RED ARMY LAUNCHES WINTER OFFENSIVE

MOSCOW, January 13 — The Russian Army launched its winter offensive 75 miles northeast of Cracow, and in two days has advanced 25 miles on a 40-mile front, Marshal Joseph Stalin announced tonight in a special order of the day.

Preceded by a tremendous artillery barrage, Marshal Ivan Konlev's 1st Ukrainian Front broke though the German defenses west of Sandomierz, beyond the Vistula River. Unfavorable weather conditions restricted the supporting power of the Soviet Air Force.

Tonight, as the guns of Moscow roared a 20-salvo salute from 224 guns, Soviet troops were 80 miles from the German border and 150 miles from Breslau. Capturing 350 occupied localities in their new drive, Russian forces took Chmielnik,

The two German relief columns north and northwest of the city continued to be beaten back by Soviet tanks, artillery and anti-tank gunners, who inflicted huge losses on the Germans. Press reports said the Germans had lost 800 tanks in eight days.

To the northwest, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's troops moved into the plain leading to Bratislava and Vienna. They have cut several roads and railways linking Bratislava with Hungary and central Czechoslovakia, and they have inflicted heavy losses on enemy self-propelled guns and armored cars. 8TH ARMY FORCES CLASH WITH ENEMY

ADVANCE AFHQ, January 13 — Eighth Army forces yesterday clashed with German troops guarding the approaches to Porto Garibaldi, on the Adriatic coast north of Ravenna, to end a lull of nearly a week in this sector, it was officially reported here today.

The clash, in which 20 enemy were killed and more than 40 taken prisoner, was described as taking place on the two-mile-wide spit of land between the Comacchio Lagoon and the sea, and would indicate that 8th Army forces have crossed the Reno River to push to within six or seven miles of Porto Garibaldi, the sea outlet for Ferrara.

The engagement along the coast, where German forces have been strengthened by the 710th Infantry Division, rushed from Norway to hold the Reno Line, coincided with strong German raids across the Senio River in two sectors, and strong enemy patrol actions aimed at securing prisoners and unit identification of 8th Army forces drawn up before the 50-miles-long battle line across the southeastern end of the Lombardy Plain.

Schutzstaffel forces in company strength crossed the Senio River near Fusignano, 11½ miles northwest of Ravenna and midway between the two German strongpoints of Alfonsine and Lugo, guarding the roads to Ferrara and Bologna. The first two attempts of the raiding force to establish a foothold on the Allied side of the stream were unsuccessful. On the third try, the enemy troops reached a group of houses on the east bank of the river, and blew them up before an Allied counter-attack drove them back.

A second enemy raiding force, also of company strength and suported by heavy artillery fire, struck across the Senio in the area southeast of Castel Bolognese in a night attack Thursday, but was repulsed before making any penetration of the Allied defenses. Enemy working parties have been active along this stretch of the river, strengthening the German defenses back from the river along the lines of several small watercourses and ditches linked with the Senio.

On the 5th Army front, Allied patrol forces encountered fierce opposition in thrusts into enemy defenses southwest of Imola and due south of Bologna.

RED ARMY LAUNCHES WINTER OFFENSIVE

MOSCOW, January 13 — The Russian Army launched its winter offensive 75 miles northeast of Cracow, and in two days has advanced 25 miles on a 40-mile front, Marshal Joseph Stalin announced tonight in a special order of the day.

Preceded by a tremendous artillery barrage, Marshal Ivan Konievs 1st Ukrainian Front broke though the German defenses west of Sandomierz, beyond the Vistula River. Unfavorable weather conditions restricted the supporting power of the Soviet Air Force.

Tonight, as the guns of Moscow roared a 20-salvo salute from 224 guns, Soviet troops were 80 miles from the German border and 150 miles from Breslau. Capturing 350 occupied localities in their new drive, Russian forces took Chmielnik, Busko, and Wislica in the central sector between Kielce and Cracow.

Marshal Koniev and his 1st Ukrainian Front — armies which have fought their way almost from Stalingrad to the heart of Poland, and captured the great city of Kiev — struck after nearly a six-month lull. They stopped their summer offensive on the Vistula, as did Marshal Rokossovsky to the north. But before the offensive was spent, Marshal Koniev had captured Sandomierz, and had crossed the upper Vistula.

In Budapest, the Germans' inner defenses were falling before Soviet shock troops and heavy guns today, and keys to the center of the Hungarian capital were captured one after another. The main body of German forces are diminishing hourly, and will have to choose soon between surrender or annihilation, press dispatches said. White flags have been raised from many German-held buildings, but a hard core of SS troops are determined to fight to the last bullet.

While Soviet cannons at point-blank range are reducing buildings used as enemy fortresses, the Germans are blowing up other buildings without warning to the occupants. Thousands of Hungarian citizens have perished, and other thousands are attempting to flee the burning city.

3RD ARMY REACHES BERTOGNE ROAD JUNCTION

LONDON, January 13 — American 3rd Army forces, driving northward three miles, have entered Bertogne, a road junction in size second only to Houffalize, press dispatches reported late tonight.

The reports said that the 3rd Army had destroyed 317 German tanks since the beginning of its counter-offensive on December 22. (OWI-Reuter)

American combat patrols which attacked the two enemy-held villages of Sant'Ansano and Canovetta, just west of the main Bologna highway and in the rough mountainous terrain blocking the entrance into the Savena River Valley, leading north to the Po Plain, met intense rifle, mortar, and grenade fire from the German forces in the two hamlets. The American force which attacked Canovetta withdrew under cover of a protective barrage, while the other patrol, which had attempted to cross the Savena River down in the valley, was also forced to retire under intense enemy mortar fire.

The patrol engagement on the right flank of the 5th Army yesterday occurred when an Allied patrol thrust toward the enemy-held mountain village of La Casetta, nine miles southwest of Imola and midway between the Sillaro and the Santerno Rivers. The German forces put down heavy fire on the Allied combat force and also shelled the town of Fontanelice on the Santerno's southern banks 9½ miles southwest of Imola.

Enemy shelling of 5th Army forward areas continued yesterday, in moderately heavy fire. (PRO)

AMERICANS LAUNCH NEW ATTACK IN BELGIUM

LONDON, January 13 — American forces have launched a new counter-offensive against the northern shoulder of the German salient in Belgium between Stavelot and Malmedy, and they have made a general advance of 1,200 yards against heavy to moderate resistance.

Press dispatches reported that the 9th Army has gone over to the offensive in the Monschau area at the northeastern tip of the German salient.

Advancing through the dense, snowbound Ardennes Forest against strong opposition, other American forces neared the Houffalize-St. Vith highway, the Germans' last major escape route from the Belgian bulge. In multi-pronged drives, they are moving down the western bank of the Salm River from Vielsalm, and are advancing southward on both sides of the road leading into Houffalize. Several local German counter-attacks in the Langlin-Bihain sector have been repulsed with heavy losses.

British and American units approached Erneuville, five miles south of Laroche on the road to Bertogne, but their progress is being slowed by road blocks and minefields. Press dispatches reported that there are no German troops west of a line running south of Laroche other than those left behind by mistake, or who have not received orders to move. The Germans appear to be making a stand on the east bank of the River Ourthe.

British troops are working their way through an 80-square-mile area which the Germans were forced to abandon although the snow-covered minefields are making operations difficult.

After eliminating a strong German wedge southeast of Bastogne, three divisions of the 3rd Army continued their attacks and have advanced three miles in the past 24 hours. Other 3rd Army units are closing their arc around Wiltz, while, farther to the east, they are driving northward to Vianden against strong enemy opposition.

In the lower Vosges salient, 7th Army troops made limited gains in the Bitsch sector, and farther to the east, in the Hagenau Forest, they beat off a strong enemy armored attack at Hatten. German pressure is reported to have been increased both in the Saar and Alsace by a number of counter-attacks.

Along the Rhine south of Strasbourg, German attacks in the vicinity of Rossfeld and Herbsheim were repulsed by French forces, and the enemy has made no further gains toward the major Rhine city.

There was no change in the situation north of Strasbourg. (OWI-Reuter-AP-BBC)

American planes supported guerrilla forces by attacking Japanese shipping, supply lines, and communications along the west coast of Lingayen Gulf, destroying more than 50 coastal vessels, the communique reported.

The U.S. Pacific Fleet has decisively blocked the first Japanese attempt to reinforce their army on Luzon from French Indo-China.

American planes are continuing to attack four enemy convoys off the French Indo-China coast after sinking 25 ships, including a cruiser, several destroyers, and 12 loaded transports in the first day's assault yesterday, Pacific Fleet headquarters announced.

In the second communique in six hours, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' headquarters reported at least 12 enemy ships were sunk inside Japanese-held Indo-Chinese harbors — six transports at Saigon, Indo-China's major port and capital city, and six more at Quinhon harbor, 250 miles to the northeast. A previous communique had announced the sinkings, but had not given any details.

Associated Press pointed out that the fact that the transports were loaded probably meant heavy losses of enemy soldiers. It said the troop carriers were being massed for a counter-smash at General Douglas MacArthur's forces on Luzon, less than 1,000 miles west of Saigon.

Last night's communique said the inland sir attack started numerous fires in the vicinity of Saigon. Bombing and strafing attacks on the Thanh Son Nhut airbase near Saigon and at Port Nhabe were particularly successful.

Additional Jap Losses Revealed

The communique also disclosed that an additional 110 Japanese ships and small craft were sunk or crippled, and 66 more planes destroyed in last Monday's attacks on Formosa by carrier planes of the 3rd Fleet.

The newly-announced losses were in addition to those listed in a communique Tuesday. That communique, combining achievements around Formosa and at Okinawa in the Ryukyu Islands, listed 14 ships sunk, 17 small ships and luggers damaged, a large tanker left burning, 17 planes destroyed, and another 17 damaged. Four American planes were lost in combat during the Formosa attack.

Last night's communique also disclosed that 7th USAAF heavy bombers have been operating from the Palau Islands in support of General MacArthur's Philippines campaign.

Four days before the Americans landed on the beaches of Lingayen Gulf, Filipino guerrillas in conjunction with American planes blocked strategic defenses and prevented Japanese troop movements, an American correspondent said today in a dispatch from General MacArthur's headquarters.

The dispatch said the Filipinos, well supplied with dynamite by American demolition experts, blew up key rail and highway bridges 25 miles northeast of Manila. They blocked defiles through which roads and rail lines pass from southern Luzon to Manila and the central valley areas. The correspondent said the Filipinos' action probably accounted for the apparent failure of the Japanese to react more quickly and powerfully against the American landing. (OWI)

ALLIES BOMB MANDALAY; NEW ALLIED LANDING IN BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, January 13 — The largest concentration of heavy bombers ever assembled in this theater dropped nearly a million pounds of high explosives on Mandalay at noon today, in a devastating aftermath to landings yesterday on the Myebon Peninsula by troops of the 15th Indian Corps.

EIGHT MORE MILES GAINED ON LUZON

LUZON, PHILIPPINES, January 13 — American troops on Luzon made their largest one-day gain on the island when they today advanced eight miles inland to reach a point 20 miles from Lingayen Gulf, General MacArthur's communique announced tonight.

Broadening the beachhead sector to 26 miles, the American left flank, striking southward, liberated the towns of Santa Barbara and Mapandan, both highway junctions. Mapandan is 7½ miles inland from the San Fabian beachhead, and Santa Barbara is four miles southwest of Mapandan and seven miles inland.

This drive was reported cutting into roads leading down to the Lingayen corridor from northern Luzon through the Carbello Mountains.

The communique also reported that the north bank of the Agno River had been reached.

On the western sector, American units have pushed past the town of Aguiler, 11 miles from the coast and about 40 miles north of Tarlac, in the central Luzon plains.

A press dispatch said that the advance of American motorized patrols carried them within 87 miles of Manila, capital of the Philippines.

ALLIES BOMB MANDALAY; NEW ALLIED LANDING IN BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, January 13 — The largest concentration of heavy bombers ever assembled in this theater dropped nearly a million pounds of high explosives on Mandalay at noon today, in a devastating aftermath to landings yesterday on the Myebon Peninsula by troops of the 15th Indian Corps.

As the newly landed forces press inward on the peninsula, 30 miles southeast of the recently-captured port of Akyab, in what is obviously the western prong of a pincers on Mandalay, the huge air armada pounded Mandalay, in the center of Burma ahead of the southward advance of 14th Army troops moving in from Shwebo.

United States Army Air Force bombers and Liberator squadrons of the Strategic Air Force operating from an RAF base in Bengal, hurled their heavy concentration of explosives within a space of 10 minutes. Targets were in the area of the town, where the Japanese are believed to be concentrating ready for a withdrawal, and on the north side of the ferry at Sagaing, eight miles away, where great stocks of equipment and transport have been banked up for transfer across the river.

Meanwhile, American Thunderbolts searched out anti-aircraft positions and put out of action gun after gun. One fire with smoke 7,000 feet high was burning 75 minutes after the planes left the area, a Reuter dispatch said.

Chinese troops operating southwest of Wanting, near the Burmese border, have repelled repeated enemy counter-attacks, the Chinese communique said tonight. Small gains were made south of Wanting, while other forces are closing in on the city, the capture of which will enable them to join Allied troops advancing from Burma.

The landing on Myebon was made yesterday in Hunter's Bay by commando troops who fought their way ashore in the face of Japanese artillery and machine-gun fire, under a smoke screen and supported by heavy naval and air bombardment. Units of the Royal Indian Navy were among the supporting warships.

A late dispatch said that the Allied troops were less than half a mile from the town of Myebon, which lies two miles north of the landing beaches. According to correspondents, this latest landing on the Arakan coast of Burma threatens to cut off the Japanese withdrawing southward from the Kaladan area.

Northeast of Akyab, Japanese troops attacked Allied positions under the cover of darkness at Yongon, on the west bank of the Kaladan River.

In central Burma, troops of the British 14th Army yesterday liberated Gangaw, approximately 75 miles due south of Kalemyo, following a heavy air attack by the RAF. Enemy aircraft were active over the Shwebo area.

Fighting continued in the area south of Tonkwa, and Chinese 1st Army troops continued patrol action along the Shweli River near the Yunnan-Burma frontier.

Eastern Air Command heavy bombers yesterday hit jetties and attacked shipping at the important south Burma port of Mergui, while fighters supported the new landings at Myebon by attacking enemy positions around Hunter's Bay. Other aircraft supported ground troops closely in the northern combat area, and flew numerous sorties in attacking communications in central Burma.

Allied Flying Described

An Associated Press correspondent said in a dispatch yesterday that the recent Allied successes in driving the Japanese from Burma were due mainly to intelligent and well-founded Allied strategy and decisions.

Describing the bitter struggle for air supremacy and the Allied air forces' assault against Japanese communications, the correspondent said:

« Fliers in this theater really cover the country. American and RAF Liberators regularly fly 2,500-mile round trips, and an RAF squadron recently made a 3,000-mile mission. They fly, too, in some of the world's worst weather.

« Allied ground forces are utterly dependent on air-dropped supplies in the forward areas, and air transport of troops and equipment is routine. No other theater has such complete and necessary integration of ground and air operations. »

Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, Commander of the American forces in China, told an Associated Press correspondent recently that, in his opinion, the Japanese may still attempt to launch an offensive westward into China, despite the American landings on Luzon in the Philippines. General Wedemeyer said, however, that China's defensive position had improved, and the enemy knew that any future American effort in China will be more than a « pinprick » and therefore they are not going to turn their back to the east coast. YUGOSLAVS TAKE BISTRICA

LONDON, January 13 — Yugoslav forces which captured Prijepolje, in the Lim River Valley, have also taken Bistrica and Caninico, and are pushing the Germans northward toward Visegrad, Marshal Tito's communique announced today.

Capture of Bistrica brings into Yugoslav hands a strongpoint which has been the goal of Partisan forces for approximately five weeks.

In the eight days from December 18 to 26, the Yugoslavs killed 428 Germans and captured another 400, besides capturing multi-barrelled mortars, two tanks, and 72 trucks, the dispatch said. The German attempt to take the town has been stopped.

In other military action, Marshal Tito's communique reported today that a train was blown up on the Sunja-Kostajnica rail line, a branch of the main Belgrade-Zagreb railway running southwest from Zagreb. The line itself was cut in 40 places.

The Kralovac-Ozalj line, another branch of the Zagreb-Belgrade railway, stretching southeast from Zagreb, was destroyed for a distance of 500 yards, thus further hampering the enemy's ability to feed supplies over these two key communications. (OWI)

ALLIES SUPPLY RUSSIA THROUGH DARDANELLES

LONDON, January 13 — Allied war supplies are being shipped through the Dardanelles to the Soviet Union with Turkey's permission, a British Foreign Office spokesman announced here yesterday.

He said that the supplies had not been sent through the strait before, because of the danger of enemy air attack, adding that the shipments had begun, without any objection from the Turkish Government, after the German airbases in the Ionian Sea and the Balkans had been neutralized by the Allies.

Under the terms of the Dardanelles Conference held among interested nations at Montreux, Switzerland, in July, 1936, no armed ships are permitted to pass the strait in wartime, although the right to use the Dardanelles for supply ships is automatic.

When shipments through the Dardanelles were resumed, the time needed for the transport of supplies from the United States east coast to the U.S.S.R. was reduced by 10 days.

At the same time, the 2,000-mile journey across Iran to the Eastern Front was eliminated. The necessity of using the route around the North Cape to Murmansk was also reduced.

The distance from the port of London to Odessa is about 3,535 miles. The distance from the port of London to the top of the Persian Gulf is nearly three times as long. By sending supplies from Britain to Russia through the Dardanelles, instead of via the Persian Gulf, there is a saving of two-thirds of the main sea journey, and of the merchant shipping and naval escort forces involved. BAD WEATHER AGAIN HAMPERS M.A.A.F.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 13 — Bad weather, which has cancelled operations of heavy bombers in the Mediterranean Theater for the past four days, again yesterday drastically restricted operations of the MAAF.

Fewer than 500 sorties were flown, less than one-quarter of normal operation figures, and these were concentrated on enemy communications lines and transport north of the Po, along the Milan-Treviso line, and in the Spezia area.

More than 100 enemy motor vehicles, along with an equal number of rail cars, were destroyed or damaged and hits were scored on enemy gun positions and storage dumps in the Pontremoli-Massa area, just north of the Serchio River Valley, scene of a recent German drive against the 5th Army. (PRO)

FRENCH DESTROYER ESCAPES ATTACK

ADVANCE, AFHQ, ITALY, January 13 — The French destroyer Le Fortune some days ago successfully repelled an enemy attack by what were described as « explosive boats » in an engagement off San Remo along the Riviera coast, it was disclosed here today.

YUGOSLAVS TAKE BISTRICA

LONDON, January 13 — Yugoslav forces which captured Prijepolje, in the Lim River Valley, have also taken Bistrica and Canjnice, and are pushing the Germans northward toward Visegrad, Marshal Tito's communique announced today.

Capture of Bistrica brings into Yugoslav hands a strongpoint which has been the goal of Partisan forces for approximately five weeks.

Fighting for Prijepolje, Bistrica, and Canjnice took place in bitter weather, which press dispatches have said is the coldest in Yugoslavia in 50 years. The advance on the German strongpoints was made over some of the most mountainous country in central Yugoslavia.

The communique also reported separate actions in Bosnia, in which 250 Germans were killed.

In the Podravina section of Croatia, Yugoslav units are driving the enemy west from Virovitica, and have inflicted heavy losses. In Slovenia, an enemy column was repulsed in the Djakova sector.

In eastern Bosnia, during mopping-up operations in the Majevica sector, Marshal Tito's forces killed over 1,100 German officers and men, the communique said.

Yugoslav troops have successfully defended the town of Travnik, communications center on the road of the German retreat from southern Bosnia northward, the Yugoslav News Agency reported today.

The Germans tried desperately to take Travnik and free one of the last defenses blocking their way home. Fighting for Travnik began December 18 and, in the first days, groups of Yugoslav miners destroyed seven miles of track leading into the town, and blew up five bridges. About this time, the Germans threw in large forces assembled from Zenica and Bussovec, the dispatch said.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 13 — Bad weather, which has cancelled operations of heavy bombers in the Mediterranean Theater for the past four days, again yesterday drastically restricted operations of the MAAF.

Fewer than 500 sorties were flown, less than one-quarter of normal operation figures, and these were concentrated on enemy communications lines and transport north of the Po, along the Milan-Treviso line, and in the Spezia area.

More than 100 enemy motor vehicles, along with an equal number of rail cars, were destroyed or damaged and hits were scored on enemy gun positions and storage dumps in the Pontremoli-Massa area, just north of the Serchio River Valley, scene of a recent German drive against the 5th Army. (PRO)

ADVANCE, AFHQ, ITALY, January 13 — The French destroyer Le Fortune some days ago successfully repelled an enemy attack by what were described as « explosive boats » in an engagement off San Remo along the Riviera coast, it was disclosed here today.

The destroyer sank one of the explosive boats sent out to attack it and continued to bombard enemy troop concentrations and transport which had been its targets. (PRO)

KESSELRING AGAIN COMMANDS GERMANS IN ITALY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 13 — Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, commander of the German armies in Italy and rumored to have been ill or wounded, is apparently once more in active command of his troops, it was reported here today.

A captured German order of the day, issued on the first of the year and signed by the Field Marshal, stated that Kesselring was leading the German 10th and 14th Armies « in the battle of 1945. » (PRO)

AMERICAN LIEUTENANT DECORATED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 13 — Second Lieutenant Ernest H. Dervishian, an American officer who won his commission on the Anzio beachhead, yesterday was presented with the Medal of Honor, highest American award for a combat soldier, by Lt. General Mark W. Clark, 15th Army Group commander, it was announced here today.

The Lieutenant was one of a group of 11 soldiers decorated at ceremonies held at a 5th Army post high in the snow-covered Apennines.

Lieutenant Dervishian was cited for an action on May 23, when, during the break-through of American forces from the Anzio beachhead, he was responsible for the capture of 40 Germans and the elimination of three enemy machine-gun positions. (PRO)

RHINE RAIL TARGETS BOMBED

LONDON, January 13 — Rail targets along the Rhine were pounded today by more than 900 American heavy bombers, which had been snowbound to their British bases for two days, and an escort of more than 400 fighters.

A total of seven bridges were hit, at Rüdesheim, Worms, Mannheim, Germersheim, and Karlsruhe, and two at Mainz. Rail yards at Bischoffsheim, near Mainz, and at Kaiserslautern, also were attacked.

The RAF, in a concentrated assault, bombed rail communications at Saarbrücken this afternoon.

Photographic reconnaissance showed that earlier attacks against rail targets between Cologne and Coblenz have rendered unusable five large bridges, and damaged two others.

On January 10, 8th USAAF bombers scored two direct hits on the Hohenzollern road and rail bridges, paralyzing four rail lines and a highway. The five-span Ludendorff bridge was destroyed at both ends on January 1 when bombers hit the approaches, rendering it unserviceable. At Coblenz, they damaged one of the two rail bridges with direct hits.

Wintry weather over the battlefront held tactical air support to a minimum yesterday, but SHAEF said a few fighter-bombers attacked a supply dump near Freckenfeld, east of Wissembourg.

Last night, RAF Lancasters dropped six tons of bombs on U-boat pens at Bergen, Norway. Three of the big bombers were reported missing from this operation.

Mosquito planes struck German transport vehicles of the western battlefront near Vlanden. A 2nd TAF spokesman said, «The Germans were caught completely napping.» (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

R. N. ATTACKS CONVOY OFF NORWAY

LONDON, January 13 — The British Navy yesterday attacked and almost completely destroyed a German convoy of seven or eight ships carrying vital war supplies, despite German shore batteries, torpedo planes, and submarines, it was announced tonight.

The engagement occurred off Norway near the harbor of Egersund, south of Stavanger. The British force included a cruiser, two escort carriers, and a destroyer. Despite enemy resistance, the British ships sustained neither damage nor casualties, the Admiralty communique said.

Preliminary reports indicated that three or four German ships were sunk and the remainder severely damaged or set on fire. Some of them were driven ashore.

The Germans joined in the action with their coastal batteries, but without effect. A U-boat tried to interfere, but was forced to submerge. It was not learned what happened to the submarine as a result of depth charges, but it was prevented from striking.

When the British ships were retiring from the scene, German torpedo-carrying planes attempted to attack them. British naval fighters intercepted and broke up the attack, downing one German plane. Two of the naval fighters were lost, but their pilots were rescued. (Reuter)

EARTHQUAKE IN JAPAN REPORTED

WASHINGTON, January 13 — Earthquakes in or near Japan were reported today by both Weston College, Weston, Massachusetts, and the Japanese News Agency, Domei.

The Rev. Daniel Linehan, S.J., seismologist of Weston College, said that a severe three-hour earthquake occurred in or near Japan yesterday afternoon. He said that, although it was not so intense as the one last month, it still «would have done considerable damage if it occurred on land.»

Domei reported that a «slight earthquake» shook central Honshu, main Japanese island, at 0345 hours today, Tokyo time, damaging a number of houses. It said the earthquake struck the Chubu district which stretches north to south across Honshu at a point west and south of Tokyo. (OWI)

M. P.' S. PRAISE ITALIAN SELF-REHABILITATION

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 13 — Traveling through several newly-liberated Italian towns on the 8th Army front, the six members of the British House of Commons on a three-week visit to the Italian Front were greatly impressed by the industry of Italian civilians in reconstructing their battered homes and reëstablishing themselves and their families, writes a UNN correspondent.

«It is one of the most heartening scenes possible,» one of the Members of Parliament said. «It is quite clear that the Italians in this area realize that there is no time to be lost in reconstruction, and it is most encouraging to see them helping themselves, and not sitting back waiting for someone to come to their aid. My respect for the Italians has increased as a result of my recent observations of their willingness to shoulder, at the earliest possible moment, the big task awaiting them.»

During the day the party spoke with British troops of all ranks, visiting gun pits, cook houses, and forward positions. Requests for private interviews were granted immediately, and many soldiers were assured that their personal troubles would be investigated.

A commanding general gave the party a full description of the tactics, strategy, and actual events leading up to the fall of the vital heights overlooking Faenza from the south.

They were greatly impressed by the morale of the troops and the difficult conditions prevailing at the snow-covered front. One member said:

1914 TO 1924 CLASSES CALLED UP

ROME, January 13 — Soldiers and non-commissioned officers born between 1914 and 1924 have been called to military service in Italy today. There was no official announcement except the posting of large green placards throughout the city this morning, which took the populace by surprise and caused endless discussion.

The posters specifically included Jews in the draft. They had been barred from military service under the Fascists. The announcement on the poster said all men are ordered to report to their military units before January 31. (UNN)

EPURATION COMMISSIONER ASSUMES OFFICE

ROME, January 13 — Ruggero Grieco, new Deputy High Commissioner for Epuration, said today that, within the next few days, the main phase of his job will be to speed up epuration and to appoint additional commissions.

He today assumed the office left vacant by the appointment of the former Deputy High Commissioner, Mauro Scoccimarro, to the post of Minister of Occupied Italy.

Epuration proceedings must be expedited in the provinces as a means of accelerating trials there, Grieco added.

Four new Assistant Deputy High Commissioners for Sanctions against Fascism were appointed today by the Italian Government.

ACTION PARTY'S PROGRAM REITERATED

NAPLES, January 13 — In a speech yesterday at the headquarters of the Action Party here, Alberto Cianca reiterated his party's platform on Italian internal and external affairs.

The Action Party, Cianca declared, desires the establishment of a Republic « in order to break definitely with any connexion with the world of the past. » Cianca also called for the decentralization of the administrative government to insure local and institutional autonomy, a more rigid epuration of Fascist elements and a greater participation by Italy in the war.

The Action Party leader recalled the need for a « new life » for the Italian army both in body and spirit to make this greater participation in the war effort more effective, and suggested that the volunteer and Patriot movements be given the full credit they deserve.

In the international field, Cianca called for the end of the old nationalistic policy.

The speaker pointed out the necessity of closer contact between the Government and the people, favoring the convening of a national meeting of the Committee of National Liberation, and the formation of a consultative assembly to create an atmosphere in which every citizen would feel his responsibility concerning the grave problems of national reconstruction.

« Even the Sicilian problem, » Cianca stated, « would be more easily solved by a closer contact between the Sicilian C.L.N. and the Government. »

Cianca warned that the inability of the political parties to solve the present problems in Italy constituted a danger to the country.

« There is no material problem which cannot be considered an aspect of a political problem, and which is not conditioned by it. » (UNN)

SARDINIAN PROGRESS REPORTED BY A. C.

ROME, January 13 — Steady progress toward building up Sardinia's commerce during 1944 and restoring conditions in the island to normal was reported yesterday by the Sardinia Region of the Allied Commission.

The year closed with a month of brisk shipping activity. December exports totalling nearly 38,000 tons. During the whole of the year, Sardinia exported over 230,000 tons of her production, including:

Antimony	72 tons
Barite	15 »
Cadmium	3 »
Cheese	750 »
Coal	256,280 »
Colored earth	87 »
Cork	258 »
Firebricks (304,333)	843 »

oil crop is reported to be exceptionally good. Meat prices are reasonably low, the seasonal stock of lambs selling at less than 10 lire a kilogram. In addition, surplus horses, cattle, and sheep are available for export to the mainland as breeding stock to replenish depleted herds.

Repairs to schools and other buildings and to roads are continuing throughout the island. In Cagliari alone, 900,000 lire have been spent on clearing war debris.

Work on agricultural and anti-malarial drainage is continuing in all three provinces. Cagliari's gas and electric lighting facilities have been extended, and there is now street lighting in the main towns of the island. Work continues on the hydro-electric installation at Flumendosa.

There was some increase in murders and armed robberies, including a shepherds' vendetta in the course of which a flock of 315 sheep were slaughtered.

Regular steamer service with the mainland began on December 30, when the Abbazia left on her first trip to Naples. The ship will sail on a bi-monthly schedule, taking up to 300 passengers and 1,000 tons of cargo each trip. (PWB - AC)

COLLABORATOR GIVEN FIVE-YEAR SENTENCE

ROME, January 13 — Rafaelle Longo, 21-year-old student, and former agent of the Italian Fascist police, was found guilty of collaboration with the Nazis and sentenced today by a Military Tribunal to five years' imprisonment.

Longo was found guilty of giving information which led to the arrest of two Patriots during the Nazi-Fascist occupation of Rome. (UNN)

CUSTOMS GUARDS SENTENCED FOR SUGAR THEFT

CATANZARO, January 13 — Stiff sentences were meted out by an Italian military court here following conviction of three Italian customs guards and seven civilians on charges of stealing 920 kilograms of sugar from an Allied Commission warehouse which had been placed under the surveillance of the Guardie di Finanza (customs guards).

Two of the guards were sentenced to six years of military confinement; the third, to 5 1/2 years of the same punishment. The seven civilians were given sentences totalling 26 years and fined a total of 3,000 lire. (UNN)

NO INCREASE IN ROME'S TELEPHONE SERVICE

ROME, January 13 — No material increase in this city's telephone service for private subscribers can be expected until the electric power supply is considerably more reliable, a study just completed showed today.

Before the war, the telephone company had excellent alternative power supplies available from the city's two electrical companies, the Allied Commission's Communications Sub-Commission pointed out. Emergency power plants attached to exchanges were not needed then.

Now, when power fails, the few emergency plants available are not sufficient for the telephone service.

Through deliberate German demolitions, power failure is frequent. A few hours failure results in the closing of many exchanges — even with the present restricted service.

If unrestricted telephone calls were permitted, the service would be forced to close after a power failure for a very short period. Hence, neither the Italian Government nor the Allied authorities can find any method of lifting present restrictions.

The number of calls now being made here is almost half those of pre-war years. Calls made currently by ordinary subscribers here, in relation to the number of calls in pre-war years, compare favorably with telephone services in Allied countries, which also have been forced to restrict

ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 13 — Sicily, the formation of a larger Italian Army, and the forthcoming Roatta-Suvich-Jacomoni trial, formed the basis of comment in today's Rome press.

Umberto Calosso, in Avanti (Socialist), commented on the commemoration of the 1848 Sicilian Revolution made yesterday by Luigi Gasparotto, pre-Fascist Member of Parliament and one-time Under Secretary for War.

Calosso wrote: «That movement in 1848 began to the cry of 'Long Live the 1812 Constitution,' which was the famous Sicilian Constitution granted by Lord Bentinck. England's popularity in Italy and in Europe owed much to that Constitution. And it was largely due to this popularity, which identified England with liberty, that England, after Napoleon's downfall, was able to maintain the peace for a century.

«In 1848, a crucial year for Europe, that popularity was still intact and Sicily, which started the European risings, still remembered that constitution and made it its ensign...»

«Today, once more, Sicily has been the first corner of Europe to be liberated. After giving the Allies an enthusiastic welcome, the Sicilians have cooled down. After counting on enthusiastic Anti-Fascism on the part of the Government, Sicily has brought to light problems which in the rest of liberated Italy are less evident. The inadequacy of a monarchy which was responsible for war, and anti-nationalism of the large land-owning classes, are iflings which appear clearly in Sicily. The Fascist danger which is reëmerging in the whole of Italy, the Fascist reactionary stab in the back of the war of liberation are apparent in Sicily, and constitute a lesson for the whole country.

«The lack of initiative which characterizes the present policy of the Government, shows itself in Sicily in its true colors: those of dangerous policy, unconsciously furthering Fascism...

«The Allies have a direct interest in the situation. From a thousand signs it is evident that in Sicily there is a systematic German-Fascist campaign.

«England, in particular, is touched by this enemy propaganda. And yet she had in Italy, in Sicily, traditions of political ability to which Italian democracy has always looked for inspiration.

«It is not too late to take up again those traditions.»

Formation of Army

Risorgimento Liberale (Liberal) commented on the formation of a national army: «The national army might have been formed with a large number of volunteers at the moment of the liberation of Rome.

«The difficulties existing up to that time could have been overcome as soon as the Allies came into contact with a mass of people. Thousands of men had waited for the liberation of Rome in order to take up their place in the army... But as town after town and region after region was liberated, there was no military organization ready to welcome the Partisans who had valiantly fought against the Germans until then...

«The situation began to change slowly. But the slowness of the process had a discouraging effect on the soldiers and the men who wanted to enlist. Discussions and polemics were brought up...

«Would it not be possible now to give an answer to some of the doubts which harass the soldiers and the would-be volunteers? Could not the generic promises regarding the future, formulated at the time when Italian cobelligerency was declared, be somewhat defined?

«But whether or not the Allies decide to do this, the volunteers will respond to the appeal made to their patriotism. Of one last obstacle the ground should be cleared, of the conviction that it is too late.

«Germany is condemned, but not vanquished yet; we are still in time to fight against her.

«The war which is being fought in the east is the same war as here. When the efforts of the United Nations will turn toward these far regions, an Italian expeditionary corps should go with the Allied armies.»

The forthcoming Roatta trial still draws the attention of the newspapers. L'Unita (Communist), under the headline, «Complicity of French Fascists in the criminal operations of Roatta and Company» gave a list of the cases in which the French operated in favor of the Fascist war in Spain.

PLASTIRAS COMMENTS ON TRUCE

ATHENS, January 13 — The Greek Government will continue its policy of «establishment of the rule of law throughout the country,» General Nicholas Plastiras, Premier, said last night, regardless of the truce between ELAS

Radio Athens reported yesterday that the president of the Supreme Court of Gre[illegible] has set up 25 committees to investigate the cases of ELAS members under arrest.

Another development here today was the placing of 17 Greek generals on the retired list, including General George Tsolacoglu, who signed the armistice with the Germans after the Nazi break-through to Salonika in April, 1941. Others who were retired included appointees of the quisling ex-Premier John D. Rhallis.

A delegation of about 50 union officials called on British Ambassador Rex Leeper last night to thank him for British aid in the fight against ELAS, according to a Reuter dispatch. They asked for further British assistance in alleviating the lot of Greek workers.

The military situation continued to be quiet. Press dispatches reported that British troops had entered Lamia, 95 miles northwest of here, and former ELAS headquarters. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

GOVERNMENT LAUDS TITO-SUBASIC AGREEMENT

LONDON, January 13 — The Information Department of the Royal Yugoslav Government in London stated over the BBC's European service tonight that the «Subasic-Tito agreement [between Marshal Tito and Prime Minister Ivan Subasic] is designed to strengthen Yugoslav unity and to reinforce the ideal of a federal democratic organization.»

The statement added that the agreement is designed also to «build up a new Yugoslavia which in accordance with the new times and with the urgent needs of the people will be able to establish a new collective and individual life for the citizens of Yugoslavia.

«Those unwilling to take account of these facts, which are fundamental for Yugoslav democracy, will never be able to grasp with objective appreciation or forecast the further developments of our political conditions.»

King Peter of Yugoslavia objected yesterday to two of the important provisions of the agreement — the form of a regency for Yugoslavia and placing of legislative power in the hands of the Anti-Fascist Council of National Liberation. (Reuter)

STETTINIUS TO HEAD U. S. DELEGATION

WASHINGTON, January 13 — Edward Stettinius, Secretary of State, will head the U. S. delegation to a special wartime conference of American republics to be held in Mexico City February 15, it was announced today.

Nelson D. Rockefeller, Assistant Secretary of State, will be the alternate delegate.

Argentina and El Salvador are not expected to be represented at the conference, the latter because it has yet to establish diplomatic relations with the other American republics. If such relations are established before February 15, El Salvador will probably send a delegate, it was explained.

The Pan-American Union at its monthly meeting, recently, decided unanimously to abstain from voting on Argentina's request for a conclave of American foreign ministers to consider the foreign policy of the Buenos Aires régime, and to afford Argentina an opportunity to plead its case for return to the family of American nations. But as town after town and region after region was liberated, there was no military organization ready to welcome the Partisans who had valiantly fought against the Germans until then...

«The situation began to change slowly. But the slowness of the process had a discouraging effect on the soldiers and the men who wanted to enlist. Discussions and polemics were brought up...

«Would it not be possible now to give an answer to some of the doubts which harass the soldiers and the would-be volunteers? Could not the generic promises regarding the future, formulated at the time when Italian cobelligerency was declared, be somewhat defined?

«But whether or not the Allies decide to do this, the volunteers will respond to the appeal made to their patriotism. Of one last obstacle the ground should be cleared, of the conviction that it is too late.

«Germany is condemned, but not vanquished yet; we are still in time to fight against her.

«The war which is being fought in the east is the same war as here. When the efforts of the United Nations will turn toward these far regions, an Italian expeditionary corps should go with the Allied armies.»

The forthcoming Roatta trial still draws the attention of the newspapers. L'Unità (Communist), under the headline, «Complicity of French Fascists in the criminal operations of Roatta and Company» gave a list of the cases in which the French operated in favor of the Fascist war in Spain.

ATHENS, January 13 — The Greek Government will continue its policy of «establishment of the rule of law throughout the country,» General Nicholas Plastiras, Premier, said last night, regardless of the truce between ELAS forces and the British commander, Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie.

«The truce between General Scobie and ELAS representatives does not prejudge the attitude of the Greek Government, whose policy will not deviate from the line laid down according to which the Government's care is, and will be, establishment of the rule of law throughout the country,» Plastiras' statement said.

It was issued after a long cabinet meeting, at which terms of the truce were discussed.

An Associated Press dispatch said today that the ELAS refusal to release civilian hostages was influenced by the arrest of EAM adherents here. According to the dispatch, the ELAS felt the holding of hostages was «in self defense.»

The Greek Regent, Archbishop Damaskinos, last night repeated his condemnation of the ELAS authorities for their action in taking hostages, the BBC said today. The Regent was quoted as saying that as ELAS withdrew northward they were taking thousands of civilians with them. He charged ELAS with denying freedom to all those who did not agree with them.

Archbishop Damaskinos said that it was not true to describe the present conflict as a collision between the Left and the Right. The conflict was due to the wish of armed bands to seize power, he asserted.

GOVERNMENT LAUDS TITO-SUBASIC AGREEMENT

LONDON, January 13 — The Information Department of the Royal Yugoslav Government in London stated over the BBC's European service tonight that the «Subasic-Tito agreement [between Marshal Tito and Prime Minister Ivan Subasic] is designed to strengthen Yugoslav unity and to reinforce the ideal of a federal democratic organization.»

The statement added that the agreement is designed also to «build up a new Yugoslavia which in accordance with the new times and with the urgent needs of the people will be able to establish a new collective and individual life for the citizens of Yugoslavia.

«Those unwilling to take account of these facts, which are fundamental for Yugoslav democracy, will never be able to grasp with objective appreciation or forecast the further developments of our political conditions.»

King Peter of Yugoslavia objected yesterday to two of the important provisions of the agreement — the form of a regency for Yugoslavia and placing of legislative power in the hands of the Anti-Fascist Council of National Liberation. (Reuter)

STETTINIUS TO HEAD U. S. DELEGATION

WASHINGTON, January 13 — Edward Stettinius, Secretary of State, will head the U. S. delegation to a special wartime conference of American republics to be held in Mexico City February 15, it was announced today.

Nelson D. Rockefeller, Assistant Secretary of State, will be the alternate delegate.

Argentina and El Salvador are not expected to be represented at the conference, the latter because it has yet to establish diplomatic relations with the other American republics. If such relations are established before February 15, El Salvador will probably send a delegate, it was explained.

The Pan-American Union at its monthly meeting, recently, decided unanimously to abstain from voting on Argentina's request for a conclave of American foreign ministers to consider the foreign policy of the Buenos Aires régime, and to afford Argentina an opportunity to plead its case for return to the family of American nations. CHAUVEL GIVEN FOREIGN AFFAIRS POST

PARIS, January 13 — Jean Chauvel, a career diplomat and Patriot leader, has been named Secretary General of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs, with ambassadorial rank.

As founder and director of the intelligence sector within the resistance movement, Chauvel was responsible for the continuous flow of information to the Allies and to General de Gaulle's London headquarters. His organization aided immeasurably in the liberation of Paris. He is a former Secretary General of the Free French Commissariat of Foreign Affairs in Algiers. (OWI)

FRENCH PRESS COMMISSION SET UP

PARIS, January 13 — The French Provisional Government will set up a Consultative Commission of the Press to advise on allocation of paper quotas, circulations, and reductions and increases in size, a Reuter dispatch said today. The Ministers of Information, Interior, and Finance will be represented on the commission. (OWI)

PHILIPPINES PRESIDENT IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, January 13 — President Sergio Osmena of the Philippine Commonwealth has returned from the islands to the United States, the War Department announced last night.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

He will confer with various Government officials concerning relief and rehabilitation measures for the Filipinos as a result of destruction wrought by the Japanese.

President Osmena will return to the Philippines as soon as he completes his conference here. (OWI)

AMERICAN JOURNALISTS MAKE WORLD TOUR

LONDON, January 13 — Three American journalists representing the American Society of Newspaper Editors arrived here today to begin a world tour designed to promote an unrestricted post-war distribution of news.

The committee, which will invite the cooperation of editors in all countries they visit, will also familiarize the peoples of foreign lands with the American-sponsored movement for free international exchange of information.

It is made up of Wilbur Forrest of the New York Herald Tribune, Ralph E. McGill of the Atlanta Constitution, and Carl W. Ackerman, Dean of the Columbia University School of Journalism, in New York.

Forrest said that the group plans to talk to British editors and Government leaders, and then go to liberated and neutral countries, and later to the Middle East, Russia, India, China, Australia, South Africa, South America, and Central America. (OWI)

ESPIONAGE PLOT IN SWEDEN REVEALED

STOCKHOLM, January 13 — What Swedish police say is Sweden's biggest espionage plot of the war, directed against British, American, and Norwegian legations here, was revealed at the trial of J. Lönnegren, Swedish subject and former Stockholm chief of the German-controlled Scandanavian Telegraph Bureau, a Reuter dispatch said today.

Lönnegren admitted giving an official of the German Legation «a complete dossier of the entire staff of the British, American, and Norwegian legations,» and revealing the date of arrival and departure of «a high British officer and of another person reported to belong to the Allied secret service,» the dispatch said.

It was also revealed at the trial that Lönnegren was aided and abetted by B. Paulson, an official of the Swedish Aliens Department. Paulson is accused of giving Lönnegren names and addresses of Norwegian refugees, which were passed on to the German Legation so that reprisals might be taken against the refugees' relations in Norway, according to the dispatch. NAZIS EXTEND SKAGERRAK BLOCKADE

STOCKHOLM, January 13 — The Skagerrak blockade belt will be widened 10 nautical miles eastward, and all ships entering the zone without permission from the German Admiralty run the risk of destruction, the German High Command has announced, according to the Swedish Foreign Office.

As the measure means the richest fishing banks of the Skagerrak will be closed to Swedish fishermen, the Swedish Legation at Berlin has been instructed to protest strongly. (Reuter)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 13 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

Both the 5th and 8th Army fronts were quiet.

Navy:

It is reported from the south of France that on January 10, the French destroyer Le Fortune was attacked by enemy explosive boats south of San Remo. One of them was sunk by gunfire. On the same day Le Fortune successfully bombarded enemy transport and troop concentrations, damage being observed.

On January 11, the French cruiser Georges Leygues bombarded and obtained direct hits on a vessel on the slips at Pietra Ligure, a small port on the Italian coast between Savona and Imperia.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Air operations yesterday were again restricted on account of unfavorable weather. Tactical fighter-bombers and fighters concentrated against enemy communications north of the Po Valley and in the Spezia area. Other targets included enemy-occupied buildings, gun positions, oil and other storage dumps, and rail and road transport.

On the night of January 11/12, intruder aircraft destroyed enemy transport in the Po Valley, while light bombers flew armed reconnaissance over the battle area and the northeastern area of the Po Valley, attacking enemy road targets.

Shipping in the upper Adriatic and enemy road transport in Yugoslavia were attacked by aircraft of the Coastal Air Force.

MAAF flew under 500 sorties.

One of our aircraft is missing.

Land Forces Greece:

Mobile columns continue patrolling north and west from Athens.

A quantity of arms and ammunition has been found.

In Patras, ELAS troops have withdrawn from the town.

Elsewhere in Greece, the situation remains unchanged. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAFF, January 13 — Today's communique:

Land:

On the northern flank of the Ardennes salient, Allied forces made slight progress southeast of Bihain and have taken Langlir. But we are meeting strong resistance in this area, and have repulsed several local counter-attacks with heavy losses to the enemy.

We advanced about a mile toward Bois de Wibren, southeast of Samree, and also along the road from Laroche to Bertogne.

South of Laroche, progress has been made, but a num- [illegible] enemy mines are being encountered.

FASCIST COURT TRIES ITALIAN GENERALS

WASHINGTON, January 13 — Two Italian generals were sentenced to death by the Fascist court in Chiasso for having favored a coup d'état on 25 July 1943, a dispatch to the Swiss Telegraph Agency said recently.

The generals condemned to death were Roboti and Caracciolo. The sentence, however, was commuted to 15 years of military prison, since both are invalids and holders of military awards.

Five other generals also were tried on the same charge. Generals Vecchiarelli and Garibaldi were sentenced to 10 years of military prison. Generals Roatta and Ambrosia, bombarded and obtained direct hits on a vessel on the slips at Pietra Ligure, a small port on the Italian coast between Savona and Imperia.

SHAEF, January 13 — Today's communique:

Land:

On the northern flank of the Ardennes salient, Allied forces made slight progress southeast of Bihain and have taken Langlir. But we are meeting strong resistance in this area, and have repulsed several local counter-attacks with heavy losses to the enemy.

We advanced about a mile toward Bois de Wibren, southeast of Samree, and also along the road from Laroche to Bertogne.

South of Laroche, progress has been made, but a number of roadblocks and many mines are being encountered.

We occupied Hines and Mierchamps, and reached the outskirts of Champlon. Our units which encircled a small enemy pocket sountheast of Bastogne continued to close in from the east and west.

The link-up of our forces was made near Bras. Wardin and Bras are now in our hands, and we have made gains beyond Doncols. An enemy convoy attempting to leave the pocket was heavily damaged by our artillery.

South of Wiltz, we gained more than a mile in the vicinity of Nocher.

East of Luxembourg, our units cleared the village of Machtum, on the west bank of the Moselle River, 1½ miles south of Grevenmacher.

In the lower Vosges saliert, we occupied Althorn, and made limited gains north and south of the village despite continued stubborn resistance.

Local gains were also made on the southern flank of the enemy bulge.

We have frustrated an enemy break-through attempt, and inflicted heavy losses during hard fighting in the Maginot Line positions north of the Hagenau Forest.

The enemy has been cleared from Rittershofen, except for a strongpoint in the southern outskirts.

Air:

Weather again severely limited air operations yesterday but fighter-bombers attacked a supply dump near Freckenfeld, west of Wissembourg.

During the afternoon, escorted heavy bombers attacked U-boat shelters and enemy shipping at Bergen.

Three of our bombers are missing. (Reuter)

MOSCOW January 13 — Tonight's communique:

Troops of the 1st Ukrainian Front passed over to the offensive on January 12 from the area west of Sandomierz, and, in spite of bad weather, which denied them the support of aviation, broke through the strongly fortified defenses of the enemy on a 40-kilometer front. A decisive factor in the break-through was the powerful and well organized artillery offensive.

During two days of offensive battles, troops of this front advanced up to 40 kilometers and expanded the breach up to 60 kilometers along the front. In the course of the offensive, our troops captured by storm the following powerful strongpoints of the enemy defenses: Szydlow, Chmielnik, Buskozdruy (Busko), and [illegible]lica, and also occupied in fighting over 350 other populated localities, including Chizhuk, Schetnok, Selchitse, Lubanya, Kladku, Mienov, Galub, Posturka, Bobushitse, Zagod, Kosniki, Strozhivka, and Zhostkuv.

In Budapest our troops continuing fighting for the annihilation of the encircled German-Hungarian groupings, occupied 94 city blocks.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and, at several points, fighting of local importance took place.

On January 12 our troops disabled or destroyed, on all fronts, 36 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, eight enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

Groups of Patriots blew up a railway line near Alpignano, in Turin Province, the night of December 27.

A brigade of Patriots hit with mortar and machine-gun fire units of Fascist SS troops and German headquarters at Berghetto di Vara, in Liguria. Other Patriots destroyed two enemy transports in this sector on January 1.

The increasing activity of Patriots forced the enemy to send troops to the Spezia-Genova highway. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 13 — The High Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the Ardennes, the fierceness of the enemy attacks abated owing to our counter-attacks. North of Laroche, our troops repulsed the enemy who had made local gains, in part in nightly encounters. Southeast of Bastogne, the Americans were pushed back by our counter-attacks. A gap punched into our lines, yesterday, was sealed off.

In Alsace, at Hatten and Rittershofen, the captured fortified zone of the Maginct line is being cleared of the enemy. The Americans who launched unsuccessful counter-attacks throughout the whole day, suffered high losses by our concentrated fire. South of Erstein, our troops wiped out the second encircled enemy force. According to incomplete statements, the enemy lost an ascertained number of 250 killed. Twenty six officers and more than 700 men were made prisoner.

Italy:

On the central Italian fronts, bad weather conditions limited the fighting activities. On the Adriatic coast, the British launched some isolated and unsuccessful thrusts.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, between Lake Balaton and the Danube, yesterday, there was only local fighting. The enemy made fierce attacks on the southeastern districts of Budapest. They were frustrated by our garrison in grim fighting. North of the Danube our attacks made further progress despite the increased enemy resistance. Soviet attempts at cutting off our spearheads by attacks on the flanks, were frustrated.

At the southern frontier of Slovakia, attempts at break-[illegible] by seven Soviet rifle divisions between teries of the Navy shot down two additional enemy aircraft. Over the bight of Kiel, night fighters shot down another six heavy British bombers.

London continues to be subjected to a retalintory bombardment.

Western Front: Sertorius describes the situation in the eastern Ardennes as «fluid,» because neither of the opposing parties is prepared for trench-warfare; he claims, however, that generally there has been no Allied advance beyond «the scheduled German disengaging movements.» In Alsace, he admits the «further intensification of Allied counter-measures,» but maintains that the initiative is still in German hands, and that «slow but steady German progress» is being made everywhere in this sector.

Eastern Front: Alfred von Olberg, Transocean correspondent, in his despatch describes the Russian offensive moves in various sectors of the Eastern Front. He claims that, in spite of extremely strong concentration of forces, the Russians were stopped everywhere, at the Vistula as well as in East Prussia and on the Slovakian border, with the exception of the centre of the Baranov bridgehead, where «several breaches were made in the German lines...» He envisages further heavy battles in this particular area. Writing about the fighting in Hungary, he states that it «recedes somewhat into the background» in comparison with the other Russian offensives, although he admits that «the battle for Budapest could hardly be intensified any further,» and that «the struggle for the belt of fortifications screening the heart of the city rages unceasingly.»

LANDINGS ON LUZON SECURE 4 BEACHHEADS; OPPOSITION LIGHT; SHIPS AND PLANES ATTACK

LEYTE, Philippines, January 9 — American forces, led personally by General Douglas MacArthur, landed at 0930 hours Pacific time today on Luzon Island, largest and most important island of the Philippines, it was announced

In pre-landing assaults on Luzon and in adjacent enemy waters, 67 enemy ships were destroyed or damaged since December 20.

A Reuter dispatch said that in the sea and air operation — the prelude to the landing — Jap planes tried in vain to break the cohesion of the American movement covering troop ships and landing vessels as the troops began to go ashore.

A communique from General MacArthur reported today the destruction of 79 Japanese aircraft, two destroyers, a midget submarine and a cargo ship in the last few days as the enemy attempted to fight off the huge U. S. convoy bringing the troops to Luzon.

Enemy not prepared

An Associated Press dispatch pointed out that although the Tokyo radio had boasted that Luzon could be reached only at terrific cost, U. S. material and manpower losses in the preparations and in the actual landing operation were light.

«The enemy evidently had not prepared for a landing in the Lingayen sector and as a result of this strategic surprise, our landing losses were insignificant,» the communique said.

«We are now in his lair,» it added, as press dispatches recalled that when General MacArthur went ashore with landing forces on Leyte he dramatically remarked «We have returned» to fulfill the promise he made when he was forced to leave Corregidor and Bataan in March, 1942.

The return of American soldiers to Luzon brings them to the scene of the heroic but hopeless five-month stand by American and Filipino soldiers which ended at Bataan and Corregidor. Since then, Luzon has been the island most frequently complained about in Jap broadcasts as the site of intense patriot activities.

The landings on Luzon were the third major step in the American offensive in the Philippines. On October 19, landings were made on Leyte, which was liberated completely in 10 weeks. On December 15, landings were made on Mindoro and as the Americans moved their positions northward in the direction of Luzon, only last Friday, Marinduque, a small island 30 miles on Mindoro and south of Luzon, was occupied by MacArthur's forces without opposition.

Luzon covers about one-third of the total area of the archipelago. The island contains about one-third of the 18 million population in the Philippines, 80 per cent of the railroads and half the highway mileage of the Philippines.

Manila, its capital, is 1,865 miles southwest of Tokyo. The entire island of Luzon covers an area of 41,000 square miles, almost twice the size of Holland and Belgium combined and about the same size as Bulgaria.

Lingayen Gulf has low, sandy shores which make it favorable for amphibious operations. The Japanese landed at this point in December 1941, soon after the attack on Pearl Harbor. One writer, one of the most important events

LEYTE, Philippines, January 9 — American forces, led personally by General Douglas MacArthur, landed at 0930 hours Pacific time today on Luzon Island, largest and most important island of the Philippines, it was announced tonight.

The landings were made in the Lingayen Gulf, in the center of the western part of the island and about 100 miles north of Manila and about 450 miles south of Formosa.

Opposition was said to be light and the announcement said that American losses are «insignificant.» Four of the sandy beaches of the gulf already have been taken by American forces.

Terrific attacks from American warships and planes preceded the landings, the communique said. The Japanese air force struck repeatedly and desperately at Allied naval units, inflicting some damage, it added.

Press dispatches described the American forces as «huge» and headquarters here disclosed that the troops which went ashore were ground forces of the US 6th Army, under command of Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger — the same army which spearheaded the Leyte campaign.

The landing was prepared by warships and land and Navy planes which steadily have been hitting targets from the Kuriles to the Philippines.

Before the landings today, air strikes were concentrated for 10 consecutive days on aerodromes on the island, particularly at Clark Field, northwest of Manila. These and similar strikes have cost the enemy 385 planes destroyed or damaged since December 20.

midget submarine and a cargo ship in the last few days as the enemy attempted to fight off the huge U. S. convoy bringing the troops to Luzon.

Enemy not prepared

An Associated Press dispatch pointed out that although the Tokyo radio had boasted that Luzon could be reached only at terrific cost, U. S. material and manpower losses in the preparations and in the actual landing operation were light.

«The enemy evidently had not prepared for a landing in the Lingayen sector and as a result of this strategic surprise, our landing losses were insignificant,» the communique said.

«We are now in his lair,» it added, as press dispatches recalled that when General MacArthur went ashore with landing forces on Leyte he dramatically remarked «We have returned» to fulfill the promise he made when he was forced to leave Corregidor and Bataan in March, 1942.

The return of American soldiers to Luzon brings them to the scene of the heroic but hopeless five-month stand by American and Filipino soldiers which ended at Bataan and Corregidor. Since then, Luzon has been the island most frequently complained about in Jap broadcasts as the site of intense patriot activities.

The landings on Luzon were the third major step in the American offensive in the Philippines. On October 19, landings were made on Leyte, which was liberated completely in 10 weeks. On December 15, landings were made on Mindoro and as the Americans moved their positions northward in the direction of Luzon, only last Friday, Marinduque, a small island 50 miles on Mindoro and south of Luzon, was occupied by MacArthur's forces without opposition.

Luzon covers about one-third of the total area of the archipelago. The island contains about one-third of the 18 million population in the Philippines, 80 per cent of the railroads and half the highway mileage of the Philippines.

Manila, its capital, is 1,865 miles southwest of Tokyo. The entire island of Luzon covers an area of 41,000 square miles, almost twice the size of Holland and Belgium combined and about the same size as Bulgaria.

Lingayen Gulf has low, sandy shores which make it favorable for amphibious operations. The Japanese landed at this point in December 1941, soon after the attack on Pearl Harbor. The gulf is one of the most important seaways on the western coast of Luzon Island. It juts into the land from northwest to southeast. Its mouth is 25 miles across and its length about 35 miles.

The gulf has two deep seaports, San Fernando in the province of La Union, and Lingayen City in the province of Pangasinan. The entire La Union shore line has wide sandy beaches leading to tropical vegetation that in most places marks about a mile of flat terrain, ending in an abrupt rise into the mountains.

Press dispatches said that San Fernando most likely has been Japan's main shipping port on Luzon since American Army and Navy planes made Manilla Bay virtually untenable. (OWI - Reuter)

SUPERFORTRESSES BOMB TOKYO

GUAM, January 9 — Superfortresses of the 21st Bomber Command today bombed the industrial area of Tokyo in the sixth aerial attack of the war on the Japanese capital, according to an official announcement.

It was the first time Tokyo has been hit since December 27. Yesterday, Superfortresses attacked the industrial city of Nagoya.

These attacks and the bombing of Formosa today by China-based Superfortresses were followed by the official report tonight that American troops had landed on Luzon Island in the Philippines.

An announcement from Pacific Fleet headquarters last night said that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief in the Pacific, had conferred with General Douglas MacArthur in the Philippines, presumably on a timetable for the defeat of Japan.

Australian soldiers have relieved United States forces in the Solomons, New Britain and British New Guinea, areas where enemy garrisons have been by-passed and pinned down for some time, according to an announcement from General MacArthur's headquarters.

Within a week of taking over the positions on Bougainville, the Australians opened an offensive supported by Australian and New Zealand planes and drove the Japanese from a hill, smashed a counter-attack and then went on to attack another position, the BBC reported.

The Australians have been engaged in large scale operations since November in British New Guinea and on Bougainville and are garrisoning the Treasury Islands, dispatches said.

A message from Sydney, Australia, revealed that British Spitfires are among Allied planes now operating from Halmahera south of the Philippines. (OWI-BBC)

FORMOSA TARGETS HIT

WASHINGTON, January 9 — Superfortresses, flying from bases on Saipan and in China, today struck the enemy from two directions, attacking targets on the Japanese-held island of Formosa. This island guards the China coast.

Saipan-based Superforts of the 21st Bomber Command also attacked Honshu, the island upon which Tokyo stands.

Later today a communique from Pacific Fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor announced that carrier-based planes of the U.S. 3rd Fleet attacked Formosa and the Ryukyu Islands which lie between Formosa and the Japanese home islands.

Formosa is 90 miles from the China coast and 225 miles north of the capital Philippine island of Luzon. Nagoya is the industrial heart of the Japanese empire.

The War Navy Department announcements came on the heels of a statement by General Chennault, commander of the 14th USAAF, that his flyers are « in a great many ways prepared to support a landing on the China coast. »

General Chennault told reporters in Chungking today that he was « greatly encouraged » by successes of his own airmen and developments in the Pacific. He made particular reference to the air offensive against Formosa and Luzon. His pilots he said, had wiped out about one-third of the Japanese air forces in China last month.

« You can almost count the shipping and planes left to Japan, » he said. « The overall destruction — that is by all the forces engaged in fighting against Japan — has exceeded the most authoritative estimate of Japanese aeroplane production. »

FURTHER ALLIED GAINS NORTH OF SALIENT

LONDON, January 9 — The Allied counter-offensive in the Belgian battle area made small but important gains in bitter weather today on the northern flank of the German salient.

American armor and infantry forces advanced 2,500 yards over ice and snow-covered ground to take the village of Cielle, within a mile of the road and rail junction of Laroche. It is at this point that the corridor between the American 1st and 3rd Armies is 10 miles wide.

The greatest threat to the German salient, however, occurred to the northeast, where troops of the 82nd Airborne Division by-passed Vielsalm to reach Provedroux, four miles from the last German supply highway from St. Vith to Houffalize. The Americans are north of a point where the highway splits in two for a stretch of six miles. When the southern loop is reached, the German Army will be forced to fall back on difficult mountain roads to supply food, fuel and ammunition to their forces in the bulge.

At the western tip of the German thrust, British 6th Airborne troops forced the Germans to make a 1,000-yard withdrawal east of Marche. The Germans are fighting a stiff rear-guard battle around Bure but the British are advancing on a two-mile front.

The Germans were officially said to be on the defensive all along the northern flank of the Ardennes sector and there have been no enemy counter-attacks in 24 hours. The Allied spokesman said that although the Allies were rolling back the German line on a 25-mile front, it did not necessarily mean that the entire German line was collapsing.

On the southern flank, 3rd Army troops advanced a mile in the Flamierge area, six miles northwest of Bastogne, but later withdrew to their original positions under heavy German counter-attacks.

Between Bastogne and Wiltz, thousands of American heavy guns were trained on an area 35 miles square and the continuous fire 24 hours a day has broken up more than 50 German counter-thrusts, press dispatches reported. Despite a heavy snowstorm and a strong wind there was no letup in firing yesterday, and press reports estimated that at least 15 enemy artillery batteries a day have been temporarily neutralized or knocked out.

Two German counter-attacks were beaten off in this area and valuable ground was regained by 3rd Army troops. Disorganized remnants of the two German attacks are being rounded up.

Seventh Army forces ground out a gain of half a mile in the German bulge west of Bitsch, the SHAEF communique reported, while to the east of Saargemund Allied forces recaptured Rimlingen.

Press dispatches reported minor activity on the narrow German bridgehead across the Rhine, 12 miles above Strasbourg, and that the German offensive in this sector had been checked. Below Strasbourg, German armor and infantry elements continued aggressive action and on the perimeter of the Colmar bulge were said to have broken through Allied outpost lines.

On the French Atlantic coast in the St. Nazaire area, where a large force of Germans are still holding out, a 12-day truce was declared in order to evacuate 12,000 civilians from the battle area, Supreme Headquarters announced today. The truce will begin January 18. (OWI-Reuter-AP)

50,000 TONS OF BOMBS DROPPED IN 18 DAYS

British Closing In

In Burma, Indian troops of the British 14th Army on Sunday entered Shwebo, 50 miles northwest of Mandalay and have consolidated their positions, today's Southeast Asia Command communique reported. The Japanese are holding out in the south of the town, the BBC said. Other British forces are closing in from the northeast and northwest.

Liberation of Shwebo will be a serious blow to the Japanese plan of the defense of Mandalay, correspondents said. It was the northern apex of the Shwebo-Monywa-Mandalay communications triangle. The only natural barrier now between the 14th Army and Mandalay is the Irrawaddy River, which the Japanese are reported to be mining in preparation for a probable stand at Mandalay, the BBC said.

China-based Liberators today sank a Japanese freighter, part of an enemy convoy off Swatow on the South China coast in Kwang Tung Province. Targets in Samah Bay and on Hainan Island were also attacked. One Liberator failed to return.

Eastern Air Command heavies bombed bridges on the Burma-Siam railway, engine sheds at Moulmein, oil installations and a warehouse in central Burma. Fighter-bombers Sunday attacked enemy troops, administrative quarters, and river craft in the Arakan coastal area. (BBC-OWI)

LONDON, January 9 — Fifty thousand tons of bombs have been dropped on German rail lines and marshalling yards by Allied aircraft since December 21, the BBC reported today.

Heavy bombers operating from bases in Britain hit Coblenz eight times, Cologne six times, Trier four times, Kaiserlautern three times, Frankfurt twice, and Hanover twice. These German communications centers are among more than 50 marshalling yards and railway junctions which have formed the almost exclusive targets of heavy strategic bombers which have sometimes made 2,000 sorties in 24 hours.

These attacks, the BBC correspondent said, have been almost unopposed by the Luftwaffe, except for five days and one night out of the 18. On two of these occasions, Allied planes struck at oil targets.

The heavy air raid damage to important German war factories and the lack of Luftwaffe opposition has forced Hitler to order that the production of arms and ammunition for the Luftwaffe be given priority over all other forms of war production, a report in the Swedish paper Aftonbladet said.

Articles in the Swiss paper St. Galler Tagblatt said that since the beginning of the Allied air offensive against German transport in December, a large rail bridge and rail installations at th important junction of Singen have been destroyed and that Donau Eschingen, another rail center, has been devastated. The Swiss report said that scores of important rail lines, bridges and sidings have been plowed up by Allied carpet bombings, which have compelled the German railway service to operate provisionally on constantly repaired single tracks.

To further facilitate the operation of the Allied air offensive, the headquarters of the U.S. Strategic Air Force in Europe has been moved from Britain to France, it was announced today. This headquarters co-ordinates the operations of the 8th USAAF in Britain and the 15th USAAF in Italy. (OWI - BBC)

SKI PATROLS CLASH ON ITALY FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 9 — White-clad ski patrols of the 5th Army were active all along the snowbound Apennines slopes yesterday as wintry weather virtually immobilized all major operations on the Italian front, it was officially reported here today.

Enemy forces also employed white overalls to cross the snow-covered slopes of the Santerno River Valley, southeast of Bologna, in an attack against Allied positions in the Monte Grande area. The enemy force, numbering about 30 men, was repulsed. In a night clash, a patrol from the American 361st Infantry Regiment encountered heavy enemy resistance in the vicinity of the enemy-held village of Barchetta, some nine miles south of Bologna and just east of the main Bologna Highway.

