepened the belief that Hitler is incapable of making a physical appearance, even on the air.

A Swedish newspaper, Stockholms Tidningen, reported that rumors which circulated in Berlin attributed the authorship of Hitler's proclamation to Dr. Heinrich Lammers, chief of the Reich Chancellery.

Intensifying the speculation on Hitler's whereabouts was the report that all visits to the Führer have been cancelled, including tomorrow's visit of Tiso, quisling president of the German puppet state of Slovakia.

The Stockholm paper Morgontidningen presented the theory that after the July 20 attempt on Hitler's life, Himmler took control of the German state with Hitler as a mere symbolical shadow. Giving credence to this theory is that the power in Germany is concentrated in the Gestapo, of which Himmler is chief, and that he also heads the Volkssturm, Germany's home-front army.

With Himmler in sole charge of Germany, the German people will be ruthlessly forced to make immeasurable sacrifices, and Himmler will press them to the brink of annihilation, the Swedish report said. (OWI - Reuter)

HOARE TO RAISE TANGIER QUESTION IN SPAIN

LONDON, November 14 — Upon his return to Madrid this week, Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, will raise the question of the German agents still remaining in Tangier, a Reuter dispatch reported tonight.

Since the conclusion of the arrangements between Great Britain and Spain regarding wolfram supplies to Germany and Italian ships detained in Spanish ports, the eviction of Axis agents from Tangier has proceeded slowly, the report said. Some have already left Tangier, but a number still remain.

It was thought that he will raise also the question of the military occupation by Spain of the International Zone. (Reuter)

SWISS REFUSE ASYLUM TO WAR CRIMINALS

BERNE, November 14 — Switzerland will not give asylum to anyone who has acted contrary to the laws of war or whose past shows beliefs irreconcilable with the fundamental traditions of law and humanity, a statement from the Swiss Federal Council said today.

The Council added that asylum would continue to be given to those deemed worthy of it, even when such persons had received death sentences. (OWI)

COMMONS HEARS OUTLINE OF EIRE POLICY

LONDON, November 14 — Eire's attitude toward war criminals was outlined by the Under Secretary for Dominions, P. E. Evans, in the House of Commons today.

He said: "The Eire Government state that in their view the right to grant asylum is not in question, and that they can give no assurance which would preclude them from exercising that right, should justice and charity, or the honor or interest of the nation so require.

"They also refer to the absence of a comprehensive international code applicable to the matter, and the lack of a generally-recognised court or procedure for the judicial determination of individual cases.

"They go on to say, on the other hand, that since the present war began, it has been the uniform practice of the Eire Government to deny admission to all aliens whose presence would be at variance with the policy of neutrality or detrimental to the interests of the Irish people or inconsistent with the desire of the Irish people, and to avoid injury to the interests of friendly states; and, when such aliens land, they are deported to their countries of origin as soon as possible. They state it is not intended to alter this practice.

"The United Kingdom Government, therefore, for their part, wish to make it clear that it would certainly, in the words used by the Eire Government, 'be detrimental to the interests of the Irish people were war criminals to be harbored in Ireland'".

In the future, the British Union Jack will fly from the office of The United Kingdom representative in Dublin, said Mr. Evans, answering a question by Professor Savory S. Avory, Conservative member for Belfast University, who had pointed out that the Irish Republican flag was flown from the office of the High Commissioner for Eire in London, and that the Swastika flew over the German Legation in Dublin.

On their left, Polish troops of the 8th Army have also made further gains. They have captured Bagnolo, and cleared the important feature of Monte Casole against fierce opposition.

On the remainder of the front of the Allied Armies in Italy, deep patrols have made contact with the enemy at many places.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Tactical Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers supporting the armies in Italy yesterday bombed and strafed troop concentrations, strongpoints, and gun positions in the battle area, and reported excellent results. Bridges and road and rail traffic in the Po Valley were also targets for the Tactical units.

Adriatic shipping and communication targets in Yugoslavia were attacked by Coastal and Balkan Air Force units.

From these operations, 12 of our aircraft are missing. There were no claims.

MAAF flew about 1,100 sorties.

Navy:

On the eve of November 12, British coastal craft met and engaged two enemy lighters off the island of Alimnia, west of Rhodes. One of the lighters was sunk. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 14 — Today's communique:

Allied forces continued to advance yesterday north and south of Metz.

Our armor is astride the rail line southeast of Metz in the vicinity of Herny and Baudrecourt. Our infantry reached Herny, and are a mile northeast of Ancerville.

The following towns are in Allied hands: Corny on the Moselle River, Pommerieux, Verny, and Lichom, southeast of Orny.

Our units are in the Forêt de Bride and de Koecking, and also are north of the Forêt de Château Salins.

The fort northeast of Thionville has been cleared.

Gains of approximately two miles were made in the sector east of Lunéville, despite strong resistance and hampering snow. Leintrey was freed. Farther south, the village of Montigny was taken. Southeast of Baccarat, an enemy counter-attack was broken up by our artillery, which inflicted severe casualties.

Substantial gains also were made southeast of Bruyères, where the villages of Aumontzey and Champdray were freed, and nearby high ground occupied.

Activity in Holland was restricted to patrolling and artillery duels in bad weather.

Air operations were again restricted by weather. (Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ROME, November 14 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

A Garibaldi division operating west of Turin was involved in intense activity between October 14 and 24. On October 14, elements of this division made use of an unexploded Allied bomb to blow up the bridge for which it had been intended. One arch was entirely destroyed.

On the following day, Patriots machine-gunned a troop train, seriously damaging the locomotive and injuring some soldiers on top of the train.

On October 16, an enemy vehicle was attacked between Condove and Chiusa di San Michele, and the next day, in Turin itself, Patriots assaulted a Fascist motor lorry. Two officers died from wounds, and others were injured.

On October 19, on the Rivoli-Susa Road, a German vehicle was lured into an ambush and six men were killed. Two Fascists were taken prisoner, and arms and a large quantity of hand grenades were captured.

On October 21, Patriots from the same division destroyed a road bridge, holding up enemy traffic. The bridge was blown by a mine.

On October 22, a railway bridge between Avigliana and Sant'Ambroglo di Torino was destroyed, causing the derailment of a train the following morning.

On October 24, Patriots attacked a German motor vehicle, killing three men and capturing a machine gun. Other Patriots put to flight a Fascist patrol near Avigliana forcing it to abandon its munitions and grenades.

Finally, Patriots of the same division blew a bridge above Peslo, killing the Blackshirt commander of Fossano.

NEWS FROM ENEMY SOURCES

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, November 14 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the Venlo and Aix la Chapelle sectors, our artillery struck at the incessant enemy preparations for the attack. Motorized columns were observed to be hit many times.

Southwest of Hürigen, tank grenadiers cleared the forest land of the enemy, who suffered bloody losses. A large number of prisoners were captured.

On both sides of Metz, yesterday, the battle extended to other sectors.

At the Moselle bridgehead, northeast of Diedenhofen, the U.S. formations did not continue their attacks for the time being, but tried to force the river-crossing south of the town on a broad front. Their attempts at crossing the river were frustrated on the wings, and forces which had successfully crossed in the centre were driven back to the immediate vicinity of the river. The bulk of these forces face annihilation.

South east of Metz, the grim fighting continues in persistent rain and snow falls.

Attempts of enemy regiments breaking through our front between the Rhine-Marne Canal and Baccarat, with concentrated forces, were frustrated by the steadfastness and counter-attacks of our People's Grenadiers.

London and Antwerp again were subjected to bombardment with « V-1 » and « V-2 ».

Italy:

In central Italy, the grim fighting extended from the Adriatic coastal sector to the mountains of Modigliana. Numerous British attacks collapsed in the fire of our strongpoints, or were halted after minor penetrations. North of Forli alone, the enemy pushed back the positions of our grenadiers by the means of extremely heavy artillery fire and the use of concentrated forces.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, in heavy snow falls, the town Kumanova was evacuated in the course of our movements. In Herzegovina, at Mostar, enemy attacks failed.

Another Soviet attempt at crossing the Danube, north of the Drau Estuary, was frustrated, and the Duna-Földvar bridgehead was evacuated after grim fighting.

East of Budapest, our troops frustrated enemy attempts at breaking through with strong infantry and tank forces.

On both sides of Jaszbereny, the enemy tank attacks were halted and the town itself was held against renewed attacks.

Northeast of Mezökövesd, infantry and mountain troops smashed a Bolshevik attack in fierce defensive fighting. One Lieutenant and five men, in a bold counter-thrust, routed the Soviets, who had penetrated into the town Emod, and captured two tanks, seven guns, and 10 machine-guns.

In Hungary, bomber squadrons supported the fighting of the Army by day and by night, and dispersed enemy supply columns.

In the Autz sector, our grenadiers successfully repulsed several strong Soviet attacks.

Air:

In northern Norway, the battleship Tirpitz, the gallant crew of which had successfully repulsed numerous English air attacks during the last few months, was put out of commission. A large part of the crew were rescued.

Yesterday, the enemy air activity over the fronts and the Reich territory again was small. (Radio Berlin)

GERMANS WITHDRAW SOUTH OF RAVENNA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 12 — German forces yesterday began withdrawal from the low-lying pine-woods and swamplands south of Ravenna, and 8th Army patrols have crossed the Fossa Ghiaia drainage Canal east of the main coast road to approach to within four miles of this second-largest city of Romagna Province without making contact with enemy forces, it was announced here today.

The Allied patrol forces penetrated the extensive woodlands bordering the Adriatic highway to points only two miles from the combined mouths of the Montone and Ronco sweep to the northwest, employing armor in their aggressive assaults into this no-man's land. Enemy forces suffered heavy casualties in their attempt to hold the line of the Canale Nuovo between the Montone and the Ronco Rivers, and it is now evident that they are too weakened to continue to contest in strength Allied penetration into this sector. Heavy attacks by Desert Air Force fighter-bombers have shattered enemy strongpoints built into scattered houses which line the networks of roads in this populous sector.

Along the Ronco River, northeast of this main battle sector, and along the Montone to the southwest, positions remained unchanged yesterday.

Enemy artillery continued to shell Allied positions along the River Ronco north of where it is joined by the Canale Nuovo, and strong enemy armored forces still policed the lower stretches of the Montone.

Allied artillery and air attacks destroyed three out of seven enemy tanks which were active around San Varano, on the west bank of the Montone, two miles southwest of Forli. Around Castrocaro, three miles farther south, Allied forces thrust over a mile beyond the town, into the hills west of the Montone River.

On the 5th Army front, enemy aircraft were again active in small-scale attacks against American positions south of Bologna. Patrolling was carried out along most of the front, and enemy harassing fire was generally light.

Troops of an Indian division on the right flank met heavy small arms and mortar fire when they attempted an attack on Monte San Bartolo, south of Faenza. (PRO)

METZ FORT CAPTURED IN FIVE-MILE ADVANCE

SHAEF, November 13 — Fighting in ceaseless snow and rain, Lieut. Gen. George Patton's forces advanced five miles today and captured the first of Metz's nine big fortresses at Verny.

The city of Metz is now within range of American « Long Toms » and mobile medium artillery. Inside the fortress city, almost 100 heavy German guns are pointed at the contracting American arc and press dispatches reported that a heavy artillery battle is imminent.

On the northern flank of the American 3rd Army drive to clear northeastern France, American forces regained the ground lost Saturday in the Königsmacker area. Other forces on the western end of the Allied line captured most of the ancient fort of Thionville, and late dispatches tonight reported that street fighting is in progress.

Troops of the U. S. 90th Infantry Division threw a new bridgehead over the Moselle east of Uckange, four miles south of Thionville, and made an advance of one mile.

Farther inland, along the Fossa Ghiaia Canal, principal drainage works for the swampy lowlands of this area, Allied troops attacked an enemy outpost along the north bank, using portable anti-tank weapons, only to draw considerable retaliatory fire. Just north, and protected by these enemy outposts, is the Ravenna airfield, located in the grasslands west of the coastal highway.

Another Bridgehead

British forces Saturday succeeded in eastablishing a second bridgehead across the Canale Nuovo north of Forli, and in heavy fighting Saturday night and Sunday morning, cleared the enemy from a 1,000-yard stretch of houses north of the railway line to join up with the previously established British Bridgehead.

Enemy forces in this crucial sector north of the main Po Valley Highway have been so battered by strong British attacks that an additional thrust Saturday night precipitated a hurried enemy evacuation of an area of over 1,000 yards in depth, in which both motor transport and enemy equipment were left abandoned in the roads and fields.

Farther north, Allied patrols probed the lowlands between the Canale Nuovo and the River Montone's broad sector, and along the Montone to the confluence [illegible] remained unchanged yesterday.

METZ FORT CAPTURED IN FIVE-MILE ADVANCE

SHAEF, November 13 — Fighting in ceaseless snow and rain, Lieut. Gen. George Patton's forces advanced five miles today and captured the first of Metz's nine big fortresses at Verny.

The city of Metz is now within range of American "Long Toms" and mobile medium artillery. Inside the fortress city, almost 100 heavy German guns are pointed at the contracting American arc and press dispatches reported that a heavy artillery battle is imminent.

On the northern flank of the American 3rd Army drive to clear northeastern France, American forces regained the ground lost Saturday in the Königsmacker area. Other forces on the western end of the Allied line captured most of the ancient fort of Thionville, and late dispatches tonight reported that street fighting is in progress.

Troops of the U. S. 90th Infantry Division threw a new bridgehead over the Moselle east of Uckange, four miles south of Thionville, and made an advance of one mile.

CHURCHILL, DE GAULLE VISIT FRENCH FRONT

WITH ALLIED 6TH ARMY GROUP, November 13 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill and General Charles de Gaulle today visited the French 1st Army in the Vosges Mountain sector, it was reported late tonight.

Driving through a heavy snowstorm to a command post 12 miles from the front, Mr. Churchill and General de Gaulle met General Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, commander of the 1st Army, with whom they toured the front.

The Prime Minister later met all commanding generals of the 1st Army and inspected a review of tanks and infantry at a French training camp, 15 miles east of Besançon.

Prime Minister Churchill and General de Gaulle were accompanied by Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke, Chief of the British Imperial General Staff, French Minister of War Andre Diethelm, General Alphonse Juin and, Capt. Mary Churchill, the Prime Minister's daughter. (OWI-Reuter)

At the eastern end of the southern flank, German forces made strong counter-attacks north of the by-passed city of Dieuze, as snow and fog kept Allied aircraft from supporting ground operations.

Despite enemy opposition, American troops reached the towns of Contti and Liedersingen in their drive toward the Saar Valley. The German border is less than 20 miles away, but parts of the reversed Maginot Line and the more effective Siegfried Line are in between.

The Germans have begun to blow-up several dams along the rivers and canals northeast of Metz in an attempt to slow the American drive to encircle the city. The French city is vital to the protection of the German frontier where the heart of Germany's steel and coal industries are located.

German resistance on both flanks was reported to be stiffening and advancing American tanks have encountered heavy artillery and mortar fire. Marshal Johannes von Blaskowitz, who was said to be opposing General Patton's army, has been throwing in only local reserves to conserve his forces for the defense of Metz.

On the American 1st Army front, General Courtney Hodges' troops have recovered all ground lost to the Germans in recent enemy counter-attacks in the Hürtgen Forest.

After three weeks of steady slogging through a five-mile belt of forest ground in bitter weather, American 7th Army troops emerged into the water-logged Meurthe Valley, to liberate two small villages. American troops are now one mile from the important communications center of St. Dié.

No change has been reported on the Canadian 1st Army front, but in The Netherlands, German patrols facing the British 2nd Army have been more active than usual.

On the Atlantic coast, the Germans reported that an offensive has been launched against the U-Boat base of St. Nazaire, one of the few remaining German pockets. The German news agency said that American forces have broken into forward trenches on the eastern side of the port. There has been no confirmation by Allied sources.

R.A.F. SINKS «TIRPITZ»

LONDON, November 13 — Germany's last remaining battleship, the 45,000-ton pocket battleship Tirpitz, was sunk yesterday morning when it was attacked in Tromsoe Fjord in Norway, by 32 RAF Lancasters.

The ship capsized and went down after being hit by 12,000-pound «earthquake bombs,» an Air Ministry communique said tonight. Only her keel and a part of the bottom of the ship can be seen above water. One Lancaster is missing from the attack.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris received messages of congratulation both from Prime Minister Churchill, and the Admiralty, on the sinking of the Tirpitz.

Low-flying Mosquitos and Beaufighters of the RAF Coastal Command today attacked vessels in an enemy convoy off the Norwegian coast. Their cannon and machine-guns set fire to eight ships, including two small merchant vessels, a tug, and an armed trawler and R-boat, the Air Ministry reported. There was an explosion aboard one merchantman and a minesweeper was left listing heavily. All aircraft returned safely.

Hamburg Damage Assessed

Hamburg, whose shipbuilding yards, dock areas, and oil refinery were the targets of three 8th USAAF heavy-bomber attacks in the past fortnight, is today the scene of widespread devastation. A special USAAF communique said that reconnaissance photographs show details of the damage to the Blohm and Voss shipbuilding works, the Rhenania Ossag oil refinery, a railway yard, and dock areas.

In the Blohm and Voss plants, which produce submarines and seaplanes, one-third of the foundry was severely da-

SOVIETS CAPTURE JASZAPATI 45 MILES EAST OF BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, November 13 — The Russian noose around Budapest was drawn tighter today by the capture of the town of Jaszapati, on the north-south railway line, 45 miles east of Budapest. Ten miles ahead of the Russians on this arc of the front lies Jaszbereny, the last large town between them and the Hungarian capital.

Besides Jaszapati, Jaszkiser, Pustekur, both railway stations, Jaszmahaltirin, and Taplogichke were taken in the Russian advance westward.

Another dispatch tonight said the Red Army is today taking up key positions to storm Budapest. German and Hungarian forces defending the approaches to Budapest now have been deprived of practically all freedom of maneuver on the most critical sectors east and southeast of the city, since the Russians cut the main railway lines converging westward.

The latest Soviet victories have been won against stubborn resistance, the supplement to the Soviet communique said tonight.

Particularly heavy resistance was put up by the enemy at Mezekevezd, which fell to the Russians yesterday. Soviet infantry wiped out over 800 of the enemy when they captured the town.

In another sector north and northwest of Szolnok, Russian infantry, cavalry, and motorized troops pierced a heavily-fortified enemy defensive zone and advanced seven to 10 miles, despite a number of enemy counter-attacks.

In the far north, Finnish forces driving up the western fork of the Arctic Road have liberated Inari, 45 miles east of the Norwegian border, today's Finnish communique announced.

With Soviet forces controlling the eastern fork of the big highway in the Petsamo area, and the Finns driving up the western prong, the Germans are squeezed into a pocket which can only open onto the Allied-patrolled Norwegian coast.

In Norway itself, Nazi occupation forces have arrested several hundred Norwegian railroad workers, fearing they would cause interruption of traffic on vital rail routes, the Stockholm Morgentidningen said yesterday.

Germans Destroy Hammerfest

Another Swedish newspaper, Nopol Swenska, reported yesterday that Hammerfest, the capital of Finnmark Province and the northernmost city of the world, has been destroyed by the Germans. Other places in west Finnmark suffered a similar fate, and according to a declaration of Jonas Lie, Minister of Police in the quisling Norwegian cabinet, nothing will remain in evacuated areas.

On other fronts, only patrol activity is reported. Twenty-four German tanks were destroyed or damaged yesterday.

The great achievement of the Soviet Air Force up to September, 1944, has been described in Soviet War News. It secured the strategical flanks of the Red Army from the Arctic Ocean to the Black Sea. It hampered the flow of war material from northern Finland to Germany, and obstructed the movement of supplies to the German forces. It destroyed a strong force of the Luftwaffe, and sunk over one million tons of German shipping.

In the Blohm and Voss plants, which produce submarines and seaplanes, one-third of the foundry was severely damaged, construction shops received direct hits, and the aircraft assembly hangar was also damaged. One-third of a floating dock near the shipyards was torn out. At the oil refinery, damage was inflicted on the processing and storage areas.

Widespread devastation also has been carried out in front-line towns in the Siegfried Line area, including Geilenkirchen, Immendorf, Beggendorf, Waurichen, and Loverich. Much of the Allied success in front-line artillery bombardment is due to Allied superiority in air reconnaissance, a dispatch from the German battle front pointed out today.

« With air supremacy, the Allies can move their men and equipment freely along the front with little danger of aerial observation of their movements, » the dispatch said. « The enemy, deprived of aerial reconnaissance, cannot know where the next blow will fall, nor in how much strength.

« The 'eyes of the artillery', the Piper Cub planes, are over enemy territory, hovering over the targets giving directions to the artillery fire control posts. The Germans however, are blind aerially — they cannot put up observation planes with any assurance that they will come back. Everywhere one sees the remains of burned-out German tanks, half-tracks, field guns, and equipment. » (OWI)

AMERICANS CONSOLIDATING POSITIONS ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 13 — American troops in the rugged mountain area north of Ormoc are consolidating their positions on Mount Catabaran and Mount Cabungangan, within five miles of the important road junction of Libongao, General MacArthur's headquarters announced tonight.

Dismounted cavalrymen of the 1st Cavalry Division have extended their left flank to include another key ridge position, termed Hill 206, eight miles southwest of Carigara.

Japanese headquarters announced today that they are now using five divisions, but that their preparations for a counter-attack on the Ormoc perimeter have been dislocated by the current American offensive which has penetrated the enemy's assembly areas « compelling him to make premature commitments of his forces for defense of the main bastion of the Yamashita line. »

The Japanese are making a determined effort to hold Leyte, and the complete occupation of the island cannot be expected for some time, Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger, Commander of the U.S. 6th Army told reporters here today.

Speaking of the supply situation, General Krueger said that additional airfields are the most urgent necessity. « Vital airstrips are more difficult to build here than they were, for instance, in Normandy, » he added.

Carrier-based aircraft have shot down at least 13 Japanese fighters in what a communique termed « the last strike on shipping in Ormoc Bay. » Eleven more planes were reported shot down by air patrols and anti-aircraft defenses.

U.S. UNITS EVACUATE LIUCHOW AIR BASE ALLIES ADVANCE IN BURMA

CHUNGKING, November 13 — American units have evacuated the vital airbase at Liuchow in Kwangsi Province, Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer announced tonight. Meanwhile, troops of the 5th Indian Division were reported to have cleared two more enemy strongpoints on the road east from Tiddim and pushed on to within 10 miles of Kalemyo, a vital Japanese defense point in the Chin Hills.

Tonight's Chinese communique said that street fighting has been in progress in Liuchow since Saturday morning when Japanese forces broke into the city from the north. Another Japanese column north of Liuchow is driving westward along the main Kwangsi-Kweichow railway, and is reported 20 miles from Ishan, important railway center 45 miles west of Liuchow.

The 14th USAAF destroyed its base at Liuchow, last American airfield in Kwangsi Province, before evacuating it, tonight's announcement said.

Most of the personnel and equipment were evacuated by air, the communique reported. Air Transport Command made 44 trips to the field in extremely poor flying weather to bring out the men and supplies.

Major General Claire Chennault, commander of the 14th USAAF, commended the ATC on « its superior performance » which made possible the removal of all personnel and movable property before the Japanese reached the base.

A delayed dispatch from Kunming said the ATC had evacuated more than 275,000 pounds of passengers and cargo from Liuchow to Yunnan Province.

Meanwhile the 14th USAAF struck on all fronts over the week-end, destroying a Japanese Navy tender, 30 river steamers, 14 locomotives, and three rail bridges in French Indo-China, today's communique said.

That the enemy already had occupyed Liuchow seemed evident from the communique which said that Allied fighter planes drew fire from Liuchow when they attacked Japanese positions in support of Chinese ground forces.

Increasing resistance is being encountered by British and Chinese troops in north Burma. Chinese troops advanced south of Taping River to a village seven miles northeast of Bhamo, and British troops moved to half a mile from Pinwe, seven miles north of Naba junction.

GERMANS, ALLIED PLANES CLASH OVER PO VALLEY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 13 — Allied Thunderbolt fighters of the Tactical Air Force yesterday battled more than 30 Messerschmitt fighters during an attack on the Villafranca airfield, north of Mantua in the Po Valley, it was announced last night.

At least one German plane was destroyed and three damaged. An additional plane was destroyed on the ground in a low-level attack over the field. One Allied plane was damaged, but managed to return safely.

Key rail bridges, at Avisio, Mezzocorona, Albes, and Ora, along the Brenner Pass line in northeastern Italy, were attacked yesterday by Allied heavy bombers flying through overcast skies and bombing with instruments. It was the third heavy bombardment attack during the past week against this vital communication route of the German armies in Italy. No enemy interceptors were encountered during this attack.

Although bad weather grounded medium bombers yesterday, fighter-bombers destroyed or made impassable six important road and rail bridges in the Po Valley from Milan eastward to Modena. (PRO)

BRAZILIAN PILOTS HITTING GERMANS IN ITALY

ROME, November 13 — After a period of tutelage with the 12th United States Army Air Force, Brazilian fighter pilots now are ranging the Italian skies under their own flag, and have already scored victories over the Luftwaffe, it was announced here today.

Tough, agressive, skillful, and full of confidence, the young Brazilian flyers are looked upon by the American pilots as potentially a great striking force.

When Brazil entered the war against Germany, air force personnel was sent overseas to the school of applied tactics in Orlando, Florida, where they trained for two months. They then assembled in Panama, being joined by further details from Brazil, and the first Brazil overseas air unit came into being. They were attached to a United States fighter squadron and flew in War Hawks of the 9th USAAF.

After 120 hours flying, during which they learned all the intricacies of fighter tactics, they were sent to Long Island, where their training was continued in Thunderbolts (P-47's).

This training completed, they embarked for Italy, where they landed about a month ago and were attached to the 350th Squadron of the 12th USAAF. The Brazilians went out with the squadrons on missions over enemy-held territory. On November 11 they were out for the first time as a separate Brazilian unit, and they will continue from now on to guide their own destinies, although still administered by the 12th USAAF.

The pilots all are from Brazilian families, and more than half of them speak English fluently. They carry on their planes their own insignia, an aggressive looking ostrich astride a cloud, and their battle cry is « Senta a Pua » which is roughly the equivalent of the English pilots' « Tally Ho! »

GERMANS SURRENDER WITH SAFE-CONDUCT PASSES

LONDON, November 13 — German infantrymen in Italy are taking advantage of safe-conduct passes fired into their lines by the Allied Armies, the BBC announced today.

He is to be disarmed, well looked after, to receive food and medical attention as required, and is to be removed from the danger zone as soon as possible. »

The passes are sent in shells, fired by Allied 25-pounders.

DUTCH DESCRIBE GERMAN ROCKET LAUNCHING

LONDON, November 13 — One of the first eye-witness descriptions of the launching of the German rocket projectiles — «V-2» — on England was given today by BBC correspondent Frank Gillard, who talked to Dutch civilians who witnessed the launching.

Fifteen hundred workmen were brought to the launching site, Gillard said. They constructed wells about 30 feet deep with thick concrete linings and heavy steel rails running down the side. Electricians laid enormous thick cables from one shaft to another, huge cranes were brought to the site, and several caravans of radio equipment appeared. People living in the neighborhood were evacuated on a few hours' notice.

The projectiles, described as cigar shaped and about as long as an ordinary tramcar, were brought to the site on long wooden trailers. One estimate was that they weighed about 30 tons each.

When they were launched, there was a noise like a «prolonged thunderclap» overhead and smoke and heat poured from the shaft. The rocket shot into the air at such a great speed that it could not be followed by the human eye, Gillard said. (BBC)

NAZIS GERMANIZED WESTERN FRANCE

WITH U. S. 3RD ARMY, November 13 — In the area northwest of Château Salins, taken by the American 3rd Army in its six-day-old offensive, the Germans attempted to wipe out the French character of the towns, International News correspondent Pierre J. Huss wrote in a dispatch today.

The Germans set up German custom houses along the Metz-Château Salins Highway which they considered the German frontier after the occupation of France in 1940. French street names were changed to «Adolf Hitler Platz» and «Keitel Strasse.» The dispatch said, in part:

«In four years of occupation, the Nazis went to great lengths to change the territory into what was officially called the 'Westmark Department of the Moselle'. Towns like Château Salins became Salburgen. Delme became Delmen, and Liocourt was renamed Linthofen.

«The Germans evacuated almost the entire French population. They installed local Nazi administration, and transplanted repatriated Germans from the Volga and the Baltic States to the area. German was spoken exclusively. When the Allies advanced the German population was evacuated into Germany.» (OWI - INS)

ALBANIANS CLEAR MOST OF TIRANA YUGOSLAVS ATTACK SKOPLJE

LONDON, November 13 — The Albanian Liberation Army is clearing the capital city of Tirana of German and quisling pockets of resistance, a communique said tonight.

Earlier today, Albanian forces were reported to have occupied three-quarters of the city, and were surrounding the Germans in the southern part. Street fighting is raging.

German forces retreating from Albania are continuing to arrive in the Podgorica sector, where they are being engaged, the communique said.

The key traffic junction of Skoplje, controlling all railroads leading into Yugoslavia from the south, was the scene of heavy fighting today, after four nearby towns had been liberated, Marshal Tito's communique announced.

A strong German garrison is holding out against the Yugoslav and Bulgarian Army forces advancing from the east, south, and west.

FORMATION OF CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY URGED

ROME, November 13 — Italian political leaders were unanimous in urging the formation of a Consultative Assembly, but failed to agree on the manner of establishing the Assembly, the make-up of the body and the definition of its functions, interviews with outstanding political leaders showed today.

National elections are considered undesirable at the moment by all of the parties. It is felt that in the event of the formation of an Assembly, members should be appointed directly by the government. Left Wing parties, however, favor local elections before the Assembly is formed, in order that a political barometer of popular feeling can be established to guide the authorities making the selections.

Groups opposing local elections are likewise split on the criteria for selecting Assembly members. Some think the membership should consist of representatives of the various parties and groups. Others maintain the selection of members should be based solely on technical qualifications and political experience.

A divergence of views on the question of the Assembly's function is likewise reflected in the interviews. Some argue for a small Assembly representing all parties and with the legislative powers of a Parliament, while others favor a large Consultative Assembly, on the French model, but whose functions would be purely of an advisory nature.

Varying Views Expressed

Emmanuele Orlando, President of the Chamber of Deputies, while expressing a firm belief in Parliamentary institutions, felt that, for the time being, there should exist what he termed a «substitute Parliament» composed of men of proved integrity and with experience in political life.

The head of the Christian Democratic Party, Alcide de Gasperi, said that the «technical-consultative commissions,» already decided upon by the government, should form the nucleus of a Consultative Assembly.

In contrast to these two viewpoints, where the stress is on technical qualifications, Manlio Brosio, Secretary General of the Liberal Party, maintained that the Assembly should include men of wide political experience along with representatives of trade unions, partisan groups, ex-servicemen, and similar groups. He said the nucleus of the Assembly should be selected by the Committee of National Liberation.

Count Carlo Sforza, holding a view similar to this, said: «The Committees of Liberation and the parties should elect a certain number of delegates for each region, not many, in order that provinces newly liberated may send represen-

LONDON, November 13 — The Albanian Liberation Army is clearing the capital city of Tirana of German and quisling pockets of resistance, a communique said tonight.

Earlier today, Albanian forces were reported to have occupied three-quarters of the city, and were surrounding the Germans in the southern part. Street fighting is raging.

German forces retreating from Albania are continuing to arrive in the Podgorica sector, where they are being engaged, the communique said.

The key traffic function of Skoplje, controlling all railroads leading into Yugoslavia from the south, was the scene of heavy fighting today, after four nearby towns had been liberated, Marshal Tito's communique announced.

A strong German garrison is holding out against the Yugoslav and Bulgarian Army forces advancing from the east, south, and west.

Fighting also was reported for the town of Ilok, 25 miles west of Novi Sad, and for Kuzmin, on the Belgrade-Vinkovci railroad. (OWI - Reuter)

ROMULO TELLS FILIPINOS U.S. FIGHTS FOR THEM

WASHINGTON, November 13 — Brigadier General Carlos P. Romulo, Resident Commissioner of the Philippine Commonwealth Government, told the Filipino people today that « America is fighting this war for us and for millions like us. »

« We are loyal to The United States because we are grateful for her magnanimous labors in the Philippines, » General Romulo asserted in a broadcast over the Voice of Freedom radio from Leyte Island.

The General said that more than the sentimental reason for the Filipinos fighting in this war is the « compulsion of self-interest ».

« It is perhaps truer to say that America is fighting this war for us and for millions of other peoples like us, than to say that we are fighting this war for America's sake. For we can still say simply that we are fighting for our own safety. » (OWI)

ROME, November 13 — Italian political leaders were unanimous in urging the formation of a Consultative Assembly, but failed to agree on the manner of establishing the Assembly, the make-up of the body and the definition of its functions, interviews with outstanding political leaders showed today.

National elections are considered undesirable at the moment by all of the parties. It is felt that in the event of the formation of an Assembly, members should be appointed directly by the government. Left Wing parties, however, favor local elections before the Assembly is formed, in order that a political barometer of popular feeling can be established to guide the authorities making the selections.

Groups opposing local elections are likewise split on the criteria for selecting Assembly members. Some think the membership should consist of representatives of the various parties and groups. Others maintain the selection of members should be based solely on technical qualifications and political experience.

A divergence of views on the question of the Assembly's function is likewise reflected in the interviews. Some argue for a small Assembly representing all parties and with the legislative powers of a Parliament, while others favor a large Consultative Assembly, on the French model, but whose functions would be purely of an advisory nature.

Emmanuele Orlando, President of the Chamber of Deputies, while expressing a firm belief in Parliamentary institutions, felt that, for the time being, there should exist what he termed a « substitute Parliament » composed of men of proved integrity and with experience in political life.

The head of the Christian Democratic Party, Alcide de Gasperi, said that the « technical-consultative commissions, » already decided upon by the government, should form the nucleus of a Consultative Assembly.

In contrast to these two viewpoints, where the stress is on technical qualifications, Manlio Brosio, Secretary General of the Liberal Party, maintained that the Assembly should include men of wide political experience along with representatives of trade unions, partisan groups, ex-servicemen, and similar groups. He said the nucleus of the Assembly should be selected by the Committee of National Liberation.

Count Carlo Sforza, holding a view similar to this, said: « The Committees of Liberation and the parties should elect a certain number of delegates for each region, not many, in order that provinces newly liberated may send representatives in their turn. »

Meuccio Ruini, Head of the Democratic Labor Party said that party organisations, in addition to trade union, economic, professional, and cultural groups, should select representatives. He said these should be formally nominated by the Council of Ministers.

The Secretary General of the Italian Democratic Party, Enzo Selvaggi, said there should be no connection between the Consultative Assembly and the Committee of National Liberation.

Musu Martini, of the Union of Italian Women, emphasised that members should be selected from below rather than above, and « should be the expression of the parties composing the CNL and also of other parties. »

A new element was introduced into the discussion of the problem by Pietro Nenni, Secretary of the Socialist Party, who declared:

« Local elections are an essential pre-requisite of a Consultative Assembly. He said the assembly should be composed of provincial representatives designated by the communes and of representatives of the parties and the big workers', peasant, and professional organisations. »

The same view was expressed by Palmiro Togliatti, Head of the Italian Communist Party, who said that if local elections were not held, « Communists saw a danger that by the inclusion of so-called technical elements of reactionary tendencies, the Assembly would end up by not reflecting the true political feeling of the country. »

Randolfo Pacciardi, leader of the Italian Republican Party, supporting the Left wing demand for local elections, went still farther, and proposed that a « National Provisional Assembly of Liberated Italy » should be formed from delegates of regional assemblies and should nominate a Provisional government to serve until the election of a « Constituent Assembly. »

Selvaggi subscribed to the same view that « the relations between the Assembly and the Government should be strictly the same as those normally existing between Parliament and Government. »

The majority of the political leaders conceived of an Assembly modelled more closely on that of the French. Orlando, Sforza, Nenni, Ruini, de Gasperi, and Brosio agreed on the broad principle that the Assembly's function should be confined to that of advising and collaborating with the Government. (UNN)

SENATE COMMITTEE URGES ABOLITION CARTELS

WASHINGTON, November 13 — The Senate Military Sub-Committee issued a report today urging the abolition of international cartels and the complete destruction of German industrial leadership.

The report said that Germany already had deployed economic reserves throughout the world in preparation for a third attempt at world domination. The international cartel system still exists underground, and has been only partially suspended during the war, the report emphasized.

Industrial monopolists of Germany have worked long and ardently for Pan-Germanism. They willingly joined partnership with Hitler to achieve their own ends. Monopolies and cartels which are the artery of supply in the Nazi system must be broken up within Germany.

The Senate sub-committee declared that the punishment of 10,000 of the leading imperialist-minded German industrialists will be more effective than the punishment of a million Nazi underlings who carried out the orders of the conspirators.

German imperialism must be crushed permanently, and thus permit a peaceful and democratic Germany to arise, the report said. The structure and control of German industry must be so altered that it cannot again serve the purposes of war.

The Sub-Committee asserted that outlawing of the international cartel system is a necessary first step to clear the way for a new expansionist era in foreign economic relations.

The Senate sub-committee report urged the United Nations, including liberated nations, to confiscate all German property in those nations and to divest the Nazis and their collaborators of their holdings and management powers.

« One of the first tasks of the Allied Military Commission in Germany, should be to analyze thoroughly German interests abroad in order to obtain a complete inventory of German property, particularly those holdings whose true ownership has been masked through the instrumentality of Swiss, Dutch, or South American companies, » the report said.

SENATE COMMITTEE URGES ABOLITION CARTELS

WASHINGTON, November 13 — The Senate Military Sub-Committee issued a report today urging the abolition of international cartels and the complete destruction of German industrial leadership.

The report said that Germany already had deployed economic reserves throughout the world in preparation for a third attempt at world domination. The international cartel system still exists underground, and has been only partially suspended during the war, the report emphasized.

Industrial monopolists of Germany have worked long and ardently for Pan-Germanism. They willingly joined partnership with Hitler to achieve their own ends. Monopolies and cartels which are the artery of supply in the Nazi system must be broken up within Germany.

The Senate sub-committee declared that the punishment of 10,000 of the leading imperialist-minded German industrialists will be more effective than the punishment of a million Nazi underlings who carried out the orders of the conspirators.

German imperialism must be crushed permanently, and thus permit a peaceful and democratic Germany to arise, the report said. The structure and control of German industry must be so altered that it cannot again serve the purposes of war.

The Sub-Committee asserted that outlawing of the international cartel system is a necessary first step to clear the way for a new expansionist era in foreign economic relations.

The Senate sub-committee report urged the United Nations, including liberated nations, to confiscate all German property in those nations and to divest the Nazis and their collaborators of their holdings and management powers.

"One of the first tasks of the Allied Military Commission in Germany, should be to analyze thoroughly German interests abroad in order to obtain a complete inventory of German property, particularly those holdings whose true ownership has been masked through the instrumentality of Swiss, Dutch, or South American companies," the report said.

All Cartel Systems Denounced

"Any efforts to retain the international cartel system, will help to keep in power the German militarist, industrialist clique which has already planned and launched two world wars.

"Any proposal which would vest in private monopolies the power to make international economic agreements must be considered the antithesis of genuine democracy and international collaboration."

The report added that a cartel system dominated by American or British interests would eventually produce the same undesirable results as the one exploited by the Germans. It would jeopardize peace and jobs in the post-war world, and would soon bring up the possibility of a third, even more destructive, world war.

Extensive testimony before the Senate Military Sub-Committee and the great mass of testimony adduced by other congressional committees established beyond question that the international cartel system had been subversive to political security, full production and employement, and the expansion of world trade.

As an alternative to the cartel system, the sub-committee report recommended that international economic cooperation, devised in war time, should be continued in similar form during peace. It strongly urged that patent laws be revised to prevent restriction in production of new discoveries, and that confiscated enemy property in The United States be sold to help pay Allied war costs.

Turning to the subject of a disarmament program for Germany, the report said that it required not only the dismantling of all direct munitions industries, but also the dismantling and removal to the devastated areas of Europe primary, indirect munitions industries, including metallurgical and chemical industries.

Acting Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, was asked at his press conference today to comment on the proposal for dismantling Germany's munitions industries. He declined to comment, but he said that American ideas for the treatment of Germany after the war are receiving active attention. (OWI - Reuter)

POLITICAL PARTIES ACTIVE IN FRANCE

PARIS, November 13 — In preparation for the municipal elections next February, French political parties already are drafting programs and taking positions on issues vital to the future of the nation, a New York Times correspondent wrote today.

With the ending of the four-day convention of the Socialist Party yesterday, other pre-war parties are preparing for meetings, including the Radical Socialists, the Moderates, and the Social Democrats, the dispatch said.

The Communist position in the coming elections is that there should be a single ticket presented by the Patriot movement. This proposal has been rejected by both the Socialists and the party conventions of the National Liberation Movement.

These groups, declared the correspondent, take the stand that they should go to the polls under their own banners.

Meanwhile, voting lists are being enlarged and revised with the extension of suffrage to women. One problem is the provision requiring six months' residence in a community for all voters. It was been pointed out that many Frenchmen, active in the resistance movement, went from one hiding place to another to escape German and Vichy detection, while others had to change their residence to get out of battle areas. BRUSSELS, November 13 — Two Belgian traitors, accused of collaboration with the Nazis, were put to death today in fulfillment of the first death sentences voted by a Military Court here since the liberation.

One of the condemned men was Joseph Hoogeveen, a chauffeur who betrayed to the Gestapo the young Patriot, Arnaud Fraiteur, and his friends, who had killed the traitor journalist, Paul Colin.

The other was Paul Herten, collaborator and chief editor of the pro-German paper, Nouveau Journal. Herten was accused of being involved in the Hoogeveen case, and was tried as a direct accomplice.

Three members of the pro-Nazi Rexist Party — named Avart, Rys, and Bissolo — have been sentenced to death, said the correspondent of the London News Chronicle, by the Charleroi military court for the murder last July of the Burgomaster of Saint Amard, Emmannuel de Chassart. An associate named Jean Poucet was sentenced to hard labor for life.

The four men murdered de Chassart in retaliation for the execution of a Rexist by unidentified Patriots.

COMTE DE PARIS REPORTED ARRESTED

PARIS, November 13 — The Count of Paris, 36-year-old pretender to the French throne, has been arrested at Perpignan, the newspaper Liberation Soir reported today.

The report said that the arrest was carried out under the provisions of a law of 2 June 1886, which forbids «heads of families having reigned over France and their eldest direct descendants» from setting foot on French territory. Violation of the law carries a penalty of two to five years imprisonment.

The Count of Paris is the direct descendant of Louis Philippe, who reigned in France from the Revolution of 1830 to the Revolution of 1848. He represents the Orleans branch of the family.

The newspaper reported that the Count was wounded in the shoulder when he was arrested.

INSIDE GERMANY

MYSTERY OF HITLER'S WHEREABOUTS INCREASES: GERMANS SAY HE IS «TOO BUSY» TO SPEAK

WASHINGTON, November 13 — Failure of Adolf Hitler to read his proclamation yesterday to the German people on the delayed observance of the anniversary of the abortive 1923 Nazi beer hall putsch in Munich, deepened today the mystery of Hitler's whereabouts and raised the question by Allied and neutral press as to how much authority Heinrich Himmler has assumed.

The last time Hitler personally addressed the German people was on July 20, when he broadcast his explanation of the alleged attempt on his life that day. Since then, Hitler has remained silent. That silence became today the target of newspapers and radios in countries outside of Germany and Japan.

The most prevalent question asked was: «What has happened to Hitler?» and why have others of the Nazi hierarchy read speeches or proclamations purportedly written by Hitler? Newspapers in New York, Washington, and London particularly noted that for the first time since 1933, Hitler did not personally speak to the German people on the observance of the putsch — Hitler's traditional day of gloating.

The keynote of Allied and neutral press comment on the reading of Hitler's proclamation by Himmler was sounded by the London Daily Telegraph which said that «it is moral cowardice or something else» that prevented Hitler from appearing at the microphone personally to deliver the proclamation he was said to have written.

Considerable significance was attached by the press to the fact that Himmler took on the role of stand-in because, according to the German version, Hitler was «too busy» at his headquarters to take time off to enlighten his people. It was noted also that in introducing Himmler to read the proclamation, Paul Geisler, Gauleiter of Munich, used the call of «Germany Awake» instead of the traditional Nazi salutation of «Heil Hitler.»

The German news agency, DNB, attempted today to explain the reason for Hitler's absence from the microphone yesterday by saying:

«In peacetime, the nation was accustomed to hear the voice of the Führer on all decisive events and important developments of public life. But in view of the enormous responsibility resting with the Führer... the German people must begin to understand that the Führer's duties at his headquarters here have precedence over the enlightening of the people.»

To which, the Daily Express replied with another pertinent query: «If Hitler was unable to leave his headquarters, why did not Dr. Goebbels rig up a microphone and have Hitler broadcast from there.» A BBC broadcast tonight wondered how Hitler could find time to write and dictate a very long speech, and yet not afford the time to speak to the German people. It also was asked why Hitler did not speak directly from his headquarters as he did last July.

The New York Times commented that «neither the outside world nor the Germans will accept the explanation that Hitler was simply too busy to make speeches that he was supposed to have written.» The paper added, poignantly: «Whether and to what extent Hitler is still functioning is the question.»

Himmler Now Power in Germany?

There were many reports today that Hitler was too ill to cope with his weighty problems, and that Himmler had become the real power in Germany. One report was that Hitler is suffering a recurrence of his so-called «non-malignant» growth of the throat, for which he was operated upon about eight years ago. Another report was that four physicians have Hitler under their care.

The German News Agency issued a statement today, attributing to «competent German quarters» that Hitler is enjoying complete health.

Dispatches from neutral sources said that Hitler was preparing to make a hurried departure from Germany, and that Himmler was making plans to became the supreme power in Germany.

The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet carried a report today that the German government printing offices have printed proclamations demanding that the Germans swear allegiance to Hitler. It added that some of the copies are said to have found their way into the hands of foreign diplomats in Berlin.

Observers also noted the absence of Hermann Göring at public functions recently, and recalled various reports that the top Nazi leaders were depositing huge sums of money in some South American countries.

While the mystery of Hitler's whereabouts continued [illegible] the British and American [illegible] be the commander-in-chief over the areas behind the front, and may prevent unreliable troop detachments from receiving food and ammunition.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 13 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

In the coastal sector, British armor and infantry of the 8th Army have crossed the Chiala Canal south of Ravenna.

Further progress has also been made northwest of Forli, despite very strong resistance.

Elsewhere, there is no change in our forward positions.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th AAF yesterday attacked four rail bridges on the Brenner Pass line in northern Italy.

Aircraft of the Tactical Air Force attacked military objectives in the battle areas of northern Italy, and communication targets in the Po Valley.

Coastal aircraft were active against shipping in the Adriatic, and Balkan Air Force units flew missions to Albania and Yugoslavia, attacking transport concentrations and other enemy targets.

Last night, our bombers attacked Casarsa rail bridge in northeastern Italy.

From these operations, eight of our aircraft are missing.

It is now known that two additional enemy aircraft were destroyed on November 10.

MAAF flew 1,200 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 13 — Today's communique:

Allied forces continued their advance in the Nancy-Metz area, with thrusts to the east of Pont a Mousson.

Armor and infantry units reached the villages of Conthil and Liedersingen, approximately seven miles north of Dieuze. Other units are in Château Brehain and north of Château Salins.

Armored elements crossed the Nied Francais River and are in Herny, within three miles of Han-sur-Nied.

In the Königsmacker area, our infantry has restored its line after counter-attacking, and the newly-won bridgehead across the Moselle, below Thionville, has been reinforced.

Further south, small advances were made west of Saint voice of the Führer on all decisive events and important developments of public life. But in view of the enormous responsibility resting with the Führer... the German people must begin to understand that the Führer's duties at his headquarters here have precedence over the enlightening of the people.»

To which, the Daily Express replied with another pertinent query: «If Hitler was unable to leave his headquarters, why did not Dr. Goebbels rig up a microphone and have Hitler broadcast from there.» A BBC broadcast tonight wondered how Hitler could find time to write and dictate a very long speech, and yet not afford the time to speak to the German people. It also was asked why Hitler did not speak directly from his headquarters as he did last July.

The New York Times commented that «neither the outside world nor the Germans will accept the explanation that Hitler was simply too busy to make speeches that he was supposed to have written.» The paper added, poignantly: «Whether and to what extent Hitler is still functioning is the question.»

Himmler Now Power in Germany?

There were many reports today that Hitler was too ill to cope with his weighty problems, and that Himmler had become the real power in Germany. One report was that Hitler is suffering a recurrence of his so-called «non-malignant» growth of the throat, for which he was operated upon about eight years ago. Another report was that four physicians have Hitler under their care.

The German News Agency issued a statement today, attributing to «competent German quarters» that Hitler is enjoying complete health.

Dispatches from neutral sources said that Hitler was preparing to make a hurried departure from Germany, and that Himmler was making plans to became the supreme power in Germany.

The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet carried a report today that the German government printing offices have printed proclamations demanding that the Germans swear allegiance to Hitler. It added that some of the copies are said to have found their way into the hands of foreign diplomats in Berlin.

Observers also noted the absence of Hermann Göring at public functions recently, and recalled various reports that the top Nazi leaders were depositing huge sums of money in some South American countries.

While the mystery of Hitler's whereabouts continued to become more intensive, the British and American press agreed that yesterday's proclamation — regardless of who may have written it — was merely another Nazi attempt to prolong useless bloodshed. The press conclusions of this latest Nazi «fight-to-the-death» treatise were:

1. That it invites the German people to «sound the last depths of misery in order to save the skins of Hitler and his fellow gangsters.»

2. That most Germans undoubtedly would prefer self-preservation by surrender «if it were not for Himmler's hangmen.»

3. That whoever wrote the words uttered in Hitler's name must be realistic enough to know that «it is fantastic to suppose that the Nazis can get a stalemate by their prescription» — to fight an endless war. (OWI-Reuter)

NAZIS WITHDRAW CIVIL ADMINISTRATION

STOCKHOLM, November 13 — The Nazi Party has withdrawn administrative control of areas behind the front from Wehrmacht authorities, a report in the Swedish paper Stockholms Tidningen said today. The Nazi Party has assumed such civil control.

Calling the measure a «new Himmler order of great importance,» the article said that a gauleiter will henceforth

MOSCOW, November 13 — Tonight's communique:

During today, our troops in Hungary captured in fighting the town and railway station of Jaszapati, and occupied several other populated localities, including Jaszkiser, Jaszmahaltirin, Tapio-Seint-Marton, Tapiogichke, Pan, Gava, Zhigeri, and Begiye, and the Pustekur and Jaszkiser railway stations.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling took place.

During November 12, our troops disabled or destroyed 24 German tanks. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE, AAI, November 13 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

In the western region of Liguria, the enemy is still on the offensive. The Patriots are fighting stubbornly to maintain their positions. Considerable losses in dead, wounded, and prisoners have been inflicted on the Germans.

In the Friuli Plain, the Patriots continue their acts of sabotage. Two bridges and a rail tunnel were blown up, three rail lines interrupted, and one bridge damaged.

In Venezia Tridentina, the enemy attacked « Fiamme Verdi » Patriots in the Camonica, Sabbia, Trompia, Cavallina, and Cherio valleys. The Patriots had to abandon several localities, but their losses in men and material are lighter than those of the enemy.

The Nazi-Fascists, unable to subdue the Patriots, unleashed their fury against the civilian population, carrying out severe reprisals. Many houses and thousands of shepherds' huts were set afire and looted. Large numbers of civilians were taken as hostages. Many were shot or hanged.

Further details supplementing those given in earlier communiques, are available on the atrocities committed by the Nazi-Fascists after the offensive in the Grappa region. In the Black Brigade barracks at Bassano, 18 Patriots were shot after being forced to dig their own graves. Thirty-one Patriots and civilians were hanged from the trees along Viale Venezia at Bassano del Grappa and left for 48 hours.

At Carpanè, in Vicenza Province, 27 persons were shot by the local Black Brigade. They were unarmed when seized.

At Arten, in Belluna Province, Patriots were hanged on butcher hooks. All houses in the northern region of Grappa and almost all in the southern section were set afire. More than a thousand cattle were looted by the Germans. In several places, Fascists about to attack, placed women and children in front as a shield, to induce Patriots to hold their fire.

Lungo, the mayor of Caupo, and Bolzanella of Feltre were responsible for hangings at Arten. The setting afire of houses was ordered by Zdenuzzo, Communal Secretary of Valstagna in Vicenza and Inspector of the secret police.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRERS HEADQUARTERS, November 13 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On the western front, yesterday, the focal point of the fierce fighting again lay in the sector on both sides of Metz.

Northeast of Diedenhofen, the Americans, faced with the grim resistance of our troops and their counter-attacks, could only slightly broaden their bridgehead. They penetrated, however, into the town. Grim fighting is in progress for the old citadel.

Southeast of Metz, on the banks of the Nied, the enemy tank forces were halted or repelled.

South of Morchingen, our divisions, in grim tank battles, inflicted high losses on the enemy and ousted him from a certain number of localities.

Our troops, since the beginning of the battle for Metz, destroyed 222 U.S. tanks and armored reconnaissance cars.

The enemy artillery fire and air and fighting activities were intensified in front of our fortresses in the west. Enemy intensified in front of our fortresses in the west. Enemy attacks on the eastern front of the St Nazaire Fortress were frustrated.

London continues to be subjected to retaliatory fire.

Italy:

In the Etruscan Apennines, south of Vergato, our heavy artillery dispersed strong enemy columns.

GERMAN

Western Front: Owing to atmospheric intereference, no news concerning this front was available from German scurces later than the mid-afternoon Wehrmacht communique, given above.

Statement on Hitler Rumors: In reply to what was called « rumors spread by the Allies » concerning Hitler's health, Transocean today issued a statement emphatically denying that he is ill. The statement, attributed to « competent German circles, » reads in part:

« The fact that Hitler did not himself read his proclamation to the German people is by no means proof that he does not enjoy the best of health. Hitler has never read proclamations himself, but has always had this done by ministers... Why the Führer was unable at the moment to to speak himself may be seen from the contents of the proclamation, which states that the work in headquarters does not permit the Führer to interrupt his activity for even one day. »

The statement concluded with the warning that « in due time, » the German Chancellor will give a « definite military reply » to « various rumor-mongers. »

Reaction to Swedish Protest: So far, the German Foreign Office has been laconic in its reaction to the much-discussed Swedish note of protest against Germany's extension of the war zone to the Baltic. German sources merely say that « Ribbentrop's spokesman refrained from commenting upon the note so far, » but add that « the German viewpoint on that subject will be made clear on Tuesday. »

Allied Atrocity Alleged: The outstanding Allied « atrocity » alleged in today's news was that American fighter-bombers attacked a German base « distinctly » marked with a Red Cross flag. Numerous bombs were supposedly dropped on the base and repeated low-level firing attacks were described with indignation.

The victims were said to consist of 12 « wounded German soldiers, who were killed, » as well as members of the German medical corps. The location of this first-aid base was given as the Saarlautern-Diedenhofen Highway, and November 8 was given as the date of the reputed misdeed.

Eastern Front: The correspondent Colonel von Oberg reported that « after a short interval » the great battle east of Budapest has again flared up in the last 48 hours. « The Soviet command is obviously no longer concentrating on frontal attacks... but is now trying to advance from the central Tisza in an outflanking movement. » However, it was claimed that the strong German and Hungarian defence positions are « halting » this new Russian drive.

The same correspondent noted, without further comment or elaboration, that a Soviet advance of at least 10 infantry divisions, westward across the Tisza, had occurred « to menace the German rear. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Stalemate on Forli Front: Late tonight the Fascist radio reported that « stubborn German resistance » near Forli had checked the « massive attack begun last week by the British 8th Army ». Polish troops near Modigliana « suffered very heavy losses ». It was stated that the « 8th Army, after slight initial gains, has given up its frontal attack ».

No action of importance was reported south of Bologna.

Allied soldiers, who have allegedly gone over to the Germans, were pictured as « demoralized because of lack of attention from their government ».

Italian Leftist Parties Triumph?: Several instances were cited in a general attempt to prove that the Italian parties of the Left are in the ascendancy. One example derived from an alleged United Press story which said that the Bonomi Cabinet may shortly resign, due to a « crisis brought about by leftist parties, following divergence of views which arose in the Cabinet itself. »

Italy:

In the Etruscan Apennines, south of Vergato, our heavy artillery dispersed strong enemy columns.

The British, in the battle for Forli, succeeded only after grim fighting, which lasted throughout the whole day, in penetrating our positions on a small front north of the town and in advancing about two kilometers. Our troops offered a stubborn resistance.

Eastern Front:

East of Budapest, the battle grew in size and intensity with the enemy throwing more forces into the line of fire.

At Jaszbereny, our tank forces repelled the enemy who had penetrated into the town and destroyed 33 Soviet tanks. On both sides of Mezoekoevesd, the Bolsheviks, who attacked with 10 rifle divisions and numerous tanks, were prevented from advancing farther by the stubborn resistance of German and Hungarian troops.

Southwest of the Dukla Pass and on both sides of the Utath of Romintern, Soviet reconnaissance thrusts failed.

In the Autz sector, the enemy intensified his attacks, which he had started yesterday and which failed again.

Air:

Yesterday, the enemy air activity in the West and over the Reich territory was only small. (Radio Berlin)

One example derived from an alleged United Press story which said that the Bonomi Cabinet may shortly resign, due to a «crisis brought about by leftist parties, following divergence of views which arose in the Cabinet itself.»

From among the comments on the Soviet celebration in Rome yesterday, the following assertion is notable: «Ten thousand Romans, assembled by Nenni and Togliatti, have requested that the monarchy be definitely abolished, and that a Republican government be formed».

It was alleged that a «noisy incident» occurred at the Naples University, on the occasion of ceremonies inaugurating the new academic year. The trouble supposedly began over student requests for a special session of examinations in February. This it was said, was fanned into a student imbroglio involving first the hoisting of a Soviet flag, and then a pro-Savoy demonstration. The Allied authorities reportedly abandoned the hapless rector to his own devices.

Further Figures on Defaulters: The highest figure so far announced on returning Fascist dissenters was 1563 for the Province of Bergamo, as of tonight. The fact that the repentant were referred to as «deserters from military and labor service» seems further evidence that a serious personnel crisis in northern Italy would be the motivation for Mussolini's amnesty decree.

Three Allied Employees Denounced: Three Italian collaborators for the «Rome Poletti Radio», José Orlando, Notari and Flora Antonioni, were attacked by Radio Tevere with unusual bitterness.

BRITISH FORCE BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS GERMAN CANAL

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 12 — British troops of the 8th Army have crossed the Canale Nuovo, water barrier of the newest German delaying line northwest of Forli, and after heavy fighting have established a small bridgehead within 7½ miles of Faenza, next of the Po Valley towns along the line of the Allied advance, it was announced here today.

Although British forces moving up to the eastern banks of the six-mile-long canal connecting the Montone and the Rabbi Rivers met only light opposition in most places, furious fighting occurred just north of the railway line skirting the edges of Forli. Here, at a country crossroads, a savage engagement between British infantry and armored forces and German troops barricaded in farmhouses, and supported by tanks and by artillery and mortar fire, raged a full day and night. Along the 8th Army front northeast and southwest of Forli, only minor clashes were reported. Enemy forces hold the west bank of the Montone in strength from Forli south to near Davodola, and German tanks were active in the area of San Varano, five miles south of Forli.

Northwest of Davodola, German forces counter-attacked Allied troops thrusting into the hills, and at one point, northwest of Monte Bora, compelled 8th Army infantrymen to withdraw some 300-400 yards to stronger positions. Gambellare, six miles southwest of Ravenna, and on the east bank of the Ronco, has been evacuated by the enemy.

Coccolia, a German stronghold on the west bank of the Ronco at the point of its junction with Canale Nuovo, is still strongly defended, and was subjected to tank fire.

On the 5th Army front, the strongest enemy air force yet mustered in the almost daily raids on the American sector south of Bologna, a total of 11 planes, attacked the main highway through Lolano, to inflict only a single casualty. Two of the enemy aircraft were shot down by anti-aircraft fire, and two others were probably destroyed.

Along most of the front, forward positions remained unchanged, but Gurkha forces on the right flank of the 5th Army again moved forward south of Faenza, to capture Monte Pompegno, 13 miles from this Po Plain town. (PRO)

AMERICANS CUT MAIN RAIL LINE TO METZ

SHAEF, November 12 — American 6th Armored Division tanks and infantry cut across the main rail line leading from Saarbrücken to Metz today after crossing the Nied River at Sanry sur Nied. They are now closing in on the last good highway from Metz to Saarbrücken.

Strong tank and infantry forces crossed the Nied River at Lemud and Remilly, while another American spearhead crossed the river to capture the road and rail junction town of Han sur Nied. Metz now is cut off from the German-held fortress town of Saarburg, to the southwest.

The Germans are attempting to withdraw their big guns from the fortresses guarding Metz to reinforce the Siegfried Line and to keep them from being captured. They are also making several withdrawals between Metz and Nancy and are retreating toward the northeast.

The big German guns in the strong fortifications ringing Metz have been silent, presumably because the German garrisons had no air observation to direct their artillery. Press dispatches reported endless miles of American tanks rolling toward the battlefront without meeting strong opposition from German tanks or artillery and with no shelling from the fortress guns, which have a range of 15 to 20 miles.

At the eastern end of the American 3rd Army flank, German forces were swept out of the Château Salins forest as the 35th Infantry Division scored a four-mile gain. There was no indication as to the position of the U.S. 4th

Here, at a country crossroads, a savage engagement between British Infantry and armored forces and German troops barricaded in farmhouses, and supported by tanks and by artillery and mortar fire, raged a full day and night. Driven from house after house in the daylight hours of Friday, the enemy counter-attacked at night to regain part of their lost positions. Only after a second British attack had again thrown them back could the canal crossing be undertaken.

No details were given of the canal crossing by the British troops, nor did official reports indicate whether British armor had gotten across to stiffen the small bridgehead carried out of the German defensive positions on the left bank. The Montone River, which sweeps in a great bend to the northwest to join the River Rabbi eight miles north of the Canale Nuovo, provides a secondary delaying line for the Germans in this sector.

Quiet in Forli

In Forli, all is quiet except for slight enemy shelling, official reports said today. The rôle of Italian Patriots in the fighting which led to the liberation of Romagna's capital was emphasized, and it was stated that the Patriots had destroyed three truckloads of German troops and had blown up a German tank and its crew before the enemy withdrawal. It was stated officially today that Forli, a quiet provincial capital of 25,000 inhabitants, was practically undamaged by the fighting which swirled around it for 10 days after British troops forced the crossing of the River Ronco two miles east of the town.

Cecolla, a German stronghold on the west bank of the Ronco at the point of its junction with Canale Nuovo, is still strongly defended, and was subjected to tank fire.

On the 5th Army front, the strongest enemy air force yet mustered in the almost daily raids on the American sector south of Bologna, a total of 11 planes, attacked the main highway through Loiano, to inflict only a single casualty. Two of the enemy aircraft were shot down by anti-aircraft fire, and two others were probably destroyed.

Along most of the front, forward positions remained unchanged, but Gurkha forces on the right flank of the 5th Army again moved forward south of Faenza, to capture Monte Pompegno, 13 miles from this Po Plain town. (PRO)

AMERICANS CUT MAIN RAIL LINE TO METZ

SHAEF, November 12 — American 6th Armored Division tanks and infantry cut across the main rail line leading from Saarbrücken to Metz today after crossing the Nied River at Sanry sur Nied. They are now closing in on the last good highway from Metz to Saarbrücken.

U.S. 4TH ARMORED DIVISION ADVANCES 11 MILES

SHAEF, November 12 — The U.S. 4th Armored Division today drove 11 miles northeast of Château Salins through a heavy snowstorm, press dispatches reported late tonight. They are now at Bodalben (Redalbe), a junction of two main rail lines leading into France, and are less than 10 miles from the Maginot Line. (Reuter)

FORMER DUTCH PREMIER DIES

LONDON, November 12 — Dr. Hendrikus Colijn, former Dutch Premier held prisoner by the Nazis, died in Scheveningen prison in the occupied Netherlands, according to word just received here, the Dutch News Agency, Aneta, reported tonight. He was 75 years old.

Dr. Colijn, Premier three times between 1926 and 1939, was imprisoned by the Nazis at the time of the occupation. Head of the Calvinist Party, he was chairman of the 1933 World Economic Conference here, and also was active in the League of Nations. (OWI)

Armored Division spearhead, which yesterday made a surprise thrust northeastward to reach Haboudange (Habuningen).

The northern flank of Lieut. Gen. George Patton's pincer drive on Metz has continued to meet strong German opposition. In the first serious German counter-attack since the offensive began, American troops were thrown back two miles on the eastern side of the Moselle River in the Kerling les Sierck area, northeast of Thionville. Kerling is on a secondary road leading eastward from Thionville to the Saar Basin city of Merzig.

The German escape corridor from Metz has been narrowed to less than 15 miles from American positions east of Maizières les Metz southward to Sanry sur Nied. More than 3,600 German prisoners have been taken in the five-day-old offensive.

The southern flank of the American 3rd Army was last reported on the Pont à Mousson-Saarbrücken Highway at Cheminot, 12 miles south of Metz. From Cheminot, the line runs northeast to Louvigny and Vigny and to Silly-en-Saulnois on the Metz-Château Salins Highway. The line then turns sharply northeast to Sanry sûr Nied on the main Metz-Saarbrücken rail line dropping slowly to the southeast at Lemud and Remilly, ending the swing at the rail junction of Han sur Nied. Slightly to the northeast of Han sur Nied, American tank forces reached Henry. The front from here runs directly south to Lucy, again southward to Vaxy, and north to Haboudange (Habuningen) on the Saarbrücken-Nancy rail line. (OWI-Reuter)

RUSSIANS TIGHTEN PINCER DRIVE ON BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, November 12 — Russian troops under Marshal Malinovsky today captured the Hungarian town of Meokovesd, on the Miscolz-Budapest railway, thereby moving to within 65 miles of the Hungarian capital on this sector of the front.

Nineteen miles southeast of Budapest, the town of Monor also fell to Soviet forces today, together with 30 other places east and southeast of the city.

Marshal Malinovsky's armies now control all four main railway lines leading to Budapest, and are advancing westward in two great drives northeast and southeast of the capital. On both extremities of the Russian pincer movement, the Germans put up infantry and armor counter-attacks in an attempt to regain lost strongholds, but suffered heavy losses in manpower and equipment.

The Red Army, meanwhile, is changing into white for the winter on all fronts where snow has fallen or is expected soon. Thousands of gallons of white camouflage paint are being put on vehicles, and tens of thousands of whitehooded snow capes are being handed out to the men.

The Soviet scout with tommy-gun and camouflaged dress is still the dominant figure on most sectors of the front, while tank actions were reduced almost to a record minimum, 15 German tanks being knocked out yesterday. Soviet commentators, however, today hailed this phase as the eve of « a mighty new offensive. »

In the extreme southern sector of the Russian front, Bulgarian troops, operating against the Germans on Yugoslav territory, captured the town of Kumanovo, 15 miles northeast of Skoplje. A Bulgarian communique said the Germans left 2,500 dead on the battlefield there.

The capture of Kumanovo brings Bulgarian and Yugoslav troops to the gates of Skoplje, strategically the most important point in Macedonia, commanding the Vardar Valley route from Salonika northward to Nis and Belgrade.

In the far north, the remnants of Hitler's crack Alpine

D.A.F. MAKES FIRST SORTIE INTO GERMANY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 12 — Mustang fighter-bombers of the Desert Air Force yesterday made their first offensive sortie into the Reich when they flew as far as Villach, 25 miles west of Klagenfurt, Austria, in search of railway targets, it was announced here today.

The fighter-bombers, flying over roads between Villach and the Yugoslav frontier, destroyed two river bridges and disabled nine locomotives by strafing.

Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF yesterday also attacked targets in southern Germany and Austria, striking military objectives in the Rosenheim, Linz, Salzburg, Villach, and Sillian areas, and also attacking the Casarsa, the Latisana, and the Pinzano rail bridges in Italy. Aviano airfield in Northern Italy was also bombed, but with only minor results.

Medium bombers hit more than a dozen rail bridges in Italy, and cut rail lines in 59 places. Balkan Air Force planes continued their attacks on the Veles-Skoplje rail line in Yugoslavia, which official reports declared have so successfully « put the brake » on the enemy's retreat northward that their chances of escaping the Red Army-Partisan pincers have diminished seriously.

The Royal Air Force destroyed more than 66 per cent of the more than 100,000 tons of enemy shipping wiped out in the Aegean, it was revealed here today. RAF planes sunk 34.2 per cent of these German vessels plying the island waterways.

The air attacks on the German water supply lines to their garrisons in the Aegean Islands began in January.

Naval forces accounted for the remainder of the enemy shipping. (PRO)

LUFTWAFFE SUFFERING FROM FUEL SHORTAGE

WASHINGTON, November 12 — The German Air Force, its hitting power badly crippled by the relentless Allied attack on its fuel rifineries and depots, rarely goes into battle any longer unless weather conditions and other fighting advantages are of the best, Colonel Frank Kurtz, commander of a 15th USAAF bombardment group, told a press conference here Friday.

The purpose of this German tactic is to conserve to the utmost its dwindling fuel supply Colonel Kurtz said.

Recently developed German rocket planes — in which the Nazis place great hope — are more spectacular than effective, he stated.

Colonel Kurtz, who led his « Swoose Group » in 100 missions within 150 days, said that the old guard of the Luftwaffe has disappeared, and in their place are youngsters more daring than sensible. American fliers have come to anticipate unusual combat tactics from these youthful fliers, such as flying crazily through opposing formations, and other suicidal acts. (PWB)

GERMAN OIL REFINERIES STRUCK AGAIN

LONDON, November 12 — Another blow to Germany's diminishing oil potential was delivered last night when RAF bombers attacked the port and oil refineries of Harburg, just south of Hamburg, and a synthetic oil plant at Dortmund in the Ruhr.

Western German transport objectives also were attacked during the night, while Mosquitos bombed and strafed enemy airfields and laid mines in enemy waters. Seven aircraft failed to return from these operations.

The Swedish Defense Staff announced today that large formations of foreign aircraft crossed western Sweden early today and across into Norway after being fired upon by Swedish anti-aircraft guns.

RUSSIANS TIGHTEN PINCER DRIVE ON BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, November 12 — Russian troops under Marshal Malinovsky today captured the Hungarian town of Mezokovesd, on the Miskolz-Budapest railway, thereby moving to within 65 miles of the Hungarian capital on this sector of the front.

Nineteen miles southeast of Budapest, the town of Monor also fell to Soviet forces today, together with 30 other places east and southeast of the city.

Marshal Malinovsky's armies now control all four main railway lines leading to Budapest, and are advancing westward in two great drives northeast and southeast of the capital. On both extremities of the Russian pincer movement, the Germans put up infantry and armor counter-attacks in an attempt to regain lost strongholds, but suffered heavy losses in manpower and equipment.

The Red Army, meanwhile, is changing into white for the winter on all fronts where snow has fallen or is expected soon. Thousands of gallons of white camouflage paint are being put on vehicles, and tens of thousands of whitehooded snow capes are being handed out to the men.

The Soviet scout with tommy-gun and camouflaged dress is still the dominant figure on most sectors of the front, while tank actions were reduced almost to a record minimum, 15 German tanks being knocked out yesterday. Soviet commentators, however, today hailed this phase as the eve of «a mighty new offensive.»

In the extreme southern sector of the Russian front, Bulgarian troops, operating against the Germans on Yugoslav territory, captured the town of Kumanovo, 15 miles northeast of Skoplje. A Bulgarian communique said the Germans left 2,500 dead on the battlefield there.

The capture of Kumanovo brings Bulgarian and Yugoslav troops to the gates of Skoplje, strategically the most important point in Macedonia, commanding the Vardar Valley route from Salonika northward to Nis and Belgrade.

In the far north, the remnants of Hitler's crack Alpine Jaeger Division, the «Edelweiss Division», still are surrendering in the Petsamo region.

More than nine million German soldiers are estimated to have been killed or taken prisoner on Russian soil during the war, Soviet commentators said today. (OWI-Reuter)

AMERICANS SEIZE HEIGHTS ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 12 — American troops of the 24th Infantry Division drove three miles southward from Carigara Bay and seized the important heights of Mount Catabaran dominating the Ormoc corridor from the north, General Douglas MacArthur's communique reported tonight.

Other American forces, with tank and artillery support, made good progress against heavy opposition on the road south of Pinamopoan, the communique said.

In their drive to wipe out the last remaining Japanese stronghold on Leyte, American troops yesterday morning attacked an enemy pocket dug in on the side of the mountain. Attacking with hand grenades after more than 1,000 rounds of mortar fire had been concentrated on the Japanese positions, American forces wiped out the pocket, killing 500 Japanese. (OWI)

The Swedish Defense Staff announced today that large formations of foreign aircraft crossed western Sweden early today and across into Norway after being fired upon by Swedish anti-aircraft guns.

USAAF headquarters today issued figures indicating the weight and extent of the American onslaught on German air power. American aircraft from Britain and Italy combined have dropped more than 600,000 tons of bombs on German aircraft factories and plants related to the industry. More than half of this tonnage fell inside the Reich. The total number of enemy aircraft destroyed was over 15,000, most of them in the air.

Losses of the 8th USAAF, which began operations in August, 1942, and the 15th USAAF, which was formed in November, 1943, total 8,157 aircraft, including 5,708 bombers and 2,449 fighters. These losses represent less than two per cent of the aircraft dispatched.

The two air forces were placed under the newly-organized United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe last January for over-all planning and control. Both participated in the shuttle-bombing missions, flying to and from Russian bases operated by the USAAF's Eastern Command, attacking German targets en route. (OWI-Reuter)

A.M.G. RESTORES ORDER IN AACHEN

AACHEN, November 12 — Some semblance of order out of chaos is being established in devastated Aachen by the Allied Military Government which has been operating here for nearly three weeks.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

Under a U. S. Army major with a staff of 13 officers and the same number of enlisted personnel, German civilians are being directed to operate their own municipal affairs. About 10,000 civilians have returned to the city, a quarter of that number being housed in barracks in a small suburb. Priorities have been established for the return of civilians to the city — doctors, nurses, police personnel come first; then technicians who can rehabilitate water, sewerage, and utility systems and the necessary laborers.

Police functions, nationalized under the Nazis, have been returned to municipal jurisdiction.

The food situation is critical, but a 30-day supply is in sight. Rationing is in effect, with all known stores under guard. A modern hospital is in operation and two more will be opened soon.

Prime consideration in the military government of Aachen is the protection of Allied military movements against sabotage. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS FREE VARDAR VALLEY RAILWAY

LONDON, November 12 — Yugoslav troops and units of the Bulgarian Army have driven the Germans from the entire length of the Vardar and Morava River Valley railroads as far as Skoplje, 100 miles from the Yugoslav-Greek border, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

In their advance on Skoplje, the Yugoslavs and Bulgarians have liberated Kumanova, 28 miles to the east.

As a result of the advance up the river valleys from the Greek frontier, the German 11th Airborne Division, units of the German 22nd Infantry Division, the German 999th Brigade, and many other units have been forced to withdraw, a Bulgarian Army communique said today.

In an encircling movement, other Yugoslav units have reached Zilava and are moving toward Montenegro, thus threatening to cut off all the lines leading to the large German garrison in Skoplje.

Important enemy positions in the Pristina sector have been captured, and on the Cacak-Uzice-Visegrad railway raiding Yugoslav units are attacking constantly, the communique said.

The communique also reported action in the Prijepolje and Strumica River Valley sectors. (OWI)

COMMUNICATIONS AT KWEILIN CUT

CHUNGKING, November 12 — Radio communications with Kweilin, capital of Kwangsi Province, have been cut since Friday, and the situation inside the city is obscure, the Chinese communique said today.

At Liuchow, 150 miles to the southwest of Kweilin, the Japanese have battled their way into the suburbs.

Allied air warfare against Japan reached a new intensity over the week-end when Superfortresses raided Omura in Japan, and Nanking and Shanghai in China, while other aircraft carried out offensive sweeps over southern China and Burma.

A delayed dispatch from China reported today that the entire Superfortress force had been originally briefed for the attack on Omura, but after the take-off a sudden hurricane arose and a radio message was sent ordering the Japan-bound formations to strike at Nanking's freight yards and docks.

About half of the formation heard the order, and the rest flew on to Omura. The planes were buffeted about like feathers by tremendous winds as they made their bombing runs over the Japanese aircraft center at Omura. The dispatch said that the hurricane hit with such violence that the B-29's were blown on to their wing tips.

PUPPET PRESIDENT OF NANKING DIES

WASHINGTON, November 12 — The Japanese radio today announced the death of 62-year-old Wang Ching Wei, Chinese puppet leader of the Japanese-dominated government in Nanking. The broadcast said that Wang died in Japan, where he had been undergoing medical treatment.

A later Tokyo broadcast to the German Overseas News Agency announced that Cheng Kung Po, Wang's deputy, had been appointed acting president of Nanking, which was bombed yesterday by American B-29 Superfortresses. Cheng was among the first to follow Wang Ching Wei when he allied himself to the Japanese after breaking with the Chinese Government in 1938.

Wang Ching Wei was known as the "most hated man in China." His political career dates back to 1910, when he joined a revolutionary party and took part in the attempted assassination of the then prince regent. His personal ambition caused him to change his political affiliations frequently, making him unpopular with both the left and right wings of the Kuomintang.

Sun Yat Sen appointed Wang one of his chief assistants in 1911, a post which Wang retained until 1925. He was the leader of the left wing from 1927 to 1929. He turned politically to the right in 1[illegible] and joined Chiang Kai Shek, serving as president of [illegible] administrative council until 1935.

An attempt to assassinate Wang was made in 1935, and he nearly died as a result of the wounds. A second attempt was made in 1939 after he had become the puppet leader of Japanese-dominated China.

The Japanese radio announced that the Japanese Emperor posthumously awarded the Order of Crysanthemums to Wang. (OWI - BBC)

The two-pronged Chinese drive on Bhamo, in northern Burma, continued to make good progress today, as did the parallel drive by British troops along the Burma railway corridor. Today's SEAC communique announced new gains in the Chin Hills and Chindwin and Kabaw Valley sectors, while in Arakan, West African troops have taken up position near Paletwa in the Kaladan Valley.

Five Chinese divisions are now fighting beside the Indian, British, and American forces in northern Burma, Lieut. Gen. Daniel Sultan, commander of the newly-created Burma-India Theater, said today at his first press conference.

General Sultan revealed also that Allied advances in Burma have brought them to terrain where tanks are usable and these will soon go into battle against the Japanese.

ROME COMMUNISTS, SOCIALISTS DEMONSTRATE

ROME, November 12 — Rome Communists and Socialists joined today to celebrate the 27th anniversary of the Soviet Republic, gathering in a huge demonstration in the stadium atop Palatine Hill. Despite a chilly wind, the crowd, estimated by Allied observers at more than 10,000, remained in the stadium to listen to two hours of oratory.

The demonstration was a combined program run by Palmiro Togliatti, Communist Party leader who is also a Minister Without Portofolio, and the Socialist leader, Pietro Nenni. Workers from hundreds of factories marched under their own banners. Even the so-called «Catholic Communists» were in evidence with banners of their own.

Togliatti called the meeting «the greatest political manifestation ever held in Rome.» He adhered strictly to generalizations about the Communist Party's resolve to help wipe out the remnants of Fascism from Italy. Both he and Nenni paid long tributes to the achievements of the Red Army, but both made only cursory references to the other Allies, which provoked no applause.

The only other reaction from the crowd came when Nenni referred to «monarchy» and to «generals.» This elicited prolonged hoots and cat-calls.

There was not the slightest disturbance during the meeting. About 1,000 Italian policemen were present, but had nothing to do. (UNN) formal two-hour discussion, a communique from the French Provisional Government announced.

« The conference resulted in a far-reaching exchange of views in an atmosphere of great cordiality, » the communique said.

Radio Paris said today that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden paid tribute to the indissoluble ties linking Britain and France, and hailed the rôle played by General DeGaulle in the resurgence of the French nation. Mr. Churchill declared that the two nations have shared the fate of western Europe for so many years that they have become indispensable to each other. « It is a fundamental principle of British policy, » he said, « that the alliance with France should be unshakable, constant, and effective. »

Mr. Eden, paying tribute to the French leader, said that General De Gaulle not only had lifted his country from the depths of misfortune, but is leading it along the path to a glorious future. »

General DeGaulle declared: « We should not have seen a November 11 like today, if our old and brave ally, Britain, with all her dominions, had not, under the inspiring leadership of Mr. Churchill, displayed extraordinary determination to gain victory, and the magnificent courage which saved the liberty of the world. There is not a Frenchman or woman who is not deeply convinced of this. »

The whole French Press today hailed Prime Minister Churchill and described Anglo-French friendship as the cornerstone of liberty.

Typical of their tributes was that of the Populaire, which wrote: « The Franco-British Alliance was never broken. We want to send a message of admiration and gratitude to the British people. The whole world has contracted an eternal debt to those heroic men and those admirable women, because in 1940 they were alone, and because their calm courage saved the world. »

Commenting on the invitation extended to France to join the European Advisory Council as a full member, the newspaper Paris said: « Yesterday truly saw the resurrection of France. Coming at the moment when The United States, the Soviet Union, and Britain invited France to take her seat on the European Advisory Commission, the visit of the British statesmen has a high international significance. »

Front National said, « it means France will participate in the peace negotiations. »

Meanwhile the British press today welcomed the ascension of France to full membership in the council.

WALLACE PAYS TRIBUTE TO SUN YAT SEN

WASHINGTON, November 12 — Vice President Henry Wallace, on the 78th anniversary of the birth of the founder of the Chinese Republic, said today that Dr. Sun Yat Sen had bequeathed to China the principle of democracy and equality for which China and the United Nations are fighting.

« Not only China, but all her Allies owe Sun Yat Sen a mighty tribute, » Wallace said. « He was the teacher, almost the prophet, of the unity which is the very foundation of the United Nations. »

Admiral Harry Yarnell, former Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet, said that the « dynamic life of Dr. Sun was contemporaneous with the growth of China. It was he who believed in training the Chinese people in the use of democratic political processes in preparation for a genuine popular government. »

CHINESE ILLITERACY BEING WIPED OUT

NEW YORK, Noember 12 — Illiteracy in China is being gradually eliminated and the number of educational institutions is on the increase, Dr. Li Gwan Yuen, Professor of Chinese at Hunter College here, said today.

Dr. Yuen, who at one time was a Methodist mission teacher at Shanghai, said the Chinese war has brought pain and suffering, but, he added, « it has also brought a good thing — the challenge to Chinese students to think and use their initiative. »

He said that before the war China had 108 universities, with a total enrollment of 31,000 students. Now, he declared there are 133 universities with an enrollment of 58,000.

Dr. Yuen spoke at a conference on the Far East and Education, sponsored by the American Council Institute of Pacific Relations and the New York Association of Social Studies Teachers. (OWI)

REVIEW OF ITALIAN CAMPAIGN

ROME, November 13 — A spokesman for General Sir Harold Alexander, commander-in-chief of the Allied Armies in Italy, broadcasting over Radio Rome last night reviewed the Italian campaign. Here is the text of his broadcast:

The Battle of Italy has reached a stage when the time has come for stocktaking. The moment is an appropriate one for a survey of the situation. Winter is upon us, and there are certain constant factors in warfare, of which winter is one, which have the inexorable force of laws from century to century, whatever may be the new inventions at the disposal of a commander.

It will be a constructive contribution to an appraisal of the present situation of the campaign in Italy if we consider for a moment the events of the past few months, not only in Italy, but also in the rest of Europe: we must not forget the inter-dependence of the various fronts and their repercussions on each other. The objective of the Allied Armies in Italy was, and is, (i) to destroy the German divisions and (ii) to drive them out of Italy. That was, so to speak, the local objective. The objective, on the other hand, of those who are planning the war for the defeat of Germany from the larger standpoint of the map of all Europe, was to make it necessary for the Germans to keep as many troops as possible in Italy, in order that other and larger plans might have the greatest possible chance of success. These two objectives may seem, superficially, contradictory, but a second's thought makes it clear that they are not: the more vigorous the onslaught is, the more necessary are troops to meet it. To what extent both objectives were obtained can be measured by the facts: of 30 Germans divisions employed in Italy since May 11 last alone, when the Summer campaign started, 34,000 have been killed, 104,000 wounded, and 50,000 taken prisoner. Since the landing on the mainland of Italy, the Allies have advanced 500 miles up some of the most difficult fighting country in the world; at an average rate, not a very spectacular sounding one, it is true, of two kilometers a day. And from the larger point of view of pinning down German troops, there are still in Italy more than 20 German divisions, many of the highest quality, the strength of the Germans on this front being higher in proportion than anywhere else. These are troops badly needed for the defense of Germany itself on its Eastern and Western borders.

It must be counted as part of the fortunes of war that in the overall strategic picture, Italy's part should be one so immediately costly to herself as the pinning down of the enemy within her borders; but the drawing off of Kesselring's armies may well prove to have played a vitally important, if apparently subordinate role, in bringing the war to an earlier end than would otherwise have been the case. And it is a factor of which, no doubt, full account will be taken when reckoning is made of Italy's part in working her passage, as Mr. Winston Churchill put it, in national atonement.

The extent of the dependence of a local campaign on larger planning is well shown by the summer offensive in Italy which opened on May 11th, planned long before. To start with, it had an additional objective to those already mentioned:

And it is a factor of which, no doubt, full account will be taken when reckoning is made of Italy's part in working her passage, as Mr. Winston Churchill put it, in national atonement.

The extent of the dependence of a local campaign on larger planning is well shown by the summer offensive in Italy which opened on May 11th, planned long before. To start with, it had an additional objective to those already mentioned: to produce a first class victory over the Germans just before the Second Front was launched in Normandy, so that the invasion from the West could start off with the added impetous to morale of a new triumph of Allied Armies coming from another point of the compass. And as the world knows, the planning of the offensive culminated in the liberation of Rome two days before the Allies landed in France. The plans were carefully laid. The 8th Army was regrouped in secret and massed before the Liri Valley, so that the attack could be launched from Cassino with the maximum strength and the greatest possible element of surprise. The attack went in, and some days later the other arm of General Alexander's «double punch,» the 5th Army in the bridgehead at Anzio, in turn launched its attack at the moment when the Germans had drawn off forces to face the 8th Army threat in the Liri valley. Rome was liberated, and the Allies advanced on to Florence and approached the next great German defense line, the Gothic Line, stretching from Pisa to Rimini, the most formidable mountain line in Italy.

Here again the broader plans of the European picture made a regrouping of forces necessary: French and American divisions, with supplies and transport, had to be withdrawn from Italy for the operations in southern France: the success of which, in turn, gave aid to General Eisenhower's armies in the West. Nevertheless, the regrouping, again carried out secretly, met with success. The 8th Army moved quickly across to the Adriatic coast, broke through the Gothic Line; and again, following once more General Alexander's «double punch» tactics, the 5th Army struck north of Florence, when the Germans had withdrawn troops from the central sector to meet the attack along the coast. And the end of the summer campaign and the coming of the rain and the mud, and the filling of what had been dry river beds with torrents, finds the Allies nearing Bologna.

That, then, is the position of the armies in Italy. Now it must be remembered that at no time have the Allies had more than a slight superiority in numbers. Against their superiority in equipment and in the air must be weighed the fact that the country in which they have been fighting is the best possible for the defense and the worst possible for the attack. General Alexander's Armies have been fighting without rest since May 11th, fighting a stubborn enemy skillful in extricating himself from threatening situations; and they have now reached a stage where the tempo of battle is inevitably and inexorably slowed down by the coming of winter. No less than were Hannibal's elephants, tanks are hampered by rain and mud; and we cannot escape the fact that unless, for other reasons which involve the wider picture from the enemy's point of view, the Germans withdraw troops, the Allies' advance will be slowed down.

The tempo has lessened. And the slowing down of the tempo for the regular armies has a parallel slowing down in the ancillary activities of the Patriots who are playing their part in the campaign to destroy the Germans and drive them out of Italy. The Patriots, called upon to strike their hardest at the time when the Allies were advancing, responded nobly; harried the Germans, sabotaged communications, fought miniature battles which were of great value in hampering the Germans' defense plans; performed individual acts of bravery and carried out coups which brought commendation from the Commander in Chief and the praise of the world. The Patriots of Italy rose as did the Patriots of all Europe, to help drive the enemy from the country. They too now have another enemy to face, winter.

It is going to be a hard winter for the Patriots. The summer campaign has ended. They are going to be hard put to it for food and supplies, for winter affects not only local resources but also curtails drastically the dropping of stores by air; nights of weather in which it will be possible to fly will be few in the coming months, though the Allies will do their best to deliver supplies; and the larger groups will not be able to operate as much in the way that they have during the past months. Their motto for the winter is to lie low; and indeed these are the instructions to them issued from General Alexander's headquarters. They will conserve their ammunition, and keep their weapons oiled, and they will be right not to take unnecessary risks. "Targets of opportunity" they will of course take advantage of. Solitary Germans and Fascist spies who relax their vigilance will regret their lack of caution; and the special operations, instructions for which reach the Patriots by other means than leaflets and the Italia Combatte radio program, will continue to be carried out. Their intelligence work will go on, and anti-scorch precautions will be taken. But the summer season of open Patriot warfare is over, and the winter campaign of covert activity, preparation, and waiting is beginning.

The next phase of the campaign in Italy is now being planned, and it is for this that the Patriots, no less than the armies, will prepare. When the time comes the orders will be given; and the next phase will begin.

NEW SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO THE PATRIOTS

from General Sir H. R. Alexander, Commander-in-Chief Allied Armies in Italy.

Patriots, the summer campaign has ended and the winter campaign is beginning. The coming of the rain and the mud inevitably means a slowing down of the tempo of battle.

The instructions, therefore, to Patriots are as follows:

1. You will cease for the time being from large-scale organized activity.

4. This does not mean that you will neglect possibilities which come your way where the risk is not too great of destroying Germans and Fascists and sabotaging according to the general instructions you already have.

5. You will continue to collect intelligence about the enemy's movements and formations, possible intentions, placing of demolitions, etc. and report them to the appropriate quarter.

6. These instructions do not, of course, affect such operations as will be ordered by instructions given to certain of you by other means.

The motto is, then, to prepare, and to wait until the time comes for the next blow.

Finally, Patriot leaders will convey to their men my congratulations and deepest appreciation for their co-operation during the campaign of the past summer.

FIRST BERGAMOT OIL ARRIVES IN U.S.

NEW YORK, November 12 — Ninety thousand pounds of bergamot oil — the first shipment since the war — has recently been imported from Italy and will be sold domestically in the States, a Foreign Economic Administration announcement said today.

Bergamot oil is obtained from the rind of a citrus fruit called bergamot, and is used as a base for Eau de Cologne, lotions, and hair tonics. It is a valuable ingredient in the manufacture of soap.

No shipments of the essential oil had been received from Italy, the principal source of supply, since The United States entered the war.

The current shipment represents about a year's domestic supply in pre-war times. The United States obtained about 50 per cent of Italy's present total export supply, the remainder going to Britain and the Soviet Union. (OWI)

PONTE VECCHIO OPENED TO TRAFFIC

FLORENCE, November 12 — With the removal of debris from Via Por-Santa Maria and Via Guicciardini, traffic over the Ponte Vecchio has been resumed, it was announced here today.

In recent days, the Ponte Vecchio has undergone testing by the Arno floods, during which the water rose almost to the top of the arch. (UNN)

FOREIGN TELEGRAPH SERVICE REOPENED

ROME, November 12 — The reopening of telegraph service with The United States, Great Britain, Australia, India, South Africa, and United Kingdom colonies next Wednesday, was announced today by Post and Telegraph authorities here.

Telegrams must be written in Italian, English, or French. They may contain only information of a family or commercial nature, and are subject to restrictions already in force for postal correspondence with the above-named countries.

For non-European countries, only priority telegrams and lettergrams will be accepted; for European countries, only ordinary telegrams and lettergrams will be permitted. (UNN)

ROME SYNAGOGUE LIBRARY LOOTED

ROME, November 12 — The Germans looted the priceless library of the Rome Jewish community of more than 10,000 rare volumes, including irreplaceable first editions, and of countless thousands of manuscripts and other rare documents dating back to the Middle Ages, it was revealed today by Captain Jacob Hochman of Chelsea, Massachusetts, Jewish chaplain of the Rome Allied Area Command, in a radio broadcast to The United States.

Captain Hochman asked the people of America to begin gathering a library to replace the one stolen by the Germans during a systematic looting spree which began 13 October 1943.

The German looting had its usual paradox. Although the Jews are considered by the Nazis as inferior, the Nazis so highly valued the Jewish library that they assigned a German officer, who was a book and manuscript expert, to the task. He carefully supervised the looting and shipping, which was carried out by a special military squad. So valuable did the Nazis consider the library that they used the precious space of two freight cars to transport the loot to Germany.

Captain Hochman said in his broadcast:

new world which will ensure the abolition of war and establish permanent peace.

«I can assure you that during the week of the political campaign there was no interruption in war production and no slowing down in all essential war activities.»

«Generally speaking,» La Guardia said, «elections are a domestic issue which does not concern other countries. But this time the election of our President was of great interest to the oppressed peoples of the world. I am certain that the Italian people have in President Roosevelt a true and sincere friend.»

Pointing out that the elections had given further proof that the choosing of a government need not involve conflict and disorder, La Guardia declared that what Americans can do, others can do.

Referring to the opening of the parcel service from America to Italy, he said he was certain that existing restrictions would be removed as soon as military needs permit. (UNN)

WILSON CONGRATULATES ROOSEVELT

AFHQ, ITALY, November 12 — Messages exchanged between General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson and President Roosevelt were made public today.

General Wilson said:

«Once again, the American people have demonstrated their full and implicit confidence in your leadership. We of the Allied forces in the Mediterranean Theater, joined together in a common cause, extend to you, as Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of The United States, our sincere congratulations and best wishes.»

President Roosevelt replied:

CHURCHILL URGES POWERFUL FRENCH ARMY

PARIS, November 12 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill told a cheering audience in the Paris Town Hall today that Britain wants a powerful and well-equipped French Army as soon as possible to aid in re-establishing the stability of Europe. He hoped that the French would maintain internal solidarity and stability under General De Gaulle's Government, he said.

The British Premier spoke at a reception in his honor given by the Paris Liberation Committee, and was presented a large Nazi flag captured by resistance fighters from the Prefecture of Police building during the uprising which preceded the capital's liberation.

Mr. Churchill addressed the gathering in French, and prefaced his speech with the remark that this might put some strain on French feelings for Anglo-French friendship. A recorded version of his speech was subsequently broadcast by Radio Paris.

«This is the moment when all the forces of the nation must be directed to found the unbreakable greatness and authority of the great French nation, he declared. It is the moment for France to take her place among the great powers.

France could not afford anything which would upset her national life at a moment when all the nation's force must be put into the post-war reconstruction period.

One of the first acts of the Germans was to loot this collection completely and with the books they carried off a number of students. »

The chaplain reported that the community already had begun to restock the library, but thus far only a handful of books have been restored to the shelves.

Captain Hochman suggested that the people of America begin now to collect a library for the Rome Jewish community, to be shipped to Italy as soon as war conditions make it possible. (UNN)

ROOSEVELT A TRUE FRIEND OF ITALY

NEW YORK, November 12 — Speaking over the Voice of America program tonight, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, of New York City, told Italians that in President Roosevelt Italy has a true and sincere friend.

Although Mr. Churchill said he knew the desire of every Frenchman to take part in the remaining battles against Germany, the Prime Minister said that he could not promise a long war. It is possible, he said, that six months hence, the enemy will have been beaten.

Referring to Britain's sufferings under the « blitz » and France's sufferings under the « boche » yoke, Churchill said that if there had not been the English Channel, Britain would have been hard put to it to face 2,000 tanks without the necessary cannon. (OWI-Reuter)

CHURCHILL AND FRENCH CONTINUE TALKS

PARIS, November 12 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill today continued his talks here with leaders of the French Provisional Government. He was the guest of the French Foreign Minister, M. Immediately afterward, he paid a surprise visit to an Allied Expeditionary Forces Club at the Grand Hotel in the Rue Scribe, where soldiers of all nations were lunching.

DIDOT DISCUSSES GERMANY'S FUTURE

LONDON, November 12 — Germany must be neither enslaved nor dismembered after the war, but indefinite Allied control of her industries and resources must be imposed if her power to wage future war is to be destroyed, the French Foreign Minister, M. Didot, said today in an interview published in the The London Times.

Discussing France's future policy toward Germany, M. Didot said:

«Germany must not be enslaved, but she should never again be able to wage another war.

«The peace must be just and humane, not vengeful.

«I do not favor the dismemberment of Germany. Control of Germany will have to go on for years to come. France does not want any German territory or any German minority within her borders.

«France, as a direct neighbor, ought to have a privileged position in any system of international control of Germany, particularly of the Rhineland. I do not favor conversion of Germany into an agricultural country, but her industries and resources must remain indefinitely under Allied supervision.» (BBC)

«OUTLAW GERMAN CARTELS,» COMMITTEE SAYS

WASHINGTON, November 12 — The outlawing of German cartels was advocated as the first step in clearing the way for a new expansionist era in U. S. foreign economic relations, in a report by the Senate Military Sub-Committee today.

«The Germans already are deploying economic reserves throughout the world in preparation for a third attempt at world domination, and to crush German imperialism permanently, the structure and control of German industry must be so altered that it cannot serve again the purpose of war,» the report said.

«The monopolies and cartels which are the artery of supply of the Nazi system must be broken,» the report continued. «The punishment of 10,000 leading imperialminded German industrialists will be more effective than the punishment of millions of underlings.» (OWI)

HITLER PROMISES GERMANS ENDLESS WAR

LONDON, November 12 — Adolf Hitler tonight told the German people that so long as he remained alive and continued to wield power over the Reich, they could expect nothing but a continuation of the war.

In a proclamation read by Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler before a Nazi meeting in Munich on the anniversary of the 1923 Nazi beer-hall putsch, Hitler time and again referred to dissident elements inside Germany and to forces among the satellites which he said, were plotting to force German capitulation.

«If certain individuals among the defeated parties and classes ... in our Reich think that this is the time for them to rise again, they will live only to see their complete extermination,» Hitler said. «Betrayal after betrayal has beset our people. Again and again we have succeeded in getting our second wind and halting the enemy.»

Hitler explained his failure to speak personally to the German people on the grounds that «my work at headquarters does not permit my leaving for even a few days.»

On previous occasions, Hitler had spoken directly from his headquarters. His failure to speak personally tonight

Hitler referred again to the uprising of July 20, and said that the «unworthy ones had been expelled from the Party, State, and armed forces in order to bring about complete unity of views of the Party, People, State, and armed forces.» Nevertheless, Hitler added, «The consequences of that day have been bitter.»

The Reichsführer was particularly violent in his references to the Nazi satellites who had deserted the German alliance. He termed the leaders of those countries «mental and moral weaklings.» Their rulers he termed «degenerate and morbid dynasties.» He then added this bit of philosophy:

«If so-called statesmen and strategists are deluded into believing they can profit by capitulation in the historic life-and-death struggle, it merely confirms the age-old experience that at any given period, the earth cannot carry more than a limited number of geniuses.»

Capitulation, Hitler said, was not a «cheap escape from universal crisis,» but led only to the «inevitable annihilation of the nations concerned.»

He made no mention of the Italian, Bulgarian, Rumanian, and other troops marching against him under the banners of nations once allied to him. «In such states,» Hitler argued, «Bolshevism, chaos, and civil war will be only the first symptom of decay.»

«War Criminals» Lauded

Next, he said, comes the «extradition of the so-called war criminals, who are in reality the most valuable element of the nation, then the countless columns of men who followed them in the Siberian tundra, to die victims of the weakness of their state leadership.»

The military consequences of the satellites' desertions have been «heavy» for Germany, Hitler said. He drew solace from the fact that in a few isolated spots there are still quislings — such as Pavelic in Croatia; Tiso in Slovakia; and Szalasi in Hungary — who follow the Hitler banner.

«As long as I live, Germany will not experience the fate of other European nations who have been drowned by Bolshevism,» Hitler declared. «As long as I breath, my body and soul will be dedicated to the single idea of making my people strong in defense against this mortal danger.»

As for peace elements within the Reich, Hitler said: «If certain individuals among the defeated parties and classes, or other sections in our Reich, think this is the time for them to rise again, they will live only to see their complete extermination.» (OWI)

«VOLKSSTURM» SWEARS ALLEGIANCE TO HITLER

LONDON, November 12 — At rallies held all over Germany today, Volkssturm conscripts, ranging in age from 16 to 60, took the oath of loyalty to Hitler, the German news agency, Transocean, reported. The rallies were held in commemoration of the postponed Beer Hall putsch anniversary November 9.

A German news reporter at the Berlin parade, presided over by Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels, said that the Volkssturm men did not present a picture of military exactitude or elegance. They were assembled on Berlin squares, which had been cleared of ruins, and were dressed in uniforms of the Nazi Party, in uniforms of railroad and trolley car lines, or in civilian clothing with tin hats. Many carried a varied assortment of weapons, but others had no arms.

The German Home Guard army was told for the first time that they would be sent to the front lines wherever there was a crisis. Up to now, all German official spokesmen had stressed that the function of the Volkssturm would be

On previous occasions, Hitler had spoken directly from his headquarters. His failure to speak personally tonight raised once again the mystery of his whereabouts. He has not made a public appearance since his dramatic midnight broadcast following the alleged attempt on his life July 20.

Himmler, who read the proclamation tonight, is said by some observers to be the real power in the Reich, and to have replaced Hitler as the head of the Nazi Government.

Military Reverses Admitted

Hitler's manifesto dated the beginning of Germany's military reverses from the admitted Russian break-through on the Don in November, 1942. From that time on, he said, the Nazi setbacks and the successive withdrawal of the satellite countries from the German side have had « grave consequences » for the German people.

Hitler admitted that a « period of trials » confronts Germany, but the only salvation he could hold out to his people was the hope that the hour will come for the Almighty to bless us the same as in previous times. »

The United Nations, he argued, aimed at the destruction and extermination of the German people. He said that Bolshevism was working hand-in-hand with Democracy to bring revolution to all of Europe.

The war, Hitler declared, is a struggle for the preservation of the German people against the « objective of our enemies' annihilation and extermination of our people and therefore, the end of our existence. » argued, « Bolshevism, chaos, and [illegible] first symptom of decay. »

« War Criminals » Lauded

Next, he said, comes the « extradition of the so-called war criminals, who are in reality the most valuable element of the nation, then the countless columns of men who followed them in the Siberian tundra, to die victims of the weakness of their state leadership. »

The military consequences of the satellites' desertions have been « heavy » for Germany, Hitler said. He drew solace from the fact that in a few isolated spots there are still quislings — such as Pavelic in Croatia; Tiso in Slovakia; and Szalasi in Hungary — who follow the Hitler banner.

« As long as I live, Germany will not experience the fate of other European nations who have been drowned by Bolshevism, » Hitler declared. « As long as I breath, my body and soul will be dedicated to the single idea of making my people strong in defense against this mortal danger. »

As for peace elements within the Reich, Hitler said: « If certain individuals among the defeated parties and classes, or other sections in our Reich, think this is the time for them to rise again, they will live only to see their complete extermination. » (OWI)

« VOLKSSTURM » SWEARS ALLEGIANCE TO HITLER

LONDON, November 12 — At rallies held all over Germany today, Volkssturm conscripts, ranging in age from 16 to 60, took the oath of loyalty to Hitler, the German news agency, Transocean, reported. The rallies were held in commemoration of the postponed Beer Hall putsch anniversary November 9.

A German news reporter at the Berlin parade, presided over by Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels, said that the Volkssturm men did not present a picture of military exactitude or elegance. They were assembled on Berlin squares, which had been cleared of ruins, and were dressed in uniforms of the Nazi Party, in uniforms of railroad and trolley car lines, or in civilian clothing with tin hats. Many carried a varied assortment of weapons, but others had no arms.

The German Home Guard army was told for the first time that they would be sent to the front lines wherever there was a crisis. Up to now, all German official spokesmen had stressed that the function of the Volkssturm would be to defend their own hearth and plot of land. These untrained men of 60 and boys of 16 will be thrown into battle on the eastern and western fronts against veteran Allied soldiers with superior weapons.

Revealing Germany's defensive position to his Volkssturm listeners, Goebbels said:

« The enemy who has advanced to our frontiers believes that, with the mass of material and his apparently almost inexhaustable manpower reserves, he will be able to crush the Reich. We are determined to impose a wall and a high price. The German national is determined to defend the Reich not only in the German homeland, but also at the front wherever the enemy may succeed in breaking through. »

A Dresden paper published November 5 quoted the Volkssturm staff leader of Saxony, SA Brigade Leader Rabe, as declaring:

« No dispensations will be granted and no medical examination will take place. The degree of fitness of a Volkssturm member is irrelevant, and people suffering from heart disease and physical handicaps can well carry out auxiliary armed services. It is not important whether every Volkssturm man is given weapons.

« Youngsters aged 16 to 18 will undergo four weeks of training in military training camps, and will undergo a further four weeks' training in their home districts. Their leaders must be fanatical Germans who fight on to the very last.»

The Stockholm paper Aftonbladet reported on November 5 that recruits for the Volkssturm were examined by labor board officials and that two battalions which were sent to the Hungarian front had received only six days of training.

A New York Times correspondent in Stockholm said in a dispatch today that Himmler's Volkssturm is regarded as a grim jest, because of the scraps and left-overs of mankind on which it depends. There are not enough rifles on hand to supply half of the men.

In Austria, the dispatch said, a number of drafted Volkssturm members deserted, taking with them the weapons they had been given. In East Prussia, droves of Volkssturm men have surrendered as soon as they had an opportunity, the Times dispatch said, while others have deserted and are hiding in the woods.

Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Volkssturm, spoke at a rally in Munich, Gauleiter Koch talked in Insterburg in East Prussia, and SA Chief of Staff Schepman held forth in Danzig, the German news agency said. (OWI)

SWISS APPROVE MINISTER'S RESIGNATION

LONDON, November 12 — The resignation of the Swiss Foreign Minister, Marcel Pilet Golaz, was greeted with satisfaction from the Left and Progressive parties in Switzerland, Reuter reported today. The Foreign Minister resigned after the Soviet Government had rejected the Swiss request to resume diplomatic relations.

The correspondent said that the Swiss reaction to the Soviet rebuff was quite different from what had been expected outside the country. The Social Democratic parties in Switzerland had been attacking the Swiss Foreign Department and its head, Pilet Golaz, since he had assumed the post of Foreign Minister in 1940. He was accused of unnecessarily favoring the Germans, and of strictly adhering to Swiss neutrality in the case of the Allies.

An accusation was made against the Foreign Minister as late as last September of deliberately slowing the negotiations with Russia and also in slowing the resumption of more friendly relations with the Allies as a whole, the Reuter report said.

The Russian rejection of the Swiss request, the dispatch continued, was blamed not on the Russians, but on the Foreign Minister by the liberal and the left press.

SWEDISH PRESS APPROVES PROTEST

STOCKHOLM, November 12 — Swedish press editorials this morning expressed approval of the Swedish Government's protest against Germany's declaring the Baltic a war zone, a Reuter dispatch from Stockholm said today.

«The protest has caused the greatest satisfaction,» Morgontidningen said. Most of the papers said that if the Swedish Government heeded the German declaration, the most immediate result would be a curtailing of Swedish food shipments to Finland. (PWB)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 12 — Today's communique:

Allied forces attacking in the Metz-Nancy sector continued to make progress. Our armored units advanced to Haboudange, seven miles northeast of Château-Salins, and infantry elements are clearing Gerbercourt, on the eastern edge of the Forêt de Château Salins.

Southeast of Metz, the villages of Bechy and Tragny have been freed and our units reached Remilly and Han-sûr-Nied.

In the Hürtgen sector, our forces west of Schmidt are making progress in clearing out pillboxes against heavy mortar and machine-gun fire.

Fighter-bombers supporting our ground forces in the regions of Nancy, Château Salins, Metz, Thionville, and Montenach heavily attacked strongpoints, gun positions, tanks, troop concentrations, and motor transport. Medium bombers attacked strong-points and gun concentrations northeast of Aachen.

Other medium bombers attacked rail bridges at Sinzig, Euskirchen, Ahrweiler and Mayen. Fighter-bombers went for rail targets in Germany around Gelsenkirchen, Trier, Euskirchen and Cologne.

Transportation targets in Holland were attacked by fighter-bombers and rocket-firing fighters, with rail tracks, bridges, and trains as principal targets. Three bridges at Wörden, Zwolle, and Rijkerk were attacked, and rail bridges, chiefly in the areas of Utrecht, Arnhem, Zwolle, and Zutphen, were cut. Loaded trains in the Amersfoort area were successfully attacked. Other targets were lock gates at Sneek and ferries on the lower Rhine and Maas Rivers. Medium bombers went for rail targets at Oldenzaal and Roermond.

Two enemy aircraft were shot down and eight of ours are missing.

Heavy bombers escorted by fighters attacked synthetic oil plants yesterday afternoon at Castrop Rauxel in the Ruhr. None of our aircraft is missing from this operation.

In the Lunéville-Bruyères area, gains were made at many points, and several small towns have been occupied. Our troops reached the Meurthe River between Raon L'Etape and Saint Dié.

Farther south, the Forest of Mortagne and Vomaniale de Champ have been virtually cleared of the enemy.

In the Vosges heights, our positions were improved.

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 12 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

British troops of the 8th Army have forced a small Bridgehead across the Canale Nuovo against strong resistance.

In the 5th Army sector, troops of an Indian division have captured Monte Pompegno, an important feature southwest of Modigliana.

Elsewhere, activity has been confined to patrolling and exchanges of artillery fire.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th Air Force yesterday attacked rail targets and an airfield in Germany, Austria, and northern Italy.

Tactical Air Force medium bombers bombed road and rail bridges feeding into the Italian battle areas, with excellent results.

Montenach heavily attacked strongpoints, gun positions, tanks, troop concentrations, and motor transport. Medium bombers attacked strong-points and gun concentrations northeast of Aachen.

Other medium bombers attacked rail bridges at Sinzig, Euskirchen, Ahrweiler and Mayen. Fighter-bombers went for rail targets in Germany around Gelsenkirchen, Trier, Euskirchen and Cologne.

Transportation targets in Holland were attacked by fighter-bombers and rocket-firing fighters, with rail tracks, bridges, and trains as principal targets. ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 12 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

Snow in many of the mountainous districts of northern Italy has limited large-scale Patriot and enemy activity. Attacks by small isolated Patriot groups are continuing, especially against German traffic in the Val Padana.

On October 14, Patriots of a division operating in Piedmont blew up a German vehicle near Borgomanero by means of a pressure mine. The enemy lost 20 men dead and wounded.

In a clash near Cirie, in Turin Province, one German was killed and three wounded. Other Patriots captured a Fascist captain near Rivarossa.

On November 4, the Germans surrounded the Cavour Lyceum at Turin, arresting the students to put them to forced labor. A number managed to escape and joined Patriots in the outside zone.

The total mobilisation of all men up to 60 years of age, ordered by the Germans in the provinces of Trieste, Udine, and Gorizia, has provoked open encounters between the population and the Nazi-Fascists. (UNN)

NEWS FROM ENEMY SOURCES

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, November 12 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

From Holland, our troops report heavy attacks by combat planes, as well as incessant enemy movements in the area of Nijmegen and Helmond, effectively countered by our artillery.

On the eastern fringe of the Hürtgen Forest, our panzers and grenadiers drove the North Americans out of a strong-point into which they had previously penetrated; they encircled an enemy formation whose liquidation is at hand.

Our divisions yesterday again successfully countered the attempts of the American 3rd Army to bring about the fall of the Metz fortress by strategic encirclement. Enemy attempts to widen this bridgehead between Königsmachern and Sierck were repulsed.

On the southwest border of Lorraine, northeast of Nomeny and Château-Salins, enemy spearheads could only gain ground at heavy cost against the bitter resistance offered by our divisions. Determined German resistance accounted for 79 tanks and armoured vehicles. All enemy attempts to widen his penetrations sidewards were frustrated partly in grim hand-to-hand fighting.

Fighting activity has diminished in the Western Vosges.

The enemy made weak and unsuccessful thrusts against the eastern fringes of the fortress of Lorient after his call for capitulation had remained unanswered.

The retaliatory fire against London has continued.

Italy:

In Central Italy, heavy fighting is raging for the possession of Forli.

Persisting under violent enemy artillery fire, our infantry frustrated enemy attempts to break through its defensive positions south of Forli, and held its ground on both sides of the town against strong armoured attacks.

Eastern Front:

In successful fighting we consolidated our positions between northern Macedonia and central Syrmia.

In Hungary, north of the Cegled-Szolnok railway-line and in the area of Mezoekövesd, the Soviets resumed their offensive on a broad front with strong infantry and armed formations. German and Hungarian formations are engaged in heavy fighting with the advancing enemy.

Up to now, 54 enemy tanks were knocked out.

Air:

The Ruhr and the central Rhine region were daylight targets of Anglo-American terror bombers. There were casualties mainly in Cherlahnstein and Wuppertal-Barmen.

Air attacks in southeast Germany hit mainly the residential quarters of Salzburg. In the early evening, British terror planes dropped bombs on greater Hamburg and Dortmund, causing considerable damage to buildings. The anti-aircraft artillery of the Luftwaffe and nightfighters accounted for 31 Anglo-American aircraft, including 24 four-engined bombers. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Hitler's Manifesto Read to the German Nation. Whilst the series of shameful capitulations by Germany's ex-allies prove that their present statesmen and soldiers lack spiritual and moral greatness; but they also acted out of stupidity, not realizing that they were signing their own death warrants, along with those of the nations, they represent. « Chaos, civil war, and Bolshevism in these countries will be followed by the handing over of 'war-criminals' — an unending column of men setting out on the road to Siberia and death, as victims of their own leader's weakness... »

This warning is meant for Germany as it was for Italy, Hungary, Slovakia, and Croatia, where people gathered to defend their respective countries under the leadership of Mussolini, Szalasi, Tiso, and Pavelic. « Our greatest ally... » Hitler went on, « Japan, from the first day looked upon this fight in its true light... »

Hitler then turned to the consequences of the treachery committed by Germany's allies. « In spite of this... » he declared, « the enemy's hopes to take advantage of the situation have not materialized. They have been stopped every-where and all the enemy can hope for is an internal stab-in-the-back... »

Referring to the attempt on his life, Hitler said that as long as he was alive, Germany would not suffer the fate of other European states, flooded by Bolshevism.

Then he reiterated the story of how he came into power and how, ever since, he had possessed the nation's confidence. However, he was deeply touched when, after the events of July 20, the Army, Navy, and Air Force assured him of their loyalty. After having expelled the unworthy few, unity became complete in Germany.

Subsequently, the enemy gathered all his strength in a vain attempt to overrun Germany. That this attempt has been frustrated is due to the bravery of the armed forces as well as to the heroic attitude of the home front, which fully justifies the National Socialist idea.

Hitler next turned to himself, expressing his belief that Providence had chosen him to save Germany and set an example to generations to come. He is confident that the German nation will follow him loyally, and that the period of trials will eventually end in victory.

He ended the manifesto by saying that the aims for which the martyrs of 1923 had died were still the same, and that the peoples of Europe are marching in the shadow of Germany, whose destiny is that of Europe. « The future of all nations which consider themselves European, abhorring Bolshevist barbarism, is being decided now. »

Goebbels's Speech: In an address to newly sworn in members of the Volkssturm, Goebbels declared that Germany was proving to the world that she still had millions of men ready to fight, not only at the front but also at home. Resurrection of spirit and realization of what is at stake have made Germans bear military setbacks with fortitude. When the enemy disclosed his plans to destroy her, the whole nation rose, determined to defend the land, street-by-street, house-by-house, if necessary. Goebbels announced that three months ago the Führer had instructed him to raise several new divisions. These divisions are now in action, magnificently trained and equipped, determined to defend the liberty and future of Germany. In the next three months, there are to be many more divisions following in their footsteps. « The enemy must admit », Goebbels continued, « that the German nation has once again taken a firm stand. » The enemy is trying to belittle the Volkssturm, but in East Prussia, at any rate, he has seen « that every inch of ground he has occupied is soaked with streams of blood. » Goebbels assured the British and the Americans that they would have similar experiences in the near future. After praising the men of Berlin for having responded to the call so magnificently, he concluded his speech by expressing his agreement with Churchill's assertion that the last round would be decisive; he is certain that Germany will win this last round, with her last breath, if necessary.

Millions of Germans in the Volkssturm: Whilst the actual number of Volkssturm members cannot be disclosed,

GERMAN

Hitler's Manifesto Read to the German Nation: Whilst millions of men of the Volkssturm were sworn in all over Germany to-day, in Munich SS Leader Himmler read out Hitler's manifesto at a belated celebration of the 1923 Coup. « The requirements of an all-out war-effort, » the manifesto began, « induced me to postpone the commemoration of November 9 to the following Sunday... My duty of preparing and executing measures necessary for final victory comes before that of delivering speeches. » Then Hitler turned to a favorite theme namely that Germany's enemies, inspired by international Jewry, and after having plotted her destruction for several years, came out in the open and forced this war upon her.

« We have no other war aim than the preservation of our people, by securing the future of our nation. » Bolshevism, assisted by the democracies, is trying to frustrate this aim by destroying the National Socialist movement, thus destroying the Reich itself. The democracies do not realize that they are digging their own graves by aiding Stalin, although there are many statesmen who clearly see the Bolshevik menace. Nevertheless, unless there is a strong European power to organise resistance against Bolshevism, these scattered efforts will never suffice to save Europe. Germany was the first nation which succeeded in gathering the peoples of Europe into one family and this fact should give her courage to carry on the fight to a victorious conclusion.

However, he was deeply touched when, after the events of July 20, the Army, Navy, and Air Force assured him of their loyalty. After having expelled the unworthy few, unity became complete in Germany.

Subsequently, the enemy gathered all his strength in a vain attempt to overrun Germany. That this attempt has been frustrated is due to the bravery of the armed forces as well as to the heroic attitude of the home front, which fully justifies the National Socialist idea.

After praising the men of Berlin for having responded to the call so magnificently, he concluded his speech by expressing his agreement with Churchill's assertion that the last round would be decisive; he is certain that Germany will win this last round, with her last breath, if necessary.

Millions of Germans in the Volkssturm: Whilst the actual number of Volkssturm members cannot be disclosed, owing to security reasons, said Transocean, it may be stated that their number already runs into many millions. Forty-two per cent of them volunteered before being called up. In Berlin they parade in the ruined, shattered squares. They have no standard uniforms, but many of them possess rifles and even machine-guns and automatic pistols. Goebbels, however, assures them that they will all soon have modern weapons. The text of the oath they had to take was as follows: « I swear before God to be unconditionally loyal to the Führer of Greater Germany, Adolf Hitler; to fight bravely for my fatherland, and to die rather than forsake the liberty and future of my people. »

Western Front: Transocean's war correspondent Gerhard Emskötter warned Germans not to under-estimate the offensive launched by the American 3rd Army. Although its gains are out of proportion with the losses suffered, German troops have had to abandon certain strongpoints in Lorraine so as to keep the line intact.

War reporter Günther Weber stated that General Eisenhower has largely completed his preparations to begin « the battle of five millions » on Germany's western border. This seems imminent in spite of the heavy losses suffered by the Canadian 1st Army in Holland and the American 1st Army in the sector of Aix-la-Chapelle.

Eastern Front and Italy: There is hardly any German comment regarding fighting on these fronts.

ALLIES PREPARE FOR ADVANCE INTO GERMANY

LONDON, November 9 — Russia, the United States, and Britain, poised on the threshold of the inner fortress of Germany, will be called on in the next few months to muster every resource of their strength and power to crush completely the desperately resisting Nazi armies, Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today in an address at the Lord Mayor's luncheon.

The past eight or ten weeks have witnessed two bitter and costly struggles — one in the Apennines, the other in Holland — which « are only a prelude to further great operations which must be conducted in the months to come, » the Prime Minister asserted.

In northern Italy the « terrible barrier » of the Apennines and the Goth Line has been surmounted, he said, and the Allies now stand on the Valley of the Po, despite extremely bad weather conditions, despite « strongly fortified mountain

The swift Anglo-American advance through France and Belgium « enabled the Americans to sweep the enemy from France, aided by the audacious and gallant Maquis, and also enabled the British to clear the Channel coast, to drive the enemy out of Belgium, and a large part of Holland, » Churchill declared.

Now, he said, long supply lines have slowed up the Allied push, and the enemy, « falling back on his own territory, is able once again to form a front. » He asserted that the best indication of this strategic change in the battle picture is in the fighting on the Moselle front, where the Americans « came up against a hard core of recovered enemy resistance. »

« A pause in the Allied advance was inevitable, » the Prime Minister said, « but during the last two months, the bringing up of supplies and reinforcements and the improvement of the harbors have been the main preoccupations of the Supreme Allied Command, apart from the heavy fighting I have spoken of on the Moselle front. »

While the year 1943 was a year of successes, with the clearing of Africa, Sardinia, Corsica, and one-third of Italy, Mr. Churchill declared, those victories have been far surpassed by Allied gains this year. Rome, Athens, Paris, Brussels, and Belgrade have all been liberated, he pointed out. All Hitler's satellites have turned against him, and some are now fighting in the Allied camp.

Those who were driven into the Axis camp against their honor, their interests, and, in many cases, against their inclinations, « have had a chance to turn upon their slave driver and may now wreak the vengeance which is due them, » he added.

While in the east and west Allied vanguards stand on German soil, « the U-boat menace has been for the time being practically effaced, » the Prime Minister revealed. « There was one month in recent months in which up to the last day they did not sink a single ship, and on the last day they got one. »

A « hail of fire and explosives of ever-increasing fury » is falling on the German homeland, Churchill said. While the English people have also suffered air attack, he added, « we have not suffered one-tenth, and we shall not suffer one-tenth of what is being meted out to those who first started and developed this cruel and merciless form of attack. »

« Such are the proofs of 1944, » the Prime Minister summed up. « No one can be blamed — provided he does

WAR FRONTS

ALLIES PREPARE FOR ADVANCE INTO GERMANY

LONDON, November 9 — Russia, the United States, and Britain, poised on the threshold of the inner fortress of Germany, will be called on in the next few months to muster every resource of their strength and power to crush completely the desperately resisting Nazi armies, Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today in an address at the Lord Mayor's luncheon.