On the 8th Army front, Allied patrols were active along the Senio River front which stretches for 30 miles across the southeastern end of the Po Plain. A small enemy patrol crossed the Reno River near its mouth, south of Porto Garibaldi, but was driven back. Prisoners were taken.

There was no change in forward positions anywhere along the Italian Front yesterday. (PRO)

BOMBERS HIT TARGETS IN AUSTRIA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 9 — Despite heavy weather which obscured all targets, yesterday Liberators and Flying Fortresses of the 15th USAAF attacked four key communication targets in Austria, using instruments, it was reported here today.

The main attack was concentrated on the communications and industrial area at Linz, 95 miles west of Vienna and the choke-point for traffic to Vienna, Regensburg, Salzburg and Munich. Other communications points hit were those at Klagenfurt, Graz and Villach, also in Austria.

The cloudy weather and snowstorms restricted fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force to 324 sorties, less than one-third its normal operations. (PRO)

SOVIETS ADVANCE CONTINUES

MOSCOW, January 9 — As the battle for Budapest entered its second week today, Red Army troops made steady gains on the northern banks of the Danube, while other Russian forces held two strong German relief columns driving on Budapest.

The Soviet flanking drive northwest of Budapest was reported to be within eight miles of the important communications center of Komarno and tonight's Soviet communique said that several more towns had been captured. Russian tank and infantry forces were on the immediate approaches to the Czechoslovak rail junction and their artillery fire straddled the rail line leading to Bratislava, 60 miles distant.

German pressure to break through to their besieged garrison at Budapest was strengthened by reinforcements of armor and infantry despite severe tank losses. The Germans were last reported 15 miles from the capital, and [illegible] breaking through the Soviet lines

The Allies, the statement said, continued to sink enemy undersea craft in widely separated parts of the Atlantic. The announcement of the recent landing of the enemy from U-boats on the Maine coast is another indication that the menace of Germany's undersea fleet is real and continuing, the joint report said. YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE FOUR GERMAN BASES

LONDON, January 9 — Yugoslav forces have captured four German strongholds in northwestern Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito's communique announced today.

Three of the strongholds were captured in the Dolenjska sector of Slovenia. They were Zuromberk, Aidovec and Lipovec, captured after several days fighting. In addition, the Yugoslavs took by assault the important German base at Polom and thus prevented the Germans from bringing reinforcements from Kocevje to their forces on the left bank of the Krka River.

Yugoslav forces also blew up a bridge on the Celje-Maribor railway line and blew up a train in Styria. (OWI)

BRITISH M.P'S VISIT FRONT-LINE TROOPS

FLORENCE, January 9 — The six members of the British Parliament who are making a three-week tour of liberated Italy began their front-line visit today. They arrived here yesterday from Rome.

The MPs, Mr. J. J. Lawson (Labor), Captain F. J. Bellenger (Labor), Wing Commander A. W. H. James (Conservative), Major H. G. Studholme (Conservative), Mr. J. D. Campbell (Conservative), and Captain R. H. Bernays (Liberal), began their tour of forward areas today with a visit to 5th Army headquarters, continuing to other forward elements in a program which continued until the evening.

During the day they talked to men of the British and Dominion armies in Italy and visited forward areas held by troops of the 6th South African Armored Division.

Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott Jr., 5th Army Commander, gave the MPs a talk on the local military situation.

Captain Bellenger, said: «The men look very fit and are in great form. We came out here to see the troops and answer their questions. We are on the lookout for problems that may be worrying them and to give them first-hand news of what is going on at home.»

The party will continue its tour of other sectors of the 5th Army. (PRO-UNN)

BRONZE STAR FOR GEN. BRADLEY

HQ, 12TH ARMY GROUP, January 9 — Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th Army Group, told a press conference today that German losses in the Rundstedt counter-offensive have been so serious that they may effect materially the course of the war on the Western Front.

The thwarting of the Rundstedt attack in the Ardennes sector of the Belgian bulge may have reduced Germany's ability to prolong the war, he said, adding, however, that the Germans are not on the verge of collapse and that «there is considerable fighting ahead.»

General Bradley discussed the Rundstedt counter-offensive for the first time soon after it was announced at SHAEF that he had been awarded the Bronze Star by General Eisenhower, for disrupting Rundstedt's plan of attack. He also received congratulations from Prime Minister Churchill for leading American troops in the «epic of Bastogne.»

The Germans were last reported 15 miles from the capital, and should they succeed in breaking through the Soviet lines they would have to cross the bridgeless Danube to Pest.

A heavy battle is in progress near Esztergom and at the railway junction of Bicske, 17 miles west of Budapest, where the fighting is growing in intensity. Press dispatches reported that more than 400 tanks have been knocked out since the German drive was launched last week.

Tonight's communique said that Red Army troops tightened the circle around the Hungarian capital today and captured 350 blocks of houses, including a racetrack which had been converted into an airfield. The suburb of Kispest was captured after a heavy 18-hour battle, in which the Russians attacked with tanks, flamethrowers and mortar and artillery fire. (OWI - Radio Moscow - Reuter)

BRONZE STAR FOR GEN. BRADLEY

HQ, 12TH ARMY GROUP, January 9 — Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th Army Group, told a press conference today that German losses in the Rundstedt counter-offensive have been so serious that they may affect materially the course of the war on the Western Front.

The thwarting of the Rundstedt attack in the Ardennes sector of the Belgian bulge may have reduced Germany's ability to prolong the war, he said, adding, however, that the Germans are not on the verge of collapse and that « there is considerable fighting ahead. »

General Bradley discussed the Rundstedt counter-offensive for the first time soon after it was announced at SHAEF that he had been awarded the Bronze Star by General Eisenhower, for disrupting Rundstedt's plan of attack. He also received congratulations from Prime Minister Churchill for leading American troops in the « epic of Bastogne. »

Since Rundstedt opened his counter-offensive December 16, General Bradley asserted, there have been more German prisoners taken by the American armies alone than the number of Americans reported captured by the Germans in that attack or missing in action.

General Bradley said that the Rundstedt attack was the direct result of the pressure which the American 1st, 3rd and 9th Armies and forces of the 6th Army Group brought to bear against a weakening German defense line in the northern sector of the Western Front. The Allied advances, he explained, were threatening vital German areas and the enemy had to launch some diversionary attack.

The Allied command studied the possibility of a German counter-attack through the Ardennes, General Bradley added, but « the actual timing of the attack and its strength were somewhat of a surprise. »

« In leaving the Ardennes line lightly held, we took what is known as a calculated risk to strengthen our northern and southern drives more, » he explained.

« In other words, instead of employing our surplus divisions in the then-quiet Ardennes, we used them to attack on other sectors. This technique — of striking boldly while taking calculated risks — is what has got us to the German border.

«In my opinion, had we followed more cautious policies we would still be fighting west of Paris. We felt, in the case of the Ardennes, that we could take this risk because this territory contained no strategic objectives or large supply installations and when Rundstedt sent his troops into action with orders to live on American dumps they found slim pickings in an empty pocket.

«Many of the prisoners we have captured have been hungry and we have now captured many tanks and vehicles stalled for lack of fuel.»

The Bronze Star award cited General Bradley's «tactical skill» and also lauded the great fighting qualities of the 12th Army Group, which consists of all Allied forces on the southern flank of the Ardennes bulge.

The citation accompanying the award said: «As (Rundstedt's) hostile attack drove forward in the center, General Bradley instantly sensed the points at which the principal defensive measures should be concentrated. Realizing that maintenance of communications with his northern flank would be difficult, he turned over to Field Marshal Montgomery temporary operational control of the 9th Army and part of the 1st Army north of the penetration, while he devoted himself to the southern flank.

«With his tactical skill, clear insight and decision and unfaltering determination, he not only made rapid counter-attacks to ensure the integrity of keypoints of his positions, but eventually withstood furious attacks on the main force by hostile forces and seriously disrupted a hostile plan of attack.»

Prime Minister Churchill's telegram said: «I congratulate you whole-heartedly upon the signal mark of merit which has been conferred upon you by the Supreme Commander-in-Chief. It seems to embody the feelings that we Britons all have about your part in this great battle in which U.S. troops have won such high renown and above all the epic of Bastogne.

«We are proud to serve in loyal comradeship with your soldiers and to march with them to final victory.»

3RD ARMY SWITCH SAVED LUXEMBOURG

WITH THE U.S. 3RD ARMY, January 9 — The switching of U.S. 3rd Army divisions from the Saar Basin into Luxembourg and Belgium, saved the city of Luxembourg, relieved the American garrison at Bastogne and wrested the initiative from the Germans, a correspondent reported on Sunday.

The 320th Regiment of the 35th Division, previously in position east of Saargemünd, in 32 hours, advanced across the Sure River in Luxembourg, gained four miles and took three towns, the report said. The feat of this unit was representative of the military accomplishments of the 3rd Army in its amazingly swift attack, which helped to break Rundstedt's offensive on the Western Front.

On December 16, when the German attack was launched, the 3rd Army was slowly advancing into the Siegfried Line at Saarlautern and Dillingen and nearing the Siegfried Line in the Saargemünd sector. Plans for a new offensive were ready.

The decision to expand and shift the weight of the 3rd Army to the north to attack the southern German flank was made on December 18. By next day, the 3rd Army started to move and by the 22nd its units were striking northeast, north and west from Luxembourg city and north toward Bastogne.

Six of the eight divisions moved or started to move within three days and the last was committed or in position to attack on the new front by December 27. Many thousands of men in division, corps and army, with their vehicles and guns, were moved laterally from 70 to 110 miles. The roads were jammed for miles within 10 minutes'

THIRD BAR TO D.S.O. FOR AIRMAN

LONDON, January 9 — Wing Commander J. B. Tait, leader of three attacks against the German battleship Tirpitz, has been awarded a third bar to the Distinguished Service Order, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

The award — the first of its kind ever given an RAF airman — is a rare distinction, having occurred only twice in the Royal Navy and not at all in the Army.

Commander Tait was cited for completing 98 difficult sorties against dangerous targets and for the brilliant results obtained, which were due to his leadership and skill.

LIBERATED ITALY

ROME PRESS DAILY REVIEW

ROME, January 9 — Depositions in the forthcoming Roatta trial, Alberto Cianca's speech, an issue between Italy and Yugoslavia and the Sicilian Fascist reaction form the basis of comment in today's Rome newspapers.

Avanti! (Socialist) reports a statement made by Francesco Jacomoni, former Governor of Albania, one of the defendants in the forthcoming Suvich-Roatta trial: «Ciano told me that he intended to make King Zog disappear; by disappear he meant to kill.»

Unità (Communist) writes: «If things did not go well in Albania, according to Jacomoni, it was largely due to Zenone Benini, former Under Secretary for Albanian Affairs, who saw in Albania only a country to be exploited. He (Jacomoni) more than once energetically opposed speculations of the under secretary, which would have damaged the Albanian people.»

Tempo (Independent) writes: «Jacomoni denies that the occupation of Albania was an 'aggression'.»

Italia Libera (Acion Party) publishes a confidential document which it defines as proof of the Mussolini Government's «cynicism and irresponsibility.» It is the report of the Cabinet meeting held on May 29, 1940, in which the war against France was decided.

WITH THE U.S. 3RD ARMY, January 9 — The switching of U.S. 3rd Army divisions from the Saar Basin into Luxembourg and Belgium, saved the city of Luxembourg, relieved the American garrison at Bastogne and wrested the initiative from the Germans, a correspondent reported on Sunday.

The 320th Regiment of the 35th Division, previously in position east of Saargemünd, in 32 hours, advanced across the Sure River in Luxembourg, gained four miles and took three towns, the report said. The feat of this unit was representative of the military accomplishments of the 3rd Army in its amazingly swift attack, which helped to break Rundstedt's offensive on the Western Front.

On December 16, when the German attack was launched, the 3rd Army was slowly advancing into the Siegfried Line at Saarlautern and Dillingen and nearing the Siegfried Line in the Saargemünd sector. Plans for a new offensive were ready.

The decision to expand and shift the weight of the 3rd Army to the north to attack the southern German flank was made on December 18. By next day, the 3rd Army started to move and by the 22nd its units were striking northeast, north and west from Luxembourg city and north toward Bastogne.

Six of the eight divisions moved or started to move within three days and the last was committed or in position to attack on the new front by December 27. Many thousands of men in division, corps and army, with their vehicles and guns, were moved laterally from 70 to 110 miles. The roads were jammed for miles within 10 minutes' fighter-plane time from the German lines. But the movement was carried out with negligible loss.

The 90th Division pulled all its men and all but one of its tanks back across the bridgeless Saar at Düllingen without the loss of a man. The 95th Division pulled out of the Saarlautern suburb of Ensdorf also across an unbridged Saar.

The 4th Infantry Division northeast of Luxembourg city was joined by the 5th Division by December 23 and together they nullified any German threat to the city in two days.

On December 22 the 4th Armored Division, formerly in the Bitsch area, jumped off from a point 20 miles south of Bastogne and drove northward over frozen ground with a speed and power reminiscent of the drive across France. They relieved the Bastogne garrison by December 27.

GERMAN CARGO SHIP SET ON FIRE

LONDON, January 9 — Royal Air Force Mosquito bombers and Beaufighters made three sweeps over Norwegian fjords this afternoon and in their wake they left a modern German cargo ship ablaze, a small merchantman sinking, and a large ship and two smaller craft burning.

The Air Ministry tonight described these attacks as some of the most damaging made in recent weeks. (Reuter)

ROME PRESS DAILY REVIEW

ROME, January 9 — Depositions in the forthcoming Roatta trial, Alberto Cianca's speech, an issue between Italy and Yugoslavia and the Sicilian Fascist reaction form the basis of comment in today's Rome newspapers.

Avanti! (Socialist) reports a statement made by Francesco Jacomoni, former Governor of Albania, one of the defendants in the forthcoming Suvich-Roatta trial: «Ciano told me that he intended to make King Zog disappear; by disappear he meant to kill.»

Unità (Communist) writes: «If things did not go well in Albania, according to Jacomoni, it was largely due to Zenone Benini, former Under Secretary for Albanian Affairs, who saw in Albania only a country to be exploited. He (Jacomoni) more than once energetically opposed speculations of the under secretary, which would have damaged the Albanian people.»

Italy and Yugoslavia

Under the headline «Between Italy and Yugoslavia,» Bruno Pincherle in Italia Libera (Acion) comments on the Statement made by the Yugoslav Commissar for Foreign Affairs in London, and according to which «peace is possible between Italy and Yugoslavia only after Trieste, Fiume and the other districts annexed to Italy have been ceded to Yugoslavia.»

Pincherle writes, «Trieste, Gorizia, the Istrian coast are undeniably Italian in tradition, customs and culture.

«The fact that Yugoslavia will be one of the victors of the war is not a reason for Marshal Tito to pass from a national policy to a nationalistic one.»

Writing on the Fascist reaction in Sicily, Edoard D'Onofrio writes in Unità (Communist): «Coming from the Continent, one is surprised to see the force which the reaction still has and the abundance of Fascist residues which still infest Sicilian life. In Sicily, the epuration is still a myth and the Fascists not only walk in the streets undisturbed, but have got together again, and are doing their best to organize anti-democratic plots and manifestations of sabotage against the Government and the war for national liberation.

SICILIAN PRESS REVIEW

PALERMO, January 9 — President Roosevelt's message to Congress received considerable space in all the Sicilian newspapers.

Il Giornale di Sicilia wrote: « Roosevelt's words are received with satisfaction by those nations which, having borne the consequences of dictatorship, now long for freedom and security. »

Among the home problems, separatism and large estates drew most attention.

La Voce Socialista wrote: « The transformation of the large estates into municipal cooperatives will eliminate the centers of reactionary infection, turning them into centers of modern agricultural economics. » The same paper advocates « the socialization of mines » (sulphur mines), and plans for public works.

ITALIAN ARMISTICE TERMS PUBLICATION

ROME, January 9 — The Italian Government does not oppose the publication of the Italian armistice terms and is unaware of the military reasons why the terms should not be made public, Armando Rossini, chief of the Government Press Bureau, declared today at a press conference.

An official statement handed to reporters by Rossini discussed the announcement of a « new deal » for Italy made a few days ago by Harold Macmillan, acting president of the Allied Commission for Italy, and recent disturbances in Sicily.

Rossini's declaration on the armistice terms was made in response to a reporter's request for comment on President Roosevelt's recent announcement that military considerations are still important factors in keeping the terms secret.

The statement said: « The Italian Government welcomes the recent declarations of Resident Minister Macmillan concerning the Allied (new deal) for Italy ».

Following a resume of Macmillan's statement, the release said: « These principles are in full agreement with the fundamental principles of Italian policy.

Referring to the disturbances in Sicily, the release said: « The situation was serious for several days in various places in the province of Ragusa. In one clash between demonstrators and the police near Giarratana, a lieutenant and several soldiers were killed.

« According to the latest news reaching Rome, it appears that the well-armed rebels were overcome following energetic steps taken by the government ».

The release stated that order has been restored at Ragusa. « Hotbeds of sedition at Comiso, Vittoria and Giarratana still exist but is is believed that they also will soon be under control ». (UNN)

GAS RATIONING BEGINS TOMORROW

ROME, January 9 — Gas for cooking will be rationed in Rome beginning from tomorrow.

The gas will be rationed to permit all consumers an equal amount for cooking between 1230 and 1400 hours. The maximum monthly consumption allowed will be 50 cubic meters, equivalent to 1.67 cubic meters daily.

Before the war the average monthly consumption was 60 cubic meters. The new daily ration of gas permits the use of three ordinary burners for an hour and a half.

Reading of gas meters will begin tomorrow and will take about a month. On each round a sheet of paper will be left for consumers, marking the number on the meter and showing the rules to be observed.

No restrictions will be imposed on hospitals, clinics and other public institutions. (OWI)

INSURANCE FOR FARM WORKERS ADOPTED

ROME, January 9 — Setting up of a central commission in Rome and of local commissions in municipalities throughout liberated Italy to co-ordinate and administer insurance for agricultural workers was approved at a recent meeting of the Council of Ministers, it was announced here today.

Local commissions will compile the lists of farm workers eligible for insurance and supervise collection of insurance fees from employers, the announcement added.

It was also stated that the central administrative commission, composed of representatives of the Italian General Confederation of Labor and national employers' organizations, will be presided over by an official appointed by the Minister of Public Works. Local commissions will be headed ex-officio by the mayor of the municipality, and will comprise local workers' and employers' delegates. (UNN)

ATHENS RETURNING TO NORMAL

ATHENS, January 9 — The Greek Government today issued an appeal to all residents to return to work without delay so that life in the capital may return to normal.

The appeal was addressed to tradesmen, drivers, dock workers and relief workers, who, it was said, are urgently needed to restore normal living and working conditions to the city.

At the same time, Allied authorities and the International Red Cross asked for the coöperation of the Athens population so that « food and medicine can be distributed without delay to all regardless of their parties or political convictions. »

Meanwhile Athens Radio said that British troops have entered the city of Thebes, about 35 miles northwest of Athens. Earlier reports had said that British armored columns had been held up in a mountain pass about 10 miles below Thebes.

Official sources in London today denied a report by the Athens press that warrants had been issued for the arrest of 150 ELAS « leaders of the rebellion. »

The Foreign Office in London said tonight that Prime Minister Churchill had received a message from representative workers in the port of Piraeus condemning « the fratricidal strife » and expressing gratitude to Mr. Churchill and the gallant British Army for their most generous

WOMEN RENEW DEMANDS FOR SUFFRAGE

ROME, January 9 — An inter-party committee of women today renewed its demands for the right to vote in memorandum to Giuseppe Spataro, Under Secretary to the Office of the Council President.

« If the Government refuses our rights, » the committee told Spataro, « we are determined to use every means within our power to arouse public sentiment in our favor. »

The memorandum asked for « immediate inclusion in election registry lists before lack of time becomes an obstacle to the effective participation of women in the elections. »

Recalling that the Government already had declared itself in favor of women's suffrage, the memorandum said that a denial of their right to vote would be: « 1 - Contrary to the most elementary democratic principle, which grants every citizen the right to vote, regardless of race, creed or sex. 2 - A grave act of injustice to Italian women, who have proved their political and social maturity by their valor in the past years of struggle. 3 - An obstacle to the restoration of Italy to its rightful place beside the civilized nations of the world, which without exception have felt the necessity of granting women the vote.

The memorandum concluded with a request for a clear-cut reply.

Spataro declared himself personally in favor of the women's demands and promised to bring the memorandum to the attention of the Government. He added, however, that inclusion of women on the registry lists might delay the date of the coming elections.

Represented on the committee were the Liberal, Democratic in Rome and of local commissions in municipalities throughout liberated Italy to co-ordinate and administer insurance for agricultural workers was approved at a recent meeting of the Council of Ministers, it was announced here today.

General Scobie, in an order of the day to his troops, praised all ranks for the « disregard of danger and the restraint under provocation » which resulted in complete expulsion of the forces opposed to law and order with a minimum of damage to the innocent civilian population. »

Correspondents said today that ELAS forces are estimated to have lost half their forces engaged in the battle of Athens or about 4,000 killed or wounded and 8,000 taken prisoner.

Arrests by Police Only

The Greek Minister of the Interior, Pericles Rhallis, announced today that he has ordered all arrests in future to be carried out solely by the police and only when an offense had been committed against « law and the public rights. » He added: « In the future no citizen is to be arrested because of his political convictions. »

Three new members were added today to the Greek Cabinet, headed by General Plastiras. Dimitrios Hadziskos became Minister for Supplies, Peter Levantis was sworn in as Minister for Social Welfare and Health, and Athanasios Sbarounis was namd Under Secretary of Finance. As Greece began to return to normal, the Swiss Radio announced today that the Swiss Federal Council has decided to reoccupy the Swiss Legation here, which was forced to suspend its activities last summer during the German occupation of Greece.

Pierre Bonat, head of the Foreign Section of the Political Department (Swiss Foreign Ministry), has been named Minister to Greece. He will be replaced in the Foreign Ministry post by Dr. Walter Stucki, former Swiss Minister to France. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SUBMITS BUDGET

WASHINGTON, January 9 — President Roosevelt today submitted to the United States Congress a government budget for the 1945-1946 fiscal year, beginning July 1 which he said was transmitting at a time when it is « the supreme duty » of the American people to back their fighting men and women « to the limit. »

The budget, prepared by the U.S. Bureau of the Budget to cover the year starting next July 1, outlines more than 75,000-million dollars in appropriations and authorizations for war purposes and in addition more than 13,000 million for other government expenses, the total being estimated at 87,000-million dollars. Each agency will submit its estimates of needs to Congress within the framework of this budget.

Included in the war budget are increased expenditures for pay and subsistence of the armed forces based on maintaining almost 12 million men and women in the armed services because of the higher pay for the larger number of soldiers and sailors stationed overseas; increased expenditures for mustering out payments because of the considerable turnover in the armed forces and continuance of subsidies to assure war output and stabilize the cost of living.

The President warned that America's task in Europe would not end with the end of the war.

Mr. Roosevelt said: « The war will not be won unless we accept our share of the responsibility for the administration of the occupied territories and for the relief and rehabilitation of the liberated areas. The expenditures for these tasks are part of the war budget. »

Mr. Roosevelt added that if appropriations to UNRRA under current agreements become inadequate, « we must take additional measures in co-operation with other nations to make sure that the peoples of the liberated countries have essential relief from the devastation of war. »

Discussing benefits for service men, the President said: « Although the full impact of the veterans' program will not be felt until years following demobilization, the total estimated requirements for 1946 of 2,623 million dollars represent about 20 per cent of the total appropriations for direct war purposes. »

In his budget message, President Roosevelt disclosed that the U.S. had furnished 36,000 million dollars in lend-lease goods and service to the Allies since July 1, 1940, and that the Allies during this period had supplied the U.S. with 4,500 million dollars in reverse lend-lease.

BELGIAN RESISTANCE GROUPS AID GOVERNMENT

LONDON, January 9 — A national consultative committee of Belgian resistance is to be established on the initiative of the Belgian Government, a British correspondent said today in a dispatch from Brussels.

All resistance movements will be represented in order to safeguard the interest of those who belonged to the resistance before the day of liberation, the correspondent said. He reported that there is general satisfaction with the result of preliminary discussions in which representatives of the former armed groups, the clandestine press and intelligence services have taken part.

Discussing the role Belgian resistance is playing in liberated Belgium, the correspondent said that two thirds of the effective of the battalions of the new Belgian army now in the field originate from the resistance groups.

SOVIET AWARDS GIVEN BRITISH OFFICIALS

LONDON, January 9 — Soviet orders were presented here today by Fyodor Gusev, Soviet Ambassador to England, to two members of the British Cabinet and three British military leaders. The awards were made on behalf of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet at an informal ceremony at the Soviet Embassy.

Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Privy Seal, and Oliver Lyttleton, Minister of Production, received the Order of Suvorov, First Degree, for outstanding services in organizing the delivery of supplies to the Soviet Union.

The same order was conferred on Field Marshal Montgomery and was accepted by Sir Alexander Cadogan, Permanent Under Secretary of State. The Order of Ushakov, First Degree, was awarded posthumously to Admiral Sir Bertram H. Ramsay, and the Order of Kutozov, First Class, was given posthumously to Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory.

Field Marshal Montgomery and Admiral Ramsay were cited for « outstanding direction of operations in the forcing of the English Channel and the invasion of France. »

Sir Alexander also accepted the award for Admiral Ramsay. Thomas Leigh-Mallory accepted the order on behalf of his father, who is believed to have been killed on November 14 while en route by plane to take up his appointment as Air Commander-in-Chief of the Southeast Asia Command.

In making the presentations, Ambassador Gusev said that heavy battles still are ahead, but he expressed confidence that the active co-operation of all Allied forces would lead to the defeat of Germany and the liberation of Europe. (Reuter-OWI)

The budget did not include estimates of appropriations for the War or Navy Departments. Estimates of appropriations for the Navy are to be submitted as part of a supplementary budget in the spring.

The largest direct expenditure of the United States government for an independent office was 2,622 million dollars for a Veterans' Administration to cover such services as hospital care, pensions and compensation for ex-servicemen. By June 30, 1944, Government insurance policies had been issued covering more than 11,500,000 individuals in the services with more than 114,623 million dollars insurance.

The budget called for additional funds for the State Department for « continued expansion to meet the needs and problems of liberated areas and conquered territory and to enable the department to prepare for and participate in the coming period of intensive international co-operation. »

A total appropriation of 42 million 487,000 dollars was asked for the Office of the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics and air commerce. This represented an increase of 10 million 106,745 dollars.

The budget stated that the need for food production will not be lessened in the immediate future and that the United States must be prepared to meet the needs of its armed forces, its civilian population and its Allies as well as the requirements of war-torn countries. (OWI-Reuter)

INSIDE GERMANY

GERMANS UNITING WITH FOREIGN WORKERS

LONDON, January 9 — German citizens, facing a severe food shortage, the aggravations of seriously dislocated transportation and breakdown in governmental administration, more stringent labor measures, and the constant danger of Allied bombings, are increasingly uniting with foreign workers in the Reich to oppose the Nazis, reports reaching here indicated yesterday.

A neutral who has just returned from Cologne saw joint German and foreign worker demonstrations there during the past fortnight, Exchange Telegraph reported from Zurich.

Other neutral travelers said the Gestapo had admitted the existence of « Stalingradbund » organizations in Hannover and Ludwigshafen in addition to Hamburg, where they had been reported earlier. The « Stalingradbund » is composed of Germans who believe it was futile to continue the war after the defeat at Stalingrad.

Other reports from Zurich reveal that a new group in the Rhineland, « The Red Eagle, » comprising both German and foreign workers, is engaging in sabotage and anti-Nazi agitation.

In a Stockholm dispatch to the New York Times, George Axelsson said that « by early spring the German civilians will be faced with near starvation » according to information reaching there from various sources. Forty per cent of the Germans are already being fed from army or communal kitchens and canteens, he said.

A dispatch from Berne indicated that Nazi authorities anticipate panic as a result of the growing food shortage. It quoted the Essener National Zeitung as saying German authorities warned the population « not to be alarmed by the bottlenecks in food supply that may arise, and to abstain from panic purchases. »

A Swiss, who recently took seven days to travel the 650 miles from Hannover to St. Margreten in Switzerland, said Germany's transportation crisis is most acute where it counts most — in the industrial section of the Rhineland.

The traveller said he found transport facilities at Hannover smashed. When he reached Hanau, the city was in flames and passengers were forced to walk the 18 miles to Frankfurt. Intermittent air attacks halted the train, destroyed locomotives and impeded the journey to Heidelburg, where he had to wait two days for a train.

Allied air attack on communications is so effective that a package mailed in Cologne to a place « some 60 miles distant » arrives five or six weeks later at the destination, a Berne dispatch to the Chicago Daily News said.

Other reports from Germany show the increasing breakdown of Nazi administration. The Essener National Zeitung said that at Mulheim, hastily-built air raid shelters become flooded after heavy rains, implying that thousands are without protection.

Pressure on labor, meanwhile, increases. The Stockholm paper Morgontidningen said the Nazis are forcing hundreds of thousands of German and foreign workers to work in subterranean factories in abandoned coal mines or hastily constructed plants.

Berlin Radio broadcast a new decree ordering German boys and girls 12 to 14 years old to work in offices. (OWI)

SHAEF, January 9 — Today's communique:

Allied forces have attacked and destroyed the enemy position recently established on the west bank of the River Maas at Wanssum.

On the northern flank of the Ardennes salient, we have cleared the west bank of the River Salm as far as Vielsalm.

Towns on the perimeter of the enemy salient were shelled by his artillery.

The upper Alsace plain was mostly quiet. South of Strasbourg enemy armor and infantry elements continued to be aggressive. Southeast of Strasbourg fighter-bombers attacked a railway station at Gengenbach and a bridge at Zell.

More than 700 heavy bombers, escorted by over 200 fighters, attacked a railway marshalling yard at Frankfurt and marshalling yards, bridges and road and rail junctions inside the enemy lines in Luxembourg and Belgium and on routes leading to the Ardennes and Saar areas. (Reuter)

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 9 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

There has been no change to the forward positions on either the 5th Army or 8th Army fronts.

Mediterranean Allied Air Forces:

A number of communication targets in Austria were attacked yesterday by medium forces of heavy bombers with escort. Centers attacked included Linz, Klagenfurt, Graz and Villach.

Although weather restricted operations by the Tactical Force, a small force of fighter-bombers and fighters attacked targets in the eastern area of the north Italian battle area. Enemy-occupied buildings were hit, road and rail transport destroyed, and rail cuts effected. An ammunition dump south of Imola was attacked and hit by light bombers.

On the night of January 7-8 light bombers and intruder aircraft attacked an airfield and enemy transport in northern Italy.

Coastal aircraft yesterday carried out routine patrols, and intruders bombed bridges and strafed enemy road movements in the area of the Italian Riviera.

Nine of our aircraft are missing from these operations.

MAAF flew more than 1200 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

The situation in Athens-Piraeus remains quiet. Clearing the city and searching for arms, ammunition and explosives continue satisfactorily. Mobile columns are continuing their operations outside the city.

Elsewhere in Greece the situation is unchanged. (PRO)

MOSCOW, January 9 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in the area of Budapest, our troops continued fighting to annihilate the enemy groupings in the city, and tightening the ring of encirclement, occupied the main race track—which was converted by the Germans into an aerodrome—the city park Nepliget, petrolium refinery, machine and tank building plant Hofherr-Schrantz, city district of Pestszenterzsebet, and were clearing off the enemy city district of Kispest. During the day of fighting, our troops occupied over 350 blocks in the city.

Northwest and west of Budapest, our troops were successfully beating back attacks of enemy infantry and tanks.

In battles during January 8, in this area, 60 German tanks were disabled or destroyed.

Allied air attack on communications is so effective that a package mailed in Cologne to a place «some 60 miles distant» arrives five or six weeks later at the destination, a Berne dispatch to the Chicago Daily News said.

Other reports from Germany show the increasing breakdown of Nazi administration. The Essener National Zeitung said that at Mülheim, hastily-built air raid shelters become flooded after heavy rains, implying that thousands are without protection.

Pressure on labor, meanwhile, increases. The Stockholm paper Morgontidningen said the Nazis are forcing hundreds of thousands of German and foreign workers to work in subterranean factories in abandoned coal mines or hastily constructed plants.

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 9 — Today's communique:

Allied forces have attacked and destroyed the enemy position recently established on the west bank of the River Maas at Wanssum.

On the northern flank of the Ardennes salient, we have cleared the west bank of the River Salm as far as Vielsalm. We have extended our hold on the St. Vith-Laroche Highway east of Regne, which we have now captured. The villages of Sart and Verleumont are also in our hands.

In the sector southwest of Grandmenil we have taken Dochamps and have cleared the east bank of the River Ourthe as far south as Marcourt, which we have occupied.

On the southern flank of the salient, Bonnerue, six miles east of St. Hubert, has been cleared after having changed hands twice in the past few days. Increasingly heavy resistance is being met just east of Tillet. Southeast of Bastogne, four enemy columns were dispersed by our artillery, tank and automatic weapon fire as they converged about a half a mile north of Wardin.

Southeast of Wiltz an enemy counter-attack was repulsed by our troops in the vicinity of Dahl. Enemy artillery has been active in the area of Dickweiler, three miles southeast of Echternach.

Our units entered Rimlingen in a local advance eight miles east of Saargemünd.

A gain of a half a mile was made west of Bitsche at the western base of the enemy salient in the Lower Vosges Mountains.

Fighters and fighter-bombers, which operated on a very small scale owing to adverse weather, strafed two enemy transport columns in the Bitsche area and hit objectives at Muterhausen.

Mediterranean Allied Air Forces:

A number of communication targets in Austria were attacked yesterday by medium forces of heavy bombers with escort. Centers attacked included Linz, Klagenfurt, Graz and Villach.

On the northern bank of the Danube, northeast and east of Komarno, our troops continued their offensive and captured the large populated localities of Soldiny, Novaya Diava, Sviatoy Peter, Hetin, Kratkeketi and Izha.

During January 8, in this area, our troops captured over 1,000 men.

On other sectors of the front, there were no essential changes.

During January 8, in air combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 13 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 9 — Today's communique:

In the Apennines, after bitter fighting, a Patriot brigade succeeded in breaking out of an encirclement effected by the «Acata» battalion of Fascist Alpine troops. The battle lasted a whole afternoon. Five Patriots were killed. Enemy losses amounted to 25 killed and 30 wounded.

It is reported that explosions in the Osoppo (Udine) powder works, which took place on November 30 as a result of sabotage activities, lasted three hours. A million shells and more than 22 tons of explosives were destroyed. (UNN)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE:

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 9 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Yesterday, in the northern Ardennes, our troops were again engaged in grim and successful defensive fighting against the Americans who, between the Salm and Ourthe, since midday, were again attempting to break through. Gaps temporarily punched into our lines were sealed off in counter-attacks and numerous prisoners captured. German forces encircled in hotly contested villages extricated themselves. Southeast of Bastogne, American attempts at cutting off our protruding front bulge were frustrated by the successful attacks of the last few days.

On the western slopes of the Lower Vosges and in the mountains themselves, enemy counter-attacks failed with heavy losses to the enemy.

In the Rhine plain, south and southeast of Wissembourg in Alsace, our troops captured the whole glacis of the Maginot line broadening and deepening their penetrations into the fortifications in grim pillbox fighting. North of Strasbourg, resumed attacks of enemy tanks on our bridgehead were repulsed. South of Erstein, the captured territory was cleared of the enemy.

A grim raid on the wellknown bathing resort, Royan, on the Gironde estuary, resulted in reducing most of the town to rubble and the destruction of all hospitals. About 1,000 Frenchmen, one-half of the inhabitants who had remained in the town, fell victim to the Anglo-American terror attack. The surviving people are deprived of food and clothing. The German troops lost 13 killed.

Italy:

In central Italy, the British 8th Army is making new preparations to attack.

Eastern Front:

In southeastern Croatia, the enemy who attacked south of Vukovar on the Danube was repulsed and suffered heavy losses.

In Hungary, south of the Vertes mountains, our formations advanced to the area north of Szekesfehervar in face of grim Soviet resistance. Between the Vertes mountains and the Danube, they frustrated grim enemy counter-attacks. The Bolshevik attacks launched by day and night on the eastern front of Budapest were frustrated by the stubborn resistance of the defenders. On both sides of the Danube, another 99 Bolshevik tanks were destroyed and 98 guns captured during the frustration of numerous attacks.

German bomber formations, despite adverse weather conditions and snow falls, joined in the ground fighting and destroyed another 27 Soviet tanks. Anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force also destroyed 10 tanks.

Yesterday, the Bolsheviks lost a total of 136 tanks in Hungary.

In the western part of the bridgehead of Baranow on the Vistula, there was brisk fighting on both sides.

In Courland, north of Dobler, a considerable number of tanks was destroyed in local offensive and defensive

GERMAN

Germans Sponsor «Greek National Committee»: «Taking advantage of the dispute in Greece between the Greek Government and the EAM, German sources today announce their sponsorship of a third claimant, called the «Greek National Committee.» This third claimant, however, exists on German rather than Greek soil and is composed of men such as Thiornikos, who had collaborated with the Germans as the «deputy premier» of their Athens government during their occupation of Greece.

That the formation of this committee is part of a larger German plan appears indicated by the fact that only a few days ago the German Radio announced the formation of a French «Committee of Liberation», also on German soil. In both cases, the German Radio stresses the rôle of these committees as part of what it calls the «European front against Bolshevism.»

Committee's Three Functions: From a compilation of the facts about this new Greek committee, as derived partly from Transocean and partly from the German Home Radio, it appears that the committee will have three main functions: (1) within Germany: to «safeguard the welfare of the numerous Greek workers» employed there; (2) within Greece: to «safeguard the national interests» there against the Allies; (3) within Europe: to work with Nazi Germany on the «front against Bolshevism.»

The German stress on these Nazi-sponsored Greek and French committees, taken together with the recent continuous German stress upon the Polish crisis, indicates that the encouragement and exploitation of Allied disunity within the liberated countries has now become by far the most prominent propaganda trend of the German Radio.

Renewed Optimism about Western Front: Today the propaganda picture of the German western offensive has entered a third phase. The first phase was the extreme, almost unqualified optimism which accompanied the original launching of the drive in December. The second phase was the almost pessimistic stress upon the Allied counter-moves, a stress especially prominent in the despatches by Sertorius during the past week. A third phase, one of renewed but more cautious optimism, is initiated by the two chief western front reports of this evening, one by Weber over Transocean from Rundstedt's Headquarters and one by Dr. Krull over D.N.B.

Both these reports are, in their optimism and their dire predictions of Allied disasters, in perceptible contrast with the relative pessimism prevailing through the Sertorius reports of the past week and are characterized by such boasts as the following, by Weber:

Eastern Front: The D.N.B. correspondent today places his chief stress on the German counter-drive advancing from south of the Danube in the battle for Hungary.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Japanese Ambassador on Republic: In Tuesday's «Review of the Press» the Fascist Radio quotes an interview reported in the Gazzetta del Popolo, which was granted by the Japanese ambassador to Italy, M. Hidaka. Announcing that «he had spent the greater part of 1944 travelling all over the Republic», the ambassador expressed his conviction that «a new conscience has arisen in the hearts of the masses who mean... to achieve victory at any price in order to prevent a collapse of national resistance.» This, he said, was mainly due to the Duce and also to the personal experiences of people in the territories that had been «liberated». The ambassador praised Marshal Graziani who

AMERICANS GAIN NORTH OF BULGE; NAZI RHINE BRIDGEHEAD STRONGER

LONDON, January 8 — American 1st Army airborne and armored troops, attacking on the northern flank of the German bulge in Belgium, made gains of up to two miles wiped out four German infantry columns totalling a regiment, as they attempted to reinforce their garrison. Apparently unaware that the Americans were so close, the Germans were fired on at short range. The Americans reached the southern bank of the Wiltz River, less than a mile from the city, in this advance.

On the 7th Army front, the German counter-offensive in the Bitsch area appeared to have been contained, although heavy fighting continued. Further to the east, German forces gained some ground south of Wissembourg.

The German threat to the Rhine city of Strasbourg apparently has lessened, a spokesman at Supreme Allied headquarters said today, adding that all German forces along the Rhine were gradually being whittled down.

North of Strasbourg, the Germans' bridgehead over the Rhine has been reinforced by troops, tanks and guns which were ferried over under cover of bad weather. They hold Gambsheim, Offendorf and Drusenheim but a late announcement from Allied headquarters said that the Germans had been pushed back.

Below Strasbourg, French 1st Army forces opened a counter-attack against German forces who previously had advanced along the Rhine-Rhone canal to Herbsheim and north of Friesenheim. The German advance was stopped by demolitions and enemy forces were turned back by attacking French troops.

At the northern end of the Allied front, the Germans yesterday established a new bridgehead over the Meuse (Maas) River between Venlo and Roermond. No new developments in this sector were reported by headquarters but some short patrol clashes occurred. At the mouth of the Meuse River Canadian forces are mopping up German units in an outpost on the southern bank of the river east of Geertruidenberg. (OWI-Reuter-AP)

TOUGH FIGHTING IN ARDENNES

LONDON, January 8 — Allied troops are fighting in the Ardennes salient against tremendous difficulties, having to crawl through deep snow and make their way through undergrowth « that is tougher than German resistance, » a British correspondent wrote in a dispatch today.

He continued: « The supply problem is such that every bit of ammunition and food needed by front-line troops in this sector has had to be run through tracks in the woods. Men have to crawl up bleak ridges on hands and knees and sometimes inch forward on their stomachs, being shot at all the time. »

An American correspondent said the cutting of the St. Vith-La Roche highway represented a gain of five miles into the spearhead of the German salient and « was made in terrible conditions. »

He said: « The Germans fought fiercely for their roadway, using dug-in, self-propelled guns against our tanks.

AMERICANS GAIN NORTH OF BULGE; NAZI RHINE BRIDGEHEAD STRONGER

LONDON, January 8 — American 1st Army airborne and armored troops, attacking on the northern flank of the German bulge in Belgium, made gains of up to two miles today, capturing the town of Bodnamps, five miles northeast of Laroche, late press dispatches reported tonight.

American forces cut the important German supply route from St. Vith to Laroche in three places yesterday and now control a 10-mile stretch of the highway. The only remaining German supply route from St. Vith to Houmaize to Saint Hubert is under heavy shellfire and is directly threatened by 3rd Army troops who advanced to within a mile of the road and captured Flamierge. Press dispatches said the corridor separating the two American armies is 10 miles wide.

German forces on the northern flank have fallen back to a series of strongpoints rather than along a connected line, a spokesman at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters said today. There is some evidence, he went on, that German armor is being withdrawn to the base of the German salient while their infantry holds the strongpoints.

British 2nd Army forces in the Marche-Rochefort sector gained 2,000 yards in heavy fighting. Dispatches reported that there are indications of a local German withdrawal in this sector.

American forces in the area of Vielsalm are said to be closing in on the large communications hub and have captured an important ridge to the southwest of the city. Small villages taken in this sector were heavily mined and booby-trapped.

On the southern flank of the German salient, 3rd Army forces advancing on the Luxembourg rail center of Wiltz apparently has lessened, a spokesman at Supreme Allied headquarters said today, adding that all German forces along the Rhine were gradually being whittled down.

North of Strasbourg, the Germans' bridgehead over the Rhine has been reinforced by troops, tanks and guns which were ferried over under cover of bad weather. They hold Gambsheim, Offendorf and Drusenheim but a late announcement from Allied headquarters said that the Germans had been pushed back.

LATE BULLETINS

GERMAN BRIDGEHEAD OVER MEUSE WIPED OUT

LONDON, January 8 — The German bridgehead over the Meuse River at Wanssum, 12 miles north of Venlo, was wiped out today by British troops, it was reported late tonight. The British attack, made in a heavy snowstorm, eliminated the German threat to drive a wedge between the British and Canadian forces holding the northern flank of the Western Front.

Third Army forces east of Bastogne re-established their lines after laying down the greatest concentration of artillery fire ever maintained against German forces by this army. An estimated 100 German tanks were knocked out and vital ammunition and supply dumps were blown up. (OWI-Reuter)

GERMANS CLEARED FROM WEST BANK OF SALM

Our tanks reached the objective several hours ahead of schedule, despite the difficulty of detecting the road, which was covered with snow.

MUNICH FLAMES AFTER NIGHT STRAFE

LONDON, January 8 — More than 700 American heavy bombers and 200 escorting fighters pounded German transport today in the 16th day of air assaults in the last 17 days.

Targets were the marshalling yards at Frankfurt, road and rail junctions in Germany just opposite the Ardennes bulge and within the bulge itself at points in Belgium and Luxembourg, and rail yards supplying German troops on the Saar front.

Six bombers previously reported missing from yesterday's mission have been found, making a total of three bombers and one fighter missing from the operations.

The American assaults followed two RAF attacks last night on Munich, Hanover, Nuremburg, and Hanau. Night fighters and intruder aircraft supported the bombers and attacked airfields. Fifteen planes are missing.

The bombing of Munich by the RAF was made by two waves of heavies, which hit the target two hours apart. The glow of fires started in the first attack could be seen by crews in the second while more than 100 miles away. The second wave struck with even greater effect.

Well over 1,000 acres of the central area of Munich, an industrial city and routing terminal for railroads carrying supplies to the battlefronts, have been devastated, according to the Air Ministry.

HEAVY SNOW BRINGS LULL ON ITALY FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 8 — A heavy fall of snow, which has piled into impassable drifts in the mountains and has covered the eastern end of the Po plain with slush and flood waters, yesterday forced a lull in the fighting on the Italian front.

The only change in front-line positions mentioned in the official reports occurred in the sector north of Ravenna, where British and Canadian troops pushed through marsh and pinelands as far as the village of Casal Borsetti, 10 miles from Ravenna.

Further inland, other 8th Army units reached the banks of the Reno River, at a point 11 miles north of Ravenna, where the Ravenna-Porto Garibaldi Highway crosses this stream just east of the Comacchio Lagoon.

Canadian and British troops have cleared 50 square miles of coastal lowland between Ravenna and the broad inland Valli di Comacchio in the past four days, official reports stated. As a result of the swift Canadian armored thrust which severed the enemy positions along the southern shores of the lagoon, some 600 enemy prisoners were taken and four German field guns captured intact. Eight tanks and self-propelled guns were destroyed.

Most of the area taken over by the 8th Army forces was heavily mined, with enemy demolitions and floods blocking off much of the few roads which traversed the swampy area.

Today's official reports contained no information regarding the German troops cut off in the marshlands south of Mandriole, an area apparently covered in the along the 8th Army front, especially in the areas about Imola and Alfonsine, and on the narrow spit of land east of the Comacchio Lagoon, leading to Porto Garibaldi on the Adriatic coast.

Fighter-bombers also attacked the Brenner Pass highway, which runs parallel to the railway through the Alps. They also struck at small shipping on Lake Garda and transport in the general region of the valley of the Po.

TAF AGAIN OVER GENOA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 8 — Fighters and fighters-bombers of the Tactical Air Force, in virtually the only missions flown in the bad weather, yesterday continued their attacks on enemy shipping in the Genoa area, it was announced here today.

Diving through heavy cloud cover, these planes attacked a 550-foot tanker and dock installation at Savona, as well as a dry dock at Sestri Ponente and vessels at San Remo harbor, near the French Riviera border. (PRO)

RUSSIANS NEARING KOMARNO

MOSCOW, January 8 — The Red Army spearhead under the command of Marshal Malinovsky drove closer to Komarno, on the north bank of the Danube, while Marshal Tolbukhin's forces met strong attacks from two German relief columns south of the Danube.

Tonight's Soviet communique reported that large German tank and infantry forces driving to relieve their besieged garrison at Budapest were being repelled by Red Army troops. The two German columns at Eszertergom (abandoned yesterday by the Russians) and south at Bicske continued to throw in strong attacks despite heavy losses in manpower and material. Press dispatches reported the area was strewn with burning German tanks and mobile guns as Soviet aircraft attacked fresh forces moving up to the line.

North of the Danube the Russian forces advanced on a 30-mile front toward Bratislava and Vienna, less than 60 miles to the west. All German attempts to halt this drive have been smashed and the enemy forces were pressed back with heavy losses. Tonight's communique reported a number of localities taken in this sector as the Russians neared the Nitra River.

The German-held section of Budapest was narrowed today as Russian troops captured 130 blocks of houses. Of the 4,500 blocks in the Hungarian capital Russian troops hold about 2,000, including the Houses of Parliament and the Stock Exchange, which were captured before the Germans had time to demolish them. Reports tonight said that the fighting in the city continues undiminished in intensity and that all bridges over the Danube had been blown by the Germans.

The communique announced that 90 German tanks were knocked out yesterday in the Russian drive northwest of Budapest and that 1,520 German soldiers had been captured. (Radio Moscow-Reuter-OWI)

YUGOSLAVS BLITZ NAZI MOTOR COLUMN

LONDON, January 8 — Yugoslav units, in a series of successful counter-attacks, have stemmed a German advance in the Podravina section of Croatia, today's communique from the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation said. In Slavonia, several German attacks in the direction of Nasice were repelled.

In eastern Bosnia, the Germans brought up reinforcements in the Bijeljina-Brcko-Celic sector. Heavy fighting continued along the Han-Pijesak-Vlasenica line, where an three bombers and one fighter missing.

The American assaults followed two RAF attacks last night on Munich, Hanover, Nuremburg, and Hanau. Night fighters and intruder aircraft supported the bombers and attacked airfields. Fifteen planes are missing.

The bombing of Munich by the RAF was made by two waves of heavies, which hit the target two hours apart. The glow of fires started in the first attack could be seen by crews in the second while more than 100 miles away. The second wave struck with even greater effect.

Well over 1,000 acres of the central area of Munich, an industrial city and routing terminal for railroads carrying supplies to the battlefronts, have been devastated, according to the Air Ministry.

HEAVY SNOW BRINGS LULL ON ITALY FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 8 — A heavy fall of snow, which has piled into impassable drifts in the mountains and has covered the eastern end of the Po plain with slush and flood waters, yesterday forced a lull in the fighting on the Italian front.

The only change in front-line positions mentioned in the official reports occurred in the sector north of Ravenna, where British and Canadian troops pushed through marsh and pinelands as far as the village of Casal Borsetti, 10 miles from Ravenna.

Further inland, other 8th Army units reached the banks of the Reno River, at a point 11 miles north of Ravenna, where the Ravenna-Porto Garibaldi Highway crosses this stream just east of the Comacchio Lagoon.

Canadian and British troops have cleared 50 square miles of coastal lowland between Ravenna and the broad inland Valli di Comacchio in the past four days, official reports stated. As a result of the swift Canadian armored thrust which severed the enemy positions along the southern shores of the lagoon, some 600 enemy prisoners were taken and four German field guns captured intact. Eight tanks and self-propelled guns were destroyed.

Most of the area taken over by the 8th Army forces was heavily mined, with enemy demolitions and floods blocking off much of the few roads which traversed the swampy area.

Today's official reports contained no information regarding the German troops cut off in the marshlands south of Mandriole, an area apparently covered in the Canadian mopping-up operations.

On the 5th Army battle-front patrols along the Apennines' heights, through drifted snow, icy mountain paths and swollen streams were difficult and perilous, while snow flurries and mountain mists reduced visibility to a few yards. The Allied troops were forced to employ either snowshoes or skis in the mountains, reports stated.

Sharp clashes occurred along the slopes in the Monte Grande and Monte Belmonte sector, south and southeast of Bologna, and also southwest of Monte Belvedere, German-held summit west of the Pistoia-Bologna road. In this latter sector, a 15-man enemy patrol was revealed by flares as it attempted to penetrate 5th Army defenses by night, and was subjected to heavy small arms and mortar fire.

HEAVY BOMBERS HIT TARGETS IN AUSTRIA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 8 — Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF, off the ground for the first time after four days of bad weather, attacked communications targets in the Linz area in Austria for the second time in a fortnight, it was announced here this afternoon.

The attack was carried out in bad weather and over the target, the Liberators and Flying Fortresses used instruments to bomb.

Fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force today concentrated on enemy gun positions and strongpoints

MOSCOW, January 8 — The Red Army spearhead under the command of Marshal Malinovsky drove closer to Komarno, on the north bank of the Danube, while Marshal Tolbukhin's forces met strong attacks from two German relief columns south of the Danube.

Tonight's Soviet communique reported that large German tank and infantry forces driving to relieve their besieged garrison at Budapest were being repelled by Red Army troops. The two German columns at Eszteriegom (abandoned yesterday by the Russians) and south at Bicske continued to throw in strong attacks despite heavy losses in manpower and material. Press dispatches reported the area was strewn with burning German tanks and mobile guns as Soviet aircraft attacked fresh forces moving up to the line.

North of the Danube the Russian forces advanced on a 30-mile front toward Bratislava and Vienna, less than 60 miles to the west. All German attempts to halt this drive have been smashed and the enemy forces were pressed back with heavy losses. Tonight's communique reported a number of localities taken in this sector as the Russians neared the Nitra River.

The German-held section of Budapest was narrowed today as Russian troops captured 130 blocks of houses. Of the 4,500 blocks in the Hungarian capital Russian troops hold about 2,000, including the Houses of Parliament and the Stock Exchange, which were captured before the Germans had time to demolish them. Reports tonight said that the fighting in the city continues undiminished in intensity and that all bridges over the Danube had been blown by the Germans.

JAPS MAKE NEW LANDING ON CHINA COAST

CHUNGKING, January 8 — Japanese forces have landed fresh troops on the coast of northeastern Fukien Province in China, opposite Formosa, apparently to counter any American attempt to establish beachheads on the Asiatic mainland, the Chinese High Command announced today.

The Japanese landed on December 26 and advanced inland, occupying the town of Saipu, about 70 miles northeast of Japanese-held Foochow, the announcement said. Chinese troops counter-attacked the new landing and the enemy retreated slightly to the east, the report said.

Although the Japanese have bisected China with a corridor to Indo-China, much of the territory east of their line between Hankow and Indo-China remains in Chinese hands. The Chinese hold most of the territory from Hangchow Bay southward.

General Tang En-po yesterday told of a 2,000-mile march of Chinese troops to Kweichow Province in southwestern

China to balk a Japanese threat to the Burma Road. The general led the march on foot from Honan Province in north central China to the Kweichow Province mountains in lower China. He said that the Japanese, in withdrawing to Kwangsi Province after a thrust at Kweiyang, in Kweichow Province, have lost from 4,000 to 5,000 troops killed since November.

Maj. Gen. Chennault said yesterday that the Japanese are using some kind of flying bomb against the Allies in China.

The General said it had not been determined whether the bombs were launched from planes or the ground and so far they have had no great success. The Japanese, he added, were «incapable of defense so they are bound to try to work out something.»

Bad weather prevented flying on most of the China fronts, a communique from the 14th USAAF said today. Yesterday, however, Liberator bombers sank an enemy freighter off Swatow.

During November and December, the 14th USAAF destroyed 223 Japanese locomotives in attacks on the enemy's corridor from Indo-China to north China. In addition, the units destroyed 34 bridges, two tunnels and 20 trains.

In Burma, the Japanese are reported to be putting up stiff resistance to the Allied advance through Arakan Province. Troops of the 15th Indian Corps, in the Kaladan Valley, have repulsed a Japanese night attack which was supported by artillery, Southeast Asia Command Headquarters announced. The Kaladan area provides the only escape route of the Japanese in northern Arakan and this has probably forced them to make a stand in this sector, correspondents said.

Brigadier S. F. Irwin, chief of staff to the British 14th Army, yesterday revealed how Indian troops had turned their early reverse in Burma to profit. The Indian army destroyed the major part of 10 Japanese divisions in Burma fighting which has finally resulted in their entry into the Burmese town of Akyab, he said. He said the story of the victory «is the story of the big come-back of the Indian army in Burma.» (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

JAP HOMELAND HIT TWICE IN ONE DAY

WASHINGTON, January 8 — Superfortresses in two raids today bombed the big industrial city of Nagoya on the Japanese main island of Honshu while American bombers again struck at Japanese aerodromes on Luzon Island in the Philippines.

Details of the latest B-29 attack on Japan are not yet available, the War Department said in making the announcement.

A late communique from General Douglas MacArthur said tonight that Liberator and Mitchell bombers hit Clark Field northwest of Manila and aerodromes around Batangas, south of Luzon's chief city.

Destruction of 18 Japanese planes on the ground on the island of Luzon, reported in last night's communique, brought to 372 the total of Japanese planes destroyed in five days of operations by U. S. carrier planes extending from Luzon to Formosa and Okinawa in the Ryukyu Islands. The first assault on the island was made on December 20.

Meanwhile, on Leyte Island, mopping-up operations continued and 697 Japanese were killed, with 11 taken prisoners, during the last two days. Other mopping-up operations of enemy remnants at Morotai in the Moluccas, Dutch New Guineas, resulted in the annihilation of 554 Japanese troops and the capture of 86, together with the liberation of 12 friendly nationals.

Guinea, New Britain and New Ireland, the Soviet Navy newspaper Red Fleet said on Thursday.

The article, entitled «Return to the Philippines,» lauded American successes on Mindoro and Leyte and said these gains give the Americans two extremely important bases in the center of the Philippine Archipelago.

This makes it possible for the Americans to control the so-called «internal sea,» the newspaper said, adding: «As it is known, the Japanese command expected that with the transfer of operations in the regions of the Philippines, the American naval and air forces would depend more and more on their extended communications, which would decrease considerably the cruising range of American aircraft. However, the expectation of the Japanese command did not come true.

«The considerable predominance in force made it possible for American aircraft to overcome such great difficulties of extended communications and the absence of secure land bases.»

The article cited Admiral Nimitz's statement of December 31 which said the initial phase of the battle for bases closer to the Japanese homeland, necessary for a successful invasion of the mainland, had been completed and that 1945 would see the seizure of more bases still closer to the Japanese mainland. FLYING SKY GIANTS TO JAPAN

NEW YORK, January 8 — The Saipan-to-Japan sky trail involves the most difficult bombing problems in the world, according to Superfortress crews who have been hammering industrial targets in Tokyo, Nagoya and other Japanese cities.

An American correspondent in a dispatch from the 21st U.S. Bomber Command headquarters on Guam said that the navigator runs the show until the plane reaches the Japanese continent and takes over again on leaving Japan. The flight involves all possible conditions of weather, altitude and winds—like no others in the world.

If a man can navigate on this run he can fly anywhere in the world, the correspondent asserted. The winds are bad in the daytime, but at night the Superfortresses sometimes must buck wind velocities reaching 260 miles an hour.

On Mindoro Island in the Philippines, General MacArthur's troops liberated Paluan, 84 miles from San Jose, thus extending American positions to within 87 miles of Manila. During this operation, Japanese supply dumps and communications facilities were destroyed.

American forces landed on southwest Mindoro on December 15, and on January 2 they made new landings on the west coast below Paluan, 34 miles across the northwestern arm of Mindoro and the narrow Cape Verde Island passage from the Batangas area of southwestern Luzon, where the Japanese made one of their landings more than three years ago.

BRITISH FORCES CAPTURE THEBES

ATHENS, January 8 — British mobile troops, striking northward in pursuit of retreating ELAS forces, today captured the city of Thebes, 50 miles northwest of here, Radio Athens announced late tonight. Earlier today British forces had pushed their spearheads through the city of Eleusis.

An estimated number of 1,500 ELAS troops were holding out in a pass on the edge of the Thebes plain when heavy rain clouds closed down over the opposing forces, bringing the fighting to a temporary halt.

Other British columns advancing to the southeast of the Greek capital almost reached the tip of the Attic peninsula. In the last 48 hours, British forces have captured a large quantity of ELAS machine guns and rifles and over 10 tons of explosives in this southward drive.

General Scobie announced that the peace terms previously offered the ELAS had been withdrawn and that any future negotiations would be based on the fair treatment given British prisoners held by the ELAS.

While the advancing forces have taken some ELAS munition stores in their offensive, press dispatches said that the main ELAS supply dumps are not yet in British hands. The ELAS mountain divisions, under General Seraphis, which bore the brunt of the fighting against the Germans in the liberation of Greece, are still intact. Most of the fighting here was by the ELAS brigade made up of workers and students.

Sixty-three ELAS soldiers were killed in yesterday's fighting, and 196 captured. Among the prisoners was the commander of the ELAS Athens Brigade.

A London Radio report quoted General Plastiras, the new Premier, as announcing that if ELAS does not lay down its arms «he would put himself at the head of an army of liquidation.»

Greek civilians were warned today to turn in all Greek, Allied or enemy war material by Friday and the order added that those failing to comply would be prosecuted.

The broadcast also said that all civilians wearing military clothing would be punished.

Two new members were appointed to the Greek Cabinet. Professor Constantine Amandos, conservative, was named Minister of Education, while John Macropulos was appointed Minister of Agriculture. The former Minister of Agriculture, Glavanis, was given the post of Minister of National Economy.

Meanwhile, relief measures continued in the city. The Regent has speeded up plans for establishment of emergency kitchens in the liberated districts, both here and in the Piraeus, while military liaison authorities said distribution of the December food rations would be completed as rapidly as possible. A delay in unloading ships in the harbor resulted in a request to the public to preserve their present food allotments as long as possible.

Premier's warning

Minister of Interior Rhallis issued an order today instructing police to make arrests only in cases of breaches of law or action against the public security. No citizen is to be arrested simply for his political convictions, the order said.

General Plastiras' statement said: «If the rebels respond to my appeal and lay down their arms then my authority as Minister of the Forces will be limited to the creation of an army capable of fighting.

«But if the rebels persist in their intransigeance, I will put myself at the head of the liquidation army. From the moment that I assume the clearing up of the rest of Greece after the purge of Athens, only a few weeks will suffice to re-establish authority throughout the entire country.

«I shall set up personally the rapid organization of our national forces in order to constitute quantitatively a force capable of defending our frontiers and also of participation actively in the United Nations' effort.

«I prefer elections for a constituent assembly, rather than a plebiscite, but guarantee that the demonstration of the national will will be carried out with perfect impartiality.» (OWI-Reuter)

SOVIET CRITIC DERIDES JAP BOOK ON WAR

MOSCOW, January 8 — A Russian expert on Japanese affairs, in a review of a new Japanese book on «The Origin of the Pacific War,» said on Saturday that the book «constituted an attempt to whitewash Japan as a down-trodden angel of peace.»

Writing in War and the Working Class, E. Zhukov described the assertions of the Japanese author as being «as far from the truth as the sky is from the earth.»

Characterizing the volume as «one-sided,» Zhukov added that the author's attempt to convince foreign opinion of Japanese innocence in the war is «sufficiently hopeless but can anyone doubt that this very wish will be intensified as a result of the impossible course of the Pacific war?

«It is impossible to overlook the chapter devoted to Japanese intervention in the Soviet Far East where tricks of falsification hide the truth that Japanese imperialism stubbornly persisted for four long years in pillaging and robbing Soviet Far-Eastern territories,» Zhukov wrote.

He added that while the book portrayed Japan as «the poor victim of insatiable American designs for world hegemony,» it preserved a «strange silence concerning activization of Japanese imperialism in the invasion of Manchuria and China and the perfidious attack on Pearl Harbor.» (OWI)

RIOTS, STRIKES, REPORTED IN NORTH ITALY

LONDON, January 8 — Riots have broken out in several northern Italy cities where the economic and food situations are particularly serious, according to the London radio today.

«In Milan, according to reports reaching Zurich, a series of strikes has been followed by riots,» the broadcast said. «The Germans arrested hundreds of persons and deported them to Germany for compulsory labor service.

«The riots started in Turin at the beginning of last month. The workers of the Fiat works refused to step up production. Then strikes broke out in Milan and Bergamo because of the lack of coal and foodstuffs. In other places the workers have gone on solidarity strikes.»

The Fascist radio last night announced a decree ordering the requisition within 24 hours of machinery of all industrial and commercial enterprises producing or selling foodstuffs.

The Rome correspondent of the Times also reported strike trouble in northern Italy. He said Milan and Turin were the centers of clashes betwen munition workers and German authorities.

He further reported systematic dismantling of northern Italy factories by the Germans, who are concentrating machinery and tools at Bolzano before taking them to Germany. The Germans are making frantic efforts to keep the Brenner pass line open for this purpose in spite of intensive bombing by Allied Mediterranean airforces. In addition to industrial equipment, the Germans are trying to remove large numbers of livestock from Italy, especially from Emilia and Veneto, the dispatch reported. (OWI-Reuter)

KUOMINTANG TO CONVENE CONGRESS

CHUNGKING, January 8 — The standing committee of the Kuomintang voted today to convene a party congress on May 6, the first to be called since that held at Hankow in 1938, it is reported today.

It is expected the meeting would deal with arrangements for the People's Assembly which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has promised to call before the end of the war to introduce constitutional government in China. (OWI)

Two new members were appointed to the Greek Cabinet. Professor Constantine Amandos, conservative, was named Minister of Education, while John Macropulos was appointed Minister of Agriculture. The former Minister of Agriculture, Glavanis, was given the post of Minister of National Economy.

Meanwhile, relief measures continued in the city. The Regent has speeded up plans for establishment of emergency kitchens in the liberated districts, both here and in the Piraeus, while military liaison authorities said distribution of the December food rations would be completed as rapidly as possible. A delay in unloading ships in the harbor resulted in a request to the public to preserve their present food allotments as long as possible.

Minister of Interior Rhallis issued an order today instructing police to make arrests only in cases of breaches of law or action against the public security. No citizen is to be arrested simply for his political convictions, the order said.

General Plastiras' statement said: «If the rebels respond to my appeal and lay down their arms then my authority as Minister of the Forces will be limited to the creation of an army capable of fighting.

«But if the rebels persist in their intransigeance, I will put myself at the head of the liquidation army. From the moment that I assume the clearing up of the rest of Greece after the purge of Athens, only a few weeks will suffice to re-establish authority throughout the entire country.

«I shall set up personally the rapid organization of our national forces in order to constitute quantitatively a force capable of defending our frontiers and also of participation actively in the United Nations' effort.

«I prefer elections for a constituent assembly, rather than a plebiscite, but guarantee that the demonstration of the national will will be carried out with perfect impartiality.» (OWI-Reuter)

A. M. G. FINDS RADIUM STORE AT AACHEN

LUXEMBOURG, January 8 — Twenty-seven milligrams of radium were found in a hospital in occupied Aachen, along with documents written in French and bearing the signature of Madame Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium, according to press dispatches tonight.

American Military Government officials assumed custody of the property and began an investigation to determine its lawful owner, the report said.

The action was in accordance with Gen. Eisenhower's message to the Germans on Allied Military Government plans for Germany which said: «The property of the United Nations or nationals thereof will be protected and preserved for the rightful owners.» (OWI)

MARITIME CONFERENCE OPENS IN LONDON

LONDON, January 8 — Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin, welcoming a joint maritime conference of shipowners and seamen representing 13 nations, which opened today, urged United Nations agreement on approved standards of ship accomodations, the BBC reported tonight.