The past eight or ten weeks have witnessed two bitter and costly struggles — one in the Apennines, the other in Holland — which « are only a prelude to further great operations which must be conducted in the months to come, » the Prime Minister asserted.

In northern Italy the « terrible barrier » of the Apennines and the Goth Line has been surmounted, he said, and the Allies now stand on the Valley of the Po, despite extremely bad weather conditions, despite a strongly fortified mountain line, and despite all that the Germans could do with « an army practically as large as our own. »

These operations in northern Italy have cost the Allies nearly 50,000 casualties, Churchill said.

The Netherlands campaign has opened up the Scheldt, and soon will place the great port of Antwerp at the disposal of the northern flank of the Allied armies, the Prime Minister pointed out. From here, he said, the Allies will « presently move into Germany for the final struggle. »

Early Meeting with Stalin, Roosevelt

The Prime Minister, reflecting the determination of the Allies to carry through the war to final and complete victory, anticipated an early conference again between Roosevelt, Stalin, and himself. The prospect of such a meeting has been vastly improved by President Roosevelt's reëlection, he said.

« It is high time that we had another triple conference, » he added.

« Such a meeting might easily add to the end of the sufferings of mankind and set an end to fear and destruction which are now wrecking the world. »

resistance. »

« A pause in the Allied advance was inevitable, » the Prime Minister said, « but during the last two months, the bringing up of supplies and reinforcements and the improvement of the harbors have been the main preoccupations of the Supreme Allied Command, apart from the heavy fighting I have spoken of on the Moselle front. »

While the year 1943 was a year of successes, with the clearing of Africa, Sardinia, Corsica, and one-third of Italy, Mr. Churchill declared, those victories have been far surpassed by Allied gains this year. Rome, Athens, Paris, Brussels, and Belgrade have all been liberated, he pointed out. All Hitler's satellites have turned against him, and some are now fighting in the Allied camp.

Those who were driven into the Axis camp against their honor, their interests, and, in many cases, against their inclinations, « have had a chance to turn upon their slave driver and may now wreak the vengeance which is due them, » he added.

While in the east and west Allied vanguards stand on German soil, « the U-boat menace has been for the time being practically effaced, » the Prime Minister revealed. « There was one month in recent months in which up to the last day they did not sink a single ship, and on the last day they got one. »

A « hail of fire and explosives of ever-increasing fury » is falling on the German homeland, Churchill said. While the English people have also suffered air attack, he added, « we have not suffered one-tenth, and we shall not suffer one-tenth of what is being meted out to those who first started and developed this cruel and merciless form of attack. »

NEW U.S. CROSSINGS OVER SEILLE, MOSELLE

SHAEF, November 9 — American 3rd Army troops have made several new crossings over the Seille and Moselle Rivers, it was announced late tonight. American forces moving up from the south have gained three miles and taken nine towns.

Over 750 prisoners were taken in yesterday's drive, and press dispatches reported tonight that several hundred more have been captured. American losses were officially described as small. (OWI)

RESISTANCE SOUTH OF MEUSE ENDS

SHAEF, November 9 — The last German pocket south of the Meuse River in southwest Holland at the base of the Moerdijk bridges was wiped out by Polish troops who blew a path through concrete defense barriers, it was announced late tonight. More than 350 German prisoners were taken.

The Allied armies now hold a continuous and unbroken line all along the south bank of the river, the report said. (OWI) not slacken his or her efforts — for hoping that victo[illegible] will come to the Allies and that peace may come to E[illegible]rope in 1945.»

Commenting on the elections in The United States, Churchill said:

«The United States has set an example to the world of how democratic institutions can be worked with the utmost vigor and freedom without injury to the permanent interests of the state... I am sure everyone will have been moved by the spirit and sportsmanlike manner in which Governor Dewey... offered his congratulations to his opponent, and pledged himself and his party to work wholeheartedly for the world cause.

«What a model this should be to those states where political differences are often not soluble by words or votes, where the question of who is to be in and who is to be out may be one of life and death, to be settled by violence or intrigue, and where there may be but a short gap between being ruler and being victim.»

Churchill said that «on personal grounds» President Roosevelt's reelection gave him «great joy,» since his «wartime and intimate coöperation with President Roosevelt will be continued in the months that lie immediately ahead of us.» (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

TWO-PRONGED ATTACK ON FORLI'

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 9 — Striking from the south and the southeast, two infantry and armored columns of the 8th Army yesterday began to converge on Forli, capital of Romagna Province, bitterly defended by German forces for more than a week, it was announced here today.

In their slow, hard-fought advance, the two 8th Army forces have already overcome German resistance in the outskirts of San Martino in Strada, key outpost position of the enemy defenses south of Forli, and have crossed the Re Dei Fossi Canal to drive the enemy from all but the extreme northern tip of Forli's airfield, official reports declared.

Infantry and tank forces closing in on Forli from the south are already less than a mile and a half from the town's outskirts, while British armored columns were reported to be within 500 yards of the village of Bussecchio, just west of the airfield and about a mile and a half from the southeastern edge of the Po Valley town.

British troops forced a crossing of the broad drainage canal which forms the eastern boundary of the Forli Airfield in a night attack Tuesday, and in savage fighting throughout the night and early morning, overran strong enemy positions along the canal's bank and in ruined administration and hangar buildings farther west.

Before daylight, a second British infantry and armored attack moved against the southern edge of the field, and, after a fierce engagement with German infantry supported by Mark VI Tiger tanks, battered its way across the airfield to its western outskirts and continued on to near the village of Bussecchio.

An enemy strong-point 1,000 yards southwest of Bussecchio was also captured. According to latest reports, the Germans hold only the extreme northern tip of the Airfield, just south of the main Po Valley Highway.

The attack against German positions to the south of Forli was launched simultaneously with the drive which swept the enemy from their airfield outpost defenses. Following the east bank of the Rabbi River, tank and infantry forces, supported by heavy artillery concentrations, smashed through strong German resistance south of San Martino in Strada, and then captured this village and pushed on north.

Southwest of the main battle area around Forli, Polish [illegible] rapidly, the British at the hing[illegible]re slowly and against more concentrated enemy resistance.

North of the Village of Ronco, the 8th Army front has remained practically static since heavy rains and swollen rivers have inundated the lowlands south of Ravenna. Enemy main forces have concentrated behind the line of the Ronco, and farther north, on the far side of the combined mouths of the Ronco and the Montone Rivers, some five miles or so from Romagna's second principal town.

Renewed thunderstorms in the mountains of the 5th Army's difficult and stubbornly-defended front yesterday hampered operations and prevented any change in the general situation, official reports said.

Most significant development yesterday was the capture, by Negro troops of the American 92nd Division, of the mountain villages of Fabbiano and Basati, some nine miles due north of Viareggio in the Serra River Valley. These mountain positions are four miles west of Massa, large town on the edge of the Ligurian coastal plain.

Heavy artillery and mortar fire exchanges marked the front south of Bologna, with particularly heavy fire concentrated in the area of Monte Grande and Monte Cerere, some 5½ miles southwest of Castel San Pietro.

These peaks are some two miles south of the foremost American positions as described two weeks ago. Other areas in which German defensive fire was concentrated were near Carviano, 1½ miles east of the German strongpoint of Vergato in the Reno River Valley southwest of Bologna, and opposite Casola Valsenio, in the Senio River Valley, south of Imola.

A number of patrol clashes were reported in the coastal sector, south of Massa, where the enemy have been using dominating positions in the hills fringing the coast to lay down heavy fire on the main west coast highway. (PRO)

PATTON HURLS TWO BRIDGEHEADS OVER MOSELLE

SHAEF, November 9 — General George Patton hurled three new divisions across two Moselle River bridgeheads north of Metz this morning as three other infantry divisions continued their advance over rain-sodden ground on a 25-mile front north of the flooded Seille River.

The American 3rd Army's new offensive to cut off the embattled German stronghold at Metz was supported by more than 1,300 Flying Fortresses and Liberators which synchronized their attack with over 500 dive-bombers sweeping in at unusually low levels to pinpoint their targets in the Metz area. In the classic pattern of the Normandy breakthrough at St. Lô, a crushing weight of bombs was dropped on selected objectives likely to impede the advance of the ground forces.

After a gain of up to three miles yesterday and taking 16 towns, American 3rd Army forces continued their northward drive and occupied Cheminot, on the western end of the snow-covered front and on the main military highway leading to Saarbrücken.

Weather continued unfavorable to the offensive with low clouds and rain reported. Tanks of the U. S. 4th Armored Division advanced four miles today and are fighting in the vicinity of Delme, on the road linking Metz with the Nancy-Strasbourg highway.

Although the Germans were resisting with artillery and mortar fire, they have not yet recovered from the initial shock of the assault and no organized counter-thrust has been made. As yet, there has been no enemy armor barring the American advance.

Over 5,500 rounds of shells from artillery guns ranging from 75 millimeters to 240 millimeters were hurled into a single division area in one hour before the attack was launched yesterday.

Southwest of the main battle area around Forli, Polish troops yesterday made considerable gains on both sides of the Montone River, capturing the small town of Dovadola, on Highway 67 10 miles southeast of Forli, and engaging enemy forces west of the river in the area of Monte Gattone, 1,000 yards west of the town. Fighting in the Dovadola area was reported to be heavy, and the German forces were ousted from the little town itself only after sharp street battles.

Farther east, between the Montone River and its tributary the Rabbi, the enemy forces were withdrawing without much fighting, concentrating in the vicinity of Castrocaro, four miles northeast of Dovadola and also on the Florence-Forli Road. Foremost Allied troops in this sector were reported to be on Monte Burra, six miles southwest of Forli.

The 8th Army front has been steadily moving northwest along the 10 mile-long sector southwest of Highway 9, the main traffic artery along the southern edge of the Po Plain. Hinged at the village of Ronco on the Emilia Highway, it is slowly closing shut on the German forces south of this road and west of Romagna's capital, and flattening out the sagging bulge of German resistance in the hill country just south of the Po Valley. Polish forces at the extreme west of this closing door have moved most in which German defensive fire was concentrated were near Carviano, 1½ miles east of the German strongpoint of Vergato in the Reno River Valley southwest of Bologna, and opposite Casola Valsenio, in the Senio River Valley, south of Imola.

A number of patrol clashes were reported in the coastal sector, south of Massa, where the enemy have been using dominating positions in the hills fringing the coast to lay down heavy fire on the main west coast highway. (PRO)

3rd Army Divisions Identified

It was officially announced today that the six divisions taking part in the American 3rd Army offensive are the 80th, 42nd, 35th, 26th, 19th, and 5th Infantry Divisions, and the 4th Armored Division.

General Courtney Hodges' American 1st Army opened a small, local offensive in the triangle formed by the towns of Vossenack, Schmidt, and Kommerscheid, which the Germans retook yesterday after a tank and infantry attack. Some gains were reported against strong German opposition south of Vossenack. Other gains were made southwest of Hürtgen, while enemy pockets were being mopped up west of the German held town of Schmidt.

In Holland, Polish and American troops, under the command of the Canadian 1st Army, fought their way through German concrete defenses and are fighting in the streets of Moerdijk, terminal of two bridges across the Meuse River. Other forces have cleared the area east of the town.

Above the Swiss border, the Allied 6th Army Group, including the U. S. 7th Army and the French 1st Army, scored limited gains despite bad weather as they continued to push toward the Vosges Mountain passes leading to the Rhine and southwestern Germany (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

AMERICANS GAIN ON LEYTE DESPITE HURRICANE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 9 — The U.S. 24th Infantry Division gained extensively on a wide front here today, breaking a deadlock imposed by a tropical hurricane and Japanese hill positions, a communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said tonight.

Americans seized commanding terrain on important hills east of the road leading through the Ormoc Valley, as concerted bombing and artillery attacks fired large areas in Ormoc itself.

« Ormoc's usefulness to the enemy as a supply base has been greatly reduced, » the communique said.

An earlier Associated Press dispatch had reported the « restricting of all operation » for both sides because of a tropical hurricane. The storm, some of the most difficult terrain in the Pacific, knee-deep muddy roads, and elements of a crack Japanese division were the four enemies that U.S. forces faced on the dripping ridges and flooded rice paddies that made up the Pinamopoan battlefield.

The weather favored the enemy, the dispatch said, but the small forays carried out by the Japanese against American holdings on the Carigara coast in north Leyte indicated that enemy supplies on the Ormoc Road had bogged down for the Japanese as well as for the Americans, according to Maj. Gen. Fred Irving, commander of the 24th Division.

General Irving said also that some « Long Tom » artillery had been bulldozed far enough into the hills south of Jaro to shell Ormoc.

A Pacific Fleet announcement from Pearl Harbor said today that a series of new U.S. air attacks were carried out against enemy airfields in the Volcano, northern Marianas, Palau, Marcus, and Marshall Islands. Wake Island also came in for a bombing and strafing attack.

Eleven enemy planes, attempting to raid Saipan and Tinian Islands in a night attack on Tuesday, were repulsed. Three planes were lost by anti-aircraft fire. No damage or casualties were caused, the announcement said. (OWI)

RED ARMY MAKES SLIGHT GAINS AT BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, November 9 — Tonight's Soviet communique announced slight gains in the Budapest sector with Red Army troops fighting their way into 50 towns between the Tisza and Danube Rivers.

Press dispatches filed here stated that Red Army forces are being massed from the Arctic to the Danube for what Marshal Joseph Stalin described as the decisive offensive against the vital centers of Germany.

In Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito's communique announced that German resistance has started to crumble in their pivotal positions in western Serbia after the loss of 3,000 soldiers in three weeks of fighting.

Another German force, vainly defending the Knin in Dalmatia, faces annihilation as it is completely cut off from contact with other German units. It was attacked by Allied ground and air forces today as it fought to break through the encircling ring and escape to the north.

The Soviet communique announced tonight that 100,000 German officers and men had been killed on the 2nd Ukrainian Front during offensive battles from October 6 to November 6. Over 900 German tanks and self-propelled guns, as well as 3,400 armored trucks and transports, were destroyed during this period. The Germans also suffered the loss of 55 railway trains, 750 railway cars, and 10 ships. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

B.A.F. INCREASED TO HARASS TRAPPED GERMANS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 9 — The Balkan Air Force, under command of Air Vice Marshal W. Elliot, has been expanded to become the largest RAF unit in the Mediterranean in order to strike at 100,000 German troops now trapped in Yugoslavia, it was announced today.

The estimate of the size of the German force that is trapped is the highest figure yet given officially. The announcement emphasized that these troops, under command of General Von Weich, are still well-disciplined, although hard-pressed for transport.

Most of the large German force is the remnant of the German occupation army in Greece and the Aegean islands, and is now concentrated in the mountain area northeast of the line between Scutari and Podgorica, partly in northern Albania and partly in southern Yugoslavia.

These enemy forces have been subjected to heavy and relentless air attack, from Spitfires to Liberators and Halifax heavy bombers, with the immediate aim of disorganizing them and destroying their equipment and transport, so that they will be at the mercy of Partisan ambushes and winter rigours, it was said.

The German forces, which have increased as additional units make their way through guerrilla bands to join them, are attempting to battle their way toward Sarajevo, important railway hub of Yugoslavia and, if possible, on beyond the closing noose drawn by Russian and Partisan inroads, before snow falls on the tortuous mountain passes.

Farther north in Yugoslavia, there are 250,000 other German troops which must eventually fall back to the frontiers of Austria.

The German forces caught south of Belgrade are now without either communications or supplies from the forces to the north, since Balkan Air Force and other bombers have destroyed the few rail routes. Rolling stock has been largely destroyed by persistent strafing attacks, taking each day a mounting toll, and motor vehicles also have been consumed in the fiery attrition from the air. (PRO)

DETAILS OF R.N. ATTACK ON SCARPANTO REVEALED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 9 — Details of how a daring attack by three British destroyers against formidable German land batteries hastened the enemy evacuation of the Island of Scarpanto, lying between the Isles of Rhodes and Crete in the Aegean, were revealed today by a Royal Navy announcement.

The announcement told how the three destroyers, HMS Laddedale, Zetland, and Brecon, all of the Hunt class, swept in single file into heavily defended Pegadia Bay and opened up at 1,000 to 2,000-yard range with all their guns. An Island caique, covered with camouflaged netting, was the first objective hit, and exploded so violently that it must apparently have contained munition stores.

A camouflaged blockhouse was also blown up with a direct hit, and, after firing over 500 rounds, the vessels

R.A.F. HEAVIES HIT YUGOSLAVIA BY DAY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 9 — Heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force, now being employed in daylight attacks, struck at German traffic concentrations along the Balkan escape route through Yugoslavia in three forces yesterday, following attacks by Liberators of the 15th USAAF, it was announced here today.

The RAF attacks were aimed at German troops and transport columns believed to be waiting in the town of Novi Pazar, 120 miles northeast of Scutari, at vehicle concentrations in Stanica, Yugoslavia, and at a bridge at Visegrad, Yugoslavia. Heavy clouds obscured the target area at Novi Pazar, and results were unobserved.

Medium bombers yesterday attacked enemy communications in northern Italy, with Marauders claiming six rail and road bridges cut in the areas of Milan, Venice, and the Brenner Pass route, while Mitchells bombed six other rail targets, including the East Mantua Bridge, 65 miles northwest of Bologna, a temporary structure erected by the enemy after Mitchells had destroyed the original structure last July.

Bombers and Kittyhawks of the Desert Air Force concentrated their support in the area between Forli and Faenza on the 8th Army front, where enemy gun positions, strong-points, and troop concentrations were hit for the third time in recent days.

Halifax heavy bombers, with the immediate aim of disorganizing them and destroying their equipment and transport, so that they will be at the mercy of Partisan ambushes and winter rigours, it was said.

The German forces, which have increased as additional units make their way through guerrilla bands to join them, are attempting to battle their way toward Sarajevo, important railway hub of Yugoslavia and, if possible, on beyond the closing noose drawn by Russian and Partisan inroads, before snow falls on the tortuous mountain passes.

FORTRESSES HIT METZ; HANOVER IS BOMBED

LONDON, November 9 — As more than 1,300 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th USAAF, escorted by over 500 fighters, pounded German front line positions in the Metz area today, Royal Air Force Lancasters struck at objectives in the Ruhr Valley close behind the German lines.

This followed up a night attack by RAF Mosquitos against the industrial city of Hanover. The target was not disclosed. The RAF lost two bombers, while the Mosquito sortie was made without loss.

Another 200 Thunderbolts and Mustangs under adverse weather conditions strafed and dive-bombed transportation and ground targets around Saarbrücken in the area between Stuttgart and Giessen. Thus a total of more than 2,000 8th USAAF planes took part in today's operations.

Fighter pilots reported destroying or damaging 61 locomotives, 227 railway cars, 65 motor vehicles, five airplanes on the ground, five half-tracks, two flak emplacements, two barges, a military barracks, a railway station, a factory, a roundhouse, a radio tower, a hydro-electric plant, a warehouse and a railroad switch tower.

No enemy interceptors were encountered, and anti-aircraft fire generally ranged from light to moderate. Fourteen Allied bombers and 19 Fighters have not yet returned, but are believed to have landed on friendly territory.

Nineteen of 42 American fighters previously reported missing from yesterday's operations over Germany, are safe and others are believed to be safe in friendly territories.

Rocket-firing Beaufighters and Mosquitos from the Australian and Norwegian squadrons of the RAF Coastal Command today attacked a German convoy off the Norwegian west coast, setting fire to two medium-sized merchant ships in Midtgulen Fjord. Three other small ships and a flak boat were damaged.

Other Typhoons of the 2nd TAF yesterday attacked a suspected German headquarters and mortar position in the forest of Reichswald, southeast of Nijmegen. Another Typhoon squadron fired 48 rockets at a railway station and factory at Weeze, south of Goch. Two fires were started in the factory.

Radio Chungking said today. The Allied forces have Shwegu, and hold a 10-mile strip along the Irrawaddy River.

This drive is being coördinated with two other southward thrusts into enemy-held territory, one by a Chinese force down the Myitkyina-Bhamo Road, and a second by the British along the Myitkyina-Mandalay railroad.

There are now 750,000 British and Indian troops fighting the Japanese in Burma, Air Marshal Sir Philip Joubert said yesterday. They have so far inflicted a larger number of casualties on the Japanese than any other force in the Pacific.

Meanwhile, bombers of the 14th USAAF blasted the Kowloon docks on the China coast opposite Hong Kong on Tuesday, according to Press reports, while forces ranging over the Salween from near the China-Burma border bombed and strafed enemy positions southwest of Lungling.

Other press reports said that Japanese forces driving west in the Kwangsi Province of China have captured Hsuijen, nearly 200 miles west of Canton. They also launched a violent attack on the eastern, northern, and western suburbs of Kweilin, where heavy fighting is still in progress.

The Chinese High Command communique on Thursday said that, while the Japanese advance continued in the southern Kwangsi province, the Chinese had repelled four assaults on their positions astride the Hunan-Kwangsi railway 36 miles to the northeast. (OWI-BBC)

WEDERMEYER HAS CONFIDENCE IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, November 9 — Major General Albert C. Wedermeyer, in his first interview since his arrival here to succeed General Joseph Stilwell, described the military situation in China as unfavorable, «but not irretrievable.»

He disclosed that his command of American forces embraced French Indo-China as well as China, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek as Supreme Allied Commander, and said he had come to China to serve with the Chinese and to do everything possible to bring the most effective employment of Allied power against Japan.

«An initial survey,» he said, «leads me to believe that we should not be pessimistic.» The Allies had the strategic initiative on all fronts, as they did not have two years ago, he added.

He said that General Douglas MacArthur's success in the Philippines had made a very important contribution to the China theater, and that within a fortnight or month, General McArthur would be able to operate on a large scale from Leyte and Samar. (OWI)

FORTRESSES HIT METZ; HANOVER IS BOMBED

LONDON, November 9 — As more than 1,300 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th USAAF, escorted by over 500 fighters, pounded German front line positions in the Metz area today, Royal Air Force Lancasters struck at objectives in the Ruhr Valley close behind the German lines.

This followed up a night attack by RAF Mosquitos against the industrial city of Hanover. The target was not disclosed. The RAF lost two bombers, while the Mosquito sortie was made without loss.

Another 200 Thunderbolts and Mustangs under adverse weather conditions strafed and dive-bombed transportation and ground targets around Saarbrücken in the area between Stuttgart and Giessen. Thus a total of more than 2,000 8th USAAF planes took part in today's operations.

Fighter pilots reported destroying or damaging 61 locomotives, 227 railway cars, 65 motor vehicles, five airplanes on the ground, five half-tracks, two flak emplacements, two barges, a military barracks, a railway station, a factory, a roundhouse, a radio tower, a hydro-electric plant, a warehouse and a railroad switch tower.

No enemy interceptors were encountered, and anti-aircraft fire generally ranged from light to moderate. Fourteen Allied bombers and 19 Fighters have not yet returned, but are believed to have landed on friendly territory.

Nineteen of 42 American fighters previously reported missing from yesterday's operations over Germany, are safe and others are believed to be safe in friendly territories.

ALLIES CAPTURE FORT WHITE IN BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, November 9 — Allied troops have captured the strongly-contested Japanese stronghold of Fort White, on the Tiddim-Kalemyo Road in Northwestern Burma, after two days of heavy fighting, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced from his headquarters here today.

Fort White is eight miles southeast of Kennedy Peak, the fall of which was announced by Allied headquarters on Tuesday, and about 15 miles southeast of Tiddim the main base from which the Japanese launched their abortive invasion of India last year. Kalemyo lies about 15 miles beyond Fort White.

The BBC said today that Fort White fell to an outflanking move by British and Indian troops, and that the advance is already four miles beyond this stronghold.

West African troops, the communique revealed, are making steady progress in a second thrust towards Kalemyo. Further up the Chindwin River, other West Africans are attacking the Japanese only a mile from the river.

American-led Chinese troops have now liberated 475 square miles of northern Burma from the Japanese in their renewed drive southward from recently captured Hopin, southern Kwangsi province, the Chinese had repelled four assaults on their positions astride the Hunan-Kwangsi railway 36 miles to the northeast. U.S. CASUALTIES PASS HALF-MILLION MARK

WASHINGTON, November 9 — Secretary of War Henry Stimson reported today that American Army and Navy casualties as of October 23 had reached a total of 509,195 an increase of 21,593 over a week ago, which covered the period through October 21.

Stimson said that part of the increase is due to revision of the system handling individual casualty reports, intended to bring the casualty figures more up-to-date.

United States Army casualties were listed at 437,356, an increase of 20,235 since last week. Of this total, 84,811 were killed, 243,054 wounded, and 55,011 missing. American soldiers taken prisoner numbered 54,480.

Navy casualties — 1,268 more than last week — included 28,599 killed, 29,442 wounded, 9,311 missing, and 4,487 prisoners — a total of 71,839. (OWI)

ROOSEVELT TAKES MICHIGAN: DEMOCRATS GAIN 27 SEATS IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, November 9 — Belated returns tonight from the heavy labor vote in industrial Wayne County, Michigan, swung that state and its 19 electoral college votes into the column for President Roosevelt.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, defeated Republican Party candidate, had received a huge majority in Michigan which on Tuesday seemed certain to put that state in his column. The tide, however, began to turn in favor of President Roosevelt when late returns began to come in yesterday. Early this evening, Dewey's majority began to dwindle and by 2300 hours Rome time tonight, Roosevelt had a 10,000 popular-vote lead to capture the state.

Thus, the President has carried 36 states for a total of 432 electoral votes. The strength of the labor vote in Michigan cut Dewey's electoral vote to 99. Michigan had voted for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican candidate, in the 1940 Presidential election.

According to complete returns from 93 per cent of the nation's election districts, President Roosevelt is assured of a three-million popular-vote plurality over Dewey. With tabulations completed in 120,286 of 139,790 election districts, Roosevelt received 23,976,717 votes, and Dewey, 21,002,748.

Despite the overwhelming victory by Roosevelt in this election, Dewey made the strongest showing of any Republican candidate who opposed Roosevelt since his first Presidential campaign in 1932. Dewey received a greater electoral vote and carried more states than either Wendell Willkie in 1940, Alf M. Landon in 1936, or Herbert Hoover in 1932.

Willkie received 82 electoral votes and carried 10 states; Landon, eight electoral votes and only two states — Maine and Vermont; Hoover received 59 electoral votes and carried six states in his unsuccessful bid for reelection.

There were nearly 45 million votes cast in The United States and 3½ million votes by the armed forces — a total vote nearly as large as that in 1940, when The United States was not at war.

Congress Supporting Administration

The voters Tuesday also assured President Roosevelt of a Congress designed to support his program for a quick and victorious ending of the war, and an international post-war policy aimed at preventing future wars. This confidence in the President was contained in gains by the Democratic Party in the House of Representatives and by coöperate wholeheartedly with other nations in actively maintaining the peace that is to follow.»

Leaders of many of the United Nations expressed complete approval of the American voters' choice in messages to President Roosevelt today. Typical of the praise accorded Roosevelt was a cablegram from Madam Chiang Kai Shek, who said that the American people, by returning Roosevelt to a fourth term, have recognized the President's «vision and passionate concern for the common man.»

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in a speech yesterday, in London, said that President Roosevelt's reëlection had vastly improved the prospect of an early conference again between Roosevelt, Stalin, and Churchill. He said Roosevelt's continuance in office gave him «great joy» on personal grounds.

While post-election fervor continued at a pace almost equal to the hectic closing moments of the long campaign, the candidates settled down to their important duties of government.

Governor Dewey returned to his office in Albany, capital of the State of New York, to catch up on his administrative tasks. President Roosevelt prepared to leave tonight or tomorrow morning for Washington from his family home at Hyde Park, New York. (OWI - Reuter)

LABOR PLAYED GREAT PART IN U.S. ELECTIONS

NEW YORK, November 9 — American newspapers today credited organized labor, notably the Congress of Industrial Organizations through its Political Action Committee, with getting out a large part of the vote for President Roosevelt.

A New York political writer credits the American Labor Party and the Liberal Party (Minority political organizations) with being «the balance of power that swung the state's [New York] 47 crucial electoral votes to the President.» (OWI)

«It testifies to the harmony that animates the citizens of the great Republic at a time when the supreme interests of the country and public welfare exclusively demand it.»

This confidence in the President was contained in gains by the Democratic Party in the House of Representatives and by a strong majority in the Senate.

The Democrats won 27 new seats in the House and maintained control of the Senate by returning 57 Democrats to the higher branch of Congress — the same number as in the current Congress.

When the new Congress begins its sessions next year, there will be at least 241 Democrats in the House, 184 Republicans, one Progressive and one member of the American Labor Party. Eight House seats were still undecided up to late returns tonight. The Republicans appear to have lost 28 seats, the Progressive, one seat, and the Farmer-Labor party its lone representative.

In the Senate, there will be 57 Democrats, 36 Republicans, and one Progressive. Two Senatorial races are still undecided.

The American press, including many newspapers which opposed Roosevelt for reëlection, continued today to cement the unity of the nation behind the only man who has ever been elected President of The United States for more than two terms. An editorial in The New York World-Telegram, which twice supported and twice opposed Roosevelt in his Presidential campaigns, illustrated the quick healing of the preëlection breach, by asserting in an editorial:

"The coming four years will bring American victory in war, and must bring American victory in peace. Roosevelt, his prestige enhanced by the election, is cast for a role of supreme importance on the world-wide stage... We will

U.S., CANADIAN PLANS ADOPTED FOR DISCUSSION

CHICAGO, November 9 — Proposals by Canada and The United States for a permanent international air authority were adopted yesterday as a basis for discussion by a sub-committee of the International Civil Aviation Conference.

Although adoption does not constitute approval of the proposals, it provides that each sub-commitee designate a basic document for debate, affording the conference the most detailed and best organized statements of the problems to be considered.

The proposal for international ownership and management of international civil aviation advocated by Australian and New Zealand delegates was formally rejected at yesterday's session.

A proposal that a world air authority be created to own and operate transport aircraft on trunk routes also was rejected yesterday, leaving the conference with three other plans for a multilateral aviation convention and an international aeronautical body. These plans were submitted by The United States, The United Kingdom, and Canada.

The issue of unrestricted competition for world air service versus controlled competition remains one of the big problems of the conference — with the U. LIBERATED ITALY

1,200 MILLION LIRE FOR PUBLIC WORKS

ROME, November 9 — Public Works Minister Pietro Mancini announced yesterday at a meeting of the Council of Ministers that 1,200 million lire had been set aside for the construction of roads and bridges of military importance.

In the interim period between the liberation of the southern Provinces and the return of the Government to Rome, the Ministry spent 400 million lire for completed works, and appropriated 1,057 million lire for projected works.

This expenditure had been incurred chiefly, said the Minister, by repairs to roads of military importance, war damage repair of the most pressing nature, and communal first-aid intervention in the Provinces of Naples and Salerno necessitated by the Vesuvius eruption.

A fund of 500 million lire to be used in the repair of damaged houses and the construction of temporary dwellings has been allotted. Works costing 232 ½ million lire are in progress, out of which 168 ½ million lire have been allocated to the construction of these temporary buildings. Of these, 14 groups are now being constructed in the 12 communes of the Provinces of Rome, Frosinone, and Littoria, which have suffered most from the war.

Work of a first-aid nature — such as the clearing of ruins, the demolition of dangerous buildings, and the reopening of road communications — continues. For this, 1,500 million lire have been allotted for war damage and 233 million for the destruction caused by the Vesuvius eruption. (UNN)

ALLIED POLICE SMASH SECOND HOODLUM GANG

ROME, November 9 — The smashing of a second gang of hoodlums which was responsible for a series of crimes between this city and Naples, was announced today by the Provost Marshal of the Rome Allied Area Command

With the arrest recently of a group of eight men — reported to be deserters from the American and Canadian Armies in Italy — police were prepared to close out a list of crimes that ranged from petty larcenies to kidnapping of Military Police.

Allied and Italian police worked in close coöperation for several weeks while arresting two and three members of the gang at a time. In all, several traps were laid by police which led to the arrest of the gang. At the same time it was also announced that several stolen military vehicles were recovered together with a wide variety of fircarms and a large sum of money.

Two weeks ago, police officials announced the capture of a gang of 14 persons, including one woman, which was headed by a man identified as Ivan Mateslk. MOYNE ASSASSINS MEMBERS OF « STERN GROUP »

LONDON, November 9 — Foreign Minister Anthony Eden today gave the House of Commons the facts, — as far as they are known — regarding the recent assassination of Lord Moyne, British Minister to the Middle East, in Cairo. Mr. Eden said Cairo reports told of a confession by the two assassins that they were members of a secret Jewish terrorist organization, who had come to Egypt from Palestine with the express purpose of murdering Lord Moyne, Mr. Eden said:

« Tuesday last the Prime Minister undertook to inform the House as soon as he received fuller details about the assassination of Lord Moyne. It now has been reported from Cairo that the two prisoners have made the following confession: 'We are members of the Fighters for Freedom of Israel organization, and what we have done was on instructions from this organization.'

« The organization is that known as the 'Stern Group,' and the prisoners stated they were sent down by this group for the express purpose of murdering Lord Moyne. The reason they give is that he was the head of the political department of the British Government in the Middle East.

ROME, November 9 — Women representatives on trade unions and factory committees on the basis of proportional representation were asked today by the Union of Italian Women. A memorandum was submitted by the union to the Italian General Confederation of Labor.

Formation of an office within the IGCL to be composed of women whose task would be to study, coördinate, and promote activities pertaining to the defense and protection of women and child labor, also was called for in the memorandum. (UNN)

600 ITALIAN ART WORKS STOLEN BY GERMANS

ROME, November 9 — More than 600 art works from Florence art galleries and museums have been carried off by the Germans as loot for delivery to Germany, said Dr. Modestino Petroziello, Director General of Fine Arts in a radio broadcast over Radio Rome tonight.

Officers of the SS told the Superintendent of the Florence art galleries that the seizure of Italian art works was ordered directly by Himmler, said Dr. Petroziello.

Among the works carried off are many of the most valuable masterpieces of the art galleries of Florence.

Included among these are the famed statues of Niobe and Venus dei Medici, and also some of the famous paintings of Botticelli, Raphael, Titian, and Caravaggio.

Experts of the Allied Commission and of the Italian Ministry of Public Education have proof that 12 of the most renowned paintings, including works of Titian and Bruegel the Elder, were stolen by orders from Göring to the German Consul at Florence and Colonel Langsdorf, head of the «German Art Protection Service» in Italy, said Dr. Petroziello.

Recalling the decision taken by the Congress of Vienna in 1815 calling for the restitution of artistic treasures carried off by Napoleon, Dr. Petrozielio asked for the return to Italy of Italian art works arbitrarily appropriated by the Germans for themselves and an indemnity for any damage suffered by them. MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 9 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Southwest of Forli, British troops of the 8th Army have been engaged in heavy fighting, and have made progress against the most determined resistance.

Farther west, Polish troops of the 8th Army have made considerable gains on either side of the River Montone, and have occupied a number of important features.

The town of Dovadola, on the Florence-Forli Road, was captured after a sharp engagement.

In the western coastal sector, Negro troops of the 5th Army have captured the villages of Fabbiano and Basati.

In the remainder of the 5th Army sector, activity was confined to patrolling and artillery exchanges.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Troop concentrations in Yugoslavia were again attacked yesterday by heavy bombers of the 15th AAF, while RAF heavy and medium bombers attacked roads and bridges in Yugoslavia.

Medium bombers of the Tactical Air Force attacked enemy communications in the Po Valley area of northern Italy.

Fighters and fighter-bombers were active against close-support targets, rails, and bridges near the battle ground.

From these operations, six of our aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew approximately 1,400 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 9 — Today's communique:

On Walcheren Island, Allied forces have freed Vrouwenpolder. Only a few pockets of resistance are holding out, and mopping up continues.

Gains have been made against very heavy resistance southwest of the town of Hürigen.

West of Schmidt, enemy pockets are being mopped up.

In the Seille Valley, our units made gains east and northeast of Nancy after an artillery preparation yesterday morning. The following towns northeast and east of Nancy have been freed: Aulnois sûr Seille, Mailly sûr Seille, Fresnes En Saulnois, Malaucourt, Jallaucourt, Moncourt, and Bezange.

Between Nancy and Metz, nine enemy command posts were bombed and fighter-bombers supporting our ground forces in the area east of Pont à Mousson bombed gun positions and troop concentrations.

North of Baccarat, the enemy has been cleared from Migneville. Gains have been made in the wooded area west of St. Dié, and we have taken the village of Les Baroques.

Several enemy counter-attacks were repulsed in the Vosges Mountains southwest of Gerardmer.

Eight enemy aircraft were shot down and two destroyed on the ground in tactical air operations yesterday. Seven of our aircraft are missing.

Yesterday morning, heavy bombers attacked the synthetic oil plant at Homberg in the Ruhr. Fighters escorted the bombers and flew supporting sweeps. From this operation one bomber and one fighter are also missing. (OWI - Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 9 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

In the Padana Valley, acts of sabotage against the principal railway and highway communications have been intensified.

In Romagna, Patriot activity behind German lines continues. According to information to hand the Patriots of this sector have for some time been taking effective action against the Nazi-Fascists.

A Garibaldi Brigade participated in these activities which started last September and which have forced the Germans to protect highways with large forces withdrawn from the front. Elements of this brigade attacked and burned four German vehicles in the vicinity of Valpiano. The fire was spotted by Allied bombers who flew low to machine gun the German motor column on the highway, destroying other trucks. Patriots also exploded a munitions depot at Buggiana.

Following mopping-up attempts on the part of the Nazi-Fascists, clashes took place in the Provinces of Aosta, Treviso, and Alessandria.

It may now be revealed that in the middle of September, the Mazzini Brigade, moving from Monte Grappa to the Asiago sector, inflicted severe losses on the enemy. Some 850 German wounded were taken to the Vicenza and neighbouring hospitals.

According to an enemy admission, which is far below the truth, in one year the Fascist Republican Guard suffered the following losses against Patriots: 1,906 killed and 2,524 wounded. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRERS HEADQUARTERS, November 9 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

The brave garrison of the bridgehead of Moerdijk again yesterday frustrated repeated attempts by enemy tank formations to break through and to cut off the German forces from the Meuse River.

Along the entire front in Holland, strong enemy formations of fighter-bombers were active all day.

From the two sectors flanking Aix la Chapelle, increased enemy artillery fire and lively firing of smokescreen shells is reported. As on the previous day, an attack on Würselen failed again yesterday.

Our tanks and grenadiers continued to mop up the area of Kommerscheidt. Counter-attacks by North-American battalions were beaten back with heavy losses to the enemy, although he had strong air support. Numerous prisoners were again taken; several German soldiers were liberated from captivity.

The defensive battle along the frontier of Lorraine is raging over a 50-kilometer-wide front between Pont à Mousson and the Rhine-Marne Canal. Owing to determined German resistance, American divisions were able to penetrate into only a few of our main positions. At other places, especially to the northeast of Pont à Mousson, they were repulsed with heavy losses, whilst west of Château Salins, they were thrown back by counter-attacks.

Grim fighting is in progress in the area of Marsal. Further attacks on the upper Meurthe yesterday resulted in only slight local gains for the enemy.

Italy:

In the eastern part of the Etruscan Apennines and in the adjacent Adriatic sector, formations of the British 8th Army launched major attacks after a formidable artillery barrage.

In the mountains north of Rocca San Casciano, the enemy's advance was checked by our artillery.

In the plain of Forli, the enemy succeeded in denting our front and in crossing the Ronco. The enemy bridgehead was smashed by our troops in a counter-attack.

Aegean:

The Garrison of the Aegean Island of Milos, composed of units of the Navy and the Army, expelled the enemy troops from the island on which they landed supported by a British Naval unit, after several days of hard fighting.

Eastern Front:

In the course of our movements in the Balkans, the Strumitza Valley was evacuated as scheduled.

GERMAN

Goebbels Article: The German Radio tonight broadcast the text of the weekly article by the German Minister of Propaganda. Its most striking feature was its effort to show the German people that a burdensome war, even at its worst, has certain consoling qualities and brings certain improvements to a nation: war removes many social prejudices; war will shape and strengthen the «reconstruction of the future people's state;» war is a melting pot from which a new élite will emerge; war makes both people and nations show themselves in their true light without «deceiving masks.»

German Fortitude in Adversity: The other outstanding trend of the Goebbels article was the praise and encouragement of German fortitude in adversity, the admitted adversity being seen as a sort of bracing and tempering ordeal of fire, from which the survivor will emerge stronger than ever. This German fortitude was contrasted with a presumed lack of firm national character on the part of the defaulting satellites:

«In innumerable and extremely hard tests, the German people has proved that it has the maturity needed for this century. In this respect, it differs most admirably from other nations, which lack this maturity and which for this reason are gradually sinking into the abyss of a dark future. However, the virtue of German steadfastness is not only the result of our more stable national character, but also the result of the more logical and socially more fruitful structure of our state and social life.»

America's Elections: The German Home Radio, continuing its propaganda trend of claiming to champion the small countries against the Allies, gave the following bitter commentary on the connection between the American elections and the more diminutive of the United Nations:

«Britain's political circles are pleased that the presidential elections in America are over, and that there is no longer any need to bother about the Poles, the Czechs, or the Italians. Up to the time of the elections, Anglo-American policy had to consider the feelings of the smaller nations, as they were represented in The United States by strong minorities who were important in the elections.»

Military Strategy: Von Olberg sees the Russian strategy as being: to pause briefly for a concentration of forces and then to launch a vast «winter offensive» against East Prussia and Poland. Sertorius predicted a similar large-scale offensive on the western front, with the present drive of the American 3rd Army in Lorraine as a mere «preliminary.» All in all, German sources were conceding that the usual «winter lull» will not recur this winter.

There was, first, the attempt to discredit and neutralize the authority of the Crown Prince and the value of his words. Fascist Amnesty Deadline: Mussolini's period of grace for Fascist defaulters comes to an end at midnight tomorrow, November 10. The bait apparently has been failure, in that tonight, as every night for the past 10 days, the lists of the redeemed were conspicuously small in number. An average of a hundred a night have reportedly « seen the light. » Threatened punishments for the recalcitrant were repeated, but in a minor key.

Fascism an Unvanquished Ideology: One lengthy essay tonight attempted to prove that the vitality and very existence of Fascism is so persistent that the Allies have not and will never succeed in uprooting it. It was illustrated that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden (who reported to the House of Commons that, despite firm Allied methods, there still exist clandestine Fascist elements in Italy) is merely indulging in stubborn bravado in his summary of the Italian situation.

Italian Communists Hostile to Christian-Democrats: Pegging their analysis on the fact that the Christian-Democratic Party has sent telegraphic congratulations to President-elect Roosevelt, the Fascist commentators concluded that the gulf between Communists and Christian-Democrats has widened. The reason is, supposedly, that the Communists consider the Christian-Democrats as the « chief representatives of Jewish capitalism, » and therefore reactionaries.

BRITISH TROOPS OF 8TH CAPTURE FORLI'

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 10 — British infantry and armored forces of the 8th Army after fierce fighting yesterday captured the town of Forli, capital of Romagna Province and nearly half-way along the Po Plain from Rimini to Bologna, it was announced here today.

Infantrymen of the Hampshire and Highland Regiments, [illegible] Forli early yesterday

Forli and even when dislodged, staged a stubborn, day-long stand just outside Forli until their comrades evacuated the town.

After the Germans fell back Wednesday night, British forces advanced in two major thrusts against Forli itself. They first captured the Forli military barracks, little over a mile east of the town on Highway 9, and then circled round to the north to seize the railway station. The second column advanced along the main Po Valley Road and entered the town itself, past the town square to the Porta Garibaldi, at the capital's western edge by the Montone River.

With the capture of Forli, the 8th Army now holds a line along the Montone River southwest to Dovadola, and northeast of Forli, roughly along the line of the Ronco River to its point of junction with the Montone near the sea.

This front, 30 miles in length, stretches five miles south of Ravenna southwest into the low hills bordering the Po Plain south of Faenza, and puts 450 square-miles of the southeastern end of the Po Plain in Allied hands. Allied forces are now only 37 miles from Bologna along the Emilia Highway, and with Forli, have captured two of the string of a dozen large towns and cities strung along this major highway between Milan and Rimini.

British Straighten Line

British troops yesterday swept back the last organized German resistance east of the Montone River along the 10-mile stretch southwest of Forli, to straighten out the sagging enemy line in this sector.

British troops occupied the village of Sandurano, one mile southeast of the German strongpoint of Castrocaro, five miles southwest of Forli on the Florence-Forli Road, and then pushed on to the river.

Farther south, enemy troops gave up exposed positions, including Monte Bora, west of Dovadola, under the pressure of Polish patrol forces. Northeast of Forli, enemy forces also withdrew from Borgo Sisa, a hamlet on the right bank of the Ronco River, five miles above the Emilia Highway. Heavy artillery exchanges took place on this sector.

Troops of the British 5th Corps took about 250 prisoners in the day's fighting preceding the entry into Forli, official reports said. One of the enemy prisoners, a soldier of the 356th German Infantry Division, was quoted as declaring that when men of his battalion were ordered forward to hold positions against the 8th Army advance, they found British troops already in possession. The Germans broke formation and fled.

On the 5th Army front, only patrol clashes and minor engagements were reported yesterday.

On the coastal sector, American Negro troops of the 92nd Division occupied the villages of Azzano, Terrinca, and Levigliani, two miles north of Serravezza, and three and four miles northeast, respectively. The capture of these mountain villages represents gains of more than a mile by the[illegible] troops

BRITISH TROOPS OF 8TH CAPTURE FORLI

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 10 — British infantry and armored forces of the 8th Army after fierce fighting yesterday captured the town of Forli, capital of Romagna Province and nearly half-way along the Po Plain from Rimini to Bologna, it was announced here today.

Infantrymen of the Hampshire and Highland Regiments, supported by Churchill tanks, entered Forli early yesterday morning, after strong forces of enemy troops and heavy tanks withdrew across the Montone River west of the town following a day-long battle, official reports said.

Although enemy snipers remained in the town, leading British troops pushed through the streets in pursuit of the enemy until they were halted by the demolished bridge over the Montone, blown up by the Germans as they fell back.

German forces were reported to have reformed to take up positions on the west bank of the river, and to begin again the tactic of holding the Allied advance as long as possible at a water barrier.

Enemy « Outwitted and Outfought »

The enemy was both « outwitted and outfought » in the final stage of the battle for Forli, an official report declared. The skillful operations were both planned and directed by Lt. General G. F. Keightley, commander of the veteran British 5th Corps, the statement added.

The British entry into Forli, a quiet provincial capital of 25,000 population, came after 8th Army forces had reduced the final savage enemy resistance on the northern edges of the town's airfield.

Although subjected to heavy air attacks and Allied ground thrusts of mounting strength for nine days, strong German infantry forces, supported by lumbering Mark VI Tiger tanks, clung bitterly to this key position southeast of British troops yesterday swept back the last organized German resistance east of the Montone River along the 10-mile stretch southwest of Forli, to straighten out the sagging enemy line in this sector.

British troops occupied the village of Sandurano, one mile southeast of the German strongpoint of Castrocaro, five miles southwest of Forli on the Florence-Forli Road, and then pushed on to the river.

Farther south, enemy troops gave up exposed positions, including Monte Bora, west of Dovadola, under the pressure of Polish patrol forces. Northeast of Forli, enemy forces also withdrew from Borgo Sisa, a hamlet on the right bank of the Ronco River, five miles above the Emilia Highway. Heavy artillery exchanges took place on this sector.

Troops of the British 5th Corps took about 250 prisoners in the day's fighting preceding the entry into Forli, official reports said. One of the enemy prisoners, a soldier of the 356th German Infantry Division, was quoted as declaring that when men of his battalion were ordered forward to hold positions against the 8th Army advance, they found British troops already in possession. The Germans broke formation and fled.

On the 5th Army front, only patrol clashes and minor engagements were reported yesterday.

On the coastal sector, American Negro troops of the 92nd Division occupied the villages of Azzano, Terrinca, and Levigliani, two miles north of Serravezza, and three and four miles northeast, respectively. The capture of these mountain villages represents gains of more than a mile by these troops in two successive days. (PRO)

SIXTEEN MORE JAPANESE SHIPS SUNK; AMERICANS ADVANCE 5 MILES ON ORMOC

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 10 — Sixteen more Japanese ships, including warships, have been sunk by American submarines, fighters, and bombers in Far Eastern and Pacific waters.

American fighters and bombers sank seven Japanese destroyers and three large troop transports in Ormoc Bay last night in a mass attack against a 19-ship convoy attempting to land reinforcements, a communique from General MacArthur said tonight.

United States submarines sank six enemy vessels, including a light cruiser in the Pacific and Far Eastern waters, a Navy announcement in Washington said today adding that a medium converted seaplane tender, three medium cargo vessels, and one medium tanker also were sunk.

Based on figures compiled in press dispatches, the total number of Japanese ships sunk now numbers 841, with 37 probably sunk and 116 damaged in these waters.

Sixteen Japanese planes were shot down and five others probably destroyed in combats with American fighters escorting the bombers. Four American bombers and five fighters were lost.

General MacArthur announced that American forces converging on Ormoc advanced five miles through mountains.

In Central Leyte, mud-plastered American infantrymen pushed the enemy back to a mountain range four miles west of Dagami, liberated last week, an Associated Press dispatch reported.

On the Pinamopoan front, on the northern Leyte coast above Carigara, entrenched Japanese below the crest of the Pinamopoan Ridge were liquidated by the 24th Infantry Division after five days of bloody combat in which every weapon available, including machine guns, mortars, artillery, and tanks, was used to accomplish the task, the dispatch said.

Command of the ridge gives the Americans control of the Ormoc Road, over which the Japanese are attempting to pour in supplies and reinforcements.

United States casualties in the Philippines to date have been lighter than expected, Colonel W. A. Hagnis, 6th U.S. Army surgeon, told the Associated Press today. This was possible because of the large supplies of blood plasma, sulpha drugs, and penicillin, he said.

In continuing «neutralization» raids, enemy airdromes on Negros, Celebes, Halmahera, Macassar, and Ceram and in the Bismarck Islands were pounded by American planes. Twenty-three Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground and seven were probably destroyed. Seven enemy planes were downed in air combats, while we lost three planes. Other raids were carried out against enemy positions at Rabaul and Wewak, and on Bougainville Island. (OWI)

U.S. 3RD ARMY, IN FULL DRIVE, GAINS 5 MILES

SHAEF, November 10 — Lieut. Gen. George Patton's American 3rd Army surged northward today on a 25-mile front in a drive to cut off the fortress city of Metz, which has been blocking the American entrance to Saarbrücken, the Saar Basin, and the Siegfried Line.

The veteran U. S. 4th Armored Division, which spearheaded the break-through at St. Lô, thrust five miles northward today, cutting the main Pont à Mousson-Saarbrücken highway, and pushed beyond the town of Buchy. Late reports tonight placed these units only eight miles south of the main road and rail line leading into Metz.

Infantry and tank units of the 35th Division, on the eastern end of the snow and rain-soaked line, fought their way through the forest of Château Salins and captured the town of that name, which controls a network of roads fanning out toward the Saar to the northeast. The drive continued three miles to the north, to the vicinity of Hampont.

Resistance continued to be light to moderate, with the Germans apparently withdrawing behind a screen of road blocks and mines and endeavoring to retrieve most of their artillery for emplacement further back in parts of the old Maginot Line. Over 1,500 Germans have been taken prisoner in the three-day-old attack.

3 Miles Beyond Delme

A three-mile advance was made beyond Delme by the 30th Regiment of the 80th Infantry Division after infantry and tank units crossed the 1,200-foot-high razor-back Delme ridge. They were last reported in the area of Hannocourt and Fonteney.

Allied headquarters press dispatches said did not minimize the force of General Patton's onslaught, although its full scope still cannot be measured. The Germans in the Metz area are still off balance from the 4,000 tons of anti-personnel mines dropped yesterday by more than 1,300 heavy bombers which flew through icing clouds, rain, and 7th Army fronts have been strengthened. Patrols and reconnaissance elements are keeping contact with the enemy.

German resistance on the northern coast of Walcheren Island ceased yesterday and 200 cold, soaked German prisoners — all that remained of the once powerful island garrison — were ferried across the Schelde last night. The last bits of the island left above water are thickly sown with shoe mines and the area will be unsafe for years. One correspondent said:

«Walcheren is finished militarily, strategically, and geographically. Now it can sink under the sea that has been washing relentlessly over it.» (OWI-Reuter-AP)

RUSSIANS CUT MISKOLCZ-BUDAPEST RAILWAY

MOSCOW, November 10 — Red Army units advancing on Budapest from the east, on a 90-mile sickle-shaped front from the upper Tisza River, cut the main east-west railway line from Miskolcz to Budapest today by capturing a railway station and a number of inhabited localities.

Russian troops captured 4,100 German and Hungarian prisoners in this drive, which extends from the upper Tisza to the vicinity of Szolnok, and which appears to aim at outflanking the Hungarian capital.

Red Army troops exploiting their newly-won bridgeheads over the Tisza are today streaming over the river to join the powerful Soviet spearhead thrusting on Budapest from the northeast, Moscow dispatches said today.

There is no fresh news of the fighting near Budapest. Inside the city, serious clashes were reported when German SS detachments tried to evacuate the population, Radio Moscow said today. Many lorries brought in for the evacuation were smashed by the populace.

No major changes have been reported from East Prussia, where action is confined mainly to local fighting and artillery duels. Tonight's Soviet communique said that on sectors other than the Hungarian front, 15 German tanks were destroyed or damaged.

Marshal Stalin's order to finish off the only Germans left on «Soviet territory» is being relentlessly carried out, and the remnants of more than 30 German divisions are now caught between the Baltic port of Libau and Tukhum, 35 miles west of Riga. (OWI-Reuter)

U.A.F. HITS GERMANS FLEEING YUGOSLAVIA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 10 — Fighter-bombers of the Desert Air Force, supporting the heavy blows of the Balkan Air Force against fleeing German columns in Yugoslavia, have put 200 locomotives out of action in five days, it was announced here today.

The Mustang fighter-bombers, flown by RAF, RAAF, and SAAF pilots, have concentrated their attacks on the rail lines between Maribor, Zagreb, Brod, and Sarajevo.

The command of the Yugoslav Army of Liberation has commended the Desert Air Force for these attacks, it was said.

Greece-based Spitfires of the Balkan Air Force continued yesterday to harass enemy troops fleeing northward through Yugoslavia. In an attack against the Vesles rail yards, 30 miles southeast of Skoplje, it was announced here today.

British troops arrived in a three-mile-long procession of landing craft at Salonika Wednesday, today's announcement said. The forces are to serve as a garrison for the Greek port. (PRO)

A three-mile advance was made beyond Delme by the 39th Regiment of the 30th Infantry Division after infantry and tank units crossed the 1,200-foot-high razor-back Delme ridge. They were last reported in the area of Hannocourt and Fonteney.

Allied headquarters, press dispatches said, did not minimize the force of General Patton's onslaught, although its full scope still cannot be measured. The Germans in the Metz area are still off balance from the 4,000 tons of anti-personnel mines dropped yesterday by more than 1,300 heavy bombers, which flew through icing clouds, rain, and snow storms to reach their objectives. Reports said that the heavy rains of the last two days had eased off.

The three new divisions which crossed the Moselle River at Königsmacher and Ham, five miles northeast of Thionville, have consolidated and extended their bridgeheads and are reported less than three miles from the German border.

The first sizeable German tank and infantry counter-attack since the opening of the American 3rd Army offensive was met head-on by the U. S. 10th Infantry Division in this sector north of Metz. The German counter-thrust was held and thrown back.

Although German resistance has been more determined on this northern flank, press dispatches said that good progress has been made, and that a more serious outflanking threat to Metz is presented here than by the southern Allied force.

On the southern flank of the American 3rd Army front, Lieut. Gen. Alexander Patch's American 7th Army made substantial gains in the Vosges foothills and occupied the village of Deyfosse, five miles northwest of the important communications hub of St. Dié. A sharp German counter-attack in this area was beaten back by Allied artillery.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 10 — Light and fighter-bombers of the Desert Air Force section of the Allied Tactical Air Forces yesterday began attacks on German positions between Forli and Faenza, next of the Po Valley towns along the 8th Army advance, it was announced here today. Stores, dumps, German troops' positions, and enemy-occupied houses were struck in operations hampered by overcast weather.

Medium bombers struck two bridges, both near Venice, while fighter-bombers were active in the Parma and Modena areas.

U-BOAT SUNK IN AEGEAN

LONDON, November 10 — A German submarine was sunk during a recent patrol in the Aegean Sea by the Polish destroyer Garland and British destroyers led by HMS Trowbridge, a combined Admiralty and Polish naval communique announced tonight.

The U-boat was forced to the surface by a series of depth-charges. Fire from the British ships and the Garland

JAPAN SURPRISED BY STALIN'S STATEMENT

NEW YORK, November 10 — The Japanese people are «surprised and offended» at Stalin's characterization of Japan as an «aggressor nation,» said a Tokyo broadcast heard here yesterday.

PHILIPPINE PATRIOT MAJOR LED GROUP

NEW YORK, November 10 — A Filipino who served as a major in the Philippine Patriot Army and on whose head the Japanese once put a price of 10,000 pesos, led the group which accounted for 2,000 Japanese on the Island of Leyte, a dispatch to the Herald Tribune said today.

The Patriots armed themselves with home-made shot guns made of lead pipe, and used brass slugs for ammunition during the two years in which they operated, the dispatch said.

Many of the Patriots in the major's force had passes issued to them by the unwitting Japanese, which enabled them to proceed to and from villages, spying on enemy troops. Even the so-called puppet mayors and local officials installed by the Japanese were in the Patriot Army.

Some Filipino Patriots volunteered as «collaborationists» and then would supply the Patriots with food and information.

The Filipino major said that the best fight staged by his Patriots was made last March on Panoan Island, south of Leyte. Thirty Japanese had been driven from the town of Liloan, and when the Japanese sent two sailboats with 40 men in each as reinforcements from Leyte, the Patriots shot them on the beach, using weapons which had been landed by an American submarine. 750 HEAVIES STRIKE COLOGNE, FRANKFURT LONDON, November 10 — Seven hundred and fifty American heavy bombers, escorted by 600 fighters, attacked airfields, military transportation facilities, and industrial plants in the Cologne and Frankfurt region of Germany today.

Objectives in western Germany also were attacked last night by RAF bombers, while Mosquitos on intruder patrols bombed and strafed transportation targets in Germany and Holland. One aircraft is missing from the RAF operations.

Photographic reconnaissance of the heavily bombed German ballbearing center of Schweinfurt showed that new and severe damage was done in the heavy attack of October 9, it was revealed today. At least 12 buildings of the Vereinigte Kugellagerfabriken were hit, after the Germans had attempted to repair the damage of an earlier assault.

Today's announcement also revealed that in the October 9 attack on Schweinfurt, the scene of some of the 8th USAAF's hardest fought battles with the Luftwaffe in earlier raids, no opposition was encountered and not a single bomber was lost.

Meanwhile, a report on the part played by the 2nd TAF in winning the battle of the Scheldt and freeing Holland up to the Maas Line was issued by Allied TAF headquarters in Belgium today. Airmen of the 2nd TAF made 455 cuts in rail lines, and destroyed or damaged 314 locomotives, 2,796 railway trucks, 2,812 vehicles, and 389 canal barges.

More flying bombs came over Britain last night; a number of them were destroyed in the air. (OWI-Reuter)

STIMSON PRAISES BRITISH COMMANDOS

WASHINGTON, November 10 — Secretary of War Henry Stimson at his press conference yesterday paid tribute to the «very gallant» operations of the British Commando troops on Walcheren Island.

The War Secretary said that the past two weeks had seen the completion of another phase of the struggle against Germany, but warned that «our soldiers... know the difficulty of the task ahead.»

German air strength, Stimson said, is not yet dead, and the Nazis are still able to throw as many as 500 fighters into the air. (OWI

GERMAN AIRCRAFT PARTS CAPTURED

LONDON, November 10 — Railway trucks abandoned by the Germans after Allied bombing attacks on the western front have yielded large quantities of unused German aircraft parts, a Times correspondent said today.

The equipment found, the correspondent continued, included engines, bombs, machine-guns, radio sets, aerial cameras, and other items, most of which are being used by the Allied air forces.

The correspondent added that one of the trucks contained many thousands of identical parts for Junkers-88 bombers. He observed that Luftwaffe squadrons using this type of machine must have been held up when the parts failed to arrive. (PWB)

MILLION REFUGEES CARED FOR SINCE D-DAY

SHAEF, November 10 — The Civil Affairs section of SHAEF has taken care of more than one million displaced persons, including 500,000 refugees, in western Europe since the Allied landing in Normandy, a New York Herald Tribune dispatch reported today.

The Civil Affairs report covered five months of activities and said that as of November 1, it had supplied the French people with 44,000 tons of imported foodstuffs, permitting ration scales to be increased above the rate in force before the liberation.

The report also announced that coal is now being brought into Paris at a rate of 10,000 tons a day. Power has been increased to 70 per cent of normal, and gas services to 60 per cent of normal. No serious public health problems have occurred in the liberated areas. (OWI)

Intensified Bombing Forecast

A forecast of intensified strategic bombing to come was made last night in Cleveland, Ohio, by General H. H. Arnold, Commanding General of the USAAF, in a review of the success of American air power against enemy transportation systems. He addressed the Cleveland Aviation Club.

«The Luftwaffe was whittled down — in the air, on the ground, and on the assembly lines,» he said. «Germany's oil supply was reduced — left burning in the fields of Ploesti and in most of the major refineries, until her transportation was stalled and her air force almost immobilized.

«The Reich's transportation was crippled by the strafing of locomotives and railroad cars, and its war industry disrupted to a point approaching chaos.

ADMIRAL INGERSOLL GIVEN PACIFIC COMMAND

WASHINGTON, November 10 — Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal announced yesterday at a press conference that Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, who has been Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Navy's Atlantic Fleet, will become commander of the Western Sea Frontier in the Pacific starting November 15 with the status of Deputy Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Fleet, and Deputy Chief of Naval Operations.

In addition to commanding the naval forces engaged in protecting shipping in coastal waters, Forrestal said, Ingersoll will manage the flow of supplies to the Pacific Fleet through west coast ports.

Increased importance is now attached to the Western Sea Frontier Command «because of the vital necessity of the uninterrupted flow of supplies and equipment over the lengthening distance to our advanced bases,» Forrestal said. He added:

«Extension of Pacific Fleet activities into distant areas has created a supply problem of great magnitude, requiring adjustments in the supply organization. Ingersoll has been selected for this important expanded command because of his experience in accomplishing, in an outstanding manner, the logistic support of all naval forces in the Mediterranean and European areas.»

Forrestal also announced that Vice Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, Commander of the 4th Fleet, will replace Ingersoll as Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet with the rank of admiral. Ingram will be replaced by Rear Admiral William R. Munroe, Commander of the 3rd Naval District, as commander of the 4th Fleet with the rank of vice admiral.

Vice Admiral David W. Bagley, Commander of the Western Sea Frontier, will replace Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley as Commander of the Hawaiian Sea Frontier. Ghormley will receive a new assignment.

Before the press conference, Forrestal presented the Distinguished Service Medal to Ingersoll for his service as Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

He cited Ingersoll for «conducting a sustained offensive against enemy submarines in this vital combat area, and as a result of his unfailing judgment, resourcefulness, and initiative, maintaining an uninterrupted flow of U.S. troops and their supplies across the Atlantic.» (OWI)

U.S.N. CONVOYS 11,500 ATLANTIC SHIPS

WASHINGTON, November 10 — Safe passage for 11,500 ships in the past three years has been provided by the U.S. Atlantic Fleet, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal revealed at his press conference yesterday.

Admiral Ernest King, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Fleet, told the conference that German U-boat operations in the Atlantic have been reduced from a «menace» to a «nuisance.»

Forrestal said that supplies shipped from the American west coast to the Pacific war theatre had increased by 20 per cent in the first half of 1944. (OWI)

NEW GYROSCOPIC GUNSIGHT ON U.S. SHIPS

WASHINGTON, November 10 — A new gyroscopic gunsight and director which provides an automatic lead on targets has enabled American ships to fire at enemy aircraft before they can get close enough to attack, the U.S. War Department announced today.

The sight was perfected originally for use on the rapid-firing 20-millimeter guns. Now it has been adapted to the 40-millimeter and other large-caliber weapons with a greater range against attacking planes.

A director has been added which enables American ships to concentrate several guns at once upon a given target without the necessity of range computation. (OWI)

ITALIAN CONTRIBUTION NOT IN VAIN

ROME, November 10 — President Roosevelt, in a letter to Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi made public today, said that the Italian contribution in the war against Germany will not be in vain.

The President's letter, thanking Prime Minister Bonomi for his Columbus Day message, said:

«This year, October 12 was more than the anniversary of Christopher Columbus. It was also the eve of the first anniversary of active Italian participation with the United Nations in the war against Germany... I am certain that this contribution will not be in vain, and that Italy will continue to work with the United Nations in the common task of constructing a lasting peace.» (UNN)

U.N.R.R.A. MISSION WORKING WITH ITALIANS

WASHINGTON, November 10 — Herbert H. Lehman, director of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said in a broadcast last night that the «first contingent of our mission to Italy has arrived, and work with the Italian authorities and military is under way.»

He added:

«You have no doubt heard of the limited program of aid provided by UNRRA to the people of Italy in territory held by the Allies. Italy is an ex-enemy country. The General policy established by the UNRRA council states that operations will be carried on in enemy or ex-enemy areas only with the complete agreement of the Allied military authorities and within limits determined by the council.

«The resolution to provide a limited amount of aid to the Italian people was presented at the second session of the council in Montreal. The delegates from Ethiopia, France, Yugoslavia, and Greece voiced their bitterness toward the Italian tyrants whose action caused so much suffering in their nation. Yet each one said their people would not deny aid to the sick, the homeless, and the women and children even of an ex-enemy. It was a fine demonstration of a board magnanimous in spirit. The council voted unanimously in favor of the resolution.» (OWI)

WASHINGTON, November 10 — A new gyroscopic gunsight and director which provides an automatic lead on targets has enabled American ships to fire at enemy aircraft before they can get close enough to attack, the U.S. War Department announced today.

The sight was perfected originally for use on the rapid-firing 20-millimeter guns. Now it has been adapted to the 40-millimeter and other large-caliber weapons with a greater range against attacking planes.

A director has been added which enables American ships to concentrate several guns at once upon a given target without the necessity of range computation. (OWI)

A.C.I. PASSES TO CIVILIAN CONTROL; MACMILLAN SUCCEEDS GENERAL WILSON AS HEAD

LONDON, November 10 — Administration of the Allied Commission in Italy passed from military to civilian control today in the first of several steps planned as preliminary to the ultimate restoration of Italy's political and economic independence.

A joint statement issued today by the governments of the United States and Great Britain announced the appointment of Harold MacMillan, member of Parliament and British Resident Minister at AFHQ, as the new head of the Allied Commission. He succeeds General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Supreme Commander, AFHQ, who headed the Commission while it was under military control.

MacMillan will continue his duties as Resident Minister.

The official announcement said that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill decided on the step to facilitate solution of economic and other difficulties in Italy.

According to the announcement, Mr. MacMillan will have the responsibility of «supervising the development of new measures for Italy and making any changes in Allied control machinery needed to carry them out.»

MacMillan has been a member of Parliament since 1924, except between 1929 and 1931. In 1940, he became Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Supply, and in this capacity played an important part in the British armament program. A director of several corporations, he is a graduate of Oxford.

In the last war he saw action with the Grenadier Guards, and was wounded three times. He is the author of several books on economic and political problems.

WASHINGTON, November 10 — Herbert H. Lehman, director of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said in a broadcast last night that the «first contingent of our mission to Italy has arrived, and work with the Italian authorities and military is under way.»

He added:

«You have no doubt heard of the limited program of aid provided by UNRRA to the people of Italy in territory held by the Allies. Italy is an ex-enemy country. The General policy established by the UNRRA council states that operations will be carried on in enemy or ex-enemy areas only with the complete agreement of the Allied military authorities and within limits determined by the council.

«The resolution to provide a limited amount of aid to the Italian people was presented at the second session of the council in Montreal. The delegates from Ethiopia, France, Yugoslavia, and Greece voiced their bitterness toward the Italian tyrants whose action caused so much suffering in their nation. Yet each one said their people would not deny aid to the sick, the homeless, and the women and children even of an ex-enemy. It was a fine demonstration of a board magnanimous in spirit. The council voted unanimously in favor of the resolution.» (OWI)

BONOMI CONGRATULATES ROOSEVELT

ROME, November 10 — Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi has sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt, it was announced here today:

«The Italian Government and people have welcomed your reëlection with sincere and lively pleasure, happy that the President who directs the gigantic and victorious North American war effort remains at his post to guide and conduct the no less arduous task of winning the peace.

ORLANDO HAILS ROOSEVELT'S REELECTION

ROME, November 10 — Reëlection of President Roosevelt is proof that his «great qualities of statesmanship have been reaffirmed with ... incomparable vigor in the gravest peril which world history has known,» Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, President of the Italian Chamber of Deputies, said today.

Hailing the non-partisan unity in The United States, Orlando added: «This enables us to express our deep and keen satisfaction — to which is added the grateful memory of the friendly feelings expressed by the President — without failing in our duty of refraining from every manifestation which touches, even indirectly, the internal policy of the great American people.».

In Catania, the Corriere di Sicilia said Roosevelt reëlection removed the Nazis last hope of escaping unconditional surrender, and obtaining a compromise peace, which, they hoped would «enable them to evade their fate as war criminals.»

«It is no exaggeration to affirm that the reëlection of Roosevelt, in the particular moment in which it occurred, is the most portentous international event since the outbreak of war,» the paper wrote.

«His election has been hailed by the hopes of the peoples of Europe, groaning under the Teuton lash, as a sign that the great trans-ocean democracy has not left them to their fate ...

«Roosevelt's reëlection has a very great importance from another viewpoint also. The President knows our Continent's problems and has been in direct contact with them. His contribution of fair judgement and disinterested labor will not be lacking in the solving of these problems. His presence will be a decisive factor toward equilibrium and justice in the general organization of European affairs.

«Italians hail with real joy the reëlection of Roosevelt. The friendly support which he has lent us in difficult times can never be forgotten. The moral comfort which his activity toward our country has brought us gives him the right to our undying gratitude.» (UNN)

BONOMI MESSAGE TO POLISH PREMIER

ROME, November 10 — Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi today sent a telegram to M. Mikolajczyk, Polish Prime Minister, which said:

«The resumption of normal diplomatic relations between Italy and Poland was received by the Italian Government and people with deep gratification. Your martyred and destroyed cities, together with ours; Polish blood shed in Italy, our common sufferings and sorrows, constitute so many bonds which unite our two countries firmly in the present and for the future. I beg you to accept our best wishes for the resurrection of Poland and for the good fortune of your heroic and chivalrous people.» (UNN)

MURDER TRIAL OPENS IN ROME

ROME, November 10 — The trial of four Italian farmers charged with the murder of a Canadian soldier last June at Frosinone opened here this morning before the General Allied Court. Each of the four pleaded not guilty.

The trial opened with Prosecuting Attorney Louis Saccatino accusing one of the farmers of stabbing W. J. Bell, Canadian gunner, after a dispute involving the payment for wine which the soldier purchased at the farmer's house.

If found guilty of the murder charge, the four will receive the death penalty. (UNN)

won't estimate that I expect to make Washington my permanent residence for the rest of my life.»

Meanwhile, latest election figures gave the President a popular vote total of 24,269,864 to his Republican opponent, Governor Dewey's 21,197,981 — a majority of 3,071,883. Only 8,211 of 130,785 election districts still are unreported.

Even the President himself was surprised at his margin of victory. In responses to questions by reporters as to how his usual election forecast compared with actual results, Mr. Roosevelt said his advance guess was 335 electoral votes for himself and 196 for Governor Dewey. He observed smilingly he was not very accurate.

The electoral vote remained unchanged from late yesterday, when Michigan and its 19 electoral votes swung over to Mr. Roosevelt. The President enjoyed an electoral landslide of 432 against 99.

An Associated Press dispatch said that there was little if any possibility that soldier ballots might affect the present lineup of states in the Presidential contest, but they may be decisive in two still undecided U. S. Senate races and could turn one way or another several tight contests for House seats.

With virtually all civilian votes counted in Pennsylvania, Democrat Francis J. Myers was leading Senator James J. Davis, Republican, by more than 1,500 votes. The soldier vote there will not be counted until November 22.

In St. Louis, Missouri, service votes will be counted tomorrow to settle the still doubtful Senatorial race between Governor Forrest C. Donnell, Republican, and his Democratic opponent, Roy MacKittrick. Virtually complete civilian returns gave Donnell a lead of more than 8,000.

There was no secret about the President's homecoming. Every radio station and newspaper carried the event of his arrival — so when he rode down Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House thousands of men, women, and children cheered lustily. Vice President-Elect Harry S. Truman and Vice President Henry Wallace accompanied the Chief Executive.

The President later told reporters in his first news conference since his reëlection that he, Prime Minister Churchill, and Marshal Stalin want to hold another meeting whenever they can arrange it.

To a query concerning whether he planned to run in 1948, Mr. Roosevelt said that question «was hoary with age.» (OWI)

THRONG GREETS ROOSEVELT IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, November 10 — President Roosevelt told 250,000 persons who greeted him in a driving rain today on his return to the capital after being elected to serve a fourth term as Chief Executive of the United States that he was deeply impressed by the «very wonderful welcome home.»

In an informal talk at the station, the President said: «I want to tell you how glad I am to be here and say one word to you — especially the Government workers — for all that you are doing to win this war. And when I say especially Government workers, I don't overlook all the other people in the city who make it possible for them to come here and live here and work here.»

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 10 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

A Garibaldi brigade operating west of Turin has scored several successes in repeated clashes with Nazi-Fascists, killing 35 and taking many others prisoner.

In the provinces of Piacenza and Pavia, Patriots hindered enemy navigation across the Po, sinking a 30-ton barge near Mezzanino and another, of 60 tons, near Mortizza.

Near Calendasco, a funicular was immobilized, and between Crenions and Fidenza, two underground railways destroyed.

On October 27, a train was derailed into the Po River.

In an encounter near La Spezia, four Germans were killed.

A late dispatch on the enemy offensive in the Province of Brescia confirmed that the attack against the local Patriot brigade was launched by 3,000 Germans from bases at Bagolino in the Caffaro Valley, Bovegno and Collio in the Trompia Valley, and Vestone in the Sabbia Valley.

After reaching Monte Pesseda, above Collio, the enemy tried to force the Patriots down the valley, where 50 armored vehicles were parked to cut off their last loophole of escape. The maneuver failed, and the Patriots managed to reach higher ground, where they dug themselves in.

A few days later, these new positions were attacked by the Germans, who had received reinforcements from Brescia in the meantime. Although encircled and outnumbered, the Patriots forced a breach in hand-to-hand fighting, putting a group of Germans to flight. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRERS HEADQUARTERS, November 10 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the Breskens bridgehead, in Zuid Beveland, and on the Walcheren Island, our troops, during weeks of grim fighting, blocked the free access to Antwerp. The German High Command thus gained the time required to take steps necessary for the elimination of this port. For weeks, the port of Antwerp has been subjected to an intense bombardment with «V-1» and «V-2.» Serious damage has been caused to the town, the docks, and the port installations.

In the Moerdijk sector, our bridgehead garrison was withdrawn to the northern banks of the Hollandsch Diep.

Northeast of Stolberg, the Americans, under the shock of their heavy losses, stopped their attacks.

On the Lothringian frontier, the intensity of the battle continued to grow. Northeast of Pont à Mousson, attacking enemy formations were repulsed except for a local penetration. East of the town, our grenadiers are engaged in fierce defensive fighting. Between Delme and Château Salins, the Americans, supported by 200 tanks, penetrated into a certain number of localities, but suffered heavy losses.

North of Metz, the enemy attacked after an intense barrage, and crossed the Moselle in the Diedenhofen sector. Grenadiers relieved the Königsmachern Fortress, which had temporarily been encircled, repelled the Americans in fighting which was sometimes fierce, and captured prisoners in counter-attacks.

London continues to be bombarded by « V-1 » and « V-2 ».

Italy:

In Italy, the fighting flared up in the Adriatic coastal sector.

Fierce street-fighting developed in Forli after an intense enemy barrage.

Eastern Front:

In Serbia, at Kumanova, fierce Bulgarian attacks were again frustrated.

East and northeast of Mitrovica, our grenadiers captured important high-ground positions.

South and southeast of Budapest, numerous enemy attacks collapsed in front of the German and Hugarian positions.

South of Mezokevesd, enemy spearheads were repelled by our counter-attacks. The enemy suffered havy losses. East of the town, the enemy increased his pressure.

Bolshevik battalions which attempted to advance at the Slovakian frontier collapsed in our defensive fire. Fresh Soviet troop concentrations were dispersed by our effective artillery fire.

On the remaining parts of the eastern front, the day went by without major fighting, owing to a persistent rain.

Air:

Anglo-American bomber formations continued their terror attacks on western Germany and northern Westphalia.

Particularly in Saarbrücken, damage was caused to buildings.

Nineteen enemy planes were shot down despite conditions adverse to the defense. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Secret Weapon: The new German « secret weapon, » known as V-2, continued to be played up in German propaganda today for its supposedly devastating explosive effect. Transocean declared that V-2 is now bombing not solely London, but also Antwerp and Paris.

Western Front: The German military analyst Sertorius voiced concern about a new but, as usual, « expected » drive launched by « the left wing of the American 3rd Army. » However, he predicted that the « centre of gravity of the major attack by the American 3rd Army will continue on the right wing for the simple reason that the distance between the most advanced German positions, for which fighting is now going on, and the Maginot Line is still considerable here. »

Another New Drive Predicted: The same analyst was preparing the German public for a new big push by the American 1st Army, in addition to the drive by the 3rd Army. « Strong artillery fire, which has been opened along the entire front sector of the American 1st Army, intensified by the firing of fog shells, indicates the greatest possibility of an imminent major attack. »

Foreign Workers Loyal To Germany: Next to V-2, the most prominent propaganda item of the day appeared to be an article in the Nazi publication Das Reich, concerning the presumed loyalty to Germany of the foreign workers. Evidently this article, quoted at length by Transocean, occured by way of rebuttal to Allied claims of a revolutionary mood among these workers. Admitting that « there are factories in Germany, where only 1/10th of the personnel are German workers, » the article went on to say: « The foreigners are no menace to the Reich. They are perfectly at liberty, and are fed for the most part better than at home. Frequently they become acquainted for the first time with modern methods and machines... Therefore, foreigners and prisoners in Germany practically live without being watched. »

Eastern Front: The correspondent Colonel von Olberg today stressed that there is « strikingly small fighting activity along the entire eastern front from Libau to Carpathian Ruthenia. » He attributed this, significantly enough, not to any Russian weakening, but to the « very unfavorable November weather, » plus the fact that the Russian armies are regrouping for a powerful « imminent winter offensive... In Hungary, however, the battle for Budapest is being continued. »

Fighting at Forli: According to late Fascist broadcasts, the battle for Forli was still unresolved. It was admitted that 8th Army troops at the beginning of their offensive succeeded in penetrating into the town itself; however, after two hours of « determined German resistance » the British are said to have withdrawn to the southern outskirts of Forli, where the battle continued. The fighting around Forli was described as of « unprecedented violence » and the Allied losses have necessitated the bringing up of reserves.

Fascist Amnesty Deadline Expires: Final reports were not available on the number of defaulters reporting to Fascist headquarters before tonight's deadline at midnight. Today, which closed the 12-day period established by Mussolini's decree of October 28, Fascist radio exhortations were surprisingly mild; furthermore, the actual figures on repentant deserters were slurred over with the phrase « new elements are reported still to be pouring in. » The only specific number quoted was the total of 338 for the Province of Bergamo since October 28. The punishment for those who fail to report has as yet not been specified.

Allies Bomb Civilians: Two more Italian towns, Chioggia and an unnamed village in the Province of Vicenza, were reported to have been bombed by Allied planes. In both instances, the dead and wounded victims were allegedly amongst the civilian population.

UNRRA Honors Ethiopia Over Italy: Attention was called to ex-Governor Lehman's speech on UNRRA, coupled with Roosevelt's supposed endorsement thereof. The UNRRA director was quoted as explaining that Italy will not receive aid from the association, owing to her status as a former belligerent, whereas Ethiopia will be helped for contrary reasons.

Further Reactions on Prince Umberto's Statements: The alleged tempest stirred up by Prince Umberto's recent remarks anent the liberal trend in monarchies was still a matter of derisive concern to Fascist commentators. Today's allegations and comments were derived from the counter-reactions of various newspapers in « invaded » Italy, most of which were said to be anti-monarchist, as well as anti-Fascist. Stress was laid on an article in the Socialist paper Avanti, which was said to attack the Allies for postponing the practical emergence of constitutional activity in liberated Italy. « Yesterday, the PWB censor must have been full of whiskey, to have allowed Avanti to publish such an article, » the commentator remarked.

ROOSEVELT LEADS IN 36 STATES: MAY TAKE 3 MORE DEMOCRATS TIGHTEN CONTROL OF CONGRESS ISOLATIONISTS DEFEATED DEMOCRATS GAIN 3 GOVERNORS

WASHINGTON November 8 — Complete returns from more than two-thirds of the nation's election districts indicated tonight that President Franklin D. Roosevelt would carry at least 36 states and would compile a popular vote almost as high as he received in 1940.

Although yesterday's election was not a Democratic landslide in the political interpretation of the word, the Democratic Party gains in Congressional, gubernatorial, and local elections. The trend in the last two years in favor of Republican candidates was not only checked in yesterday's voting, but was reversed in a great vote of confidence by the American voters in not only the election of Roosevelt for a fourth presidential term, but in support of Democratic Party legislators.

This was reflected in election returns which showed that President Roosevelt and the Vice President-Elect, Harry S. Truman, would work for the next two years, at least, with a Congress composed of a majority of Democrats in both the House of Representatives and the Senate.

The voters supported Roosevelt's foreign and domestic policies — his war program and plans for post-war security — by electing, according to incomplete returns tonight, 231 Democratic Representatives, while the Republicans will have 214 seats in the House. Of 35 contests in the Senate, the Democrats appeared to have gained at least six seats, with incomplete returns giving 53 Senatorial seats to Democrats, 32 to Republicans, and 11 undecided.

The mandate of the people that The United States is to participate in international post-war developments was further illustrated by the defeat yesterday of three isolationist members of Congress — Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, of North Dakota; Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York; and Representative Stephen Day, of Illinois.

Dewey Pledges Unity

The heated disputes of a political campaign vanished today to augment the vote of confidence evidenced in election of President Roosevelt to continue as Commander-in-Chief of the nation through 1948.

Dewey took the lead in pledging unity of the nation behind the President and Congress in obtaining complete victory in the war — an expression of support echoed throughout the day by the leaders of the Republican Party. Dewey expressed the common thought of a united nation when he conceded defeat at 0900 Rome time today by saying, in part:

«I hope President Roosevelt's next term will bring speedy victory in the war, the establishment of lasting peace, and the return of tranquillity among our people.»

Senator Joseph Ball, Republican of Minnesota, who supported Roosevelt in the campaign, also voiced the sentiment of the country when he expressed the post-war credo of united Americans: «Our war and peace aims transcend party lines.»

The American press which had supported Dewey in the Presidential race joined in pledging their utmost to help President Roosevelt with the nation's war and post-war problems. Every type of organization in the country — industry, labor, and agricultural — quickly fell into line and cast aside preelection differences to assure unity.

In state elections, the Democrats also made important

WASHINGTON, November 8 — Complete returns from more than two-thirds of the nation's election districts indicated tonight that President Franklin D. Roosevelt would carry at least 36 states and would compile a popular vote almost as high as he received in 1940.

In three states — Michigan, Indiana, and Wisconsin — where Governor Thomas E. Dewey, defeated Republican candidate, had run up a large early majority, late returns showed that President Roosevelt was steadily cutting down his opponent's lead, and that final returns may swing those states into the Roosevelt column.

At 2300 hours Rome time, with several million votes still to be counted, press dispatches estimated that huge majorities in 36 states assured Mr. Roosevelt of 412 electoral college votes. Dewey was given 119 electoral votes, including the three doubtful states, which have a total of 45 electoral votes. A Presidential candidate needs 266 electoral votes to be elected.

With the counting of ballots completed in 97,000 of the 130,810 election districts in The United States, the popular vote was as follows: Roosevelt, 20,733,119 votes: Dewey, 18,082,672.

In 1940, when President Roosevelt was elected for his third consecutive term, he received 27,243,466 popular votes to 22,304,755 for Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican candidate. Although nearly 50 million persons were believed to have voted in the elections yesterday, it is unlikely that Roosevelt's popular vote will exceed that of 1940.

However, President Roosevelt showed more strength in his contest against Dewey than he showed against Willkie. Willkie carried 10 states; Dewey appears certain of only seven. Roosevelt, in this election, also carried several states which voted Republican in the 1940 national election — among them the hitherto staunch Republican state of New Hampshire, which deserted the Republican column in a presidential election for the first time in at least a decade.

In state elections, the Democrats also made important gains. Six Democrats replaced Republicans as governors and many important state posts previously held by Republicans fell to Democrats.

It was obvious from the returns that there were two important factors in the elections yesterday:

LATE BULLETIN

DEMOCRACY STILL LIVING — ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, November 8 — The American people have again demonstrated to the world that democracy still is a living, vital force and our faith in American institutions is unshaken, President Franklin D. Roosevelt said here tonight in a message to the Nation. The President said:

«For the first time in 80 years, we have held a national election in the midst of war. What is really important is that, after all of our changes and vicissitudes of four score years, we have again demonstrated to the world that democracy is a living, vital force, that our faith in American institutions is unshaken, that conscience, and not force, is the source of power in the government of man.

«To that faith let us unite to win the war and to achieve a lasting peace.» (OWI)

1. The soldier ballot: It was estimated that 3,462,000 votes were cast by members of The United States armed forces — overseas and at home. While in some cases the soldiers' votes did not affect the final outcome materially, the outcome of some contests may be decided when the results of these ballots are made known.

2. The large labor vote: An Associated Press dispatch said today that «labor provided the shock-troops for the Roosevelt victory.» Other reports estimated that from 75 to 90 per cent of all labor eligible to vote had registered their selections to heed the election-eve requests of both Roosevelt and Dewey for a large turn-out at the polls.

President Roosevelt will begin his fourth term in office on 20 January 1945. Truman will replace Henry Wallace as Vice President on the same day. (OWI-Reuter)

DEMOCRATS INCREASE STRENGTH IN BOTH HOUSES

NEW YORK, November 8 — President Roosevelt will begin his fourth term as head of The United States Government next January 20 assured of strong Democratic Party majorities in both houses of Congress.

Late voting returns received up to 2330 hours Rome time today indicated that significant gains had been registered by the Democrats in both the House of Representatives and the Senate.

In the House, the Democrats are already assured of a controlling majority, with 219 seats. The Republicans have so far definitely captured 127 seats. Eighty-six seats still remain to be decided, but there is little doubt that a considerable number of these will go into the Democratic column, further strengthening the control of the President's party.

The Democrats have taken 24 seats previously controlled by the Republicans. The Republicans, on the other hand, have ousted five Democrats and one Progressive from their posts.

Until yesterday's election, the Democrats held 214 seats in the House, with 212 held by the Republicans and four controlled by minor parties.

A total of 218 seats constitutes a majority in the House.

Effect on Foreign Policy

More significant perhaps, in terms of international events, is the fight being waged for the 35 Senate seats at stake in the election. The remainder of the 96 Senate posts were not affected by the vote.

So far, Democrats have definitely won 17 of the seats, while Republicans have taken eight. Unaffected by the election were 36 seats previously held by the Democrats and 24 previously controlled by the Republicans.

The Democrats are thus definitely assured of 53 seats in the new Senate. The Republicans so far have 32 seats.

Eleven seats are still undecided.

Observers pointed out that, under the U. S. Constitution, any international treaties or agreements proposed by the Administration must go to the Senate for ratification and approval. A controlling vote in this legislative body is expected to facilitate fulfillment of the President's pledge that America will play a full part in post-war international security and peace organizations.

Prior to the election, Democrats held 57 seats in the Senate, while Republicans controlled 37, and one seat was held by a Progressive. One seat was vacant.

Fish, Nye, Day Defeated

One of the biggest upsets in the Congressional elections was the defeat of Representative Hamilton Fish, who for

John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, House Majority Leader, and Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., also of Massachusetts, House Minority Leader, were all successful in their campaigns for reelection. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

DEMOCRATS LEAD IN GUBERNATORIAL ELECTIONS

WASHINGTON, November 8 — In the 31 states holding elections for governor, incomplete election returns received by 2315 hours Rome time indicated that Democratic Party candidates held the lead in 18 states. Of these 18 states, six which were formerly Republican have been added to the Democratic ranks. The Republican Party gained one state from the Democrats and one from the Progressive Party.

The late counting of soldier ballots may decide the election in several states, notably in Illinois and in Ohio, where the voting for governor is reported close.

DEWEY CONGRATULATES ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, November 8 — Governor Thomas E. Dewey, defeated Republican Presidential candidate, today congratulated President Roosevelt on his reelection and expressed the hope that his next term will see «the establishment of lasting peace and the return of tranquillity among our people.»

In a statement conceding his defeat Governor Dewey said:

«It is clear that Mr. Roosevelt has been reëlected for a fourth term, and every good American will wholeheartedly accept the will of the people.

«I extend to Mr. Roosevelt my hearty congratulations.

«I hope his next term will bring speedy victory in the war, the establishment of lasting peace, and the return of

One of the biggest upsets in the Congressional elections was the defeat of Representative Hamilton Fish, who for 26 years had represented the President's up-state New York district and had been one of the most outspoken isolationists in Congress. Both the President and Governor Dewey, the Republican nominee, had repudiated Fish's candidacy before the election. August Bennett, independent Republican, defeated Fish.

Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota, another uncompromising critic of the President's foreign policy and an advocate of American isolationism, was also defeated in the election, as was Senator John A. Danaher, Republican isolationist from Connecticut.

In Illinois, Representative Stephen A. Day, who had the support of The Chicago Tribune, one of the most powerful opponents of the President's administration, went down to defeat. He will be succeeded in the House by a woman Democrat, Evelyn Taft Douglas.

Three of the President's most loyal and effective supporters in the Senate were successful in their campaigns for reelection. They were Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, who has sponsored much of the Administration's social legislation; Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, likewise a staunch Administration supporter; and Senator Alben Barkley, of Kentucky, Senate majority leader.

Administrative machinery of the House of Representatives will continue unchanged as a result of the election. Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, House Speaker;

DEWEY CONGRATULATES ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, November 8 — Governor Thomas E. Dewey, defeated Republican Presidential candidate, today congratulated President Roosevelt on his reelection and expressed the hope that his next term will see «the establishment of lasting peace and the return of tranquillity among our people.»

In a statement conceding his defeat Governor Dewey said:

«It is clear that Mr. Roosevelt has been reëlected for a fourth term, and every good American will wholeheartedly accept the will of the people.

«I hope his next term will bring speedy victory in the war, the establishment of lasting peace, and the return of tranquillity among our people.

«I am deeply grateful for the confidence expressed by so many millions of Americans and for their labors in the campaign. The Republican Party emerges from this election revitalized and a great force for the good of the country and for the preservation of free government in America.

«I am confident that all Americans will join me in the devout hope that in the difficult years ahead, Divine Providence will guide and protect the President of The United States.»

Fifteen minutes after Governor Dewey's statement was broadcast, President Roosevelt sent a message to him in which he said:

«I thank you for your statement which I heard over the air a few minutes ago.»

Senator Harry S. Truman, elected Vice President on the Democratic ticket, said from his campaign headquarters in Kansas City, Missouri:

In a later statement, he said: «It is our duty now to uphold his [Dewey's] good wishes and win the war and win the peace.»

Governor John W. Bricker, the defeated Republican Vice Presidential candidate, declared: «I join in the sentiment expressed by Governor Dewey. I have done all within my ability to carry the issues as I saw them to the American people. They have spoken. I congratulate the winners, and shall do all I can to aid in the war effort and to make our country stronger and better.» (OWI)

BONOMI, OTHER LEADERS COMMENT ON ELECTIONS

ROME, November 8 — Reelection of President Roosevelt is «a great joy for all Italians,» Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi said today in a statement on the American elections, reported by the International News Service.

«President Roosevelt, for many years has been for us the symbol of America's intervention in the war, the interpreter of the great principles of the Atlantic Charter, and the guarantee that the future peace will be a just and lasting peace among free and equal people,» the Prime Minister said.

«Mr. Roosevelt, who a few days ago was proclaimed a citizen of Rome, still is at the helm and certain to continue the prosecution of the war with his usual energy, in which we desire to participate ever more concretely,» he added.

A spokesman for the Papal Secretariat of State expressed «happiest satisfaction over the reelection of the man who first reestablished diplomatic relations with the Holy See, and who always has showed sympathy and understanding toward all American Catholics.»

In New York, The Times, which advocated the President's reelection, said that he has a clear mandate to assure America's participation in a post-war security organization. «He committed his next administration to a full assumption of the responsibilities which fall naturally to The United States as a great world power, and it is primarily on the basis of public confidence in his ability to lead the way in establishing the conditions of enduring peace that he has been returned to power,» the paper said.

Both parties and both candidates pledged themselves to carry this fight through to a victorious conclusion against both Germany and Japan. Our Allies and our enemies may both be sure that there has been no division of American opinion regarding the achievement of this purpose.»

Senator Joseph Ball, Republican of Minnesota, who repudiated his party ticket to support Roosevelt, hailed the President's reelection as conclusive evidence of America's determination to play its part in an international peace organization.

In London, Philip Reed, an industrialist and head of the U. S. Mission for Economic Affairs there, said the American election results are «a clear, clean, strong indication that isolationism as it may be effective in the years ahead is a dead thing.» (OWI - INS)

ROME NEWSPAPERS SAY ELECTION SHOWS STRENGTH

ROME, November 8 — Rome newspapers today devoted most of their editorial space to comment on the American presidential election, stating that in a war-time election, «Democracy has shown its strength».

In an editorial titled «Continuity», Ricostruzione, organ of the Democratic Labor Party, said:

«For the fourth time, Mr. Roosevelt has been called upon to occupy the supreme office of The United States.. Once again, he has been considered by the country the man who can best give war policy of The United States the continuity it calls for. In this election, democracy has shown its strength, because it affirms its very responsibility even imposed it upon him as a duty. He has been too much a part of world policy of the war to be able to withdraw himself at a time when the conflict calls for the greatest effort and the maximum concentration of minds ... Italians are proud that millions of fellow-Italians have contributed actively to the prosperity and power of the Great Republic. That is a hopeful sign for the Italy of tomorrow.» (UNN)

ROMANS WONDER IF AMERICANS COUNT VOTES

ROME, November 8 — The citizens of Rome, sharing at first hand the excitement of a free democratic election with thousands of American soldiers, quickly bought up all the local morning newspapers and, when they began to run out, some bought the U. S. Army newspaper Stars and Stripes, which headlined the election result, «It's FDR Again.»

But what impressed the Romans most is that America actually counted the votes, something unheard of under the Fascist régime. As the returns came pouring in over the radio from New York and London and postings of the votes were made in newspaper offices, the Italians were incredulous. They shook their heads and asked over and over again:

The editorial staff of Stars and Stripes devoted many minutes of their time in the composing room assuring the Italian printers that the figures sent in by radio from The United States were not arbitrary, but were carefully counted. The Italian printers could not understand why they should bother changing the figures on the chart prepared by the Army newspaper. They had been convinced, after more than 20 years of Fascism, that all elections, even in The United States, were predetermined. (UNN)

POLISH TROOPS CAPTURE MONTE CASALUDA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 8 — Polish troops of the 8th Army, advancing along a three-mile-wide front south of Forli, yesterday captured in heavy fighting Monte Casaluda, pivotal position in the German secondary defenses west of the Rabbi River, it was announced here today.

Despite four heavy enemy counter-attacks, the Polish forces of General Vladislav Anders seized and held fast to the 1,000-foot high knoll overlooking the Rabbi River six miles southwest of Forli and dominating the southern approaches to Romagna's capital. Farther west, other forces captured San Zeno La Volpinara, a hilltop village overlooking the Montone River, and pushed on to make contact with German forces on low slopes some 300 yards to the North.

British forces closing in on Forli from the southeast still encountered heavy opposition yesterday from German armored forces holding Forli's airfield, some two miles outside of the town. Enemy troops still held the ruins of buildings on the north edge of the field, shattered by two successive days' attacks, and enemy artillery laid down heavy protective barrages on Allied forward areas from the southwest and western edges of the field.

The combination of bad weather and savage German resistance has held without appreciable gain the British penetration into the enemy's primary defenses along the line of the Ronco River effected over a week ago. Although at one point British forces held three sides of the airfield which the Germans have made the main point of their defenses of Romagna's capital, steadily-increasing enemy artillery and tank fire have prevented any full-scale ground

Although at one point British forces held three sides of the airfield which the Germans have made the main point of their defenses of Romagna's capital, steadily-increasing enemy artillery and tank fire have prevented any full-scale ground attack on this key position.

Elsewhere on the 8th Army front, Allied troops, supported by artillery and armor, attacked strong German positions south of the village of Parsota, five miles south of Ravenna. Heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire met the attackers, and the result of the action was not disclosed. Allied troops also reported stiff fighting along the Florence-Forli Road and some gains were registered by forward elements.

On the 5th Army front, activity was confined to vigorous patrolling. German planes made their fifth consecutive appearance over 5th Army forward areas Monday night, taking advantage of bright moonlight to drop bombs near the main Florence-Bologna Highway. (PRO)

U.S. 3RD ARMY OFFENSIVE GAINS
U.S. 1ST ARMY THROWN BACK

SHAEF, November 8 — American 3rd Army troops attacked at dawn today on a 25mile front east of the Moselle River between Metz and Nancy, crossing the narrow Seille River eight miles east of Pont a Mousson at Rouves and five miles farther east at Aulnois. Late reports said tonight that gains of more than a mile were made, and that 13 villages had been captured.

The northward drive to cut the road and rail lines supplying Metz followed a heavy artillery barrage lasting an hour. American troops moved forward over fields made sodden by a 36-hour rain and against moderate German resistance. Allied fighter-bombers supported the attack, although bad weather curtailed extensive air operations.

A heavy German tank and infantry attack launched from the Schmidt area forced American 1st Army troops to withdraw from Kommerscheidt, a small village north of Schmidt on the road to Vossenack in the Hürtgen Forest. Americans, however, were reported holding high ground northwest of the town.

At Vossenack, both the Americans and Germans threw reinforcements of tanks and infantry into the struggle for the town, and the swaying street battle entered its third day on a rising scale of bitter fighting.

Americans edged still closer to the German-held town of Schmidt, after beating off two German counter-attacks and wiping out several puckets of resistance west of the town. Fighter-bombers bombed and strafed enemy positions, as well as buildings, railway lines, and bridges in the rear of the German sector.

Poles Attack Fanatical Nazis

Polish troops with the Canadian 1st Army launched a fresh attack this morning against the last German pocket south of the Meuse at the base of the Moerdijk road and rail bridges. The Allied troops were thrown into the assault against 300 fanatical Germans who are pinned against the end of the blown bridges and wedged behind an anti-tank ditch and concrete defenses.

British and Canadian troops continued to mop up the last enemy resistance on the northern coast of Walcheren, where the Germans still have some gun positions in operation.

With the end of the battle for the Scheide Estuary, there will be an inevitable lull on the British 2nd Army front, a BBC correspondent said. The Germans are now behind a substantial river obstacle from the mouth of the Meuse inland for 70 miles to Arnhem. Behind the formidable river barrier, the Germans are reported to be frantically constructing new defenses. They are also constructing defense positions, dispatches indicated, along the north to south stretch of the Meuse where it runs parallel with the German frontier.

At Dunkirk, far to the west on the Channel coast, German troops buried their dead and retrieved their wounded during the two-hour truce granted by the Canadian commander. Press dispatches reported that minor « naval battles » between Allied troops and German garrison defenders have been in progress as the Germans flooded the entire Dunkirk area. Roads are reported to be under water from 18 inches to 15 feet deep. (OWI-Reuter - AP-BBC)

HEAVY FIGHTING RAGES IN LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 8 — General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight that heavy fighting with Japanese reinforcements was raging along the ridges bordering the northern end of the twisting road to Ormac, while American artillery pounded the enemy's rear areas.

For the second day, the communique told of « bitter fighting » between the U.S. 24th Infantry Division and elements of the Japanese 1st, 30th, 102nd, and 16th Divisions down the narrow highway and in the tortuous terrain nearby.

Seventh Division troops, smashing up the west coast of Leyte, and forces of the 96th Division were rushing today to join the 24th Division.

RED ARMY OFFENSIVE BELIEVED IMMINENT

MOSCOW, November 8 — For the third time in three days, tonight's Soviet communique announced no material changes on the eastern front, but press dispatches reported that the resumption of the Red Army offensive against Budapest is believed imminent. Prevailing difficult weather is holding up the offensive, but bitter fighting is expected, with the entire Danube sector from Budapest southward exposed to Soviet forces.

In the Hungarian capital itself, neutral and enemy sources reported that confusion is mounting as civilian evacuation increases. Shortages of food, transportation, and clothing in the city were said to be acute.

At the northern end of the eastern front, the Red Air Force joined Red Army troops in their new offensive aimed at destroying 30 German divisions trapped in western Latvia.

The Norwegian Foreign Minister Trygve Lie announced here today that Norwegian forces are now fighting side-by-side with the Russians in their pursuit of the Germans in northern Norway.

To the south in Finland, Finnish troops have advanced northeast of Ivalo, which was captured yesterday, and are fighting German rear-guards near the southwestern end of Lake Inari, on the Arctic Road leading from the Gulf of Bothnia to the Arctic Ocean. (OWI-Reuter - BBC)

M.A.A.F. HEAVIES HIT BALKAN ESCAPE ROUTES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 8 — Liberators of the 15th USAAF today bombed fleeing enemy troops pushing northward through Yugoslavia, in the second day of concentrated attacks against Balkan escape routes south and southeast of Belgrade.

The main targets were strung out along the escape road running from Mitrovica to Prijepolje and Sjenica, all in southeastern Yugoslavia.

Medium bombers of the Tactical Air Force today continued their attacks on bridges along the Brenner Pass line, and fighters and fighter-bombers carried out offensive sweeps in northern Yugoslavia and against enemy communications and battlefield targets in the Bologna area.

Yesterday, escorted heavy bombers of the 15th AAF struck two out of three main rail bridges along the Brenner Pass line, it was announced here today.

The two bridges struck were over the Isarco River at Albes, and over the Adige at Ora, while the third bridge, which was only slightly damaged, crossed the Adige at Mezzocorona. The three bridges are in northeastern Italy.

In other attacks, heavy bomb loads were dropped on the Sarajevo rail yards in Yugoslavia, as well as communications in the Albania, Yugoslavia, and northern Italy area. RAF Wellingtons and Liberators carried out the daylight attack on the Sarajevo yards, on which 300 tons of bombs were released on the target area.

Other heavy bombers attacked military installations in the Vienna area.

Medium bombers destroyed five out of eight bridges attacked in northeastern Italy, and created havoc among German troop concentrations in the Forli area with thousands of fragmentation bombs.

Light and fighter-bombers were credited with hits on seven Po Valley bridges.

Seventh Division troops, smashing up the west coast of Leyte, and forces of the 96th Division were rushing today to join the 24th Division.

The 96th Division was reported beating across the 4,000-foot Mamban Mountains from Patoc, 18 miles northeast of Ormoc. They were last reported within five miles of the road junction of Libungao.

With their main escape route from Ormoc threatened from the south, the Japanese were fighting hard to hold Libungao and keep open the secondary route to Palompon, 20 miles west of Ormoc on a peninsula.

American carrier-based fighter-bombers of the U.S. 3rd Fleet, attacking Japanese shipping and airfields in the Manila Bay area and in southern Luzon for the second time in two days, destroyed an additional 249 Japanese aircraft on the ground and in the air, bringing their two-day total to 440, Pacific Fleet Headquarters announced yesterday.

Returning to Manila Bay on Sunday on the heels of Saturday's heavy assault, fighter-bombers sank three cargo ships, one oil tanker, and damaged several others. Japanese warships came in for their share of the raid when two destroyers and two destroyer escorts were damaged by dive-bombing attacks.

The Associated Press said that the two-day toll of 440 Jap planes was the second highest in the Pacific war, exceeded only by the 500-odd record of June 18/19 when the U.S. 5th Fleet destroyed 402 planes in one day and followed by scores more on the succeeding day.

General MacArthur's communique said today that American heavy bombers dropped 260 tons of bombs yesterday on enemy airfields in the Visayas Islands, northwest of Leyte. Runways were damaged and 15 enemy planes destroyed on

King Zog's Palace Hit

British and South African Beaufighters of the Balkan Air Force yesterday carried out rocket attacks on the German-occupied palace of King Zog at Tirana, Albania, it was announced here today.

The rocket firing planes scored 56 hits on the building, pilots reported.

Partisan forces in the hills near the palace witnessed the successful attack, which also was directed against German barracks buildings in the vicinity.

It was announced today that the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces have destroyed a total of over 11,200 enemy aircraft in the two years since the initial Allied landing in North Africa. In this period, Allied bombers have hit enemy targets with more than 450,000 tons of bombs, have sunk or damaged some 815,500 tons of enemy shipping, and have virtually destroyed the German Air Force and its principal production centers, as well as crippling enemy fuel and industrial production in the southern European area.

1,200 PLANES ATTACK MERSEBURG AND RHEINE

LONDON, November 8 — Approximately 1,200 planes, including 350 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th USAAF, attacked the big Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg in central Germany and railyards at Rheine, northwest of Münster, today. More than 850 Mustang and Thunderbolt Fighters escorted the bombers.

American planes scored the greatest air victory of the war over the same target last Thursday when they shot down 180 German planes and damaged or destroyed 25 on the ground.

A synthetic oil plant at Homberg in the Ruhr also was attacked today by RAF bombers. The number of planes participating in the assault has not yet been revealed.

Five U.S. Bombers and 42 fighters failed to return from the attack at Merseburg and Rheine. Sixty enemy locomotives, 90 railway cars, and 18 motor vehicles were shot up. A majority of the missing fighters are believed safe in friendly territory. (Reuter)

JAP RESISTANCE IN BURMA STIFFENS

KANDY, CEYLON, November 8 — Allied forces in the Chin Hills in north Burma continued their attack around Fort White on the Tiddim-Kalemyo Road but against stiffened Japanese resistance, today's Southeast Asia Command communique announced.

In the Arakan sector, West African troops, supported by a successful Allied air attack, cleared out an enemy strongpoint north of Paletwa in the Kaladan Valley.

Patrol activity by British and Chinese troops in the Buthidaung and Taping River areas was reported also, with heavy casualties inflicted on the enemy.

A communique broadcast by Radio Chungking said today that bitter fighting was in progress for Kweilin, the Kwangsi rail junction. Violent Japanese attacks on the city Monday night were reported, when an enemy thrust on the city's northern suburb was repulsed.

Three Japanese thrusts were checked by Chinese defenders — one 30 kilometers northeast of Lojung, another across the Lin River, on the west bank, and the third east of Pignan. The Chinese admitted the loss of the town of Hsuijen.

Radio Chungking reported that Liberators of the 14th USAAF bombed Fort Bayard on Liuchow Peninsula and the Kowloon docks at Hongkong yesterday with unobserved results.

Despite bad weather, fighter planes of the 14th USAAF gave strong support to Chinese ground forces on all fronts except the Salween. Japanese columns, warehouses, and gasoline dumps were bombed and strafed in the Lungling, Changshih, and Chefang areas, and in the Kweihsien area on the West River, with excellent results. Only one Allied plane was lost.

In central Burma, aircraft of the Eastern Air Command attacked communications and buildings in support of ground operations in the Chindwin region. Other forces attacked objectives near Kalemyo, where heavy fighting is now going on. (OWI - Reuter)

ALL KNOWN FASCIST GROUPS IN ITALY LIQUIDATED

LONDON, November 8 — All Fascist political organizations in liberated Italy known to Allied authorities have been liquidated, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today.

«Every effort is being made to obtain information regarding underground Fascist political organizations,» Mr. Eden added, «and these are being liquidated as soon as they are discovered». (Reuter)

FASCIST'S VILLA CONFISCATED

ROME, November 8 — The villa of Filippo Anfuso, Republican Fascist Ambassador to Berlin, was today ordered confiscated and turned over to the custody of Giorgio Andreoli, Government trustee.

The confiscation order was extended to include the personal and real estate property of his children, brother and first wife. An investigation is under way to ascertain the extent of Anfuso's additional property in Sicily.

Anfuso's villa is situated here in the vicinity of the Basilica of St. Paul. (UNN)

FOUR ITALIANS TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER

ROME, November 8 — The trial of four residents of the Frosinone district charged with the murder of a Canadian soldier will open Friday before the Allied General Court here.

One of the accused Giuseppe Ceccarelli, is alleged fatally to have stabbed W. J. Bell, a Canadian gunner, during a fracas last June at Frosinone. The body was discovered three months later on land belonging to the Ceccarelli family after an investigation aided by Silverio Chiappini, a relative of the accused.

Also arrested were Ceccarelli's father and brother. (UNN)

89 ITALIAN TERRORISTS TO BE TRIED

CATANZARO, November 8 — Eighty-nine persons from Catanzaro, Cosenza, and Reggio Calabria provinces, charged with using terroristic methods in an attempt to reestablish the Fascist Party in Calabria, will be tried soon before the Military Court at Catanzaro.

An inquiry into the charges is now under way, but the date of the trial has not been decided. (UNN)

ROME RESTAURANTS PLACED OFF LIMITS

ROME, November 8 — All restaurants in the city were declared out of bonds today in an order issued by Brig. Gen. Thoburn Brown, head of the Rome Allied Area Command.

The order applies to all officers and enlisted men of the Allied Forces.

Not affected by this order are cafes where no foodstuffs are sold and clubs and restaurants organized and controlled by the Allied Forces. (UNN)

NEW ELECTRICITY RATION PLAN SATISFACTORY

ROME, November 8 — The new electricity ration plan which went into effect November 1 was termed «satisfactory» in a statement issued last night by Bruno Bianchi, director of the Distribution Services of the Rome Electric Company.

Under the new plan, the city is divided into four zones. Each zone is to have a continuous flow of electricity for a period of one week for 24 hours a day. During this time, the other three zones will have electric power every three days for 24 hours.

The public must restrict itself to its quota and not more, Director Bianchi added, as «every kilowatt consumed over the set limit deprives someone else of his share.» (UNN)

HOUSE OF COMMONS PLANS PUBLISHED

LONDON, November 8 — Plans for a new House of Commons to replace the chamber destroyed during German air raids were published yesterday.

The plans for the new building will be produced by Royal Academician Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, whom the House committee deemed most qualified. The approximate cost of the building is estimated at 784,000 pounds. Demolitions and the preparations of plans are expected to take 18 months, and the building of the new edifice four or five years.

It is planned that the new House will have the same dimensions and will provide the same number of seats for its members, 437 out of 615 members. Accomodations for strangers and pressmen, however, will be increased from 352 to 487, and will have better seating arrangements.

The committee was unanimous in the belief that the sense of intimacy and almost conversational form of debate should be encouraged and, therefore, the old dimensions of the chamber should be maintained. (Reuter)

GREEKS SET DATE FOR DISBANDING PATRIOTS

LONDON, November 8 — Major General Ronald Scobie, Commander of Land Forces Greece, announced today that December 10 has been fixed as the date for the disbanding of the Patriot forces of ELAS and EDES, a dispatch to The Times said tonight. The general's announcement came after a long conversation with Prime Minister Georges Papandreou.

Career officers of the Patriot forces will return to the regular army and receive all back pay due them from the time they took to the mountains, the dispatch said.

Further steps will be taken for the safeguarding of public security. ELAS militiamen will come under government orders on December 1, and the gendarmerie now policing the provinces will be reorganized and renamed the National Guard. (Reuter)

HITLER FAILS TO MAKE LONG-AWAITED SPEECH

LONDON, November 8 — Adolf Hitler's long-awaited speech on the 21st anniversary of the abortive Munich beer hall putsch scheduled for tonight, has been postponed «until some later date» owing to the total mobilization ban on celebrations of any kind, the German Overseas News Agency announced late tonight.

Hitler's speeches on these occasions always have served as the directive for the Nazi Party's propaganda during the subsequent period.

Since today's German communique made its first reference to Hitler's new secret weapon, it was expected that the Führer might take advantage of this opportunity to boast about the V-2.

In past years, Hitler has never failed to speak on this important anniversary of the Nazi Party. Hitler's voice was last heard by German radio listeners on July 20, when he hurried to a microphone to assure the Herrenvolk that he had survived the abortive military coup.

Hitler's almost complete retirement from the public eye and ear since the bombing attempt on his life has given rise to rumors and speculations as to his whereabouts and mental and physical condition. He was conspiculously absent from the State funeral of his favorite general, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel. (OWI - Reuter)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 8 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

South of Forli, in the high ground between the Rabbi and Montone Rivers, Polish troops of the 8th Army continue to make good progress. An important feature, Monte Casaluda, has been captured after a fierce fight, and several heavy German counter-attacks beaten off.

Farther west, San Ruffillo, on the Florence-Forli Road, has been occupied and important progress made on the high ground north of this road.

Elsewhere activity has been confined to vigorous patrolling.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th AAF yesterday bombed troop concentrations in Yugoslavia and rail targets and bridges in northern Italy in great strength.

Strategic fighters bombed and strafed targets in southern Yugoslavia.

RAF medium and heavy bombers attacked rail yards in Serbia.

Tactical Air Force medium bombers attacked troop concentrations and bridges in northern Italy. Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked close-support targets and communications near the battle areas.

Balkan Air Force and Coastal Air Force units attacked targets in Yugoslavia and Albania.

From these operations, two of our heavy bombers and 10 other aircraft are missing. There were no claims.

MAAF flew about 2,300 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 8 — Today's communique:

With the freeing of Willemstad, Allied forces now hold the entire south shore of the Hollandschdiep and the Maas River, with the exception of the area south and east of the destroyed Moerdijk bridges, where a small, isolated force of the enemy is still holding out.

On Walcheren Island, fighting is continuing northeast of Domburg. Gun positions in this area were hit by rocket-firing fighters. Elsewhere on the island, resistance has ceased.

Two military buildings in Dunkirk were destroyed yesterday in attacks by rocket-firing fighters.

Air attacks on enemy communications were continued.

Fighter-bombers cut railway lines in areas of Amersfoort, and Apeldoorn Zwoolle.

A railway bridge at Goch and an oil storage tank and railway building at Emmerich were hit by rocket-firing fighters and fighter-bombers. Railway lines were cut in several other places along the Dutch-German frontier.

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 8 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

Clashes between Patriots and Nazi-Fascists have taken place in the sector and interior of Forli.

Immediately behind the front, Patriots are supporting the Allied offensive, attacking enemy traffic and isolated patrols.

On October 26, the Fascists, in a vain attempt to reoccupy a village in Piedmont under Patriot control left 12 dead and 28 wounded, including a colonel.

On the night of October 13, Vicenza Patriots blew up a road bridge on the Brenta at Curtura in the Province of Padua, and a railway bridge on the Vicenza-Verona line. An enemy troop train was derailed, and 100 German soldiers were killed. The locomotive and four carriages were destroyed.

It can now be revealed that on August 22, a brigade of Patriots operating on the Tuscany-Liguria border was attacked a second time after having completed a withdrawal to Monte Sacro. Through violent efforts the Brigade was able to maintain its positions. At San Terenzo, in the Province of Massa Carrara, this brigade sucsequently launched a counter-attack against two German tanks and armored-cars. Eighteen Germans were killed, and a large quantity of arms were taken.

On the following day, the Germans massacred in reprisal 102 persons from the villages of Bardine and San Terenzo. Among the victims there were only four fit men; the others were mainly women and children. Many girls between 14 and 20 years of age were violated.

In the same zone, 52 political prisoners were hanged with barbed-wire, and the following inscription was left on their corpses: « This is our reply to General Alexander. » Among the victims was the priest of San Terenzo.

Two days later, about 3,000 Germans, having completed their work of robbery and destruction, burned the villages of Bardine, Colla, Posterla, Marciaso, Cecina, Monzone, Tenerano, Viano, Equi, and Vinca, all in the Massa Carrara zone. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUHRERS HEADQUARTERS, November 8 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

After the area of greater London had been subjected to the fire of « V-1 » since June 15 with but short interruptions and in varying strength, the fire has been intensified, for some weeks past, by the use of an explosive missile of far greater effect, « V-2 ».

In the northern corner of Walcheren, German strongpoints held their own yesterday against the enemy attacking from the west and east.

The bridgehead of Moerdijk was defended in hard fighting against strong tank attacks. German artillery effectively shelled enemy concentrations and continuous movements in the area of Nijmegen and east of Helmond.

Tanks and grenadiers wiped out an American formation which had been cut off southeast of Stolberg, and retook the place of Kommerscheidt in grim fighting, despite bitter resistance by the enemy; 15 American tanks were destroyed, two were captured, and more than 300 prisoners were taken.

Action continues in the Hürtgen Forest sector, with little change in positions.

Fighting is still in progress in the village of Vossenack. Farther south, we repulsed two counter-attacks from the vicinity of Schmidt.

West of Schmidt, our units improved their positions, and mopped up pockets of resistance. Enemy defense positions near Schmidt were attacked by fighter-bombers.

Other targets were buildings, railway lines, and bridges in the Ruhr.

Rain slowed ground operations in the Luneville-Remiremont sector. Strong counter-attacks were repulsed west of Gerardmer after stiff fighting. (Reuter)

After strong artillery preparation, the enemy early in the morning launched the expected large-scale attack between Pont à Musson and Château Salins. Heavy fighting ensued. German shocktroops deeply penetrated into enemy positions south and southeast of Château Salins and in the northeastern corner of the Parroy Forest. They blew up 25 pill boxes, and returned to their lines with prisoners and rich booty.

Italy:

In the Etruscan Apennines, enemy thrusts in the salient north of Rocca San Casciano were held in the depth of the main battle area by a German infantry division fighting there.

Eastern Front:

From the Balkan fronts, a continuation of lively fighting activities is reported. There is no essential change in the situation.

In the valley of the southern Morava, major attacks of the Bulgarians were frustrated.

In the Aegean Sea, German torpedo boats sank an enemy submarine.

Near Budapest and north of the railway line from Cegled to Szolnok, our tanks and grenadiers repulsed strong Soviet attacks. The Soviets were thrown out from several villages by the counter-attacking Germans.

Along the middle reaches of the Theiss, German and Hungarian formations are engaged in grim fighting with strong enemy assault troops. German fighter-bombers successfully raided Soviet supply columns by day and by night.

In the East Prussian frontier zone, only fighting of local character took place.

Yesterday the impetus of the Soviet attacks against our northern front diminished in the area of Autz. The enemy was partly thrown back in counter-attacks where he continued to attack. The attempted enemy break-through in Courland was thus frustrated.

In a bitter defence battle lasting 17 days, our divisions withstood the assaults of superior Soviet forces and smashed a large part of Soviet shock formations, in particular tank groups. Between October 26 and November 7, 602 enemy tanks were destroyed, and 239 Soviet planes shot down over the battle area, including 110 destroyed by flak artillery of the Luftwaffe alone.

In Finland, local skirmishes developed with Finnish and Soviet troops northwest of Ivalo and west of Varanger Fjord.

Air:

During attacks by North American terror flyers on southern Reich territory the flak artillery of the German Luftwaffe shot down seven four-engined bombers. In residential quarters at Marburg on Drave and in Vienna, slight damage was caused to buildings.

Czechoslovakia:

It is further announced that the organized revolutionary movement in Slovakia has collapsed. In difficult fighting in mountains and woods lasting for more than two months, troops of the Waffen SS and Army under the command of SS Obergruppenführer and the General of the Waffen SS Berger and Höfle cleared western and central Slovakia from insidious enemies under Bolshevist and Czechoslovak command. General Viest, member of the London Exile Government and commander of the so-called Czechoslovakian Army, and his chief of staff, were taken prisoner. The attempt to attack our eastern front from the rear cost the rebels more than 4,000 dead, and more than 15,000 prisoners. According to preliminary estimates, the German troops captured two armoured trains, 267 aircraft, 104 tanks, 309 guns, and the entire supply of the rebels.

The complete clearing of the country from the bands is being continued. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

New Secret Weapon: The outstanding feature of German propaganda today was the large-scale renewal of the « secret weapon » campaign. This time the secret weapon, labeled « V-2 », in which the German people were told to have vast confidence, was again directed against London.

The most detailed of the several accounts devoted to V-2 was the one given by a correspondent of Transocean. He declared in an eerie tone that a new phase in the war of secret weapons had been « initiated in a mysterious manner, » and that for reasons of security « information will not be forthcoming about the technical side of the secret weapon V-2. » A propaganda motive for the renewed secret-weapon campaign, concerning the usefulness of distracting as well as bolstering the home mentality, seemed indicated by Transocean's statement that « on Wednesday, all Germany is naturally talking about V-2. »

Specific details about the workings of this weapon are few. It was presented as a revolutionary and devastating new explosive, more deadly than the flying bombs, less

Eastern Front:

The correspondent Colonel von Olberg characterized the « entire eastern front » as « in a state of expectancy, » which, he said, will give birth to a new « winter campaign. » In so short a time as « the next few days », he predicted, this new campaign will surge against the « hotly-contested East Prussian frontier region. »

Budapest Evacuation:

A Transocean flash announced: « The male population of Pest, the larger part of Greater Budapest, is requested by the Minister of War to evacuate the city voluntarily. The appeal is addressed to men from 16 to 50. The reason given is that the capital might temporarily become a zone of war, so that men who are likely to be forced to work by the Soviets, should not remain. » This implication of a Sovietized Budapest was in contrast to German statements elsewhere about how the German Army would keep the Russians out of Budapest.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Eighth Army Active: Although in general fighting on the Italian front was « limited », the 8th Army was reported to have exerted heavy pressure southwest of Forli and east of Rocca San Casciano. The Fascist radio added that all the enemy attacks were beaten back, both in the Forli and the Ronco River areas. Again it was said that the Allies are preparing for new offensives.