Bevin said the British Government intended to go ahead with seamen's welfare schemes and added that he hoped other countries would work together to provide first-class facilities in every port in the world.

The international charter for seamen prepared by the trade unions will be discussed by the commission. (BBC)

DROUGHT CUTS AUSTRALIAN CROPS

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA, January 8 — Acting Prime Minister Francis E. Forde said today that there will be a reduction in Australian food supplies to U.S. armed forces in 1945 due to the severe drought, which has affected cereals particularly, a report states.

During 1944, Australia supplied U.S. armed forces, under reciprocal Lend-Lease agreements, with food valued at 400 million pounds. This year's estimated value will be about 35 million pounds. (OWI)

MOSCOW RECOGNITION OF LUBLIN

LONDON, January 8 — The BBC today quoted a statement by the Polish Government in London which deplored the Soviet Union's recognition of the Lublin Committee of Liberation as the Polish Provisional Government.

The statement said: «The Polish Government, which earnestly desires a lasting understanding between Poland and the Soviet Union, deeply regrets this action of the Soviet Government, which makes such an understanding more difficult and will not contribute to the strengthening of the solidarity of the United Nations, so necessary in the struggle against the common foe.»

U.S. RESTORES MIDWAY-GUAM CABLES

WASHINGTON, January 8 — The restoration to service last month of the Midway-Guam cable, severed by the U.S. Navy as a security measure two and a half years ago, was a remarkable achievement, the New York Herald Tribune said last week in describing the feat.

While the severed ends of the cable had been marked with buoys, the dispatch pointed out that location of the cable and reassembling the broken ends involved a major project. An Army vessel, one of the few in the world equipped to do the job, was used, and with Navy technicians aboard, located the cable. New lines were laid and the split lines repaired.

At one point, the end of the cable which had been raised at Midway fell back into the sea just as it was being lifted aboard, taking with it vital equipment. Substitute supplies were rushed to the scene and the job completed on schedule. (OWI)

CHINA HAPPY OVER ROOSEVELT SPEECH

WASHINGTON, January 8 — Newspapers in the United States and abroad today continued to comment on President Roosevelt's « State of The Union » message to Congress.

The London Sunday Times welcomed the news that Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill will meet in the near future and commented: « President Roosevelt's message to Congress shows that he will bring to the conference a stout heart and a faith in collaboration with the Allies stretching beyond the end of the war. He predicts a substantial beginning of the organization for world peace before the year is out. The President recognized differences but is not discouraged by them. »

Buenos Aires newspapers yesterday gave prominence to President Roosevelt's message to Congress. La Prensa devoted its main editorial to the message, which, it said, « reveals great energy and decision to meet the international post-war problems. »

The area affected at present is situated south of Tengchung between the old Burma Road and the new Myitkyina-Tengchung cut-off.

Besides fighting the 300 cases on hand, the U. S. army is also engaged in a preventive campaign involving mass inoculation among 250,000 people. The report said that about 100 people have died.

Serum and vaccines, many of them of Chinese manufacture, have been flown into the area, along with a powerful flea powder (OWI - AP)

GRIPSHOLM SAILS AGAIN

NEW YORK, January 8 — The Swedish liner Gripsholm, carrying German prisoners of war and enemy civilians, left here yesterday for Marseilles. The repatriates, who are sick or seriously wounded, will be exchanged for U.S. nationals.

It was officially announced last week that the exchange is scheduled to take place in Switzerland during the third week in January.

The British Foreign Office announced last week that the British liner Arundel Castle is to sail from Britain in connection with a similar exchange of British Commonwealth and German wounded and seriously ill prisoners of war at present in Switzerland.

The last exchange of Allied and German prisoners took place through Goteborg, Sweden, last September. (Reuter)

MORE BIRTHS IN BRITAIN; DEATH RATE FALLS

LONDON, January 8 — During 1944, the fifth year of the war, London and the major towns of England and Wales enjoyed a record standard of health, according to statistics compiled by the Registrar General and made public today.

The figures showed 5,000 fewer deaths in 1944 than in the previous year, which was one of Britain's healthiest war years. Nearly 30,000 more babies were born in 1944 than in 1943. (OWI)

BRITAIN HAS HAD RATIONING FOR 5 YEARS

LONDON, January 8 — Food rationing for the British people began five years ago today, with butter, sugar and meat the first foods to be limited. Since then, virtually every other kind of foodstuff has been brought within the coupon or points system, with the result that all sections of the community, no matter to what income class they belong, have about the same standard of nutrition.

The British rationing scheme is the most comprehensive in the world and black market penalties are extremely severe. People have been encouraged to grow their own

POW'S CRITICISE GERMAN ARMY

ADVANCE HQ, 15th ARMY GROUP, January 8 — Criticism of the German army and government is contained in many letters sent by German prisoners from prisoner-of-war camps.

One of the prisoners wrote that he had fought for three and a half years with the best of faith in victory for the good of the people « but I learnt differently in the summer of this year. »

The prisoner continued: « There I learned what was the real mood of the people and even our family circle agreed that it was senseless to continue the fight. »

Another prisoner wrote that he was disillusioned when his platoon faced the enemy and that « our fine lieutenant hadn't forgotten how to run. »

In a letter to his wife one German wrote that « the day of my capture was not a dark one but a day to celebrate all my life. »

After telling his mother not to take his fate too hard, another German wrote: « We have to thank Hitler for all that; it is he who gave us our ill fortune. Those gentlemen in Germany will yet run into difficult days. Now, my dear mother, I beg you go with Laura to Reutlingen, for one is well off with the Americans. » (OWI)

NAZIS ASK DUTCH TO END RAIL STRIKE

LONDON, January 8 — A German admission that the Dutch rail strike, in effect since last September, has partially paralyzed enemy transport in Holland was contained in a speech yesterday by Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Reich Commissar for the occupied portion of the country.

In a talk lasting for an hour and a half over the Nazi-controlled Hilversum Radio, Seyss-Inquart alternately threatened and cajoled the Dutch people to end the strike. The strike has been continuing on instructions of the Netherlands government in London.

Seyss-Inquart also made the admission that thousands of Netherlanders are being transported to Germany as forced labor and that « these men are carried off tightly packed in open boats without cover. » The Nazi official's explanation to the Dutch people was that « total war has given Germany the right to act like this. »

He added that labor reserves were needed in the Reich to replace Germans killed in the war. (OWI)

LEBANESE GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

BEIRUT, January 8 — The Lebanese government resigned today, a British press agency reported. The dispatch said that internal politics had brought about the resignation, and repulsed. Other hostile elements entered Drusenheim nearby after we had inflicted losses and destroyed three of five tanks.

Fighting continues at Gamsheim. Enemy transport near Gamsheim was attacked by a small number of bombers.

In the Alsace Plain 20 miles south of Strasbourg an enemy force supported by tanks drove northward along the Rhine-Rhone canal and forced our troops from Witternheim and Friesenheim. Fighting continued north of these towns.

Weather again restricted air operations over the battle zone yesterday.

More than 1,000 heavy bombers, escorted by 850 fighters, attacked railway yards, bridges and communications in western Germany, from Hamm in the north to Rastatt in the south. Among the targets attacked were railway yards at Hamm, Bellefelz, Baderborn, Cologne and Rastatt, and road and rail junctions east of the Ardennes salient. Heavy bombers in great strength attacked industrial and railway centers of Munich last night. (Reuter)

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 8 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

Winter conditions continue to restrict activity to patrolling on the front of both the 5th and 8th Armies.

Navy:

Referring to yesterday's naval communique, it is learned that the U.S. destroyer Woolsey and His Majesty's ship Lookout bombarded enemy positions near Massa on January 6. The target area was well covered and a fire was started.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Although air operations were restricted by weather, fighters and fighter-bombers yesterday attacked shipping off the coast of northwestern Italy and flew a limited number of sorties against Po Valley and Brenner rail and road communications.

All of our aircraft returned safely.

Land Forces Greece:

The situation in Athens and Piraeus is quiet. In the surrounding country British mobile columns are operating against detachments of ELAS forces withdrawing to the north.

Elsewhere in Greece the situation is unchanged. (PRO)

On the northern bank of the Danube, north of the town Komarno, our troops occupied in fighting the populated localities of Ivak, Sharkan, Shalobarovo, Marsolovo, Mocha, Virthova, Pushatina and Radban.

In battles during January 7, in this area, our troops captured 1,520 soldiers and officers of the enemy.

On other sectors of the front, there were no essential changes.

During January 7, in air combats and by anti-aircraft fire, nine enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 8 — Today's communique:

It can now be revealed that the attack launched by the enemy against Patriot forces northeast of Genoa lasted 24 days. The Patriot «Lombardy» Division suffered considerable losses. Despite the fact that it also sustained numerous casualties, the «Liguria» Division was able to foil an enemy encircling maneuver and thus save the greater part of its military equipment.

In the Valtellina area, Patriots disrupted enemy traffic by blowing up a tunnel on the Sondrio-Lanzata railway line. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE:

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 8 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

On the northern and southwestern flanks of the front bulge between the Meuse and the Moselle, our formations maintained themselves in grim fighting in face of the resumed attempts at breaking through made by the American 1st Army which had been reinforced by British divisions. Our troops again destroyed many enemy tanks.

East of Bastogne, the enemy did not achieve successes but was repulsed farther back by our attacks.

In the southern sector of the Western Front, in Alsace and on the upper reaches of the Rhine, there was major fighting. South of Weissenburg, our troops penetrated into the Maginot line. South of Strasbourg, in a surprise thrust launched from the regions west of the Rhine northward, our troops smashed the enemy bolt positions. The enemy lost 14 tanks in unsuccessful counter-attacks with troops which had hastily been brought up. In addition, more than 100 enemy vehicles were destroyed.

Liège and Antwerp are subjected to an incessant long range bombardment.

Italy:

In Italy, yesterday, there were only reconnaissance encounters along the whole front.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, between Lake Balaton and the Danube, troops of the Army and the Waffen SS, in offensive fighting lasting several days, broke through the enemy positions and, north of the Vertes Mountains, gained up to 40 kilometers in an easterly direction. Gran was recaptured. One hundred and fifty nine tanks and 425 guns were so far either destroyed or captured in the course of these successful operations. The enemy suffered high losses. The fighting is still in progress.

The gallant German-Hungarian garrison of Budapest holds out against the Soviets attacking from an easterly direction. In the southeastern district Kispest, grim house-to-house fighting is in progress.

During the last two days, 101 tanks were destroyed in the area of the enemy penetration north of the Danube. Most of them fell victim to « Tank Fists. » A tank division destroyed 58 tanks with close range weapons in one single day.

In the southern frontier area of Slovakia, our positions were improved by German counter-attacks.

In Courland, north of Doblen, our troops repulsed the Bolsheviks farther back despite an intensified resistance. According to incomplete reports, more than 500 prisoners were captured and 58 tanks as well as guns of all kinds destroyed or captured in the fighting.

Air:

Yesterday, American terror formations attacked western and southwestern Reich territory. The bombs were foremostly dropped on residential districts. Two consecutive British night attacks on the capital of the movement (Translator's note: National-Socialist movement) caused serious damage to buildings particularly in the central districts of Munich and destroyed numerous cultural monuments.

Reaction to Roosevelt Speech: German propaganda for the second consecutive day discusses the recent speech by President Roosevelt. DNB carries a long analysis of it by Wilhelmstrasse circles. The trend in discussing the speech is to pick out all items calculated to show American material losses and psychological disillusionment. « Roosevelt today feels compelled to admit military setbacks in western Europe and in the Pacific, involving enormous losses. »

Polish Crisis Still Featured: One of the longest-sustained features of German propaganda in recent weeks, continuing day after day, is the Polish crisis. A number of items appear on this subject today. However, no new aspect is given to them; rather, they are used to reinforce and reiterate the German allegations about inter-Allied disunity. For example, the German Home Radio this afternoon calls attention to the fact that « representatives of the Soviet-Polish régime appointed by the Kremlin in Lublin have sharply attacked the London Poles, » calling them « saboteurs and terrorists. »

Western Front: A DNB despatch describes the fighting in Alsace and adds to a purely military account a political point of view, with regard to the supposed preference of the population of Alsace for the « German liberators » as opposed to the American « occupation » troops.

Describing the battle in the Ardennes, the same source uses strong language such as « murderous fighting » and « unimaginable ferocity. »

Eastern Front: In the double battle of Hungary south and north of the Danube, the fighting, according to DNB, is « continuously growing in fury and nearing its climax. » In addition to Budapest itself, the possible threat to Vienna is mentioned in the following connection: « The Soviet Command, apparently failing to recognise the change in the situation and underestimating German strength, stubbornly continued its break-through attempts aiming at Vienna. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Southern Front: The Fascist Radio has announced further attacks by the Canadians on the British 8th Army sector, between the Valli di Comacchio and the Adriatic, but claims that « they were checked south of the Reno estuary in victorious counter-attacks carried out by the Germans... » The commentator adds, however, that a continuous stream of reinforcements indicates that the British will persist in their efforts in this sector.

Assistance To Refugees: The Foreign Ministry of the Social Republic has decided to make a supplementary allowance to refugees from " invaded " Italy who are unable to receive assistance from their families. The allowance will be made in addition to the one granted by the Ministry of Home Affairs.

Allies Bomb Hospital: Radio Litorale Adriatico reports that enemy fighter-bombers dropped bombs in the hospital area of Bologna on December 29, seriously damaging the archbishop's residence and a hospital wing, and causing casualties among patients.

News Agencies and Italian Press: Commenting on the news that, as from January 15 the news papers of " invaded " Italy will be allowed to establish direct contact with the various Allied news agencies, the Fascist Radio remarks that this amounts to a system of slavery for the Italian papers, which will be able « to publish only Allied-controlled news... » According to the commentator « the system of control presently applied to the press » will eventually be extended to Italian industry and commerce as well, giving to the Italians « the freedom of passive starvation and death... »

14 tanks in unsuccessful counter-attacks with troops which had hastily been brought up. In addition, more than 100 enemy vehicles were destroyed.

Liége and Antwerp are subjected to an incessant long range bombardment.

Italy:

In Italy, yesterday, there were only reconnaissance encounters along the whole front.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, between Lake Balaton and the Danube, troops of the Army and the Waffen SS, in offensive fighting lasting several days, broke through the enemy positions and, north of the Vertes Mountains, gained up to 40 kilometers in an easterly direction. Gran was recaptured. One hundred and fifty nine tanks and 425 guns were so far either destroyed or captured in the course of these successful operations. The enemy suffered high losses. The fighting is still in progress.

The gallant German-Hungarian garrison of Budapest holds out against the Soviets attacking from an easterly direction. In the southeastern district Kispest, grim house-to-house fighting is in progress.

During the last two days, 101 tanks were destroyed in the area of the enemy penetration north of the Danube. Most of them fell victim to «Tank Fists.» A tank division destroyed 58 tanks with close range weapons in one single day.

In the southern frontier area of Slovakia, our positions were improved by German counter-attacks.

In Courland, north of Doblen, our troops repulsed the Bolsheviks farther back despite an intensified resistance. According to incomplete reports, more than 500 prisoners were captured and 58 tanks as well as guns of all kinds destroyed or captured in the fighting.

Air:

Yesterday, American terror formations attacked western and southwestern Reich territory. The bombs were foremostly dropped on residential districts. Two consecutive British night attacks on the capital of the movement (Translator's note: National-Socialist movement) caused serious damage to buildings particularly in the central districts of Munich and destroyed numerous cultural monuments.

Air Defense forces brought down 27 four-engined bombers.

London continues to be subjected to a retaliatory fire.

GERMAN

Allied News Service in Italy: The German Overseas Radio tonight reports that the Allied Commission (which German propaganda still calls the «Allied Control Commission») has informed Italian newspapers that they may obtain news only from the «four big British and American news agencies» (AP, UP, INS, and Reuter). Following the established German propaganda trend of presenting Allied relations with Italy as a subjection and humiliation of the latter, The German Radio concludes: «The creation of an Italian news agency is not permitted.» (See Fascist Radio reaction to the same subject, below.)

the population of Alsace for the «German liberation» opposed to the American «occupation» troops.

Eastern Front: In the double battle of Hungary south and north of the Danube, the fighting, according to DNB, is «continuously growing in fury and nearing its climax.» In addition to Budapest itself, the possible threat to Vienna is mentioned in the following connection: «The Soviet Command, apparently failing to recognise the change in the situation and underestimating German strength, stubbornly continued its break-through attempts aiming at Vienna.»

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Southern Front: The Fascist Radio has announced further attacks by the Canadians on the British 8th Army sector, between the Valli di Comacchio and the Adriatic, but claims that «they were checked south of the Reno estuary in victorious counter-attacks carried out by the Germans...» The commentator adds, however, that a continuous stream of reinforcements indicates that the British will persist in their efforts in this sector.

Assistance To Refugees: The Foreign Ministry of the Social Republic has decided to make a supplementary allowance to refugees from "invaded" Italy who are unable to receive assistance from their families. The allowance will be made in addition to the one granted by the Ministry of Home Affairs.

Allies Bomb Hospital: Radio Litorale Adriatico reports that enemy fighter-bombers dropped bombs in the hospital area of Bologna on December 29, seriously damaging the archbishop's residence and a hospital wing, and causing casualties among patients.

News Agencies and Italian Press: Commenting on the news that, as from January 15 the news papers of "invaded" Italy will be allowed to establish direct contact with the various Allied news agencies, the Fascist Radio remarks that this amounts to a system of slavery for the Italian papers, which will be able «to publish only Allied-controlled news...» According to the commentator «the system of control presently applied to the press» will eventually be extended to Italian industry and commerce as well, giving to the Italians «the freedom of passive starvation and death...»

Total War: The Fascist Radio once more holds up the Germans as an example for the people of the Social Republic. Whilst in Germany «everything superfluous has been eliminated» and civilian life organised on «what might be termed a military» basis, in the Republic «some thing is evidently still lacking...» The commentator finds an excuse for this in «the tragic circumstances» of the armistice of 8 September, 1943. He then asks that everybody be treated on an equal basis, soldiers and civilians alike because otherwise disproportions would arise which would be, to say the least, «unpleasant for those who do the fighting...» He goes on to say that «the tasks of war should be equally divided amongst all Italians so that the fighting men may feel behind them the support of the working population, and that there is no exploitation of their suffering and present inability to work and make money...» Persons who do not subscribe to this principle should be punished «by the sword of justice», according to the commentator.

25 JAP SHIPS SUNK, 13 DAMAGED, OFF INDO-CHINA

PEARL HARBOR, January 12 — Twenty-five Japanese ships were sunk and 13 others damaged by carrier-borne aircraft of the U.S. 3rd Pacific Fleet in a sea battle which still is continuing off the Indo-China coast, it was officially reported tonight.

The ships were part of four Japanese convoys rushing reinforcements to their garrison on Luzon Island in the Philippines. Earlier today, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' communique announced that carrier aircraft were attacking the enemy off French Indo-China between Saigon and Cam-Ranh Bay.

A light Japanese cruiser of the Katori class and several destroyers and destroyer escorts were sent to the bottom in the new sea battle. The communique said that the U.S. 3rd Fleet suffered no damage.

The carrier-based aircraft also swept inland to attack Japanese airbases in Indo-China from Saigon to Guinhon Harbor, 250 miles to the northeast, destroying 39 enemy planes. They scattered other enemy vessels, in addition to attacking the Japanese convoys.

An Associated Press dispatch pointed out that this is

Other Allied troops, fanning out from recently-captured Shwebo, seized two towns east of the city on the Irrawaddy River.

Chinese troops operating inside their own borders, near the Burma frontier, occupied the main Loiwing airfield on the north bank of the Shweli River yesterday. The advance brought the Chinese forces — part of the new 1st Army — to a point three miles due north of the Japanese stronghold at Namhkam, located across the Shweli River.

At Ponnagyun, 14 miles northeast of Akyab and reported occupied by Indian troops yesterday, a Japanese force landed from boats under cover of darkness. In an hour-long battle, Indian troops inflicted a substantial number of casualties on the enemy.

Enemy aircraft attacked Shwebo and Ye-U and made a low-level attack on Akyab harbor.

Bombers of the 10th USAAF yesterday struck at enemy communications by bombing cliffs overhanging the Lashio-Mandalay railroad. Hundreds of tons of earth covered the track near Shipaw, making the line unusable.

Seven Japanese river craft were sunk and many others hit and damaged when RAF Beaufighters attacked Burmese waterways on the Kaladan front, a Reuter dispatch said yesterday.

Chinese Supported From Air

Heavy support to Chinese ground forces in the Wanting area of the China-Burma border was given by fighters and bombers of the 14th USAAF yesterday, according to official statements. Fires and explosions followed bombing and strafing attacks on Japanese fortified positions northeast of the city which lies in China on the Burma Road, about 110 miles northeast of Mandalay.

A three-way strategic air campaign against the Japanese in China has been opened by 14th USAAF fighter planes under Brig. Gen. Russell Randall.

LATE BULLETINS

GERMANS IN WESTERN ARDENNES CEASE FIGHTING

LONDON, January 12 — Press dispatches said late tonight that all German resistance in the western tip of the Ardennes salient has ceased, and that the enemy was falling back to the east, abandoning almost 100 square miles of Belgium and Luxembourg to the Allies.

The Germans also were reported by press dispatches to be in «full flight» from the Ardennes salient, and threatened with entrapment by the American 1st Army, which has advanced to within two miles of the Houffalize-Et. Vith escape highway. (OWI-AP)

PEARL HARBOR, January 12 — Twenty-five Japanese ships were sunk and 13 others damaged by carrier-borne aircraft of the U.S. 3rd Pacific Fleet in a sea battle which still is continuing off the Indo-China coast, it was officially reported tonight.

An Associated Press dispatch pointed out that this is the first time that the Pacific Fleet has gone into action so far south in the South China Sea. The report said that Cam-Ranh Bay, on the eastern coast of Saigon, is one of the finest natural harbors in Asia, with a large protected anchorage for capital warships. The enemy fleet base is 1,000 miles from Manila.

45,000-Ton Battleship Sunk

Tonight's communique also confirmed the destruction of the new Japanese 45,000-ton battleship Musashi during an air attack October 24. Its sister ship, the Yamato, was damaged.

The Musashi and the Yamato were the backbone of one of the three Japanese fleets which were turned back after passing San Bernardino Strait and attacking the U.S. 7th Fleet off Samar in the Philippines. The communique said that the Musashi blew up before sinking.

The construction of the Musashi was begun in 1937, and she joined the Japanese fleet in 1940. She was 870 feet long and was armed with nine 16-inch guns and heavy secondary batteries. Her known speed was 25 knots.

Increasing their threat to the inland port of Mandalay, British 14th Army troops captured Budalin, 60 miles to the northwest, after a fierce battle with Japanese defenders. Other troops landed from boats under cover of darkness. In an hour-long battle, Indian troops inflicted a substantial number of casualties on the enemy.

3RD ARMY WIPES OUT BASTOGNE SALIENT

LONDON, January 12 — The German salient southeast of Bastogne has been wiped out by 3rd Army troops, an official spokesman announced tonight. More than 3,400 prisoners have been taken in the salient.

It also was announced that 3rd Army forces had killed, wounded, or captured an estimated 30,000 Germans, equal to about 10 divisions, since they counter-attacked on the southern flank last month. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS TAKE IMPORTANT RAIL JUNCTION

LONDON, January, 12 — The Yugoslav Liberation Army and Partisan units, pursuing the Germans along the Lim River, have captured Prjepolje, important road and rail junction in south-central Yugoslavia, it was announced in a special communique tonight.

The city, midway between Mitrovica and Sarajevo, was taken so quickly by Yugoslav troops that the Germans abandoned all their motor vehicles and had no time to demolish the bridges over the river. (Reuter)

PATROL CLASHES ON 5TH ARMY FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 12 — Fierce patrol clashes, particularly in the sector south of Bologna, sharpened action on the 5th Army front yesterday, it was officially reported here today.

Thrusting deep into strongly-held enemy territory, Allied raiding parties engaged enemy forces in savage hand-to-hand combat and in short range bazooka, small arms, and grenade fights. In one of the more spectacular clashes, an American infantryman grappled with three enemy soldiers in bare-handed conflict in the tiny village of Disotta, just east of the Setta River and 11½ miles south of Bologna.

Clear weather also enabled 5th Army artillery, working in coördination with air and ground operations, to blast enemy strongpoints and other targets all along the front. German forces also employed artillery barrages, as well as heavy mortar and machine-gun fire, to turn back the determined Allied patrol thrusts. Along the Ligurian coast sector, the enemy have laid out extensive barbed wire and mine fields, covered by machine-gun and mortar fire, to prevent Allied penetration into the Goth Line defenses which guard this area.

On the 8th Army front, across the southeastern edge of the Po Plain, the Germans continued to hold small outposts all along the eastern banks of the Senio River, based on flood embankments thrown up 50 to 100 yards inland from the river's normal course. With steep banks affording excellent observation over the surrounding lowlands, these enemy outposts form strong outlying positions for the main Senio River defenses.

At Cotignola, six miles north of Faenza along the Senio, an 8th Army patrol which attempted to reach the railway bridge across the stream met extremely heavy opposition from these outposts, and was unable to register any headway. Southwest of Faenza, at the southern extremity of the Senio River line, the Germans established a patrol force in buildings on the south bank of the stream, apparently with the intent of strengthening this portion of their defenses against a possible Allied crossing. Allied forces were said to be "dealing with" this enemy outpost. (PRO)

BELGIAN BULGE SHRINKS AS GERMANS WITHDRAW

LONDON, January 12 — Allied troops tonight closed in from three sides on the Ardennes salient despite fog, snow, and near-zero weather, and Supreme Headquarters announced that the Germans were continuing their orderly withdrawal from the western end of the bulge to their new defense line of Vielsalm-Houffalize-Wiltz.

The German Army, retreating east of the Laroche-St. Hubert road, has been forced to drop back 25 miles from its westernmost point of penetration at Beauraing. The equivalent strength of two panzer divisions has been wiped out by the American 1st Army alone, which has destroyed or captured 239 German tanks since the German offensive began December 16.

Press dispatches reported tonight that the chances of trapping a sizeable number of German troops in the Belgian bulge had passed sometime ago, but that the Allies held the tactical initiative. The Germans still are strongly defending the shoulders of the salient which is 15 miles wide in the sector between Vielsalm and Bastogne.

There are no German troops west of the Laroche-St. Hubert road, and British and American troops have joined forces at St. Hubert, where street fighting with German

The Germans launched a strong attack with 25 tanks against American positions north of the Hagenau Forest at Hatten, nine miles south of the frontier city of Wissembourg. Six enemy tanks have been knocked out, and press reports said that fighting still was in progress.

Along the Rhine River 12 miles north of Strasbourg, the Americans withdrew from Herlisheim, and south of the Rhine city French troops lost Obenheim after it had been overrun by a German tank-supported force. The Allies also withdrew from Herbsheim on the western side of the Rhine-Rhone Canal, but later threw in westward counter-attacks on an eight mile front from Witternheim to Kraft.

BUDAPEST BATTLE ENTERS FINAL STAGE

MOSCOW, January 12 — The Russians launched their final assault against the German-Hungarian garrison of Budapest today as Red Army tanks, two and three abreast, attacked the enemy-held area from three sides.

Crack Russian troops followed the armored spearheads and drove the Germans into the broad avenues in the center of the city. Tonight's Soviet communique reported that 135 more blocks of houses were captured, and 1,270 German and Hungarian troops taken prisoner.

Press dispatches reported that the Germans may make a last attempt to fight their way across the Danube from Pest, where they have been able to re-assemble, and join the badly-mauled relief columns 15 miles to the west. Moscow reports said, however, that the Germans have been cut off from their food and ammunition supplies and are short of petrol. The Germans have lost so much ground that stores dropped by plane fall outside of their lines.

In the final battle for the Hungarian capital, the Russians have captured a freight railway station with 31 locomotives and 5,100 rail cars. The Germans also lost a tank-producing plant inside of the city, where 50 tanks a day were assembled.

In the two German drives, attempting to relieve their Budapest garrison, the enemy threw in strong tank and infantry attacks again today which were held by Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's forces. The German attacks are being made with the same determination but on narrower sectors. Press dispatches reported from Moscow that since the beginning of the German drives made with seven to eight tank divisions and numerous infantry divisions over a week ago, the Germans have lost over 300 tanks and have suffered enormous casualties.

Meanwhile, on the northern banks of the Danube, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's troops continued to advance on a wide front toward the Nitra River. With stiffered German resistance failing to halt the Soviet tank columns, the Germans were reported to be finishing a series of fortifications in Komarno in readiness for a house-to-house battle.

U.S. TROOPS CONTINUE ADVANCE ON LUZON

LUZON, PHILIPPINES, January 12 — Ten miles of the only railway between Lingayen Gulf and Manila have been taken by American forces, who today continued their push southward from the landing beaches toward the important lines of communication leading to the central plains of Luzon.

A comunique tonight from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said that 6th Army troops advanced three more miles today for a total inland penetration of 12 miles since the initial landings Tuesday.

Two more towns — San Carlos and Malasiqui — along the Agno River and keypoints of highways in the gulf area, were liberated by units operating in the central sectors from the Lingayen-Dagupen beachheads.

The communique reported that resistance is increasing all along the line, with particularly sharp fighting in the

The Germans still are strongly defending the shoulders of the salient which is 15 miles wide in the sector between Vielsalm and Bastogne.

There are no German troops west of the Laroche-St. Huberi road, and British and American troops have joined forces at St. Hubert, where street fighting with German rearguards is in progress. British and American forces, trying to establish contact with the retreating Germans, have been slowed considerably by minefields, but have recaptured a number of villages.

The heaviest opposition was met by American troops advancing from Bihain southeast toward Langlir, which they reached last night. Three German counter-thrusts were beaten off, but the enemy appeared to have considerable strength in this sector. The Germans are attempting to keep the Allies from reaching their last major Wehrmacht escape route.

On the southern flank, 3rd Army forces, which yesterday halved a small German salient southeast of Bastogne in 11 hours, have cut the only road leading from the pocket at Doncols. Over 1,200 prisoners, mostly paratroopers, have been taken. The pocket has not yet been completely sealed off.

In the Saar area, American forces continued to make new gains south of Forbach, but below Bitsch the Germans again attacked to penetrate 7th Army positions at the village of Althorn. After their heavy original thrust, the German attack dwindled to infiltration attempts, and further enemy gains were halted.

Press dispatches reported that the Germans may make a last attempt to fight their way across the Danube from Pest, where they have been able to re-assemble, and join the badly-mauled relief columns 15 miles to the west. U.S. TROOPS CONTINUE ADVANCE ON LUZON

LUZON, PHILIPPINES, January 12 — Ten miles of the only railway between Lingayen Gulf and Manila have been taken by American forces, who today continued their push southward from the landing beaches toward the important lines of communication leading to the central plains of Luzon.

A comunique tonight from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said that 6th Army troops advanced three more miles today for a total inland penetration of 12 miles since the initial landings Tuesday.

Two more towns — San Carlos and Malasiqui — along the Agno River and keypoints of highways in the gulf area, were liberated by units operating in the central sectors from the Lingayen-Dagupen beachheads.

The communique reported that resistance is increasing all along the line, with particularly sharp fighting in the eastern sector along the Manaog-Pozorrubio road, about nine miles from San Fabian, the northernmost beachhead established by the Allies.

The eastern flank spearhead is near the edge of the flat country, and enemy opposition in that sector comes from the hills, press dispatches reported. A BBC dispatch tonight said that each time the Japanese fire from the hills, American warships of the shore return the fire.

The communique tonight said that American naval units yesterday sank or damaged 46 small Japanese freighters and coastal vessels attempting to unload at San Fernando, the important Japanese port at the northernmost part of Lingayen Gulf, 32 miles above the Allied beachhead at San Fabian.

The fast strike at the 109-mile railway which connects central Luzon with the southern part of the island puts the southernmost American units 90 miles from Manila.

American troops now are on five main highways leading to Manila. San Carlos, taken today, is the intersection of all these five roads, and Malasiqui is a highway junction to the east.

American air forces continued to hammer Japanese base installations at Manila and Batangas and the enemy columns of tanks and troops reported moving up toward the central plains. Press dispatches said that American planes are already operating from Lingayen airfield, captured Wednesday, and that light reconnaissance planes are taking off steadily as workers continued to prepare the airport for larger planes.

Press dispatches said that American losses on Luzon still are «extremely light,» but they also emphasized that tough fighting is not far distant.

A German DNB news agency report said today that General Tokoyki Yamashita, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in the Philippines, is personally leading his forces in the Lingayen Gulf area, presumably concentrating so far on the Allies left flank.

Despite the element of resistance on the left flank, the crossing of the Agno was effected by small reconnaissance parties at points 18 to 20 miles inland, a press service reported. An officer told a correspondent that as a result of the havoc created by air attacks on enemy forces attempting to move up from the south, the Agno probably could be crossed in force now without major opposition, if it were not for the threat to the left flank.

Full cover for transfer of supplies and equipment to the beachheads continued to be provided today by American warships and an Australian sea squadron. Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the amphibious forces in the Lingayen Gulf landings, disclosed today that the Allies put 80,000 tons of supplies and equipment ashore on the first day of the operations. Quick, efficient unloading of men and material was accomplished despite a heavy surf, which failed to slow operations to any great extent.

Francis M. Forde, Acting Prime Minister of Australia, said today in Melbourne that Australian units will be «substantially represented» in the Luzon campaign.

«Just as U.S. forces shared the fighting on land, sea, and in the air in New Guinea and ajacent waters, so, too, will Australians have substantial representation in the fight to drive the Japanese out of the Philippines.»

Activities of Filipino Patriots

Front-line dispatches also told today of the activities of Filipino Patriots in the interior of Luzon as they intensified their harassing operations against the Japanese forces moving northward. Correspondents said that the Patriots are informing the American forces by radio of conditions ahead, and also that they are preparing to attack enemy units.

The German news agency, DNB, in a dispatch yesterday from its Tokyo correspondent quoted General Masaharu Homma, former commander of Japanese forces in the Philippines, as saying: «It is to be assumed that the Japanese Grand Fleet will now abandon its passiveness.»

«The moment for Japan's all-out effort has come,» because Allied operations on Luzon «constitute a threat to Japan's position in east Asia — a threat which cannot be ignored,» Homma said, according to DNB. (OWI)

MASSED BOMBERS ATTACK JAPS IN BURMA

HQ, 14TH ARMY, BURMA, January 12 — Precision bombing by formations of Mitchells, Thunderbolts, Hurricanes, and other fighter-bombers of the 12th Bombardment Group was introduced yesterday to Japanese forces entrenched in the village of Gangaw in western Burma, a Reuter dispatch disclosed tonight.

Gangaw was chosen for the debut of precision bombing in this theater because the Japanese had barricaded themselves behind a series of heavy bunkers and as a result the advance of the British 14th Army had been temporarily which grounded strategic bombers, it was announced here today.

Principal targets of the hard-hitting fighter-bombers were rail lines north of Verona and on the Padua-Trieste and Vicenza-Udine routes, although transport, gun positions, supply dumps, and buildings, power stations, and an alcohol refinery were included in the objectives attacked.

In their first offensive operations in five days of bad weather over the Balkans, rocket-firing Beaufighters of the Balkan Air Force yesterday attacked gun positions and an ammunition dump on the German-held Dalmatian Island of Lussin. The assault was the fourth against the strategic German position in the northern Dalmatians within a month. (PRO)

ESCORT CARRIER COMPLETES RECORD OPERATION

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 12 — The British escort carrier Emperor commanded by Captain T. J. N. Hilken, has recently completed what is probably a record period of continuous aircraft operation from such a vessel, in an 11-day voyage in the Aegean in which 260 sorties were flown and more than 200 bombs and 155,000 rounds of ammunition expended, it was reported here today.

In the entire operations, in which 30 of the escort's planes were hit by enemy flak, only one failed to return safely to the carrier, and not one of the pilots was seriously injured.

In one of the more dramatic of the missions, a Netherlands pilot dropped bombs at the mouth of an enemy ammunition dump concealed in a cave, and, then returned at low level to strafe directly into the stores piled in the rock shelter, which finally exploded with a tremendous flash. (PRO)

PARLIAMENT GROUP VISITS 8TH ARMY FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 12 — Six members of the British House of Commons, on a three weeks' visit to the Italian Front, yesterday were taken on a tour of front areas held by the 1st Canadian Corps, under the guidance of Lt. Gen. C. Foulkes, its commander, it was announced here today.

The Parliamentary party visited Bagnacavallo, Russi, and Ravenna, as well as inspecting the recently-captured enemy defensive works along the line of the Lamone River, north of Faenza. One of the party, Major H. G. Studholme, Conservative member for Tavistock, declared that the personal inspection of the enemy lines and observance of conditions in the front areas of the flooded Po Plain, had been an «eye-opener» for the entire group. He said that all the Parliamentary group were determined to stress the importance of the Italian campaign to their people on their return to England.

From a senior officer of a Canadian unit they learned the full details of the first crossing of the Lamone River. The officer pointed out the actual places where the Allied troops forced a crossing amid the most difficult obstacles. Here, Germans troops had dug slit trenches. The M.P.'s saw where the bridge was blown up by the enemy, where Allied troops threw up a new bridge and maintained it while the Germans shelled the area thoroughly for 48 hours.

The M. P.'s paid high tribute to the valor and stamina of Allied soldiers who took part in that operation. Later, they visited the town most recently liberated. The battered town was practically uninhabited because of continued enemy shelling, but a few of the more hardy residents greeted the visitors. The M. P.'s were then given an exhibition of captured enemy equipment.

the beachheads continued to be provided today by American warships and an Australian sea squadron. Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the amphibious forces in the Lingayen Gulf landings, disclosed today that the Allies put 80,000 tons of supplies and equipment ashore on the first day of the operations. Quick, efficient unloading of men and material was accomplished despite a heavy surf which failed to slow operations to any great extent.

Francis M. Forde, Acting Prime Minister of Australia, said today in Melbourne that Australian units will be «substantially represented» in the Luzon campaign.

«Just as U.S. forces shared the fighting on land, sea, and in the air in New Guinea and ajacent waters, so, too, will Australians have substantial representation in the fight to drive the Japanese out of the Philippines.»

Activities of Filipino Patriots

Front-line dispatches also told today of the activities of Filipino Patriots in the interior of Luzon as they intensified their harassing operations against the Japanese forces moving northward. Correspondents said that the Patriots are informing the American forces by radio of conditions ahead, and also that they are preparing to attack enemy units.

The German news agency, DNB, in a dispatch yesterday from its Tokyo correspondent quoted General Masaharu Homma, former commander of Japanese forces in the Philippines, as saying: «It is to be assumed that the Japanese Grand Fleet will now abandon its passiveness.»

HQ. 14TH ARMY, BURMA, January 12 — Precision bombing by formations of Mitchells, Thunderbolts, Hurricanes, and other fighter-bombers of the 12th Bombardment Group was introduced yesterday to Japanese forces entrenched in the village of Gangaw in western Burma, a Reuter dispatch disclosed tonight.

Gangaw was chosen for the debut of precision bombing in this theater because the Japanese had barricaded themselves behind a series of heavy bunkers and as a result the advance of the British 14th Army had been temporarily halted. Details for the attack were worked out by a staff officer, using as his guide the pattern adopted by the Allied Supreme Command in Europe for the bombing of the Germans entrenched at Caen, France.

From the moment the first wave of bombers and fighter-bombers passed over the target area, the earth began to shake and a heavy haze arose from the village blotting everything from sight. Into this inferno, fighter-bombers dropped their bombs. Fighter planes came next to strafe any enemy troops who might have escaped from the bunkers and begun to withdraw from the village.

Simultaneously, British artillery began to shell suspected Japanese strongpoints farther up the river. Under cover of further strafing attacks, British infantry moved into Gangaw and forced the stunned Japanese out of the bunkers at the point of the bayonet.

The bombing was watched by Lt. Gen. Sir William Slim, commander of the 14th Army, and his staff, from a forward observation post. (Reuter)

T. A. F. MAKES 1,000 SORTIES IN BAD WEATHER

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 12 — British, American, Dominion, and Brazilian fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday concentrated more than 1,000 sorties against enemy strongpoints and communications in northern Italy, despite limited visibility and bad weather of ammunition expended. It was reported

The visitors met an Allied Military Government officer and learned of the methods employed by AMG. They made inquiries regarding the feeding of the hungry and the supplying of food and medicines.

Praise for Italian Partisans

A high-ranking Canadian officer gave unstinting praise to Italian Partisans for their work in coöperating with the Allies in many of the most hazardous military operations. He gave the fullest credit to Patriots for hindering and sabotaging the enemy war effort in Italy.

One officer said to the M. P.'s:

«Without their [Patriots'] efforts, big and small, our task of defeating the enemy in Italy and liberating the country would have been doubly difficult and three times as costly in men and material».

The M. P.'s asked an officer to compliment the Partisan leaders in their behalf, and expressed the hope that the Partisan efforts would soon be crowned with complete success and with the final defeat of the enemy.

At the end of the day, one M. P. stated: «We have learned much which will indicate to the British people how important and how immense is the task confronting the Allied troops in Italy». (UNN)

LANCASTERS ATTACK U-BOAT BASE IN NORWAY

LONDON, January 12 — The major German submarine base at Bergen, Norway, was hammered today by two squadrons of RAF Lancasters dropping six-ton bombs in a resumption of Allied aerial blows against renewed enemy submarine activity.

Shipping in and near the harbor also was attacked, and crews reported seeing one enemy ship sink after a bomb hit. Three of the RAF bombers are missing.

On patrol off the Norwegian coast yesterday, Coastal Command aircraft destroyed four enemy planes for a loss of three.

American heavy bombers were grounded by adverse weather for the second successive day. Meanwhile, the 8th USAAF disclosed in a communique issued tonight that 25 bombers and four fighters are missing from Wednesday's heavy attacks against German escape routes leading out of the Belgian bulge.

According to aerial reconnaissance photographs of Wednesday's attacks, the marshalling yards at Karlsruhe were severely damaged by Fortresses of that command.

The marshalling yard, handling military traffic for both the Saar and Strasbourg sectors of the Western Front, was heavily loaded at the time, and the pictures showed five concentrations of bombs hitting the target area.

Four airfields for enemy tactical fighters in the vicinity of Bonn, Cologne, and Euskirchen also were well hit. (OWI)

CIVILIAN CASUALTIES IN U. K. ANNOUNCED

LONDON, January 12 — Enemy air attacks directed against Britain during December killed or injured 1,214 men, women, and children, the Ministry of Home Security announced tonight.

1,000-MILE PIPE LINE RUNS ACROSS BRITAIN

LONDON, January 12 — A secret oil pipeline that stretches for 1,000 miles over Britain suppling all the secret airdromes in the country was made known today by Geoffrey Lloyd, chairman of the Oil Control Board here.

The line now carries more than five million gallons of oil and petrol daily, and to date has carried more than 2,400 million gallons of high-grade aviation gasoline and oils. The line, built at a cost of seven million pounds sterling, links all oil discharge ports on the southwest and northwest coasts to the London area and to the secret airdromes throughout Britain.

Decision to build the line was taken early in 1941, when severe air raids on the oil discharge ports on the east and southeast coasts made it impossible for tankers to discharge in the vicinity of London, which in peacetime used 25 per cent of the nation's entire oil imports.

By November of that year the first oil was trickling out of the London end from the experimental pumpings. In the winter of 1941-1942, work was begun on a new pipeline linking the northwest coast ports with the southwest of the London line.

The second line was working at the end of May, 1942. By the summer of that year, when the General Staff was already thinking in terms of D-Day, a new special line was begun to carry high octane gasoline from the west coast ports to the airdromes, and it was this line that kept the Germans and six of the tankmen taken prisoner. The six men were lined up in the road, robbed of all worthy possessions, and then shot to death. (Reuter)

YUGOSLAVS ADVANCE TOWARD HUNGARY

LONDON, January 12 — Yugoslav units are driving the Germans northward along the Hungarian border in the sector where Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's Russian forces are swinging around Lake Balaton to advance on Vienna.

In a sector just southeast of Virovitica, Yugoslav troops inflicted heavy losses on the Germans in a heavy action, killed or captured 300 officers and men, and knocked out seven tanks.

In eastern Bosnia, 75 miles west of Belgrade, the Germans were cleared from a part of the Majevica Mountains during a battle in which 100 German troops were killed and a quantity of war material captured. (PWB)

INFORMAL FINNISH-U. S. RELATIONS OPENED

WASHINGTON, January 12 — The United States has resumed relations with Finland on an informal basis, the State Department announced today. President Roosevelt has approved the assignment of a foreign service officer, with the personal rank of minister, to Helsinki, the announcement said.

Pending the arrival of the minister, an officer has been dispatched from Stockholm to handle American affairs at the Finnish capital.

The official statement asserted that this move does not constitute a resumption of formal diplomatic relations between the two countries, and that Russia and Britain have been kept fully informed.

The United States broke off relations with Finland completely last June, after all efforts to arrange a Russo-Finnish peace had failed. At that time, the Finnish Minister to the U.S., Hjalmar J. Procope, was given his passport with the remark that he had engaged in activities «inimical to the interests of the United States.»

After Finland's acceptance of the Russian armistice terms and her withdrawal from the war on Germany's side, the question of resumption of diplomatic relations between Finland and the U.S., was reopened. (OWI)

U. S. SUPPLIES TO CHINA INCREASE

WASHINGTON, January 12 — A four-fold increase in U. S. supplies to China since last September was revealed in a report issued here today by the Office of War Information.

The report stated that shipments flown to China over the mountains from India were up to 30,000 tons a month by last November. Bottlenecks at the receiving end prevented efficient distribution in China, but Chinese and American experts now have removed them.

«Despite recent reverses, China still is in the war and battling the Japanese after seven years of resistance,» the OWI report stated. «Her people are united in their hostility toward the Japanese, and they impose a constant threat on Japanese dreams of dominance over east Asia.» (OWI)

GERMANS KILL ADDITIONAL PRISONERS

HQ, U.S. 1ST ARMY, January 12 — The German forces are continuing to act on orders from a higher lever by carrying out their policy of murdering their prisoners, a Reuter report disclosed late tonight.

Lieut. Col. Francke, of a Volksgrenadier division, who committed suicide when about to be captured, was reported by prisoners to have told his troops: « Prisoners are a hindrance, and we cannot spare food for them. You know what I mean. »

Prisoners from another Volksgrenadier division stated that an order had been issued stating that all prisoners were an economic burden to the Reich, and that shooting them was easier than feeding them.

Latest reports confirmed the instance of the shooting of Allied prisoners which took place about three days ago in the Odeigne area. A small reconnaissance tank column from the U.S. 3rd Armored Division was shot up by the

GREW WARNS AGAINST FALSE OPTIMISM

WASHINGTON, January 12 — Joseph Grew, Acting Secretary of State, said today that the successful American landing on Luzon would make the Japanese fight harder. He warned against false optimism, and said that the U.S. must intensify its efforts, and that the Allies cannot afford to relax for a minute.

In the absence of Edward Stettinius, Secretary of State, Mr. Grew, American Ambassador to Japan for 10 years before the war, said that he readily could see that the Luzon landings were causing great perturbation in Tokyo.

« We have a long, hard row ahead, and we should make up our minds to that, » Mr. Grew asserted. « We must intensify our efforts not only on the war front, but on the home front. »

Mr. Grew was asked about progress of Allied plans to punish enemy war criminals, to which he replied:

« The whole subject of war crimes continues to receive the most earnest and active consideration of this government, and all appropriate steps will be taken to give effect to the pronouncements of the several governments that war criminals shall be brought to justice. »

The prospect of an entire United Nations meeting during 1945 was confirmed by Secretary Grew.

Secretary Grew added that a meeting of the same parties who assembled in autumn, 1944, to consider the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, was not being contemplated. (OWI)

I. C. L. CALLS TO NORTH ITALY WORKERS

ROME, January 12 — An appeal to workers in northern Italy to intensify their war effort in the struggle against the Germans was made tonight by Giuseppe di Vittorio, secretary general of the Italian Confederation of Labor, in a radio broadcast.

«Italian workers have the right and the honor to proclaim to their brothers in Allied countries and in the rest of the world that the working classes and the Italian people have made their own valuable contribution in the struggle for the destruction of Fascism and Nazism,» the secretary said.

Recalling the general strikes which took place in northern Italy in 1943, and the railway workers' strike in Turin and Piedmont in September, 1944, Di Vittorio said that the working classes of liberated Italy were doing all in their power to increase their contribution to national liberation. SPELLMAN SAYS ITALY HAS ABILITY TO REBUILD

NEW YORK, January 12 — Despite her economic devastation, Italy has «the head, heart, and hands to rebuild her economic structure if given the chance,» Archbishop Francis J. Spellman said in an article appearing in the current issue of Collier's Magazine, a national weekly.

The Archbishop recently made a tour of American battlefronts, including Italy. Describing Italy, the Archbishop said:

«Few people outside of the country, and even the Italians themselves — and I have talked to hundreds — can conceive the death blow that has been dealt the Italian economy. The wanton scorched-earth tactics of the German Army have caused one of the greatest tragedies of this war, and I have seen this tragedy.

«Deliberate mining of the power and industrial plants, bombing of bridges and strategic rail centers, systematic flooding of vast land reclamation projects, expert demolition of port facilities and communications, the looting and leveling of homes — these have set Italy back half a century.»

The Archbishop said of Premier Bonomi:

Archbishop Spellman told how, during his tour of the battlefronts, he saw and came to know thousands of American soldiers, of whom he said:

«They are fighting, not brutally to kill and enslave, but to achieve a victory and a peace that men may live once again as men — not as killers. America fights not for gain, but for freedom's fruit, the liberty of men and of nations.»

He described his visit to Washington to say goodbye to President Roosevelt before leaving for Rome.

They also said that Benini was jailed with former Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano at Verona «for reasons which will be revealed at the trial.»

BLACK MARKET IN MEDICINES UNCOVERED

ROME, January 12 — More than four tons of medical supplies have been recovered so far by Questura mobile squads since their discovery of the vast network of racketeers engaged in selling stolen pharmaceutical products on the black market, the Questura announced yesterday.

Police inquiries, started a few days ago, led them to Giorgio Moschini, owner of a pharmacy in Via Cavour, 71; Mario Manciati, a surgeon; Ferdinando Mayer (alias Mannara), and Gian Luigi Talamo, all of whom have been detained. Marchese Enrico dell'Isola has been identified as an alleged accomplice of the others.

The investigation established that the supplies were stolen by Mayer and Talamo, then delivered to dell'Isola and Manciati who arranged for their sale at an enormous profit.

It was also established that a consignment of these supplies, obtained by the racketeers at a price of 257,000 lire, was sold at 800,000 lire.

Among the supplies so far recovered were 1,000 atabrine fials, 1,000 test tubes of opium antidote, 7,500 fials of calcium bromide, 10,000 concentrated tablets of quinine bisulfate and 5,000 of hydrochlorate of quinine, 50 fials of insulin, and two quintals of cough mixture. Great quantities of chemicals were also found, some of which are extremely rare.

The supplies recovered are to be consigned to the Head Office of Public Health and to the Health Office of the Commune. (UNN)

ROME, January 12 — More than four tons of medical supplies have been recovered so far by Questura mobile squads since their discovery of the vast network of racketeers engaged in selling stolen pharmaceutical products on the black market, the Questura announced yesterday.

Police inquiries, started a few days ago, led them to Giorgio Moschini, owner of a pharmacy in Via Cavour, 71; Mario Manciati, a surgeon; Ferdinando Mayer (alias Mannara), and Gian Luigi Talamo, all of whom have been detained. Marchese Enrico dell'Isola has been identified as an alleged accomplice of the others.

The investigation established that the supplies were stolen by Mayer and Talamo, then delivered to dell'Isola and Manciati who arranged for their sale at an enormous profit.

It was also established that a consignment of these supplies, obtained by the racketeers at a price of 257,000 lire, was sold at 800,000 lire.

Among the supplies so far recovered were 1,000 stabrine fials, 1,000 test tubes of opium antidote,7,500 fials of calcium bromide, 10,000 concentrated tablets of quinine bisulfate and 5,000 of hydrochlorate of quinine, 50 fials of insulin, and two quintals of cough mixture. Great quantities of chemicals were also found, some of which are extremely rare.

The supplies recovered are to be consigned to the Head Office of Public Health and to the Health Office of the Commune. (UNN)

SARDINIAN CATTLE MOVED TO ITALY

ROME, January 12 — The first part of the plan to transfer livestock from Sardinia to the Italian mainland, where the Germans looted or destroyed much of the livestock, went into operation yesterday with the arrival of 34 cows, 34 oxen, and seven bulls.

The plan calls for importing 5,000 cattle, 6,000 horses and 50,000 sheep into the Lazio region near Rome by next June.

Under the plan, the farmers' need of oxen for the spring sowing can be met, and the problem of providing milk for children and old people will be partially solved.

The plan is operating with the assistance of Allied authorities, who arranged sea transport for the consignment. (UNN)

TOSCANINI DONATES THREE TRUCKS

NEW YORK, January 12 — The world-famous conductor, Arturo Toscanini, and his son Walter have donated three new trucks to American Relief for Italy to be used in distributing Italian relief supplies, Justice Juvenal Marchisio, president of the organization, announced today.

In making the announcement, Justice Marchisio said:

«The Germans either stole or destroyed all railroads and conveyances as they retreated northward, and so trucks are the only efficient manner in which to distribute supplies to the 27 million people of liberated Italy.

« Trucks can be used also to smash the black market in Italy by distributing food, clothing, medical supplies, and other essentials to all cities and isolated rural areas. » (OWI)

WAR REFUGEES IN SICILY TO BE REPATRIATED

ROME, January 12 — Plans for the gradual repatriation of Frosinone and Littoria provinces' war refugees now in Sicily have been completed by a recently-formed committee of representatives of the Allied Commission, the Italian Government, and the Vatican, it was announced here today. Return of the refugees to their homes will begin in the near future, the announcement added. (UNN)

SICILY SULFUR INDUSTRY TO BE REORGANIZED

PALERMO, January 12 — High Commissioner Selvatore Aldisio today appointed Carmelo Cottone to reorganize the sulfur-producing industry in Sicily. The sulfur industry is one of the most important in Sicily, and its reactivation will absorb a sizable number of workers at present unemployed. (UNN)

ROME PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 12 — The National Liberation Committee's resolution on rebuilding the Army and Italian reconstruction and epuration problems and an article by General Arnaldo Azzi drew the attention of the Roman press today.

L'Unità (Communist), under the headline « Volunteering for the Army, » wrote:

« Communists, who are bringing their best efforts to the resistance front in the north, must also give the greatest contribution possible to the creation of a large army in liberated Italy.

« With precedence over all other preoccupations, even the very serious economic ones, it is necessary to turn our attention to what is the most important task at the moment — participation in the war. »

Guido Gonella wrote in Il Popolo (Christian Democrat):

« Italy simply wishes to get out of this ambiguous state of cobelligerency in order to become formally what she is substantially, an ally of the United Nations in the war for freedom. »

Resolution Published

Italia Nuova (Democratic) published a resolution voted by the Democratic Party and stating: « The Italian people since September 1939 took a hostile attitude towards the war of aggression declared by Germany... This attitude, which was in contrast with the position taken by the dictatorship then in power, had a decisive influence in bringing about the present international and political situation. The Italian people therefore ask that the attitude taken by it spontaneously now find a definite expression in the formation of a large national army, which may contribute, together with the United Nations, to the military operations against Germany and her allies, in order to liberate the country and regain prestige for it, and in order to maintain the integrity of national territory and to assure the triumph of the principles of democracy in the world. »

Lucio Labriola, in Il Tempo (Independent) wrote on the subject of reconstruction: « The mysticism of economic 'plans' has various origins: in Russia it sprang out of the necessity of organizing the country for war... It was taken up by the Fascist nations with similar views in mind...

Azzi wrote today:

« Among the numerous factors which help to build up the morale of a military organization, of particular importance is the confidence of the nation and of the army in the leaders.

« By reading the newspapers and listening to the speeches of party leaders, to the conversations between private citizens and military men of all ranks, one gathers that this confidence has been seriously shaken...

« The reasons are, that the military chiefs sympathized with and helped the original Fascist movement, and that they passively submitted to the 'régime,' even when its corruption in all fields had become perfectly apparent. They made the most of that state of things to get personal advantages...

« They voluntarily participated in the war in Spain. They committed needlessly cruel acts of repression against the Partisan risings in the Balkans... They did nothing to prevent the declaration of war against France and England, although they were well aware that most Italian people were hostile to it... Through their unpardonable behavior in front of the Germans, they brought about the disgraceful events of September, 1943...

« Therefore, radical changes are necessary... The Allied offensive on the Italian front cannot be far ahead; our army is to participate in it... and it is not morally prepared.

« To our mind, the epuration must be made according to rank, but the generals must be immediately eliminated and replaced... » (UNN)

TRUCE ENDS FIGHTING IN GREECE

ATHENS, January 12 — Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, and representatives of ELAS (National Liberation Militia) have signed a truce ending the 40-day-old Greek civil strife, it was officially announced here this morning.

The cease-firing agreement was completed at 2230 hours last night, following two days of negotiations between Greek and British officials.

It provides for a formal end to hostilities at 0001 hours Monday morning so as to allow for transmittal of the necessary orders, and commits the ELAS forces to withdraw behind designated lines outside of the local area. No mention is made in the truce terms of disarmament of ELAS troops.

The preamble to the agreement stated that an end to hostilities is essential « in order that discussions may take place between the Greek Government and representatives of ELAS-EAM for settlement of outstanding questions. »

Hostage Question Unsettled

The British Government announced tonight that it endorses the terms of the truce with the qualification, however, that ELAS must return hostages, before the terms can be lasting.

A statement issued at 10, Downing Street, in London, said:

« The terms signed by British and ELAS representatives for a truce are endorsed by His Majesty's Government. The taking and holding of hostages is, however, a barbarous custom condemned by international law.

« His Majesty's Government must make it clear there

Seven months after the liberation of Rome, and 15 after the liberation of Naples, the arrest of a Fascist provincial secretary still seems almost an achievement, a great success... The new laws, the anti-Fascist laws, are not having practical application...

«The danger has become so serious today that urgent measures must absolutely be taken.»

TRUCE ENDS FIGHTING IN GREECE

ATHENS, January 12 — Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, and representatives of ELAS (National Liberation Militia) have signed a truce ending the 40-day-old Greek civil strife, it was officially announced here this morning.

The cease-firing agreement was completed at 2230 hours last night, following two days of negotiations between Greek and British officials.

It provides for a formal end to hostilities at 0001 hours Monday morning so as to allow for transmittal of the necessary orders, and commits the ELAS forces to withdraw behind designated lines outside of the local area. No mention is made in the truce terms of disarmament of ELAS troops.

The preamble to the agreement stated that an end to hostilities is essential «in order that discussions may take place between the Greek Government and representatives of ELAS-EAM for settlement of outstanding questions.»

Hostage Question Unsettled

The British Government announced tonight that it endorses the terms of the truce with the qualification, however, that ELAS must return hostages, before the terms can be lasting.

A statement issued at 10, Downing Street, in London, said:

«The terms signed by British and ELAS representatives for a truce are endorsed by His Majesty's Government. The taking and holding of hostages is, however, a barbarous custom condemned by international law.

«His Majesty's Government must make it clear, therefore, that no truce can be enduring or ripen into peace unless or until hostages taken by ELAS have been effectually safeguarded and released.»

Return of hostages held by the ELAS to their homes had been a major stumbling block to completion of the truce. As finally approved, the agreement provides for release by ELAS of all military prisoners, including Greek police and gendarmerie, as well as Greek civilians who were in possession of arms when captured.

Civilians detained by the EAM civil police will not be released, however. This indicates that ELAS had yielded partially on the question of hostages.

The British agreed to release ELAS prisoners held by them equal in number to the total set free by the opposing army. Gravely wounded prisoners of both sides will be freed without regard to this limitation.

British civilians captured by ELAS must be set free «irrespective of the identity of their captors,» either at the place where they were captured or in the area where they are being held prisoner.

ELAS agreed to withdraw their units at present east and south of a general line described as running through Itea-Amphisa-Lamiadiz-Dhomokos-Farsala, and then east along the road to the village of Ambelia, continuing along the road Sorestinon-Kanalia-Alrkavos-Kouscoumbour. The units will pull back west and north of this line, allowing unhindered use of the roads, and will evacuate all towns and villages named in the line designation. Evacuation must be completed by 0001 hours on January 18.

The Salonika area must also be evacuated by 0001 hours on Janaury 17.

ELAS troops are also to leave the Peloponnesus area if they are not residents of the section. ELAS inhabitants of the Peloponnesus now outside of the area may return to their homes. Together with all other ELAS residents of the area, they will withdraw to the sector south of the line from Pyrgos to Argos, taking up their headquarters there by 0001 hours on January 19.

ELAS forces resident in Zante, Euboea, Kithera, Cyclades, and Sporades islands must evacuate the islands under the terms of the truce.

In the case of the Peloponnesus evacuation and clearing of the islands, the British commander is to be notified of the strength and location of the ELAS forces, and the method and routes of withdrawal.

Evacuation of these areas means that ELAS forces will be moved from the entire southeastern corner of Greece, retiring behind a line varying from 80 to 120 miles from here.

Failure to observe completely the terms of the truce by ELAS, or attacks by ELAS forces on British or Greek Government troops, will be regarded as a breach of the agreement.

General Scobie signed for the British. Signing for the Central ELAS Committee were John Zevgos, Demetrios Partsalides, Theodore Macridis, and Athanasios Athenilis.

Today's land forces Greece communique said that mobile columns were continuing their advance north and northwest of here without encountering opposition. Quiet prevailed in the local area.

A message delivered to the ELAS delegates by the Regent, Archbishop Damaskinos, yesterday, said that the Regent was «profoundly shocked to hear of their [ELAS] refusal to release men and women taken, in many thousands, as hostages.» The message also said:

«If the ELAS Central Committee feel they could assist in the establishment of law and order such as should exist in a civilized state under the rule of law, he [the Regent] would be ready to facilitate a meeting between them and representatives of the Greek Government.» (OWI -Reuter)

KING PETER QUESTIONS SUBASIC-TITO AGREEMENT

LONDON, January 12 — King Peter II of Yugoslavia yesterday objected to the regency plan and proposals for a Yugoslav provisional government incorporated in the draft agreement drawn up by Prime Minister Ivan Subasic and Marshal Tito.

The King, in a communique, said that he agrees with some of the clauses of the plan and that he favors popular choice of government. He added that he would look upon it «as his sacred duty» to see that the people are consulted and «their freely-expressed will be given full respect.»

While accepting the proposal of a regency, the statement was not in agreement with the form of regency suggested in the Tito-Subasic proposals.

The King also objected to placing legislative power solely in the hands of the Anti-Fascist Council of National Liberation until the proposed Constituent Assembly had finished its work.

«King Peter believes, on the contrary, that the setting up of an all-party government, comprising every political movement, would furnish a valid guarantee for new and better unity in the country, to which he hopes shortly to return,» the statement said.

Earlier in the week, King Peter conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden. According to British newspapers today, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden will give full respect. The King of Yugoslavia wholehearted welcomes the interest with which the Allied nations envisage reorganization of post-war Europe on the basis of the freely-recorded will of its people.

«He fully agrees with their established policy that the widest possible grouping of the democratic parties is the only guarantee of the free expression of popular will. He is deeply convinced that the same path must be followed in his country...»

The communique also expressed admiration for the part Russia has played in the war. «King Peter, who brought his country into this war on the side of the great Allies, like the whole population of Yugoslavia, has followed with the keenest sympathy and admiration the magnificent prowess of the Russian armies under Marshal Stalin.

«Fraternity with Russia is the basic sentiment of the Slav peoples. The King has the greatest regard for Marshal Stalin, whose name has meant so much to the Yugoslav people in their heroic resistance.» (OWI)

ROOSEVELT ACCEPTS LANDIS' RESIGNATION

WASHINGTON, January 12 — President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of James M. Landis as the American director of economic operations for the Middle East and principal U.S. representative to the Middle East Supply Center.

In a message to Landis, President Roosevelt lauded the contribution Landis made toward solving the economic problems of the Middle East and of strengthening the bonds of friendship between the peoples of the Middle East and the U.S. (Reuter)

MEDITERRANEAN

15th Army Group:

An improvement in the weather conditions has produced an increase in patrol activities on the front of both the 5th and 8th Armies.

Navy:

During the early hours of January 11, in spite of bad weather, a force of British and U.S. light craft on patrol to the southeast of Genoa met and engaged a convoy of enemy F-Lighters. Torpedoes were fired. Hits on two of the Lighters resulted in fires and heavy explosions. Probable hits on a third Lighter also produced an explosion.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Very strong forces of fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday continued their campaign against enemy communications, stores, and front-line installations in northern Italy.

Light bombers attacked a rail yard in northeastern Italy.

Balkan Air Force fighters made rocket attacks on an ammunition dump on an Adriatic island. On the night of January 10/11, light bombers and rocket-carrying fighters attacked communications in northern Italy.

From these operations, five of our aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew more than 1,100 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

Mobile columns continue operations north and northwest of Athens, meeting no opposition.

Complete quiet prevails in Athens-Piraeus. Relief measures continue.

The situation is unchanged elsewhere in Greece.

Earlier in the week, King Peter conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden. According to British newspapers today, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden told King Peter that the British Government favored his acceptance of the Tito-Subasic agreement.

British newspapers today said that the Yugoslav King's objections were accorded a «hostile reception» by the British public, and were of «utmost surprise» to the British Government.

The cabinet headed by Subasic met here this morning, but no statement had been made by late tonight.

King Peter's statement yesterday said, in part:

«King Peter II of Yugoslavia has closely studied the draft agreement prepared by Dr. Subasic, Prime Minister of the Royal Yugoslav Government, and by Marshal Tito, President of the National Liberation Movement of Yugoslavia, for a solution of pending problems.

«Faithful to the democratic traditions of his forefathers, King Peter II approves the basic proposals laid down in the draft agreement and its amendments, whereby the future constitution and form of government of his country shall be determined solely by the free decision of the people of Yugoslavia.

«The King will accept such a decision, but, as the constitutional monarch, it is his sacred duty to see to it that the people shall be consulted, and their freely-expressed

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 12 — Today's communique:

On the northern flank of the Ardennes salient, Allied forces have taken Bihain and Laroche, farther to the west. Enemy opposition was generally less severe.

The enemy has continued his withdrawal from the extremity of the salient, and our units following up have occupied Grune and cut the Laroche-Champlon road in the vicinity of Ronchamps.

On the southern flank of the salient, we have entered St. Hubert, and our forces have cleared the enemy from Cesqueville, thee miles to the southeast.

Farther east, our units advancing northward have cut the St. Hubert-Bastogne road northwest of Tillet.

Southeast of Bastogne, our forces are reducing a small enemy pocket north of Harlange. The only road from the pocket has been cut near the village of Doncols, which is now in our hands, and our units at the southern end of the pocket have taken Tarchamps.