Comment on Roosevelt Election: The Fascist commentator « Vindex » reacted to Roosevelt's election with studied indifference. This did not prevent him, however, from calculating that « Roosevelt as president means friction with England in the Atlantic, the Mediterranean, the Pacific, and the Middle East. » « Vindex » added a new ethnological note to the convenient lexicon of pejoration with his « Roosevelt, the Jew of Indian origin. » He then added that the reelection of Roosevelt will mean that war between capitalism and the working classes will continue to the very end.

Communist Slain by Rome Police: The Fascist radio told us that the death of a Communist at the hands of the Rome police has caused a « great stir » in Communist circles. The leaders of the Communist party have supposedly protested with Togliatti over the murder of their comrade. « A protest strike is foreseen. »

Bonomi Government Forcedly Servile to Communism: The newest « humiliation » suffered by Italian authorities in « invaded » Italy was said to be servility, under duress, to the Soviet régime. This alleged state of genuflection was illustrated by the news item that Bonomi, Orlando, Croce, and other Government figures had to attend the Rome ceremonies in commemoration of the Soviet Revolution; « Stalin and Communism were cheered ». The whole state of affairs was portrayed as symbolic of Italy's « degradation » and « Royal politicians » were blamed.

Fascist Welfare Units Revived by Allies: It was asserted that the Allies have, in desperation, been forced to revive certain Fascist welfare organizations in « invaded Italy ».

Black Market Arrests in Bari: The Fascist radio quoted an alleged United Nations News dispatch announcing that Allied and Italian authorities in Bari have carried out « large scale arrests of tradesmen and commissioners. » The latter were supposedly members of a black market ring dealing in rationed foods, particularly flour and olive oil. Of the more than 300 arrested persons, « many have confessed the complicity of Allied officials. »

The new Allied drive on this front was presented as being no surprise to the Germans. «The large-scale attack by the American 3rd Army,» commented Sertorius, «on a broad front between Pont à Mousson and Château Salins, which has been expected by the German Army Command, has been going on for only a few hours, so that details are hardly available about it as yet.» Its strategic aim was said to be a «break-through to the Saar River.» The possibility was foreseen, with apprehension, that General Patch would also direct his forces, the 7th Army, toward the Saar.

Bonomi Government Forcedly Servile to Communism: The newest «humiliation» suffered by Italian authorities in «invaded» Italy was said to be servility, under duress, to the Soviet régime. This alleged state of genuflection was illustrated by the news item that Bonomi, Orlando, Croce, and other Government figures had to attend the Rome ceremonies in commemoration of the Soviet Revolution; «Stalin and Communism were cheered». The whole state of affairs was portrayed as symbolic of Italy's «degradation» and «Royal politicians» were blamed.

Fascist Welfare Units Revived by Allies: It was asserted that the Allies have, in desperation, been forced to revive certain Fascist welfare organizations in «invaded Italy».

Black Market Arrests in Bari: The Fascist radio quoted an alleged United Nations News dispatch announcing that Allied and Italian authorities in Bari have carried out «large scale arrests of tradesmen and commissioners.» The latter were supposedly members of a black market ring dealing in rationed foods, particularly flour and olive oil. Of the more than 300 arrested persons, «many have confessed the complicity of Allied officials.»

HUNGARIAN

Dramatic Appeal: Tonight, Radio Budapest has been making one dramatic appeal after another for calm, faith, and fortitude. Excerpts follow:

«Soviet tanks are advancing toward Budapest; the object is the capture of the Hungarian capital... There will be no street-fighting in Budapest... The procedure is going to be similar to that in Warsaw. German will and strength, there too, managed to hold the Polish capital without street-fighting, although there the Poles not only refused to cooperate but staged an uprising, stabbing the German defenders in the back... The heroism of the Hungarian Honved... will pounce upon the enemy and halt his advance... It may be possible, of course, in these days of mobile warfare, that one or two tanks will reach the suburbs... In this case, the citizens of Budapest have only one duty: to keep calm... The animals can eat, sleep, and breed; you do not need human beings for that. Man differs from animals in acting unselfishly — in this case for his Hungarian fatherland.»

STALIN SAYS GERMANY VERGES ON CATASTROPHE REPORTS 30 GERMAN DIVISIONS CUT OFF

MOSCOW, November 6 — Germany is on the verge of catastrophe, Marshal Stalin declared tonight in his annual review of the military and political situation before the Supreme Soviet on the eve of the 27th anniversary of the Russian October Revolution.

« Thirty German divisions in the Baltic States are now cut off from East Prussia, and are being hammered to pieces, » he asserted.

Stalin predicted that the flag of Soviet Russia will fly over Berlin « in the near future. »

« We have facing us now after all total mobilization only 204 German and Hungarian divisions. Of these, not more than 180 are German divisions, » Stalin reported.

and so, easily overcame the German defenses. Thus, Germany found herself squeezed in between the pincers of two fronts.

« As was to be expected, the enemy could not withstand the joint blows of the Red Army and Allied forces. In a short time, enemy troops were driven out of central Italy, France, Belgium, and Luxembourg. The enemy was thrown back to the German frontier.

« There can be no doubt that, but for the launching of the second front in Europe, which engaged up to 75 German divisions, our armies would not have been able to overcome German resistance in such a short time, and expel them from the Soviet Union.

« But it is equally beyond doubt that, without the powerful offensive operations of the Red Army this summer, the forces of our Allies would have been unable to deal with the German forces so swiftly as they did, and liberate France and Belgium. Our main aim is henceforth to hold Germany in a vice, never relaxing our grip. Therein is the key to victory. »

Stalin said the way to Hungary, Germany's last ally, was opened by the Rumanian declaration of war, which gave the Soviet forces a route and a way in which to help Yugoslavia.

Vitality of Russia Stressed

After detailing Soviet achievements in field and factory, Stalin said:

« This all goes to prove that our Socialist State possesses incomparably more vitality than any other state.

« The Socialist régime established by the October Revolution has endowed our people and army with immense power.

« The Red Army now has more, and substantially better, tanks, guns, and planes, than the Germans. Our war industry has won no less a triumph over the Germans than our Red Army.

« The strength of Soviet patriotism resides not in racial prejudices, but in the deep devotion of people to their Soviet motherland, and fraternal collaboration of workers of all nationalities composing our country.

« The Soviet Union does not drive asunder the peoples of our country; it welds them closer together. At the same time, people of the Soviet Union respect the rights and independence of the people living beyond our borders, and have always shown their readiness to live in peace and friendship with neighbor states. That is the basis of our growing and deepening ties with all freedom-loving countries.

« The Soviet people hate the German invaders, not because they are the people of a foreign nation, but because they brought to our people and to all freedom-loving people countless miseries and sufferings. »

He added that the « so-called elect German race has become an object of universal hatred, » and that the Hitlerites have suffered not only military, but also moral and political defeat.

Discussing foreign policy, Stalin said:

«We have facing us now after all total mobilization only 204 German and Hungarian divisions. Of these, not more than 180 are German divisions,» Stalin reported.

«Let us concede that in the present war, Hitlerite Germany, with her Fascist army, has proved more powerful than Germany and German armies in past wars. Let us add that in this war, the Germans succeeded in making use of fairly considerable armies of her vassal states. Despite these favorable conditions for waging war, Germany now finds herself on the brink of inevitable catastrophe. This is because Germany's principal enemy, the Soviet Union, outstripped Hitlerite Germany.

Teheran Paved the Way

«The main fact of the past year in the war against Hitlerite Germany is that the Red Army was no longer fighting alone, as before, but jointly with the forces of our Allies. The Teheran Conference was not held for nothing. The decision to deal Germany joint blows from the west, south, and east was implemented with amazing precision.

«Simultaneously with the major operations of the Red Army on the Soviet-German front, Allied forces began the invasion of France, and organized a powerful outflanking operation which forced Hitlerite Germany to fight on two fronts.

«Our Allies carried out mass landings which in their scope and organizing ability have no precedent in history, from the Soviet Union.

«But it is equally beyond doubt that, without the powerful offensive operations of the Red Army this summer, the forces of our Allies would have been unable to deal with the German forces so swiftly as they did, and liberate France and Belgium. LATE BULLETINS

RED ARMY READY TO DEAL NEW BLOWS

MOSCOW, November 6 — Marshal Stalin, in a special order of the day late tonight, said that the Red Army is ready to deal new devastating blows to the Germans.

In honor of the liberation of Soviet land, a salute will be fired at 1400 hours here tomorrow and in Leningrad, Sebastopol, Lwow, and other Soviet cities. (Reuter)

6 JAP WARSHIPS SUNK, DAMAGED IN LUZON RAIDS

PEARL HARBOR, November 6 — Carrier-based planes of Admiral William Halsey's 3rd Fleet destroyed more than 100 Japanese planes and sank or damaged more than six Japanese warships in a series of raids on Manila and southern Luzon Island, it was announced late tonight by Pacific Fleet Headquarters. that, by developing nationalist feeling, they would establish moral and political conditions in which the German invaders could dominate the enslaved peoples. But the policy of racial hatred has become a source of internal and international weakness for the German Fascist State. It is a factor in the disintegration of the criminal Hitlerite bloc.

« It is no accident that the enslaved peoples of France, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Belgium, Italy, Norway, and Holland were not the only ones to rise in arms against the German imperialists.

« The past year was a year of triumph of the common cause against the German coalition. For this cause, the peoples of the Soviet Union, Great Britain, and The United States have united in a military alliance.

« The decision taken at the Teheran Conference on the common action against Germany and the brilliant realization of this decision is a clear landmark in the consolidation of the front against the German coalition.

« There are few examples in history of great military operations and coördinated action against the common enemy which have been executed with such thoroughness and precision as the plan of common blows against Germany drawn up at the Teheran Conference.

« Another proof of solidarity of front of the United Nations is the decision taken by the conference at Dumbarton Oaks on the question of the organization of security after the war. Differences, of course exist — differences can exist even among members of the same party. All the more must there be some differences among the representatives of the different states and different parties.

« What is surprising is, not that there are differences, but that there are so few of them, and that they are almost always overcome, thanks to the unity and coördinated action of the three great powers.

Japan an Aggressor

Turning to the problem of aggressor nations, Stalin said:

« Such unpleasant facts as the Pearl Harbor incident and the loss of the Philippines and other islands in the Pacific, and the loss of Hongkong and Singapore, cannot be treated as mere coincidences. Japan as an aggressor nation was better prepared for war than Great Britain and The United States, who were pursuing a policy of peace.

« Neither can we treat as a coincidence the unpleasant facts of the loss of the Ukraine, White Russia, and the Baltic area in the very first year of the war, when Germany, as an aggressor nation, was better prepared for war than the Soviet Union.

« It would be simple-minded to seek an explanation of these facts in the personal qualities of the Japanese and the Germans, or to speak of their superiority over the British, Americans, or Russians in farsightedness.

« It is a question not of personal qualities, but of aggressor nations interested in war, nations preparing for war over a long period, and accumulating power for that purpose, who are usually — in fact are bound to be — better prepared for war than are peace-loving nations who are not interested in starting war. This is a historical truth which it would be dangerous to ignore. »

Post-War Security

Stalin then considered the means the Allies have at their disposal for preventing fresh aggression by Germany in 20 to 30 years' time, which, he said is enough for her to recover from defeat:

« Apart from complete disarmament of aggressor nations, there exists only one means, » said Stalin. « That is to set [illegible] for safeguarding the peace of the

U.S. 1ST ARMY FORCED BACK IN HUERTGEN FOREST

SHAEF, November 6 — The Germans hurled a three-pronged counter-attack against American 1st Army positions in the Hürtgen Forest and forced the Americans out of Vossenack, 14 miles southeast of Aachen, late press dispatches reported today.

In the first concerted attack since the fall of Aachen, German infantry columns, supported by Tiger tanks, attacked in force from the southwest, from the town of Hürtgen west of Vossenack, and north from Schmidt.

The German attack was checked by American infantry and tanks which later regained some ground, but the Germans still control the eastern section of Vossenack. A heavy battle is being fought in the center of town.

Two miles southeast of Vossenack, the Germans still hold the burning ruins of Schmidt ,which the Americans yielded Saturday after a German counter-attack, despite heavy air attacks which set fire to the surrounding forest.

The Germans evidently have been ordered to hold on to the strategic road-junction town. The enemy holds high ground to the south of Schmidt, and are directing artillery fire into American troop positions.

American gains in the Hürtgen sector in the past 36 hours measure in yards, but Allied troops are continuing to advance slowly through thick minefields and stubborn enemy artillery and small-arms fire.

Germans Withdraw across Meuse

The Germans in southwestern Holland have withdrawn their troops across the Meuse River at Moerdijk, and have blown up two spans of the rail bridge and one span of the road bridge.

The remaining German forces are now hemmed into two pockets, each eight miles square, in the area south of Moerdijk and to the west at the ferry crossing of Willemstad. Allied troops hold a solid line along the southern banks of the river, and are continuing to press the retreating Germans hard.

An estimated 65,000 Germans have been killed, captured or wounded in the British 2nd Army's drive to clear southwestern Holland, while an additional 25,000 German prisoners were taken in the drive that opened the Schelde Estuary. The German 15th Army was estimated by a British staff officer tonight to be at less than half of its original strength.

While Canadian 1st Army troops have fought their way into the Walcheren town of Middelburg, Allied dredges and minesweepers are clearing the Schelde approaches to the port of Antwerp.

The American 7th Army unit, which was reported last night to have been rescued after being encircled for a week in the Vosges Mountains east of Bruyères, was identified tonight by the Associated Press as a battalion of the 141st Infantry Regiment of the 36th Division. The rescue was effected by American troops of Japanese descent, who had previously fought in Italy. (OWI-Reuter-AP)

«This should not be a repetition of the League of Nations of sad memory, which had neither the right nor the means to stop aggression.

«May one rely on actions of this international organization proving sufficiently effective? They will be effective, if the great powers which have borne the brunt of the struggle against Hitlerite Germany will continue to act in the spirit of unity and concord in the future. They will not be effective, if this essential condition fails...

«The Soviet people and Red Army have cleared our land of the enemy. Now and forever, our country is free of Hitlerite vermin.

ITALIAN FRONT POSITIONS IMPROVED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 6 — Allied patrols were active yesterday, and local improvements in front-line positions along the Italian front were reported with the second consecutive day of fine, dry weather, it was announced here today.

As river levels fell and flood waters receded from the inundated lowlands at the southeastern edge of the Po Plain, sharp fighting broke out between 8th Army and German patrol and armored forces, particularly in the area east and south of the partly enveloped town of Forli.

On the 5th Army front, there was almost a complete lull in front action, and Allied forces took advantage of the dry weather to repair washed-out roads, dry and clean equipment, recondition ordnance, and reorganize their positions.

The Luftwaffe also took advantage of the clear weather, and in bright moonlight three enemy planes strafed and bombed at medium altitude the main Florence-Bologna Road south of Livergnano, a spur route leading to Firenzuola, and rear supply installations in the American sector.

Only minor damage and no reported casualties resulted from this first appearance of enemy aircraft over Allied front lines in more than a month.

Both German and 8th Army patrols were active in the coastal area south of Ravenna, and one small enemy force which penetrated deeply into 8th Army positions was cut off and captured in its entirety.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Around Forli there was little change in the course of the sporadic fighting west of the River Ronco, which has now been in progress for five days.

German tanks ranged over the Forli airfield, southeast of the town, and German troops laid down heavy fire from their six-barrelled mortars, or Nebelwerfer.

Exchanges of fire between German forces in San Martino in Strada and forward 8th Army positions were the only activity in this area south of Forli.

On the 5th Army front, British forces west of the Sillaro River and east of the Santerno River reported sharp fire fights, while American troops repulsed a small-scale attack in the vicinity of Monte Belmonte, roughly eight miles south of Bologna. (PRO)

AMERICANS ADVANCE FOUR MILES ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 6 — General Douglas MacArthur's communique tonight announced that American infantrymen advanced four miles toward Ormoc, where the Japanese have continued to land fresh troops by barge and transport.

American 155-millimeter «Long Tom» guns poured 400 rounds of high explosives into Japanese concentrations at Ormoc, on the west coast of Leyte, before dawn today, while other heavy artillery units swept the main highway from Ormoc north to Carigara Bay.

Troops of the American 24th Division, after liberating the key communications center of Pinamopoan yesterday, advanced beyond Limon after repulsing three small-scale Japanese counter-attacks which were launched from what the communique described as «favorable defensive terrain.»

Meanwhile, another American column has pushed 14 miles northward along the west coast from Baybay to within 12 miles of Ormoc, whose capture would deprive the Japanese of their last supply port on Leyte, and isolate a sizable force of enemy tanks and infantry.

Hard fighting flared up two miles west of Dagami, where the American 96th Division broke into strong, reshaped Japanese defensive positions. Flame-thrower teams and grenadiers led the way, reducing bunkers, mortar positions, and machine-gun nests in some of the most difficult fighting of the campaign.

Dagami Captured

The town of Dagami, important road junction 10 miles inland from the east coast of Leyte, was captured several days ago.

Dispatches from the Philippines say that the Japanese Air Force apparently is flying good pilots into the Philippines from distant points for their harassing attacks against liberated portions of Leyte.

Reinforcements of American planes have also reached the Philippines, but the Japanese have continued to press attacks by night with great determination, the dispatches added.

One Japanese pilot, who was shot down and whose body was recovered, carried a newspaper showing that he had left Japan only a few days before.

Although harassed by night raiders, American land-based fighters now have complete daylight control of the air over all of the vital landing and installation points on Leyte, Maj. Gen. Ennis Whitehead, commander of the 5th USAAF on Leyte, announced yesterday.

Allied planes yesterday hit Masbate, in the central Philippines, and Davao, on Mindanao Island. They sank a 1,000-ton enemy freighter in the southern Moluccas area, and damaged a 3,000-ton freighter transport and an 8,000-ton transport in Philippine waters. Between the Rivers Danube and Tisa in Hungary, Soviet and Rumanian troops continued their progress toward Budapest. Rumanian troops in northeast Hungary now control the southeast bank of the Tisa River, a Rumanian communique said tonight. Fighting on the Russian left flank is feeling the effects of heavy rain.

Finnish forces driving northwards toward Petsamo have reached Ivalo, 115 miles from the Arctic port, and 40 miles from Vuotso. (OWI-Reuter)

2,500 AIRCRAFT STRIKE WESTERN GERMANY

LONDON, November 6 — Gelsenkirchen, in the Ruhr Valley, received its heaviest attack today by 700 RAF bombers as American Air Forces for the third consecutive day sent more than 1,100 heavies to devastate oil plants around Hamburg and Harburg. Industrial targets in the Ruhr, and other objectives in western Germany, also were hit by the bombers, which were escorted by more than 700 fighters.

The Luftwaffe made no attempt to attack the American bombers, but a few German planes were engaged by some of the escorting fighters, an 8th USAAF announcement said tonight. Four German aircraft were destroyed. Seven American bombers and 10 fighters are missing, but some of the fighters are believed to have landed safely in friendly territory.

Six bombers and 10 fighters previously reported missing from yesterday's operations are safe, leaving a total of 24 bombers and 13 fighters missing from attacks by 2,600 aircraft against German transportation facilities yesterday.

Last night, RAF Mosquitoes penetrated deep into southwestern Germany to strike twice at the rail hub and aircraft and submarine industrial center of Stuttgart. Its rail lines supply German troops opposing the American 3rd Army in the Metz-Nancy area, and also those opposing the Allied armies in northern Italy.

The double night attack on Stuttgart climaxed the greatest 36 hours of bombing in the war so far, an Associated Press dispatch said today. Approximately 9,000 American and British planes bombed the Reich from the west and south over the week-end, with virtually no opposition from the Luftwaffe. In that period 21 German cities felt the effects of hundreds of tons of Allied bombs.

The recent gigantic RAF attacks on German Ruhr cities were directed against subterranean plants built by the Germans since their surface installations were destroyed a year ago, the Daily Mail said today. It is estimated that the Germans could not have produced more than 25 per cent of their former output in the underground plants which are now being eliminated by Allied heavy bombing.

American fighters yesterday destroyed 10 German jet-propelled fighter planes parked on three widely-separated German airfields at Halle, Crailsheim, and Sachsenheim. Seventeen other Nazi planes were damaged.

Flying bombs were launched against southern England again last night, the BBC said this morning. During the night, one Heinkel-111, launching flying bombs, was destroyed over the North Sea by RAF Mosquitoes. (OWI-Reuter)

U. S. 1ST ARMY TAKES 200,000TH PRISONER

WITH U.S. 1ST ARMY, November 6 — A German sergeant, who, after seven years of fighting for Hitler decided he «had enough,» surrendered his platoon and became the 200,000th prisoner to be taken by the U.S. 1st Army, a dispatch to the Daily Mail said today.

Told he was number 200,000, the German sergeant looked pleased and said:

American bombers on Thursday attacked nine transports and two destroyers at Chichi Island, and one large transport at Haha Island, all in the Bonin Group, about 600 miles southeast of Tokyo, Admiral Chester Nimitz's communique announced last night. Other attacks by land-based planes on Japanese airfields in the Bonin, Volcano, northern Palaus, and northern Mariana Islands were also announced. (OWI)

NO CHANGE ON RUSSIAN FRONTS

MOSCOW, November 6 — There were no material changes on the Russian fronts today, the Soviet communique announced tonight. In yesterday's fighting, 16 German tanks were knocked out on all fronts, in contrast to the losses around the 100 mark daily, of a week ago.

While the Russian left flank closing around Budapest is feeling the effects of heavy rain, Russian aircraft were active over Budapest, attacking railway yards through which the Germans are hurrying reserves to the battlefield outside the city, a Moscow dispatch said today. Dive-bombers and Stormoviks have begun a dawn-to-dusk bombardment of communications radiating from Budapest.

American fighters [illegible] of the fighters are believed to have landed safely in friendly territory.

Six bombers and 10 fighters previously reported missing from yesterday's operations are safe, leaving a total of 24 bombers and 13 fighters missing from attacks by 2,600 aircraft against German transportation facilities yesterday.

Last night, RAF Mosquitoes penetrated deep into southwestern Germany to strike twice at the rail hub and aircraft and submarine industrial center of Stuttgart. Its rail lines supply German troops opposing the American 3rd Army in the Metz-Nancy area, and also those opposing the Allied armies in northern Italy.

The double night attack on Stuttgart climaxed the greatest 36 hours of bombing in the war so far, an Associated Press dispatch said today. Approximately 9,000 American and British planes bombed the Reich from the west and south over the week-end, with virtually no opposition from the Luftwaffe. In that period 21 German cities felt the effects of hundreds of tons of Allied bombs.

The recent gigantic RAF attacks on German Ruhr cities were directed against subterranean plants built by the Germans since their surface installations were destroyed a year ago, the Daily Mail said today. It is estimated that the Germans could not have produced more than 25 per cent of their former output in the underground plants which are now being eliminated by Allied heavy bombing.

American fighters yesterday destroyed 10 German jet-propelled fighter planes parked on three widely-separated German airfields at Halle, Crailsheim, and Sachsenheim. Seventeen other Nazi planes were damaged.

Flying bombs were launched against southern England again last night, the BBC said this morning. During the night, one Heinkel-111, launching flying bombs, was destroyed over the North Sea by RAF Mosquitoes. (OWI-Reuter)

U. S. 1ST ARMY TAKES 200,000TH PRISONER

WITH U.S. 1ST ARMY, November 6 — A German sergeant, who, after seven years of fighting for Hitler decided he «had enough,» surrendered his platoon and became the 200,000th prisoner to be taken by the U.S. 1st Army, a dispatch to the Daily Mail said today.

Told he was number 200,000, the German sergeant looked pleased and said:

«Our high command never admitted that. It means the war is so much nearer over.» (PWB)

M.A.A.F. HEAVIES HIT BOLZANO POWER SUB-STATION

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 6 — Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today hit the important Bolzano power sub-station, one of the principal feeder installations along the electrified Brenner Pass line connecting Germany and northern Italy.

Other communications targets in southern Austria, in the Vienna area, and northern Yugoslavia also were attacked.

Medium bombers hit a transformer station north of Verona, and another near Trento, in attacks against southern stretches of the strategic Brenner Pass route. (PRO)

D.A.F. BALTIMORES HIT CRUISER IN FIUME HARBOR

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 6 — South African and Australian Baltimore light bombers of the Desert Air Force yesterday struck an enemy cruiser and a 3,000-ton enemy merchant vessel at Fiume harbor, in attacks aimed at smashing every means of enemy escape from the Balkans, it was announced here today.

The enemy warship was not positively identified, reports from crewmen indicated, but at least two direct hits were scored on the large vessel.

In attacks on enemy rail lines in northern Italy, nine rail cuts were made in central Po Valley lines, and 18 others in lines through Brescia and Verona.

Allied aircraft destroyed 15 enemy planes yesterday, one of the largest totals in weeks of Luftwaffe inactivity. A medium-bomber formation accounted for five of the enemy interceptors. (PRO)

GERMANS LACK FUEL EVEN FOR AMBULANCES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 6 — Even ambulances are limited in fuel as a result of enemy fuel shortages, so that all except the most seriously wounded German soldiers must be carried to the rear in regular supply trucks, according to an enemy order captured by the 8th Army and made public here today. GERMANS LACK RESPECT FOR FASCIST ITALIANS

AFHQ, November 6 — German soldiers are so lacking in respect for Italian Fascist officers that their behavior amounts to blackmail, said a German regimental order which has fallen into Allied hands.

The order, calling for stricter discipline, was marked «secret.» It quoted a report which stated that German truck drivers were «accepting as gifts the pistols and even the watches of Italian officers in return for lifts.»

Such behaviour, said the report, «is bordering on blackmail, and will be dealt with in the severest manner.»

Referring to relations between German and Italian Fascist troops, the order stated:

«It comes as an even harder blow to Italian officers and men when they discover that on Italian soil they are not treated by their German comrades with the respect they expected.

«Discourtesy on the part of German officers, tactlessness and lack of respect for military honor and even, in some cases, complete lack of trust, have all been the cause of bitter disappointment.»

The regimental order pointed out that «such psychological errors committed by the Germans have been responsible for the undermining and even destruction of the spirit created by previous valuable training carried out in Germany.» (PWB)

ONE OF THREE JAP LIUCHOW COLUMNS HALTED

CHUNGKING, November 6 — One of three Japanese columns which are advancing on Liuchow, site of the last American air base in eastern China, is being fought to a halt 45 miles from its objective, a Chinese High Command communique said today.

The Japanese column, advancing down a railway, previously was reported 53 miles from the city. The communique said that another Japanese unit advancing on Liuchow from the east received large reinforcements, and brisk fighting is in progress in the vicinity of Huijen, 47 miles east of Liuchow. The third column is also 45 miles from the city.

Japanese attacking the city of Kweilin from the east were engaged in fierce fighting yesterday, and were thrown back with heavy casualties, the communique said.

An independent Japanese drive in southern Kwangsi Province, developing along the West River, was intercepted after it had overrun the river port of Kweinsien, 90 miles southeast of Liuchow.

Fighter-bombers of the 14th USAAF last night, hit Japanese installations on the south tip of Hainan Island it was reported today.

Fighting in the Vardar Valley continues. Following the capture of Zara, the whole of the Zemonja Valley, which leads inland, has been liberated. From here, Yugoslav units are successfully attacking the Knin-Gospich railway line.

Liberation of the Dalmatian port of Sibenik was announced by Marshal Tito last night. Two hundred and fifty miles of the eastern Adriatic coast are now in Allied possession.

In Serbia, Germans attempting to move northward along the eastern edge of the Kisovo Plains were forced to withdraw southward, and took refuge in difficult mountain terrain after several encounters with Yugoslav forces.

Marshal Tito's announcement that his troops are now in control of the Greek-Yugoslav border means that Yugoslav units must be near English troops advancing northward in Greece, press dispatches commented.

There has been street fighting in the Albanian town of Tirana for two days and Albanian Patriots hold most of the town, dispatches said. The whole of southern Albania and the greater part of the rest of the country are said to have been liberated.

After their capture of the Dalmatian coast town of Sibenik, Yugoslav troops advanced 15 miles inland.

Other Yugoslav troops, with the assistance of air support, are attacking German communications lines running through Slovenia. (OWI-BBC)

HUNGARIANS REFUSE TO EVACUATE

STOCKHOLM, November 6 — Because they have heard of the fair Russian treament of the Rumanians and Bulgarians, many Hungarians are refusing to evacuate areas in the path of the Russian advance, a high Hungarian official recently arrived here from Budapest, yesterday told Svenska Dagbladet.

These Hungarians, the official said, prefer temporary Russian occupation to a continuation of the fight and destruction of their homes. (OWI)

BUDAPEST UNDERGROUND CALLS FOR STRIKE

LONDON, November 6 — A general strike was called in Budapest by the Hungarian underground radio station yesterday to catch the Germans «between two fires» as the Red Army besieges the city. From other sources came reports of confusion within the capital and the blowing up of the machinery of the bridges across the Danube, resulting in death and injury to hundreds of persons.

The underground radio announced that «the hour of action has come.» In declaring the general strike, the radio said:

«German communications must be completely paralyzed. The five bridges over the Danube and the public buildings must be saved from destruction. The armed forces of Budapest will have to be ready to fight in 24 hours time. We are sure that all Patriots will do their duty.»

The Nazi-controlled Radio Budapest was operating sporadically. Last night, the transmitter went silent for 12 minutes, and then resumed only to go silent again 16 minutes later.

The Stockholm correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph said yesterday that the Manfred Weiss factory, one of Budapest's largest armament centers, has been occupied by workers, who are still in control.

Street-fighting was reported in the vicinity of the radio station in Budapest, and a strong armed guard has been placed around the region of the radio station in an effort to maintain the impression that the puppet Hungarian Government has the situation well in hand. (OWI)

BRITISH, FRENCH HONOR A.F.S.

NEW YORK, November 6 — Representatives of the British and French governments read citations honoring the 2,000 volunteer ambulance drivers of the American Field Service at ceremonies yesterday, during which messages were read from President Roosevelt, General Eisenhower, and Field Marshal Montgomery.

The British citation pointed out that 26 AFS men have been killed in action, nearly 50 wounded, and a number taken prisoner.

President Roosevelt's message said the ambulance drivers, «serving voluntarily, and largely at their own expense, have saved thousands upon thousands of lives that the Allied forces might grow larger and stronger.»

General Eisenhower praised their «single-minded service,» and Field Marshal Montgomery called their work «invaluable and efficient.» (OWI)

FASCIST TRIBUNAL PROSECUTOR ARRESTED

ROME, November 6 — Michele Isgrò, Public Prosecutor of the Fascist Special Tribunal which threw thousands of anti-Fascists into jails and internment camps, was arrested here today on a warrant issued by Mario Berlinguer, Assistant High Commissioner for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes.

Isgrò is accused of «contributing, by relevant acts, to the maintenance in power of the Fascist régime.»

Isgrò was prosecutor in the most important political trials of the Fascist régime. Among these were the proceedings against the Communist leaders Mauro Scoccimarro and Antonio Gramsci.

At Gramsci's trial, Isgrò said: «We must stop this brain from functioning for at least 20 years.» Gramsci died from tuberculosis contracted in prison.

Isgrò was sought by the police since Rome was liberated. He was arrested at his step-brother's home. (UNN)

MATTEOTTI TRIAL TO BE REOPENED

ROME, November 6 — All legal obstacles standing in the way of the officially-stated intention to reopen the Giacomo Matteotti murder case were removed today with the announcement that sentences handed down in the case in Rome and Chieti in 1925-26 have been declared null and void.

The annulment was granted by the Second Penal Section of the Court of Cassation, at the request of Mario Berlinguer, Assistant Commissioner for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes.

Trial documents, the announcement said, will be forwarded to the office of the Public Prosecutor of the Rome Court of Appeals, which will pass judgement on all those directly or indirectly involved in the murder of the Socialist Deputy.

At the trials held in Rome in December, 1925, and in March of the following year, Amerigo Dumini, Giuseppe Viola, Augusto Malacria, Albino Volpi, and Amleto Poveromo were convicted for their complicity in the Matteotti murder, the direct instigator of which is alleged to have been Mussolini himself. They drew mild prison sentences, and were freed after a little over a year by a general amnesty.

Since then Albino Volpi has died, and Amerigo Dumini, the central figure in the case, has disappealed. (UNN)

FARINACCI PROPERTIES IMPOUNDED

ROME, November 6 — A villa, an apartment, and a rural estate in the Rome area and a second villa in Gaeta, all properties of Roberto Farinacci, former general secretary of the Fascist Party, have been impounded and are now in the custody of a government trustee, it was announced here today.

The action follows a recent government decree ordering the impounding of all the properties of leading exponents of the Fascist régime. (UNN)

ROMAGNA TOWN RESUMES NORMAL LIFE

WITH 8TH ARMY, November 6 — Another little Romagna town on the Via Emilia between Cesena and Forli — Forlimpopoli — is emerging from the terror of German domination and, in the final stages of warfare being fought in the vicinity, has begun its resumption of normal living.

Almost all of Forlimpopoli's population of 4,500 was in residence throughout the battle and, in addition, the town cared for nearly 2,000 refugees who streamed in from the Ronco River banks.

Allied forces are sapping the power of the fanatical German resistance and are forcing the enemy to give ground north of the small town. The German guns are being pushed back, and Forlimpopoli soon will be no longer the target of German artillery. Other small towns of Romagna — Sant'Arcangelo, Savignano, and Cesena — are rapidly returning to normal with residents returning to homes which had been severely damaged, but which have been made habitable.

In Forlimpopoli, little damage was caused to the houses or buildings. A leading citizen told a UNN correspondent that 10 per cent of the town had been damaged, and of that damage, 50 per cent was reparable.

Before the Germans were forced back they stole whatever they could find. Oxen, fowl, and sheep were carried off in large quantities. But the townspeople managed to conceal a great number of their animals and poultry. The Germans made a thorough search of every house and building, and stole watches, jewels, money, boots, shoes, and clothing. They left the village on stolen bicycles, carts and oxen-drawn vehicles piled high with goods looted from the town.

The famous Forlimpopoli castle, built by the Ordelaffi Family in 1372, is being used by countless refugees. The castle was not hit when the battle raged in and around the town, and the custodian was able to hide from the Germans most of the age-old Roman relics and paintings in the castle.

LORD MOYNE ASSASSINATED; ASSAILANTS ARRESTED

CAIRO, November 6 — Lord Moyne, British Resident Minister in the Middle East since January, died tonight from wounds suffered earlier this afternoon when he was shot outside of his residence by two civilians. His chauffeur also was killed by the armed assailants, who were immediately arrested.

After calling a special meeting of the Cabinet for tonight, Ahmed Maher Pasha, Egyptian Premier, went to the police station where all the heads of the Egyptian and British police are taking part in the inquiry.

Lord Moyne died at British Military Hospital at 2220 hours (Cairo time) after repeated attempts to save his life by operation, extracting one bullet, blood transfusion, and penicillin. He was shot in the chest and abdomen.

One of the assailants was shot and wounded by an Egyptian police constable while trying to escape. The driver of a British military ambulance who saw the shooting pulled his vehicle across the road and blocked the path to the other assailant who was quickly arrested.

No identification of the assailants was released.

PAPANDREOU ORDERS DISBANDING OF PATRIOTS

ATHENS, November 6 — Reestablishment of a Greek gendarmerie to replace the National Militia of EAM and ELAS was ordered by Greek Prime Minister Papandreou in a statement reported by Radio Cairo yesterday.

The Prime Minister said: "The situation found by the government on its return to Greece was that the gendarmerie has ceased to exist almost everywhere, and has been replaced by the National Militia of EAM and ELAS. In order to reestablish state authority, the following decisions were taken unanimously by all Government members: The National Militia of EAM and ELAS is placed under the orders of the government until 1 December 1944. The gendarmerie is to be called the National Home Guard.

Until the reorganization of the National Home Guard, a provisional home guard will be established. For this purpose, the 1935 class is called up in each province, and will take up service on December 1. They will be commanded by army officers." (PWB)

FRENCH ASSEMBLY OPENS TOMORROW

PARIS, November 6 — A revised and enlarged French Consultative Assembly will convene tomorrow afternoon, on its first anniversary, for its initial session since the liberation of France. The assembly last met in Algiers.

Because the Chamber of Deputies was damaged in the street fighting here last August, the Assembly will meet in the old Luxembourg Palace, where the Senate met before the war.

The National Council of Resistance and other leaders of the underground operations predominate in the new assembly of 248 delegates. Metropolitan resistance groups hold a clear majority with 148 seats. The remaining seats are held by former parliament members and oversees resistance groups.

One of the assembly's tasks will be the drafting of ordinances under which the provisional government will against the Roman Catholic clergy and religious orders in France, a dispatch from France stated today. Archbishop Gerlier requested that it be forwarded to the Allied War Criminal Commission in London.

The dispatch said that Archbishop Gerlier described in his report how more than 100 innocent men, women, and children were driven into an empty building on the outskirts of Lyon where they were machine-gunned by Nazis, who then set fire to the building, burning many who were still alive.

The Archbishop said he protested to the Nazi commander of Lyon, but the Germans ignored his plea. Instead, five high-ranking members of the Roman Catholic clergy were seized, including the Archbishops of Albi, and Limoges, and the Bishop of Clermont Ferrand. (OWI)

PARIS, November 6 — A revised and enlarged French Consultative Assembly will convene tomorrow afternoon, on its first anniversary, for its initial session since the liberation of France. The assembly last met in Algiers.

Because the Chamber of Deputies was damaged in the street fighting here last August, the Assembly will meet in the old Luxembourg Palace, where the Senate met before the war.

The National Council of Resistance and other leaders of the underground operations predominate in the new assembly of 248 delegates. Metropolitan resistance groups hold a clear majority with 148 seats. The remaining seats are held by former parliament members and overseas resistance groups.

One of the assembly's tasks will be the drafting of ordinances under which the provisional government will convoke a constitutional assembly to frame France's future basic law. (OWI)

FRENCH GENERAL GIVEN LIFE IMPRISONMENT

PARIS, November 6 — Aviation Brigade General Pinsard was sentenced today at the Paris Purge Court to life imprisonment, after being found guilty of intelligence with the Germans, a Reuter dispatch said.

Pinsard was accused of high treason for having promoted the French Legion, which swore allegiance to Hitler, and then fought against the Red Army on the eastern front.

Pinsard also was a member of the central committee of the Legion, with Jacques Doriot, Marcel Deat, and Joseph Darnard.

Pensard's 19-year old son also is under arrest. General Pinsard fought for him from the dock by pleading that he was responsible for his boy's action. (Reuter)

BRUSSELS FOOD SITUATION IMPROVES

BRUSSELS, November 6 — The food situation in Belgium is so steadily improving that Brussels has had meat in the last few weeks that was the first obtainable in years except for the black market, said the British United Press Brussels correspondent.

The bread situation also is improving, particularly in Antwerp and Charleroi, and Brussels is building up a flour reserve.

« Milk and butter are available in small quantities, and three Belgian margarine factories, with a total production of more than 600 tons, are working again. (PWB)

U.S. C-OF-C FAVORS COMPULSORY TRAINING

WASHINGTON, November 5 — Compulsory military training in peace-time is favored by a majority of the members of The United States Chamber of Commerce, influential organization of American professional and business men.

Substantial majorities favored all three points of a referendum, submitted to member organizations recently, concerning such a policy, said the Chamber yesterday.

The other two points were: A schedule of such training flexible enough to assure minimum dislocation in the educational and business life of young men, and enrollment in reserve components of those young men who do not join the regular military upon completion of the required training program. S.N.U. PLEDGES TO RESTORE LIBERTY TO SPAIN

NEW YORK, November 6 — The convention of the Spanish National Union which has pledged itself to « restore liberty to Spain » ended yesterday in Toulouse, a dispatch today from Paris to the New York Times said.

The dispatch said that the closing session of the convention adopted a six-point program, which « provides for the rupture of relations with Germany and acceptance of the Atlantic Charter; calls for a purge of Fascist elements in the Spanish Administration and Army; and pleads for the victims of oppression at the hands of the Franco régime. »

The program also urges « restoration of personal liberties and reconstruction of a national economy to assure each citizen normal conditions of existence, and pledges free elections for members to a constituent assembly, » the dispatch said.

A Reuter dispatch from Paris yesterday said that « at the final session of the convention, Father Vilar, a Roman Catholic priest, announced that the Spanish National Union would appeal to the Vatican for Papal intervention in Spain. »

An American news service dispatch reported from Cuba that « the Cuban Congressional Committee for the Spanish Republic — an unofficial group of 12 Senators and Representatives — met Friday and drafted a resolution asking severance of diplomatic relations between Cuba and Spain. » (OWI-Reuter)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 6 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

With the improvement in weather conditions in Italy, patrols of both the 5th and 8th Armies have been very active, and certain local improvements to our forward positions have been made.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Yesterday, strong forces of escorted heavy bombers attacked an oil refinery in Austria, while others attacked troop concentrations and rail yards in Yugoslavia.

Medium bombers concentrated on bridges and rail targets on the Brenner Pass line.

Fighters and fighter-bombers gave very strong support to the land forces in the Po Valley, and also attacked shipping in Fiume harbor and off the Dalmatian coast.

Communications in Albania and on the Riviera coast were also attacked.

During these operations, 15 enemy fighters were destroyed, five heavy bombers and seven other of our aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew over 2,500 sorties.

Navy:

During the last five days, Allied warships have again bombarded enemy positions near the Franco-Italian frontier.

On November 1, the U.S. Destroyer Benson fired upon enemy rail transport and troop concentrations, the area being well covered.

The next day, the French Cruiser Montcalm bombarded enemy guns and troops, starting a large fire.

Naval support to the Army continued on November, 3, when the U. S. Destroyer Woolsey fired on large troop concentrations and a barracks. Her shooting was very accurate, and she obtained three direct hits. Mines are still being swept up and destroyed in the bombardment area.

It is reported from the Argean that in the early hours of November 5, the British Destroyer Kimberley sank an enemy « F » lighter and her escorting motor launch near the Island of Piscopi. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 6 — Today's communique:

Excellent progress has been made in western Holland. Allied forces are approaching the line of the Maas and Hollandsch Diep Rivers.

Heusden, Geertruidenberg, Klundert, and Dinteloord were cleared of the enemy, and we are operating on the Island of Tholen and on the Philipsland Isthmus.

Other fighter-bombers attacked airfields near Halle, Crailsheim, and Sachsenhausen, and a dam near Fritzlar. Rails were cut at several places in the Rhineland.

Railyards near Düsseldorf were bombed, and an ammunition train south of Kassel was blown up. Medium and light bombers, using the pathfinder technique, attacked an ordnance depot at Homburg.

Four enemy aircraft were shot down and 34 destroyed on the ground. Seven of our aircraft are missing. During the afternoon, escorted heavy bombers attacked the industrial town of Sölingen, just south of the Ruhr. One bombers is missing.

In the Moselle Valley, our units freed Berg on the Moselle River, eight miles northeast of Thionville.

Farther south, our troops maintained their progress in the Baccarat sector, and have taken the village of Saint Barbe. (Reuter)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, November 6 — Tonight's communique:

During November 6, on all fronts, there were no essential changes.

During November 5, our troops on all fronts damaged or destroyed 16 German tanks. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 6 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

Six thousand Germans who attempted to penetrate into the Val Cimolaia, north of Belluno, have been held up for six days by a brigade of the Garibaldi Osoppo Division, named after Ippolito Nievo.

Only after fierce fighting, and with heavy losses, was the enemy later able to force the valley defences and advance some distance.

After their arduous resistance, the same brigade reported that it had put out of action, 400 Germans killed and wounded. Later, it was learned from enemy sources that the German losses were 1,000.

In the Friuli district, the Patriot Folgore of the Osoppo Division's Monte Canin Battalion distinguished himself in an exceptionally worthy manner. Two other Patriots, known under the battle-names of Livorno and Firenze, belonging to the Italia battalion, succeeded in putting to flight a large number of Germans.

On the night of 5 October, Vicenza Patriots destroyed fortification works on the Asiago plateau. On the night of 15, October, they further destroyed, at Conco, in the province of Vicenza, two armored cars and material destined for enemy fortifications, and disarmed a number of German detachments.

On the night of 29 October, Treviso Patriots tore up railway lines at 24 points near the station of Castelfranco, interrupting communications to Vicenza, Venice, Treviso, and Padua.

At the end of October, seven arches of the Priula bridge in the Province of Treviso, were destroyed, holding up enemy traffic for several days. In the same period, the railway bridge across the River Tesino was blown up along the Vicenza-Treviso line. A tunnel near Loreggia, on the Treviso-Padua line, was also destroyed.

During the last two weeks of October, Patriots from the Piacenza zone have taken, in all, about 200 prisoners and an appreciable quantity of arms, munitions, and explosives. They have also blown up two bridges about 6 miles from Genoa. (UNN)

Nieuwland was freed, and we are within 1,000 yards of Middelburg to the south. Fighters and fighter-bombers gave support to our forces in this area.

Other fighters and fighter-bombers attacked troop concentrations, strongpoints, ammunition dumps, and flak positions in the Dunkirk area.

Rail lines in northern and eastern Holland were cut.

In southeastern Holland, heavy fighting continues in the Meijel area.

In the areas of Aachen, Bonn, Kaiserslautern, and Vierson, fighter-bombers attacked dumps and military buildings.

Our forces made small gains in the Hürtgen Forest sector against stubborn resistance. Extensive minefields, covered by artillery and small-arms fire, hindered our progress southwest of the town of Hürtgen, and our infantry at Konnerscheidt, three-quarters of a mile northwest of Schmidt, continued to meet strong pressure from tank, infantry, and artillery fire.

Mopping up continued in the forest approximately one mile west of Schmidt. Our fighter-bombers attacked tanks and troops near Schmidt.

or destroyed 16 German tanks.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, November 6 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

On the flooded Island of Walcheren, numerous German strongpoints in the dunes continue to resist.

Middelburg is being subjected to a heavy bombardment by enemy naval artillery.

On the lower reaches of the Meuse, our troops withdrew to some minor bridgeheads after fierce fighting.

The Moerdijk bridges were blown up according to plan.

Southeast of Helmond, the British, after some small successes, were repelled to their initial positions.

At the penetration southeast of Stolberg, our shock troops, which had launched a counter-attack from an easterly and southerly direction, made good progress and cut off enemy forces. Five tanks were destroyed.

West of the upper reaches of the Meurthe at St. Dié, yesterday, grim fighting developed for the lake and forest outlets and the road which leads from the Moselle Valley toward the western Vosges. The attacking enemy battalions were repulsed. In some sectors, yesterday, they succeeded in making some small gains.

The garrison of La Rochelle, 30 kilometers southeast of the town, in a surprise attack broke through well fortified French positions and liquidated them. We had 14 casualties as compared with heavy enemy losses. Our shock troops, having blown up many enemy fortifications, returned, with a big booty and numerous prisoners, to the fortress.

Yesterday, London was again being harassed by « V-1 ».

Italy:

Only minor operations are reported from most sectors of the central Italian Front.

Only northeast of Rocca S. Casciano, fierce local fighting developed, but the attacking enemy achieved only small successes, and suffered considerable losses.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, in the Strumica Valley at Komanova and northeast of Pristina, the attacking Bulgarians suffered heavy losses.

Several strong Soviet attacks on our Duna-Foldvar Danube bridgehead collapsed.

South and southeast of Budapest, renewed Bolshevik attacks failed. German tank formations attacked the enemy communications in the rear and wiped out numerous marching and supply columns.

Southeast of Budapest, bombers successfully attacked Soviet troop concentrations at day and by night.

Between Czegled and Szolnok, German and Hungarian troops offered a fierce resistance to Soviet formations, which continued to attack. On the Tisa Front and at the frontiers of Slovakia, the Bolsheviks were ousted from our lines, which they had penetrated after an intense barrage, by counter-attacks.

The town of Goldap, in East Prussia, has been cleared of the Bolsheviks. A big part of the Soviet regiments which had been encircled in the town was wiped out in a fierce three-day battle; the remnants were captured. We captured 134 guns of all kinds, 59 tanks and mobile guns, and numerous other heavy and light weapons. One thousand seven-hundred and thirty-nine dead Bolsheviks were found on the battlefield.

In Kurland, all Soviet attempts at breaking through were also frustrated on the 10th day of the defensive battle. In this sector, 41 enemy tanks were destroyed.

Air:

Anglo-American bomber formations, and planes flying at a low level, continued their terror attacks on western, southwestern, and southern Reich territory.

Vienna suffered particularly heavily.

Air defense forces brought down 46 enemy planes, most of which were four-engined bombers.

GERMAN

Official Statement on Budapest: The German Home Radio quoted the following statement on Budapest made today by the official spokesman of the German Foreign Office at a conference of foreign press representatives. « The unsuccessful attempts to attack Budapest have caused a still greater consolidation of the situation in Budapest. »

Axis Sally: Germany's female radio commentator, Axis Sally, is continuing her daily addresses. Her would-be audience is the average American «G. I.» She declared today that American soldiers, taken prisoner on the western front, are complaining « about the way in which the army newspaper Stars and Stripes dishes out information. » Then she hindrance, » and « For 50 days now, a fight has been raging for central Holland; the Allies lost more than 2,000 tanks here. »

Eastern Front: In addition to repeated claims about the Soviet attack on Budapest bogging down, the German counter-attacks in East Prussia were being played up. Concerning the East Prussian town of Goldap, the Transocean correspondent von Olberg said:

« In a violent three-day battle, the German Army Command, by a surprise assault on both sides of the town, surrounded the enemy garrison and almost annihilated it. The liberation of Goldap is not only a prestige success, but it has also changed the entire situation on the southern flank of Soviet penetration, considerably to the advantage of the Germans. »

Renewed Activity on Italian Front: Improved weather conditions permitted « lively patrol and artillery action » throughout the southern front.

Northeast of San Casciano, Allied thrusts forced the Germans to yield ground. Similar German setbacks were suffered south of the Imola-Bologna Road.

The Allied 5th Army was reportedly regrouping its forces preparatory to resuming the offensive.

German aircraft strafed 5th Army personnel and positions on the Bologna-Florence Road, « causing heavy damage. » The Allies, in turn, were accused of carrying out several strafing forays, incidentally killing numerous civilians.

Bonomi's Army Anti-Royalist?: Bonomi's dissolution of the General Staff of the Royal Army was interpreted as a triumph of extremist elements over Prince Umperto. These elements were said to be intent on eliminating all army and police officers who participated in the « Badoglio coup d'état as well as those authorities compromised by royalty.

Army Implicated in Sicilian Incidents: Fascist radios today again evidenced preoccupation with the situation in Sicily. They gave significant emphasis to an alleged resolution of the Palermo Liberation Committee which blamed the recent disturbances on the Italian Army; the motion supposedly called for a « severe purge » of army ranks. Swiss correspondents in Italy were quoted as blaming the Separatist movement for participation in the riots. Bonomi, finally, was pictured by Fascist commentators as utterly helpless in the matter.

Mussolini's Amnesty Laws: With the deadline for returning Fascist defaulters almost at hand, interpretations of Il Duce's Amnesty Law were again coupled with ominous threats to the unrepentant. Just as the law itself appears to be a rather transparent recruiting law, it is increasingly evident that anti-Fascist activity in northern Italy is a force to contend with. The trend of today's exhortations was summarized in this warning: « Whatever may happen, nothing would be more serious, more terrible, more deadly, or more irreparable, than a civil war. »

Allies Exploit Polish Soldiers in Italy: The Polish Clandestine radio is the reputed source for an alleged protest of the Polish Ambassador to the Vatican anent Allied mistreatment of Polish soldiers on the Italian front. The Fascist radio developed the accusation, contending that the hard-fighting Polish troops have been placed in the most vulnerable positions along the Bologna-Rimini front. The Polish command is allegedly indignant over its cannon-fodder destiny.

Epuration of Fascists Deemed Ineffectual: Basing their optimism on a Bonomi interview with Reuter (in which Bonomi supposedly admitted that epuration had failed to wipe out strong Fascists elements in « invaded » Italy), Fascist commentators tonight expressed great confidence in the ultimate survival of Fascism. He stressed the « costliness » of the Allied drive so far, whereby the Allies supposedly paid a vast price for gaining ground « of no very great importance. » Though several times repeating his warning to the German people that « the Allies will not slacken and will shortly start a general winter offensive, » Hallensleben added vague hints about possible « German large-scale counter-blows. »

SUPERFORTRESSES HIT SINGAPORE

WASHINGTON, November 5 — In the longest daylight mission ever flown by military aircraft, a substantial force of Superfortresses of the 20th USAAF, based in India, today bombed the great naval base of Singapore on the southern tip of the Malay peninsula, it was announced here tonight.

In addition to the Singapore blow, the first attack on that base since it fell to the Japs in February, 1942, other elements of the 20th USAAF hit the Pangkalan-Brandon oil refinery in Sumatra, the second most important high octane

Fort White road in the Chin Hills of western Burma. Troops of the 5th Indian Division were last reported within a mile of the peak.

In China, Kweilin remained virtually encircled by the Japs as one enemy group yesterday stormed Yungfu, 33 miles south of Kweilin, while another enemy column by-passed Yungfu to a point 12 miles further south, where «intensive fighting was in progress,» a Chinese High Command communique said today.

A delayed Associated Press dispatch from Kweilin said that the last Americans to leave the Yangtang air base near Kweilin, the principal advanced base for U. S. air power in the Orient, blew up the base in a series of mighty explosions when they touched off 210 tons of explosives which had to be abandoned.

Heavy fighting continued in South Kwangsi Province, the communique said, where Jap forces advancing along the West River have split into two columns. The northern column occupied Kwaelshsien on Friday, while the other column is attacking Mosun, 33 miles from Kewiping on the West River.

An American communique from Chungking said today that bad weather on the southeast China fronts reduced 14th USAAF operations against advancing Japanese armies during the last two days.

River traffic on the West River was attacked on Friday, while coal barges and locomotives were destroyed by American fighter-bombers in northeast French Indo-China, the communique added. (OWI)

CHIANG KAI-SHEK PROMISES CO-OPERATION

NEW YORK, November 5 — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said in his first statement for publication on the withdrawal of General Joseph Stilwell from the China-Burma-India Theater: «Prospects of effective and close military, political and economic co-operation are now excellent.»

The message, in reply to a request from the Associated Press for his views, said also: «President Roosevelt has already given adequate explanation of General Stilwell's transfer, to which I have nothing to add.»

His mention of the President's explanation referred to the latter's statement that it was due to a clash in personalities between Stilwell and Chiang — and not a question of strategy or policy — that General Stilwell was transferred. (OWI-AP)

SUPERFORTRESSES HIT SINGAPORE

WASHINGTON, November 5 — In the longest daylight mission ever flown by military aircraft, a substantial force of Superfortresses of the 20th USAAF, based in India, today bombed the great naval base of Singapore on the southern tip of the Malay peninsula, it was announced here tonight.

In addition to the Singapore blow, the first attack on that base since it fell to the Japs in February, 1942, other elements of the 20th USAAF hit the Pangkalan-Brandon oil refinery in Sumatra, the second most important high octane gasoline source in the Far East.

No American aircraft was reported lost from either mission.

It was the third Superfortress attack in three days, the other two being against Rangoon targets on Friday and Saturday. Yesterday's raid on Rangoon was carried out by a medium force of B-29's, each carrying the greatest bomb load ever loaded on a single plane.

Good to excellent bombing results were reported at both targets hit today, the communique said. At Singapore, direct hits were scored on the control house at the largest drydock and other vital points. A Jap ship also received a direct hit.

At least one bomb dropped square on the refinery in the Sumatra attack, the communique asserted. Only weak air opposition was reported, anti-aircraft fire being moderate over both targets.

The raid on Singapore was exceeded in length by only a few miles on August 10, when the same bomber command conducted a night mission from India against the Pladjoe refinery at Palembang, Sumatra.

The refinery blasted in Sumatra is situated on the north coast, just north of Medan.

In ground fighting in Burma, Allied troops have made satisfactory progress around Kennedy Peak on the Tiddim-near Kwelin, the principal advanced base for U. S. air power in the Orient, blew up the base in a series of mighty explosions when they touched off 210 tons of explosives which had to be abandoned.

Heavy fighting continued in South Kwangsi Province, the communique said, where Jap forces advancing along the West River have split into two columns. The northern column occupied Kwacishsien on Friday, while the other column is attacking Mosun, 33 miles from Kewiping on the West River.

An American communique from Chungking said today that bad weather on the southeast China fronts reduced 14th USAAF operations against advancing Japanese armies during the last two days.

River traffic on the West River was attacked on Friday, while coal barges and locomotives were destroyed by American fighter-bombers in northeast French Indo-China, the communique added. (OWI)

CHIANG KAI-SHEK PROMISES CO-OPERATION

NEW YORK, November 5 — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said in his first statement for publication on the withdrawal of General Joseph Stilwell from the China-Burma-India Theater: «Prospects of effective and close military, political and economic co-operation are now excellent.»

The message, in reply to a request from the Associated Press for his views, said also: «President Roosevelt has already given adequate explanation of General Stilwell's transfer, to which I have nothing to add.»

His mention of the President's explanation referred to the latter's statement that it was due to a clash in personalities between Stilwell and Chiang — and not a question of strategy or policy — that General Stilwell was transferred. (OWI-AP)

FIUMICINO FLOODED WHEN TIBER OVERFLOWS

ROME, November 5 — The town of Fiumicino was flooded today and residents driven from their homes when the Tiber River rose six meters above its normal level and overflowed its banks, it was reported here late tonight. Serious damage was caused and many persons were made homeless.

German destruction of the Fiumicino quays before they left the region last spring permitted the river to overflow its banks when it reached the new level.

An increase in the water level is not expected, the Tiber office of the Civil Engineer reported tonight. (PWB)

AMERICANS LIBERATE PINAMOPOAN ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 5 — Elements of the 24th Infantry Division have liberated Pinamopoan, a key communications center on Leyte Island, and are advancing south on the main road toward Ormoc, a late dispatch from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said tonight.

The town was taken after a simultaneous land and sea assault.

Pinamopoan is the northern anchor of the only highway through a narrow valley leading toward Ormoc, 20 miles southward, the last enemy strongpoint on Leyte. (OWI)

BRITISH NOW CONTROL 15 MILES OF THE MEUSE

SHAEF, November 5 — British troops tonight broke through German rear-guard positions northwest of Hertogenbosch and reached the Meuse River. Allied patrols now control a 15-mile stretch of the southern banks of the Meuse.

In a furious attack, British infantry supported by flame throwers, tanks and artillery crossed the Afwateringskanaal west of Hertogenbosch and tore loose the hinge of the German army's positions which protected their withdrawal across the Meuse.

Press dispatches stated that the next German defense line would be north of the Waal River. The 15 miles now separating British and Canadian forces from Holland's great seaport of Rotterdam embrace three formidable water barriers and wide tracts of low-lying boggy ground, which the Germans might easily flood.

The Germans still south of the Meuse have been split into five pockets, with the largest group at the southern end near Moerdijk. South of the Moerdijk escape bridge, the two Polish and American bridgeheads over the Mark River joined and with the close support of Spitfires and Typhoons broke up German infantry massing for a counter-attack. The Allied forces expanded their combined bridgehead and freed Wagenberg, to the east of the main road.

Canadian troops, to the west, drove to within a mile of the Meuse and freed Klundert, while other forces driving on the ferry terminus of Willemstad liberated Kade and Dinteloord on parallel roads.

With the end of organized German resistance in Flushing, all German coastal batteries which dominated the approaches to Antwerp have been silenced. The remaining German garrison on Walcheren at Middelburg was invested by British commandos tonight. The Germans now hold an area only two miles square and the coastal strip on the north coast in the vicinity of Domburg.

It was officially announced here today that severe naval casualties and losses were sustained during the British landing at Westcappelle. Close-support bombardment craft, which engaged superior German gun batteries at close range to draw fire away from the landing craft, lost 20 out of 25 vessels, either sunk or irreparably damaged.

British Attack Arnhem Bridgehead

The German news agency announced tonight that British attacks with massed air support have been resumed against the Arnhem bridgehead. They also reported that parachutists were dropped behind Arnhem to prevent the Germans from bringing up reinforcements to meet the new attacks. This report has not been confirmed by Allied sources.

American troops on the 1st Army front are forcing their way toward Schmidt, which was recaptured by the Germans yesterday. The attack was preceded by a dive bombing and strafing attack by Allied aircraft. Late reports tonight said that the Americans have regained all ground lost yesterday with the exception of the town itself.

Fighting flared up on the American 3rd Army's northern flank, where an American force fought its way into Berg, eight miles northeast of Thionville on the Moselle River. Compared with their last-reported positions, this represented a considerable advance.

On the American 7th Army front east of Bruyeres, a lost battalion was rescued after being encircled for a week in the Vosges foothills. The 227 men were trapped when they drove up a wooded slope and the Germans cut in behind. They went five days without food, but ammunition and medical supplies were parachuted from Thunderbolt planes and fired in with artillery shells.

FRANKFURT, KARLSRUHE, LUDWIGSHAVEN BOMBED

LONDON, November 5 — Bombers of 8th USAAF today hit railway marshalling yards at Frankfurt, Karlsruhe and Ludwigshaven, through which run lines supplying the Germans facing the American 1st and 3rd Armies.

Meanwhile, RAF bombers repeated yesterday afternoon's attack on Solingen, an industrial city a few miles south of the Ruhr, and gave it another well-concentrated block-buster attack this afternoon.

Today's Allied air blows, delivered by 2,600 aircraft, were a follow-up to the bombing of western German targets yesterday, when 5,000 planes dropped at least 2,500 tons of explosives in daylight and another 3,000 tons during the night.

For their night attack Lancasters and Halifaxes of the RAF Bomber Command singled out the important industrial town of Bochum, the site of one of the Reich's synthetic petroleum works, as their chief objective. It was Bochum's heaviest assault yet, and brought all the defenses of the Ruhr into action, including a large number of night fighters.

The main attack on Bochum and a subsidiary attack on Hanover, with yesterday's daylight raid on Solingen, cost the RAF 34 planes. At least 10 German planes were shot down during the night by bombers, night fighters and intruder aircraft.

American fighters, finding little in the air to keep them busy yesterday, knocked out at least 50 locomotives, 160 freight cars, 11 trucks and other ground targets in the areas of Ludwigshaven, Darmstadt and Stuttgart.

The Danish Press Service in Stockholm announced today that 175 Germans were killed in the RAF Mosquito pinpoint raid on Gestapo headquarters at Aarhus University in Jutland last Tuesday. Three high-ranking officers were killed.

Commenting on the shifting of Allied strategic bombing from the already battered and dispersed plane factories to the Reich's oil supply, an American commentator said:

«The Luftwaffe was hit very hard by the destruction of its assembly plants last winter... Then the Luftwaffe received another crushing blow — the loss of the Rumanian and Galician oil fields.

«Now the process of producing fighters at decentralized facilities must be speeded up in order to protect synthetic plants which are the Luftwaffe's only source of fuel.

«Since this cannot be done fast enough, the Luftwaffe finds itself on the wrong end of a declining curve of effectiveness. It cannot stage a comeback. It can only struggle as best it can to delay the inevitable end.» (OWI-Reuter)

RUSSIANS REPEL COUNTER-ATTACKS AT GOLDAP

MOSCOW, November 5 — Fierce battles continued in East Prussia today north and south of Goldap, where Soviet forces repelled counter-attacks launched by large formations of enemy tanks and infantry. Heavy losses in men and material were inflicted on the Germans.

While tonight's Soviet communique made no mention of the situation around Budapest, it reported further advances by the Russian column advancing between the Tisza and Danube River. In the last three days the Russians took 3,000 Germans and Hungarians prisoner here, bringing the total number captured in this corridor to 10,518.

According to Radio Bucharest, Russian tanks have entered the Hungarian capital, after capturing Ujpest, a rail junction two miles north of Budapest. The Germans today reported fighting for a town on the Szolnok-Budapest road only seven miles from the outskirts of the capital.

The Germans were reported to be counter-attacking near Budapest, and a Moscow dispatch said that only the onset of bad weather saved the city from immediate oc-

« THIS IS THE YEAR OF MAXIMUM EFFORT »

PARIS, November 5 — General Dwight Eisenhower believes that 1944 is the year of decision calling for the maximum effort to hasten the end of the war, Anne O'Hare McCormick, a correspondent for the New York Times, said in a dispatch today.

Miss McCormick interviewed General Eisenhower at his headquarters in France. She quoted him as saying:

« I wish you would emphasize over and over again, in my name and in the name of the Army, that we are at a critical, decisive turn of the war, which calls for the maximum effort — more than ever before — from everyone.

« This phase of the war is like climbing the last and hardest ascent on a high mountain in thick fog. You can't see where the top is and you won't until you suddenly reach the turn and begin to go down on the other side. We are in the home stretch and the enemy is using every desperate trick in his bag to slow us up. This year is the climax... calling for everything we have for the final blow. »

On all fronts, 58 German tanks were damaged or destroyed yesterday and six enemy planes shot down.

On the northern front, Finnish forces driving northward have reached Toermaenen, on the Ivalo River about 170 miles southwest of Petsamo, tonight's Finnish communique announced. The Germans are fighting stubbornly to check the Finnish drive now about 120 miles southeast of the junction of the Swedish, Norwegian and Finnish frontiers.

ITALIAN FRONT STILL WATERLOGGED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 5 — Although temporary clearing of weather yesterday enabled Allied troops to improve their positions and road communications and allowed Allied air support its first opportunity in weeks to aid ground forces, large-scale offensive operations were still not possible on the waterlogged Italian Front, it was announced here today.

The principal action along the front centered around the Forli airfield, on the southeastern outskirts of this Po Valley town, where British forces have gripped strong enemy concentrations in a three-sided vise. Yesterday British troops reported heavy German artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire from the western edge of the field, following a British advance of 500 yards from the south on the previous day. Patrol forces stabbing at the enemy entrenchments at the northeastern end of the field also reported fierce opposition yesterday.

In this crucial sector, 8th Army forces are slowly closing in on the capital of Romagna Province along a shallow three-mile arc cutting across the River Ronco just south of the Emilia Highway, where the Forli airfield is located, and extending southwest to below San Martino in Strada.

Nearly all point along this curving front pressing toward Forli are located at a radius of some two miles from the town's outskirts and are confined between the Ronco and the Rabbi Rivers, which flow on either side of the small industrial city. German forces hold San Martino in Strada in strength, and still maintain their grip on outlying groups of houses southeast and south of this village.

Polish troops yesterday worked their way to Monte Testa, high ground west of the Rabbi River and some eight miles southwest of Forli, but a strong enemy counter-attack drove back the small patrol involved.

Along the seaward stretches of the Ronco, northeast of Forli, both Allied and enemy positions remained unchanged although Allied patrols were active. Heavy mists rolling in from the sea blanketed the coastal areas south of Ravenna, already flooded by heavy rains, and made even minor operations difficult.

Small forces wiped out a forward listening post of strong enemy concentrations entrenched at Gambellara, six miles southwest of Ravenna and on the eastern bank of the River Ronco, and small groups of enemy prisoners were taken in other clashes, to make a total prisoner bag of 100 for the day.

On the 5th Army front, enemy artillery fire increased yesterday, particularly in the area south of Bologna.

It was announced today that American Negro troops are now fighting in this sector and yesterday moved to the vicinity of a height just north of Monte Belmonte.

German forces were reported to have laid out minefields and barbed-wire entanglements southwest of Casola Valsenio, some 10 miles south of Imola on the right flank of 5th Army positions, and to have counter-attacked in the Calomini area, west of Gallicano in the upper Serchio River valley on the coastal flank. NARVIK FILLED WITH GERMAN WOUNDED

STOCKHOLM, November 5 — Arrivals from northern Norway say the Soviet Army's successes there have caused panic among the Germans in the port of Narvik. They have mined all military objectives as well as the larger houses.

Meanwhile, so many wounded Germans arrive in Narvik every day that the Nazis have thrown the residents out of many houses which they have converted to hospitals. Last week 82 truck loads of wounded arrived at Narvik from Finmarken. (Tass)

250 MILES OF DALMATIAN COAST FREED

LONDON, November 5 — The Dalmatian port of Sibenik has been liberated, Marshal Tito's communique announced today, and 250 miles of the eastern Adriatic coast are now in Allied possession.

The communique also reported the continued harassing of enemy forces in retreat throughout Yugoslavia. Bitter fighting is raging on the Bitolj-Prilep line in southern Yugoslavia and around Dimir Kapika, 20 miles north of the Greek frontier.

Yugoslavs destroyed four enemy trains full of soldiers and war material and defeated a column in Macedonia, said, adding that American planes were carrying out heavy attacks on these night landing parties.

Japanese troops near the Carigara Bay shoreline launched a heavy counter-attack against advancing American elements but were «bloodily repulsed.»

General MacArthur's communique said that the enemy was bringing tank and infantry reinforcements on Leyte's northwestern coast in an attempt to stem the Allied advance. The Americans are using tanks and heavy artillery fire to rout the enemy from hastily prepared defenses in the hills overlooking the plains north of Ormoc.

New Pacific Fleet «neutralization and reduction» air attacks on by-passed and isolated Japanese bases in the Pacific were announced today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. Allied planes hit Masbate, in the central Philippines, and Davao on Mindanao. They sank a 1,000-ton enemy freighter in the northern Moluccas area and damaged a 3,000-ton freighter transport and an 8,000-ton transport in Philippine waters.

An Associated Press dispatch reported that with the 57 Jap planes destroyed or damaged today, American airmen battering Jap airfields in the central Philippines have destroyed or damaged 167 planes in the last five days. American losses during the same period totaled 11 aircraft. (OWI)

BRITISH ARMY PAPER PRAISES STILWELL

CALCUTTA, November 5 — High tribute to General Joseph W. Stilwell, former deputy commander of the China-India-Burma Theater, was paid today by the British Army SEAC.

Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, head of the Southeast Asia Command, was «the sorriest man» in the territory to see General Stilwell leave, the paper said in commenting on the general's recall to the United States.

«All admired General Stilwell and many loved that caustic, craggy, tough old bird,» the paper said. «Stilwell scorned all who scoffed at talk of a road back to Burma over the mountains beyond Ledo, and history will decide the value of that road, for without it, the Japanese still would hold Mogaung and Myitkyina.» (OWI)

HEAVY BOMBERS ATTACK VIENNA TARGETS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 5 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today attacked targets in the Vienna area, it was announced here late this afternoon.

Moderate to intense flak was encountered, along with a few enemy interceptors.

Medium and fighter bombers which for the second consecutive day pounded enemy transport routes in the Brenner Pass and northeastern Italy area also encountered German fighter planes. Between 12 and 15 ME-109's attacked one formation of Marauders as they made their bomb run over the Rovereto rail fill north of Trento on the Brenner Pass line.

Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force struck heavily for the second day at enemy gun positions in the Bologna area and near Vergato, a German stronghold on the Reno River southwest of Bologna.

In strafing attacks on rolling stock and road transport in northern Italy and Yugoslavia, fighters and fighter-bombers destroyed and damaged 49 locomotives, eight vehicles and 79 rail cars. (PRO)

MACARTHUR ATTACKS REINFORCED JAPS
67 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED OR DAMAGED

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 5 — American troops of General Douglas MacArthur's Philippine forces of liberation continued to thrust at reinforced Japanese units in the northwestern sector of Leyte, it was announced here today.

Japanese air strength in the central Pacific was further sapped by the destruction of 57 grounded enemy planes in low-level strafing attacks by Allied land-based air forces on Jap airdromes on Cebu and Negros islands, west of Leyte. Ten other planes were shot down in aerial combat and 10 were probably destroyed on the ground. Four American planes were lost.

American units pushing westward from liberated Carigara, on Leyte's northern coast, have launched a «land and over-water» assault on Pinamopoan, seven miles west of Carigara, it was announced. Pinamopoan is the northern terminus of the all-weather road leading to Ormoc, the only Japanese escape port on Leyte's west central coast.

Japanese forces in the narrow Ormoc corridor received reinforcements by barge, general MacArthur's communique 11 aircraft. (OWI)

TRADE DELEGATION INVITED TO RUSSIA

ROME, November 5 — Michael Tarasov, head of the Soviet Labor delegation, today invited Italian workers to send a trade delegation to the Soviet Union to strengthen the ties of friendship between the countries.

«All aspirations of the Soviet Trade Unions are directed toward the rapid destruction of the enemy and the creation of future friendly relations between all freedom-loving peoples,» said Tarasov.

During the Soviet delegation's tour of southern Italian centers, Tarasov pointed out that it had contacted 250,000 Italian workers at 9 meetings and public gatherings.

Giuseppe di Vittorio, one of the three general secretaries of the Italian General Confederation of Labor, asked the Soviet delegation to let the Russian people know of Italian worker's insistence upon the continued elimination of Fascist elements and the punishment of Fascist crimes. (PWB)

POLETTI TO SWEAR IN NEW YORK JUDGE

ROME, November 5 — Captain Felix J. Aulisi, now a judge of the Allied Military Government court here, is one American standing for public office in the United States whose election next Tuesday is a certainty.

Captain Aulisi has been endorsed for re-election by all three political parties — Democratic, Republican and American Labor — as judge of the Surrogate's Court of Montgomery County in the state of New York.

This week Captain Aulisi will be sworn in as Surrogate Aulisi for a third successive six-year term by Colonel Charles Poletti, Allied Regional Commissioner of the Lazio-Umbria region. His oath of office as a New York judge will be dispatched via Army airmail to the county clerk of Montgomery County, and Captain Aulisi will continue on military leave of absence from his civilian judicial post until after the war.

Captain Aulisi was born in Salerno, Italy, in 1901. (PWB)

ALLIED RELIEF FOLLOWS NAZI PLUNDER

WASHINGTON, November 5 — The 2,300 thousand tons of food which will have been sent to Italy by the end of this year and the Allied repair of railroads and roads represent only a fraction of the work of relief and restoration undertaken by the Allies in Europe, Walter Millis, an American political commentator, wrote today.

«The colossal nature of the wreck which Nazi-Fascism has left behind it,» Millis said, «with the years of systematic looting, exploitation and enslavement, has left only chaos. Ships which the Allies could be using to bring food and clothing to the despoiled people of western Europe must instead be crammed with tanks and weapons necessary to finish off the great beast which has ravaged the continent.

«The Allies must still wage war for victory,» Millis concluded, «but the resultant difficult time that confronts European peoples will be lightened by one

On Wednesday, however, it will be different, as it always has been different. Wednesday will find the vast majority of the electorate, along with the defeated candidates themselves, united to advance the will of the majority at home and abroad.

This «closing of the ranks» next week will be made easier by the essential agreement of President Franklin D. Roosevelt nominated by the Democrats for his fourth term, and Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate, upon the conduct of the war and the program for the peace.

Quincy Howe, a widely known American analyst, pointed out that the 1944 campaign has followed fundamentally the progress of other American elections although, due to the war, it got a rather slow start.

«During the closing weeks,» Howe said, «both major political parties have been making up for lost time, and as usual they are winding up their appeals with more and more heated charges. The desire for success at the polls raises the temperature of almost everybody concerned. Also the sharp attacks and counter-attacks create a greater public interest. But that's the way our Presidential elections almost always go: the biggest fireworks come during the last few weeks, or even the last few days. Perhaps the most distinctive quality of the present campaign, apart from the fact that its being held in wartime, is that most experts hesitate to pick the winner.

«The polls of public opinion which are being taken by press committees, hitting a cross section of opinion all over the country predict an extremely close contest. So do our political correspondents in all parts of the nation, but the betting continues to favor President Roosevelt's reelection at 3 to 1 odds.»

Howe said it was not difficult to understand the attitude of the experts. He pointed out that law forbids any public opinion poll among members of the American armed forces and that, should the outcome be close, the vote of these millions of men and women in uniform might prove decisive.

«The war workers,» he continued, «represent another unknown quantity. A great number of them have changed their residence since the United States entered the war and it's harder to tell how they will vote or how many of them will vote.

«Finally, almost everybody who has something do with the campaign has an interest in wanting to make it look close. The experts do not want to commit themselves.»

Howe emphasized that beneath the surface excitement built up, in part, by press and radio and the political party workers, lies general awareness of the seriousness of the problems that lie ahead, which accounts in large measure for the widespread interest the campaign has generated.

«Naturally,» he said, «people feel strongly about the issues and since this is a land of free speech, they do not conceal what is on their minds. During the campaign you are likely to hear every kind of opinion, often shouted in a loud voice. But the United States is also a democracy, a land of majority rule. U. S. MARINES VOTE IN PACIFIC AREAS

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, November 5 — Scores of United States Marines, many of them veterans of hard-fought island campaigns against the Japanese, went to the polls recently to cast their ballots for President, wrote an American Marine Corps correspondent in a delayed dispatch today.

ROME, November 5 — Captain Felix J. Aulisi, now a judge of the Allied Military Government court here, is one American standing for public office in the United States whose election next Tuesday is a certainty.

Captain Aulisi has been endorsed for re-election by all three political parties — Democratic, Republican and American Labor — as judge of the Surrogate's Court of Montgomery County in the state of New York.

This week Captain Aulisi will be sworn in as Surrogate Aulisi for a third successive six-year term by Colonel Charles Poletti, Allied Regional Commissioner of the Lazio-Umbria region. His oath of office as a New York judge will be dispatched via Army airmail to the county clerk of Montgomery County, and Captain Aulisi will continue on military leave of absence from his civilian judicial post until after the war.

Captain Aulisi was born in Salerno, Italy, in 1901. (PWB)

ALLIED RELIEF FOLLOWS NAZI PLUNDER

WASHINGTON, November 5 — The 2,300 thousand tons of food which will have been sent to Italy by the end of this year and the Allied repair of railroads and roads represent only a fraction of the work of relief and restoration undertaken by the Allies in Europe, Walter Millis, an American political commentator, wrote today.

"The colossal nature of the wreck which Nazi-Fascism has left behind it," Millis said, "with the years of systematic looting, exploitation and enslavement, has left only chaos. Ships which the Allies could be using to bring food and clothing to the despoiled people of western Europe must instead be crammed with tanks and weapons necessary to finish off the great beast which has ravaged the continent.

"The Allies must still wage war for victory," Millis concluded, "but the resultant difficult time that confronts the western European peoples will be lightened by one priceless possession— freedom from German tyranny." (OWI)

UNITED NATIONS

AMERICAN ELECTION FERVOR MOUNTS

WASHINGTON, November 5 — A stranger, unacquainted with America or with the democratic processes, might assume today that the people of the United States were split irrevocably into two rival political groups, each with allegiance only to the persons and the platforms of either the Republican or the Democratic parties.

He would perhaps find confirmation for this view not only in the uncompromising statements of political figures but in the fervor with which ordinary citizens discuss leaders and issues. But he would discover his mistake on the very day after the election.

It is an essential of working democracy that the voters take their politics seriously. Freedom of speech — like all democratic rights — is a right to be used. Today Americans are speaking freely and frankly of the men and issues involved in this war-time election next Tuesday — an election which most experienced political observers believe will be extremely close.

fact that it's being held in wartime, is that most experts hesitate to pick the winner.

"The polls of public opinion which are being taken by press committees, hitting a cross section of opinion all over the country, predict an extremely close contest. So do our political correspondents in all parts of the nation, but the betting continues to favor President Roosevelt's reelection at 3 to 1 odds."

Howe said it was not difficult to understand the attitude of the experts. He pointed out that law forbids any public opinion poll among members of the American armed forces and that, should the outcome be close, the vote of these millions of men and women in uniform might prove decisive.

"The war workers," he continued, "represent another unknown quantity. A great number of them have changed their residence since the United States entered the war and it's harder to tell how they will vote or how many of them will vote.

"Finally, almost everybody who has something do with the campaign has an interest in wanting to make it look close. The experts do not want to commit themselves."

Howe emphasized that beneath the surface excitement built up, in part, by press and radio and the political party workers, lies general awareness of the seriousness of the problems that lie ahead, which accounts in large measure for the widespread interest the campaign has generated.

"Naturally," he said, "people feel strongly about the issues and since this is a land of free speech, they do not conceal what is on their minds. "These men," wrote the correspondent, "are helping to choose their President and commander-in-chief in a democratic way. Further to the west in this Pacific Ocean, Japanese troops are not so fortunate."

The correspondent wrote that all the Marines were unanimous on one point: "Whether Franklin D. Roosevelt or Thomas E. Dewey is the winner, we want to get this war over and get back home."

The polling places where the Marines voted — many of them bearded and dirty and fatigued by combat — were sun-bleached tents or hastily erected pre-fabricated buildings. A voting officer was present to explain the procedure to young fighters voting for the first time. Similar scenes were repeated on many other Pacific islands. (OWI)

STALIN DECORATED WITH ORDER OF VICTORY

MOSCOW, November 5 — Marshal Joseph Stalin was invested with the insignia of the Order of Victory today, Radio Moscow announced tonight.

The investiture was made by President Kalinin for "the outstanding organization of the Red Army offensive which led to the defeat of the German army and the fundamental changes on the front against the German invader in favor of the Red Army."

The Order of the Red Banner was also given Marshal Stalin for long service in the Red Army.

RUMANIA GETS NEW GOVERNMENT

BUCHAREST, November 5 — The reorganization of the Rumanian Government yesterday on orders of King Michael followed a strong Allied protest that Rumania had failed to abide by its Armistice terms, a Reuter dispatch stated today.

The protest was contained in a memorandum prepared by Lieutenant General Vinogradov, vice president of the Allied Armistice Control Commission for Rumania.

The memorandum, addressed to the Rumanian Prime Minister, charged that Rumania had deliberately evaded the terms of the Armistice and demanded that immediate measures be taken by the Rumanian Government to fulfill the Armistice obligations.

The document charged that German and Hungarian subjects in Rumanian territory had not all been interned and that the Rumanian Government had failed to approach practically and seriously the question of reparations for damage caused to Russia by Rumania.»

The Allied Commission memorandum charged further that Rumania had failed to take the proper measures to prevent the removal of German and Hungarian property.

King Michael's decree appointed General Constantin Sanatescu as president of the Rumanian Council of Ministers and interim War Department minister. Petre Groza will be vice-president of the Council.

Other appointments included Lucretiu Patrascanu, justice minister; Constantin Voicanu, foreign affairs; Gheorghe Pop, culture and arts; Constantin Eratianu, war production; Nicolae Penescu, home affairs; Mihail Romniceanu, finance; Professor Daniel Danielopol, health and social assistance; Aurel Leucutia, national economy; Professor Ion Cugia, agriculture and domains; Stefan Voitec, national education; Lotar Radaceanu, labor; Professor Gheorghe Nicolau, social insurance; Gheorghe Gheorghiudej, communications; Virgil Solomon, public works; Professor Gheorghe Fotino, cooperatives, and Professor Gheorghe Vladescuracoasa, ministries.

General Dimitrie Damaceanu was appointed liaison officer with the Allies and placed in charge of fulfillment of the Armistice terms. (Reuter)

RAF DONATES 12,000 POUNDS TO FRENCH CHILDREN

LONDON, November 5 — The RAF Bomber Command has contributed over 12,000 pounds (48,000 dollars) for the relief of French children whose parents or guardians were killed by the Germans for giving shelter to British bomber crews, Rene Massigli, French Ambassador in London, announced today.

Accepting the money from Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, Massigli said the gesture will go to the heart of the French people. (OWI)

INVENTOR OF ARTIFICIAL HEART DIES

PARIS, November 5 — Doctor Alexis Carrell, the scientist, died here today at the age of 71, a Reuter dispatch said this afternoon.

Doctor Carrell invented the artificial heart, which has been widely publicized throughout the world. Early in his studies he became convinced that if men could rid themselves of toxic products most of them would live for a century or more.

He was born at Sainte Foy Les Lyon, France, and was a graduate of Lyon University. In 1906 he went to the Rockefeller Institute in New York City for medical research, where he built a «strange hospital» with livers and hearts as «patients».

He had recently been ill with heart disease. (Reuter)

mander-in-chief of the 3rd Army Corps and the man who signed the armistice with the Germans in April 1941, Basil Simonides, former Governor-General of Macedonia, and General Bako, former Minister for Defense.

According to dispatches from Saloniki, the liberated Greek port was completely plundered by the Germans during their 42-months occupation. Fifty thousand Jews were carried off in «death wagons» to unknown destinations from March to July, 1943. Ancient churchyards were destroyed and quislings stole everything they could lay hands on, the SS reserving for themselves gold and jewels valued at a million sovereigns. (Reuter)

POSTHUMOUS D.S.M. AWARDED SIR JOHN DILL

BOSTON, November 5 — President Roosevelt paused in the routine of his re-election campaign last night to direct the award of America's Distinguished Service Medal to Field Marshal Sir John Dill, senior British member of the combined Chiefs of Staff Committee, who died last night at Walter Reed Hospital here in Washington.

The posthumous honor was given for Dill's «distinguished service to the common cause of the Allies.» The citation also described Sir John's services as «of first importance in securing the necessary cooperation between the British and American military forces... an enduring contribution toward the victorious conclusion of the war and also to that harmony of purpose which is essential to our security in the years to come.»

The President's statement spoke of his deep distress «to learn of the death of Field Marshal Dill, whom I have long regarded not only as a great soldier and a great friend, but as a most important figure in the remarkable accord which has been developing in the combined operations of our two countries.»

General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, on learning of Sir John's death, said he knew of no man who had made a greater contribution to «that most vital requirement to an Allied victory, the complete military cooperation between British and American forces.»

He added: «That Allied forces stand poised at the gates of Germany is due in no small measure to the breadth of vision and the selfless devotion of Field Marshal Dill to our common cause.»

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said: «Humanity stands indebted to Field Marshal Dill for his incomparable service in the common cause of the United Nations both in war and in plans for a lasting peace... The people of The United States have lost one of their closest friends.»

The commander of the United States Army Air Forces, General H. H. Arnold, declared that while Sir John will not live «to see his brilliant and devoted work crowned with ultimate triumph,» he did live «long enough to share our certainty that the fall of a cornered and desperate Germany is now only a matter of time — of a relatively short time... Sir John will be succeeded but not replaced. People like him can never be replaced.»

Field Marshal Dill was in his 63rd year, and had had anemia for several months.

He had seen action on a number of fronts of this war, and he had also been chief of the Imperial General Staff. As senior British member of the joint staff mission in Washington, he took part in both Quebec conferences and the Cairo meetings a year ago, and early in 1943 conferred in Calcutta with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Field Marshal Wavell, Viceroy of India.

When the war broke out, Field Marshal Dill was given charge of the First Corp, British Expeditionary Force in France. A few weeks before the German attack in May, 1940, he was brought back to England to become vice-chief on the Imperial Staff to General Ironside, whom he suc-

JAPANESE BARBARISM ON GUAM DESCRIBED

GUAM ISLAND, PACIFIC, November 5 — An official United States Navy report disclosing the beheading of 91 civilians by the Japs during the battle for Guam was reported in a dispatch yesterday from Robert Gumbell, New York Times correspondent.

Based on a survey by Commander Roger Perry, U. S. senior civil affairs officer, the report stated officially that the victims were members of a labor battalion forcibly formed by the Japanese and made to assist the enemy in their retreat before American forces.

The headless or nearly decapitated civilians were found by Marine patrols in a jungle execution ground. Among them, Commander Perry reported, was a priest. The mass execution took place on July 20.

A boy, 16, and a girl, 15, who were being treated in a U. S. field hospital for deep cuts in the neck inflicted by

Jap bayonets, told Commander Perry how they had escaped after being covered with earth and left for dead. They were put in a cave with other men and women for 48 hours without food and water. On July 20, they were made to kneel around a bomb crater with a Jap behind each one. At a given signal the Japs hacked their victims and shoved them into the crater. The boy and girl clawed their way out and escaped into the jungle. (OWI)

NEW COURT TO SPEED FRENCH TREASON TRIALS

PARIS, November 5 — The French Minister of Justice, Francois de Menthon, has ordered the creation of three subsections of the Court of Justice, to sit simultaneously in an effort to speed up French treason trials, press dispatches reported today.

Among the persons charged with collaborating with Germany who will be brought to trial shortly are General Pinsard, charged with recruiting volunteers for an anti-Bolshevist legion. He is liable to the death penalty if found guilty.

Admiral de Laborde, former naval commander-in-chief at Toulon, is also scheduled to appear for trial. He is charged with aiding the enemy by not permitting the French fleet to leave Toulon for North Africa.

Vice Admiral Marquis, former Maritime Prefect of Toulon; Admiral Jean Pierre Esteva, former Resident General of Tunisia, and General Henri Dentz, former High Commissioner for Syria and Lebanon, are also to appear before the court on charges of treason. (OWI)

U. S. HAS EQUIPPED 150,000 POLISH SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, November 5 — Over 150,000 Polish soldiers fighting alongside the Allies have been wholly or partly equipped with American arms and supplies through Lend-Lease and similar arrangements, Leo T. Crowley, U.S. Foreign Economic Administrator, said tonight.

Citing the success of the Polish armored division which last week captured the strategic town of Breda in the crucial battle to re-open the port of Antwerp, Crowley said that both in the Italian and Western Front campaigns the rejuvenated Polish army has been an important component of the Allied command.

Meanwhile, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration yesterday reported progress in plans to bring relief to the liberated portions of Poland.

Twelve technical experts have been named to a delegation to study Poland's needs and to chart transportation routes for relief supplies. Primary needs at present are medical supplies, food, clothing, fertilizer and farm implements.

Crowley's statement revealed that tanks, trucks, self-propelled artillery and some ordnance equipment have been provided for the Polish troops through Lend-Lease. Most of the other equipment used by the Polish army and air force has come from British arsenals, he said.

Finally, he declared, almost 21 million dollars' worth of food, clothing and medical items have been supplied under Lend-Lease to Polish prisoners of war. (OWI)

Pleading for tolerance, the President drew attention to the New Englanders who have been «fighting against bigotry and intolerance for centuries.»

«You know all our people — except pureblooded Indians — are immigrants or descendants of immigrants, including even those who came here on the Mayflower,» he said.

«Peace, no less than war, must offer a spirit of comradeship, a spirit of achievement, a spirit of unselfishness and the indomitable will to victory.

«All around us we see an unfinished world — a world of awakened people struggling to set themselves on the path of civilization. People are struggling everywhere to achieve a higher cultural and material standard of living. I say we must wage the coming battle for America and for civilization on a scale worthy of the way we've unitedly waged battles against tyranny and reaction, and wage it through all difficulties and disappointments that may clog the wheels of progress. We must wage it in association with the United Nations with whom we've stood and fought.»

Declaring that victory over the Nazis and Japanese is certain and inevitable, the President appealed for the continuance of an all-out war effort. America's young men and women are fighting not only for their country, homes and families, but for a world where men and women of all races, colors and creeds can live, work, speak and worship in peace, freedom and security, he said. BELGIANS IMPATIENT AT SLOW PURGE OF TRAITORS

BRUSSELS, November 5 — A «White Army» of Belgian underground sharpshooters, which is leading a nationwide campaign for an immediate purge of Belgian traitors and collaborationists, has taken command of a tense situation that has arisen in the industrial bolt along the Franco-Belgian border, a press dispatch said here today.

Men of the resistance movement came all the way from the frontier to the capital to arrest Devillez, director of the great Charleroi industrial engineering concern, at his town house. They turned him over to civilian police.

The directors of at least six big Belgian industrial concerns who put their entire factories at the disposal of the German occupying authorities have been arrested.

Van Coppenolle, director of the Belgian National Police during the German occupation, was arrested yesterday.

Discontent at the Government's failure to round up distinguished suspects at the highest level of the country's social, political and industrial life is spreading. Left-wing political organizations and members of the underground movement are threatening to make use of recorded talks broadcast from London before the liberation if the national campaign against collaborationists is not speeded up.

Posters have appeared in Belgian cities demanding the resignation of the government and the establishment of Allied Military Control over civilian affairs, a dispatch to the New York Times said yesterday.

Meanwhile, six Belgian senators, including a former minister, are to attend a meeting of the Belgian Parliament Tuesday and face possible prosecution on charges of collaboration with the Germans. (Reuter) yesterday afternoon and our troops are making progress toward Schmidt. Pillboxes are being mopped up in an area west and northwest of the town which was dive-bombed and strafed by our fighter-bombers.

SHAEF, November 5 — Today's communique:

Flushing is now clear of the enemy and Allied forces made some gains north of the town. Our units which landed on the east side of Walcheren Island are now joined with troops at the west end of the causeway.

In the area of Hürtgen we continue to make slow progress against mines, infantry and artillery. Less than a mile to the southeast our advance is meeting strong resistance from tanks and infantry.

East of Aachen medium and light bombers attacking in waves bombed enemy strongpoints at Eschweiler. Fighters and fighter-bombers went for railyards at Düren, Hamm and Brühl. An airfield west of Neuss and an ammunition dump at Lechenich, southwest of Cologne, were attacked. Other targets for fighter-bombers were rail bridges at Baal, northeast of Aachen, and at Bergheim, west of Cologne.

Yesterday afternoon heavy bombers with fighter escort attacked the industrial town of Solingen a few miles south of the Ruhr.

In the evening heavy bombers, in very great strength, went again to Germany with Bochum in the Ruhr as the main target. Medium and light bombers attacked ordnance supply depots near Trier.

In the Lunéville sector slight gains were made northeast of Manoviller.

Our troops are mopping up resistance pockets in the Baccarat area and in the Vosges heights southwest of Gerandmer. (Reuter)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, November 5 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in East Prussia, north and south of Goldap, our troops were beating back strong forces of enemy tanks and infantry and inflicted heavy losses in men and equipment.

In the direction of Budapest, between the Tisza and Danube rivers, our troops fought advance battles, in the course of which they occupied the following populated localities: Bekoru, Ochkay, Saushi, Varmyash, Vileshelikvan, Vashak, Ille, Andrashi, and Saksony.

According verified data, in the fighting on November 2-4 between the Tisza and Danube rivers, our troops captured 3,000 German and Hungarian officers and men. Thus at the end of November 4 the number of German and Hungarian officers and men imprisoned by our troops between these rivers had increased to 10,518 men.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During November 4 our troops on all fronts damaged or destroyed 58 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, six enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 5 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

In Piedmont, Patriots have defended the city of Alba against Nazi-Fascist attempts to recapture it. After putting up strenuous resistance, however, they had to abandon Alba together with Sale delle Langhe. The attempted roundups near Aosat, carried out by the Germans with artillery support, met with only partial success.

In Liguria a Giustizia e Liberta brigade carried out the following actions from September 3 to 7: between Ceparana and Alibino, following an attack on an enemy convoy, two trucks were destroyed and two damaged and 9 Germans killed; between Piana Battolla and Follo a German detachment armed with mortars was attacked, and two soldiers

STOCKHOLM, November 5 — The German security police, taking advantage of the deportation to Germany of Danish police, are looting flats in Copenhagen under the pretext of searching them, a Reuter correspondent reported.

The dispatch stated that the German methods have turned Copenhagen into a city «where robbery and violence are commonplace, where an average of five murders and nine big robberies are committed every day.» (Reuter)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 5 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Activity on the front of the Allied armies in Italy continues to be confined to patrolling.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Strong forces of escorted heavy bombers yesterday bombed targets in south-western Germany, Austria and Yugoslavia.

Tactical Air Force medium bombers attacked road and rail bridges in the Brenner pass and in the Po Valley.

Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked road traffic and bridges north of the Italian Front and close support targets in the battle area.

Shipping in the Adriatic and rail lines in Yugoslavia were again targets for fighters, fighter-bombers and medium bombers.

During these operations two enemy aircraft were destroyed.

Fifteen of our planes are missing.

MAAF flew about 2,200 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 5 — Today's communique:

Flushing is now clear of the enemy and Allied forces made some gains north of the town. Our units which landed on the east side of Walcheren Island are now joined with troops at the west end of the causeway.

On the Dutch mainland Steenbergen, Nieuw Vossemeer and Kade have been freed. Our bridgehead over the Mark Canal, north of Oudenbosch, has been enlarged and we are within a mile of Klundert. Enemy troops movements in this area were attacked by fighters and fighter-bombers.

Rocket-firing fighters destroyed enemy observation posts at Dinteloord and strafed defense positions. Fighter-bombers also attacked an ammunition dump at Zevenbergen.

In the Oosterhout sector our bridgehead expanded north where we are within a mile of Geertruidenberg.

Wagenburg has been freed and good gains made farther west.

Fighter-bombers striking deeper into Holland bombed and strafed an ordnance factory at Utrecht. Other fighter-bombers and fighters operating over a wide area of Holland and the Ruhr went for rail and water transport and cut rail communications in some 40 places.

Medium and light bombers with fighter escort attacked road and rail bridges over the Meuse River at Venlo. To the west of Venlo our ground forces continued to advance eastward along the Noorer Canal and some progress has been made farther north.

An enemy counter-attack in the vicinity of Schmidt from which we have been forced to withdraw, was repulsed

Our troops are mopping up resistance pockets in the Baccarat area and in the Vosges heights southwest of Gerardmer. (Reuter)

After putting up strenuous resistance, however, they had to abandon Alba together with Sale delle Langhe. The attempted round-ups near Aosat, carried out by the Germans with artillery support, met with only partial success.

In Liguria a Giustizia e Libertà brigade carried out the following actions from September 3 to 7: between Ceparana and Alibino, following an attack on an enemy convoy, two trucks were destroyed and two damaged and 9 Germans killed; between Piana Battolla and Follo a German detachment armed with mortars was attacked, and two soldiers were killed and many others wounded; in the area between Roccapignone and Borghetto di Vara an enemy infantry column from Genoa was attacked and 33 Germans were killed and 15 wounded; between Brugnato and Seata Godano a bridge was destroyed. Losses inflicted on the enemy amounted to 52 dead.

The same brigade carried out a successful engagement in the Valdurasca area slightly north of Spezia, and inflicted losses in men and material not yet estimated. In the same area, traffic over a stretch of road was interrupted for many days.

In the Aemilia region, between Piacenza and Voghera, Patriots are maintaining their control over a wide area. The «Cento Croci» (Hundred Crosses) brigade has wound up a series of brilliant operations.

On August 22 a squad of suboteurs blew up a bridge and interrupted traffic between Bedonia and Passo del Bocco for 10 days. On August 25 another squad destroyed the Buggio bridge, thus interrupting the Varese Ligure-Borgotaro-Barceto highway. On August 29, men of the same brigade destroyed another bridge on the Borgotaro-Berceto highway. On October 2, the Groppini bridge on the Ligure-Cento Croci road was also destroyed.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, November 5 — The Supreme Command of the German Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Our Grenadiers on the Isle of Walcheren are resisting most tenaciously the enemy who is advancing from the west, south and east.

On the lower Meuse our own bridgehead garrison frustrated the intended breakthrough of British and Canadian troops towards the big Meuse bridges of Moordijk.

Fast fighter and heavy bomber squadrons repeatedly attacked last night an enemy supply centre near Aachen. Fires and explosions were started.

As a result of our counter-attacks southeast of the Hürtgen forest, several localities were recaptured which had been temporarily lost.

The determined resistance of our Grenadiers prevented yesterday again the intended penetration by enemy units into the Meurthe valley west of Saint Dié.

In central Italy no major fighting operations took place.

In the Dalmatian coastal region two submarine chasers and one torpedoboat which were on escort duty attacked in the evening hours of November 1 a superior formation of British naval forces. In a selfsacrificing fight they secured free passage for the convoy to its port of destination. In fulfillment of this task all three vessels were lost.

Eastern Front:

In Macedonia the situation has hardly changed.

Northeast of Skoplje a Bulgarian formation was cut off by our counter-attacks.

Enemy pressure in the region of Pristina continues.

Soviet forces which had temporarily entered the western Morava valley were repulsed.

In the Danube bridgehead at Duna-Foeldvar German and Hungarian formations repelled Bolshevik attacks.

In the tank battle southeast of Budapest Soviet attempts to break through have failed again.

Szolnok fell into enemy hands after fierce fighting.

In the Ungvar sector highwater and morass caused restrictions of fighting activities.

Near Goldap in East Prusia the Bolsheviks were driven out of their positions by powerful attacks. Enemy forces within the town were cut off. Attempted breakout as well as relief attacks from the east failed.

In Kurland the Soviets attacked without success during daytime at focal points. During the severe defensive fighting 36 enemy tanks were destroyed.

Air:

The enemy continued his terror-attacks during the course of yesterday and during the early hours of the night dropping highexplosive and incendiary bombs in the northwestern, western and southern area of the Reich. Casualties und damage to buildings were caused in several towns. Nightfighters und AA of the Air Force shot down during [illegible] and during the night 34 enemy planes.

Eastern Front: Carl Bluecher, Transocean correspondent, reports that the liquidation of Soviet troops encircled in Goldap has been nearly completed. The great battle between the Tisza and the Danube southeast of Budapest has continued with undiminished ferocity. So far German-Hungarian troops have successfully blocked further Soviet advances towards the capital.

Armin Schoenburg, Transocean correspondent, states in his review of the Balkan front that it is very difficult to form a coherent picture of the operations in progress. Fighting is going on in seven different sectors on a thousand-mile front, the main object being to protect the various retreating German armies and also delay a swift Allied advance by leaving small garrisons behind on the various islands off Greece and Turkey. Bulgarian attempts to break through to the Macedonian capital, Skoplje, have collapsed. Forces of General Tito cooperating with the Russians have made only unimportant gains in the border areas of Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Where is Pétain Better Off? Marcel Déat, the well-known French Fascist, is trying to answer this question. In a speech to French workers at the seat of the Pétain committee «somewhere in Germany,» Déat asserted that even if Marshal Pétain is a prisoner in Germany, he is still better off than if he had stayed in France, where he would have been sentenced to death. In the latter part of his speech, Déat stated that Allied superiority in men and material will not be able to stop the rising revolutionary forces in Europe.

German Victory Certain: General Guderian, Chief of German General Staff, SS Leader Himmler and several high military personalities lent color to the anniversary celebrations of the return of the Warthe district to Germany. Guderian spoke first expressing the Fuehrer's thanks to the defenders of Warsaw and assuring them that the German front was in the process of being stabilised and that soon new and efficent weapons as well as fresh armies will stand in the way of anybody threatening German soil. Himmler delivered a lengthy speech praising German tenacity which has stood the test in spite of a very difficult situation. «The last four months,» said Himmler, «will probably go down in history as a decisive feat of the German people. The Warsaw revolution has been overcome, the Bolshevist coup in Slovakia is as good as over and in Hungary the national forces have gained the upper hand. The greatest triumph of all was the stabilization of the Western Front, transforming the Anglo-American advance into a bitter and costly struggle...» Himmler ended his speech by saying that if the German people persevered in their certain knowledge of victory, their enemies would gradually realize that a continued onslaught against the Reich amounted to a national suicide and call a halt to the struggle.

The Plight of Venice: Walter Seidlitz, Transocean correspondent, spoke in a dispatch about the difficult times the lagoon city is going through. Six air raid alarms a day are usual. Bombs have damaged and destroyed many famous buildings and the population of the town has been without water for the past six months, owing to the destruction of the waterworks. In spite of this, there are no epidemics in the city, the life of which is ruled by war-time restrictions. Seidlitz adds that Venice has lately become the social and cultural center of the Italian republic, after the loss of Rome and Florence.

RUSSIANS CLOSING ON BUDAPEST, CAPTURE SZOLNOK

MOSCOW, November 4 — Marshal Malinovsky's armies, supported by the Red Air Force, closed in on the southern and southeastern outskirts of Budapest today. One flying column raced toward Ujpest, the rail junction two miles north of the capital, to cut off the German garrison from this escape route.

Fifty miles to the southeast, the Tisza River bastion of Szolnok, and Cegled and Abony, fell to forces forming the eastern prong of the advance on Budapest, while south of the capital, forces driving up the east of the Danube, are hammering the defeated German and Hungarian armies against the river's bank.

Tonight, two days before the 27th anniversary of the Soviet October revolution, gun salvos in Moscow celebrated the capture of Szolnok. A Moscow dispatch said Moscow is hourly awaiting news that Soviet troops have entered Budapest.

Already the Hungarian capital has become a front-line town, a German news agency correspondent admitted today. Fighting is raging in the suburbs, and the Germans are fighting desperately to keep open the escape route to the west. Budapest is now defended by German garrisons and security and miscellaneous groups, Moscow dispatches said.

The German-controlled Budapest radio today broadcast an appeal for calm. Last night it warned Hungarians to have faith but not to expect miracles.

Meanwhile in the middle reaches of the Tisza River, where 40 places were captured today, German forces have lost much of their mobility as a result of the destruction of at least half their transport.

In some sectors in the Danube-Tisza corridor the German front is hopelessly broken, and resistance is local and patchy.

Col. Karpov, a leading Soviet military analyst, said today: «These smashing blows in Hungary are viewed in Moscow as a prologue to the Red Army's last and decisive winter offensive.»

First Major Winter Battle

The Soviet winter machine is already going into operation in East Prussia, where the Germans continued their frenzied efforts to stop the Russians before the winter spreads further south. The first major winter battle is in progress on snow-covered ground north and south of Goldap. Here Soviet forces successfully repelled German infantry and tank attacks today, and as a result of counter-attacks improved their positions, tonight's Sovet communique announced.

The Russians knocked out 41 German tanks on all fronts yesterday.

A Finnish communique announced tonight that after heavy fighting on the Swedish frontier the Germans are retreating northward without offering serious resistance to the pursuing Finnish troops.

In Norway the Germans have fortified the northern port of Narvik and strengthened the Nazi garrison against a possible Russian drive or Allied landings. Norwegian underground intelligence reports said that for the past six weeks several thousand foreign workers have been building new fortifications with concrete barriers, heavily mined.

« Engines of Soviet aircraft are droning over the city, » he said. « Guns are thundering with single shells and salvos bursting in Budapest. A cavalcade of refugees in long columns of carts and cars passes through the city's streets. German tiger tanks rattle along to the front while Soviet planes rake the circular roads around Budapest with gunfire. »

German-Hungarian Clashes

Sweden's Stockholms Tidningen reports clashes inside the city between German and Hungarian troops, and tells of Hungarian units joining Soviet units in fighting against the Germans.

The Budapest population has begun a mass exodus by road and railway, according to prisoners captured by the Red Army, and the railways and highways toward Vienna, 140 miles to the north, are jammed with fugitives. Gangs are looting factories, shops and the homes of people who have left the city.

It was reported that S. S. men are hastily building street barriers and fortifying the most important buildings.

The Germans are throwing in all the reserves they can muster to stop the final assault, and are using rear man front is hopelessly broken, and resistance is local and patchy.

1,000 RAF BOMBERS ATTACK RUHR VALLEY

LONDON, November 4 — More than 1,000 RAF heavy bombers tonight attacked military objectives in the Ruhr Valley with the industrial town of Bochum as their main target, the Air Ministry announced.

It also was revealed that a German one-man submarine factory located at Utrecht, Holland, was hit 12 times today by Typhoon bombers of the 2nd TAF. The factory was left in flames. Spitfires attacked enemy road and rail transport in Holland today without loss. (Reuter - OWI)

NEW RUMANIAN GOVERNMENT FORMED

LONDON, November 4 — The Rumanian Premier, General Sanatescu, has formed a new government, the Rumanian radio said tonight. The Cairo radio tonight said that General Sanatescu has been entrusted with forming a new government on a democratic basis. The previous government was accused of slowness in clearing out the Fascists in government posts and failing to carry out social reforms. AMERICANS BEGIN NEW OFFENSIVE ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 4 — The American 24th Division has started a land and air assault against Pinanopoan, key Carigara Bay town at the northern terminus of the Ormoc Valley Highway on Leyte, General MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

Hasty defenses have been thrown up by the Japanese in the hills overlooking the plains, Sunday's communique disclosed.

Meanwhile fighter planes continued their attacks against enemy motorized columns pushing north from Ormoc, dispersing the enemy forces and preventing Japanese movements along the highway toward the north coast, the communique added.

Heavy losses had been inflicted on the Japanese forces which landed recently at Ormoc, the announcement said.

From Pearl Harbor Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported eight attacks yesterday by land-based American bombers on Japanese strongholds in the central and western Pacific. The attacks on the enemy ranged from their positions in the western Carolines, northern Palaus, northern Marianas and Marshall Islands to the Marcus and Maru Islands.

Americans are killing Japanese troops here in ratios as high as 162 to 1, front-line dispatches stated today.

The 19th Infantry Regiment of the 24th Division, which spearheaded the powerful Leyte Valley drive across the middle of the island, «has the enviable record of killing 1,300 Japanese while losing eight of its own men,» a ratio slightly above 162 to 1, the Associated Press said.

The 1st Cavalry Division in the town of Caricara, northern Leyte, liberated the town plus a 500-square-mile area at a cost in killed or wounded of roughly one man to each two square miles. Caricara was one of 200 townships liberated by the cavalrymen in the area.

The total cavalry casualties were less than 300, of which not more than 30 are dead, as against approximately 1,000 Japanese killed — a ratio of 20 to 1.

Captain Robert W. Webster, U. S. Army observer, said yesterday at a Philippine Army headquarters press conference that the Japanese on Leyte are well-seasoned and well-trained troops who make only a few small-scale suicidal attacks.

He said the Japanese on the island appeared most to fear American heavy artillery, which was made the chief objective of the suicidal charges.

Rear Admiral Walden L. Ainsworth's appointment as Commander of Cruisers and Destroyers of the Pacific Fleet was announced yesterday by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, an Associated Press dispatch from Pearl Harbor said. Admiral Ainsworth succeeds Rear Admiral James L. Kauffman, who has been assigned to a new command.

The dispatch added that the new appointee had participated in every major naval action in the South Pacific, except one, since December, 1942. (OWI)

ALLIES APPROACH ESCAPE BRIDGE ON MAAS

SHAEF, November 4 — Polish, American and British forces in Holland drove closer today to the Maas River and came within three miles of the Moerdijk Bridge, the main escape span for the enemy rear-guards from the Maas-Mark pocket. Canadian forces freed Steenbergen.

Polish troops, throwing two additional bridges across the Mark Canal, liberated Terheijden, where a main road divides to cross the Maas at Moerdijk to the left, and at Geertruidenberg to the right. Further east the Allied bridgehead north of Oudenbosch was widened and deepened, and Allied troops advanced to the vicinity of Den Hout, despite heavy opposition.

Roads south of the Maas are jammed with transport fleeing [illegible] Allied fighter-bombers blasted concentrations

There was barbed wire between blockhouses, and tripods of steel stakes in the sludge of the Schelde approaching the blockhouses. Each stake had a 75-millimeter shell attached, which was fused to explode at the slightest touch. Elevated control chambers of the cranes and gantries in the docks were lined with concrete nests for snipers.

With the clearing of German artillery from Walcheren Island, the last German threat to the Antwerp approaches is removed a month after the operations to clear them began with the crossings of the Leopold Canal.

Germans Retake Schmidt

On the American 1st Army front German forces opened three counter-attacks southeast of Aachen and retook the town of Schmidt, which the Americans liberated yesterday. Immediately after German tanks and infantry had re-entered Schmidt, American dive-bombers came over it and shattered the entire township with 500-pound bombs.

Despite the German counter-attack on Schmidt, the American drive is still fanning out in the Hurtgen area, a front line dispatch said today, and the Americans strengthened their positions at Vossenack. American units deployed today on the high ground commanding the River Roer, the next enemy barrier on the way to the Rhine.

The French 1st Army opened a successful attack in the Vosges Mountains west of the German-held communications center of Gerardmer, and are now within eight miles of the town. Five hundred German prisoners were taken during heavy fighting. More gains are reported also in the Baccarat sector, where the village of Reherry has been freed.

Far to the south, a sudden local enemy withdrawal in the Maritime Alps enabled Allied troops to enter the junction town of Sospel, eight miles north of Mentone, near the Italian border, and several adjacent villages. (OWI - Reuter)

USAAF BOMBS GERMANY WITHOUT AIR OPPOSITION

LONDON, November 4 — Synthetic oil plants and refineries in the Hamburg-Harburg region of northern Germany and at Gelsenkirchen in the Ruhr Valley were attacked today by more than 1,100 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 800 Thunderbolts and Mustangs, which encountered no opposition from the Luftwaffe. Today's attacks were in marked contrast to Thursday's big air battles, in which 208 German fighters were destroyed.

Other formations of USAAF heavy bombers also attacked military objectives in the Hanover area and railway yards at Saarbrücken in the Saar Basin.

Royal Air Force Lancaster bombers carried out a well-concentrated attack today on the industrial town of Solingen southeast of Düsseldorf, where the Germans have located a large part of their steel industry engaged in aircraft production.

Mosquito bombers staged their sixth raid in nine nights on battered Berlin in the highlight of last night's air activity, which was carried out without the loss of a plane.

Allied fighter-bombers strafed and bombed German communications in the Düren-Cologne-Bonn area today in a continuation of the air offensive on German transport feeding the western front. Allied aircraft met little Luftwaffe opposition today. During yesterday's air battle, the Germans lost 183 planes to Allied gunners. Allied fighter-bombers based in France and Belgium flew more than 1,000 sorties yesterday in support of troops in Holland and American forces driving deeper into Germany southeast of Aachen.

United States 9th USAAF Thunderbolts smashed several enemy troop concentrations and attacked a tank column. Havocs and Marauders attacked numerous communications targets and bridges in the Rhine and Moselle valleys.

as high as 162 to 1, front-line dispatches stated today.

The 19th Infantry Regiment of the 24th Division, which spearheaded the powerful Leyte Valley drive across the middle of the island, has the enviable record of killing 1,300 Japanese while losing eight of its own men, a ratio slightly above 162 to 1, the Associated Press said.

The 1st Cavalry Division in the town of Caricara, northern Leyte, liberated the town plus a 500-square-mile area at a cost in killed or wounded of roughly one man to each two square miles. Caricara was one of 200 townships liberated by the cavalrymen in the area.

The total cavalry casualties were less than 300, of which not more than 50 are dead, as against approximately 1,000 Japanese killed — a ratio of 20 to 1.

Captain Robert W. Webster, U. S. Army observer, said yesterday at a Philippine Army headquarters press conference that the Japanese on Leyte are well-seasoned and well-trained troops who make only a few small-scale suicidal attacks.

He said the Japanese on the island appeared most to fear American heavy artillery, which was made the chief objective of the suicidal charges.

Rear Admiral Walden L. Ainsworth's appointment as Commander of Cruisers and Destroyers of the Pacific Fleet was announced yesterday by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, an Associated Press dispatch from Pearl Harbor said. Admiral Ainsworth succeeds Rear Admiral James L. Kauffman, who has been assigned to a new command.

The dispatch added that the new appointee had participated in every major naval action in the South Pacific, except one, since December, 1942. (OWI)

SHAEF, November 4 — Polish, American and British forces in Holland drove closer today to the Maas River and came within three miles of the Moerdijk Bridge, the main escape span for the enemy rear-guards from the Maas-Mark pocket. Canadian forces freed Steenbergen.

Polish troops, throwing two additional bridges across the Mark Canal, liberated Terheijden, where a main road divides to cross the Maas at Moerdijk to the left, and at Geertruidenberg to the right. Further east the Allied bridgehead north of Oudenbosch was widened and deepened, and Allied troops advanced to the vicinity of Den Hout, despite heavy opposition.

Roads south of the Maas are jammed with transport fleeing north. Allied fighter-bombers blasted concentrations of German troops and military buildings in the path of the land forces.

On the Dutch west flank, Canadian forces today liberated Steenbergen, a German stronghold six miles north of Bergen op Zoom, and are now within three miles of the Maas Estuary.

On Walcheren, Allied troops operating from Flushing have advanced 1,000 yards to the northwest of Walcheren and have joined up with marines coming from West Kapelle. The only resistance on the island is centered round Middleburg, its capital.

On the eastern side of Walcheren, where the Canadians crossed by boats south of the causeway, a firm beachhead has been established by a push 2,000 yards inland, and a vise is forming around the Germans still on the island. Hundreds of Allied guns are moving into position to pound the remnants of the 10,000-strong garrison driven into Middleburg, Nieuwland and Verre, which is likely to be the Germans' evacuation port.

After completing the occupation of the port of Domburg, Canadians have pushed through to the north, where they are fighting in the woods.

The overrunning of Flushing in two days after a break through the port's outer crust in a few hours was accomplished despite an unexpectedly large number of strongpoints, a dispatch from the port said today.

In Holland, British fighter-bombers destroyed two German tanks, 19 motor vehicles, one locomotive, 10 freight cars and one jet-propelled aircraft.

The main strength of the 2nd TAF yesterday was directed against enemy formations massing for a counter-attack in the Klundert region north of Oudenbosch. After the attack by Typhoons, no German attack developed. (Reuter-BBC)

U-BOAT PACK ROUTED ON MURMANSK RUN

LONDON, November 4 — British carrier planes and warships recently routed a German U-boat pack in a fierce Arctic battle in the Murmansk convoy run, during which at least three of the submarines were sunk, an Admiralty communique said tonight.

The highly-important convoy was taken from Britain to Russia and back again without the loss of a single merchant ship.

An American press service described the action as follows:

"Taking a last desperate fling at the Murmansk supply line, the Nazi raiders struck repeatedly against the protecting cordon of planes and surface ships thrown around the convoy and took one of the most decisive beatings of the war.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Not a single U-boat broke through and none of the vessels, making up what was described as a 'large and important convoy,' was damaged on the entire trip. The only British loss was the sinking of the 1250-ton sloop Kite, which went down while attacking one of the submarines.»

Although the date of the convoy battle was not disclosed, indications were that it occurred several weeks ago.

Late last month the Soviet Army captured the Norwegian arctic port of Kirkenes, formerly the main hideout of German U-boats and airplane fleets that once made the Murmansk run the world's most dangerous sea lane.

SUPERFORTRESSES WIPE OUT RANGOON RAILWAY

KANDY, CEYLON, November 4 — A medium force of B-29 Superfortresses, each carrying the greatest bomb load ever crammed into a single plane, blasted Rangoon today for the second time in two days, wiping out the city's chief railway yards, press and radio dispatches reported. Airfields also were hit.

The 20th USAAF bombers, based in India, were escorted for the first time by long-range Thunderbolt and Lightning fighters, the British United Press reported. A BPC correspondent quoted pilots of the last planes to come in over the target as saying that the rail yards were so obliterated by the time they reached the area that they had difficulty finding the marshalling yards.

It was the 15th attack carried out by the Superfortresses since June.

An American press dispatch from the Salween front today said that Japanese troops «in their headlong flight» from Lungling abandoned quantities of heavy equipment which they were unable to carry over mountain trails.

American-trained Chinese captured Lungling, important Burma Road city, yesterday morning. Although they suffered their heaviest casualties in six months, these Chinese Salween forces, trained and supplied by U. S. Brigadier General Frank Dorns, have developed a self-confidence strange among armies in China.

The Japanese apparently intended to hold Lungling to the last but when they were flanked on the east by a series of road blocks thrown across the Burma Road, and more remotely on the west by the advance on Bhamo by the Chinese armies pushing south from Myitkyina, they quit, press dispatches said.

The Chinese high command said an enemy unit has advanced down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway toward Liuchow and reached a point six miles from Yungfu, three miles southwest of Kweilin, the major Chinese base in south central China.

Liuchow, which an Associated Press dispatch noted is now the most important rail center in unoccupied China and the site of an advanced American air base, also is threatened by another enemy drive from the West River area which has placed Mosun, 45 miles south, under direct assault.

In another air action, Royal Air Force Liberators of the Eastern Air Command attacked railway yards at Bangkok, Thailand, on Thursday night and left the whole area a mass of flames, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch today said. The bombers flew 1600 kilometers to drop 30 tons of incendiaries.

Troops of the 5th Indian Division yesterday overran strong Japanese defenses around a «vital corner» on the Tiddim-Fort White Road in northwestern Burma and are within one mile of Kennedy Peak, the main enemy stronghold, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's communique said today.

ITALIAN FRONT ACTION LIMITED TO PATROLS

On the 5th Army front, enemy forces launched several small counter-attacks, supported by artillery fire, both against American positions in the Idice River valley and against British forces in the hill country between the Sillaro and the Santerno rivers southeast of Bologna. All the enemy attacks were beaten back, as was still another counter-thrust against American and South African forces southwest of Bologna.

FOUR GERMAN DIVISIONS ARRIVE IN ITALY

WASHINGTON, November 4 — Four full-strength German divisions composed mainly of alpine troops have recently arrived on the Italian front, a dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Popolo e Libertà from the Italian border said Wednesday.

The report said that Field Marshal Albert von Kesselring was preparing to carry out a series of delaying-line actions. The first of these lines runs from Apuania along outlying spurs of the Tuscan Apennines and the heights of the Modena Apennines through Isola Argenta to the Comacchio marshes; the second line runs from Rapallo along the Piacenza Apennines to the Po River, and a third line runs along the Ticino also to the Po River.

The Germans have established a headquarters at Monza, but their tactical command has not yet crossed the Po River.

Marshal Kesselring, according to the dispatch, had originally hoped the Gothic Line would resist throughout the winter. Having been disappointed, The Germans then hastened to prepare new defense lines. The desperate German resistance at Rimini before Ravenna and in the Apennines before Bologna is intended to permit completion of these new fortifications.

Almost all the inhabitants of this area, men and women alike, have been mobilized to build the new line which runs from Chioggia to Garda, along the Euganian Hills ending at Stelvio.

The Germans are reported to be concentrating fresh units from Germany at Peschiera, Verona, Mantova, Legnano and Quadrilatero, the report continued.

Serious dissensions have been reported between the Neo-Fascists and the German command — owing, on the part of the Nazis, to the small contribution which the Neo-Fascist military forces are making toward the operations, and on the part of the Neo-Fascists to the mistrust the Germans are showing toward the Italians.

The report said also that Marshal Kesselring has insisted that all Neo-Fascist units come under the complete control of the German command, but that Marshal Rudolfo Graziani disagrees.

ADVANCE AFHQ, November 4 — Lieut.-Gen. Sir Oliver W. H. Leese sent the following message to the troops of the 8th Army prior to his departure to take command of the 11th Army Group in the Southeast Asia Command:

«This message is to say goodbye to you all. My orders to take over an Army Group came at short notice; this makes it impossible for me to see you and thank you personally.

ITALIAN FRONT ACTION LIMITED TO PATROLS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 4 — Continued heavy rains yesterday confined activity on the Italian front to patrolling, it was announced here today.

Lowlands along the 8th Army front remained inundated, so that forward units again had to be supplied by means of tenuous wire rope bridges, or by assault boats and ferries. The tortuous mountain roads along the 5th Army's front still were thick with mud, and gashed by deep washouts from mountain torrents.

Positions along most of the Italian front remained unchanged. British troops were still in close contact with enemy armored forces at the edges of Forli airfield, but a flooded drainage canal lying between the opposing forces prevented any direct assault upon the German positions. Further south, German tanks ranged along the Forli-Predappio road south of San Martino in Strada in an effort to counteract deep patrol penetration by Allied forces.

On the 8th Army's coastal sector, the enemy has reinforced the 114th Jaeger Division guarding the approach to Ravenna along Highway 16, it was announced today. Sharp clashes with enemy rear-guards in this area continued yesterday, and in three separate skirmishes 8th Army raiding forces took 25 prisoners. To prevent observation in this flat, low country the enemy has destroyed all towers and high buildings which might have been used as artillery spotters' posts.

The Germans have established a headquarters at Monza, but their tactical command has not yet crossed the Po River.

Marshal Kesselring, according to the dispatch, had originally hoped the Gothic Line would resist throughout the winter. FLUSHING TAKEN IN GRIM NIGHT BATTLE

WITH THE BRITISH COMMANDOS ON WALCHEREN ISLAND, November 4 — The capture of the commander of the Nazi garrison at Flushing on this island, as announced by Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, last night, was preceded by seven hours of savage bayonet and grenade fighting, said a Reuter correspondent.

During street fighting the British Commandos who took Flushing closed in on the hotel where Lieutenant Colonel Reinhardt, the German commander, had fortified himself and his staff. The commandos were met by fire from all sides, said the newsman, as well as from the roof. Then Typhoons plunged down from the skies to liquidate the strongpoints, artillery slammed shells at the hotel and set it on fire, and mortars and machine guns wrecked German positions hewn into solid concrete.

The fighting was so close that the enemy was tossing hand grenades at the attackers from the hotel and its pillboxes.

«Then at four o'clock in the morning,» wrote the correspondent, «the infantry fixed bayonets and leaped into the flood water. They surged forward into the blazing building yelling their battle cries. The nerve of the German garrison broke,» and the garrison commander — also presumably the officer in charge of all the Walcheren defenses — and his staff officers and hundreds of soldiers were captured. Many came out of nearby tunnels and pillboxes. (OWI)

GERMANS MINED THE MARATHON DAM

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 4 — German forces in the Athens area used the threat of demolishing the great Marathon Dam, on which more than a million and a half people depend for water, in order to expedite their escape from Greece, a spokesman for Military Liaison, Greece, the relief and rehabilitation section of the Allied liberation force, said today.

The Germans actually placed explosive charges inside and outside the big retaining wall that stores the water which is Athens' only supply, to make their threat of its destruction more forceful,» the spokesman said.

When they finally had obtained from Greek guerrilla leaders a promise that the German columns would be allowed to flee the city without attack, German sappers removed the charges, saying that they had merely been placed around the dam and the water plant installations for storage.

Reporting on the progress of welfare work in Greece, the spokesman said that wheat flour, peas, canned fish and rice already had been distributed in the Athens area, where at least 275,000 destitute Greeks are being fed in addition to the normal rationed distribution of relief foods. Medical supplies were adequate in the metropolitan area, he said, and public health in Greece is fair.

«The principal shortage is in olive oil and seed wheat,» the spokesman said, adding:

«The almost complete lack of fuel to operate olive oil presses or provide transport is chiefly responsible for the absence of this essential element in the Greek diet. German destruction of bridges and removal of many coastal vessels for their own escape has made communication between the Peloponese and the mainland difficult.»

Living conditions throughout Greece are poor and clothing is lacking. A Red Cross shipment of some 600,000 garments is expected shortly from Cairo, where it was stockpiled, he stated.

«Three objectives guide the Allied relief to Greece,» the spokesman said.

«These are to distribute available supplies equitably, without regard to race, creed, or political affiliation; to render such medical and public health advice and assistance as may be needed, and to carry out minimum rehabilitation of Greek industry, such as farming, manufacturing, fishing and food processing, as is possible.»

The military liaison spokesman emphasized that no political party of faction in Greece would be permitted to make use of Allied supplies to further its political aims or ambitions.

Allied experts in Greece are taking steps to combat runaway inflation, which has debased the drachma more seriously than even the mark in the worst period of Germany's depression after the last war, the spokesman said.

The Greek government, without funds and charged with paying public servants and carrying out cost-of-living of a 24-hour lull of Allied air action caused by stormy weather. It is now fairly certain that «all the Germans are out of Greece,» air observers of the Royal Air Force reported today.

RAF reconnaissance pilots reported that they had found no signs of German troops north or northwest of Salonika, although the fleeing enemy forces had blown all bridges along their escape route through the Vardar River Valley to Skoplje.

Some German troops are apparently attempting to make their way north through the mountains of Albania, where several small columns have been seen in the vicinity of Lake Prespansko.

Although bad flying weather in Greece has allowed only eight days' operations since the RAF established an advance airfield in the Athens area on October 9, Spitfires, Spitbombers, and Beaufighters stationed there have taken a toll of 99 enemy motor vehicles, locomotives, and 64 freight cars, it was reported today. YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE PERAST IN DALMATIA

LONDON, November 4 — Yugoslav forces have liberated Perast, the Dalmatian coastal town 36 miles southeast of Dubrovnik, a communique from Marshal Tito's headquarters said today.

Perast is on the east shore of the Bay of Kotor, the main base for the Yugoslav Navy in the Adriatic.

Fighting is in progress for Bitoli, about 13 miles from the Greek border, where the Germans attempted to break out northwestward. They were repelled with heavy losses, the communique said. (OWI)

HEAVY BOMBERS HIT SOUTHERN GERMAN TARGETS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 4 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF attacked targets in the Regensburg, Munich, Augsburg, Vienna, Klagenfurt and Linz areas of southern Germany and Austria today, it was announced here.

Because of overcast conditions, bombs were dropped by use of instruments.

Mustangs hit rail transports with good results in the area of Zagreb and Maribor, in Yugoslavia, while armed reconnaissance planes destroyed railroad bridges and cut rail lines.

A Liberator formation reported meeting a few German fighters during this flight.

Only one enemy aircraft was sighted by the planes, but enemy anti-aircraft fire was intense in some areas.

Medium and light bombers of the Tactical Air Force did not operate yesterday, but fighters and fighter-bombers carried out sweeps against enemy gun positions and transport in the Po Valley, as well as over Yugoslavia and the Dalmatian coast. (PRO)

Military Liaison, Greece, is headed by British Maj. Gen. I. T. Hughes, while U. S. Brig. Gen. P. L. Saddler is deputy commander for relief and rehabilitation in Greece and deputy commander of military headquarters in the Balkans. (PRO)

NO ORGANIZED GERMAN FORCES IN GREECE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 4 — British patrols operating near the Greek-Yugoslav frontier have reported that, except for small individual parties, no German troops remain on the mainland of Greece, it was announced here late this afternoon.

In a special statement issued by Land Forces Greece, it was said that British troops have landed on the Greek mainland near Salonika, preparatory to entering the town. These forces are apparently designed to reinforce the British units which were reported to have entered Salonika on November 1.

The statement is the first official confirmation from ground troops that Greece is now entirely free of organized enemy forces.

The last rear-guards of fleeing German forces crossed the Greek-Yugoslav border Thursday night, taking advantage of the German withdrawal from Pernst, the Dalmatian coastal town [illegible] Dubrovnik, a communique from Marshal Tito's headquarters said today.

Pernst is on the east shore of the Bay of Kotor, the main base for the Yugoslav Navy in the Adriatic.

Fighting is in progress for Bitoli, about 13 miles from the Greek border, where the Germans attempted to break out northwestward. They were repelled with heavy losses, the communique said. (OWI)

BONOMI SAYS 6 ITALIAN DIVISIONS READY TO FIGHT

ROME, November 4 — Six Italian divisions are preparing to go into action with the Allies in the fight against the Germans, Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi said today in a radio address commemorating Italy's victory over Austria in the last war.

The duty of all Italians, he said, is «to free the country from every Fascist contamination and to fight every rebirth of that nationalistic spirit which was the origin of all our daily misfortunes.»

Premier Bonomi pledged full Italian cooperation with the Allies in bringing the Germans to final defeat and asserted that Italy has already taken her place beside the Allies in fighting for freedom and democracy.

He paid special tribute to the Italian Patriots fighting behind the German lines in northern Italy and sent a personal message of greeting to them.

Appealing to the various political parties to maintain unity and to avoid dissension, he urged them to be guided by the single thought of «serving the fatherland.» He pointed to the United States, which is holding a national election in the midst of the war, as an inspiration to the Italians in achieving a common purpose and determination for victory.

«England is governed by a coalition of Conservatives, the Labor Party and Liberals, and the discipline of these parties is so perfect that it has been able to confront the hardest and most difficult hours without vacillation or desertions,» he said. «I am hoping for the same solidarity and discipline for my country,» he added.

Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, Italian Prime Minister in 1918, urged that additional Italian troops be sent to fight alongside the Allies for the complete liberation of Italy.

He welcomed Allied friendliness and aid to Italy, as reflected in recent statements of Prime Minister Winston

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and said that the recent message sent to the Italian Patriots by the British Labor Party was recognition of the fact that the war «was not desired by the Italian people.»

Orlando called for unity and an end to party conflict.

«The Italian people remain unchanged in their feelings of fidelity, of affection, and of friendship for their Allies, for the United Nations,» he said.

Present at the ceremony at which Orlando spoke were Colonel Charles Poletti, Allied Commissioner for Region IV; Prime Minister Bonomi; Count Carlo Sforza, Minister Without Portfolio; and Benedetto Croce, noted Italian philosopher and writer.

Earlier in the day, Prime Minister Bonomi and members of his cabinet laid wreaths on the tomb of Italy's Unknown Soldier, killed in the last war. Commodore Ellery Stone, U.S. Acting Chief of the Allied Commission for Italy, attended.

The day was observed in ceremonies throughout liberated Italy, with one of the largest meetings taking place in Florence. (PWB)

ROME INFANT DEATH RATE DROPS

ROME, November 4 — The infant mortality rate in Rome in September was the lowest since January, official figures issued by the Allied Commission showed today.

The rate in September, 1944, was lower than that of September, 1943.

Figures covering 21 months were collected to correct specific misstatements that had been current, the Commission recalled.

Starting its climb last February under the German occupation of Rome, the death rate continued monthly to increase unchecked. Two months were required after liberation by the Allies to check the rise in the rate and to turn it into a sharp decline.

The mortality rate per 1,000 live births, as calculated by the standard scientific method adopted by international agreement, follows:

ITALY WELCOMES RECOGNITION BY CHINA

ROME, November 4 — An official communication from the Chinese Government regarding its decision to reestablish normal diplomatic relations with Italy was received here today.

Commenting on this announcement, the Italian Under Secretariat for Press and Information said:

«It is superfluous to underline the importance and significance of this Chinese initiative. China, with the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain, is one of the four Great Powers that will be permanently represented in the Council of the future peace organization, and will have great weight and influence in all war and post-war discussions.

«This weight and influence is absolutely justified by the admirable and heroic war effort that the Chinese people endure against the Japanese invader under the guidance of Chiang Kai-shek.

«The reestablishment of normal diplomatic relations between China and democratic new Italy is an important step in our international life and will be welcomed with deep satisfaction by all the Italian population.» (PWB)

PERSIAN PRIME MINISTER MAY RESIGN

MOSCOW, November 4 — Increased Soviet indignation over the Persian Government's decision to postpone its answer on the Russians' request for oil concessions has produced reports from Teheran that Persian Prime Minister Mohammed Saed would resign.

A Reuter report late tonight said that because of the Soviet Union's refusal to negotiate with Saed, it has exposed Persia to a great deal of political tension.

The Persian Parliament has been holding twice-daily sessions, but it was regarded as questionable if the Government would have Parliament's consent to grant approval to the Russians' application for oil concessions, press dispatches said. Meanwhile, the Soviet Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Kavtaradze, will remain in Teheran until the question is finally solved.

The newspaper Izvestia said in an article today that «the masses of Persian public are demanding replacement of the Saed Government, because they understand that its continuation will cause great harm to Persian interests.» (Reuter)

One colonel, two lieutenant colonels, one major, and one captain with temporary rank were also removed for the same reasons. (UNN)

FASCIST RADIO COMMENTATOR ARRESTED

ROME, November 4 — Mario Appelius, notorious Fascist radio commentator, was arrested tonight by the political section of the Rome police after it was learned he had been living here under an assumed name since the city's liberation on June 4.

Before the war Appelius was a foreign correspondent for Il Popolo d'Italia, Mussolini's paper in Milan. With Italy's entry into the war, he became a commentator for Radio Rome and soon was known as one of the most violent exponents of the Fascist position and for his attempts to instill hatred in the Italian people against the Allies.

After Mussolini's flight from Italy there were varying reports that Appelius had been repudiated by his former employer and had sought refuge in Milan. Announcement of his arrest tonight indicated that Appelius never left Rome and had hoped to escape detection by the new government through concealing his identity. (PWB)

U. S. PRODUCES 7,429 PLANES IN OCTOBER

WASHINGTON, November 4 — American factories produced 7,429 planes during October, J. A. Krug, chairman of the United States Aircraft Production Board, announced yesterday.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Production was below schedule in the Superbomber and heavy transport classes, but manufacture of other types exceeded schedule by such a margin as to make up the deficit and maintain an « on schedule » performance in overall numbers, Krug said.

Production was generally satisfactory in the standard army bombers, naval carrier-based fighters, trainers, some transports, and miscellaneous models.

Krug said that, unfortunately, the models on which production was below schedule were of the most needed types. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS INVESTIGATE GERMAN WAR CRIMES

BELGRADE, November 4 — Material covering German and quisling war crimes in Belgrade is being compiled by a state commission for submission to the International War Crimes Commission and the Yugoslav law courts, it was announced here last night.

Special commissions also are being established to investigate mass crimes committed elsewhere in Serbia.

As Yugoslavia arises behind the ever-advancing Russian and Patriot guns, more of its experiences under Nazi rule are coming to light, the Free Yugoslav Radio said yesterday.

Of 12,000 Jews in Belgrade, only 1,000 survived the Nazi tyranny. The remainder were sent by the Nazis to slave labor in the Bor copper mines, or to concentration camps in Albania and Greece, or were sadistically killed.

Most of the male inmates of the Janjci Beli Potok and other concentration camps died in agony in mobile gas chambers. The Serbs succeeded in hiding a small number of fugitives from the massacres.

Evidence of German brutality in Nis continues to accumulate. At the Bubap concentration camp the Gestapo's victims were made to dig their own graves just before the German evacuation. In the last days of their occupation, the Gestapo at Crveni marched their victims to bomb craters three hundred yards from the camp and on the rims of the craters shot them with pistols.

Others were tortured with such fiendishness, the broadcast continued, that it was impossible to identify the corpses. One father who begged for the corpse of his son who had died under torture was told to call the next day with five other persons to identify the body. The next day the Germans shot the father and all five witnesses.

Relief organization in Macedonia is in full swing. Peasants have collected several wagons of wheat for the poor of newly liberated territories. Tobacco workers at Prilep saved more than 87 million leaves and handed them to the National Army of Liberation so that they might be sold and the proceeds used in relief.

District committees for relief have been formed throughout the area. (OWI-Free Yugoslav Radio)

PARIS COURT REJECTS COLLABORATOR'S APPEAL

PARIS, November 4 — The Paris Supreme Court of versity of Belgrade, completely destroying it. They also destroyed the library of the Zoological Institute there and burned the library of the Geographical Institute, Doctor Wetmore said.

« Under the man who so loves culture, the Nazis set afire with gasoline and hand grenades and burned the priceless library of the Royal Society of Naples and the University of Naples with its archives, » he continued.

« This man who so loves culture ordered the looting and destruction of the universities of Poland. The Nazis bombed and pillaged the University of Warsaw, using valuable books to light fires in the stoves. »

Doctor Wetmore, who is in charge also of the U. S. National Museum in Washington said that the German people — citizens of a nation renowned in the past for its culture — must « dissociate themselves from the Nazi criminals who perpetrated these crimes. » (OWI)

NAZI « CULTURAL DEVASTATION » CONDEMNED

WASHINGTON, November 4 — One of the worst of all Nazis crimes is their « deliberate and widespread destruction of the wealth of centuries of human thinking, » Dr. Alexander Wetmore, noted American biologist and assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, said here today.

Condemning German cultural devastation in Europe, he said Germans fleeing for their lives from Belgrade have stopped just long enough to destroy wantonly the cultural centers of that city.

If Hitler speaks next Wednesday on the anniversary of the Munich Beer Hall Putsch, Doctor Wetmore pointed out, he cannot say as he said on March 7, 1936, « In no moment of my work have I ever forgotten the obligation on me and on all of us for the maintenance of European culture and civilization. »

Under Hitler's leadership German troops before withdrawing were reported recently to have set fire to the Universités et Républicaines. (OWI)

NAZIS LOOTING NORTHERN ITALY

BERNE, November 4 — The Germans methodically are removing food, fuel, livestock, and machinery from Northern Italy, according to press dispatches received here in the past two days. The reports, which were specific, cite the following large-scale looting:

1. During the first eight days of October, 6,000 quintals of sugar — the entire production of the sugar factory at Alessandria for that period.

2. In the Province of Alessandria, 6,000 bullocks for towing. This requisitioning is still is in progress.

3. Great quantities of coal and of corn, transported from Chivasso to Turin over the Chivasso-Turin tramway. The coal is being unloaded at the gas works in the Corso Regina Margherita, while the corn is placed for storage in the old tram sheds in the Via Fontanesi, around the corner from the Corso Regina Margherita.

4. Machinery and parts from the factories of Turin were taken to Milan by a large German motorized column which left Chivasso on the morning of October 10.

5. Machinery and material from the Fiat works at Riva del Garda and Rovasenda, reported as scheduled for shipment to Germany at the end of October.

FRANCO SAYS SPANISH MONARCHY NOT YET DUE

NEW YORK, November 4 — The time for the restoration of the monarchy in Spain has not yet arrived, but may come after the war, General Francisco Franco told an American correspondent yesterday.

The correspondent quoted General Franco as saying:

"It must be a monarchy which, recovering the essence of our tradition, will constitute an eminently social reformist monarchy very different from that which recently presided over our decadence."

Franco told the correspondent that his regime had never been Fascist or Nazi or allied secretly or otherwise with the Axis powers. WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 4 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Activity on the front of the Allied armies in Italy has been confined to patrolling.

Land Forces Greece:

Patrolling continues toward the Greece-Yugoslav frontier.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

The landings were successfully completed in spite of severe opposition from enemy batteries.

North of Oudenbosch our bridgehead over the Mark River has been widened and deepened. Northwest of Oosterhout, two bridgeheads established earlier have merged and our troops have advanced to the vicinity of Odenhout in spite of heavy opposition.

Concentrations of enemy troops and military buildings north of Breda were attacked by fighter-bombers. Road and rail transport in Holland and the Ruhr were targets of other fighter-bombers. Northwest of Weert, the enemy has been driven out of the area between Bar Le Duc Canal and the Noorder Canal.

Southeast of Aachen, fighter-bombers in close support of our ground forces attacked enemy units and tanks.

Our forces made small gains south of Vossenack against moderate to heavy resistance and have entered the town of Schmidt, two miles to the southwest.

In the forest south of Vossenack we are clearing out pillboxes against stubborn opposition.

Communications in the Rhine Valley and westward to the enemy line in the Moselle Valley were attacked by medium, light and fighter-bombers. Among targets were seven bridges and a railway tunnel.

Additional gains were made in the Baccarat sector where the village of Reherrey has been freed.

East of Rentremont our troops in the Vosges Mountains launched an attack which made progress against stiff resistance.

In the Maritime Alps, Sospel and several nearby villages and heights overlooking the Italian frontier north of Mentone have been taken without resistance. (Reuter)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, November 4 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in East Prussia, north and south of Goldap, our troops successfully beat back enemy infantry and tank attacks and improved their positions by counter-attacks.

Troops of the 2nd Ukrainian Front today captured by storm, on Hungarian territory, the town and large railway junction of Szolnok, an important strongpoint of the enemy defenses on the River Tisa, and also occupied in fighting, between the Tisa and Danube rivers, the town and railway junction of Cegled; the town of Abony and over 40 other populated localities, including Chersen, Kolstovitse, Muzhik, Lendorvarva, Imarsh, Oesa and Kolsapocs.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During November 3, our troops damaged or destroyed 41 German tanks. (Radio Moscow)

MAAF flew approximately 300 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 4 — Today's communique:

On Walcheren Island Allied troops have cleared Domburg of the enemy. The regimental commander of the enemy troops in Flushing was captured yesterday but there is still some resistance in the northern part of the town and mopping up continues in the dock area.

To the west of Flushing our troops have joined with forces advancing along the coast from West Kapelle. Gun positions and strongpoints near Middleburg were bombed and strafed by fighter-bombers.

The building up of supplies on Walcheren Island is being satisfactorily maintained. During the earlier stages of landing operations His Majesty's ships gave support to land forces by bombardment of enemy guns and positions and seven bridges and a railway tunnel.

Additional gains were made in the Baccarat sector where the village of Reherrey has been freed.

East of Rentremont our troops in the Vosges Mountains launched an attack which made progress against stiff resistance.

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 4 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

Further detail on operations in the Friuli region during the month of October show that the Germans began the attack against Patriots west of the Tagliamento. Enemy troops were directed toward Bordano, Interneppo, Alesso, Braulins, Tarsaghis, Avasinis, Peonis e Monte Covria. Their attacks were stopped by Patriots on the slopes west of Avasinis.

From October 8 to 15 the Germans attacked Patriot positions in Carnia along the following lines: Tolmezzo-Paluzza-Monte Croce; Tolmezzo-Villa Santina-Ampezzo; Villa Santina-Ovaro; Paluzza-Ovaro; Santo Stefano-Forni Avoltri and Mauthen-Passo Monte Croce. The Nazi offensive was stopped near the Galleria della Morte (Tunnel of Death), west of Ampezzo. In the other sectors Patriots retired to the mountains when, after bitter fighting, their ammunition gave out.

Farther south, the Germans launched an attack on the Patriots which lasted from October 16 to 23. An offensive was opened against Valle Cellina from Erto and Casso; another was launched against Val Meduna from Ampezzo and Meduno, while a third was mounted against Valle Arzino from Versegnis, Anduins and Clauzetto. The attack from the south was stopped at Valle di Meduna; the infiltration from the north was checked above the pass between Gerchia and Monte Pala. Patriots of the other sectors had to retire to the mountains.

The attacking forces consisted of more than 1,500 men, including German SS troops and elements of the Black Brigades. They had at their disposal 14 tanks and eight 105 mm. cannons drawn by horses. Patriots retired to more elevated and favorable positions after the Germans opened fire at the entrance to the valleys. With the mobile tactics of guerrilla fighters, Patriots continued to attack the enemy's flank. Prisoners taken by Patriots confirm that the Nazi-Fascist attack was aimed to gain control of the highways leading to Austria, and to disorganize the Patriots so as to render them ineffective. Both objects failed. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, November 4 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On Walcheren and on the lower reaches of the Meuse our troops resisted fiercely the attacks carried out by Canadian and British troops which were assisted by fighter-bombers and tanks.

North-east of Roosendhal and near Oosterhout stiff fighting is in progress against the enemy who has penetrated our positions.

South-east of Helmond attacking British troops were repelled and a number of tanks destroyed.

American troops who had advanced through the forest of Hürtgen on a small front, were thrown back to their initial positions by our grenadiers. South-east of this locality fierce fighting is taking place around a number of villages.

On the Lorraine border, south of the Rhine-Marne-Canal and in the area around Saint Dié we held our main line against the enemy who again attacked in several sectors.

Along the Road Remiremont-Gérardmer French Units were able to achieve minor infiltrations only after several unsuccessful attempts.

Concentrated fire of all types of weapons dispersed a fairly strong enemy tank attack on the south-western front of Dunkirk.

Two enemy warships were sunk and others set afire by light AA of the fortress Lorient.

Some Reconnaissance units in front of Saint Nazaire blew up enemy pill-boxes and advanced up to 30 kilometers east of the town into territory held by American troops.

Italy:

In central Italy thrusts west of Imola by Americans were repelled, as well as attempts by British units to cross the Ronco sector east and north-east of Forli.

The island of Calchi west of Rhodes has again been cleared of the enemy.

Eastern front:

In Macedonia our troops are fighting hard in numerous sectors against attacking Bulgarian units.

Our attacks against the Bolsheviks in the upper reaches of the western Morava are progressing favourably.

Along the Danube Bolshevik attacks against the bridge-head position near Duna-Foeldvar remained without success.

Panzers and Panzergrenadiers have beaten back in bitter fighting strong enemy attacks south-east of Budapest along the railway line to Szolnok.

Bolsheviks supported by tanks attacked north-west of Ungvar on a ten kilometer front and could only achieve minor infiltrations.

In East Prussia one of our own attacks near Goldap netted good results in spite of tenacious Soviet counter-attacks.

In Kurland, south-east of Libau the intensity of the enemy's attacks relaxed. The Bolsheviks however continued their concentrated breaking through attacks in the sector of Autz with tank and strong Artillery support. They were however frustrated by the stubborn resistance of our

Meanwhile, a Transocean report, servicing non-German audiences abroad, pictures a very disturbed city indeed: «Budapest has become a city close behind the fighting front. Long caravans of vehicles of all kinds with fugitives and their last scanty property proceed through the city. Other districts seem almost deserted... German gendarmes are regulating traffic...»

Contradicting the Home Radio claim about the normalcy of Budapest life, Transocean concludes: «People are hardly to be seen on the streets... War has left its mark on the city's life. Nothing remains of the former luxurious life for which the Hungarian capital is known. Soviet planes are firing with machine-guns into the city's streets.»

East Front: The leading item today in Colonel von Hammer's report on the eastern front, preceding even the news from Hungary, is the account of an alleged German victory in East Prussia.

«In East Prussia, German troops pierced the Soviet defense zone at two points, overrunning numerous enemy batteries and linking up on Lake Goldap. At least one Soviet regiment has been encircled in the town. Enemy relief efforts were beaten off north and south of Lake Goldap with heavy losses to the attackers.»

In Hungary, reports DNB, a «furious battle» is raging on the Hungarian plain between the Danube and the lower Theiss: «While the roaring of guns is nearing the Hungarian capital, strong German tank formations, followed by German and Hungarian infantry forces, arrived to restore the situation on the right front wing, which had been temporarily endangered.»

Goebbels Statement: The German Minister of Propaganda has handed to the press a report upon the «results up-to-date of the total war effort in Germany.» The statement exults over the fact that «the demand of the total war effort for more soldiers and more weapons has been fulfilled to a great extent during the past three months.»

Dr. Goebbels then goes into various specific details concerning these new soldiers and newly manufactured weapons.

Italian Front Remains Calm: Today's military activity was at a minimum, due to «torrential rains.» Marshal Kesselring's troops are reported to have established a defensive line south of Rocca San Casciano, between the Rabbi and Ronco rivers; it lies parallel to Highway 67, which links Forli and Ravenna.

Italian Armistice Day (1918) Mourned: Italy's First World War Armistice day, November 4, 1918, is commemorated at length. The victory of Vittorio Veneto (which «established Italy's natural, eastern boundaries,» and which sealed the struggle against the «century-old Hapsburg enemy) receives its due share of retrospective lament. The fruits of victory were snatched across the cynical green table of Versailles. This happened because Italy's historical interests were not defended by real patriots, but rather by «representantives of those noble and wealthy classes who are perpetually subservient to the London and Paris banks.» Once traduced, Italy found her only hope for recovery in the bright, clear, uncompromising road of Fascism. But even that road was finally to be obstructed by Badoglio, Victor Emmanuel, and sundry «merchants, profiteers and traitors.» From now on, inexorably, Risorgimento No. 2, namely Republican Fascism, remains the lone highway of expiation. Today's various anniversary commentaries also make it clear that Italy and Germany, both betrayed at Versailles, clasped hands as embattled «parihs» in the profound struggle for freedom and self-determination.

Staff Corps of Royal Army Removed: The removal of the Staff Corps of the Italian Royal Army is interpreted as a liquidation of the army itself, one step more towards the total liquidation of the «fatherland.» Bonomi is named prime instigator of Italy's dissolution.

GERMAN

Western Front: For one of the very few times in recent months, neither the German Radio nor the German news agencies tonight gave any summary of the military situation on the western front. Accordingly, the most up-to-date picture of this front so far remains the one included in the official Wehrmacht communique (see above), which is issued in mid-afternoon.

Contradiction on Budapest: In a late broadcast tonight, the German Home Radio reassures its German listeners about the normalcy of life in threatened Budapest: « Though Budapest is so near to the front, life goes on there quite undisturbed. »

In Hungary, reports DNB, a « turn as radical » is taking on the Hungarian plain between the Danube and the lower Theiss: « While the roaring of guns is nearing the Hungarian capital, strong German tank formations, followed by German and Hungarian infantry forces, arrived to restore the situation on the right front wing, which had been temporarily endangered. »

Goebbels Statement: The German Minister of Propaganda has handed to the press a report upon the « results up-to-date of the total war effort in Germany. » The statement exults over the fact that « the demand of the total war effort for more soldiers and more weapons has been fulfilled to a great extent during the past three months. »

Timey Advice to Partisans: Italian Patriots are warned not to persist in their struggle against Fascism; the point is again made that the Allies everywhere, particularly in Italy, have abandoned and disarmed the Patriots after exploiting them. The general admonition ties in pointedly with the reminder that November 10 is the limit of Il Duce's patience in the matter of defaulters.

« Critical Turn » in Budapest Fighting: Radio Budapest late tonight frankly admits that fighting has reached the suburbs and southern border of the city. « The great Soviet offensive against Budapest has begun... The front line came ever nearer to the capital so that one could hear the enemy artillery barrage. » The situation is called « serious, » and the battle is characterized as having taken a « critical turn » last night when the Soviet troops, « taking quick advantage of their local successes, reached the southern border of the capital. German troops succeeded in... dislodging the enemy from Soroksar, a suburb of Budapest. »

Races in Budapest: Tonight at 20:20, Radio Budapest announced: « Until further notice, no more horse races will take place in Budapest. »

RUSSIAN GUNFIRE HEARD IN BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, November 3 — The sound of Russian gunfire was heard in Budapest today, the Germans reported, as advancing Soviet columns pushed northward along the east bank of the Danube and northwestward along the road and railway cutting across the plains of the Danube-Tisza corridor. More than 100 places were taken in today's fighting in this region.

Alsodabas, 20 miles from Budapest on the line from Keksemet, fell to Russian troops today. Farther east, another north-bound column captured Toszeg, four miles south of Szolnok, while to the west, on the Danube's east bank, the railway station and town of Dunavesce is in Russian hands. Soviet spearheads were expected to reach the outermost ring of the Budapest defenses by nightfall today.

GENERAL MCCREERY TO COMMAND 8TH ARMY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 3 — Lieutenant General Sir Richard L. McCreery, K.C.B., former chief of staff to General Sir Harold Alexander in the Middle East, and commander of the British 10th Corps in the campaign which led to the battle of Cassino, has been approved as commander of the 8th Army, it was announced here tonight.

General McCreery succeeds Lieut. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, K.C.B., who has been 8th Army commander since last winter, when he took over command from then General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

General Leese has been transferred to the 11th Army Group as its commander, the announcement said.

General Leese, by his skillful shifting of forces in the concentration of Allied strength against the Gustav, the Hitler and the Goth lines, earned the reputation of being one of the great generals of the war. Under him the 8th Army became a truly United Nations army, with British, Indian, New Zealand, South African, Polish and Italian troops fighting side by side.

Commanded British 10th Corps

General McCreery commanded the British 10th Corps under Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark during the crucial days of the landings at Salerno and of the preparation of a bridgehead across the Garigliano River to furnish a jumping-off spot for the great Allied offensive in Italy last May.

General McCreery has actually held command of the 8th Army for the past month while awaiting approval by King George VI.

In a personal message to the officers and men of the 8th Army, Gen. McCreery declared that the 8th Army, with its comrades of the 5th Army, will «play an essential and decisive part in the final defeat of the enemy in Europe.»

General McCreery's message said:

«It was the proudest day of my life when I was appointed to take over the 8th Army from Lieut. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, Bt. It will be difficult to follow two such distinguished predecessors, but I shall do my utmost to maintain your great traditions and to look after the interests of all sections of this famous Allied Army.

«I fully appreciate the special problems and hardships which long service overseas has imposed on many soldiers in the 8th Army. We must go all-out to finish the job quickly.

«The Germans are not yet beaten and are still fighting hard on all three fronts; but their difficulties are increasing rapidly.

«With your whole-hearted support, the 8th Army, together with our comrades of the American 5th Army, will play an essential and decisive part in the final defeat of the enemy in Europe.

«Best wishes and success to you all.» (PRO)

The Hungarian-German retreat on this front is degenerating into a rout, despite the arrival of reinforcements, a Moscow dispatch said. Russian bombers and Stormoviks are strafing these fresh troops as they move out from Budapest, and Red Army tanks and mobile guns are charging them before they can be deployed.

Germans Attack in East Prussia

In East Prussia, the Russians inflicted heavy losses on the Germans today when they repelled attacks by strong German forces of infantry and tanks north and south of Goldap. On all fronts, 38 German tanks were destroyed, and 11 planes shot down, in yesterday's fighting.

The French «Normandy» Air Forces Unit, fighting with Soviet troops, have shot down 105 enemy planes over East Prussia to date, Radio Moscow reported tonight.

On the northern front, Finnish forces driving along the Arctic Road towards Petsamo have captured German positions on two mountains 120 miles southwest of Petsamo, the Finnish communique announced. R.A.F. GIVES DUESSELDORF SATURATION ATTACK

LONDON, November 3 — Huge fires were burning in Düsseldorf today, after more than 1,000 RAF bombers dropped 4,000 tons of explosives on this Ruhr industrial and rail center in a «saturation attack» last night.

The Germans put up a heavy ground barrage and stiff fighter opposition to protect this vital advanced base, now of even greater importance than previously as a result of the devastation of Essen and Duisberg by Allied air forces. RAF bombers and fighters found the defense last night stronger than anything yet encountered over Cologne, with the Luftwaffe using their new jet-propelled aircraft. Nine of the enemy fighters were brought down.

While the «saturation» of Düsseldorf was in progress, other RAF squadrons struck at Osnabrück, made sweeps on German transport targets, and attacked enemy airfields.

The night's operations cost the RAF 21 bombers and one fighter.

In daylight yesterday, 2,000 American aircraft striking at targets in Merseburg, Rheine and Bielefeld, shot down more than half of the enemy interceptor force of 400 in the biggest air battle of the war over Germany.

The final Allied losses in this tremendous air duel were 40 bombers and 16 fighters missing. Of the 28 fighters originally reported missing, nine definitely landed in friendly territory on the continent, a special communique from the 8th USAAF announced today. Others probably landed behind the Allied lines in Europe but have been unable to contact their respective group headquarters, the communique added.

Of the 208 German aircraft destroyed, American fighters alone shot down 130, and also accounted for the 25 destroyed on the ground — their largest bag of the war.

Greatest Luftwaffe Resistance

The Germans' determined attempt to protect their remaining synthetic oil plants from Allied assault yesterday brought out the 400 German fighters, probably the greatest air force ever sent up to defend the Reich.

The air over Merseburg was swarming with Allied and enemy planes. For the first time, pilots reported, German jet-propelled fighters risked an encounter with American bombers in formation. Previously their tactics had been to single out straggling bombers or to engage fighters.

The Allied bombing record against the Reich during October shows 100,000 tons of bombs dropped — almost twice the tonnage of any previous month. The RAF dropped 56,000 tons on Germany proper during night attacks alone.

Fifteen key German industrial centers were the main RAF targets, with Duisburg, Essen and Cologne suffering the heaviest blows.

Commenting on the mounting intensity and weight of the air war, the Turkish paper Ulus said recently: «The importance of the air war lies in the fact that it will continue until Germany is defeated. Essen one day, Cologne the next, another day another large German town, and so on, will be destroyed. This shows what fighting to the end will cost the Germans.» (OWI - BBC - Reuter)

U.S. 1ST ARMY GAINS 2 MILES IN NEW OFFENSIVE

SHAEF, November 3 — The American 1st Army's new offensive, which began yesterday on a 4,000-yard front 14 miles southeast of Aachen, blasted its way 2½ miles southeast of Vossenack against strong resistance today and captured the small town of Schmidt, 10 miles inside Germany.

Schmidt is on a strategic [illegible] hill overlooking the Roer River and is a junction of [illegible]ur roads leading through thickly wooded areas.

American troops, using machine guns, rifles and Northeast of the Schelde pocket on Walcheren Island, British Marine Commandos fanned out from their beachhead at Westkappelle with one column pushing westward from Domburg and the other within two miles of the British forces at Flushing. Domburg, by-passed yesterday, was captured in house-to-house fighting today.

Holland's third port, Flushing, was cleared of German troops today by British Commandos who are pushing their 48-hour old landing toward a climax. Headquarters announced that the majority of all the principal German gun emplacements on Walcheren had been silenced.

British troops captured Lieut. General Reinhardt, garrison commander at Flushing and presumably the commander of the island's defenses, together with his staff officers.

Canadian troops have reinforced their bridgehead at the base of the Beveland causeway, and have extended their positions against heavy opposition.

The village of Arnemuiden, a few miles inland from the causeway, was declared an open city at the request of German officers, who stated that it contained the island's hospitals. Allied commanders honored the declaration, it was announced tonight.

The Canadian force which yesterday crossed to North Beveland Island on a reconnaissance mission captured 250 Germans. No opposition was reported on this island or on Tholen, to the east.

New Crossing of Mark

On the Dutch mainland, American and Polish troops under British command forced a new crossing of the Mark River south of the Meuse six miles from the Moerdijk escape bridge. Close aerial support was given to the attack. After gaining their bridgeheads, the troops dug in to await reinforcements. Heavy fighting flared without let-up, and enemy artillery batteries shattered an important bridge spanning the stream.

Allied troops on the eastern flank of the British corridor are within 1,300 yards of Meijel, and forward elements reported that there are no German troops in the town. Press reports stated that the Germans may be pulling back toward the Meuse River, eight miles away.

On the southern reaches of the Allied front, American 7th Army battled deeper in a cold rain into the rising hills of the Vosges, while French armored troops captured Baccarat, important communications center on the Meurthe River.

French troops also captured a number of towns to the north and south of Baccarat, and Allied spearheads are now within a few miles of Raon l'Etape, first town inside the Schirmeck Pass to Strasbourg.

American troops freed La Bourgonce, six miles northwest of St. Dié, just within the St. Marie pass, and gains were also reported in the Moselotte River bridgehead, where troops are six miles from Gerardmer, in the Schlucht Pass. (OWI-Reuter - AP-BBC)

JAPAN REDUCED TO FIFTH-RATE NAVAL POWER

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA, November 3 — The United States Pacific Fleets reduced Japan to a fifth-rate naval power in the recent battles off Formosa and the Philippines, Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander of Task Force 58, said today on his return to the United States.

He added that Japanese naval aviation has virtually been eliminated.

Statistics released for the first time on activities of Task Force 58 credited the carrier group with destroying 4,425 Japanese planes and sinking or damaging 795 naval and merchant ships from January 29 to October 27.

Enemy bombers attacking American carrier forces and

U.S. 1ST ARMY GAINS 2 MILES IN NEW OFFENSIVE

SHAEF, November 3 — The American 1st Army's new offensive, which began yesterday on a 4,000-yard front 14 miles southeast of Aachen, blasted its way 2½ miles southeast of Vossenack against strong resistance today and captured the small town of Schmidt, 10 miles inside Germany.

Schmidt is on a strategic high hill overlooking the Roer River and is a junction of four roads leading through thickly wooded areas.

American troops, using machine guns, rifles and mortars, fought through the dense, gloomy forest of Hürtgen and now are advancing on open ground. In the first 90 minutes of the attack yesterday, infantry troops encircled the town of Vossenack and by the afternoon were clearing the town of Germans.

The scale of the new attack is not known and press reports said that there have been no indications that the full strength of Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' 1st Army has been committed.

The new drive has been carried to within eight miles of Düren, a road center 20 miles from Cologne and the Rhine.

North of Vossenack, other American units have reached the outskirts of the hotly contested town of Hürtgen, astride a main highway running northeastward to Düren. The city has often been attacked but has never been completely invested.

Supreme Headquarters announced that all German resistance in the southern Scheldt pocket had ceased today after Canadian troops overran the last enemy strongpoints of Zeebrugge, Knocke and Heyst. A few German snipers remaining in Zeebrugge are being mopped up.

A press dispatch said that 12,244 Germans, more than the entire German force as estimated when the battle began, were taken prisoner in the pocket.

On the Dutch mainland, American and Polish troops under British command forced a new crossing of the Mark River south of the Meuse six miles from the Moerdijk escape bridge. On the southern reaches of the Allied front, American 7th Army battled deeper in a cold rain into the rising hills of the Vosges, while French armored troops captured Baccarat, important communications center on the Meurthe River.

French troops also captured a number of towns to the north and south of Baccarat, and Allied spearheads are now within a few miles of Raon l'Etape, first town inside the Schirmeck Pass to Strasbourg.

American troops freed La Bourgonce, six miles northwest of St. Dié, just within the St. Marie pass, and gains were also reported in the Moselotte River bridgehead, where troops are six miles from Gerardmer, in the Schlucht Pass. (OWI-Reuter - AP-BBC)

JAPAN REDUCED TO FIFTH-RATE NAVAL POWER

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA, November 3 — The United States Pacific Fleets reduced Japan to a fifth-rate naval power in the recent battles off Formosa and the Philippines, Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander of Task Force 58, said today on his return to the United States.

He added that Japanese naval aviation has virtually been eliminated.

Statistics released for the first time on activities of Task Force 58 credited the carrier group with destroying 4,425 Japanese planes and sinking or damaging 795 naval and merchant ships from January 29 to October 27.

Enemy bombers attacking American carrier forces and bases in the Marianas damaged « several » United States warships and caused minor damage to airfields on Saipan and Tinian on Wednesday, Admiral Chester Nimitz announced tonight from Pearl Harbor. Thirteen of the Japanese planes were shot down, the Navy reported.

Troops of the 24th U. S. Division have advanced five miles west of recently captured Carigara on Leyte, a communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in the Philippines announced tonight.

The enemy meanwhile landed troops and mechanized equipment from an escorted convoy of four cargo ships at Ormoc on the west coast, where, the Associated Press said, « the final showdown battle » on Leyte may be fought.

Leyte-based fighters fought through Japanese interception to dive-bomb and sink two of the transports. (Reuter-OWI)

CHINESE RETAKE LUNGLING; JAPS RING KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, November 3 — Chinese forces today captured Lungling, principal remaining Japanese stronghold on the Salween River front in southwest China, after a hard, five-day assault, the Chinese communique announced.

However, the communique announced also that Japanese forces have nearly completed the encirclement of

Kweilin, major Chinese base in south central China, and have captured Pinglo, another large city 55 miles southeast of Kweilin.

Lungling, 90 miles southeast of Myitkyina in southern Hunan Province, is on an India-China supply route just east of the Burma-China border. Its capture removed the last major obstacle toward a juncture of the Ledo and Burma Roads, and the reopening of a land supply route to China.

Chinese forces were reported pursuing enemy units along the Burma Road toward Mangshih, a strongpoint 10 miles to the southwest, which must be removed if the Chinese are to make effective use of that portion of the Burma Road they have cleared.

The capture of Pinglo carried the Japanese to within 53 miles of a juncture with other Japanese forces fighting northwest toward Liuchow from the south coast of China, the communique said.

Kweilin was nearly encircled yesterday, when a Japanese force advanced to within six miles of the city on the west. Other Japanese units are attacking the northern and eastern suburbs of the Kwangsi Province capital.

A Chinese Army spokesman disclosed that one Japanese column, driving on the city from the south, was hurled back six miles. He predicted that Kweilin was strong enough to endure a long siege.

Jap Destroyer Sunk

The sinking of a Japanese destroyer and the damaging of a large transport were announced today by the 14th USAAF. The action occurred in the South China Sea; an American Press Service said that this was a continuing action against the surviving units of the beaten Japanese fleet.

Widespread attacks in support of Chinese ground troops were carried out by 14th USAAF Chinese and American fliers. Japanese ground positions along the China-Burma border were attacked, while airdromes on Hainan Island and in French Indo-China were effectively attacked.

American Superfortresses, carrying the largest individual bomb loads in aerial warfare, today bombed railroad marshalling yards at Rangoon, a 20th USAAF communique announced.

The attack, the 14th by Superforts since early June, was made in substantial force, the communique said, adding that weather conditions over the target were favorable. Preliminary reports indicated that considerable damage was inflicted.

In another important air action, U.S. Liberators of the Eastern Air Command heavily damaged a 700-foot railway bridge in Thailand, forcing the Japanese to divert their traffic for northern Thailand and eastern Burma over a much longer route.

In Burma, British troops today consolidated their positions around captured Mawlu, on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway 65 miles southwest of Myitkyina, and sent patrols forward in continuation of a drive to re-open an overland supply route to western China.

In the Chin Hills sector to the southwest of Irrawaddy, 5th Indian Division troops yesterday captured Japanese strongpoints overlooking the Tiddim-Fort White Road from the northwest, and cleared enemy defenses on the road 12 miles from Tiddim. (OWI)

THREE ALLIED AIR OFFICERS DECORATED

SHAEF, November 3 — General Dwight D. Eisenhower today pinned decorations awarded by President Roosevelt on three high Allied air officers whose planning of air tactics made possible the landings in Normandy.

The decorated men were Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur

TANGermans are commandeering all motor vehicles for the German army, the Soviet newspaper said. Entire divisions are being pushed backward with planes harassing the retreat.

The German high command is prepared to defend Budapest from house to house, regardless of the destruction, the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet said.

The Nazi-controlled Hungarian radio has appealed to the Hungarians to die for the Nazis. A Thursday broadcast said:

"If a million have to die, let them perish, for who can count the cost now?"

The reaction of many Hungarians to such appeals was indicated by a Nazi-controlled Budapest paper, which said: "Many people wonder whether the struggle is any use when the enemy is mobilizing all his power against Germany and Hungary. The proverb says many hounds soon catch the hare." (OWI)

RAINS BRING ITALIAN FRONT TO NEW STANDSTILL

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 3 — Violent thunderstorms and heavy, wind-lashed rains yesterday brought operations on the Italian front, for the second time in less than a week, to a standstill, it was announced here today.

The main force of the storm centered in the mountains of the 5th Army front, where rampaging mountain streams tore away newly rebuilt bridges and bypasses, and coated roads with treacherous mud. Both forward troops and units in the rear found it practically impossible to secure a full quota of essential supplies, reports said. With violent rains alternating with impenetrable mists, front-line positions remained virtually unchanged, although enemy forces attempted several counter-attacks during the night, when the storm was at its height.

British infantry and tank forces pressing on toward the town of Forli, capital of Romagna Province, reported gains of up to 1,500 yards yesterday, although German armor still resisted strongly at the northwestern and northeastern corners of Forli Airfield. German positions at the northeastern edge of the field are particularly strong, with a drainage canal forming a water barrier in front of the enemy entrenchments.

On the coastal sector of the 8th Army, contact with German infantry forces supported by self-propelled guns was reported along Highway 16, where Allied patrols have penetrated to within five road-miles of Ravenna. In the again flooded lowland areas between this sector and the upper stretches of the Ronco, clashes with enemy rear-guards continued.

In one action, Allied troops wiped out enemy outposts guarding a crossroads some five miles south of Ravenna, after first engaging the German positions in a light skirmish Wednesday. In a second encounter, 8th Army armored forces executed a surprise thrust into enemy territory, and shot up German troops and tank concentrations north of San Pietro.

Quick work by sappers, who bridged a washed-out stream-bed, enabled the tanks to take the enemy unawares.

Allied troops yesterday captured the village of Grisignano, 2½ miles south of Forli and on the east banks of the Rabbi River. German forces still hold the road to the north, and the village of San Martino in Strada, as well as the heights west of the Rabbi River. (PRO)

THREE ALLIED AIR OFFICERS DECORATED

SHAEF, November 3 — General Dwight D. Eisenhower today pinned decorations awarded by President Roosevelt on three high Allied air officers whose planning of air tactics made possible the landings in Normandy.

The decorated men were Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, commander-in-chief of the Bomber Command; Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, former commander-in-chief of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force; and Lieut. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of The United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe.

General Eisenhower read out an award to Air Chief Marshal Sir Sholto W. Douglas, commander-in-chief of the RAF Coastal Command, who was unable to be present.

The three air chief marshals were made chief commanders of the Legion of Merit and General Spaatz was awarded the cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal. (OWI)

POLISH PRESIDENT DECORATES GENERAL PAGET

CAIRO, November 3 — The commander-in-chief of Allied forces in the Middle East, General Sir Bernard Paget, has been decorated with the Order of Polonia Restituta, first class, by President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz of the Polish Republic, for merit in the organization of the Polish army in Great Britain, Reuter said today. PATROLS ATTACK FLEEING ENEMY IN GREECE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 3 — British patrols yesterday attacked rear-guard forces of a fleeing column entering the town of Florina, within 10 miles of the Yugoslav-Greek frontier, it was announced here today.

Casualties were inflicted on the enemy forces, which were also beset by other patrols which derailed a six-car train in the same area, leaving it to be destroyed by Beaufighters which swept over the district to strafe the fleeing German troops.

The enemy forces were apparently survivors of German forces withdrawing northward from Salonika. (PRO)

R. N. SINKS THREE ENEMY DESTROYERS IN ADRIATIC

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 3 — The British destroyers HMS Wheatland and Avonvale engaged and sank three enemy destroyers in an hour-and-a-half engagement in the waters south of Fiume on Wednesday night, it was announced here today.

The destroyers were cruising through the island channels west of Pag, some 60 miles south of Fiume, when the clash occurred, the announcement said. Two enemy destroyers were encountered in the first action, and within an hour and a half the third warship was encountered and sunk. Some enemy survivors were rescued and made prisoners. The Avonvale suffered only superficial damage, and neither British craft had casualties.

M.T.B. FLEET SINKS 75 VESSELS IN 10 MONTHS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 3 — Light coastal forces, consisting of British and American motor torpedo boats and supporting craft, have sunk 75 enemy vessels in waters north of Elba in the past 10 months, it was announced here today.

Among the enemy craft sunk were two merchant vessels of 2,000 and 3,000 tons.

Most of the enemy ships were engaged near La Spezia and Genoa harbors, used by the hard-pressed enemy army to supply troops farther south, cut off by Allied air attacks on railways and roads. (PRO)

CAPTURE OF MUSSOLINI'S CASTLE DESCRIBED

LONDON, November 3 — Capture of Rocca Delle Caminate, the high point on the Rimini-Bologna road, on top of which is located Mussolini's castle, was described today by a Daily Telegraph correspondent.

Telling of the assault on the strongpoint, the correspondent said that a barrage was first opened by Polish forces and supported by British artillery. The Poles advanced up the hill, their progress being impeded by mines, barbed wire and intense machine-gun fire from concrete pillboxes placed every 100 yards.

Before the strong attack, the Germans withdrew from the castle area. Fighting ceased when civilians hung out white flags and the castle was taken. (BBC)

HARD WINTER IN NORTH EUROPE PREDICTED

LONDON, November 3 — Northern Europe faces its hardest winter of the war with heavy snowfalls and low temperatures, according to a forecast issued today by Allied weather experts.

It is primarily a forecast of weather probabilities in Germany a Reuter correspondent said. He added that elaborate preparations have been made by the U. S. 1st Army to make certain that frontline men do not suffer from the cold. Large supplies of winter equipment have been flown from Britain to Americans in Germany, he continued.

The forecast for northwest Germany is: 30 days of snow during the next three months, with an average fall of six inches; 17 days of rain and fog during the next two months; and a mean temperature of 38 degrees during December and 36 degrees during January. (Reuter)

MACARTHUR ESCAPES DEATH

MACARTHUR'S HQ, PHILIPPINES, November 3 — General Douglas MacArthur narrowly escaped death recently during a Japanese bombing and strafing raid on American headquarters on Leyte Island, it was disclosed today.

JAP WAR WILL KEEP U.S. SHIPS BUSY

WASHINGTON, November 3 — The American Merchant Marine will be largely engaged in military transport for a period of six months to three years after the war in Europe ends, the United States Office of War Information reported today.

The war against Japan, it was pointed out, will require three times the shipping demanded for the war in Europe, in part because of the vastly greater sea distances involved. It is nearly 7,000 miles from San Francisco to the China coast, compared to 3,000 between the American Atlantic coast and France.

To the merchant marine will fall the job of repatriating at least six million American troops and of continuing to supply those remaining overseas. American bottoms already have moved more than 4½ million troops and their equipment overseas.

The American Merchant Marine has played a major role in operations all over the world, including the invasion of Normandy. As of September 15 its casualties were 5,803, including 722 dead, and an additional 10,000 temporarily or permanently disabled. (OWI)

LIBERATED ITALY

ROOSEVELT ASKS BIGGER BREAD RATION

WASHINGTON, November 3 — President Roosevelt has asked military authorities to increase the bread ration throughout liberated Italy to 300 grams (12 ounces) daily, the War Department announced today.

In a communication sent to the War Department, President Roosevelt said that, after consideration of the shipping factor involved, he has assumed the responsibility for using now in southern Italy food reserves which were being built up for use when northern Italy is liberated. Accordingly he has asked an increase in bread rations for the section of Italy occupied by Allied troops.

The President has also directed the War Department to provide additional trucks that can be spared from military operations to maintain a transport system for supplying food to the Italian people.

The President stated that every effort consistent with military operational needs would be made to get additional relief supplies to Italy. He emphasized that food should take preference over other relief supplies.

In the first six months of the Allied liberation, food rations in Italy varied from area to area, depending largely on local supplies Brig. Gen. William O' Dwyer, vice president in charge of the economic section of the Allied Commission for Italy, said in a statement released by the War Department yesterday.

Reviewing Allied progress in improving the food situation, General O' Dwyer said that last winter the bread ration everywhere was brought up to 200 grams and supplemental rations were assured to those working directly and indirectly for the armed forces.

On July 1 of this year, while central Italy was on the 200 gram bread ration, the bulk of liberated Italy was increased to 300 grams. As a result of these increases and the new harvest, the upward trend in the cost of living and in black market prices of food was halted, the report said.

The President's plan would extend the 300-gram ration to other portions of Italy, which formerly received only 200 grams.

All of liberated Italy is now receiving a greater bread ration than under German occupation. (OWI)

REPORTED ATTEMPT ON EDEN'S LIFE DENIED

ROME, November 3 — The British Embassy, in an official statement issued here today, denied the Fascist Italian radio report that an attempt had been made on the life of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden by the placing of a bomb outside his hotel.

The statement declared that « no such attempt was made, nor did Mr. Eden stay at the Excelsior Hotel, where the bomb was stated to have been found. »

Mr. Eden arrived here Monday by air from Greece and, after conferring with Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi and other Italian officials, went to General Sir Harold Alexander's advanced headquarters for a visit with the Allied Commander-in-Chief. (PRO)

CARABINIERI SHOULD REMAIN APOLITICAL

ROME, November 3 — In reply to a press campaign in progress for several days accusing the Carabinieri of being politically partial, the Undersecretariat for Press and Information yesterday issued a statement quoting a circular sent to Carabinieri October 21 urging that the Carabinieri, in keeping with their office, « should remain apolitical and refrain from participating in any manifestation which would involve them with any political party. »

The circular said the « Carabinieri and all the armed forces of the State are, and must be, fully conscious of their duty to serve the State whatever the political mind of the legitimate government, which has the right to rely upon its loyalty and on the faithful execution of its orders. »

A rigorous investigation is under way to ascertain the reasons for the recent use of force on the part of a few Carabinieri, it was revealed in a circular issued October 28 by Taddeo Orlando, Commanding General of the Carabinieri, and made public today.

Pointing out that Italy is going through a transition period in all fields of life, the head of the Carabinieri said « resultant unavoidable disturbances » should not perturb the « conscience of those whose duty it is to keep order and maintain public security. »

He requested the Carabinieri, which, he said, was an « essentially apolitical » organization, to prove by facts that it has no prejudice for any political party, and that it has one « indisputable aim, obedience to the law, and supreme

TEXTILE, LEATHER INDUSTRIES AIDED

ROME, November 3 — War damage to the modest textile industry in liberated Italy came mainly from German demolition squads, the Allied Commission reported today.

Now at least half of liberated Italy's cotton textile industry is in position to produce again.

For purposes of rehabilitation, the Allied Commission has concentrated its assistance upon one group of factories near Naples, it was said.

For this it has requisitioned 8½ million pounds of raw materials, including cotton from Egypt and America. Some of the requisitions have been approved, and some of the raw material has arrived here.

The Allied Commission said these plants are already producing fabrics for civilian use, such as men's shirtings and women's dressgoods, at the rate of 350,000 or 400,000 yards monthly.

Other essential civilian materials being produced now include candlewick and seamstress' thread.

AC's Industry Sub-Commission aided these factory owners in rehabilitating their machinery and in getting coal and Sicilian cotton, for which the Allies assigned schooners and transport needed for military purposes.

The woolen textile industry in liberated Italy is conducted by small groups (from 10 to 100 persons).

Using local wool, these groups are producing hand-woven articles at about half their normal rate.

Meanwhile, AC is completing a study of what the import needs of this industry will be, such as loom parts, spinning frames, and dyestuffs, W. S. Vaughan, head of Sub-Commission, said.

Rayon, Belting and Tanneries

In the artificial fiber industry, also known as staple fiber and rayon, it was the same story. The damage was chiefly from German demolition mines, the Sub-Commission found.

Under AC direction, engineers are arranging to « cannibalize » the badly-damaged Naples plant to reactivate the Rome plant, bringing machinery from the Naples plant to the Rome one.

As soon as essential chemicals can be obtained, production on a small scale will be started by using small stocks of cellulose now on hand. Imports will be needed later

The circular said the «Carabinieri and all the armed forces of the State are, and must be, fully conscious of their duty to serve the State whatever the political mind of the legitimate government, which has the right to rely upon its loyalty and on the faithful execution of its orders.»

A rigorous investigation is under way to ascertain the reasons for the recent use of force on the part of a few Carabinieri, it was revealed in a circular issued October 28 by Taddeo Orlando, Commanding General of the Carabinieri, and made public today.

Pointing out that Italy is going through a transition period in all fields of life, the head of the Carabinieri said «resultant unavoidable disturbances» should not perturb the «conscience of those whose duty it is to keep order and maintain public security.»

He requested the Carabinieri, which, he said, was an «essentially apolitical» organization, to prove by facts that it has no prejudice for any political party, and that it has one «indisputable aim, obedience to the law, and supreme interest for the Fatherland.» Only in this manner is it possible to retain the «confidence, respect, and good will of the people,» he added.

Orlando asked the Carabinieri to act in times of disorder «with calm» and «without precipitation.» They should be inspired with its «traditional altruism,» he said.

The spirit of the circular, Orlando stated, was also for the benefit of those who are reserved for duty in Northern Italy «where the population, because of its greater sufferings, must find in the Carabinieri reason for comfort, protection, and assistance.» (UNN)

ITALIAN GENERAL STAFF CORPS DISSOLVED

ROME, November 3 — The General Staff Corps of the Italian Army was dissolved today at a meeting of the Council of Ministers. Measures were taken to provide for its future reorganization.

The reason for the abolishment of the General Staff Corps was the tendency on the part of its officers to escape responsibility, Chief of the General Staff Berardi said in an interview with the newspaper Ricostruzione.

Only officers who had been in active command of troops will be qualified for positions in the reconstituted General Staff Corps. (UNN)

TEXTILE, LEATHER INDUSTRIES AIDED

ROME, November 3 — War damage to the modest textile industry in liberated Italy came mainly from German demolition squads, the Allied Commission reported today.

Now at least half of liberated Italy's cotton textile industry is in position to produce again.

For purposes of rehabilitation, the Allied Commission has concentrated its assistance upon one group of factories near Naples, it was said.

For this it has requisitioned 8½ million pounds of raw materials, including cotton from Egypt and America. Some of the requisitions have been approved, and some of the raw material has arrived here.

The Allied Commission said these plants are already producing fabrics for civilian use, such as men's shirtings and women's dressgoods, at the rate of 350,000 or 400,000 yards monthly.

Other essential civilian materials being produced now include candlewick and seamstress' thread.

AC's Industry Sub-Commission aided these factory owners in rehabilitating their machinery and in getting coal and Sicilian cotton, for which the Allies assigned schooners and transport needed for military purposes.

The woolen textile industry in liberated Italy is conducted by small groups (from 10 to 100 persons).

Using local wool, these groups are producing hand-woven articles at about half their normal rate.

Meanwhile, AC is completing a study of what the import needs of this industry will be, such as loom parts, spinning frames, and dyestuffs, W. S. Vaughan, head of Sub-Commission, said.

Rayon, Belting and Tanneries

In the artificial fiber industry, also known as staple fiber and rayon, it was the same story. The damage was chiefly from German demolition mines, the Sub-Commission found.

Under AC direction, engineers are arranging to «cannibalize» the badly-damaged Naples plant to reactivate the Rome plant, bringing machinery from the Naples plant to the Rome one.

As soon as essential chemicals can be obtained, production on a small scale will be started by using small stocks of cellulose now on hand. Imports will be needed later to supplement this, it was said.

Like many other industries, the textile industry needs belting. Under AC's direction, two or three factories have been started again at producing it.

Tanneries have been reactivated to the point where they turn out about one-tenth of the leather requirement of liberated Italy. That is the maximum for which tanning extracts can be supplied by liberated factories.

Legislation for control of the distribution of these extracts has been developed by the Industry Sub-Commission. Such control became essential, because the Germans looted the country of all the hides and leather they could find, including all belting in factories, according to the Sub-Commission.

AC has developed successful improvisations in industrial fields that cannot be activated immediately.

For example, because of the lack of tanning, AC has organized the collection of shoes unfit for further army use, and has obtained sufficient leather, thread, and nails to repair them. They are being turned out for use of Italian civilians at the rate of 5,000 pairs a week, it was said.

Similarly, the Industry Sub-Commission has supplemented textile production by setting up an organization for repairing and dyeing surplus army uniforms for civilian use. (UNN)

UNITED NATIONS

I.C.A. CONFERENCE APPROVES INTERNATIONAL PLAN

CHICAGO, November 3 — The first commission of the International Civil Aviation Conference passed a resolution today approving the principle of international collaboration in the field of civil aviation, and expressing the hope and desire that an appropriate organization be established to give effect to this.

The U.S. submitted a plan for international air transport organization. The proposal limits functions of this body to those of consultative and technical nature, such as pooling technical data and collecting information.

Although Russia is not represented at the conference, the U.S. plan provides for two members appointed by Russia to be on the executive council heading the new international organization.

The United Kingdom, including the British Commonwealth of Nations, would be represented as a unit to which two seats would be allocated. The U.S. would have two members, and China and France one each.

The remaining six members of the council would be selected from countries not otherwise represented — three from Continental Europe, two from the Western Hemisphere, and one from Asia and Africa. (OWI-Reuter)

FRENCH COMMUNISTS PROTEST TO GOVERNMENT

PARIS, November 3 — An official protest against the French Provisional Government's decision to disarm the so-called patriot militia was made last night by the Political Bureau of the French Communist Party, press correspondents said today.

The action was in line with a New York Times dispatch today which said that the French Communists had broken with the French Provisional Government.

The action came, the dispatch said, when the political bureau of the French Communist Party announced yesterday that it refused to « associate itself in any way » with the government's decision. The announcement urged all Communists to support the bureau's refusal.

Unconfirmed reports said that the two Communist cabinet ministers, Francois Billoux, Minister of Public Health, and Charles Tillon, Air Minister, would express their attitude at a cabinet meeting tomorrow.

The political bureau asked the National Council of Resistance to intervene with the Government to induce it to suspend its decision regarding the militia until the council and the Government could agree on a « legal status » for the militia.

Also it asked the new Consultative Assembly, which will meet Tuesday, to « express the disquiet of the people, who do not desire to be handed over without defense to the blows of the fifth column and traitors. » (Reuter)

« WHAT CAN HITLER SAY? » SENATOR WILEY ASKS

WASHINGTON, November 3 — Hitler will have a difficult time finding a pleasant topic if he chooses to speak on November 8, the anniversary of the famous beer hall putsch, Senator Alexander Wiley, a member of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, said today. He stated:

« If Hitler speaks on November 8, I am interested in just what he is going to say. What will Hitler say to the German people about the defection of Italy, Finland, Rumania and Bulgaria? Her sole remaining ally is Hungary, already one-fourth in Red Army hands. Will Hitler speak to the German navy if he talks on November? »

Above all, Senator Wiley said, he is interested in just what Hitler will tell the German people about how the war is closing in on the Reich. (OWI)

The invitation to the A.F. of L. from Sir Walter Citrine, president of the British Trade Unions Congress, said that the topics for discussion and probably resolutions will include labor's representation at the peace table, the rehabilitation of trade union movements in liberated countries free from « Nazi, Fascist or Japanese » influence, and questions of international cartels. NIKOPOL MANGANESE MINES WORKING AGAIN

MOSCOW, November 3 — The first mines to be restored in the Russian manganese center of Nikopol have gone into production, the Soviet news agency, Tass, reported today.

The Nikopol manganese basin, one of the largest in the world, was wrecked by the retreating Germans, their electric power plants demolished. Tass said that the entire population of the basin cooperated in restoring the mines. (Tass)

VICHY LEADER IN HAUTE SAVOIE SENTENCED

PARIS, November 3 — George Lelong, former commander of the Vichy forces in the Haute Savoie, was today sentenced to death as a collaborator, the Paris radio said tonight.

Lelong was originally responsible for the Vichy government's campaign against the Patriots in the Haute Savoie, the broadcast said. When he failed to quell the movement, Gestapo chiefs took over the job, using German troops to reinforce the Vichy militia, the radio added. (OWI)

SPANISH EXILES IN FRANCE MEET

LONDON, November 3 — Spanish exiles from all over France, called to draw up « a plan of action for the liberation of Spain, » met yesterday at Toulouse, BBC said today.

One of the organizers told a News Chronicle correspondent, according to BBC, that « we are holding this convention at a critical time. It is the duty of all Spaniards to try to save their country from being dragged to utter ruin by the downfall of the Nazis.

« Only a week ago, German circles in Berlin were reminding Franco and the world-at-large that he owed everything to Hitler, and that his fate was inseparable from that of the Nazi Reich. This makes our part all the more urgent.

« We all wish to avoid further bloodshed in the evils of a new civil war which Spain, almost bled to death, can ill support. We know how much depends on the hold of the democratic nations. » (BBC)

C.I.O. TO ATTEND UNION MEETING IN LONDON

WASHINGTON, November 3 — The Congress of Industrial Organizations, one of the most important U. S. labor groups, announced yesterday that it had cabled acceptance of an invitation extended by the British Trade Unions Congress to attend a "United Nations Trade Union Conference" in London on January 8.

At the same time the American Federation of Labor replied to a similar invitation that it would not attend a preliminary meeting on December 4 and would defer its decision on whether to be represented at the conference proper pending consideration at an A.F. of L. Executive Council meeting, November 19.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO, named the following union presidents as delegates: Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Mine Workers, R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers, and Emil Rieve, of the United Textile Workers, vice-president of the CIO.

Expected to be represented at the conference in addition to the American and British Trade Unions will be workers' organizations of the British Dominions, Russia, the liberated countries of Europe, and Latin-American countries.

Leleng was originally responsible for the Vichy government's campaign against the Patriots in the Haute Savoie, the broadcast said. When he failed to quell the movement, Gestapo chiefs took over the job, using German troops to reinforce the Vichy militia, the radio added. (OWI)

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 3 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Unusually heavy rainstorms have once more brought operations in Italy to a standstill.

Land Forces Greece:

Casualties were inflicted by our patrols when they attacked the rearguard of an enemy column entering Florina yesterday.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

They also derailed an enemy train of 60 wagons in the same area. Beaufighters destroyed it north of Salonika.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Adverse weather grounded most MAAF aircraft yesterday.

Fighters attacked road and rail communications in northern Albania, and shipping in the Adriatic.

Last night, a small force attacked objectives in Austria. There were no losses or claims during these operations.

MAAF flew less than 100 sorties.

Navy:

It is reported from the Adriatic that on the evening of November 1, His Majesty's Destroyers Wheatland and the Avonvale, operating among the islands west of Pag Island, met and engaged two enemy destroyers, both of which were sunk. About an hour and a half later, a third destroyer was engaged and sunk. Some survivors were rescued and made prisoners. Our forces suffered no casualties, although the Avonvale sustained superficial damage. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 3 — Today's communique:

Progress on the Island of Walcheren continues. Allied forces moving from Westcappelle have now bypassed Domburg, while others have reached a point within two miles of Flushing. Fighting continues within Flushing itself, and at the western end of Walcheren causeway.

All resistance east of the Leopold Canal has ceased, although mopping up continues in Zeebrugge itself.

Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked enemy troops and positions in the region of Knocke during yesterday morning.

Coastal guns and strongpoints on Walcheren Island were also attacked, and close support was given to our ground forces north of Breda.

In southern Holland, bridges, locomotives, and barges were attacked and rail lines cut.

In the Meijel area, Allied troops advanced to within 2,000 yards of the town.

Our troops attacking in the Hürtgen sector, after heavy artillery preparation, made gains of 2,500 yards.

The town of Vossenack, 1½ miles south of Hürtgen, was taken, and our drive is continuing against stiffening resistance.

A factory south of Bonn and an airfield east of Trier were targets for fighter-bombers, which also attacked locomotives and freight cars, and cut rail lines in the Cologne and Düsseldorf areas.

Heavy bombers escorted by fighters attacked a synthetic oil plant at Homberg, in the Ruhr. Three enemy aircraft were shot down. Four heavy bombers and three fighters are missing.

Five rail bridges behind the enemy lines were targets of medium and light bombers. Bridges attacked were in the Moselle Valley at Knoz Karthaus, Ehrang, and Bullay; over the Nette River at Mayen; and over the Erft River at Euskirchen. Medium bombers were escorted by fighters.

Last night, more than 1,000 aircraft were over western Germany, with Düsseldorf as the main objective.

Light bombers attacked Osnabrück.

Baccarat in the Vosges Mountains has been freed, and the villages of Gelacourt and Deneuvre, near Baccarat, are in our hands.

Gains were also made farther south, where the village of La Bourgonce was taken against heavy resistance.

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 3 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

During three days of bitter fighting between Liguria and Piedmont, Garibaldi units inflicted serious losses on the Nazi-Fascists. Patriots succeeded in maintaining control over the following localities: Marsiglia, in Cuneo Province; Ottone, in Piacenza Province; and Gorretto, Rovegno, Montebruno, and Rezzoaglio, in Genoa Province.

Elements of the Fascist Monte Rosa Division were repulsed in disorder towards the sea. Other units of the same division, which clashed with Patriots of the Garibaldi Division on Highway 45, were thrust back in complete disorder after three days of bitter fighting.

Patriots of a Lombard division, which came down to operate east of Novi Ligure, obtained notable successes during the past week.

An attack launched by 200 Fascists against Patriot positions at Carrega, in Alessandria Province, was repulsed October 14. Another attack by German troops, near Mongiardino, in Alessandria Province, failed. As soon as they became aware of the enemy manoeuvre, Patriots subjected the Germans to violent fire, and forced them to flee, leaving many dead and wounded on the field.

Patriots of the Veneto sector continue to carry out effective acts of sabotage against the enemy's most important communications lines. On October 16, between Meduna and Orceniga, in the Friuli sector, Patriots derailed a train full of troops and food supplies. On the same day, at Tricesimo, many stretches of high tension lines were destroyed; between Bagni di Lusnizza and Pontebba, the railway line was rendered unserviceable for a few hours; the railway service between Roana and Tarvisio was interrupted for one day. The derailment caused on the night of October 24 in Udine Tarvisio held up traffic for 48 hours.

On the night of October 20, a temporary bridge at Sugana was damaged.

On the night of October 23, a railway bridge on the highway to Piombino Dese was again destroyed.

On October 30, damage was caused to highway bridges over the Bacchiglione south of Padua, and a bridge near Piove di Sacco.

The Republican Fascist barracks at Limena, in Padua Province, was attacked and the arms and munitions deposited there carried off by Patriots. Two German vehicles were destroyed at Padua October 17.

The Republican Fascist barracks at Piombino Dese was attacked. During the clash a Fascist was killed and two wounded. Patriots took possession of arms and munitions. (UNN)

It destroyed more than 50 enemy tanks in grim fighting at close quarters during the last few weeks of devoted resistance.

On the Walcheren Island, in the town of Flushing and at the western tip of the island, our troops are engaged in grim defensive fighting against continuous attacks and landings. Naval batteries destroyed 17 large landing craft, and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy.

Patrol forces of the Navy sank two British motor assault boats and seriously damaged six others off the Dutch coast.

Northeast of Roosendaal, our troops are engaged by enemy formations which succeeded in penetrating into our main lines.

In the Hürtgen Forest, southeast of Aix la Chapelle, the Americans, supported by tanks, attacked our positions. The attack collapsed after some initial successes.

Yesterday morning, north of Baccarat, attacks of French battalions were repulsed. In the forest area between the Meurthe and Mortagne, the determined resistance and counter-attacks of our grenadiers halted U.S. attacks which were launched with strong forces throughout the whole day.

Italy:

In central Italy, the day was dominated by successful German operations carried out in persistent rain.

West of Imola, parachutists ousted the enemy from important high ground positions.

South of Forli, grenadiers smashed British attacks at the approaches to our new positions.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, in the Strumica Valley and northeast of Skoplje and Pristina, our troops prevented the Bulgarians, who continually attacked, from advancing, in successful defensive fighting.

On the upper reaches of the western Morawa, our formations also repulsed the Bolsheviks.

The Drina Valley and the area between the Save and the Danube, south of Vukovar, also were cleared of the bands.

Northwest of Kecskemet, German and Hungarian formations are engaged in fierce fighting against Bolshevik infantry and tank forces, which are advancing toward Budapest. Our bombers, despite adverse weather, effectively joined in the fighting.

In the Szolnok sector, the enemy suffered considerable losses during fierce and unsuccessful attacks.

Between the Forest Carpathians and the Kurische Haff, the enemy launched only isolated attacks in the eastern Beskides and at Goldap.

Yesterday, the fierceness of the enemy attacks in Kurland abated, owing to the effective German defense. Attacking Bolshevik formations were repulsed or forced to dig in.

Air:

Anglo-American terror bombers, protected by a strong fighter screen, made daylight attacks on territory of central Germany and on the towns of Bielefeld, Duisburg, and Trier. Eighty-two enemy planes were brought down in fierce dogfights or by the action of anti-aircraft batteries.

Last night, night fighters and anti-aircraft batteries scored another success by bringing down 52 four-engined bombers when British planes attacked Düsseldorf. The enemy lost 134 planes, 108 of which were four-engined bombers, over the Reich territory during the last 24 hours.

GERMAN

Goebbels Article: The German Minister of Propaganda has written his weekly article for the Nazi periodical Das Reich. A transcript of it was broadcast over the German Radio, and excerpts thereof were issued by Transocean. In essence, his important article this week was an attempt to combat any spirit of resignation among Germans by arguing that the choice between victory and defeat rests entirely, as he put it, «in their own hands.» It is up to them to bestir themselves accordingly.

Dr. Goebbels then proceeded to analyze more specifically the qualities which the German people need, in order to ensure their «victory.» He listed the following three essentials: Germany must outdo the Allies in «deep faith in her cause,» in «loyalty to her principles,» and in the «unshakeableness of her will to national resistance at any cost.» The theme of «at any cost» involves the long-established trend of inspiring the Germans to ever greater sacrifices. The above stress on the supposed German spiritual superiority was accompanied by a corresponding minimizing of the importance of their admitted material inferiorities.

German Victory Would Be a «Miracle»: A tacit admission of the decisive importance of German material inferiorities may lie behind the curious admission by Dr. Goebbels that a German victory would be a «miracle» (i. e., an event in complete conflict with material reality.) He argued that, by means of the three spiritual superiorities defined above, «National Socialists once completed the miracle of seizing power. There is no reason to believe why it should not be possible with these virtues to bring about the German miracle of victory in this war.» In other words, the German people are being told in effect that, although only a miracle can win the war, a miracle has happened once already in their history, and what happens once may happen twice.

Western Front: Sertorius today hailed the «slowing down of Allied attacks against the German bridgehead positions south of the lower Meuse.» This alleged slowing strong local counter-thrusts against British and Canadian spearheads,» which were then defined in terms of specific roads and bridges.

Eastern Front: The Russian march toward Budapest formed the lead item today of the front report by the Transocean correspondent von Olberg, and was viewed, most seriously, as reaching its «dramatic climax.» Meanwhile, a «lull» was claimed in the northern sector of the eastern front. At the same time, «German detaching movements toward the eastern and southern frontier of Slovakia are continuing without friction.» As for the future, «a new, large-scale offensive against East Prussia via Memel» was anticipated.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Allies Exploit Lull for Coming Offensives: Fighting on the Italian front still remains relatively static. The Fascist radio, however, conjectured that in all sectors the Allies are preparing offensives and that all recent local action is but a prelude to imminent full-scale activity. Tonight's military analyst said that continued losses have altered Allied strategy from that of a united, concerted drive into a pattern of haphazard pushes conceived by individual, autonomous commands.

Fascist View of Sicilian Problem: The Fascist radio took exception to a review of the Sicilian situation as presented by the Bonomi Government Under-Secretary of State, Costa. Contrary to Secretary Costa's viewpoint, the real problems were said to be unemployment, shortage of food supplies, and lack of transport. Hunger was shown as the direct cause of the «frightful increase in criminality.»

Continued Emphasis on Deadline for Defaulters: Mussolini's amnesty law, which «forgives» deserters reporting before November 10, was given continued prominence. The theme was sustained with obvious difficulty, and most commentaries were heavy laden with desperateness and threats. Figures were quoted on the number of defaulters already returned, divided according to provinces; as a daily bulletin of rectitude, it is reminiscent of the parade of penitents from the «maquis» prior to the fall of Rome. Most of tonight's bait took the form of an object lesson for misled Patriots: Warsaw and France were cited as examples of how the Allies incite, exploit, and then abandon anti-Fascists.

Dalmatian Troops Defend Italian Sovereignty: Dalmatian units, remnants of defunct or scattered Italian divisions, have been incorporated with the Italian Fascist armies and are now known as the «Dalmatian Black Brigades.» It was stated that they are effectively carrying on their original function of defending Italian interests in Dalmatia from Marshal Tito's encroachments.

«Black Brigade» Operations Against Partisans: «Black Brigade» and regular Fascist army troops were reported to have «completed» mopping-up operations against «terrorist bands» in Crema.

Obstructionists Hinder Epuration: Attention was given to the alleged statement by Assistant Commissioner for Epuration Scoccimarro to the effect that epuration proceedings are being hampered and retarded through bureaucracy.

Anti-Allied Attacks: Today's charges against Allied management and mismanagement in invaded Italy included the following:

An Allied announcement that the bauxite mines in the Gargano highlands will probably be reopened by American authorities was interpreted as a sinister enemy seizure of one of the monuments of Fascist social welfare.

It was alleged that The United States alone had imported 1,200,000 dollars' worth of goods from Italy. This diversion of produce from local consumption, at a time of shortages in Italy, was condemned.

Supposed Allied statistics on the sharp decrease in school facilities in Naples were the inspiration for a sharp attack on the emptiness of Allied reconstruction promises.

Anglo-American terror bombers, protected by a strong fighter screen, made daylight attacks on territory of central Germany and on the towns of Bielefeld, Duisburg, and Trier. Eighty-two enemy planes were brought down in fierce dogfights or by the action of anti-aircraft batteries.

Last night, night fighters and anti-aircraft batteries scored another success by bringing down 52 four-engined bombers when British planes attacked Düsseldorf. The enemy lost 134 planes, 108 of which were four-engined bombers, over the Reich territory during the last 24 hours.

GERMAN

Goebbels Article: The German Minister of Propaganda has written his weekly article for the Nazi periodical Das Reich. A transcript of it was broadcast over the German Radio, and excerpts thereof were issued by Transocean. In essence, his important article this week was an attempt to combat any spirit of resignation among Germans by arguing that the choice between victory and defeat rests entirely, as he put it, «in their own hands.» It is up to them to bestir themselves accordingly.

Dr. Goebbels then proceeded to analyze more specifically the qualities which the German people need, in order to ensure their «victory.» He listed the following three essentials: Germany must outdo the Allies in «deep faith in her cause,» in «loyalty to her principles,» and in the «unshakeableness of her will to national resistance at any cost.» The theme of «at any cost» involves the long-established trend of inspiring the Germans to ever greater sacrifices. The above stress on the supposed German spiritual superiority was accompanied by a corresponding minimizing of the importance of their admitted material inferiorities.

German Victory Would Be a «Miracle»: A tacit admission of the decisive importance of German material inferiorities may lie behind the curious admission by Dr. Goebbels that a German victory would be a «miracle» (i. e., an event in complete conflict with material reality.) He argued that, by means of the three spiritual superiorities defined above, «National Socialists once completed the miracle of seizing power. There is no reason to believe why it should not be possible with these virtues to bring about the German miracle of victory in this war.» In other words, the German people are being told in effect that, although only a miracle can win the war, a miracle has happened once already in their history, and what happens once may happen twice.

Western Front: Sertorius today hailed the «slowing down of Allied attacks against the German bridgehead positions south of the lower Meuse.» This alleged slowing down led Sertorius to the conclusion that General Montgomery is «abandoning his original intention to force a crossing of the river; instead, he will carry through some regroupings.» From this strategic situation, Sertorius drew a sort of defensive and negative victory for the Germans; but in addition he claimed certain successful, though minor, offensive strokes: «This lull, which had been forced upon the enemy, was exploited at once by German troops in

Fascist View of Sicilian Problem: The Fascist radio took exception to a review of the Sicilian situation as presented by the Bonomi Government Under-Secretary of State, Costa. Contrary to Secretary Costa's viewpoint, the real problems were said to be unemployment, shortage of food supplies, and lack of transport. Hunger was shown as the direct cause of the «frightful increase in criminality.»

Continued Emphasis on Deadline for Defaulters: Mussolini's amnesty law, which «forgives» deserters reporting before November 10, was given continued prominence. The theme was sustained with obvious difficulty, and most commentaries were heavy laden with desperateness and threats. Figures were quoted on the number of defaulters already returned, divided according to provinces; as a daily bulletin of rectitude, it is reminiscent of the parade of penitents from the «maquis» prior to the fall of Rome. Most of tonight's bait took the form of an object lesson for misled Patriots: Warsaw and France were cited as examples of how the Allies incite, exploit, and then abandon anti-Fascists.

German Backing of Szalasi Coup Admitted: Radio Budapest tonight announced that five high-ranking German officers, including two generals, have received the highest Hungarian military decoration «for their most effective and patriotic help in the events of October 15 and 16.»

8TH ARMY CROSSES RONCO IN STRENGTH

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 2 — Strong infantry and tank forces of the 8th Army have crossed the River Ronco just south of the main Po Valley Highway, and with other forces pushing up from the south, are closing in on Forli, capital of Romagna Province, it was announced here today.

The Allied forces have already pushed westward to seize the greater part of Forli's airfield, on the southeastern outskirts of the town, although German forces are resisting fiercely at the edge of the field. The breach in the enemy's Ronco River line was made in one of its most heavily defended sectors, where the river sweeps in a wide, shallow bend around high bluffs lining the western banks.

Meanwhile, other forces of the 8th Army, which crossed the Ronco farther south in the Meldola area, advanced 4,000 yards inland from the stream, with patrols pushing to within four miles of Forli.

Clashes occurred between Allied forward elements and German rear-guards at several points east and south of the curving River Ronco between the Rimini-Bologna Highway and its mouth, and considerable casualties were inflicted on enemy forces.

West of the upper stretches of the Ronco, and some seven miles south of Forli, Polish troops reported that enemy forces had withdrawn behind the line of the Rabbi River, leaving only light forces in the hill country between this stream and the Ronco's headwaters. (PRO)

TWO ALLIED BEACHHEADS ON WALCHEREN LINK

SHAEF, November 2 — British Commando forces, which landed at Flushing and Westcappelle on the south and west coasts of Walcheren Island, have linked and are slowly and relentlessly attacking German coastal batteries menacing Allied shipping through the Schelde Estuary into the Belgian port of Antwerp.

Allied forces, which landed at Westcappelle, have fanned out to the northeast and have captured enemy coastal batteries beyond the by-passed town of Domburg. The town of Zoutelande was also seized in this drive.

Allied troops which have reinforced the original British assault group at Flushing are engaged in street fighting in the northern half of the town and are under heavy German machine-gun fire.

After fighting their way across the Beveland causeway to establish a small bridgehead on Walcheren, Canadian units have thrust inland on the flooded island in a pincer movement to join the British Commandos fighting eastward.

Reconnaissance patrols crossed to the islands of North Beveland and Tholen and reported that they were not occupied by the Germans.

In preparation for the opening of the undamaged port of Antwerp to enable the Allies to land supplies for the armies on the western front, minesweeping operations have begun on the Schelde Estuary.

In the southern Schelde pocket, Canadian troops overran Knocke and entered Heyst, last remaining German strongpoint, after capturing Maj. Gen. Eberding, commanding the German 64th Division, and 2,500 prisoners. Press dispatches report that about 1,000 Germans are still holding

Casetta Liberated

Although bad weather still hampered operations on the mountain roads of the 5th Army Front, American units pushed north from Monte Belmonte to clear enemy forces from the village of Casetta, some eight miles south of Bologna's outskirts.

The advance, first recorded in this strategic sector since the capture of Monte Belmonte nine days ago, was made against only moderate resistance, although it increased the American penetration of German mountain escarpment defenses guarding the Savena River Valley at their very center. To take Monte Belmonte, just to the south, American forces battled for eight bitter days.

The heavy enemy counter-attacks reported along the 5th Army Front yesterday continued in at least two sectors, according to today's reports. German forces again launched a strong counter-attack against American troops in the Castellaccio sector, south of Vergato on the Pistoia-Bologna Road, and savage enemy lunges against Brazilian troops in the Serchio River Valley forced a withdrawal for the second time in two days.

Along the coastal sector of the 8th Army, Canadian troops yesterday reached the main highway crossing over the Fossa Ghiaia some five road miles south of Ravenna. Official reports made no mention of enemy resistance to this advance.

KESSELRING REPORTED WOUNDED NEAR BOLOGNA

NEW YORK, November 2 — Marshal Albert von Kesselring, German commander-in-chief in Italy, was reported to have been wounded near Bologna today in an Allied strafing attack, according to an Associated Press dispatch received here from the Italian-Swiss border.

The report described the attack by Allied aircraft as similar to the one carried out in France in which Marshal Erwin Rommel was machine-gunned while riding in an automobile.

It was the second reported attack on Marshal Kesselring's life since the attack on Adolf Hitler's life July 20. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE PORT OF ZARA

LONDON, November 2 — The Yugoslav Army of National Liberation has captured the Italian port city of Zara, north of Split on the Dalmatian coast, Marshal Tito's communique announced late tonight.

out at Heyst. The total number of prisoners taken in this pocket since the start of the campaign on October 10 is 11,760.

On the Dutch mainland below the Meuse River, German forces have blown up one of their last main escape bridges at Geertruidenberg, in apparent fear of a speedy Allied drive northward to the Waal. The only escape bridge left to expendable German 15th Army forces is at Moerdijk.

South of the Moerdijk road-bridge, German troops have driven back the Polish spearhead across the Mark River after intense mortar and shell fire. Allied troops, however, have the remaining road and rail bridges at Moerdijk under heavy artillery fire.

On the eastern flank of the Netherlands corridor, British and American troops continued their advance down two roads leading to Venlo on the German frontier. Allied troops scored an important victory in knocking out 49 German tanks as they represented a substantial proportion of the enemy tanks in this sector.

Southeast of Aachen, American 1st Army troops burst into action in the Hürtgen Forest area following a heavy artillery barrage. In a two-pronged attack from the west and southwest, the town of Vossenack, 10 miles southwest of Düren, was captured, and 150 German prisoners were taken. Infantry overran numerous pillboxes and earthen defenses and gained two miles. Heavy fog prevented air support in the morning, but later, fighter-bombers attacked targets in advance of infantry.

Another infantry force captured Hürtgen and Germeter, and was reported to be on the eastern outskirts of the towns.

Far to the south, on the American 7th Army front, forward elements pushed their way through hilly and wooded country to gain eight miles in the last 10 days. They are now less than three miles from Raon l'Etape, key junction before Strasbourg, and three miles from St. Dié, junction of the roads from Strasbourg and Colmar.

On the American 3rd Army front, troops liberated the villages of Buriville, Hablainville, and Azerailles, southeast of Lunéville. (OWI-Reuter-AP-RBC)

RED ARMY CLOSING IN ON BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, November 2 — While Russian tanks in Hungary are smashing through German armored resistance toward the last approaches to Budapest, tonight's Soviet communique announced that north and west of Nyireghaza, Red Army troops cleared the western bank of the Tisa River and captured the town of Budszentmihaly.

Another Russian force driving northwest from the captured Hungarian city of Kecskemet has taken the important railway junction of Nagykoros, on the road to Cegled.

A late BBC broadcast tonight said that Russian troops are within 20 miles of the Hungarian capital. They are in the center of a wide marshy fringe on the right bank of the Danube. The main Russian force, however, is operating on firmer ground to the east, on the Belgrade-Budapest Highway.

The Soviet communique said tonight that the former chief of the Hungarian General Staff, Colonel General Janosh Veresh, had surrendered to Red Army troops. More than 2,000 German and Hungarian soldiers were taken prisoner yesterday, bringing the total number of prisoners taken between the Danube and the Tisa Rivers to 7,518.

The southern arm of the Soviet pincer is making a determined bid to reach Budapest before the enemy garrison can be reinforced by Germans and Hungarians retreating from northeastern Hungary. One Russian force driving northwest from Kecskemet has advanced 10 miles, and has reached Lajosmisse, communications center controlling roads leading through marshy lands between the two rivers.

American troops are driving enemy remnants west and south toward Ormoc, escape port for the Japanese. Other American forces have driven entirely across Leyte to Baybay, 30 miles south of Ormoc, on the west coast, the communique reported.

General MacArthur announced that Japanese losses on Leyte are estimated to have exceeded 30,000 men.

A Navy announcement tonight from Pearl Harbor said that a single Japanese torpedo boat was destroyed last Thursday off Peleliu Island, in the Palau Group, when it attempted to attack American vessels unloading cargo.

The enemy ship attacked with torpedoes and machine guns, but no damage was caused by the torpedo launched at the beach, the Navy said. However, some American troops were injured by the machine-gun fire in the night attack, the announcement said.

Widespread Allied aerial attacks on Japanese bases ranging from Paramushiru, in the northernmost tip of the Japanese Archipelago, to the mid-Pacific Marshalls were announced in last night's communiques from Admiral Chester Nimitz' and General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. Ennis Whitehead, who assumed personal command of the 5th Air Force units on Leyte yesterday, promised that every Japanese harassing attack during the last week will «be repaid with compound interest immediately.» American heavy bombardment strength will be concentrated in the Philippines «as soon as possible,» he asserted, forecasting early and sustained blows against every enemy base in the Philippines, but conceding that the «Japanese air might at the present is a very formidable opponent.»

Japanese planes were caught on the ground by Allied heavy units bombing Negros, a Philippine island 120 miles due west of Leyte, while medium bombers destroyed fuel barges in a harbor off the Zamboanga Peninsula of Mindanao Island. One Allied plane was lost. On the northeast coast of Borneo, in the port area of Sandaka, 12 more Japanese planes were destroyed.

A Japanese base at Paramushiru (Northern Kuriles), was one of the targets for southwest Pacific bombers which also attacked airfields in the southern Philippines, destroyed a 10,000-ton tanker off Borneo and again struck at Macassar in the Celebes.

More Japanese shipping was sunk or damaged in widespread attacks, and altogether 22 enemy planes were destroyed for the loss of three American aircraft.

U.S. Warships Damaged

Admiral Nimitz' communique last night said that several United States warships were damaged in last week's sea-air battle off the Philippines, in which 62 Japanese ships were sunk or damaged.

The damaged ships were not identified, nor was the extent of the damage disclosed.

«Such information would be of value to the enemy in estimating accurately the size of our naval forces operating in Philippine waters,» added the communique. American losses previously announced by Admiral Nimitz were the light carrier Princeton, two escort carriers, and two destroyer escorts.

Two pilots — who shot down six more Japanese planes apiece on the final hops from the Princeton — helped bring the light carrier's total to 186 enemy planes downed before she was sunk, besides eight Japanese planes shot down by gunfire, said a delayed dispatch from the Associated Press.

Meanwhile an Aneta dispatch said that the cruiser HMAS Australia was damaged during the Philippines landings by a Japanese bomber whose pilot was already dead. The bomber crashed onto the ship's forward funnel, bounced into the bridge and skidded into the sea on the other side. The bridge went up in a sheet of flame, killing the ship's captain and 10 others, and injuring 54.

A Russian broadcast to Hungary tonight warned Hungarian citizens that the Germans intend to convert Budapest into a hedge-hog position, leaving only rearguard troops in the capital while the main German forces retreated into the western parts of Hungary. The broadcast said that a German defense of the city would lead to its complete destruction, and to the starvation of its people. Hungarian citizens were urged to take up arms against the Germans and their Hungarian henchmen to save themselves and their city. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

END OF LEYTE-SAMAR CAMPAIGN IN SIGHT WIDESPREAD AERIAL ATTACKS ON JAP TARGETS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 2 — The end of the Leyte-Samar Campaign « is in sight, » a communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur said tonight, as American 24th Infantry Division and 1st Cavalry Division troops joined forces at the enemy base of Carigara, on the northwest part of Leyte Island.

Forces of the 24th Division entered Carigara after crushing final Japanese positions in Leyte Valley and sweeping rapidly over the remaining six miles into the town, headquarters said.

be concentrated in the Philippines « as soon as possible, » he asserted, forecasting early and sustained blows against every enemy base in the Philippines, but conceding that the « Japanese air might at the present is a very formidable opponent. »

BRITISH WELCOMED IN SALONIKA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 2 — British forces were welcomed in Salonika yesterday, as advance patrols harassed retreating German columns, using fire engines for transport, north of Greece's second-largest city and port, it was announced here today.

Allied forces ambushed part of the fleeing German troops, and inflicted 25 casualties in a sharp engagement, the communique of Land Forces Greece declared. (PRO)

M.A.A.F. HEAVIES DAMAGE VIENNA DIESEL PLANT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 2 — Strong forces of up to 750 heavy bombers yesterday severely damaged the large plant of the Diesel engineering works, manufacturing armored cars and Diesel tank engines, just south of Vienna, it was announced here today.

The attacks, first large-scale air assault by heavy bombers in more than a week of bad weather, were also directed against an ordnance plant, railway shops, gas and electric light works, oil refineries, rail yards, and airdromes in the Vienna area.

The Diesel engine works, the Sauerwerke AFV plant 3½ miles southeast of Austria's capital, was the most heavily hit of all the targets.

Night bombers attacked the key Latisana rail bridge along the Trieste-Venice line, main supply route for Marshal Albert Kesselring's armies in Italy, and obtained at least one direct hit on the three-span structure. (PRO)

B.A.F. TAKES HEAVY TOLL OF ENEMY TRANSPORT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 2 — Balkan Air Force planes have taken a toll of 422 motor vehicles, 106 locomotives, and 29 ships, all either destroyed or damaged, in the course of a month's attacks on fleeing German forces in the Balkans, it was announced here today. (PRO)

INDIAN SOLDIER AWARDED POSTHUMOUS V. C.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 2 — An Indian soldier of the 10th Indian Division, Naik Yeshwant Ghadge, has been awarded the Victoria Cross posthumously for the destruction, single-handed, of an enemy machine-gun post during the 8th Army's push along the upper Tibo Valley, it was announced here today.

The Mahratta soldier rushed the enemy position after all his comrades in an infantry section had been killed or wounded, and, after throwing a grenade into the emplacement, in close combat killed the German gun crew of five men. After his ammunition was expended, he used the barrel of his empty gun to battle the last two men of the enemy unit, his citation said. He was shot in the chest and back by enemy snipers, and died in the post he had captured single-handed.

The award is the 13th Victoria Cross to be presented to troops of the Indian Army. (PRO)

TENNENT APPOINTED FLAG OFFICER

LONDON, November 2 — Rear Admiral W. G. Tennent has been appointed to succeed Vice Admiral Sir H. Bernard Rawlings as Flag Officer of the Levant and Eastern Mediterranean, the Admiralty announced today.

Admiral Tennent has been granted the acting rank of Vice Admiral, the announcement added.

Acting Air Commodore James Rowland Scarlett-Streatfield, who was Air Officer Commanding Malta at the beginning of this year, has been appointed air officer commanding a group in the Fighter Command, and Acting Air Vice Marshal, the Air Ministry announced today. (Reuter)

KESSELRING ORDERS SHOOTING OF LOOTERS

HQ, AAI, November 2 — Immediate execution of all German soldiers caught looting in Italy was contained in a captured German infantry battalion order signed by Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, commander of the German Armies in Italy.

Pillaging has become so prevalent it amounts to «a dangerous disease,» the order said.

Kesselring's order follows:

«My order of 8 July, 1944, which provided for immediate execution, without trial, of all pillagers caught in the act, was the last means at my disposal to counter-act the ever-increasing disease of pillaging.

«I remind each commander that it is his duty to counteract pillaging with the utmost energy, and, if necessary, to enforce obedience with the weapon in his hand.

«This order will be read to the troops each pay day.» (PRO)

in the Ruhr this afternoon, the British Air Ministry announced.

The Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg, attacked today for the 12th time by U. S. bombers, is one of Germany's largest plants. Before the concentrated Allied attacks against enemy oil industries began, it produced 50,000 metric tons of synthetic products each month. It was last hit on October 7.

An American press service report on today's operations by the U.S.A.A.F. at Bielefeld and at Rheine said that the Liberators were able to bomb visually for the first time in four missions. Only a few openings were found in the clouds over Merseburg.

The synthetic oil plant blasted by the RAF at Homberg is one of the largest of 10 such plants in the Ruhr. All have been put out of action for periods during recent months. It was officially stated tonight that the enemy has become so short of oil that repairs began on the plants immediately after the attacks. In recent weeks, the Homberg plant has been repaired sufficiently to turn out about 25 per cent of its normal production, which is nearly 16,000 tons of oil a month.

RAF fighter planes strafing enemy transport in enemy-occupied Holland today hit a fleeing German staff car which swerved from the road and disappeared.

The effect of the air war on land victories on the three fronts was illustrated in official figures issued today covering activities of the RAF Bomber Command last month. These show that the RAF dropped 50,000 tons of bombs on Germany proper during October — by far the largest tonnage of the war dropped on the Reich. On the other hand, only 10,000 tons were used against targets in occupied territory, which is considerably less than in recent months. October's record against the Reich was achieved in a month when the weather for night-flying was the worst this year. (OWI-Reuter)

GERMANS FLY OFFICERS OUT OF YUGOSLAVIA

LONDON, November 2 — The Germans are evacuating high officers and their staffs from Yugoslavia by plane, Marshal Tito's communique said today. They are flying from airfields at Sarajevo and Sjenica in Serbia.

In the drive toward the Adriatic from Belgrade, Yugoslav and Russian forces have liberated the city of Mitrovica, 50 miles west of the capital on the Sava River.

Seven hundred prisoners were taken from the German 13th SS Division in Bosnia, where a battle continues in the semi-circle formed by the junction of the Drina and Sava Rivers.

To the south, in western Serbia, the Germans suffered further losses in their attempts to cross the Lim River at Prijepolje, making a two-day total of 1,200 killed or drowned.

On the Adriatic, 30 miles northwest of Split, Yugoslav forces surrounded the port of Sibenik. (PWB)

HORTHY RESIGNATION CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, November 2 — The Hungarian Parliament announced today confirmation of the resignation of Regent Nicholas Horthy on October 27, and at the same time delegated the state powers to Francis Szalasi, according to Radio Hungary, monitored here tonight.

In declaring the office of regent vacant, the Supreme Council announced that, in view of the great battle raging in parts of Hungary, Szalasi would assume the title of «Leader of the Nation.» He will exercise all the powers previously entailed in the regency.

Admiral Horthy originally submitted his resignation Oc-

The Mahratta soldier rushed the enemy position after all his comrades in an infantry section had been killed or wounded, and, after throwing a grenade into the emplacement, in close combat killed the German gun crew of five men. After his ammunition was expended, he used the barrel of his empty gun to battle the last two men of the enemy unit, his citation said. He was shot in the chest and back by enemy snipers, and died in the post he had captured single-handed.

The award is the 13th Victoria Cross to be presented to troops of the Indian Army. (PRO)

TENNENT APPOINTED FLAG OFFICER

LONDON, November 2 — Rear Admiral W. G. Tennent has been appointed to succeed Vice Admiral Sir H. Bernard Rawlings as Flag Officer of the Levant and Eastern Mediterranean, the Admiralty announced today.

Admiral Tennent has been granted the acting rank of Vice Admiral, the announcement added.

Acting Air Commodore James Rowland Scarlett-Streatfield, who was Air Officer Commanding Malta at the beginning of this year, has been appointed air officer commanding a group in the Fighter Command, and Acting Air Vice Marshal, the Air Ministry announced today. (Reuter)

KESSELRING ORDERS SHOOTING OF LOOTERS

HQ. AAI, November 2 — Immediate execution of all German soldiers caught looting in Italy was contained in a captured German infantry battalion order signed by Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, commander of the German Armies in Italy.

Pillaging has become so prevalent it amounts to «a dangerous disease,» the order said.

Kesselring's order follows:

«My order of 3 July, 1944, which provided for immediate execution, without trial, of all pillagers caught in the act, was the last means at my disposal to counter-act the ever-increasing disease of pillaging.

«I remind each commander that it is his duty to counteract pillaging with the utmost energy, and, if necessary, to enforce obedience with the weapon in his hand.

«This order will be read to the troops each pay day.» (PRO)

208 GERMAN PLANES DOWNED; U.S. LOSSES TOTAL 69

LONDON, November 2 — Two hundred and eight German planes were destroyed today in the largest air battle of the war between fighter forces in the European Theatre, U.S. Strategic Air Forces announced tonight. American losses were 41 bombers and 28 fighters.

Of the enemy's losses, 183 were destroyed in air combat and 25 others on the ground.

This established a new record for a single day's operations in air battles over Germany, it was said.

Operating under adverse weather conditions, the Allied air forces carried on their day-in and day-out bombing of key oil, rail, and industrial targets in western Germany today with attacks on Merseburg, Bielefeld, Rheine, and Homberg.

More than 1,100 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th U.S.A.A.F., escorted by more than 900 Mustangs and Thunderbolts, hit synthetic oil plants at Merseburg in central Germany, railway marshalling yards at Bielefeld and Rheine, and other targets in western Germany. For the first time in a month, the German Air Force came up in strength to challenge the American bombers.

Following closely behind the American operations RAF Lancasters also bombed the synthetic oil plant at Homberg

The effect of the air war on land victories on the three fronts was illustrated in official figures issued today covering activities of the RAF Bomber Command last month. These show that the RAF dropped 50,000 tons of bombs on Germany proper during October — by far the largest tonnage of the war dropped on the Reich. On the other hand, only 10,000 tons were used against targets in occupied territory, which is considerably less than in recent months. BULGARIAN MINISTER COMMITS SUICIDE

SOFIA, November 2 — Ivan Popoff, Foreign Minister in the former Filoff Cabinet and Bulgarian Minister to Bucharest, committed suicide in a Bucharest hospital after receiving a visit from a «foreign diplomat,» a Reuter dispatch, quoting Sofia news reports, said tonight.

Popoff had been summoned to return to Sofia to stand trial before a people's court set up to judge those responsible for the Bulgarian alliance with Germany, the report said. (Reuter)

RUMANIA BREAKS WITH JAPAN

BUCHAREST, November 2 — The Rumanian Government has severed relations with Japan, the Rumanian radio announced today.

This is the first time in its history that Rumania has broken diplomatic relations with Japan, it was said.

Rumania signed the Tripartite pact originated by Germany, Fascist Italy, and Japan on 23 November 1940. (OWI)

ADVANCES MADE IN BURMA AS MONSOON ENDS

KANDY, CEYLON, November 2 — The ending of the monsoon rains in Burma is permitting greater freedom of movement, and important Allied advances have been made.

Advancing from Mogaung, the British 36th Division captured Mawlu late on the afternoon of October 31, today's Southeast Asia Command communique announced. Mawlu is 47 miles south of Hopin and 16 miles north of the Naba junction, where the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway has a branch line of 15 miles to Katha.

In the Chin Hills, British forces operating east of Tiddim on the road to Fort White are in contact with extensive enemy defenses. Fighter-bombers have made heavy attacks on these positions.

The loss of Lingchwan, on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad 13 miles north of Kweilin, was announced in a Chungking communique today. On the West River front in southern Kwangsi, reinforced Japanese troops continued to advance from positions west of Pingnam. Both sides have suffered heavy losses, said the communique.

The enemy drive west of Pingnam carried the Japanese toward Mosun on the Liu River, only 45 miles south of Liuchow, which is the enemy's grand objective in the westward offensive.

Chinese forces repelled six Japanese attacks on Chinese positions 16 miles east of Mosun and 45 miles south of Liuchow, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, the communique announced. The Chinese positions are south of Kwellin.

Japanese drives also were repulsed on the coastal front of Fukien Province, and a stronghold was recovered by the Chinese, the communique added.

An Associated Press dispatch said today that Japanese forces laid siege to Fingto, 50 miles southeast of Kweilin, and advanced 12 miles to the southeast from Funchwan. The dispatch pointed out that this was an apparent attempt to link up with another Japanese force on the West River front before Liuchow.

The Chinese recovered the Hunan Province town of Ningyuan, 100 miles northeast of Kweilin, AP added.

The communique said that fighter planes of Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's Chinese-American Wing pounded Japanese positions in the Kweilin-Chuanhsien area on Monday and Tuesday, destroying 51 trucks and damaging 69 others. (OWI-MOI)

JAPS SHIFT OFFICIALS

SAN FRANCISCO, November 2 — Several important changes in the Japanese military command and puppet leadership were announced today by Radio Tokyo. Yoshizumi Obata, former chief of the Bureau of Legislation of the Navy Ministry, has been appointed Chief Secretary of the Naval Staff Board. He was succeeded by Kiyoshi Shimada, Chief of the Bureau of Jurisprudence.

Domei, the Japanese News Agency, said that the Japanese Cabinet had «relieved of their posts» the Army's «Chief Civil Administrators,» identified as Saburo Makabuchi, Moto Sawaki, and Shigeharu Nakajima. It was reported yesterday that the Navy Ministry had shifted Vice Admiral Ichiro Ono from command of the Osaka Naval

The announcement listed the Army total as 417,121 as of October 21st, or 14,047 more than last week's report, which covered the period through October 14. The latest Navy compilation placed the figure at 70,571, an increase of 836 for the same interval.

Army casualties: killed 80,666; wounded 229,212; missing 53,622; prisoners 53,621.

Navy casualties: killed 28,231; wounded 28,441; missing 9,421; prisoners 4,478.

The War Department said that 105,499, or nearly half of the Army wounded, have returned to duty. (OWI)

12,000 U. S. PLANES OVERSEAS

WASHINGTON, November 2 — Twelve thousand first-line combat planes are now being used overseas in day-to-day operations against the enemy, an Air Force spokesman revealed here yesterday. An additional 6,000 planes are also being held in ready reserve in oversees theaters.

The spokesman said that 1,000 first-line combat planes are being held as «strategic reserves» in the United States, ready to be dispatched to any oversees theater in which a sudden change in the trend of air force operations might call for a greater number of planes. (OWI)

LIBERATED ITALY

OVER TWO MILLION TONS OF FOOD TO ITALY

WASHINGTON, November 2 — By the end of this year, 2,300 thousand tons of food and other supplies will have been sent to war-stricken civilians, the Allied Commission in Italy reported tonight. This shipment of food and supplies represented an estimated expenditure of more than 200 million dollars.

Brig. Gen. William O'Dwyer, vice-president in charge of the economic section of the Allied Commission, placed at 103,205 thousand dollars the value of supplies shipped by the United Nations to Italy up to 1 July 1944 — during the first year of Allied liberation.

General O'Dwyer's report concluded that further American relief is being supplied to Italy through private sources. Through American Relief for Italy, Incorporated, arrangements have been made to transport from the United States, on government ships, three million pounds of clothing, shoes, and other essentials.

The report, which was made public by the War Department, said that in addition, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration had budgeted 50 million dollars for its separate operations in Italy, mainly for welfare work among children and mothers, and medical supplies.

The announcement said that food has comprised the bulk of the relief shipments and accounted for 86,073 thousand dollars up to July 1. Other items included clothing, 8,095 thousand dollars; medical and sanitary supplies, 2,535 thousand dollars; agricultural supplies, 2,053 thousand dollars, and coal, 2,500 thousand dollars.

Roads and Railways Repaired

The Allies repaired and reactivated 3,000 miles of railroads in liberated Italy, as well as 4,000 miles of main highways, General O'Dwyer's report said. It added that 230 highway bridges had been completely reconstructed or were in the process of being rebuilt. About 500 other bridges have been repaired or replaced.

While power, fuel, and transport facilities have been restored to some extent, the report continued, a large scale revival of industry has not yet been possible. However, gov-

Domei also reported today that, «in view of the strategic importance» of Kiangsu Province, the Chinese puppet government at Nanking, «by special appointment,» named Jen Yuan Tai, former Navy Minister in the puppet cabinet, as Governor of Kiangsu.

Kiangsu is one of the most important coastal provinces of China. In it are located Shanghai, Nanking, and the Yangtze Delta. There has been increased guerrilla activity in this area.

Domei said that Jen would concurrently hold the «newly established» post of «pacification commissioner,» which in Japanese terminology refers to military operations against guerrilla forces. The Chinese Communist 4th Army recently was reported operating in this area, and the Japanese have been reinforcing their garrisons particularly in the islands in Hangchow Bay, which guard Shanghai.

While power, fuel, and transport facilities have been restored to some extent, the report continued, a large scale revival of industry has not yet been possible. However, government-controlled machinery is being reorganized to prepare for the 1945 agriculture production season.

Discussing the economic situation in Italy, the O'Dwyer report said the currency in circulation jumped from 24,000 million lire in 1939 to 235,000 million lire on July 1 of this year.

The report said:

«The Germans have used these tremendous sums of currency to buy up and transport to Germany enormous quantities of goods and supplies, stripping the country and causing an inflation.

«In contrast, the Allied Armies have lived almost entirely on food imported by them into the country and, of course, have imported food and other supplies for the population.»

One phase of the relief program, the Allied Commission report said, was the reopening last month of schools for between four million and five million children in liberated Italy. Schools are being held in army camps, churches, teachers' apartments, and athletic buildings, in cases where regular buildings were destroyed. Allied officials have arranged for each child to receive a bowl of soup and a plate of vegetables daily.

ROME PROVINCE C.N.L. RECONSTITUTED

ROME, November 2 — The Rome Province Committee of National Liberation, which was dissolved when Rome was liberated by the Allies, has been reconstituted on the former basis of an equal number of delegates for each of the six parties represented, it was announced today.

The committee's main task, the announcement said, will be to promote coöperation between the various parties in matters of municipal administration. (UNN)

GENERAL TO BE TRIED FOR DERELICTION

ROME, November 2 — The preliminary investigation in the trial of General Livio Negro, second-in-command of the Emilia Division at Cattaro at the time of the armistice, is being held by the Rome Military Court, it was announced today.

General Negro, who was arrested on orders of Minister of War Alessandro Casati, is accused of dereliction of duty. If convicted, he faces a possible death penalty which, under extenuating circumstances, might be commuted to a sentence of from two to 15 years' imprisonment.

The prosecution is being conducted by General Montalto. General Negro is defended by Attorney Aristide Manassero. (UNN)

EPURATION PROCEEDING TOO SLOWLY

ROME, November 2 — Although the situation demands more rapid and energetic action in Italy, «epuration is proceeding too slowly.» Mauro Scoccimarro, Deputy High Commissioner for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes, said today in a letter to the newspaper, Il Risorgimento Liberale. He attributed this delay to his lack of authority.

Scoccimarro said the elimination of Fascist elements from Italian civil service was retarded because of the nature of the epuration law passed by the former Badoglio Government and modified following the liberation of Rome. Certain inherent faults could not be changed, he said, because of the opposition by those who had proposed it.

He added that the weak points of the law were revealed particularly by the manner in which the Commissions were constituted. (UNN)

ALLIES WINNING WAR AGAINST ANIMAL DISEASES

ROME, November 2 — The Allies are winning another war in liberated Italy — the war against animal diseases.

After threatening to wipe out the entire livestock population in liberated Italy, the diseases were routed with medical weapons from The United States and by a corps of Italian veterinarians mobilized by an Allied officer, Major R. W. Rushmore.

Today, through Allied Commission and Allied Military Government coöperation, nine laboratories in Palermo (Sicily), Naples, Foggia, Rome, Teramo, Perugia, Sassari (Sardinia), and Siena are turning out millions of units of all but one of the sera and vaccines needed to cure or prevent animal diseases in liberated Italy. One serum, anti-hog cholera, has arrived in Italy from The United States in huge quantities, the most recent shipment totaling 438,000 cc.

From the veterinary biologicals manufactured in these plants, all of which were reactivated with Allied assistance, more than 4,700,000 head of cattle have been immunized against anthrax, a dread animal disease easily transmitted to humans. To complete this task the small army of animal-disease fighters had many obstacles to overcome including manufacture of human vaccine. The veterinary laboratory in Palermo has produced 3,000,000 doses of small-pox vaccine, and a veterinary laboratory in Rome contributed another 500,000 doses to the pool for civilian use.

The AC's Public Health Sub-Commission paid high tribute to Italian veterinary doctors, who placed themselves at the disposal of the Italian Government to carry on the fight against animal diseases. Many were relocated into areas which had been left without veterinary services because of the war. Now, although their numbers are limited, Italian veterinarians are working in every section of liberated Italy. They do the actual, on-the-scene work of ferreting out and stamping out the diseases, and have vaccinated the hundreds of thousands of animals under the Allied program.

Another of the most important successes achieved by these Italian veterinarians has been the immunizing of 80,000 swine against erysipelas, another animal disease easily transmitted to humans.

Considerable tactical and strategic staff work was done by the Allied Commission before the plan of attack against animal disease was successful.

In the Rome area, Allied authorities faced a problem of turning out vaccine for foot-and-mouth disease after the Germans had completely stripped the area of the cattle necessary to manufacture the vaccine. More than 650 cattle were shipped speedily into the Rome area from distant provinces and, within a short time, the vaccine was ready for use.

At the same time, the people of Rome received an unexpected dividend in fresh meat from the 650 cattle.

The result of this tactical maneuver now insures the Rome area a plentiful supply of milk for babies and the sick.

Another achievement resulted through the coöperation of Italian newspapers, particularly in Rome, which printed warnings against stray dogs. Soon after publication of such warnings, the public muzzled and leashed their dogs, with the result that the incidence of rabies was sharply reduced. More than 300 stray dogs have been seized and destroyed in Rome, and another 200 were taken in Naples. However, Allied Commission experts reported that the threat of rabies is still present. Recently, an American military laboratory near Rome made a positive diagnosis in one group of five dogs. (UNN)

ITALY'S HEMP INDUSTRY REVIVES

ROME, November 2 — Italy's hemp industry has begun, under the direction of the Allied Commission, not only to get on its feet again, but also to enter the exporting stage.

Last December, production was nil. For several previous months it had been at a standstill. In the resulting scarcity, speculators were holding available stocks to push up the price.

For example, a hemp product such as ordinary string, valued by the AC at 80 lire a kilogram, brings 1,000 lire on the black market.

Reactivation of factories had succeeded sufficiently to produce in July 400 tons of rope, 200,000 sacks, 200,000 square meters of cloth, 10 tons of fishing cord, five tons of string, two tons of various threads, and additional quantities of twines.

This rehabilitation saved tremendous shipping space. Sacks for the grain harvest, cord for fish nets, twine for sewing up the filled grain sacks, these were products made in time to aid in the food supply.

About 8,000 persons have been given employment in the 22 rehabilitated hemp factories through liberated Italy. Besides, there are about 100 small concerns making rope by hand.

About 20,000 growers in liberated Italy include hemp among their crops.

After threatening to wipe out the entire livestock population in liberated Italy, the diseases were routed with medical weapons from The United States and by a corps of Italian veterinarians mobilized by an Allied officer, Major R. W. Bushmore.

Today, through Allied Commission and Allied Military Government cooperation, nine laboratories in Palermo (Sicily), Naples, Foggia, Rome, Teramo, Perugia, Sassari (Sardinia), and Siena, are turning out millions of units of all but one of the sera and vaccines needed to cure or prevent animal diseases in liberated Italy. One serum, anti-hog cholera, has arrived in Italy from The United States in huge quantities, the most recent shipment totaling 438,000 cc.

From the veterinary biologicals manufactured in these plants, all of which were reactivated with Allied assistance, more than 1,700,000 head of cattle have been immunized against anthrax, a dread animal disease easily transmitted to humans. To complete this task the small army of animal-disease fighters had many obstacles to overcome including deep-rooted local superstitions and lack of transport to take medicines and veterinarians to the farms.

One of the important victories of the animal-disease war was the saving of 130,000 hogs, 30,000 of which were actually infected with swine cholera, and the immunizing of the other 100,000. This was achieved by flying 140,000 doses of the anti-hog cholera vaccine from The United States in two special, high-priority U. S. Army Air Force transport planes. No other cargo was carried aboard the planes, which arrived with the vaccines in time to save the hogs, one of Italy's most important sources of food and fats.

An example of the destruction wrought by the disease was in one small commune in central liberated Italy, where 1,120 hogs perished from the disease before the vaccine arrived from The United States.

To help fight the war against animal disease, the Allied Commission has obtained materials from The United States and from the Allied Armies in the form of transport, incubators, vials, electricity, refrigerants, anti-parasite drugs, sulfa drugs, bandages, cotton, veterinary instruments, and a new drug called phenothiazine, which has proved successful in veterinary practice in America.

The reactivated laboratories in liberated Italy responded with such excellent cooperation and efficiency that some are able now to devote part of their production to the Germans had completely stripped the area of the cattle necessary to manufacture the vaccine. More than 650 cattle were shipped speedily into the Rome area from distant provinces and, within a short time, the vaccine was ready for use.

ROOSEVELT SEES NO WINTER LULL IN EUROPE PACIFIC CAMPAIGN AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON, November 2 — President Roosevelt said tonight that there will be no decrease of intensity by Allied forces on the fighting fronts in Europe this winter until the final objective — Berlin — is reached.

In his next-to-last Presidential campaign address to the nation from the White House, President Roosevelt asserted that "even while we are fighting a major war in Europe, our advance towards Japan is many months ahead of our own optimistic schedule."

"In Italy, against the handicap of rugged mountain obstacles and bitter German resistance, the Allied armies are steadily moving forward, wearing down the German fighting strength in a slow, hard struggle," the President said.

« In winning this war, there is just one sure way to guarantee the minimum of casualties — by seeing to it that in every action we have overwhelming material superiority. Within 10 weeks after the first landings in France last June, the Allies landed on the Normandy beaches nearly two million men, more than two million tons of supplies, and nearly half a million vehicles...

« It is heartening for me to have known and talked with statesmen of smaller nations, as well as of our larger allies. All of them have this in common — they yearn for peace and stability, and they look to America with hope and faith. The world is rising from the agony of the past, and is turning with hope to the future.

« It would be a sorry and cynical thing to betray this hope for the sake of mere political advantage, and a tragic thing to shatter it because of failure of vision, » the President declared. (Reuter)

CHURCHILL TO VISIT DE GAULLE

LONDON, November 2 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill has accepted an invitation to visit General Charles De Gaulle in Paris, it was officially announced tonight. The date will be arranged later.

Unofficial reports broadcast by Radio Paris said that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will accompany Mr. Churchill. (Reuter)

AIR COMMERCE CAN SERVE HUMANITY

CHICAGO, November 2 — President Roosevelt, in a message sent to the opening meeting of the International Civil Aviation Conference at Chicago yesterday, expressed the hope that the delegates would « not dally with the thought of creating great blocs of closed air, thereby tracing in the sky the conditions of possible future wars. »

Instead, he pointed to air commerce as « the first available means by which we can start to heal the wounds of war, and put the world once more on a peace-time basis. » Mr. Roosevelt added that air commerce has now reached maturity and is a pressing necessity. (OWI - Reuter)

CANADIAN DEFENSE MINISTER RESIGNS

OTTAWA, November 2 — Col. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Defense Minister, resigned last night, Reuter said this morning.

Sources close to the Government said Ralston quit the cabinet on « the question of reinforcements for overseas » duty. He had demanded that the Home Army of 75,000 men be used as reinforcements abroad. Ralston recently returned from a visit to Canadian troops in Italy.

General A. L. G. McNaughton, former commander of Canadian troops overseas, will succeed Ralston as Defense Minister. (Reuter)

YUGOSLAVS AGREE TO FORM UNITED GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, November 2 — Premier Ivan Subasic of the Yugoslav Government-in-London and the National Committee of Liberation of Marshal Tito have agreed to form a « United National Government [within] the shortest time, » the Free Yugoslav Radio said last night.

The concord was reached in discussions held yesterday between Subasic and the National Committee sitting under the presidency of Marshal Tito. The broadcast added that the talks were conducted « in a very cordial and friendly atmosphere. »

No details were given on the composition of the proposed government. (OWI)

Secretary, General Lallemand, places the Pierlot Government on a firmer footing for the opening of Parliament next week, Reuter commented. (Reuter)

CARGO INSURANCE LOWERED

LONDON, November 2 — War risk insurance rates on cargo shipped to India, the Persian Gulf, east African and eastern Mediterranean ports from the Western Hemisphere have been decreased by about one-half of one per cent, the Institute of Underwriters announced here today. (Ruter)

SWEDEN ANGRY OVER GERMAN TERROR IN NORWAY

WASHINGTON, November 2 — The Swedish people and government officials are indignant concerning reports of a new « reign of terror » being carried out by Germans and quislings in an effort to stamp out Patriot activity, and lessen any aid they might be able to render the Russians now sweeping into Norway, according to newspaper reports reaching here today.

« The torture of Norwegians by the Nazis has shocked the Swedish Riksdag, » Oesten Unden, Social Democrat member of the First Chamber, was quoted in today's Stockholm newspaper, Dagens Nyheter.

« A policy of violence in neighboring countries in the last desperate stages of the war concerns Sweden very much, and the Swedish Government is doing all it can to help its sister countries.