On the Luxembourg-German border, an attempt by the enemy infantry to cross the Sauer River southeast of Wallendorf was broken up by our artillery.

Bad weather continued to limit air operations over the battle zones yesterday.

Medium and light bombers attacked road junctions at Houffalize and Clervaux.

Fighter-bombers hit rolling stock near Prum. East of the Ardennes salient, other fighter-bombers destroyed an ammunition dump at Mayen and light bombers attacked a railway bridge spanning the Simmer River at Simmern.

In the afternoon, escorted heavy bombers attacked a railway marshalling yard in Uerdingen, district of Krefeld. South of Saarbrücken, we made another local gain and took Behren against light resistance.

In the southern part of Bitsch salient, the enemy attempted to infiltrate our positions without success.

A strong hostile attack, supported by approximately 15 tanks, of which we destroyed four, was launched in the Rhine Valley in the Hatten area, where hard fighting continues. The enemy attempted to infiltrate toward Rittershofen. The enemy continued to be aggressive in the Rhine bridgehead north of Strasbourg, where we withdrew a short distance east of Herlisheim to a more favorable position.

In the Alsace Plain south of Strasbourg, the village of Obenheim was over-run by a tank-supported enemy force after our troops had been supplied by air.

There was hard fighting at Rossfeld and Herbsheim.

Southeast of Strasbourg, fighter-bombers attacked targets at Ausach in Germany. (Reuter)

MOSCOW, January 12 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in Budapest, our troops tightening the ring of the encircled German-Hungarian groupings, captured Városliget city park, the city cemetery of Kerepes, and a naphtha purificative plant, a gun factory, and a fertilizer plant, thus occupying 135 blocks.

During January 11, in Budapest, our troops captured 1,270 German and Hungarian soldiers and officers.

At the railway freight station, 5,100 rail-cars and 31 locomotives were seized.

Northwest and west of Budapest, enemy tank and infantry attacks were repulsed by our troops. During yesterday, in this area, 67 German tanks were disabled or destroyed, and six enemy planes were shot down.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and, at several points, fighting of local importance took place.

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 12 — Today's communique:

The enemy has launched attacks against Patriot forces north of Genoa and north of Spezia, where Black Brigades are operating with German troops.

Enemy action is also reported on the Piacenza plain, in the Emilia region, where roundups of men up to 26 years of age are being carried out, mainly for deportation to Germany. Other attacks by Fascist troops are reported in the Bologna and Modena areas. In the latter region, Patriots are actively opposing enemy operations and have blown up the Lama Mocogno and Cadignano bridges.

In Piedmont, an enemy offensive got under way on January 2 in the Serre area. Although they are in unfavorable positions, the Patriots are resisting effectively. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 12 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the winter battle of the Ardennes, yesterday, our brave divisions again held out against stubbornly continued American attacks. At the northern side of the front bulge, the enemy infantry and tank formations, shortly after the resumption of the attack, collapsed in our fire.

At the southern side, southeast of Bastogne, the enemy increased his pressure and penetrated our front with three divisions massed in a small sector. The fighting is still in progress.

In the lower Vosges, at Reipertsweiler, mountain troops are engaged in a successful attack.

South of Wissembourg, tanks and tank grenadiers neutralized additional pillbox groups of the Maginot Line and penetrated deeply into the fortifications. The strongpoint Rittershoien was captured, and counter-attacks of American reserves were frustrated.

North of Strasbourg, yesterday, the enemy, weakened by his tank losses, did not resume his attacks.

In central Alsace, enemy forces which had been encircled at Obenheim were wiped out. The number of prisoners has risen to more than 1,000. Many guns, as well as light and heavy machine-guns, were captured. A relief attempt from a westerly direction having been frustrated, the resistance of the second encircled enemy force began.

North of the Danube, the offensive and defensive fighting continues.

In the other parts of the Eastern Front, the fighting flared up in some sectors.

Air:

Yesterday, British terror bombers attacked Krefeld.

Fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force brought down nine out of a formation of 30 two-engined bombers, thus frustrating the planned attack, off the Norwegian coast.

London continues to be subjected to our harassing fire.

GERMAN

Third Day of «Atrocity» Campaign: One of the most emphasized propaganda trends of the last three days was the reporting of various alleged American atrocities on the Western Front. Perhaps in reply to recent American charges against German machine-gunning of prisoners, the campaign began two days ago with German clamor over American «inhuman treatment» of German prisoners. Yesterday, the campaign shifted its stress to German civilians in the Aix-la-Chapelle area, supposedly tortured by «the American gangsters in uniform.» Today, the campaign reaches new heights in a broadcast over the German Home Radio by Wilfred von Oven, entitled «Allied Atrocities.»

«Murderous Lust» of «Drunken Monsters:» The use of such strong phrases as these indicates the intensity of the current German «atrocity» campaign. Von Oven charges that American soldiers attacked a German marked with the German Red Cross insignia, beat him till covered with

At the southern side, southeast of Bastogne, the enemy increased his pressure and penetrated our front with three divisions massed in a small sector. The fighting is still in progress.

In the lower Vosges, at Reipertsweiler, mountain troops are engaged in a successful attack.

South of Wissembourg, tanks and tank grenadiers neutralized additional pillbox groups of the Maginot Line and penetrated deeply into the fortifications. The strongpoint Rittershofen was captured, and counter-attacks of American reserves were frustrated.

North of Strasbourg, yesterday, the enemy, weakened by his tank losses, did not resume his attacks.

In central Alsace, enemy forces which had been encircled at Obenheim were wiped out. The number of prisoners has risen to more than 1,000. Many guns, as well as light and heavy machine-guns, were captured. A relief attempt from a westerly direction having been frustrated, the resistance of the second encircled enemy force began to abate.

Italy:

On the fronts of central Italy, there were reconnaissance activities on both sides.

In the rear areas, 2,500 bandits were captured during mopping-up operations.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, north of Szekesfehervar, our troops smashed the stubborn Bolshevik resistance, captured the village of Zamoly, and warded off enemy counter-attacks. Thirty one tanks and assault guns, 35 guns, and three loaded enemy cargo gliders were either captured or destroyed.

Between the Vertes Mountains and the Danube, numerous Bolshevik attacks failed.

In the Pilis Mountains, on the bend of the Danube, our formations continued to advance despite difficult weather and ground conditions. The brave German-Hungarian garrison of Budapest frustrated grim enemy attempts at breaking through in bitter house-to-house fighting in the eastern part of the city.

North of the Danube, the offensive and defensive fighting continues.

In the other parts of the Eastern Front, the fighting flared up in some sectors.

Air:

Yesterday, British terror bombers attacked Krefeld.

Fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force brought down nine out of a formation of 30 two-engined bombers, thus frustrating the planned attack, off the Norwegian coast.

London continues to be subjected to our harassing fire. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Third Day of «Atrocity» Campaign: One of the most emphasized propaganda trends of the last three days was the reporting of various alleged American atrocities on the Western Front. Perhaps in reply to recent American charges against German machine-gunning of prisoners, the campaign began two days ago with German clamor over American «inhuman treatment» of German prisoners. Yesterday, the campaign shifted its stress to German civilians in the Aix-la-Chapelle area, supposedly tortured by «the American gangsters in uniform.» Today, the campaign reaches new heights in a broadcast over the German Home Radio by Wilfred von Ofen, entitled «Allied Atrocities.»

«Murderous Lust» of «Drunken Monsters:» The use of such strong phrases as these indicates the intensity of the current German «atrocity» campaign. Von Ofen charges that American soldiers attacked a German marked with the German Red Cross insignia, beat him till covered with blood, and then «vented their murderous lust on the blood-stained German...» Negro soldiers are described as «drunken monsters» throwing hand-grenades at «playing children.»

Atrocities in the East: Meanwhile, the German Radio is also reviving its atrocity propaganda concerning the Eastern Front, especially in connexion with its usual anti-Semitism. The German Home Radio gives «eye-witness reports» from Hungary as the source for such strongly-worded accusations as: «The ugly face of the Jew beams over raped corpses and slaughtered children, women, and old people.» Exploiting its atrocity propaganda for the purpose of arousing the fighting spirit of its listeners, the German Radio urges them to «hurl fanatical hatred against the invaders roused up by the Jews.»

German Withdrawal on Western Front: Sertorius notes the beginning of a «new» phase in the central sector of this front, owing to the «withdrawal of German troops to the eastern bank of the Ourthe.» He admits that, in consequence, «the German front salient has been deprived of its narrow nose, jutting out toward the west.» But he draws the consolation that this «nose» was too «exposed to enemy attacks» and, by becoming «flatter,» can now be more readily defended.

The British 6th Airborne Division swung southward from Laroche to capture Halleux and then drove four miles to cut the north-south road between Laroche and St. Hubert. British patrols reached Champlon with little enemy opposition and have narrowed the corridor between the 1st and 3rd Armies to six miles.

On the southern flank, U.S. 3rd Army forces attacked the German pocket southeast of Bastogne from three sides today and in 11 hours wiped out half the area, press reports said tonight. Resistance in the remainder of the small German salient was collapsing rapidly. At the start of the American attack, the pocket was five miles long and four miles wide.

The Germans fought grimly to maintain their penetrations at five points along the German border and the Rhine. American troops are meeting strong resistance on both sides of the Bitsch salient where the Germans are throwing in counter-attacks in battalion strength.

South of Strasbourg the Germans have driven up the Rhine-Rhone Canal to the area of Kraft and have kept up heavy pressure against the Americans who have maintained their positions. RAF BOMBS KREFELD AND HANOVER

LONDON, January 11 — Escorted RAF Lancasters today attacked marshalling yards in Krefeld, Germany, following the two-ton blockbuster attack on Hanover last night by RAF Mosquitos. Hanover is an important rail center in northwestern Germany.

Yesterday, heavy bombers of the 8th USAAF carried out widespread attacks on bridges, railway yards and airfields in western Germany, and roads, bridges and junctions on the German-Belgian frontier at the base of the Ardennes salient. The targets included road and rail bridges over the Rhine at Cologne; airfields in the areas of Cologne, Bonn and Euskirchen; and marshalling yards at Karlsruhe.

Fighter-bombers, ranging the Rhine Valley from Landau to near the Swiss border, struck at ammunition and supply dumps, bridges and enemy communications. Between Colmar and Mulhouse the railway was cut at a number of places.

Headquarters of the 8th USAAF announced today that in the 24 days since the start of the German Ardennes offensive the force has flown a total of 15,750 heavy-bomber sorties and 11,250 fighter sorties. All the attacks have been directed against tactical targets controlling the German movement of supplies and men into the area.

The 8th USAAF dropped a total of 40,600 tons of bombs in their 24 day offensive, during which they made 19 attacks. Cologne, the heaviest hit of any German city by American planes, received 13,250 tons of the total.

Last night enemy shipping off the Norwegian coast was attacked by RAF planes. Two German merchant ships were sunk, another left on fire, and two others damaged. All RAF planes returned safely.

GERMANS RETREATING FROM SALIENT, ALLIED LINES STRAIGHTENED

LONDON, January 11 — The German army in the Ardennes salient is making an organized retreat under heavy Allied pressure, press dispatches reported tonight. The German withdrawal was covered by small-scale counter-attacks and determined resistance on their flanks. Thousands of wood, plastic and other non-metallic mines have been buried in the snow-covered battle area to delay the Allied advance.

Since the Allied armies stopped the German advance and took over the offensive, more than one-third of the salient in Belgium has been recaptured and official reports estimate German losses at 100,000 men. A total of 26,369 prisoners has been taken by the U.S. 1st and 3rd Armies alone since the start of the German offensive.

Reports stated that the Allied forces were not closing a pincers on the German army since the bulk of the enemy forces had been withdrawn. The German forces were estimated to number 25 divisions, eight of which were armoured. The Germans appeared to have reinforced key positions on a shorter line about 20 to 25 miles west of their starting point, correspondents said.

Laroche, the main German communications center on the northern flank, was captured today by American troops, who first entered the road junction town yesterday. Only nine prisoners were taken, as the Germans had withdrawn their main forces.

At the northeastern end of the Belgian bulge, American forces cleared the west bank of the Salm River as far south as Salmchateau and established a bridgehead on the east bank. Vielsalm was entered but the communications center is still strongly held by German SS troops.

American attack, the pocket was five miles long and four miles wide.

The Germans fought grimly to maintain their penetrations at five points along the German border and the Rhine. American troops are meeting strong resistance on both sides of the Bitsch salient where the Germans are throwing in counter-attacks in battalion strength.

LUZON FORCES MOVE NINE MILES INLAND

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, January 11 — Spreading out rapidly on all sectors from their Lingayen Gulf beachheads, American troops advanced five miles inland today, for a total penetration of nine miles since the initial landings Tuesday on Luzon Island.

A communique from General Douglas MacArthur said late tonight that the beachheads have been further extended to 22 miles along the southern shores of the gulf, while press dispatches reported that the U.S. 6th Army vanguards already have liberated about 30 towns and villages and are within 90 miles from Manila.

The communique added that the right flank of the offensive is now beyond Umanday, seven miles inland, and correspondents said that patrols had reached the Agno River, the most important river of central Luzon, at a point between 18 and 20 miles from the gulf coast.

The Japanese have not yet offered any serious resistance anywhere and their activity is minor, the communique reported. The American forces came in contact with the enemy in only one sector — on the left flank nine miles from the coast.

Widening of the beachheads was concentrated on the extreme west flank, where the landing forces liberated Labroador, a gulf town four miles west of the town of Lingayen.

Units moved steadily, without opposition, in a southeasterly direction, apparently headed toward the central plains leading to Manila. They passed the small towns of Calasio and Bulog, five miles inland from Dagupan, and moved toward the Agno River, the mouth of which was secured by troops on the west flank.

A press dispatch said that patrols were moving inland so fast at some points, that they were ordered to slow up because their communications and supplies could not keep up with them.

At a press conference today in Washington, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, said that the 6th Army had pushed inland as much as 15 miles, which correspondents also set as the current depth of the penetration.

Reinforcements pour ashore

As the 6th Army units continued to successfully tighten their grip around the perimeter, supplies and reinforcements continued to pour ashore. The communique said that light Jap naval craft raided the Allied anchorage early yesterday damaging shipping, but that it was dispersed by American planes which, headquarters announced, dominate the skies in the Philippines.

The air offensive in the Pacific also stretched out in all directions in concert with the current land operations, as an announcement tonight from Admiral Nimitz told of new strikes on Tuesday by Army bombers against strategic installations in the Bonin and Kurile islands. The Bonin objectives were hit by planes based in the Marianas. Army bombers in the Aleutians struck at Suribachi in the Kuriles.

While the American forces continued to fan out in the Lingayen area, the Japanese were reported to be rushing reinforcements from Manila and from Batangas, at the southernmost tip of Luzon Island, to the central plains, where correspondents expect the first major clash of the campaign.

This forward route became the objective yesterday and today of bomber and fighter planes which attacked communications, wrecking road and railway bridges about 25 miles north of Manila and hit and destroyed vehicles and troops in the column moving northward.

Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Resident General of the Philippines, said today in Washington that it was estimated

The extensive air operations in the Pacific met little opposition anywhere from the enemy. Admiral Nimitz's communique said that a day before the strikes at Japanese installations in the Bonin and Kurile Islands, Liberator bombers pounded Iwo Jima, the Volcano Island base from which enemy planes have been harassing the Superfortress field at Saipan to the south.

Other attacks also were against Badeltuap in the Palaus, the island of Nauru, west of the Gilberts and remaining positions in the Marshalls.

Armada Movements

Press dispatches today continued to describe phases of the daring armada movements through enemy lanes to bring troops to Luzon. A correspondent said that Admiral William F. Halsey's 3rd U.S. Fleet struck hard at Formosa, huge island off the China coast, as part of the maneuvers before the Luzon landings.

The gigantic invasion convoy moved in the direction of Formosa, deliberately sailing by Lingayen Gulf in daylight on Monday. Then, before dawn Tuesday, the ships turned around and sailed into the gulf. At 0700 hours Pacific time, every ship of the 3rd and 7th battle fleets, covering the landing forces, opened fire with every gun. At the same time, hundreds of aircraft unloaded their bombs on Japanese coastal defenses. (OWI-BBC-ABSIE)

NEW NAZI DIVISION ON ADRIATIC LINE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 11 — The German 10th Army has been reinforced with a fresh division of coast defense troops from Norway to hold the line of the Reno River at all costs, it was officially reported here today.

The arrival of reinforcements for the hard-pressed German Jaeger and Schutzstaffel formations, split in two by the Canadians and driven to the east and west around the shores of the Comacchio Lagoon, was revealed when 10 prisoners were captured. The prisoners came from a strong German patrol which was surprised as it crossed the Reno River to infiltrate Canadian positions along the coast. All of the German prisoners were members of the 710th Division, which had been stationed on the coast of Norway.

The prisoners were reported to have said that they had heard that Hitler himself had ordered the line of the Reno River held «at all costs.»

In this coastal sector, the Reno River forms the last natural defensive line guarding the small port of Porto Garibaldi, Adriatic link for the inland town of Ferrara.

Indications that the enemy are also bolstering up their defensive positions along the Senio River, was given in official reports that the German 278th Infantry Division, a formation in position between the Ferrara and the Bologna Highways, was using Italian members of the Todt Labor Organization in patrol actions across the stream.

The Italians, when captured on the east bank of the Senio, claimed that they had been driven ahead of the patrol to act as a protective screen, presumably to draw fire and to detonate Allied mines.

Elsewhere along the snowcovered Italian front, several brisk fights occurred, as both Allied and German patrols donned white camouflage suits and skis to crisscross the icy battle lines.

Engineer sections of the 5th Army, aided by Italian labour, kept all main traffic arteries open to supply vehicles by using snow ploughs, bulldozers, scrapers, wreckers and relief trucks. (PRO)

Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Resident General of the Philippines, said today in Washington that it was estimated conservatively that there are between 150,000 and 200,000 Japanese on Luzon Island.

Air operations also were concentrated on the Nielson and Nicholas airfields, both on the southern outskirts of Manila. Bombers of the Far East Air Force started large fires there.

The air action also struck at enemy installations in the sector east and north of the consolidated beachheads in direct support of the ground forces. Carrier-based planes of the 7th U.S. Fleet, under Admiral Thomas Kinkaid, wrecked ammunition and supply dumps, warehouses, barracks, war plants and motor vehicles in the 30-mile area comprising the Lingayen gulf port of San Fernando, one of the most important enemy strongholds on Luzon; Baguio and Rosario. Six enemy planes also were destroyed.

« Enemy air activity over Luzon has now been reduced to a negligible scale by our constant attack and patrols and continuous interdiction of air bases, » an announcement from General MacArthur said this morning.

American units continued to mop up the remnants of enemy resistance on Leyte, killing 415 more Japanese. On Mindanao, bombers attacked Ibby airdrome and small craft at Davao, demolishing several buildings and sinking three barges.

FIGHTERS DAMAGE NAZI TRANSPORT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 11 — Despite bad weather which cancelled all missions of heavy and medium bombers, as well as the Balkan Air Force, TAF fighters and fighter-bombers yesterday continued their heavy attacks on enemy communication lines, transport and shipping in northern Italy.

In more than 700 sorties, the Mustangs, Thunderbolts, Spitfires and Kittyhawks of the Desert Air Force and U.S. 22nd Tactical Air Command destroyed or damaged 146 motor vehicles, the same number of rail cars, and 35 locomotives. They also cut rail tracks in 68 places from just west of Trieste, on the Latisana-Cervignano Line, to the Milan-Turin area of the western Lombardy Plain.

A 400-foot vessel was sunk off Venice by these planes, and a schooner and five other small vessels were damaged off Genoa and Portofino on the opposite coast.

A limited number of sorties were flown against close-support targets on the 8th Army Front, where enemy-occupied buildings, guns, and fuel and amunition dumps were hit. (PRO)

RUSSIANS REACH RIVER NITRA

MOSCOW, January 11 — Soviet tanks and cavalry maneuvered into position today to force a crossing of the River Nitra, an important German-held water line barring the way to the Bratislava gap, and to continue their spectacular drive toward Vienna, 80 miles to the west.

News that powerful Russian columns were lining the banks of the Nitra after a lightning dash along the northern bank of the Danube from the Hron River was given in today's supplement to the Soviet communique.

The Red Army, according to official statements, were fighting on the near approaches to Komarno, key Czechoslovak river point at the junction of the Danube and the Nitra. Position after position fell before Soviet attacks and repeated German counter-thrusts resulted in the destruction of picked Wehrmacht units.

Tonight's Soviet communique reported that Russian forces captured more than 1,000 German and Hungarian soldiers as Soviet tanks and «street-cleaning parties» of stormtroops and artillery struck deep into the remaining German-held portion of Budapest. The battle raged in a snowstorm and the Russians made bayonet charges in the city's shopping center.

Red Army forces have occupied 3,500 out of a total of 4,500 blocks of buildings in the Hungarian capital. Today they captured 150 blocks, including a railway and a goods station and an industrial plant.

It is reported that while SS units are still resisting strongly, the enemy showed definite signs of cracking. Long columns of prisoners have been marched out through the torn suburbs of the city.

The desperate German attempt to breakthrough to the city could now be considered a costly failure, correspondents reported. For the second day, the German relief attacks west and northwest of the city have been repelled with no ground gained and with heavy tank losses.

SUPERFORTS BOMB SINGAPORE

WASHINGTON, January 11 — India-based Superfortresses of the 20th Bomber Command today attacked Singapore, at the tip of the Malay Peninsula, in the second B-29 attack on the city since it fell to the Japanese in 1942, according to an official announcement tonight. The first attack took place on November 5.

The port's shipping installations were hit in visual bombing with «good results,» the communique said. Fighter opposition was «weak to moderate.» Anti-aircraft fire was «meager and inaccurate.» Four Japanese aircraft are claimed destroyed, one probably destroyed, and 20 damaged. None of the attacking force was lost.

The Superforts flew over 3,500 miles on this mission, according to a dispatch from the base in India. Besides bombing Singapore, they attacked shipping and habor installations at Georgetown, on Penang Island, off the northwest coast of the Malay States. Georgetown is stated to be a Japanese submarine base, the dispatch added.

Further details of Tuesday's attack on Tokyo were also revealed in the communique. It stated that Superfortresses, on that mission, destroyed 14 Japanese fighter planes, probably destroyed three more and damaged nine. Two Superfortresses are missing and presumed lost from the attack.

To the north, in central Burma, Shwebo now is completely in Allied hands and its liberators have advanced south of the town, today's Southeast Asia Command communique reported. Shwebo is the last large town on the road to Mandalay, about 55 miles away. With a population of 12,000, it is the biggest town next to Akyab to have been re-occupied.

FILIPINOS TO HELP U. S. PUSH ON LUZON

WASHINGTON, January 11 — Filipino patriots on Luzon will give full assistance to the American liberation forces and will supply information about movements of Japanese troops and their defense strength, Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Resident Commissioner for the Philippines, promised today.

General Romulo said that two Filipino patriot groups — armed guerrillas and the civilian underground — assisted in making possible the initial American landings on Luzon by supplying accurate, reliable intelligence reports to General MacArthur.

He predicted that intensification of patriot activities commensurate with the American landings will save a great number of lives in the fighting ahead. The patriots, he added, now operate in well-organized groups.

«The American Army has an advantage in the Philippines which it has had nowhere else in the Pacific, except in Leyte, where the activities of the guerrillas and the underground dovetailed perfectly,» General Romulo continued.

«In the Philippines, the Americans fight not only from without but with active help from within. This will cut casualties tremendously. This advantage becomes more important as the Army moves into battle position with the Japs. General MacArthur led the Japs to believe that the landings would be made from the south and that is where Jap strength is undoubtedly centered.

«As the Japs move north to intercept the Americans on the network of roads leading from Lingayen to Manila, the Filipinos will be of the utmost help to MacArthur's forces.»

General Romulo said that conservative estimates indicated that there are from 150,000 to 200,000 Japs on the island of Luzon. He added: «It will be a tough, uphill fight.»

The Filipinos would operate to sabotage Jap equipment, act as guides to American forces, and help to unload supplies and to rebuild captured airfields which have been damaged or destroyed.

YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE BRODAREVO

LONDON, January 11 — Marshal Tito's forces have advanced 35 miles from the northern Albanian border with the taking of Brodarevo, on the Lim River, a Yugoslav communique reported today. At the same time, the communique said, all enemy attacks in eastern Bosnia have been repelled.

Yugoslav troops are attacking enemy columns retreating northward through the Lim Valley.

In the Una Valley, in southwest Bosnia, Yugoslav forces yesterday liberated Grahovo. No important changes were reported from the Drahа Valley sector.

Enemy activity was reported from southwest Slovenia, where the Germans have been attacking from their base at Kocevje, 19 miles southeast of Fiume.

Fighting in other sectors of Yugoslavia was limited to patrols and local skirmishes. A German thrust was turned back in the Celichkoraj area of central Yugoslavia. (Reuter)

LEAFLETS TELL GERMANS THEY HAVE FAILED

LONDON, January 11 — The Germans' surprise offensive has failed and «the rope is being drawn hourly tighter round his neck.» Nazi soldiers in the Ardennes were told by leaflets dropped to them by Allied planes, Reuter reported today.

The leaflets said: «Whoever wants to match his strength with the Allies needs unlimited and constant reserves in tanks, planes, men and artillery. In spite of the absence of these reserves, Rundstedt and Himmler staked everything on this last card and have lost the

The first attack took place on November 5.

The port's shipping installations were hit in visual bombing with « good results, » the communique said. Fighter opposition was « weak to moderate. » Anti-aircraft fire was « meager and inaccurate. » Four Japanese aircraft are claimed destroyed, one probably destroyed, and 20 damaged. None of the attacking force was lost.

The Superforts flew over 3,500 miles on this mission, according to a dispatch from the base in India. Besides bombing Singapore, they attacked shipping and habor installations at Georgetown, on Penang Island, off the northwest coast of the Malay States. Georgetown is stated to be a Japanese submarine base, the dispatch added.

Further details of Tuesday's attack on Tokyo were also revealed in the communique. It stated that Superfortresses, on that mission, destroyed 14 Japanese fighter planes, probably destroyed three more and damaged nine. Two Superfortresses are missing and presumed lost from the attack.

To the north, in central Burma, Shwebo now is completely in Allied hands and its liberators have advanced south of the town, today's Southeast Asia Command communique reported. Shwebo is the last large town on the road to Mandalay, about 55 miles away. With a population of 12,000, it is the biggest town next to Akyab to have been re-occupied.

Other Allied troops are investing Budalin on the branch railway between Ye-U and Mandalay, 38 miles south of Shwebo.

Indian units have entered Ponnagyun, a steamer station on the Kaladan River, 15 miles northwest of Akyab on the Arakan sector of the front.

Chinese Capture Airfield

On the eastern frontier, Chinese units captured an airfield four miles from Loiwing. Allied fighters shot down five or six enemy aircraft which attempted to bomb Akyab Harbor yesterday.

A dispatch today said a high Chinese military source reported that the Japanese, alarmed by the fast-breaking American campaign in the Philippines, were rushing anti-invasion defenses for Hongkong, Amoy, Foochow and Shanghai on the China coast.

He charged that the Japanese were commandeering thousands of Chinese for construction work, then massacring them to conceal military secrets after the projects have been completed.

Chinese Information Minister Wang Shih-chieh said the Japanese also were increasing their pressure against Chinese troops in the east coast area, attempting to drive them deeper inland to prevent any junction between the Chinese army and Allied landing forces. (Reuter) casualties tremendously. This adventure is all the more important as the Army moves into battle position with the Japs. General MacArthur led the Japs to believe that the landings would be made from the south and that is where Jap strength is undoubtedly centered.

« As the Japs move north to intercept the Americans on the network of roads leading from Lingayen to Manila, the Filipinos will be of the utmost help to MacArthur's forces. »

General Romulo said that conservative estimates indicated that there are from 150,000 to 200,000 Japs on the island of Luzon. He added: « It will be a tough, uphill fight. »

The Filipinos would operate to sabotage Jap equipment, act as guides to American forces, and help to unload supplies and to rebuild captured airfields which have been damaged or destroyed. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE BRODAREVO

LONDON, January 11 — Marshal Tito's forces have advanced 35 miles from the northern Albanian border with the taking of Brodarevo, on the Lim River, a Yugoslav communique reported today. At the same time, the communique said, all enemy attacks in eastern Bosnia have been repelled.

Yugoslav troops are attacking enemy columns retreating northward through the Lim Valley.

In the Una Valley, in southwest Bosnia, Yugoslav forces yesterday liberated Grahovo. No important changes were reported from the Draha Valley sector.

Enemy activity was reported from southwest Slovenia, where the Germans have been attacking from their base at Kocevje, 19 miles southeast of Fiume.

Fighting in other sectors of Yugoslavia was limited to patrols and local skirmishes. A German thrust was turned back in the Celichkoraj area of central Yugoslavia. (Reuter)

LEAFLETS TELL GERMANS THEY HAVE FAILED

LONDON, January 11 — The Germans' surprise offensive has failed and « the rope is being drawn hourly tighter round his neck, » Nazi soldiers in the Ardennes were told by leaflets dropped to them by Allied planes, Reuter reported today.

The leaflets said: « Whoever wants to match his strength with the Allies needs unlimited and constant reserves in tanks, planes, men and artillery. In spite of the absence of these reserves, Rundstedt and Himmler staked everything on this last card and have lost the game. » (Reuter)

RAF SINKS SEVEN GERMAN SHIPS

STOCKHOLM, January 11 — At least seven German munitions ships and warships were sunk in Norwegian waters by the RAF just before and after the first of the year, Norwegian legation sources here said yesterday.

Quoting underground reports, the reports said the 8,000-ton Norrad was sunk in Oslo Harbor on December 28, but her bomb cargo did not explode. Seventy Germans aboard were killed. The next day one or two German submarines were destroyed at the Horden naval base.

Another 8,000-ton munitions ship was sunk in Oslo Harbor December 31 and two munitions ships were blown up in Flekke Fjord.

Shortly after the new year, the German cruiser Koeln arrived in Oslo in a damaged condition and two small German warships were sunk in Oslo Fjord. (OWI)

†BRITISH GENERAL KILLED IN ACTION

LONDON, January 11 — Lt. Gen. H. Lumsden, special British representative to General MacArthur, was killed by enemy air action last Saturday while on the bridge of an American warship in the Pacific, the War Office announced today. He was 47 years old.

General Lumsden was appointed special representative to General MacArthur in 1943. He commanded the 12th Lancers in 1938-40, after which he was appointed a brigadier.

In a message to Prime Minister Churchill, General MacArthur said: «His (Lumsden's) general service and usefulness to the Allied cause was beyond praise. My own personal sorrow is inexpressible.» (OWI)

WEDEMEYER GETS OAK LEAF CLUSTER

CHUNGKING, January 11 — Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of the U.S. forces in the China Theater, today was awarded an oak leaf cluster for «exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service» as deputy chief of staff of the Southeast Asia Command from November 13, 1943, to November 24, 1944.

The award, was given in lieu of a second Distinguished Service Medal. (OWI)

PARATROOPERS DESTROY RAILWAY IN NORWAY

LONDON, January 11 — Hundreds of sections of the most important north-south railway lines in Norway have been destroyed within the past two weeks by Norwegian parachutists flown from England, the Norwegian Information Office here announced tonight.

The paratroopers also destroyed two bridges, and it is believed that German railway engineers will be not be able to replace them for some time.

The attacks were directed against three of the main railway lines: the Roeros and Dovre Railways, which connect northern Norway, via Trondheim, with Oslo and other southern Norway ports, and the Raum Railway, which connects the port of Sandalanes, in western Norway, with the Dovre Railway. ROOSEVELT'S ITALY TRIBUTE «WELL DESERVED»

WASHINGTON, January 11 — The tribute paid by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress to Allied troops fighting on the Italian front was timely and well deserved, a Post editorial said today.

It added: «The American, British, Indian, Brazilian and other Allied troops inching their way toward the Po — despite the lack of numerical superiority and in the face of extremely difficult obstacles in the way of weather and terrain — are performing a very valuable military service and thus making their contribution to the ultimate victory. They are tying up something like 20 German divisions.» (OWI)

U. S. CASUALTIES TOTAL 646,380

WASHINGTON, January 11 — American Army casualties have reached a total of 504,351, excluding the casualties suffered in the German counter-offensive launched December 16, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson announced today.

Coupled with the latest figure of Navy casualties of 82,029, overall American casualties have reached 646,380 since Pearl Harbor.

Stimson said that his report covered data compiled through December 29 but which actually reflected casualties two or three weeks earlier. A report on the casualties suffered during the German counter-offensive was expected next week, he said.

The Army casualties included 106,952 killed; 333,349 wounded; 64,283 missing; and 59,267 prisoners of war. The details of Navy casualties was not available. (OWI) fighting for the liberation of their country, of serving the cause of Italy and the Allies.

Mario Ferrara in Risorgimento Liberale writes: «One cannot deny that in this matter, the National Liberation Committee represents the full expression of the Italian people. They are not Monarchists, Republicans, Socialists, Conservatives, Communists or Liberals; they are Italians, just Italians who say to their friends yesterday, today, and tomorrow: 'You have come to give us back freedom and many of you have died for this. You cannot now deny us the liberty of dying for our country. We must fight with you. This is the first thing to do. We must get rid of the Fascist residues. Let us fight and the real epuration will take place of its own accord. We will then have the touchstone for the sincerity of feelings and will know who is saying the truth and who is lying. Listen to the voice of these Italians who are asking to fight for their country and who, in exchange, do not even ask that the armistice clauses be modified...'»

Alberto Cianca, in Italia Libera (Action), comments on the Sicilian anti-conscription disorders: «The blame lies in a large measure on the ineffectiveness of the Government, which is caused by the fact that many of its members show they do not sufficiently realize that the war against the Germans and the fight against Fascism are one and the same thing.»

Italia Nuova (Democrat) writes: «Sicily has been cut out from the Italian political movements, from the day of the Armistice, up to today. Sicily has not directly participated in the political life of the country and therefore lacks the 'conscience' to which the Government makes an appeal for the re-organization of the national army.»

Pietro Nenni, in Avanti! (Socialist) comments on the Giulian National Liberation Committee's resolution, advocating collaboration between Italians and Slavs: «Without the beastly nationalistic policy followed by the Fascists in 20 years, the problem of Venezia Giulia (Region in Northeastern Italy) would be very different today.

«There now exists a question regarding our northeastern frontier, which must be faced and solved by the new democratic Italy and the new democratic Yugoslavia in a spirit of mutual understanding and justice, bearing in mind not only traditions and more or less reliable statistics, but also of the real will of the population.»

Risorgimento Liberale (Liberal) reports further details on the Italian aggression against Greece as disclosed in a deposition made in connection with the forth-coming Roatta-Suvich-Jacomoni trial.

The witness was Ambassador Pompeo Aloisi, who was Ciano's head of cabinet: «It was a page of ignoble history, because in Greece the aggression constituted a great surprise: just consider that the Italian minister received orders to present the ultimatum while he was at a theater together with some members of the Greek government.»

«About the incident which was to constitute the pretext for the Italian attack,» continues Risorgimento Liberale, «we have a precise statement made by an eye-witness, Crispino Agostinucci, who was then a colonel of the Carabinieri.

«Agostinucci, who had been charged with the duty of organizing the Albanian police in 1939, stated: 'On the morning of October 24, 1940, I was told that some bombs had been thrown against the Italian consulate, damaging the building and wounding the Carabinieri, allegedly by some Greeks. But I then learned to my great astonishment that the bombs had been thrown by some Italian elements because the Rome Government had thus decided to justify the declaration of war on Greece.'» (UNN)

ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 11 — The National Liberation Committee's resolution urging more Italian participation in the war, the Sicilian anti-conscription disorders, the Giuliap National Liberation Committee's resolution, and the forthcoming Roatta trial are in the headlines of the Roman press today.

Unità (Communist) makes a comment on the resolution presented yesterday to premier Bonomi by the Central Committee of National Liberation: «For the Liberation of our country, men of all countries and of all nationalities are fighting — Indians, Negroes, Japanese from the Hawaian Islands.

«We find it perfectly natural that American soldiers of Japanese origin should be fighting on our soil against Nazism and Fascism. But seeing them fight in Italy against Italy's enemy, we can't help remarking that there are no Italians on the same front.

«And we believe, with good reason, that Italian soldiers striving for the liberation of their country would fight just as well, and with greater enthusiasm and more ardent faith.

«We repeat what we have said a hundred times, certain rights may well be denied the Italians, but not that of which is caused by the fact that many of its members show they do not sufficiently realize that the war against the Germans and the fight against Fascism are one and the same thing.»

Italia Nuova (Democrat) writes: «Sicily has been cut out from the Italian political movements, from the day of the Armistice, up to today. TIBER RIVER TRANSPORT TO START

ROME, January 11 — The Tiber River will be reopened for transportation within a few days, when a schooner will haul 250 tons of coal to the Rome gas works, the Allied Commission Transportation Sub-Commission announced today.

The coal has already been loaded at Gaeta from Italian stocks in that port, Captain G. N. Hart, port liaison officer, announced. Captain Hart directed soundings of the Tiber to ascertain its navigability.

In the near future tugs will tow barges up the Tiber from Civitavecchia for Rome's public utilities as a further step in the use of the river, Captain Hart added. Pilots will guide all shipping up the river from Fiumicino to Rome.

Efforts toward restoring Italian water traffic in nearby areas of the Tyrrhenian Sea have received attention from the Transportation Sub-Commission.

For example, at Gaeta, a small double-tracked railroad had to be built on a ramp over a destroyed dock to help load the coal. At Fiumicino the harbor was dredged, and that once-idle town is now resuming activity.

Restoration of water traffic will lighten the loads carried by railroads and trucks. (UNN)

BIGGER PART IN WAR ASKED BY CENTRAL C.N.L.

ROME, January 10 — Greater Italian participation in the national war of liberation, with the formation of a strong army to fight alongside the Allies was asked yesterday in a resolution sent to Prime Minister Bonomi by the Central Committee of National Liberation.

The resolution was signed by representatives of the Liberal, Communist, Action, Socialist, Democratic Labor and Christian Democrat parties. (UNN)

ROME-NAPLES RAIL SERVICE TO BEGIN

ROME, January 11 — The first scheduled civilian passenger train to travel between here and Naples will leave for Naples at 0730 hours on January 22, the Transportation Sub-Commission of the Allied Commission announced today.

The train, which has been named « Stella Roma, » will carry 640 passengers. Its first journey will take about 12 hours but it is hoped this time will be considerably reduced. The train will operate three times a week according to present schedules. (UNN)

NAPLES BLACK MARKET SMASHED

NAPLES, January 11 — Eighteen Italian civilians, two American soldiers and one Canadian soldier have been arrested here by Allied and Italian police on charges of complicity in a black market ring dealing in Allied goods stolen in Naples harbor warehouses, the Criminal Investigation Division of the Allied Military Police revealed here. Two civilians were killed and another wounded during police operations which smashed the ring.

Both the civilian and military defendants are alleged to have participated in a number of « deals » involving merchandise valued on the black market at more than 125,000 dollars. The CID report also said the deals involved the paying out of « gifts » to port gate guards.

The list of stolen Allied goods, part of which was recovered by the police, comprises 4,500 articles of clothing, 14,000 packages of cigarettes, in addition to matches, razor blades, parachutes, gasoline, mineral oil, vaseline and other items.

Activities of the gang were brought to an end, the CID report added, when military police closed traps on ring members on November 17 and November 27 after allowing truckloads of « stolen » goods to pass unmolested through the port gates. When the trucks had reached their rendezvous, MP's stepped in to demand surrender of the raiders and the stolen goods. In the shooting which followed each of the operations two civilians were killed and 25 others arrested. Some of the civilians were later released for lack of evidence.

The two American soldiers and the Canadian soldier will face charges by their respective military courts.

Another report from Naples said 924 houses of prostitution have been closed during the period from October 1 to December 31 of last year. During the same period, the report added, more than 27,000 arrests of denunciations were made on charges of black market operations or for infractions of price-control regulations. (UNN)

RELIEF FOR ITALY PROMPTLY DISTRIBUTED

NEW YORK, January 11 — Relief materials contributed by Americans for Italian civilians are distributed promptly and efficiently as soon as they arrive, Justice Juvenal Marchisio, president of American Relief for Italy, said here yesterday.

Marchisio said the people of America have been generous in contributing relief materials to Italy. Six shiploads of supplies have already been sent to liberated areas to aid the 27 million women and children living there.

American Relief for Italy, Inc., was founded last year by Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican. Mr. Taylor was its first president and was succeeded by Justice Marchisio when Mr. Taylor resumed his duties at the Vatican.

The Italian distributing medium for American relief is an organization composed of representatives of the Italian Government, the Italian Red Cross and the Vatican. (UNN)

PROGRESS MADE IN ATHENS TALKS

ATHENS, January 11 — Considerable progress has been made in the peace negotiations now taking place between General Scobie and official representatives of ELAS, a communique announced this afternoon.

« The conversations with ELAS representatives, which started on Wednesday afternoon, lasted until 0130 hours this morning, » the communique said. « A large measure of agreement over terms of a cease-fire order was reached. »

It was also officially stated that the ELAS representatives agreed to an exchange of prisoners on a reciprocal basis, but a proposal for a release of hostages was still a serious stumbling block to a settlement.

The conversations, which were resumed this morning, were still in progress, at the time the communique was issued.

Meanwhile, ELD (The Union of Popular Democrats) and the SKE (Greek Socialist Party) issued statements today announcing their withdrawal from the EAM (National Liberation Committee). The ELD was the largest component of EAM next to the Communist Party.

In a statement condemning the armed clash and maintaining that hostilities were begun without ELD's approval, the organization said that « the civil war and its continuation are contrary to ELD's principles. »

The statement continued: « The armed clash with Allied forces, temporarily in our country after an agreement with the three Allies, is a tragic event and contrary to the party's foreign policy as well as to national rights and interests of the united Allied front. The need for the democratic development of our political life and protection of the people's freedom demand complete and sincere agreement with the people's sentiments and democratic principles. »

The Greek Socialist Party, in a statement to the British Ambassador, Mr. Rex Leeper yesterday, condemned the civil war and armed conflict. The party broke away from EAM when fighting began here.

TREASURY OFFICIAL DISCUSSES TAX REFORM

ROME, January 11 — Levying of state taxes should be based on the principle of the citizen's ability to pay, Salvatore Scoca, Under Secretary of State for the Treasury, said today in an article in Il Tempo in which he discussed taxation reform in Italy.

« In practice, » he said, « this means tax exemption on incomes necessary to provide the minimum necessities of life, moderate taxes on incomes above the minimum requirements and progressive taxation of wealth. »

Tax exemption on low incomes, Scoca said, was necessary to improve the standard of living of the low-income groups and to offer them the opportunity to acquire that personal property « which constitutes a guarantee of personal liberty and economic independence. » (UNN)

FASCIST LAWS MUST BE REFORMED

ROME, January 11 — Reform of the existing Fascist laws must be completed as soon as the rest of Italy is liberated. Attorney General Rubbiani said today at the official 1945 opening of the Court of Appeals.

In a review of the past years' activities of the Court, which Rubbiani said was characterized by Fascist persecution, he recalled how Judge Mario Fioretti was killed by Fascists. (UNN)

The Greek Socialist Party, in a statement to the British Ambassador, Mr. Rex Leeper yesterday, condemned the civil war and armed conflict. The party broke away from EAM when fighting began here.

Workers' confidence in Plastiras

Calling on all workers and ELAS troops to lay down their arms, the declaration said: « The committee declares officially that the Greek Socialist Party will continue its honest struggle for a united Greece and for the protection of genuine democratic principles, which are an indispensable condition for the political, moral, and economic rebirth of the country. »

A Greek trade union delegation, representing 15 unions, also called on the British ambassador today to express its appreciation for British action in the country. The delegation said that the Greek working class had complete confidence in Prime Minister Nicholas Plastiras, who heads the new government.

Three new members have been added to the Cabinet. They are: Dimitrios Hatziskos, Minister of Supply; Petros Levantis, Minister of Social Welfare and Public Health; and Athanastos Smarounis, Deputy Minister of Finance.

There was still fighting between ELAS and British forces. According to the Associated Press, a British armored column encountered stiff resistance at Khalkis, 20 miles north of Thebes, where guerrillas retreating into the mountains laid down a heavy mortar barrage.

Another British column has reached the Corinth Canal, which cuts the isthmus linking the Peloponnesus and the Greek mainland, press dispatches said. The advance of the column was halted by demolished bridges. (OWI-Reuter)

STIMSON REVIEWS PROGRESS OF THE WAR

WASHINGTON, January 11 — Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, said today that the liberation of Luzon « will not be an easy task, » that Allied superiority is driving the enemy back in Burma, and that while the German advances in the Rhine valley are serious « they do not yet justify military anxiety. »

Stimson reviewed the war at his weekly press conference, at which he constantly emphasized that operations in the Pacific, Far East and European theaters of war must be expected to cost a large price in fighting men.

Discussing advantages to be gained by the Allies through the Pacific campaign, Stimson asserted that liberation of Luzon will cut Japan off from oil, rubber and other trade in the East Indies and the Allies will then have additional bases from which to attack the Japs in Indo-China, Formosa, China and Japan itself.

One of the results of the American advance in the Philippines, he said, is the retreat of the Japs in Burma.

The return of American troops to Luzon with the landings in Lingayen Gulf on Tuesday is a « milestone on the path of victory over Japan, » Stimson said, asserting, however, that « an extended campaign against a well-armed numerous and hard-fighting enemy lies ahead of us. »

He explained that with American forces now committed to the landing at Lingayen, « the Japanese can now better concentrate their strength » and that while good roads and valley routes make Lingayen a natural avenue for American forces on the offensive, they also provide the Japs with facilities to move troops and concentrate their defenses swiftly.

March towards Japan

Stimson cited another difficulty in the Luzon campaign: the Americans are at the end of supply lines which run about 7,000 miles across the Pacific, while the Japs have the advantage through consolidation of their supplies and troops on the island since December, 1941. He said also that the Army and Navy now have « the continuously difficult task » of intercepting enemy reinforcements and protecting the U.S. supply line.

Noting the increasing air attacks on other Jap-held areas, he described the Superfortress bombings of Tokyo's war industries as a reminder to the Japs of « our steady march toward their homeland. »

The enemy has lacked air support, adequate supplies and medical attention in Burma, Stimson said as he reviewed the tightening of the ring around the Japanese through British and Indian occupation of Akyab and with American British and Chinese advances toward Mandalay in central Burma. He said that the Allies have learned all the enemy methods of jungle warfare and have improved upon them.

Regarding the Western Front, the Secretary of War said that the Allied position in the Ardennes salient of the Belgian bulge is materially improved, and that despite the « Stiffest kind of enemy resistance » on the south side of the salient, in general Allied forces have enlarged their holdings around Bastogne.

« It is possible that the bulk of the Germans may now be slowly withdrawing but it is only because they have been compelled to do so, » he said. « Always they maintain the power to strike again. Yet much of the latent German power in mid-December has been dissipated in the losses they suffered in their own offensive. » (OWI)

LUBLIN COMMITTEE SHARES OUT LAND

LUBLIN, January 11 — A large proportion of the big estates in liberated Poland between the Bug and the Vistula rivers have already been shared out among Polish peasants, it was reported today.

A representative of the Lublin Committee said that peasants in this area have been given parcels of land averaging about three hectares. About 11,000 families were sharing land carved from estates belonging before the war to 648 families.

The spokesman added that 10,500 families held all the arable land in pre-war Poland. Under the changes now taking place in the liberated areas, he said, about a million families will enlarge their present small holdings or acquire new land.

Another Lublin Committee representative said that a 7,000-hectare estate belonging to one man before the war had ben divided into small lots and shared among 900 peasants.

Those dispossessed are allowed to keep their personal belongings and are given the choice of five hectares of land or a state pension. (OWI)

MOYNE ACCUSEDS' TRIAL ADJOURNED

CAIRO, January 11 The trial of the two Palestinian Jews who assassinated Lord Moyne was adjourned today until Saturday, after both accused had addressed the court. The two men are Eliahou Ben Souri and Aliahou Hakim, said to be members of the terrorist « Stern gang. »

Souri, giving evidence when the trial reopened today, said he came to Cairo with his associate under instructions from a secret organization, of which they are members, to assassinate Lord Moyne. He gave the court a detailed account of the killing. He was followed by Hakim, who made a brief statement justifying the action. (Reuter)

BRITISH M.P'S SIGN FLORENCE GOLDEN BOOK

FLORENCE, January 11 — After spending two days visiting sectors of the 5th Army front, the group of members of the British Parliament who are on a three-week tour of the Italian theater spent yesterday inspecting rest camps and military institutions in and around Florence.

The M.P.'s signed the famous Golden Book of Florence, whose signatories include Queen Victoria and Emile Zola. This ceremony took place at the Palazzo Vecchio, following lunch with Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, Senior Civil Affairs Officer, 5th Army.

The morning was spent inspecting a British rest camp and British and Indian clubs. During the afternoon the party visited an information center, they were accompanied on their tour of places of interest by the Vice-Prefect of Florence and two members of his staff.

The day's activities ended with a visit to Mediterranean Allied Tactical Air Force headquarters, where officers explained the organization of MATAF operations.

A three-day tour of the 8th Army front, during which the party will visit corps headquarters and divisional air force, will begin today. (UNN) numerous and hard-fighting enemy lies ahead of us.»

He explained that with American forces now committed to the landing at Lingayen, «the Japanese can now better concentrate their strength» and that while good roads and valley routes make Lingayen a natural avenue for American forces on the offensive, they also provide the Japs with facilities to move troops and concentrate their defenses swiftly.

Stimson cited another difficulty in the Luzon campaign: the Americans are at the end of supply lines which run about 7,000 miles across the Pacific, while the Japs have the advantage through consolidation of their supplies and troops on the island since December, 1941. He said also that the Army and Navy now have «the continuously difficult task» of intercepting enemy reinforcements and protecting the U.S. supply line.

Noting the increasing air attacks on other Jap-held areas, he described the Superfortress bombings of Tokyo's war industries as a reminder to the Japs of «our steady march toward their homeland.»

The enemy has lacked air support, adequate supplies and medical attention in Burma, Stimson said as he reviewed the tightening of the ring around the Japanese through British and Indian occupation of Akyab and with American British and Chinese advances toward Mandalay in central Burma. He said that the Allies have learned all the enemy methods of jungle warfare and have improved upon them.

Regarding the Western Front, the Secretary of War said that the Allied position in the Ardennes salient of the Belgian bulge is materially improved, and that despite the «Stiffest kind of enemy resistance» on the south side of the salient, in general Allied forces have enlarged their holdings around Bastogne.

«It is possible that the bulk of the Germans may now be slowly withdrawing but it is only because they have been compelled to do so,» he said. «Always they maintain the power to strike again. Yet much of the latent German power in mid-December has been dissipated in the losses they suffered in their own offensive.» (OWI)

STIMSON ASKS 150,000 MEN DRAFTED IN MARCH

WASHINGTON, January 11 — Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson today requested an increase in the March draft quota to 150,000 men. Making the announcement at a press conference, the Secretary of War also requested that 300,000 more workers be made available by June 30.

Stimson said the increase in the tempo of the war in Europe and in the Pacific had made necessary the demand for an increase of all physically qualified men under 30 years of age. (OWI)

FRENCH ARMY OF 1,200,000 SOON

PARIS, January 11 — France will have an army of 1,200,000 in the spring when the mobilization of the 1943-1945 age groups is completed, French Minister of War André Diethelm said in a statement quoted by Radio Paris today.

The new army will be trained according to «a new conception of waging war and there will no longer be any trace of the old Maginot Line mentality,» Diethelm said. He said that the French Forces of the Interior had been completely fused with the regular army. A delivery of heavy armament sufficient to equip 60,000 French soldiers, was expected from America early in February.

The French National Council of Resistance asked that General de Gaulle receive their representatives to discuss the French Government's ban on a visit to North Africa by a delegation of the Council. The delegation was to investigate the political and economic situation in North Africa.

MEDICAL STORES FOR CZECHOSLOVAKIA

LONDON, January 11 — Eighty crates of medical supplies provided by UNRRA for liberated Czechoslovak territory are being flown from Britain to Moscow, it was officially announced today.

The supplies were dispatched in response to a request from the Czechoslovak Government for immediate aid for that part of the country liberated by Soviet forces. A much larger consignment of UNRRA supplies will go by sea in the near future. (OWI)

PETER APPROVES SUBASIC-TITO AGREEMENT

LONDON, January 11 — King Peter of Yugoslavia today approved the basic proposals laid down in the draft agreement drawn up by Prime Minister Ivan Subasic and Marshal Tito, whereby the future constitution and form of government of Yugoslavia will be determined solely by the free decision of the people.

The communique said: «The King will accept such a decision, but as the constitutional monarch it is his sacred duty to see to it that the people shall be consulted and their freely expressed will given full respect. The King of Yugoslavia wholeheartedly welcomes the interest with which the Allied nations envisage reorganization of postwar Europe on the basis of the freely-recorded will of its people.

« He fully agrees with their established policy that the widest possible grouping of the democratic parties is the only guarantee of the free expression of popular will. He is deeply convinced that the same path must be followed in his country. »

Two essential objections to the agreement in its present form were raised, the communique said. The first concerned the suggested form of regency, and the second, the provision of Article 2 of the amendment by which the anti-Fascist Council of National Liberation would wield unrestricted legislative power until the Constituent Assembly had finished its work. This, the King said, suggested the transfer of power in Yugoslavia to a single political group.

PIERLOT REPORTS ON LONDON TALKS

BRUSSELS, January 11 — Premier Pierlot reported to his Cabinet today following his talks in London with Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden and the British Minister of War Transport, Lord Leathers, concerning supplies to Belgium.

He said the matters discussed included the position of bombed-out people in Belgium and it was decided that they should have priority in food distribution.

Military authorities announced today that Belgian civilians had been allocated 31 per cent of the country's increased coal production in December, while an additional 63 per cent went to national industry and transport.

The remaining six per cent was assigned to the Allied armies for use in heating and operating hospitals and workshops, the authorities said. Coal trains have been given priority over all other traffic. (OWI)

ADMIRAL BYRD DECORATED

WASHINGTON, January 11 — Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today was decorated with the Legion of Merit by President Roosevelt.

The award was given for « exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services » during a confidential mission to the Pacific from August 27 to December 5, 1943. The citation said that Admiral Byrd's work at that time « will be of great value to the national defense and the United States government. »

It was disclosed at the White House that Admiral Byrd has been on two confidential missions to the Pacific, and has just returned from Belgium where he studied the use of air power in support of ground troops. (OWI)

BELGIAN QUISLINGS TO DIE

BRUSSELS, January 11 — Albert Verpoorten, Belgian journalist, and Louis Calonne, a Belgian Army officer on active service, were sentenced to death at a court martial held in their absence on charges of joining the German SS and thereby « prolonging the sufferings of the Belgian people, » the British United Press reported today. GERMANS SHORT OF FOOD, FUEL, CLOTHES

LONDON, January 11 — Food, fuel, and clothing shortages are making themselves increasingly felt inside [illegible] reports reaching « growing shortage of coal, oil and other fuels has reached the point where the « fuel supply has become the central point in the conduct of the war, » a German technical journal said recently.

The serious clothing shortage inside the Reich is forcing the Nazis to requisition clothing of the Wehrmacht dead, including those killed in battle, Berlin Radio said today.

The broadcast called on Wehrmacht members to turn in uniforms and equipment of fallen fellow soldiers.

In addition, troops on leave are told to submit civilian clothing and other textiles from the households of their relatives, which will be used to meet the severe textile shortage. (OWI)

NEUTRAL COUNTRIES

ARGENTINA PLAYS LONE HAND

BUENOS AIRES, January 11 — Argentina yesterday severed her last connection with the American nations as a group, temporarily at least, by announcing that she would not participate in future meetings of the Pan-American Union. The announcement followed the Union's decision on Monday to postpone consideration of Argentina's request for a consultative meeting to discuss her relations with other nations of North and South America.

A new Argentine decree has been passed giving President Farrell stronger control of military and civil aviation, it is reported. The new decree provides for the setting up of an aeronautical general secretariat headed by Commodore Bartholome de la Colina, who will have the status of a minister of state and be responsible directly to Farrell. WAR COMMUNIQUES

SHAEF, January 11 — Today's communique:

On the northern flank of the Ardennes salient, Allied forces have cleared the west bank of the Salm River as far south as Salmchateau. The village of Samree has been taken after heavy fighting.

Farther west, our units continued to follow up the withdrawing enemy. Hodister has been captured and we are patrolling forward to the Laroche-Marche road.

South of Marche, we have crossed the River Homme and have occupied Ambly. Opposition has been slight, but mines are plentiful.

On the southern flank of the salient, Tillet is in our hands after hard fighting. In the wooded area just west of the town our troops have made gains of about a quarter of a mile. We have been forced back from Flamierge.

Our units have reached points four and one half miles directly north of Bastogne and have taken Recogne.

In the sector south and east of Bastogne, our forces have cleared the enemy from Villers-la-Bonne-Eau and Harlange.

Farther east we have taken Berle and our units are one half of a mile north of the town. We hold the high ground one and a half miles southwest of Wiltz. Fighter-bombers, operating in this sector, attacked enemy transportation and troop barracks.

More than 1,100 heavy bombers, escorted by 300 fighters, attacked bridges, railway yards and airfields in western Germany and road bridges and junctions on the German-Belgian frontier at the base of the Ardennes salient. Targets included road and rail bridges over the Rhine at Cologne; airfields in the areas of Cologne, Bonn and Euskirchen and marshalling yards at Karlsruhe.

GERMANS SHORT OF FOOD, FUEL, CLOTHES

LONDON, January 11 — Food, fuel, and clothing shortages are making themselves increasingly felt inside Germany during this sixth winter of war, reports reaching here from the Reich and neutral sources indicate.

According to the Swiss paper Arbeiterzeitung, of Schaffhausen, the demand for ration-free bread has become so heavy that the price has gone as high as 20 marks for one kilogram. Before the war, the same bread cost seven pfennigs a kilogram.

The same paper reports an increase in the theft of chickens and rabbits by people who have resorted to this to get food.

In an article titled «Where Has the Milk Gone To?,» the Nazi farm journal, Mitteilungen für die Landwirtschaft, attempts to answer the question by saying that «Farm maids are frequently using far too much whole milk. Moreover, farm employees, particularly foreign ones, don't hesitate to drink whole milk from pails and churns.»

Another farm journal explains the milk shortage by saying that «in order to reduce the consumption of driving fuel, milk hitherto fetched by motor trucks from the collection offices is now mostly transported by the farmers' own horse-drawn vehicles directly to the dairies or by railway.»

The same paper urged utmost economy in the use of fodder for feeding horses since «oats must be reserved primarily for the Wehrmacht.»

Targets included road and rail bridges over the Rhine at Cologne; airfields in the areas of Cologne, Bonn and Euskirchen and marshalling yards at Karlsruhe.

Southwest of Saarbrücken we made gains against moderate resistance and entered Oetingen.

Progress was also made on the east side of the enemy wedge in the Lower Vosges Mountains, where Obermühlthal was occupied by our forces.

In the Rhine Valley, north of the Hagenau forest, fighting continues at Hatten, where a strong enemy thrust was turned back on Tuesday. Along the Rhine nearby, there was fighting at several points in the enemy bridgehead north of Strasbourg.

Enemy attacks were repulsed in the Alsace Plain between Strasbourg and Colmar.

Supply dumps at Zweibrücken and Pirmasens were destroyed by fighter-bombers.

Striking along the Rhine Valley from Landau southward to Mülhouse, other fighter-bombers destroyed an ammunition dump at Landau and hit a supply dump at Durbach; bombed and strafed targets at Rastatt, Freistett and Wittenweier; destroyed 10 enemy tanks and damaged others northeast of Colmar and east of Emmendingen; hit a bridge at Riegel and cut the railway line in a number of places between Colmar and Mülhouse.

Early last night a force of light bombers attacked Hannover. (Reuter)

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 11 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

Activity on the fronts of the 5th and 8th Armies continues to be limited to patrolling.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical force, out in strength yesterday, made widespread attacks on enemy communications and road and rail traffic in northern Italy. Fuel and ammunition dumps, storage buildings and coastal and river transport were also attacked.

Heavy and medium bombers did not operate.

On the night of January 9-10, light bombers attacked road and rail targets in north Italy, while yesterday Coastal planes strafed river transport at the mouth of the Po.

Three of our aircraft are missing from these operations.

MAAF flew over 700 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

In Athens-Piraeus the situation remains quiet.

An average of over 6,000 free meals and over 300,000 free rations are being issued daily.

Outside the cities mobile columns continue their operations. Little opposition has been encountered.

Elsewhere in Greece the situation remains unchanged. (PRO)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, January 11 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in the area of Budapest, our troops continued fighting for the annihilation of the encircled enemy groupings in the city, captured city district of Anelken, railway station Rakoszi, barracks of Palsi and Andrashi, railway freight stations, machine building plant of Hans Tante, and thus occupied 150 blocks.

During January 10, in Budapest, over 1,000 German and Hungarian officers and soldiers were captured.

Northwest and west of Budapest, our troops repulsed attacks of large infantry forces and enemy tanks and inflicted huge losses.

On other sectors of the front, scout patrolling and, at several points, fighting of local importance took place.

During January 10, our troops disabled or destroyed on all fronts a total of 42 German tanks. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 11 — Today's communique:

In the Veneto region, on the night of December 25-26, Patriot detachments blew up the new bridge over the Brenta River at Capo S. Martino.

In the Piedmont region, Patriot sabotage activity resulted in the destruction of a railway bridge near Ivrea on December 23.

It can now be revealed that Patriots occupied Sestri Ponente, in Liguria, during the first days of December and held it against the enemy for a night after they had disarmed Fascist Republican police, killed several Fascist leaders and engaged troops of the Black Brigade in battle in the streets of the city. Following the departure of the Patriots, the enemy carried out fierce reprisals against the civilian population. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE:

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 11 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

The protruding part of our front bulge stretching across the Ourthe westward, and the town St. Hubert were evacuated in order to shorten our deep flanks in the Ardennes. The enemy did not interfere with the withdrawal. The English divisions in this sector follow up only slowly.

At the northern flank of the battle area southwest of Vielsalm, the American attacks failed in face of our strong resistance.

In the Bastogne area, the front lines remained virtually unchanged despite the incessant enemy pressure in a northerly direction.

In Lorraine, our troops captured Rimling, a village north of Rohrbach which had for days been fought for. The forest fighting for the control of the outlets of the Lower Vosges is in full swing.

In the Rhine plain, at Hatten, the German formations captured additional fortifications of the Maginot line and liberated numerous localities in central Alsace. South of Erstein, encircled enemy forces were wiped out after grim fighting. Their remnants — 300-men strong — were taken prisoner.

Liège and Anwerp are subjected to an intensified long range bombardment to harass the enemy supplies.

early evening hours, fast British bombers dropped bombs on Hannover.

Greater London is permanently subjected to the German retaliatory fire. (Radio-Berlin)

GERMAN

Another Small Nation Sacrificed: The paramount German propaganda trend of the last two weeks, which consists of emphasising day after day the charge that England and America are sacrificing small nations to Russia and that only Germany can save them from Bolshevism, is today applied to Yugoslavia. The same arguments are used as were used by German sources during the last two weeks with regard to Greece and Poland. King Peter is the «latest victim,» according to the German Home Radio this evening. Churchill's «pressure» on him to form a Yugoslav regency is characterized as «by order of the Kremlin» and is viewed as «merely the democratic façade for the creation of a Bolshevik-Tito dictatorship.»

Western Front: The longest despatch on this front tonight (by Walter Plato via Transocean) is mainly an attempt to justify strategically the German evacuation of their front bulge in the Ardennes area across the Ourthe and St. Hubert. This evacuation has already been admitted briefly in the earlier part of the day (see first sentence of Wehrmacht communiqué above). The Transocean despatch claims that the withdrawal was intentional and elaborates the military gains which it brings to Rundstedt.

Eastern Front: Colonel von Hammer views the battle for Hungary as still undecided but as reaching its climax, with both sides «incessantly sending new reinforcements into battle in order to force a decision at last.»

Italy:

In central Italy, the fighting lull continues.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, south and northeast of the Vertes Mountains, numerous enemy attacks launched in heavy snow storms were frustrated and 16 Soviet tanks destroyed.

On the eastern front of Budapest, the enemy resumed his attacks only in the afternoon. They were all frustrated owing to the stubborn resistance of the garrison despite the use of numerous tank-borne flame throwers. North of the Danube, our formations narrowed down the enemy penetration in attacks progressing successfully. Seventeen Bolshevik tanks were destroyed during the frustration of enemy counter-attacks.

At the Memel bridgehead, German grenadiers and tanks penetrated the enemy position on a front of four kilometers in a surprise attack and inflicted heavy losses on the Soviets. Our own losses were slight.

In the other parts of the Eastern Front, there was only minor fighting.

Yesterday, American terror bombers attacked the western areas near the front and localities on the Rhine. In the early evening hours, fast British bombers dropped bombs on Hannover.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Riots in Sicily: The Fascist Radio reports renewed riots in various parts of Sicily, as a protest against conscription. The police are said to have intervened at Ragusa and Giarratana; barricades are reported in the streets of Comiso. According to the Fascist Radio, some British newspapers attribute the disorders to the activity of Soviet propaganda agents in Sicily.

Trial of Generals: After a four-day session of the «Special Tribunal for the Defence of the State,» sentences were pronounced in the case of seven Italian generals, who, at the time of the armistice, failed to take decisive action and thus «contributed to the disaster.» Whilst the court placed the greatest part of the responsibility on the shoulders of Badoglio, Ambrosio, Roatta, Carbone, Zanussi and others who «created the necessary conditions for the collapse...», the seven generals in question were also inculpated although they actually «did not participate in the plot.» Only two of the generals were acquitted of the charge; two were sentenced to fifteen years' military imprisonment, two others to ten years' military imprisonment and in the seventh case the trial was deferred.

Luzon and at the same time concentrated on northward movements of Jap forces.

Clark Field, near Manila, was bombed again and 34 Jap planes were destroyed or damaged, the communique reported. American planes also smashed a main railroad bridge and two important highway bridges north of Manila and destroyed « innumerable troops and vehicles. »

Although the official announcement recorded the first day's gains at a maximum of 15 miles along the Lingayen coast, late press dispatches tonight said that American forces now hold 25 miles of the beach and that headed by tanks, they are fanning out to the interior, driving along major highways leading to Manila, 100 miles away.

The route the U.S. 6th Army troops apparently are taking, is along good tank country in the San Fernando Valley between the landing areas and Manila. The landings were made at the beginning of the dry season in Luzon and all river flats and roads from the Lingayen Gulf to Manila are dry and offer virtually no physical hazards to mobile equipment, they added.

Throughout today, troops disembarked from the 800-ship convoy which brought them through a three-day gauntlet of Jap air and sea attack in Pacific waters, to the beachheads on the south and east sides of Lingayen Gulf. Correspondents estimated that there were at least 50 per cent more troops for the Luzon landings than in the Leyte landings in October, and that the huge armada included 2,500 landing craft carrying an enormous amount of guns, armored equipment and supplies.

No soldiers lost in landing

Among the first units to land were the engineers who immediately began to lay strips. A dispatch tonight said that immediately after the capture of Lingayen Airfield, just east of the town of Lingayen, engineers began to lengthen its runways.

A broadcast from Luzon said today that the Allied convoy reached the island without the loss of a single soldier. The announcer said that in the first wave that went ashore there were four divisions and that General MacArthur told a correspondent that the Lingayen Gulf operation was progressing « better than could have been expected. »

The landings culminated the greatest amphibious undertaking in the Far East, under cover of an Army and Navy air umbrella and the guns of units of the U.S. 3rd and 7th Fleets.

Correspondents today told of the desperate but futile attacks for three days by Jap sea and air craft as they attempted to head off the gigantic armada bringing Allied assault troops to Luzon.

The huge convoy beat off all the attacks, and with full steam ahead, and virtually oblivious of the opposition, continued through waters fenced by enemy-held islands. The flotilla never deviated from its course despite reckless assaults by planes hurled at the ships, by enemy submarines and by destroyers which constantly tried to cut across the path of the convoy.

WAR FRONTS

AMERICANS ADVANCE FOUR MILES ON LUZON; TAKE LINGAYEN AIRFIELD

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, January 10 — American forces which landed yesterday morning on Luzon Island have captured Lingayen airfield and have moved four miles inland and established their positions firmly along 15 miles of the Lingayen Gulf coast, General MacArthur announced tonight.

All these gains were made within 24 hours after the initial landings on four beaches — at Lingayen, Dagupan, Mangaldan and San Fabian, forming a quarter-circle arc in a northwestern direction. The four beachheads are now linked and troops are still pouring onto the beachheads from landing craft, press dispatches reported. The four towns now have been liberated.

The MacArthur communique said that the Japanese have been unable to mount any serious resistance yet and are feverishly bringing up reinforcements from southern Luzon.

While the landing forces were consolidating their gains along the Lingayen Gulf, American planes intensified their assault on vital Jap installations in the southern part of Luzon. Fighters and bombers struck at Clark Field, Fort Stotsenburg and Cabanatuan, all inland from the Lingayen beaches, and at Aparri, on the northern tip of Luzon. Other planes attacked Jap shipping in Lingayen Gulf and in the China Sea off the west coast of Luzon.

Fighters and bombers of the Philippines Air Force, which has been operating from Leyte since the invasion of that island, have been joined by planes of the Seventh Fleet's escort carriers, which have been supporting the landings.

Jap resistance to the landings has been light, and the Japanese have not yet launched any counter-attacks. Their air force has been unable to interfere with the landings, and their ground troops have been unable to mount any serious opposition. Correspondents said that the Japanese are running out to the interior, trying, apparently, to reach highways leading to Manila, 100 miles away.

The route the U.S. 6th Army troops apparently are taking, is along good tank country in the San Fernando Valley between the landing areas and Manila. The landings were made at the beginning of the dry season in Luzon and all river flats and roads from the Lingayen Gulf to Manila are dry and offer virtually no physical hazards to mobile equipment, they added.

Throughout today, troops disembarked from the 800-ship convoy which brought them through a three-day gauntlet of Jap air and sea attack in Pacific waters, to the beachheads on the south and east sides of Lingayen Gulf. LATE BULLETINS

BRITISH ADVANCE TWO MILES

LONDON, January 10 — British forces pursuing the retreating Germans from the western tip of the Belgian salient gained an additional two miles in an advance from Ferriers to Ambly, five miles southeast of Rochefort, it was reported late tonight.

British forces have joined the Americans fighting in the German communications center of Laroche. The Americans had previously by-passed Laroche on both sides but later swung around and took German defenses in the rear. (OWI)

RAF BOMBS HANOVER

LONDON, January 10 — RAF Mosquitos early tonight bombed the large German railway and industrial center of Hanover, correspondents reported. The Mosquitos carried 4,000 pound bombs. (Reuter)

A correspondent told how a midget submarine attacking the convoy was brought to the surface by depth charges and then finished off with head-on ramming.

Destroyer Sinks two Enemy Ships

Not far from Manila, three Japanese destroyers made a dash for Manila Bay, but a destroyer gave chase and sank two of the enemy vessels.

Before the troops reached Lingayen Gulf, small Jap fighter planes, carrying a 100-pound bomb under each wing, and dive-bombers again tried to frustrate the landing operations, but they were overwhelmed.

The full magnitude of the convoy was not evident until the warships, fast transports, slow landing-craft and huge supply trains were drawn up before the four landing beaches on Tuesday morning. Then, as the troops, supplies and armored equipment began to pour ashore, Allied dreadnoughts and cruisers, including one Australian squadron, bombarded the shore, although there was virtually no interference.

« Coastal defenses in Lingayen Gulf proved disappointing to eager American naval gunners, » a dispatch said. « It was so bad Tuesday that there were not enough targets for the big battleship guns. »

Spotter planes reported that they found the only concentration of heavy coast artillery at San Fernando, at the northern end of the gulf, while entrances to the southern end were apparently free from big guns. Minesweepers reported that there were less than a dozen mines throughout the gulf and there were no shallow-water defenses at the beaches.

In the pre-landing bombardments, it was said, the Japs deserted pillboxes and gun positions on the beaches.

As the first American troops began to land, hundreds of Filipinos waving American flags came down to the beaches to welcome them, shouting « Victory » and showering the troops with gifts, correspondents reported. Americans were welcomed as the town of San Fabian, 10 miles north of Dagupan, and at San Fabian a building bore a huge sign reading « No Japs here. » (OWI-BBC-Reuter)

ALLIES GAIN ALONG NORTH FLANK OF BULGE

LONDON, January 10 — American and British troops all along the northern flank of the German salient in Belgium made strategic gains of up to two miles today through four to five feet of snow and over icy roads.

American forces crossed the Salm River and entered Vielsalm, by-passed yesterday by troops who advanced several miles southward to within two miles of the northern loop of St. Vith-Houffalize highway. Other American columns extended their control of the vital German supply line from Vielsalm to Laroche by a southward advance of a mile to capture Bihain.

After one of the biggest tank battles held on the northern flank, 2nd Armored Division forces captured Samree, under cover of a smokescreen, following 30 hours of hard fighting. The Germans threw in large quantities of men and equipment to hold the strategic village which is four miles northeast of Laroche on the highway to Vielsalm.

As American forces fought on the outskirts of the communications center of Laroche, British troops moving southeastward from Cheoux advanced two miles to capture Hodister, less than four miles from the German strongpoint.

The Germans were officially reported to have pulled back on a five-mile front from the western tip of the contracting bulge in what appears to be the start of a step-by-step withdrawal. The area of the withdrawal is between Marche, Rochefort and St. Hubert. British forces are pursuing the retreating Germans although their advance has been slowed due to closely-sown mines laid in deep snow. The bitterly contested towns of Bure and Forrieres southeast of Rochefort were re-occupied. British troops have advanced pocket. American and French forces withdrew from Boofsheim on the western banks of the Rhine. The German drive was slowed and at some points checked, press reports said.

Far to the north on the comparatively quiet Canadian 1st Army front, Allied forces made a sudden advance of one mile in the Wyler area, five miles southeast of Nijmegen and seven miles west of Cleve. (OWI-BBC-Reuter-AP)

U. S. HEAVIES HIT GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS

LONDON, January 10 — The Allied air offensive against German communications targets was resumed today when more than 1,100 Flying Fortresses and Liberators struck airfields, bridges and road and rail junctions along the Belgian-German frontier at the base of the Ardennes salient. The attack was the 16th in 18 days.

Escorted by over 300 Mustangs and Thunderbolts, which took off from iced runways, the heavy bombers of the 8th USAAF dropped a bomb load of 4,600 tons on four large airfields and landing grounds in the vicinity of Bonn, Cologne and Euskirchen, as well as on road and rail bridges over the Rhine at Cologne, it was officially announced. Cologne has already received 11,000 tons of bombs, the BBC said, adding that that was the largest bomb load dropped on any German city.

A large railroad yard at Karlsruhe, which supplies the German army attacking in the Alsace bulge, was also hit.

The announcement said that six bombers and two fighters were missing from last Monday's operation.

Early press reports of today's attacks made no mention of opposition from German fighters, which have been inactive since their surprise New Year's Day attack on Allied airbases in Belgium, when they lost 363 planes. (PWB-OWI-BBC)

LULL CONTINUES ON ITALY FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 10 — Bitter cold and deep drifting snows which blanket the battle front again yesterday restricted action in north Italy to patrolling, it was announced here today.

Enemy patrols jabbed at Allied positions in several areas, from just inland from the mouth of the Reno River on the Adriatic to a point more than 100 miles up this stream near its source, southwest of Bologna. All the enemy attacks were repulsed.

The patrol clashes were mostly in the sectors which have figured in recent actions — south of Porto Garibaldi along the Adriatic coast, in the southern end of the enemy's Senio River defenses south of Imola, in the crucial sectors south and just southeast of Bologna, and along the upper stretches of the Reno Valley, west of the Pistoia-Bologna Road.

Eighth army reports singled out the action of Desert Air Force fighter-bombers, which have blocked the vital road bridge across the Senio River at Alfonsine, center point of the German defenses guarding the approaches to Ferrara.

In the Serchio River Valley, Allied patrol forces were reported to have neared the village of Calomoni, a mile and a half west of Gallicano, only to be met by heavy enemy bazooka and small-arms fire. Calomoni is some 15 miles north of Lucca, and the presence of Allied forces in this area would indicate that the 5th Army has regained all the ground lost west of the Serchio River in the German attack of some weeks ago.

An announcement on January 1 said that all positions east of the Serchio River had been restored as a result of enemy withdrawal. (PRO)

British troops have advanced beyond Bure and were reported to have crossed the Homme River in several places.

The Germans, however, put up stubborn resistance on the southern flank where they launched two heavy counter-attacks above Bastogne. The attacks were held by American airborne troops. Other 3rd Army forces made gains of two miles in some sectors between Bastogne and Wiltz.

Far to the southeast, American 7th Army forces recaptured Rimlingen and broke up two German counter-thrusts near Lemberg and Reyersweiler, south of Bitsch. The German offensive in this area east of Saargemünd, and in the Bitsch sector, was reported checked.

Along the German border further to the east, the enemy yesterday threw at least 100 armored vehicles into an assault 10 miles below the French frontier town of Wissembourg and encircled the village of Hatten. By last night, however, the German drive had been stopped and the enemy withdrew with heavy losses.

Along the Rhine north of Strasbourg, American troops re-entered Gambsheim where the Germans first established their bridgehead, today's SHAEF communique reported.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 10 — Mitchell bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday knocked out one bridge and damaged approaches of four others in the Milan and Parma areas, in their continuing attacks on enemy communication lines in the vital rear area of the Valley of the Po, it was announced here today.

The medium bombers also bombed an enemy troop concentration at Crestallano, 10 miles west of Bologna.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers strafed enemy ammunition dumps 15 and 20 miles southwest of Parma, causing fires and explosions. Havoc light bombers, in a night attack, set huge fires along the Brenner Highway west of Lake Garda, where it is believed enemy fuel stores had been concentrated. (PRO)

LEDO ROAD THROUGH BURMA COMPLETE

NEW DELHI, January 10 — The Ledo road through Burma has been completed so far as new construction is concerned, according to a Reuter report today.

The road links the Ledo railhead in eastern India with the Chinese artery roads leading into Burma. It was started in December, 1942. The main engineering problems now will be improvement and maintenance. The task of hacking through jungles and crossing mountains to open the vital supply route has been finished.

Meanwhile, to the south, British 14th Army troops fighting near Shwebo, a central Burma town on the railway from Myitkyina to Mandalay, captured the crossroads three miles northwest of the town, the Shwebo airfield, and a village seven miles northwest of the town.

In the Kaladan valley the Japanese still are resisting fiercely 13 miles southeast of Kyauktaw, despite heavy air strikes, today's Southeast Asia Command communique reported.

The 10th USAAF, according to a delayed Associated Press dispatch from Myitkyina, has been attacking the Burmese Bawdin mines, 20 miles northwest of Lashio, which air officers say produce 60 percent of the the lead and 40 percent of the zinc required by the Japanese.

Along the China coast Chinese troops cut off the Japanese transcontinental corridor from their western bases and have recaptured three cities, according to front dispatches received at Chungking. The Chinese struck from the western Kwangtung mountains to retake the towns of Yanhsien and Limchow in western Kwangtung Province and Siapu on the northeastern Fukien coast, where the Japanese landed December 26.

Siapu lies across the straits northwest of Formosa, which was bombed by China-based Superfortresses yesterday. No enemy fighter opposition was encountered and there was no anti-aircraft fire, and no losses to the American aircraft. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

RUSSIANS ON OUTSKIRTS OF KOMARNO

MOSCOW, January 10 — Soviet forces, driving westward along the banks of the Danube, have reached the outskirts of the large communications center of Komarno after capturing a rail station just over a mile from the city, tonight's Soviet communique announced. The Russian drive is threatening the base of all German counter-operations against Budapest.

Russian forces have also captured Stara Dala, a rail station 10 miles north of Komarno and just east of the Nitra River. The Russians have smashed fresh German forces, which were thrown into the battle in an effort to restore their lines, and over 800 German prisoners were taken.

The twin German drives toward Budapest were halted 15 miles from the encircled city of Budapest and Russian forces are reported to have gone over to the offensive. The latest German relief attacks have cost the enemy up to 100 tanks, mobile guns and armored troop carriers.

The annihilation of the encircled German forces in Budapest continued today as Red Army troops closed in on the enemy garrison. The Soviet communique reported that over 1,000 blocks of houses had been taken and over 3,000 Germans and Hungarians were captured.

Soviet troops occupied several central streets and captured the island of Obuda with its shipbuilding wharves. The large outskirting districts of Ujnest, Csepel and Rakospalota were captured after heavy fighting. (BBC-Radio Moscow)

YUGOSLAVS CAPTURE NAZI BASE IN BOSNIA

LONDON, January 10 — Yugoslav forces have captured Kresevo, large German base in Bosnia, Marshal Tito's communique announced today.

Kresevo was taken after two days' fighting. More heavy fighting was reported in progress along the road from Zepce to Doboj, and also in Bosnia, where Partisan forces have engaged two German columns.

Capture of Kresevo, only 25 miles west of Sarajevo, indicates a tightening of Yugoslav forces around the area

LUZON RADIO ON THE AIR AGAIN

WASHINGTON, January 10 — The Voice of Freedom radio, which had not broadcast from Luzon since the fall of Corregidor, came back on the air yesterday shortly after the Luzon landings, the Associated Press reported.

The broadcast repeated General MacArthur's first communique on the landings.

The station last broadcast from Luzon a few hours before the Japanese took over Corregidor. (OWI)

ITALIAN PATRIOTS OCCUPY CESA PASS

ZURICH, January 10 — Italian Patriots have occupied Cesa Pass, the main communication link between the German front in Tuscany and the Po plain, the Swiss paper, Gazette de Lausanne, reported today. PARACHUTISTS DROP IN NORWAY, CUT RAILWAY

LONDON, January 10 — Norwegian parachutists, dropped into Norway, have cut the main railway between Trondheim and Oslo, over which the Nazis were being evacuated to Germany, a Norwegian Government official disclosed today.

He said also that two German divisions recently in Norway are now fighting with Rundstedt on the Western Front, and that the Germans are trying to get eight other divisions out of Norway. (OWI)

TREATMENT OF FRENCH PATRIOTS, NAZIS WARNED

PARIS, January 10 — The French Government today warned Germans who mistreat French Patriots from Alsace or Lorraine that they will be treated as war criminals.

Press dispatches said the statement had been provoked by reports that Germans in their recent advance into the territory arrested and condemned a number of Alsatians as traitors to the German nation. (Reuter)

FRENCH CALL UP RESERVE OFFICERS

PARIS, January 10 — The French Ministry of Defense has called up all reserve officers of the 1931-1940 classes for active service, Radio Paris said today.

Non-commissioned officers and enlisted men with special qualifications from the 1936-1940 classes are also being called up, the radio said.

Radio Paris today quoted the French official journal as publishing a decree concerning the call-up of French citizens of the whole of the 1943 class. Exceptions will be made in the case of married men with children, whose call up will be deferred by one class for each child. Mass calling up will begin next Monday. (OWI-Reuter)

Kresevo was taken after two days' fighting. More heavy fighting was reported in progress along the road from Zepce to Doboj, and also in Bosnia, where Partisan forces have engaged two German columns.

Capture of Kresevo, only 25 miles west of Sarajevo, indicates a tightening of Yugoslav forces around the area where trapped German forces in central Yugoslavia have been converging for three months.

In attacking the communications route to Doboj, the Yugoslavs have cut off still another route to the north and Yugoslavia's main railway running from Belgrade to Slovenia and north into Austria. 900,000 TO BE INDUCTED IN US FORCES

WASHINGTON, January 10 — At least 900,000 men will be inducted into the U.S. armed forces during the first six months of this year, Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson told Congress today.

The induction of 15,000 men a month will be necessary to meet manpower needs in the forces and industry, Patterson said, urging quick enactment of national service legislation. The Under Secretary advised the House Military Affairs Committee that some form of national service would be needed to meet manpower needs for the war effort. Those needs include 700,000 persons for war production and war-supporting activities as well as those for military needs, he said.

«The only complete and adequate legislation» would be national war service legislation «of the most comprehensible nature,» he said, asserting that such legislation would shorten the war and minimize the loss of life.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 10 — Maj. Gen. Otto L. Nelson, former assistant deputy chief of staff, United States War Department, has arrived in Italy to assume the post of Deputy Theater Commander, Mediterranean Theater of Operations, U.S. Army, it was officially announced here today.

General Nelson succeeds Maj. Gen. Miller G. White, who held the American Army post in an acting capacity. General Nelson was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal on his arrival in Italy last week, in recognition of his services with the office of the United States Chief of Staff in Washington. Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, Deputy Supreme Allied Commander and commanding general of the Mediterranean Theater of Operations, U.S. Army, presented the award. (PRO)

100,000 WOUNDED EVACUATED BY AIR

LONDON, January 10 — Ambulance planes of the U.S. Troop Carrier Command have evacuated more than 100,000 wounded from European battlefields since the Normandy landings on June 6 without the loss of one patient through an air accident, it was reported here today.

Evacuation of American, British, Canadian, French, Belgian and Dutch wounded troops was carried out by the air ambulances in all types of weather.

Troop carriers have flown more than 150,000 tons of freight also from England since D-day. More than 100,000 airborne troops were carried, mostly during airborne landings, and 100,000 other passengers were taken from England to the continent and between points on the continent. (OWI)

ROMAN DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 10 — The Sicilian anti-conscription disorders, the order of the day issued by the Giulian National Liberation Committee and the Italian Press Bureau statement on the publication of the Armistice clauses, draw

«Those who have already served long terms and who have suffered most from the war should have been excluded from conscription.»

Fascist Elements Thrive

Edoardo D'Onofrio in Unità (Communist) writes: «How can the democratic government rule the provinces of Sicily, with local prefects who don't know the meaning of democratic policy, of anti-Fascism, of the war for liberation and who are not in a position to clear the public administrations and the towns of the Fascist elements which are thriving there.»

Italia Nuova (Democratic) commenting on the order of the day issued by the Giulian National Liberation Committee writes: «It is obvious to anyone who knows the history of Trieste and is used to considering facts objectively that the organization of a free port in Trieste will be a powerful drive toward economic settlement in east-central and Danubian Europe.

Il Popolo (Christian Democrat), under the headline «Venezia Giulia Belongs to Italy,» stresses the first point of the order of the day, which reads: «The parties adhering to the N. C. L. consider as sacred and inviolable the principle of the Unity of Italy, which was reached in these regions through the sacrifice of many lives.»

L'Italia Libera (Action Party) has a caption reading «Autonomy of Venezia Giulia and Collaboration Between Italians and Slavs.»

Almost all the newspapers report a statement made by Armando Rossini, the head of the Italian Press Bureau, in reply to a question by a journalist. Rossini asserted that the Italian Government is ready to disclose the clauses of the Armistice, whenever the military reasons, because of which they so far have been kept secret, cease to exist.

ROOSEVELT ASKS MORE FOOD FOR ITALY

WASHINGTON, January 10 — In reply to a question at his news conference yesterday regarding the report that the United States and Britain were on the verge of agreeing on a new plan for aid to Italy, President Roosevelt recalled that a couple of weeks ago he asked for an increase to 300 grams of bread per day per person in Italy, and added that the Allies were having trouble getting ships.

«We are working,» he said, «to get more grams there, to get the figure up to 300 grams of bread per person per day.»

LAW EXACTS RETRIBUTION AFTER 21 YEARS

ROME, January 10 — Italian justice is catching up with perpetrators of Fascist crimes committed as long as 21 years ago, the Allied Commission's Legal Sub-Commission announced today in a report dealing with the courts of the Province of Grosseto.

The report said that sentences are being passed after trials under the Italian law of July 21, 1944, enforcement of which is entirely in the hands of Italian authorities.

An example of how far back the Italian law is reaching was the recent trial of 11 civilians in the Tribunale (court) of Grosseto. The 11 were found guilty of violating the Italian penal code by forcing four anti-fascists in the commune of Pancole di Scansano (near Grosseto) to drink castor oil on February 13, 1923.

The crimes had been pardoned by royal decree on October 31, 1923, but the pardons were revoked on November 9, 1944, under the present epuration law.

ROMAN DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 10 — The Sicilian anti-conscription disorders, the order of the day issued by the Giulian National Liberation Committee and the Italian Press Bureau statement on the publication of the Armistice clauses, draw the attention of the Roman newspapers today.

Avanti (Socialist), publishes an editorial by Pietro Nenni on the Sicilian disorders. He says, «Behind the students who, by their refusal to be conscripted, mean to protest against the monarchy or against hard clauses of the armistice, there is the old feudal, agrarian, clerical and Fascist Sicily which is lifting its head again. In Sicily we are gathering in the fruits of an easy-going policy of abstention, of which we have always pointed out the dangers.

«There have been no sanctions against the Fascist leaders: there has been no epuration. Thus the weakness of the Government and the complicity of the Administration with the neo-Fascist reaction are producing riots and risings, inflicting the humiliation of separatism on the island and on the nation.

«The Government must be careful. Under another disguise, with other slogans, what is happening now in Sicily, might well happen in other regions, precipitating the country into a chaotic situation.»

Italia Nuova (Democrat) writes: «In a situation as serious as that in Sicily, where one cannot help admitting that certain claims are fair, the Government's duty is not only to repress but also to forestall. It should, above all, avoid circumstances which might make matters worse. The Government is to blame for not having followed fairer criterions in the business of conscription.

The crimes had been pardoned by royal decree on October 31, 1923, but the pardons were revoked on November 9, 1944, under the present epuration law.

One of the defendants, a former secretary of the local fascio, was sentenced to three years, four months and 25 days of imprisonment, and fined 564 lire.

Seven others will spend three years and six months in prison, after paying fines. The remaining three, who were lads 14 to 18 years old when the crimes were committed, went to prison for a year and nine months and paid fines.

About the same time in 1923, a citizen of Porto Ercole was forced to drink castor oil. For this five other defendants were recently sentenced to three years' imprisonment each, with a fine of 1,000 lire. One of them was formerly secretary of the fascio in the commune of Orbetello, in Grosseto Province.

When the Grosseto Tribunale reopened on August 7, 1944, three Fascists were convicted of forcing public subscriptions after the Armistice of September 8, 1943, to purchase supplies for the army.

One of this trio, Lorenzo Frosi, secretary of the Republican Fascist Party of Scarlino, was sent to prison for 18 years and fined 15,000 lire on charges of private violence, illegal detention of persons, swindling and threatening.

The other two, both vice-secretaries of the party, were sentenced for embezzlement, swindling and illegal detention of citizens. One, Liveno Novelli, was punished with four years in prison and a 20,000-lire fine. The other, Archimede Petri, will serve 13 years in jail, after a 25,000-lire fine.

In its January sessions the Tribunale will try 20 others charged with personal violence, all in 1922 or 1923. (UNN)

FARMERS RECEIVE UNCULTIVATED LAND

ROME, January 10 — A number of farmers have each received 5,000 square meters of arable land at Fiano Romano for 29 years, it was announced today by Amulio Galletti, workers' representative on the Provincial Commission, which assigns uncultivated or insufficiently cultivated land to farmers upon request.

The law provides that the assignment be completed within four years, Galletti said.

The Commission has received 105 requests from farmers for land. Sixty-three of these requests will be examined at hearing by the Commission.

Owing to delays caused by the lack of transport, the Commission has studied only 48 cases. In 13 cases steps have been taken for an inspection of the land claimed to be uncultivated.

Six controversies which arose between landowners and farmers have been settled, Galletti said.

One request made by a farmer was rejected when a survey proved the land to be sufficiently cultivated. Another request was refused because the persons applying were not farmers.

«All attempts on the part of speculators to take advantage of a provision which should only benefit the tillers of the soil will be frustrated, said Galletti. (UNN)

PATRIOT TELLS OF NAZI PRISON HORRORS

FLORENCE, January 10 — The sufferings of a group of local Patriots, arrested by the German SS last June, were described to a UNN correspondent here recently by one of the Patriots, who escaped and has just returned to Florence.

He related how the Patriots were arrested on the evening of June 7 by the SS in a Florence apartment, where they were operating a clandestine radio transmitter.

After a short struggle, in which a German officer was killed, the Patriots were carried off to SS headquarters where torture was applied to force them to reveal the names of their comrades. None of them spoke, but one of them died under the torture and another was taken to the nearby village of Cecina and shot.

The rest, including the recently returned Patriot, were transported to the concentration camp at Carpi.

On June 21, a series of reprisals were started against the camps internees, and the first to be shot were Avvocato Gasparotto, of the Action Party, and a Signorina Kirie, of Florence.

During the next fortnight, another 70 persons were murdered, among whom were an Italian general and two colonels.

On July 28, the Patriots were taken from the camp and made to march toward Verona, from where they were to be deported to Germany. During the journey, the Patriot escaped. Armed with false documents, he passed through Bologna, Faenza and Modigliana in an attempt to cross the enemy lines into liberated territory.

He was recaptured near the front and forced to dig fortifications by the Germans until, broken in health, he was taken into hospital at Modigliana from which he escaped. (UNN)

SHOE FACTORY IN PRODUCTION AGAIN

PISTOIA, January 10 — Aided by the local AMG authorities, an important shoe manufacturing concern has just gone into production again here, it was announced yesterday.

In spite of the many difficulties to be overcome — greatest of which was the scarcity of electric power, which obliged the firm to manufacture exclusively by hand — a number of shoes priced at 700 lire per pair have been put on the market.

The sale of these shoes will be controlled by a ration system which will prevent hoarding and give precedence of distribution to the workers. (UNN)

GREEK ELECTIONS SOON — PLASTIRAS

ATHENS, January 10 — A new Greek assembly will be elected by the Greek people as soon as possible and Allied observers will attend the elections as an assurance that the peoples' will is genuinely expressed, General Nicholas Plastiras, Greek premier, said today.

General Plastiras said everything possible is being done to guide Greek life into normal channels again. He said that the Greek Army is to be reorganised and he has asked Britain to send a police mission to Greece to assist in the army's regeneration. The Premier again asked that Greek citizens lay down their arms.

General Plastiras said that all who collaborated with the enemy will be brought to trial, that everything possible will be done to revive the economic life of the country and that «we will strive to provide opportunity for full employment and we will ensure to the working classes their full rights of free association, of which they were deprived under the Metaxas dictatorship.»

The Premier said that the army, gendarmerie and police would be re-organized on a «voluntary basis.»

«We have pledged our honor to regain our place among the United Nations in the final battle against Fascism,» he added, after calling on all Greeks «of good faith» to support him in carrying out this program.

In a statement made to a British correspondent, answering criticisms of his attitude towards EAM, General Plastiras said: «I have been misunderstood in a statement attributed to me concerning inclusion of EAM in my government.

«Although I am entitled to express my disapproval of EAM after their part in the insurrection, the point I wanted to make was that free elections would be held at the earliest possible moment and that it would be for the people through their representatives and constituent assembly to say who would join the new government. It would be undemocratic for me to assume the responsibility of including in the government representatives of a party who were in a state of war with Greece at the time I formed my government and whom none of my colleagues would accept and who had demanded 50 per cent of the ministries from Papandreou without authorization of popular support.»

«I never wanted to be Prime Minister. I accepted the task at the request of the Right. I am well known in Greece for my democratic principles and I shall adhere to these in what I conceive to be the discharge of my duty to my country.»

TWO FASCIST COLLABORATORS HELD

ROME, January 10 — The arrest here of a Nazi-Fascist on charges of receiving bribes and divulging to the Nazis the location of a quantity of arms intended for Italian Patriots, and the detention of another, accused of writing pamphlets in favor of Mussolini and Fascism, were announced today by the Questura.

Mario Guadalti, the alleged informer, was a former «confidence man» for the Republican Fascist Guard, and was paid 230,000 lire for giving information concerning the arms to the Nazi-Fascists, who were then in occupation of Rome, police said. After the liberation he escaped detection for a time by posing as a Patriot and displaying spurious decorations, which he said were conferred on him by Patriot leaders.

Luigi Gianturco, Fascist Inspector and Fascist National Councillor for the City of Milan, was detained for questioning concerning his alleged authorship of the Fascist pamphlets. (UNN)

ELAS-Scobie Discussions

Discussions between General Scobie, and four ELAS delegates were resumed today after a long session yesterday. It was announced officially that the General's terms for a truce would be presented to the delegates.

A Reuter dispatch reported today that the Greek War Ministry has ordered disbandment of remnants of the right-wing EDES forces, which had withdrawn toward Corfu from Epirus. The Ministry also called up for military service all men of the 1934 to 1940 class who live in Corfu.

Fighting continued north of Athens with a British armored column reaching the town of Lavadia, 70 miles to the northeast. A patrol which entered Lavadia found that the insurgent forces had left. A second British column, striking north from Thebes, has approached to within four miles of Khalkis.

General Scobie today issued an order banning all public meetings in the city, prohibiting the publication of leaflets, the painting of signs and slogans or the spreading of news «liable to cause uneasiness,» according to an Associated Press report late tonight.

The order said that the Press Ministry of the Government would later announce details of a preventative censorship and the suspension of certain newspapers.

ROOSEVELT REAFFIRMS WAR AIMS

WASHINGTON, January 10 — President Roosevelt, in a message to the U. S. Congress requesting more than 73,000 million dollars for war expenditures between June 30, 1945, and July 1, 1946, yesterday reaffirmed American determination for total defeat of Germany and Japan as the first condition for peace.

«I have not in the past, and I shall not now make any prediction concerning the length of the war,» the President said. «My only prediction is that our enemies will be totally defeated before we lay down our arms.»

The President also restated his belief that America will co-operate in the post-war world both in international, political and economic spheres. «We have learned that just as the United States cannot afford to be isolationist in its political philosophy, neither can it stand the malignant effects of economic isolationism.» he said.

Submitting the new budget at a time when it is «the supreme duty» of the American people to back their fighting men and women «to the limit,» the President asked for 13,000 million dollars for regular government expenses in addition to the 73,000 dollars for war spending.

Half of the requested sum is expected to be met by taxes on the American people, with the remainder to be raised by borrowing.

The message pointed out that at the start of the war, America had a threefold task: to build up a new munitions industry; to produce equipment and transport for the new American army; and to give assistance to the Allies. War construction and initial equipment for the armed forces have virtually been completed, the President said, while Lend-Lease operations for supplying the Allies will continue as long as they are necessary to win the war.

One-sixth of all U. S. war expenditures are now going for Lend-Lease and foreign relief and rehabilitation needs, the President revealed, adding that 36,000 million dollars in Lend-Lease aid has already been provided in goods and services to the Allies. About 4,500 million dollars in reciprocal Lend-Lease aid has been given to U. S. forces.

Major supply problem

One of the major supply problems which will have to be met is a larger cargo and tanker fleet in the U. S. merchant marine, the message said. Already four times its pre-war size, the fleet is still under «the terrific strain of global warfare,» the President said.

Recalling the contribution of 1,350 million dollars by the United States to UNRRA, the President added that if more is needed the United States and other nations must «make sure that the people of liberated countries have essential relief from the devastation of war.»

Defeat of Japan, President Roosevelt warned, will be a task that should not be underestimated. He pointed out that Japan still holds an area twice that controlled by the Nazis at the height of their power, and that supply lines to American forces in the Pacific are two and three times the distance of those to Europe.

The American people «must be ready to throw their whole effort into the campaign against Japan as fast as the war in Europe permits,» the message said. Looking to full liberation of the Philippines, on which American troops are now fighting, the new budget requests 200,000 dollars for the Office of High Commissioner to the Philippines, compared to 198,000 dollars in the current appropriation.

Elaborating on his advocacy of American participation in the international economic field, the President urged the Congress to take two immediate steps: (1) Enact approval of the United Nations monetary and financial agreements drafted at Bretton Woods last July; and (2) Repeal the Johnson Act, which permits U. S. loans only to those [illegible] did not default on loans made during the

After returning to lunch at General Kirkman's headquarters, the group continued its tour to another sector of the front. The party is now visiting rest camps and institutions in the Florence area. (UNN)

WESTERN YUGOSLAVIA INHABITANTS STARVING

BARI, January 10 — Starvation is prevalent in western Yugoslavia, as the inhabitants have used up their inadequate 1944 crop, a Reuter correspondent said today. According to reliable information, the reporter said, 43 persons died of starvation, in and around Split, between November 22 and Christmas Day. His dispatch continued: «The first Allied foodship carrying 500 tons of food and medical stores arrived in Split last week. Larger-scale, immediate shipments are called for if citizens are to be saved from suffering and death. Local markets are empty. In Split I saw an old woman exchanging a pair of pijama trousers and a pair of long woollen underpants for a quarter of a liter of crude olive oil.

«Money prices are exceedingly high. Salted pork would sell for 10,000 kuna a kilogram. A kuna officially is exchanged at 3,200 per pacer pound sterling. The situation is made worse by the coldest weather experienced in Dubrovnik and the surrounding area in nearly 50 years.»

KING PETER CONFERS WITH CHURCHILL

LONDON, January 10 — King Peter of Yugoslavia, who conferred with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today, will receive the press tomorrow and issue a communique, Reuter reported tonight.

According to press dispatches, during the conference King Peter asked Churchill's advice on the formation of a Yugoslav Government of National Unity and the creation of a regency as proposed in the agreement between Marshal Tito and Yugoslav Prime Minister Subasic. (Reuter)

SHIPPING SITUATION EASIER

WASHINGTON, January 10 — The War Shipping Administration announced today that there will be sufficient ships available this month to handle all high-priority cargo demands, despite a «tight» shipping situation.

The WSA said that the favorable situation for January was a result of a reduction in the number of vessels required by military forces as storage ships in war theaters and of a re-examination of all requests for shipping space.

Although a spokesman for the WSA said that no predictions could be made more than a month in advance, «we hope to do as well in February as in the current month» if more ships are released. (OWI)

UK-US OIL AGREEMENT TO BE REVISED

WASHINGTON, January 10 — President Roosevelt, in a letter today, asked for withdrawal of the British-American petroleum agreement from the Senate so that revisions may be made in consultation with the British Government, to remove misunderstandings concerning the purpose and scope of the agreement.

The President sent the oil agreement to the Senate on August 24 for ratification. However, opposition to some phases of the agreement by certain Senators and by the domestic oil industry delayed a Senate decision.

Asking for its return, President Roosevelt asserted in his letter that he had not changed his view that «the agreement constituted an important step forward in removing possible causes of friction in the international trade in petroleum and in promoting co-operation among the nation.

BRITISH M.P'S VISIT 5TH ARMY SECTORS

FLORENCE, January 10 — The first party of British Members of Parliament to visit the Italian theater spent the fifth day of their tour seeing something of the difficult country and bad weather conditions that troops have had to overcome here, reported a UNN correspondent.

Leaving Florence in the early morning, the six M.P's first visited Lt. General S. C. Kirkman, the Commander of 13th Corps and congratulated him on receiving the American Legion of Merit. Afterwards the Members split into groups to visit different 5th Army sectors.

Travelling by jeep over icy roads, one group, consisting of Captain F.J. Bellenger, and Major H.G. Studholme, accompanied by Brigadier H.C. Partridge, were taken first to see part of the Gothic Line defenses and Colle di Cassoglia, the German strongpoint which was taken in an assault by the British 1st Division.

During the day, the Parliamentarians spoke to several parties of British soldiers on the road.

As they drove along the snow-covered mountain roads, the party saw long lines of Italian volunteers working on reconstruction and clearing roads and bridges.

KING PETER CONFERS WITH CHURCHILL

LONDON, January 10 — King Peter of Yugoslavia, who conferred with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today, will receive the press tomorrow and issue a communique, Reuter reported tonight.

According to press dispatches, during the conference King Peter asked Churchill's advice on the formation of a Yugoslav Government of National Unity and the creation of a regency as proposed in the agreement between Marshal Tito and Yugoslav Prime Minister Subasic. (Reuter)

WASHINGTON, January 10 — The War Shipping Administration announced today that there will be sufficient ships available this month to handle all high-priority cargo demands, despite a «tight» shipping situation.

The WSA said that the favorable situation for January was a result of a reduction in the number of vessels required by military forces as storage ships in war theaters and of a re-examination of all requests for shipping space.

Although a spokesman for the WSA said that no predictions could be made more than a month in advance, «we hope to do as well in February as in the current month» if more ships are released. (OWI)

UK-US OIL AGREEMENT TO BE REVISED

WASHINGTON, January 10 — President Roosevelt, in a letter today, asked for withdrawal of the British-American petroleum agreement from the Senate so that revisions may be made in consultation with the British Government, to remove misunderstandings concerning the purpose and scope of the agreement.

The President sent the oil agreement to the Senate on August 24 for ratification. However, opposition to some phases of the agreement by certain Senators and by the domestic oil industry delayed a Senate decision.

Asking for its return, President Roosevelt asserted in his letter that he had not changed his view that «the agreement constituted an important step forward in removing possible causes of friction in the international trade in petroleum and in promoting co-operation among the nations in the development of that trade.»

The President added: «I am informed that fears have been expressed as to the scope and effect of the document as it is now worded; some voicing concern lest it authorize acts by the petroleum industry inconsistent with provisions of the existing law; others lest it hold potentialities harmful to industry.

«It is my belief that these fears are without foundation and certainly no such possibilities were intended or designed by American representatives who negotiated the agreement.»

Secretary of State Stettinius, issued the following statement: «The State Department has consistently advocated development of broad international understandings for promotion of sound trade and commerce between nations as essential to building world-wide peace and prosperity.

«The Anglo-American oil agreement was concluded in an endeavor to apply this co-operation as an approach to particular problems and to lay a basis for removal of possible causes of friction in the field of international oil.»

The purpose of withdrawing the agreement from the Senate, Stettinius explained, «is to permit consideration of the best way to achieve fundamental purposes underlying the agreement — preventing friction between nations from growing out of problems of foreign oil, and assuring to all an adequate supply.»

« It appears to the State Department, » he concluded « that misunderstandings which have arisen come not from lack of agreement upon these objectives but from implementing features attending them. » (Reuter-BBC)

BELGIAN HIGH COMMAND SET UP

BRUSSELS, January 10 — The Belgian Minister of National Defense, Fernand Demets, has announced plans to set up a high command of the Belgian Army under Maj. Gen. PIERLOT'S STATESMANSHIP PRAISED

LONDON, January 10 — The establishment of a committee representing all resistance groups to safeguard morale and material interests of Belgian resistance is a tribute to the statesmanship of Prime Minister Hubert Pierlot and his colleagues, The Times said in an editorial today.

« The new committee will advise on the task of reabsorbing into normal social life numerous Belgians who during the last four years have lived a perilous underground existence in circumstances which must necessarily render difficult the resumption of ordinary civilian activities.

« Only a few weeks ago relations between Belgian resistance groups and the Belgian Government gave cause for anxiety.

« Part of the credit for averting a crisis may be claimed by British military authorities, whose steady impartiality enabled them to convince all concerned of the paramount military importance of a peaceful settlement. But Pierlot's Government — which radically reorganized on its return home, to provide for a powerful representation of resistance groups — must take the major share of praise. (OWI)

Around Marcourt mopping up continued while the village of Cielle, to the south, has been taken and Allied units are now thrusting in the direction of Laroche. Southeast of Marche we cleared Bois de Nolaumont and occupied the village of Forrières southeast of Rochefort.

West of Bastogne bitter fighting continues in the area of Bonnerue and Tillet, about two miles west of Mande, and an enemy counter-attack was repulsed with the destruction of nine of 18 enemy tanks engaged.

Southeast of Bastogne our troops made gains against strongly-defended enemy positions. Enemy attacks were broken up in the Rimlingen area and near Reyersweiler and Lemberg in the enemy's Lower Vosges salient.

In the Rhine Valley, north of Hagenau Forest, a strong enemy attack supported by tanks was repulsed. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy and he withdrew northward. We made some progress on the Rhine River bank and reentered Gambsheim.

Weather severely restricted air operations yesterday, but a small force of medium bombers attacked a railway embankment and bridge at Rimmthal, west of Landau and fighter-bombers attacked railyards at Neustadt and Rastatt. South of Strasbourg the enemy continued aggressive attempts to exploit gains he made on Sunday. We withdrew from Boofsheim.

In the Vosges, west of Colmar, our troops occupied high ground near Turkheim. Fighter-bombers attacked a bridge across the Rhine-Rhone Canal near Girzfelden. An enemy ground-force attack in the outskirts of Mülhouse was beaten off.

In all air operations five enemy aircraft were shot down. Ten of our fighters are missing. (OWI)

«GERMANS HAVE LOST INITIATIVE» SAYS MONTGOMERY

21ST ARMY GROUP HQ, January 7 — Field Marshal Montgomery asserted today that while the battle of the Ardennes salient in Belgium is «far from over,» Rundstedt's counter-offensive has been converted into a ground defensive by the Germans and the initiative now is in Allied hands.

This turnabout, he said, was accomplished by Allied

He explained that a heavy toll is being taken of the enemy forces by Allied ground and air action and that Rundstedt has been unable to gain any great advantage from his initial successes in the Ardennes sector. He listed as one of the main reasons for the German slowdown the inability of the Luftwaffe to protect the German army and, by comparison, he described Allied TAF operations as the «biggest terror» of the enemy ground troops.

Asserting that the Allies have recovered from a «sharp blow» dealt by Rundstedt, the Field Marshal said that the German commander has «failed in his strategic purpose unless the prize is smaller than his men were told.»

Affection for American Soldier

When the Germans attacked on December 16, they obtained a «tactical surprise» by driving a deep wedge into the center of the American 1st Army and by splitting American forces in two, Field Marshal Montgomery said.

«But the whole Allied team rallied to meet the danger,» he continued. «National considerations were thrown overboard; General Eisenhower placed me in command of the whole northern front. I employed the whole available power of the British groups of armies. This power was brought into play very gradually and in such a way that it would not interfere with American lines of communication. Finally it was put into battle with a bang and today British divisions are fighting hard on the right flank of the U.S. 1st Army. This is a fine Allied picture.»

The Field Marshal described generally the initial steps he took to «tidy up» the battle area. He said the first move was to head off the enemy from the vital places and «get things in balance.» This was done, he declared by regrouping the American 1st and 9th Armies and the British Armies on the Western Front into the 7th Army Corps for offensive purposes.

In his tribute to American troops, Field Marshal Montgomery said:

«I formed a very high opinion of the American soldier in Italy and Sicily. I have spent my life with the British soldier and I love the British soldier, but I have formed a great affection for the American soldier who is a very brave fighting man, who has the tenacity in battle that makes him a great soldier.»

He singled out for his plaudits the 2nd and 7th U.S. Armored Divisions, the 82nd and 101st U.S. Airborne Divisions, and the 106th Infantry. He disclosed that the British 6th Airborne Division is one of the British units fighting on the Belgian bulge.

The Field Marshal praised General Eisenhower's leadership and called him the «captain of our team.»

«I am devoted to General 'Ike',» he said. «We are all in this fight together and we must not allow any wedges to be driven between us. This Allied solidarity is terribly important. Teamwork wins battles and battle victories win wars.»

« GERMANS HAVE LOST INITIATIVE » SAYS MONTGOMERY

21ST ARMY GROUP HQ, January 7 — Field Marshal Montgomery asserted today that while the battle of the Ardennes salient in Belgium is « far from over, » Rundstedt's counter-offensive has been converted into a ground defensive by the Germans and the initiative now is in Allied hands.

This turnabout, he said, was accomplished by Allied teamwork and especially the inherent « courage and good fighting quality » of American troops. The American soldiers, he emphasized, are « basically responsible for stopping Rundstedt from what he set out to do. » Field Marshal Montgomery praised American troops' « tenacity in battle that makes a great soldier, » and emphasized that their stands at St. Vith, Bastogne and south of Monschau saved the situation.

The German counter-offensive was « halted, then sealed off and we are now in the process of writing the Germans off » he declared, adding: « German divisions have suffered heavily but I say this about a battle — it is a very grest mistake to think it is over. The worst parts are over but a great deal more must de done. »

Field Marshal Montgomery, who now commands four armies north of the German bulge, discussed the Rundstedt counter-offensive and how he (Montgomery) moved to meet it.

At the first press conference he has held in several months, he said: « Rundstedt told his troops before the battle began, that it was the last great effort by Germany to win the war. On the map you can see his gains and that he will not win the war. He has not achieved a great deal. I shall always feel that Rundstedt really was beaten by the fighting qualities of the American soldier and by the teamwork of the Allies. »

I have spent my life with the British soldier and I love the British soldier, but I have formed a great affection for the American soldier who is a very brave fighting man, who has the tenacity in battle that makes him a great soldier. »

He singled out for his plaudits the 2nd and 7th U.S. Armored Divisions, the 82nd and 101st U.S. Airborne Divisions, and the 106th Infantry. He disclosed that the British 6th Airborne Division is one of the British units fighting on the Belgian bulge.

The Field Marshal praised General Eisenhower's leadership and called him the « captain of our team. »

« I am devoted to General 'Ike', » he said. « We are all in this fight together and we must not allow any wedges to be driven between us. This Allied solidarity is terribly important. Teamwork wins battles and battle victories win wars. »

R.A.F. ATTACKS MUNICH TWICE

LONDON, January 7 — Royal Air Force heavy bombers made two attacks « in great strength » on the German city of Munich tonight, the Air Ministry announced. This is the third night in the last four days that the R.A.F. has twice attacked a German target in one evening.

Tonight's attacks were directed against industrial objectives and railroad marshalling yards in and near the city.

BRITISH DRIVE NORTH OF ATHENS

ATHENS, January 7 — British tank and infantry columns have driven 15 to 20 miles northwest of this city in pursuit of the retreating ELAS forces, a late press dispatch reported tonight. All organized ELAS troops have been pushed across the so-called « Scobie Line » over which Gen. Scobie demanded the ELAS forces be withdrawn preliminary to discussing armistice terms.

GERMANS' BELGIUM SUPPLY ROUTE CUT: ALLIES GAIN THREE MILES IN NEW ATTACK

LONDON, January 7 — Tanks of the U.S. 3rd Armored Division today severed the vital La Roche-St. Vith road, one of the two major German supply routes inside the German salient in Belgium.

All along the northern flank of the salient, steady advances by American and British troops under Field Marshal Montgomery were reported in press dispatches tonight. The progress today by the Allies resulted in their deepest penetration since the new attack began three days ago.

The rapid advance by the American 1st Army southwest of Stavelot, which gained three miles, and the breach of the supply route from St. Vith, 25 miles west to La Roche, were described as the major developments of the day.

Units of the 1st Army were said to be only 10 miles from the 3rd Army salient pushing up from Bastogne.

American troops cut the St. Vith-La Roche supply line soon after they recaptured the small town of Ardenna, while further west other units re-occupied Liernieux, nine miles southwest of Stavelot. Here, the 82nd Airborne Division is pushing eastward toward the waist of the bulge.

The St. Vith-La Roche road was breached inside the salient in three places by units of the 82nd Airborne Division after the vital road junction of Fraiture was captured on the main enemy supply line. The severing of this vital traffic artery leaves the Germans with only one other lateral east-west feed line from Germany into the salient. That road is from St. Hubert to Houmaleize to St. Vith and that, too, is being threatened by 3rd Army troops which are pressing steadily. Cutting of this route will leave only secondary roads by which Rundstedt may attempt to move supplies, a press dispatch said.

While Allied forces were moving steadily along many other roadways branching off northward in the arc of the Ardennes salient, 1,000 American heavy bombers battered German communication centers close behind the front in the 15th heavy attack in 16 days.

However, above and below the Belgian salient, the Germans established a new bridgehead across the Maas (Meuse) River and reinforced two others over the west bank of the Rhine north of Strasbourg. A Reuter dispatch tonight said that the Germans reinforced a battalion which crossed the Rhine 11 miles north of Strasbourg and now hold a bridgehead roughly five miles long in that sector.

German tanks cross the Rhine

While earlier reports said that the U.S. 7th Army appears to be holding the enemy from breaking into the Alsace plain, a BBC dispatch tonight said that during the night, the Germans ferried a few tanks across the Rhine, south of Strasbourg, and fanned out today with this armored support to deepen the bridgehead to three miles.

At the southern tip of the German salient, 15 miles into France, 7th Army units surrounded German remnants in the rail town of Wingen, about 10 miles below Bitsch. The 7th Army also lashed back against the flanks of the salient below Bitsch clearing Philippsbourg on the last eight miles southeast of Bitsch and reaching Gros and Achen, nine and 11 miles west of Bitsch.

SHAEF announced today that small gains were made two miles east of St. Hubert and at other southern flank points, but that the Germans still are counter-attacking in the Bastogne area. Artillery northeast of the St. Hubert road has broke up a heavy enemy counter-attack made with eight tanks and an estimated battalion of infantry.

Correspondents reported yesterday that 3rd Army troops repulsed an enemy counter-blow near Harlange and that the American troops crossed the Sure River to capture Gvesdorf and Lutz. The 3rd Army is said to be attacking Cologne, through which supplies are funneled to the German armies in the bulge of Rundstedt's salient.

No German fighters were encountered by the American bombers in contrast to the enemy opposition encountered yesterday. Anti-aircraft fire was described as meager. The attack, the 15th in 16 days, was carried out despite temperatures of 50 degrees below freezing and bombing was done through clouds by instrument. Nine bombers and one fighter are missing, it was reported.

In the two weeks since the German counter-offensive began, U. S. and RAF heavy bombers have bombed 44 German railyards, 14 bridges and 63 road and rail junctions, nearly all of them within a 10,000-square mile area at or behind the German western front. Most of the bombing was done in adverse weather, according to a press agency dispatch.

An Air Ministry communique today said that in addition to the bombing of Hanau last night, RAF bombers also made attacks on Neuss, an advanced base and railway center west of the Rhine.

Aerial photographs made during an attack on a large railroad yard at Frankfurt on Friday by 8th USAAF heavy bombers showed that tracks were cut and two road-over-rail bridges were damaged.

Despite snowstorms, RAF Spitfires today maintained their attacks upon V-2 sites in the Netherlands. The weather was so severe that the Spitfires returned with their guns and airframes caked with ice. All aircraft returned safely.

During the 24 hours ending at dawn today there was enemy air activity directed against southern England. Some damage and casualties were caused. (Ow'l-Reuter)

CANADIANS REACH SEA NORTH OF RAVENNA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 7 — Canadian tank and infantry forces, continuing their pursuit of the retreating German troops northwest of Ravenna, have now reached the sea nine miles from that city, it was announced here today. At least two companies of Germans which formerly held a line on the right flank of the 8th Army have been cut off.

Other enemy forces which retreated to the west over the Reno river, overran their own reinforcements in the confusion and lost four field guns and their crews to the Canadians. Enemy detachments are now cornered in the swamplands south of Mandriole and eight miles north of Ravenna.

The 8th Army now hold an unbroken stretch of 30 miles along the Senio river from south of Imola to just south of Alfonsine, on the Ferrara road. It was reported here today that enemy artillery and mortar fire have been increased, and that the Germans are sending patrols, some equipped with flame throwers to try and penetrate the Allied line.

Isolated pockets of Germans are still holding out along the east bank of the stream.

On the 5th Army front, heavy snow hampered movement. Patrol clashes are reported in the area south of Imola and Allied positions in the Monte Grande area were shelled. (PRO)

CARRIER FORCE STRIKES LUZON ISLAND

PEARL HARBOR, January 7 — Luzon Island in the Philippines was struck on Friday by carrier-based planes from the U.S. 3rd Fleet, a communique from Admiral Nimitz said tonight.

Incomplete reports showed 27 Japanese planes were destroyed and 14 others damaged. Details on the damage to Luzon shipping and ground installations are not yet available.

The Admiral said that surface units of another force

Artillery northeast of the St. Hubert road hub broke up a heavy enemy counter-attack made with eight tanks and an estimated battalion of infantry.

Correspondents reported yesterday that 3rd Army troops repulsed an enemy counter-blow near Harlange and that the American troops crossed the Sure River to capture Goesdorf and Dahl. The 3rd Army is said to be attacking over treacherous ice-bound "mountain goat" terrain, and dispatches said the infantrymen had to scale icy cliffs to take Dahl.

Further east, units were within two and one-half miles of the Luxembourg city of Wiltz, BBC reported tonight.

Along the western tip of the Belgian salient, British 2nd Army troops were thrown back a mile and relinquished the town of Bure, five miles south of Rochefort, a road junction held by the Allies. The British troops, however, gained at other points on the western end in the face of tough enemy resistance. (OWI-BBC-Reuter)

GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS AGAIN ATTACKED

LONDON, January 7 — American bombers today kept up the day and night Allied air offensive against Germany when more than 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th USAAF attacked five German marshalling yards, two Rhine bridges and six rail junctions over a wide area.

The bombers were escorted by more than 650 Mustangs and Thunderbolts of the same command. The widespread onslaught, carried out in bitter weather, extended from Hamm, just northeast of the Ruhr, to Achern, southwest of Karlsruhe. Targets included the freight yards of Hamm and their attacks upon V-2 sites in the Netherlands. The weather was so severe that the Spitfires returned with their guns and airframes caked with ice. All aircraft returned safely.

During the 24 hours ending at dawn today there was enemy air activity directed against southern England. Some damage and casualties were caused. (OWI-Reuter)

CARRIER FORCE STRIKES LUZON ISLAND

PEARL HARBOR, January 7 — Luzon Island in the Philippines was struck on Friday by carrier-based planes from the U.S. 3rd Fleet, a communique from Admiral Nimitz, said tonight.

Incomplete reports showed 27 Japanese planes were destroyed and 14 others damaged. Details on the damage to Luzon shipping and ground installations are not yet available.

The Admiral said that surface units of another force on the same day attacked Paramushiro in the northern Kuriles Islands, 1,350 miles north of Tokyo. A number of fires were started despite enemy action. The attacking forces suffered no damage.

General MacArthur reported tonight that American forces liberated Paluan in northwest Mindoro Island in the Philippines on Thursday. Paluan is 13 miles north of the original landing made by American troops last Tuesday.

A correspondent said that an amphibious landing was made seven miles below Paluan and the remaining distance northward was covered in a land advance that smashed Japanese supply lines and communications.

General MacArthur's communique also reported that Liberator bombers struck Clark Field and two other airfields on Luzon Island, destroying 18 grounded enemy planes.

American amphibious forces have gone ashore on Fais Island in the western Carolines, Admiral Nimitz announced last night. Fais is 380 miles southwest of Guam and 425 miles northeast of the Palau Islands. It is also known as Tromelin Island.

The occupation of Fais gives the Americans another hold among the cluster of 48 islands making up the Caroline group. It is only 65 feet above sea level at its highest point and is covered with coconut palms.

Pacific Fleet headquarters revised the Japanese losses inflicted in the carrier strike on Tuesday against Formosa and Okinawa. Admiral Nimitz announced that 13 cargo vessels, one patrol ship and 11 small craft were sunk or destroyed in the two-day assault.

A further revision showed one destroyer, four destroyer escorts, six patrol craft, 38 cargo ships, two landing craft and seven small ships were damaged. This made a total of 53 instead of the previously announced figure of enemy ships reported as damaged.

Ground installations on Formosa also took a heavy pounding from the carrier planes. Eleven locomotives, four tank cars and several freight cars were destroyed. Several buildings also were ruined. American losses were 17 planes.

The Navy Department announced today that a lone flying boat, while on a night mission, scored a direct hit and a probable hit on a large Japanese aircraft carrier off the southern Celebes. (OWI-AP)

SOVIETS ABANDON ESZERTERGOM

MOSCOW, January 7 — Russian troops have abandoned Eszertergom, 20 miles northwest of Budapest, on one of the main highways to the Hungarian capital, tonight's Soviet communique reported.

Eszertergom, just south of the Danube River, tips one prong of the German drive aimed at perforating the Russian encirclement of Budapest.

Other German forces labbed south to Bicske, 18 miles from the western outskirts of the Hungarian capital, according to press dispatches. This is the rail junction on a line to Austria which Marshal Tolbukhin made in his outflanking sweep around Budapest.

In a desperate attempt to relieve their trapped garrison, the Germans are throwing in troops and tanks originally intended for the defense of Austria, a Reuter correspondent said.

Front-line reports indicated that the Red Army is preparing to meet the climax of this assault during the next 24 hours, according to Reuter.

«Sixty tanks at a time are charging Soviet positions,» Reuter correspondent Duncan Hooper, wrote. «Then the infantry moved in. The Russians are relying on firepower from the air as well as from artillery to stem the rush. While the Germans are throwing in every available man, it is believed that the Russians have not yet called on their total reserves.

In Budapest, the Germans are fighting what they believe is the last round before relief reaches them. Street by street the battle is swaying on either side of the city with the Russians offering individual garrisons the choice of surrender or death. If the Germans stay to fight it out, «Katushas» or mobile guns carry the Russian reply.»

Forty per cent of the Hungarian capital now is in Russian hands, a correspondent reported today.

Tonight's communique said 116 additional blocks of houses have been captured by Red Army troops.

On the northern bank of the Danube, north of Esztergom, the Russians smashed enemy resistance and advanced 12 miles west of the Hron River, capturing a number of inhabited places.

The supplement to last night's communique said Red Army troops captured the Messerschmidt Aircraft Engine Plant in Budapest, a radio plant, and a number of other enterprises. Yesterday Soviet forces captured 1,300 enemy officers and men, 54 tanks and 28 guns in fighting in and around Budapest.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place yesterday. On all fronts yesterday the Russians damaged or destroyed a total of 116 German tanks. In aerial combat and by anti-aircraft fire 52 enemy planes were shot down. (OWI-PW-BBC-Reuter)

Marshal Tito's communique said today. Repeated enemy attempts to wipe out a Yugoslav bridgehead have all been defeated.

Farther west, the Zagreb-Novska railway, running parallel to the Sava River, has been cut in 54 places, and two bridges have been destroyed.

In the valley of the Lim River, Yugoslav and Albanian troops have liberated the large town of Bijelo Polje, about 25 miles north of the Albanian frontier.

In western Bosnia, enemy attempts to break through toward Travnik, 45 miles northwest of Sarajevo, were repulsed.

Fighting continues in eastern Bosnia along the Sokolac-Vlasenica railway. (OWI)

U.S. TAF PLACED UNDER BRITISH

LONDON, January 7 — The United States 29th Tactical Air Force has been placed under the command of Air Marshal Sir Arthur Cunningham's British 2nd Tactical Air Force in the shift of assignments, it was announced yesterday.

The shift was incident to the change in which Field Marshal Montgomery, commander of the 21st Army Group, took over the U.S. 1st and 9th Armies. (OWI)

FRANCE TO CALL UP NEW CLASSES

PARIS, January 7 — Frenchmen who came of military age in 1943 will be drafted into the army at the end of this month and the 1944 class will be called in the spring, Minister of War Andre Diethelm announced today.

Diethelm also was quoted as saying the classes of 1940, 1941, and 1942 would be called as soon as possible to join units of the re-equipped FFI and the North African Army at the front. (OWI)

JAP RESISTANCE STIFFENS IN BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, January 7 — British 14th Army troops, pressing from bridgeheads east of the Mu River, encountered stiff enemy opposition in the Kabo and Ye-U sectors and severe fighting is in progress, the Southeast Asia Command communique said today.

To the north, Chinese forces driving along the Bhamo-Namhkam road near the Burma-Yunnan front yesterday occupied Manwing, five miles west of Namhkam.

Allied planes sank enemy rivercraft northeast of Akyab, bombed communications south and southwest of Mandalay in support of ground troops, and damaged airfields in central Burma.

Meanwhile, in China Chinese troops repulsed a Japanese counter-attack at Yiyang, 95 miles northwest of enemy-held Changsha, according to the Chinese High Command today.

Other Chinese troops in the Paoching area 60 miles west of Japanese-held Hengyang, intercepted a Japanese column and bitter fighting resulted.

Chinese mobile units southeast of Paoching attacked Japanese positions about 70 miles northeast of Kweilin, inflicting heavy casualties and taking some prisoners, the communique reported.

A British correspondent reported today that Hurricane bombers now are attacking the enemy in support of Allied ground actions from the first airstrip to be built in re-occupied Burma. Other squadrons of Spitfires and Hurricanes were flying before Christmas from airfields which less than a month earlier had been held by the Japanese, the correspondent said.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER HIT AT GENOA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 7 — Thunderbolt fighter bombers of the 12th USAAF yesterday struck and set afire the 32,000-ton aircraft carrier Aquila, formerly the Italian luxury liner Roma, in an attack on shipping in Genoa harbor, it was announced here today.

The fighter bombers scored two direct hits and four near misses on the big ship. The Aquila had been converted from its peace time service to an aircraft carrier and was undergoing trials at the time of the Italian armistice.

Although the carrier was incapacitated by previous fighter bomber attacks last June, when five direct hits were scored on the vessel, it was evidently being placed in service again. The vessel fired at the attacking planes.

Bad weather yesterday restricted MAAF operations to about 200 sorties. (PRO)

Other squadrons of Spitfires and Hurricanes were flying before Christmas from airfields which less than a month earlier had been held by the Japanese, the correspondent said.

A single fighter group of Maj. Gen. Chennault's Chinese-American Wing destroyed 49 Japanese planes on Friday in an attack on Hankow aerodrome making a total of 89 planes for the first six days of this year.

On Friday's mission, between 30 and 40 Japanese aircraft came up to intercept the Allied fighters. Ten of them were destroyed in the air and 29 fighters and 10 bombers were destroyed on the ground.

During the six-day period which ended in the Hankow attack, the fighter group bombed several other enemy installations in central China. The largest other single strike was made against the Mosuchow aerodrome, when the Americans destroyed 25 enemy planes on the ground, said a communique from an advanced China base. (OWI)

U.S. BROADCASTS WAR NEWS TO JAPAN

WASHINGTON, January 7 — Allied military victories in the Pacific are being reported factually and truthfully to the Japanese people through the two new radio stations in the central Pacific operated by the U.S. Office of War Information, a military commentator reported today.

Japanese warlords are «in panic» over the «human voices hurtling through the ether from the two new stations,» the correspondent said.

«These voices are telling the Japanese people for the first time the truth about the war,» he went on.

This week Elmer Davis, director of OWI said that when Superfortresses attack Japan, radio airlines are temporarily cleared by the Japanese, and this permits the flow of American news to the Japanese people.

«This is producing effects in Japan,» Davis said. «It is the custom of the Saipan station to transmit just as the domestic transmission from the Japanese radio ends. On January 1 this station began pleading with listeners 'to turn off your radio as soon as this broadcast is over.' The plea added: 'Please carry out this request from tonight.'» (OWI)

POLISH AWARD TO GENS CLARK, GRUENTHER

ADVANCE ARMY ITALY, January 7 — The Commander of the Polish Corps, Lt. Gen. Anders yesterday presented Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the 15th Army Group with the Virtuti Militari Medal, highest Polish military decoration, it was announced here today.

The award was also awarded to Maj Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, chief of staff of the 15th Army Group.

General Anders praised General Clark's role in the historic landings at Salerno and Anzio, the Battle for Rome, and the smashing of the principal enemy defensive line in Italy, the Goth Line along the Apennines crests.

Troops of the Polish Corps, Gen. Anders said, had participated in Allied victories in Italy, and that the Polish Republic had faith that they would participate in the great final victory of the ideals for which their soldiers fought side by side with their Allies. (PRO)

GERMAN TROOPSHIP BLOWN UP

LONDON, January 7 — A German troopship, believed to be carrying 3,000 men, collided with an ammunition ship in Kalundborg Fiord, off the west coast of Sjaeland yesterday and blew up, press dispatches from Stockholm said today.

Doctors and ambulances were summoned from Copenhagen, 60 miles away on the other side of the island.

Sjaeland is situated between the Danish mainland and Sweden. (OWI)

ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 7 — President Roosevelt's message to Congress, the accusations of Drew Pearson, Washington newspaperman, on alleged disagreement between America and Britain on aid to Italy, and Italian problems, are featured in today's Rome morning newspapers.

Corriere di Roma devoted eight columns of text to President Roosevelt's message to Congress. All other papers, under large headlines, quoted the most important passages of his message, particularly those referring to Italy.

The sub-heads read as follows: Il Tempo (Independent): «We and our Allies will go on fighting together to ultimate [illegible] contrasts to try and obtain some advantages for Italy. Being fellow countrymen of Machiavelli, we are fully aware of the fact that there is nothing more harmful and base than common Machiavellism.»

Il Tempo (Independent), discussing the Sicilian situation, states that the driving power behind the students' rising and the separatist movement is probably «hunger and not anti-patriotism.»

l'Unità (Communist) published a resolution voted by the Central Directorate of the Communist Party, stating the aims of the party's policy. The main points are: 1) intensification of the war effort; 2) defense of the interest of the working classes; 3) destruction of Fascism; 4) speedier democratization of Italian political life; 5) economic reconstruction based on principles of national solidarity. The resolution also suggests «the National Liberation committees be considered as auxiliary agencies of the Government.» The (Communist) party organizations and members are to work as closely as possible with the Socialist organizations for the realization of the common political program. The article continues:

«The Communists must devote themselves to trade union propaganda and organization so that the General Italian Labor Federation may become the great common organization of Italian workers which assures and defends their bread, their social achievements and their liberty.» (UNN)

FREE EXCHANGE OF NEWS IN ITALY

ROME, January 7 — Rome will enjoy the first free interchange of news in more than 20 years on January 15 when domestic and world news agencies such as the Associated Press, United Press, Reuter and International News Service, will begin distribution of news directly to Rome newspapers, it was announced today by Rear Admiral Ellery W. Stone, Chief Commissioner of the Allied Commission.

The announcement added that the transfer of news operations in Rome to private interests is the first step in the tranfer of news operations planned for all of liberated Italy in the near future.