« The Swedish Government has public opinion behind it if it decides seriously to advise the Germans to remember that the Swedes have hitherto not used means to help their brethren in distress. »

Commenting on the recent statement of the Swedish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Christian Funther, that his Government would continue to stress its disapproval of German conduct in Norway and Denmark, the Swedish newspaper Eskilstuna urged more aggressive action on the part of the Swedish Government. The newspaper said:

« Sweden is ready to speak her mind and stress her views. But it is not enough for her to stress her views. She must make an effort to find the means to save the Norwegian and Danish peoples. »

A dispatch from London appearing in today's New York Herald Tribune said that Norwegian Underground leaders have issued an order of the day warning their rank and file that the Nazis are preparing a reign of terror on a scale « hitherto unknown, » in an effort to break the Underground.

Now that the liberation of Norway is under way with the Russian Army's capture of Kirkenes, the Germans will stop at nothing to retain everything they can, the order of the day said.

Norwegian Patriots also were instructed to be extremely cautious, and to wait for the hour of concerted action. They were advised to burn all membership lists immediately. (OWI)

NELSON TO RETURN TO CHINA

WASHINGTON, November 2 — Donald M. Nelson, former chairman of the U. S. War Production Board, will return to China at the request of President Roosevelt to help in reorganizing the Chinese war effort and to set up a Chinese war production board, the White House announced today.

Generalissimo Chiang-Kai-Shek has requested the return of Nelson, according to the official statement issued shortly after Nelson conferred with the President.

Nelson will return to China with Howard Coonley, War Production Board executive, who was chairman of a valve manufacturing company; Eugene M. MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 3 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Polish and Indian troops of the 8th Army, advancing northward between the Rabbi and Ronco Rivers, have made considerable progress and have joined up with the bridgehead established by other troops of the 8th Army across the River Ronco, near Meldola.

South of Bologna, American troops have cleared the enemy from the village of Casetta.

Elsewhere, activity has been confined to patrolling.

Land Forces Greece:

British forces received an enthusiastic reception on entering Salonika yesterday.

Patrols harassing the enemy north of the town ambushed the withdrawing enemy columns, and inflicted 25 casualties in a sharp engagement.

Fire engines were among the transport used by the Germans in their withdrawal.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Yesterday, strong forces of escorted heavy bombers attacked industrial and communications targets in the Vienna area, the escorting fighters attacking railroad traffic and an airfield on the return journey.

Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked communications targets in the Po Valley and in the Brod-Zagreb areas of Yugoslavia, and also in Albania.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789521

Shipping in the North Adriatic and off the Dalmatian coast was also attacked.

Last night, a small force of night bombers attacked the railyards at Latisana, in northern Italy.

During all these operations, one enemy aircraft was shot down.

Three of our heavy bombers and four other aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew over 1,400 sorties.

Navy:

On 30 October, the French Cruiser Emile Bertin bombarded beaches and enemy troop movements near the French-Italian frontier. The areas were well covered. On 31 October, the French Destroyer Forbin engaged targets in the same area, and scored direct hits on a pillbox and enemy personnel.

The work of the Allied minesweeping force off the south coast of France, the Aegean, and the waters of Greece, is continuing successfully.

Many mines have been accounted for. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 2 — Today's communique:

Allied forces landed yesterday morning on Walcheren Island and made good progress. Two beachheads are firmly established. Some miles of coast and a large part of the town of Flushing are in our hands.

At Flushing, Army Commandos successfully landed under cover of a bombardment from the south shore of the Schelde Estuary.

At West Kapelle, Royal Marines secured a beachhead under cover of long-range bombardment of HMS Warspite, Erebus, and Roberts, and close bombardment by a squadron of support craft.

Preparing a way for these landings, light bombers, during the night of Tuesday-Wednesday, attacked enemy gun positions and strongpoints on Walcheren.

At daylight yesterday, fighter-bombers renewed the attack on gun positions and strongpoints, and struck at enemy troop movements, while fighters provided cover for our land and sea force.

No enemy opposition was encountered in the air, and none of our aircraft is missing from the operations.

Heavy fighting continued at the western end of the Beveland-Walcheren causeway.

In the Schelde pocket, our troops are fighting in Knocke.

Sluis and Westcapelle have been cleared of the enemy.

There has been stiff fighting in the area of our crossings over the River Mark.

Farther east, we increased our hold on the south bank of the River Maas, in the Kapelle area.

We made further progress east and southeast of Liesel.

Transportation targets in Holland were hit by fighter-bombers.

Objectives in the Ruhr were attacked in the afternoon by heavy bombers escorted by fighters.

In the late evening, a strong force of heavy bombers attacked through cloud the industrial and railway center of Oberhausen in the Ruhr, and light bombers hit Cologne and Berlin.

Communications, rail transport, and power facilities in the Rhineland and Saar were objectives for fighter-bombers.

Other formations hit a dam near Dieuze.

North of Nancy, our forces cleared the enemy from Letricourt and Abaucourt.

Our units made gains southeast of Lunéville, and freed the villages of Burthille, Hablainville and Agincille.

The former head of the Hungarian General Staff, Colonel-General Janosh Veresh, has surrendered to our troops.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During November 1, our troops damaged or destroyed on all fronts a total of 98 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 17 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 2 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

From September 1 to October 15, a group of Emilian Patriots destroyed 19 bridges and five vehicles, interrupting traffic on eight highways. In the clashes which took place, Patriots killed a total of 180 Germans and wounded 103. Fascist losses total eight dead, 32 wounded, and four prisoners. Patriots, who on their part suffered relatively light losses, captured a notable quantity of war material.

Patriots of the Piacenza sector placed the town of Ponte dell'Olio under their control, and captured 34 Fascists on October 5. On October 20, at Fiorenzuola d'Arda, they destroyed a light tank with hand grenades and seriously damaged a German armored car. Patriots successively took possession of Bobbio and Penice Pass after hard fighting.

On October 24 near Varzi, 600 Fascist Alpine troops were surrounded and forced to lay down their arms. With the support of tanks and armored cars, Germans attempted to retake Ponte dell'Olio from Piacenza Patriots by employing a superior display of force but were repulsed. Four German officers and an unestimated number of soldiers were killed.

Traffic on the Emilia Highway, between Fiorenzuola d'Arda and Florence, was interrupted following continuous attacks carried out by Patriots. The Germans were forced to use secondary highways north of Emilia. During the first hours of October 24, about 150 Germans and a few Fascists attacked a brigade of Patriots near Madurera, in Parma Province. The enemy was repulsed after bitter fighting. Enemy losses total 15 dead and many wounded. Patriot losses were three dead and five wounded.

In spite of the vigilance of Nazi-Fascist sentinels at the experimental field of Saint Maurizio Canevese, elements of a Garibaldi brigade in Piedmont succeeded in carrying off a large piece of artillery, a notable quantity of ammunition and arms of different types, together with abundant explosive matériel. The enemy learned of the blow only when Patriots had placed the booty in a safe place.

On the morning of October 25, the Nazi-Fascists undertook a new mopping-up operation in Val d'Osta. Results of the fighting are not yet known. Elements of the action squad «Bella» attacked a Nazi-Fascist column in the vicinity of Feletto, in Turin Province. After a short but lively engagement, the enemy fled, leaving two dead and three wounded on the field. A German vehicle was destroyed. The same squad of Patriots set fire to an enemy motor vehicle and captured three Germans and a Fascist lieutenant. (UNN)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, November 2 — Tonight's communique:

During today, north and west of the Hungarian town of Nyiregyhaza, our troops, as a result of offensive fighting, fully cleared of the enemy the left bank of the River Tisa, and occupied the town and railway station of Budszentmihaly, and the large populated localities and the railway stations of Tisadada, Tisadob, and Polgar.

In the direction of Budapest, between the Rivers Tisa and Danube, our troops, continuing their offensive, captured the town and railway station of Nagykoros, and also occupied in fighting over 60 other populated localities, including Jaszarajeno, Kocher, Tapertenyer, Kunszentmikols, Szabadszallas, Tuvertallas, Czemget, and Akkaso, and the railway stations of Demshets, Nadsallos, Villertallos, and Czemget.

During November 1, between the Rivers Tisa and Danube, our troops captured 2,000 German and Hungarian officers and men. Thus, at the end of November 1, the number of German and Hungarian officers and men captured by our troops between the Rivers Tisa and Danube increased to 7,518 men.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, November 2. — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In Holland, on both sides of the West Schelde, our troops are bitterly contesting every yard of ground.

In the bridgehead northeast of Brusges, the reduced garrison offers a stubborn resistance in a narrow area. On Walcheren Island, most of which has been flooded, our grenadiers are engaged in grim fighting against the enemy, who also made a landing on the western part of the island. Renewed Canadian attempts at forcing an access to Walcheren, from Zuid Beveland, were frustrated.

On the lower reaches of the Meuse, the fighting abated.

Our divisions, entrenched in their bridgehead positions, repulsed enemy tank attacks. West of Breda, an enemy force was cut off and is doomed to annihilation.

Last night, motor assault boats torpedoed two enemy supply steamers, totalling 5,000 tons, off Ostend. The loss of one of these ships may be reckoned with. Patrol boats and mine sweepers again sank two British motor assault boats off the Dutch coast, set a third on fire, and damaged two others. German assault craft sank an ammunition transport vessel of 2,000 tons, and two other enemy warships, in the Schelde Estuary.

On both sides of Stolberg, attacks of U. S. battalions collapsed in our fire.

East of Pont à Mousson, as well as in the forest area on both sides of Baccarat, grim fighting developed on a broad front.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

The enemy made limited gains after fluctuating fighting and considerable tank losses.

In the Mortagne Forest, enemy attacks were frustrated.

Italy:

In central Italy, only reconnaissance activities are reported from both sides particularly in the coastal sectors.

The garrison of Piscopi, west of Rhodes, cleared the island of the enemy. Fighting is in progress on Milos.

Our security forces, according to plans, withdrew to prepared mountain positions in the coastal sector when British troops and Communist bands had made a landing on the western coast of Dalmatia, at Split, Metcovic, and Dubrovnik.

In the central Balkans, east of the Vardar Valley and in the Pristina sector, our troops again repulsed Bulgarian attacks. The Bulgarians suffered heavy losses.

In the valley of the western Morawa, Bolshevik attacks also failed.

Between the Danube and the Tisa, both sides threw fresh units into the fluctuating fighting, which grows in intensity. Bombers successfully attacked enemy tanks and troop concentrations. German and Hungarian fighters brought down 17 Soviet planes during this fighting.

On the central reaches of the Tisa, we withdrew to the northern banks of the river. The enemy did not succeed in interfering with our movements.

In the Ungvar sector, we closed a front gap by successful attacks.

West of the Dukla Pass, resumed Bolshevik attacks collapsed in our defensive fire.

On the Narew front, formations under the command of Colonel-General Weiss, together with squadrons and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force, successfully fought grim defensive battles in the last few weeks. They frustrated repeated attempts of several Soviet armies at breaking through, by their stubborness, and repulsed the enemy, who had achieved penetrations, in powerful counter-attacks, to his initial positions, and destroyed 609 Bolshevik tanks. The Command and the troops thus frustrated the major Bolshevik operations which aimed at East Prussia from a southeasterly direction.

East of Libau and in the Autz sector, yesterday, all enemy attempts at breaking through were again frustrated by the heroic resistance of our divisions. Wherever the enemy had achieved penetrations on a small front, he was either halted or driven back in counter-attacks.

On the eastern front, the troops of the Army destroyed 4,329 tanks; and formations of the Air Force another 387 tanks, in October. In addition, the Soviets lost 1,562 planes.

Air:

Anglo-American terror bombers dropped bombs on Rhenish territory, Vienna, and Graz.

Last night, the British attacked towns in the Rhineland and the Reich capital.

The Anglo-Americans lost 16 planes, most of which were four-engined bombers, during these attacks.

In October, fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force, despite weather conditions adverse to the defense, brought down 739 Anglo-American planes, 377 of which were four-engined bombers. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

«Disengaging» from the Meuse: Once again German sources announced a retreat in a terminology psychologically charged with connotations of victory. The German Army, cleverly and skilfully «disengaging» itself from the Meuse, eastern regions of Slovakia, at whose borders the fighting is said to be increasing.

Japan's Version of V-1: German sources were according prominence to reports of a new Japanese secret weapon, which goes the German flying bomb one better by the addition of a suicide pilot. The new weapon, according to Transocean, «must be considered as an aeroplane filled with explosives. There is no return flight... They are living bombs, or living torpedoes with wings.» The pilots go down with their airship and are referred to as «death pilots.» It would appear that the publicity given to this Japanese aerial hari-kiri by German propaganda may be intended as a morale-builder for the German people, teaching them, through the object-lesson of an Axis ally, the need and value of sacrificing one's life to the state.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Increased Activity on Italian Front: The Fascist radio reported a 24-hour activity on the whole southern front. Fascist Alpini and German troops were said to be particularly successful in the Castelnuovo sector. The Allies were forced to yield ground south of Bologna. Once again, the Allied Brazilian units in the Serchio River Valley suffered losses. In the Adriatic coastal sector, British diversionary tactics were alleged to have been frustrated by German resistance and natural barriers.

Personnel Crisis in Northern Italy?: It would appear that Fascist authorities in northern Italy are faced with a serious manpower shortage, in military as well as in labor ranks. The first and most overt recruiting measure was the Duce's amnesty law of October 28, which, in addition to freeing a limited status quo of political offenders, quite harshly threatened further defaulters. The deadline of November 10 was established, and the imminence of this has since been heavily stressed. Tonight, a twin pronunciamiento came from the Ministry for Armed Forces, in the form of a «warm appeal» to all laborers, inviting them to enlist with the Labor Ministry. The compulsory nature of the appeal was not disguised, despite the «warmth.» This sentence seemed significant: «Weapons and labor are necessary to Italy in order that she may overcome the present heavy risk.»

Italo-German Cultural Ceremonies in Venice: The yearly ceremonies of the Italo-German Cultural Association were marked in Venice today. Numerous state dignitaries of both countries attended. The Fascist Minister for Popular Culture, Mezzasoma, spoke briefly. The key address, a lengthy one, was delivered by the German Ambassador, Dr. Rudolph Rahn. Most of Dr. Rahn's eulogies were directed to the prowess and «historical rôle» of the German soldier, with a leaven of salute to the Italian «comrade-in-arms.» In an excoriation of flagging spirits within the Axis, Dr. Rahn pointed up the example of defection amongst the satellites. Fascism, ergo, must gird up its Republican loins to avoid a fate worse than capitulation, namely, slaughter at the hands of the Bolshevik «Moloch.»

Foreign Minister Eden Near-Victim of Bomb Attack: Fascist radio programs today gave considerable space to the story of an alleged attempt on the life of Foreign Minister Anthony Eden. Supposedly, a bomb was discovered «by mere chance» near Eden's room at the Excelsior Hotel in Rome. The failure of Allied military surveillance in general was roundly scored, and it was said that the story was completely «hushed up.»

Returning Italian PW's Anti-Bonomi: Quoting a Spanish correspondent, the Fascist radio underlined the alleged antipathy of returning Italian war prisoners to the Bonomi Government, as well as to the preceding Badoglio era. It was contended that throughout their imprisonment, the soldiers remained faithful to the idea of «Italy's destiny» and that their one thought was to resume their place alongside the German allies.

GERMAN

«Disengaging» from the Meuse: Once again German sources announced a retreat in a terminology psychologically charged with connotations of victory. The German Army, according to Sertorius, is deliberately and skilfully «disengaging» from the area south of the lower Meuse in Holland. A defensive success was seen in the supposed fact that General Montgomery «could not prevent» the German 15th Army from «withdrawing into the region between the Meuse and the Waal.»

As a consequence, claimed Sertorius, General Montgomery «must decide upon a new, methodical concentration of forces at the river-barrier which he is facing.»

Eastern Front: Von Olberg continued the propaganda trend, already evident yesterday, of exulting over the alleged «elimination of a serious threat to the German flank in the coming attack against East Prussia.» He also claimed that Russia «places great value on taking possession of the losses. In the Adriatic coastal sector, British diversionary tactics were alleged to have been frustrated by German resistance and natural barriers.

The deadline of November 10 was established, and the luminsence of this has since been heavily stressed. Tonight, a twin pronunciamiento came from the Ministry for Armed Forces, in the form of a «warm appeal» to all laborers, inviting them to enlist with the Labor Ministry. The compulsory nature of the appeal was not disguised, despite the «warmth.» This sentence seemed significant: «Weapons and labor are necessary to Italy in order that she may overcome the present heavy task.»

Italo-German Cultural Ceremonies in Venice: The yearly ceremonies of the Italo-German Cultural Association were marked in Venice today. Numerous state dignitaries of both countries attended. The Fascist Minister for Popular Culture, Mezzasoma, spoke briefly. The key address, a lengthy one, was delivered by the German Ambassador, Dr. Rudolph Rahn. Most of Dr. Rahn's eulogies were directed to the prowess and «historical rôle» of the German soldier, with a leaven of salute to the Italian «comrade-in-arms.» In an excoriation of flagging spirits within the Axis, Dr. Rahn pointed up the example of defection amongst the satellites. Fascism, ergo, must gird up its Republican loins to avoid a fate worse than capitulation, namely, slaughter at the hands of the Bolshevik «Moloch.»

Foreign Minister Eden Near-Victim of Bomb Attack: Fascist radio programs today gave considerable space to the story of an alleged attempt on the life of Foreign Minister Anthony Eden. Supposedly, a bomb was discovered «by mere chance» near Eden's room at the Excelsior Hotel in Rome. The failure of Allied military surveillance in general was roundly scored, and it was said that the story was completely «hushed up.»

Returning Italian PW's Anti-Bonomi: Quoting a Spanish correspondent, the Fascist radio underlined the alleged antipathy of returning Italian war prisoners to the Bonomi Government, as well as to the preceding Badoglio era. It was contended that throughout their imprisonment, the soldiers remained faithful to the idea of «Italy's destiny» and that their one thought was to resume their place alongside the German allies.

JAPANESE

Philippine Battle Connected with American Elections: Radio Tokio today denounced the «false propaganda» by which The United States claimed that the «victory achieved by the Japanese in the Philippine sector of the front is an American victory.» According to an official spokesman of the Information Office of the Imperial Government, «Roosevelt is using propaganda to conceal his defeats, owing to the approach of the presidential elections. Thus, the Roosevelt Government is blowing the trumpets of propaganda at full blast, in order to mislead the American people...»

COUNTER-ATTACK SOUTHEAST OF BOLOGNA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — German Forces, staging an all-out defense of Bologna and the central approaches to the Plain of the Po, yesterday launched four savage counter-attacks against American positions at the apex of the 5th Army's salient thrust into the Sillaro River Valley, within five miles of the main Po highway, it was announced here today.

Supported by heavy fire from artillery, mortar, and machine-gun concentrations, German infantry stormed a 1,300-foot hill which forms the northernmost Allied position in Italy, and in hand-to-hand combat, in which flame-throwers were brought up, attempted to overrun the American lines. Whether the forces which completed the occupation of Meldola have made a juncture with the bridgehead troops farther north along the west banks of the stream was not indicated in official reports.

In the area south of Ravenna, active patrolling along the coast and in the area east and south of the Ronco River resulted in driving back small enemy outposts and inflicting casualties on German forces guarding the river crossing west of San Pietro. The Ronco River is still deep and swift along the stretches north and south of Forli, so that crossings have been difficult even for light patrol forces. The ground still remained soft from continuing rains in this area.

In the hilly country due south of Forli, where 8th and 5th Army forces join, British units captured Monte Forcella, west of the Montone River, in a night attack, while Polish troops of the 8th Army to the east were able to move forward after the enemy withdrew from strong positions in Caminate, seven miles south of Forli. MAIN GERMAN 15TH ARMY ESCAPES MEUSE TRAP

SHAEF, November 1 — British commandos stormed ashore today on the southern and western coast of Walcheren Island and were making good progress tonight in a pincers drive to wipe out the last Germans barring the sea lane to the great Dutch port of Antwerp.

The seaborne forces landed under cover of shellfire from guns on the southern Scheide coast and were moving inland across the flooded island as Canadian forces burst across the blasted Beveland causeway and established a bridgehead of several hundred yards on the eastern side of the island. Canadian troops advanced slowly over the heavily-mined 150-foot-wide causeway in the face of massed 88-millimeter artillery, mortar, and machine-gun fire. The isolated German garrison of about 9,000 men is now caught in a tight pincer movement.

RAF fighter-bombers have attacked German gun positions that survived the flooding, and have dropped bombs on the two main towns of Flushing and Middelburg.

German resistance in the southern Scheide pocket weakened today, and Canadian troops advanced three miles after capturing Westcappelle, to enter the German strongpoint of Knocke. House-to-house fighting was reported late tonight.

The pursuing Allied armored forces and infantry of the British 2nd Army, which have reached the Meuse River, are now within a half-mile of the Geertruidenberg Bridge, on the main German escape routes. The skillful German withdrawal across the Meuse has already saved a large proportion of the 60,000 German troops reported south of the river. The only elements of the German 15th Army south of the Meuse are rear-guard troops.

West of Hertogenbosch, the German resistance is strong; there has been no weakening of this hinge position. The

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — German Forces, staging an all-out defense of Bologna and the central approaches to the Plain of the Po, yesterday launched four savage counter-attacks against American positions at the apex of the 5th Army's salient thrust into the Sillaro River Valley, within five miles of the main Po highway, it was announced here today.

Supported by heavy fire from artillery, mortar, and machine-gun concentrations, German infantry stormed a 1,600-foot hill which forms the northernmost Allied position in Italy, and in hand-to-hand combat, in which flamethrowers were brought up, attempted to overrun the American lines. Although twice the enemy forces seared their way into the American entrenchments on the hill slopes, in their early morning attacks they were pushed back with heavy losses, and the Americans retained their strategic position. As the battered German forces fell back, enemy artillery resumed its heavy-calibre bombardment of the sector.

Intense German Effort

The concerted enemy attacks southeast of Bologna were only part of an intense German effort to drive 5th Army forces from forward positions threatening enemy defenses at key points. Four counter-attacks were made following an advance of Brazilian troops up the Serchio River Valley, some 17 miles north of Lucca, with the last enemy lunge forcing a slight withdrawal to the southwest. Still another enemy counter-thrust was directed against American armored units in the Castellaccio area, on the left flank of the main advance toward Bologna. This attack was thrown back with heavy enemy losses.

On the 8th Army front, Indian Division troops improved and strengthened their bridgehead across the swollen Ronco River, southeast of Forli, and in heavy fighting forced the enemy to withdraw forward troops.

Farther south, Indian troops of the 8th Army cleared the enemy from the town of Meldola, after four days of fighting in its streets.

German commander is holding the northern bank of the canal running west from Hertogenbosch to the Meuse until a complete withdrawal has been effected by German forces farther north.

An Allied spearhead was tonight reported within five miles of the main German escape bridge at Moerdijk, on the Hollandschdiep. Allied headquarters said that the rail bridge had been destroyed by bombing, but the paralleling road bridge is believed to be intact.

Mark River Bridgeheads

Polish and American troops, who formed the spearhead north of Breda, crossed the Mark River yesterday, and were reported tonight to be clinging desperately to their two bridgeheads. The American bridgehead was extended to a depth of 1,100 yards after the crossing of the Mark north of Oudenbosch, but heavy battles are now taking place and American positions are obscure. The Germans counter-attacked in strength, and were supported by self-propelled 88-millimeter and 75-millimeter guns.

Farther west, German paratroopers and troops of the Hermann Göring Division are fighting strongly against Canadian forces pushing north from Bergen op Zoom. These German troops are covering the right flank of the German retreat over the Hollandschdiep.

The Allied advance to the Meuse has been slowed by heavily-mined roads and sniper groups hiding in houses. Infantry deploying off the metalled road surfaces sink knee-deep into the marshy, boggy terrain.

On the eastern flank of the Holland corridor, British infantry reinforced the hard-pressed Americans in the Liesel area and cleared the town of Germans. The combined forces then advanced 2,500 yards east to the Deurne Canal. German losses were 20 tanks and 400 prisoners.

Far to the south, on the American 3rd Army front, infantry troops advanced 1½ miles along the narrow front and captured the towns of Abaucourt and Letricourt, 13 miles northeast of Nancy.

In the Vosges Mountains, on the southern end of the Allied battlefront, heavy artillery exchanges took place north of Baccarat, while east of Rambervillers, American 7th Army troops entered St. Benoit.

RED ARMY 35 MILES FROM BUDAPEST PETSAMO REGION LIBERATED

MOSCOW, November 1 — While Russian forces in Hungary advanced to within 35 miles of Budapest, Soviet army and naval forces completed today the liberation of the Petsamo Region in northern Finland.

President Mikhail Kalinin announced that German casualties on the eastern front had reached the million mark since December 24 of last year.

In an order of the day to Marshal Meretskov and Admiral Golovko, Marshal Stalin announced that the entire Petsamo Region has been liberated by troops of the Karelian Front, in conjunction with units of the Northern Fleet, operating in hard Arctic conditions.

The complete clearing of this territory follows within a week the news of the clearing of the nickel-producing area of that region — one of the richest in the world, and ceded to Russia under the recent Soviet-Finnish armistice terms.

HEAVY JAP COUNTER-ATTACKS ON LEYTE REPELLED JAPS LOSE 2,594 PLANES IN TWO MONTHS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, November 1 — Troops of General Douglas MacArthur's 24th Division advanced two miles northward toward heavily-defended Carigara, on the northwest coast of Leyte, after smashing heavy Japanese counter-attacks, headquarters announced tonight.

The 1st Cavalry Division has made progress toward Carigara, it was announced.

To the south, all remaining pockets of enemy resistance in the Catmon Hills, north of Dulag, have been wiped out, the announcement added.

MacArthur reported only minor contact with the fleeing enemy parties in other sectors on Leyte.

On Samar Island, to the east of Leyte, American troops liberated 13 more towns and villages, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch said yesterday. Small enemy counter-attacks were repulsed, the dispatch added.

Enemy planes raided Allied shipping and beachheads at frequent intervals, but damage and casualties to U.S. Forces were light. American air and ground defenses shot down 39 enemy planes.

Tokyo Claims Jap Landing

Radio Tokyo reported that Japanese troops landed on the north coast of Pelelliu Island, in the Palau group east of the Philippines, at dawn today. There has been no Allied confirmation of this report.

Carrier aircraft of the U.S. 7th and 3rd Fleets have destroyed 2,594 Japanese planes in the two-month period from August 30 to October 31, Admiral Nimitz announced today.

The two-month toll taken by American carrier planes made the period the most destructive of the war for Japanese air power.

Inasmuch as Japanese plane production is estimated to be from 1,200 to 1,500 a month, the aerial battles of the past two months have virtually canceled out all the aircraft Japan's factories could produce in the same period, an American press service pointed out.

Probably far more damaging than the loss of replaceable airplanes has been Japan's loss in pilots.

In addition to the 2,594 planes definitely destroyed, American airmen probably destroyed 252 others, Admiral Nimitz' communique said.

American losses in the same period were approximately 300 planes, while a large percentage of the pilots and crews were rescued.

The total of destroyed Japanese planes announced by Nimitz is exclusive of losses inflicted on the enemy by land-based aircraft of the South and Southwest Pacific, which one press service said totaled well over 500.

Hungary's fourth-largest city, Kecsemet, fell to Russian forces, who rushed on northward to capture Lajos Misze, only 35 miles from Budapest. They also drove westward to capture Kerekeghaza, and took another 100 towns and villages in today's fighting between the River Danube and the River Tisa, the last waterline before Budapest. Over 1,600 German and Hungarian prisoners were captured yesterday, bringing the total number taken in the Danube-Tisa corridor to 5,018.

Simultaneously, the drive on Budapest from the east has also made progress, and 40 more places were taken today, northwest and west of Nyiregyhaza.

Radio Berlin said today, «The battle for Budapest is reaching its climax.»

«The Red Army is moving on Budapest like a giant bulldozer, with tank columns shoveling aside German and Hungarian units,» a dispatch from Moscow said today. «These units are now being encircled and mopped up by storm troops maneuvering swiftly over the countryside in lorries or on motor cycles. BRITISH PATROLS REACH SALONIKA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — British patrol forces have reached the Greek port of Salonika, a central clearing point for German troops fleeing from Greece and its outlying islands, it was announced here today.

That German forces had spread devastation everywhere in Greece's second-largest city seemed evident from reports of RAF Spitfire pilots who have flown over the city and reported heavy explosions in the docks and marshalling yards, and great palls of smoke hanging over the surrounding countryside.

The German forces retreating northward from Salonika, harassed by day and night air attacks and Partisan ambushes, are now seeking escape through Albania, and its narrow, winding mountain roads, an air force announcement today declared.

RAF fighters and fighter-bombers, flying from Greek airfields, have delivered heavy blows against German troop trains plying the 40-mile stretch along the Axios River Valley between Salonika and Devdelija, across the Yugoslav frontier to the north. A point just south of this frontier town was bombed, and 20 locomotives and 40 cars were damaged, it was said.

British patrols are also pursuing the retreating enemy in the mountain district north of Kozani, west of Salonika, and contact was reported with enemy rear-guards.

RAF reconnaissance planes aided in the task of keeping track of the harassed enemy movements.

Greece-based reconnaissance planes of the RAF have also reported the German destruction of airfields at Sedes and Megalo-Mikra.

With practically no fighter protection, the withdrawing German army is using heavy anti-aircraft concentrations in attempts to ward off the savage Allied air attacks. (PRO)

M.A.A.F. HEAVIES ATTACK VIENNA AREA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today bombed strategic targets in the Vienna area — the same target struck by this heavy bombardment force in its first mission a year ago — it was announced here late this afternoon.

Because of poor visibility, the attack was carried out by instruments.

Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force today carried out extensive strafing and rocket-bombing missions, cutting enemy rail lines in five places in the Verona area, knocking out a railway bridge and damaging two road spans.

In the continuing attrition attacks on enemy transport columns, TAF planes today destroyed or damaged 41 locomotives, 73 freight cars, and 58 motor vehicles, the announcement said. (PRO)

R.A.F. WELLINGTONS STRIKE PODGORICA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — RAF Wellington bombers yesterday bombed German troop concentrations in Podgorica, at the southwestern tip of Yugoslavia, in direct support of Partisan forces harassing German troops retreating northward to escape the closing Balkan trap, it was announced here today.

The attack, which was carried out by instrument bombing because of heavy overcast, was one of the first operations in this theatre in which the night bombers were used for daylight flights. Other RAF Wellingtons dropped supplies to a Partisan-held town in another part of Yugoslavia, it was said.

With clearing weather, Tactical Air Force medium bombers joined fighters and fighter-bombers in the savage attacks against German motor and rail transport in northern Italy.

Mediterranean Air Force flew a total of 1,000 sorties yesterday, the highest total in over a week of bad weather. (PRO)

GENERAL ALEXANDER REVIEWS ITALIAN CAMPAIGN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — General Sir Harold Alexander, Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in Italy, declared today that German forces have been ordered to stand and fight at all costs in Italy because the enemy fears that withdrawal to shorter lines might mean loss of control, both politically and militarily, not only on the southern front, but in the Reich itself.

In his first press conference since Allied forces landed behind the German «winter line» along the Garigliano River early this year, General Alexander said that, although the Germans have lost over 194,000 casualties and mountains of equipment in the 14 months of the Italian Campaign, Hitler still has sacrificed 28 divisions on the Italian front while the Reich itself was threatened from east and west.

General Alexander, in a two-hour review of the Italian Campaign for Allied correspondents, said that one of the most important contributions of the hard-fought campaign had been «to commit and entangle» the Germans more and more in Italy, while the Allies were preparing to strike heavy blows at much more vulnerable areas of Bad weather, which recently has brought action on the Italian front to a standstill, has helped the enemy gain his balance once again, the general said, since it nullifies the Allies' greatest striking forces — aircraft and armor.

Singling out the outstanding factors in the Allied success in Italy, General Alexander praised the coöperation of the Allies in building up units from more than a dozen nationalities and welding them into smoothly-working fighting forces.

Assessing the success of Allied tactics in Italy, General Alexander declared that the employment of air and naval forces with the ground troops to produce a truly «combined offense» had given the Allied forces amazing flexibility and concentrated striking power.

Great success also had been obtained during the campaign by using the «right and left punch» plan of attack, by which the enemy was [illegible]ght by successive blows from two sides in crucial sector[illegible]e added. Allied forces nearly always had been able to [illegible]ake these attacks a matter of complete surprise to the enemy by the carefully concealed transfer and regrouping of forces, he noted.

In a recapitulation of damage inflicted on the enemy in Italy, General Alexander said that since May 11, fully half of the force of 30 German divisions drawn into Italy had been destroyed, with casualty lists including 56,000 prisoners, 34,000 killed and 104,000 wounded, or a total of 194,000 battle casualties.

Allied forces have captured or destroyed 340 tanks, 360 assault guns, 540 anti-tank guns, more than 700 artillery pieces, 332 locomotives, and 3,983 freight cars, he continued.

He reported also that Allied armies have advanced about 500 miles in the 14 months of the Italian campaign, have prepared 9,300 miles of road to aid their movement, many with the aid of Italian labor battalions, and have put into operation five major ports, which have handled 1,000,000 tons of supplies.

Allied planes have made more than 20 times as many sorties as German forces in the course of the campaign. (PRO)

31 GERMANS SHIPS SUNK OFF GREECE

LONDON, November 1 — Allied naval forces sank 31 German warships and transports and 40 smaller craft during the German withdrawal from southern Greece and the islands off-shore, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander said today in Commons. Many of the destroyed ships were carrying German troops.

Sixteen enemy warships and merchant ships, and 15 smaller craft were also severely damaged.

The Allied force, consisting of cruisers, aircraft carriers, submarines, minesweepers, and units of the Greek, French, and Polish navies, was under the command of Vice Admiral Sir Henry Rawlings Law.

In addition to causing heavy destruction to the German evacuation flotilla, it forced the surrender of three islands garrisoned by Nazi troops, Alexander said. (Reuter)

15TH U.S.A.A.F. OBSERVES FIRST ANNIVERSARY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — Maj. General Nathan F. Twining, Commanding General of the 15th USAAF, in a message commemorating the anniversary of the establishment of this strategic bombardment force in the Mediterranean Theater, said today that it had completed the strategic encirclement of Germany and brought every vital part of the Axis war machine under air attack.

General Twining praised the leadership and teamwork which had resulted, in a year's time, in the destruction of practically all the enemy aircraft construction centers within range, in the drying-up of 80 per cent of the Axis oil production within range, and in the disruption of enemy com-

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — General Sir Harold Alexander, Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in Italy, declared today that German forces have been ordered to stand and fight at all costs in Italy because the enemy fears that withdrawal to shorter lines might mean loss of control, both politically and militarily, not only on the southern front, but in the Reich itself.

Allies Outnumbered

The Allied Armies in Italy, he said, had accomplished this large-scale diversion of German forces. The number of German divisions in Italy had increased over seven-fold since the campaign began, the general explained, while Allied forces had been inferior in number at nearly all times, although more powerful in air and mechanized support.

General Alexander credited the « magnificent feats of arms » of the Allied soldiers with maintaining the momentum of this great effort, and particularly singled out the achievement of American and British forces which carried out a frontal attack on German defenses guarding the approaches to Bologna.

While emphasizing the success of the Italian Campaign, General Alexander asserted that the German forces in Italy had fought savagely and boldly, and that the European war might well be prolonged, by fanatic resistance, well into 1945. He said that, although the Germans had been dealt staggering blows in Italy, they had managed to regain their balance like a skilled boxer who, though floored by his opponent's blows, manages to rise again and avoid a knockout.

had been destroyed, with casualty lists including 5,000 prisoners, 54,000 killed, and 104,000 wounded, or a total of 194,000 battle casualties.

Allied forces have captured or destroyed 340 tanks, 380 assault guns, 540 anti-tank guns, more than 700 artillery pieces, 332 locomotives, and 3,863 freight cars, he continued.

He reported also that Allied armies have advanced about 500 miles in the 14 months of the Italian campaign, have prepared 9,300 miles of road to aid their movement, many with the aid of Italian labor battalions, and have put into operation five major ports, which have handled 1,000,000 tons of supplies.

Allied planes have made more than 20 times as many sorties as German forces in the course of the campaign. (PRO)

31 GERMANS SHIPS SUNK OFF GREECE

LONDON, November 1 — Allied naval forces sank 31 German warships and transports and 40 smaller craft during the German withdrawal from southern Greece and the islands off-shore, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander said today in Commons. Many of the destroyed ships were carrying German troops.

Sixteen enemy warships and merchant ships, and 15 smaller craft were also severely damaged.

The Allied force, consisting of cruisers, aircraft carriers, submarines, minesweepers, and units of the Greek, French, and Polish navies, was under the command of Vice Admiral Sir Henry Rawlings Law.

In addition to causing heavy destruction to the German evacuation flotilla, it forced the surrender of three islands garrisoned by Nazi troops, Alexander said. (Reuter)

15TH U.S.A.A.F. OBSERVES FIRST ANNIVERSARY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, November 1 — Maj. General Nathan F. Twining, Commanding General of the 15th USAAF, in a message commemorating the anniversary of the establishment of this strategic bombardment force in the Mediterranean Theater, said today that it had completed the strategic encirclement of Germany and brought every vital part of the Axis war machine under air attack.

General Twining praised the leadership and teamwork which had resulted, in a year's time, in the destruction of practically all the enemy aircraft construction centers within range, in the drying-up of 20 per cent of the Axis oil production within range, and in the disruption of enemy communications, ground force troop concentrations, and air strength.

The first mission of the 15th USAAF was flown against Wiener Neustadt, Austria, on November 2, one day after the organization was founded. The attack was carried out by 112 Liberators and Flying Fortresses, a little over one-eighth of the huge formations now employed. (PRO)

R.A.F. GIVES COLOGNE 7TH AIR ATTACK IN WEEK U.S.A.A.F. BOMBS HAMM, GELSENKIRCHEN, COBLENZ

LONDON, November 1 — Allied air forces continued their strategic bombing of oil, rail, and industrial targets in western Germany last night and today with attacks on Gelsenkirchen, Hamm, Coblenz, Cologne, and Hamburg.

Approximately 300 Liberators and Flying Fortresses, escorted by nearly that number of fighters, gave the Gelsenkirchen synthetic oil refineries their second attack in a week, and bombed Germany's largest freight yards, at Hamm, for the fifth time in 10 days.

These daylight assaults, planned to choke the flow of supplies to the German armies on the western front, were made during bad weather. Heavy overcast forced the bombardiers to bomb by instrument, but also curtailed German fighter opposition.

Meanwhile, the RAF delivered its seventh attack on Cologne in seven days, with the avowed aim of making this Rhineland arsenal — in the words of Prime Minister Churchill — «more of a liability than an asset.»

The RAF Bomber Command last night dispatched about 500 escorted Lancasters and Halifaxes to drop more bomb-loads on Cologne's high-priority factories, bringing the total weight dropped in the four days since Saturday to 9,000 tons. The heavy bombers made their sorties two hours after a bombing prelude by Mosquitoes, in which the city's rail yards were attacked from a low level.

Despite thick cloud over the target, the glow from large fires could be seen.

Simultaneously with the operations over Cologne, Mosquitoes bombed Hamburg and attacked German airfields and beach defences at Flushing.

Three aircraft are missing from the night operations.

Commenting on the intensity of the offensive on Cologne, the British Air Ministry pointed out that Cologne has more than 30 high-priority factories making weapons for the western front, only 40 miles away. Recalling that the Soviets, even at the worst stage of the siege of Stalingrad, were able to turn out tanks, the Air Ministry said the RAF is determined that Cologne will not be in a position to do the same.

Destroyed in a Week

A correspondent with the RAF over Cologne last night described the city as a shambles.

«Cologne,» he said, «which once housed three-quarters of a million Germans, but which was lately an important base for a German Army in the field, has gone. It was destroyed in a week.

«There is acre upon acre of complete devastations. From one end of the city to the other you can count on your fingers the buildings that have not been shattered. Whole blocks have vanished. Whole suburbs lie tumbled to the ground.»

Swiss reports say thousands of Cologne's inhabitants have fled and are today besieging the railway stations at Düsseldorf and Coblenz. Districts around Lake Constance are receiving a steady flow of refugees from bombed areas of the Rhineland, most of them from Cologne.

British and American bombing records for October were announced today, revealing that 8th USAAF assaulted Germany with more than 17,300 Fortresses and Liberators, and almost as many fighters. The 8th USAAF lost 200 bombers and 100 fighters during the month, a ratio of a little over one per cent for the bombers, and one-half per cent for the fighters.

The RAF was out every night except two in October. Cologne was the priority target during the month, and was attacked 16 times and hit with nearly 20,000 tons of bombs.

YUGOSLAVS KILL THOUSANDS OF FLEEING GERMANS

LONDON, November 1 — Outflanked by the Russian westward drive, and pursued by the British and by Greek Patriots in the south, separated German divisions attempting to flee the Balkans by way of Yugoslavia are being steadily ground down by Marshall Tito's forces.

A communique from the Yugoslav Army of National Liberation headquarters today said that 2,500 Germans were killed and 300 captured by Yugoslavian and Russian forces near Gacak, southwest of Kragujevac, Serbia.

Southwest of this action, near Prijepolje, Germans attempting to cross the Lim River lost 900 men through Yugoslav fire, and drowning.

In the south, 1,400 more Germans were casualties as Albanian Partisans have formed a provisional government under the leadership of General Enver Hoxha, Supreme Commander of the National Liberation Army. According to Reuter this army, organized into 17 brigades and several special battalions, totals 30,000 armed men.

The Albanian Partisans work in close contact with Marshal Tito, and British liaison officers are attached to General Hoxha's headquarters, Reuter said. (Reuter)

ALLIES SOON WILL MEET IN REICH, KALININ SAYS

NEW YORK, November 1 — When troops of the Soviet Union, Britain, and The United States soon meet on German territory, victory will be complete, Soviet President Mikhail Kalinin was quoted as saying in an Associated Press dispatch today.

In a summary of the war written to herald the 27th anniversary of the Communist Revolution in Russia on 7 November 1917, Kalinin recalled the German boast that the Nazi invasion of Russia was backed by 250 million people of Europe. However, he noted the Germans «now chatter about the superior numbers of Soviet armies.» (OWI)

BULGARIANS NOT CO-BELLIGERENTS

LONDON, November 1 — Bulgaria has not been recognized by any Allied government as a co-belligerent, Minister of State Richard Law said today in Commons in reply to a question.

«It is perfectly true that an armistice has now been agreed upon,» Law said, «but the position still remains the same. The Bulgarians have not been recognized by any Allied government as co-belligerents.» (Reuter)

JAPS ENTER KWEILIN IN CHINA LOSE GROUND IN BURMA

CHUNGKING, November 1 — Japanese forces have fought their way into the north railway station of Kweilin, the capital of Kwangsi Province and a key defense center for Southeast China, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Other enemy columns are pressing their drive on the city, the Chinese said.

Radio Chunging said today that three of the four Japanese columns battling toward Kweilin had reached its suburbs, and that heavy fighting is in progress in the eastern suburbs. The railway station break-through occurred Monday, the broadcast said.

Fighter planes of Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's Chinese-American Wing knocked out a new bridge at Siushien on the Mi River, three miles west of the old bridge, a USAAF communique from headquarters in China said tonight.

American planes also attacked a Japanese supply center on the railway between Changsha and Yochow, and strafed the airfield in the Paotaing area, it added.

The Chinese are engaging a Japanese column nine miles to the south of Kweilin, Radio Chungking reported.

In Burma, troops of the 5th Indian Division today cleared the Japanese from their strongpoint at Kennedy Peak, in the Chin Hills, 16 miles southeast of Tiddim, which for some time barred the Allied advance down the Tiddim-Fort White Road, a communique from the Southeast Asia Command said today.

Farther north, troops of the British 26th Division advanced two miles yesterday down the railway corridor to reach a point within a mile of Mawlu, 94 miles southwest of Myitkyina, the communique added.

Chinese units continued patrol action in the Myothit

In Dalmatia, Yugoslav units, after capturing Imotski, advanced to make contact with other units thrusting from the Province of Hercegovina toward Mostar. To the south, at the Albanian border, a German move toward Cotinje, from Albania, was thwarted.

In Bosnia, a Geman attempt to break out of Sarajevo to the southeast was pushed back. Another German column moved west from the Drina River town of Zvornik, northeast of Sarajevo, and was thrown back with heavy losses.

A second communique from Marshal Tito's headquarters today reported that Yugoslav units had liberated the localities of Vrgorac, Kloburn, and Ljubuski, near Mostar in Yugoslavia, after liberating Imotski.

Strong fortifications on the Bay of Kotor, on the Adriatic in southwestern Yugoslavia, were occupied by Yugoslav forces who have freed the bay area as far as Risan to the east. (OWI)

In the Kalaban Valley, West African forces were reported in clashes with the enemy north of Pale.

Aircraft of the Eastern Air Command maintained support of the ground forces of the Chindwin front, it was announced, carrying out attacks on bridges and on an enemy airfield yesterday. Locomotives, rolling stock, motor transport, and river craft were also damaged. (OWI)

LIBERATED ITALY

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY IN ROME

ROME, November 1 — British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has arrived in Rome, and after meetings with Italian Prime Minister Bonomi and the Italian Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Marquis Visconti-Venosta, has gone to the Advanced Headquarters of Allied Commander-in-Chief General Sir Harold Alexander, it was announced here today.

The British Secretary also met Italy's representative-delegate to London, Count Niccolo Carandini.

Today's statement was issued by the British Embassy in Rome. (PRO)

MUSSOLINI'S PROPERTY ORDERED CONFISCATED

ROME, November 1 — Benito Mussolini's personal property and real estate were today ordered confiscated by the Rome courts at the request of the Customs Superintendent's office.

The order also provided for the seizure of the property of Mussolini's immediate family and of his former mistress, Claretta Petacci, and also that of Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Fascist Foreign Minister and son-in-law of Mussolini, who was shot by Mussolini's order.

One of the first acts of Attorney Ercole Chiri, appointed trustee of the confiscated property, was to take over the Petacci Villa here. The Customs Superintendent's office is now seeking to ascertain the extent of Mussolini's property in the vicinity of Ostia. (UNN)

23 MORE FASCIST SENATORS REMOVED

ROME, November 1 — Twenty-three more members of the Italian Senate having conspicuous Fascist records were removed from office yesterday by decision of the High Court of Justice assembled in committee of the whole, it was officially announced here last night. Twenty-eight others were ousted by the High Court on October 24.

The list of deposed senators includes General Federico Baistrocchi, former War Minister, against whom epuration charges were preferred Monday; Vittorio Rolandi Ricci, ex-Ambassador to Washington; Giovanni Giuriati, former Public Works Minister; Raffaele Bastianelli, well-known surgeon; and Pietro Gazzera, also a War Minister of the Fascist régime.

Decision was reserved in the case of four other senators, two of whom, Giulio Ingianni and Maurizio Maraviglia, are now under arrest, pending outcome of criminal proceedings instituted against them. A third senator of this group is the well-known Italian-American banker, Amedeo Giannini, and the fourth is Edmondo Del Buffalo, banker and member of the Chamber of Fasces and Corporations. (UNN)

TWO GENERALS TO FACE COURT MARTIAL

ROME, November 1 — Generals Antonio Basso and Giacomo Castagna, Italian troop commanders at the time of the armistice, will be tried by a military court composed of four Italian generals of rank equal to the accused, it was announced here today.

The two generals and Colonels Vladimiro Nani and Ocle Blatto, were arrested yesterday by order of Ettore Casati, Minister of War.

General Basso commanded Italian forces in Sardinia at the time of the armistice, while General Castagna was commander of the Italian 30th Corps on the same island.

If convicted of failure to carry out operational orders, General Basso faces a possible death sentence. General Castagna, who is accused of dereliction of duty, faces a maximum prison term of seven years.

Colonels Nani and Blatto, subordinates to the accused generals, are charged with aiding the enemy by destroying confidence in the State. Conviction of this charge carries a 10 to 20-year prison term. (UNN)

TWO ARRESTED IN BLACK MARKET OLIVE OIL RING

ROME, November 1 — Two persons, including a public official, have been arrested by police for conducting a black-market ring in olive oil, the Allied Commission announced tonight.

The Provincial Federation of Labor, in making the announcement, said a public meeting in honor of the delegates will be held here November 5. (UNN)

ROME PRINTERS STRIKE AVERTED

ROME, November 1 — Local typographers reported for work tonight, following assurances by Italian Government and Allied Command spokesmen that, beginning November 5, they will be provided with transportation to their homes at the end of their night's work.

The printers had announced yesterday their intention to stay away from their jobs unless transportation facilities were provided.

Vehicles required for this service will be furnished by the Allied Command. (UNN)

TRIBUTE TO FRENCH LIBERATORS OF ROME

ROME, November 1 — A ceremony in commemoration of French soldiers who fell while fighting for the liberation of Rome was held today at the Verano cemetery, where General De Caumont, commander of the French troops in Rome, laid a wreath on the tomb of the fallen.

Attending the ceremony were Aviation General de Sevin; Minister Couvé de Murville, French representative on the Advisory Council for Italy; French Ambassador to the Holy See Guerin; and prominent members of the French Colony in Rome. (UNN)

FLORENCE TELEPHONE EXCHANGE OPENS

FLORENCE, November 1 — Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, Senior Civil Affairs Officer, inaugurated the restored telephone exchange of Florence yesterday at a special ceremony attended by Cardinal Della Costa, Archbishop of Florence, and high-ranking Allied officers and leading Italian citizens.

LIVESTOCK SLAUGHTER SLOWED

ROME, November 1 — Prompt action by Italian public officials in the Province of Rome was credited today with halting an illegal but growing practice of slaughtering young donkeys to be sold as veal.

TWO ARRESTED IN BLACK MARKET OLIVE OIL RING

ROME, November 1 — Two persons, including a public official, have been arrested by police for conducting a black-market ring in olive oil, the Allied Commission announced tonight.

Those arrested were Dr. Louis Bacciarelli, Director of the official Provincial Farm Organization (Consorzio Agrario Provinciale) and Umberto Pera, a dealer. Both are from Cosenza, a city in Calabria (on the instep of Italy's foot).

By using false documents with forged destinations, the ring was bringing olive oil here for illegal sale, the Black Market Control Division of the Rome Region of Allied Military Government charged.

The oil was withdrawn from the Consorzio's Ammasso (official warehouse) at Cosenza.

The ring was uncovered through the division's Control Posts Organization, a plan by which Carabinieri and other police screen road traffic. Investigations are continuing, with future arrests expected, it was said.

The arrests are the first since the recent announcement that the Italians would have full supervision of the plan for collecting the 1944 olive oil crop. Under this plan, known as Ollari del Popolo (The People's Oil Pools), stern penalties are provided for violators of the democratic sharing of the olive oil crop for the benefit of the entire population of liberated Italy. IMPORTS TO U. S. FROM ITALY ANNOUNCED

NEW YORK, November 1 — The United States is now importing other than war materials from Italy, Leo Crowley, U. S. Foreign Economic Administrator, said today in a statement read over the Voice of America radio station by the Italian commentator, Mario Verdi.

Crowley's complete statement follows:

"The Allied military authorities in Italy have been interested primarily in buying from Italy products and materials which would help the Allies win the war. More recently, it has become possible to buy other Italian export commodities which represent a traditional Italian export trade.

"In recent weeks, many shipments of Italian goods have arrived in The United States. Their aggregate value was about 1,200,000 dollars. These shipments include 96,000 pounds of red squill, which is an important ingredient for medicines; 224,000 pounds of argol, a base for chemicals; 74,000 pounds of lemon oil; and 20,000 pounds of onions.

Other imports included in these shipments are 90,000 pounds of bergamot oil, 1,000 pounds of orange oil, 66,000 gallons of wine, and 5,300 bags of briar wood.

"These Italian imports have been coming to The United States Commercial Company as agent of the Allied Commission in Italy. The United States Commercial Company, in turn, sells them to private importers and private trade in this country. Other Italian products are expected to arrive in the future as soon as other areas are liberated and are organized to the point of allowing a limited amount of civilian non-essential traffic in the area.

"Several smaller shipments of Italian goods have reached this country during the present year, notably materials of strategic value. Some vital materials come by plane. Most of the supplies have come on the ships returning to The United States after having delivered munitions and other supplies in Italy. However, the current shipments exceed in value anything heretofore arrived, and it is believed they will be the forerunner of increasingly large shipments.

"The resumption of export from Italy to The United States is a very important event, and every effort will be made to increase the flow of goods, thus helping Italy to relieve her war-torn economy, and to help the reconstruction of the country." (OWI)

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE CAN SOLVE UNEMPLOYMENT

LONDON, November 1 — Full employment can be attained by leaving the conduct of industry mainly to private enterprise, Sir William Beveridge, a member of the British Parliament, asserted in a report on full employment published in book form here today.

Sir William defined full employment as turning a labor market from being a chronically buyer's market into being a seller's market.

The central thesis of the book is that the right way to destroy unemployment is not directly by making work for the unemployed, but by pursuing collectively the objectives so important as to call on the whole manpower of the nation.

The immediate program is summarized by Sir William as follows:

"Abolition of want by social security and children's allowances, and increasing and stabilizing consumption.

"Collective outlay to secure good houses, good food, fuel, and other necessaries at stable prices for all, and national health service without charges for treatment. Encouragement and regulation of private investment by a national investment board to rejuvenate and expand mechanical equipment of the country, while stabilizing the process of doing so. Controlled marketing of primary products to stabilize overseas demand to the utmost, and international trading arrangements."

Sir William said it must be the function of the State in the future to ensure adequate total outlay, and to protect its citizens against mass unemployment as definitely as it now defends citizens against attack from abroad and against robbery and violence at home.

"The acceptance of this new responsibility by the State, to be carried out by whatever government is in power, marks the line which we must cross to pass from the old Britain of mass unemployment, jealousy, and fear, to the new Britain of opportunity and service for all," he said. (Reuter)

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE CAN SOLVE UNEMPLOYMENT

LONDON, November 1 — Full employment can be attained by leaving the conduct of industry mainly to private enterprise, Sir William Beveridge, a member of the British Parliament, asserted in a report on full employment published in book form here today.

Sir William defined full employment as turning a labor market from being a chronically buyer's market into being a seller's market.

The central thesis of the book is that the right way to destroy unemployment is not directly by making work for the unemployed, but by pursuing collectively the objectives so important as to call on the whole manpower of the nation.

The immediate program is summarized by Sir William as follows:

«Abolition of want by social security and children's allowances, and increasing and stabilizing consumption.

«Collective outlay to secure good houses, good food, fuel, and other necessaries at stable prices for all, and national health service without charges for treatment. Encouragement and regulation of private investment by a national investment board to rejuvenate and expand mechanical equipment of the country, while stabilizing the process of doing so. Controlled marketing of primary products to stabilize overseas demand to the utmost, and international trading arrangements.»

Sir William said it must be the function of the State in the future to ensure adequate total outlay, and to protect its citizens against mass unemployment as definitely as it now defends citizens against attack from abroad and against robbery and violence at home.

«The acceptance of this new responsibility by the State, to be carried out by whatever government is in power, marks the line which we must cross to pass from the old Britain of mass unemployment, jealousy, and fear, to the new Britain of opportunity and service for all,» he said. (Reuter)

U.S. AGREES ON PERSIA'S OIL-TALKS DECISION

TEHERAN, PERSIA, November 1 — The United States has agreed to the Persian Government's decision to postpone talks on oil concessions until after the war, a U.S. Embassy announcement said today.

The American Ambassador said that he recognized that the Persian Government was quite within its rights in making this decision, and that the U.S. Government was not raising any objection. He said he hoped that American oil companies would be invited when discussions were finally resumed. (BBC)

PERSIA'S OIL GRANT REFUSAL EXPLANED

LONDON, November 1 — Four reasons why the Persian Government refused the Soviet Union's request for an immediate oil concession in northern Persia were given by Persian Prime Minister Mohammed Saed, in a broadcast from Teheran Monday night.

They were: first, so long as foreign troops were in Persia, public opinion would consider any concession as granted under duress; second, the economic condition of the world was not clear; third, the oil conference in Washington left the situation in doubt; and fourth, all reports from Persian representatives abroad urged that no concession be granted until after the war.

Saed added that the decision of the Government should not affect relations between the two governments. In agreements between them throughout the war and until now, there had been no mention of oil, he said. (Reuter)

634 WARSHIPS BUILT BY U. K. SINCE 1939

LONDON, November 1 — Great Britain constructed 634 major war vessels from the outbreak of war to December, 1943, H. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Commons today. The vessels, with a displacement of 1,123,501 standard tons, include battleships, cruisers, monitors, destroyers, and submarines.

It was announced also that the present control of shipbuilding and ship repairing by the Admiralty must continue. Committees will be established to advise on all matters relating to priorities for building different types of merchant vessels and on allocation of shipbuilding facilities to British, Allied, and neutral owners. U.S. PRODUCED 232,000 PLANES IN FOUR YEARS

WASHINGTON, November 1 — The United States produced a total of 232,403 aircraft from 1 July 1940, to 30 September 1944, the War Production Board disclosed today in the first detailed report on aircraft production by type since the war began.

The total number of aircraft produced included 74,953 bombers; 70,627 fighters; 17,592 transports; 2,345 naval reconnaissance planes; 54,642 trainers; 10,785 communications planes; and 1,459 special-purpose planes. (OWI)

RAF DESTROYS NAZI DOCUMENT CENTER

LONDON, November 1 — Denmark's Gestapo headquarters housed in two buildings at the university in Aarhus, was destroyed yesterday in a spectacular low-level attack by Mosquitoes of the RAF 2nd Tactical Air Force, escorted by Mustang fighters.

With resistance and sabotage on the increase in Denmark, the Gestapo had been tightening its grip in the country, and thousands of documents and dossiers in the headquarters had been the basis for the persecution of patriotic Danes, Reuter said. (Reuter)

South of Bologna, American troops of the 5th Army have repulsed a number of sharp counter-attacks with heavy losses to the enemy.

Elsewhere, activity continues to be confined to patrolling and artillery duels.

Land Forces Greece:

British patrols have now reached Salonika.

Operations by our ground forces against the enemy north of Kozani are continuing, and our forward patrols are in contact with the enemy rear-guards.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Medium bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday bombed bridges in the Po Valley.

Light bombers, fighters, and fighter-bombers attacked close-support targets on the Italian front, and communications in northern Italy.

Balkan Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers flew offensive sweeps against targets in Greece, Albania, and Yugoslavia, and light bombers attacked shipping off the Dalmation coast.

A small force of Strategic Air Force medium bombers yesterday attacked targets in Yugoslavia.

During these operations, four enemy aircraft were destroyed.

Five of our planes are missing. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, November 1 — Today's communique:

Heavy fighting went on all day yesterday on the causeway linking Zuid Beveland and Walcheren.

Between Oudenbosch and Breda, we reached the line of the River Mark.

Crossings have been made due north of Oudenbosch, and on the main road to Dordrecht northwest of Breda.

Northeast of Oosterhout, our forces continued to make good progress.

We reached the river Maas north of Capelle.

Raamsdonkveer, Sprang, and Waalwijk have been taken, and we are in the outskirts of Waspik.

In Southeastern Holland, there has been heavy fighting in the vicinity of Liesel. The enemy has been driven from the town.

Although weather severely curtailed their activities over the greater part of the battle area, fighter-bombers attacked supply dumps to the northwest of Saarburg. One fighter-bomber is missing.

In the afternoon, heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked a synthetic oil plant at Bottrop, in the Ruhr. One bomber is missing.

Last night, heavy bombers in strength attacked Cologne. This bombing was preceded by an attack on the city by light bombers.

Heavy artillery exchanges took place north of Baccarat.

Our troops entered Saint Benoit, east of Rambervillers, against stubborn resistance.

East of Bruyères, the village of Les Poulieres was freed. (Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, November 1 — Today's Italian Resistance Front Communique:

The mopping-up operations carried out by the enemy in the valleys to the west of Turin have not weakened Patriot resistance.

Immediately after the withdrawal of the Nazi-Fascist troops, who were under the illusion of having cleared the sector, a few Garibaldi divisions were reorganized. Elements of three brigades, in the attack launched during the middle of October against the Piano Audi garrison, inflicted serious losses on the enemy. To the 30 dead left on the field by the Nazi-Fascists must be added 50 who died in hospitals.

During the clash which took place for the reoccupation of Ceres, in Turin Province, elements of another brigade of Patriots killed 26 Nazi-Fascists and took 12 prisoners, together with a notable quantity of arms and ammunition.

Bridges were blown up to the south of Highway 25, in the vicinity of Avigliana and along the railway to the east of Condove.

Several railway lines which start from Genoa were interrupted in many places. Two important bridges were blown up in the vicinity of the city.

Highway 45, which runs between Genoa and Piacenza, was closed to military traffic.

During the past week, the Belluno-Piave Highway was attacked three times. The railway will remain unserviceable for approximately three months, and the highway for about 20 days. In the same sector, a bridge was destroyed. During the clashes which took place, eight Germans were killed and 40 taken prisoner. Three light machine guns, 25 automatic rifles, and 40 rifles were captured.

The Germans continue to take beyond the frontiers large quantities of food supplies and machinery looted from northern Italy. A large part of the stolen goods is passing through the Novara station. The pillaging carried out by the enemy has deteriorated the food situation in all occupied territory, and particularly in Aosta Province. (UNN)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, November 1 — Tonight's communique:

Troops of the Karelian Front, with the coöperation of vessels of the North Fleet, advancing in difficult trans-Arctic conditions, today concluded the complete liberation of the Pechenga (Petsamo) Region from the German invaders.

Northeast and west of the Hungarian town of Nyiregyhaza, our troops fought advance battles, in the course of which they occupied over 40 populated localities, including Zhurt, Zagony, Tisabespet, Mandok, Tuzher, Yeneshlitke, Sabor-Tleshmar, Tisvarda, Kanyar, and Laurhaza, and the railway stations of Mandok, Yeneshlitke, Tisvarda, and Tedel.

In the direction of Budapest, our troops, between the Rivers Tisa and Danube, captured the large communication center, the town of Kecskemet; the town and railway junction-station of Kiskoros; and also occupied in fighting over 100 other populated localities, including Ujkecske, Lajosmizse, Kerekegyhaza, Soltvadkert, Kecel, Harta, Talmastai, Gederlak, and Usot.

During October 31, between the Rivers Tisa and Danube, our troops imprisoned 1,500 German and Hungarian officers and men. Thus, at the end of October 31, the number of German and Hungarian officers and men captured by our troops between the Rivers Tisa and Danube increased to 5,518 men.

On the airdrome in the area of Izsak, our troops seized 48 aircraft of the enemy.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, November 1 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

In northern Brabant, between the island of Tholen and the area east of Oosterhout, the enemy continued to attack with strong tank forces on the whole front. The attacks were frustrated by the fierce resistance of our troops. Only in the Geertruidenberg sector, the enemy advanced some kilometers northward.

Patrol boats sank a British motor assault boat and damaged another off the Dutch coast.

For nearly two months the Americans and their French auxiliary troops have been attempting to break through our front in the western Vosges. Yesterday, north of Baccarat and east of Rambervillers, they also made concentric attacks to reduce a salient of our front. French troops supported by strong tank forces succeeded in penetrating into Baccarat. According to incomplete reports, they lost 24 tanks and armoured reconnaissance cars.

East of Rambervillers, enemy attacks collapsed in the forest ground.

The Americans, who attacked at the penetration west of St. Dié, also were repulsed.

The garrison of the Lorient Fortress smashed enemy thrusts and extended its advanced positions beyond the town of St. Helene northward and eastward in counter-attacks. Prisoners and a considerable booty were captured.

Italy:

In central Italy, Italian mountain troops cleared up a penetration in the Castelnuovo sector, and captured numerous Brazilians during successful shock-detachment operations.

West of Imola, the enemy was ousted from important high ground positions.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Northeast of Forli, British thrusts have collapsed in the fire of our outpost.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, Saloniki was evacuated in the course of our withdrawal, without enemy interference.

In the two main fighting sectors of Pristina and Kraljevo, numerous Bolshevik and Bulgarian attacks failed. Bulgarian troops were routed by our counter-attacks, and left one mountain battery in our hands.

In Croatia, the sector between the central reaches of the Drau and the Save was cleared of the bands by Croat formations.

In the Kecskemet sector, grim fighting is in progress against the enemy, who advanced between the Danube and the Tisa. Bombers supported the troops of the Army, and inflicted high losses in tanks and vehicles on the Soviets.

On the eastern frontiers of Slovakia and in the eastern Beskides, German and Hungarian troops frustrated numerous Soviet attacks.

North of Warsaw, our troops smashed several enemy attacks and troop concentrations.

On both sides of Ostenburg, yesterday's fighting was particularly costly for the Bolsheviks. The onslaught of six rifle divisions and numerous tank formations was frustrated. Eighty-one Soviet tanks and 96 guns were destroyed. Yesterday, the enemy attacks abated, owing to these losses.

The fierceness of the fighting in Kurland intensified. Southeast of Libau and in the Autz sector, our troops offered stubborn resistance in the face of persistent Bolshevik attacks, and again yesterday frustrated all attempts at breaking through in fierce fighting. In this sector, 142 Soviet planes were brought down in dog fights and by the action of anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force.

In Finland, our movements and withdrawal were carried out according to plan. A Bolshevik battalion which attacked at the Arctic Road northeast of Ivalo, was dispersed.

Air:

British terror bombers made daylight attacks on Rhenish territory, and at night attacked Cologne and Hamburg.

GERMAN

Western Front: The German Radio continued to throw the chief spotlight upon the fight for Antwerp which, according to Transocean correspondent Walter Plato, has now reached its «dramatic culminating point.» In this connection, he conceded that the «German units had to evacuate South Beveland and withdraw to the island of Walcheren,» but claimed that, nonetheless, they are «actually still closing the entrance to the port of Antwerp» itself.

The atrocity-propaganda concerning the Allied flooding was kept up today: «The flood over Walcheren was one of the most cruel means of Anglo-American warfare to clear the forefield for the attack against Germany, which has been due for a long time.»

Eastern Front: The front correspondent Colonel von Olberg, in a report evidently couched in confidence-arousing terminology, played up the current German claim that the Russian drive against East Prussia is bogging down. «The general situation in the north, including the sector of the East Prussian frontiers, underwent no change, seen from an operative standpoint. The calm on the East Prussian border continues.» The only foreboding note struck concerning this sector was the prediction that in the area west of Bialystok, the «enemy probably is preparing his next attempt to break through.»

first phase of the great battle» for East Prussia had definitely turned out to be a «telling defensive success by German troops.»

Ghost Voice Heckles Dittmar: An unscheduled feature of the Dittmar talk was that, apparently for the first time, an anti-Nazi ghost voice interrupted his speech a number of times. The interruptions run the gamut from inarticulate wrath («ha-ha, blood,») and noises of a disrespectful variety (cuckoo bird-calls) to entire sentences of anti-Hitler exhortations. For example, when General Dittmar appealed for greater national sacrifices, the unsolicited interlocutor shouted: «All is destroyed, all is lost!»

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Military Action Again Slight: The Fascist radio reported only limited activity, chiefly in the Serchio Valley, south of Bologna, where German positions were somewhat improved.

Brazilian Troops Face Reverses: In the Serchio Valley fighting, Brazilian troops were reported to have suffered severe losses. One of the captured Brazilian prisoners reputedly summed up his comrades' disillusionment in the following remark: «President Vargas has sold the Brazilian State to The United States.»

Monarchy Not Leftist: Quoting an alleged Reuter interview with Prince Umberto of Savoy, in which the Lieutenant of the Realm stated that all European monarchies are drifting toward the Left, a Fascist commentator ridiculed the idea, and concluded that neither the Left nor the Right in Italy cares about the weather-vane of the House of Savoy.

Epuration: Many-sided attacks were launched against the recent findings of the Bonomi Government epuration committee. «The Bonomi Government's purge, which appears to be directed uniquely against the chief exponents of Italian thought and culture, stands to prove that its victims are chosen among those who refused to bow their heads to the enemy.» The anti-Savoy refrain followed, in the statement that most of these noble, now purged men, once were faithful to the King. Farther along, tears were shed over the destitute living conditions which faced the purged citizens; their plight was considered even sadder, because of the supposed fact that an anonymous letter of denunciation is sufficient for epuration.

Historical Forebears of Fascist Republic: Much has been said of late about the continuity between the «new,» «socialized» Fascist state, and the glorious days of Garibaldi. Announcement was made tonight of a 30,000-lire prize for the best student monograph on the subject «The Republic Envisaged by the Risorgimento.»

Three Categories of Fascists: Somewhat prolix essays on the immediate fate of Republican Fascism were the order of the day particularly since the anniversary of the March on Rome. Recurrent emphasis was on the present maturity of Fascism and, consequently, Fascism's abandonment of the phase of violence. There were said to be, at the moment, three distinct types of Fascist: Those who «continue the tradition,» who have themselves «seen to the elimination of all the scum,» and who are in the vanguard of the new phase; those in «invaded» areas who, having momentarily defaulted, now see the error of their ways; and, the supposedly faithful nucleus amongst Italian prisoners of war in Allied countries. The three categories were pictured as spiritually welded by one catalyst: the «inevitable,» mature, unrevolutionary, forward road of Republican Fascism.

HUNGARIAN

Desertion Implied in Radio Appeal: Today, the Hungarian Chief of Staff appealed over Radio Budapest for volunteers to form the new so-called «Hunyadi» Panzer-Grenadier division. His appeal seemed to indicate that individual desertions and the dispersal of military units

Meanwhile, the Soviet drive on Budapest was observed with increasing apprehension.

Dittmar Commentary: General Dittmar, the leading military spokesman of the German Radio, delivered his weekly analysis. His chief concern this week was with what he called the increased «intensification» of the war, especially on the eastern front, to which he devoted more attention than to the western front. He expressed his awareness of the great «German anxiety» about the fate of East Prussia, which he characterized as the «cradle of the Prussian-German idea of the State,» and admitted that it seemed «most seriously threatened.» He further (as often before) admitted the «numerical superiority of the enemy.» Nonetheless, he said that the «conclusion of the view with Prince Umberto of Savoy, in which the Lieutenant of the Realm stated that all European monarchies are drifting toward the Left, a Fascist commentator ridiculed the idea, and concluded that neither the Left nor the Right in Italy cares about the weather-vane of the House of Savoy.

HUNGARIAN

Desertion Implied in Radio Appeal: Today, the Hungarian Chief of Staff appealed over Radio Budapest for volunteers to form the new so-called «Hunyadi» Panzer-Grenadier division. His appeal seemed to indicate that individual desertions and the dispersal of military units had reached an unprecedented scale in the Hungarian Army. Therefore, a pretext apparently had to be found to win back the individual soldiers and at the same time, to augment the depleted ranks of the German «defenders» of Hungary. The outstanding fact about the appeal was that it asked for soldiers and officers to volunteer «regardless of age and regardless of whether or not they are on active service.»

It seems an almost sensational item, that soldiers of what is already a regular standing army should be invited to join a new and «voluntary» organization (similar to the Spanish «Blue Legion» in Russia) by their own Chief of Staff, presumably acting under German orders. The new division is to be «equipped with German weapons.»

8TH ARMY CROSSES FLOODED RONCO RIVER

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 31 — Troops of an Indian division of the 8th Army yesterday forced a crossing of the flooded River Ronco southeast of Forli, and in sharp fighting have established their hold on a bridgehead 1,000 yards in depth, it was announced here today. The action, which was the only significant gain along the entire waterlogged Italian front yesterday, apparently has already cut the secondary road between Meldola and Forli binding together the German defenses on the west bank of the Ronco River.

Montone and the Ronco Rivers, only two miles south of Ravenna.

Enemy patrols were active as far south as the San Pietro in the Vincoli and San Stefano areas, eight miles south of Ravenna, but Allied troops pushed forward steadily in this sector, it was stated.

Armored car units of the 8th Army also clashed with German troops in the area of Borgo Sisa, four miles northeast of Forli, and on the right bank of the Ronco River. The German troops, part of formations defending a river crossing in this area, were badly shot up by the armored car force.

« Passive » Defense to 5th

On the 5th Army front, heavy exchanges of artillery fire and aggressive patrolling continued yesterday, although there was little change in disposition of enemy or Allied troops.

In one successful action, near Castellaccio, on the west flank of the foremost American positions south of Bologna, American troops yesterday captured 100 enemy prisoners.

Official reports described German defense, except for heavy artillery fire, as « passive » in most areas along the 5th Army front. Only in one area did enemy patrols attempt infiltration through the Allied lines, and that without success .

Brazilian forces reported minor gains in the Serchio River Valley near the Ligurian coast, while Indian troops at the eastern end of the 5th Army's 100-mile long battleline made gains in the Montone River Valley, southwest of Forli.

In the hilly country between the Ronco and Rabbi Rivers, at the western extremity of the 8th Army line, Allied troops were reported to have made contact with German forces in strong positions around Caminato, a village seven miles south of Forli. (PRO)

SOUTHERN MEUSE POCKET SPLIT BEVELAND CLEARED OF GERMANS

SHAEF, October 31 — The final defeat of the remnants of seven German divisions trapped south of the Meuse River appeared closer today as Polish troops of the British 2nd Army split the pocket by their advance to the river north of Tilburg in the area of Kapelle.

After reaching the banks of the Meuse, one column thrust westward to the area of Raamsdonkveer, just short of Geertruidenberg and the escape bridge. Another British column, driving north from Oosterhout, fought its way within 1,000 yards of Geertruidenberg, and the escape bridge is under shell fire.

Allied troops fanning out north of Breda have captured Dudenbosch, on a rail line leading over the Moerdijk rail bridge to Dordrecht.

8TH ARMY CROSSES FLOODED RONCO RIVER

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 31 — Troops of an Indian division of the 8th Army yesterday forced a crossing of the flooded River Ronco southeast of Forli, and in sharp fighting have established their hold on a bridgehead 1,000 yards in depth, it was announced here today. The action, which was the only significant gain along the entire waterlogged Italian front yesterday, apparently has already cut the secondary road between Meldola and Forli binding together the German defenses on the west bank of the Ronco River.

For a distance of two miles south of the provincial capital, steep embankments along the west bank of the swift-flowing stream form excellent defensive positions for the German troops defending Forli and the Emilia Highway running northwest along the edge of the Po Plain. South of these cliffs, the Ronco's west banks are low, with alternate patches of woods and farmlands.

Although no more specific location of the bridgehead was given, than north of Meldola, it is likely that the crossing was made in the lower and less formidable stretches of the stream.

Eighth Army troops now face the German defenses west of the Ronco along a seven-mile stretch, and at the nearest point are within two miles of Romagna's chief city, the second of the string of important towns strung along the Emilia Highway from Rimini northwestward to Milan and the heart of industrial north Italy.

Due to floods which have followed a violent two-day gale, the fields on either side of this highway east of the Ronco are still flooded to waist depth, today's reports stated.

In the marshlands south of Ravenna, the second of Romagna's two largest German-held towns threatened by the 8th Army advance, patrols reported that all German forces except light rear-guards have withdrawn from the area south of Fiumi Uniti, the combined mouths of the crossing in this area, were badly shot up by the Polish armored car force.

« Passive » Defense to 5th

On the 5th Army front, heavy exchanges of artillery fire and aggressive patrolling continued yesterday, although there was little change in disposition of enemy or Allied troops.

In one successful action, near Castellaccio, on the west flank of the foremost American positions south of Bologna, American troops yesterday captured 100 enemy prisoners.

Official reports described German defense, except for heavy artillery fire, as « passive » in most areas along the 5th Army front. Only in one area did enemy patrols attempt infiltration through the Allied lines, and that without success .

Brazilian forces reported minor gains in the Serchio River Valley near the Ligurian coast, while Indian troops at the eastern end of the 5th Army's 100-mile long battle-line made gains in the Montone River Valley, southwest of Forli.

In the hilly country between the Ronco and Rabbi Rivers, at the western extremity of the 8th Army line, Allied troops were reported to have made contact with German forces in strong positions around Caminato, a village seven miles south of Forli. (PRO)

SOUTHERN MEUSE POCKET SPLIT BEVELAND CLEARED OF GERMANS

SHAEF, October 31 — The final defeat of the remnants of seven German divisions trapped south of the Meuse River appeared closer today as Polish troops of the British 2nd Army split the pocket by their advance to the river north of Tilburg in the area of Kapelle.

After reaching the banks of the Meuse, one column thrust westward to the area of Raamsdonkveer, just short of Geertruidenberg and the escape bridge. Another British column, driving north from Oosterhout, fought its way within 1,000 yards of Geertruidenberg, and the escape bridge is under shell fire.

Allied troops fanning out north of Breda have captured Dudenbosch, on a rail line leading over the Moerdijk rail bridge to Dordrecht.

33 FINNISH WAR CRIMINALS ARRESTED

MOSCOW, October 31 — The Finnish Government has arrested 33 Finnish war criminals, including two major generals, Radio Moscow reported late tonight. (PWB)

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Highways below the river were black with German transport, and motor columns six to 12 miles long were reported to have formed at the Moerdijk road bridge and at ferry crossings near Willemstad on the Hollandschdiep.

Heavy fog aided the German retreat, and prevented Allied aircraft from making bombing and strafing attacks. A spokesman here said that, although the Germans are pulling out fast, there is no sign of rout or panic. They are sowing thousands of mines, and have formed sniper units, which are hampering the Allied advance.

Front press dispatches stated tonight that the bulk of the German forces south of the Meuse, originally estimated at 120,000, is believed to have been evacuated. The reports also said that after their rapid advance, Allied troops are about to meet some extremely difficult waterlines which the Germans are certain to defend as long as possible.

All of the Schelde island of South Beveland is now in the hands of British and Canadian troops, who are posed at the narrow causeway leading to the trapped German garrison on flooded Walcheren Island. The Germans attempted to delay the Canadian advance by the use of robot tanks, but failed because of the rapid Allied drive.

Allied troops have finished mopping up the island, and have taken 2,500 prisoners. Several thousand Germans have escaped, for the time being, across the Walcheren causeway to dry, high-lying coastal strips on Walcheren. Most of the German officers on Beveland escaped temporarily, and only two captains and 12 lieutenants were taken.

Antwerp Channel Still Blocked

There are reports of fighting around the causeway, but it is believed to consist of artillery and small-arms fire. A few remaining enemy guns on Walcheren still bar the passage of Allied ships through the 55-mile-long Schelde Estuary to Antwerp. When these guns have been knocked out, extensive minesweeping and dredging operations will have to be carried out before the channel can be navigated by vessels of more than medium tonnage.

In the southern Shelde pocket, Canadian troops have gained a small foothold across the canal running north from Sluis to the sea and they are now closing in on the last German strongpoints at Knocke and Heyst. Out of 10,000 Germans defending the pocket, the Canadians have captured 7,000, and only 2,000 Germans remain. The balance of 1,000 have been killed, and only a few have escaped.

On the eastern flank of the British corridor in Holland, Allied troops in a ground-hugging mist have partially recaptured Liesel, on the Deurne-Meijel Highway after heavy street fighting, it was reported late tonight. The press dispatches said that fighting continued today on a lighter scale than previously, but the Allied positions have improved.

On the American 3rd Army front, Malzières les Metz, north of Metz, was cleared of enemy troops except for one building, which the Germans were holding with grim determination.

Active patrolling was reported in the Rambervillers area, where American 7th Army troops beat off several small counter-attacks and captured the towns of Bru and Jeanmenil. (OWI - Reuter - AP - BBC)

RUSSIAN FORCES ENTER BIG RAIL JUNCTION 50 MILES FROM BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, October 31 — The Red Army in Hungary made further advances today toward Budapest. Troops under General Malinovsky driving northward between the River Danube and the River Tisa, broke into the city of Kecskemet, an important junction 50 miles southeast of Budapest.

Five rail-lines meet at the junction, which lies on the main transcontinental Ostend-Vienna-Bucharest line.

Soviet forces also occupied 800 other towns and villages

Meanwhile, Berlin reports said General Zakharov has opened a new offensive towards East Prussia's border from the south, while Chernyakovsky's armies are regrouping before the Insterburg Gap. The Germans also said that the Russians had gone over to the attack on the River Narev, north of Warsaw.

A fierce artillery duel is taking place in the area northwest of Praga, the outer suburb of Warsaw, Radio Moscow said. A German counter-attack by panzers was driven back after a number of enemy tanks had been put out of action.

Radio Moscow paid tribute to the Polish 1st Army troops in this sector, who are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

It is now revealed that since mid-September, the Czechoslovak Air Force has been operating from airfields in liberated Slovakia, with excellent effect.

In the far north, Finnish forces have liberated Muonio, key town on the Swedish frontier, approximately half-way between the northern tip of Norway and the Gulf of Bothnia. The Finns are fighting against the Germans north of Vuotso, on the Arctic road to Petsamo. (OWI - Reuter)

AMERICAN LEYTE VALLEY DRIVE CONTINUES

MACARTHUR'S HQ, PHILIPPINES, October 31 — The American drive up Leyte Valley in the Philippines continues unchecked as units of the 24th Division, advancing from liberated Jaro, have pushed to within eight miles of Carigara Bay, today's communique said.

In Central Leyte Valley to the south around Dagami, a trapped Japanese force previously estimated at 2,000 men was wiped out, the Associated Press reported.

The unsuccessful attempt by the Japanese to retard the spread of American forces in the Philippines has cost them 24,000 casualties in 10 days, General MacArthur said today.

In the same period, American casualties number 3,221, a ratio of approximately eight to one, the communique added.

Attempting to reinforce their depleted forces on Leyte, most of which have now taken refuge in hills and caves, the Japanese have ferried reinforcements from Cebu Island to Ormoc, on the west coast of Leyte. The troops were brought in under cover of darkness. A 70-mile-an-hour hurricane has been lashing the island for two days and was believed to have assisted the Japanese in making the move undetected.

Fighting on Leyte has reached the tedious stage in which small but tenacious Japanese forces must be hunted out and destroyed, correspondents reported. With most of their navy now at the bottom of the Philippine seas, it appears unlikely that the Japanese remaining on Leyte can receive supplies or reinforcements in any sizeable amounts.

Patrolling on Samar

MacArthur's communique made no mention of further action on the Island of Samar, northeast of Leyte, where American forces were last reported to be meeting little opposition. Patrols have been active on the island, but have made few contacts with enemy troops, a correspondent wrote.

Carrier planes of the U.S. 3rd Fleet Saturday sought out and damaged Japanese ships which had taken refuge in Manila Harbor. The planes probably sank one Japanese heavy cruiser and damaged two others with direct hits from 1,000-pound bombs. Forty-five Japanese planes were shot down trying to intercept the attacks.

A supplementary communique from General MacArthur last night reported action elsewhere than on the Philippines. A 25-ton bombing of Makasser started many fires in the town and wharf area. Patrol planes bombed airdromes and enemy occupied villages in eastern Timor and silenced

There are reports of fighting around the causeway, but it is believed to consist of artillery and small-arms fire. A few remaining enemy guns on Walcheren still bar the passage of Allied ships through the 55-mile-long Scheide Estuary to Antwerp. When these guns have been knocked out, extensive minesweeping and dredging operations will have to be carried out before the channel can be navigated by vessels of more than medium tonnage.

In the southern Shelde pocket, Canadian troops have gained a small foothold across the canal running north from Sluis to the sea and they are now closing in on the last German strongpoints at Knocke and Heyst. MOSCOW, October 31 — The Red Army in Hungary made further advances today toward Budapest. Troops under General Malinovsky driving northward between the River Danube and the River Tisa, broke into the city of Kecskemet, an important junction 50 miles southeast of Budapest.

Five rail-lines meet at the junction, which lies on the main transcontinental Ostend-Vienna-Bucharest line.

Soviet forces also occupied 200 other towns and villages between the two rivers, and captured over 4,000 German and Hungarian prisoners.

About 100 miles east of Budapest, another Russian army driving across the Hungarian plain took 50 places northeast and southwest of Nyiregyhaza, including Hajdugorod, Uikemes, Kokoapoti, and Jako. Nyiregyhaza changed hands several times in the course of recent fighting, but is now firmly in the possession of Soviet troops.

In yesterday's fighting on all sectors of the eastern front, Soviet forces knocked out 104 German tanks, thereby bringing the total German tank losses to 950 in just over a week, most of them in East Prussia.

While no details of fighting other than on the Hungarian fronts are given in tonight's Soviet communique, Radio Moscow last night declared that the Red Army had won a big victory in grinding through strong East Prussian defenses, penetrating about 27 miles into German territory.

«But now the Soviet army faces massive fortifications in a powerful defense zone,» said Radio Moscow; «This zone, from the frontier to Königsberg, is saturated with fortifications that run in several belts with overall depth of from 75 to 100 miles. Operations to negotiate these fortifications will require great effort and considerable time, since the German Command is pouring in a constant stream of reinforcements to stem the Soviet advance.»

At Wewak, on New Guinea, Allied bombers attacked coastal targets with 36 tons of explosives, and other bombers dropped 26 tons of bombs on communications routes and supply dumps in New Ireland and Bougainville. (OWI)

18 MORE JAP SHIPS SUNK BY U. S. SUBS

WASHINGTON, October 31 — American submarines have sunk 18 additional Japanese vessels, including one destroyer, the U. S. Navy Department announced today.

The Associated Press said the blow along the enemy's supply lines raises to 978 the number of enemy ships sunk, probably sunk, or damaged by submarines alone since the start of the war.

In addition to the destroyer, ships in the latest toll included 14 cargo vessels, one tanker, one large transport and a naval auxiliary, the Navy said.

No indication of the operations was given by the Navy, beyond saying that the submarines scored their victories in Pacific and Far Eastern waters. (OWI - Reuter)

CHINESE REPORT NEW JAP GAINS

CHUNGKING, October 31 — New Japanese gains on Kweilin, the defense strongpoint of southeast China, were acknowledged tonight by the Chinese High Command. Enemy forces have driven to within six miles northeast and 9½ miles southeast of Kweilin, the capital of Kwangsi Province, the High Command said.

Meanwhile, Chinese troops counter-attacked toward the important town of Tungan, on the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, in continuation of attempts to disrupt enemy supply and communication lines. They claimed the capture of one strongpoint about four miles northwest, and another 12 miles northeast, of Tungan, 90 miles northeast of Kweilin.

On the Salween River front, in Yunnan Province, the Chinese said that a daylight attack supported by American bombers yielded all positions in the Mangshih area astride the Burma Road, except one strongpoint three miles northeast of Mangshih.

A hill 2½ miles southwest of Lungling — now the major Japanese Yunnan base — also was taken, the Chinese communique said.

Jap Troop Column Strafed

Fighters of the 14th USAAF, supporting Chinese ground forces in the West River Bend, trapped and strafed a two-mile column of Japanese troops and pack-horses in a canyon. An unestimated number of Japanese were killed, and much damage was inflicted.

In central China, planes of the Chinese-American Wing knocked out the Yellow River bridge on the Peiping-Hankow railway line.

Liberator bombers of the Southeast Asia Command Strategic Air Force made a 2,000-mile round-trip to the Hanoi area in French Indo-China Sunday night, and attacked Japanese military installations, it was announced today.

In operations over five fronts between October 26 and 29, the 14th U. S. AAF and the composite American-Chinese Wing destroyed 22 Japanese planes and killed more than 1,000 enemy troops, the communique added.

Chinese troops have consolidated their positions in Myothot, 24 miles north of Bhamo in northern Burma, said today's SEAC communique.

In the Chin Hills, Japanese forces on the Tiddim-Fort White road are putting up fierce resistance around Kennedy Peak, the communique added. British troops continued their offensive patrols in the Mogaung-Mandalay corridor, 75 miles south of Mogaung, it was reported.

A BBC report said today that the new drive of British and Chinese troops in northern Burma has freed nearly 2,000 square miles of territory. (OWI - BBC)

STILWELL'S RECALL REQUESTED BY CHIANG

WASHINGTON, October 31 — President Roosevelt stated at his press conference today that General Joseph Stilwell was relieved of his command in the China-Burma-India Theater after a series of disagreements with Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, which culminated in the Generalissimo requesting that General Stilwell be replaced.

The President said that neither strategy nor policy was involved in the disagreements. General Stilwell will be given an assignment entirely commensurate with his rank, he added.

It was also announced at the Presidential press conference that Clarence Gauss, American Ambassador to China, said he would resign from his post. Mr. Roosevelt declared that there was no connection between the Ambassador's action and the recall of General Stilwell. (OWI)

THREE ENEMY CRAFT SUNK OFF RAPALLO HARBOR

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 31 — Allied light coastal forces penetrated the roads off Rapallo Harbor in a night attack on October 27/28 to engage an enemy convoy and its escort entering port, it was announced here today.

The Allied craft sank three «F» Lighters, half the number in the group, the report said.

The French cruisers Jeanne d'Arc and Emile Bertin, and the U. S. destroyers Gleaves and Plunket, carried out bombardment of enemy gun batteries and troops concentrations along the coast further northwest, near the Franco-Italian border, the same announcement said.

Two escort vessels which were protecting the enemy convoy of six large and fast troops and cargo carriers off Rapallo apparently made their escape into port in the darkness. (PRO)

GREEK GUERRILLAS W[illegible] OUT GERMAN GARRISON

ADVANCE AFHQ, IT[illegible]LY, October 31 — Greek guerrilla forces have wiped out the German garrison of Arnissa, within seven miles of the Greek-Yugoslav border, and captured the town in a punishing attack on German troop columns fleeing Greece, it was announced here today.

A communique issued by Land Forces Greece declared that the capture of Arnissa was the culmination of a series of harassing attacks against German rear-guards retreating northward from Khozani, where they suffered severe casualties in a pitched battle to the west of the town, on Sunday.

Both British and guerrilla forces took part in these harassing actions, it was said.

A naval announcement today said that the British cruiser Aurora continued to bombard the island of Melos, 90 miles north of Crete, throughout October 28 and 29. Enemy gun batteries on the island were the target of the warship's heavy guns. (PRO)

M.A.A.F. THUNDERBOLTS EQUIPPED WITH ROCKETS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 31 — Thunderbolt fighters have been equipped with racks to carry six deadly rocket projectiles for their attacks on enemy tanks, gun positions, ammunition dumps, and supply columns, it was revealed here today.

The planes retain their machine-gun armament as well.

In attacks today, one flight of these craft secured hits on a 250-foot vessel in a canal near Venice, setting it afire, and afterward returned to strafe the sinking craft. (PRO)

TWO FIGHTER-PILOTS BATTLE 50 GERMAN PLANES

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 31 — Two Allied fighter pilots carrying out strafing attacks on German motor transport in Italy battled 50 German aircraft near Lake Garda today, shooting down three of the enemy planes and probably destroying two others.

It was announced also that both of the fighters, P-47 Thunderbolts, returned to their bases safely, although one plane received five shell hits in its tail assembly. (PRO)

GREEK PATRIOTS CUT GERMAN ESCAPE ROUTE

ROME, October 31 — Greek Patriots who liberated Arnissa, in northern Greece, have cut one of the two main German escape routes from Salonika northward, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch said today.

Arnissa is about 60 miles west of Salonika, and some 12 miles south of the Yugoslav border.

The Patriots are increasing their pressure on the German rear-guards and inflicting increasingly heavy losses on the retreating army. They are also coöperating with the British pushing north from Kozani, which they helped to liberate. (OWI)

R.A.F. DROPS 4,480 TONS ON COLOGNE

LONDON, October 31 — One thousand RAF and RCAF heavy bombers last night dropped 4,480 tons of bombs on Cologne, officially described as « the most heavily bombed city of the Reich today. »

In a concentrated attack on this Rhineland city, now in the direct path of the American 1st Army, explosives fell at the rate of 100 tons a minute, including many four-ton « super-blockbusters. »

The assault was carried out in brilliant moonlight, which gave all possible advantages to the defense. Jet-propelled enemy fighters were up, but were unable to interfere seriously, and our night-fighters and intruder aircraft supporting the bombers attacked airfields over a wide area.

Coördinated with the Cologne operations, Mosquitoes carried out two diversionary attacks on Berlin, one before and one after the Cologne attack.

Only two aircraft of the entire attacking force are missing. No Canadian plane was lost.

For Cologne, it was the sixth devastating attack in 60 hours. Announcing last night's assault, the British Air Ministry said:

«It is essential that the destruction should be on an even larger scale, if Cologne is not to be used as an advanced base by the enemy — hence the necessity for the intensive offensive» which began on Saturday night, when the city got its heaviest bombing of the war.

Already a bomb-load of 20,000 tons has been dumped on the city this month. Bomb-strike photographs show that the strategic highway suspension bridge at Cologne was destroyed in last Saturday's attack. The river can be seen washing over the wreckage.

This afternoon, RAF bombers with fighter escort bombed the synthetic oil plant at Bottrop, one of the Ruhr's 10 synthetic oil plants, all of which have been recently attacked. Flak, at first slight, increased soon after the bombing began.

Mittelland Canal Destroyed

Reconnaissance pictures now show 85 feet of the vital Mittelland Canal wall at Minden, west of Hanover, to have been destroyed by a direct hit when U.S. heavy bombers attacked the canal last Thursday. Near-hits weakened the wall at other points. Water rushing through the breach drained the canal dry for about three miles, leaving at least 30 barges and tugboats stranded.

The Mittelland Canal is the most important east-west internal waterway in Germany, linking central and eastern Germany with the Ruhr Valley and the Rhineland.

The first daylight alert in the London area for two months sounded today when the Germans sent flying bombs over southern England. One bomb made a direct hit on a large residential hotel, which was badly damaged. So far, 11 persons have been brought from the building.

In today's attacks, bombs came from different directions, suggesting that the planes from which they were launched had taken advantage of cloud cover to elude British patrols. Many bombs were shot down, however. (OWI-Reuter)

637,544 ALLIED PRISONERS IN WEST

SHAEF, October 31 — The Allies have taken a total of 637,544 Nazi prisoners on the western front since the Normandy landings on June 6, it was officially reported here today.

This is a greater German force than is now defending the Nazi frontiers on the west, Reuter pointed out.

By armies, the figures are:

American 1st Army:	199,413.
American 3rd Army:	92,950.
American 7th Army:	50,916.
French 1st Army:	57,939.
British 2nd Army:	83,582.
Canadian 1st Army:	82,744.
American 9th Army:	50,000.

The FFI captured 20,000 prisoners and turned them over to the 21st Army Group, consisting of the British 2nd and Canadian 1st Armies.

The German civilian population in Aachen, first large German city to be captured, has not been pampered by American troops, an American press service correspondent stated today.

Aachen civilians are being treated humanely, but firmly, he said. There is no doubt that Aachen is a conquered city.

The civilians living in the city are feeding themselves from available stocks of German food. Those in the suburb of Brand are gathering food from the fields and cooking it in community kitchens.

The dispatch said:

«Explaining that the objectives of the Allied Military Government were simple, an American officer said that the first consideration was the establishment of law and order.

«The second was that the people get enough to eat to keep them from starving. Shelter was then found for them, and steps are now being taken to prevent the outbreak of epidemics. These things are done, the officer said, for the protection of the American Army — keeping the civilians out of the way of military operations and keeping them healthy.»

Military officials announced that a police force of between 50 and 100 men will be sworn in within a few days to assist the American military police in the maintenance of order in the ruined city. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE ADRIATIC HARBOR

LONDON, October 31 — Yugoslav Patriots have reached Boka Katorska, the great land-locked harbor on the Adriatic coast near the Albanian border, Marshall Tito's communique said today.

They have also cleared Hercegnovi and all neighboring garrisons of the enemy, after three days of bitter fighting.

In the Podgorica sector, there is bitter fighting against a German division which is falling back on Scutari from Albania.

Farther inland, Yugoslav troops have occupied the town of Imotski.

The ring around German troops in the Sibenik-Drnis-Knin area was pulled tighter following the capture of Pribir, the communique said. (PWB)

RUMANIAN PURGE FAILS, CABINET QUITS

MOSCOW, October 31 — Resignation of the Rumanian Cabinet as a result of a split in the four major political parties comprising the Rumanian National Democratic Front was reported tonight in the text of a manifesto from the National Democratic Front, broadcast by Radio Moscow.

The broadcast said that King Michael has accepted the resignation, but that the Government is continuing its activities «against the will of the democratic forces and the masses of the people.»

The manifesto attributed the crisis to resumption by the Government of old methods practiced under Rumania's former Fascist government. It said that the National Democratic bloc ceased to exist since the resignation two weeks ago of the Communist and Socialist ministers in the Government.

Lucretiu Patrascanu, Communist leader who resigned from the Cabinet, was quoted in a press statement as saying that the crisis began immediately after the signing

Mittelland Canal Destroyed

Reconnaissance pictures now show 85 feet of the vital Mittelland Canal wall at Minden, west of Hanover, to have been destroyed by a direct hit when U.S. heavy bombers attacked the canal last Thursday. Near-hits weakened the wall at other points. Water rushing through the breach drained the canal dry for about three miles, leaving at least 30 barges and tugboats stranded.

The Mittelland Canal is the most important east-west internal waterway in Germany, linking central and eastern Germany with the Ruhr Valley and the Rhineland.

The first daylight alert in the London area for two months sounded today when the Germans sent flying bombs over southern England. One bomb made a direct hit on a large residential hotel, which was badly damaged. So far, 11 persons have been brought from the building.

In today's attacks, bombs came from different directions, suggesting that the planes from which they were launched had taken advantage of cloud cover to elude British patrols. Many bombs were shot down, however. (OWI-Reuter)

637,544 ALLIED PRISONERS IN WEST

SHAEF, October 31 — The Allies have taken a total of 637,544 Nazi prisoners on the western front since the Normandy landings on June 6, it was officially reported here today.

This is a greater German force than is now defending the Nazi frontiers on the west, Reuter pointed out.

By armies, the figures are:

American 1st Army:	199,413.
American 3rd Army:	92,950.
American 7th Army:	50,916.
French 1st Army:	57,939.
British 2nd Army:	83,582.
Canadian 1st Army:	82,744.
American 9th Army:	50,000.

The FFI captured 20,000 prisoners and turned them over to the 21st Army Group, consisting of the British 2nd and Canadian 1st Armies.

The figures cover the period to October 27 for the British and Canadian armies, and up to October 28 for the other armies. (OWI - Reuter)

GERMAN CIVILIANS RETURN TO AACHEN

AACHEN, October 31 — Hundreds of Germans are returning to Aachen and standing in line to ask permission to go back to their homes, said an International News Service dispatch from here today.

Providing their credentials are in order and there is no evidence they are taking part in Nazi activity, the permission is granted. By last night, 4,000 Germans had returned to the city, although the northeast section is still occasionally hit by small-arms fire from the German lines.

Most of those returning to Aachen live in cellars, because their homes have been destroyed. Light is furnished by candles and oil lamps, since all power facilities were wrecked in the bombardment.

Under the new mayor and the Allied Military Government, a new municipal system is to be devised to improve living conditions in the devastated city. A food-supply system is being established. No food or money will be supplied by the Allies, however, except in extreme emergency.

The manifesto alleged that the Government was incapable of dealing with immediate punishment of war criminals. The Moscow broadcast tonight asserted that the Rumanian Government purge of Fascist elements from the state administration is unsatisfactory, and charged that, although 500 Rumanian Fascists and Iron Guardists were arrested recently, many of them, including leaders, still are at large.

The reply of the opposition in the Government was, that the manifesto was trying to force appointment to the cabinet of special ministers recommended by what it called a «reactionary clique which is subjecting the Crown to enterprises dangerous for the country.» (Reuter)

LIBERATED ITALY

GERMANS MASSACRED 12 FLORENTINES

FLORENCE, October 31 — German paratroopers, while trying to cover an attempted attack against an Italian girl in an air raid shelter on August 4, massacred 12 civilians, an official investigation disclosed today.

As pieced together from 10 eye-witnesses, the events leading up to the massacre were as follows.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 760021

More than 300 Florentines living near the plant of the Istituto Chimico Farmaceutico Militare took shelter in one of the warehouse buildings, which had been designated as an air raid shelter. An artillery duel was going on over the city, and German shells were destroying one home after another.

While the Florentines were seated in the shelter, two German paratroopers entered. One seized a 15-year-old Italian girl and began dragging her out of the shelter, tearing her clothes to shreds in the process. The girl finally broke away and ran back to the shelter.

As the soldier reëntered the shelter in search of the girl, he was stopped by several Italian civilians. He drew his gun and was about to shoot at the civilians, when the other soldier grabbed his hand. The gun went off, the bullet striking the soldier with the gun in the left hand.

There was a brief conversation between the two soldiers, the uninjured one suggesting they tell their commanding officer that the shooting be blamed on one of the Italian civilians.

About 30 minutes later, a squad of German soldiers came into the shelter. They announced they had come to shoot 25 civilians as a reprisal for the wounding of a German soldier. They picked 25 men and marched them from the shelter into a courtyard between two of the plant buildings.

Just then, the Allied guns blasting at the Germans boomed louder and louder. Pieces of spent shrapnel showered the courtyard. There was enough confusion to allow 13 of the hostages to jump down a chute in one of the buildings. A few minutes later, the Nazi fired machine guns and rifles at the remaining civilians. Among the dead was one of the Institute's guards and a 16-year old employee.

The institute, one of the largest pharmaceutical manufacturing plants in Italy, was looted and destroyed by the Germans before they retreated from the city. They had removed 250 freight-car loads of medicines and machinery before fleeing. (UNN)

CESENA LITTLE DAMAGED BY WAR

ROME, October 31 — Less than 20 per cent of the houses in Cesena, the first Po Valley industrial city to be liberated by the Allies, were rendered uninhabitable by air bombings and German demolition squads, according to a report reaching here today.

Most of these dwellings, the report added, can readily be put in condition. Fifteen thousand of the city's normal population of 40,000 already have returned to their homes.

The town's two most important industries, a large canning factory and a sugar refinery, were saved from German demolitionists and should soon be back in operation.

All but two of the city's flour mills were totally destroyed, but flour and pasta stocks on hand are said to be sufficient to meet the city's needs for about four months. (UNN)

GIFT PACKAGES TO ITALY FROM U. S.

WASHINGTON, October 31 — Parcel post gift packages may now be sent from the United States to Rome, Naples and Vatican City in Italy, and Palermo, in Sicily, said Postmaster General Frank Walker last night.

Resumption of the service, according to Walker, is another step in President Roosevelt's program for restoring normal relations with Italy.

The value of each package is limited to 25 dollars (2,500 lire) and the weight to four pounds. Written and printed matter and perishable foods are forbidden, and registration and insurance service will not be available. For the present, only one package per month may be sent by one person to the same addressee.

Police said the leader of the group, which included two women, was identified as one Ivan Matesik.

A quantity of arms and ammunition was found at the homes and on the persons of the 14 arrested, police added. (UNN)

ROME PRINTERS THREATEN TO STRIKE

ROME, October 31 — Typographers on the night shift of newspapers here announced today that they would not appear for work tomorrow night unless measures are taken immediately to assure safe arrival at their homes after their night's work is completed.

The threat to publication of tomorrow morning's editions of Rome newspapers followed a decision by the typographers to put into effect a resolution, recently adopted, which calls for their employers to provide them with transportation from work at night because of recent acts of violence.

The typographers said that, while they are willing to coöperate in arrangements their employers may make for day-shift workers, they insist that they will not report for night work tomorrow unless their transportation demands are met. (UNN)

FACTORY MESSES TO FUNCTION BY NOVEMBER 6

ROME, October 31 — By unanimous agreement between Government spokesmen, Allied Commission officials, and labor representatives, factory messes in the city and province of Rome will begin to function normally by November 6, a statement issued here by the Italian General Confederation of Labor said today.

The agreement, which was reached at a three-way meeting presided over by Prime Minister Bonomi, settled one of the points of contention which had arisen between employers and their workers and had resulted in a threatened 30-minute general work stoppage, called off last night.

Another cause of friction between employers and their staffs was temporarily eliminated by today's Provincial Food Commission announcement that workers, engaged in heavy manual labor would receive an additional ration of bread ranging, in accordance with the nature of the work, from 75 to 100 grams per day per person. The Commission's announcement said the distribution would be made for a 15-day period, to allow time for a final settlement of the whole problem of supplementary food rations.

It is believed that the payment of cost-of-living bonuses, which constituted the workers' main request, will be settled automatically by today's publication of the decree making such payments mandatory upon employers. (UNN)

Ruling on Business Correspondence

Amplifying a recent U.S. State Department announcement regarding business communication between the United States and Italy, the Post Office Department yesterday listed the types of communications that will be permitted.

These include: replies by U. S. banks and other financial institutions to requests for information from their depositors in liberated Italy; documents such as birth certificates, marriage certificates, death certificates, wills, and legal notices; powers of attorney, proxies, and payment orders to Italy, if application is made to the U. S. Federal Reserve Bank for an appropriate license.

In addition, Italian and U. S. business firms are permitted to exchange business information and correspond on matters relating to the resumption of business relationships. (OWI)

14 HOODLUMS ARRESTED IN ROME

ROME, October 31 — Liberated Italy's industrial establishments, blasted and wrecked by the Germans in their retreat northward, are gradually being repaired and rehabilitated under joint Allied Commission and Italian supervision, it was revealed today by the Allied Commission's Industry Sub-Commission.

For example, liberated Italy's most modern and largest steel plant, which was at Bagnoli, near Naples, is no more. The Germans applied explosive mines to its blast furnaces, cranes, and rolling mills. Nevertheless, through Allied coöperation, there are four steel plants already rehabilitated and operating in liberated Italy.

Liberated Italy likewise has a half-dozen cement plants and four or five brick factories at work now. Under guidance of the Allied Commission, these factories are being rehabilitated and set in motion. They are making either a building brick or a good quality of cement.

The fertilizer industry of liberated Italy was badly smashed, chiefly by carefully-set German demolition mines. Now, 10 plants, under the supervision of AC's Industry Sub-Commission, are producing critically-needed fertilizers to increase Italy's food supply.

In Sicily, Sardinia, and the mainland, they are turning out this superphosphate from raw materials available in Italy (pyrites) and Africa (phosphate rock). To import the latter, the Allies are using shipping needed for military purposes.

From a public health standpoint, soap is vital. Not unaware of this, the Germans methodically laid their demolition charges in all electrolytic plants producing caustic soda.

By importing caustic soda, despite the shipping scarcity, the Allies have been able to set 15 of liberated Italy's soap plants in motion. They are utilizing also a high-acidity sulphur oil which is a non-edible by-product of the olive oil industry.

By standardizing upon a single quality, they are turning out a neutral, all-purpose soap that has at least three times the cleansing properties of the soap used in Fascism's war years.

To reactivate one chemical plant in Tuscany, the Allied armies' engineers helped to build half-a-dozen bridges, repaired roads and railroads, and fixed 15 miles of underground pipeline mined by the Germans after it had received bomb damage, repairs necessary to bring raw materials from salt mines and limestone quarries to this plant making caustic soda and sodium carbonate. MEDICINES DISTRIBUTED BY NON-PROFIT GROUP

ROME, October 31 — All medicines and surgical supplies sent to Italy from The United States, for civilians, to replace supplies looted by the Germans, are now being distributed to liberated provinces on a non-profit basis and according to population, it was announced today by the Public Health Sub-Commission of the Allied Commission.

During the last six weeks, 774 tons of medical supplies have arrived in Italy from The United States.

Distribution of the supplies has been placed in the hands of a non-profit Italian Government-sponsored organization called ENDIMEA (Ente Nazionale Distribuzione Medicinali degli Alleati). It will consist of one representative from the Ministry of the Treasury, one representative of the Ministry of the Interior, and one wholesale drug representative from each of eight major regions in Italy — Sicily, Puglia, Naples, Rome, Ancona, Florence, and later Milan, and Venice.

Under the system, ENDIMEA is a supervising organization, filling requisitions and shipping medical supplies only when authorized to do so by the Public Health section of the Department of Interior. Under this system, no member of ENDIMEA can divert any supplies for his or his firm's profit.

No profit is allowed any participating wholesaler, and the sole basis on which he was asked to join is his duty to his fellow citizens. However, since costs are involved in the distribution, the Allied Commission has allowed a 16 per cent mark-up, to be divided as follows: six per cent for freight, two per cent for taxes and insurance, and eight per cent for overhead costs.

The Allied Commission made it clear that any surplus funds which may possibly accrue within the organization will immediately revert to the Italian Government, which is planning to use such funds to furnish medical supplies to free clinics. (UNN)

CHURCHILL SAYS NAZIS MAY OUTLAST WINTER

LONDON, October 31 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill today told the House of Commons he thought Britan's coalition government should not be broken before Nazism has been broken, and added that he could not predict, still less guarantee, an end of the German war before the end of next spring or even before early summer. It might, he qualified, come earlier.

The Prime Minister, who was moving a second reading of a bill to prolong the life of the present Parliament, said he did not place any dependence on the likelihood of a political uprising in Germany.

Mr. Churchill told the Commons that, roughly speaking, there seemed no likelihood of a general election for from seven to nine months.

On military grounds alone, he said, it would be imprudent to assume that a shorter period than 18 months after the destruction of Hitler would be required for the

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 31 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Taking advantage of an improvement in the weather, Indian troops of the 8th Army have established a bridgehead across the River Ronco near Meldola.

Elsewhere, activity has been confined to local actions and artillery duels.

In one successful local action, American troops of the 5th Army, north of the Bologna-Prato Road, captured 100 prisoners.

Land Forces Greece:

Our ground forces are continuing to harass the German rear-guards north of Kozani.

Guerrilla forces are actively coöperating with British troops in the area, and were well represented in the closely coördinated attack which liberated Kozani town.

Further successes by guerrilla forces operating against the enemy rear-guards culminated in the capture of Arnissa, approximately 40 miles north of Kozani, where the German garrison was destroyed.

Mediterranean Allied Air Forces:

Weather again prevented bomber operations, but fighter-bombers and fighters attacked enemy supplies, communications, and rail and river traffic in the rear of the battle areas.

In the Balkans, bridges, roads, and rail communications were attacked by our fighters.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 765021

Four of our aircraft are missing from the day's operations.

MAAF flew over 400 sorties.

Navy:

On October 28 and 29, HMS Aurora continued to bombard enemy batteries on the Island of Melos.

On the night October 27-28, Allied light coastal forces operating on the Gulf of Genoa successfully attacked an enemy convoy of 6 « F » Lighters with two escorts entering Rapallo Harbor. Three of the Lighters were sunk.

On 27 October, the U. S. Destroyer Plunkett and French Cruiser Jeanne D'Arc obtained Direct hits on enemy batteries near the Franco-Italian frontier.

On October 28, the U. S. Destroyers Gleaves and Plunkett, and the French Cruiser Emile Bertin bombarded enemy batteries and troop concentrations in the same area.

Direct hits were obtained, and the whole area well covered.

During these bombardments, fire was returned from the shore. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 31 — Today's communique:

Zuid Beveland is in Allied hands.

Early yesterday, Goes was taken, and later our forces pushing westward along the railway reached the causeway leading to Walcheren.

By evening, the enemy had been driven from the country north and south of the railway. Gun emplacements, strongpoints, and ammunition dumps on the island of Walcheren were attacked by heavy and fighter-bombers.

In the Schelde pocket, Retranchement was freed. There was heavy fighting in the area of Sluis, where our troops have reached the outskirts of the village.

Fighters and fighter-bombers supported the ground forces west of Breskens, and rocket-firing fighters hit fortified buildings and pillboxes at Knocke.

In the Bergen op Zoom-Roosendaal sector, good gains were made in spite of enemy mines and booby traps.

Our troops are within three miles of Steenbergen.

Roosendaal has been taken, and we reached the area of Oud Gastel.

There has been some progress northwest of Breda, and we are across the whole of the road between Bergen op Zoom and Breda.

Transportation targets in the Breda area and a road bridge at Terheijden were hit by fighter-bombers.

Northwest of Tilburg, our advance continued on a broad front. We reached the outskirts of Oosterhout and, farther east, we are in the vicinity of Capelle.

Farther east, an enemy counter-attack in the Meijel area made no headway during the day.

The synthetic oil plant at Wesseling, near Cologne, was a target for heavy bombers with fighter escort.

Maizières les Metz has been cleared of the enemy.

Slight gains were made east of Rombervillers, and the villages of Jeanmenil and Bru were freed.

Activity from Lunéville to the Swiss border otherwise consisted largely of patrolling. A number of counter-attacks were repulsed without difficulty. (Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 31 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

The Nazi-Fascists have undertaken large-scale round-up operations in many areas of northern Italy in the attempt to take advantage of the unfavorable seasonal weather, which is hampering Patriot Resistance .

In the numerous clashes which have taken place, both sides suffered notable losses. The civilian population suffered more than the contending sides and, in many localities, was subjected to fierce, indiscriminate reprisals by the enemy.

At present, the Germans are concentrating their efforts in areas of vital strategic importance, mostly to protect communications with Germany and transportation of supplies to the front lines.

Up to now, if in some areas the Patriots have been compelled to withdraw to the mountains, in many others they are holding their positions and are even bettering them.

In the Aemilia region, during the action near Scurano on October 5-7, a Garibaldi Brigade killed 150 Germans before withdrawing to higher positions.

In Parma Province, attacks and acts of sabotage against enemy military traffic have been very heavy during the past two months. Two bridges were blown up, four trains on the Parma-Spezia line were attacked, 12 convoys and 25 isolated motor vehicles on Highway 62, and 5 motor vehicles on the Aemilia Highway were captured, destroyed, or dispersed. In these attacks, 84 Germans were killed by one Garibaldi Brigade alone, and 80 Germans and Fascists taken prisoner.

At Langhirano, also in Parma Province, a group of Patriots did not hesitate to attack 500 Germans, killing 10 of them and capturing three machine guns.

Because of constant Patriot activity on many highways — for example, on the road between Piacenza and Voghera — the enemy is compelled to rely only on convoy traffic, since isolated vehicles rarely reach their destination.

After destroying the railway bridge on the Treviso-Ostiglia line, Patriots of the Veneto region removed long stretches of track from the Mestre-Noale-Piazzola line, and from the one between Mestre and Treviso.

In the provinces of Treviso and Vicenza, railway lines were cut 50 times in one month alone. Small Nazi-Fascist garrisons were taken prisoner, and many motor vehicles were captured. On October 2, three locomotives were destroyed on the Vicenza-Bassano line. On October 3, the railway line near Villaverla was destroyed. (UNN)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 31 — Today's communique:

Zuid Beveland is in Allied hands.

Early yesterday, Goes was taken, and later our forces pushing westward along the railway reached the causeway leading to Walcheren.

By evening, the enemy had been driven from the country north and south of the railway. Gun emplacements, strongpoints, and ammunition dumps on the island of Walcheren were attacked by heavy and fighter-bombers.

In the Schelde pocket, Retranchement was freed. There was heavy fighting in the area of Sluis, where our troops have reached the outskirts of the village.

Fighters and fighter-bombers supported the ground forces west of Breskens, and rocket-firing fighters hit fortified buildings and pillboxes at Knocke.

In the Bergen op Zoom-Roosendaal sector, good gains were made in spite of enemy mines and booby traps.

Our troops are within three miles of Steenbergen.

Roosendaal has been taken, and we reached the area of Oud Gastel.

There has been some progress northwest of Breda, and we are across the whole of the road between Bergen op Zoom and Breda.

MOSCOW, October 31 — Tonight's communique:

During October 31, northeast and southwest of the Hungarian town of Nyiregyhaza, our troops occupied in fighting over 50 populated localities, including the town and railway station of Hajdunanas; the town and railway station of Hajdugorod; the large populated localities of Uikenes, Tarnyoshpaltze, Anarch, Ulodhaze, Nyirkaras, Nyirtazh, Petnehaze, and Romochehaze; and the railway stations of Uikenes, Kokoapoti, and Jako.

The town of Nyiregyhaza, in the course of battles several times changed hands, and again is occupied by our troops.

In the direction of Budapest, between the Rivers Tisa and Danube, our troops fought offensive engagements, in the course of which they occupied over 200 populated localities, including Alfar, Nizhak, Kaloche, Chahortelhesh, Haiosh, Alshonek, Mishke, Batesh, Dushnok, Nemeshatuvar, Sshuhesh, and Erekschanak, and the railway stations of Kokari-Saint-Lorentse, Ure, Utsepaka, Karhanez, Balotsek, and Birt-Halucha.

Our troops broke into the town of Kecskemet, and engaged the enemy in its streets.

In the battles between the Rivers Tisza and Danube, our troops captured 4,018 German and Hungarian officers and soldiers.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 31 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Yesterday, the enemy, owing to the stubborn defence of our garrisons, did not renew his attacks either on the Dunkirk Fortress or on our bridgehead northeast of Brusges. Our troops, which had been fighting on Zuid Beveland, withdrew to Walcheren. Canadians who attempted to force their way into Walcheren were dispersed by our concentrated fire.

In northern Brabant, particularly between Roosendaal and Breda and east of Oosterhout, the enemy concentrated his tank formations and formed strong spearheads. Our hard-pressed troops, engaged in fierce defensive fighting, frustrated all attempts at splitting their front, and halted the advancing enemy divisions at prepared bridgehead positions, south of the lower reaches of the Meuse and at the Meuse Estuary.

Southeast of Helmond, German attacks resulted in improvements of our positions. Enemy counter-attacks were repulsed. In the course of this fighting, 85 enemy tanks were destroyed within three days.

Yesterday, there was again grim fighting in the forest land between the upper reaches of the Meurthe and the Mortagne. The Americans, who attacked time and again, made only small gains.

Northeast of Remiremont, a German attack crashed into U.S. battalions which were launching an attack.

London continued to be harassed by « V-1. »

Italy:

In central Italy, in the western front sector, an enemy attack on the Castelnuovo sector failed.

Southwest of Vergato, enemy attacks collapsed in the face of the stubborn resistance of our troops.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

North of Maldola, British formations forced a crossing over the Ronco, after an intense artillery preparation.

Eastern Front:

The garrisons of our strongpoints which were left behind on some islands in the Aegean Sea after the evacuation of Greece, were engaged on Milos and Piskopi by enemy forces which had made a landing.

In the Balkans, east of the Vardar Valley, Bulgarian attacks on our positions were frustrated.

Also, at Pristina and on the western reaches of the Morawa, the situation, despite increased Bolshevik pressure, remained generally unchanged.

Between the Danube and the lower reaches of the Tisa, the enemy presses forward with fresh forces toward Kecskemet. German and Hungarian bombers made effective attacks on the enemy spearheads. Yesterday, in this sector, anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force destroyed 20 tanks.

At Ungvar, the enemy who, at one point, had achieved a penetration, was narrowed down into a small area.

In the eastern Beskides, the enemy again suffered heavy losses during unsuccessful attacks.

According to incomplete reports, 10,000 prisoners, more than 100 guns of all calibres, 600 trucks, and one armoured train were captured during the fighting against the Slovak Partisan centre of Altsohl-Neusohl, from October 26 up to now. In addition, large quantities of weapons and material were captured. The mopping-up of the remnants of the revolutionaries, who are under Soviet Command, is in progress.

On the reaches of the Narew, on both sides of Ostenburg, the Soviets resumed their attacks without noteworthy success.

In the two-week battle in the frontier area of East Prussia, formations under the command of General of the Infantry Hoesbach halted major Soviet attacks, and defeated the enemy, who suffered heavy losses. More than 35 rifle divisions and numerous tank formations were defeated by the stubborn resistance and the determined counter-attacks of our divisions, as well as by the exemplary conduct of the German Volkssturm. The Soviet losses in material also are heavy. In this sector, troops of the Army destroyed or captured 1,066 tanks, 330 guns, and 48 planes, from October 16 to October 28.

In the East Prussian theater of war, the squadrons and anti-aircraft batteries of an air wing under the command of Colonel-General Baron von Grein brought down 264 Soviet planes, and destroyed 189 tanks, within the same period.

In Kurland, southeast of Libau and in the Autz sector, the enemy intensified his major attacks. The Soviet attempts at breaking through were frustrated in grim fighting, and 111 tanks were destroyed.

GERMAN

Western Front: For several days German reports concerning the Dutch sector of this front had regained a certain amount of confidence and had claimed a certain degree of stalemate. However, tonight's account by the Transocean commentator Sertorius was full of pessimistic terminology (such as «German disengaging movements,» «final stage,» «a last struggle,» etc.) and «ominous predictions of forthcoming events in favor of the German defenders.» As evidence for this optimistic conclusion, he cited his impression that, after 12 days of «hard struggle,» the energy of the Soviet drive had «slackened.» The Soviet losses in fighting power and material were said to have been so high that a «complete defensive success» can be claimed by Germany. But he conceded that «a narrow strip of land on the border remained in Soviet hands.»

Soviet Divisions «Bled White»: Perhaps the outstanding German military success claimed on any front of late was the supposed recapture of Pillkallen, in East Prussia. This recapture was announced yesterday, but today important new claims were added concerning the magnitude of the event. It was said by the Transocean reporter that at Pillkallen, 20 Red divisions were «bled white, while the town was retaken by a single German division.»

Meanwhile, farther south, a brief nervous mention was made of a new Soviet offensive «with Budapest as objective» in the area between the Danube and the Tisa. But this drive was allotted far less prominence than the reputed German successes farther north.

New Trend on Pacific War: Of late, the German news sources have been echoing the Japanese propaganda of claiming vast American naval defeats in connection with the Philippine landings. All the more striking was tonight's sudden reversal of this trend in a grimly worded DNB announcement, saying that the Philippine situation from an Axis viewpoint «does not allow even the slightest optimism,» and is «growing continuously more serious.»

Southern Front Again Calm: The Fascist radio again reported only local fighting in Italy: the cause was seen as equally divided between bad weather and «recent heavy Allied losses.»

Fascist Art Critic Shot: Considerable space was given to the martyrdom of the noted Fascist professor and art critic, Pericle Ducati. Ducati, a specialist on Greek and Etruscan civilizations, was supposedly shot by assassins because of «his refusal to approve the betrayal of the House of Savoy.»

Black Brigade Punitive Activities: Black Brigades, in coöperation with other Fascist and German units, were credited with having killed 787 «bandits» during recent mopping up operations in the provinces of Cremona, Brescia, Bergamo, and Verona.

(It is interesting, by comparison, to note the proud statistics given tonight by the clandestine Radio Milano Libertà, covering Patriot successes against the Fascists. In a long article extolling the continuously effective rôle of the Partisans, the claim was made that, over a period of four months, 4,600 Fascists and 9,800 Germans were killed. These military dead are supplemented by 150 civilian Fascists killed during the same period. Amongst the total number were many notable Fascist leaders and high officers. The proportion of German-Fascist losses to Partisan losses was said to be three to one. The clandestine radio article carried a strong plea for arms and support for Patriots.)

Allied Radio Accused of Lies: A recent Radio Rome broadcast, which allegedly announced the capture by the Germans of the Archbishop of Turin and 40 other priests, was heavily ridiculed by the Fascist radio as exemplifying customary Allied mendacity. No denial of the incident was made, and a rather sacrilegious tone was mingled with derision.

Fascist Administrative Measures: It was announced that some branches of the Fascist Ministry of Popular Culture will move to Milan, headquarters for the Under Secretary of State.

However, tonight's account by the Transocean commentator Sertorius was full of pessimistic terminology (such as «German disengaging movements,» «final stage,» «unequal struggle,» etc.) and ominous predictions of forthcoming Allied drives.

«The grim, unequal struggle for the mouth of the Schelde appears to have reached its final stage. After the Canadians, who managed to enter south Beveland from the east, had joined the British forces which had landed from the sea, the German defenders on the peninsula withdrew to the island of Walcheren.»

Another Allied drive was noted with apprehension in northwestern Brabant, where «grim fighting developed north of the line of Bergen op Zoom, Roosendaal, Breda, and Tilburg,» and where further «German detaching movements» were frankly admitted.

As a possible immediate goal, an Allied thrust westward from the Nijmegen bridgehead between the Waal and Meuse was presaged by Sertorius, with adumbrations — as a more long-range Allied goal — of a «planned major offensive into the northern German plains» themselves. Sertorius was quick to qualify this major stroke by the Allies as «still questionable.»

Allies Again Blamed for Sicilian Troubles: The Commissioner for Sicily, Aldisio, was reputed to have blamed the Allied occupation authorities for the Palermo incidents.

Labor Troubles in Rome: Allied Agencies were quoted as attributing the increased labor unrest in Rome to the refusal of employers to grant the extra allowance requested by the Federation of Labor. The Bonomi Government was said to have taken strong measures to try to enforce payment of the allowance.

Allies Steal Italian Masterpieces: A certain Jew Scheps (?Kress), «president of a large international Jewish firm», was accused of having donated 92 Italian masterpieces of sculpture and painting to the National Gallery in Washington. The collection, donation of which was supposedly approved by the Bonomi Government, was said to represent bargain purchases of American soldiers in Italy.

These military dead are supplemented by 150 civilian Fascists killed during the same period. Amongst the total number were many notable Fascist leaders and high officers. The proportion of German-Fascist losses to Partisan losses was said to be three to one. The clandestine radio article carried a strong plea for arms and support for Patriots.)

Allied Radio Accused of Lies: A recent Radio Rome broadcast, which allegedly announced the capture by the Germans of the Archbishop of Turin and 40 other priests, was heavily ridiculed by the Fascist radio as exemplifying customary Allied mendacity. No denial of the incident was made, and a rather sacrilegious tone was mingled with derision.

Fascist Administrative Measures: It was announced that some branches of the Fascist Ministry of Popular Culture will move to Milan, headquarters for the Under Secretary of State.

Nine-year Fascist treasury bonds are to be honored, and refugees from the invaded territories will be reimbursed.

Refugee students enrolled in the schools of the Italian Socialist Republic will be exempted from the payment of taxes.

Allies Again Blamed for Sicilian Troubles: The Commissioner for Sicily, Aldisio, was reputed to have blamed the Allied occupation authorities for the Palermo incidents.

Labor Troubles in Rome: Allied Agencies were quoted as attributing the increased labor unrest in Rome to the refusal of employers to grant the extra allowance requested by the Federation of Labor. The Bonomi Government was said to have taken strong measures to try to enforce payment of the allowance.

Allies Steal Italian Masterpieces: A certain Jew Scheps (?Kress), «president of a large international Jewish firm», was accused of having donated 92 Italian masterpieces of sculpture and painting to the National Gallery in Washington. The collection, donation of which was supposedly approved by the Bonomi Government, was said to represent bargain purchases of American soldiers in Italy.

ROOSENDAAL CAPTURED: WALCHEREN ISOLATED

SHAEF, October 30 — An Allied spokesman here said today that the end of German resistance in southwestern Holland is in sight in the wake of the British and Canadian offensive along the 50-mile front which threatens to trap 50,000 Germans.

Field Marshal Montgomery's troops today entered Roosendaal, last important German strongpoint on the linking Walcheren Island to Beveland and have trapped the German troops who are isolated on high ground at Flushing and Middelburg on the flooded island.

Canadian and British troops now control almost half of Beveland, and the remaining half is being rapidly overrun.

Good weather favored Allied airmen who, in addition to closely supporting ground troops, attacked the big German guns on Walcheren as well as anti-aircraft batteries. Walcheren is the last Dutch island to be cleared of the Germans before the Scheldt can be opened to Allied shipping into Antwerp.

Cadzand Freed

South of the Scheldt, organized German resistance in the pocket has practically ceased. Canadian troops moved into the German stronghold of Cadzand after enemy troops fell back to the west toward Knocke and Heyst on the coast. Allied troops also took the town of Retranchement, two miles to the southwest of Cadzand.

The total number of prisoners taken so far in this pocket amount to more than 7,000, and the remaining Germans have been pushed into a small triangular area bounded by waterways and the sea.

The German counter-attack on the east flank of the Dutch salient has spent its force, and is being pushed back by American troops under British command. The German attack was supported by very heavy artillery fire, remnants of two panzer divisions and at least 50 planes. Of the 50 tanks thrown in, 15 were destroyed yesterday. The German thrust carried them through Leisel to Asten, 4,000 yards to the west, before it was halted.

Farther to the south, at Nederweert, the Germans twice attempted to swarm over the Bois le Duc Canal, but American tank fire held the attacks and caused heavy casualties. RAF Typhoons flew 700 sorties in direct support of the Americans and blew up bridges, pontoons, and barges as soon as the Germans had prepared them for a canal crossing.

THREE MORE JAP SHIP SUNK OR DAMAGED MACARTHUR'S FORCES CONTINUE ADVANCE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, October 30 — Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, announced tonight that American carrier planes have sunk another Japanese cruiser and damaged two others in new attacks upon Manila Harbor, in direct support of General MacArthur's forces, which today continued their advance in the Philippines.

At the same time, Admiral Nimitz announced that the number of Japanese ships sunk or damaged in the naval battles last week has been increased to 60 by reports supplementing those already issued.

The air attack on Luzon and Manila Harbor was carried out by aircraft of the 3rd Fleet on Saturday, Nimitz reported, and 45 Japanese planes were shot down trying to intercept. Twelve other enemy planes were destroyed on the ground on Manila airfields, where large fires were started.

SHAEF, October 30 — An Allied spokesman here said today that the end of German resistance in southwestern Holland is in sight in the wake of the British and Canadian offensive along the 50-mile front which threatens to trap 50,000 Germans.

Field Marshal Montgomery's troops today entered Roosendaal, last important German strongpoint on the Bergen op Zoom-Tilburg-Hertogenbosch line. Late reports tonight said that the town has been cleared, and reconnaissance columns have pushed north of the city toward the Hollandschdiep Canal, separating Rotterdam from southwestern Holland.

Allied columns pushed through thin German rear-guard troops while enemy columns fleeing northward were strafed by Allied planes as the battle of southwestern Holland approached an end. British 2nd Army troops north of Tilburg are less than a mile from the Geertuidenberg-Hertogenbosch Highway, last lateral road before the Meuse River. They are approaching the road near Waspik, two miles from the Meuse. The other lateral road before the Meuse was lost to the Germans when Allied troops cut the Breda-Roosendaal Road at Etten.

Another British column driving north from Tilburg was reported tonight to be one mile from the river at Kapelle.

A late press report said that Allied troops were within six miles of the Moerdijk rail bridge. This bridge was bombed yesterday, leaving only a roadway paralleling the rail bridge and two other crossings at Geertruidenberg, north of Tilburg, and Hedel, north of Hertogenbosch, over which the Germans can escape.

Canadian troops, pushing seven miles across Beveland Island north of the Schelde, have reached the causeway

THREE MORE JAP SHIP SUNK OR DAMAGED MACARTHUR'S FORCES CONTINUE ADVANCE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, October 30 — Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, announced tonight that American carrier planes have sunk another Japanese cruiser and damaged two others in new attacks upon Manila Harbor, in direct support of General MacArthur's forces, which today continued their advance in the Philippines.

At the same time, Admiral Nimitz announced that the number of Japanese ships sunk or damaged in the naval battles last week has been increased to 60 by reports supplementing those already issued.

The air attack on Luzon and Manila Harbor was carried out by aircraft of the 3rd Fleet on Saturday, Nimitz reported, and 45 Japanese planes were shot down trying to intercept. Twelve other enemy planes were destroyed on the ground on Manila airfields, where large fires were started.

Ranking the second battle of the Philippines as one of the greatest battles of the war in the Pacific, Admiral Nimitz asserted last night that the total of ships sunk or damaged comes to at least 500,000 tons — more warcraft than the Japanese lost in all the four preceding great Pacific naval battles combined.

Japanese plane losses during the three-day running battle last week amounted to at least 171 planes, compared with 10 American planes lost, it was announced.

ALLIES ADVANCE NORTH OF ROOSENDAAL

SHAEF, October 30 — Allied troops have driven four miles northwest of the liberated road-junction of Roosendaal to the area of Steenbergen, four miles south of Hollandschdiep, separating Rotterdam from southwestern Holland, a late report said tonight.

The main road in this sector has not yet been cut. (Reuter)

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Special credit was given to United States submarines and China-based bombers which sent damaged Japanese stragglers to the bottom as they limped toward Japanese home waters.

American forces, now in control of two-thirds of Leyte, continued their advance up Leyte Valley and are tonight within 10 miles of the western coast, headquarters announced.

Jaro, last important road junction below Carigara Bay on the northern coast, was liberated by elements of the 24th Division. This division is moving northward to effect a junction with the 1st Cavalry Division to cut the enemy's retreat route to the west.

Minor enemy counter-attacks were repulsed, it was announced.

General MacArthur also reported that all of the high ground in the Catmon Hill area is now held by U. S. forces, and all roads are also controlled by American troops.

More than a million and a half Filipino people have already been liberated, MacArthur asserted, adding that yesterday all churches were opened throughout the liberateu areas and services were attended by the free populace.

An Associated Press dispatch tonight said that the Japanese have landed reinforcements on the island of Cebu, 28 miles west of Leyte across the Camotes Sea.

With their land forces falling back before the Americans, Japanese aircraft continued day and night raids. Newly arrived land-based fighters and anti-aircraft guns shot down 13 Japanese planes. Three of the planes fell to the guns of Major Richard Bong, fighter-pilot, who raised his total score to 33.

In forays from their new airfields, MacArthur's planes struck at the Palawan area of the Philippines, destroying 32 parked planes at an airdrome near Puerta Princesa. (OWI-BBC)

RUSSIANS ADVANCE IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, HUNGARY

MOSCOW, October 30 — The Russians have made further advances in Czechoslovakia and in Hungary, and only 19 miles now separate the Red Army troops under General Petrov from those driving westward under Marshal Malinovsky.

Tonight's Soviet communique said troops of the 4th Ukrainian front captured over 10,000 German and Hungarian prisoners at the week-end, thus increasing the number taken since October 20 to over 21,000.

A Moscow dispatch said today that Soviet troops and equipment are moving over normally deserted Ruthenian roads toward northeastern Hungary. In some sectors of the central front, the first snows have fallen.

(German reports say that a heavy artillery duel is raging within 60 miles of Budapest, on a 40-mile front along the Tisa River, pivoting on the key town of Szolnok, 55 miles southwest of Budapest.)

In East Prussia, the first wave of the Soviet offensive is temporarily slowed by the severity of German counter-attacks and by the bewildering profusion of defense works. Summarizing the situation on this front, The London Daily Erpress military correspondent wrote today:

"The Russians are moving with the utmost caution. The memory of the first Battle of Tannenberg, when they were taken on an exposed flank and suffered disaster, remains vivid. Now they are are advancing thus!

"Chernyakhovsky in the center has pushed a wide salient into the first enemy defensive line. Now he is battering the second main line of German defenses which protect Insterburg and Königsberg.

"Meanwhile, Bagramyan, covering his northern flank, is reported to be on the move again, and Zakharov is ready to move forward on the southern flank.

The Germans in Norway now face isolation, since the Russian break-through at the Pasvik River, west of Petsamo, according to reports from Sweden. The Germans were forced to surrender large stocks in east Finnmark. They are now seizing vessels, reindeer, and vehicles to solve their transport crisis. In addition, a seamen's strike spreading throughout Norway has left ships unmanned in many ports. (OWI-Reuter)

PATROLS ACTIVE IN ITALY AS WEATHER CLEARS

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 30 — With weather momentarily clearing after the gale of last week-end, patrol forces of the Allied Armies yesterday resumed activity along the Italian front, it was announced here today.

Enemy forces also made the most of bettered weather to continue the hasty construction of new defense works south and southeast of Bologna.

Entrenchments, minefields, and barbed-wire entanglements were being laid out all along this crucial sector, while enemy guns laid down heavy barrages against the Allied forward positions. Today's official reports described the enemy shellfire as the heaviest yet encountered by the 5th Army in the Italian campaign.

The only gains reported on the 5th Army front yesterday were on the extreme flanks of its 100-mile-long battle line and the Reno River Valley, southwest of Bologna.

British forces pushed north from the town of Rocca San Casciano, along the Montone River Valley to maintain contact with enemy troops withdrawing toward Forli, while on the Ligurian coastal sector, Brazilian troops consolidated their positions on Monte Faeto in the Serchio River Valley, and thrust eastward to capture a hill feature on the edge of the town of Gallicano.

Americans Reach Castellacio

Along the Reno River Valley approach to Bologna, American infantry forces with tank support thrust two miles north of the village of Marano, to reach the small settlement of Castellacio, four miles southwest of the German strongpoint of Vergato, astride the Pistoia-Bologna road.

South African forces have been slowly circling Vergato from the east, but, although they have closed in to within two miles of this highway town 18 miles from Bologna, fierce German resistance has so far held them off.

On the 8th Army front, patrols pushed across the inundated countryside to engage in a number of hard skirmishes with the flood-bound enemy forces. In one clash in the flooded area between the Ronco and the Bevano rivers, south of Ravenna, a German half-track vehicle was knocked out, a German officer killed, and other casualties inflicted. Prisoners were also taken in this action, which apparently occured when Allied forces met small German rear-guards. Along the seven-mile front of the River Ronco from just east of Forli southward to Meldola, no changes in 8th Army or enemy positions were reported yesterday.

Eighth Army troops have been unable to increase their hold on the town of Meldola, but some forces captured high ground a little over a mile to the west, and patrols were active in the hill country between the Montone and the Rabbi Rivers, still farther west. (PRO)

CHINESE CAPTURE MYOHIT IN NEW OFFENSIVE

KANDY, CEYLON, October 30 — Chinese troops in northern Burma have captured Myohit, 24-miles northeast of Bhamo, in a new offensive in which the Chinese have advanced 57 miles, while British troops moved 36 miles southwest along the Mogaung-Mandalay railway toward Katha, 36 miles farther south, today's communique said.

Germans Had Built Defenses

A Red Army engineer writing in Red Star pointed out that the Germans were engaged for several decades in building, extending, and strengthening their defense system along the eastern frontier as far back as Königsberg.

The heavy price the Germans are paying for their counter-attacks was told today in a Moscow broadcast. Three German Volkssturm battalions, consisting of young boys and old farm hands, were deserted by their leaders and were liquidated by devastating Russian fire in less than half-and-hour.

While Moscow maintained operational silence on the reported new offensive to sweep the Germans out of Latvia, Berlin admited that the Red Army drive to the Baltic has forced back the German front a few miles west of Autz, « evacuated » two days ago. The Germans also reported that the German lines had been broken at Prekuln, 25 miles southeast of Libau.

On the northern front, Finnish forces have occupied Palostunturi, which dominates the Muonio area, and have penetrated the enemy's defenses north of Kangasjärvi. Fighting continued along the Arctic Road north of Vuotso yesterday were on the extreme flanks of its 100-mile-long battle line and the Reno River Valley, southwest of Bologna.

British forces pushed north from the town of Rocca San Casciano, along the Montone River Valley to maintain contact with enemy troops withdrawing toward Forli, while on the Ligurian coastal sector, Brazilian troops consolidated their positions on Monte Faeto in the Serchio River Valley, and thrust eastward to capture a hill feature on the edge of the town of Gallicano.

CHINESE CAPTURE MYOHIT IN NEW OFFENSIVE

KANDY, CEYLON, October 30 — Chinese troops in northern Burma have captured Myohit, 24-miles northeast of Bhamo, in a new offensive in which the Chinese have advanced 57 miles, while British troops moved 36 miles southwest along the Mogaung-Mandalay railway toward Katha, 36 miles farther south, today's communique said.

Myohit is a village on the Taping River, 87-miles south of Myitkina. Bhamo is one of the big junction points on the Burma Road.

Today's communique also said that 50-miles south of Tiddim, in the Chin Hills sector, the Japanese garrisons are withdrawing from the Falam and Haka areas.

West African troops in the Kaladan Valley on the Arakan front have made contact with the Japanese eight miles north of Paletwa. An American dispatch from Chungking said that the Chinese defenders of Kweilin were fighting savagely on the outskirts of the Kwangsi Province capital against six Japanese columns striking from the east and north.

The Associated Press quoted the Chinese High Command at Chungking as saying that operations over the last two weeks preceding « the general offensive launched Monday » have cleared nearly 2,000-square miles of North Burma and numerous communities along 100-miles of the Myitkina-Rangoon railroad, the chief supply route in that area.

Offical quarters in Chungking also disclosed today that Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of the 14th USAAF, ranking senior U. S. officer in the China Theater, is serving as acting Commander until Maj. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer arrives to take up his new post as Commander of the American Forces in China. (OWI - Reuter)

WEST GERMANY TRAFFIC CENTERS BOMBED

LONDON, October 30 — More than 800 U. S. heavy bombers made a three-pronged attack on western Germany today. Their targets were the German railyards at Hamm and at Münster, and oil refineries and processing plants in the Hamburg-Harburg area, all serving the German armies on the Siegfried Line.

The Fortresses and Liberators were out-numbered by their fighter escort of 950 planes, many of which veered off on transport-hunting missions of their own. Two bombers and six fighters are missing.

A fourth daylight attack by heavy bombers was made today by RAF Lancasters, which bombed a synthetic oil plant at Wesseling, about nine miles south of Cologne. The Lancasters, escorted by Spitfires and Mustangs, flew in the wake of two forces of Mosquitoes which last night continued the offensive against the city of Cologne with two separate attacks. They found fires started in last Saturday's great daylight assault on the Rhine city still burning early last night.

Other Mosquito bombers last night attacked Berlin, while Mosquito fighters ranged over Germany, blasting trains and road targets and air fields. Sweeping the areas from Peenemünde to Dresden and from the Baltic Sea to Stuttgart in southwestern Germany, they knocked out at least 14 trains and left several others burning.

Attacks were also made on the Dutch Island of Walcheren, at the mouth of the Schelde Estuary, and steamers, trawlers, and barges were strafed.

Allied aircraft during the last 24 hours have carried out a concentrated offensive to isolate the battlefield from Trier, on the Moselle to the north. In more than 1,400 sorties, they cut railway lines in 56 places, and shot up dozens of road and rail vehicles. Aircraft of the 2nd TAF bombed bridges and gun positions and rail lines on which the enemy depends for his retreat to the Maas and beyond.

The Luftwaffe came up in some strength yesterday, and 25 of them were destroyed, with a loss of 11 Allied planes.

A vast area of destruction is left in the outlying Mulheim district of Cologne after Saturday's daylight raid, the Air Ministry said today. In several places the devastated area is three-quarters of a mile wide.

Mulheim, with its railways and many key factories on the east bank of the Rhine had not been heavily attacked before, and it has been of value to the German Army as an advanced base.

The greater part of the industrial city of Brunswick has also been destroyed, only the west and southeast outskirts having escaped serious damage after the night raid on October 14. (OWI - Reuter)

R. N. SINKS SIX GERMAN VESSELS, DAMAGES 19

LONDON, October 30 — Six German vessels have been sunk and 19 damaged off the coast of Norway by carrier-borne aircraft of the Royal Navy operating with ships of the Home Fleet, an Admiralty communique announced tonight.

Successful attacks on shore installations on the Norwegian mainland in the vicinity of Bodo also were carried out by British naval units, under command of Admiral Sir Henry Moore, Commander-in-Chief.

The ships sunk were: Two supply ships, one medium sized tanker and an aircraft tender, and two naval auxiliary vessels.

A large U-boat was attacked and driven ashore in a damaged condition, and 19 other vessels, including seven large supply ships and one of medium size, were damaged by cannon fire or by bombs.

One armed coaster and one armed trawler also were in the afternoon from 1500 to 1900 hours as the loaded trains pulled out.

The reports said that the evacuation was effected at the request of the French Red Cross, which said there was an acute food shortage in the city. (OWI)

HUEBNER COMMANDED U. S. IST DIVISION

WITH U. S. IST ARMY, October 30 — Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner commanded the American 1st Infantry Division which captured Aachen, it was revealed today.

General Huebner joined the 18th Infantry Regiment as an enlisted man in 1910, and rose from the rank of private to major general. (Reuter)

DUTCH SAVE MASTERPIECES

WITH U. S. FORCES, HOLLAND, October 30 — Some 800 paintings from various Dutch galleries have come through the war unscathed in an underground sandstone quarry near Maastricht, reported a Times of London correspondent today.

This repository is an air-conditioned chamber protected by electrically-operated steel doors. It contains some half-dozen Rembrandts, including "The Night Watch." Other old masters represented in the collection include Tintoretto, Rubens, Frans Hals, and Vermeer. There is also a large collection of drawings and Gobelin tapestries, added the correspondent. AACHEN HAS ANTI-NAZI MAYOR

LONDON, October 30 — The first anti-Nazi mayor of Aachen was sworn in today by the Allied Military Government, BBC said tonight.

The new mayor, it was said, is a middle-aged man who has always been known for his opposition to the Hitler régime. (BBC)

YUGOSLAVS REACH ZAGREB OUTSKIRTS

LONDON, October 30 — Units of the Yugoslav Army of National Liberation have reached the outskirts of Zagreb, capital of Croatia, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

The greater part of Slovenia has now been liberated, the communique said.

In the past few days, German troops have been hurriedly retreating from Greece, Albania, and Macedonia, and attempting to reach Sarajevo, the communique said. Meanwhile, Yugoslav troops are advancing on Sarajevo, and have overcome important German strongholds near Visegrad, 42 miles east of Sarajevo. (Reuter)

CHURCHILL CONGRATULATES TITO

LONDON, October 30 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill sent a message to Marshal Tito congratulating the Red Army and the Yugoslav Army on the liberation of Belgrade, the New Yugoslav Telegraph agency reported today.

In reply, Marshal Tito said that his forces are «driving the enemy toward his frontiers with the aim of continuing the battle in his territory together with victorious British, Soviet, and American armies, until the complete liberation of the whole of Europe from the German invader.» (Reuter)

ST. NAZAIRE TRUCES TO EVACUATE CIVILIANS

SHAEF, October 30 — Regulary-scheduled truces have been arranged for the evacuation of civilians from the besieged port city of St. Nazaire, on the French west coast, where an isolated German garrison is still holding out, press dispatches reported today.

The truces, extended over a five-day period ending Saturday, were arranged by American, French, and German officers, who decided that rail transport would be the best method of evacuating approximately 5,000 civilians. Allied engineers repaired tracks in their section, and the Germans repaired theirs.

For five days, firing ceased from 0700 to 0900 hours as the train entered the German bastion. Firing again ceased

Although unfavorable weather prevented medium bomber operations, fighters and fighter-bombers continued their war of attrition against enemy transport columns in northern Italy and the Balkans. Approximately 700 sorties were flown during the day. (PRO)

INDIAN TROOPS PROGRESS ON 8TH ARMY FRONT

WITH 8TH ARMY, October 30 — Troops of an Indian Division here, whose advance through the Appennine foothills has been a factor of prime importance in the 8th Army's offensive from Rimini, crossed the River Ronco about nine miles south of Forli, Michael Reynolds, a BBC correspondent, said in a dispatch tonight.

The ground has been too muddy for them to make the most of the success, Reynolds wrote, but in the fighting of the last day or two they have managed to enlarge their bridgeheads.

The Indian troops have systematically driven the Germans from their observation posts in the hills, which the enemy used to direct his artillery fire over the main road, the dispatch said.

There has been a constant threat to the flank of the Germans defending the Emilia Way, Reynolds said, and this has resulted in periodical withdrawals of the Germans. Some of the Appennine foothills are very high, and the recent rain has made action particularly difficult, so that the steady progress of the Indians speaks highly for their efficiency, Reynolds concluded. LAND TO BE DISTRIBUTED IN TIME FOR SOWING

ROME, October 30 — Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi acceded today to the request of the secretaries of the Italian General Confederation of Labor for immediate allotment of uncultivated or poorly-cultivated land to landless farm workers in time for this year's sowing.

Allotment of such land, for which compensation is guaranteed by a government decree, was decided on at a recent council of ministers as an emergency measure designed to increase Italian food production and ease the unemployment situation.

The prime minister agreed with the Confederation of Labor spokesmen that the land assignments be made immediately upon the recommendation of a ministry of agriculture inspector and a representative of the provincial prefect, pending legalization of the transfer at a future date. (UNN)

WORK-STOPPAGE PROTEST CALLED OFF

ROME, October 30 — The 30-minute general work stoppage scheduled to take place here tomorrow in protest over the delay in the payment of the cost-of-living allowances by private employers was called off tonight by the Italian General Confederation of Labor.

A meeting of labor representatives together with members of the government was held here today, at which Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi acknowledged the fairness of the workers' claims. Among the workers' demands are the institution of factory messes and restoration of supplementary food rations for certain types of workers.

Bonomi also urged the cooperation of all employers in the application of the recent government decree controlling the cost-of-living bonuses. (UNN)

GERMANS DOUBLED T. B. IN GREECE

ATHENS, October 30th — Malnutrition and bad sanitation during the German occupation have more than doubled the tuberculosis rate in Greece, Panos Hadjipanos, Greek Minister of Education, told a British United Press correspondent yesterday.

One of the main problems facing the authorities at present is how to educate Greek children, Hadjipanos said. Many children who have been living with the guerrillas in the mountains must be taught how to live normal lives again.

Most Greek children under the age of 10 have had no education at all, as during the occupation the Germans took over all schools. The Greek Government is now taking energetic steps to reopen the schools, and give relief and medical attention, reported the correspondent. (PWB)

ITALIAN CATTLE HERDS BEING REHABILITATED

ROME, October 30 — Officials of the Allied Commission, working in close coöperation with Italian authorities and farm experts, are making every possible effort to rehabilitate Italy's cattle herds stolen and laid waste by the Germans, a survey showed here today.

Under the supervision of the Allied Commission's Agricultural Sub-Commission, machinery has already been set in motion to control and conserve the greatly depleted herds in the liberated areas of Italy. One of the main objectives of the program is to put a stop to cattle smuggling and black market slaughtering.

No farmer from one area may purchase cattle in another without first obtaining written permission from both Italian and Allied Commission officials. He must also carry a travel permit with him issued by Allied Military Government officials.

Aid and guidance are given in helping the buyer to select good cattle, and prices and quality are carefully controlled. In the Lazio-Umbria region, a central purchasing commission has been set up in each province under Italian and AMG supervision.

Allied army commanders and AMG officials are working on a program for selling to Italian farmers army horses and mules rated as unfit for further military work.

The animal feed problem has also come under study by Allied and Italian officials. Allotment of bran for mill production and also for hogs and poultry is being planned, while truck transportation for bran and other fodder has been obtained in many instances.

Background of this critical problem confronting Italian cattle farmers is what Italian experts term «a huge massacre... inconceivable and without precedent,» which the German Army systematically carried out last winter.

Striking at one of Italy's most vulnerable spots, the Germans machine-gunned cattle that they could not eat, or took the herds with them in their retreat. Equally as important as the loss of meat, milk, butter, and cheese to the Italian people was the fact that Italian farmers were left without manure for fertilizer, without tillage power, and without transport.

Wanton Nazi Slaughter

Innumerable examples of this wanton German policy are cited by Italian officials.

Near Castellamare di Stabbia, a suburb of Naples, a dairy farmer reported to an AMG official that one-third of his cows had been machine-gunned by the Germans.

Not far from Rome, near the village of Valmontone, the Germans stole two-thirds of a herd of 400 cattle and then shot the herd sire.

During their occupation of the Abruzzi-Molise area last winter, the Germans destroyed 75 per cent of the sheep from Foggia Province that were pastured there. In contrast, when the Allies landed at Anzio, special care was taken by them to rescue the 15,000 to 20,000 sheep trapped between the lines.

A survey just completed in the Lazio-Umbria Region by Italian agricultural officials — part of a national cattle census requested by the Allied Commission — shows severe losses in the cattle stocks, as compared to 1942. In the Province of Rome, for example, there has been a drop of 53 per cent in the number of head of cattle.

Fifty per cent of the sheep have been lost, 54 per cent of the horses, asses and mules, and 85 per cent of the swine — all as a result of the German occupation.

Littoria Province, which in 1942 had 57,300 cattle, now has only 7,350. It has also lost 82 per cent of its pigs, 83 per cent of its sheep, and 60 per cent of its horses, mules, and asses.

Ninety-one per cent of the more than 50,000 head of mules, asses, and horses in the mountainous province of Frosinone were destroyed by the Germans, along with 94 per cent of its swine, 77 per cent of its cattle and 76 per cent of its sheep.

The Province of Viterbo was looted of 60 per cent of its pigs, 34 per cent of its cattle, 35 per cent of its horses, mules, and asses, and 32 per cent of its sheep.

From the provinces of Rieti and Terni together, about 40 per cent of the sheep and cattle have disappeared, and about half of the other animals.

It is against this background that Allied officials and the Italian authorities are moving to rebuild the cattle farms in liberated Italy.

It is one of the gravest problems of rehabilitation now confronting the Allied Commission. (UNN)

58 NATIONS TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, October 30 — Fifty-eight governments, 50 of them members of the United Nations, and eight neutrals, are participating in the International Civil Aviation Conference which will open here Wednesday.

Held at the invitation of the Department of State the conference was called so that «all the important trade populations of the world may obtain the benefits of air transportation as soon as possible,» and to help restore communications which will «assist in the return of great areas to the processes of peace.»

The tentative agenda suggests that the conference may arrange for the immediate establishment of provisional world trade routes by general agreement. It is also proposed that the conferees take action designed to lay the foundations for establishment of a permanent international aviation body.

The conference also will discuss such matters as technical standards, communications systems, aids to air navigation, and air traffic controls. (OWI)

DE GAULLE REJECTS PROTEST

PARIS, October 30 — General Charles de Gaulle last night rejected a formal protest by the Council of National Resistance against the government's failure to consult it on the decision to disarm patriotic military units.

The council's protest did not object to the action against the patriotic militia, but the lack of consultation with it on the decision to curtail its activities, an American press service said.

General de Gaulle told a deputation from the National Resistance Council last night that « it is the government's strict duty to see that henceforth no armed unit remains in liberated territory outside of the army and state police units. »

A communique issued after the meeting on differences over the disarming of Patriots also stated that arms collected from the « Patriotic Militia » would be handed over to the armies fighting at the front.

Prior to the de Gaulle-NRC meeting, another French group, the Congress of the National Liberation Movement, had decided unanimously to unite all resistance movements in the National Liberation Front, so that the program of the National Liberation Movement (MLN) might be implemented at once.

One of the aims of the MLN program is the « adoption of measures which would lead to the rapid equipment of the French Forces of the Interior. »

The MLN includes six Resistance groups that helped liberated France; they claim a membership of more than a million, and have worked together through the National

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Resistance Council. Also included in the last-named are representatives of trade unions and political parties.

The French Telegraph Agency gave further details of the MLN program, which includes: «The maintenance of French economic sovereignty within the framework of French alliances; the participation of France in all international conferences, particularly those concerning the settlement of European peace-time statutes; the employment of energetic action against Fifth Columnists and traitors; and the immediate requisitioning of concerns capable of working for the improvement of the food supply situation.»

The MLN wants also to nationalize financial concerns and key industries, and to work out pension and compensation schemes for war victims and some form of insurance against agricultural disasters. Legislation for the protection of the rights of women and children, including educational equality for children, is also advocated.

General De Gaulle's firm attitude on this question of disarming the Patriots has resulted in the first serious trial of strength between the French Government and the organized Resistance Movement, Harold King, Reuter correspondent, said in a dispatch today.

FRENCH COLLABORATIONIST EDITOR SENTENCED

PARIS, October 30. — Stephan Lauzanne, 72-year old editor and former director of the Paris paper Le Matin, was sentenced tonight to 20 years of solitary confinement on a charge of «intelligence with an enemy power.»

The trial opened this morning at the Assize Court, and the jury that convicted Lauzanne included two women, the first to sit on a jury in this court.

In his defense, Lauzanne attacked Great Britain for her foreign policy. The judge reprimanded him for being a violent Anglophobe and anti-American, which, the judge added, served to help Germany's designs of hegemony.

Lauzanne denied ever having defended German ideas, but said that after an interview in 1940 with Marshal Pétain, he came away with «good faith in and a deep impression of» the marshal.

Georges Suarez, editor of the collaborationist paper Aujourd'hui, now under a death sentence, will have his appeal heard beginning Thursday. The assassins of Georges Mandel also will have their appeal heard the same day.

The appeals will be examined first at a session of the temporary chamber of the Court of Appeal, which will decide on the points of law. (OWI-Reuter)

NAZI BARBARISM INFLUENCES SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, October 30 — An official Swedish announcement declared today that German barbarism in Norway and Denmark had directly influenced Swedish-German relations. The declaration was contained in an official Swedish Government statement of foreign policy read in the Riksdag by Premier Hansson and Foreign Minister Günther.

The statement said, in part: «Our people are shocked and upset by all that has been done against our western neighbors, and it must be pointed out that Germany's attitude toward Denmark and Norway directly influenced the Swedish attitude toward Germany, and therefore also Swedish-German relations.

«We cannot concur with the German view that what happens in the countries of our neighbors does not concern us. Nor will any further deprecating attitude by Germany hinder the Government's continued support of the oppresed.» (OWI)

GREEKS ENACT LAW TO PUNISH QUISLINGS

ATHENS, October 30 — A law for the punishment of Greek quislings has been announced by the Greek Minister of Justice, Radio Athens said today.

The law provides that all Greeks who, during the German occupation, «deliberately and treacherously» coöperated with the enemy, will be punished if the enemy derived any benefit from this collaboration, and harm was caused to the national or Allied struggle or to Greek or Allied citizens. (OWI)

U. K. TO PURCHASE SURPLUS IRAQ BARLEY

BAGDAD, October 30 — Negotiations have been successfully concluded between the British and Iraq governments for the purchase by Britain of 200,000 tons of barley, of the 1944 crop surplus. (Reuter)

U. S. LEADERS SALUTE SOVIET FRIENDSHIP

NEW YORK, October 30 — Leaders in American Government and private affairs yesterday saluted Soviet-United States friendship in statements to the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship Incorporated. Their statements were made as arrangements went ahead for the celebration of the 11th anniversary of U.S.S.R. and United States diplomatic relations, to be held here on November 16.

The celebration has been entitled «U.S.A.-U.S.S.R. — Nations United for Victory and Peace.»

«The magnificent fight the Russian people have made in this war against the enemies of free peoples has won the admiration of all Americans,» said J. A. Krug, Chairman of the U. S. War Production Board. He urged continued friendship, saying, «I believe there will be a great need and a great opportunity for continued coöperation and friendship when the war ends, and I believe out of that coöperation, people of both countries will derive lasting benefits.»

Frank Murphy, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, said, «On this anniversary occasion, along with other Americans, I express gratitude to soldiers of the Soviet armies for the sacrifices they have made on the field of battle — sacrifices which have meant the saving of lives of American soldiers.»

Stanley Reed, also Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, emphasized that coöperation between the two nations would not cease with the termination of the present war.

NAZI BARBARISM INFLUENCES SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, October 30 — An official Swedish announcement declared today that German barbarism in Norway and Denmark had directly influenced Swedish-German relations. The declaration was contained in an official Swedish Government statement of foreign policy read in the Riksdag by Premier Hansson and Foreign Minister Günther.

The statement said, in part: «Our people are shocked and upset by all that has been done against our western neighbors, and it must be pointed out that Germany's attitude toward Denmark and Norway directly influenced the Swedish attitude toward Germany, and therefore also Swedish-German relations.

«We cannot concur with the German view that what happens in the countries of our neighbors does not concern us. Nor will any further deprecating attitude by Germany hinder the Government's continued support of the oppressed.» (OWI)

INONU PLEDGES TURKISH POST-WAR COOPERATION

ANKARA, October 30 — The Turkish people must be prepared to play their part in the post-war world «to insure that mankind can obtain a new and vast world order spreading security for all nations,» Turkish President Ismet Inonu said yesterday in an address on the 21st anniversary of the founding of the Turkish Republic.

A message of congratulations to President Inonu was received from King George of Britain. (BBC)

ARGENTINE GENERAL REPORTED ARRESTED

NEW YORK, October 30 — Gen. Arturo Rawson, leader of the troops who marched on Buenos Aires on 4 June, 1943, and president of an Argentine provisional government for one day, is under arrest, a dispatch to The New York Times said yesterday.

The dispatch said that General Rawson was placed under detention by the commander of the Argentine 1st Army Division.

In Salta recently, the local newspaper Provincia — since suspended — printed an interview with General Rawson in which, speaking as a private citizen, he gave his views of international affairs, and insisted especially that Argentina reach an understanding with The United States. (OWI)

U. S. NOT TO DISCOURAGE P. A. CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, October 30 — The United States will do nothing «to discourage a meeting of the foreign ministers of the American nations,» Edward Stettinius, Acting Secretary of State said today.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

His assertion was made at a press conference called here in response to questions on Argentina's formal request to the Pan-American Union that a meeting be called to consider the fact that practically none of the other American nations now have diplomatic relations with her.

Stettinius said that he would attend the meeting, November 1, of the Pan-American Union's Governing Board, and assumed that this question would be presented then.

Meanwhile, the Government of El Salvador has announced that it will decline any invitation to participate in a conference of foreign ministers of the American republics called by the Argentine Government, unless such an invitation is extended by The United States. Foreign Minister Arrieta Rossi said yesterday that in these matters, the El Salvador Government wants to act in agreement with other Allied nations, and in accordance with existing pacts against Nazi-Fascist states. WAR COMMUNIQUES

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 30 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Weather conditions in Italy have improved, and patrols have been very active.

Land Forces Greece:

Kozani was captured by British troops yesterday after a sharp engagement to the west of the town, during which the enemy offered stiff resistance. Our troops received an enthusiastic welcome from the inhabitants when the town was entered at 1445 hours. Casualties were inflicted on the enemy in the engagement.

The enemy is withdrawing to the northward, and our advanced patrols are continuing to maintain contact. Rail traffic in the Salonika area during the period 1500 hours 28 October to 1500 hours 29 October was attacked by Spitfires. The attack resulted in seven locomotives' being destroyed and nine damaged, and 11 trucks destroyed.

Operating in the same area, night Beaufighters saw two large explosions and fires on the docks.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Despite poor weather conditions, which forced the cancellation of most operations yesterday, a small force of escorted heavy bombers bombed targets in southern Germany.

Long-range fighters strafed road and rail traffic in Austria.

In the Italian battle area, fighters and fighter-bombers attacked gun positions, motor and rail transport, and a bridge.

Enemy shipping in the Adriatic was attacked by fighters, fighter-bombers, and light bombers.

Troop concentrations and military traffic in Albania were attacked by fighters and fighter-bombers.

From these operations, seven of our aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew approximately 700 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 30 — Today's communique:

Cadzand and Zuidzande, south of the Scheldt, have been taken by Allied troops.

In South Beveland, our troops freed Goes, and linked up with our seaborne forces in the area of Hoedekenskerke. [illegible] was also cleared to the westward.

River Ahr, south of Bonn, and sealed two nearby railway tunnels.

Fighter-bombers hit highways radiating northward from Düren, railway yards at Kerpen, and cut rail lines in many places between Münster and the Dutch-German frontier, and in the areas of Bonn and Coblenz. They also attacked locomotives, rail cars, and barges over a wide area, and silenced gun positions.

Our units made slight gains in the Lunéville sector.

East of Rambervillers, we took Fraipertuis, and held the village against strong counter-attacks.

Other counter-attacks against our positions in the Vosges Mountains were repulsed.

Yesterday morning heavy bombers, one of which is missing, attacked the battleship Tirpitz, near Tromsö.

According to reports so far received, 28 enemy aircraft were shot down during yesterday. One medium bomber and nine fighter-bombers are missing. (Reuter)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, October 30 — Tonight's communique:

During October 30, on the territory of Czechoslovakia, north of Uzhorod, our troops fought advance battles, in the course of which they captured the populated localities of Chebalovtse, Olshenko, Vilok, Poregubovtse, Grivishte, Honkovtse, and Hebaba.

According to verified data, during the time from October 27 to 29, troops of the 4th Ukrainian Front, operating on the Czechoslovakian territory, captured 10,160 officers and men of the enemy. Thus, the number of German and Hungarian officers and men captured by the troops of the 4th Ukrainian Front, during the battles from October 20 to 29, has increased to 21,290 men.

In Hungary, northwest of Satu-Mare, our troops occupied in fighting the junctional railway station of Vasaros-Nameny, and the large populated localities of Dure, Varszak, Milk, Nyirmada, Rohot, and Seerto.

On all other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 29, our troops on all fronts damaged or destroyed 72 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 37 enemy aircraft were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE, HQ, AAI, October 30 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

Intense activity has been carried out by Piedmont Patriots against enemy garrisons, isolated patrols, and transport facilities.

A squad of engineers belonging to a Garibaldi Brigade compelled the Germans to suspend attempts to reactivate the high-tension power line between Almese and Condove, in the province of Turin. Patriots of the same brigade destroyed a motor vehicle near S. Ambroglo di Torino, and captured the three Germans who were guarding it.

The Pollenzo bridge, in Cuneo Province, was blown up, and the sentries posted there killed.

An important military telephone-line was also cut near Sant'Antonio.

In this same locality, the commander of a Garibaldi Brigade, known under the assumed name of Baratta, met his death. After a series of daring actions, carried out with total disregard for the danger involved, he entered a public place where many Germans were assembled and demanded their surrender. The Germans rushed the heroic Patriot leader, who killed five of them with a tommy-gun before he himself was killed by a sub-machine gun volley at close Cadzand and Zuidzande, south of the Schelde, have been taken by Allied troops.

In South Beveland, our troops freed Goes, and linked up with our seaborne forces in the area of Hoedekenskerke. The seaborne bridgehead was also enlarged to the westward.

Defenses on the island of Walcheren were attacked yesterday by heavy bombers, one of which is missing, and by fighter-bombers which escorted heavy bombers and made low-level attacks on flak positions.

Allied forces continue their advance along the whole front south of the Maas.

Breda was freed by troops advancing from the east.

Other forces driving from the south cut the road between Breda and Roosendaal.

Fighter-bombers strafed road transport north of these two towns, and medium bombers attacked a bridge at Moerdijk.

In the area north of Tilburg our forces are some miles north and west of Loon op Zand.

Fighter-bombers cut railway lines between Amersfoort and Zwolle, in the Venlo area, and elsewhere behind the battle areas in Holland.

In southeastern Holland, medium bombers also attacked communications at Venlo and a bridge at Roermond.

Our ground forces held further enemy attacks in the Meux-Meijel area.

Bridges at Konz Karthaus, Euskirchen, Mayen, and Ellery were targets for medium bombers, and fighter-bombers destroyed three bridges and damaged a fourth across the course of which they captured the populated localities of Chebulovtse, Olshenko, Vilok, Poregubovtse, Grivishte, Honkovtse, and Hebaba.

The Germans rushed the heroic Patriot leader, who killed five of them with a tommy-gun before he himself was killed by a sub-machine gun volley at close range.

On October 12, a group of Patriots executed a bold action against the Susa Prison, in the course of which they disarmed the guards and freed two Patriots. A demand for a truce by the enemy, who threatened reprisals in the event of its rejection, was refused by a group of Patriots who ambused a German car and killed six officers.

Other elements of a Garibaldi Brigade succeeded in entering Turin undiscovered and captured and carried off a colonel of the Fascist Republican Guard and two soldiers of the 10th MAS flotilla.

Two Fascist spies were shot at Avigliana.

At Arvier, in Aosta Province, 12 heads of families were shot by the Nazi-Fascists, after which they set fire to many houses in the village.

Menolzio, in Turin Province, is the name of the village mentioned in yesterday's bulletin as completely destroyed by fire in a German reprisal action.

In the area north of Vicenza, two large excavators, used by the enemy in fortifications projects, were destroyed on October 2.

Three trucks loaded with ammunition were blown up near Valvasone, in Udine Province.

Near Borgotaro, in the Appennines, Patriots derailed three locomotives. (UNN)

NEWS FROM ENEMY SOURCES

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE.

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 30 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Canadian tank forces launched an attack on the eastern flank of the Dunkirk Fortress after a barrage. The enemy, who had temporarily achieved a penetration, was immediately driven back by a counter-attack and suffered heavy losses.

The fighting against enemy tank units at our bridgehead, northeast of Brusges up to the Hertogenbosch sector, developed into a huge battle. Our divisions, which were exposed to extremely fierce bombardments from the air and the ground, in gallant fighting frustrated the enemy attempts at breaking through, but were forced in some sectors to withdraw in the evening, in face of the enemy's superiority. Hertogenbosch was lost to the enemy after grim house-to-house fighting.

Escort vessels of the Navy set a British motor assault boat on fire off the Dutch coast.

In the Rambervillers and Mortagne sectors, the Americans continued to attack with strong bomber support after a fierce artillery preparation. They captured only some forest ground.

Farther south, in the Cornimont sector, German attacks resulted in pushing forward our positions westward.

In the west, over the rear areas, our fighters engaged superior enemy fighter squadrons in grim dog fights. Fourteen Anglo-American planes were brought down.

Last night, fast German fighter-bombers and night bombers continued successfully to bomb enemy supply centres at Aix la Chapelle and in Holland.

Italy:

In central Italy, shock detachments liquidated enemy strongpoints.

North and east of Loiano, yesterday, the enemy activities were again limited to artillery fire and some unsuccessful attacks.

British troops which tried to cross the Ronco, north of Meldola, were driven back with heavy losses.

Eastern Front:

Between the Danube and the lower reaches of the Tisa, Hungarian units were engaged by the Bolsheviks, who attacked in several sectors.

In the Debrecen sector, German and Hungarian troops, under the command of General of the Infantry Wöhler and General of the Artillery Fretter-Pico, crushed strong enemy forces in a three-week battle, thus frustrating the encirclement of the German and Hungarian formations in southeastern Hungary which the enemy had planned. Tank forces under the command of General of the Tank Troops Breith, and the squadrons of an air wing under the command of Colonel General Dessloch also distinguished themselves in the achievement of this great victory. The Soviet 27th Army, the 6th Tank Army of the Guards, as well as several tank and cavalry corps suffered high losses in men and material. The Soviets lost many thousands of dead and 6,600 prisoners. Seven hundred and ninety-three enemy tanks and mobile guns, 1,010 guns of all kinds, and nearly 2,000 vehicles, as well as big quantities of other arms and material, were destroyed or captured.

West of the Dukla Pass, yesterday, all enemy attacks collapsed in the defensive fire.

In the northern sector, the grim fighting continues with undiminished fury, with the Soviets throwing reinforcements into the battle. Ninety-three tanks were destroyed.

Southeast of Libau, our divisions again achieved a

Roosendaal was not admitted or even mentioned by the German Radio.

Allies Destroy Dutchmen and «Beautiful Island»: The leading atrocity story of the day is the Transocean report telegraphed from a special German correspondent «somewhere in western Holland» concerning what he calls the Allied-created «wet Hell.» At Walcheren, 3,000 to 5,000 Dutchmen allegedly «lost their lives» owing to British destruction of dikes. «Thirty thousand are fighting for their lives, endangered by floods, famine, thirst, and epidemics.» The reporter observed «heaps of drowned cadavers accumulating on dikes... victims of the giant catastrophe which overcame this beautiful island, probably sunk forever into the sea.»

Mystery of the Mayor of Aachen: Whereas Allied sources announced the swearing-in of Aachen's new «anti-Nazi Mayor, always known for his opposition to the Hitler régime,» the German Radio was playing up the theme that the supposedly universal love of Germans for Hitler has made the finding of a pro-Allied Mayor impossible.

«The Anglo-American authorities in Aachen,» said the German Home Service, «have tried very hard to find a German willing to accept the post of Mayor. In the enemy announcement it was admitted that the vain search for a Mayor is proof of the National Socialist views of the German people, which could not be shaken even by troops of foreign occupation.»

Eastern Front: Von Olberg reported on this front for Transocean. Of the Baltic sector, he said: «The big battle of Kurland is developing into a battle of attrition for the Soviet Armies.»

On the Hungarian sector, he claimed an Axis defensive victory: «In the southern Hungarian region, the Soviets again tried to launch an offensive to break through to Budapest. In a stubborn battle, Hungarian divisions halted this wave, and drove it back in repeated counter-thrusts.»

As for East Prussia, here a second Transocean correspondent ventured so far as to claim an actual offensive (or rather counter-offensive) victory: «Pillkallen, 23 kilometres from the eastern Reich border, temporarily taken by the Soviets, was liberated by East Prussian grenadiers in hard, close-range fighting.»

Military Situation Quiet: The Fascist radio tonight reported a slight flare-up of local fighting. The only action of importance was said to have been west of the Pistoia-Bologna Highway: here, German counter-attacks forced back the Allies from their initial penetration of German positions.

Fascist Anniversary Dicta: Speeches and editorials commemorating the anniversary of the March on Rome continued over the week-end. All merged in unstinted eulogy of Fascism's past achievements. Pity and tolerance were extended to those who have temporarily strayed from the fold; in this light, much was made of Il Duce's anniversary amnesty laws, by which political offenders sentenced to less than three years' imprisonment are to be freed. At the same time, those guilty of continued disobedience are severely threatened.

The future road of Fascism was given strongest emphasis, accent being made on the new era ushered in by Mussolini's Eighteen Point Programme laid down at Verona. In a peculiarly self-accusatory mood, commentators first admitted the truth of anti-Fascist accusations as to Fascism's use of force: «We will no longer stand for such errors' being committed against the Italian people's psychology; we do not want to hear any more talk of coercion, totalitarianism, and arrogance.» As Fascism, in its maturity, tends to abandon force for peaceful socialization, the Allies and Italian anti-Fascists begin to strangle Italy with violence and oppression. Such is the landscape on the anniversary of Fascism, according to the Fascist radio.

RADIO MILANO LIBERTA' (CLANDESTINE)

Allied Inefficiency in Italy: Radio Milano Libertà sustained a fairly consistent policy of attack against so-called Allied bungling in Italy. The contention was that not enough Fascists have been punished, and that too many neo-Fascists are still in responsible positions in liberated Italy. In a very strongly worded, almost caustic editorial, two demands were made: that Italy be allowed independent administration, and that «the control imposed by the armistice clauses be lifted.»

Quoting an Allied press article which saluted the activity of the Florence Liberation Committee, the clandestine radio suggested that the liberation committees are the best and most effective agents for driving out the German enemy, and for democratic reorganization.

Particularly insistent was the demand for speedy collectivazation of the large estates. Since the beginning of the Sicilian «incidents,» the «greedy» landowners have been implicated directly with the Separatist movement and with agrarian collapse in Sicily.

Autonomous administration, said Radio Milano Libertà, is the answer to the Separatists' machinations. «Radical educational and cultural reforms» are also demanded.

BREDA CAPTURED BY BRITISH 2ND ARMY ALLIED FORCES LINK ON SCHELDE ISLANDS

SHAEF, October 29 — With the capture of Breda by British 2nd Army troops tonight, the Germans now control only one main communications center on the lateral highway leading from Bergen op Zoom to Hertogenbosch. British and Canadian forces are closing in on the last remaining German strongpoint at Roosendaal and they have succeeded in freeing Wouw, two miles to the west, and Sprundel to the east.

Except for strong delaying action north of Bergen op Zoom and Hertogenbosch, the entire Allied line is moving forward at a rapid rate toward the Meuse River. British troops have advanced six miles north of Tilburg in the direction of Sprang, and were last reported to be five miles from the Meuse River.

The loss of Breda is a serious blow to the Germans, as the main road toward one of the two escape bridges across the Meuse runs through it. The Germans are in a full-scale withdrawal toward these bridges at Moerdijk and Geertruidenberg, but clearing weather will bring the retreating forces under heavy aerial attack.

Late reports tonight stated that Canadian forces driving westward from the Dutch mainland have linked with Allied [illegible] the southern coast of Beveland. After resulted in huge explosions, indicating hits on ammunition dumps. Before the attacks ended, intense anti-aircraft fire had subsided to almost nothing, as the gun crews and batteries had been knocked out during the blasts.

On the eastern flank of the Dutch salient, British artillery and aircraft supported American forces who were driven two miles west of the town of Liesel by a German counter-attack. The Germans threw between 300 and 400 troops into the counter-thrust, as well as 50 tanks and self-propelled guns, and established a bridgehead over the Deurne Canal west of Venlo. RAF fighter craft attacked German columns moving up to support the thrust, and knocked out seven tanks. Late reports indicated that the battle was still in progress.

Near the southern end of the 500-mile western front, Allied troops stormed the town of Jussarupt, 15 miles east of Epinal, against heavy German opposition. Heavy snow in the Vosges Mountains has severely limited Allied activity, but German artillery fire was reported to have increased. (OWI - Reuter - AP - BBC)

TWO RUSSIAN ARMIES NEARLY LINKED

MOSCOW, October 29 — Russian forces have captured Csap, an important railway junction on the borders of Ruthenia. Csap was taken by General Petrov's units pursuing their swift drive southward through the Carpathians after the liberation of Uzhorod.

General Petrov's Trans-Carpathian army is now less than 40 miles from Marshal Malinovsky's army in northeast Hungary in the Nyreghaza area. Soviet forces now threaten Hungary from the north, as well as from the south and east. West of Satu-Mare, Russian troops today fought their way into a number of places on Hungarian territory.

Tonight's Soviet communique gave no details of the fighting on other sectors of the Russian front, beyond reporting «reconnaissance activity and local fighting at a number of points.» Frontline and Moscow dispatches, however, emphasized the continued ferocity of the battle for East Prussia, described by one commentator as «the toughest yet on the Eastern Front since Stalingrad.»

On all sectors of the East Prussia front, Red Army vanguards are grappling with increasing masses of German troops counter-attacking from their defenses in depth. The Russians are faced with a growing intensity of artillery fire as the Germans draw heavily on reserves of guns and vast stores of ammunition. It is taking all the massive concentration of Russian artillery — 500 guns to every 1,000 yards — as well as the new 24 barrelled «Katusha,» to repulse the Germans who have thrown in at least four new panzer divisions into the Gumbinnen-Insterburg sector.

BREDA CAPTURED BY BRITISH 2ND ARMY ALLIED FORCES LINK ON SCHELDE ISLANDS

SHAEF, October 29 — With the capture of Breda by British 2nd Army troops tonight, the Germans now control only one main communications center on the lateral highway leading from Bergen op Zoom to Hertogenbosch. British and Canadian forces are closing in on the last remaining German strongpoint at Roosendaal and they have succeeded in freeing Wouw, two miles to the west, and Sprundel to the east.

Except for strong delaying action north of Bergen op Zoom and Hertogenbosch, the entire Allied line is moving forward at a rapid rate toward the Meuse River. British troops have advanced six miles north of Tilburg in the direction of Sprang, and were last reported to be five miles from the Meuse River.

The loss of Breda is a serious blow to the Germans, as the main road toward one of the two escape bridges across the Meuse runs through it. The Germans are in a full-scale withdrawal toward these bridges at Moerdijk and Geertruidenberg, but clearing weather will bring the retreating forces under heavy aerial attack.

Late reports tonight stated that Canadian forces driving westward from the Dutch mainland have linked with Allied bridgehead forces on the southern coast of Beveland. After joining at Hoedekenskerke on the southeastern tip, the combined forces advanced toward Goes, the island's main communications center, through which roads leading from Walcheren pass.

British and Canadian beachhead forces have reached Ellewoutsdijk, on the southwestern coast of the island, and are now swinging northward to Westkraaiert, rail town just east of Walcheren.

Kapelle Liberated

A second column of Canadian troops which thrust westward from the mainland has captured the town of Kapelle, on the northern side of the island's only rail line. Gravenpolder, four miles to the southwest, has also been taken.

Since the start of the Allied operation to clear the islands guarding the approaches to the port of Antwerp before winter, Canadian forces have taken 5,908 prisoners — over half the estimated strength of the two German garrisons. With the capture of Bergen op Zoom, these two garrisons can be supplied only over water routes from coastal islands to the north.

RAF fighter-bombers made four attacks on gun batteries on Walcheren Island and dropped 1,000-pound bombs on targets at West-Souberg, just north of Flushing. Each attack knocked out seven tanks. Late reports indicate that the battle was still in progress.

Near the southern end of the 500-mile western front, Allied troops stormed the town of Jussarupt, 15 miles east of Epinal, against heavy German opposition. Heavy snow in the Vosges Mountains has severely limited Allied activity, but German artillery fire was reported to have increased. (OWI - Reuter - AP - BBC)

TWO RUSSIAN ARMIES NEARLY LINKED

MOSCOW, October 29 — Russian forces have captured Csap, an important railway junction on the borders of Ruthenia. Csap was taken by General Petrov's units pursuing their swift drive southward through the Carpathians after the liberation of Uzhorod.

General Petrov's Trans-Carpathian army is now less than 40 miles from Marshal Malinovsky's army in northeast Hungary in the Nyregoaza area. Soviet forces now threaten Hungary from the north, as well as from the south and east. West of Satu-Mare, Russian troops today fought their way into a number of places on Hungarian territory.

Tonight's Soviet communique gave no details of the fighting on other sectors of the Russian front, beyond reporting «reconnaissance activity and local fighting at a number of points.» Frontline and Moscow dispatches, however, emphasized the continued ferocity of the battle for East Prussia, described by one commentator as «the toughest yet on the Eastern Front since Stalingrad.»

On all sectors of the East Prussia front, Red Army vanguards are grappling with increasing masses of German troops counter-attacking from their defenses in depth. The Russians are faced with a growing intensity of artillery fire as the Germans draw heavily on reserves of guns and vast stores of ammunition. It is taking all the massive concentration of Russian artillery — 500 guns to every 1,000 yards — as well as the new 24 barrelled «Katusha,» to repulse the Germans who have thrown in at least four new panzer divisions into the Gumbinnen-Insterburg sector.

NIMITZ PLACES JAPANESE NAVAL LOSSES AT 58

PEARL HARBOR — October 29 — Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, announced here tonight that 58 Japanese warships were sunk or damaged in the naval battle last week in Philippine waters.

Japanese losses included 24 ships sunk, 13 so severely damaged that they may have sunk, and 21 damaged.

The 1,100-word communique said that amplifying reports, although still subject to revision as more information is received, indicated an «overwhelming victory.» (Reuter)

BATTLE FOR LEYTE VALLEY ENDS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, October 29 — General Douglas MacArthur announced tonight in a late dispatch that the battle for Leyte Valley may be «considered at an end.» American forces now have liberated two-thirds of the entire island, he stated.

Dagami, a strongly defended Japanese junction point in Leyte Valley, was liberated by American troops. (Reuter) with long stretches of cultivation and open heath, with small towns, villages, and farms strengthened by concrete.

A new defense feature, according to a Moscow report, is concrete wells in which German infantry can take refuge while Soviet tanks roll overhead. The Russians are now preluding their tank attacks with showers of mortar-bombs against these invisible targets. Large mobile groups of Germans are trying to break into Soviet rear dispositions, but all attempts so far have failed.

(In Latvia, north of the East Prussian battlefront, German reports said, the Russians have thrown more than half a million men into the fighting. Some 70 miles east of the port of Libau, a great tank battle flared up at Auts, which a German military commentator said has been evacuated after bitter house-to-house fighting.)

In Libau port, Soviet airmen sank an enemy tanker and heavily damaged another, while in the fjords of northern Norway they sank a 5,000-ton transport, a patrol boat, and two motor boats, and damaged two German destroyers.

General Meretskov is intensifying pressure on all subsectors of the Arctic front to widen the gateway into the north Norwegian hinterland. In the Petsamo region, his troops liberated the whole length of the main traffic-line connecting Kirkenes and Rovaniemi, nearly 300 miles.

Finnish forces driving along the Arctic road toward Petsamo have liberated Vuotsa, 130 miles east of Muonio, a Finnish communique announced today. East and south of Muonio, on the Swedish frontier, hard fighting continued.

On all sectors of the Russian front, 88 German tanks were destroyed or disabled yesterday. (OWI-Reuter)

JAP SHIP LOSSES IN PHILIPPINES TOTAL 36

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, October 29 — Japanese losses in the three-day naval battle in the Philippines last week, in which the bulk of the Japanese Navy attempted to break up Allied operations in the central Philippines, today reached 36 warships sunk, probably sunk, or damaged and, according to Rear Admiral Forrest Sherman, Chief of Staff to Admiral Chester Nimitz, probably several more.

The mounting toll, which followed Admiral Nimitz's prediction that the total score would be much more than first announced, includes 10 battleships and three cruisers sunk or damaged. The breakdown follows:

Definitely Sunk: Four carriers, two battleships, three heavy cruisers, five light cruisers, and 10 destroyers.

Probably Sunk: One large carrier, two battleships.

Damaged: Six battleships, three cruisers, and an undetermined number of destroyers.

American losses were six warships — one light carrier, two escort carriers, two destroyers, and one destroyer escort.

The new totals included revised figures just issued by General Douglas MacArthur who said today that all of the 16 Japanese warships that came through the Surigao Strait were sunk. The enemy ships that escaped from the U.S. warships were later sunk by aircraft, General MacArthur said.

It was also announced today that hundreds of half-drowned Japanese sailors have been captured by American forces on Samar and Leyte Islands.

Admiral Nimitz, describing the Japanese defeat last week as the « greatest defeat yet suffered in the war, » said that the whole Japanese set-up in the Pacific was affected, since their supply lines have suffered a tremendous blow. It was on these supply lines that the defense of Japan itself depended, he said.

A BBC broadcast reported today that more naval losses have been inflicted on the Japanese by American carrier-based planes, operating off the southwest coast of Leyte. They sunk a Japanese destroyer and severely damaged a light cruiser. Seven Japanese planes were also brought down the same day, while one U.S. carrier received some damage.

the Philippine Islands, was reported by General MacArthur yesterday to be practically under American control, except for isolated groups of Japanese resistance.

Immediately to the north of Samar, across a strait only a few miles wide, lie the main Philippine island of Luzon and a railway leading directly to the capital Manila.

Continued air activity against Japanese supply lines and installations were announced in today's communique. Three enemy ships, including a destroyer, were damaged in a low-level strafing attack off Cebu. Mindanao suffered an airfield attack.

Airfields, shipping, supply dumps, enemy concentrations, and defense positions in an arc running from the Solomons to Borneo came in for Allied air attacks throughout the day, it was reported. (OWI - BBC)

ITALIAN FRONT ACTIVITY CONFINED TO PATROLS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 29 — With lowlands flooded and roads and bridges washed out in the aftermath of a two-day autumn gale, which left forward Allied troops in some areas cut off except by boat or amphibious vehicles, activity on the Italian front yesterday was confined to small-scale patrolling, it was announced here today.

In the flooded flatlands at the southeastern end of the valley of the Po, neither 8th Army nor enemy forces were able to move from their established positions on either side of the Ronco River just east of Forli, and the handful of Canadian foot patrols which ventured across the inundated Romagno countryside made no contact with enemy troops.

On the 5th Army front, German forces holding mountain escarpment defenses south and southeast of Bologna stepped up their artillery fire and counter-attacks against American forces now consolidated in a wedge-shaped salient pointing into the Sillaro River Valley toward Castel San Pietro.

American troops which had occupied Monte Mezzano, at the apex of this salient and within four miles of the Rimini-Bologna Highway, were withdrawn yesterday from these exposed positions back toward a 1,600-foot feature roughly a mile to the southest. Following the withdrawal, the American troops in this area consolidated their positions, today's official reports stated.

American troops captured Monte Mezzano and Il Poggio, just to the south, on Thursday, after three days of heavy fighting west of the small settlement of Vedriano.

Today's reports did not mention the forces which had pushed to the Il Poggio area, although these positions are east of the area toward which advance troops withdrew. German forces have dug a series of ridge-top entrenchments all along this sector to hold the threatening American penetration into the Sillaro Valley.

Monte Sacco Occupied

British troops on the right flank of the 5th Army front yesterday occupied the height of Monte Sacco, 16 miles southwest of Forli and three miles west of the Montone River.

Monte Sacco was reported clear of the enemy yesterday.

On the left flank of the 8th Army, Polish troops occupied the town of Predappio, on the Rabbi River some eight miles south of Forli.

Other 8th Army forces captured Monte Velde, a mile southeast of Predappio, and patrols of these forces reported that they had made contact with enemy forces over a mile to the north.

Troops of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force yesterday occupied Monte Faeto, west of Gallicano, and 16 miles north of Lucca in the Serchio River Valley, without enemy opposition. (PRO)

Rapid Progress on Leyte

With the Philippine sea area cleared of any menace from enemy warships, ground fighting continued to make progress at a surprising speed.

On Leyte, American ground patrols are ranging freely in all sectors, and enemy resistance was limited to delaying actions.

In the 5th Corps sector, the 1st Cavalry Division entered the north coastal town of Carigara after a three-mile advance. Units of the 24th Division made a four-mile advance into Leyte Valley, and are attacking Japanese positions at Alangalang.

American 7th Division forces have driven within a mile of Dagami, five miles north of Burauen, on the Carigara-Burauen inland road.

Enemy air activity was light and ineffectual, the communique reported; 20 enemy planes were shot down, 18 in air combat and two by anti-aircraft fire.

General MacArthur also announced that schools in the liberated areas in Leyte were now being reopened.

Philippine President Sergei Osmena stated yesterday that he hoped to have the civilian government of Samar fully functioning within two weeks. Samar, third-largest of of the Ronco River just east of Forli, and the handful of Canadian foot patrols which ventured across the inundated Romagno countryside made no contact with enemy troops.

R.A.F. HITS « TIRPITZ » BY DAY, COLOGNE BY NIGHT

LONDON, October 29 — RAF Lancaster bombers this morning flew to Tromsö, in northern Norway, to attack the German battleship Tirpitz with six-ton « earthquake bombs. » At least one direct hit was obtained on the 45,000-ton battleship, despite cloud cover which interfered with the attacks.

The Tirpitz was anchored at Hakkoy Island, four miles west of Tromsö, where the Germans were reported to have moved her from Alten Fjord, 100 miles farther north after the advance of the Russians to northern Norway. The round-trip involved a 2,500-mile flight for the Lancasters.

Another force of Lancasters was over the southern Norwegian coast last night, to attack the submarine shelters at Bergen, and lay mines in enemy waters.

RAF Bomber Command also maintained the air offensive against western Germany last night, when squadrons of Mosquitoes made two separate attacks on Cologne. Crews found large fires still burning there from the concentrated 1000-bomber attack yesterday afternoon, many of them apparently out of control.

The night operations cost the RAF five aircraft. Of the seven bombers and one fighter reported missing from the daylight attack on Cologne, four have been accounted for, said the British Air Ministry tonight.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

Less than one per cent of the 550 8th USAAF planes which yesterday attacked the Siegfried Line supply centers of Hamm and Münster are reported missing — three bombers and two fighters.

Latest air photographs of Essen show that this Ruhr city is almost entirely destroyed, with hundreds of bomb-craters throughout the whole built-up target area, the Air Ministry stated today. Almost all the remaining buildings in the Krupp works were destroyed or damaged.

Severe damage is also shown in the dock area of Neuss, an inland port, and at the Farbenindustrie Chemical Works at Leverkusen and the Thyssen steel works in Duisburg, where heavy damage was caused to large steel plants north and south of the main docks.

Tactical operations were carried out yesterday over a wide area in Holland and Western Germany by medium, light, and fighter bombers of the 9th USAAF, 8th USAAF, and 2nd TAF.

Ninth USAAF planes, ranging up and down the entire western front, attacked German railroads, factories, and gun positions in the face of strong Luftwaffe opposition. They disabled 33 locomotives, cut rail lines in 38 places, destroyed or damaged 166 rail cars, and shot down nine enemy planes for the loss of three.

Rail bridges at Deventer, over the Ijssel, at Ahrweiler and Sinzig, northwest of Coblenz, and a road bridge at Roermond over the Maas were attacked. A formation of 16 Thunderbolts attacked 80 German planes over the Rhineland, and shot down five.

The 2nd TAF, flying 1,200 sorties, raked gun positions and fortified buildings at the mouth of the Beveland Peninsula, facing the Canadian 1st Army on the Schelde Estuary and hit Dunkirk. They also bombarded railways between the American 1st Army lines and the Rhine.

Mitchells of 2nd TAF destroyed the bridge at Roermond leading directly from Rotterdam and Amsterdam to Düsseldorf, in the heart of the industrial Ruhr.

The American-held frontier town of Ubach, 11 miles north of Aachen, was bombed and strafed today by several Nazi-flown P-47 Thunderbolts, according to an Associated Press dispatch. (OWI-Reuter)

F.F.I. BEFORE LA ROCHELLE REINFORCED

PARIS, October 29 — American reinforcements have reached French Forces of the Interior before La Rochelle, on the Bay of Biscay, where 100,000 Germans are strongly entrenched, Radio Paris said this afternoon.

The broadcast said that a new offensive against this pocket of resistance might be expected soon. (Reuter)

R.A.F. FREED CONDEMNED FRENCH PATRIOTS

LONDON, October 29 — The escape of more than 100 French Patriots sentenced to be shot for helping the Allies was effected by RAF bombers, the Air Ministry revealed last night.

Manned by British, Australian, and New Zealand fliers, the planes literally opened the prison gates at Amiens with «deck-level, pin-point bombing» of the prison annex where the German guards were eating. The bombs tore wide open the walls of cells containing the Frenchmen scheduled to be executed. The Ministry said some were killed by the attack, but that most of them fled through their shattered cell walls and escaped. (OWI)

BULGARIAN ARMISTICE TERMS PUBLISHED

LONDON, October 29 — The terms of the armistice granted to Bulgaria by Great Britain, The United States, with the pre-conditions accepted by the Government of Bulgaria on October 11. Immediate steps must be taken to repeal all legislative and administrative provisions relating to the annexation into Bulgaria of Greek or Yugoslav territory.

The Government of Bulgaria will immediately release all Allied prisoners of war and internees, and will at their own expense provide for Allied prisoners of war, internees, displaced persons and refugees, including Greek and Yugoslav nationals, with food, clothing, medical services, and means of transportation for return to their own country.

The government of Bulgaria will coöperate in the apprehension and trial of persons accused of war crimes.

She will restore all property of the United Nations and their nationals, including Greek and Yugoslav property, and will make reparation for loss and damage caused by the war.

All valuables and materials removed during the war by Germany or Bulgaria from United Nations' territory will be returned.

All vessels belonging to the United Nations, as well as all vessels belonging to Germany or her satellites, will be turned over to the Allied Command.

Bulgaria is to make regular payments in Bulgarian currency and supply goods (fuel, foodstuff), facilities, and services, as may be required by the Allied (Soviet) High Command.

The terms also provide for Allied control of literature, theatrical performances of films, wireless stations, post, telegraph and telephone services. (OWI-Reuter)

TITO PROMISES FEDERAL, DEMOCRATIC YUGOSLAVIA

LONDON, October 29 — «We must guard our new federal and democratic Yugoslavia, in which every honest citizen will have full rights.» Marshal Tito, Commander-in-Chief of the Yugoslav Army of National Liberation, declared at a meeting of Partisan units today, according to the Free Yugoslav Radio.

«All will be given full opportunity for work and education and all that is necessary for civilized man,» Tito said, and added that never again would the country allow itself to be «small-change for bargaining.»

The mission of the Yugoslav Army of Liberation is not only to rid the country of the enemy, but also to chase him «into his lair, and there put an end to the monster who wanted to conquer the whole of mankind,» the Marshal said. «Our allies, the Soviet Union, Britain, and America, have come to give us help,» he continued, and concluded:

«We have won our right to participate equally with the Allies in the reconstruction of a new and happy Europe and Yugoslavia. I am confident that these aspirations of our people will be accepted by our allies.» (Reuter)

YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE METKOVIC

LONDON, October 29 — Units of the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation which yesterday liberated Split and a number of other enemy strongpoints in Dalmatia today continued their operations in the valley of the Lower Narenta River and captured Metkovic, Gabela, and Solac, said tonight's Yugoslav communique. These important enemy points protected the entrance to Mostar.

In Srem, Yugoslav forces, together with units of the Red Army, entered Sremska Mitrovica, where street fighting is taking place.

Fierce fighting is raging in the Cacak Kralievo sector, where the Germans are defending their positions tenaciously.

In the Glina area Yugoslavs captured Gorace Rogatica and cut off a German armored force trying to rejoin the bulk of the German forces in this area.

BULGARIAN ARMISTICE TERMS PUBLISHED

LONDON, October 29 — The terms of the armistice granted to Bulgaria by Great Britain, The United States, and Soviet Russia were made public here tonight and in Washington and Moscow.

The terms of the armistice agreement provide for the use of Bulgarian armed forces on the Allied side under the direction of the Soviet High Command.

Bulgaria is to disarm and hand over as prisoners all German forces within her territory. Her merchant ships are to sail for the Allies, and her factories may be used to assist the United Nations war effort.

As part of her reparation, Bulgaria is to send food to the relief of the Greeks and Yugoslavs who have suffered as a result of her aggression.

Fascism is to be stamped out. All pro-Fascist organisations are to be dissolved, racial and religious discriminatory laws are to repealed, and all people imprisoned for sympathy with the United Nations' cause will be freed.

War criminals are to be tried.

A three-power control commission, under Soviet chairmanship, will supervise the execution of the armistice terms.

On the conclusion of hostilities against Germany, the Bulgarian armed forces must be demobilized and put on a peace footing, under the supervision of the Allied Control Commission.

Bulgarian armed forces and officials must be withdrawn from the territory of Greece and Yugoslavia, in accordance with the armistice terms.

Bulgaria is to restore all property taken from Greece and Yugoslavia, and to pay reparations to Greece.

Bulgaria is to return all prisoners of war and civilians deported from the United Nations, and to facilitate the repatriation of Bulgarians in enemy countries.

Bulgaria is to cede to Greece Western Thrace, and to Yugoslavia the territory she occupied in 1941.

Bulgaria is to grant the United Nations the use of all means of communication, and to provide all information and services, as may be required by the Allied (Soviet) High Command.

The terms also provide for Allied control of literature, theatrical performances of films, wireless stations, post, telegraph and telephone services. (OWI-Reuter)

SWEDES SAY ALLIES FLY SUPPLIES TO FINNS

ALLIED PLANES IN BURMA CONTINUE ATTACKS

KANDY, CEYLON, October 29 — Allied planes in Burma are continuing their concentrated attacks on Japanese positions near Kennedy Peak and Sialum in the Chin Hills, it was announced here today. There has been no change in ground positions on the Tiddim-Fort White Road, the communique added.

In Arakan, patrols are operating in the Kaladan Valley, and artillery forces are harassing Japanese troop movements south of Maungdaw.

Planes of the Eastern Air Command on Friday and Saturday attacked enemy positions in the Chindwin region.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

They hit supply dumps in Arakan, and bridges, airfields, and railway targets in northern and central Burma. One Allied aircraft is missing.

Commenting on the recall of General Joseph Stilwell to Washington yesterday, a BBC correspondent said in a dispatch today that the recall does not mean any change in Allied policy toward China.

It is part of the Southeast Asia Command's job, he pointed out, to keep the supply line to China open and to keep it working. The many new airfields which are under construction and the development of other flying facilities indicate that the flow of supplies to China will increase, and, at the same time, there will be no pause in the fight to reopen the Burma Road, he said. THREE SMALL U.S. SHIPS TOOK ON JAP FLEET

ABOARD ADMIRAL KINCAID'S FLAGSHIP, October 29 — Three small American warships, two destroyers and a small destroyer escort, engaged the main Japanese battle fleet consisting of four battleships, eight cruisers, and 13 destroyers off the east coast of Samar Island, to cover a retreat of vulnerable U. S. escort carriers on the morning of October 25, the opening day of the gigantic naval battle that was to spell doom for the Japanese Navy.

An Associated Press correspondent, describing the heroic action, quoted an aviation machinist's mate who was standing on the flight deck of the carrier in the center of the attack, as saying that he saw a destroyer escort lay down a smokescreen and then dart back into it to deliver close-range torpedo blows.

«The two destroyers then followed up the attack, and their own torpedoes struck a Japanese battleship,» Russell said. «I saw it much later in a sinking condition.»

The correspondent reported that the carriers were under attack by the Japanese warships and some 200 land-based Zero planes, but pilots from the baby flat-tops attacked the enemy with such fury that the Japanese were forced to withdraw. (OWI)

«T» FORMATION OF U.S.N. CRUSHED JAP FLEET

NEW YORK, October 28 — A classic naval maneuver — the «T» formation — was employed by American naval forces to crush the Japanese force in Surigao Straits, off the Philippines, Russel Brines, Associated Press war analyst, said here today.

«We completely 'crossed' their 'T,» said Rear Admiral Jesse Oldendorf who commanded the forces which beat back this direct Japanese threat to the Allied supply armada off the Leyte beachhead in the Philippines.

Brines said that this maneuver, which Tokyo mistakenly claimed the Japanese originated, is accomplished only by a fleet superior in speed, maneuverability, and leadership.

«The 'T' was 'crossed' when the Allied naval column, cruising at right angles to the Japanese battleline, passed ahead of the Japanese lead ships,» the analyst continued. «Guns from each ship in the top bar roared in a concentrated blast on the first Japanese warships, which then were brought under superior firepower.

«The Japanese warcraft near the stem of the 'T' were out of the battle temporarily, because of the range. They were attacked subsequently with the same concentration of power when the lead ships were knocked out.

«The principle of this maneuver was developed by the British in the 18th Century. British Admiral Jellicoe crossed the 'T' twice in the Battle of Jutland (with the German Navy) during the last World War.

JAP PREMIER NAMES NEW ADVISORY COUNCIL

WASHINGTON, October 29 — Japan's Premier, General Kuniaki Koiso, has named four former cabinet ministers, two of whom are full admirals, among the 12 members of his new «Advisory Council,» which he set up yesterday, announced Radio Tokyo today.

At the same time, Koiso abolished the «Advisory Council» set up by his predecessor, General Hideki Tojo on 17 March 1943, after the Japanese defeat in the battle of the Bismarck Sea. Koiso hurried to appoint the new council only two days after the routing of the Japanese Navy in the battle of the Philippines.

Among his appointments as listed by Radio Tokyo are Admiral Toyada, President of the Japanese Iron Works, a former cabinet member, and one of the members of Tojo's advisory council; also the former Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese Fleet, Admiral Suetsugu; and a former home minister, finance ministers, a former foreign minister, and shipping, industrial, and newspaper magnates. GERMANS WITHDRAWING FROM KOZANI HARASSED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 29 — British forces are harassing German troops withdrawing from the vicinity of the Macedonian mountain town of Kozani, and have brought up artillery pieces to silence the German guns and mortars protecting the fleeing enemy rear-guards, it was announced here this afternoon.

The British forces have closed in on the town, some 80 road miles west of Salonika, and have subjected German positions on its outskirts to heavy pounding, a communique from Land Forces Greece declared.

Bad weather grounded planes of Allied air forces operating from Greek airfields against the retreating enemy columns yesterday, the communique stated. (PRO)

KLAGENFURT AND SOUTHERN GERMANY BOMBED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 29 — Despite bad weather, which reduced Mediterranean Allied Air Force sorties to less than 200 for the third successive day, small forces of Flying Fortresses and night bombers yesterday subjected targets in Klagenfurt and southern Germany to day and night bombardment, it was announced here today.

No details were available on results of either attack, although it was stated that the target in Klagenfurt, an aircraft factory, was obscured by clouds when the bombers were over the area.

Fighters and fighter-bombers continued their attacks of attrition against enemy motor and rail transport in the Po Valley and in the Balkans, adding 18 locomotives, 61 freight cars, and 58 vehicles to the steadily-mounting toll of enemy equipment destroyed or damaged. (PRO)

GERMANS REPORT NEW LANDING ON MELOS

LONDON, October 29 — Allied forces have landed on the Island of Melos, about 70 miles east of the Greek mainland in the Cyclades, said German reports today.

There is no confirmation of this from any Allied source, but yesterday's communique from the Mediterranean said that Allied warships had bombarded Melos. (BBC)

GERMANS SAY R. N. ATTACK CONVOY OFF GENOA

LONDON, October 29 — British motor torpedo-boats attacked a German convoy off the Italian coast between Genoa and Spezia last night, said the German news agency that was to spell doom for the Japanese Navy.

An Associated Press correspondent, describing the heroic action, quoted an aviation machinist's mate who was standing on the flight deck of the carrier in the center of the attack, as saying that he saw a destroyer escort lay down a smokescreen and then dart back into it to deliver close-range torpedo blows.

« The two destroyers then followed up the attack, and their own torpedoes struck a Japanese battleship, » Russell said. « I saw it much later in a sinking condition. »

U. S. OFFICER SPENDS 7 MONTHS IN PHILIPPINES

WITH U. S. RANGERS IN PHILIPPINES, October 29 — A USAAF officer, Lieut. Leon Tinnell, spent seven months on Mindanao Island in the Philippines prior to the landings last week, living and fighting with Patriots and gathering vital information for American headquarters, a delayed Associated Press dispatch revealed today.

To obtain the information, which played an important part in the drive back to the Philippines, Tinnel went to Mindanao by submarine, the dispatch said, and came out the same way. But during those seven months he radioed information to American headquarters which resulted in the sinking of 50 enemy ships; told headquarters when and where Japanese troops were moving; what installations the enemy was building and where. GREECE WILL GET GENEROUS RELIEF

ATHENS, October 29 — An « exceptionally generous share » of relief was promised to Greece here today by General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Supreme Commander, Mediterranean Theater, when he praised the Greek guerrillas and people at a press conference.

« There are many difficulties ahead, especially in the matter of supplies and transport, and the fact that the liberation of other countries is going on makes the problem more difficult », he said.

Asked if British troops would stay in Greece after her complete liberation, General Wilson said:

« GET READY TO DIE NOW, » GERMAN SOLDIERS TOLD

HEADQUARTERS, AAI, October 29 — German soldiers sent as replacements to the 715th Infantry Division on the Italian front have been told to be prepared for immediate death in action, or be shot in the back.

This was revealed by prisoners captured from the 592nd March Battalion, who were present at divisional headquarters when a major addressed them as follows:

« You've come here to die, so you may as well get used to the idea. The line must be held whatever the cost. If we lose the war, we shall be either bolshevized by the Russians, or sterilized by the Anglo-Americans. »

Following the familiar propaganda trend to bolster morale, he added: « In two or three months, a new weapon will be used by us which will be annihilating. »

But the major went on to say: « Deserters will have no mercy shown them. We know the old front-line pig (der alte Frontschwein) who has done five years' service and will shoot behind him, as soon as in front of him. You've got to die once anyhow, so get ready to die now. » (PWB)

INCREASING INDISCIPLINE IN GERMAN ARMY

HEADQUARTERS, AAI, October 29 — A growing lack of discipline in the German Army is shown in the increase in court-martial cases, as revealed in an order issued by the Judge Advocate Section of the 362nd Infantry Division.

This order, signed by Major General Greiner, and captured in Italy, stated:

« During the period 27 July to 26 August 1944, 150 court-martial cases were submitted to the Divisional Judge Advocate. Since up to that time the average of delinquencies had been 25 to 30 cases per month, this increase is considerable.

« It is, therefore, the task of each officer, particularly the company commander, to counteract this danger with all the means at his disposal, in order to prevent the development of a deep-rooted laxity of discipline, and the resulting decrease in combat efficiency.

« The main offences noted in recent months are AWL, desertion, plundering, disobedience — and, to a lesser degree, cowardice.

« Many offenses (such as AWL, desertion, cowardice, disobedience) are the result of a declining faith in victory. »

Following instructions from the German Army's morale-boosting department, the Leadership Corps, General Greiner proceeds:

« It must be explained again and again to every man that the great turn of the war will come with the advent of new weapons. » (PWB)

VON PAULUS URGES GERMANS TO QUIT HITLER

MOSCOW, October 29 — « There is only one way left » for the German people to get out of the war, Field Marshal Friedrich von Paulus, now a prisoner of war in Russia, said in a broadcast over Radio Moscow yesterday — « to separate from Hitler. »

The former commander of the German forces at Stalingrad « Himmler knows very well that these are not dishonorable men. A Himmler who, by his actions, has deprived our people of its honor and now intends unscrupulously to drive it to suicide with his Volkssturm, has no right to judge honor.

« The League of German Officers, however, led by General von Seydlitz, is fighting in the ranks of the Free Germany Movement for the restoration of the honor of the German people. »

Broadcasting also over the Free German transmitter from Moscow, Von Paulus said that Soviet General Chernyahovsky had concentrated in East Prussia, for his drive against the Reich proper, greater forces than have ever been amassed for a Soviet offensive in three years of war. (OWI)

ITALY FACES GREATER RESPONSIBILITIES

NEW YORK, October 29 — From now on, the Italian Government must take on increasingly greater responsibility and must courageously stand up to and resolve all the difficulties with which it is and will be faced, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia said in a broadcast here tonight.

The United States and Great Britain, Mayor LaGuardia said, have the moral responsibility for the extension of such material aid as is necessary to assist the country's recovery.

The Mayor said the recent reëstablishment of diplomatic relations between Italy and Allied and neutral countries places her among the sovereign nations of the civilized world, and leaves no doubt as to her political status. (UNN)

A.R.C. CHAIRMAN FORESEES HARD ITALIAN WINTER

NEW YORK, October 29 — Unless there is an improvement in the transportation situation in Italy, that country, together with Britain and France, will face « a bad winter, » Basil O'Connor, chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, declared here yesterday upon his return from a 28-day trip through those countries.

« The great need can be summed up in one word — transportation. This involves shipping from this country, as well as transportation problems abroad, » O'Connor continued.

« There is considerable malnutrition in all of these countries, and it will be a bad winter. The chief need is for food and clothing. If transportation can be obtained, I would give clothing the highest priority. If there is no transportation, then the need will be for food and fuel. »

O'Connor stressed that conditions were « very bad in Italy, » and reported the tremendous war damage in that country.

The Red Cross, O'Connor added, has sent six million dollars' worth of clothing into Italy and a million articles into Greece, in addition to millions of articles of clothing into France. In Italy, the Red Cross is working in cooperation with the Army. (OWI)

MOSCOW, October 29 — «There is only one way left» for the German people to get out of the war, Field Marshal Friedrich von Paulus, now a prisoner of war in Russia, said in a broadcast over Radio Moscow yesterday — «to separate from Hitler.»

The former commander of the German forces at Stalingrad also contrasted the treatment given by the Russians to their war prisoners and the atrocities committed by Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo head and now chief of Hitler's «People's Army.»

Von Paulus said, in part:

«At the beginning of August this year, the development of the general situation caused me to abandon the natural reticence imposed on me by my status as a prisoner of war. I felt it was my duty toward my fatherland to tell my comrades and our entire people that there was only one way left out of the seeming hopelessness of our position — to separate from Hitler and end the war.

«It is an infamous lie for Himmler to assert that the German soldiers taken prisoner by the Russians are being treated inhumanly, and are being forced by lashing and the threat of being shot to make propaganda against their own fatherland. The truth is that, in spite of the numerous brutal atrocities committed by Himmler's orders against hundreds of thousands of defenseless men, women, and children of all nations in occupied territories and German concentration camps alike, the German prisoners of war in the Soviet Union are treated in a just and humane manner.

«As a duty to their own people, hundreds of thousands of German prisoners of war have joined the Free Germany Movement, including thousands of German officers and more than 30 generals.

PAPER MILLS IN LIRI VALLEY REACTIVATED

ROME, October 29 — Four big paper mills in the Liri Valley are being reactivated under direction of the Allied Commission, W. S. Vaughan, director of the AC's industry sub-commission, said today.

Another large paper mill has been reopened in Foggia Province, where an excess of straw is being utilized to make cellulose, which in turn becomes paper, Vaughan said.

One of the paper mills in the Liri Valley had been mined by the Germans but, before the destruction could be carried out, they were routed by American artillery fire.

Already two revived paper plants, one in Rome and one in Tivoli, are making a total of 200 tons of newsprint a month. As soon as electrical power is available, they will be capable of turning out 600 tons of newsprint monthly.

«This program is part of the Allied effort to reëstablish freedom of expression through the printing press,» Vaughan said.

Besides paper, factories in liberated Italy have begun again to produce soap, steel, silk, cement, bricks, chemicals, belting, matches, fertilizers, textiles, leather, cigarettes, and hemp.

This production is taking place in the face of extreme shortages of raw materials, machinery, power, and fuel. A two-fold purpose of reviving Italian industry and saving shipping space for military supplies is being served.

Owners are operating their own plants, with the exception of several being operated by the Allied armies for special products, and still others where owners have been dismissed on charges of being active Fascists.

AC supervision has included helping the owner to obtain materials. When necessary, to avoid black-market-

SOVIET DELEGATION VISITS PALERMO

PALERMO, October 29 — The Soviet Trade Union delegation arrived here today from Agrigento. During the afternoon they were guest speakers at a gathering of workers organized by the local provincial labor body and representatives of the six Government parties.

In answer to many questions raised from the audience, the Soviet labor delegates spoke on trade union activity in Russia, on the organization and function of collective farms, and on the salient aspects of the political, religious, school, and family-life of their country.

During the past week, the Soviet delegates visited Cosenza and Catanzaro, in the Calabria region, and the Sicilian towns of Messina and Catania. (UNN)

2,000,000 POUNDS OF CLOTHING FOR ITALY

NEW YORK, October 29 — The two million pounds of used clothing, collected by the American Relief for Italy, Inc., will be shipped to Italy within two weeks, it was announced today.

The consignment is the second designed for Italian relief.

In the first week of October, the organization reported, more than three million pairs of stockings and socks and 5,300 yards of fabrics were sent to Italy for distribution among men, women, and children.

The latest consignment of used clothing was collected throughout America, and the War Department has allocated shipping space to the cargo. (OWI)

AMERICANS MUST MEET PEACE PROBLEMS BOLDLY

CHICAGO, October 29 — President Roosevelt, in a campaign speech made here yesterday, urged the American people, who are now engaged in a political campaign simultaneous with the greatest war in history, to be prepared to meet the problems of peace in the same bold way as they had met the problems of war.

Stating that the Americans have devoted themselves to winning the war and to bringing their men and women home as quickly as possible, President Roosevelt declared:

«We have astonished the world and have confounded our enemies with our stupendous war production, with the overwhelming courage and skill of our fighting men, with the bridge of ships carrying our munitions and men through the seven seas, with the gigantic fleet which has pounded the enemy in the Pacific and has just driven through for a goal.

«The American people are resolved that when their men and women return home from this war, they shall come back to a place where all persons, regardless of race, color, creed, or place of birth, can live in peace, honor, and human dignity».

They shall come back, he said to «the right to a useful and remunerative job in industries, shops, farms, or mines of the nation; the right to earn enough to provide adequate food, clothing and recreation; the right of every farmer to raise and sell his products at a return which will give him a decent living; the right of every business man, large or small, to trade in an atmosphere of freedom from unfair competition and from domination by monopolies at home

«I am confident», the President said, «that with Congressional approval the foreign trade of The United States also can be trebled after the war — providing millions more jobs.»

The President concluded:

«I believe in free enterprise, and always have. I believe in the profit system, and always have. I believe that private enterprise can give full employment to our people. I believe in exceptional rewards for innovation, skill, and the risk taken by business.» (OWI)

RUSSIAN-PERSIAN OIL TALKS COLLAPSE

MOSCOW, October 29 — The Russian oil talks with the Persian Government have come to an abrupt end caused by the «disloyal attitude taken by Premier Saed of Persia toward the Soviet Union», the Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Kavtaradze, announced today at a press conference in Teheran.

In his statement regarding the conclusion of negotiations, Commissar Kavtaradze said:

«Relations between Persia and the U.S.S.R. remain friendly as before, but impediments and difficulties in the way would be removed and Russian-Persian relations would be further strengthened by the granting of oil concessions.» (Reuter)

BELGIAN COMMUNISTS HOLD DEMONSTRATION

BRUSSELS, October 29 — The Belgian Communists, whose recent memorandum to Prime Minister Hubert Pierlot threatened to cause a collapse of the Government, took to the streets here today for a large-scale demonstration, a Reuter correspondent said late tonight.

The procession marched to the Cemetery Saint Giles to pay homage to Jacques, founder of their party, as well as to members of their party killed by the Germans during the occupation.

The decision of the Allied High Command to supplement the rations along with the progress made at the war front brought a brief lull to the Belgian political upheaval.

But, behind the scenes, the nation awaits the convocation of the Chamber and Senate on November 7. It was authoritatively stated here tonight that one of the first jobs of the parliament will be the removal of parliamentary immunity from certain deputies and senators, who are said to be gravely compromised by their pro-German activities.

A second task will be the approval of the Government's application for wider powers in social and industrial fields. (Reuter)

President Roosevelt stated that all of these rights spell security. And after this war is won, he said, we must be prepared to move forward in implementation of these rights to new goals of human happiness and well being.

« Never again Isolationism »

He stressed also the importance of America's continued participation in international affairs:

« Never again must we in The United States attempt to isolate ourselves from the rest of humanity. We are fighting this war and holding this election both for the same essential reason — because we have faith in Democracy. There is no force or combination of forces powerful enough to shake that faith. After this war, we do not intend to settle for anything less than a lasting peace. »

Turning to post-war America, the President proclaimed an economic program with a goal close to 60 million productive jobs in a country no longer subject to price, production, and wage controls. He foresaw a demand for « well over a million homes a year for 10 years. » He spoke of an America of new highways and parkways, thousands of new airports, planes, new cheap cars, new hospitals and health clinics, and a new merchant marine for expanding world trade. FRENCH PATRIOT MILITIA BANNED

PARIS, October 29 — The French Cabinet has banned the activity of the armed Patriot militia and ordered the members to turn over their arms to the Government, the French Ministry of the Interior said last night.

The announcement added that, in certain departments, the Patriot militia have been carrying on an independent fight against the black market and the fifth column, and in some cases have conducted searches and arrests. But it is now the responsibility of the French Government and its representatives alone to exercise administrative and police powers, the statement continued, although those wishing to serve in the defense of the country may enlist at military training centers which are being organized by the Ministry of War.

After asking all French men and women to forward information on collaborationism and black marketing to the regular authorities, and paying tribute to the services of the Patriot militia, the statement concluded:

« The nation must prove that it is resolved to carry out in an orderly manner the immense effort of work and organization needed for France to gain victory and resume her place in the world. » (PWB)

COMMUNIST LEADER THOREZ EXPECTED IN PARIS

PARIS, October 29 — Maurice Thorez, French Communist leader now in Moscow, will soon be in Paris, Jacques Duclos, Secretary of the French Communist Party, said at a meeting last night, according to a New York Times dispatch today. The report of Thorez's return is not confirmed by any official source.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

The Communist press is now in the midst of a campaign in favor of Thorez's return. He has been in disfavor since the party he led was outlawed by the French government in January, 1941, as a result of its attitude toward the war. General de Gaulle refused to permit Thorez to go to Algiers when the French Provisional Government was there.

Duclos contended that the local elections in February would not represent the country if French prisoners-of-war were still absent. He urged the creation of a greater French army with the French Forces of the Interior absorbed in it. He advocated also that the patriotic militia which arose from the insurrection against the Germans continue as an armed force acting under orders. (OWI)

LEND-LEASE SUPPLIES TENTH OF U. K. FOOD

WASHINGTON, October 29 — During the first nine months of 1944, Lend-Lease food shipments from The United States continued to supply about 10 per cent of British food requirements, Leo Crowley, U.S. Foreign Economic Administrator, announced yesterday.

Lend-Lease also played an important part in the rations of the Soviet Army, Crowley said.

The volume of food received as reverse Lend-Lease by the American armed forces, mainly in the United Kingdom, Australia, and New Zealand continued to be heavy. More than 90 per cent of the food consumed by U.S. troops in the south and southwest Pacific is supplied by Australia and New Zealand, Crowley said. (OWI)

SWEDEN ASKED TO RELEASE NORWEGIAN INTERNEES

LONDON, October 29 — The Swedish Government has been asked to release 10,000 young Norwegian internees for special police duties in liberated Norway, a New York Herald Tribune correspondent said in a dispatch filed from here today.

The Norwegians are reported to have escaped from their own country at various times since the Germans occupied their country on 9 April 1940.

In Sweden they were given special training under Norwegian Army officers. They have been especially trained to ferret out quislings and guard them for trial. (OWI)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 29 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Activities on the front of the Allied Armies in Italy have been confined to patrolling.

Land Forces Greece:

The enemy's withdrawal is being harassed by British troops in the area of Kozani. Many enemy guns and mortars defending the area were silenced when our artillery bombarded German positions close to the town.

No operational flying was undertaken yesterday, because of bad weather.

Two of our pilots previously reported missing are uninjured and safe.

No navy communique.

Near Cadzand, our fighter-bombers hit gun positions and fortified buildings housing enemy troops.

Escorted heavy bombers attacked gun emplacements on the Island of Walcheren. Two bombers are missing. Fighter-bombers and rocketfiring fighters went for similar targets on the island.

On the east side of the Dutch salient, our forces repulsed counter-attacks north and west of the Meijel.

Enemy communication systems in Holland and the Rhineland were under attack throughout the day.

Medium and light bombers hit a rail bridge over the Ijssel River at Deventer, and a bridge carrying a road and railway over the Meuse at Venlo, and destroyed a central span of a bridge over the river at Roermond.

From Aachen to Forêt de Parroy, there were no important changes.

Our patrols were active in the Aachen and Monschau areas.

Fighter-bombers in strength attacked railways and bridges in the Rhineland from Wesel in the north, to Karlsruhe in the south. Over 40 locomotives were damaged, and a large number of rail tracks west of the Rhine were cut in some 60 places.

Medium and light bombers struck at railway bridges in Ahrweiler and Sinzig. One light bomber is missing.

During the day fighter-bombers shot down 13 enemy aircraft.

Cologne was attacked in daylight by a strong force of heavy bombers, escorted by fighters.

Heavy-caliber German artillery shelled the city of Luxembourg yesterday.

Sporadic artillery and small-arms fire was encountered by our units in the Moselle Valley.

In the Epinal sector, we made limited gains east of Bruyères.

The village of Jussarupt was taken against strong opposition.

Enemy artillery fire was strong at several points in this area, and also in the Vosges Mountains. (OWI-Reuter)

MOSCOW, October 29 — Tonight's communique:

On the territory of Czecho-Slovakia, south of Uzhorod, our troops, as a result of stiff fighting, captured the town and large railway junction of Csap.

In Hungary, west of Satu-Mare, our troops fought advanced battles, in the course of which they captured the populated localities of Nyierparasne, Pabosh, Oor, Jarmi, Kandonjaroshi, Yerah, Yulaj, Mare-Poch, Pochtepri, and Koloshenye, and the railway station of Mare-Poch.

On the other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 28, our troops on all fronts damaged or destroyed 88 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 15 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 29 — In Liguria, Patriots attacked a locality named Goretto, and forced the local enemy garrison, composed of 400 Fascist Alpine troops, to retire toward the north.

In the Lake Maggiore aerea, a group of Patriots held control of Monte Mottarone for some time and advanced to the outskirts of Stresa.

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 29 — In Liguria, Patriots attacked a locality named Goretto, and forced the local enemy garrison, composed of 400 Fascist Alpine troops, to retire foward the north.

In the Lake Maggiore aerea, a group of Patriots held control of Monte Mottarone for some time and advanced to the outskirts of Stresa.

In a recent clash with a group of Fascist sailors, an enemy captain was killed. A colonel of the Fascist Republican Guard and three non-commissioned officers were led into a trap and killed near Lake Maggiore.

In Turin Province, the road between Molaretto and Piano San Martino was cut on October 7. German and Fascist troops, coming from different directions, and unaware of each other's identity, clashed at the point where the highway was damaged. The enemy lost eight men in dead and wounded.

On October 9, Piedmont Patriots killed five Germans on a train near Sant' Antonio. Five other Germans were killed in the same area the following day.

On October 11, Patriots repulsed a German attack at Mennizio. Six enemy soldiers were killed, including their commander. The Germans burned the entire village in reprisal.

On October 14, a stretch of railway between Rosta and Alpignano, in Turin Province, was dynamited.

On October 22, a German reconnaissance patrol was attacked near Giaveno. Two Germans were killed.

The Cremona Black Brigade lost one officer and three men in a recent operation against Piedmont Patriots. (UNN)

NEWS FROM ENEMY SOURCES

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 29 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In Holland, the enemy was ousted from a penetration point in our bridgehead west of Breskens.

On South Beveland, our troops continue to be engaged in bitter fighting against the enemy who is making intensified attacks from the south and east.

Between Bergen op Zoom and Hertogenbosch, Canadians, British, and Americans continued their large-scale attacks.

Despite most stubborn resistance, our troops, facing superior enemy forces which suffered heavy losses in this fighting, could not prevent penetrations. Counter-attacks are being launched.

At Bergen op Zoom and several other localities, fierce street-fighting is raging.

In the course of local fighting, southeast of Helmond, several enemy attacks were repulsed; 18 tanks and two armored reconnaissance cars were shot up.

Last night, fast fighter-bomber and night-fighter planes effectively attacked an enemy supply base near Aix-la-Chapelle.

In the western Vosges, in the forests between Mortagne and Meurthe, west of St. Dié, the Americans made strong attacks toward the north and southeast. Our counter-attacks caught them in the flank before they were able to reach open terrain.

London was again under the fire of our «V-1».

Italy:

In central Italy, yesterday, there were no major operations.

In the course of numerous shock-troop operations, heavy losses were inflicted upon the enemy.

Surprising mopping-up operations made by our security formations dealt heavy blows to the Bands in northern Italy. They lost more than 3,600 killed and 8,200 prisoners, and the bulk of their heavy weapons. Their camps in the forest, and hideouts, were destroyed.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, the area of Larissa was evacuated toward the north, according to orders.

Between the Danube and Tisa, Hungarian troops improved their positions in attack.

There was local fighting at the Tisa bridgeheads, northeast of Szolnok.

North and northwest of Debrecen, our divisions repulsed strong Bolshevik attacks and inflicted heavy losses upon the attackers.

At Ungvar, the enemy attempted to advance farther to the west. He was thrown back by counter-attacks made by German and Hungarian troops.

In the East Prussian border region, the enemy, as a result of heavy losses suffered in previous fighting, interrupted the large-scale attack.

Southeast of Gumbinnen, strong Bolshevik forces unsuccessfully attacked.

In the northern sector, the big battle southeast of Libau and at Autz continued with increased vehemence. Our excellently-fighting troops frustrated all enemy attempts at breaking through.

Enemy low-level flyers continued their attacks against the civilian population in western and southwestern Germany.

Sixteen enemy planes, including 10 four-engined bombers, were shot down. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Western Front: According to war correspondent Günther Weber, the Germans are still fighting in Hertogenbosch whilst Marshal Model seems to be carrying out a systematic shortening of lines between Bergen op Zoom and Tilburg. This explains the evacuation of these two towns.

It is possible that the Germans will establish a second defence line in Holland from Hertogenbosch to the Waal and Meuse estuaries, which they might hold with comparatively weak forces and thus enable the German High Command to concentrate all available forces for the impending battle of the Ruhr. It is certain, however, that the German counter-attack in eastern Holland has considerably upset Field Marshal Montgomery's preparations for the Ruhr offensive. The present lull on the rest of the western front might be expected to end soon.

General Eisenhower is once more massing troops for a decisive break-through.

Eastern Front: Correspondent Carl Blücher states that momentary paralyzation of the Soviet offensive in East Prussia is due to the extremely heavy losses suffered by the Red Army, including over a thousand tanks which he claims, have been knocked out since the offensive started. Now the Soviets have to bring up reinforcements in order to eliminate the danger to their northern flank.

At the cost of heavy losses, the Soviets scored local successes in the Libau area.

They cut the Libau-Moscheiken railway line, but German guns stopped any further advance.

In Hungary, fighting is on a reduced scale.

In the tank battle of Debrecen, strong Soviet formations face encirclement.

Walcheren Islanders' Plight: According to a Berlin report, the island of Walcheren, where German coastal batteries are blocking the entrance to the Schelde Estuary and Antwerp harbor, is almost entirely under water, due to Anglo-American air-bombardment which destroyed the sea-dykes protecting the island. At some places the water is 2½ metres deep and the islanders, after having suffered casualties, flocked into the towns of Middleburg and Domburg, seeking shelter in the upper stories of buildings, since the lower stories are flooded.

U. S. Soldiers Change Attitude Toward War: War Correspondent Erich Wenzel states that American soldiers recently taken prisoner in the Aachen area present a quite different spectacle from their cocksure predecessors of the early invasion days. He talked to hundreds of prisoners and gained the impression that they were rather depressed, and hardly interested in the war against Germany. Most of them were fresh troops hastily rushed to the front to replace the huge losses the 3rd Army has suffered of late. Some of them could not even handle a machine-gun. The autumn weather has also had a demoralising effect on them.

Britain Will Be Cut Off, Says Tokyo: Transocean quotes an article of the Nippon Times of Sunday stating that Great Britain has failed in her long-term policy to prevent Russia's advance to the west by forming buffer states. Her life-line in the Eastern Mediterranean has also become endangered by growing Russian influence in Greece and Turkey.

If we add America's possible interests in Western Europe, declares the Nippon Times, we come to the conclusion that Great Britain may well become an extra-European state, bottled up in her island after the war.

Air:

During the first two days of the battle in Kurland, 141 planes were shot down. Thus, the Soviets in the course of the last 48 hours lost 183 planes on the entire Eastern Front.

Anglo-American terror flyers attacked Cologne, Münster, and Hamm.

Last night, isolated enemy planes dropped bombs on Cologne and Munich.

Trouble Brewing in Rome: The Rome Labour Chamber has protested against the lowering of food-rations for workers who are not connected with Allied war effort, reports the Swiss Telegraph Agency from Berne.

The chamber declared that food shortage was so serious that there could be no further reduction in the rations. The same agency reports that Italian goods in the value of 60,000 dollars have been unloaded in New York harbor.

Next Tuesday, all workers in Rome will stop work for half an hour as a protest against the authorities' failure to increase wages to cover the increased cost of living.

RUSSIANS MOVE AHEAD IN SIX COUNTRIES

MOSCOW, October 28 — The Red Army advanced in six countries today — in Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Yugoslavia. The heaviest fighting on the whole Russian front raged in yet a seventh country — East Prussia.

At Gumbinnen, key center on the East Prussian road to Königsberg, and at points 20 miles farther south, the Germans are making almost ceaseless counter-attacks with masses of armor. Their aim is not simply to hold the Russians, but to drive them back from German soil.

The tremendous strength of the Russian artillery is indicated by Colonel Kolomeitsev, Soviet military commentator, who said yesterday that in a single operation by an army group, it is no longer exceptional for the Russians to use between 10,000 and 20,000 guns, sometimes even more.

In an attempt to compensate for the crushing superiority of Soviet artillery, the Germans yesterday tried out a new technique, making hourly counter-attacks with Tiger and

Red Army mountain troops, who yesterday stormed the Ruthenian capital of Uzhorod, today continued their advance, and battled their way through 60 more towns and villages, including a number of railway towns.

The capture of Uzhorod, 15 miles from the Hungarian frontier, has freed a second powerful Soviet group for a southward advance onto the central European plain against Hungary. This plain offers ideal country for tank operations west to Vienna and southwest to Budapest.

An enthusiastic reception is being given the advancing Soviet troops in Czechoslovakia. Townspeople surround Russian soldiers to thank them for driving out the Germans. Others guide the Red Army units by little-known paths through the mountains and forests to outflank and surround centers of enemy resistance.

On Hungarian territory west of Satu-Mare, another 40 places were taken by Russian troops, while in Yugoslavia the Russian and Rumanian forces jointly liberated the railway junctions of Ruma and Apatin. Ruma lies 36 miles northwest of Belgrade, and Apatin is 62 miles northwest of Ruma, near the Hungarian border.

Battle for Varanger Fjord

General Meretskov's army, striking deeper into northern Norway, liberated several more towns today. The main objective here appears to be to gain control of the Varanger Fjord and isolate the Varanger Peninsula. Russian troops operating in the short, dim days of the Arctic front have been helped by local Norwegian fishermen. In their motorboats a whole Russian regiment was ferried across the Jaard Fjord under heavy shellfire, thus easing the strain on the amphibious vehicles that played so important a part in the Kirkenes operations, The London Times correspondent wrote today.

In the Petsamo region, Soviet forces occupied Majakalla today. The German Lapland army is reported to have been split into small, isolated groups, which are slowly being wiped out.

A Finnish broadcast today reported fierce battles against the German forces defending themselves along the roads to the Arctic and to Muonio. (OWI-Reuter)

TILBURG CAPTURED; TILBURG-BREDA ROAD CUT

SHAEF, October 28 — The western anchor of the Germans in southwest Holland fell today, when the city of Bergen op Zoom was cleared by troops of the Canadian 1st Army. It is the fourth key-point of the German defenses to be wrested from the enemy in three days, and Allied troops are advancing on the remaining key points of Breda and Roosendaal.

British 2nd Army forces cleared the communications center of Tilburg today, and another column has cut the

In an attempt to compensate for the crushing superiority of Soviet artillery, the Germans yesterday tried out a new technique, making hourly counter-attacks with Tiger and Panzer tanks, with each attack stepped up on its predecessor. Upward of 70 tanks were used in these ever-growing counter-blows to reach the Russian gun positions.

The Russians maintained their daily average of German tanks knocked out, and again yesterday disabled or destroyed 112 on all fronts. The Germans lost more than 3,000 men yesterday, and in recent fighting their crack Grenadier regiments and battalions lost from 50 to 60 per cent of their effectives.

Hitler Committing Last Reserves

Radio Moscow said tonight that Hitler, after conferring with his staff, has decided to rush the remaining reserves of his East Prussian "Home Guard" into battle, and bring up reserves from Danzig, Breslau, and central Germany.

North of the East Prussian battlefront, in Latvia, the Russians have begun an all-out offensive southeast of the port of Libau along a line seven miles to the east, according to German reports, which stated that four Soviet armies are taking part.

Nine miles northwest of the Warsaw suburb of Praga, Soviet troops, operating in conjunction with the Polish 1st Army, liberated the town of Jablonna and a number of other inhabited localities.

Others guide the Red Army units by little-known paths through the mountains and forests to outflank and surround centers of enemy resistance.

YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE SPLIT

LONDON, October 28 — Yugoslav troops have liberated the important Adriatic port of Split after a three-day battle it was announced here tonight in Marshal Tito's communique and broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio. The Germans lost 1,500 dead and 300 troops captured.

The communique stated that with the capture of Split, 125 miles of Dalmatian coast is now in Partisan hands, from Ercegnovi to the south and northward to Sibenik. (Reuter)

FIVE SPANISH GENERALS WILL AID REPUBLICANS

PARIS, October 28 — Five high-ranking Spanish military officials, at a private meeting here Thursday night, signed an agreement to place themselves unreservedly at the disposal of any Spanish Republican government whenever it takes the place of the present Franco régime, a Reuter dispatch reported late tonight.

The five Spanish military leaders include Emilio Herrera, general of aviation, and General Jose Riquelme Villalba, who was imprisoned by the Germans for one year. General Villalba helped to organize Spanish refugees in the French Maquis. (OWI)

Tilburg-Breda Road at a point nine miles from Breda, late reports stated tonight.

The Germans are abandoning their positions from the Schelde to Hertogenbosch, and are racing to reach the remaining two bridges over the Meuse (Maas) River at Moerdijk, 10 miles to the northwest, and Geertruidenberg, 10 miles northeast, of Breda.

A British armored spearhead has advanced five miles north of Tilburg to the vicinity of Loon op Zand, and is driving to cut the major German escape route toward Geertruidenberg. Heavy German rear-guard delaying action is being met.

The Canadian 1st Army is exerting all its efforts to clear the approaches to the port of Antwerp before the coming of winter. Winter rain, mud, and ice will render French highways treacherous for Allied convoys hauling vital supplies hundreds of miles from beachhead dumps.

Canadian and British forces which established two beachheads on the southern coast of Beveland Island, guarding the Schelde Estuary, have linked to form a firm foothold of seven square miles. The beachhead has been further expanded to the east, and reinforcements continue to be landed. Other Canadian forces driving up the peninsula linking Beveland with the mainland have crossed the canal at western end, and are advancing to join beachhead forces.

Allied headquarters announced tonight that the free use of the undamaged port of Antwerp is blocked only by the isolated German coastal guns of one battery at Flushing, on Walcheren Island. Once these guns are silenced, however, there remains the job of sweeping the long waterway clear of mines.

The German pocket on the southern side of the Schelde is being further constricted with a Canadian push to within one mile of Cadzand, a main German strongpoint. The pocket now covers an area of boggy land 10 miles wide and five miles deep. Allied troops are moving along the coast, and another force is closing in from the south.

Forces of the French 1st Army and American 7th Army, continuing to probe German defenses guarding vital passes through the Vosges Mountains, are advancing slowly over difficult terrain. In the vicinity southeast of Rambervillers, the village of Housseras was captured. German attempts to infiltrate Allied positions in the Vosges sector were beaten back with heavy German losses. AMERICAN FORCES LIBERATE ISLAND OF SAMAR

AFHQ, LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, October 28 — The island of Samar, northeast of Leyte, in the Philippines, has been completely liberated by American forces, an American broadcaster said tonight.

United States forces established their first bridgehead on Samar Island last Tuesday. Advancing up the west coast, they freed Catbalogan, the provincial capital, yesterday.

An Associated Press correspondent with the 7th Division on Leyte said that Japanese troops in the southern battle sector are demoralized, with the Americans in possession of all airdromes and in hot pursuit of them.

« Buri airdrome, where the enemy tried to make a stand, fell yesterday before a tank and infantry team, which left Japanese dead strewn in its wake, » the correspondent said.

« Much equipment is being abandoned by the enemy, including quantities of personal belongings left behind in their flight — just a few moments ahead of the American troops. »

14,045 Jap Casualties

Japanese casualties on Leyte now total 14,045, with fighting continuing in the mopping-up stage.

Such Japanese forces as remain on Leyte are showing signs of complete disintegration and are retreating toward

Nimitz, Commander of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, who said in Honolulu that in the past year American forces have captured 13 major Japanese bases and « rendered many more useless. »

The Admiral added that the advance across the Pacific has carried America's vast fighting power to the very door of Japan's inner defenses, and, up to last week's Philippine campaign, had cost the enemy 80,000 first-line troops killed. In the last five months, 900 Japanese ships have been sunk or damaged by the Pacific Fleet and 3,000 of their aircraft destroyed, Nimitz added.

Rear Admiral Jesse Oldendorf, who commanded the fleet which met the Japanese fleet at Surigao Straits on October 25, revealed today that the major part of the force was composed of Navy units constructed prior to Pearl Harbor.

Describing the battle, the Admiral said:

« It was the most beautiful shooting I ever saw. Instead of turning simultaneously, the Japanese warships turned in column, and this brought them within 11,000 yards of our guns. »

The admiral said that the American ships were firing on a fixed range, and as each enemy ship came by in line, « we knocked him off. » (OWI)

GALE BRINGS ITALIAN FRONT TO STANDSTILL

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 28 — A violent autumn gale, leaving floods and washed-out roads and bridges in its wake, has brought operations on the Italian Front to a virtual standstill, it was announced here today.

Torrential rains, lashed by high winds, have made roads almost everywhere impassable, and have swollen mountain streams to muddy mill-races and have clogged and flooded drainage canals, which have spread their waters over vast areas of lowland, official reports today stated.

For the past 48 hours all major movement came to a halt while the storm was at its height. Some forward units on the 5th Army Front were cut off by flooding streams, and supplies were gotten across to them only by means of rope ferries.

Low-lying areas on the 8th Army Front were converted into shallow lakes, which made movement almost impossible.

Enemy forces, taking advantage of restricted Allied observation and the grounding of Allied aircraft, strove to continue throughout the storm the movement of further reinforcements into the sectors south and southeast of Bologna, where the Germans are making an all-out stand against American forces pushing northward toward the Valley of the Po.

Americans Consolidating Positions

American forces facing these enemy troops have now consolidated their positions along a line of hills forming a broad wedge with its apex at Monte Grande, pointing into the Sillaro River Valley toward Castel San Pietro and the Rimini-Bologna Highway east of Bologna.

American troops in the vicinity of Vedriano, scene of a four-day-long struggle, are still held on a ridge to the west of this small settlement, today's reports said.

To the west of these apex positions, American forces hold Monte Belmonte and hills to the north of Livergnano on Highway 65.

To the south, the American positions stretch across the Sillaro River Valley to Monte Dell'Acqua, overlooking the Santerno River Valley and the road to Imola on the edge of the Po Plain.

Despite several severe counter-attacks, American forces are improving their positions along this salient, one of the most bitterly contested battle areas in the entire Italian campaign.

14,045 Jap Casualties

Japanese casualties on Leyte now total 14,045, with fighting continuing in the mopping-up stage.

Such Japanese forces as remain on Leyte are showing signs of complete disintegration and are retreating toward the west coast or into the mountain ranges paralleling Leyte Valley, MacArthur's communique said. Among the Japanese units scurrying to the hills is the once-powerful Japanese 16th Division, which faced American troops in the Philippines in 1942.

The Leyte airfields, which have been improved and expanded, even while fighting was going on at their edges, were ready yesterday when 5th USAAF fighter-planes arrived from New Guinea. The planes landed on runways lined with cheering infantrymen and Philippine construction workers, who now saw the end of frequent Japanese nuisance raids. Within two hours after they had landed on the new airfields, the fighters had taken to the air and knocked down several enemy planes, one correspondent wrote.

MacArthur announced that the 5th USAAF will relieve the naval air carrier force which has given support to the landings and inland fighting.

The 14,045 Japanese casualties on Leyte represented approximately half of the enemy forces known to be on the island when the Americans landed.

Torpedo boats, operating from American bases on Leyte, have sunk 10 enemy barges loaded with troops, and two coastal freighters, MacArthur said.

The continuing story of the American advance on the Japanese homeland was told in part yesterday by Admiral

Despite several severe counter-attacks, American forces are improving their positions along this salient, one of the most bitterly contested battle areas in the entire Italian campaign.

Both east and west of these foremost 5th Army positions, Allied forces yesterday achieved minor gains in flank positions.

South African troops occupied the hamlet of Belvedere, on the west banks of the Setta River 14 miles southwest of Bologna, while Indian troops on the east flank occupied two heights in the Tramazzo River Valley, southwest of Faenza.

In the lowlands at the southeastern end of the Valley of the Po, flood conditions held forward elements of the 8th Army to already established positions.

Canadian troops, pushing northwestward from their bridgehead across the Bevano, yesterday reached the area of Borghetto, a mile and a half west of this stream and 10 miles south of Ravenna.

Patrols thrusting into the area just southwest of Borghetto clashed with a force of enemy armoured cars.

Enemy forces continued to reinforce their positions on the west bank of the River Ronco, defending Forli — bringing up self-propelled guns and tanks to shell British troops on the east bank.

Indian troops have entered the town of Meldola, six miles to the south along the Ronco River, and have already consolidated their hold on the southern portions of the town.

In the Montone River Valley, the junction point of the two Allied armies, just southwest of Forli, British troops and tanks of the 5th Army yesterday entered the town of Rocca San Casciano, 14 miles southwest of the provincial capital.

MELOS BOMBARDED; ISLAND OF PISCOPI LIBERATED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 28 — Troops landed from the British Cruiser HMS Sirius yesterday, have occupied the Island of Piscopi, northeast of Rhodes in the Aegean Sea, it was announced here today.

The forces, landed at night, completed the occupation of the southernmost of the Dodecanese Islands, only 30 miles off the mainland of Asia Minor, in a matter of hours.

On the previous day, a British naval force, consisting of a cruiser, an escort carrier, and two destroyers, bombarded the island of Melos, more than 200 miles to the west, it was stated.

BULGARIAN ARMISTICE SIGNED IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW, October 28 — It was broadcast here tonight that an armistice had been signed with Bulgaria on behalf of the Soviet Union, Great Britain, and The United States. The text of the armistice will be announced later.

The broadcast quoted the Bulgarian delegation as stating that its government had carried out «a considerable part of the conditions provided for in the draft of the terms» submitted by the Allied governments.

The Bulgarian armistice agreement was signed after two days of negotiations here between representatives of Russia, Great Britain and The United States and the Bulgarian delegates.

The agreement was signed on behalf of the three Allies by Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin and Maj. Gen. J. A. H. Gammell, as representative of the Allied Supreme Commander in the Mediterranean theater. Petko Stainov, chairman of the delegation and the Bulgarian Foreign Minister, signed on behalf of the Bulgarian Government.

Professor Stainov was quoted in a Reuter dispatch as saying at the first meeting, yesterday:

«We recognize the faults committed by the former Bulgarian régime, which carried out an anti-popular policy in the name of our country, drawing us totally into an unjustified war against the western democracies.

«The crimes committed by the former Bulgarian government weigh heavily on the conscience of all our people. But our people did not remain passive and, after many sacrifices, joined forces with other countries oppressed and occupied by Hitler. The government of the patriotic front declared and is waging bloody war on Germany. This it did before receiving your request for a break of diplomatic relations. WEST GERMAN RAIL YARDS BOMBED

LONDON, October 28 — Two of western Germany's biggest rail yards, at Hamm and Münster, were attacked today by American heavy bombers for the third time in less than a week, while a strong force of RAF bombers gave Cologne its heaviest attack of the war.

About 350 escorted 8th USAAF bombers, carried out the assault on Hamm and Münster, through which supplies are fed to the Siegfried Line.

Cologne, a third important communications center supplying the western front, was the target for more than 1,000 bombers escorted by more than 400 fighters. Huge fires were left burning.