World news agencies will be free to sell news to any individual Italian newspaper, and the newspapers in turn will be free to buy any world or domestic news service they wish.

PUBLIC DEBT REACHES 600 BILLION LIRE

ROME, January 7 — The public debt of Italy today stands at about 600 billion lire, Finance Minister Marcello Soleri said in a broadcast here last night. This figure, the minister added, includes accumulated deficits and deferred annuities to date but does not include debts contracted by the Fascist Republican government, regarding which the Italian government has formulated «formal, ample reserves.»

The minister pointed out that the Italian public debt had risen from three billion lire in 1921 to 405 billion 823 million lire at the time of the first Badoglio government. To this last figure must be added, he said, 21 billion lire in occupation expenses paid the Germans by the Fascist Republicans for the three months of October-December 1943, the transfer of machinery, goods and Bank-of-Italy gold to the north, and the payment of German occupation expenses by the Fascist government for the year 1944.

Soleri said the deficit for the 1944 fiscal year in the 36 provinces of liberated Italy amounted to about 60 billion lire (the difference between expenditures of 73 billion and receipts of 13 billion lire.) Of these 73 billion, he added, 39 billion cover expenditures connected with the war of libera-[illegible]

POLISH AWARD TO GENS CLARK, GRUENTHER

ADVANCE AHQ, ITALY, January 7 — The Commander of the Polish Corps, Lt. Gen. Anders yesterday presented Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the 15th Army Group, with the Virtuti Militari Medal, highest Polish military decoration, it was announced here today.

The award was also awarded to Maj Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, chief of staff of the 15th Army Group.

General Anders praised General Clark's role in the historic landings at Salerno and Anzio, the Battle for Rome, and the smashing of the principal enemy defensive line in Italy, the Goth Line along the Apennines crests.

Troops of the Polish Corps, Gen. Anders said, had participated in Allied victories in Italy, and that the Polish Republic had faith that they would participate in the great final victory of the ideals for which their soldiers fought side by side with their Allies. (PRO)

GERMAN TROOPSHIP BLOWN UP

LONDON, January 7 — A German troopship, believed to be carrying 3,000 men, collided with an ammunition ship in Kalundborg Fiord, off the west coast of Sjaeland yesterday and blew up, press dispatches from Stockholm said today.

Doctors and ambulances were summoned from Copenhagen, 60 miles away on the other side of the island.

LIBERATED ITALY

ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 7 — President Roosevelt's message to Congress, the accurations of Drew Pearson, Washington newspaperman, on alleged disagreement between America and Britain on aid to Italy, and Italian problems, are featured in today's Rome morning newspapers.

Corriere di Roma devoted eight columns of text to President Roosevelt's message to Congress. All other papers, under large headlines, quoted the most important passages of his message, particularly those referring to Italy.

The sub-heads read as follows: Il Tempo (Independent): « We and our Allies will go on fighting together to ultimate victory. » L'Italia Libera (Action): « It is our purpose to help peace-loving peoples of Europe to live together as good neighbors. » l'Unità (Communist): « We shall not hesitate to use our influence to the end that the principles of the Atlantic Charter be activated. »

Il Popolo (Christian Democrat), in a leading article by Guido Gonella, recalls President Roosevelt's 1942 message to Congress in which he proclaimed that all peoples of the earth had the right to freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear » in our time and for the present generation. » Gonella writes: « If the sacrifice of so many lives is not to have been made in vain, this generation of Italians too must be freed from want. » The article quoted the statement of the Allied Commission Acting President, Harold Macmillan: « Italians, working harmoniously at our side, may help us to make our service effective, » and then added: « It is from this collaboration that our people can expect the freedom from want for which it is striving so hard. »

Risorgimento Liberale (Liberal), commenting on Drew Pearson's publication of confidential documents from which it would appear that the British and American governments did not agree as to the help to be given Italy, writes: « The British and American view-points are not always identical. It would be foolish to hide this fact. But it would be even more foolish and narrow-minded to use these occasional tion of Italian workers which assures and defends their bread, their social achievements and their liberty. » (UNN)

ROME, January 7 — Rome will enjoy the first free interchange of news in more than 20 years on January 15 when domestic and world news agencies such as the Associated Press, United Press, Reuter and International News Service, will begin distribution of news directly to Rome newspapers, it was announced today by Rear Admiral Ellery W. Stone, Chief Commissioner of the Allied Commission.

The announcement added that the transfer of news operations in Rome to private interests is the first step in the tranfer of news operations planned for all of liberated Italy in the near future.

World news agencies will be free to sell news to any individual Italian newspaper, and the newspapers in turn will be free to buy any world or domestic news service they wish.

ROME, January 7 — The public debt of Italy today stands at about 600 billion lire, Finance Minister Marcello Soleri said in a broadcast here last night. This figure, the minister added, includes accumulated deficits and deferred annuities to date but does not include debts contracted by the Fascist Republican government, regarding which the Italian government has formulated « formal, ample reserves. »

The minister pointed out that the Italian public debt had risen from three billion lire in 1921 to 405 billion 823 million lire at the time of the first Badoglio government. To this last figure must be added, he said, 21 billion lire in occupation expenses paid the Germans by the Fascist Republicans for the three months of October-December 1943, the transfer of machinery, goods and Bank-of-Italy gold to the north, and the payment of German occupation expenses by the Fascist government for the year 1944.

Soleri said the deficit for the 1944 fiscal year in the 36 provinces of liberated Italy amounted to about 60 billion lire (the difference between expenditures of 73 billion and receipts of 13 billion lire) Of these 73 billion, he added, 39 billion cover expenditures connected with the war of liberation.

Total circulation in Italy, exclusive of issues made by the Fascist Republican government after August 1, 1944, amounts to 233 billion lire, the Finance Minister said, and does not include the 3 billion lire issued monthly by the Allies during a part of 1944.

Soleri said the waste of the national income carried out by the Fascist government through « spectacular public works and war adventures and enterprises » had produced a deficit unheard of in Italian finance.

He concluded:

« The size of the circulation does not preclude the hope of rectifying the situation by the savings of the people, taxes on wealth and the launching of national loans. The reduction in circulation thus obtained, plus Allied co-operation and Italian participation in international economic bodies such as those proposed at Bretton Woods, will permit the stabilization of Italian currency on a solid basis. » (UNN)

LABOR AND ITALIAN ECONOMY

ROME, January 7 — The rebirth of Italian economy can only take place with the aid of Italian labor and with a « new deal » based on the principles of democracy and the right of labor, said Meuccio Ruini, Minister of Public Works and Reconstruction in an address last night at Lecce.

Outlining the extent of destruction in Italy, Ruini said he saw reason for hope in the spirit that animates Patriots and volunteers serving in the army, which must recover its prestige and be worthy of the tradition of the Carso and the Piave.

Speaking of the problems of reconstruction, Ruini said that the rebirth of agriculture and the development of local industries are necessary before these can be achieved. Ruini warned against a « fifth column » which is « seeking to cause a rift between Italy and the Allies ». He asked for a « spirit of collaboration and faith » in the Allies.

Ruini said hope for the democratization of Italy lies in agreement between the middle classes and workers and farmers. (UNN)

BONUS FOR ALLIES' ITALIAN WORKERS

FLORENCE, January 7 — Italian civilians employed by the Allies will receive a cost of living bonus, the Provincial Office announced here today.

This measure, designed to meet the high living costs, is indicative of the interest « the Allies are taking in view of the present abnormal Italian situation » the announcement said. (UNN)

« This day marks an important stage for our nation and the whole Allied struggle. »

General Scobie, in an official announcement said that he was prepared to discuss with ELAS leaders « conditions for a cease-fire, suitable to the changed conditions. » At the same time he announced that the two conditions on which he had, on December 12, offered to call an immediate truce with ELAS for the purpose of negotiation, had been withdrawn due to the changed circumstances.

The announcement recalled the two conditions offered by the British commander-in-chief on December 12. Firstly, ELAS troops should be withdrawn beyond the boundaries of Attica. This condition, the announcement pointed out, « allowed regular ELAS forces to retire behind a certain line but to retain their arms, equipment and formations. »

Secondly, those citizens of Athens who had taken up arms in support of ELAS should hand in their arms. This was « clearly necessary if peaceful conditions were to be restored to Athens with reasonable security, » General Scobie said.

The purpose of these proposals was to spare Athens the miseries of civil conflict and to ensure a period of truce during which the Greeks might negotiate a permanent settlement of outstanding questions, the announcement said.

These proposals had been repeated by General Scobie on three different occasions, the last on January 1, and by Prime Minister Winston Churchill on December 26 during his visit here. « Unfortunately, ELAS leaders never agreed to carry out these purely military conditions, » the announcement said, adding that ELAS leaders « attempted to secure certain prior concessions regarding the very questions for discussion of which it was the purpose of the truce to provide a calm atmosphere. »

The announcement continued: « Meanwhile many things have taken place during the recent weeks which make the original terms of the truce no longer applicable.

British civilians as hostages

« A considerable number of prisoners of war have been taken belonging to both ELAS forces on the one hand and regular Greek and British forces on the other.

« Despite repeated requests by General Scobie and the International Red Cross, ELAS authorities have refused to give permission for the International Red Cross to visit prisoners' camps or give any assurance that they are being conducted according to recognized conventions. It is clear that any truce must contain conditions dealing with the whole question of prisoners.

« Moreover, ELAS have taken a large number of Greek civilians, and some British civilians, as hostages and are continuing to do so. The taking of civilian hostages is wholly contrary to the rules of civilized warfare. It would be intolerable if a truce did not cover this situation. »

General Scobie's announcement said that the appointment of the Archbishop of Athens as Regent and the formation of a new government had proved groundless « the two alleged fears of ELAS: that of foreign interference to impose a monarchy; and that of a coup d'etat by reactionary forces. »

Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean and Harold Macmillan, British Minister Resident in the Mediterranean, returned here yesterday and had conferences with General Scobie, Archbishop Damaskinos and Premier Plastiras.

Premier Plastiras told a press conference yesterday that he was confident that with Attica cleared, order would be restored to all of Greece within a few weeks, adding « I hope the rebellion will end with the rebels laying down their arms. »

Plastiras said that he took the portfolios of war, navy and air in addition to the premiership because «the situation in Greece is purely military.»

Plastiras said: «If the rebels respond to my invitation to lay down their arms, trusting my word that I will not allow the establishment of a dictatorship, then my job as war minister will be confined to the creation of a first-class National Army. If not, then I will naturally be compelled to head the clearing of the situation by force.»

Meanwhile, since the capital has been cleared of ELAS insurgents, the issue of food has been greatly increased, the BBC correspondent said today.

The correspondent added that the rebel forces who appear to have pulled out of the City last Wednesday night were making for the hills to the north, east and west. British armored columns were pursuing the enemy and had already reached some hills four miles from here. Other British troops were continuing to fan out from the City. The suburbs were still being searched for arms. He said that it was not known whether the ELAS supporters inside the capital had left with their troops or had simply stopped fighting.

At the same time, Athens Radio had warned the people that they should continue to take all necessary precautions as the fighting in Greece had not ended. (OWI-BBC)

ATHENS FREE OF ELAS INSURGENTS

ATHENS, January 7 — The virtual clearing of Athens and the Piraeus has now been achieved, General Scobie, said in a letter today to Greek Regent Archbishop Damaskinos.

The letter said: «It is my happy duty to inform you that Athens and the Piraeus are now virtually free of the insurgent forces, and that the citizens of this area may take advantage of this as soon as possible to proceed about their peaceful and lawful occasion.»

The Regent replied expressing his «deep comfort that the citizens may now, undisturbed and free, proceed about their lawful tasks» and his appreciation of General Scobie's «unpleasant and painful task.» The Archbishop added:

COMPOSITION OF GREEK CABINET

ROME, January 7 — It was pointed out by Greek authoritative circles today that, contrary to information published in the press, only two of the 12 members of the newly-formed Greek cabinet come from families which may be called «prominent» and these two may be so described only because of outstanding services rendered to their country, but whose traditions far from being «rightist» are well known as having always been democratic and liberal. They are Capt. Th. Kountouriotis, son of the late Admiral P. Kountouriotis who was a member of the revolutionary triumvirate headed by Venizelos in 1917, when the latter led Greece on the side of the Allies into the last war, and M. G. Melas, who joined the same national movement at Salonika as a diplomatic official. Both of them belong to the left wing of the Liberal Party and have repeatedly given evidence of their faith in democracy. (UNN)

U. S. PRESS SUPPORTS ROOSEVELT MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, January 7 — Leading American papers here and in New York today hailed President Roosevelt's message to Congress for its insistence on enactment of stronger national service legislation in the United States.

The New York Times said: «We hope and believe that a new Congress which has met at a critical moment in the war will give its prompt endorsement to the proposal made yesterday by President Roosevelt for the adoption of a national war service act. We believe that such a measure would be useful in solving the problems of manpower.

«The prompt adoption of a national war service act would be equal to the dispatch of a whole new army to the western battlefront. It would give fresh faith and spirit to our Allies. Above all, it would say to our own fighting men on the battlefronts that they are really going to be backed up by the full strength of this nation.

«There cannot be much room for doubt, at this late date, that we owe it to our troops abroad to impose upon the whole adult population of this country the same binding, legal obligation to help win this war which has hitherto rested exclusively on young men of draft age.»

The New York Herald Tribune said: «The tone of his message on the state of the nation was calmly confident, but not jaunty; his review of the strategy of the war to date and Allied achievements therein was comprehensive and persuasive, his words on the general political problem of the Allies were wise and he faced the home-front difficulties squarely.

«Most important and most concrete of the President's contributions in this message was his renewed recommendations that Congress enact National Service Legislation. He put the case for such legislations — both from the practical standpoint of insuring continued production at a high level and because of the effect upon the morale of American service men and the enemy — very strongly.

«In the field of diplomatic action, the President reaffirmed the American faith in a world system which shall use power without being used by 'power politics'. In his warnings against the dangers of perfectionism, Mr. Roosevelt made ample allowance for difficulties and disappointments, for error and the possibility of correcting error.»

Today's Post said the speech «must be read against the sobering background of the news from Europe. The President did not dwell at length on the reverses and losses our forces have suffered in France, but he did emphasize the fact that we have reached the most crucial phase of the war. That fact is underlined by his compelling recommendations for acceleration of the war effort on the home

The President has joined the army and navy in endorsing strongly National Service legislation.»

In London, the Sunday Express, printed the full text of the message and commented that it «laid down firmly the vital principle of winning both the war and the peace.» Quoting his statement that «We propose to stand together with the United Nations as an association not of government but of people,» the paper added: «Thus, one of the great triumvirate blows away like so much froth the petty bickerings which had begun to hinder us. Together we can stem all assaults and hew Germany in pieces. Together we can lay on sure foundations a peace which may be worth the lives of men, the tears of women, and the endurance of people.»

Reuter's diplomatic correspondent said the President «stands for an international policy based on and concordant with the ideals and principles embodied in the Atlantic Charter, as opposed to a policy of expediency.

«All together, the declaration on foreign policy is bound to impress British readers for its breadth of view as for its firmness of tone. His observations are certain to be carefully studied and are likely to be well received, indeed widely welcomed in London. This is effectively plain speaking for which there has been a call on both sides of the Atlantic.» (OWI-Reuter)

NEW PACT STOPS DOUBLE TAXATION

PARIS, January 7 — France's Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and U.S. Ambassador to France Jefferson Caffery yesterday signed an agreement which reaffirms that citizens of both countries will be guarded against double taxation.

The agreement, existing since 1939, provides that citizens of either country living in the other country will be treated in the same way as inhabitants and will be taxed only in the country where they follow their profession.

The two countries also pledged mutual aid in prosecuting tax evasions and the mutual exchange of information between the governments of both countries regarding taxation matters. (OWI)

NAZI OFFICIALS FLEE FROM VIENNA

SOFIA, January 7 — Austrians were called upon yesterday to help in the liberation of their country through the sabotage of German transport and industry.

The appeal, issued over the Sofia radio by a group of Austrians in Bulgaria, said: Austrians, do you realize that Budapest's tragedy is a warning? The same must not happen to Vienna.

Sabotage the fortification works and armament enterprises. Support foreign workers — they are our friends. Help them flee, and if you can bear arms, contact the armed resistance groups.»

Meanwhile, further reports reached London today revealing Nazi anxiety over the approach of the Red Army to the frontiers of Austria, and growing Austrian opposition to German defensive measures.

One Swedish newspaper reported on Friday that the evacuation of Vienna and other Austrian frontier areas began early in December, with Reich Germans and Nazi officials the first to leave.

All Austrian roads are crowded with civilians forced to leave by Party leaders, the reports said, adding that the rough treatment these people are receiving from the authorities, particularly the SS, is resulting in increased bitterness and resistance.

Inscriptions are nightly written on the walls of all Austrian towns, the reports said. Typical of the slogans are: «We may thank the Fuehrer for the destruction of our Fatherland,» and «One hundred people killed to let the Fuehrer live another month.» (OWI)

MARSEILLES COMING TO LIFE AGAIN

PARIS, January 7 — Marseilles, the second largest city and the first port of France, is slowly emerging from the dust, destruction and debris left by the Germans and by the August liberation, a Chicago Daily News correspondent said in a dispatch from here yesterday.

The dispatch added: «The port which the Germans did everything in their power to render useless serves as a supply base for the American 7th Army and, in addition, for French imports from African territories.

«At first when driving into Marseilles the city appears little changed. Here and there are shelled houses, tokens of a fought-over city. The Cannebiere, which Marseillesis consider more beautiful than Paris' Champs Elysees, is relatively untouched.

«The old port section is a gigantic heap of rubble, the result of German dynamiting two years ago.

We have made small gains north of the St. Hubert-Bastogne road two miles east of St. Hubert and have reached Tillet. Two miles southeast of Tillet our artillery broke up a counter-attack by enemy infantry.

Northeast of Bastogne an enemy counter-attack with eight tanks and an estimated battalion of infantry was broken up by fire from our tanks and artillery just north of Mageret. Probing activity by enemy tanks and infantry continues along the east side of the Bastogne bulge, particularly in the Mageret area.

South of Wiltz our troops have crossed the Sure River, one and a half miles northeast of Eschdorf and have cleared Goesdorf and Dahl.

Our units have made progress toward reducing the enemy salient southeast of Bitsche against strong enemy resistance.

We have made gains of more than 1,000 yards in an attack north of Reipertsweiler near the southernmost point of the salient.

Remaining elements of the enemy force which infiltrated Wingen are surrounded.

On the west bank of the Rhine, enemy units which crossed the river on Thursday were mopped up at all points of the penetration except at Gamsheim where stubborn opposition still was being met.

Heavy bombers in great strength with a strong fighter escort attacked bridges across the Rhine at Cologne and Bonn, railway marshalling yards at Cologne, Coblenz, and Ludwigshafen and other railway yards and junctions behind the battle areas.

Some of the escorting fighters strafed railway transport between Stuttgart and Wurzburg and an airfield near Bebelsdorf. Thirteen enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground. Weather restricted air operations over the battle zones yesterday.

Railway transport in the Zutphen area between Arnhem and Roermond was attacked by rocket-firing fighters, and fighter-bombers also struck at enemy troop quarters at Vianen, south of Utrecht. Other fighter-bombers hit a radio station at Kalverdijk, south of Den Helder.

Medium bombers struck at a highway bridge crossing the Prum River at Prum.

From these operations seven heavy bombers and 11 fighters are missing.

Early last night heavy bombers, again in great strength, were over Germany with the important railway and industrial center of Hanau as the main objective. (Reuter)

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Air operations yesterday were severely hampered by bad weather. Fighter and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force successfully attacked enemy communications, supply dumps, enemy-occupied buildings, oil and gas tanks, and shipping in northwest Italy. Hits were scored on an aircraft carrier at Genoa, and on a motor vessel at Imperia, in the Italian Riviera.

On the night of January 5-6, light bombers flew armed reconnaissances over the battle areas of northeast Italy, and in the region of the northeast Po Valley. Enemy transport, roads, and a supply dump were attacked.

Two of our aircraft are missing from these operations.

MAAF flew under 200 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

The clearing of the outskirts and the suburbs of Athens-Piraeus is proceeding without opposition.

British mobile columns moved out this morning to Kaflsfia and Eleusis, some 15 miles northeast and northwest of Athens respectively. Only slight opposition was encountered and a few prisoners were taken.

Elsewhere in Greece the situation remains unchanged. (PRO)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, January 7 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in the area of Budapest, our troops fought engagements to clear the enemy from the city and occupied 110 blocks.

Northwest and west of Budapest, our troops were beating on enemy attacks of large tank and infantry forces, which attempted to break through to Budapest in spite of heavy losses. After stubborn fighting, our troops abandoned the town of Esztergom.

On the northern bank of the Danube, north of Esztergom, our troops overwhelmed enemy resistance, advanced over 20 kilometers to the west from Hron river, and occupied the large populated localities of Kamengin, Libak, Beia, Mutla, Kibelkut, Batrovketi, Guch, Karva and Matar. In this area, during January 6, our troops captured 1,300 soldiers and officers of the enemy, and seized 54 tanks and 28 guns.

On other sectors of the front, scout patrolling and, at several sectors, fighting of local importance took place.

During January 6, our troops damaged or destroyed, on all fronts, a total of 116 German tanks, including 88 tanks northwest of Budapest.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 52 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 7 — Today's communique:

Following violent enemy attacks, Patriots suffered some losses in Emilia. Due to bad winter conditions and the scarcity of food supplies, other Patriot formations have been forced to break up into small groups until conditions improve. Some groups continue their guerrilla operations with efficiency. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FROM THE FUEHRERS HEADQUARTERS, January 7 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Near Wanssum in eastern Holland, our troops, during the past days, formed a bridgehead across the Meuse and crushed all counter-attacks by the 3rd British Division which suffered heavy losses.

In the northern Ardennes, the Americans under the impression of their heavy losses suffered on the previous days reduced their attacks yesterday.

In the Bastogne region, our formations succeeded in breaking further strong-points out of the enemy front bulge around the city despite stubborn enemy defence.

Fighting in Lorraine and Alsace scored new successes for our troops. Counter-attacks by American formations which meanwhile had been brought up were frustrated northwest of Rohrbach as well as at the valley exits of the Lower Vosges.

At Philippsburg, a fortification of the Maginot Line with its entire American garrison capitulated.

In the Rhine plane, north of Hagenau Forest, our troops liberated numerous localities and consolidated their bridgehead, north of Strasbourg, despite enemy counter-attacks.

In the West, 73 enemy tanks were shot up, yesterday, and numerous guns and anti-tank weapons were captured.

Liège and Antwerp are subjected to our long-range fire.

The area of Greater London is being continuously subjected to our retaliatory fire.

Italy:

In central Italy, the British, yesterday, carried out isolated unsuccessful thrusts in Romagna. Heavy fighting continues between Lake Comacchio and the Adriatic coast.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, the gallant garrison of Budapest warded off violent Bolshevist attacks. North of the Danube, the enemy with strong forces launced an attack on the Gran front. The majority of attacks were checked by our fire. In bitter fighting for sealing off a deep penetration immediately north of the Danube, 23 enemy tanks were knocked

Western Front: In a dispatch from Rundstedt's headquarters Guenther Weber, the Transocean correspondent, declared that the Allied counter-ouensive against the German salient has failed in so far as « it did not succeed in bringing about a quick link-up between the northern and southern fighting groups, nor the isolation of the German spearhead. » On the other hand, « the Germans », continued Weber, « achieved their most important goal by having the initiative firmly in their hands. »

DNB reported « strong American counter-pressure » using fresh tank forces on the Saar front, as well as in the Lower Vosges, but it is claimed that they could not achieve any important changes. The Germans are said to have captured a fort in the Maginot line, the American garrison having surrendered after two days of encirclement. North of Strasbourg the Americans were unable to eliminate the German bridgehead at Gamsheim, according to DNB.

Budapest: « After two weeks of fierce fighting... the inner city of the Hungarian capital still lies within the protection of the outer defence ring... », writes Karl Bluecher, Transocean correspondent. From the north, east and south, he says, fighting is still raging in the suburbs; only in the southwest « are the Soviet troops able to advance along the western bank of the Danube close to the suburb of Csepel. For that reason the important railway bridge across the Danube has been blown up... »

Roosevelt's Message: DNB quoted « Berlin political circles » declaring that the message to Congress was mainly intended to dispel « the impression of discord as regards the conduct of war and war aims in the Allied camp. » The same source claimed that « the message showed clearly the existence of Allied unity on one point only, that the backbone of Germany must be broken. In the southern border district of Slovakia, the Bolsheviks continued their attacks with locally concentrated forces, particularly near Pucanec, Blauenstein and Lucenec. They scored no noteworthy successes.

In Courland, our troops broke deeply into the enemy main battlefield, north of Doblen. Fighting there is in full swing.

Air:

American bombers which yesterday continued their terror attacks against western Germany and the Rhine-Main region, dropped bombs particularly on the center of the cities of Mannheim and Worms. In the evening hours, the British hit chiefly the residential quarters of Hanau and Neuss. Air-defence forces brought down 25 Anglo-American planes mostly four-engined bombers.

Sea:

In the battle against the enemy supply traffic, our submarines in the first days of January sank five ships totalling 36,400 tons, as well as five destroyers and escort vessels. Another steamer was torpedoed. Ships sunk included one large troop transport of 11,000 tons which was sunk off Cherbourg. (Radio Berlin)

ROOSEVELT ON « ULTIMATE VICTORY »: WARNS LOSSES WILL BE HEAVY

WASHINGTON, January 6 — President Roosevelt said today in his « State of the Union » message to Congress that despite a setback for the Allied armies on the Western Front at the end of 1944, there is no question of ultimate victory over Germany and Japan.

He said that the war must be and is being waged « with the greatest and most persistent intensity » and that there is « no question of cost; our losses will be heavy. »

The Germans have sustained « considerable losses », the President said, while failing to obtain their objective in the German enemies have sustained considerable losses while failing to obtain their objectives. The speed with which we recovered from this savage attack was possible because we have our Supreme Commander in complete control of all Allied armies in France. General Eisenhower faced this period of trial with admirable calm and resolution and with steadily increasing success. He has my complete confidence.

« Further desperate attempts may well be made to break our lines, to slow our progress. We must never make the mistake of assuming the Germans are beaten until the last Nazi has surrendered.

« I would express most serious warning against the poisonous effect of enemy propaganda. The wedge the Germans attempted to drive in western Europe is less dangerous in actual terms of winning the war than the wedges they continually are attempting to drive between ourselves and our Allies.

« In Europe, we will resume the attack and despite temporary setbacks here or there, we shall continue to attack relentlessly until Germany is completely defeated, » he asserted. « Always, from the very day we were attacked, it was right militarily, as well as morally, to reject arguments of those short-sighted people who would have had us throw Britain and Russia to the Nazi wolves and concentrate against the Japanese.

ROOSEVELT ON «ULTIMATE VICTORY»: WARNS LOSSES WILL BE HEAVY

WASHINGTON, January 6 — President Roosevelt said today in his «State of the Union» message to Congress that despite a setback for the Allied armies on the Western Front at the end of 1944, there is no question of ultimate victory over Germany and Japan.

He said that the war must be and is being waged «with the greatest and most persistent intensity» and that there is «no question of cost; our losses will be heavy.»

The Germans have sustained «considerable losses», the President said, while failing to obtain their objective in the Rundstedt counter-offensive, and that General Eisenhower has his full confidence.

There must be no assumption that the Germans are beaten until the last Nazi has surrendered, and the President gave «a most serious warning» against enemy propagandn designed to create a rift among the United Nations.

Discussing foreign policy, Mr. Roosevelt said that 1945 «can and must see the substantial beginning of an organization for world peace» and that the U. S. will stand together with the United Nations «not for war alone but for victory for which war is fought.»

«This new year can be the greatest achievement in human history. The new year can see the final ending of the Nazi-Fascist reign of terror in Europe as well as the closing-in of the forces of retribution about the center of the malignant power of imperialistic Japan.»

Declaring that «everything we have is at stake,» President Roosevelt said: «We and our Allies will go on fighting together to ultimate victory.» He added: «It is not only common danger which unites us but common hope. Ours is an association not of governments but of peoples — and the peoples' hope is of peace.

«We have seen a year marked on the whole by substantial progress toward victory even though the year ended with a setback for our armies,» he continued. «Our last Nazi has surrendered.

«I would express most serious warning against the poisonous effect of enemy propaganda. The wedge the Germans attempted to drive in western Europe is less dangerous in actual terms of winning the war than the wedges they continually are attempting to drive between ourselves and our Allies.

Mr. Roosevelt reported that the Germans recently have increased their U-boat activities and they may succeed in improving their submarines and crews.

«The battle of the Atlantic demands eternal vigilance,» he said.

The President spoke of the Italian front and emphasized that the strategic value of Allied operations there have

LATE BULLETIN

1ST ARMY STILL ADVANCING

LONDON, January 6 — First Army troops are within a few hundred yards of the St. Vith-La Roche road, one of two major supply routes to German forces at the western end of the Ardennes salient, the BBC reported late tonight.

A late Reuter dispatch said that German units which crossed the Rhine near Strasbourg have been pushed out of five villages which they had occupied on the main Strasbourg-Selz highway. (BBC-Reuter) been under-rated; that the Allied offensive will continue. Outlining the war in the Pacific, he described Allied operations as « the fastest-moving offensive in the history of modern warfare. »

« The place of the Italian front in the strategic conduct of the war has been obscured and under-rated, » Mr. Roosevelt explained. « What the Allied forces in Italy are doing is well considered a part of our strategy in Europe.

« The greatest tribute that can be paid to the courage and fighting ability of these splendid soldiers in Italy is to point out that, although their strength is about equal to that of the Germans, the Allies have been continuously on the offensive. The offensive in Italy will continue. »

Invitation to Jap Navy

In the Pacific theater of operations, Mr. Roosevelt said Japan has been driven back more than 3,000 miles, and he cited the blow Japan will suffer by liberation of the Philippines, by being cut off from her conquest of the East Indies.

Discussing the defeat of a large part of the Japanese fleet in Philippine waters virtually simultaneously with the successful Allied landings on Leyte, the President invited the Japanese Navy to come out and fight again.

« Not until last October were we really able to engage the major portion of the Japanese Navy in combat, » he said. « That engagement was the heaviest blow ever struck against Japanese seapower. Our Navy looks forward to any opportunity which the lords of the Japanese Navy will give us to fight them again. »

Mr. Roosevelt continued: « The history of generalship in this war has been a history of teamwork and co-ordination of skill and daring. »

The President disclosed that the invasion of Leyte Island was a result of a change in plans completed within 24 hours. He said that when ships sailed to Philippine waters in September the plan was to take three other islands.

On China, the President said: « Despite almost insuperable difficulties, we increased our aid to China in 1944. By the end of the year the Air Transport Command was carrying tonnage supplies three times as great as a year ago and much more, monthly, than the Burma Road ever delivered. The Burma campaigns have involved incredible hardship and demanded exceptional fortitude and determination. »

On the home front, Mr. Roosevelt called for increased production, stating: « As we continue into decisive phases of the war, munitions we expend will mount daily. »

The President said that in October, the Army was shipping more men to Europe than in any previous month of the war.

On France, Mr. Roosevelt said: « The rise of France is one of the year's most heartening events. » He said that her liberation means that her great influence « will again be available in meeting the problems of peace. »

Mr. Roosevelt continued: « We fully realize France's vital interest in a lasting solution of the German problem and the contribution which she can make in achieving international security. »

In one field of foreign policy the President made a direct commitment. America, he said, shall not hesitate to use its influence now « to secure so far as is humanly possible the fulfillment of the principles of the Atlantic Charter. »

He went on: « We have not shrunk from the military responsibilities brought on by this war. We cannot and will not shrink from the political responsibilities which follow in the wake of battle. »

The President said he would not be frank if he did not admit concern about many situations, « the Greek and Polish,

While the war continues, the President said, the United Nations will go forward in creating an integrated world security system. « The aroused conscience of humanity will not permit failure in this supreme endeavor, » he said.

Discussing new armament, the President said that the Army has developed a new tank with a gun more powerful than any yet mounted on a fast vehicle. Thousands will be needed in 1945, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt called again for a National Service Act, which he said was « the most efficient and democratic way of ensuring full war production. » He then asked that a National Service Act be enacted « at the earliest possible moment. »

Referring again to foreign policy, Mr. Roosevelt said: « The nearer we come to vanquishing our enemies, the more we inevitably become conscious of the differences among the victors. We must not let those differences divide us or blind us to our more important common and continuing interests in winning the war and building peace. »

The President said that in the future world « the misuse of power as implied in the term 'power politics' must not be the controlling factor in international relations. » He added:

« In a democratic world, power must be linked with responsibility to defend and justify itself within the framework of general good. Perfectionism, no less than isolationism, imperialism or power politics may obstruct the paths to international peace. »

Continuing on the situation in Europe, Mr. Roosevelt said: « It is our purpose to help peace-loving peoples in Europe to live together as good neighbors and recognize common interests, not nurse traditional grievances against one another. But we must not permit any specific immediate problems of adjustment to delay establishment of permanent machinery for maintenance of peace.

« The United Nations must now join together to make secure the independence and freedom of all peace-loving states, so that never again shall tyranny be able to divide and conquer. An atmosphere of friendship and mutual understanding and determination finds that the ground of common understanding which surrounded the conversations at Dumbarton Oaks gives us reason to hope that future discussions will succeed in developing a democratic and fully integrated world security system toward which those preparatory conversations were directed.

« We and other United Nations are going forward with vigor and resolution in our efforts to create such a system by providing for it strong and flexible institutions of joint and cooperative action.

On future trade and commerce, the President said: « We Americans are opposed to restrictions which distort or impair commerce, transit and trade. We have house-cleaning of our own to do in this regard. But it is our hope that trade, commerce and access to material and markets may be freer after this war than ever before in history. »

The President said the United States must have military training after the war as « an essential factor in maintaining peace. » An enduring peace cannot be maintained, he said, without an America which is strong in the social and economic sense as well as in the military.

« In the United States, » he said, « we must make sure that private enterprise works on the basis of initiative and vigorous competition without the stifling presence of monopolies and cartels. »

The President compared conditions in liberated countries with the conditions in early American history. He said: « We ourselves, like all peoples who have gone through the difficult process of liberation and adjustment, know of our own experience how great the difficulties can be. We know that they are not difficulties peculiar to any continent or any nation. Our own Revolutionary War left behind it difficulties we worked out for ourselves, as the peoples of the liberated areas of Europe, faced with complex problems of adjustment, will work out their difficulties for themselves. »

In concluding, the President said: « We Americans of

«But these situations are not as simple to deal with as some spokesmen — whose sincerity I do not question — would have us believe. We have obligations not necessarily legal to the exiled governments, to the underground leaders and to our major Allies, who came much nearer the shadow than we did. We and our Allies have declared that it is our purpose to respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live and to see sovereign rights and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them. But with internal dissension, with many citizens of liberated countries still prisoners of war or forced to labor in Germany, it is difficult to guess the kind of self-government the people really want.»

World Security System

The President went on to say that during the interim period this country and the Allies have a duty «to use our influence to the end that no temporary or provisional authorities in the liberated countries block the eventual exercise of the people's right freely to choose the government and institutions under which they are to live.»

The task, he said, is «not helped by stubborn partisanship by opposing internal factions.»

ROOSEVELT'S TRIBUTE TO 5TH, 8TH ARMIES

WASHINGTON, January 6 — President Roosevelt took occasion to correct misconceptions about the importance of the Italian Front in his annual «State of The Union» message to Congress today.

The President pointed out that the tremendous operations in western Europe have overshadowed in the public mind the less spectacular but vitally important Italian Front.

He said: «Its place in the strategic conduct of the war in Europe has been obscured and—by some people—unfortunately underrated. It is quite important that any misconception on that score be corrected. What the Allied forces in Italy are doing is a well considered part of our strategy in Europe now aimed at only one objective—the total defeat of the Germans. These valiant forces in Italy are continuing to keep a substantial portion of the German army under constant pressure—including some 20 first-line German divisions and the necessary supply, transport and replacement troops—all of which our enemy need so badly elsewhere.

Over the very difficult terrain and through adverse weather conditions, our 5th Army and the British 8th Army—reinforced by units from other United Nations, including a brave and well-equipped unit of the Brazilian army—have in the past year pushed north through bloody Cassino and the Anzio beachhead and through Rome until now they occupy a height overlooking the valley of the Po.

"The greatest tribute which can be paid to the courage and fighting ability of these splendid soldiers in Italy is to point out that although their strength is about equal to that of the Germans they oppose, the Allies have been continually on the offensive. The offensive will continue."

"The American people—and every soldier now fighting in the Apennines—should remember that the Italian Front has not lost any of the importance which it had in the days when it was the only Allied Front in Europe."

NORTHERN ALLIED ARMIES GAIN GROUND

LONDON, January 6 — British and American armies pushing their way forward against the northern flank of the German salient gained vital ground today as the enemy offensive on the 7th Army sector, 150 miles to the south, threatened serious penetrations into Allied positions.

Gains of the American 1st and British 2nd Army troops driving against the enemy's right flank inside Belgium were measured in a few thousand yards. All reports stressed that the main German fortifications have been reached and that progress will be slow as the enemy troops take advantage of the weather and terrain.

Since the start of the drive, the Allies have advanced an average of four miles on a 21-mile front. They now stand between two and three miles from the Laroche-Vielsalm highway, the major enemy supply route, but ahead of them is dense forest land trickly sown with mines and protected with entrenched enemy guns and tanks. The Allied line, east to west, runs from Bergeval to Arbrefontaine, Lierneux, Odeigne, the Bois de Tave and is anchored at Rendeux, on the west, where it branches north to the March-Hotton highway.

The advancing line is being resisted by the Germans with all the power left to the Wehrmacht. A late report from Reuter said that fresh enemy troops are being thrown into the battle, and estimated that 30 German divisions are now committed to defend the salient. There are no indications that the enemy is planning a withdrawal or abandonment of the gains inside Belgium.

Substantiating that view were late reports of a new drive against British troops holding the western tip of the salient in the vicinity of Rochefort. The reports said that the counter-blow had again given the Germans Bure, four miles south of Rochefort, which was taken by the Allies earlier in the week.

The British were also encountering bitter resistance in their push down from Marche, to the northwest, but have so far succeeded in making a 1,500-yard advance.

At the northeastern wing of the salient, American troops were reported to have battered their way ahead from Stavelot, crossed the Ambleve River to the south, and reached the banks of the Salm River. These units are estimated to have gained six miles in their drive during the past few days.

In Luxembourg, the Americans crossed the Sure River, established a bridgehead in force on the northern bank and pushed into the town of Goesdorf, three and a half miles southwest of Wiltz, already menaced by American troops, but press reports declared tonight that the important supply route between Sarreguemines and Hagenau has been cut.

Saarunion is under enemy artillery fire tonight, Reuter reported. A SHAEF appraisal today put German casualties inside the Belgium salient at 100,000 so far. Allied casualties have been far below this figure, it was said, and they were described as not particularly high compared with the scale of action involved.

RAF HITS GERMANY IN GREAT STRENGTH

LONDON, January 6 — Aircraft of the RAF Bomber Command were over Germany tonight in great strength, dropping a great weight of bombs, it was officially announced. Hanau, an important railway and industrial center, 10 miles east of Frankfurt-on-Main was the chief objective.

More than 800 heavy bombers of the 8th USAAF, escorted by nearly 600 fighters, today attacked targets in the Reich for the 14th time in 15 days.

Most of the targets were in western Germany. Three road and rail bridges across the River Rhine at Cologne and Bonn were bombed. Other targets attacked included several marshalling yards and communication centers in western Germany.

During last night, more than 1,500 Lancasters, Halifaxes and Mosquitos of RAF Bomber Command dropped over 5,000 tons of bombs during five separate assaults against targets in the Reich. Hannover and Berlin each received two visits from the RAF planes, and German troop concentrations in and around Houffalize in the Ardennes salient, 10 miles northeast of Bastogne, were heavily attacked.

The Luftwaffe in a desperate attempt to prevent or minimize the assault on Hanover put up every available night fighter in their futile effort, the Air Ministry said today.

In the first attack just before 1930 hours, the enemy night fighters were out over a great part of the route and the target itself. Despite the combined force of enemy fighters and anti-aircraft defenses, the Lancasters and Halifaxes set the target ablaze with fires visible 200 miles away.

The second attack, some 90 minutes later, also was met by night fighters in strength, but the enemy interceptors were less successful that during the earlier attack, and more fires were started which completely blotted out the city.

Both assaults on Berlin were made by squadrons of Mosquitos for the second successive night. The attacks were well-concentrated and many 4,000-pound blockbusters were dropped.

Ten enemy aircraft were destroyed during the night. Thirty-three Bomber Command aircraft failed to return and three RAF Fighter Command planes were lost.

8TH ARMY CANADIANS BREAK-THROUGH

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 6 — Canadian tanks and infantry supported by aircraft of the Desert Air Force, have penetrated the German defenses northwest of Ravenna, it was announced here today.

The Germans were driven eastward along the shores of the Comacchio lagoon to within a few miles of the sea. Harried from the air and confused by the Canadian breakthrough, the Germans evacuated their strongholds at Sant'Alberto and scattered. Today Canadian leading elements were reported here to have reached a point three miles beyond Sant'Alberto on the road leading round the lagoon.

7th Army Pulled Back

Third Army forces, opposed by an estimated 10 divisions, held their positions except at one point, Michamps, two miles northeast of Bastogne. A withdrawal from the village was announced today by SHAEF which said the troops established new positions on higher ground to the south. Eight miles to the west of Bastogne, Tillet was cleared. A German attempt to drive a spearhead into the town was thrown back in bitter fighting.

Enemy forces which have driven 7th Army troops back in the Saar and Palatinate sectors, east and southeast of Saargemund on a 75-mile front, broadened their offensive to threaten Allied positions in northern Alsace, between Wissenbourg and the Rhine. The crossing of the Rhine on Thursday night near Gamsheim, only 11 miles north of Strasbourg, was made in battalion strength, Reuter said tonight. The bridgehead represents a threat to 7th Army troops to the north who have pulled back from their positions inside Germany to a new line just above the Hagenau Forest. The German landing is south of this new line.

The enemy salient southeast of Bitsch is being held but there is heavy fighting in the area. The spearhead of the salient, at Wingen, 12 miles east of Saarunion on the road leading to Hagenau, was driven back, SHAEF said today.

Today Canadian leading elements were reported here to have reached a point three miles beyond Sant'Alberto on the road leading round the lagoon.

In the area between the Canale Naviglio and the Senio river south of Coignola, British infantry and armor cleared the remnants of the German salient, taking 300 prisoners. Only in the area east of Alfonsine does the enemy retain positions on the other side of the river, and here the salient is only about 1,000 yards in depth. The positions follow the line of the Fosso Vecchio, a drainage ditch which runs parallel to the river.

The German force which formerly harrassed the 8th Army flank at Alfonsine have now only one contact route with the main enemy body, and that lies round the northern shore of the Comacchio lagoon.

The 5th Army celebrated its second anniversary since its formation in North Africa yesterday in patrols along the snow-covered line from the west coast to the area south of Imola. Several patrol clashes with the enemy are reported.

A small German patrol which attempted to penetrate the 5th Army positions north of Livergnano was driven back.

BAD WEATHER LIMITS MAAF SORTIES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 6 — Bad weather yesterday reduced operations of the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces to one-quarter of its full strength, it was reported here today.

Despite bad weather, Tactical Air Force fighter-bombers carried out 219 sorties in close-support operations against enemy forces northwest of Ravenna, and against strongpoints along the Senio River line from south of Imola to near Alfonsine.

Fighters of the 15th USAAF and medium and heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force switched to daylight operation and carried out coordinated attacks against two rail bridges near Doboj in Yugoslavia. Balkan Air Force planes carried out attacks on enemy transport in Yugoslavia and as far north as Vienna, and attacked enemy installations on the Isle of Lussin, in the Dalmatian chain. (PRO)

REDS RING BUDAPEST, THROW BACK ATTACK

MOSCOW, January 6 — Another German bid to relieve the trapped garrison in Budapest from the northwest has failed, correspondents report today.

Throwing in a large tank force, officially estimated at 300 tanks, supported by waves of infantry, the Nazis made only isolated penetrations, which were soon wiped out by the Russian troops. Tonight's Soviet communique reported the destruction of 65 tanks in this sector.

The Germans had committed fresh armored troops from divisions recently transferred to the Hungarian front, including the SS (Elite Guard) Death's Head and Viking tank divisions, in their vain attempt to drive through to the Hungarian capital.

Soviet planes operated in direct support of the ground troops, as well as maintaining an hour-by-hour pounding of the German rear to keep more reinforcements from reaching the attacking Germans.

Meanwhile, in beleaguered Budapest, the annihilation of the German and Hungarian garrison continued. Tonight's communique reported the clearing of another 175 blocks of the city.

Typical of the many battles raging in Budapest was the bitter fighting near the Royal Opera House. The Germans had sandbagged the building, which was bristling with automatic weapons. They had set up machine guns and mortars on the bases of statues in the square.

As the Soviet troops stormed the seven-foot barricade and broke into the Nazi positions, the Germans showered grenades from the windows.

On other sectors of the Eastern Front, the communique reported reconnoissance activity. (Reuter - OWI)

JAPS RECAPTURE KEY TOWN ON BURMA ROAD

CHUNGKING, January 6 — A spokesman at Major Gen. Wedemeyer's headquarters here today said that the Japanese have recaptured the Burma Road town of Wanting the capture of which by Chinese troops on Wednesday was announced by the Chinese High Command. Wanting is virtually the last stronghold preventing the re-opening of the Burma Road.

Chinese forces are expected to assume the initiative « in immediate future », an American staff officer said here today.

Brig. Gen. Mervin E. Gross, assistant chief of staff for plans, said that the Chinese now « are in a position to offer much graver resistance than ever before » to the Japanese and predicted that the new Ledo-Burma Road will be in operation soon.

The recapture of Wanting has direct bearing on opening the new supply line, Gross said.

Admiral Nimitz's communique revealed also that another Pacific Fleet task force yesterday bombarded Japanese installations at Chichi Jima and Hara Jima in the Bonin Islands.

The shelling was concentrated on facilities around a harbor on Chichi Jima and on other targets in Okimura town and Higashi harbor on Haha Jima. Fires were started in Okimura town and an enemy cargo ship was sunk west of Haha Jima.

The U.S. task force suffered only minor damage from retaliatory shore battery fire. Throughout the attacks, only one enemy fighter was seen.

A press correspondent aboard Admiral MacCain's carrier-force flagship off Formosa added that the China coast was attacked for the first time in the Pacific war by U.S. carrier-based planes which struck at Huchow more than 6,000-miles west of the United States.

China-based Superfortresses, striking again in daylight, bombarded industrial targets on Kyushu, the southernmost Japanese island, the U.S. War Department has announced.

An aircraft factory and other industrial and military targets were attacked. One Superfortress did not return.

Meanwhile, medium bombers and fighter-bombers continued their attacks against the southern part of Luzon, the largest Philippine island, General MacArthur's communique announced tonight.

Concentrating their attacks against the railway system, the American planes smashed over 100 freight cars and destroyed or damaged three important railway bridges. (OWI - Reuter - ABSIE)

YUGOSLAVS ROUT ENEMY COLUMNS

LONDON, January 6 — Yugoslav troops fighting in Slovenia routed a strong enemy column on the Ljubljana-Nova-Mesto line with tactical support of Allied planes, today's Yugoslav communique reported. Five other enemy columns in the same area were compelled to withdraw.

The town of Vares, 22 miles north of Sarajevo in eastern Bosnia, was captured by other Yugoslav forces.

Allied aircraft successfully bombed the railway station at Brezice, about 18 miles northwest of Zagreb. In Zagreb and its outskirts six trains and an oil refinery were blown up by Patriot action, the communique said.

Local action occurred on other fronts.

According to figures published by the Croatian Army of National Liberation, Patriots in Croatia during the past year killed, wounded, or took prisoner 502 enemy officers and 1,435 men.

They seized 354 enemy guns, 358 mortars, 2,428 machine guns, over 27,000 rifles, five aircraft, 50 tanks and armored cars, 119 wireless stations and a large quantity of other war material. They also dismantled 265 miles of railway track, cut railway lines in 11,852 places and destroyed 259 bridges, 18 railway stations, 275 locomotives, 1,508 cars, 26 aircraft, 34 armored cars, 124 carloads of war material, six ammunition stores, 154 cars with oil products and a large quantity of other war materials. HEAVY AIR BLOWS AT PACIFIC JAPS

PEARL HARBOR, January 6 — A series of heavy blows against Japanese targets by planes of the United States Navy and Army Air Forces, including Superfortresses, were reported today.

Carrier-based aircraft of the United States Pacific Fleet, last Tuesday and Wednesday, destroyed 111 Japanese aircraft, damaged 220 others, sank 27 ships and damaged an additional 68, during offensive sweeps over the islands of Formosa and Okinawa, a communique from Admiral Nimitz said. Almost every enemy operational airfield in the two islands was attacked by the U.S. fliers.

Cloudy weather shielded the approach of the U.S. carrier task force and the American planes were able to inject an element of surprise into their attacks. Little enemy resistance was met.

WAR ROLE FOR OLDER MEN

WASHINGTON, January 6 — Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, U.S. Director of Selective Service, said in an editorial in an official publication of his bureau that the war «can no longer be regarded as a young man's war,» according to the Associated Press yesterday.

«True, the young man makes the best warrior and should be in the fighting ranks if he is physically fit, unless he is irreplaceable in production most critical to the prosecution of the war,» the editorial said. «The older man who is required for war work and can do it and will not, must be made available for whatever military service he can render.» (OWI)

DECEMBER WAS BEST MONTH FOR 14TH USAAF

CHUNGKING, January 6 — December was the best month in the history of the 14th USAAF despite the loss of 14 American air bases to the Japanese last fall, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the Air Force in China, said yesterday. Japanese planes destroyed during the month, totaled 241, General Chennault reported.

«The enemy planes destroyed represented a substantial portion of the entire Japanese air strength in China and an all-time record for our operations,» the General said. «We ourselves lost only one plane in combat.

«We also struck deeper into enemy territory than ever before. In short, we are hitting the enemy harder and exacting a heavier toll every day.»

«The General also said that his planes sank 73,950 tons of shipping and probably sank or damaged 113,900 tons, as well as three naval ships and many scores of small craft during the month.

General Chennault cited the great gallantry and determination of the Chinese armies in west China who fought on although they were «all but unarmed.» He pointed out that too little credit was given for such remarkable episodes as the defense of Hengyang. (OWI)

ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 6 — The forthcoming joint Allied statements on a «New Deal» for Italy, the Cabinet's decision to appropriate 5,000 million lire for urgent repair work, the strikes in north Italy, Count Sforza and the Lublin Government were discussed in Rome newspapers today.

Unità (Communist) thanked Harold Macmillan, acting A.C. president for his plan for a «New Deal» for Italy «which contemplates the necessity of a greater collaboration between Italy and the Allies, indicating a greater independence of the Italian government as the principal means. Avanti! (Socialist), commenting the appropriation of 5,000 million lire for urgent repair work, wrote: «This is not a large amount if we consider the ravages made and the high cost of material and transportation.»

«The many years of favoritism have taught the public to see behind state subsidies the obscure dealings of a bunch of people trying to appropriate public money.»

Italia Nuova (Democrat), Italia Libera (Action), Avanti! (Socialist) and l'Unità (Communist) all praised the resistance to the Nazi-Fascists shown by the workers in North Italy who have gone on strike.

Italia Nuova (Democrat), commenting on Count Sforza's letter of resignation to Bonomi, in which he wrote that different purge methods should be applied in North Italy, said, «We consider this contrary to the idea of justice.»

Italia Nuova also reported the Moscow radio announcement that the U.R.S.S. has recognized the Lublin government, with comments by U.S. Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, and Pravda on the question. (UNN)

TRAFFIC ON FOLIGNO EAST COAST ROAD

ROME, January 6 — Allied Military Government headquarters for the Lazio-Umbria Region today announced the following traffic changes on the Foligno-East Coast road.

«One way traffic will be used between the East Coast and Foligno via routes 76 and 3.

«Owing to the dangerous conditions that prevail on the Fossato pass, all east-bound traffic from Foligno will be diverted via route 77. The Military Police have instructions to route civilian transport similarly.

«Owing to the quantity of military traffic passing over these routes, it is not possible to extend military recovery facilities to civilians. Civilians will move over these routes at their own risk. ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 6 — The forthcoming joint Allied statements on a «New Deal» for Italy, the Cabinet's decision to appropriate 5,000 million lire for urgent repair work, the strikes in north Italy, Count Sforza and the Lublin Government were discussed in Rome newspapers today.

Unità (Communist) thanked Harold Macmillan, acting A.C. president for his plan for a «New Deal» for Italy «which contemplates the necessity of a greater collaboration between Italy and the Allies, indicating a greater independence of the Italian government as the principal means. But Mr. Macmillan's statement does not specify the measures which he considers are apt to give the Italian government a greater independence. So that, practically, this is a promise, which reminds us of many other promises made in the last few months by many American and British politicians; and promises, which particularly in some of Mr. Roosevelt's speeches, were of a categorical and positive nature.

«We realize perfectly the war needs of the Allies and what a large amount of shipping must be devoted exclusively to the armies. But this cannot prevent us remarking that these promises have just been promises. We hope that they will indeed drop the second 'C' (from Commissione Alleata di Controllo—Allied Control Commission) in conformity with the statements made by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, that Mr. Macmillan's words will really prove to be the first announcement of a greater independence for the Italians and of larger power for our government.

L'Italia Libera (Action) wrote: «Mr. Macmillan said that whatever the Allies can do for Italy is as nothing to what the Italians can do for themselves. This is a frank and loyal indication of the spirit in which the Allies consider the independence, autonomy and sense of responsibility of the Italian people.»

All the papers reported Mr. Roosevelt's statements on larger supplies for Italy and on the necessity of continuing to keep the armistice terms a secret.

TRAFFIC ON FOLIGNO EAST COAST ROAD

ROME, January 6 — Allied Military Government headquarters for the Lazio-Umbria Region today announced the following traffic changes on the Foligno-East Coast road:

«One way traffic will be used between the East Coast and Foligno via routes 76 and 3.

«Owing to the dangerous conditions that prevail on the Fossato pass, all east-bound traffic from Foligno will be diverted via route 77. The Military Police have instructions to route civilian transport similarly.

ACTION PARTY ASKS MEMBERS TO VOLUNTEER

FLORENCE, January 6 — The Action Party Youth Federation today urged its members to volunteer for military service in response to an appeal made recently by the Communist Youth Movement.

ITALIAN RED CROSS THANKS U. S. FOR RELIEF

NEW YORK, January 6 — Chairman of the Italian Red Cross Umberto Bianco has asked Myron C. Taylor to convey «feelings of appreciation» to President Roosevelt and American Relief for Italy, Inc., for their efforts on behalf of the 27 million men, women and children in liberated Italy.

This was disclosed today by Justice Marchisio, president of American Relief for Italy, who made public a letter from Bianco to Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican and chairman of the board of American Relief for Italy.

The letter said: «Generous shipments of American relief supplies already are reaching localities where the need is greatest. In this manner, not only is tangible relief material being conveyed but also a solidarity of feelings between Italians and Americans shown.

«In Abruzzi, where warfare struck with particular intensity and fury, this relief is being distributed in the most providential manner. Abruzzi is a mountainous region and because of geographical features of the area and its subzero temperatures, living conditions there are truly appalling.» (OWI)

POLICEMAN ARRESTED AS COLLABORATIONIST

ROME, January 6 — The Vice-Commissar of Police, Antonio Colasurdo, was arrested yesterday by the Political Section of the Questura on charges of collaborating with the enemy.

Colasurdo worked in the Political Section under the late Pietro Caruso, Mussolini's last Police head of this city. After June 4, Colasurdo continued to hold his post taking orders from the High Commission for Sanctions against Fascism.

During the Caruso-Occhetto treason trial, he testified against the defendants. Roberto Occhetto, in turn, made charges against Colasurdo which subsequently led to the latter's arrest.

As a precautionary measure, two members of Colasurdo's staff have been detained. (UNN)

HID 1,200,000 LIRE FROM NAZIS

FAENZA, January 6 — The Germans were foiled in their attempt to take 1,200,000 lire from the bank vaults of this liberated town by an alert bank employee who hid the cash behind a piece of furniture, a UNN correspondent reported today.

The bank will open to take care of the town's needs in a few days. (UNN)

GAMBLING HOUSE RAIDED IN MESSINA

MESSINA, January 6 — A police raid on a gambling house here resulted in the confiscation of 1,100,000 lire and the arrest of several persons, it was announced today. The announcement said «members of the nobility» and many «new rich,» were among those held. (UNN)

ENGINEERS WANTED BY WAR OFFICE

ROME, January 6 — The War Ministry has issued a call for engineers and surveyors sorely needed to complete reconstruction plans announced at recent meetings of the Council of Ministers, it was officially announced here today.

Reconstruction work contemplated at the present time is mainly repair work to public buildings and private dwellings and repairs to and rebuilding of roads, bridges and other transportation facilities.

The announcement said the technical personnel will be attached to the staff of the Ministry of Public Works. (UNN)

CIGARETTES CONFISCATED IN NAPLES

NAPLES, January 6 — Allied cigarettes worth about 10,000 dollars (2,500 pounds) were confiscated here yesterday by Allied military police.

The cigarettes were found on Italian trucks about to leave for Palermo to supply the black market there. Police reported that some of the Naples gang involved have already been arrested and the gang operating in Sicily is being sought. (UNN)

ATHENS, January 6 — Although ELAS forces were reported unofficially to have been cleared from Athens and the port of Piraeus a Reuter dispatch said today that a few snipers still are holding out in the northern end of the capital.

A British column is reported outside Athens moving westward toward an ELAS stronghold at Elevsis, the dispatch added. Since early yesterday, British forces in the city have met no resistance and have now swept around and across three main roads leading northward out of the city, it was reported.

There still was no official confirmation of the end of organized resistance in the capital or its port. A communique last night from General Scobie, said that «armed resistance in Athens-Piraeus was on a much reduced scale today and excellent progress has been made.»

At Patras, ELAS forces still concentrate outside the town perimeter, the communique said.

The Cairo radio said tonight that Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Harold Macmillan, and British Resident Minister in the Mediterranean, arrived here today.

The only former minister in the new cabinet is Sideris, a leader of the Greek Liberal Party, who had been Minister of the Interior. Two of the new ministers, Giavanias and Melas, formerly were deputies of the Greek Parliament.

Sofianopoulos, with the second most important post—that of Foreign Minister—in the government, is said to be a political opponent of former Prime Minister Papandreou. Sofianopoulos also was an opponent of the late Premier Metaxas, and soon after Sofianopoulos organized the Popular Front Party in 1936, he was imprisoned by the dictator.

Sofianopoulos escaped to Paris, where he remained for four years before returning to Athens. He remained in Greece during the German occupation. He is known to be pro-Russian and friendly to the U.S.

Sofianopoulos founded the Greek Agrarian Party in 1932, which he later combined with the Greek Socialist Party to form «The Union of the Left» (Agrarian Socialists).

Rhallis is a member of the Populist Party; General Conduriotis is a son of the late Admiral Conduriotis, Greek naval hero; and Melas is a career diplomat who served in the Foreign Affairs Ministry until 1933, when he resigned in opposition to the Popular Front Party, then in power. Later he was deputy from Athens in the Parliament.

U.S. PRESS URGES NEW CONGRESS TO WIN WAR

WASHINGTON, January 6 — The American press, in editorials this week charged the 78th U. S. Congress, just convened, with fulfilling its responsibilities to the American people of winning the war and building a stable peace.

The Chicago Sun said: «Congress convenes under a clear mandate: firstly, to win the war through unconditional surrender of the enemy; secondly, to write a peoples' peace; thirdly; to march toward a post-war economy of full employment.

The Philadelphia Record: «We hope the new Congress will live up to the responsibilities given it by the people of winning the war and building for a stable peace.

«On these two broad fronts, Congress will meet two immediate problems. One is international relations, the other is mobilizing our manpower for victory.

«In considering any resolution on foreign affairs, in debating the Bretton Woods financial accords and the Chicago aviation agreements, in considering Lend Lease structure — Congress should back up the President.

«We can think of no other congress in our history faced with the responsibility of bringing war to a successful ending and building for peace. We have high hopes that the 97th Congress will succeed.» (OWI)

FRENCH TO FIGHT IN PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, January 6 — Henri Bonnet, French Ambassador to the U.S., said at a press conference last night that a new French army has been recruited and is awaiting supplies and materials before going into action on the side of Allied troops for the invasion of Germany.

«The young men of the resistance movement who already have shown their mettle are eager to play their part» in the fight against Germany, Bonnet said. «They are only waiting for this equipment.»

On the political front in Greece, no new developments were made public today from the new government headed by General Plastiras. A press dispatch today listed the composition of the new cabinet, which at present consists of 11 ministers, many of whom hold several portfolios. This is interpreted by press and radio commentators as an indication that some of these portfolios may be turned over to the left-wing factions.

The new cabinet is as follow:

Prime Minister and Minister of War, Navy, Air and Merchant Marine: General Plastiras; Minister of Foreign Affairs: John Sofianopoulos; Minister of Finance: George Sideris; Minister of Justice, Health and Social Welfare: Nicol Calyvas; Minister of Agriculture and National Economy: John Glavanis; Minister of Education and Interior: Pericles Rhallis; Minister of Communications: General Lucas Sakellaropoulos; Under Secretary of War: Leonidas Spais; Under Secretary of Navy: Gen. Teodore Conduriotis; Under Secretary of Air: Wing Commander Peter Cilos; Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs: George Melas; Under Secretary to the Prime Minister: Michael Mavrocordatos.

The dispatches said that most of the cabinet members have liberal affiliations, but generally, they said, the cabinet could be described as composed of members of prominent families with rightist traditions.

BRITISH M.P'S VISIT CASSINO

ROME, January 6 — The six British members of Parliament who are touring forward and rear areas of liberated Italy to inspect operational conditions of troops arrived in Rome this afternoon. This evening they are being received and entertained at dinner by Brigadiers A. Low, M. S. Lush, and G. R. Upjohn and other high-ranking officers of the Allied Commission and the Rome Allied Area Command.

During the journey to Rome this morning, the party stopped at Cassino, where they inspected the ruined town and the former battlefield. The MP's saw Cassino in weather conditions very similar to those under which Allied troops — British, American, Polish and French — battled for the town a year ago. Today there were low clouds, driving rain and, up in the mountains, snow.

Monte Cairo, from which the Germans shelled and mortared Allied positions and forward communications for long months, was partly obscured by mist. But Monastery Hill, with the ruined Benedictine Abbey on the top, was clearly visible.

The MP's studied the hill from a position on Highway 6 which marked the furthest forward point to which Allied guns had been brought last May to put down the barrage for the assault which captured the town. A colonel of the London Scottish, who had held a command in the Cassino fighting, pointed out the ground over which a British and Polish assault finaly took the hill in one of the bloodiest actions of the Italian campaign.

Inside the town itself, where the MP's walked among the ruins for more than half an hour, the colonel pointed out the shell of the Hotel Continental, the Baron's Palace and other focal points of the fighting, dug-in German tanks, from which the enemy had been literally smoked out by colored Dominion troops, were also shown. The party, most of whom were men with last-war experience, commented on the excellent fields of fire secured for the enemy by the dug-in tanks and bunkers.

Yesterday, the party was received in naval, army and air force establishments at Allied Forces Headquarters. During the course of a very full program, they were introduced to members of his staff. At FAF headquarters they spoke with Air Marshal Sir John Slesser, deputy commander of Mediterranean Allied Air Forces.

As the main purpose of the members' visit is to study the conditions of the ordinary soldier, they made a beginning during yesterday, their first full day in Italy, by touring soldiers' canteens in the AFHQ area and talking to individual soldiers.

They told reporters this afternoon that they were well satisfied with everything they had seen so far that was being done for soldiers' welfare. They were pleased with the cleanliness, warmth, brightness, efficiency and general «homelike» atmosphere of NAAFI-EFI, Y.M.C.A. and other canteens that they visited.

A large part of the afternoon was spent in watching the working of the British Army's Compassionate Posting Committee, which is made up of both officers and OR's. The MP's stated this afternoon that they were sure that cases of men applying for compassionate posting home received the utmost consideration from the Committee, who judged cases strictly on their merits, and granted postings to those in which the most hardship was involved.

Tomorrow the MP's leave Rome again for a forward area. (UNN)

NEXT ILO CONFERENCE IN EUROPE

MONTREAL, January 6 — The International Labor Office will suggest to its governing body meeting in London on January 25 that the next ILO conference be held in Europe, preferably some time after October 1 next, it was announced yesterday.

The announcement said ILO would suggest for discussion: 1. Maintenance of high levels of employment during the period of industrial rehabilitation and reconversion; and 2. Industrial relations, with special reference to collective agreements.

The governing body will also decide on measures to set up the international joint industrial committees authorized by the last session of the conference held in Philadelphia last April. (OWI)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 6 — Today's communique:

Allied patrols were active yesterday along the Maas River.

Our attack from the northern flank of the Ardennes salient continued in the face of stiff and determined opposition. Progress has been slow but gains up to 1,000 yards have been made in several sectors, notably southwest of Stavelot where several enemy counter-attacks were beaten off.

On the southern flank of the salient heavy enemy pressure consisting of tanks and infantry counter-attacks continued. A small enemy thrust was repulsed in an area two miles west of Tillet. A strong counter-attack by a force including 15 to 20 enemy tanks resulted in heavy fighting two miles west of Mande.

Our forces made a withdrawal from the Michamps area to high ground about two miles northeast of Bastogne. Southeast of Bastogne a strong counter-attack by infantry and tanks was repulsed by our artillery in the vicinity of Wardin and a smaller counter-attack was beaten off at Hurlange.

Communication and supply lines in the area of St. Vith and in and behind the Ardennes salient were targets for fighter-bombers which struck at road and rail transport and also attacked armored fighting vehicles and enemy-held buildings.

In addition they went for the rail centers at Ederkoben and Simmern and the enemy-occupied town of Wardin. Escorted medium and light bombers as well as going for communications near St. Vith attacked bridges at Herweiler and Simmern. Last night light bombers harassed the enemy movement behind the salient.

In the Lower Vosges Mountains the enemy's attempt to enlarge his salient southeast of Bitsch was frustrated in a day of hard fighting. Enemy elements which infiltrated southward to the vicinity of Wingen were virtually disposed of. North and east of this sector fighter-bombers attacked road and rail transport in the area of Kaiserslautern, Karlsruhe and Neuenkirchen.

Enemy ground forces crossed the Rhine about eight miles below Strasbourg and entered Gambsheim and Offendorf. Fighting followed in both localities.

German troop forces in the Island of Schouwen and north of the River Maas were attacked by fighter-bombers which also hit a rail bridge at Oulenbourg and a road bridge at Wijnen, south of Utrecht. Fighter-bombers ranging over an arc from Angelo through Munster and Hamm down to Coblenz went for locomotives, rail cars and road transport.