This morning a strong force of Halifaxes and Lancasters of RAF Bomber Command, escorted by Spitfires of Fighter Command, attacked gun emplacements on the Island of Walcheren. Visibility was good, and first reports indicated that the bombing was successful, a British Air Ministry communique said today. Two bombers are missing from this mission.

RAF Mosquitoes made two attacks on Berlin last night, as well as bombing objectives elsewhere in western Germany. The first attack occurred just after Nazi propaganda Minister Goebbels had completed his plea to the German nation to «battle to death.» An hour later, the second group struck, putting Berlin under attack for the sixth night this month.

30,000 DUTCH MURDERED IN NAZI PRISON

WITH BRITISH 2ND ARMY, October 28 — Some 30,000 Dutch men and women have died from disease, torture, and hanging in the Nazi concentration camp of Vught, in Holland, three miles due south of Herlogenbosch, reported Exchange Telegraph Correspondent Basil Gingell last night.

In this camp, 35,000 Hollanders were imprisoned by the Germans, and of these, more than 3,000 were shot between June and September, 1944.

Men and women were tortured and beaten to death, while deaths from disease were about 30 daily — over 13,000 bodies are said to have been cremated.

From former prisoners of the camp Gingell learned that 67 women were put in a cell eight feet high and only 12 feet by seven feet, with one small grill near the ceiling for ventilation. The women remained jammed tightly together for 13 hours and, when the solid mass of humanity was dragged out in the morning, 12 women had died during the night, seven died later, 30 others were seriously ill, and three had become insane.

JAPANESE LAUNCH MAJOR ASSAULT ON KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, October 28 — Japanese forces opened another major assault yesterday against Kweilin, near the northern boundary of Kwangsi Province, it was officially announced today. They are advancing along the railway, as well as north and south of it.

The new Japanese drive began after a long lull, during which the Japanese regrouped forces, built roads, and completed other preparations for the major operation. According to the Associated Press, the drive started down both sides of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, with twin Japanese thrusts at Chinese defenses from 14 to 17 miles east of Kweilin.

An Associated Press dispatch said that still another enemy column swung south westward from Kweiyang, 50 miles east-northeast of Kweilin, aimed at joining the general attack and bringing under two-sided pressure the city which, the Chinese have said, would prove «China's Stalingrad.»

As the Japanese columns moved down the railway, still another supporting column moved to outflank Kweilin from the west, the AP reported. The Chinese said that fighting raged at all points of the attack.

On the West River front, the Chinese High Command said another new Japanese drive, one of two aimed at the American air-base city of Liuchow, 90 miles southwest of Kweilin, had advanced westward 18 miles beyond its base at Pingnam. The other enemy advance towards Liuchow is being attempted from the Kweiping area, southeast of Liuchow.

The only Chinese success claimed by the High Command was the occupation of the major part of a Japanese position eight miles southwest of Kweiping. It was announced also that the Japanese had advanced six miles west of the fallen seaport of Foochow, in the Fukien Province fighting on the East China coast.

50,000 JAPS KILLED IN TIDDIM FIGHTING

LONDON, October 28 — British and Indian troops have killed 50,000 Japanese and immobilized another 50,000 in the recent Burma fighting. Brigadier Irwin, a British officer, said yesterday in a broadcast from a base near the front.

«British and Indian troops, fighting side-by-side, have just won the battle of the Burma border. They have killed 50,000 Japs, and knocked another 50,000 Japanese right out of the ring for a long time,» the brigadier said.

Then, pointing out that the Japanese tried to cut off the Allied 14th Army in Burma and the last remaining supply link with China, the officer said: «In all these aims, they have been decisively defeated. What has happened is that the Japs have been driven back across the Chindwin River, driven back in the greatest possible disorder. There is a last Japanese rear-guard fighting desperately down the Tiddim Road, in the hopes of securing one last foothold on this side of the river. «I have much pleasure in sending, on behalf of the Board of the Admiralty and the Royal Navy, cordial greetings to all officers and men of the U.S. Navy.

«The past year has witnessed further notable triumphs by our two Navies in close collaboration. Their part in the successful assault upon the coasts of Normandy and the subsequent support of the Allied Armies in France will be specially memorable among joint achievements.

«The United States Navy has continued to take heavy toll of the Japanese, and we welcome this opportunity of congratulating our comrades on their many brilliant and enduring victories in the Pacific. It is very fitting that news of the great victory off the Philippines comes on the eve of Navy Day. As the war in Europe draws to its close, the Royal Navy makes ready to transfer its main effort to the Far East, and in the light of the recent conference at Quebec, it looks forward to further fruitful coöperation in that theater.

GERMANS DEMOLISH SALONIKA BEFORE FLIGHT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 28 — German forces are carrying out large-scale demolitions in Salonika in preparation for the evacuation of this second-largest Greek city, according to RAF observers who have flown over it.

The port area is wreathed in heavy smoke, an Air Force statement declared this afternoon.

German troops are fleeing by train from Katerini, the halfway-point between Larissa and Salonika, in their retreat northward, it was said. These trains, spread every few miles along the railway line bordering the coast, have been subjected to heavy air attack.

Before retreating northward, the Germans destroyed the entrance to the railway tunnel at Iraklion, 20 miles south of Katerini, the fliers reported. (PRO)

GERMANS DEMOLISH SALONIKA BEFORE FLIGHT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 28 — German forces are carrying out large-scale demolitions in Salonika in preparation for the evacuation of this second-largest Greek city, according to RAF observers who have flown over it.

The port area is wreathed in heavy smoke, an Air Force statement declared this afternoon.

German troops are fleeing by train from Katerini, the halfway-point between Larissa and Salonika, in their retreat northward, it was said. These trains, spread every few miles along the railway line bordering the coast, have been subjected to heavy air attack.

Before retreating northward, the Germans destroyed the entrance to the railway tunnel at Iraklion, 20 miles south of Katerini, the fliers reported. (PRO)

GALES AGAIN CURTAIL M.A.A.F. ACTIVITY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 28 — Although sorties of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force yesterday were reduced to little over five per cent of normal operating figures by storms of gale force, fighters and fighter-bombers, strafing enemy transport columns, destroyed five locomotives and destroyed or damaged 18 motor vehicles and 42 railway cars, it was announced here today.

One Beaufighter, flying alone, accounted for 11 of the motor vehicles destroyed or damaged, and set afire an enemy fuel dump northwest of Alessandria in the western Po Valley, it was said. (PRO)

GREEK PATRIOTS WILL JOIN REGULAR ARMY

ATHENS, October 28 — Greek Partisans will continue fighting, as at present, until the Germans have been chased out of Greece, and the Patriots will be absorbed into the regular Greek Army, Premier Georges Papandreou told his press conference yesterday.

The British United Press also reported that General Serafis, commander of the ELAS group of Partisans is in Athens for consultations with the Government and with British military officials. He is being asked to enforce strict discipline among his men, and to follow the political directions of the Greek Government. (OWI)

« NAVY DAY » HONORS GREATEST AMERICAN FLEET

WASHINGTON, October 28 — The United States Navy — which President Roosevelt said is « greater than all the other navies of the world put together... and I am including what was, only three days ago, the Japanese fleet » — yesterday celebrated the 169th anniversary of its founding.

« Navy Day, » an annual observance in America, this year was made the occasion for disclosure of the battle histories of 193 major warships in the Atlantic, the Mediterranean, and the Pacific, as well as for release of information regarding some of the newest of the powerful fighting ships which continue to be launched from United States shipways in history's most tremendous program of naval construction.

President Roosevelt, in an address last night, emphasized the rapid growth of the American fleet when he pointed out that in 1940 the United States Navy « had 369 combat ships and 189,000 men.

« Today, » he said, « we have more than 1,500 combat vessels, supported by an armada of 50,000 other ships, including landing craft. We have more than 3,500,000 men in our Navy, and more than 100,000 women. »

The Navy itself signalized Navy Day with the announcement that two huge new battleships, the Missouri and the Wisconsin, now are in commission, as well as a warship of the so-called « pocket battleship » type and 10 cruisers. And it also called attention to some of the characteristics of the Iowa, America's newest 45,000-ton battleship, a vessel believed to be the fastest of anything like her size afloat.

The Iowa, mounting 149 guns, is said to be the mightiest oceanborne fighting machine ever laid down. She fires a heavier projectile than any other warship, at ranges up to 19 miles. She is believed to be more maneuverable and swifter than many vessels a tenth her size.

Among the many distinguished persons who saluted the American Navy on its natal day was Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to The United States, who said in an address at New York that the people of Great Britain, during the past three years, « have watched with grateful and growing admiration the swift creation of your immense naval strength, and its truly remarkable achievements in the Pacific. »

Admiral Ernest King, Commander-in-Chief of The United States Fleet and Chief of Naval Operations, said that the Japanese Navy « has been reduced to not more than half its maximum strength » in the series of actions which included the battles of Midway and the Coral Sea, and culminated in the clash between Halsey's and Kincaid's fleets and enemy main bodies off the Philippines. « The close ties and deep sympathy between the democratic peoples of Czechoslovakia and The United States have never ceased to find expression since the days of President Masaryk and President Wilson. I look forward to the day when, victorious after a second great war for freedom, they can continue to work in harmony for their mutual security and welfare in a peaceful world. »

Jan Masaryk, Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister of the Czechoslovak Government, said in a London broadcast: « For the last time, we are celebrating October 28 with Czechoslovakia defiled by the presence of the shameless Germans under sentence of death. Liberation has started in Slovakia, and is victoriously and irresistibly advancing toward the west...

« I thank the glorious Soviet army ... our first thanks should go to them.

« But I also give very warm thanks to Great Britain, which has given us hospitality and the opportunity of continuing a Free Czechoslovak Government while we are preparing to return to our homeland.

« I give thanks to the great American democracy, which has never ceased to believe in the resurrection of Czechoslovakia, in her integrity, and which has rendered such invaluable assistance to all from the vast stores of her democratic arsenal.

SPANISH REPUBLICANS CONTROL ARAN VALLEY

TOULOSE, October 28 — Spanish Republicans still control the Aran Valley in the Pyrenees region and have captured the towns of Lea, Bosort, and Las Bordas, Alexander Uhl reported in a dispatch.

The dispatch stated that snow is appearing in the Pyrenees, and it is possible that the Spanish Maquis could remain indefinitely in the valley as a spearhead. The problem would then be supplies.

Officials of the Spanish National Union here were quoted as saying that the activities in the Aran Valley were secondary to the activities being carried on throughout Spain. They asserted that there were considerable Maquis forces in operation in Estremadura, Andalusia, Santander, and Catalonia provinces.

An International News Service dispatch from Madrid quoted Franco Government reports that heavy snow had hindered a regular army offensive against Spanish Republicans who had filtered into Catalonia across the Pyrenees from France, and who now hold about six Spanish towns. The official report claimed to have taken a number of prisoners.

Franco Government reports asserted that all fighting had ceased in the Navarre Pyrenees district, into which Spanish Maquis forces had penetrated early this month. Republican forces were officially reported to have been eliminated.

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 28 — Today's communique:

In South Beveland, Allied forces now hold the south side of the isthmus as far as the canal west of Kruiningen.

Our bridgehead on the southern coast of the peninsula has been reinforced and expanded.

Groede, in the Schelde pocket, is in our hands, and we are on the coast to the northwest of the village.

Northeast of the South Beveland isthmus, we have taken Bergen op Zoom.

North of Esschen, our units are within two miles of Roosendaal.

On the Antwerp-Breda Road, we progressed to the area of Zundert.

We are in the eastern outskirts of Tilburg, and north of the town our troops reached the vicinity of Loon op Zand.

To the south, we made good gains and, on the west, forward elements cut the Tilburg-Breda Road.

The enemy has been cleared from Hertogenbosch, and we made some progress farther west.

On the east side of the Dutch salient, we checked a counter-attack in the vicinity of Meijel, where fighting is still in progress.

Light artillery-fire was directed against our units in the Aachen area and along the Belgian-German frontier in the sector east of Saint Vith.

Near Rambervillers, we made local gains at several points.

The village of Housseras has been taken.

Farther south, limited progress was made between Bruyères and Le Tholy.

In the Vosges Mountains, attempts to infiltrate into our positions were frustrated, and losses were inflicted on the enemy.

Adverse weather restricted air operations yesterday. (Reuter)

MOSCOW, October 28 — Tonight's communique:

Troops of the Karelian Front, continuing their offensive, occupied, in the Petsamo (Pechenga) region the populated localities of Mayatalo and Nautsi, and in Norway captured the populated localities of Buholm, Songa, Veyne, Lilebeken, Munkelben, Algelpel, and Naiden.

Northwest of Praga, a suburb of Warsaw, our troops, jointly with units of the Polish 1st Army, fought battles of local importance, in the course of which they captured the town and railway station of Jablona-Ledinovo, and the populated localities of Kamarnitse, Segelnya, Stanislau, Uzepuf, and Jablona.

In Czechoslovakia, north and south of Uzhorod, our troops fought advance battles, in the course of which they occupied over 60 populated localities including Chukaluptse, Janovo, Klenovo, Uglye, Trihovtse, Podgradye, Gusak, Zagor, Lekar, Malaya-Dobroy, Keliki-Dobroy, Batyevo, Zapkor, and the railway stations of Tarnovtse, Padbe, Barkasevo, Batyevo, and Shomkotino.

In Hungary, west of Satu-Mare, our troops occupied over 40 populated localities, including Nadgobozh, Pustogobozh, Metsetalka, Hodat, Nyerpator, and Jerbogat, and the railway station of Nadgobozh. [illegible]

In the Veneto region, attacks and acts of sabotage continue against enemy traffic, which has been intensified, both to furnish the enemy with war supplies and to carry off industrial machinery stolen by the Germans in northern Italy.

On the night of October 19, near Udine, an electric locomotive with a steam locomotive in tow was derailed, and the personnel attacked with hand grenades and automatic weapons. Both locomotives were destroyed.

During the night of October 24, in the same sector, an electric train composed of 30 cars was also derailed. The locomotive was destroyed by fire, and five cars were thrown off the embankment.

Near Ospeadaletto, in Trento Province, Patriots destroyed materials and machinery which were to be used for fortifications.

The power plant at Savorgnano, in Udine Province, was rendered useless.

The Bologna Black Brigade, which moved northward to round-up civilians, is carrying off unarmed citizens for internment at Carpi, rather than face Patriots in the region.

At Marzabotto, in the same area, the Germans massacred 300 persons, including women and children, and buried them in a common grave in reprisal for the activity of members of the Groups for Patriotic Action.

At Casalecchio di Reno, 15 persons were hanged in public. Eight other civilians were shot on the target range at Bologna. Fascist authorities are also carrying out mass executions in Bologna on their own, and without the knowledge of the Germans. They recently massacred seven civilians. (UNN)

NEWS FROM ENEMY SOURCES

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 28 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In Holland, the grim fighting extended to the whole front sector between the Schelde Estuary and Hertogenbosch. Particularly grim was the fighting in the Bergen op Zoom sector, where numerous enemy attacks, launched with strong tank support, were smashed.

Farther east, Tilburg was lost after grim fighting.

The enemy suffered particularly heavy losses in his unsuccessful attacks in the Hertogenbosch sector.

West of St. Die, our troops frustrated the planned U.S. breakthrough through the Mortagne Forest towards the Meurthe Valley.

South of it, in the Bruyeres sector, a front gap was closed by our counter-attacks. Strong attacks on these recently-captured positions collapsed in our fire, with heavy losses to the enemy.

The garrisons of our fortresses and strongpoints on the French coast repulsed a certain number of minor enemy attacks during the last few weeks. They remained in control of the forefield by numerous sorties.

Italy:

In central Italy, there was only small-scale fighting, owing to torrential rains.

West of Imola, grenadiers and soldiers of the Waffen SS recaptured important high ground positions by surprise attacks. The enemy suffered heavy losses.

Eastern Front:

In southern Hungary and on the [illegible]

In Czechoslovakia, north and south of Uzhorod, our troops fought advance battles, in the course of which they occupied over 60 populated localities including Chukaluptse, Janovo, Klenovo, Uglye, Trihovtse, Podgradye, Gusak, Zagor, Lekar, Malaya-Dobroy, Keliki-Dobroy, Batyevo, Zapkor, and the railway stations of Tarnovtse, Padbe, Barkasevo, Batyevo, and Shomkotino.

In Hungary, west of Satu-Mare, our troops occupied over 40 populated localities, including Nadgobozh, Pustogobozh, Metsetalka, Hodat, Nyerpator, and Jerbogat, and the railway stations of Nadgobozh, Metsetalka, Nyerpator, and Nyerbogat.

In Yugoslavia, northwest of Belgrade, our troops, operating with units of the National Liberation Army of Yugoslavia, captured over 80 populated localities, including the town and railway station of Apatin, on the Danube; the town and railway station of Ruma; and the large populated localities of Kapusina, Sviloilo, Sonta, Karabukola, Vach, Tovarchshevo, Klenat, and Grabovtsy.

On the other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 27, our troops on all fronts damaged or destroyed 112 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 52 enemy planes were shot down.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 28 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In Holland, the grim fighting extended to the whole front sector between the Schelde Estuary and Hertogenbosch. Particularly grim was the fighting in the Bergen op Zoom sector, where numerous enemy attacks, launched with strong tank support, were smashed.

Farther east, Tilburg was lost after grim fighting.

The enemy suffered particularly heavy losses in his unsuccessful attacks in the Hertogenbosch sector.

West of St. Die, our troops frustrated the planned U.S. breakthrough through the Mortagne Forest towards the Meurthe Valley.

South of it, in the Bruyères sector, a front gap was closed by our counter-attacks. Strong attacks on these recently-captured positions collapsed in our fire, with heavy losses to the enemy.

The garrisons of our fortresses and strongpoints on the French coast repulsed a certain number of minor enemy attacks during the last few weeks. They remained in control of the forefield by numerous sorties.

Italy:

In central Italy, there was only small-scale fighting, owing to torrential rains.

West of Imola, grenadiers and soldiers of the Waffen SS recaptured important high ground positions by surprise attacks. The enemy suffered heavy losses.

Eastern Front:

In southern Hungary and on the central reaches of the Tisa, German and Hungarian troops repulsed the Soviets and wiped out strong enemy units.

North of Debrecen, the grim fighting continues. Twenty-five Soviet planes were destroyed on the ground, and 10 others were damaged by a surprise attack of our bombers and fighters on the Debrecen airdrome.

Our troops, having withdrawn from the Forest Carpathians, stopped the Soviet divisions on the eastern frontier of Slovakia.

In the eastern Beskides, the Bolsheviks launched numerous attacks with reinforcements on a broad front.

The attacks were frustrated with heavy losses to the enemy, despite strong artillery support. Grim fighting is still in progress at a penetration in the mountains.

Between Warsaw and the Bug, local Bolshevik attacks failed.

In the frontier area of East Prussia, the big battle continues to rage. Yesterday, the focal points again lay in the sector east and southeast of Gumbinnen and on the western border of the Heath of Romintern. Northeast of Goldap, counter-attacks made progress in the face of stubborn enemy resistance.

Southeast of Ebenrode, strong Bolshevik attacks collapsed. German bomber formations inflicted high losses in men and material on Soviet columns.

BELGIAN FOOD DISTRIBUTION TO BE REORGANIZED

BRUSSELS, October 28 — After announcing that Belgium would be supplied with 200 tons of food daily for 20 days, Major General Erskine, head of the SHAEF mission to Belgium, stated that although the food supply in Belgium was sufficient, «a reorganization was necessary to create a system to meet the present circumstances.» (OWI)

MOSCOW SAYS CONFERENCE «SHORTENED WAR»

MOSCOW, October 28 — The recent conference here of Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin «considerably shortened the war» and brought a complete understanding on the problems of southeast Europe, Radio Moscow said today.

The broadcast said «considerable success was reached in the solution of the Polish question,» and that «a full understanding was reached on the question of armistice terms with Bulgaria and the common policy in Yugoslavia.»

The conference, said Radio Moscow, «did not deal only with the main goal of the Allied powers, the complete crushing and destruction of Hitlerite Germany, but also with establishment of a strong and lasting peace after the war.» (OWI)

GREEK ELECTIONS TO AWAIT COMPLETE LIBERATION

CAIRO, October 28 — Local elections in Greece will be held «at the appropriate time» after the complete liberation of the country has been achieved, according to a Greek Government announcement quoted by Radio Cairo yesterday.

The announcement said that elections which already may have taken place in certain areas are not valid. (OWI)

GREEK KING PRAISES HIS PEOPLE

LONDON, October 28 — In a proclamation broadcast last night to the Greek people on the fourth anniversary of Greece's entry into the war, King George of the Hellenes said:

«The unwavering spirit of a great people has given the date a new meaning. We need it unimpaired, so that we may draw courage from it, and may hold it as an example when the thankless task of reconstruction has begun in the midst of the difficult conditions of the post-war period.

SPANISH REPUBLICANS CONTROL ARAN VALLEY

TOULOSE, October 28 — Spanish Republicans still control the Aran Valley in the Pyrenees region and have captured the towns of Lea, Bosort, and Las Bordas, Alexander Uhl reported in a dispatch.

The dispatch stated that snow is appearing in the Pyrenees, and it is possible that the Spanish Maquis could remain indefinitely in the valley as a spearhead. The problem would then be supplies.

Officials of the Spanish National Union here were quoted as saying that the activities in the Aran Valley were secondary to the activities being carried on throughout Spain. They asserted that there were considerable Maquis forces in operation in Estremadura, Andalusia, Santander, and Catalonia provinces.

An International News Service dispatch from Madrid quoted Franco Government reports that heavy snow had hindered a regular army offensive against Spanish Republicans who had filtered into Catalonia across the Pyrenees from France, and who now hold about six Spanish towns. The official report claimed to have taken a number of prisoners.

Franco Government reports asserted that all fighting had ceased in the Navarre Pyrenees district, into which Spanish Maquis forces had penetrated early this month. Republican forces were officially reported to have been eliminated.

An Associated Press report declared that Spanish Republicans in France are estimated to number 40,000; the report said that they will be placed under the League of Nations «political refugee» statute. (OWI)

EX-MINISTER BANNED FROM FRENCH T. U.

PARIS, October 28 — Rene Belin, former Vichy Minister of Labor and originator of the «Labor Charter,» which the Petain Government tried in vain to impose on the French people, is among four former French trade union leaders who have just been banned for life from having any part in the French trade union organization.

This ban was pronounced by the National Commission for the Reconstitution of Trade Unions of France, which nominated the present Minister of Labor.

Also excluded from the trade union organization for life are Georges Dumolin, Raymond Forideval, and Ludovic Zoretti. (Reuter)

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 28 — Today' communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

The extremely bad weather during the last 48 hours brought operations in Italy to a virtual standstill.

Adverse weather yesterday restricted MAAF aircraft to routine patrolling and isolated attacks against enemy communications.

Fighter-bombers bombed a bridge in Northern Italy.

From these operations, three of our aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew approximately 120 sorties.

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 28 — Today's communique:

In South Beveland, Allied forces now hold the south side of the isthmus as far as the canal west of Kruiningen.

Our bridgehead on the southern coast of the peninsula has been reinforced and expanded.

Groede, in the Schelde pocket, is in our hands, and we are on the coast to the northwest of the village.

Northeast of the South Beveland isthmus, we have taken Bergen op Zoom.

North of Esschen, our units are within two miles of Roosendaal.

On the Antwerp-Breda Road, we progressed to the area of Zundert.

We are in the eastern outskirts of Tilburg, and north of the town our troops reached the vicinity of Loon op Zand.

To the south, we made good gains and, on the west, forward elements cut the Tilburg-Breda Road.

The enemy has been cleared from Hertogenbosch, and we made some progress farther west.

On the east side of the Dutch salient, we checked a counter-attack in the vicinity of Meijel, where fighting is still in progress.

Light artillery-fire was directed against our units in the Aachen area and along the Belgian-German frontier in the sector east of Saint Vith.

Near Rambervillers, we made local gains at several points.

The village of Housseras has been taken.

Farther south, limited progress was made between Bruyères and Le Tholy.

In the Vosges Mountains, attempts to infiltrate into our positions were frustrated, and losses were inflicted on the enemy.

Adverse weather restricted air operations yesterday. (Reuter)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, October 28 — Tonight's communique:

Troops of the Karelian Front, continuing their offensive, occupied, in the Petsamo (Pechenga) region the populated localities of Mayatalo and Nautsi, and in Norway captured the populated localities of Buholm, Songa, Veyne, Lilebeken, Munkelben, Algelpel, and Naiden.

Northwest of Praga, a suburb of Warsaw, our troops, jointly with units of the Polish 1st Army, fought battles of local importance, in the course of which they captured the town and railway station of Jablona-Ledinovo, and the populated localities of Kamarnitse, Segelnya, Stanislau, Uzepuf, and Jablona.

In Czechoslovakia, north and south of Uzhorod, our troops fought advance battles, in the course of which they occupied over 60 populated localities including Chukaluptse, Janovo, Klenovo, Uglye, Trihovtse, Podgradyc, Gusak, Zagor, Lekar, Malaya-Dobroy, Keliki-Dobroy, Batyevo, Zupkor, and the railway stations of Tarnovtse, Padbe, Barkasevo, Batyevo, and Shomkotino.

In the Veneto region, attacks and acts of sabotage continue against enemy traffic, which has been intensified, both to furnish the enemy with war supplies and to carry off industrial machinery stolen by the Germans in northern Italy.

On the night of October 19, near Udine, an electric locomotive with a steam locomotive in tow was derailed, and the personnel attacked with hand grenades and automatic weapons. Both locomotives were destroyed.

During the night of October 24, in the same sector, an electric train composed of 30 cars was also derailed. The locomotive was destroyed by fire, and five cars were thrown off the embankment.

Near Ospeadaletto, in Trento Province, Patriots destroyed materials and machinery which were to be used for fortifications.

The power plant at Savorgnano, in Udine Province, was rendered useless.

The Bologna Black Brigade, which moved northward to round-up civilians, is carrying off unarmed citizens for internment at Carpi, rather than face Patriots in the region.

At Marzabotto, in the same area, the Germans massacred 300 persons, including women and children, and buried them in a common grave in reprisal for the activity of members of the Groups for Patriotic Action.

At Casalecchio di Reno, 15 persons were hanged in public. Eight other civilians were shot on the target range at Bologna. Fascist authorities are also carrying out mass executions in Bologna on their own, and without the knowledge of the Germans. They recently massacred seven civilians. (UNN)

GERMAN

Western Front: No mention had been made by midnight of the Allied capture of the important Dutch supply and transport center of Bergen op Zoom, which was already claimed in the noon BBC broadcast.

The military commentator for Transocean, Ludwig Sertorius, continued the trend of the past week of shifting attention to Antwerp, and claiming an important German defensive victory there: « Seen from the strategic point of view, each day that passes with the Antwerp harbor remaining closed is a gain for the German Command. » The same commentator admitted that the « Canadians managed to come close to Bergen op Zoom » but did not concede its fall. He did, however, concede that the « British were able to enter Tilburg after a hard struggle. »

Eastern Front: The feature item on this front was the German claim, as reported by the Transocean correspondent Karl Bluecher, that the Russian attack had shifted to a « new focal point », namely « in Kurland, near the Baltic ». The other two focal points were defined as being in East Prussia and in Hungary.

As usual, it was claimed that the new attack was no surprise but that, rather, « the German Command had expected the Moscow Supreme Command to make a new major attack in this front sector ». The following explanation for the shift to a new sector was given: « After the grim resistance of German and Hungarian troops put the brakes on the major Soviet offensives in East Prussia and Hungary, it became clear that, sticking to its old tactics of shifting the centres of gravity whenever resistance increases, Moscow would start a new major assault. »

Rain Halts Fighting: The Fascist radio said that « both sides exploited the lull by bringing up reserves ». A minor German victory (the recapture of a height) was reported south of Bologna.

Anniversary of the March on Rome: The retrospective fanfare took place today mostly in Milan, rather far from Rome. The Fascist radio programmes, which were devoted almost exclusively to speeches and commentaries on the past and future significance of Fascism, stated that celebrations also occurred in all the cities of northern Italy. Various Fascist armed units, together with « a crowd of Fascists and Milanese » gathered in Piazza San Sepolcro for ceremonies which were highlighted by a speech from Fascist Party Secretary Pavolini.

Meanwhile, at Fascist General Headquarters, whose location is so far undisclosed, Mussolini delivered a notably short address before Fascist Legionaries, in what was described as a « strictly military ceremony ». This assembly was attended by Marshal Graziani, as well as by many important Nazi authorities and the Japanese Ambassador.

Party Secretary Pavolini's address quoted liberally from a recent speech of Mussolini's, rather than from today's brief one, borrowing from Il Duce the three key words of Fascism: « Italy, Republic, Socialisation. »

The word « Italy » served as parenthesis for a long backward glance to the « historic » rôle of Fascism in rescuing, rejuvenating, and « imperializing », etc., Italy's destiny. Roughly, the second key-word, « Republic », was tied into the heavily-stressed theme that Fascism was and is an heir-apparent to the tradition of Cavour and Garibaldi. (Not in Pavolini's speech, but in one long commentary, this unbroken chain idea added up to « 83 years of united efforts and sacrifices »).

Finally, on « Socialisation, » Pavolini (and other spokesmen) explained that Fascism, particularly since the « treason » of last year, means all things to all workers: « There are Republicans and Socialists, » he said, « from whom nothing substantial separates us, unless it be that on some points our social programme is even more revolutionary than theirs. »

The really outstanding distraction was offered up in the form of a series of amnesty laws for the benefit of offenders against common and political law. The draft of the laws was read by the Fascist Minister of Justice in the form of an appeal to the magnanimous and « human » instincts of Il Duce. Summarizing, it could be said that the amnesty for deserters from Fascism, which sets a deadline for their return or their « repentance, » looks like a ruse to obtain recruits.

HUNGARIAN

Exchange of Felicitations: Radio Budapest today featured an exchange of telegrams between the new Premier of Hungary, Szalasi, and Chancellor Hitler. The telegram from Szalasi called Hitler « the first hero of this great war of ideologies, and the leader called upon to direct the future commonwealth of Europe. » The Hungarian premier assured the Führer that « we are fighting under your leadership for the Nationalist and Socialist globe, » and concluded his message with the exclamation « Heil Hitler! »

Hitler, in reply, promised Szalasi that « the German Reich will never forsake Hungary, » and sent « warmest greetings » to the « entire Hungarian nation. »

The other two focal points were defined as being in East Prussia and in Hungary.

As usual, it was claimed that the new attack was no surprise but that, rather, « the German Command had expected the Moscow Supreme Command to make a new major attack in this front sector ». The following explanation for the shift to a new sector was given: « After the grim resistance of German and Hungarian troops put the brakes on the major Soviet offensives in East Prussia and Hungary, it became clear that, sticking to its old tactics of shifting the centres of gravity whenever resistance increases, Moscow would start a new major assault. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Rain Halts Fighting: The Fascist radio said that « both sides exploited the lull by bringing up reserves ». A minor German victory (the recapture of a height) was reported south of Bologna.

Anniversary of the March on Rome: The retrospective fanfare took place today mostly in Milan, rather far from unbroken chain idea added up to « 65 years of united efforts and sacrifices »).

Finally, on « Socialisation, » Pavolini (and other spokesmen) explained that Fascism, particularly since the « treason » of last year, means all things to all workers: « There are Republicans and Socialists, » he said, « from whom nothing substantial separates us, unless it be that on some points our social programme is even more revolutionary than theirs. »

The really outstanding distraction was offered up in the form of a series of amnesty laws for the benefit of offenders against common and political law. The draft of the laws was read by the Fascist Minister of Justice in the form of an appeal to the magnanimous and « human » instincts of Il Duce. Summarizing, it could be said that the amnesty for deserters from Fascism, which sets a deadline for their return or their « repentance, » looks like a ruse to obtain recruits.

HUNGARIAN

Exchange of Felicitations: Radio Budapest today featured an exchange of telegrams between the new Premier of Hungary, Szalasi, and Chancellor Hitler. The telegram from Szalasi called Hitler « the first hero of this great war of ideologies, and the leader called upon to direct the future commonwealth of Europe. » The Hungarian premier assured the Führer that « we are fighting under your leadership for the Nationalist and Socialist globe, » and concluded his message with the exclamation « Heil Hitler! »

Hitler, in reply, promised Szalasi that « the German Reich will never forsake Hungary, » and sent « warmest greetings » to the « entire Hungarian nation. »

CANADIANS LAND ON BEVELAND; TILBURG FLANKED

SHAEF, October 27 — Canadian and British seaborne assault forces landed before dawn yesterday on the southern coast of Beveland Island, which guards the entrance to the port of Antwerp. Late reports tonight said that a bridgehead seven miles square had been established, and that reinforcements and supplies are pouring in.

British landing craft loaded with troops, light artillery, mortars, and Bren carriers moved up the Schelde Estuary under cover of darkness and smoke screens laid down by British naval vessels.

The landings were covered by shellfire from Allied guns on the southern side of the Schelde Estuary.

Falaise Gap debacle, which resulted in the annihilation of the German 7th Army in Normandy.

It is now evident that the German High Command has issued orders to troops to withdraw from this threatened pocket. Administrative and headquarters units have already been evacuated from Tilburg, and troops are withdrawing by night. Only expendables will be left behind to delay Allied progress.

All German resistance in Hertogenbosch has ended, and British troops are advancing to the north toward Zaltbommel, on the Waal River. German resistance in this area is strengthening. The Germans have been cleared from the concentration camp at Fort Isabella.

Canadian troops at the base of the British salient in Holland have driven to within 4,000 yards of Bergen op Zoom, while another Canadian column driving on Roosendaal has reached Nispen. Allied forces astride the secondary Antwerp-Breda Road have captured Minderhout, a center of minor road and rail lines fingering out toward western Germany.

In a desperate attempt to relieve German forces on the western flank of the Dutch corridor, German troops on the eastern side launched a four-pronged counter-attack from the German border town of Venlo, on the Meuse River. The thrusts were so ineffective that enemy troops were unable to reach the British lines. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

INCOMPLETE COUNT SHOWS 30 JAP SHIPS SMASHED

WASHINGTON, October 27 — A Navy Department announcement revealed tonight that 30 Japanese warships were sunk, probably sunk, or damaged during the recent battle in the Philippines, which cost The United States the light carrier USS Princeton and five other warships sunk.

The five other American vessels sunk included two escort carriers, two destroyers, and one escort destroyer. No details have yet been received regarding their sinking.

James F. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, in a broadcast here last night, said that of the Japanese naval casualty list of 30 warships, nine are known to have been sunk. He listed them as one battleship, two aircraft carriers, five cruisers, and one destroyer. He emphasized that the total sunk probably was more than nine, but that he would not add to the score until their sinking had been unmistakably established.

Asserting that two-thirds of Japan's battleships have been sunk or damaged and her force of cruisers and destroyers left inadequate for some time, Secretary Forrestal said that Allied naval forces will pursue the remaining damaged Japanese ships to the limit of their ability.

He hailed the Philippine naval victory as "one of the pivotal actions of the war," and promised that new blows will be struck against the Japanese soon.

Forrestal said that the damage inflicted upon the Japanese fleet in the series of engagements in Philippine waters is even greater than that already announced at Pacific headquarters, but that only at an appropriate time

Light opposition was met at the initial stage of the landings, but German resistance later stiffened, and Allied troops are now under heavy German mortar fire.

11,000 Germans Threatened

An estimated 11,000 German troops on Walcheren and Beveland Islands are now threatened from two sides. Canadian troops thrusting westward from Woensdrecht advanced 12 miles to the canal at the western neck of the Beveland Peninsula. Climbing over dikes and advancing over open fields under German machine-gun fire, these troops are now within six miles of the bridgehead forces.

British forces have flanked the important communications center of Tilburg to the north and south, while, late reports tonight stated, other British units have entered the city itself. Long columns of British armor, guns, and men advanced through mud and, in a six-mile drive over bad tank terrain, cut the main German escape route to the north at Loon op Zand. They are now in a position to launch a westward offensive to the rear of the enemy.

The town of Loon op Zund has not yet been taken, but Allied forces are in control of Heikan and Udenhout on the highway to Sprang and Nieuwstraat, on a railway line to Dordrecht, to the northwest. German forces to the north and west of Tilburg face the prospect of a sequel to the area is strengthening. The Germans have been cleared from the concentration camp at Fort Isabella.

through sinking or damage a total of 4,185 combatant and non-combatant ships since 7 December 1941.

According to an Associated Press dispatch, the six new U.S. losses raise to 170 the total number of U.S. warships listed as sunk since Pearl Harbor, and to 217 the total U.S. warships lost from all causes.

While remnants of one of these enemy task forces were making their way from the Philippines in the direction of their home bases, American Liberators based in China continued the running battle and scored hits on a transport, a freighter, and a tanker, a communique from General Joseph Stilwell reported from Chungking tonight. Well over 8,000 tons of enemy shipping were probably sunk and 1,000 tons damaged.

Vice Admiral R. S. Edwards, Deputy Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Fleet, said in a broadcast yesterday, « This offensive by the Japanese fleet was aimed at knocking out General MacArthur's invasion forces in Leyte. The Japs have failed, and their fleet is badly hurt. »

The Japanese admirals had hoped to crush the Leyte invasion forces by drawing the U.S. Fleet off-balance with a blow from the south, while a second and larger fleet attacked from the north, a correspondent aboard Vice-Admiral Thomas Kincaid's flagship said in a dispatch today. He wrote that the plan might have succeeded, had the Japanese not run afoul of the counter-strategy of Admiral Thomas Sprague, who detected the trap and stayed out of it.

An enemy force of two battleships, three cruisers, and six destroyers were seen sneaking through the Mindanao Sea and later entering the Surigao Straits at a point where the passage was not more than 12 miles wide, the correspondent said.

The Japanese were permitted to move 22 miles up the narrow strait before the American fleet units opened up with big guns. After the battleships opened fire, destroyers moved in swiftly and fired torpedoes. The Japs were caught while baiting their own trap.

The Japanese northern attack force of 25 ships, which slipped through the San Bernardino Straits to run down the east coast of Samar, fared no better. Only 14 of these ships were able to retire in the afternoon of October 25.

Another correspondent pointed out that the damaged Japanese warships now scurrying home for repairs might well find their repair facilities put out of use by Superfortress raids on the Japanese homeland. (OWI-BBC)

RUSSIANS CAPTURE SLOVAK CITY CONTINUE ADVANCE IN EAST PRUSSIA

MOSCOW, October 27 — Marshal Stalin tonight announced the capture of Uzhorod, a large communications center and enemy stronghold in Czechoslovakia, by troops of the 4th Ukrainian Front under General Petrov. The action marked a 15-mile advance by Red Army troops, and almost completes the capture of the Carpathian Ukraine, which Hungary seized from the Czechoslovak Republic.

The 4th Ukrainian Front, which started its drive from the foothills south of Lvov and Przemysl and completed the difficult breaching of the Carpathians, has now reached the central European plain only 15 miles north of the Hungarian frontier. With half of its great plain already overrun by the Russians from the southeast, Hungary now faces a second great invasion from the north.

Berehovo Captured

Fanning out to the south of captured Mukacevo, Russians troops have taken the important railway-junction city of Berehovo and a number of towns and railway stations in the vicinity.

Czechoslovak Forces of the Interior announced tonight

By the early Russian capture of Goldap, which links the principal road from Lyck to the north via Treuburg through Goldap to Gumbinnen and on to Tilsit, Red Army troops are battling for larger towns linking first-class lateral roads. Russian armor is as yet unable to undertake free maneuverings in any depth into enemy territory.

Far to the north, Russian troops are pursuing German troops fleeing to the arctic ports of Hammerfest, Tromsö, and Narvik. Russian planes are dive-bombing and strafing them as they retreat through the narrow gorges leading to the fjords.

Radio Moscow reported that the port of Kirkenes, captured by Russian troops Wednesday, is still on fire. Important buildings, factories, hospitals, schools, and whole blocks were set on fire by the retreating Germans.

Finnish troops are driving the Germans northward up the Muonio River Valley along the Finnish-Swedish frontier. The Germans are fighting delaying actions, with artillery and tank forces, to slow the Finnish advance on the town of Muoni, 60 miles north of Kolari. In central Finland, Finnish forces supported by heavy artillery captured strong German positions south of Vuotso, on the Arctic road leading from the Gulf of Bothnia to the Barents Sea.

CANADIANS, 2 MILES FROM FORLI', HELD BY RAINS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 27 — Canadian, British, and Indian troops of the 8th Army, pushing forward in an autumn gale which has bogged the entire Italian front, yesterday approached within two miles of Forli, and took up positions along an eight-mile stretch of the River Ronco, the water barrier of the main German defenses guarding the provincial capital, it was announced here today.

Although only light enemy rear-guards were encountered in the advance to the river line, leading troops of British forces — which crossed the Ronco west of Forlimpopoli — were counter-attacked in force by Mark IV Tiger tanks, and were compelled to withdraw to the east bank of the stream.

Yesterday's heavy rains brought operations on the 5th Army front almost to a standstill, with even main roads clogged by mud, but several sharp local actions occurred on the crucial sector south of Bologna, where German forces are battling furiously to hold already threatened hill and mountain defenses guarding the entryways to the central Plain of the Po.

German forces, using tank fire, self-propelled guns, Nebelwerfers and concentrated mortar and artillery fire, made a concerted effort yesterday to regain lofty Monte Belmonte, center bastion in their three to four-mile-long mountain escarpment defenses guarding the entrance into the Savena River Valley. Although elements of the enemy attacking force reached the 1,323-foot-high peak, they were thrown back by the American forces now holding the former German mountain fortress.

Americans Capture Two Heights

In other bitter engagements yesterday, American forces fighting to widen and deepen their salient thrust into the Sillaro River Valley on the right flank of the main advance toward Bologna captured Il Poggio and Monte Mezzano, two heights 10 miles southeast of Bologna and within four miles of the Bologna-Rimini Road.

Fighting in the vicinity of Vedriano, a small settlement a mile or so to the west, continued into its third day yesterday without conclusive results, it was stated. In this sector, enemy forces have hastily constructed hillside entrenchments to halt the nearly two-mile-deep American penetration west of the Sillaro River, which has threatened the entire German defensive plan.

Fanning out to the south of captured Mukacevo, Russians troops have taken the important railway-junction city of Berehovo and a number of towns and railway stations in the vicinity.

Czechoslovak Forces of the Interior announced tonight that the Germans had captured the large railway city of Zvolen, south of Banska Bystrica, and that fierce fighting was now in progress in the area of Banska Bystrica and Podbrezova to the northeast. BBC reported that large amounts of airborne supplies have been reaching the Czechoslovak Patriots, whose numbers are rapidly growing.

General Chernyakovsky's troops are battling slowly forward in East Prussia in savage fighting along the entire front. Russian tanks, self-propelled guns, and infantry are moving forward through breaches in the belt of German fortifications on the approaches to Gumbinnen and on the roads to Angerburg. Fresh German tanks and infantry units have been thrown into the line to hold the Russian advance, but they are being pushed back by heavy Russian artillery fire.

Landing strips are being laid directly behind the battle-front.

Two fresh Soviet army groups are reported to be poised for new blows against Germany's northeast bastion. The armies of Generals Bagramyan and Zakharov are ready along the East Prussian border to the north and south of the present invasion force. Despite the ferocity of the battle for the Insterburg gap, leading to Königsberg, the German High Command is holding back large reserves to meet new threats.

In this sector, enemy forces have hastily constructed hillside entrenchments to halt the nearly two-mile-deep American penetration west of the Sillaro River, which has threatened the entire German defensive plan.

The 8th Army advance to the line of the River Ronco followed an abrupt enemy withdrawal, after they had battled for six days to hem in British and Canadian bridgeheads over the Savio River, eight miles to the southwest.

Once again following their tactic of holding a natural defensive line until the Allied pressure against it becomes too powerful to withstand, German forces have now retired behind the River Ronco.

Allied strength is already building up, for, according to today's reports, Canadian troops are now massing on the eastern banks of the stream in the vicinity of the railway bridge two miles from Forli, with British and Indian troops farther south. Other British and Polish troops are pushing into the Ronco Valley from the south, and patrols are fanning out west of the River in these upper stretches.

Some of these 8th Army forces were reported to be in contact with German troops holding a ridgetop-front between Monte Colombo and Monte Mirabello.

On the coastal sector, 8th Army troops advanced over a mile and a half to cross the Bevano River, some seven miles south of Ravenna, encountering only light and scattered German resistance. These troops have met practically no resistance in their thrust northward along the axis of Highway 16, through the coastal marshes and salt flats. But between the Bevano River mouth and Ravenna, the land is slightly higher, and thick pine woods are interspersed with bogs separated by innumerable drainage ditches and watercourses.

The Bevano River was also crossed by troops advancing from Mensa, a village on the Savio River which the Germans at one point held in strength, only to relinquish with little or no resistance when armored forces made their appearance overland.

South African forces, building up the flank of the American thrust northward toward Bologna, yesterday crossed the Setta River east of Vergato, German strongpoint in the Reno River Valley. (PRO)

AMERICANS VIRTUALLY CONTROL SAMAR MAKE RAPID PROGRESS ON LEYTE

MACARTHUR'S HQ, LEYTE, October 28 — American forces aided by Filipino Patriots gained control of virtually the whole island of Samar, it was announced here today.

Landings were effected Wednesday by American cavalry troops and tanks that were ferried across the narrow strait separating Leyte from Samar, at a point 90 miles southeast of the main Philippine island of Luzon.

Catbalogan, Samar's capital, was liberated in a swift advance, the communique announced.

American troops also made rapid progress on all Leyte fronts, the communique said, adding that Japanese forces on the island are showing signs of complete disintegration.

The Japanese lost more than 14,000 men in the nine-day campaign to date, it was announced, while United States forces have lost 518 killed, 139 missing, and 1,503 wounded.

A press dispatch reported that American troops now control at least 54 miles of coastline after 7th Division forces, moving south along the coast, entered Dauyog, 14 miles below Dulag, and pushed on in pursuit of enemy forces.

General MacArthur announced yesterday that his heavy land-based bombers have added to the casualty list of the Japanese Navy. American bombers yesterday damaged one enemy light cruiser in the Mindanao Sea, while in the Macassar region other bombers damaged a light freighter in the Gulf of Bone.

Coincident with the sea-air fighting in the Philippines, Admiral Nimitz announced yesterday that Aleutian-based bombers have been hammering Japanese positions in the Kurile Islands. Five groups of Army and Navy bombers attacked Paramushiro, Shimushu, and Natsuwa, causing many fires among installations.

Concentrated and destructive air attacks also have been made on Yap Island in the western Carolines, and in the northern Palaus, the northern Marianas, and the Volcano Islands. (OWI)

JAPS ADVANCE 69 MILES, CAPTURE NINGYUAN

CHUNGKING, October 27 — Japanese troops have advanced 60 miles in eight days southward from their base at Kiyang, and have captured the Hunan communications center of Ningyuan, 110 miles east of the Kwangsi Province capital of Kweilin, the Chinese High Command announced today.

A Chinese communique said the Japanese thrust was made to safeguard the Japanese left flank, and came as Chinese troops on the enemy's right flank pushed southward 9½ miles from recently-captured Sinning in Hunan, 90 miles north of Kweilin.

Today's communique from General Stilwell's headquarters said that 17 missions of P-51's and P-40's of the 14th U.S. Air Force continued their coordinated air support of Chinese ground forces in the Menghu-Kweiping sector along the West River Wednesday, causing heavy damage and casualties to Japanese forces attempting to break through to revealed today as forming part of the 8th Army forces recently engaged in fighting on the Adriatic coast.

The Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. R. A. Hull, DSO, was credited with advances of 30 miles in the battle to break through the Goth Line north of the Conca River, and its tank men captured some 1,300 enemy prisoners and so seriously mauled a number of German divisions that they had to be withdrawn from battle. OVER 20,000 GERMANS TRAPPED IN GREECE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 27 — More than 20,000 German troops are threatened with destruction in Greece and the outlying islands as they make desperate efforts to escape Royal Air Force and Balkan Air Force attacks in their flight northward into Serbia past Greek guerrilla forces, it was announced here tonight.

The enemy troops, steaming northward from Thessaly in motor columns at times jammed bumper-to-bumper along a 30 mile stretch of narrow valley roads, are being subjected to fierce strafing and bombing attacks which have already taken a heavy toll of the retreating army, it was said.

Fighters and fighter-bombers fly from airfields in the Athens area to harry them by day and night, while other Balkan Air Force planes strike ahead at bridges and crossroads to block their escape route, the announcement stated.

The great bulk of the enemy forces are trying frantically to form-up in the Salonika area, pouring into that important Greek port by the east coast rail route from the Larissa area. There are several thousands in these formations it is said.

The retreating German columns are burning villages and fields in futile revenge as they pass through Greece, the statement continued.

Fourteen thousand Germans are said to be in the Isle of Crete; an estimated 4,000 in Rhodes, and 5,000 others in other Aegean islands. Although the Germans are making considerable efforts to evacuate these forces by air at night, fighter vigilance and attacks on terminal fields make the fate of these cut-off troops virtually sealed, the statement said. BAD WEATHER REDUCES M.A.A.F. SORTIES TO 82

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 27 — With bad weather reducing sorties of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force to 82, the lowest figure in over a month, a small force of Flying Fortresses yesterday defied autumnal storms to strike at the important Innsbruck railway yards on the Brenner Pass line into Germany, it was announced here today.

The roundhouse and repair sheds at the railway terminus were struck, and fires were left burning in the yards, crews reported.

Planes of the Coastal and the Balkan Air Forces attacked enemy motor traffic in Albania and Greece yesterday.

One Allied aircraft was reported missing. (PRO)

JAPS ADVANCE 69 MILES, CAPTURE NINGYUAN

CHUNGKING, October 27 — Japanese troops have advanced 60 miles in eight days southward from their base at Kiyang, and have captured the Hunan communications center of Ningyuan, 110 miles east of the Kwangsi Province capital of Kweilin, the Chinese High Command announced today.

A Chinese communique said the Japanese thrust was made to safeguard the Japanese left flank, and came as Chinese troops on the enemy's right flank pushed southward 9½ miles from recently-captured Sinning in Hunan, 90 miles north of Kweilin.

Today's communique from General Stilwell's headquarters said that 17 missions of P-51's and P-40's of the 14th U.S. Air Force continued their coördinated air support of Chinese ground forces in the Menghu-Kwelping sector along the West River Wednesday, causing heavy damage and casualties to Japanese forces attempting to break through to the west and north.

Sharp fighting followed an attack by troops of the 5th Indian Division against a Japanese strongpoint at Sialam, north of the Tiddim-Fort White Road in Burma. The enemy remains in a firmly-held position on the Fort White Road, 17 kilometers from Tiddim, today's Southeast Asia communique said. (OWI - Reuter)

NOVISAD CAPTURED BY YUGOSLAVS AND RUSSIANS

LONDON, October 27 — Novisad, important communications center on the Danube River 60 miles north of Belgrade, has been captured by Red Army and Yugoslav Liberation troops, it was announced tonight in the Soviet communique.

Thirty miles to the north, Allied forces captured the railway junction of Kula, which was reported earlier today to have been encircled. (Reuter)

BRITISH 1ST ARMOURED DIVISION IN ACTION

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 27 — The British 1st Armoured Division, oldest unit in Britain's modern tank forces, and veteran of the first campaign in France and the desert war as well as the Italian campaign, was Balkan Air Force planes strike ahead at bridges and crossroads to block their escape route, the announcement stated.

The great bulk of the enemy forces are trying frantically to form-up in the Salonika area, pouring into that important Greek port by the east coast rail route from the Larissa area. There are several thousands in these formations it is said.

The retreating German columns are burning villages and fields in futile revenge as they pass through Greece, the statement continued.

Fourteen thousand Germans are said to be in the Isle of Crete; an estimated 4,000 in Rhodes, and 5,000 others in other Aegean islands. Although the Germans are making considerable efforts to evacuate these forces by air at night, fighter vigilance and attacks on terminal fields make the fate of these cut-off troops virtually sealed, the statement said. BAD WEATHER REDUCES M.A.A.F. SORTIES TO 82

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 27 — With bad weather reducing sorties of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force to 82, the lowest figure in over a month, a small force of Flying Fortresses yesterday defied autumnal storms to strike at the important Innsbruck railway yards on the Brenner Pass line into Germany, it was announced here today.

The roundhouse and repair sheds at the railway terminus were struck, and fires were left burning in the yards, crews reported.

Planes of the Coastal and the Balkan Air Forces attacked enemy motor traffic in Albania and Greece yesterday.

One Allied aircraft was reported missing. (PRO)

ALBANIAN PUPPET GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

LONDON, October 27 — The puppet Albanian government resigned last night, leaving control of the country in the hands of the army and civilian officials, Radio Tirana said today.

The broadcast said that the resignation came because «threats that existed when this government was formed, for various reasons within and from outside of Albania, have increased to an extent that cannot be overcome.» No announcement has been made of a new régime. (PWB)

BONOMI SAYS ITALY FACES TRYING WINTER

ROME, October 27 — This coming winter will be a trying one for Italy, Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi told Reuter Correspondent Cecil Sprigge, in an interview here yesterday.

«If, as seems probable,» the Premier said, «the Germans will destroy our industrial establishments and loot our countryside as they withdraw from the Po Valley, the life of the Italian population in that part of the country will be tragically difficult.»

The Prime Minister said the most urgent task facing the Government is the provision for transportation and distribution of food, clothing, and medical supplies, the next urgent problem being the erection of temporary dwellings for refuges and those left roofless as a result of the war.

Bonomi said the six parties represented in the Government realized the importance of meeting these immediate needs of the population, and were therefore agreed on the advisability of putting off to a later date the solution of the social and political issues facing the country.

The possibility of reviving the pre-Fascist Chamber of Deputies was discarded by the Prime Minister. What has been done in France, he said, cannot be done in Italy where elected bodies have been lacking for 20 years. He declared himself in favor of administration by commissions of experts for the solution of specific problems until such time as it will be possible to hold national elections.

The possibility of Italian emigration's being channelled toward Brazil was hinted by Bonomi, who said that a country like Italy, having a high birth-rate and scant natural resources, must find an outlet for her surplus population. The Premier said Brazilian officials had reacted favorably to the idea of an influx of Italians to their country.

The interview ended with the plea that Italy's status be changed from that of a co-belligerent to that of an ally. (Reuter)

RUMOR OF ATTEMPT TO SEPARATE SICILY DENIED

LONDON, October 27 — George Hall, British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, denied in the House of Commons today rumors that Britain supported a movement to separate Sicily from the rest of Italy.

In a written reply to a question, Hall said:

«I am aware that such a movement exists and is active at the present time. It also has come to my knowledge that this movement is alleged to have the support of the Allies. I am glad, therefore, to take this opportunity of stating that, as far as His Majesty's Government is concerned, all rumors to this effect are entirely without foundation.» (Reuter)

STETTINIUS LAUDS ITALIAN COOPERATION

WASHINGTON, October 27 — The United States Government's policy is to return to the Italian Government control of its internal affairs «as soon as possible,» Edward Stettinius, Acting Secretary of State, said today at a press conference here.

Mr. Stettinius' declaration followed a question by the press regarding a report that Premier Ivanoe Bonomi had complained that The United States was not relaxing controls in Italy.

He noted the loyal cooperation of the Italian people and Italian armed forces during the past year in the fight against Germany and Fascism.

Mr. Stettinius' statement on the resumption of relations with Italy follows:

«The resumption of formalized relations with Italy is an implementation of the joint-statement on Italy by the President and the Prime Minister of 26 September 1944. It is in recognition of the efforts of the Italian people during the past year to establish a healthy political basis for government.

«It is in recognition of the representative national government that has been formed and supported by the various anti-Fascist parties of Liberated Italy.

«It is in recognition of the loyal cooperation of the Italian people and armed forces during the past year in the bitter struggle against our common enemy.

«The resumption of diplomatic relations with Italy does not reestablish peace, nor does it settle the many questions which have yet to shake off the scourge of Nazi collaboration.

«In according recognition to the Government of Italy, The United States has clearly pointed the way to independent sovereignty and security for the other oppressed nations of the world.» (OWI)

ROME ALLIED COURTS TRY 2,750 CASES

ROME, October 27 — From June 6 to October 1 of this year, Rome Area Allied Military courts have tried 2,750 cases of infraction of Allied military laws which went into effect at the time of the liberation of the city, a spokesman said today.

By far the greater number of these violations occurred between June 4 and June 15, a period in which Allied police and courts were not yet sufficiently staffed and equipped to meet the emergency situation which arose with the transition from observance of Fascist laws to that of orders issued by the Allied command.

Ten per cent of the cases appearing before Allied summary courts were dismissed. Of the 82 hearings before the Allied Superior Court, 18 were likewise dismissed.

One of the heaviest sentences — five years in prison — was handed down in the case of a man found guilty of illegal possession of Allied goods worth more than 1,000 dollars.

Three persons were sentenced to death for espionage.

Since October 1, the spokesman said, judgment of cases involving violations of Allied Command orders and regulations has been taken over by Italian magistrates. (UNN)

TWO ITALIAN GENERALS REMOVED

ROME, October 27 — Medical Corps Major General Francesco Maiorca and Army General Francesco Dupont were today removed from their posts on orders from Mauro Scoccimarro, Assistant High Commissioner for Epuration.

The removal is in line with the elimination of officers compromised by their ties with the Fascist Régime. (UNN)

NAZIS STRIPPED ITALY OF VITAL DRUGS

FLORENCE, October 26 — Italy was almost completely stripped of most of her precious medical supplies when the Germans carried out one of their most extensive wanton destructions and lootings in Italy's largest pharmaceutical manufacturing plant here, it was disclosed today.

Only the prompt action of Allied Military Government and the Allied Control Commission in dispatching hundreds of tons of emergency medical supplies to Italy, mostly from The United States, saved the people of liberated Italy from a serious health crisis.

The Germans looted the plant, Istituto Chimico Farmaceutico Militare, sending 250 freight-car loads of drugs and machinery to Germany. Then they systematically destroyed the remaining machinery.

Although the plant had no military significance, since it manufactured only drugs and surgical dressings, the Germans employed mines, hand-grenades, axes, and heavy machine-guns, and in their vandalism also spilled and destroyed hundreds of thousands of glass medicine bottles. A specially-assigned German destruction crew devoted its exclusive attention to the plant for nearly a month.

Following is a partial list of what the Germans stole: 25,000 kilos of quinine; 8,000 kilos of opium; 250 kilos of morphine; 50 kilos of cocaine; 100 kilos of codeine; 150 kilos of heroin; 500 kilos of alkaloids; 15,000 kilos of sulfa drugs; more than one million kilos of surgical dressings;

«The resumption of formal relations with Italy is intended, however, to facilitate our return to a state of peace, which is, of course, an objective of our Italian policy.»

In answer to another question from reporters, Mr. Stettinius said that it is too early to give out the armistice terms with Italy, because that is a military matter. (OWI)

BIDDLE HAILS EXCHANGE OF AMBASSADORS

WASHINGTON, October 27 — U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle today hailed the exchange of ambassadors between Italy and The United States, and declared that Italy's revival as a free democratic nation offers an inspiring example for other oppressed nations. He said:

«The establishment of direct diplomatic relations between Italy and the United States and Great Britain is the fulfillment of the pledge made a month ago by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, in recognition of Italy's contribution to the war and her courageous effort to rehabilitate herself as a democratic nation.

«The story of Italy's revival and return to the family of free nations supplies an instructive text for the nations

MORE MEDICAL SUPPLIES ARRIVE FROM U. S.

ROME, October 27 — Another large shipment of medical supplies from The United States has arrived in liberated Italy for civilian use, to replace the huge quantity of drugs and surgical dressings looted by the Germans, it was announced today by the Public Health Sub-Commission of the Allied Commission. The latest shipment was 174 tons, while the previous one, which arrived less than a month ago, totaled 600 tons.

To replace the medical items stolen by the Germans, a total of approximately 4,800 tons of supplies have arrived in liberated Italy from America. More is expected in the near future.

Inventory of the shipment of 600 tons has been completed, and the material is now being directed into civilian channels through the special drug wholesalers' organization set up by the Italian government in coöperation with the AC. (UNN)

ALLIED AID TO ITALY SURVEYED

WASHINGTON, October 27 — During last winter and spring, 34 per cent of the population of liberated Italy received more than half its daily allotment of food from Allied imports, a report issued by the Office of War Information here today showed.

How the Allied nations, in little more than a year, have made giant strides in helping the Italians on to the road to economic stability, as well as freedom from Nazi-Fascist oppression, was outlined in the report based on data supplied by the U.S. War Department, the U.S. Department of State, the Allied Commission (in Italy), the U.S. Foreign Economic Administration, and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

The report notes that the Allies liberated Italy when its economy had deteriorated under Fascist bungling, Nazi looting and demolitions, and that military operations were required to drive out the German oppressors. It adds that the Allies have assisted in rehabilitation of Italian government agencies, repair of roads, docks, bridges, and public utilities, reactivation of key industries, and fostering of agricultural development.

Aside from the major contribution of liberation, the report recites among Allied achievements the rapid reopening of banks, the setting up of price controls for 21 major necessities, the compilation of a quick census to aid rehabilitation, a complete study of agriculture, forestry, and fishing to aid in their rehabilitation, the abolition of Fascist syndicates and the assisting of labor in setting up its own organizations.

The report shows:

The Allies have arranged for restoration of postal services from the rest of the world to most parts of liberated Italy.

Shipping space for clothing and medical supplies from American republics, has been arranged.

Upon request of the Allies, UNRRA has undertaken an allocation of 50,000,000 dollars for supplemental Italian relief, which will include 15,000 tons of extra food monthly for the care of approximately 1,700,000 children and pregnant women.

Allied price policy in Italy has been concentrated mainly on attempts to salvage the remnants of a broken-down system of controls that, under the Fascists, were marked by intrigue and corruption. Systematic control of marketing channels is aided now by a civilian consumers' committee.

Many of the acute railroad transportation problems south of Rome have been solved, and lines are now operating on regular schedules.

Food conditions in rural districts of the southern part of liberated Italy are now vastly improved. The cities, always major points of crisis, have an improved supply.

In estimating increased supplies for next year, the need of feeding the peoples of northern Italy must be envisaged.

When the Allies freed Rome, they found that the Germans had removed all but a small part of the city's food supplies, but they maintained the 100-gram bread ration until June 21, when it was increased to 150 grams. Four days later, it was raised to 200 grams. In that month, 7,000 tons of food were brought in and distributed in Rome.

The feeding of the 1,500,000 persons in Rome is the most difficult supply problem in Italy, the report continued. Despite major handicaps, including transportation shortages, 30,000 metric tons of food were delivered to Rome in August.

Of this amount, 13,000 tons were Allied imports. (OWI)

UNITED NATIONS

Speaking of developments in the war, Mr Churchill said:

«The present stage of the war is dour, and hard fighting must be expected on all fronts, to increase in scale and intensity.

«We believe that we are in the last lap,» he said, «but this is a race in which failure to exert the fullest effort to the end may protract that end to periods almost unendurable to those who now have the race in their hands after struggling so far.»

The house greeted with cheers Mr. Churchill's reference to Poland, as he added that, while he did not underestimate the difficulties, it was a comfort to feel that Britain and Soviet Russia and — he did not doubt — The United States, were all firmly agreed as to the need for re-creating a strong, free, and independent Poland.

He said that had the Polish Government taken British advice extended at the beginning of the year, additional complications which developed at Lublin would not have arisen. Any delay in a settlement, he went on, could only hamper the common action which Poles and Russians and the rest of the Allies were taking against Germany.

France's Role Will Be Great

Churchill said recognition of General De Gaulle's provisional government was a symbol of French emergence from four dark years of terrible and woeful experience, and a promise of a period in which France will resume a great and historic role on the world stage.

He appealed to all Greeks to set national unity above all other causes.

«I also made it clear in my speech of August 2nd that France can by no means be excluded from discussions of the principal allies dealing with the problem of Rhine and of Germany,» Mr. Churchill said.

Replying to questions, the Prime Minister said of Poland that «it is certainly to be hoped that the three great powers will guarantee the Poland — the independent, sovereign, free Poland — which will emerge from any arrangement which may be made now and ratified at the peace conference.

«As far as the Soviet Government is concerned, I understand that would be their fixed intention, and I have not hesitated to say that His Majesty's Government will certainly conform and join themselves in such guarantees.»

Churchill added that it was not for him to speak for The United States in that regard.

Mr. Churchill also told the House that Hitler is pinning his hopes on wearing down Allied resolution by lengthening the war, and is also hoping that division may arise between the Allies. Churchill added:

«There is the enemy's great hope, and it is to deprive that hope of all foundation and reality that our efforts must ceaselessly be bent.»

Mr. Churchill said that vast distances and time make it difficult to bring all of the Allied heads together on frequent occasions. «Therefore I have not hesitated to travel from court to court like a wandering minstrel, but always with the same song to sing, or the same set of songs,» the Prime Minister added.

Sequel to Quebec

The Moscow meeting was a sequel to the Quebec Conference, Mr. Churchill said. He added:

«At Moscow, Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us, although in this case an American observer, Mr. Averell Harriman, accomplished Ambassador of The United States, made us feel at all times the presence of the great Republic.»

British and American fighting forces «are intermingled

MOSCOW TALKS WERE HIGHLY SATISFACTORY CHURCHILL TELLS COMMONS

LONDON, October 27 — Prime Minister Churchill today told the House of Commons that the results of the recent Moscow Conference were highly satisfactory, but that final results must await another meeting of the heads of the three governments — Britain, Russia, and The United States. He expressed the hope that such a meeting might take place before the end of the year.

Mr. Churchill said he found the military decisions reached at Moscow «very good.» He said a good working agreement had been reached there regarding all the Balkan countries and Hungary.

Of Poland, he said that it would be a great disappointment to all sincere friends of that nation if an arrangement could not be made enabling Polish Premier Mikolajczyck to form a Polish government on Polish soil recognized by all the powers concerned.

The Prime Minister told the members there would be no weakening amongst the Allies now closing in on Germany to crush the life out of her resistance. «Our relations with Soviet Russia were never more close, intimate, and cordial,» he said. «Over an astonishingly wide area, we found ourselves in full agreement.»

France's Role Will Be Great

Churchill said recognition of General De Gaulle's provisional government was a symbol of French emergence from four dark years of terrible and woeful experience, and a promise of a period in which France will resume a great and historic role on the world stage.

He appealed to all Greeks to set national unity above all other causes.

Sequel to Quebec

The Moscow meeting was a sequel to the Quebec Conference, Mr. Churchill said. He added:

«At Moscow, Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us, although in this case an American observer, Mr. Averell Harriman, accomplished Ambassador of The United States, made us feel at all times the presence of the great Republic.»

British and American fighting forces «are intermingled in line of battle as fighting men of no two other countries have ever been intermingled before,» Mr. Churchill said.

Speaking again on British-Soviet accord, the Prime Minister said:

«Never before have we been able to reach so high a degree of frank and friendly discussion of most delicate, and often potentially vexatious topics as we have done at this meeting from which I have returned, and about which I think it would be only respectful to the House to make some short statement. Where we cannot agree, we understand grounds for each other's disagreement and each other's point of view; but over a very wide area, an astonishingly wide area, considering all the different angles from which we approach these topics, we find ourselves in full agreement.

On the Balkans, Mr. Churchill said:

«Upon the tangled questions of the Balkans, where there are Black Sea interests and Mediterranean interests, I do not feel that there is any immediate danger of our combined war effort's being weakened by divergences of policy or of doctrine. In Greece, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, and, beyond the Balkans, Hungary, we have reached a very good working agreement about all these countries singly and in combination, with the object of concentrating all their efforts and concerting them with our efforts against the common foe and of providing, so far as possible, for a peaceful settlement after the war is over.»

On Yugoslavia:

«We are, in fact, acting jointly — Russia and Britain — in our relations with both the Royal Yugoslavia Government, headed by Doctor Subasic, and with Marshal Tito, and we have invited them by joint message to come together in common cause, as they had already agreed to do at a conference between them both at Naples. How much better that there should be a joint Anglo-Russian policy in this disturbed and very complex area, than that one side should be backing one set of ideas, and the other the opposite.»

Free Decision for Greeks

The Prime Minister said that, while the British Government would continue to preserve relations with King George of Greece and the existing Greek Government, when normal conditions are restored «the Greek people shall make, in complete freedom, their decisions as to the form of government under which they wish to live.»

Mr. Churchill added that Great Britain was doing her best to stabilize Greek currency. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden now is conferring at Athens with the Greek Government toward that end.

During his recent visit to Italy, Mr. Churchill revealed, he arranged with General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson the necessary measures for returning to Athens as soon as possible the Royal Greek Government, headed by Mr. Papandreou.

«When we were driven out of Greece,» Mr. Churchill said, «we promised to return. We have returned. Our pledge has been redeemed. The lawful Greek government sits in Athens. Very soon the Greek Brigade, which has distinguished itself in Italy, at Rimini, will return with honor to its native land.»

«Meanwhile, I appeal to Greeks of every party and of every group to set national unity above all other causes; to cleanse their country of the remaining German forces; to destroy and capture the last of the miscreants who have treated them with indescribable cruelty; and, finally, to join hands and rebuild the strength and to reduce the suffering of their famous and cherished land.»

Question of Poland

Mr. Churchill said the question of Poland was the «most urgent and burning question» discussed at the Moscow Conferences.

«In this sphere,» he said, «there are two issues — two crucial issues. The first is the question of the eastern frontier of Poland with Russia and the Curzon Line, as it is called, and new territories to be added to Poland in the north and west.

«That is the first issue, and the second is the relations of the Polish Government with the Lublin National Liberation Committee. On these two points, apart from any necessary ancillary points — on these two main points we held a series of conferences with both parties. We held them together, and we held them separately and, of course, we were in constant discussion with the heads of the Soviet Government.»

Mr. Churchill said it was the «persevering and constant aim» of the British Government:

«That the Polish people, after their suffering and vicissitudes, shall find in Europe an abiding home and resting place which, though it may not entirely coincide or correspond with the pre-war frontiers of Poland, will, nevertheless, be adequate for the needs of the Polish

GOEBBELS SAYS GERMANY WILL STOP AT NOTHING

BERLIN, October 27 — Joseph Goebbels, Reich Minister Plenipotentiary for Total War Mobilization, admitted during on hour's broadcast to the German people tonight that the Nazis have suffered «bitter grief and gravest anxiety» in the west, but added that they have completely recovered from this shock, and would stop at nothing to bar the enemies' way into the Reich.

He said that Germany was about to demonstrate once agains its «indestructible will to preserve its freedom and to continue to live.» He made this remark after reviewing the past three months which, he said, «have essentially changed the whole aspect of the war.»

Goebbels continued: «We shall go on fighting until a peace is possible which guarantees our peoples the right to live, their national independence, and expansion on the basis of their existence. Whoever throws in his hand in midst of a fierce struggle for bare existence deserves the fate that will overtake him.

«Our war aims are obvious — defense of our country and protection of the Continent threatened by unprecedented menace. Our greatest preoccupation is the air war. We are working untiringly to break the enemy's air terror. Squadrons of fighter and bomber planes of the most modern and effective designs are being produced. German workers are turning out entirely novel weapons in all spheres of war production on which we pin great hopes — even the greatest hopes.»

He called attention to the fact that the race for time is on, and predicted that the Germans have every chance of winning it.

«Hell would yawn before us,» he added, «if we laid down our arms and surrendered to the mercy of our enemies as they have so often asked us to do.

«Germany is firmly determined to hold out to a successful finish. Our opponents are not pursuing a single war aim by which suffering humanity might in the least benefit.»

Quoting from a letter by Frederick II, he said: «I love peace as much as you do. I long for peace. But I want a good, durable, honorable peace.»

He added that through total mobilization, «we now have more manpower than our armament industry can readily absorb.»

Glowing tributes to Japan for her «will to resist United States imperialism» followed. «We are proud,» he said, «to have so brave an ally.»

In conclusion, Goebbels said, «Hitler, with whom I spent several days at his headquarters, stands like a rock amid the surging tide. He told me that he was never so firmly convinced of victory as today.»

Martial music which was being played at the end of the speech was interrupted by an air-raid warning which said: «Single fast bombers over west and southwest Germany.» (BBC-Reuter)

SPANIARDS WITHDRAW FROM FRONTIER

LONDON, October 27 — The French Government has requested Spanish Republican Maquis units in the south of France to withdraw to positions 12 miles north of the Spanish-French frontier, a Reuter dispatch said today quoting well-informed quarters. It is reported that the Republicans complied with the request.

The dispatch added that former Spanish consulates in southern France, which have been occupied by Republicans best to stabilize Greek currency. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden now is conferring at Athens with the Greek Government toward that end.

During his recent visit to Italy, Mr. Churchill revealed, he arranged with General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson the necessary measures for returning to Athens as soon as possible the Royal Greek Government, headed by Mr. Papandreou.

«When we were driven out of Greece,» Mr. Churchill said, «we promised to return. We have returned. Our pledge has been redeemed. The lawful Greek government sits in Athens. Very soon the Greek Brigade, which has distinguished itself in Italy, at Rimini, will return with honor to its native land.»

«Meanwhile, I appeal to Greeks of every party and of every group to set national unity above all other causes; to cleanse their country of the remaining German forces; to destroy and capture the last of the miscreants who have treated them with indescribable cruelty; and, finally, to join hands and rebuild the strength and to reduce the suffering of their famous and cherished land.»

Mr. Churchill said the question of Poland was the «most urgent and burning question» discussed at the Moscow Conferences.

«In this sphere,» he said, «there are two issues — two crucial issues. The first is the question of the eastern frontier of Poland with Russia and the Curzon Line, as it is called, and new territories to be added to Poland in the north and west.

«That is the first issue, and the second is the relations of the Polish Government with the Lublin National Liberation Committee. On these two points, apart from any necessary ancillary points — on these two main points we held a series of conferences with both parties. We held them together, and we held them separately and, of course, we were in constant discussion with the heads of the Soviet Government.»

Mr. Churchill said it was the «persevering and constant aim» of the British Government:

«That the Polish people, after their suffering and vicissitudes, shall find in Europe an abiding home and resting place which, though it may not entirely coincide or correspond with the pre-war frontiers of Poland, will, nevertheless, be adequate for the needs of the Polish nation, and not inferior in character and in quality, taking the picture as a whole, to what they had previously possessed. These are critical days, and it would be a great pity if time were wasted in indecision or in protracted negotiations.»

When Mr. Churchill finished, he was asked the following question by Major Lloyd, Conservative:

«Is it still the Government's policy and wish, as previously expressed on several occasions, to defer decision on all territorial and boundary questions between Russia and Poland until the cessation of hostilities? Is the British Government in general sympathy with the desire of the Polish Government for specific and joint guarantees from Great Britain and the other great powers, Russia and The United States, in support of Poland's continued independence and completely sovereign state after the war?»

Mr. Churchill replied:

«We should welcome an agreement between the parties themselves, and that would bring the whole matter to the peace conference in a form most helpful and favorable to all concerned, and also would tide us over the difficult and potentially tragic period through which we are passing.»

menace. Our greatest preoccupation is the air war. We are working untiringly to break the enemy's air terror. Squadrons of fighter and bomber planes of the most modern and effective designs are being produced. German workers are turning out entirely novel weapons in all spheres of war production on which we pin great hopes — even the greatest hopes.»

He called attention to the fact that the race for time is on, and predicted that the Germans have every chance of winning it.

«Hell would yawn before us,» he added, «if we laid down our arms and surrendered to the mercy of our enemies as they have so often asked us to do.

«Germany is firmly determined to hold out to a successful finish. Our opponents are not pursuing a single war aim by which suffering humanity might in the least benefit.»

Quoting from a letter by Frederick II, he said: «I love peace as much as you do. I long for peace. But I want a good, durable, honorable peace.»

He added that through total mobilization, «we now have more manpower than our armament industry can readily absorb.»

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 27 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Heavy rain on the Apennines and in the Po Valley has turned all rivers into formidable obstacles, and made even the roads almost impassable to vehicles. In consequence, the 8th Army's drive toward Forli has made little headway. Nevertheless, 8th Army troops have reached the River Ronco on a broad front, and patrols have crossed the river at several points.

British and Polish troops of the 8th Army have made further progress in the mountainous country north of Bibbiena.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

South of Bologna, 5th Army operations have, similarly, been curtailed by the weather. However, operations on a more limited scale resulted in local gains and improvements to our forward positions.

Land Forces Greece:

In the Larissa area, our ground troops, cooperating with Greek guerrilla forces, are continuing to harass the enemy rearguards.

Medium and fighter-bombers and night fighters are operating effectively against enemy columns moving to the north between Larissa and Kozani.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Yesterday, bad weather again limited air operations to a minimum, but a very small force of heavy bombers attacked the rail-yards at Innsbruck.

Road convoys in Albania were attacked by coastal aircraft.

One of our aircraft is missing from the day's operations. MAAF flew 82 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 27 — Today's communique:

Land:

Most of Hertogenbosch is in Allied hands, and progress has been general in the whole sector from there to the sea.

Enemy defenses between Hertogenbosch and Tilburg have been deeply penetrated.

After hard fighting, our troops are within 4,000 yards of Roosendaal, and the enemy has been forced to withdraw along a line from there to Tilburg. Our units are in the eastern and southern outskirts of Tilburg.

Further gains have been made in the neck of the Beveland Peninsula.

In the Leopold Canal area, our troops are fighting in Oostburg.

We bypassed Groede on the north and south.

In the area north of Aachen, our units made minor gains against stubborn resistance.

South of Moschau, patrol activity continues.

In the Moselle Valley, we encountered sporadic enemy artillery fire.

Northeast of Lunéville, we cleared the Germans from Forêt de Moncourt, and from high ground north of the forest.

Several counter-attacks were repulsed in the Lunéville sector.

Northeast of Epinal, we made gains against strong resistance.

Further slight progress was made in the Vosges sector, and counter-attacks repulsed.

Air:

Yesterday, more than 1,200 heavy bombers, escorted by over 650 fighters attacked industrial targets in Bielefeld, Münster, Hanover, and elsewhere in Germany.

Other heavy bombers, also escorted by fighters, attacked the big Farbenindustry chemical works at Leverkusen.

Fighter-bombers hit rail targets in the Rhineland in the Metz area.

A rail bridge at Rhenbach, a railway yard at München, west of Düsseldorf, and a round house and locomotives in the Metz area, were attacked.

Rail tracks were cut in many places west of the Rhine.

Two enemy aircraft were shot down, and six of ours are missing. (Reuter)

Jarmat, Matos, Jertelek, Nadyechet, Gobbe, Nyirchateri, and Nyirbashevell.

In the area of Nyiregyhaza, our troops beatback large attacks of enemy infantry and tanks.

On the territory of Yugoslavia, northwest of Belgrade, our troops, operating jointly with the troops of the National Liberation Army of Yugoslavia, captured the town and railway junction of Novi-Sad; the town and railway junction of Kula; the town and large railway station of Bachka-Palanka; and also occupied the populated localities of Sapac, Veprovak, Irig, India, Surapakovo, Kladichevo, and Ogar.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 26, our troops damaged or destroyed on all fronts a total of 128 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 19 enemy planes were shot down.

Air:

On the night of October 26-27, our long-range Air Forces carried out a massive raid on the capital of Hungary, the city of Budapest. As a result of the bombardment of military and industrial objectives, many fires broke out in Budapest, among which 10 were of enormous size. Amongst the fires, explosions occured, especially in the area of the Old Fortress, the railway station, the main customs house, and at the southern and northern part of the city. Our fliers leaving the target observed the fires from a distance of 200 kilometers. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 27 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

After the clashes which took place between Mulazzo and Suvero, the situation in the Spezia sector has returned to normal. The Ligurian Division of Patriots which participated in such actions distinguished itself for its tenacity and maneuverability.

During the first two weeks of October, in Piedmont, Patriots disarmed 43 Germans, capturing four vehicles full of arms and food supplies.

A part of the province of Piacenza is under Patriot control, except the city of Piacenza and one sector to the north of the Emilia Highway and Highway 31.

In the Camonica, Sabbia, and Trompia valleys, renewed enemy attempts at mopping up were unsuccessful. In view of the numerical superiority of the enemy, Patriots have moved temporarily toward the high mountains.

In the Biella sector, groups of Patriots were particularly active, attacking enemy traffic on the highways and blowing up some stretches of highway.

The railway line most frequently attacked by Lombard and Piedmontese Patriots was the Milan-Turin line. It has now been confirmed that on September 1, a train loaded with goods was derailed at Olrenengo, in Vercelli Province; and the locomotive and seven freight cars were destroyed, and the line was disrupted for 24 hours.

On September 3, a train was stopped between Biella and Santhia; the locomotive was blown up, and the line interrupted for 12 hours.

The day after the destruction of the tracks, the same line was rendered unserviceable for 12 hours.

The military telephone line was interrupted at the same time.

On September 7, a German military train between Brianze and Tronzano was derailed; a freight car full of ammunition exploded, causing several deaths and wounded among the Germans. The locomotive and six freight cars were destroyed, and the line interrupted for 48 hours.

In the course of a week in all the Veneto sector, 40

SOVIET

MOSCOW, October 27 — Tonight's communique:

Land:

During today, in East Prussia northwest of Stalupennen, our troops, as a result of stiff fighting, captured the powerfully-fortified strongpoints of German defenses, Eshen, Pateizhen, and Enskemen.

Troops of the 4th Ukrainian Front, as a result of a swift advance, today captured, on the territory of the Czechoslovakian Republic, the principal city of the Sub-Carpathian Ukraine, Uzhorod, a large communications center and important strongpoint of the enemy defense, and also occupied in fighting on the Czechoslovakian territory more than 50 other populated localities, including the town and railway station of Beregovo; the large populated localities of Starina, Ulich, Garicho, Terekin, Perednye, Homorovise, Myatsevo, Lidenki, Gorodno, Malaya Gutovo, and Velikoye Gutovo, and the railway stations of Maloye-Berezne, Gubliny, Terekin, Trapichevo, and Vorhva.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 27 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On Zuid Beveland, our grenadiers repulsed thrusts which the enemy launched from his bridgehead, and frustrated new landing attempts.

At the West Schelde, south of Rosendaal, the Anglo-Canadian attempts at breaking through continue. German counter-attacks are in progress.

In the Tilburg sector, the grim fighting against the enemy, who penetrated at some points our front, goes on.

The western part of Hertogenbosch is subjected to enemy artillery drum-fire.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

In these sectors, 180 enemy tanks were either destroyed or captured from October 20 to October 26.

Patrol vessels of the Navy sank an enemy motor assault boat off the Dutch coast.

In the western Vosges, west of the upper Meurthe, the Americans, having been reinforced, continued their stubborn attacks to capture the forest heights. They were pinned down in front of our forest strongpoints, or driven back by counter-attacks.

In the upper reaches of the Mortagne, our troops repelled strong enemy attacks, and improved their positions.

Italy:

In central Italy, the fighting abated.

North of Loiano, some enemy attacks failed.

In the Adriatic sector, north of Meldola, an enemy bridgehead on the banks of the Ronco was smashed, and some hundred prisoners captured.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, our divisions, in five days of grim defensive fighting, frustrated enemy attempts at breaking through with strong forces towards Skoplje in Macedonia and Krajevo in the western valley of the Morawa. The enemy lost more than 1,000 killed and 30 guns.

The revolt in central Slovakia, which had been instigated by the Soviets and fostered by airborne bandits of various descent, is collapsing. Our troops penetrated into the centre of the revolt, the Altsohl-Neusohl sector, and captured both towns. Two thousand kidnapped Germans were freed before the order of shooting them, which the bandits had given, was executed.

On the lower reaches of the Tisa, German and Hungarian troops frustrated numerous enemy attempts at crossing the river.

In the Debrecen and Nyiregyhaza sector, German and Hungarian units inflicted heavy losses on the Bolsheviks. Our tank forces cleared Nyiregyhaza of the enemy and freed Hungarian prisoners.

At Muncacs, which was evacuated according to plan, fighting is in progress against the hard-pressing enemy.

Our bomber formations successfully attacked Soviet columns, and destroyed 167 planes.

On both sides of the Bug and on the lower reaches of the Narew, troops of the Army and the Waffen SS repulsed Soviet attacks supported by tanks.

Grim forest fighting against the enemy, who advanced south of Augustov, is in progress.

Southeast of Gumbinnen, our hard-pressed grenadiers, in the battle in East Prussia, were relieved by our tank forces and bombers. The enemy, who again attacked with numerous tanks and planes, was stopped after some minor penetrations. The commander of an army corps, General of the Infantry Priess, was killed in action at the focal point of the grim defensive fighting. A brilliant counter-attack repulsed the enemy, who had penetrated into Schlossberg.

In Kurland, the People's grenadiers improved their positions in face of grim enemy resistance.

In the Doblen sector, Soviet attacks failed, with heavy losses to the enemy.

The defenders of the Sworbe Peninsula smashed enemy troop concentrations.

In the north, our troops, in three weeks of continual fighting, frustrated all Bolshevik attempts at wiping out the German forces on the Arctic Front, by outflanking attacks. Mountain troops of the Army and the Waffen SS, and units of the Navy, as well as fighter and fighter-bomber squadrons and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force, repulsed in exemplary comradeship-in-arms the onslaught of 12 Soviet rifle divisions which were supported by tanks and strong air forces. The enemy suffered high losses.

In conclusion, the Minister of Propaganda reiterates the cry that «Germany will never capitulate» and, by way of evoking German confidence in the military future, reverts to the trend of placing the «greatest hopes in our new weapons.»

Military Fronts: For the first time in several weeks, Transocean and DNB give almost no detailed news on the military fronts later than the Wehrmacht communique, which is sent out in mid-afternoon and ordinarily is followed by more up-to-date despatches during the evening.

The only detailed military reports received tonight is a Transocean account of the southern sector of the western front, which stresses the «severe losses» of the American 45th and 36th Divisions, and ventures the prediction that «General Eisenhower intends to start a concentrated attack against Metz before the beginning of winter.»

Red «Murderous Gangs» May Land in U. K. and U. S.: The long-established German propaganda trend, of endeavoring to split Allied unity by warning the Western Allies of Russian designs, has reached a new climax today in a German newspaper article sent over the DNB.

The article begins with the unprecedented admission that Russia seems to be militarily «stronger» than Germany; that is to say: neutrals are warned not to «throw themselves shamelessly into the arms of the hangmen of Moscow because they seem to be the stronger ones on the battlefield.»

Next, Europe as a whole is warned that «Europe might breathe her last if the plutocracies should surrender our continent to Bolshevist imperialism.»

Finally, the two Anglo-Saxon countries themselves are warned that despite the apparent separation of Britain and America from the Continent, the Russians «could easily jump the Channel, and even the Atlantic, to pour their murderous gangs into the streets of English and American towns and villages.»

Quiet on Italian Front: Comment on the southern front today is remarkable for its absence. Both on the Cesena bridge-head near the Adriatic and in the sector south of Bologna, Allied attempts to advance were all said to have been frustrated by stubborn German resistance.

Sforza Desires Slow Epuration: As though wilfully, Count Sforza is said to be in favor of a painstaking, and thus delayed process of «epuration». Sforza's sway in the matter is given as the reason for the fact that so far, only Caruso and Azzolini have been tried. Dovetailing epuration with present starvation conditions in Italy, Fascist radios theorize that the delaying of further trials will constitute an effective opiate: let them eat epuration, as it were.

Towards Temporal Power: Anti-Vatican Addenda: Leaning again on Rolando Ricci's persistent anti-Vatican editorial stand, Fascist radio commentators take the Holy See to task for not clarifying its position. The commentators then proceed to analize an alleged manifesto (photostatically reproduced in Republica Fascista today) published by the Lombard Committee of the FPTP, an organization which boosts a return of temporal power to the Pope, and which has held meetings in Rome.

According to the manifesto, further meetings will be held after the total liberation of Italy, and these meetings will in turn be the forerunners of a world congress dedicated to a reestablishment of the temporal power of the Popes. It is claimed that these agitators want a return to the Papal boundaries of 1815. This alleged fact becomes an excuse for Fascist irony and scorn; it is seen as another manoeuvre to break up united Italy, manoeuvre of anti-Catholic anti-national elements, in connivance with Anglo-Americans who aim at the destruction of Italy.

Finally, the Vatican comes in for the following unusually

GERMAN

Important Goebbels Speech: Tonight the German Minister of Propaganda delivered an important one-hour broadcast from Berlin. Among its outstanding propaganda trends was the repeated argument that the enemy attacks, though admittedly severe, could not carry on indefinitely, their losses being too high, and that, consequently, Germany stands a good chance of winning the present race against time.

Concerning the breach of what once was called the « Fortress of Europe, » Goebbels stated: « I cannot but admit that the evacuation of our troops from the conquered areas of western Europe has hurt us considerably. »

The German retreat in the east is partly attributed to treasonable political causes, rather than narrowly military causes: « In the Balkans, we have become the victims of continuous acts of treason committed by peace-seeking governments. »

because they seem to be the stronger ones on the battlefield. »

Next, Europe as a whole is warned that « Europe might breathe her last if the plutocracies should surrender our continent to Bolshevist imperialism. »

Finally, the two Anglo-Saxon countries themselves are warned that despite the apparent separation of Britain and America from the Continent, the Russians « could easily jump the Channel, and even the Atlantic, to pour their murderous gangs into the streets of English and American towns and villages. »

Formation of Italian Expeditionary Army: The reported formation of an Italian force to fight with the Allies in the Pacific is said to have aroused widespread indignation in Italy. The House of Savoy is once again seen lurking in the background, for reasons of prestige. In addition, Left wing elements are accused of backing the Expeditionary Force idea, via the King.

Communist Haste Responsible for Loss of Valdossola: The see-saw struggle between Patriots and Fascists for the « Republic of Valdossola », which has culminated in victory for the Fascists, is the springboard for an attack on Communist indiscretions in the long battle. Supposedly, the Communists were split on policy and tactics, whereupon rash and violent elements amongst them rushed in where wisdom should have trodden.

The Swiss press is impaled for exalting the Patriots, and various Swiss elements and personalities are attacked for their direct or indirect contribution to the Patriot cause.

The Fascist commentaries end on a note of warning to Switzerland, to the effect that Fascist Italy can fight back with commensurate violations of neutrality.

18 JAPANESE SHIPS WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED

PEARL HARBOR, October 26 — At least 18 Japanese aircraft carriers, battleships, and cruisers, plus an unspecified number of destroyers, were sunk or damaged in the overwhelming victory of American naval forces over the Japanese fleet in the three-day battle off the Philippines, Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Fleet in the Pacific, announced today in a communique.

Unofficial press tabulations tonight established Japanese losses at anywhere from 22 to 30 warships. Final reports on the results of the naval battle have not yet been received, and Admiral William Halsey's U. S. 3rd Fleet is still roaming northern Philippine waters.

A compilation of the enemy's losses thus far reported in the communique shows:

Sunk: two aircraft carriers and four cruisers, including two heavy cruisers.

the American army ashore on Leyte hung in a precarious balance» as Kincaid decided to take on the two Japanese forces.

«The Admiral threw half his battleships and a strong flotilla of patrol torpedo-boats against the enemy force steaming into Leyte Gulf,» the correspondent wrote, «while other American battleships went to the support of Admiral Kincaid's carrier force, already under attack off Samar Island by a Japanese fleet of at least four battleships and a heavy cruiser. This fleet also had many destroyers.»

The correspondent said that the Japanese force in Leyte Gulf began to withdraw after 25 minutes of broadside exchange and closely pressed destroyer strikes, leaving one Yamashiro-class battleship abandoned and sinking, and several cruisers and destroyers sunk.

Meanwhile, Admiral Kincaid's other battleship force had reached his threatened carriers just in time, the correspondent said. The carriers had themselves inflicted heavy damage on three enemy battleships and three cruisers, however, and the battered enemy retired into the northwest as the American capital ships came up.

Another correspondent, aboard Admiral Kincaid's flagship, was able to fit yet another piece into the vast mosaic of the battle.

This correspondent said the southernmost of two Japanese forces, a force made up of two battleships, three cruisers, and six destroyers, was sighted by swift American PT (patrol-torpedo) boats early yesterday (Wednesday) morning in the Surigao Straits between Leyte and Mindanao.

40-Minute Action

The American battleship formation, commanded by Rear Admiral Jesse Oldendorf, went into action, the correspondent wrote, and after an engagement of only 40 minutes, the enemy ran, pursued by American carrier-based planes.

A few hours later, «all this force of 11 ships was sunk or badly crippled. The second battleship was seen dead in the water and burning fiercely.»

As yet, there have been no eye-witness accounts from correspondents with Admiral Halsey's 3rd Fleet, which engaged the third Japanese force in the waters off Formosa.

Among the ships which effected such a magnificent victory over the Japanese are battleships which the Japanese thought they had put out of action forever at Pearl Harbor, Admiral Kincaid, who directed the whole coördinated action of the 7th Fleet and elements of the 3rd Fleet, revealed today.

18 JAPANESE SHIPS WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED

PEARL HARBOR, October 26 — At least 18 Japanese aircraft carriers, battleships, and cruisers, plus an unspecified number of destroyers, were sunk or damaged in the overwhelming victory of American naval forces over the Japanese fleet in the three-day battle off the Philippines, Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Fleet in the Pacific, announced today in a communique.

Unofficial press tabulations tonight established Japanese losses at anywhere from 22 to 30 warships. Final reports on the results of the naval battle have not yet been received, and Admiral William Halsey's U. S. 3rd Fleet is still roaming northern Philippine waters.

A compilation of the enemy's losses thus far reported in the communique shows:

Sunk: two aircraft carriers and four cruisers, including two heavy cruisers.

Probably Sunk: one large aircraft carrier, two battleships.

Damaged: six battleships, three cruisers.

All eye-witness accounts seem to indicate that the Japanese ship losses are the most critical ever inflicted, if not the greatest in number of ships. The Japanese tried a daring dash maneuver which failed. They sent two task forces on a pincer play which, if successful, would have dealt a tragic if not mortal blow to Allied landings on the Philippines.

Japs Outnumbered Americans

The enemy's total strength was greater than American naval strength at the scene, except in one respect. That superiority for the U. S. was in the air. A BBC reporter claimed that the U. S. had 16 battleships and 37 cruisers in the action.

Early press accounts of the history-making naval encounter show the daring ingenuity of American aerial and surface forces. Dispatches are incomplete and delayed, however, as the routed Japanese forces are still being harried by the victorious American fleets.

An American correspondent with Vice Admiral Kincaid's 7th Pacific Fleet, the fleet which engaged the two Japanese forces steaming toward Leyte from the south, said that Kincaid's forces were outnumbered, and that «the fate of

Captain Pare said that, under a new and revolutionary concept of naval logistics, the major portion of American naval strength in the Pacific has been maintained as a roving fighting force, exerting continuous pressure on the enemy since last January. Heretofore, it was considered necessary to retire at frequent intervals for supply replacement and drydock services at home bases. (OWI)

BRITISH THREATEN GERMAN SUPPLY LINES

SHAEF, October 26 — British forces driving south of Hertogenbosch have captured Vught, a junction of secondary arteries through which the Germans were running supplies, equipment, and reinforcements to the front, a late dispatch said tonight.

Capture of this town may lead to the disintegration of all German defenses below the Waal and Meuse Rivers, the report added. (CBS)

BRITISH PINCERS CLOSING ON 60,000 GERMANS

SHAEF, October 26 — The pincers clamped by Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery on 60,000 German troops clinging to positions in western Holland and the Schelde Islands tightened today, as British and Canadian troops pounded steadily forward in their campaign to clear the port of Antwerp.

South of the Meuse (Maas) River, the Germans are being deprived of communication and transport facilities, and they are pulling back under pressure of the Allied offensives.

The road leading north of the communications hub of Hertogenbosch has been cut in a flanking move by an armored column of the British 2nd Army. Some fighting is continuing in the town of Hertogenbosch, and in the outlying sectors British troops are using flame-throwing tanks. They are moving forward under cover of artificial moonlight which illuminates German positions.

To the south of Hertogenbosch, the Allies have captured a road junction at Vught, and are astride the Vught-Tilburg Road. The Germans are fighting bitterly to hold the road and city, and have brought up a two-mile-long screen of 88-millimeter guns. The whole Tilburg-Vught axis is threatened, and from the southeast and north the British 2nd Army's prongs are stabbing toward Tilburg. The entire German position south of the Meuse depends on holding these two towns.

At Tilburg, British troops are within one-half mile of the city and forward elements are in the eastern outskirts. German staff headquarters and administrative units have already been withdrawn to the north.

Drive to Free Antwerp Opens

Another force of Canadian troops has driven six miles across the neck of the Beveland Peninsula, beginning their last drive to free the port of Antwerp. They were last reported three miles beyond Rilland.

(The German News Agency declared today that Allied troops had landed on the southern coast of Walcheren Island. There had been no official Allied confirmation late tonight.)

The capture of Fort Frederik Hendrik, yesterday, has opened the southern side of the Schelde Estuary to Allied shipping into Antwerp, but the German coastal guns on Walcheren still command the entrance. Canadian and British troops are continuing to advance toward Cadzand, west of Breskens, where the Germans are believed to be strongly entrenched.

Particularly fierce fighting developed around the Allied-held town of Oosburg, where the Germans counter-attacked.

To the southwest of the Schelde pocket, Canadian forces advanced 2,000 yards toward the Bruges-Sluis Canal. Nearly 5,000 prisoners have been taken in this 20-day battle for the southern approaches to Antwerp.

A spokesman at Allied headquarters stated today that the German Army now has barely one-third as many troops on the western front as it had at the time of the 1918 Armistice. An Associated Press dispatch said the Germans now have well under 100 badly-depleted divisions to hold the 600-mile front from the North Sea to Switzerland, and that the Germans have lost more men since the Normandy landings than they have left on the front.

German casualties since June 6 total 625,000, and their casualties are set at 4,000 daily. About 150,000 Germans are cut off in pockets in France, and they have no hope of rejoining the main army. The Wehrmacht is desperately short of tanks and heavy artillery to meet a major Allied offensive.

Far to the south, on the 6th Army Group front, the Germans have increased their artillery fire, and a large movement of motor transport and armor was noted. Several counter-attacks were broken up in the area northeast of [illegible] ground north narrower and deeper where it is crossed by the main Highway Bridge some two miles east of Forli.

Canadian troops were also sweeping westward across the Romagno country-side from their bridgehead north of Cesena. Utilizing at least one captured Mark VI Tiger tank taken intact during one of the last enemy counter-attacks against their positions on the west bank of the Savio, these Canadian forces were reported to have pushed four miles northwest of Cesena, and still to be advancing. Among other captured matériel, the Canadians seized four German self-propelled guns in their break-out from the bridgehead area.

British and Indian troops are now pressing forward toward the line of the River Ronco on an at least five-mile front, from just west of Forlimpopoli to south to the vicinity of the river town of Meldola.

British troops were reported to be within 1,000 yards of the village of Bertinoro, four miles west of Cesena, and within three miles of the River Ronco, while Gurkha forces pushed from Monte Della Rovere northwestward to occupy the small settlement of Collinello, five miles southwest of Cesena.

Other 8th Army forces occupied the village of Teodorano, seven miles southwest of Cesena, and overlooking the Voltre, a tributary of the Ronco and then continued two miles farther northwest to near Meldola, north of the confluence of the two streams.

In this same sector, 8th Army patrols working up from the south have cleared enemy forces from most of the high ground between the Ronco and its eastern tributary.

Germans Prepare Bologna Defence

On the 5th Army front, where American troops are battling fiercely to break through strong German defenses guarding Bologna, the enemy's all-out resistance showed no signs of weakening yesterday, despite the American capture of Monte Belmonte, the center height in the German rock wall defenses guarding the entry into the Savena River Valley. Although official reports made no specific mention of this crucial sector only eight miles south of Bologna's outskirts and just east of Highway 65, it was stated that German engineers were engaged in constructing trenches south and southeast of the Bologna-Rimini Highway as part of preparations to defend Bologna and the Po Valley approaches at all costs.

American troops were reported still to be engaged in heavy fighting near Vedriano, four miles from the Po Valley Highway, while other American units were advancing toward Monte Mezzano and Il Poggio, positions roughly a mile to the west of the same salient thrust into the Sillaro River Valley.

Everywhere along the 5th Army front, and particularly south of Bologna, enemy forces laid down heavy artillery concentrations against advancing Allied troops and supply and concentration areas. Yet British and Indian troops were able to make limited gains to the east of the main advance toward Bologna, to approach within 10 miles of Imola at two points in the Senio and the Santerno River Valleys, and to lessen to 13 miles the distance to Faenza along the Casone River Valley.

South African forces yesterday pushed more than 1,000 yards farther north in their attacks converging on Vergato, key German stronghold in the Reno River Valley on the western flank of the 5th Army's northernmost positions.

Coastal sectors of both the 5th and 8th Army fronts were relatively inactive yesterday. Patrolling was reported on the Ligurian coastal areas held by the 5th Army, while 8th Army forces were engaged with small enemy rearguards on the Adriatic coast near the village of Savio, just in from the mouth of the river of the same name.

With all enemy forces now pushed west and north of [illegible] other troops have forced a crossing in the

The French 1st Army repulsed several German attacks on the Moselotte River bridgehead, with considerable losses to the enemy.

No major activities were reported on the American 3rd Army front. (OWI - Reuter - AP)

8TH ARMY WITHIN 3½ MILES OF FORLI'

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 26 — Eighth Army troops, pushing northwest into the Valley of the Po on the heels of withdrawing enemy forces, yesterday thrust over six miles along the Emilia Highway to capture the town of Forlimpopoli and approach within 3½ miles of Forli, Romagno's chief city, it was announced here today.

Foremost British troops, streaming from the confines of the bridgehead across the Savio River west of Cesena where they were hemmed in by fierce German resistance for six days, have already reached the River Ronco, the sole remaining natural barrier east of the provincial capital.

These troops reached the river west of Forlimpopoli, official reports stated.

At this point, the river bends eastward and broadens into sandy shallows, normally fordable. The stream is miles farther northwest to near Meldola, north of the confluence of the two streams.

In this same sector, 8th Army patrols working up from the south have cleared enemy forces from most of the high ground between the Ronco and its eastern tributary.

Polish troops of the 8th Army yesterday captured the heights of Montebelvedere and Monte San Piero, 12 and 14 miles southwest of Forli, in advances west of the Rabbi River. (PRO)

RED ARMY CAPTURES MUCACEVO IN RUTHENIA

MOSCOW, October 26 — General Petrov's troops operating in the southern Carpathians today captured Mucacevo, Marshal Stalin announced tonight, while the Soviet communique reported gains on all active sectors of the Russian front from the Arctic to Yugoslavia.

More German strongpoints have been wrested from the Germans in the great battle for the Insterburg Gap in East Prussia.

Marshal Stalin's order of the day to General Petrov described Mucacevo as an industrial and communications center, and a strongpoint in the German defense system in the southern Sub-Carpathians, « on soil of the Czechoslovak Republic. »

Mucacevo is 17 miles east of the pre-war boundary between Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

There were 60 other inhabited places liberated by the Russians on Czechoslovak-Ruthenian territory today.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Russian and Rumanian forces are today sweeping across the entire eastern border of Hungary to reinforce the Soviet army already across the Tisa River 40 miles from Budapest. In this new drive following yesterday's liberation of Satu-Mare, over 40 towns and villages were occupied in Hungary.

With the clearing of the last Transylvanian town from German control, Soviet forces are massing for new operations against the Germans' Balkan flank.

Soviet troops of the 4th Ukrainian Front captured 11,230 enemy prisoners during the offensive between October 20 and today, the Soviet communique reported. They took 73 guns, 53 mortars, 372 machine guns, 5,000 rifles and tommy guns, and 47 supply dumps.

Another 6,700 enemy prisoners were captured in northern Transylvania by troops of the 2nd Ukrainian Front between last Saturday and yesterday.

A Rumanian communique said today that in two months of fighting in conjunction with the Red Army, Rumanian troops had captured 52,000 Germans, including 14 generals, and had contributed to the defeat and rout of German and Hungarian forces in Transylvania.

« Our divisions will go on fighting alongside our great Allies until the final defeat of Germany, » the communique concluded.

Yugoslav troops aided by Russian units have liberated the entire fertile plain of the Bachka Province north of Belgrade between the River Danube and the River Tisa, Marshal Tito's communique announced today. Sabac, the last German stronghold in western Serbia, has also been freed. The Germans lost a comparatively large number of men killed in the liberation of this and other towns.

All-Out Defence of East Prussia

Despite the Germans' all-out efforts to seal the area of Russian penetration into East Prussia, the Soviet armies have captured the strongpoints of Ahirgallen, Amalienhof, Gulben, Vriebalsfeld, and a number of others.

The Germans are losing tanks and men on an enormous scale in attempts to save the important road center of Gumbinnen, which before the war was East Prussia's third city. (They claim to have gained some ground in counter-attacks between Göldap and Gumbinnen.)

A Red Star correspondent describing the frantic German attempts to stem the Russian advance says: « The German High Command is hastily transferring fresh infantry and tank units, and sending them straight into battle.

They are using up to 100 tanks and self-propelled guns in their counter-attacks, but fail to reach any essential success. Our units defended the positions gained, and all German counter-attacks were beaten back by the combined action of our infantry, tanks, artillery, and Stormovik fliers. »

According to German prisoners, the German Command ordered their troops to throw back the Russians beyond the frontier of East Prussia « at all costs, and any price. »

Soviet gains also are reported in the Petsamo region in Finland. Meanwhile specially trained Soviet Arctic troops are tonight pressing deeper into Norway, and completing the rout of the Germans defeated at Kirkenes, long the main German base in the far north. A rich haul of enemy supplies was taken when it fell to the Russians yesterday.

Considerable German reserves have been moved to this front recently, but Soviet divisions, backed by sea-going cutters of the Soviet Arctic Fleet, are continuing their advance.

As General Meretskov's forces capture airfields from which German bombers and torpedo-carrying planes attacked Allied convoys bound for Murmansk, the threat to the northern supply route is diminished.

The crippled German battleship Tirpitz is today reported to have escaped from its anchorage at Altenfjord « where it

Farther south, in the 24th Corps area, the 96th Division captured Tabontabon, an inland highway-junction town ½ miles west of the Catmon Hills, which was enveloped yesterday.

Buri, on the Burauen-Dagami Road, was also captured by the 7th Division after sharp fighting. Buri had been bypassed earlier, as troops swept northward from liberated Burauen.

American anti-aircraft shot down 39 enemy planes, fighter patrol planes downed 14 more, and carrier-based aircraft in the Leyte Gulf shot down 23 as Japanese air activity against Allied shipping in San Pedro Bay and the beachhead areas of eastern Leyte was repulsed.

B-29 Raid Highly Successful

The Omura aircraft factory on Japan's southernmost home island, Kyushu, attacked by Superfortresses yesterday, was perfectly patterned by bombs, a delayed Associated Press dispatch from a U. S. B-29 base in west China said today. Returning pilots described the raid as « highly successful. »

Only one of the planes was reported missing, despite some fighter resistance and moderate anti-aircraft fire.

American heavy and medium bombers yesterday attacked Japanese communications in the Philippines, while other American aircraft struck at enemy bivouac areas and dock installations in Borneo and on New Guinea.

Today's air communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said also that 11 small freighters and four coastal vessels were set afire off Borneo when strafed by patrol aircraft, while a unit of escorted heavy bombers blasted an ammunition dump at Wewak.

American aircraft damaged enemy installations, including airfields, and inflicted personnel casualties in the Celebes and the Moluccas. Reconnaissance planes bombed a Japanese airdrome on Timor.

U. S. Secretary of War Henry Stimson warned today at his press conference that we must look for stiffer resistance in the Philippines, despite the brilliant naval victory. There are still a quarter of a million Japanese troops in the islands, and there may be an attempt to bring in reinforcements, he said.

However, Stimson asserted, the American landing in the Philippines was a « psychological and military disaster of the first order for Japan, awakening her people to the blunders and fallibility of the Japanese admirals and generals. »

ROOSEVELT PRAISES U.S.N. SUCCESSES

WASHINGTON, October 26 — While the greatest naval battle in history was taking place in the Pacific, President Roosevelt stated in his annual message on the eve of Navy Day that « never before has seapower played so significant a role in the determination of American destiny and the course of world history. »

The President said:

« On this Navy Day, 1944, the nation pauses to salute men of the U. S. Navy. Their heroic performance has won the admiration and gratitude of all men who fight for freedom. Never before has seapower played so significant a role in the determination of American destiny and the course of world history.

AMERICANS ENLARGE LEYTE BEACHHEAD REPEL JAP COUNTER-ATTACKS

MACARTHUR'S HQ, PHILIPPINES, October 26 — American forces enlarged their beachhead to 40 miles along the east coast of Leyte by a junction today of the 10th and 24th Army Corps, a communique from General MacArthur said tonight. Six airfields were captured, and 31 townships liberated.

Simultaneously, elements of the 1st Cavalry Division, which yesterday seized the southern shores of Samar Island, northeast of Leyte, repulsed a small enemy counter-attack today at La Paz, headquarters said.

American troops now control the eastern coastal sector of Leyte from the northern end of San Juanico Strait to Dulag.

In the central section of the battlefront, west of Palo, the 24th Division is meeting increasing enemy opposition, the communique said.

NIMITZ EXPRESSES « PRIDE » IN MESSAGE TO FLEET

PEARL HARBOR, October 26 — Admiral Chester Nimitz today signalled all officers and men of his Pacific fleet expressing « pride and gratitude » over their exploits in the great sea battle off the Philippines. The message said:

« The Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet desires to express to all officers and men of the Fleet his pride and gratitude for the courageous and progressive manner in which they have done their utmost to destroy the enemy in the recent fighting in the Pacific.

« To those who fought in the air, on the surface and in submarines — well done.

ACTIVITY RESTRICTED IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

KANDY, CEYLON, October 26 — Strong patrols of British troops yesterday probed Japanese positions south and southwest of Mohynin in the « railroad corridor » of northern Burma, today's Southeast Asia Command Headquarters reported.

No changes were reported in the general situation on the Chin Hills and Arakan fronts, the communique said, although aircraft of the Eastern Air Command hit enemy ammunition dumps and troop concentrations on the latter sector. Other forces attacked road transport in Central Burma. Two Allied aircraft are missing from the operation.

According to a Chungking communique, the 14th USAAF flew 17 missions yesterday and Tuesday in attacks on enemy positions coordinated with advances of the Chinese units in the Menghu-Kweiping sector. Heavy damage and casualties were inflicted on the Japanese forces attempting to break through to the west and north.

No aircraft were lost in these and other operations in the same general areas. (OWI)

R.A.F. AND U.S.A.A.F. BOMB WEST GERMANY

LONDON, October 26 — An American air fleet of more than 1,200 heavy bombers, escorted by 650 fighters, today attacked industrial and rail targets at Hanover, Bielefeld, Münster, and in other parts of western Germany.

This afternoon, an RAF bomber force, fighter-escorted, attacked the big I.G. Farbenindustrie chemical works at Leverkusen on the Rhine, eight miles north of Cologne. The attack was made without loss.

Both British and American assaults blasted new gaps in these industrial and communications centers lying on the direct route between the northern end of the western front and Berlin.

The 8th USAAF reported bombing by instruments because of overcast.

The British Air Ministry reported today that of the 10 RAF fighters which failed to return from yesterday's missions to the Ruhr, six landed away from their bases, reducing the number missing to four.

Fog last night gave western Germany a brief respite from Allied bombing. Night fighters of the RAF Fighter Command, however, destroyed two Heinkell 111's which had been launching flying bombs on southern England. The Heinkels were shot down into the North Sea. (OWI-Reuter)

ALPINE PASSES STRUGGLE CONTINUES

SHAEF, October 26 — At snowline altitudes in the Alps dividing Italy from France, French troops are fighting an unspectacular, but very rugged battle for four key passes, it was disclosed here today.

The passes are those of Saint Bernard, Mont Cenis, Mont Genevre, and Larche. Here, on a line that follows roughly the summits of the great peaks marking the Franco-Italian frontier, between Bonneville and Menton, deep snows and the tortuous terrain preclude major offensives.

Deep patrolling is a feature of both sides' activity, and several times French troops have crossed into Italy on

On the Mediterranean coast, the advance went east along the Riviera until Menton was reached and taken on September. Since then, this Riviera resort has been under German shellfire. (PWB)

SEVERE DAMAGE TO DORTMUND

LONDON, October 26 — Reconnaissance since the RAF Bomber Command's heavy night attack of October 6 on Dortmund, the Ruhr's most important traffic center after Duisberg, reveals that Dortmund is one of the most seriously damaged cities in Germany, the Air Ministry reported tonight.

Dortmund's railways and harbor were being used extensively for sending supplies to the western front. Destruction is particularly heavy around the main passenger railway station and goods yard. All through tracks and all the southern approaches to the marshalling yard were cut. Many industrial plants were either destroyed or badly damaged, the report added. (OWI)

S.H.A.E.F. SAYS « SHOOT TO KILL » LOOTERS

SHAEF, October 26 — Allied Army authorities have issued « shoot to kill » orders to prevent large-scale looting of petrol, food, and other vital army stores in France.

It is said that the drastic measures proved effective against looters when tapping of army pipelines and pilfering from army convoys reached a peak some six weeks ago. (OWI)

NAZIS FAILED TO GERMANIZE ALSACE-LORRAINE

WITH U. S. 3RD ARMY, ALSACE-LORRAINE, October 26 — The Nazis tried hard to Germanize the French population here; they did their best to instil Nazi ideology into schoolchildren, to persuade the inhabitants of the province to sign forms accepting German nationality, and when that failed they tried the old tactics of terrorism. But correspondents' messages received today emphasize the utter failure of the German régime.

When the Germans incorporated Alsace-Lorraine into the Reich in 1940, they called on the 1,500,000 inhabitants to sign forms accepting German nationality — 500,000 refused. Renewed attempts a few months later had to be abandoned in the face of widespread demonstrations of protest. Fifty thousand people gathered in the main square of Metz alone, and the reprisals which followed these demonstrations included the deportation of 30,000 men, women, and children to Poland at three-hours' notice. They were packed into unheated trucks and many, especially the children, died on the journey.

In the schools, the children were taught to say « Heil Hitler », and were provided with only German textbooks. « But they were French out of school, » a Resistance leader told correspondents. Teachers disregarded the German textbooks and orders, and taught from memory. Some were arrested, and some were shot.

Fifty thousand young men were forced into the German Army and sent to Russia, while the population was further depleted by the sending of 130,000 men and women to Germany as slave laborers. (PWB)

Deep patrolling is a feature of both sides' activity, and several times French troops have crossed into Italy on long, lonely sorties.

This front, where periods of quiet are suddenly shattered by patrol clashes and artillery exchanges, was largely established at the end of last month when the French 1st Army, operating with the FFI, rushed the Germans out of the Tarantaise Valley up to the area of the Saint Bernard Pass, and flushed them out of the Maurienne Valley up to the Mont Cenis Pass.

From north to south the line runs roughly from Bonneville, 15 miles southeast of Geneva in Switzerland, through Albertville, Bourg Saint Maurice, western mouth of the Modane tunnel, Lans le Bourg, Guillestre, Barcelonnette, to Menton on the Riveria coast.

French Alpine patrols today keep rigorous vigils on the Saint Bernard and Mont Cenis passes. In the Tarantaise Valley, they hold Bourg Saint Maurice, while the Germans occupy high ground on the nearby Saint Bernard Pass.

Following operations last month, the French control the Maurienne Valley east of Lans le Bourg, at the foot of the Mont Cenis Pass. Farther down, they control the western mouth of the Modane tunnel, which carries the main rail line out of France through to Turin in Italy.

The key to the Larche Pass is Briançon, which was liberated by the French on August 26, subsequently lost, then recaptured in the middle of September. Today, Briançon is under shellfire from Italian forts built into the pass.

KING CALLS ON NORWEGIANS TO AID RUSSIANS

LONDON, October 26 — Every individual in Norway was urged by his King tonight to aid the Russian armies fighting on Norwegian soil in every way possible.

In a broadcast to his people over the British Broadcasting Corporation, King Haakon announced that some time ago, the Norwegian Government had concluded an agreement with the Government of Russia providing for military cooperation in case Soviet forces should be operating on Norwegian soil.

"Our agreement with the Soviet Union specifies that as soon as the military situation permits Norwegian administration will again be fully operative," he said. "It is the duty of every Norwegian to give our Russian allies the greatest possible support. I am overjoyed, like the whole of the Norwegian people, that we can now say with confidence that the liberation of our country has begun." (PWB)

GUDERIAN TAKES OVER GERMAN RUSSIAN FRONT

LONDON, October 26 — Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, chief of the German Staff, has been named commander-in-chief of German Armies on the Russian front, the German Foreign Office said in a broadcast today.

The German Foreign Office also said that Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt is commander-in-chief in the west, a position that he held at the time of the Allied landings in Normandy, and from which he was removed by Hitler because he failed to halt General Eisenhower's armies.

Von Rundstedt reappeared at the western front nearly a month ago, and recently attended the funeral of his former western front commander Marshal Rommel, with whom he is reported to have had frequent quarrels.

Prior to Guderian's appointment as eastern front commander, the German armies had been under three commands, for the north, south, and center of front, except upon those occasions when Hitler assumed personal command.

London commentators say the new appointment of Guderian reflects the shortage of reliable German generals.

FAILURE TO DEFEND ROME BEING INVESTIGATED

NAPLES, October 26 — An investigation is under way to determine responsibility for failure to defend the city of Rome from the Germans following the downfall of Mussolini last year, Mario Berlinguer, Deputy High Commissioner for Sanctions Against Fascism, said in an interview appearing yesterday in the Naples daily newspaper La Voce.

Berlinguer discussed the pending trials of Generals Pentimalli and Del Tetto, who are accused of deserting their posts, making organized resistance against the Germans in Naples impossible. He said there is a possibility of others' being implicated, and that similar action will be taken in Rome.

He added that the punishment of traitorous Fascist generals in Liberated Italy signifies restoration of justice after 20 years of arbitrary and terroristic methods.

In the case of Pentimalli and Del Tetto, they have asserted that their reason for not offering resistance to the Germans was the inefficiency of the troops at their disposal, Berlinguer said. Yet these troops were efficient enough to be used against the people, he added, and it appeared from certain of their acts that the generals were attempting to suppress the resistance offered by the local population. CHURCHILL ON LENGTH OF OVERSEAS SERVICE

LONDON, October 26 — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that «we are at the most grim moment in the war,» and that any attempt to cut down the period of overseas service in the British Army to three years at the earliest possible moment «might do definite harm to our war effort at the present time.»

Mr. Churchill was referring to a motion proposed by about 250 members of Parliament urging such a reduction.

Expressing his sorrow at seeing this motion on the order-paper, Mr. Churchill said: «While everybody would like to achieve what is the purpose of this resolution, I am certain he is not in a position to make releases on that scale from the army at this moment, without running the risk of prolonging the war and making our effort fail, or be weakened, just at the moment when it must be maintained right up to the climax.»

FRANCE WILL NOT AID SPANISH REPUBLICANS

PARIS, October 26 — The government-controlled Radio Paris said today that the French Provisional Government would not move against Franco's Spain, and that the present situation is a matter for Spaniards.

The broadcast said that the French Government would not forget that, although Franco owed a debt to Hitler and Mussolini, he did not move against France in 1940.

Referring to General de Gaulle's statement yesterday that the Spanish representative to the FCNL in Algiers would undoubtedly move to Paris, the French radio pointed out that, although many French papers attacked Spain, such journalistic opinion would not affect international policy.

A Reuter dispatch stated that another indication of the French Government's desire to avoid any diplomatic incident with Spain was the appointment of General Collet to the military governorship of the Toulouse region. Radio Toulouse yesterday stopped broadcasting in Spanish, the dispatch said. Previously it had been violently attacking the Franco régime in the name of the Spanish Republican «Supreme Junta of National Unity.» (Reuter) that the Spanish representative to the FCNL in Algiers would undoubtedly move to Paris, the French radio pointed out that, although many French papers attacked Spain, such journalistic opinion would not affect international policy.

A Reuter dispatch stated that another indication of the French Government's desire to avoid any diplomatic incident with Spain was the appointment of General Collet to the military governorship of the Toulouse region. Radio Toulouse yesterday stopped broadcasting in Spanish, the dispatch said. Previously it had been violently attacking the Franco régime in the name of the Spanish Republican « Supreme Junta of National Unity. » (Reuter)

SPANISH IN FRANCE AID ANTI-FRANCO UPRISING

PARIS, October 26 — Leaders of The Spanish National Union announced at a press conference here yesterday that it had sent representatives to Spain to prepare a national rising against Franco's régime.

It was also disclosed that rioting had taken place in Asturias and in the mountains of Andalusia.

Spanish political elements are now united in a Supreme Junta of National Union, modeled on lines of the French National Resistance Council, and functioning in a Madrid Underground movement, the announcement stated. (Reuter)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 26 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Fifth Army troops continue to make slow but methodical progress against unrelenting resistance.

The enemy having withdrawn, 8th Army troops have advanced rapidly from their Cesena bridgehead, have driven in enemy rearguards, and crossed the River Bevano.

West of this river they have captured the town of Forlimpopoli, and have reached the River Ronco, west of this town.

Advanced troops of the 8th Army are now within five miles of the important road centre of Forli.

Land Forces Greece:

Guerilla forces have occupied Larissa and our forces, working in close coöperation with them, are making further progress northward.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Unfavourable weather severely restricted aerial operations yesterday.

Fighters and fighter-bombers flew a limited number of close-support and anti-communications missions north of the battle area, and reported excellent results.

Other fighters and fighter-bombers attacked shipping in the Adriatic, and rail and road transport in Yugoslavia.

A small force of heavy bombers attacked targets in southern Germany.

Medium bombers of an anti-shipping patrol bombed the Adriatic port of Cittanova.

From these operations, one of our aircraft is missing.

MAAF flew more than 400 sorties.

Navy:

On the night of October 22/23, Allied light coastal craft operating in the Gulf of Genoa attacked an enemy southbound convoy near Spezia; torpedoes were fired and explosions seen in the convoy, though no definite claims of sinkings can be made. Our craft came under heavy firing during their retirement, though no casualties or damage are reported.

It is reported from the Aegean that the Island of Skopelos in the northern Sporades east of the Gulf of Volos was occupied at dawn on October 23 by troops landed from HMS Teazer and the Greek destroyer Navarinon.

On October 24 the U.S. Destroyer Woolsey carried out a successful bombardment of enemy road transport near the Franco-Italian frontier. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 26 — Today's communique:

Land:

Alllied forces are fighting in Hertogenbosch, here they have driven the enemy from the north and east sections of the town.