More than 1,000 heavy bombers, escorted by more than 500 fighters, attacked rail centers over broad areas extending from Cologne, south to Karlsruhe, and from the Siegfried Line, east to beyond Frankfurt. Railyards selected were those at Hanau, Frankfurt, Coblenz, Saarbrucken and Kirn, and among the rail centers were those at Kaiserslautern, Pirmasens and Neustadt. In addition a number of other rail and road targets and enemy fighter landing grounds were attacked. Some of the escorting fighters at-

In addition a number of other rail and road targets and enemy fighter landing grounds were attacked. Some of the escorting fighters attacked locomotives, rail cars and an airfield in the Frankfurt area shooting down nine enemy aircraft and destroying four on the ground.

Other escorted heavy bombers attacked rail yards at Ludwigshafen.

Last night heavy bombers in very great strength made two attacks on Hannover. Fighter-bombers attacked Berlin. Before dawn this morning heavy bombers attacked concentrations of German troops and armor in and around Houffalize. (Reuter)

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 5 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

On the right of the 8th Army sector, the leading Canadian troops have reached the River Reno and occupied Sant'Alberto.

Farther south, other troops of the 8th Army have eliminated all organized enemy resistance east of the Senio River, south of Cotignola.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

On the 5th Army front, there were sh[illegible] and extensive patrol clashes.

Navy Communique:

During the last eight days naval gunfire support has continued to be given to the army in the neighborhood of the Franco-Italian frontier. The French destroyers Trombe, Le Fortune and L'Alcyon have all carried out successful bombardments on enemy targets in spite of very rough weather.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

A small force of fighter-escorted medium and heavy bombers and long-range fighters of the Strategic Air Force yesterday bombed bridges in Yugoslavia.

Despite adverse weather that curtailed air operations, Tactical Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers again flew close-support missions over the Italian front and attacked road and rail targets behind the German lines.

Balkan Air Force fighters attacked positions and road and rail movement in Yugoslavia.

From these operations one of our aircraft is missing.

MAAF flew about 600 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

Armed resistance in Athens-Piraeus was on a much reduced scale today and excellent progress has been made.

Considerable areas of the town and suburbs still remain to be searched and cleared of arms.

Elsewhere in Greece the situation is unchanged, except at Patras where ELAS forces still continue to concentrate outside the town area. (PRO)

MOSCOW, January 6 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in the area of Budapest, our troops continued fighting for the annihilation of encircled enemy groupings and occupied 173 blocks. In battles during January 5, in Budapest, our troops captured 1,630 German and Hungarian soldiers and officers.

Northwest of Budapest, our troops were beating-back attacks of large forces of infantry and tanks of the enemy, and inflicted on him huge losses in manpower and equipment.

On other sectors of the front, scout patrolling and, at several sectors, fighting of local importance took place.

During January 5, our troops disabled or destroyed on all fronts 130 German tanks, including 65 tanks northwest of Budapest.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 17 enemy craft were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 6 — Today's communique:

In Piedmont, the black «Resega» brigade operated against the Partisans of the Cuneo area. An enemy attack is still going on east of Monsala.

The Patriots, however, are carrying on acts of sabotage against enemy traffic. The Susa railway line was cut for several days and a road bridge was blown up at Ivrea. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 6 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Grim fighting is in progress on the flanks of the front bulge between the Meuse and Moselle. The American 1st Army which attacked our northern front with strong forces collapsed in our defensive fire after having suffered high losses. In the Bastogne sector, our tank formations attacking from a northerly and easterly direction, repulsed the enemy toward the town and captured more than 400 prisoners.

In Alsace and Lorraine, our troops are advancing. We pursued the enemy and cleared of the Americans the whole area between Weissenburg and Selz on the Rhine. Numerous localities were recaptured. North of Strasbourg our troops forced the crossing of the Rhine at several points in a surprise attack.

Yesterday, more than 85 enemy tanks were either captured or destroyed.

Strong shock detachments of the garrison of Gironde Nord blew up the railway line of Saujon on a breadth of six kilometers and destroyed the enemy field fortifications in this sector.

Italy:

In central Italy, north of Faenza, our troops repulsed the enemy attacks. On the southern banks of Lake Comacchio, attacking British formations were halted in front of new defensive positions.

Eastern Front:

on the town area of Hannover. At the same time, fast British bombers dropped bombs on the Reich capital. Night fighters brought down 28 and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force another 21 enemy planes almost all of them four-engined bombers. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

French «Liberation» Committee: Since the flight of the Vichy Government from France, German propaganda has been devoting very little attention to the subject of the Petain Government or of any German-sponsored government of France. This fact makes it all the more noteworthy that tonight the German Home Radio is playing up the formation of what is called — in apparent imitation of the terminology of de Gaulle's original committee — the «French Committee of Liberation.»

Doriot Instead of Laval or Pétain: Equally noteworthy is the fact that the above German broadcast makes no mention whatsoever of the personnel or former existence of the Vichy Government. The French Fascist leader Jacques Doriot is, instead, given the most prominent attention among French leaders and is, indeed, mentioned as the «President» of this «Liberation» Committee. Apparently he has replaced in German esteem the figures of Petain and Laval, neither of whom are so much as mentioned tonight or in other recent German broadcasts.

Western Front: Sertorius continues his trend of the last two days of warning his audience of powerful counter-forces being set into motion by the Allies. «After bringing up a considerable number of British divisions from the Netherlands to reinforce the American First Army, pressing against the northern flank of the German wedge, the Allies have now thrown two-thirds of their forces, available in the west, into the region between the Meuse and the Moselle.»

Armed resistance in Athens-Piraeus was on a much reduced scale today and excellent progress has been made.

Considerable areas of the town and suburbs still remain to be searched and cleared of arms.

Elsewhere in Greece the situation is unchanged, except at Patras where ELAS forces still continue to concentrate outside the town area. (PRO)

In Piedmont, the black «Resega» brigade operated against the Partisans of the Cuneo area. An enemy attack is still going on east of Monsala.

The Patriots, however, are carrying on acts of sabotage against enemy traffic. The Susa railway line was cut for several days and a road bridge was blown up at Ivrea. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 6 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Grim fighting is in progress on the flanks of the front bulge between the Meuse and Moselle. The American 1st Army which attacked our northern front with strong forces collapsed in our defensive fire after having suffered high losses. In the Bastogne sector, our tank formations attacking from a northerly and easterly direction, repulsed the enemy toward the town and captured more than 400 prisoners.

In Alsace and Lorraine, our troops are advancing. We pursued the enemy and cleared of the Americans the whole area between Weissenburg and Selz on the Rhine. Numerous localities were recaptured. North of Strasbourg our troops forced the crossing of the Rhine at several points in a surprise attack.

Yesterday, more than 85 enemy tanks were either captured or destroyed.

Strong shock detachments of the garrison of Gironde Nord blew up the railway line of Saujon on a breadth of six kilometers and destroyed the enemy field fortifications in this sector.

Italy:

In central Italy, north of Faenza, our troops repulsed the enemy attacks. On the southern banks of Lake Comacchio, attacking British formations were halted in front of new defensive positions.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, south of Vukovar on the Danube, the enemy lost an ascertained number of 850 killed in the fighting of the last few days. The fleeing enemy abandoned all his weapons including 96 machine-guns and 22 anti-tank guns. The Germans lost 10 men in the same encounter.

The German-Hungarian garrison of Budapest continued to maintain itself against the Bolshevik attacks which yesterday were launched particularly on the eastern flank.

At the southern frontier of Slovakia, between the Gran and Grosstaffelsdorf, the enemy continued to exert pressure. Most of the Soviet attacks were already frustrated in front of our positions by our defensive fire.

In the frontier area of East Prussia, northwest of Filipow, grenadiers and tanks penetrated the deeply echeloned Soviet trench system in a surprise attack. Having destroyed 15 tanks and 29 guns, they returned with numerous prisoners and captured weapons to their own positions. The enemy suffered particularly high losses during these operations.

Air:

Anglo-American terror bombers launched day-light attacks on western Germany and the Rhine-Main area. In the evening hours, the British launched two terror attacks on the town area of Hannover. At the same time, fast British bombers dropped bombs on the Reich capital. Night fighters brought down 28 and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force another 21 enemy planes almost all of them four-engined bombers. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

French «Liberation» Committee: Since the flight of the Vichy Government from France, German propaganda has been devoting very little attention to the subject of the Pétain Government or of any German-sponsored government of France. This fact makes it all the more noteworthy that tonight the German Home Radio is playing up the formation of what is called — in apparent imitation of the terminology of de Gaulle's original committee — the «French Committee of Liberation.»

Doriot Instead of Laval or Pétain: Equally noteworthy is the fact that the above German broadcast makes no mention whatsoever of the personnel or former existence of the Vichy Government. The French Fascist leader Jacques Doriot is, instead, given the most prominent attention among French leaders and is, indeed, mentioned as the «President» of this «Liberation» Committee. Apparently he has replaced in German esteem the figures of Pétain and Laval, neither of whom are so much as mentioned tonight or in other recent German broadcasts.

Western Front: Sertorius continues his trend of the last two days of warning his audience of powerful counter-forces being set into motion by the Allies. «After bringing up a considerable number of British divisions from the Netherlands to reinforce the American First Army, pressing against the northern flank of the German wedge, the Allies have now thrown two-thirds of their forces, available in the west, into the region between the Meuse and the Moselle.»

Aid to «Invaded» Italy: The Fascist Radio discusses in various broadcasts President Roosevelt's declaration on aid to «invaded» Italy. Whilst the President indicated that there would be an increase in the calories of food-supplies intended for Italy, he is said to have stated that supplies are subject to shipping space. According to the commentator, the latter «was naturally not available» and he adds sardonically that «the American president, by juggling with calories and weights, continues to make promises whilst people in the invaded areas continue to wait and starve...»

Southern Front: The Fascist Radio announced Saturday night that an armored thrust of the British 8th Army against the German positions between the Comacchio lagoon and the Adriatic had been checked, after fierce fighting on the verge of the lagoon itself. The British are said to have lost thirteen tanks in the attack and been forced to abandon any further attempt to break through German positions. Local British thrusts north of Faenza ended «without any notable success...»

LONDON, January 5 — Fighting around the perimeter of the German salient reached a new intensity today as combined Allied armies drove forward in several sectors in the face of bitter enemy resistance.

The American 1st Army made slight gains at several points in the north, but the heaviest fighting was in the center where the British 2nd Army, with the help of the U.S. 1st Army, was pushing southward toward Houffalize. Here the Germans threw in 435 enemy tanks — more than half the tank strength employed by the Germans on the southern flank.

One enemy counter-attack centered in an area two miles south of St. Hubert, western anchor of the German salient, but the desperate German effort to break through was frustrated.

Snow-covered Minefields

Snow-covered minefields, road blocks, iced roads, fog, hilly-wooded terrain and well-camouflaged enemy arms and artillery blocked the way of the American forces moving south. Nevertheless, tanks were able to push ahead at least 1,000 yards in some sectors and were last reported within three miles of one of the two major enemy supply routes.

Air support, which had been almost totally lacking over the immediate battle area in the ast two days, came to the support of the Allies again today. BBC late this afternoon reported a heavy bombing of German positions situated between the two advancing Allied armies.

A front-line dispatch said that Allied heavy bombers were over the battle area. In formations up to 30, they made pinpoint attacks against enemy targets.

«Slow, steady progress» was an official SHAEF spokesman's summary of the picture on the northern flank. Two enemy counter-attacks southeast of Grandmenil, the starting point of the 3rd Army drive, were repelled.

A SHAEF correspondent reported today that the 1st Army had taken 10,670 prisoners from the start of the Ardennes battle on December 16 through January 3.

Today's SHAEF communique listed the major enemy counter-blows on the southern sector as being centered at Mande, four miles west of Bastogne, at Longchamps, five miles northwest of the city, and at Bourcy, five and a half miles northeast of the city. All were thrown back.

Correspondents said that the main enemy forces are concentrated at Houffalize, which controls the main transportation routes to the west. The nearest Allied forces are five miles from the junction.

Fighting slackened off on the 7th Army sector, although enemy units still were attacking along the Saar and Palatinate borders. An enemy thrust toward Ludweiler, five miles west of the Saar River near Saarbrücken, was held. German forces which crossed the Blies River east of Saargemünd and pushed forward about five miles to Achen were driven back, but the bridgehead remained in enemy hands.

The menacing German penetration six miles south of Bitsch was blunted with the recapture of Meisenthal. Hard fighting continued in the area of Phillipsburg, east of Bitsch.

LONDON, January 5 — Fighting around the perimeter of the German salient reached a new intensity today as combined Allied armies drove forward in several sectors in the face of bitter enemy resistance.

The American 1st Army made slight gains at several points on a 21-mile front and an announcement from SHAEF disclosed that British units have gone into action at the western end of the American line in the vicinity of Marche.

Advances up to 1,500 yards already have been registered by British troops pushing ahead through minefields and difficult terrain. The troops are reported in the vicinity of Rendeux, three miles southeast of Hotton and 10 miles southwest of Grandmenil. Elements of the 1st Army forces are based in Grandmenil.

Meanwhile, SHAEF announced that Field Marshal Montgomery has been placed in charge of all Allied armies north of the enemy salient since the start of the German offensive on December 16. The announcement said also that Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley is commanding all troops south of the salient. The decision to divide up the command followed the splitting up of Allied forces by the enemy thrust.

To the south of the salient temporarily dug-in 3rd Army troops were subjected to an intense barrage by German armor in the 24 hours ending at dawn today, during which the enemy launched 17 separate counter-attacks in the Bastogne area. Each of the attacks was held and tonight the American troops were reported in complete control of the situation. An official estimate said that since the 3rd Army was thrown against the salient it has knocked out and artillery blocked the way of the American forces moving south. Nevertheless, tanks were able to push ahead at least 1,000 yards in some sectors and were last reported within three miles of one of the two major enemy supply routes.

LATE BULLETINS

MAJOR GERMAN OFFENSIVE REPORTED IN SAAR

SHAEF, January 5 — The German drive in the Saar-Rhine sector has developed into a major offensive, it was announced here tonight.

The announcement said that the Germans are 15 miles past the French frontier in an area 12 miles north of the Saverne Gap through which supplies reach Allied forces on the Rhine.

German troops have crossed the Rhine and made a landing at Gambsheim, 11 miles north of Strasbourg, Reuter said late tonight. Offendorf, two miles further north, has also been entered. (OWI)

BERLIN BOMBED AGAIN AT NIGHT

LONDON, January 5 — Mosquito bombers carrying 4,000-pound bombs attacked Berlin again tonight for the second night in succession, the Air Ministry announced. (Reuter)

a wide area between Cologne in the north; Karlsruhe in the south, and Frankfurt-on-Main in the east.

U.S. Strategic Air Force headquarters here said all the objectives are at important points along the enemy's supply routes to the Western Front.

Earlier today, more than 1,600 tons of bombs were dropped by 350 RAF Lancasters in two attacks on German troops, artillery strongpoints and supply dumps at Royan, near the mouth of the Gironde river, 50 miles northwest of Bordeaux, the Air Ministry announced.

The first attack was carried out at 0400 hours and the second 90 minutes later. Each was controlled by master bombers.

All French civilians previously had been evacuated from the area. Between 5,000 and 10,000 German troops are still holding out there. They are surrounded by French forces, but recently have made frequent raids into the countryside.

RAF Mosquitos twice attacked Berlin last night. The first force was over the German capital just before 2000 hours and the second some three and a half hours later.

Six Allied planes are missing from last night's RAF attacks on Berlin and from those on Royan this morning.

RAF and Polish Spitfire squadrons continued their assault on V-weapon launching sites and storage depots in the Netherlands. (Reuter-OWI)

8TH CANADIANS CONTINUE ADVANCE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 5 — Canadian infantry and tank forces, advancing through the network of German defenses northwest of Ravenna, have thrust to within 1,000 yards of enemy positions guarding the Ferrara road and the coastal route along the Adriatic, it was reported officially here today. These positions form the hinge of the German line.

In savage fighting, in which the enemy threw in reserve reconnaissance troops of the S.S. and the 26th Panzer Division, and sacrificed at least 10 Tiger tanks and self-propelled guns, the Canadians seized intact a road bridge across a canal southeast of Sant'Alberto. They then advanced to within 800 yards of this strongpoint of the German defenses along the southern shores of the Comacchio Lagoon.

The Canadian forces already hold a two-mile stretch of the Canale Bonifica, a drainage ditch paralleling the ecurse of the Reno River just south of the Comacchio Lagoon, and have cut the single road around the shores of the lagoon at points both southwest and southeast of Sant'Alberto. The remaining escape route for German forces still in this Hamlet in the midst of the canal-intersected lowlands, appears to be northwestward, over a ford across the Reno River, and along the western edges of the Comacchio Lagoon.

In an effort to halt the Canadian penetration, German troops launched heavy counter-attacks along the Senio River northeast of Alfonsine. They struck heavily at the left flank of the Canadian column which pressed northeastward along the Conventello-Sant'Alberto road.

Canadian troops halted the Germans who suffered heavy losses, including 150 prisoners.

Tanks Push On

The intensity of the enemy opposition in this area is probably designed to prevent the 8th Army from bringing its full strength to bear on the Senio River defensive line which now is the main enemy rampart across the southeastern end of the Valley of the Po.

With German troops holding the southern shores of the Comacchio Lagoon, Allied forces were unable to carry

FIGHTER BOMBERS WRECK ENEMY TRANSPORT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 5 — Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday exacted a toll of over 600 motor vehicles, locomotives and rail cars, and horse drawn vehicles, in attacks in the Po Valley, northeastern Italy and northern Yugoslavia, it was officially reported here today.

The attacks on the enemy transport were carried out in conjunction with one of the strongest recent assaults on enemy communication targets and battle-line positions by medium, light and fighter-bombers.

Balkan Air Force Marauders and Beaufighters concentrated on German forces billeted in the town of Obcina, west of Zagreb, in Yugoslavia, with both rockets and bombs. (PRO)

MONTGOMERY, BRADLEY COMMAND NEW GROUPS

LONDON, January 5 — Field Marshal Montgomery has commanded all Allied armies north of the German salient since the start of the enemy drive and now is directing the Allied counter-offensive in this sector, SHAEF announced today.

Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley is commanding all Allied troops south of the salient, the announcement added.

The decision to establish a separate command in the northern sector was due to « tactical, geographical and supply » reasons.

« When the German penetration through the Ardennes created two fronts — one substantially facing south and the other north — by instant agreement of all concerned, that portion of the front facing south was placed under the command of Montgomery and that facing north under command of Bradley, » SHAEF said.

The result of the split in commands was to give Montgomery command of the American 1st and 9th Armies, in addition to the British 2nd and Canadian 1st Armies. Elements of the two American Armies south of the salient will continue to come under General Bradley.

In Washington, President Roosevelt said that the creation of the new command was decided upon by General Eisenhower. The President added that the new arrangement does not imply that Montgomery has been made deputy commander to General Eisenhower.

Montgomery was in command of the British troops at El Alamein and it was under his direction that the 8th Army, now fighting in Italy, drove the Germans from the Egyptian border through North Africa and into southeast Italy.

On D-day of the landings in France, Montgomery was commander of all ground troops, with General Bradley serving under him. In August, Bradley took over command of the 12th Army Group, comprising the American 1st, 3rd and 9th Armies. He was given equal status with Montgomery, who then took over command of the 21st Army Group, made up of the British 2nd and the Canadian 1st Armies.

Bradley is considered one of the outstanding strategists in the American Army. He commanded the American drive across Tunisia.

The field commands of Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges, heading the U.S. 1st Army, and Lt. Gen. William Simpson, in charge of the U.S. 9th Army, were not affected by the changes. (BBC-OWI-Reuter)

With German troops holding the southern shores of the Comacchio Lagoon, Allied forces were unable to carry out a large-scale assault against Alfonsine and the Ferrara road without danger of an enemy flanking move.

British and Canadian troops dealt a second blow to the enemy's delaying campaign in a surprise attack across the Canale Naviglio, which reduced by over half the remaining enemy salient east of the Senio River in the region northeast of Faenza.

The Allied forces, striking across the canal west of Granarolo, five miles northeast of Faenza, established a bridgehead more than a mile wide on the west banks of this watercourse. British tanks supported by infantrymen of the British 56th (London) Division, swept northeast into the narrow strip of land betwen the river and the canal. The German forces were reported to have been thrown into confusion by the surprise attacks, which have forced them back to a half-mile-wide sliver of land, little over two miles in length.

On the 5th Army front, enemy forces raided American positions a mile north of Livergnano, on the Bologna Road, and in an hour's battle, were driven back with casualties. The enemy is rapidly expanding already elaborate defensive works in this area, guarding the entrance into the Savena River Valley, direct approach to Bologna, it was reported.

Sharp fighting occurred along several other sectors of the 5th Army front. (PRO)

GERMAN ATTACK WEST OF BUDAPEST INCREASES

MOSCOW, January 5 — As Red Army troops continued to batter their way into the heart of Budapest, the drive of the German relief column at Komarno, 30 miles to the northwest, increased.

The costly German attempt to join forces with the encircled garrisons in the eastern and western sections of the capital and to delay the Soviet advance into Austria is being undertaken by tank elements from six panzer divisions and several infantry formations.

The Luftwaffe appeared in the heaviest strength for months, covering the battlefield along its entire course back to Budapest. Tanks and infantry were thrown «recklessly» against the Russian guns according to front-line dispatches. The guns, however, held firm in prepared lines against numerous attacks while Russian armored reinforcements were rushed to the battlefield.

In the fighting for the remaining German strongpoints inside Budapest, the Russians occupied another 233 blocks of Buildings.

In Buda, the western part of the capital, the Russians cleared the Germans from the old cemetery and advanced on the citadel on Blocksberg mount. The storming of other Buda heights was turned to good account by the Russians, who fired from these commanding positions directly into the eastern half of the city on instructions from separate storm groups who were linked to the opposite bank of the Danube by radio.

In a violent battle with the German reinforcements on the south bank of the Danube, out-numbered Soviet tank units killed more than 1,500 Germans and destroyed 53 tanks and self-propelled guns.

Overcoming tenacious German resistance, Soviet troops are clearing one block of houses after another and are doggedly pushing on toward the center of Hungary's capital. Withdrawing under the pressure of Russian troops, the Germans were blowing up houses and building barricades on the streets, today's Soviet communique said.

Violent fighting took place on the grounds of a textile mill which was taken after Soviet infantry launched a powerful attack. More than 600 Germans were killed in this action and 400 prisoners were taken in the factory's underground workshops.

In the eastern part of the capital, Red Army units dislodged the Germans from fortified positions in the city park and are also fighting toward the center of the city. Fierce fighting took place in the vicinity of an electric railway station which was taken after an outflanking movement to the rear wiped out the enemy garrison.

In the western part of the city the enemy launched repeated counter-attacks. One group of Germans attempting to break out of the city was cut down by Russian artillery and machine-gun fire.

On Czechoslovak territory, Russian troops fought their way forward toward the town of Lucenec despite stubborn enemy resistance. Lucenec is an important industrial center and also a junction of five rail lines and seven roads. Fighting was reported on the immediate approaches to the town. More than 400 Germans were reported to have been killed in this action. (Reuter-BBC-OWI-Radio Moscow)

BRITISH LANDING ON BURMA COAST, JAPS FLEE

KANDY, CAYLON, January 5 — British Commando troops, in the largest combined operation yet launched against the Asiatic mainland, landed on Akyab Island on the Burma coast on Wednesday.

The landing was made after a heavy bombardment and met no opposition, Southeast Asia Command Headquarters announced today.

Royal Indian Navy cruisers and RAF heavy bombers supported the landing which was made about 12 miles from the town of Akyab itself. The supporting bombardment caused the Japanese to flee and landing troops took the island without firing a shot, press dispatches said.

The landing ends two and a half years of Japanese occupation of the island and gives the British forces control of the Arakan coast west of the Kaladan River. It also puts into Allied hands the best port in Burma west of Rangoon, correspondents said. Ships of 8,000 tons can berth in Akyab harbor.

With the landing, the British are now in a position to cut the Japanese escape route from the Arakan area along the Ryaukkaw-Prome road.

Akyab has seven airfields, several capable of handling the largest aircraft. Correspondents said the fields were found to be only slightly damaged and can be put to immediate use.

SEAC announced that in other fighting in Burma, British troops have established two bridgeheads across the Mu River in the sector of the recently-captured town of Ye-U, 70 miles northwest of Mandalay. The communique also announced that Chinese troops yesterday gained another two miles in bitter fighting in the Namhkan area in central Burma.

In the air Allied planes took advantage of good weather to hit Japanese communications and storage areas with good results. Another bridge was knocked out on the Bangkok-Moulmein railway from Thailand to southeastern Burma [illegible] locomotive and a large building in the same area other action Tuesday and Wednesday. Pacific fleet bombers struck at enemy installations on Marcus Island in the Palau and Marshal Islands.

Superfortress pilots returning from Wednesday's attack on the Japanese industrial city of Nagoya reported great fires producing smoke columns as high as 12,000 feet. Pilots were quoted as saying that Japanese fighter opposition was unusually heavy but a War Department announcement today said that only one Superfort was lost in the attack. (OWI)

ALLIED AIRPOWER MOUNTING

PARIS, January 5 — Allied offensive airpower now is greater than ever and the campaign against Germany will continue relentlessly, Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the U. S. Strategic Air Forces in Europe, said yesterday while giving a general air review of the past year.

Despite heavy losses, Germany had more warplanes today than when the Allies landed in Normandy, the General said, but her pilots were inadequately trained because of fuel shortages and are less to be feared than the enemy's anti-aircraft guns.

By husbanding their craft the Germans were able to put more planes in the air in support of Von Rundstedt's offensive than at any time since D-day.

Spaatz said that German flyers were apparently inferior in training and were no more effective in combat than at the time of their crushing defeat during the summer.

Attacks by American and British heavy bombers, on German oil production and other targets within the Reich, had forced the Germans to use 1,700,000 men — the equivalent of 140 ground divisions — in the defense of important installations.

The concentration of heavy anti-aircraft guns in unparalleled numbers around critical oil targets was also made necessary, Spaatz said, and in addition to her anti-aircraft crews and pilots, Germany had other hundreds of thousands of men engaged in repairing bomb-damaged buildings and factories. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS CUT MORE ESCAPE ROUTES

LONDON, January 5 — Yugoslav forces have succeeded in damaging two railway escape routes for the Germans from Slovakia into Austria, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

The Maribor-Graz line and a railway line running from Maribor to Dravograd along the Yugoslav-Austrian border were damaged in places. Maribor is on the northern border of Yugoslavia and Graz lies 26 miles inside Austria opposite the junction of the Yugoslav, Hungarian and Austrian borders.

The communique reported that a German column trying to break through Leznica to Zvornik, in East Bosnia, was engaged in heavy fighting by Yugoslav forces. More than 300 enemy soldiers have been killed during the past three days in this sector, it was said. The enemy also lost much war material.

In the valley of the Bosna River, and also in East Bosnia, fierce fighting was reported and all enemy attempts to advance toward Travnik failed, the communique said.

In Croatia, fighting centered along both sides of the Una River and Yugoslav forces were reported to have attacked the Germans successfully from the liberated areas of Croatia. On an enemy-held airport near Zagreb five enemy planes were destroyed.

Tanks were employed by the Yugoslavs in a counter-attack against the Germans in the Srem sector. The counter-attack was successful, Marshal Tito reported, and the Germans lost seven tanks and two armored cars in the engagement. (Free Yugoslav Radio)

On Czechoslovak territory, Russian troops fought their way forward toward the town of Lucenec despite stubborn enemy resistance. Lucenec is an important industrial center and also a junction of five rail lines and seven roads. Fighting was reported on the immediate approaches to the town. More than 400 Germans were reported to have been killed in this action. (Reuter-BBC-OWI-Radio Moscow)

BRITISH LANDING ON BURMA COAST, JAPS FLEE

KANDY, CAYLON, January 5 — British Commando troops, in the largest combined operation yet launched against the Asiatic mainland, landed on Akyab Island on the Burma coast on Wednesday.

The landing was made after a heavy bombardment and met no opposition, Southeast Asia Command Headquarters announced today.

Royal Indian Navy cruisers and RAF heavy bombers supported the landing which was made about 12 miles from the town of Akyab itself. The supporting bombardment caused the Japanese to flee and landing troops took the island without firing a shot, press dispatches said.

The landing ends two and a half years of Japanese occupation of the island and gives the British forces control of the Arakan coast west of the Kaladan River. It also puts into Allied hands the best port in Burma west of Rangoon, correspondents said. Ships of 8,000 tons can berth in Akyab harbor.

With the landing, the British are now in a position to cut the Japanese escape route from the Arakan area along the Ryauktaw-Prome road.

Akyab has seven airfields, several capable of handling the largest aircraft. Correspondents said the fields were found to be only slightly damaged and can be put to immediate use.

SEAC announced that in other fighting in Burma, British troops have established two bridgeheads across the Mu River in the sector of the recently-captured town of Ye-U, 70 miles northwest of Mandalay. The communique also announced that Chinese troops yesterday gained another two miles in bitter fighting in the Namhkan area in central Burma.

In the air Allied planes took advantage of good weather to hit Japanese communications and storage areas with good results. Another bridge was knocked out on the Bangkok-Moulmein railway from Thailand to southeastern Burma and a locomotive and a large building in the same area were destroyed.

From Chungking, a 14th USAAF headquarters communique reported that fighters of the Chinese-American Wing on Wednesday bombed and strafed Japanese rail targets in northeastern China, destroying five locomotives and damaging three others. Twenty-two bombers at an aerodrome in the Hankow area were destroyed by the Chinese and American flyers. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

ANOTHER PHILIPPINES ISLAND OCCUPIED

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, January 5 — American forces have occupied the island of Marinduque, about 50 miles east of Mindoro Island and just south of Luzon, General MacArthur's communique announced tonight.

The landing was made without opposition, the communique said. Marinduque is a mountainous island about 25 miles square and its occupation gives U.S. forces on Mindoro protection from possible Japanese attempts to counter-attack from the east, correspondents pointed out.

While carrier-based planes were attacking Formosa and Okinawa Island on Tuesday and Wednesday, Liberator bombers attacked the Japanese airbase on Iwo Jima in the Volcano group, for the 27th and 28th consecutive days, a Pacific Fleet Headquarters communique said today. In fensive than at any time since D-day.

Spaatz said that German flyers were apparently inferior in training and were no more effective in combat than at the time of their crushing defeat during the summer.

Attacks by American and British heavy bombers on German oil production and other targets within the Reich, he said forced the Germans to use 1,700,000 men — the equivalent of 140 ground divisions — in the defense of important installations.

The concentration of heavy anti-aircraft guns in unparalleled numbers around critical oil targets was also made necessary, Spaatz said, and in addition to her anti-aircraft crews and pilots, Germany had other hundreds of thousands of men engaged in repairing bomb-damaged buildings and factories. YUGOSLAVS CUT MORE ESCAPE ROUTES

LONDON, January 5 — Yugoslav forces have succeeded in damaging two railway escape routes for the Germans from Slovakia into Austria, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

The Maribor-Graz line and a railway line running from Maribor to Dravograd along the Yugoslav-Austrian border were damaged in places. Maribor is on the northern border of Yugoslavia and Graz lies 26 miles inside Austria opposite the junction of the Yugoslav, Hungarian and Austrian borders.

GERMANS HELP CAPTURE NAZI PARATROOPERS

LUXEMBOURG, January 5 — With the aid of reports made by German civilians, 17 German paratroopers were rounded up in the Allied-held town of Monschau, between December 21 and 26 Radio Luxembourg reported Wednesday.

The broadcast added that Germans who left their homes in what is now Allied-occupied territory are being repatriated. During the last two weeks of November nearly 300 were repatriated from the refugee camp at Aachen.

Wherever practicable, Allied Military Government officials are transferring ill people to the places where the best medical attention is available. (OWI)

AMERICAN COMBAT CASUALTIES

WASHINGTON, January 5 — Combat casualties of the U.S. Army and Navy increased 8,529 in the week ending December 21, but these figures do not include the casualties sustained by the U.S. armies in the Rundstedt counter-offensive on the Western Front, it was announced yesterday.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, said that the War Department has not yet received an accurate accounting of U.S. personnel and material losses resulting from the German drive.

The total of U.S. combat casualties, other than the current Western Front campaign, was 638,149 including killed, wounded, missing and prisoners of war of the Army and Navy up to December 21.

The latest figures are: Army: killed, 103,001; wounded, 326,137; missing 66,567; prisoners of war, 59,667; total 556,362.

Navy: killed, 31,332; wounded, 36,697; missing, 9,277; prisoners of war, 4,481; total 81,787. (OWI)

MONTGOMERY TRIBUTE TO INVASION CHIEFS

LONDON, January 5 — Field Marshal Montgomery, Commander of the British 21st Army Group, the only surviving member of the trio of British commanders-in-chief who planned and led the landings in western Europe under General Dwight D. Eisenhower, paid tribute in The Times today to Sir Bertram Ramsay, killed in a plane crash in France on Tuesday, and Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, reported missing when his plane failed to reach its destination in the Far East last November.

Montgomery's letter, written from his headquarters in Holland, described Sir Bertram and Sir Trafford as «two great friends,» and continued: «This tribute might well come from the whole army, since both were firm friends of many soldiers, and both worked wholeheartedly to establish and maintain those friendly relations between the fighting forces which are so vital at all times.

«We became members of the same team in January, 1944, when General Eisenhower was appointed Supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force for the invasion of western Europe, and under him were three c's-in-c: naval, Ramsay; air, Leigh-Mallory; army, myself.

«I have the most happy recollections of the planning period from January to June, and then the assault on June 6 and the subsequent operations. We became knit together as a team of three, owing personal loyalty and devotion to Eisenhower, our chief, who held us all together all the time — a British team under a great American commander, and thus a truly Allied organization.» (OWI)

RED ARMY'S MIGHT IMPRESSES FRENCH GENERAL

ALGIERS, January 5 — The formidable might of the Soviet Army most impressed General Juin, chief of the French General Staff on his recent trip to Russia, Radio Algiers said yesterday.

He added: «Victory has never taken the Russians by surprise, as each Russian offensive had been carefully prepared. The Russian Army has received all attention and has the feeling that the country is backing it. I have been impressed by the mysticism and patriotism of the army and its full spirit of self-sacrifice.» (Radio Algiers)

LIBERATED ITALY

ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 5 — The statement yesterday by Harold MacMillan, Acting President of the Allied Commission in Italy, that an announcement of details of a «New Deal» for Italy will be made soon, the Roatta trial and the statement by Ambassador Carandini, before his return to London, were featured in most papers here today.

MacMillan's statement was given the most prominent position in all papers. There are no comments, except those implied by the headlines.

Il Tempo's (Independent) caption read: «Anglo-American agreement reached on aid for Italians.» The article reported MacMillan's speech and also a statement made yesterday by U.S. Secretary of State Stettinius on the same subject.

Stettinius was quoted as saying: «For military reasons we must help the Italians in rebuilding power stations, railways, roads. We must send to Italy for some time engineers and industrial experts, to help the Italians stand on their feet again.»

Il Popolo's (Christian Democrat) headlines read: «A new Allied plan to help Italy.» They quoted MacMillan's remark: «I believe the Italian people will respond to confidence.»

Italia Libera (Action) announced: «In an atmosphere of greater independence, Italy will be reborn morally and materially.»

All papers except the Avanti! (Socialist), quoted in full the sentence: «But whatever we can do for Italy is as nothing to what the Italians can and must do for themselves morally as well as materially.»

Burgled Safes

The Avanti! wrote that, according to a deposition made by Colonel Emanuele Santo, General Roatta gave secret codes and confidential documents to the German Intelligence Service, thus placing the Italian service under German control.

Italia Libera (Action) quoted Santo, giving details of how some operations took place: «Documents were taken from the safes of foreign embassies. In every embassy, or at least in almost every embassy, we had assistants who supplied us with the keys, thanks to which we gained admittance to the premises.

«We took away what we needed, photographed the documents, and a few hours later, put the originals back in their place. In one year we successfully laid hands on 16,000 documents.»

Risorgimento Liberale (Liberal) gave the full text of the statement made by Count Nicolo Carandini, just before his departure for London.

HITLER APPROVES TORTURE

LONDON, January 5 — Commenting on the report issued recently by military authorities on Nazi brutalities in a Belgian concentration camp, the Yorkshire Post said today «there are still some people who believe that Hitler and his colleagues are misrepresented by Allied propaganda and never do the cruel things their own words in praise of violence and revenge have admitted.»

The paper continued; «Let us recall what Hitler said before the war in the presence of Rauschnig: 'Brutality is respected. Why be indignant about tortures? So-called atrocities spare me a hundred thousand individual actions against disobedience and discontent. People will think twice before opposing us when they hear what to expect in the camps. The important thing is the sudden shock of an overwhelming fear of death.'

U. S.-BRITISH ACCORD ON ECONOMY IN ITALY

WASHINGTON, January 5, — Secretary of State Stettinius said yesterday that the U.S. and British Government are in «substantial agreement» on a policy of reconstructing economy in Italy.

Stettinius' statement was a formal reply to queries at a press conference yesterday. He said that British and U.S. officials have held conferences on methods to implement their joint policy of reconstruction and that there have been no «major differences» in these discussions.

«It is perfectly clear that the United States and the United Kingdom governments are in basic agreement in a desire to provide assistance to enable the Italians to start rebuilding their economic life and furnish the maximum contribution to the war effort,» the statement added. (OWI)

FOOD FOR ITALIANS: ROOSEVELT COMMENTS

WASHINGTON, January 5 — President Roosevelt told a press conference today that a new program for feeding Italy has been agreed upon and that more food is going into that country. He said he could not estimate the increase in pounds but declared there were more calories in the new shipments.

President Roosevelt said shipping is still a very great problem in feeding the Italians.

The President was told that some people believe the Italian armistice terms should be made public on the ground that military considerations are no longer a factor for continued secrecy, but the President replied that military people on the spot still consider this factor important. Some people in this country, he added, seem to know more than the military authorities in the area. (OWI)

LIVESTOCK FOR DEVASTATED FROSINONE AREA

ROME, January 5 — Livestock looted or destroyed by the Germans is gradually being replaced in the war-devastated Frosinone region by the Agricultural Bureau of the Province, with the aid of the Agricultural Sub-Commission of the Allied Commission, it was announced today.

The first distribution of 31 mules, four horses and four ponies was made a few days ago to aid farmers in starting their crops.

FIGHTING ENDS IN ATHENS

ATHENS, January 5 — Organized resistance in this city and the port of Piraeus has ceased, press dispatches and the BBC reported tonight.

Although there was no official confirmation of the end of the fighting which began on December 4, a BBC correspondent said British troops entered the northern section of the city, last area held by ELAS forces, and met no opposition except for occasional sniper fire.

News of the cessation of fighting in the Greek capital came soon after General Plastiras, new Greek Prime Minister, appealed to opposition forces in Greece to lay down their arms and warned that « order will be restored and by all available means. »

Street fighting still was in progress this morning when General Plastiras made his appeal for hostilities to cease. Calling for Greek Unity he said: « Today there is a Regent as well as a Government whose composition should guarantee to the left wing and republicans that there is no ground for their suspicion. »

The Prime Minister asked for a gathering of forces to be sent with the Allied armies against Germany and Japan and expressed a hope that an army of 200,000 to 300,000 men could be raised. A similar expression was made by Greek Foreign Minister Sophianopoulos, who said that « Greece must be restored at the earliest moment as an active member of the United Nations. »

The Soviet Government today announced the appointment of Michael Sergeeiv as the new Soviet Ambassador to Greece. Sergeeiv previously held a diplomatic post at the Soviet Embassy in Greece.

EPURATION MORE RAPID IN NORTH, SFORZA SAYS

ROME, January 5 — « Punishment of Fascist crimes and epuration in northern Italy will be infinitely more easy and more rapid than heretofore, » Count Carlo Sforza said in a report summarizing the work of the office of the High Commissioner for Sanctions against Fascism issued here today. Publication of the report followed the announcement of Sforza's resignation as chief of that office.

The report said 3,000 investigations have been carried out under the authority of the Deputy Commissioner for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes, Mario Berlinguer. One thousand and thirteen have been turned over to civil and military courts, along with pre-trial proceedings. Of the investigations 225 were followed through to the trial stage by investigating magistrates of the Deputy Commissioner's office.

The report stated that 237 cases of amnesty granted during Fascism for offenses committed against anti-Fascists have been declared null and void and that « many more are in process of annulment. »

The report added: « The delay in the application of article 8 of the law for sanctions against Fascism, which contemplates the loss of political rights and confinement of dangerous Fascists, is due in most cases to the lack of judges to preside over investigating commissions. »

Speaking of the work of the Deputy Commissioner for Epuration (formerly Mauro Scoccimarro, who is now in the cabinet as Minister for Occupied Italy), Sforza said: « The (epuration) task was an arduous one because we had to start by naming about 160 primary epuration commissions and a central committee to hear appeals from decisions of the former. The primary epuration commissions have handed down 3,210 decisions, 539 of which consisted in discharges from employment and 1,316 in the application of minor sanctions. Cases dismissed numbered 1,355.

Civil servants suspended from their jobs at the request of the commissions in the various administrations numbered 2,910. Only 600 persons were suspended at the request of the office of the Deputy High Commissioner. »

U. S. STAND ON POLAND REAFFIRMED

NEW YORK, January 5 — U. S. Secretary of State, Stettinius in a letter recently to the American-Polish Association of he East, reiterated that the U. S. will use every effort to help attain «a strong, free and independent Polish state, with the untrammeled right of the Polish people to order their internal existence as they see fit.»

Stettinius' letter was made public here yesterday by Joseph Kaszubowiki, president of the American-Polish group. It was a reply to a memorandum sent by the association to the Secretary of State, urging full implementation of the Atlantic Charter in Poland and other liberated countries, joint administration by the Allied powers of liberated nations and non-recognition of the Lublin Committee, which recently declared itself the Provisional Government of Poland.

Stettinius repeated again that the U. S. continues to recognize the Polish government in London. He told the American-Polish Association that the U. S. is trying to get relief supplies to «the courageous and brave people of Poland.»

«While we are now directing our principal energies to bring about the complete destruction of the Nazi and Japanese menace,» he explained, «we also are endeavoring to get the co-operation and understanding among the United Nations which will make possible the creation of an international organization capable of insuring an era of peace.» (OWI)

NAZIS ASK GERMANS FOR OLD CLOTHES

LONDON, January 5 — Two German war correspondents have been condemned to death by the People's Court in Berlin. Both correspondents, who were in Finland and Sweden recently, declared themselves in favor of the Allies.

The increasing shortage of textiles in Germany was underlined by an appeal issued today jointly by Himmler, Goebbels, Economics Minister Funk and Albert Bormann, head of the Nazi Party chancellery.

The appeal was transmitted by the German radio for release in tomorrow's newspapers. Calling for a «people's sacrifice,» the appeal said a drive will be carried out by the German labor front from January 7 to 28 to collect the following articles: uniforms of the Nazi Party, Wehrmacht, police, fire brigade and postal services, as well as shoes, boots, blankets, cooking utensils, steel helmets and spades.

The appeal was issued «on behalf of the Fuehrer» and asked that every German give up of these articles he does not absolutely need. An earlier request for old clothes transmitted by DNB, said, however: «It is not what you

Stettinius repeated again that the U. S. continued to recognize the Polish government in London. He told the American-Polish Association that the U. S. is trying to get relief supplies to «the courageous and brave people of Poland.»

«While we are now directing our principal energies to bring about the complete destruction of the Nazi and Japanese menace,» he explained, «we also are endeavoring to get the co-operation and understanding among the United Nations which will make possible the creation of an international organization capable of insuring an era of peace.» (OWI)

CHURCHILL VISITS GENERALS IN FRANCE

LONDON, January 5 — Prime Minister Churchill returned to Britain today after a short visit to France, where he saw Generals Eisenhower and de Gaulle and Field Marshal Montgomery. (Reuter)

MILLION FRENCH TROOPS BY SPRING

PARIS, January 5 — France will have a powerful army of a million well equipped troops by the end of spring and will be able to increase her contribution of the Allied fighting forces, André Diethelm, War Minister, said today.

Dithelm expressed satisfaction at the approval given by the combined chiefs of staff in Washington on December 30 to the French Government's demands for armaments and equipment. He called the approval «a great New Year's present to France.» (Reuter)

NEW ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY

LONDON, January 5 — King George VI yesterday nominated the Rt. Rev and Rt. Hon Geoffrey Francis Fisher, Bishop of London, as the Archbishop of Canterbury to succeed the Most Reverent William Temple, who died on October 26.

Dr. Fisher, 57, has been Bishop of London, Dean of the Chapel Royal, and Prelate of the British Empire since 1939. He will be the 97.th Archbishop of Canterbury. (OWI)

FRENCH AIR CHIEF IS MISSING

PARIS, January 5 — Captain Lionel de Marnier, manager of all French air lines, is missing on a flight from Algiers to Paris, said the Associated Press here yesterday, adding that eight others are said to have been aboard the plane, which took off three days ago.

De Marnier, decorated in the last war and a pioneer in French commercial aviation, commanded the first Fighting French Squadron under General de Gaulle. He accompanied the general to Moscow last month. (OWI-AP)

ETHIOPIA RESUMES SOVEREIGNTY

WASHINGTON, January 5 — Ethiopia now has complete sovereignty, the Ethiopian Legation said here yesterday in explaining terms of a new agreement signed with Britain on December 19.

The terms include: Termination of the British Minister's precedence in Ethiopia; freedom of the Ethiopian Government to choose advisers and judges of any nationality; total freedom in financial matters and withdrawal of British forces, except for the British Military Mission which is training the Ethiopian army.

The statement said that because of Ethiopia's desire to retain the friendship of the British, those territories in asking that shipments of all goods to Nazi Germany be halted will be made soon by Britain, the United States and the Provisional Government of France, an official of the Ministry of Economic Warfare said here today.

He added that Switzerland will also be asked to deny Germany transhipment rights through Switzerland.

NAZIS ASK GERMANS FOR OLD CLOTHES

LONDON, January 5 — Two German war correspondents have been condemned to death by the People's Court in Berlin. Both correspondents, who were in Finland and Sweden recently, declared themselves in favor of the Allies.

The increasing shortage of textiles in Germany was underlined by an appeal issued today jointly by Himmler, Goebbels, Economics Minister Funk and Albert Bormann, head of the Nazi Party chancellery.

The appeal was issued «on behalf of the Fuehrer» and asked that every German give up of these articles he does not absolutely need. An earlier request for old clothes transmitted by DNB, said, however: «It is not what you can spare that is expected now, but something that is really useful to you and the loss of which is a privation».

The new Nazi appeal for old clothes is the first time such an emergency call for the German army has been issued since the first disastrous winter offensive in Russia. In December, 1941, after hundreds of thousands of German soldiers had frozen to death on the Eastern Front as a result of inadequate uniforms, a similar appeal, signed by Hitler, called for large contributions of war clothing.

A recent decree ordered that foreign workers in Germany may receive wearable cast off clothes only after their old ones are absolutely unusable. (OWI-Reuter)

BERLIN GESTAPO CHIEF SHOT

BERNE, January 5 — The chief of the Berlin Gestapo was shot and wounded while driving near Berlin on December 23, according to a report reaching here, the London Daily Telegraph correspondent said today.

The Gestapo chief's name was not given, but his assailant is believed to have been Werner Kerten, a friend of Count von Helldorf, the Police Chief of Berlin, who was executed by the Nazis on charges of complicity in the alleged plot against Hitler in July. (OWI)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 5 — Today's communique:

Allied forces in the Ardennes salient continued their attacks southeast of Grandmenil. Bad visibility, snow and rough terrain made movement difficult. Slow, steady progress has been made.

In the Bois de Tave and Albrefontaine areas enemy counter-attacks have been held.

Southeast of Marche we made gains of 1,500 yards against opposition.

Fighting continued around the Bastogne bulge with the enemy making numerous counter-attacks. One near Mande was repulsed and another made by an estimated 35 tanks and a regiment of infantry at Longchamps was followed by heavy fighting.

Farther east a smaller enemy force made some progress from the direction of Bourcy toward Bastogne but was forced to withdraw. South of Bastogne we are clearing the northeast edge of Lutrebois and have made slight gains east of Herpange against strong enemy resistance.

In the Saar Valley our artillery broke up a small force of enemy infantry attacking from Geislautern toward Ludweiler in the area west of Saarbrücken. East of Saargemünd our troops repulsed an enemy counter-attack south of Bliesbrücken. Farther south the enemy units which had penetrated to Gelois, Rederchingen, and Achen were driven back.

In the Lower Vosges Mountains southeast of Bitsch the enemy kept up pressure by repeated small attacks and by attempts to infiltrate. South of Bitsch our troops regained the village of Meisenthal which had changed hands. Hard fighting continued in the vicinity of Barenthal and Philippsburg. In the Colmar area our reconnaissance elements were active. An enemy attack at Kembs on the upper Rhine was repulsed.

Unfavorable flying conditions yesterday confined our air operations to fighter and fighter-bomber missions. Enemy-occupied factory buildings at Sliedrecht in Holland were hit by rocket-firing fighters. Fighter-bombers attacked rail and road transport and struck communications in northern and eastern Holland and over the German border to Münster and Osnabrück.

In the area of Bitsch fighter-bombers attacked gun positions and defended buildings and struck at the enemy's transport and communications.

Ten enemy aircraft were shot down in these operations. Three of our aircraft are missing.

Berlin was attacked last night by light bombers.

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 5 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group.

Northwest of Ravenna, Canadian troops have made further progress against fierce opposition. Leading Canadian armor and infantry have reached the Canale Bonifica one mile south of the River Reno. A number of strong enemy counter-attacks have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Good progress has also been made north of Faenza where 8th Army troops have greatly reduced the German pocket east of the Senio.

On the 5th Army front patrols have been active.

Mediterranean Allied Air Forces:

Heavy bombers attacked a rail bridge at Salcano, in northeastern Italy, and dropped supplies in Yugoslavia.

Medium bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday attacked many targets on the Brenner route, while fighter-bombers also attacked enemy communications over a wide area of northern Italy and Yugoslavia. Strong support was also given to the ground forces in north Italy.

On the night of January 3-4 light bombers attacked bridges, roads, railways and enemy transport in northeast Italy, the Po Valley, and the battle areas. Other aircraft bombed an airfield, a refueling point, and stores in north Italy.

Aircraft of the Coastal Air Force attacked shipping in the Adriatic and Gulf of Genoa, road transport in north Italy and Yugoslavia, and intercepted and destroyed one enemy aircraft.

Balkan Air Force planes over Yugoslavia concentrated against enemy road and rail movements, while other aircraft attacked coastal guns and enemy-occupied buildings in Yugoslavia.

Last night RAF bombers attacked a railway bridge in northeast Italy.

In these operations one enemy aircraft was destroyed and 23 of ours are missing.

MAAF flew over 2,400 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

Although many large built-up areas in Athens-Piraeus still remain to be cleared up, mobile British columns are now operating with success in outlying suburbs. Many prisoners were taken in yesterday's fighting including a number of civilians who were forced by ELAS troops to enter their ranks. These surrendered to British troops at the exchange of a few shots.

In the liberated areas of Athens-Piraeus over 320,000 soup-kitchen meals and 100,000 rations were issued to the civilian population.

ELAS continues to abduct hostages in areas not yet occupied by our troops, in many cases leaving young children unattended in their homes with no means of feeding themselves. Efforts are being made to locate such children and provide for their welfare.

SOVIET

MOSCOW, January 5 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in the area of Budapest, our troops were fighting for the annihilation of the encircled groupings of the enemy in the city, and occupied 233 blocks.

In the course of street fighting, our troops, during January 4, captured 2,400 German and Hungarian soldiers and officers.

Northwest of Budapest, our troops successfully repulsed several strong infantry and tank counter-attacks of the enemy attempting to break through to Budapest. In battles during January 4, in this area, our troops disabled or destroyed 51 German tanks.

In the aerial combats and by the fire of anti-aircraft, in the area northwest of Budapest, 29 enemy planes were shot down.

On other sectors of the front, scout patrolling and, at several sectors, fighting of local importance took place.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 5 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the northern Adennes, yesterday, the battle increased in intensity. The American divisions which again attempted to break through were halted by the concentrated fire of all arms after small initial successes.

In the Bastogne sector, our tank formations maintain their strong pressure. Enemy attacks failed.

Between Sarreguemines and the Rhine, the front is moving. Particularly in the Lower Vosges, our troops are advancing despite the counter-attacks of enemy formations which had been brought up in the meantime.

The town Weissenburg in Alsace and numerous other towns in Lorraine were cleared of the enemy and the Lauter was crossed in a southerly direction.

Yesterday, in the West, 76 tanks and armoured vehicles were either captured or destroyed. Numerous guns and war material of all kinds were seized.

Italy:

In central Italy, the grim defensive fighting continues. North of Faenza, our troops held their positions in face of enemy attempts at breaking through. Northwest of Ravenna, they are engaged in grim fighting against enemy formations which had advanced.

Eastern Front:

The battle of Budapest continues. Yesterday, the German and Hungarian defenders again frustrated grim enemy attacks at the eastern fringe of the city. Grim fighting is still in progress at some points of penetration.

Between the Gran and Grossstaffelsdorf, the attacking Bolsheviks did not achieve noteworthy successes. A Bolshevik formation which had penetrated our positions, was cut off and wiped out by a counter-attack of our tanks.

Yesterday, strong German bomber formations again supported the fighting of the Army in Budapest putting 18 tanks out of action. Thirty Soviet planes were brought down, 26 of them in dogfights, by the action of our fighters and bombers.

In Courland, south of Frauenburg, several local Bolshevik attacks failed.

Yesterday, only minor formations of enemy planes flying at a low altitude were over the Reich territory. In the evening hours and at midnight, fast British bombers again attacked the Reich capital.

London was subjected to an intensified bombardment by our retaliatory weapons. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Article by Goebbels: The German Radio tonight broadcast the text of the weekly article in Das Reich by the German Minister of Propaganda. His main propaganda is to revive German self-confidence, after the many German defeats, by constantly reiterating that the war has at last taken a «turn in favor of Germany». He ascribes this supposed change to the «strength and insight of the German people,» whose heroism and perseverance he praises lavishly as part of the process of exacting ever more sacrifices from them. On «German war morale,» he says, depends the «final success,» which he confidently predicts.

The other striking trend of the article is a revival of the Fuehrer cult, already noted in the previous article by Goebbels and characterized by the extravagantly worded praise of the «genius» of Hitler.

Clothing Shortage Admitted: An item which may turn out to be of particular significance, is a very long and very urgently worded appeal broadcast tonight by the German Home Radio. This appeal, in the name of the «total war output,» demands that all Germans contribute clothing for the Army and Volkssturm. This request is «by order of the Fuehrer, clothing and equipment being urgently needed for the formation of new units.» All types of clothing, even underwear, are included in this demand. «Every countryman must give up everything he does not absolutely need.»

Western Front: The policy of recent days, of warning the German public of the seriousness of the Allied reply to the German offensive, was brought out today and yesterday in the front reports by Seriorius. Tonight he warns: «On the northwestern flank of the German penetration area, the First American Army on Thursday increased its pressure perceptibly.» On the southern flank, likewise, a «major attack» against the German bulge is threatened. (In this case by the Third Army.)

Eastern Front: Aside from the stress on the fierceness of the battle for Budapest, the most striking statement from German sources is the following prediction (made by von Oiberg over Transocean): «Between Memel and Kosice a quiet reigns which calls for the greatest attention, because the expected storm may break loose at any hour.»

of the «Bolshevik Tito bands.» He was supposedly accused of being a member of the «Catholic Fifth Column» and of being an «enemy of the proletariat.» It is further alleged that this «terror sentence» was carried out by shooting the Archbishop in the nape of the neck.

Political Exploitation of Polish Crisis: One of the most persistent German propaganda trends during the last week has been to play up, with varying anti-Allied interpretations, the dispute between the Polish governments at London and Lublin.

Throughout the week, two points have been hammered in again and again by German propaganda, concerning the Polish crisis: 1) that the Allied camp as a whole betrays the small nations; 2) that within the Allied camp there exist grave dissensions, caused by Russia's supposed territorial expansion beyond the bounds suitable to her Allies.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Southern Front: On Friday night the Fascist Radio reports fierce fighting between «Canadian units and German defensive forces southwest and northeast of Ravenna». It is claimed that the Germans have partly regained the ground they lost on Thursday, destroying some tanks and taking prisoners. The Allies are said to have brought up further reserves.

Sforza Makes Resignation Statement: Fascist Radio discusses the long report Sforza submitted upon his work of persecuting Fascists in 'invaded' Italy and adds with satisfaction that «the purger has been purged.»

Food Supplies To Italy: A Reuter report from New York is quoted by Fascist Radio, telling of the publication by the New York Daily Mirror of a secret note sent by Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador, to the State Department. In this note, the commentaor says, Lord Halifax protested against the United States proposal to increase food supplies to Italy without Britain's consent. «British public opinion would not allow His Majesty's government to be associated in the rehabilitation of Italy.» The commentator points out that Britain wishes to aid Italy only in so far as is absolutely essential for the prosecution of the war against Germany and Japan. The commentator states that while American public opinion is in favor of increasing supplies to Italy, Britain's rigid attitude might well lead to «new political differences between the two countries.» He wonders whether the United States would take the responsibility of provoking such a situation.

Food Control: The Fascist Radio discusses the latest decree by the Republican Government requisitioning all business enterprises connected with food supplies. It admits that this is a measure to eliminate «speculation, which took advantage of supply difficulties... in certain areas.» The culprits are said to be «a few self-centred people... opposed to national unity...» The decree mentions the appointment of «a special commissioner controlling wholesale-dealers.»

John Amery on Jews: In his usual Friday talks, John Amery replied to those listeners who had stated that «these attacks against international Judaism are a very good thing,» and asked of what international Judaism consists.

Amery apologises for not having enlightened his listeners before. He contests the popular belief that anti-semitism is «a German or Nazi invention. For the last two thousand years,» he says, «nearly all great thinkers have ruthlessly condemned the Jews and with them international finance». It was for Germany to reveal the truth» expelling the Jews who sought to exploit the German people. He quoted excerpts from some «great thinkers», including the Italian, Fitturoli, condemning the Jews, and concluded that, as Carthage was, «international Judaism will be destroyed».

Allied Air Raids: The Fascist Radio tells of air raid damage in Alessandria, Voghera, Cremona and Mantua, of civilian casualties and the destruction of dwelling houses. It quotes a sermon by the Bishop of Mantua, deploring the terror raids which recently destroyed his villa, which he had turned into an orphanage, which had resulted in «the

AMERICANS GAIN ON NORTH FLANK OF SALIENT: GERMANS ADVANCE ON 7TH FRONT

LONDON, January 4 — A news blackout imposed while the American 1st Army was advancing against the Germans' right flank in Belgium was partially lifted tonight to show a gain of almost four miles on a six-mile front.

In the Bitsch sector, an American withdrawal from the outskirts of the city was reported by Reuter. The report said the troops were pulled back to avoid being cut off by the German southward penetration. A decrease in the intensity of the German attacks south and southeast of the city was reported by SHAEF. Three small-scale attacks were repulsed.

While 1st Army troops continued to advance through the Germans' northern flank on the Belgium salient, 3rd Army forces, driving up from the south made gains, particularly west of Bastogne.

The western wing of the advancing line was reported officially to be one mile south of Vesqueville, which is two miles southeast of St. Hubert, a German strongpoint. Units further to the east pushed ahead two miles to the area east of Bonnerue.

U. S. Airborne Division

Some of the heaviest fighting of the campaign is reported at Longchamps and Michamps, northwest and northeast of Bastogne. At both of these American-held towns, the Germans threw panzer units in an unsuccessful effort to seal off the American penetrations into their salient. A 3rd Army spokesman said that 10 German divisions, including five armored, are in action around the sector, indicating the importance the enemy attaches to the Allied advance.

Press reports said the enemy used 100 tanks in the counter-drive but tonight there were no signs of the Americans giving ground. Included in the American defending forces is the 101st Airborne Division, which played a vital part in holding Bastogne when it was temporarily encircled by German troops during the first seven days of their drive across Luxembourg and Belgium.

American troops have taken Senonchamps, three miles west of Bastogne, while, to the northeast, fighting is reported in the area of Bourcy, one and a half miles past Michamps, which is already in American hands.

German efforts to drive into the supply corridor to Bastogne have been held, but heavy fighting is reported southwest of Villers La Bonne, only two miles from the road at a point south of Bastogne. Lutrebois, three miles south of Bastogne, came under enemy artillery fire.

Further to the east, in what a spokesman described as "terrifically heavy" fighting, American infantry advanced in the Wiltz area, but still are a mile from the town.

All German gains west of Rochefort have been wiped out, press reports said. Today's communique said that a village south of the city was taken in spite of strong enemy resistance.

LONDON, January 4 — A news blackout imposed while the American 1st Army was advancing against the Germans' right flank in Belgium was partially lifted tonight to show a gain of almost four miles on a six-mile front.

The sector of the push was placed by today's SHAEF communique in the Grandmenil area, 21 miles north of Bastogne. This is 16 miles from the nearest 3rd Army units which are driving through the enemy's southern flank in an attempt to bisect the German salient.

A snowstorm shrouded the attacking 1st Army tanks and infantry. Front-line reports said that enemy forward lines and outposts already have been overrun but the main panzer defenses have not yet been reached. The dispatches that have been released indicated that heavy German resistance is anticipated. The enemy is fighting desperately to stave off further American inroads on the salient, which is held by about 200,000 German troops.

On the 70-mile 7th Army front on the edge of the Saar Basin, reports indicated a slackening of the German offensive. The American troops there have made slight withdrawals to more advantageous positions. SHAEF revealed today that the German bridgehead over the Blies River is just south of Habkirchen, four miles southeast of Saargemünd. Enemy units have reached the vicinity of Achen, four miles south of the bridgehead, but American artillery has checked any further advance.

The crossing was made in « small force, » SHAEF said, and was effected only after several previous attempts had been thrown back.

The western wing of the advancing line was reported officially to be one mile south of Vesqueville, which is two miles southeast of St. Hubert, a German strongpoint. Units further to the east pushed ahead two miles to the area east of Bonnerue.

U. S. Airborne Division

Some of the heaviest fighting of the campaign is reported at Longchamps and Michamps, northwest and northeast of Bastogne. At both of these American-held towns, the Germans threw panzer units in an unsuccessful effort to seal off the American penetrations into their salient. A 3rd Army spokesman said that 10 German divisions, including five armored, are in action around the sector, indicating the importance the enemy attaches to the Allied advance.

Press reports said the enemy used 100 tanks in the counter-drive but tonight there were no signs of the Americans giving ground. Included in the American defending forces is the 101st Airborne Division, which played a vital part in holding Bastogne when it was temporarily encircled by German troops during the first seven days of their drive across Luxembourg and Belgium.

American troops have taken Senonchamps, three miles west of Bastogne, while, to the northeast, fighting is reported in the area of Bourcy, one and a half miles past Michamps, which is already in American hands.

German efforts to drive into the supply corridor to Bastogne have been held, but heavy fighting is reported southwest of Villers La Bonne, only two miles from the road at a point south of Bastogne. Lutrebois, three miles south of Bastogne, came under enemy artillery fire.

Further to the east, in what a spokesman described as « terrifically heavy » fighting, American infantry advanced in the Wiltz ares, but still are a mile from the town.

All German gains west of Rochefort have been wiped out, press reports said. Today's communique said that a village south of the city was taken in spite of strong enemy resistance.

LATE BULLETINS

1ST ARMY ADVANCES ON 13-MILE FRONT

LONDON, January 4 — American 1st Army troops have advanced along a 13-mile front against the northern flank of the German salient and now threaten the La Roche-St. Vith road, one of the two major enemy supply routes, Reuter said tonight. Odeigne, two miles north of the road, has been taken. Amonines, five miles due west also has been entered.

A 3rd Army spokesman said tonight that six heavy German counter-attacks in the Bastogne area had temporarily halted the American push against the enemy southern flank. There has been no American withdrawal, however.

BRITISH CLEAR OMONIA SQUARE

ATHENS, January 4 — British forces have cleared Omonia Square here where ELAS troops have been holding out since the outbreak of civil war, a Reuter dispatch reported from here late tonight.

Neighboring areas also have been cleared in the face of strong opposition. It also was reported tonight that two British officers and seven civilians had been killed by ELAS mortar bombs in Constitution Square this morning.

3,000 BOMBER ATTACKS PROMISED

SHAEF, January 4 — Germany can expect her military objectives to be bombed by as many as 3,000 Allied heavy bombers on a single occasion just as soon as the weather permits, it was stated here tonight.

Heavy bombers of the 8th USAAF were kept on the ground today by bad weather over the Continent, after 12 consecutive days of operations in some of the worst weather ever seen in Britain.

Last night, strong forces of Mosquitos of the 2nd TAF attacked the important centers of Houffalize and Saint Vith, in the German Ardennes salient. The bombing was done entirely by instrument.

A spokesman for the USAAF revealed at a press conference here yesterday that AAF planes destroyed 823 German aircraft, probably destroyed 73 others, and damaged 250 on the ground on the Western Front from the opening of the German offensive on December 16 to January 1.

During that period the USAAF flew 33,066 sorties, including 11,036 by heavy bombers, 3,895 by medium and light bombers, and 18,225 by fighters.

The spokesman said that 1,261 German railroad cars were destroyed and another 3,290 damaged; 100 locomotives were destroyed and 278 damaged. There were 226 motor transports destroyed and 283 damaged; 210 armored vehicles, including tanks, destroyed and 129 damaged; and 319 buildings destroyed and 193 damaged.

Summarizing results achieved by the 19th TAF during December, a Reuter correspondent said that in 27 days of good flying weather, 2,564 motor transports were destroyed along with 335 tanks and armored vehicles, 200 gun positions, 1,445 railway cars, and 153 locomotives. Railway lines were cut in 285 places. (OWI - Reuter)

CANADIANS WITHIN MILE OF RENO RIVER

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY January 4 — Canadian infantry and armored forces, continuing their attacks northwest of Ravenna, have penetrated the hinge of the German defenses guarding the Ferrara and the coastal roads, to thrust to within a mile of the Reno River just south of the Comacchio Lagoon, it was reported here today.

In heavy fighting, in which the enemy brought up Tiger and Panther tanks in an effort to halt the Canadians who threaten to cut the German defenses northwest and north of Ravenna, the 8th Army captured Conventello, a village two miles east of Alfonsine. The 8th Army forces then pushed on northeast to within two miles of the hamlet of Sant'Alberto, six miles northeast of the German stronghold on the Ferrara Road.

A communique issued by 15th Army Group, stated that the enemy launched four counter-attacks against the advancing Canadian forces. All four were repulsed. The official situation reports stated that German light infantry forces were failing, and that the lumbering German tanks were carrying the brunt of the losing battle.