Boxtel has been freed, and gains have taken us several miles to the northwest.

On the Girschot-Tilburg Road, we have reached the area of Moergestel.

There has been general progress northward in the area east of the Antwerp-Breda Road.

On the approach to Zuid Beveland, we have taken the village of Rilland and have moved forward three miles west along the south side of the isthmus.

Further ground has been gained in the area between Pindorp and Woendsdrecht.

In the Schelde pocket, Allied forces have made progress in the direction of Poldertje.

Fort Frederik Hendrik, from which we withdrew after the initial entry four days ago, has been taken.

Farther south, we reached the outskirts of Groede.

We also gained some ground west and northwest of Schoondijke.

Northeast of Epinal, our advance was slowed by stiffened resistance.

In the Vosges Mountains sector, farther south, counter-attacks were thrown back with severe losses to the enemy.

Air:

Fighters and fighter-bombers gave support over the battle zones, and went for road and rail transport in western Germany.

In daylight, heavy bombers in very great strength, escorted by fighters, attacked Essen and a synthetic oil plant at Hamburg. Four bombers are missing.

More than 1,200 heavy bombers, escorted by some 500 fighters, again in daylight attacked railway yards at the Hamm oil refinery in the Hamburg area, and other military targets in northwestern Germany. (PWB - Reuter)

MOSCOW, October 26 — Tonight's communique:

During today, troops of the Karelian Front continued their advance fighting, in the course of which they occupied on the territory of Petsamo Region the populated localities of Vuhtalanvikulye, Kehtpikalo, Heiskari, Meniko, Piktajarvi, and Hehenyarvi.

In East Prussia, our troops meeting increasing resistance of the enemy, captured in stiff fighting the powerfully fortified strongpoints of Shwirgalen, Omalenhof, Gudzen, and Grunwanshtein.

Troops of the 4th Ukrainian Front today captured, on the territory of the Czechoslovakian Republic, the industrial center of the Carpathian Ukraine, the town of Mukacevo, important communication center and strongpoint of the enemy defenses in the southern branch of the Carpathians, and also occupied in fighting on the Czechoslovakian territory over 60 other populated localities, including Velkeberezne, Chernogulovo, Semerekovo, Turitsa, Turyan-Remeti, Turya-

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 26 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

Patriots operating in the northern Appennines replied courageously and promptly to the appeals issued by the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies. In spite of the scarcity of armaments and difficulties created by the bad weather, their contribution continues to be very effective.

In Bergamo Province, Patriots disarmed a German garrison in the sector between Lovere and Sarnico, taking many prisoners and seizing a notable quantity of war booty.

Bitter fighting took place in the Friuli sector, which is among the most active centers of the fight against the Nazi-Fascists.

Patriots succeeded in gaining control over the Tramonti sector, but were forced to yield the village of Claut because of the strong numerical preponderance of the enemy.

Latest particulars are available on the actions of Treviso Patriots during the month of September. On the night of the 10th, they disarmed a detachment of the Fascist Navy at Vedelago, taking 20 prisoners. On the night of the 12th, they disarmed the German garrison of Nervesa, killing two soldiers and wounding three. On the night of the 18th, Patriots destroyed a bridge near Cornuda. As a result of the activities of Patriot patrols, two German vehicles were burned and two captured. Six Germans and five Fascists were killed. In addition, Patriots caused 50 disruptions of railway lines and carried off the tracks. Six telephone lines were rendered unserviceable. On the night of October 3, on the line between Motta, Livenza, and Portoguaro, Patriots stopped a train transporting war matériel to Germany. All the war matériel was destroyed, including new airplane motors and several tons of oil and gasoline. Five Germans were killed during the course of the struggle. (UNN)

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET

PEARL HARBOR, October 26 — Today's communique:

On October 24 (west longitude date), the enemy carrier task force which had been sighted in the Philippine Sea on the previous afternoon, approaching from Japanese home waters, was attacked by a concentration of aircraft, surface ships, and submarines of the Pacific Fleet during the day and the following night.

Despite their support by enemy aircraft from Luzon, the following damage was inflicted, with no damage to our ships involved in this action:

One large carrier was exploded and sunk; one large carrier was severely damaged by bombers and torpedoes, and is believed to have been sunk; one light carrier was definitely sunk; two battleships were probably sunk; two light cruisers were definitely sunk; and two battleships, three cruisers, and a number of destroyers withdrew to the north in a damaged condition.

On October 24, a carrier task group of the 3rd Fleet assisted units of the 7th Fleet in striking a force of enemy battleships, cruisers, and destroyers, which had sortied through San Bernardino Strait and was attacking escort carriers of the 7th Fleet in the Leyte Gulf.

Fragmentary reports available indicate that, in cooperation with the aircraft from the escort carriers, the following damage was inflicted on this enemy force:

One heavy cruiser was seen to sink; four battleships were heavily damaged by bombs and left the scene at low speed, trailing oil; one destroyer was left dead in the water.

About midnight October 24/25, this enemy force withdrew to the San Bernardino Strait in a badly-damaged condition. During the night, surface ships of the Pacific Fleet sank a cruiser of this enemy force. Pacific Fleet carrier aircraft on October 25 were continuing to attack this force during this retirement through the Sibuyan Sea.

During the advance battles from October 20 to 26, troops of the 4th Ukrainian Front captured 11,230 officers and men of the enemy, and seized the following trophies: 73 guns of various caliber, 53 mortars, 372 machineguns, over 5,000 rifles and sub-machineguns, and 47 warehouses containing ammunition, armaments, clothes, and provisions.

Northwest and west of Satu-Mare, our troops, as a result of advanced battles, occupied on Hungarian territory over 40 populated localities, including Ustse, Senkat, Botspulot, Chavolch, Majgish, Geudye, Chengyer, Porchalma, Chiokot, Sabe-Haze, and Vallay, and the railway stations of Gachali, Jank, Chenger, and Porchalma.

During the battles on the territory of northern Transylvania, from October 21 to 25, troops of the 2nd Ukrainian Front captured 6,700 officers and men of the enemy.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 25, our troops damaged or destroyed on all fronts a total of 83 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 37 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio-Moscow)

NEWS FROM ENEMY SOURCES

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 26 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In western Holland, our strongpoints astride the West Schelde and east of it continued to keep the enemy from access to the port of Antwerp.

Strong Canadian attacks on the causeway to the Zuid Beveland Peninsula collapsed in our defensive fire, after a small penetration.

Counter-measures against a local landing in the southern part of the peninsula are in progress.

Concentric attacks on the Tilburg-Hertogenbosch sector from a southerly and easterly direction were halted, and numerous enemy tanks were destroyed. In Hertogenbosch, grim street fighting is in full swing.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

In the Bruyères sector, our attacks gained some kilometers of ground westward, in the face of fierce enemy resistance. The important Col du Munil, south of Cornimont, was recaptured in grim fighting.

The garrison of St. Nazaire liquidated an enemy observation post.

London continues to be harassed by « V-1 ».

Italy:

Yesterday, in central Italy, the fighting was limited to isolated enemy attacks, west and southwest of Imola, which were, in part, frustrated with heavy losses for the enemy. [Translator's note: May perhaps read: 'which were frustrated, with sometimes heavy losses for the enemy'].

Eastern Front:

In the mountain valleys of the central Balkans, grim fighting developed. East and northeast of Skoplje, Bulgarian thrusts were repulsed.

In the western part of the Morawa Valley, and at Krajevo, grim Bolshevik attacks also were frustrated.

In southern Hungary, German and Hungarian troops launched successful thrusts, and frustrated enemy attempts at crossing the lower Tisa.

In the Debrecen sector, the grim fighting continues.

In the eastern Beskides, our grenadiers again repulsed fierce Bolshevik attacks, and destroyed 12 tanks. At one point, the fighting is still in full swing.

In and near Augustow, our troops are engaged in grim fighting. In the battle in the frontier area of East Prussia, southeast of Gumbinnen, German tank formations again frustrated attempts of fresh Soviet forces at breaking through. The Bolsheviks lost more than 295 tanks and 102 guns during the fighting of the last four days. Volkssturm battalions, in protection of the Fatherland, gallantly fought side-by-side with our divisions.

In other sectors of this theater of war, fierce enemy attacks were repulsed or halted in grim fighting.

In the evening the Bolsheviks, after fierce house-to-house fighting which lasted for the whole day, penetrated into Ebenrode.

In Kurland, some local Soviet attacks were repulsed.

On the Sworbe Peninsula, 11 Bolshevik tanks were destroyed in the defense against enemy attacks.

In the Gulf of Finland, German submarines sank six transport vessels laden with ammunition and other supplies, and four Bolshevik escort vessels.

In the Norwegian waters, patrol vessels of the Navy sank two enemy submarines.

Air:

Anglo-American terror bombers, favoured by low clouds, dropped bombs on Hamburg, Essen, Neumünster, Münster, and Hamm. They also attacked other localities in the Rhineland, Westphalia, and southeastern Germany.

Twelve bombers, 11 of which were four-engined bombers, were brought down. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Wilhelmstrasse on Spain: « Berlin political circles, » according to DNB, are devoting « considerable attention » to the clashes now taking place at the Spanish border between the forces of the Franco Government and the Maquis forces of what the German spokesman calls « Soviet Spaniards. » An official Wilhelmstrasse statement characterizes these events as meaning that « Moscow has decided to make a thrust against Spain. » In pursuance of the long-established

Germans Fight Back in East Prussia: German reports from the eastern front today are replete with a tone and terminology of relative calmness, apparently calculated to counteract panic regarding the invasion of East Prussia. Colonel von Olberg reports: « In the battle for East Prussia, the situation on the whole has eased off somewhat... The Soviet Russian command has obviously discovered that the Germans had sufficient reserves in the south of East Prussia so that they not only could ward off an offensive thrust, but could also drive it back to the position whence it had started. »

Lull on Italian Front: The weather and difficulties of terrain have apparently brought temporary quiet to the entire Italian front. The Fascist radio also credits « determined German resistance » as contributing to the stalemate. The « reappearance » of Polish units amongst the Allied Adriatic forces is noted as indicative of « depleted » Allied ranks.

Togliatti and Nenni: Unity or Discord?: The point of departure being Socialist leader Nenni's recent speech-making tour, in which he stated that complete harmony exists between Communists and Socialists, a Fascist radio commentary attempts to reveal the essential divergence between the two parties. In reality, says the commentator, Togliatti is the direct tool of « Slav Imperialism, » while Nenni is « harnessed to the chariot of free-masonic democracy and to British labor, and strongly collaborates with plutocratic capitalism. » In both cases, the purported aim is the enslavement of Italy to foreign interets. Bonomi, as usual, dominates the landscape of treasonable culpability for this state of affairs.

Emergency Measures in Rome: Topping off their almost daily charge sheet of the « deplorable » situation in Rome, the Fascist radios today tell of the supposed existence of a state of near-emergency in the capital. The Bonomi Government, together with Allied authorities, are said to have instituted numerous in extremis measures, including special mobile emergency squads, elaborately equipped.

Further Attack on Vatican: An article in the Osservatore Romano, which in context appears to be a harmless salute to the Allied recognition of France, is interpreted by the Fascist radio as yet further proof that the Vatican is not neutral.

Attacks on the Vatican, like those against the Monarchy, appear with almost daily regularity, and prismatic variety of pretext.

The Phenomenon of Rebellion: Such is the title of Roland Ricci's editorial in the Corriere della Sera which is developed, along with similar commentaries, into the keynote of the day.

Contending that the Partisans and other types of revoltees throughout Italy have been unmasked and the population at the same time disabused of any further admiration for them, the commentator, with comprehensive denigration, labels the rebels as « criminal puppets of traitors and of enemy propaganda ».

It is then lamented that the bravery, cleverness, and industry of the rebels was not directed into channels of true patriotism, which, had it been so, would have saved Italy from shameful « betrayal ».

The article ends on a note of pride, inasmuch as the « Black Brigade » and other Fascist punitive units are supposed to have been very effective in frustrating Partisan activity.

Gory examples of Partisan atrocities are sprinkled liberally.

Milan Mourns Allied Raid Victims: Enormous and indignant crowds are reported to have filled the Cathedral of Milan today to mourn the « hundreds of women and children » supposedly killed in a recent Allied air raid.

Blocking Antwerp Harbor: In contrast to Allied claims, the Transocean correspondent Sertorius maintains that the Allies' «tenacious effort to break German resistance in Hertogenbosch has not yielded any appreciable result.» As the opening item of his long analysis of the western front, Sertorius shifts attention to the German defensive success of keeping the Allies from using Antwerp:

«South of the Schelde Estuary, the Canadians, who broke into the German bridgehead about three weeks ago, are gaining ground only by metres. Even in its present 'split-up condition, this bridgehead is still fulfilling its task: namely, to block, together with the German batteries of Walcheren, the access to Antwerp harbor.»

JAPANESE

Leyte Landings: Domei, the official Japanese news agency, says of the American landings on the island of Leyte: «President Roosevelt, Admiral King, Admiral Nimitz, and General MacArthur may temporarily deceive the eyes and ears of the world with their lies. But in the meanwhile, the people of the world should focus their attention on Leyte Island, and watch the fate of the United States landing forces, which number four divisions.»

Domei foreshadows a grim fate for these divisions, and alleges that Japan has «already completely cut off their rear supply lines by delivering crushing blows against the enemy task force.»

Hence, these American forces are supposedly «isolated» on Leyte Island, and will soon be dealt with in a fashion which will make the deceived «peoples of the world see for themselves to what extent there is truth in American announcements.»

JAPANESE FLEET SUFFERS CRUSHING DEFEAT AMERICAN LOSSES SLIGHT

PEARL HARBOR, October 25 — In a three-day naval battle described as the greatest of the war, the Japanese fleet has suffered a «most crushing defeat,» General Douglas MacArthur declared in a special broadcast from field press headquarters on Leyte Island today.

General MacArthur added that «the future efforts» of the Japanese Navy «can only be on a dwindling scale.»

Three forces of the Japanese fleet fought the 3rd and 7th U. S. Fleets in Philippine waters in which air action played an important part.

Admiral Ernest King, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Fleet, later told reporters in Washington that virtually the entire Japanese fleet participated in the sea and air Late Monday afternoon, the communique added, a third enemy force was located southeast of Formosa, approaching from Japanese home waters.

Action continued against the enemy forces yesterday, and one of the large carriers was sunk and two others seriously damaged.

The Princeton was sunk Monday as a result of an attack by shore-based Japanese planes. After the ship's magazine exploded, she was sunk by U. S. naval fire. Her captain, 133 officers, and 1,227 enlisted men were saved. «Casualties were light,» the communique said.

In addition to sinking a large Japanese carrier and damaging two or more large carriers, five or six battleships and one cruiser, aircraft of the U. S. 3rd Fleet have shot down 150 Japanese planes.

A later communique from General MacArthur's headquarters at Leyte said that the Japanese Air Force Tuesday attempted a large-scale attack on shipping in the Leyte Gulf, but was broken up by U. S. carrier fighters. Fifty-six Japanese planes were destroyed.

Australian Squadron

Early Tuesday, the Japanese Fleet in force converged upon Allied forces in Leyte Gulf, but the U. S. 7th Fleet, with an Australian squadron and with surface forces supported by escort carriers, intercepted the attackers.

The Japanese southern force, including two battleships, two cruisers, and four destroyers, was completely routed and fled through the Suritao Straits under air attacks. Every ship was either sunk or heavily damaged, the communique continued.

The Allies incurred extremely light losses.

The Japanese northern force, consisting of four battleships, several cruisers, and eight destroyers, made contact with the Allied escort carrier group east of Samar, but was forced to retire to the north.

The communique reported that the Japanese lost several cruisers and destroyers, and that three battleships, two cruisers, and additional destroyers were badly damaged. Allied losses consisted of one escort carrier sunk and several escort carriers and destroyers damaged.

Admiral King told his press conference that one of the three Japanese naval divisions engaged had been so seriously damaged that it was forced to turn back as it moved toward the central Philippines.

Three-Pronged Battle

The story of the three-pronged battle was told earlier in a special communique from Admiral Nimitz's headquarters.

Planes of the U. S. 3rd Fleet located two enemy forces headed eastward through the Philippine archipelago on Monday, the communique said. The first Japanese force consisted of three or four battleships, 10 cruisers, and about 13 destroyers and was sighted south of Mindanao Island and later moving eastward through the Sibuyan Sea. It was attacked repeatedly by carrier aircraft, and incomplete reports indicated that all battleships were damaged by bombs, at least one was hit by a torpedo, and one cruiser was torpedoed, the communique added.

The second enemy force was sighted in the Sulu Sea southwest of Negros Island, and consisted of two battleships, one cruiser, and four destroyers. Both battleships were damaged by bombs, and the lighter vessels were severely strafed.

damaged ... and one cruiser, aircraft of the U. S. 3rd Fleet ... down 150 Japanese planes.

A later communique from General MacArthur's headquarters at Leyte said that the Japanese Air Force Tuesday attempted a large-scale attack on shipping in the Leyte Gulf, but was broken up by U. S. carrier fighters. Fifty-six Japanese planes were destroyed.

Australian Squadron

Early Tuesday, the Japanese Fleet in force converged upon Allied forces in Leyte Gulf, but the U. S. 7th Fleet, with an Austrialian squadron and with surface forces supported by escort carriers, intercepted the attackers.

The Japanese southern force, including two battleships, two cruisers, and four destroyers, was completely routed and fled through the Suritao Straits under air attacks. Every ship was either sunk or heavily damaged, the communique continued.

The Allies incurred extremely light losses.

The Japanese northern force, consisting of four battleships, several cruisers, and eight destroyers, made contact with the Allied escort carrier group east of Samar, but was forced to retire to the north.

The communique reported that the Japanese lost several cruisers and destroyers, and that three battleships, two cruisers, and additional destroyers were badly damaged. Allied losses consisted of one escort carrier sunk and several escort carriers and destroyers damaged.

Admiral King told his press conference that one of the three Japanese naval divisions engaged had been so seriously damaged that it was forced to turn back as it moved toward the central Philippines.

LATE BULLETINS

JAPANESE FLEET CRUSHED

WASHINGTON, October 25 — President Roosevelt announced today at a special press conference that he had received a report from Admiral Halsey which said that the Japanese Navy in the Philippine area has been «defeated, seriously damaged, and routed» by the United States Navy in that area. AMERICANS LAND ON SAMAR IN PHILIPPINES

AFHQ, LEYTE, October 25 — General MacArthur announced tonight that American cavalry troops have landed on the island of Samar, at a point 90 miles southeast of the main Philippine island of Luzon.

General MacArthur's communique confirms the press report of the landing last night that tanks were ferried across the narrow strait separating Leyte from Samar. (OWI)

CANADIANS GAIN MILE IN SCHELDE POCKET

SHAEF, October 25 — After capturing the German strongpoint of Fort Frederik Hendrik at the mouth of the Schelde River, Canadian troops advanced one mile and captured Waterloo, a late dispatch said tonight.

At Fort Frederik Hendrik, the Canadians captured eight big coastal guns pointing out over the Schelde, poised to smash Allied attempts to use the port of Antwerp. (Reuter)

«The fact that this force has turned back does not mean that it is going to stay turned back,» he added.

That the Japanese fleet should have brought surface units through the narrow waters of the straits where the maneuvering area is restricted was described by the Admiral as «quite remarkable.»

«There is something behind all this that we have not been able to fathom yet,» he concluded. (OWI-Reuter)

RUSSIANS IN NORWAY; CAPTURE KIRKENES

MOSCOW, October 25 — Under difficult Arctic conditions, Russian troops today crossed the frontier into Norway, captured the important seaport town of Kirkenes, on the Barents Sea, as well as 30 other inhabited localities on Norwegian territory.

The German News Agency DNB admitted the loss of Kirkenes, vital evacuation base for their northern forces, but reported that all military installations there had been destroyed.

General Meretskov's Karelian troops were aided by units of the Russian Navy, Marshal Stalin's order of the day said. Moscow saluted the victory with 20 salvos from 224 guns.

Kirkenes is important because of its strategic location and its 400,000 tons a year of iron ore exports. Considerable iron smelters are near the town, employing most of the Norwegians who live there.

The border which was crossed is part of the new frontier between Soviet Russia and Norway, which was established by the armistice agreement between Russia and Finland, according to which the whole Petsamo area was ceded to the Soviets.

The Associated Press said that the capture of Kirkenes indicated the Red Army's intention of marching through Norway in pursuit of 25,000 German troops driven out of northern Finland in the battle for Petsamo, 30 miles from Kirkenes. (OWI-Reuter)

HERTOGENBOSCH CAPTURED 60,000 GERMANS THREATENED

SHAEF, October 25 — With the capture of the important road and rail junction city of Hertogenbosch today by British 2nd Army troops, 60,000 Germans in western Holland south of the Meuse (Maas) River are threatened. There is only one undamaged bridge over which they can escape to join the main German army.

While one British column stormed through Hertogenbosch with flamethrowers to burn out German positions, a fourth attack was launched toward Tilburg, to the east of the Allied held town of Boxtel. Late reports tonight stated that this new drive has brought Allied troops to within 3,000 yards of Tilburg. Another force thrusting up from the south has reached Goirle. The Germans are believed to be pulling out of the town.

At the base of widening Dutch corridor, Canadian 1st Army troops completely cut the Woensdrecht causeway from the islands of Walcheren and Beveland to the Dutch mainland, and drove 2,000 yards to the north, isolating 11,000 Germans on the islands. Another Canadian force is swinging eastward to join Allied forces advancing on Roosendaal.

Press dispatches said that the Germans below the Meuse River are known to include patched-up units of eight divisions — the 85th, 59th, 245th, 256th 346th, 711th, 712th, and the 719th. The 1,400 Germans captured in the Hertogenbosch area were all from the 712th Division.

Canadian forces driving northward in the southern Schelde pocket have cleared Fort Frederik Hendrik, west of Breskens, and are now in control of the Schoondijke-Oostburg Road. They are pushing ahead in cold rain and Monte Belmonte, secured despite heavy enemy counter-attacks, is about eight miles south of Bologna's outskirts. It was the controlling feature in the rock wall defenses atop which enemy forces fought an all-out defense of the Bologna approaches along the Bologna-Florence Road. Fanatically resisting Nazi forces had driven back first American assaults on the rocky cliff face on October 17, and in the subsequent period had further fortified their positions by planting huge minefields, interspersed with demolitions and barbed-wire entanglements, on all the approaches to their mountain fortress.

The frontal assault on the German positions south of Bologna, coupled with the deep salient thrust into the Sillaro River Valley on the right flank of the American forces to within four miles of the Rimini-Bologna Highway, constitute «a serious threat» to the enemy defenses of the Po Valley, and may force a «major adjustment» of the German strategy, today's official reports declared. It was emphasized, however, that German resistance on the 5th Army front is still heavy, and that «only slow progress» can be anticipated in the drive on Bologna.

8th Army Gains

On the Adriatic front, where 8th Army forces are fanning out across the lowlands at the southeastern edge of the Plain of the Po, patrol forces yesterday pushed four miles north of the resort town of Cervia to cross the mouth of the swollen Savio River, and enter the village of Savio, nine miles south of Ravenna. No contact with enemy troops was reported by these forces, despite the fact that the Germans have erected a strong defensive belt west of the stream in the area of Castiglione, four miles farther inland.

Enemy opposition was reported to be lessening around the rims of Canadian and British bridgeheads across the Savio north and west of Cesena, and Canadian forces deepened their hold on the west banks by an additional 1,500 yards yesterday. British troops gained some 2,000 yards in a night action on Monday, it was reported. The heavy enemy shelling which had made the river crossings impassable except by armored vehicles slackened yesterday, and reinforcements of both armor and self-propelled guns were ferried across the Savio to strengthen the twin thrust.

Pratically all enemy resistance to the east of the Savio River has now been overcome, and British forces, supported by tanks, were reported to be advancing astride the Cesena-Forli Highway toward the Bevano River, a secondary stream only six miles east of Forli.

The combined British-American thrust into the Sillaro River Valley toward Castel San Pietro has created a salient which is now within four miles of the Po Valley and the road and rail lines linking its principal cities from Milan eastward to Rimini.

American forces were reported today to be engaged in fierce fighting near Vedriano, a hill village two miles west of the Sillaro River. These forces, the northernmost Allied troops anywhere along the Italian front, are at the rim of a hill area which directly overlooks the broad plain 1,000 feet below.

Some four miles due south, and in the mountains east of the Sillaro River, British forces yesterday captured Monte Spaduro after a night-long attack. German counter-attacks were beaten back, and the British infantrymen reported their positions firmly held.

In the mountain sector between the foremost elements of the 5th Army, south and southeast of Bologna, and 8th Army forces in the southeastern end of the Po Valley, British, Indian, and Polish troops continued to push back the sagging bulge in the German line. Indian troops of the 5th Army captured Monte Serra, 15 miles from Faenza in the Monveno River Valley, while British troops, pushing up the Montone River Valley, established forward elements at Monte Proveccio, a high feature just 18 miles south of Forli.

Polish forces with the 8th Army were also pressing

On the American 7th Army and the French 1st Army front, units of the German SE — Volks Grenadier — division have been identified. It is believed that this is the first appearance in the west of the German „people's army." They are led by experienced officers and NCO's, and may contain remnants of regular army formations.

In the Vosges Mountains, Allied forces have improved their positions and are making slow but steady progress in persisting bad weather. The towns of Mortagne and Bifontaine, eight miles southwest of the communications center of St. Die, were captured after house-to-house fighting.

The Germans launched an attack during the night against advanced French detachments, but were repelled with heavy losses inflicted by artillery and mortar fire.

Five miles southwest of Baccarat, American 3rd Army troops captured the village of Menarmont. (OWI-Reuter-AP)

MONTE BELMONTE TAKEN ON EIGHTH DAY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 25 — American troops of the 5th Army yesterday captured, on the eighth day of bloody assault, lofty Monte Belmonte, key height of the enemy mountain defenses guarding the Savena River Valley south of Bologna, it was announced today.

[illegible] north of the resort town of Cervia to cross the mouth of the swollen Savio River, and enter the village of Savio, nine miles south of Ravenna. On the western sectors of the Italian front, South African troops of the 5th Army consolidated their positions on Monte Salvaro and Monte Termine, three and four miles northeast of Vergato, German strongpoint on the Pistoia-Bologna Road.

In the areas still farther west, Allied troops maintained pressure on enemy positions and engaged in aggressive patrolling. (PRO)

AMERICANS ADVANCE ON ALL PHILIPPINE FRONTS JAPS LOSE 56 PLANES IN ATTACK ON LEYTE

MACARTHUR'S HQ, LEYTE, October 25 — American ground forces continued their advance on all fronts in the Philippines and Japanese forces are disintegrating in at least one sector, a special communique said tonight.

Americans have seized hills west of Palo and have captured Ponauan, 10 miles to the south. The road center of Burauen, nine miles inland from Tulau, was also taken. Allied troops have thrust forward north of Tacloban.

Fifty-six Japanese planes were destroyed yesterday when a Japanese air force, in a combined operation with a Japanese fleet, attempted a large-scale daylight attack on shipping in Leyte Gulf and were intercepted by United States carrier fighters. Fifty-three planes were shot down in air combat and anti-aircraft fire destroyed three others.

This Japanese fleet — one of three fleets in action today — consisted of two battleships, two cruisers, and four destroyers. It was completely routed by the U.S. 7th Fleet, supported by an Australian squadron and escort carriers. Every enemy ship was either sunk or damaged.

General MacArthur's regular communique today reported that forward patrols and armored units of the 7th Division penetrated an enemy covering screen to seize San Pablo, and fanned out to the north toward Dagami. Elements of the 96th Division, advancing on the right from Tanghas, nine miles north of Dulag, enveloped the Catmon Hills, and are approaching Tabontabon.

Carrier aircraft of the 7th U. S. Fleet executed close supporting missions, attacking enemy ground installations, supply dumps, and line communications.

Japanese installations on Mindanao Island, south of Leyte and now cut off from the main Japanese base at Manila, continued to be attacked by American planes. Sixty-four enemy planes were destroyed or severely damaged on a Mindanao airfield. Intense anti-aircraft fire was encountered, and six American aircraft were lost.

Another Superfortress Attack

The Omura aircraft factory at Omura, on the island of Kyushu, Japan, was the object of a ladeling attack today by a medium-sized force of American Superfortresses of the 20th Bomber Command from its bases in China, a 20th USAAF communique said tonight.

The aircraft plant, including assembly, repair, and training installations, comprises 75 buildings and is one of the largest of its kind in Japan, the communique said. The Superforts' targets are situated on the east coast of Omura Bay, 12 miles northeast of Nagasaki.

The bombers encountered some fighter resistance, while anti-aircraft fire over the target was moderate. One of the bombers failed to return.

The raid is the 13th mission for the big four-motored bombers, and the fifth attack against Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands. The B-29's were last reported in action shortly before the landings in the Philippines, when they teamed up with Admiral Halsey's carrier planes to hit Formosa, key Japanese base off the China coast.

The Japanese news agency admitted yesterday that USAAF attacks on the island of Formosa, carried out from October 12 to 14, had caused the destruction of 1,949 buildings, in addition to military and railway installations and shipping.

Continued air attacks were carried out today in support of the American landings in the Philippines. Mindanao came in for the heaviest attack, when land-based planes dropped 58 tons on airdromes, shipping, highways, troop concentrations, and buildings. In long-range support, American planes carried widespread attacks on Japanese supply lines, communications, and enemy installations from the Solomons to Borneo. (OWI - Reuter)

CHINESE RECAPTURE SINNING

CHUNGKING, October 25 — Chinese troops have recaptured Sinning, an important point on the enemy right flank 90 miles north of Kweilin, the Chinese High Command communique announced today.

Beaten Japanese retreated toward Tungan on the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, 90 miles northeast of Kweilin.

Chinese units continued to engage the Japanese about 12 miles west of Hingan, a Hunan-Kwangsi railway town, all spiritual and material support that my limited resources would permit.

«Through the assistance of our Navy, I was able to send in by submarines arms, ammunition, and medical supplies. The news of the supplies electrified the Filipinos into full returning consciousness that America had neither abandoned nor forgotten them».

MacArthur then told how supplies continued to increase, and that eventually four submarines were committed to the exclusive task of taking them in.

He told how the Patriots obtained the secret defensive plans and instructions of the commander-in-chief of the combined Japanese fleet. In addition, the Americans gained possession of complete information on the strength and distribution of enemy fleets.

«Our plans of campaign have benefitted from the hazardous labors of a vast network of agents numbering into hundreds of thousands,» he said, adding that they provided precise, accurate, and detailed information on major enemy moves and installations throughout the Philippines.

Every major island of the Philippines had one or more completely equipped and staffed weather observatories, he stated. Full weather data were flashed three times daily to his headquarters.

A vast radio network reported all Japanese moves — which aided military operations and contributed to the sinking of an enormous tonnage of enemy shipping.

An air-warning system affording visual observation of the air over nearly every square foot of Philippine soil was established for the purpose of flashing immediate warning of enemy aircraft movement throughout the same vast network of radio communications, he said.

MacArthur disclosed that the commander-in-chief of the combined Japanese fleets was a prisoner of one of the Patriot units prior to his death from injuries received in an airplane accident.

An Associated Press dispatch said that the admiral probably referred to by General MacArthur was Admiral Yamamoto, commander-in-chief of the combined fleet, who was killed in April, 1943. (OWI-Reuter)

ALL OF TRANSYLVANIA IS LIBERATED

MOSCOW, October 25 — While Red Army forces under General Meretskov in pursuit of 23,000 fleeing Germans in Norway captured the seaport of Kirkenes, on the Barents Sea, Marshal Malinovsky's troops in Transylvania today took by storm the strongholds of Satu-Mare and Carei, and completed the liberation of Transylvanian territory.

Gun salvos were fired in Moscow tonight to celebrate these two victories, announced in two orders of the day by Marshal Stalin.

In East Prussia, battles rage for the Insterburg Gap, key to the control of this German territory. General Chernyakovsky's armies, surging westward through the Germans' long-prepared defense line, are meeting powerful resistance from the enemy trying to seal the breach. The Russians are countering this with unrelenting pressure, and tonight's Soviet communique said that more strongpoints have been captured.

Along East Prussia's northern frontier, General Bagramyan's artillery is pouring shells across the River Niemen into the German defenses covering Tilsit.

(On the approaches to the southern frontier, the German High Command said, a major Soviet offensive between Warsaw and the Narev bridghead was launched yesterday.)

MACARTHUR TELLS OF PRE-LANDING MOVEMENT

MACARTHUR'S HQ, LEYTE, October 25 — How a weak signal from a radio set on the island of Panay heard in the late fall of 1942 set in motion machinery to aid the Patriots — aid which culminated in full-scale landings in the Philippines — was told today by General MacArthur in a special communique broadcast in English to the Philippines.

Describing the secret preparations for the landings, and paying tribute to the Patriots, MacArthur said, in part:

"Following the disaster which, in the face of overwhelming superior enemy power, overtook our gallant forces, a deep, impenetrable silence engulfed the Philippines. Through that silence no news concerning the fate of the Filipino people reached the outside world until broken by a weak signal from a radio set in the island of Panay, which was picked up in the late fall of the same fateful year.

"The lifting of the curtain of silence and uncertainty disclosed the start of a human drama with few parallels in military history. I recognized the spontaneous movement of the Filipino people to resist, and I gave this movement stated. Full weather data were hashed thrice times daily to his headquarters.

A vast radio network reported all Japanese moves — which aided military operations and contributed to the sinking of an enormous tonnage of enemy shipping.

(On the approaches to the southern frontier, the German High Command said, a major Soviet offensive between Warsaw and the Narev bridgehead was launched yesterday.)

Soviet air fleets are bombing German strongpoints, concentrating particularly on the Gumbinnen area, where the enemy had massed his best divisions. Railway junctions and ports feeding East Prussian battlefronts were heavily attacked last night. Among them were Insterburg and Darkehmen in East Prussia, and the Latvian ports of Libau and Windau, north of Memel, where transport vessels at anchor and military trains were hit. Tonight's Soviet communique said repeated German infantry and tank attacks were repelled in the Libau area in Latvia.

Königsburg Evacuated

Königsburg, capital and main port of East Prussia, is reported to be evacuating its civilian population. Air reconnaissance photographs show that the evacuation has been going on for several days, a Red Army dispatch said today.

Meanwhile, in the occupied areas of East Prussia, the Russians have set up a Soviet Military Administration.

Northwest of Warsaw, Soviet troops operating in conjunction with units of the Polish 1st Army occupied several places in the vicinity of Praga.

The liberation of Transylvania was completed with the occupation of 500 inhabited places, including Satu-Mare and Carei. Satu-Mare, a city of 15,000 is the junction for the main trans-Carpathian rail line from southeast Poland and the main line from Rumania across northern Transylvania.

Carei lies between Debrecen and Satu-Mare. Both places are about seven miles from the Hungarian border.

The Russians have also made advances in Ruthenia, and took 50 towns and villages fortified and defended by the enemy. Advanced units are within nine miles of Mukacevo, key communications center of Ruthenia.

Combined Red Army and Yugoslav National Liberation forces today captured Novisad, important rail junction on the Danube River 44 miles northwest of Belgrade. They also took Petvaradin, on the southern bank of the Danube.

Marshal Tito also announced the liberation of Pazova, Petrinci, and Pecinci, in Srem, in conjunction with Russian troops.

Tito's troops have reached the approaches to Zagreb, capital of Croatia, the Free Yugoslav Radio said today, and have brought the city under artillery fire.

Again the Red Army on all fronts disabled or destroyed over 100 German tanks. Sixty-seven German planes were destroyed during yesterday's fighting. Radio Moscow reported today that the «Normandie» squadron of French airmen flying with the Red Air Force shot down 83 German planes for the loss of one of their own in the first four days of fighting over East Prussia. (OWI - Reuter)

TITO'S FORCES LIBERATE MORE TOWNS

LONDON, October 25 — Marshal Tito's communique today confirmed the capture of Novi Sad on the Danube, and added that Yugoslav troops continued to chase the enemy westward.

Over 800 enemy troops were killed and three tanks and 40 vehicles destroyed in fierce fighting on the approaches to Uznice and Vishegrad, southwest of Belgrade, where Russian and Yugoslav units are closing in on the towns themselves.

In Herzegovina, the town of Krupovo, west of Koter, has been occupied by Tito's forces, which also liberated Traunik, on the approaches to Sarajevo, capital of Bosnia. (OWI)

RUSSIANS WILL METE OUT JUSTICE

MOSCOW, October 25 — «The Red Army entering East Prussia is not coming to exact vengeance, but to mete out justice,» Ilya Ehrenburg wrote recently in the Soviet army newspaper, Red Star.

«For 40 months,» Ehrenburg continued, «the Russian people have awaited this day. We have looked at the ruins of our cities, our villages reduced to ashes, and have wondered impatiently when, at last, the time would come.

«Today it is at hand. The Red Army has entered Germany. Hitler and his accomplices put their faith in their fortifications... but there is anger that breaks down stone walls, fury that melts steel. No fortifications were able to stop us. We are on German soil. Now justice has begun.

«We are not killers of children. But woe betide those Germans who have killed children, those who ordered it, those who collaborated in it, and those who carried it out! They shall not escape!» (OWI)

LAW ON TITO-BULGARIAN NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON, October 25 — The British Government have no knowledge of negotiations between Marshal Tito and Bulgarian politicans regarding the use of Bulgarian troops in Yugoslavia, Richard Law, British Minister of State, said in Commons today in reply to a question.

The negotiations are of a military character, he said.

To another question as to whether Tito's action was not [illegible] armistice terms, Law replied:

large fires with smoke rising to over 10,000 feet. Four RAF bombers are missing.

The 8th USAAF bombers, escorted by more than 500 fighters of the same force, carried out their bombing through cloud by instruments. Their targets at Hamm and in the Hamburg sector were attacked many times previously by this force in its relentless campaign to immobilize the German Army and Air Force.

Great quantities of war supplies from the industrial areas of northwestern Germany flow to the battlefront through the Hamm yards, while in the reverse direction raw materials from the Ruhr are fed into those industrial regions.

The Hamburg area was also under attack yesterday from 400 American fighter planes, which struck at German transport between the western front and Berlin over a 200-mile zone from Hamburg to south of Kassel. They hit 150 locomotives, destroyed or damaged 483 rail cars, and gunned steamboats, staff cars, troop formations, and barrage balloons.

The Hanover area was attacked by the RAF last night after the American planes had strafed and set ablaze barges, oil cars, and gun emplacements south of the city, in daylight.

Some areas offered intense ack-ack defense. Eighteen American planes failed to return.

Selected military targets at Dordrecht, in Holland were blasted during an hour-long attack yesterday by the 2nd TAF, and large buildings were obliterated after 20 tons of bombs had been dropped and the target subjected to intense rocket fire.

At Hulhuizen, five miles northwest of Nijmegen, a factory converted by the Germans into a fortress was bombed.

RAF Coastal Command Mosquitoes yesterday destroyed three enemy fighters off the Norwegian coast.

More flying bombs fell in southern England and the London area last night, causing slight damage, but no casualties. (OWI - Reuter)

BRITISH PATROLS ENTER DHOMOKOS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 25 — British patrols of Land Forces Greece have entered the town of Dhomokos, 18 miles north of Lamia on the Athens-Thessulonika Highway, it was announced here today.

Today's communique also stated that German forces had evacuated the port of Volos after suffering heavy casualties as a result of clashes with guerrilla forces.

Additional Allied troops have been landed at the port of Piraeus, it was said. (PRO)

TWO BRIDGES, RAIL LINES DESTROYED BY M.A.A.F.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 25 — Fighters, fighter-bombers, and light bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday slashed enemy rail lines in 14 different places and destroyed a road and a rail bridge in attacks carried out despite bad weather which grounded all medium and heavy bombers, it was announced here today.

Planes of the Desert Air Force carried out concerted attacks on enemy gun, mortar, and troop concentrations four miles west of Cesena along the main Rimini-Bologna Highway.

TITO'S FORCES LIBERATE MORE TOWNS

LONDON, October 25 — Marshal Tito's communique today confirmed the capture of Novi Sad on the Danube, and added that Yugoslav troops continued to chase the enemy westward.

Over 800 enemy troops were killed and three tanks and 40 vehicles destroyed in fierce fighting on the approaches to Uznice and Vishegrad, southwest of Belgrade, where Russian and Yugoslav units are closing in on the towns themselves.

In Herzegovina, the town of Krupovo, west of Kotor, has been occupied by Tito's forces, which also liberated Traunik, on the approaches to Sarajevo, capital of Bosnia. (OWI)

RUSSIANS WILL METE OUT JUSTICE

MOSCOW, October 25 — «The Red Army entering East Prussia is not coming to exact vengeance, but to mete out justice,» Ilya Ehrenburg wrote recently in the Soviet army newspaper, Red Star.

«For 40 months,» Ehrenburg continued, «the Russian people have awaited this day. We have looked at the ruins of our cities, our villages reduced to ashes, and have wondered impatiently when, at last, the time would come.

«Today it is at hand. The Red Army has entered Germany. Hitler and his accomplices put their faith in their fortifications... but there is anger that breaks down stone walls, fury that melts steel. No fortifications were able to stop us. We are on German soil. Now justice has begun.

«We are not killers of children. But woe betide those Germans who have killed children, those who ordered it, those who collaborated in it, and those who carried it out! They shall not escape!» (OWI)

LAW ON TITO-BULGARIAN NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON, October 25 — The British Government have no knowledge of negotiations between Marshal Tito and Bulgarian politicans regarding the use of Bulgarian troops in Yugoslavia, Richard Law, British Minister of State, said in Commons today in reply to a question.

The negotiations are of a military character, he said.

To another question as to whether Tito's action was not in conflict with the proposed armistice terms, Law replied: «No. I think Marshal Tito's action is not in conflict with anything, except in the purely technical sense. In this case, it is obviously desirable... that the greatest possible pressure be brought to bear on the enemy. That is the main consideration.»

Law answered in the negative when he was asked if the British and Soviet governments had come to any decision at the Moscow Conference to establish separate British and Russian zones of influence in the Balkan countries at the end of the war. (Reuter)

ESSEN, HAMM, AND HAMBURG BOMBED

LONDON, October 25 — Two great bomber forces, one RAF the other 8th USAAF attacked industrial and communications targets in western Germany today, after being hampered by bad flying weather for 48 hours.

More than 1,000 RAF planes delivered the main weight of their attack on the armament and rail center of Essen for the second time in 40 hours, while 1,200 Flying Fortresses and Liberators attacked Germany's largest railway yards at Hamm and oil refineries in the Hamburg-Harburg area. Synthetic oil plants at Hamburg also were bombed by part of the RAF force.

Mr. Stettinius' statement said the action was taken after consultation with other American republics, as provided in the resolutions of Rio De Janeiro of January, 1942. Great Britain and the Soviet Union were also consulted.

Mr. Kirk is at present U. S. representative on the Advisory Council for Italy. (UNN)

ITALIAN SOLDIERS HELP IN BELGRADE LIBERATION

ROME, October 25 — Two battalions of Italian soldiers of the Garibaldi Division took part in the liberation of Belgrade, Mario Palermo, Italian Under Secretary for War, said here today on his return from a 13-day trip through Montenegro and Bosnia.

The battalions, the Under Secretary said, are part of the Division which was formed from Italian units refusing to comply with Army Corps General Roncaglia's orders to go over to the Germans after the armistice. Beside these wholly Italian units, he added, there are thousands of former Italian soldiers in Yugoslav Army formations.

Palermo said that in his contacts with Yugoslav officials and with the various elements of the population, he found evidence of comprehension and good will toward democratic Italy, although, he added, he also derived the impression that the delay in the punishment of Fascists is not helping to eliminate the memory of the lootings and destruction caused in Montenegro and other Yugoslav regions. NEW ELECTRICITY RATIONING FOR ROME

ROME, October 25 — Allied military technicians and directors of Rome electric companies today explained a new plan for the rationing of the city's electric power.

According to the plan, which will be effective November 1, Rome will be divided into four zones. Each zone will have a continuous flow of electricity for a period of one week, 24 hours a day. During this time, the other three zones will have electric power every three days for 24 hours daily.

The quantity available to each consumer will be strictly limited. Each private apartment will have 10 kilowatt hours of electricity for each month, a quantity sufficient to keep two small 25 kilowatt bulbs burning for 200 hours.

A special provision will be made for newspaper offices, hospitals, schools, boarding schools, colleges, government ministries, municipal offices, and other indispensable institutions.

Theaters and cinema houses will have only one-quarter of the electric power used during the first two months of the current year.

Each consumer will be informed through the press of how to make the best use of available electricity.

Consumers who use more than their ration of power will have their electricity discontinued for a month. Recurrence of this offense will result in suspension of power for six months.

Allied and Italian authorities said that if citizens make judicious use of their quota of electric power, there may be continuous distribution of electricity for each day of the month.

Discussing the new plan, Brig. Gen. Thoburn Brown, Allied Military Commander for Rome, pointed out today at a press conference, that only 25 per cent of the quantity of electricity sufficient to meet the normal needs of the city is now available, as a result of German destruction, and that the consumption of electric power must be proportionately reduced.

General Brown asked for the patriotic cooperation of the public, who must realize that the authorities understand

The problem of restarting the institute began almost immediately after Allied troops liberated Siena. While the storage boxes had some biologicals available, there was danger that the materials already processed would be lost for lack of electric refrigeration. The institute was among the first places in Siena to receive electricity. Soon after, AMG officials assisted in the opening of a cardboard-making factory nearby, to pack the vaccines and sera, and in the reopening of a Naples glass factory to manufacture the vials to hold the medical fluids.

As the packing of these remaining biologicals began, AMG public health experts obtained discarded mules and horses from the Allied armies for continued production of such sera as anti-diphtheria. In addition, Allied transport was provided for feed for horses, mules, bulls, rabbits, guinea pigs, and monkeys, all used for the manufacture of the sera and vaccines, or for experiment purposes.

Employees in the Siena plant now total about 300, mostly young women. There are also four physicians, who are in charge of the manufacture and experimental laboratories.

The laboratory in Siena has sufficient sera and vaccines on hand to take care of the normal needs of most sections of northern liberated Italy. Some of the biologicals immediately available are 2,500,000 doses of anti-smallpox vaccine; 60,000 doses of anti-cholera vaccine; 50,000 doses of anti-typhus vaccine; 20,000 doses of anti-whooping cough vaccine; and 30,000 doses of anti-dysentery vaccine. A.C.C. AIDS GOVERNMENT OIL DRIVE

ROME, October 25 — Appointment of 25 Allied officers to assist the Italian Government's campaign to collect the 1944 olive-oil crop was announced today by the Allied Control Commission.

Like the Granai del Popolo (Granaries of the People) campaign in the wheat harvest — now nearly completed — the Oliari del Popolo campaign was designed as liberated Italy's newest functioning of democratic methods. On basis of communal sharing it would enable all citizens in town and country to receive a reasonable olive oil ration at a controlled price.

The Allied officers assigned today are all convalescing after illness or wounds. As oil or grain harvest-control officers, they will assist Italian agricultural officials for 30 days.

Because the bulk of the olives is grown in territory under control of the Italian Government, the Italian Ministry of Agriculture will have entire direction of the Oliari del Popolo drive as part of the plan for rehabilitation of Italian industry, the ACC's Agricultural Sub-Commission said today.

Plans for the drive being developed by the Italian Government include an important role for the communal committees that played such a successful part in each village and province in the Granai del Popolo campaign this year.

These communal committees will shoulder the same democratic responsibility for seeing that the olive oil comes into Oliari del Popolo, instead of being deteured into the black market, officials asserted today.

Allied armies consume little or no olive oil, Lieut Col. W. A. Hartman, director of the Agriculture Sub-Commission, said. They will not confiscate oil as the Germans did. Hence, all oil amassed will go to feed the people of liberated Italy. (UNN)

ITALY ALMOST SELF-SUFFICIENT IN VACCINES

SIENA, October 25 — Liberated Italy is today almost completely self-sufficient in the manufacture of nearly all sera and vaccines, following the reopening here of the Istituto Sieroterapico e Vaccinogeno Toscano with the assistance of the Allied Military Government and the Allied Control Commission.

The Allies are continuing to supply those biologicals not yet made in Liberated Italy.

Production at the institute here in addition to that of laboratories in Palermo and Naples, also opened with Allied assistance, is, in the opinion of medical authorities attached to ACC's Public Health Sub-Commission, sufficient to take care of all the needs for biologicals by the people of liberated Italy.

The Siena laboratories, as modern scientifically as any in The United States and Great Britain, now are producing the vaccines in increasing numbers of units. With materials provided by the Allied armies, an anti-typhoid vaccine is being prepared at the rate of 6,000 doses an hour.

All production is exclusively for civilian use.

Immediately available are 2,500,000 doses of anti-smallpox vaccine; 60,000 doses of anti-cholera vaccine; 50,000 doses of anti-typhus vaccine; 20,000 doses of anti-whooping cough vaccine; and 30,000 doses of anti-dysentery vaccine. (UNN)

UNITED NATIONS

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER STILL POLICY

LONDON, October 25 — Unconditional surrender of Germany, in the sense of no bargaining with the enemy, is still the British policy, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today.

Mr. Churchill said that «the three-power declaration to Axis satellites of May 12 should also be borne in mind».

The Prime Minister was answering a question asked by Sir Thomas Moore (Conservative), who wanted to know if unconditional surrender was still the policy of the British Government and the United Nations, and how this policy was reconciled with the system by which former enemies, under military pressure, changed sides and were now apparently Allies. FRANCE WANTS PART IN REICH ADMINISTRATION

PARIS, October 25 — General Charles De Gaulle said today, at his first Allied press conference, that it is «inconceivable that the conditions of the occupation of Germany should be settled without the agreement of France.» General De Gaulle said that French troops would occupy those parts of Germany they capture.

Speaking to over 100 Allied correspondents, General De Gaulle said that, given help, France could put a large new army into the field within six months.

«France,» he said, «is not only ready, but anxious to take her full share in the fight against Germany».

As French industry had been dislocated and drained of its reserve stocks by the Germans, he added, the Allies would have to supply most of the weapons the new army would need.

Questioned as to the French Government's view on the western alliance, De Gaulle said that Belgium and Holland are close neighbors, economically and politically, of France and England, and that these countries would want to see their mutual economic and political relations properly organized.

General De Gaulle noted that there are about 52,000 members of the French Forces of the Interior now fighting with General de Lattre de Tassigny's army in Lorraine. He added that no difficulty is being encountered in recruiting volunteers for an expeditionary corps for the liberation of Indo-China when the opportunity occurs. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

DEWEY PLEDGES NON-PARTISAN PEACE PROGRAM

MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA, October 25 — The American people are united in their determination to carry through the war to swift and total victory, and to organize for world peace on a non-partisan basis, Governor Thomas Dewey, Republican Party candidate for President in the elections of November 7, said in a campaign speech here last night.

«On great objectives we, the American people, are wholly agreed», he said. «We are determined to carry this war through to swift and total victory. We are determined that the United States shall take the lead, even before victory in this war is won, on the establishment of a world organization to prevent future wars».

Dewey reaffirmed his belief that the U. S. delegate on the proposed International Council should have the power and authority to make decisions on using force to halt aggression. Expressing the view that formation of an international peace organization must not be delayed, Dewey said: «We must make certain that our participation in this world organization is not subjected to reservations that would nullify the power of that organization to maintain peace and halt future aggressions». CANADA RELEASES FRENCH FUNDS

Spanish regular troops and opposition fighters. The Franco radio, however, refers to these engagements as «mere frontier skirmishes» in which the Maquis were decisively defeated, whereas Spanish Republican sources in London assert there is organized Republican activity in three major Spanish provinces: Galicia, in the northwest; Estramadura, in the southwest; and Andalusia, in the south.

The American Associated Press, warning that it still is not clear whether the present developments indicate an organized revolt against the régime of 'Generalissimo' Francisco Franco, said reports from Barcelona told of a spontaneous celebration there last Sunday growing out of unfounded reports that Germany had surrendered.

In Paris, the newspaper Combat, organ of the French Resistance Movement, charged that German units stranded inside Spain, numbering perhaps 40,000 men, had been regrouped «into a proper army perfectly equipped.» The charge contrasted with a statement by the Spanish Embassy at London that only about 1,200 Germans got into Spain after the German defeat in France, and that these had been interned in accordance with international law.

An American newspaperman said that on Friday he talked with some of the Maquis on duty on the Spanish side of the imaginary line separating the two countries. (The De Gaulle Government has clamped a tight control on the border.)

«This,» he says, «is their position:

«For years now we have been living as exiles in France with but one hope — to get back to our own country and live like free men...

«Now France has been liberated, thanks to the American and British Armies plus the work that the French and Spanish Maquis did — not only by sabotage, but in regular, pitched battles. We are proud of the part we played in the liberation, and our French Maquis comrades have shown us that they appreicate the work that we did.

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 25. — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

American and British troops of the 5th Army have made important gains, despite most determined enemy resistance.

American troops have taken Monte Belmonte, the scene of the most bitter fighting for the last few days, and held it against counter-attacks.

East of Monte Grande, American troops of the 5th Army are engaged in determined fighting for a key feature about five miles from the Bologna-Rimini Highway.

On their right, British troops of the 5th Army have captured the important height of Monte Spaduro, and held it against several strong counter-attacks.

Eighth Army troops have now virtually overcome all enemy resistance on the east bank of the River Savio, and have reached Savio village near the mouth of the river.

In the Cesena area, the bridgehead has been considerably enlarged and 8th Army infantry, supported by tanks, are advancing astride the main Bologna-Rimini Road toward the River Bevano.

Indian troops have made further progress south of Cesena and, in the Bidente Valley, Polish troops have made further gains.

Land Forces Greece:

Thirty miles north of Lamia, our forward patrols have entered Dhomokos.

German troops have evacuated Volos, and heavy casualties were inflicted on them by guerrilla forces as they retreated from the town.

At the Piraeus, additional troops have been unloaded.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Bad weather prevented both heavy and medium bombers from operating, but fighter-bombers and fighters gave very strong support to the land forces in the Bologna and Cesena areas by attacking supply dumps, troop concentrations, guns, and strongpoints, and also attacked bridges and rail communications in the Po Valley.

Coastal and Balkan Air Force aircraft attacked shipping in the Adriatic, and rail and road traffic in Albania and Yugoslavia.

Nine of our aircraft are missing from these operations.

MAAF flew approximately 850 sorties.

Navy:

On the night of 20/21 October, Allied light coastal forces operating in the Gulf of Genoa met three heavily armed enemy vessels. Our forces attacked three times under heavy fire and illumination by star shell, but the results were inconclusive. At one period, the enemy ships were seen to be firing at each other. A similar indecisive engagement took place on the night of 21/22 October, in the same area, but later our forces attacked a convoy of « F » lighters southbound between Genoa and Spezia. One of the « F » lighters was sunk. In these two actions, our craft incurred some superficial damage.

On 23 October, aircraft of the Royal Navy from HMS Attacker operated all day against enemy landing craft, laden with motor transport, as well as against rail and road traffic in the Katerine area. On the west side of the Gulf of Salonica, 10 locomotives and 10 trucks were destroyed, and hits obtained on other truck concentrations. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 25 — Today's communique:

South of Breskens, the road from Schoondijke to Oostburg is in our hands, and Allied troops are on the edge of Oostburg.

South of Roosendaal, further gains brought us to the neighborhood of Pindorp.

Some progress has also been made north and northeast of Woensdrecht.

Our troops are fighting in the outskirts of Hertogenbosch, and have cut the main road and railway both north and a few miles south of the town.

Fighters and fighter-bombers supported our ground forces in Zuid Beveland Peninsula, and hit military buildings at Dordrecht.

Other fighter-bombers attacked strongpoints northeast of Nijmegen.

Road and rail transportation targets in Holland and western Germany were attacked by fighter-bombers in strength. In the areas of Hanover and Kassel, more than 100 locomotives and many freight cars were destroyed. In the area north of Aachen and Lunéville, there were no substantial changes.

Patrol activity continued throughout the area in the Moselle Valley. Our units encountered sporadic artillery and small-arms fire.

In the Baccarat sector, Menarmont has been freed.

Northeast of Epinal, we made further gains and have taken the villages of Mortagne and Bifontaine in house-to-house fighting.

Our forces in the Vosges Mountains are improving their positions. (Reuter)

MOSCOW, October 25 — Tonight's communique:

Land:

Troops of the Karelian Front, pursuing German troops, today crossed the Norwegian border and in difficult trans-Arctic conditions captured the important port in the Barents Sea, the town of Kirkenes, and also occupied in fighting on Norwegian territory over 30 other populated localities, including Krov-Peterburg, Turbuk, Jartergoden, Ropolden, Jelobeng, Elvenes, Gjorheim, Hebukeen, Jergevag, Lord-

Troops of the 2nd Ukrainan Front, today captured by storm the important strongpoints of the enemy defenses and large railway junctions of northern Transylvania, the towns of Satu-Mare and Carei, and also occupied in fighting over 100 other populated localities, including Batavche, Halmeu, Purlun, Agrid, Pelishor, Lazur, Otvaru, Petish, Dare, Tashmero, Ilvachi, Kemin, Uzechen, and Staneslau, and the railway stations of Halmeu, Mihula, Otvareu, Lazur, Shehmerel, Ilvachi, and Staneslau. Thus, our troops completed the liberation of Transylvania from the enemy.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 24, our troops damaged or destroyed on all fronts a total of 112 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 67 enemy planes were shot down.

Air:

On the night of October 24/25, our long-range Air Force carried out raids on the ports of Libau and Windau, and on the railway junctions of East Prussia, Insterburg and Darkemen. A few German transports were at the Port of Libau at the time of the raid. As a result of bombardment, 14 fires broke out. Especially large fires were seen at the eastern part of the port, in the area of hangars and the station. Five explosions were noted at the port, of which one was of high magnitude.

At the port of Windau, several fires broke out, followed by explosions.

At the railway junctions of Insterburg and Darkemen, bomb explosions were noted amongst the enemy trains. At Darkemen, by direct bomb hits, one ammunition train was blown up. A large part of the junction was enveloped by flames. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 25 — Today's Italian Resistance Front communique:

Several groups of Patriots are active behind German lines on the 8th Army front.

In the Ravenna sector, the inundation of the terrain caused by the rains favors Patriot activity, although living conditions are rendered extremely difficult because of the nature of the place.

To the northwest of Cividale del Friuli, the enemy, employing several thousands of men in a mopping-up operation, succeeded in reoccupying a large sector, where he immediately took to fierce reprisals, killing civilians and devastating homes.

Toward the beginning of October, about 30 Garibaldi Patriots attacked a depot of war materiel at Visco, in Udine Province. After disarming the guards, commanded by a German non-commissioned officer, Patriots captured 1,000 rifles, 30 machine guns, and four mortars.

German military authorities have undertaken a vast offensive against several localities occupied by the Patriots, particularly in the Sabbia and Trombia valleys, where the Wehrmacht is seeking to overwhelm the daring « Green Flames. » Up until now, the Patriots, though yielding terrain here and there, have succeeded in containing the advance of the enemy, who has superior resources at his disposal.

Another battle which lasted a little more than a week took place north of Turin.

In spite of the mopping-up operations carried out by the Fascists, the Patriots of Brescia are holding their positions in a vast sector comprising a part of the Province of Bergamo, and a few valleys of the Trentino and Lake Garda regions.

Nazi-Fascist troops, approximately 3,000 strong, with almost 50 armored vehicles, have launched an attack against a Patriot brigade between Lake d'Iseo and Lake di Idro.

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 25 — Today's communique:

South of Breskens, the road from Schoondijke to Oostburg is in our hands, and Allied troops are on the edge of Oostburg.

South of Roosendaal, further gains brought us to the neighborhood of Pindorp.

Some progress has also been made north and northeast of Woensdrecht.

Our troops are fighting in the outskirts of Hertogenbosch, and have cut the main road and railway both north and a few miles south of the town.

In the direction of Libau, our troops beat back repeated strong infantry and tank counter-attacks of the enemy, and inflicted on him heavy losses in men and material.

In East Prussia, our troops continued their offensive and, surmounting resistance and counter-attacks of the enemy, in stiff fighting captured a line of powerfully-fortified strongpoints of the Germans, including Balden, Peteraichen, Bistishen, Grosten, Parashkenen, Lavishkenen, Pabalen, Gross-Strukenen, Matsukenen, Aldehuspen, Gross-Krakishken, Shulten, and Klaikumeshnen.

Northwest of Praga, suburb of Warsaw, our troops, jointly with units of the Polish 1st Army, fought engagements of local importance, in the course of which they occupied the populated localities of Layski, Debishevo, Vingerski-Ponti, Rembelshizna, Rushkolye, Poshuke, Dombrushka, Pludy, Genrikho, Tarkomin, and Zheran.

On the territory of Czecho-Slovakia, northeast and southeast of Mukacevo, our troops, surmounting resistance and engineering obstacles of the enemy, occupied in fighting over 50 populated localities, including Izvor, Olenivo, Solochin, Patiki (14 kilometers northeast of Mukacevo), Duseno, Dobge, Veliki-Rakovets, and Rotoso, and the railway stations of Nelipino, Dobge, and Zatne.

During the clash, the enemy suffered several losses in killed and wounded, including a high-ranking German officer. The Patriots lost only four killed and one prisoner.

This prisoner, whose name is Gaetano Castiglione, was hanged in the Collio Square, after barbarous torture.

The executioner, before tightening the string around his neck, asked him if he still felt himself a Patriot. Castiglione answered: «Always, for my Fatherland. Long live Italy!» (UNN)

NEWS FROM ENEMY SOURCES

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 25 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

At the Schelde Estuary, north of Antwerp and in the Hertogenbosch sector, the grim fighting increased in fury.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Formations of the Canadian 1st and British 2nd Armies, attacking with strong bomber support, made small gains after fierce fighting. They suffered heavy losses. The planned break-through was frustrated.

On the whole front from central Holland to the Lothringian frontiers, there was only local fighting.

In the upper reaches of the Mortagne and in the western Vosges, our troops offer a stubborn resistance to enemy formations which penetrated our main lines at some points.

In the Gironde Estuary, the fortress garrisons made further successful sorties into the forefield of their positions.

London continues to be harassed by « V-1 ».

Italy:

Between Vergato and the region north of Loiano, in the Etruscan Apennines, our troops consolidated their positions. Northeast of the town, the Americans made unsuccessful attempts, with ground and air forces, at broadening a local penetration. The enemy shock troops were wiped out.

No major operations are reported from the Adriatic sector.

Eastern Front:

From the Balkans, it is learned, that a small group of Partisans and Bulgarians was wiped out at the northeastern frontiers of Albania.

In the area of the western Morawa, fighting is in progress.

Between the Danube and the Tisa, Hungarian attacks were successful.

On the lower reaches of the Tisa and in the Szolnok sector, grim fighting is in full swing.

In the Debrecen sector, our tank units, effectively supported by the Air Force, wiped out the bulk of the Soviet 30th Cavalry Division and the 3rd Tank Brigade, which had been cut off from the rear.

South of Grosskarol, in the Szamos area, as well as in the eastern Beskides, several enemy thrusts and attacks failed.

Between Warsaw and the Bug, our troops repulsed attacking Bolshevik forces and inflicted serious losses on the enemy.

On the Narew, we are engaged in grim fighting against enemy divisions which launched an attack from their bridgehead. Their counter-attacks, which were preceded by a barrage and supported by bombers and tank forces, were halted in fierce forest-fighting. At several points, our tank troops drove back the enemy in counter-attacks. Many Soviet tanks were destroyed.

At Goldap and southeast of Gumbinnen, counter-attacks of our tank forces made gains eastward. In the other sectors of this theater of war, the enemy attacked at several points with strong forces. Some penetrations were sealed off.

In Kurland, German attacks resulted in rectifications of the front.

In the Sworbe Peninsula, the German positions were held in the face of extremely grim enemy attacks. Forces of the Navy and Air Force effectively supported the ground troops.

Yesterday, over East Prussia, the Soviets lost 46 bombers in grim dogfights, and by the action of anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force.

In northern Finland and on the Arctic Front, at Kirkenes, our grenadiers and mountain troops repulsed enemy reconnaissance thrusts.

Escort vessels of German convoys and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force brought down eight enemy planes over the Norwegian coastal area.

Air:

Hertogenbosch: The strategic Dutch town of Hertogenbosch, of which the BBC broadcast of 2030 tonight said: « German resistance in the Dutch town of Hertogenbosch has apparently ended, » receives the following treatment from Transocean tonight: « The British succeeded in working themselves ahead with stronger tank forces between Hertogenbosch and the Meuse. Then they turned south, and finally entered the northern part, where grim house-to-house fighting is raging at present. »

Eastern Front: The phrase, «the battle for East Prussia,» now occurs in German descriptions of this front. Transocean admits that « Russian formations have broken through, » but adds that they are « being pushed back eastward » by newly-arrived German « reserves. » Aside from these « reserves, » the allegedly high losses of the Soviets is almost the only consoling note which the correspondent von Olberg has to offer on this front: « The major assault against the eastern border of East Prussia between Tilsit and Augustow is still raging in full fury, but the losses of the attackers are extremely high, and the resistance of German divisions is constantly strengthened by fresh forces. »

Kirkenes "Evacuated": A flash from DNB apparently admits the Soviet capture of the Norwegian town of Kirkenes: "The town and harbor of Kirkenes on the Arctic coast have been evacuated by German troops after the destruction of all military installations. » (This statement fails to mention the fact that the "evacuated" town is located inside Norway.)

Bolstering Vienna: German propaganda seems to be engaged in bolstering the Nazi loyalties of Vienna, to whose anti-Nazi underground the Allied news sources are currently giving prominence. As if in rebuttal of such Allied reports about the Viennese political situation, the Gauleiter of Austria, Baldur von Schirach, has addressed the Viennese Volkssturm, saying (according to the German Overseas Radio): "Of the Viennese and their behavior in present conditions, I can only say: 'I believe in the Viennese!' »

FASCIST PROPAGANDA TRENDS

Fall of Cesena: The Allied capture of Cesena, and other Allied successes in the Adriatic sector are admitted, but the Fascist radio minimises the over-all significance of these victories by inferring that the Allies have come just so far, and will go no farther. « Despite many months of fighting for the control of the Po Valley, it cannot yet be stated that the Anglo-Americans have achieved a real operational success. » It is predicted that strong German resistance forces at the mounth of the Savio River on the Adriatic will halt the Allied advance.

Bologna: Stating that the Allied offensive continues south of Bologna, the Fascist radio adds that « savage engagements took place around Monte Salvaro. »

American Economic Policy in Italy: It is alleged that the official United States economic policy for Italy involves Italy's abandonment of the policy of self-sufficiency prior to any influx of American capital. Concurrently, the warning signal is again given about coming expropriation of large estates in Italy, an allegation this time based on a recent speech made by the Bonomi Government's Minister of Labor.

Dissatisfaction in Invaded Italy: An additional element of the unrest in Sicily is suggested in today's assertion that there has been wholesale recalcitrance in the matter of turning over wheat to the people's granaries. Allied reprisals are said to take the form of huge fines and frequent confiscations.

The Fascist interpretation of the background of workers' demonstrations in « invaded » Italy is that employers have misinterpreted to their own advantage the Bonomi law which grants allowances to workers in addition to their salaries. While democratic procedure investigates, it is stated, « the workers wait and suffer ».

British Implication in Sicilian Disturbances: The accusing finger today shifts from America to England, in the

Our anti-aircraft batteries brought down 16 of these planes, which flew at a low level.

In the early evening hours, British planes dropped bombs on Hanover. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN PROPAGANDA TRENDS

Western Front: For the present, the German position on the western front, though treated with seriousness, appears to be presented by the German Radio as less fluid and less endangered than on the eastern front, where a number of Soviet gains are being conceded.

Sertorius cites Holland, rather than the « calm » Aachen area, as the present focal point in the west: « The fighting in Holland is becoming ever more intensive... The centre of gravity of Eisenhower's expected large-scale offensive will be on the Allied left wing. »

While democratic procedure investigates, it is stated, « the workers wait and suffer ».

British Implication in Sicilian Disturbances: The accusing finger today shifts from America to England, in the charge of interference in Sicily. Stating that British intervention resulted in the immediate release of the Separatists involved in the riots, the accusation is also made that the whole movement was secretly supported by British occupation authorities. The Communists, however, are reputedly twisting the lion's tail by exploiting the separatist movement.

Vatican Schemes for Temporal Power: From Rolandi Ricci's article on Vatican policy in the Corriere della Sera, several deductions are made, one of the most ominous being that the Vatican's hostile attitude towards Fascism and Nazism is closely linked to its growing hunger for a recapture of its former temporal power. The Vatican's more-or-less indirect indulgence of Partisan warfare and a general « plague » of revolt in Italy is severely criticised. Another article on the Vatican mentions its concern over losing, through depreciation of the lira, a great part of the money paid it by the Fascist state at the time of the Laterun Pact. The Vatican is then ironically warned that it should worry more about the increase of atheism in Italy.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE POLISH FORTRESS OF AUGUSTOW ENTER HUSZT AND SATU MARE IN HUNGARY

MOSCOW, October 24 — Russian armies fighting to extend the 90-mile gap in the German lines in East Prussia have captured a number of strongly fortified points. Simultaneously, Russian forces advancing from the southeast cut their way through the Augustow Forest and captured the great Polish fortress of Augustow, guarding the immediate approaches to East Prussia.

In Hungary, Red Army units have entered Huszt and Satu Mare.

Armies under Russia's youngest army general, 36-year-old General Chernyakovsky, are now about 60 miles from Königsberg, the East Prussian capital. Chernyakovsky is pouring more and more troops into the Insterburg Gap, while General Bagramyan masses his 1st Baltic Army on [illegible] the German left flank.

In Hungary, General Petrov's forces striking down through Czecho-Slovakia have entered the large railway junction of Huszt, 45 miles southeast of Mucacevo, while troops fighting their way up from northern Transylvania have broken into Satu Mare, and have engaged the enemy in street battles.

These rapid advances have increased the threat to the German and Hungarian troops.

Inside the Danube bend south of Budapest, both Soviet and Rumanian communiques report successful operations. Between the Danube and the Tisza, northwest of Szeged, the railway junctions of Kiskunhals, Janushalma, and Yamkocz were captured. Moscow reports place Red Army spearheads in southeast Hungary within 60 miles of Budapest.

For the third day running, the Red Army took a heavy toll of German tanks, knocking out 131 on all sectors of the front yesterday. Forty-seven planes were shot down.

NEW U.S. LANDING IN PHILIPPINES REPORTED

MACARTHUR'S HQ, LEYTE, October 24 — A new landing — on the island of Samar, whose northern tip is 15 miles south of the island of Luzon on which Manila is situated — was reported in a dispatch tonight by a correspondent of The Melbourne Herald.

The report said that American tanks were ferried across the narrow strait separating Leyte from Samar.

American Forces, it was said, are receiving air support both from carriers and from Southwest Pacific bases.

Lieut Gen. Walter Krueger, commander of the U. S. 6th Army, said today: « Everything has gone according to plan, and a major threat from Japanese ground action on Leyte is growing more remote daily. »

A late dispatch tonight reported that more than 3,000 Japanese had been killed in the fighting on Leyte, as American liberating forces deepened the beachhead to seven miles on a front of nearly 25 miles. Eleven towns and three adjacent islands have been captured.

U. S. 7th Division troops, led by Sherman tanks, today took the San Pablo airfield, seven miles west and slightly north of the liberated coastal city of Dulag. The tanks led the troops, who marched 12 circuitous and perilous miles to reach the airfield.

The advance to San Pablo is aimed toward Burauen, communication junction for the north-south highway travers-

Soviet long-range planes last night bombed Insterburg, vital rail center of East Prussia, ahead of the advancing armies. Soviet artillery on the north bank of the Niemen is engaged in a duel with German guns on the south bank.

Moscow dispatches say the hard crust of the German frontier fortifications has been decisively broken. The breakthrough was made just north of the Masurian Lake country, the classic battleground where Hindenburg and Ludendorf won the Battle of Tannenberg in 1914.

500 Guns to the Mile

The assault was preceded by 36 hours of intensive Soviet bombing and of shelling by guns mounted 500 to the mile. The bombardment shattered nine-foot-thick concrete pillboxes, three-story Maginot-type forts, minefields, and electrified obstacles. The Russians killed 4,000 Germans in only one day's fighting, and knocked out 111 tanks.

The Germans are fighting desperately to defend their home soil. Picked SS troops with the single order «Die where you stand» have been thrown into the battle. No civilians are encountered by the Red Army as they advance, but thousands of cattle wander on the roads, abandoned by their owners. Abandoned meals are found in cottages. Half-starved Russia «slaves» are emerging from wrecked German homes crammed with Russian loot.

PACIFIC OPERATIONS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

WORCESTER, MASSACHUSETTS, October 24 — The war in the Pacific is ahead of schedule, and has reached a point where the Allies can attack Japan at places of their own choosing, Vice Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of U.S. naval personnel, declared here today. (OWI)

NEW NAVY PLANE DOWNS JAPS AT 31-1 RATIO

WASHINGTON, October 24 — It was revealed here tonight that the United States Navy has introduced a new-type of Hellcat fighter plane into action in the Pacific theater. The new plane has been shooting down Japanese planes at a 31-1 ratio, and is making a great contribution to the sweeping advances against the Japanese Empire. (BBC)

JAP NAVAL FORCES SIGHTED, U. S. PLANES ATTACK

PEARL HARBOR, October 24 — Japanese naval forces, including battleships and cruisers, were sighted moving into the central Philippines fighting area yesterday, and were attacked by carrier-based aircraft of the U. S. 3rd Fleet, Pacific Fleet Headquarters announced today.

The enemy vessels were moving eastward in the Sibuyan and Sulu Seas, the announcement added. The Sibuyan Sea is north of Panay Island and south of Luzon Island. The Sulu Sea is west of Mindanao and south of Panay Island. (OWI)

The offensive is aimed at bottling Japanese forces in the broad Leyte Valley.

General MacArthur reported today that American forces are pursuing Japanese troops three miles north of Tacloban, capital of Leyte, and among those towns mentioned in the communique as liberated.

A strong Japanese counter-attack north of Palo was beaten off in bloody fighting. An American press service reported troops of General Krueger's 6th Army, which is driving the Japanese from their prepared positions beyond Palo, are battling to seize the two ends of the Leyte Valley Highway, and deprive the Japanese of all effective road communications into the zone where the Americans landed.

A late Reuter dispatch tonight said that the Japanese near Palo are still resisting stubbornly, but their positions are gradually being reduced. Artillery near the beachhead is inflicting heavy casualties, piles of dead on the side of the Palo-Tacloban Highway indicating the accuracy of American fire. American dive-bombers are also participating in the attack.

American forces in the Dulag region are by-passing and engulfing enemy positions of «great natural strength» northeast of that town.

Twenty-seven tons of bombs were cascaded on Cagayan, on Mindanao Island, by American heavy bombers, destroying buildings, starting fires, and causing explosions. Night patrol planes attacked an airdrome on Davao, destroying buildings and starting fires.

William Dickinson, representing the combined American press here, said in a delayed dispatch received tonight that 4.000 armed and organized Patriots, and an American group, aided in the preparations for the landing of U. S. forces on Leyte.

He said that the Patriot Army of the Philippines, led by by a Filipino colonel, collected detailed information as to Japanese strength and dispositions before the landings, which they transmitted through secret channels to American headquarters.

General MacArthur said tonight that the organized Patriot Army will join the American Army now on Leyte.

BRITISH COLUMNS DRIVE ON HERTOGENBOSCH

SHAEF, October 24 — Three British columns of infantry and armor pushed on tonight to the cathedral city of Hertogenbosch, a main German communications hub in the area northeast of the port city of Antwerp. Reports early this evening said that advance patrols of General Sir Miles Dempsey's 2nd Army had entered the city and reached the banks of the canal running throught its center.

Another column was poised as a threat to the city when they advanced to within 4.000 yards of it.

A third column, composed of Scottish troops, wheeled around from the south and cut the road leading to Eindhoven, according to late front-line dispatches. Disclosure of this thrust by crack Scottish regiments was made by a spokesman at General Dwight Eisenhower's headquarters soon after the penetration of the city was revealed here.

An Associated Press report said that the northernmost British unit had liberated Rosenmalen, a little over two miles northeast of the city, and smashed through the village of Hintham, and worked onto the solid ground between Orten and an artificial lake on the outskirts of Hertogenbosch.

The drive for Hertogenbosch also offered a new threat to the sister communications center of Tilburg. British troops fighting in this area are within five miles of the main road firm astride the only overland supply route that had been left to the Germans on Walcheren, the South Beveland Islands.

The Associated Press said that strong Allied artillery support was given the Canadian forces as they advanced across the neck of Beveland Peninsula west of Woensdrecht, and cleared the area right to the banks of the east Schelde.

In the slowly shrinking Schelde pocket, bitter fighting was reported. The Canadians are digging the Germans out of a maze of underground fortifications and passages in the area of Fort Frederik Hendrik, just west of Breskens, which is still firmly held by Canadian troops.

Southwest of Breskens, Allied forces continued their thrust through water-logged terrain and reached points within a mile of Groede, located almost at the western tip of the Schelde pocket.

Activity on the American 1st Army front yesterday was limited to mopping up in the Würselen area northeast of Aachen.

To the south, troops of the U.S. 3rd Army fought their way into the village of Bezange la Petite, 19 miles east of Nancy, but were forced to withdraw in the face of heavy fire from dug-in German tanks. Other 3rd Army units now control two-thirds of the Moncourt Forest. The town of Moncourt has not yet been penetrated.

On the 6th Army Group front commanded by Lieut. Gen. Jacob Devers, the tempo of battle is rising. German counter-attacks supported by tanks have been beaten off in the Forêt Parroy sector east of Nancy. Flooded areas are hampering the French armored units in their drive in the Vosges passes, and their tanks are unable to leave the valley floor.

A.A.I. HELD TO MINOR GAINS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 24 — Renewed bad weather, which blunted the striking power of the Allied air and ground forces, yesterday again held the Allied Armies in Italy to minor gains, it was announced here today.

Although 8th Army forces pushed along the coast road north of Cervia for 1.000 yards against light enemy rearguards, elsewhere along the Adriatic front heavy rains made meadow-lands almost impassable, and savage enemy resistance, backed by heavy artillery barrages, still hemmed the two small Canadian and British bridgeheads across the main German defense line of the Savio River.

On the 5th Army front, enemy forces still clung fanatically to the three-to-four mile long mountain escarpment guarding the entry into the Savena River Valley, where for a week they have fought back almost continuous American assaults, and in a period of 11 days have yielded only two scant miles of the Florence-Bologna Highway leading up to their mountain wall defenses. Although American forces have driven forward over 25 miles since the beginning of their hard hitting offensive some 43 days ago, yesterday they were still 8½ miles from Bologna, and were still faced with a bitter, all-out enemy defense.

Monte Belmonte Slows Advance

Monte Belmonte, key bastion in the enemy's rocky fortress guarding the Bologna approaches, continued yesterday to be the center of most bitter fighting. Although American troops battled their way into the southern slopes of this precipitous mountain mass a week ago, subsequent official reports have made no mention of fighting on this sector, and today's dispatches said that extensive minefields, demolitions, and barbed-wire entanglements were impeding the American advance.

The drive for Hertogenbosch also offered a new threat to the sister communications center of Tilburg. British troops fighting in this area are within five miles of the main road leading from Tilburg through Hertogenbosch, 15 miles to the northeast.

12-Mile Nazi Line Crumbling

A staff officer at General Dempsey's headquarters reported late tonight that the whole of the 12-mile German line between Hertogenbosch and Best was crumbling. The Germans are retreating fast. Many towns and villages have fallen. They include Best and Oirschot, 10 miles east of Tilburg; Liempde, two miles southeast of Boxtel; Gemonde, two miles northeast of Boxtel; and Halder, situated on the River Dommel.

With the ring of steel poised around Hertogenbosch, long regarded as impregnable, staff officers and front-line correspondents expressed doubt that the Nazis had mustered sufficient strength to hold off the tremendous forces of infantry and armor that the Allies had massed for their assault against the city. It was noted also that there was a marked lack of German armor and heavy artillery in this area.

Fifty miles to the west, Canadian troops cut the causeway to the Schelde Estuary islands, where enemy cannon block the way to the great Belgian port of Antwerp. These forces have fought their way to within three to five miles of the strongholds of Roosendaal and Bergen op Zoom.

German artillery at Flushing, on the Island of Walcheren, is pounding the Canadians, whose positions remain

Although American forces have driven forward over 25 miles since the beginning of their hard hitting offensive some 43 days ago, yesterday they were still 8½ miles from Bologna, and were still faced with a bitter, all-out enemy defense.

Monte Belmonte Slows Advance

Monte Belmonte, key bastion in the enemy's rocky fortress guarding the Bologna approaches, continued yesterday to be the center of most bitter fighting. Although American troops battled their way into the southern slopes of this precipitous mountain mass a week ago, subsequent official reports have made no mention of fighting on this sector, and today's dispatches said that extensive minefields, demolitions, and barbed-wire entanglements were impeding the American advance.

On the right flank of the American front pressing northward along the Bologna-Po Valley approaches, only limited gains were reported yesterday, despite bitter fighting. American infantrymen yesterday occupied the small settlement of Frassineto, 5½ miles from Castel San Pietro, and captured Monte Caldesaro, one-half mile northwest of Monte Grande, and another hill a mile northwest.

The advance enlarged slightly the wedge driven into the Sillaro River Valley as a result of a three-day full-scale air and land attack which began last Thursday.

To the southwest of the 15-mile wide American front south of Bologna, South African troops yesterday pushed up onto the slopes of Monte Salvaro, three miles northeast of Vergato, German strongpoint on the Pistoia-Bologna Road.

British and Indian elements to the southeast of the American forces also made limited progress along the Santerno, Camone, and Montone river valleys leading into the Plain of the Po from Imola southeast to Forli. Enemy forces, holding a deep salient between the two-pronged Allied offensive are being slowly pressed back in this area.

On the Ligurian coastal sector of the 5th Army's front, American Negro troops of the 92nd Division were reported to be engaged in a battle for Monte Strettola, a height dominating Highway 1 some 3½ miles southeast of the town of Massa.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

On the low ground of the Adriatic coast crossed by innumerable watercourses, 8th Army forces were reported to be «squaring up» to the Savio River defenses held by strong enemy forces. Allied troops had cleared the village of Pisignano, 20 miles northwest of Rimini, and were facing the two enemy strongpoints of Mensa and Castiglione on the west banks of this principal Romagno stream.

British and Canadian troops now hold two bridgeheads across the Savio, one at Cesena, and the other two miles to the north.

Enemy forces yesterday counter-attacked with tank and infantry formations in an effort to prevent the enlarging and strengthening of Canadian forces holding the northernmost of these two footholds, while extremely heavy shelling made the task of supplying British troops west of Cesena so difficult that tanks had to be employed to ferry across provisions and stores for themselves and for infantry forces on the west bank.

Farther inland, and at the 8th Army edge of the sagging enemy salient in the area south of Imola, Faenza, and Forli, Indian troops captured Monte Cavallo, the highest point in the hill masses between the Ronco and the Savio river valleys, and within 11 miles of Forli. (PRO)

TITO BLOCKS GERMAN ESCAPE ROUTES

LONDON, October 24 — German troops in central Yugoslavia, attempting to break through to the west, were checked in heavy fighting with Yugoslav units, Marshal Tito's communique reported today.

One German column retreating from Albania was routed by Yugoslav and Albanian troops, the communique said, and 150 Nazis were killed. In central Bosnia, a key German strongpoint protecting important communications was captured after a two-day battle.

FINNS CAPTURE SWEDISH FRONTIER TOWN

HELSINKI, October 24 — Finnish forces have liberated Kolari, on the Swedish frontier, after heavy fighting, and inflicted considerable losses on the Germans, a Finnish communique said today.

The Germans offered tenacious resistance, backed by artillery and armored support.

Kolari is 110 miles north of Tornia on the Gulf of Bothnia.

The communique added that the advance continues on other sectors. (OWI)

U.S.A.A.F. RANGES WIDE IN PACIFIC
JAPS REPORT RAID ON PARAMUSHIRO

MACARTHUR'S HQ, LEYTE, October 24 — In support of the American landings in the Philippines, American bombers ranged from the Solomons to Borneo today hitting Japanese supply lines, installations, airdromes, and oil storage depots, a communique from here announced.

According to a Japanese broadcast, American bombers today attacked Paramushiro and another island in the Kuriles, the northernmost of the Japanese home islands. There has been no confirmation of this attack from any Allied source.

Among the Philippine Islands, Mindanao and Davao were singled out as targets. Twenty-seven tons of bombs crashed down on buildings and enemy installations on Mindanao, starting many fires. On Davao, an airdrome was hit.

Reconnaissance units destroyed a 1,000-ton enemy freighter off the north coast of Borneo, while night patrol planes bombed Balikpapan. Enemy installations and an airdrome at Halmahera were hit by medium bombers.

In New Guinea, airdromes, defense positions, and troop concentrations at Vogelkop were hit by attack bombers and fighters with 50 tons. At Wewak, escorted heavy, medium, and attack bombers dropped 49 tons on enemy concentrations in support of ground troops. (OWI)

1,300 JAPS KILLED IN CHINA

KANDY, CEYLON, October 24 — Eleven miles of the Tiddim-Fort White road in Burma have been cleared by troops of the 5th Indian Division, who are now within two miles of Kennedy Peak, a Japanese strongpoint, a communique from the Southeast Asia Command said today.

In Arakan, eastern Burma, West African troops are now operating on both sides of the Kaladan River. The communique reported bombing of bridges on a branch line of the Mandalay-Rangoon railway Sunday, with a large oil fire started in an enemy position at Myingyen.

A communique from General Stilwell's headquarters in Chungking reported today that the Salween front and the Burma Road were bombed by units of the 14th AAF.

Stilwell also reported that 1,300 Japanese troops were killed in operations by the 14th AAF near Kweiping and targets on the Yellow River. All planes returned safely from these operations. (OWI - Reuter)

1,000 R.A.F. HEAVIES STRIKE ESSEN

LONDON, October 24 — The Ruhr city of Essen, home of the Krupp armament works and center of a vast railway network, got its heaviest attack of the war last night by more than 1,000 RAF heavy bombers.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Six previous attacks early this year and last year were believed to have destroyed two-thirds of the Krupp works, and last night's bombing was carried out to smash the repairs which had been made since the last attack, last April.

Large fires were burning in Essen after last night's attack, which was made against heavy anti-aircraft fire. The RAF bombers were forced to fly through a heavy snowstorm. Pathfinder planes circled the city and illuminated the target with flares before the arrival of the heavy bombers.

A dispatch from the U.S. 1st Army revealed today that four Rhineland cities — Cologne, Düsseldorf, Duisburg, and one not identified — have been mysteriously lighted up in the blackout period on four nights recently.

Allied pilots first observed the lights on October 11. In Cologne they stretched the whole length of the city, and were accompanied by unexplained flashes in the streets. They were on again on October 12 and 13, and then went off for several nights, returning about October 16.

RAF 2nd TAF headquarters reported tonight that repairs by German Army engineers are failing to keep pace with railway destruction carried out by Allied aircraft. Rail-cutting and the destruction of rolling stock, combined with close support of the Army, have been the main tasks of TAF since its aircraft began operating in Belgium and Holland.

The enemy sent more flying bombs against southern England, including the London area, last night, the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security announced today. TWO DECREES ON AGRARIAN REFORM IN ITALY

ROME, October 24 — Designed as a measure to ease the lot of landless peasants, a decree establishing a new relationship between landowners and tenants has been approved by the Italian Council of Ministers, and will be published shortly in the Gazzetta Ufficiale, it was announced here today.

Henceforth, the products of the land will be divided in the ratio of two-fifths for the landowner and three-fifths for the farm worker, with all expenses, including outside labor, split evenly between the two parties. In localities where soil productivity is above average, partition of crops will be decided by special regional commissions, and, in any case, will not go beyond the 50-50 basis in favor of the landowner. Appeal against decisions of these regional commissions may be made by either party to a national central committee having power to hand down final decisions.

Another decree in course of publication governs the distribution of lands owned by municipalities, agrarian universities, and other public bodies, to landless farmers banded together in cooperatives or other collective groups. The measure is a temporary one, and will be in force for a year after the signing of the peace.

Last week, Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi issued a circular to all liberated Italy prefects, urging their cooperation in the enforcement of this decree, which, he pointed out, is a measure of urgent necessity for at least a partial solution of the Italian food, unemployment, and land problems. (UNN)

In localities where soil productivity is above average, partition of crops will be decided by special regional commissions, and, in any case, will not go beyond the 50-50 basis in favor of the landowner. Appeal against decisions of these regional commissions may be made by either party to a national central committee having power to hand down final decisions.

Another decree in course of publication governs the distribution of lands owned by municipalities, agrarian universities, and other public bodies, to landless farmers banded together in cooperatives or other collective groups. The measure is a temporary one, and will be in force for a year after the signing of the peace.

Last week, Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi issued a circular to all liberated Italy prefects, urging their cooperation in the enforcement of this decree, which, he pointed out, is a measure of urgent necessity for at least a partial solution of the Italian food, unemployment, and land problems. (UNN)

28 SENATORS OUSTED

ROME, October 24 — Twenty-eight Fascist Senators were today removed from office by decision of the Italian High Court of Justice, the Under Secretariat for Press and Information announced today.

Among the senators ousted are Luigi Aldovrandi, former Ambassador to Berlin; Count Volpi di Misurata and Antonio Mosconi, former Finance Ministers; Luigi Federzoni, former President of the Senate; Carlo Schanzer, ex-Governor of the Bank of Italy; Vittorio Cini, Communications Minister; Giacomo Suardo, last Fascist President of the Senate; Emilio Bodrero; and Giuseppe Bevione.

Proceedings against seven other Senators were dropped. (UNN)

540,000 ITALIANS STILL IN GERMANY

ROME, October 24 — An official Italian Government announcement, issued here today said that 540,000 Italians, including forced labor drafts and civilians, are still in Germany.

In announcing the return of 1,500 prisoners of war to Italy during the past few days, the Government revealed also that 640,000 men are still held as prisoners of the Allies. The United States is holding 110,000; the British, 350,000; and the Russians 70,000. An estimated 110,000 are either in French prisoner camps, or are unaccounted for. (UNN)

FLORENTINES FORM SELF-HELP COMMITTEE

FLORENCE, October 24 — Florentine citizens have formed the AMG Assistance Committee, which is now distributing food and medicines, provided by the Allies, to the city's sick and needy. Already about 500 persons a day are being helped.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

Operating as an adjunct of the AMG's Public Health office in Florence, the citizen committee, a volunteer organization, has been given complete control of investigating recipients and distributing the supplies given by the Allies.

The Committee was launched by prominent women of Florence, who enlisted the aid of citizens in every walk of life. Headed by Marchesa Clarissa Torrigiani, the group is fulfilling its objective of distributing food and medicines to the sick and indigent in Florence, regardless of social, religious, or political beliefs.

The city has been divided into four zones, one of which is the headquarters zone with offices in the Piazza San Giovanni. Each zone is headed by a woman committee-member, through whom all requests for assistance pass. A personal visit is made to the home of every applicant by a committee member, who makes her report immediately, so that assistance can be given without delay. If the applicant or any member of the family is found in need of medical attention, one of the volunteer doctors attached to the committee responds at once.

Distribution of food is made every two weeks by the zone system, the recipient calling for the food and transporting it to his home. Recipients are divided into eight categories, ranging from persons requiring only food to families needing special food for sick persons and nursing babies.

The committee has received the following food from AMG to carry out its work (Figures given are kilograms): flour, 27,000; pasta, 2,000; soup, 1,584; dehydrated vegetables, 7,000; pork sausage 7,000 tins; milk, 672 tins; oil, 1,800; sugar, 1,200; salt, 700; soap, 405. (UNN)

U.S. TAKES PART IN ITALY'S REHABILITATION

NEW YORK, October 24 — «It would be impossible to exaggerate the amount of work and assistance that will be necessary to make up for the havoc of war and what the Germans have despoiled, robbed, and destroyed in Italy,» said the editorial in Sunday's Il Progresso, an Italian-language American newspaper.

The editorial pointed out that all Americans who have recently returned from liberated Italy are agreed on two things: the grave economic hardships besetting the Italian people, and their intense faith in America's determination to help them survive and rehabilitate themselves.

President Roosevelt has taken a number of measures to help Italy help herself. The Treasury Department has eased the restrictions under the Trading with the Enemy Act, and the Italian Government has been enabled to establish a dollar-fund in The United States with which to buy supplies to supplement American aid. This Italian Government credit for relief has already passed the hundred-million dollar mark.

«Though our Government needs every possible ton of shipping for transporting troops and equipment, ships laden with scores of thousands of tons of food, medicines, clothing, and machinery are now bound for liberated Italy,» the paper continued. «President Roosevelt has arranged for the early arrival of a delegation of supply officers from Italy to insure a regular and adequate flow of necessary materials to the Italian People.»

The editorial pointed out in conclusion that the President had instructed the Postmaster General to hasten facilities for individual Italo-Americans' mailing food packages directly to their relatives and friends in Italy. Such measures as these have led Pope Pius to thank The United States, and to praise the «able and enlightened leadership» of America's efforts to help the Italian people. (OWI)

«MANCHESTER GUARDIAN» ON ROOSEVELT SPEECH

MANCHESTER, October 24 — President Roosevelt's statement that the «German people are not going be enslaved, because the United Nations do not traffic in slavery» is the best answer to the Goebbels' lie that Allied victory would mean extinction of the German people, The Manchester Guardian said in commenting on the President's speech last Saturday night.

Pointing out that German propaganda has been hammering away at the theme of enslavement for the past several weeks, the paper said: «The Germans have many reasons for believing it. Their own treatment of the foreign workers and prisoners of war has given them an object-lesson in practical enslavement which they must have constantly before their minds... But there is also evidence that the belief that this fate awaits them is not easy to instill, especially among the older population.

«The tradition of British and American decency and justice is not extinct... We must continue to threaten the severest punishments, reassert our outlawry of the Nazis and their system of government, and demand the unconditional surrender of armed Germany. But we shall be politically wise if, at the same time, we hold out to the German people, as a people, the promise of survival.» (OWI)

BELGIAN CABINET REJECTS MEMORANDUM

BRUSSELS, October 24 — The Belgian Prime Minister, Hubert Pierlot, announced here today that the Belgian Cabinet had rejected the Communists' memorandum accusing his administration of failure to fulfill its promises.

Pierlot told members of his Cabinet that he was not prepared to deal in public with these accusations. (Reuter)

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT CRITICIZED

BRUSSELS, October 24 — With hundreds of thousands of American and British troops fighting the Germans on Belgian soil, the Belgian people «must accept sacrifices, however great the burden,» Belgian Foreign Minister Spaeht said today in answering charges of inefficient handling of the food situation.

According to BBC, there is a rift between the Pierlot Government and Belgian Left-Wing parties because of alleged failing of the Government in the distribution of food.

The miners' organization — one of the strongest workers' groups in the country — has urged that food distribution be nationalized, while criticism by the Socialist, Communist, and other Left-Wing groups mounts. FRANCE WILL HELP WIN WAR, BIDAULT SAYS

PARIS, October 24 — «Our chief efforts will be directed to helping win the war, in which we are prepared to make the maximum effort within our power,» George Bidault, French Foreign Minister, said yesterday after The United States, Great Britain, Russia, and Canada had presented letters of recognition of the De Gaulle Administration.

Bidault told the ambassadors of the four Allied nations involved, «we will contribute as many men as we have rifles available.»

«France today enters the circle of great nations with head raised high,» he asserted. He urged that France have an equal place with other powers in all future negotiations regarding Germany and world affairs.

The brief ceremony of recognition at the Quai D'Orsay had Alexander Bogomolov, Soviet Ambassador, as senior representative of the group, speaking for the four diplomats. The others were Jefferson Caffrey, American Ambassador;

SURVEY SHOWS MILLION FRENCH HOMELESS

PARIS, October 24 — More than one million French civilians have been left homeless, the homes of nearly four million others have been damaged as the result of the war, and figures are not yet complete. Structural damage has been estimated at 100 million dollars, according to a press dispatch yesterday, quoting an «authoritative survey.»

The dispatch said that such towns as Caen, Falaise, Brest, St. Lô, Le Havre, Dunkirk and Calais lie in ruins, and that, except for Bordeaux, installations in nearly every port have been destroyed by the Germans. It added that American engineers are rebuilding Cherbourg for war use, but that complete reconstruction will take years of post-war work. (OWI)

FRENCH JOURNALIST APPEALS DEATH SENTENCE

PARIS, October 24 — Georges Suarez, widely-known journalist who was convicted yesterday for collaborating with German occupation forces, has appealed his death sentence to the Court of Cassation. If this fails he can still appeal to General Charles De Gaulle.

Suarez was convicted on five counts yesterday at the opening of the French purge trials. He was found guilty of (1) making use of his editorial position to preach total collaboration with Germany; (2) continually inveighing against the Allies, especially Britain; (3) urging ruthless suppression of the Partisans; (4) abusing General De Gaulle as an adventurer; and (5) declaring the execution of hostages to be legal.

For the first time in French history, four women were among the 20 jurors.

Boris Theodossienko, a former colonel in General Wrangel's army, was sentenced today to seven years' solitary confinement for collaboration with the Germans. He supplied secret reports to the head of the SS in France, and denounced Russian prisoners of war.

Louis Renault, French automobile manufacturer, who was arrested October 16 on charges of collaboration with the Germans, died today of a heart ailment, the British United Press reported. He was 67 years old.

The French pilot, Michel Detroyat, has been arrested under a warrant signed by the French Air Minister, Charles Tillon, Reuter reported today. Detroyat was pilot to Marshal Pétain and Pierre Laval.

The sale of Pierre Laval's property in the vicinity of Clermont Ferand began yesterday, Radio Paris said today. The first day's sale realized 1,100,000 francs. (OWI-Reuter)

NEW NAZI ATROCITIES IN HOLLAND UNCOVERED

BRUSSELS, October 24 — Fresh evidence of new German atrocities committed during their four-year occupation rule of France and The Netherlands is being uncovered daily as the Allied front lines advance, a Reuter correspondent reported from here in a special dispatch today.

Today, Allied authorities, in close coöperation with Belgian, Dutch, and French officials, are bringing to light overwhelming proof of the systematic torture and other barbarous crimes committed against the citizenry of these countries.

The correspondent reported a special tour of Fort Breendonck, which is situated 14 miles north of this city. This building is being preserved by the Belgian government as a permanent chamber of horrors.

Belgian civilians questioned during the investigation into the German torture chamber revealed that an average of 60 coffins a week were taken out of the fort to German incinerators.

Suspects brought to the fort endured a variety of torture. In one room, prisoners were made to stand rigidly at attention under blazing lights a few inches away from a whitewashed wall. If they weakened or faltered and touched the wall, the tell-tale whitewash mark immediately earned them a severe whipping.

Another form of punishment used in an attempt to make prisoners talk was to have them stand in the ice-cold water of the moat which surrounded the fort — in the dead of winter — until their resistance cracked.

Other forms of torture consisted of chaining people to the walls of a room, and then filling it to a point where the prisoner, by standing on his tiptoes, could barely keep his nostrils above water. Or, they were strapped to a table and scrubbed with an electrically-charged steel brush.

The doors of all torture rooms were always left open, so that the screams of the victims could be heard by other prisoners in their cells.

Belgian authorities are now compiling a complete and

MAQUIS IN ACTION THROUGHOUT SPAIN

LONDON, October 24 — Organized Spanish Maquis' action against the government of General Francisco Franco is spreading throughout Spain, the Associated Press reported Spanish Republican circles as saying here today.

A dispatch from Lerida, Spain, said Government troops were gathered for a battle with Maquis forces which had infiltrated into the Aran Valley in the eastern Pyrenees, west of Andorra. The Government forces were reported to have reestablished communications yesterday with Viella, the largest town in the valley. Regular Army units were also reported to have recaptured the southern mouth of the tunnel of the main road leading into the valley from Lerida, which is 90 miles west of Barcelona.

Republican sources in London stated that the revolt against Franco began some months ago on a small scale, and now involves several thousand men, and additional troops are being added daily.

Spanish Maquis operations were said to be concentrated in the three major provinces of Spain — Galicia, bordering on Portugal; Estramuadura, in the southwest; and Andalusia, in the extreme south.

DUTCH RAILWAY STRIKE CONTINUES

LONDON, October 24 — The railway strike in Holland called by the Netherlands Government-in-London on September 18, continues and the transport system for the Germans in Holland has been almost paralyzed, The London Herald said today.

In an early effort to persuade the 30,000 Dutch strikers to return to work, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, German commissioner for the occupied Netherlands, promised German coal for Holland. The offer had no effect. Hundreds of arrests have been made. Many of the strikers have been shot. In at least one case, the threat that their houses would be burned was carried out. But the strike continues, the newspaper said. (OWI)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, October 24 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

In spite of bad weather, further gains have been made by both 5th and 8th Armies.

South of Bologna, American troops of the 5th Army have further improved their positions by taking a number of sub-features north of Monte Grande in a day of heavy fighting. The most bitter fighting continues to be centered about the key feature of Monte Belmonte.

On their right flank, British and Indian troops of the 5th Army have captured several important features, while, on their left flank, South African troops of the 5th Army seized a hill, northeast of Vergato, which dominates the Prato-Bologna Road.

On the Adriatic coast, progress has been made by 8th Army troops in the marshy country north and west of Cervia.

North of Cesena, the bridgehead over the Savio has been enlarged, despite a number of counter-attacks by the enemy which cost him considerable casualties.

South of Cesena, Indian troops have captured Monte Cavallo, a key feature on the watershed west of the River Savio.

Farther south, British and Polish troops of the 8th Army have made local gains.

Land Forces Greece:

Lamia has been occupied by our forces, and patrols have already pushed north of the town.

Additional successes have been scored by our air forces against the Germans withdrawing in the north.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Strong forces of escorted heavy bombers yesterday bombed targets in Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, and northern Italy.

Despite poor weather north of the battle area, fighters and fighter-bombers inflicted considerable damage on enemy supply transport, destroying locomotives, rail cars, motor vehicles, and barges.

Other fighters and fighter-bombers attacked enemy shipping in the Adriatic.

From these operations, 14 of our heavy bombers and 14 other aircraft are missing. No enemy aircraft were destroyed.

MAAF flew approximately 1,450 sorties. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, October 24 — Today's communique:

In the area south of Breskens, Allied troops continued to make progress, in spite of water-logged country.

We are within one mile of the village of Groede.

North of Antwerp, gains were made west of the Roosendaal-Antwerp railway, and a fresh advance into Holland was made in this area.

SOVIET

MOSCOW, October 24 — Tonight's communique:

Land:

During today, in East Prussia, our troops surmounted resistance and counter-attacks of enemy infantry and tanks, and captured in stiff fighting a row of powerful enemy strong-points, including Jordzen, Dagutsen, Vertchen, Ibarten, Schilinghen, Petraukhen, Strouhen, Schilupenen, Trakehnen, Iyentunen, Zhurgukhen, Tevelln, Burnen, Regelan, and Bithkoven.

South and southeast of Suwalki, our troops surmounted Augustowo Woods, captured the town and large railway station of Augustow, and also occupied in fighting over 50 other populated localities, including Lipovo, Fedori, Sobolyevo, Gavrikhura, Uzepovo, Rudniki, Alshanka, Atony, Kopunitsa, Strekovizna, and Lipovets, and the railway stations of Podgube, Platichno, and Tshepki.

On Czecho-Slovakian territory, east and southeast of Mukacevo, our troops captured in fighting the town and large railway station of Chust, and also occupied the following large populated localities: Volove, Polana, Valava, Sinemir, Nizhnya-Kolochava, Dragovo, Nankovo, Iza, Soldrnitse, and Vitkovo.

In northern Transylvania, our troops occupied in fighting the populated localities of Kenerzana, Trud, Gertsemane, Gertsenike, Keleneshki, Livade, Moderazh, Maremoskimul, Genk, Sopreshti, Retsige, and the railway stations of Pauleshki, Aminas, Ludoveni, and Piyat.

Our troops broke into the town of Satu-Mare, and engaged the enemy in its streets.

Northwest of Szeged, our troops captured on Hungarian territory the town and railway junction of Kiskunhalas and the town and railway station of Jaroshalma (Jankovats).

On the other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 23, our troops damaged or destroyed on all fronts a total of 131 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 47 enemy planes were shot down.

Air:

On the night of October 23-24, our long-range Air Force carried out raids on the railway junctions of Darkenen, Gumbinen, and Insterburg, in East Prussia. As a result of bombardment, huge fires broke out, and enemy railway trains were left burning. The fires were followed by huge explosions. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 24 — A group of Patriots has operated effectively against the Germans in the Cesena area. When the Allies liberated the city, the Patriots turned in 80 prisoners taken in various localities and kept under lock and key in the cellars of homes. Elsewhere also, front-line Allied troops received valuable aid from Patriots during recent operations.

On October 9, the Biellese region Giustizia e Libertà Brigade carried out a daring attack against a heavily-escorted auto convoy of German officers. Fifteen Germans, including a senior officer, were killed.

A Ligurian Garibaldi Brigade has repulsed a German attack near Pigna, in Imperia Province.

In Val Scrivia, a Patriot brigade is continuing its attacks on enemy transports on the Genoa-Serravalle Road.

We are within one mile of the village of Groede.

North of Antwerp, gains were made west of the Roosendaal-Antwerp railway, and a fresh advance into Holland was made in this area.

West of Woensdrecht, we have again crossed the road and railway leading to Beveland and Walcheren.

Weather restricted air operations yesterday, but during the afternoon our heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked gun emplacements on Walcheren Island. Four of our bombers are missing.

Allied forces reached the edge of Hertogenbosch. South of the town, we have reached Saint Michielsgestel, and are within a mile of Boxtel. There have been no major changes along our front from Aachen to the Upper Moselle Valley.

In Maizières les Metz, house-to-house fighting continues, with the enemy holding approximately one-fourth of the town.

Northeast of Lunéville, our forces are consolidating the gains made in the push to the immediate vicinity of Moncourt. Several tank-supported counter-attacks were repulsed by our units in Lunéville sector.

Northeast of Brouvelieures, our forward elements forced the crossing of the Mortagne River at several points, and continued to push eastward.

Gains were made in the Vosges Mountains against stiff resistance.

Last night, heavy bombers in great strength attacked Essen. (Reuter)

mitse, and Vitkovo.

In northern Transylvania, our troops occupied in fighting the populated localities of Kenerzana, Trud, Gertsemane, Gertsenike, Keleneshki, Livade, Moderuzh, Maremoskinul, Genk, Sopreshti, Retsige, and the railway stations of Pauleshki, Amnas, Ludoveni, and Pirvat.

Our troops broke into the town of Satu-Mare, and engaged the enemy in its streets.

Northwest of Szeged, our troops captured on Hungarian territory the town and railway junction of Kiskunhalas and the town and railway station of Janoshalma (Jankovats).

On the other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During October 23, our troops damaged or destroyed on all fronts a total of 131 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 47 enemy planes were shot down.

Air:

On the night of October 23/24, our long-range Air Force carried out raids on the railway junctions of Darkonen, Gumbinen, and Insterburg, in East Prussia. As a result of bombardment, huge fires broke out, and enemy railway trains were left burning. The fires were followed by huge explosions. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, October 24 — A group of Patriots has operated effectively against the Germans in the Cesena area. When the Allies liberated the city, the Patriots turned in 80 prisoners taken in various localities and kept under lock and key in the cellars of homes. Elsewhere also, front-line Allied troops received valuable aid from Patriots during recent operations.

On October 9, the Biellese region Giustizia e Libertà Brigade carried out a daring attack against a heavily-escorted auto convoy of German officers. Fifteen Germans, including a senior officer, were killed.

A Ligurian Garibaldi Brigade has repulsed a German attack near Pigna, in Imperia Province.

In Val Scrivia, a Patriot brigade is continuing its attacks on enemy transports on the Genoa-Serravalle Road.

The Germans are concerned with the threat to their communication lines in the Aemilia and Veneto regions, where they are compelled to dispatch an increasingly greater number of troops to protect such lines against the action of Patriots.

The enemy is at present directing special efforts, in the Aemilia Region, on Route 63.

From October 5 to October 7, a Garibaldi Brigade killed 42 Germans and wounded many others near Scurano, in Parma Province.

On October 10, following a counter-attack, the brigade withdrew to the mountains. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, October 24 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

For some days, the focal point of the fighting in the west lay on the German right wing in Holland.

North of Antwerp and east of Hertogenbosch, our divisions frustrated grim and concentric English-Canadian attacks. The bulk of the enemy tanks which had penetrated our lines at some points were destroyed.

East of Luneville and in the Bruyères sector, German counter-attacks met grim enemy resistance.

In the forest land, there is grim figting on the part of both sides.

London continues to be harassed by « V-1 ».

Italy:

In central Italy, the enemy, under the shock of yesterday's losses, launched only minor and generally unsuccessful attacks. The fighting flared up in the evening hours. Enemy attempts at exerting pressure with strong forces proceeding from the Cesena bridgehead failed. On the Adriatic Sea, sub-chasers sank six British motor assault boats, set one on fire, and seriously damaged two others. Our ships suffered only small damage.

Eastern Front:

In northern Greece, our movements are being carried out according to plans.

In Serbia, grim fighting is in progress against bands, Bulgarians, and Bolsheviks.

East of Szolnok, the grim fighting continues.

In the Debrecen sector and north of Nyiregyhaza, the war of movement is in full swing, with no decision for either side.

In some sectors of the eastern Beskides, seriously mauled Soviet formations launched minor and unsuccessful attacks.

In the Seroc sector, troops on the Army and the Waffen SS made powerful counter-thrusts, and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy.

In the frontier area of East Prussia, the battle continues with extreme fury, with German bombers effectively joining in the fighting. Enemy vanguards were cut off and attacked from the rear.

At Goldap and south of Gumbinnen, the Bolsheviks were also repulsed in counter-attacks.

In the other front sectors, fresh attempts at breaking through made by Soviet reinforcements were frustrated or checked.

Yesterday, the Soviets lost a total of 176 tanks in East Prussia, 61 of which were destroyed by one Army corps alone.

At Memel, German naval artillery successfully fights the enemy. There was only minor fighting in the northern sector.

Yesterday, the defenders of the Sworbe Peninsula, supported by light naval forces and armed ferry boats, again repulsed Bolshevik attacks.

Anti-aircraft batteries of the Navy brought down seven Soviet bombers over the coast of Kurland, bringing the Soviet losses of the last two days to 80.

In northern Finland, the enemy continues to exert strong pressure in a southerly and easterly direction towards Kirkenes. A certain number of enemy tanks was destroyed.

USAAF terror bombers, favoured by weather conditions unfavourable for the defence, made daylight attacks on Augsburg, Regensburg, and other towns in southern and southeastern Germany.

In the early evening hours, Essen was the target of a British terror attack. Other enemy planes dropped bombs on the Reich capital.

Thirty-one planes, 22 of which were four-engined bombers, were brought down. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN PROPAGANDA TRENDS

Dittmar Commentary: General Dittmar, the leading German military analyst, has delivered his weekly radio broadcasts. On the contrary, he admits some of its disadvantages in comparison with professional armies. However, he hopes that « fanaticism » will make up for lack of training, and draws a hope from a comparison of present-day Germany with the Germany of 1813, when, in his opinion, a popular national uprising saved the day in the war against France. In line with the trend of identifying the Nazi regime with the nation as a whole, General Dittmar endeavors at length to refute Allied arguments that this new reserve army is a mere Nazi strategem, rather than a spontaneous popular reaction to danger on the part of the German people as a whole.

Western Front: The pessimism which might be expected to follow the admission of the fall of Aachen is being countered by an optimistic trend toward certain aspects of the western theatre. The military correspondent Alex Schmalfuss reports via DNB that « enemy attacks in the area northwest of Aachen have temporarily lessened in intensity... British tank thrusts, although making some headway on both sides of the road from Nijmegen to Hertogenbosch, failed to reach Hertogenbosch itself. » Two other claims of success are: « East of Luneville, the Americans in extremely bloody forest-fighting were ousted from the ground they had gained at Embermenil. In the area of Bruyères, the enemy had to evacuate Bellefontaine. »

Eastern Front: On this front also, the treatment is slightly more optimistic than was the case in yesterday's gloomy admission of Russia's punching « major gaps » into German defenses in East Prussia. The Transocean correspondent, von Olberg, notes with satisfaction that « after the initial success scored by the Soviets in their breakthrough toward Goldap, on the East Prussian frontier, their assault has now been checked. German counter-attacks have been ruthlessly launched... cutting off the communication lines of the Soviet columns, which had invaded East Prussia. » It is claimed that this caused « Goldap to be practically evacuated » by the Russian invaders.

FASCIST PROPAGANDA TRENDS

Savio River Sector: The Savio River bridgehead area is admittedly the "centre of a great struggle".

A slight German retreat followed upon British tank attacks along the Lamone river.

Bologna: South of Bologna, an eight-hour struggle for possession of Mount Salvaro netted the Allied troops nothing.

Living Conditions in Rome: A gloomy dossier of Allied-induced conditions in Rome is extracted from an alleged dispatch by a Swedish correspondent in Rome. Crime and the black market are depicted as interdependent: « Police superintendents are interested only in thefts whose value exceeds 200,000 lire. » There is, reputedly, widespread indignation over the Azzolini sentence, and the King and Badoglio are impaled as the real culprits.

Still on the subject of the situation in Rome, but with the broader implications of the entirety of invaded Italy, the idea is advanced that liberty therein is a vast mirage: liberty to do without essential utilities, to suffer semi-starvation, to undergo the humiliation of « multi-colored troops, » etc. As for the liberty to criticize and quibble, this is shown as the revival of a destructive and fruitless, above all indigenous, Italian trait, which the discipline of Fascism had succeeded in eradicating.

Positive Black Brigade Activities: Black Brigades, as well as other Fascist and German units, have carried out further « large scale mopping-up operations in the Rovigo Province ». The motive is that of retaliation for Partisan brigandage and assassinations.

British Cynicism Towards Italy: From an alleged incident in the British Commons, involving slander of Italian Patriots fighting with the Allies, capital is made of Britain's eternal animadversion toward Italy.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA TRENDS

Dittmar Commentary: General Dittmar, the leading German military analyst, has delivered his weekly radio address. Tonight, his important speech climaxes the leading German propaganda trend of the past week: the incitement of enthusiasm for and faith in the Volkssturm.

Dittmar's address is, above all, an appeal for ever greater German «fanaticism,» a word which he himself uses several times.

Dittmar, who has long had a reputation for greater pessimism and greater understatement than the spokesmen of the Goebbels propaganda ministry, does not treat the Volkssturm in the inflated, miracle-expecting manner with which it was treated in some of yesterday's propaganda

Eastern Front. On this front also, the treatment is slightly more optimistic than was the case in yesterday's gloomy admission of Russia's punching «major gaps» into German defenses in East Prussia. The Transocean correspondent, von Olberg, notes with satisfaction that «after the initial success scored by the Soviets in their breakthrough toward Goldap, on the East Prussian frontier, their assault has now been checked. Communist Double-Dealing in Italy: It is theorized that the presumedly numerous Communist cells in «invaded» Italy are carrying out an effective policy designed to discredit the Anglo-Americans in Italy. The Allies, in turn, alert with counter-slander, are alleged to have refused passage through the Dardanelles of 10 Russian ships laden with food for the people in invaded Italy.

Sicilian Riots: The disorder and tenseness in Sicily continue to receive attention. Accusation and suggested reasons range far and wide, contradicting and conflicting with each other.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE 400 PLACES IN EAST PRUSSIA LIBERATE NICKEL MINING AREA IN FINLAND

MOSCOW, October 23 — Red Army forces under General Chernyakovsky have invaded East Prussia to a depth of 19 miles on an 80-mile front and have captured 400 towns, Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

The East Prussian towns of Gumbinnen, Goldap, Rominten, Eydtkau, Scherwandt, and Stallupönen are in Russian hands. In addition, 500 towns have been taken in the adjoining Lithuanian border areas, and yet another 500 in the Memel region.

Marshal Stalin's order disclosed that Soviet troops of the 3rd White Russian Front were supported by artillery and aircraft in their break through the deeply staggered German defenses which had been constructed over a long period and covered the frontiers of East Prussia.

(The German radio stated tonight that the «bridgehead of Tilsit had been evacuated, and German troops taken back to the south bank of the river.»)

In an earlier order of the day, Marshal Stalin announced the liberation of the entire nickel mining area in the Arctic Petsamo region.

General Meretskov's forces advanced west and southwest of Belgrade, battles continued for the extension of the bridgehead on the western bank of the Sava River. Russian and Yugoslav units took the towns of Azanja and Zemunsko Polje, while Bulgarian troops combined with Yugoslavs to take Kocana, together with a number of other places.

Inside the Danube bend, Backa Topola was captured yesterday, Marshal Tito announced today. Backa Palanka, on the Zagreb-Belgrade railway, also fell to Tito's troops.

On all fronts yesterday 187 German tanks were destroyed or disabled, and 31 planes were shot down, tonight's Soviet communique reported. (OWI - Reuter)

BRITISH 2½ MILES FROM HERTOGENBOSCH

SHAEF, October 23 — The new British drive on the western flank of the Dutch salient, coördinated to relieve German pressure on Canadian troops clearing the approaches to the port of Antwerp, brought Allied troops to within 2½ miles of Hertogenbosch. A third British column went into action on the 12-mile-front late last night south of the Zuidwillemsvaart Canal, in support of the two columns converging on the rail junction town southwestward from Oss and northwest from Veghel.

The third column is now in the vicinity of Schijndel, after cutting the Uden-Boxtel rail line. The middle column is meeting heavy German fire on the northern side of the Zuidwillemsvaart Canal, and vanguards are now in the vicinity of Berlicum after clearing Middelrode. The northern column is astride the Hertogenbosch-Oss railroad, and is within 2½ miles of the town at Rosmalen. Troops are advancing over heavily-mined areas, and are facing little or no German artillery fire.

At the southwestern base of the Dutch salient, Canadian troops, after capturing Esschen last night, advanced to within four miles of Roosendaal, rail center feeding German troops at the neck of the Beveland Peninsula. German paratroops in this sector are attacking without success. Two other Canadian columns driving on Breda have made progress north of Wuestwezel and Achterbroek.

Canadian troops clearing the Germans out of the pocket on the southern side of the Schelde Estuary captured Fort Frederik after clearing the port city of Breskens last night. They had to cross anti-tank ditches more than eight yards wide before investing Breskens. The German guns still in commission on the flooded island of Walcheren, resumed their shelling of Canadian troops pushing toward the coastal towns of Heyst and Knocke.

LATE BULLETINS

TWO U.S. SUBMARINES LOST

WASHINGTON, October 23 — Two American submarines, the Herring and the Golet, have been lost, the Navy Department announced tonight. Each submarine carried a [illegible] complement added.

In an earlier order of the day, Marshal Stalin announced the liberation of the entire nickel mining area in the Arctic Petsamo region.

General Meretskov's forces advanced west and southwest of Petsamo under difficult Arctic conditions, and battled their way into Salmijarvi, Nickel, and Ahmalahti.

Northwest of Petsamo, in Varanger Fjord, Soviet torpedo boats sank two enemy transports, two minesweepers, and a patrol vessel.

Advance Toward Budapest

The sickle-shaped front moving on Budapest has been extended. Russian forces have reached the southern bank of the River Tisa northwest of Nyiregyhaza, and have taken a number of towns and villages, including Iszalyok. The Red Army now occupies three-quarters of the Hungarian plain containing the densest network of roads and railways.

Southeast of Mukacevo, key communications point in Ruthenia, Russian forces battled their way into Dubovete-reblja and Nizna-Novoselica, and drew nearer to the Red Army units pushing down from northern Ruthenia. The direct traffic lines from Hungary to Mucacevo are cut, and the encirclement threat to the German and Hungarian divisions to the east has been increased.

In joint operations with Rumanian forces, Russian troops occupied more than 50 places in Transylvania, including Ville-Detmariui.

TWO U.S. SUBMARINES LOST

WASHINGTON, October 23 — Two American submarines, the Herring and the Golet, have been lost, the Navy Department announced tonight. Each submarine carried a normal complement of 65 men, the announcement added. (PWB)

CANADIANS WITHDRAW FROM BRESKENS

SHAEF, October 23 — Canadian troops have withdrawn from the Schelde port city of Breskens, which was captured last night, a late Reuter dispatch reported tonight.

The Allied position is uncertain, the report said, and a see-saw battle is apparently in progress. It is not known whether Allied troops have withdrawn from Fort Frederik Hendrik, reported captured today. (Reuter)

VOLCANO AND YAP ISLANDS BOMBED

PEARL HARBOR, October 23 — Liberators of the 7th USAAF bombed the Volcano Islands, about 750 miles southeast of Tokyo, a communique from Admiral Chester Nimitz's headquarters said tonight. They dropped 49 tons of bombs on airfield installations, and shot down three Japanese fighter planes.

The communique added that Japanese positions on Yap Island, 900 miles east of Leyte in the Philippines, were bombed Friday and Saturday. (OWI)

In the center of the pocket, the town of Schoondijke has been taken.

The Canadian Government announced today that Lieut. General H. D. G. Crerar, commander of the Canadian 1st Army, has been ill in Great Britain for the last three weeks, but will return to his post in the next few days.

East of Aachen, American 1st Army troops have been making a series of thrusts designed to keep the Germans off balance until a major offensive is launched toward Cologne. A spokesman here stated today that the progress toward Cologne was bound to be slow, due to three main natural barriers — the fortified town of Juelich, northeast of Aachen; the Erft Canal, 12 miles beyond Juelich; and the Rhine River, 14 miles farther to the east.

In the center of the 475-mile eastern front, American 3rd Army troops have cleared the town of Bezange la Petite, 19 miles east of Nancy, but fighting still continues in nearby Moncourt. Allied aircraft supported ground operations, destroying eight locomotives, 64 rail cars and 33 trucks in advance of infantry troops.

American 7th Army troops in a general offensive against German positions in the Vosges Mountains captured the town of Brouvelieures, north east of Epinal, and have entered the towns of Domfuing, Vervezelle, and Belmont. French reconnaissance patrols continued to probe German positions in this sector. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

8TH LIBERATES CERVIA, 13 MILES FROM RAVENNA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, October 23 — Eighth Army forces, after forced marches through coastal boglands, have captured the town of Cervia, only 13 miles by main highway from the key communications city of Ravenna ,it was announced here today.