Canadian forces have now pushed more than three miles north of the Ravenna-Ferrara Highway, across the lowlands east of the Fosso Verchio. They have reached to within a mile of the only road running the southern edge of the Comachio Lagoon. This road is important to the German forces holding the coast and the southern approach to Porto Garibaldi, which is 18 miles northeast of Ravenna, and an entry port for the city of Ferrara.

Heavy casualties have been inflicted on the German

The enemy launched a series of weak raids against the Gaggio area, on the north flank of the 5th Army salient west of the Reno River, 28 miles southwest of Bologna. The village of Gaggio is located midway between the Pistoia-Bologna highway along the river and Monte Belvedere, which formed the apex of the Allied penetration until its recapture by the enemy over a month ago.

East of this same highway and some 14 miles to the northeast of Gaggio, South African troops clashed with small enemy groups south of Monte Sole.

In continued hard fighting, 8th Army troops yesterday made gains of 500 yards in their slow battle to reduce the German salient east of the Senio River in the area between Bagnacavallo and Sant'Andrea, three miles northeast of Faenza. (PRO)

NORTH ITALY RAIL TARGETS HIT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 4 — Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF, returning to the air after five successive days' «stand down» because of bad weather, today struck at five rail yards along the Brenner Pass line in northern Italy.

Fortresses attacked two rail yards at Verona, at the junction of the Brenner line and the Po Valley rail network, while Liberators hit rail points at Trento, Bronzolo and Bolzano, further north. Lightning fighters bombed a bridge at Cismon along a feeder line from Trento to Venice.

Medium and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Forces struck at 10 road and rail bridges along German supply lines in northern Italy, and carried out close-support attacks on enemy gun positions and battleline strongpoints in the Alfonsine-Lugo-Imola area across the southeastern end of the Po plain.

Railway lines were cut in 67 places and the aircraft also damaged or destroyed 22 locomotives, 244 rail cars, 120 motor vehicles, 67 buildings, 15 railway and two road bridges and a 200-foot vessel. (PRO)

FORMOSA BOMBED TWICE IN TWO DAYS

PEARL HARBOR, January 4 — Carrier-based aircraft of a powerful U.S. Navy task force attacked Formosa yesterday for the second time in two days, Pacific Fleet headquarters announced today.

At the same time other American planes hit Okinawa Island, midway between Formosa and the southernmost of the Japanese homeland islands, the announcement said.

Formosa, a major Japanese supply base, is 800 miles southwest of Japan and 200 miles north of the Philippines.

Meanwhile, U.S. ground forces, striking from the east and west coast of Mindoro Island in the Philippines, where they made new amphibious landings early this week, are making good progress. Press dispatches reported today that so far the U.S. troops have met little Japanese resistance.

Sixty miles north of Mindoro, U.S. planes are keeping up a continuous pounding of the island of Luzon in what correspondents termed a «softening up» process. Luzon is the island on which Manila, capital of the Philippines, is located.

General Douglas MacArthur's communique reported tonight that Japanese troops still are being routed out of hide-outs on the island of Leyte and during yesterday's fighting, 1,287 more of the enemy were killed and 15 taken prisoner. The unsuccessful Japanese attempt to retain Leyte already has cost them a total of 121,064 troops, General MacArthur said. This loss also brought comment from Japanese Premier Koiso who, speaking on the Japanese Radio, conceded that the situation in the Philippines «has reached a very serious phase.»

Heavy casualties have been inflicted on the German Jaeger forces involved in this fighting, and 100 more prisoners from this formation were captured yesterday.

On the 5th Army front, considerable small-scale action occurred yesterday both in the central sector south and southwest of Bologna, and on the right flank, where British forces are battling their way up the Santerno River Valley south of Imola.

Village Shelled

German raiding forces, preceded by a Nebelwerfer barrage, were repulsed in the areas of Monte Del Verro and the Sillara Ridge high ground some eight to nine miles southwest of Imola. Farther east in this sector, British patrol forces which attempted to penetrate into the hamlet of Paradiso, northwest of Tossignano and seven miles southwest of Imola, were forced to withdraw.

Due south of Bologna and a mile and a half northwest of Livergnano, American forces yesterday broke up four successive enemy raids against the hamlet of Sant'Ansano, just west of the main Bologna approach road and 10 miles from Bologna's outskirts. German forces also attempted unsuccessfully to ambush Allied patrols in this area and American planes, ranging over the Philippines on Tuesday and Wednesday sunk or severely damaged 35 Japanese ships in Lingayen Gulf and Subic Bay off the island of Luzon, it was officially announced.

In other Pacific aerial action, Babelthuap in the Palau Islands, Rota in the Marianas, and the remaining enemy positions in the Marshalls were hit by American planes, the Pacific Fleet announcement said.

Although sacrificing a tremendous amount of shipping and troops, the «power of the Japanese to strike retaliatory blows on the Philippines is still lively,» Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today. He pointed out that American shipping to Mindoro must run through the dangers of enemy air attack and losses have been suffered. He added «there is no doubt however, of our ability to sustain and reinforce our positions.» (OWI - Reuter)

SOVIETS HALT NAZI ATTACK

MOSCOW, January 4 — The first momentum of the German attack near Komarno, on the Danube 40 miles from Budapest, has been halted after three days of savage fighting. The Russians hurled back nine successive attacks against their positions and the enemy lost several thousand dead. In this costly attempt to gain time for preparing the defenses of Vienna by trying to break through to the beleaguered German garrison in Budapest, the Germans threw in the biggest armored forces seen since the fighting for the Hungarian town of Debrecen.

The methodical reduction of German strongpoints in Budapest continued and 277 additional blocks of houses were occupied by the Red Army. In this area 78 tanks were destroyed yesterday and 58 German planes shot down.

Front-line dispatches said the fighting in the capital continues day and night. The Germans have fortified especially those buildings from which two or three streets can be covered at the same time by machine-gun and artillery fire. Every engagement is fought with extreme violence and usually ends with the annihilation of the German defenders. (Radio Moscow-BBC)

SUPERFORTS HIT BANGKOK AREA

WASHINGTON, January 4 — Joining in the Allied air assault on Japanese communications in Southeast Asia, a medium force of India-based Superfortresses last Tuesday struck at enemy communications in the Bangkok area of Siam, the War Department announced today. Bombing results were good and no bombers were lost.

This was the fourth Superfortress attack on enemy installations at Bangkok. The first attack was made June 5.

The recapture yesterday of Wanting by the Chinese means that the last major obstacle to the re-opening of the Burma Road has gone, a Reuter dispatch said tonight. The Japanese were reported to be retreating southward in disorder.

Wanting in western Yunnan on the Burma-China border, was beseiged for several weeks by American-trained troops under the command of General Wei Li-Huang. Its fall concluded the eight months' Salween campaign in which isolated Japanese garrisons were forced out of their strongholds in difficult terrain.

The Chinese High Command announced today that their forces in south and central China had halted the Japanese forces moving south below Hengyang, enemy-held rail center midway between Hankow and Canton.

Seven Japanese vessels loaded with gasoline were destroyed and another was probably sunk by the 7th USAAF in attacks yesterday on Yangtze River shipping between Hankow and Kiukiang.

Attacking Tsinan airfield in north China, planes of the 14th USAAF destroyed 13 Japanese planes on the ground and damaged an additional 11. On their way home the American aircraft were intercepted by enemy fighters of which they destroyed or damaged another five.

Other units of the 14th USAAF supported Chinese ground troops in the Lung Valley and near Wanting, strafing the enemy and damaging transportation facilities.

Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the 14th USAAF, was awarded the Legion of Merit yesterday for the «phenomenal success» which he achieved as commander of the China Air Task Force between July 4, 1942 and March 9, 1943.

In Burma, British troops of the 14th Army who yesterday entered Ye-U, important railhead 70 miles northwest of Mandalay, have encountered enemy opposition from Japanese troops in position across the River Mu, a communique from SEAC headquarters said today. North of Ye-U, other 14th Army troops have enlarged their bridgehead across the Mu River near Kabo Weir in the face of enemy opposition.

Near the China-Burma frontier, Allied troops have taken Japanese positions north and northeast of Kanbalu. (Reuter-OWI)

added: «The enemy, having made his gamble, is not yet pulling out, and on the contrary he has dug in at certain points on the perimeter of the salient and maintained enough troops in the center to threaten another push.»

He said the U.S. War Department has not yet received a full statement of personnel and material losses resulting from the German drive launched on December 16.

He said that 22,430 German prisoners had been captured in the salient between December 16 and 30.

Referring again to the action on the Saar front, Stimson said the purpose of the Germans is either to discourage the movement of Allied divisions to the Ardennes salient or to exploit the weaknesses created by such movements.

Discussing larger aspects of the German offensive, Stimson said: «Another point of view which must be kept in mind is the close relationship to what is going on in Italy and the prospects of the Russian front. Also included are considerations regarding German withdrawals from Norway, the weakening of garrisons in Denmark and the northward trek of German troops in the Balkan salient. In fact, Europe is a single theater and decidedly so for the Germans.»

NEGRO PILOTS WIN AWARDS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 4 — The all-Negro 15th USAAF fighter group yesterday celebrated its first anniversary. During the year it has flown nearly 6,000 sorties and has destroyed more than 250 enemy planes.

The Negro pilots of the group have been awarded 24 Distinguished Flying Crosses and more than 200 air medals and Oak Leaf Clusters.

The group is now equipped with long-range Mustang fighters. (PRO)

TEHERAN STRATEGY TO UNFOLD SOON

MOSCOW, January 4 — Strategic plans conceived at the Teheran Conference for the complete defeat of Germany are now about to be carried out, Radio Moscow said tonight.

1,500,000 TONS OF BOMBS ON NAZIS IN 1944

LONDON, January 4 — Nearly one and a half million tons of bombs were dropped by the Allied air forces in Europe on targets in Germany and enemy-occupied Europe during 1944.

Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe, said today that these forces in Europe and in the Mediterranean area dropped 998,000 tons of bombs during 1944. Combatt losses from all quarters were 9,274 aircraft, while the German aircraft destroyed totalled 15,218.

The RAF Bomber Command dropped more than 525,000 tons of bombs in 1944. This is more than twice the weight dropped in the first four and a quarter years of the war.

The number of Bomber Command aircraft dispatched was seven per cent greater than in all the previous years of the war put together.

Of the bomb tonnage dropped by this command, 52 per cent was dropped on industrial objectives in Germany. The remainder hit German transport directly supporting the Allied armies, ports and shipping, and weapon sites.

Bomber Command operated on 319 nights and 167 days [illegible] bombs dropped on one night was results were good and no bombers were lost.

This was the fourth Superfortress attack on enemy installations at Bangkok. The first attack was made June 5.

The recapture yesterday of Wanting by the Chinese means that the last major obstacle to the re-opening of the Burma Road has gone, a Reuter dispatch said tonight. The Japanese were reported to be retreating southward in disorder.

Wanting in western Yunnan on the Burma-China border, was besieged for several weeks by American-trained troops under the command of General Wei Li-Huang. Its fall concluded the eight months' Salween campaign in which isolated Japanese garrisons were forced out of their strongholds in difficult terrain.

The Chinese High Command announced today that their forces in south and central China had halted the Japanese forces moving south below Hengyang, enemy-held rail center midway between Hankow and Canton.

Seven Japanese vessels loaded with gasoline were destroyed and another was probably sunk by the 7th USAAF in attacks yesterday on Yangtze River shipping between Hankow and Kiukiang.

Attacking Tsinan airfield in north China, planes of the 14th USAAF destroyed 13 Japanese planes on the ground and damaged an additional 11. On their way home the American aircraft were intercepted by enemy fighters of which they destroyed or damaged another five.

Other units of the 14th USAAF supported Chinese ground troops in the Lung Valley and near Wanting, strafing the enemy and damaging transportation facilities.

Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the 14th USAAF, was awarded the Legion of Merit yesterday for the «phenomenal success» which he achieved as commander of the China Air Task Force between July 4, 1942 and March 9, 1943.

In Burma, British troops of the 14th Army who yesterday entered Ye-U, important railhead 70 miles northwest of Mandalay, have encountered enemy opposition from Japanese troops in position across the River Mu, a communique from SEAC headquarters said today. North of Ye-U, other 14th Army troops have enlarged their bridgehead across the Mu River near Kabo Weir in the face of enemy opposition.

Near the China-Burma frontier, Allied troops have taken Japanese positions north and northeast of Kanbalu.

YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE MORE TOWNS

LONDON, January 4 — At two points in eastern Bosnia, near the Slavonian border, Yugoslav troops have repulsed German assaults, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

In northeast Bosnia, stiff fighting continues on a wide front. Here, under a night attack, German forces had to retreat and «suffered heavy losses,» the communique added.

In the Una Valley, on the Croatia-Bosnia border, Yugoslav troops liberated the towns of Doljane and Dobro Selo and are advancing toward Lapac.

North of Bihac, Croatia, four localities have been liberated after two days' fighting. Enemy losses, the communique said, amount to over 300 German dead and 30 prisoners. Two howitzers, 300 automatic weapons, a great number of rifles and other war material were captured by the Yugoslavia. (OWI)

«GERMANS STILL STRONG» - STIMSON

WASHINGTON, January 4 — The Germans still hold enough power to launch another, though smaller, offensive on the Western Front, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today.

The Germans are «a tough, diciplined army and will never rest on a passive defense,» he said. The Secretary

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 4 — The all-Negro 15th USAAF fighter group yesterday celebrated its first anniversary. During the year it has flown nearly 6,000 sorties and has destroyed more than 250 enemy planes.

The Negro pilots of the group have been awarded 24 Distinguished Flying Crosses and more than 200 air medals and Oak Leaf Clusters.

The group is now equipped with long-range Mustang fighters. (PRO)

TEHERAN STRATEGY TO UNFOLD SOON

MOSCOW, January 4 — Strategic plans conceived at the Teheran Conference for the complete defeat of Germany are now about to be carried out, Radio Moscow said tonight.

1,500,000 TONS OF BOMBS ON NAZIS IN 1944

LONDON, January 4 — Nearly one and a half million tons of bombs were dropped by the Allied air forces in Europe on targets in Germany and enemy-occupied Europe during 1944.

Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe, said today that these forces in Europe and in the Mediterranean area dropped 998,000 tons of bombs during 1944. Combatt losses from all quarters were 9,274 aircraft, while the German aircraft destroyed totalled 15,318.

The RAF Bomber Command dropped more than 525,000 tons of bombs in 1944. This is more than twice the weight dropped in the first four and a quarter years of the war.

The number of Bomber Command aircraft dispatched was seven per cent greater than in all the previous years of the war put together.

Of the bomb tonnage dropped by this command, 52 per cent was dropped on industrial objectives in Germany. The remainder hit German transport directly supporting the Allied armies, ports and shipping, and weapon sites.

Bomber Command operated on 319 nights and 167 days. The greatest weight of bombs dropped on one night was 5,500 tons. The greatest weight released in 24 hours was 10,300 tons.

The total area devastated in German industrial towns is now at least 36,000 acres. (Reuter)

ALLIES TOOK 1,700,000 PRISONERS IN 1944

LONDON, January 4 — The Allies took over 1,700,000 German prisoners on the battle fronts of Europe during 1944, a correspondent for an Allied press service estimated today.

At the same time, Radio Moscow estimated total enemy casualties, including killed and wounded, at 4,500,000 during the year.

Allied armies in the west and on the Italian Front captured about 900,000 enemy troops last year, of which 800,000 were taken on the Western Front from June 6 to December 25.

The Red Army took 804,000 Nazi troops during the last 12 months, not including Hungarians Rumanians and other satellites. The bulk of these were captured in the first six months of the year in the offensives which liberated the Ukraine, the Crimea, White Russia and the Leningrad region. Over 130,000 enemy fighters were seized in the fall and winter campaign in the Balkans.

Radio Moscow pointed out also that during the year territory equalling six times the total area of Germany was liberated. (OWI-Reuter)

PRIVATE WINS V. C. IN ITALY

LONDON, January 4 — The Victoria Cross has been awarded to Private Richard H. Burton, of the Duke of Wellington's Regiment, for «magnificent gallantry in the fighting in Italy.»

Last October, two companies of the Regiment attacked an enemy position on a hill. When they were 25 yards away, Private Burton dashed forward with his tommy gun and knocked out the position.

When the assault again was held up by two German machine guns, Burton used his tommy gun until out of ammunition and then picked up a Bren gun and continued firing until the German crews were either killed or wounded.

The Germans counter-attacked strongly and although most of his comrades were either dead or wounded, Burton again «directed such accurate fire that the Germans were forced to retire, leaving the hill feature firmly in our hands.» (BBC)

U. S. SUBMARINES SET BRILLANT RECORD

WASHINGTON, January 4 — American submarines are setting a brillant record in the Pacific and have become one of the deadliest underwater forces in history, the STAR said in an editorial today.

The editorial continued: «Since December 7, 1941, they have sunk 99 Japanese warships, including a large aircraft carrier, and 635 non-combatant vessels aggregating over three million 500,000 tons or about half of Japan's pre-war strength. This record has been achieved at a cost of 38 American submarines. (OWI)

NEW DEAL FOR ITALY SOON

ROME, January 4 — A statement containing the details of an Allied «New Deal» for Italy will soon be made by the governments of the United States and Britain, it was stated tonight at a press conference by Harold Macmillan, acting president of the Allied Commission.

The policy will be based on a plan submitted to the two governments by Macmillan, who said that the plan had been approved by the British Cabinet and is now being considered by the United States Government.

gency in Prague as «symptoms of the present Nazi predicament.»

Italia Libera (Action) says: «In America the interruption of relations with Franco is advocated.» The article, quoting Frank Kingdom, writes «so long as Fascism exists in any part of the world, it constitutes a menace to security and to freedom of opinion.»

Under the headline «Freedom of Press» l'Unità, (Communist) writes: «Today freedom of the press does not and cannot exist because of the necessity of rationing paper and nobody would dare openly suggest that the Fascists be allowed freedom of opinion. While there is a war being fought against Fascism, the press must be definitely and radically anti-Fascist.»

A new kind of dictatorship is necessary in Italy, according to Scrutor of Italia Nuova (Democrat)—the «dictatorship of law, which, in a country that in 80 years has seen the most brazen transgression of the law, will constitute a really revolutionary novelty. And the first step to be taken is the purge. This however will not be possible until the errors made in seven months of purge policy have been frankly admitted..» Not only the inefficiency and incongruities of the High Court of Justice, says the editor, but the law itself is to be criticized. Scrutor adds: «The purge law has been voted by some Ministers who before 1925, were Senators, members of the Parliament and even Ministers under Mussolini and who therefore had a direct responsibility in those illegal acts which culminated in dictatorship.

«A government, members of which were liberals and democrats, who fought with the Fascists on the anti-Bolshevist front could certainly not exact punishment of all those who were responsible.

«Seven months of purge policy have thus inevitably resulted in a series of 'rescues' instead of punishments. We ask that first of all the traitors be punished, that is to say those who collaborated with the Nazi-Fascists after July 25. We ask for the punishment of all those who were in a position to oppose the criminal policy of Fascism and did not; of those who stole public money; for the elimination from public charges of all inefficient men, whether they be militant anti-fascists, or still fascists or apolitical men».

Pietro Nenni also insists on the necessity for a drastic purge, in Avanti! (Socialist). Quoting a correspondent from Sicily on separatism he writes: «Those behind the movement are ultra-Fascists, who are attached to the past regime for reasons of personal interest. Without these preliminary acts of justice (necessary) to clear the country nothing can be done in any field—war, reconstruction or supplies.»

In an open letter to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Federico Valenzani writes in Democrazia Internazionale (no party affiliation): «In all probability you have heard some gossip report that you are considered to be the man who hates Italy more than anybody else in the world and, at the same time, who is most hated in Italy. We don't know how far this state of things was brought about by Signor Mussolini's bad manners.

«It may interest you to hear what we have to say about your recent statements in the Commons concerning our country. We approve every word you said. We are sincerely grateful to you for having put the position in the true perspective».

Valenzani said that in spite of the fact that the country was «intoxicated with the nationalistic poison» which Mussolini served in large helpings we beg you to believe that this is fundamentally a sober country after all. We are steady and sensible if taken one by one; as a political body we are the most gullible and intoxicable nation in the world.

The policy will be based on a plan submitted to the two governments by Macmillan, who said that the plan had been approved by the British Cabinet and is now being considered by the United States Government.

Discussing the plan, Macmillan said that « its hope and its faith is that Italians, with greater independence, yet working harmoniously at our side, may aid us to make our service effective. But whatever we can do for Italy is as nothing to what the Italians can and must do for themselves morally as well as materially. I believe that the Italian people will respond to generosity and confidence. »

Macmillan said he began on November 12, a series of discussions with officers at Allied Force Headquarters and at the Allied Commission on the many problems of Italy. The destruction caused by the Germans in Italy was on an immense scale but the resources of the Allied nations were strained to the utmost for war needs. With all the goodwill in the world, the process of reconstruction in Italy would be tedious and slow. (UNN)

ROME PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 4 — The reported arrest by the Nazis of Prince Albrecht von Wittelsbach to forestall a Bavarian separatist movement, the German declaration of an emergency in Prague, the anti-Franco meeting in New York, and Italian internal problems—including the purge—today were discussed by the Roman newspapers.

Il Tempo (Independent Conservative) considers both the arrest of Prince Albrecht and the declaration of an emergency in Prague as « internal affairs of Germany ». The purge law has been voted by some Ministers who before 1925, were Senators, members of the Parliament and even Ministers under Mussolini and who therefore had a direct responsibility in those illegal acts which culminated in dictatorship.

« A government, members of which were liberals and democrats, who fought with the Fascists on the anti-Bolshevist front could certainly not exact punishment of all those who were responsible.

« Seven months of purge policy have thus inevitably resulted in a series of 'rescues' instead of punishments. « We have brand-new old politicans in Rome. They are men from the Right and they are also men from the Left, who speculate on the lack of common sense in their countrymen, who try to make capital out of the fact that the Italian nation as a body is inadequately provided with critical powers.

This is why we need stern critics so badly, and if we cannot find them at home we must invite and welcome them from abroad. »

ITALIAN ESPIONAGE WAS NAZI-CONTROLLED

ROME, January 4 — Colonel Santo Emanuele, former head of Italian military intelligence, in a pre-trial deposition, accused Gen. Mario Roatta, of having placed the Italian espionage service in the hands of the Germans by revealing secret codes sometime before Mussolini concluded his so-called « pact of steel » with Germany in 1939.

General Roatta, former deputy chief of the Italian General Staff, and former Fascist Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs Fulvio Suvich will go on trial on January 22. Both will answer charges preferred by the Italian High Commission for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes.

Colonel Emanuele said that Roatta was a friend of Admiral Canaris, German intelligence head, and had agreed to a union of the Italian and German intelligence services under the Ministry of the Interior.

« Although Ciano was not favorable to the agreement, it took place because it was Mussolini's wish, » Emanuele said. He added that with German interference, « our information lost its autonomy and its independence. » Colonel Emanuele pointed out that turning over Italian secret codes to the Germans placed Italy in a position where it could be controlled by Germany.

Colonel Emanuele revealed how his section carried out its work of espionage and came into possession of the secret codes of other countries.

He said: « The work was carried on mainly by taking documents from the safes of foreign embassies. We had trustworthy persons in almost every embassy who used to supply us with the keys which permitted us to enter by night, carry off what we needed, photograph documents, and return them after a few hours. By this method, we succeeded in getting 16,000 documents in one year without being detected. The codes which I alone took numbered 70. »

Colonel Emanuele went on to say: « The fruit of our activity served not only the army which was what I wished, but also political elements and above all Mussolini and Ciano, who always made military use of them. » (UNN)

ITALIAN PROVINCIAL FOOD SUPPLIES

ROME, January 4 — Agricultural production in the provinces of Perugia, Terni, Rieti, Viterbo, Rome, Littoria and Frosinone for the year 1944-45 will supply 70 per cent of the food requirements of the population of those provinces, according to a report issued today by the Ministry of Agriculture.

The report said the main difficulties encountered in the agricultural revival of these provinces are the presence of land mines in an estimated 9,600 acres of land; the inundation of large tracts of territory, especially south of the Tiber, and the marked reduction in the livestock population, which in some cases is more than 80 per cent below 1942 levels.

Crop forecasts contained in the report were as follows: wheat, 4,330,000 quintals; rye, 14,057 quintals; barley, 87,048 quintals; oats, 303,845 quintals; vegetables, 3,791,080 quintals; sugar beets 412,000 quintals.

PLASTIRAS TAKES OFFICE IN GREECE

ATHENS, January 4 — General Nicholas Plastiras took over the premiership of Greece today with the declaration that the urgent task of the Greek government was « the full restoration of state authority, » press dispatches reported tonight.

Members of Plastiras' cabinet — composed of seven ministers and five under-secretaries, were sworn in today. The Premier has announced that he will occupy the posts of Minister of War, Navy, Air and the Mercantile Marine in the new government.

Immediate goals set by the new Greek government include the punishment of persons who collaborated in German occupation crimes, relief of the food shortage, stabilization of currency, and assistance to destitute workers.

A BBC dispatch today said that Plastiras had reiterated that general elections will be held as soon as order is restored in Greece.

Fighting continues in the city with correspondents reporting that the British have made gains near the Abolouth prison in the northeastern part of the capital. British guns continue to shell the main roads leading into the city and artillery was used to fire shells which distributed safe conduct passes for use by guerilla fighters wishing to come over to the British side, one correspondent wrote.

GRIGG DISCUSSES MIDDLE EAST

CAIRO, January 4 — Sir Edward Grigg, British Resident Minister to Egypt, said yesterday that the welfare of the Middle East, as of all United Nations, « depends on the completeness of our victory. »

Asserting that the Middle East is a « testing place for currency inflation and cost-of-living problems, » Sir Edward also noted that future development of aviation and of oil in the Middle East are of world-wide interest.

« I am greatly struck by the great difference in thinking in Europe and the Middle East, » he said. « The Middle East is generally pre-occupied with post-war settlement, while England still is absorbed in her war effort. »

Sir Edward added that one of the most vital problems of the Middle East will be the transition there from war to peace conditions. (Reuter-BBC)

FRENCH BUDGET ESTIMATED

PARIS, January 4 — The war will absorb the greater part of France's state expenditure during the first quarter of the current year, according to figures published in today's Journal Officiel, French government journal.

The budget is estimated at 101,286 million francs, of which 43,000 millions are allotted to the armed forces. The bulk of the remainder is either for the reconstruction of war damage, where this is necessary for the prosecution of the war, or for urgent relief of the distress caused by war. (OWI)

GUATEMALA OFFERS TROOPS

WASHINGTON, January 4 — Guatemala is ready to offer a light division of combined infantry, artillery and some cavalry for service overseas as part of the U. S. Army, Jorge Toriello, civilian member of the National Junta which is governing Guatemala until a permanent government is installed, said today on a visit here.

« Many of our boys are anxious to get into the U. S. Army, where many already are serving, » he asserted.

Toriello said that as a result of the first free election in 50 years in Guatemala, that Central American nation now is in a position to co-operate fully with the U. S.

« We have been struggling for democracy and now that we have achieved it, we intend to preserve it, » he added. Our people look to the U. S. as an example of democracy which they wish to follow. » (OWI)

FIVE MILLION POLES KILLED BY GERMANS

LONDON, January 4 — At least five million Poles, of whom 2,600,000 were Jews, have died under German rule, the latest estimate of the Polish government here showed tonight, according to a Press Association report.

The dispatch added that 150 concentration camps still function in the occupied part of Poland. Prisoners inside the camps rarely survive longer than nine months.

An additional two 2,400,000 Polish citizens have been deported to the Reich for forced labor. (OWI)

GERMANS TOLD OF TROUBLE AHEAD

LONDON, January 4 — German radio commentator, General Dittmar, warned the Germans in a broadcast on Tuesday that 1945 will bring « more trials and undiminished problems, » in a review of German defeats over the past two years. Dittmar repeated in each instance the same story of insufficient manpower, lack of air cover and mistakes of leadership for which the individual soldier and the civilian has had to pay.

« The year 1943 encumbered our position with many a serious mortgage, » Dittmar continued. « The danger of war on several fronts had become tangible as a result of Italy's defection and Allied landings in Italy. The soft underbelly of the Axis required considerable German support. In the east the threat of invasion developed ever more strongly

CAIRO, January 4 — Sir Edward Grigg, British Resident Minister to Egypt, said yesterday that the welfare of the Middle East, as of all United Nations, «depends on the completeness of our victory.»

Asserting that the Middle East is a «testing place for currency inflation and cost-of-living problems,» Sir Edward also noted that future development of aviation and of oil in the Middle East are of world-wide interest.

«I am greatly struck by the great difference in thinking in Europe and the Middle East,» he said. «The Middle East is generally pre-occupied with post-war settlement, while England still is absorbed in her war effort.»

Sir Edward added that one of the most vital problems of the Middle East will be the transition there from war to peace conditions. (Reuter-BBC)

FRENCH BUDGET ESTIMATED

PARIS, January 4 — The war will absorb the greater part of France's state expenditure during the first quarter of the current year, according to figures published in today's Journal Officiel, French government journal.

The budget is estimated at 101,286 million francs, of which 43,000 millions are allotted to the armed forces. The bulk of the remainder is either for the reconstruction of war damage, where this is necessary for the prosecution of the war, or for urgent relief of the distress caused by war. (OWI)

«Excellent military collaboration with the Russians continues. The Russians do not intervene in Norwegian domestic affairs but show great interest in how accounts will be settled with the quislings. The Russians help the civilian population on every occasion, particularly when they are able to offer transportation facilities.» (Radio Tass)

BELGIAN HORROR CAMP EXPOSED

LONDON, January 4 — Produced by British Army officers, a 12-page document released yesterday told of eye-witness reports of torture and mutilation by the Germans at the Breendonck concentration camp in Belgium.

A principal witness estimated that 500 men died during his stay in the camp. This figure, he added, includes more than 300 shot and about 15 hanged.

The prisoners, mostly Jews, members of the underground movement or denounced persons who refused to talk, were handcuffed, stripped and subjected to various forms of torture. They were burned on the face or body with cigarette ends. Some had their fingers crushed in a press. Women received exactly the same treatment as the men.

The document, apart from giving photographs, is completely indexed and cross-checked. (Reuter-BBC)

LONDON, January 4 — German radio commentator, General Dittmar, warned the Germans in a broadcast on Tuesday that 1943 will bring «more trials and undiminished problems,» in a review of German defeats over the past two years. Dittmar repeated in each instance the same story of insufficient manpower, lack of air cover and mistakes of leadership for which the individual soldier and the civilian has had to pay.

After referring to the loss of vast territories on the Eastern Front, Dittmar said that lack of adequate measures by the military leaders resulted in large casualties, especially in the Cherkassy area.

After cataloguing the Allied landings at Nettuno in January, the fall of Rome, the Normandy invasion and the capture of Cherbourg, Dittmar continued: «By the end of June a bitter fact was clear: the strength of our local defense had not proved strong enough. Under the impact of far superior air power, our operational reserves always arrived late and were under innumerable difficulties.»

He said that next, as a result of insufficient German reserves, the Russians broke through on the central sector into the areas of Lwow, Vilna the upper Nemen, and east of Warsaw.

After the break-through near Avranches, the U.S. armies poured into the interior of France. The whole of the country was in revolt against the numerically weak occupation troops. «At the most critical juncture, Bulgaria, Rumania and Finland deserted us. The German south front between the Black Sea and the Carpathians collapsed after Rumanian troops laid down their arms.» German armies were forced «to evacuate positions in the Aegean and southern Balkans, and from the Lapland front. In the Baltic theater, our armies have to be considered as isolated.»

Dittmar concluded: «We know well that the time of trials will continue into the new year and that the number of problems piling up before us has not dimished.»

The Berlin radio today quoted Youth Leader Axmann as having said in his new year message that 70 per cent of all German youths aged 16 are already on active service in the German army.

Swiss observers are agreed that von Rundstedt's offensive in the west has merely postponed the date of Germany's final defeat.

An editorial in Volksrecht said the Germans' only hope — a split between the United Nations — «has gone up in smoke. Today's picture of the war front differs completely from the one of a year ago. Rundstedt's offensive has changed nothing in this picture. It will only postpone for a short time the hour of Germany's final defeat.»

Members of the German colony in Switzerland have issued a leaflet urging the expulsion of Gestapo agents from Swiss soil. It said: «We want to talk openly without having to be afraid of reprisals against our wives and children inside Germany. Gestapo agents Daufeld in Lausanne, Gerl and Halfeld in Berne, and Janks and Foszt in Zurich should be expelled from Swiss territory.» (OWI-Tass)

POLISH GROUP BLOWS UP FACTORY

LONDON, January 4 — Thirty-five Polish Jewish engineers gave their lives to destroy a German tire factory in Polish Silesia.

Quoting a survivor, the report said that the engineers were specialists who were kept in the factory. They smuggled in dynamite and placed it in the machinery but, as they were unable to get out, they blew themselves up in the explosion. One survived and escaped.

As a reprisal, the Nazis hanged all the Jews of the nearby village. (OWI)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 4 — Today's communique:

Active patrolling by Allied forces and by the enemy continues in Holland. In the Ardennes salient we counter-attacked yesterday morning in the Grandmenil area. Good progress is being made against stiff opposition.

Gains were made to the south of Rochefort where some commanding ground and a village have been taken against strong enemy resistance.

On the southern flank of the salient our forces gained ground about one mile south of Vesqueville and are fighting in the wooded area east of Bonnerue and meeting stubborn [illegible] on high ground one and a half miles southwest.

In the Alsace plain north of Colmar, our troops repulsed an enemy attack and gained some ground in a counter-attack. Enemy attempts to infiltrate the Lake Noir region of the Vosges were turned back.

More than 1,100 heavy bombers escorted by approximately 600 fighters attacked enemy communications yesterday. Targets included railway and road centers near the Belgian-German frontier and northwest of Karlsruhe, railway marshalling yards at Aschaffenburg and in the vicinity of Cologne.

Escorted heavy bombers attacked two benzol plants in the Ruhr, the Castrop-Rauxel and Hansa Works near Dortmund.

Other air operation were on a small scale due to adverse weather.

Railway yards at Emmendingen north of Freiburg and gun positions around Colmar were attacked by fighter-bombers. The fighters destroyed three enemy aircraft. Three of our heavy bombers and nine fighters are missing according to reports received so far. (Reuter)

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 4 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

Northwest of Ravenna, Canadian troops have made further progress east of the Fosso Vecchio against continued strong resistance, and four determined enemy counter-attacks have been repulsed.

There has been considerable patrol activity by both sides on the front of the 5th Army.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Very strong forces of Tactical Air Force fighter-bombers yesterday operated against rail and road networks feeding into the Italian battle area, and gun positions, strongpoints and troop concentrations opposite the 5th and 8th Army lines. Medium and light bombers bombed rail bridges, an ammunition dump and a concentration of armor in northern Italy and a rail yard in Yugoslavia.

Coastal Air Force fighter-bombers attacked German-occupied buildings in northwestern Italy.

Balkan Air Force medium and fighter-bombers attacked enemy rail and harbor installations in Yugoslavia.

Fighters and light bombers flew intruder and armed reconnaissance missions over northern Italy on the night of January 2/3.

From these operations nine of our aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew approximately 1,300 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

Good progress has been made in clearing insurgents from further areas in the center and east of Athens and numbers of prisoners have been taken.

In the Piraeus British troops have liberated further sectors south of the Athens-Piraeus road.

Units of the Greek National Guard are assisting British troops in holding areas cleared of insurgent forces. (PRO)

On the southern flank of the salient our forces gained ground about one mile south of Vesqueville and are fighting in the wooded area east of Bonnerue and meeting stubborn opposition on high ground one and a half miles southwest of Tillet.

In the Bastogne bulge, Senonchamps has been taken and we are fighting in the area of Longchamps, Bourcy and Bois du Mnister. Resistance has been stiff at Arloncourt and on the high ground southwest of Villers-La-Bonne-Eau. Heavy enemy artillery fire was directed against Lutrebois.

Yesterday escorted medium and light bombers struck at the communications center of Houffalize in the Ardennes salient, and last night light bombers attacked targets at Houffalize and St. Vith.

Our forces in the Saar Valley cleared the area two and a half miles northwest of Volkingen. Strong resistance met our efforts to force the enemy back towards the Saar River in Ludweiler.

East of Saargemund a small force of the enemy, after several attempts, crossed the Blies River just south of Habkirchen, but our artillery prevented him from making further gains. The enemy penetrated to Grosrederchingen, and there is fighting in the vicinity of Achen. In the wooded area south and southeast of Bitsche, enemy pressure lessened somewhat. Three small-scale attacks were repulsed. Philippsburg was shelled by the enemy after his attack on the town failed.

15th Army Group:

Northwest of Ravenna, Canadian troops have made further progress east of the Fosso Vecchio against continued strong resistance, and four determined enemy counter-attacks have been repulsed.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 4 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In Belgium, between Stavelot and Marche, yesterday, the enemy launched his expected major attack from a northerly direction to relieve his hard pressed formations at Bastogne. Our divisions forced the enemy into the defensive inflicting heavy losses on him. The Americans lost 34 tanks in the whole battle area.

On both sides of Bitsche, our troops continued their attacks. Though the enemy brought up all forces available for counter-attacks from the neighbouring sectors, he did not succeed in halting our attacking columns which had advanced east of Sarreguemines and in the Lower Vosges.

The Alsace-Palatinate frontier area, west of Weissenburg was cleared of the enemy.

Liège and Antwerp continued to be subjected to a long range bombardment in order to harass the enemy communications.

Italy:

In central Italy, in the Romagna, the British 8th Army launched numerous thrusts to tie down our forces and, northwest of Ravenna, made a major attack. In one sector, grim fighting is still in progress against the enemy who had penetrated into our positions.

Eastern Front:

In Slavonia, in the Virovitica sector, Croats and Cossacks ousted strong enemy bands from their positions, inflicted heavy losses on them and captured numerous prisoners.

In Hungary, the Bolsheviks, proceeding particularly from an easterly direction, attacked Budapest by day and night. The garrison repulsed all attacks in grim fighting. In the Budapest sector, strong bomber squadrons joined in the fighting. They put 34 tanks out of action and destroyed more than 500 vehicles. German and Hungarian fighters and bombers brought down 37 Soviet planes.

In the frontier area of southern Slovakia, the Soviets attacking during the night on a broad front unsuccessfully attempted to break through our front. Yesterday afternoon, fresh enemy attempts at breaking through again failed.

On the front between eastern Slovakia and Courland, the fighting lull continues.

Air:

The Anglo-American terror flyers who flew yesterday into western Germany and the Rhine-Main area, dropped their bombs particularly on the town of Fulda where they again caused damage and big fires.

Greater London continued to be subjected to a retaliatory bombardment.

Sea:

In December, the German Navy sank 163,600 tons of enemy shipping and in addition 16 destroyers and escort vessels.

GERMAN

Western Front: The trend of recent days, of warning the German public of the seriousness of the Allied reply to the German offensive, today reached its climax in the following warning by Sertorius:

« In southeastern Belgium, the Allies, maintaining strong pressure in the Bastogne and Saint Hubert region, have resumed their attacks against the northern flank of the bulge from the German front... These attacks are obviously of major scale... prepared carefully... The enemy has staked all his plans for his own offensive on one goal: namely, not only to undo the severe setback suffered from the German offensive of December 6 but also to try to strike the German armies decisively by a large pincer operation. »

Air Power Stressed on Eastern Front: Not long after the recent revival of German claims of renewed Luftwaffe activity on the west, a DNB flash today stresses the Luftwaffe's expanded rôle in the battle for Hungary. DNB claims that yesterday « strong forces » of German battle-planes over Hungary disabled 34 Russian tanks and destroyed more than 500 vehicles and other important equipment, as well as « successfully » attacking the Soviet supply traffic at night.

Political Exploitation of Polish Crisis: One of the most persistent German propaganda trends during the last weeks has been to emphasise, with varying anti-Allied interpretations, the dispute between the Polish governments in London and Lublin. This tendency is repeated in some Morse items of today.

Throughout the week, two charges have been hammered in again and again by German propaganda, concerning the Polish crisis: (1) that the Allied nations are apt to betray small nations (2) that within the Allied camp there exist grave dissensions, caused by Russia's supposed territorial expansion beyond the bounds acceptable to her Allies.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

« An Army of Mercenaries: » Commenting on the newly-formed Italian divisions, recently mentioned by Radio Roma, the Fascist Radio recalls the first appearance of such troops, — a « small detachment » which stormed mountain positions last spring and was « easily dispersed... a large part being captured... » by counter-attacking Germans. The commentator adds that, in accordance with the Allies' intentions, the contribution of these Italians to the war effort was in the nature of supply and rear-line activities, which « might be very useful but certainly not heroic... » He declares that these troops are destined to fight in the Far East in the Allies' interests, proving that this is no question of « an army of liberation, but of an army of mercenaries... »

Post-War Britain: Discussing a recent article by the British paper, Yorkshire Post, the Fascist Radio paints a gloomy picture of Britain's post-war prospects. The paper, it says, has complained about America's criticisms of the British government's policy, especially « towards India, Italy, Poland, Palestine and Greece... and the fact that Americans make unjust statements about Britain and the part its people are playing in the war... » Behind this complaint the commentator seems to notice « the shiver of defeat running down the spine of Britain... which is traditionally anti-European... » He adds that it was Britain which let loose the United States and Russia against Europe but that those countries in turn « treat Britain as if she were a European state. » The commentator concludes: « Though almost impossible to believe, it looks as if the only hope left to Britain is the victory of the Axis, in which case she would at least have have her eyes left to cry with... »

AMERICANS GAIN EAST AND WEST OF BASTOGNE; 7TH HOLDS NAZI THRUSTS

LONDON, January 3 — Third Army troops, advancing against a bitterly-defended German line in the Bastogne [illegible] have moved ahead several miles both east and west.

The American gains were made against stiff enemy resistance and strong counter-blows. Reuter reported that an armor-supported Nazi counter-attack five miles west of Bastogne was thwarted by 3rd Army artillery.

Germans Lost 425 Tanks

To the east of the city, progress was slower in the face of massed German infantry and armor, but Wiltz, major enemy strongpoint in the sector, has come under American guns and advance U. S. troops are now reported within 1,000 yards of the town.

The Germans have not relaxed their efforts to break into the supply corridor, now 8 miles wide, feeding the American garrison in Bastogne from the Arlon base. A Reuter report told of heavy fighting in the area as the Germans brought in fresh SS units to reinforce their salient reaching southeast of Bastogne. Some of the new troops were said to have been drawn from the western end of the Nazi breath inside Belgium, indicating that there may be a partial withdrawal of German troops from that area.

According to the BBC, the enemy has paid heavily for his break-through attempt and in addition to tremendous air losses is said to have lost 425 tanks — half his original attacking force.

Other front-line dispatches said that in their 10-day drive, German forces already have lost 20,000 men captured by the Americans. The reports added that an estimated five enemy armored divisions, one panzer grenadier division and five volksgrenadier divisions were badly mauled in the fighting.

Nevertheless, the Germans still had plenty of fight left and correspondent's dispatches said that new break-out attempts from von Rundstedt's constricted salient might be attempted. There was no indication that the enemy was pulling out or checking the flow of arms and reinforcements to the harassed Nazi divisions. A steady stream of German arms and supplies still was reported moving westward despite constant Allied air patrol of the enemy's supply roads.

Along the 7th Army front, the Germans were attacking on a 70-mile line guarding the Saar Valley and extending from Volklingen, eight miles east of Saarbrücken, to Berg. American troops which held a five-mile line inside Germany just east of Saarguemines, have been forced to take up new positions south of the frontier, Reuter reported.

AMERICANS GAIN EAST AND WEST OF BASTOGNE; 7TH HOLDS NAZI THRUSTS

LONDON, January 3 — Third Army troops, advancing against a bitterly-defended German line in the Bastogne sector have moved ahead several miles both east and west of the city and tonight were reported to be within 11 miles of a junction with 1st Army units pushing down from the north.

At two points, Longchamps and Michamps, American troops are officially reported four miles beyond Bastogne to the northeast and northwest. Longchamps is only three miles south of one of the two main supply routes feeding the enemy troops to the west and southwest.

Widespread German attacks continued on the 7th Army front, 150 miles to the south, but only in one or two spots was the enemy able to make minor gains. Generally, the American lines were holding but there were no official indications as yet as to the extent or power of the German thrusts.

All along the 10-mile front between St. Hubert and Bastogne, 3rd Army units jabbed their way forward and tonight the line consisted of a series of small salients driven into the German defensive positions. St. Hubert itself, main anchor of the enemy defenses, was entered last night by American tanks which withdrew from the city after obtaining information about the disposition of the enemy forces.

Tillet, eight miles west of Bastogne, and Mande, three miles west of the road center are both under Allied fire tonight as American troops fought their way into the outskirts of both towns.

1,000 yards of the town.

The Germans have not relaxed their efforts to break into the supply corridor, now 3 miles wide, feeding the American garrison in Bastogne from the Arlon base. A Reuter report told of heavy fighting in the area as the Germans brought in fresh SS units to reinforce their salient reaching southeast of Bastogne. Some of the new troops were said to have been drawn from the western end of the Nazi breach inside Belgium, indicating that there may be a partial withdrawal of German troops from that area.

According to the BBC, the enemy has paid heavily for his break-through attempt and in addition to tremendous air losses is said to have lost 425 tanks — half his original attacking force.

Other front-line dispatches said that in their 16-day drive, German forces already have lost 20,000 men captured by the Americans. The reports added that an estimated five enemy armored divisions, one panzer grenadier division and five volksgrenadier divisions were badly mauled in the fighting.

Nevertheless, the Germans still had plenty of fight left and correspondent's dispatches said that new break-out attempts from von Rundstedt's constricted salient might be attempted. There was no indication that the enemy was pulling out or checking the flow of arms and reinforcements to the harassed Nazi divisions. A steady stream of German arms and supplies still was reported moving westward despite constant Allied air patrol of the enemy's supply roads.

Along the 7th Army front, the Germans were attacking on a 70-mile line guarding the Saar Valley and extending from Volklingen, eight miles east of Saarbrücken, to Berg. American troops which held a five-mile line inside Germany just east of Saarguemines, have been forced to take up new positions south of the frontier, Reuter reported.

1ST ARMY ATTACKS IN NORTH; 7TH WITHDRAWS

LONDON, January 3 — The American 1st Army has gone over to the offensive on the northern flank of the German Ardennes salient, it was officially announced at SHAEF tonight, according to a Columbia Broadcasting System report. Another official announcement said 7th Army troops have pulled back from their penetration into Germany in the sector between Bitsch and the Rhine, where strong German units are attacking. The American line has been re-established behind the Lauter River, south of the border. (OWI-Reuter)

60,000 TONS OF BOMBS IN LAST 14 DAYS

LONDON, January 3 — In 14 days of continuous night and day attacks on Germany, by RAF and American planes, more than 60,000 tons of bombs have been dropped, an average of more than 4,000 tons every 24 hours, the BBC said late tonight.

While this bombardment has been carried out with remarkably slight Allied losses, the Luftwaffe has lost 1,647 planes during this period.

1,100 BOMBERS HIT COMMUNICATIONS

LONDON, January 3 — Attacking targets in the Reich for the 12th successive day 1,100 escorted heavy bombers of the 8th USAAF today bombed German road and rail centers at 12 different points.

The targets included an unnamed communication center northwest of Karlsruhe; communication centers near the Belgian-German border; marshalling yards near Cologne, and at Schaffenburg and Fulda, both near Frankfurt.

Also in daylight today, two separate forces of RAF Lancasters attacked the Castrop-Rauxel and the Hansa works near Dortmund. Both attacks were made by means of instruments.

RAF Spitfires continued their attacks on V-2 targets in Holland, successfully bombing a railway line supplying a V-2 area.

More than 1,000 aircraft of the RAF Bomber Command were out over Germany last night, dropping 6,000 tons of bombs on three German cities.

In southern Germany one heavy bomber force struck at industrial and railway targets in Nuremburg, leaving large areas on fire with smoke rising to 10,000 feet. Halifaxes attacked the largest chemical plant in the world, the I.G. Farben works, at Ludwigshafen-Mannheim, while the third objective was Berlin. Other objectives in western Germany also were bombed.

Night fighters and intruders attacked airfields destroying three German aircraft. Nine Allied aircraft failed to return from the night's operations.

Night Sorties

In a summary of last month's activities, the Air Ministry announced yesterday that despite the worst night flying weather of any month during 1944, RAF Bomber Command planes during December dropped 54,529 tons of bombs with almost all of this total hitting targets inside Germany itself.

The Bomber Command dropped 39,120 metric tons of explosives in 18 nights of operations, while missions were carried out on 25 days with a total of 15,400 metric tons dropped.

Night sorties again outnumbered those by day in a three to one proportion. The main weight of the Bomber Command's attacks hit enemy communications, railway marshalling yards and junctions.

In their support of attacking Allied armies, Bomber Command Mosquitos made 40 separate attacks during the month, sometimes in formations of 100. They struck twice at Berlin and took part in most of the major attacks and supported the heavy bombers on most of the night missions.

The RAF Fighter Command offensive was made noteworthy by many pinpoint attacks on weapon sites, usually through adverse weather and heavy flak.

During the month, 18 enemy aircraft were destroyed and 11 Fighter Command machines lost. The 2nd TAF concentrated a large part of its activity in conjunction with the USAAF in blasting Von Rundstedt's offensive in Belgium. Nearly 100 Luftwaffe planes were destroyed by the 2nd TAF during December and more than 40 damaged.

dot these lowlands. More than 70 prisoners were taken from a German Jaeger formation in the fighting.

The Canadian attack was aimed at the point where the enemy line, after following the Senio River for six miles from Bagnacavallo northeastward, cuts overland for a mile and a half eastward and then follows the Lamone River across the marshes and pinelands to the sea. German forces have held stubbornly to this narrow seaward portion of their line, probably because it provides a flanking position against the Allied forces pressing against Alfonsine and the Ferrara Road.

On the 5th Army front, a large enemy patrol overran an Allied outpost in a night attack on Monday along the axis of the main Bologna Road north of Livergnano, some 10 and a half miles south of Bologna. An Allied counterattack later retook the positions.

Another patrol attack supported by mortars and artillery, was repulsed in the Monte Cavallaro area, some 21 miles southwest of Bologna on the road to Pistoia. Elsewhere along the 5th Army front, both Allied and enemy patrols were active.

West of the Serchio River Valley, where German forces last week made a temporary penetration of two to three miles into American positions, Allied patrol troops patrolled the Ligurian Coast Road leading to Massa. These scouting forces reported that the enemy had laid numbers of booby traps in this area.

British forces yesterday continued their slow task of driving in the strong enemy outpost positions guarding the Senio River line at its center point across the Po Plain, in the area between Bagnacavallo and Sant'Andrea.

Today's reports stated that the enemy salient east of the Senio River, and based on a five-mile stretch of the Canale Naviglio, must be regarded as a « substantial bridgehead, » capable of considerable resistance. (PRO)

SOVIETS BATTER AT AUSTRIA APPROACHES

MOSCOW, January 3 — The gravity of the Germans strategic position on the approaches to Austria has forced their High Command to attempt to gain precious days and hours by mounting costly spoiling attacks southeast of the city of Komarom which is within 90 miles of Vienna. 8TH ARMY CANADIANS GAIN GROUND

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 3 — Canadian infantry and armored forces have gained ground in a thrust into the hinge of the German line east of Alfonsine and south of the Comacchio Lagoon, and have wiped out several strong enemy positions north of the Ravenna-Ferrara road, it was announced here today.

According to official reports, the Canadian thrust was aimed at clearing the enemy from the narrow strip of land between the Fosso Vecchio and the Lamone River. The attack was taking a northeasterly direction threatening to lop off the enemy positions which stretch along the southern shores of the Comacchio Lagoon and eastward to the Adriatic Sea. German light infantry forces holding this area which is northwest of Ravenna, were putting up strong resistance from fortified and scattered farmhouses which the Ligurian Coast Road leading to Massa. SUPERFORTS HIT HONSAU, JAP HOME ISLAND

PEARL HARBOR, January 3 — The Japanese industrial city of Nagoya, on the home island of Honshu, was the target today for Saipan-based Superfortresses, it was officially announced.

Nagoya, site of some of Japan's major armament factories, received a load of bombs which exceeded any of the previous three attacks on the city and equalled the largest bomb load ever dropped on Tokyo, press dispatches said tonight.

Other U. S. planes took off from carriers to bomb the island of Formosa and Okinawa Jima, an island in the Ryuku archipelago which extends between Formosa and the Japanese mainland.

Formosa, heavily hit several times by Admiral William F. Halsey's carrier planes and once by Superfortresses based in China, was the springboard for the Japanese attack on the Philippines three years ago.

Today's attack on Nagoya was the first assault directed against Japan from American territory. All arrangements for the attack were made from the island of Guam, where Brig. Gen. Haywood S. Hansell, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, has moved his headqusrters from Saipan. Guam was recaptured from the Japanese last July.

Planes under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command continued to strike Japanese shipping in the Philippines. On Monday and yesterday, heavy and medium bombers sank or set fire to 25 Japanese ships in attacks off Luzon Island. The attack was the fifth heavy assault against Luzon, main nothern island of the Philippines, in as mary days and raised to 36 the number of enemy ships sunk in that period.

The island of Iwo Jima underwent its 26th consecutive day of bombing today when American bombers again hit the base from which enemy bombers have taken off to attack the Superfortress airfields on Saipan.

On Leyte Island, where mopping up operations continue, 778 of the enemy were killed yesterday and one prisoner was captured.

Press dispatches reported the arival of the British Pacific Fleet, under Sir Admiral Bruce A. Fraser, in Australia. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS BLOW UP FOUR TRAINS

MARSHAL TITO'S HEADQUARTERS, January 3 — Partisan forces blew up four trains on the German escape railway from central Yugoslavia to Zagreb, according to today's communique. Other units cut the line in several places.

In fierce fighting in Croatia, Tito's troops liberated Licko Petrovo, an enemy stronghold on the way to Bihac. All enemy attempts to break through toward Travnik were repulsed.

Disruption of traffic between Sarajevo and Brod continued. Ten trucks and two heavy guns with ammunition were destroyed and 120 enemy soldiers killed.

In their attempt to withdraw the remnants of their routed divisions from Sandjak and Herzegovina through the fortified «corridor,» the Germans are plundering everything they can lay their hands on, a press dispatch reported today.

Tito's units attacking the corridor, which is located in the Bosna River Valley through which passed the Sarajevo-Brod railway, found the road blocked with abandoned German vehicles.

Falling out of the vehicles were wool, bedding, sheets, eiderdowns, and along the road were carts loaded with lard, bacon, flour, jams, and other foodstuffs, the report stated. These articles presumably had been dragged from the homes in the vicinity during the last days before the Germans retreated. The German soldiers now lie dead in ditches along the road, stretched out in the frozen mud, the dispatch said.

Military authorities are distributing the plundered articles to refugees who were forced to flee ahead of the Germans, the report said.

From London it was reported that Dr. Subasic, Premier of the Royal Yugoslav Government, sent the following New Year's Day message to Marshal Tito:

«To you, Marshal of Yugoslavia and President of the National Committee, on behalf of the Government and myself, I express my sincerest wishes for the New Year. Enormous sacrifices and superhuman efforts of the Yugoslav peoples in defense of their liberty and honor have been crowned with magnificent victories under your supreme command. Brigadier S. Irwin, Chief of Staff of the British 14th Army said yesterday in Washington that «we are on the eve of the battle for Mandalay.» The recapture of Mandalay will mean the virtual liberation of Burma, he added.

Other 14th Army forces were reported to be consolidating their positions at Kabo, north of Ye-U.

Air action in southeast Asia reported in the communique included a direct hit by heavy bombers on a bridge near Bangkok, Thailand, yesterday which cut that portion of the Bangkok-Moulmein railway.

Allied air action was also reported over northern China in a communique issued by Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters in Chungking, which reported that 14th USAAF planes destroyed 10 locomotives in attacks on railroad installations at Lohochai, a rail center on the Peiping-Hankow railway, and in the Sencheng-Winkiang and Pengpu areas.

EISENHOWER-MONTGOMERY GREETINGS

SHAEF, January 3 — Expressions of confidence marked New Year messages exchanged by Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, 21st Army Group Commander, and General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander, and released here today.

Field Marshal Montgomery wrote: «On this New Year's day I send to you from the British Empire armies under my command our best wishes and the sincere hope that 1945 may see a great victory. I want to assure you of the personal devotion and loyalty of myself and all those under my command. We will follow you anywhere.»

General Eisenhower replied: «I send to you and to all forces under your command my best wishes for the New Year as well as my profound gratitude for your great services during the year just past. In the full knowledge of your continued loyalty and devotion I am confident that 1945 will be for us a year of victory and will bring us peace. Good luck to you all.» (OWI)

YE-U AND WANTING CAPTURED

KANDY, CEYLON, January 3 — Allied troops scored two important successes today in central and northern Burma.

Troops of the British 14th Army entered Ye-U, 22 miles northwest of Shwebo in central Burma, a Southeast Asia Command communique announced, while an Associated Press dispatch from Chungking late tonight said that Chinese troops had recaptured Wanting on the China-Burma border. This puts the entire Chinese sector of the Burma Road in Allied hands. The Japanese suffered heavy casualties at Wanting, whose fall climaxed the Salween offensive.

Ye-U is the terminus of the railway to Mandalay and is 70 miles northwest of that city. Fairly flat country now lies ahead of the advancing British troops.

U. S. LOST 3,412 PLANES HERE IN 1944

ADVANCE AFHQ, January 3 — American air forces in the Mediterranean theater lost 3,412 planes, including 1,674 heavy bombers, in the course of the air campaigns of 1944, Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker announced here today. These operations aided in the liberation of Rome and Bucharest, the strangling of enemy communications and the reduction to a trickle of German fuel resources.

The American planes flew nearly 350 000 sorties during the year and dropped more than 300,000 tons of bombs, the MAAF commander stated. Nearly 6,000 enemy aircraft were destroyed either in the air or on the ground. The figure is nearly double that of the American losses.

The General said that the air assault against Germany from Mediterranean bases would be carried on without relaxation for the remainder of the winter, and that the attacks on the enemy supply network in Italy would continue. High on the priority list of air targets were the Brenner, Tarvisio and Postumia rail lines leading into northern Italy. (PRO)

LIBERATED ITALY

ROME DAILY PRESS REVIEW

ROME, January 3 — The forthcoming Suvich-Roatta trial, the Communist Party campaign for a new army and Italy's foreign relations today afforded a basis for comment in the Roman Press.

Of the imminent trial, Il Tempo (Independent) writes: « Very serious revelations will be made on the scandalous money-making activity of the Fascist War Ministry. The report drawn up by Ettore Fagà, Lt. Col. of the Carabinieri, gives a picture of it. Fagà says: 'Favors of all kind were done, works and war supplies were commissioned without any open competitions at unjustifiably high prices and with payment in advance; pressure was brought to bear on the specifications and on the officials of the Ministry by promises and threats'.

« Among the firms named are Staccioli, Breda, Ansaldo, Mg. Cornetto and Mandredi Staccioli. »

The campaign for a new Italian Army started by the Communist Party has been favorably received, stated l'Unità (Communist) after quoting the comments of the Avanti! (Socialist), L'Italia Nuova (Democratic), and Armando Rossini, head of the Press Office.

« The initiative taken by the Communist Party, » concluded l'Unità, « to which the National Liberation Committee has already adhered, has the sympathy of the Government and of the Italian people, which wishes that the liberation of our brothers who are still oppressed by the Nazi-Fascists be completed as soon as possible. »

In another article, l'Unità made an appeal to the members of the other parties, particularly the Action Party and the Republican Party: « We must be united to fight and to work. Let all the young get together, those who for the moment, have simply one idea in mind, that is 'Out with the Germans, so that Italy my be free' »

Il Popolo (Christian Democratic) wrote that during yesterday's cabinet meeting « important problems were examined, among them that of the army and of a more intense Italian war effort for the liberation of the country. »

Of Italy's relations with other countries, Il Tempo, Il Popolo and Italia Nuova (Democratic) all carried the comment made by Armando Rossini in a press communique on the resumption of normal international relations in Italy. Rossini, after saying that relations were never officially broken off with a certain number of countries—among them Denmark, Ireland, Portugal, Sweden and Turkey—recalled how Russia was the first of those with whom Italy has been at war to resume them.

« As to Albania, the Italian Government declared on May 23, 1944, that it wishes to see that country regain its independence as soon as possible, » wrote Il Tempo.

On the National Liberation Committees, Italia Libera (Action) under the headline, « To awaken the country, » wrote that the « National Liberation Committees constitute the only unitarian body in the present political life of the nation » and that « the provincial Committees must hold a meeting and let their voice be heard. This voice will awaken the Government, if necessary, and shake the country out of the kind of lethargy it is living in. »

A plan for the reform of the taxation system was advocated by the Democratic Party and published in Il Popolo.

FLORENCE PAID TWO MILLION LIRE

FLORENCE, January 3 — Florence industries have received payments totaling 2,000,000 lire from the Allied Armies for all merchandise requisitioned since September, Capt. Richard A. Loeb, Allied Military Government Industry and Commerce officer for the province of Florence, reported today.

The Allied payments for requisitioned goods, in addition to a sound program of price stabilization, are doing much for the rehabilitation of Florentine industry, Captain Loeb said.

The price control program was worked out by business leaders of Florence in coöperation with AMG representatives, and frequent conferences between the two groups in-

GERMAN CRIMES IN CASOLA

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 3 — The Germans hanged four women and one old man during the latter days of Casola, the Partisan leader of that area told a UNN correspondent today. All five were from one family and were killed in reprisal for the loss of a munitions truck captured by the Partisans.

When Allied troops entered Casola on November 26, the bodies of two civilians were found on the ground. Examination showed they had met their death by hanging, about a month previously. The Partisans said that the Germans shot those civilians who returned to the town to retrieve some of the supplies they could not take with them when they left Casola.

The bodies of a landowner and an 18-year-old boy were found on a bridge near Casola on September 28. Both had been shot.

A family of four who returned to their farmhouse after the Germans retreated were seriously injured by a mine which the Germans had planted under the large hearth. Seven residents of Casola are known to have been taken to Germany, where it is presumed they are being used in labor gangs.

Refugees fleeing the Tossignano area have told Partisans that dozens of people were taken out of Tossignano and transported to Germany. The Patriots also say that large numbers of cattle were stolen and shipped away.

In the small village of Osara, near Casola, the Germans burned 12 houses in revenge for the loss of several mules taken by the Patriots.

The Germans forced peasants to drive cattle north for them. If the cattle could not be taken, the Germans shot them.

MINES LIFTED FROM FARM LANDS

FLORENCE, January 3 — Large tracts of farmland were recently made fit for cultivation by the removal of 439 Nazi mines from several areas in Florence Province by trained squads of Italian civilians during the week beginning December 17.

In addition, 387 artillery shells, three aerial bombs, hundreds of hand grenades, mortar shells and thousands of projectiles were removed during the same period.

The courses for training civilians in the work of demining were initiated by the Allied Military Government in collaboration with the National Committee for Civilian Defense. Four courses lasting a week each have already been completed.

UNITED NATIONS

In an official report submitted to an Anglo-French-American committee in Paris and now under discussion among Jean Monnet, representing France, and U.S. State Department officials and the combined Anglo-American boards, the French suggested using France as an arsenal of war, but stated they must receive a minimum of 20 per cent of their pre-war imports «to be of full assistance,» Reston said.

The French Government is prepared to double the eight French divisions fighting on the Western Front, but must receive the necessary military equipment, the report added.

«American officials who have seen the French Government's report believe that it not only outlines a realistic, important program, but also gives the first official French report on the effect of the German occupation and the Anglo-American liberation on French economy,» Reston wrote.

According to Reston, the report states that the damage to transport was so great and «the demands of the military are increasing to such an extent that the country is virtually divided again into two zones with insufficient transport available to move any goods for civilians between north and south.

«In addition to the total destruction of 200,000 buildings and serious damage to 800,000 more inside France, and in addition to the damage in the French ports, the report states that only about half of France's 16,000 locomotives can be used or repaired and that half the rolling stock has disappeared and the other half is badly worn. It adds that there are only 125,000 of France's pre-war total of 500,000 trucks in the country and most of those left by the Germans are more than 10 years old.

Out of the 19 large freight yards on the French railroad system, all but four were knocked out in the pre-liberation bombings and all the bridges below Paris on the Seine and below Nevers on the Loire were destroyed.»

«While much of this is now under repair, the report states that it is not possible even now to transport civilian necessities from a surplus area of France to a deficit area.

The report notes other anomalies in the French situation that should be corrected quickly by limited imports. The French beet crop is capable of producing 630,000 tons of sugar provided 500,000 tons of coal are available to process the beets in the sugar factories.Only 300,000 tons of sugar can be produced with the coal available, so the French people must import 100,000 tons to meet their minimum needs.

The French government points out that cattle and sheep hides are spoiling because of lack of salt. The monthly production of untreated hides amounts to 7,000 tons, all of which are badly needed in the war effort and will have to be replaced from abroad. But these are being lost because the 1,400 tons of salt necessary to treat them is not available.

The demand for military shipping in the Atlantic and Pacific is so great that there is a hesitancy to reallocate space to ships for anything except more guns and tanks. But while each commander presses for a maximum of military equipment for his own theater, officials who are charged with the responsibility for planning the war as a whole are studying the supply problem as a whole with a view to taking advantage of France's ability to give more to the effort.»

GREEK GOVERNMENT PLANS PROGRESS

ATHENS, January 3 — Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, who at the request of Regent Archbishop Damaskinos yesterday agreed to form a new Greek government, today was working on a solution of the Greek crisis, press dispatches reported.

Meanwhile, fighting in the city continued. Press dispatches said the British perimeter had advanced 400 yards in house-to-house fighting northeast of Omonia Square. The RAF dropped medical supplies, blankets, food and cigarettes to British prisoners on roads leading north from here.

A number of shops opened yesterday in the cleared areas of the city where the population has been swollen by thousands of refugees.

The appointment of Michael Sergeiv as Soviet Minister to Greece is expected here shortly. (Reuter-OWI)

FRANCE ASKS LARGER WAR ROLE

WASHINGTON, January 3 — The French Government wants a larger military and industrial role in the war, but in order to shoulder it, it must import about six million tons of supplies in the first six months of 1945, James B. Reston said in a dispatch to the New York Times Monday.

«In addition to the total destruction of 200,000 buildings and serious damage to 800,000 more inside France, and in addition to the damage in the French ports, the report states that only about half of France's 16,000 locomotives can be used or repaired and that half the rolling stock has disappeared and the other half is badly worn. 79TH U. S. CONGRESS CONVENES

WASHINGTON, January 3 — The 79th United States Congress convened for the first time at noon today with the administering of the oath of office to new legislative members and the immediate introduction of hundreds of new bills concerning the business of the nation.

Samuel D. Rayburn was later elected to his fourth term as Speaker of the House.

Representation of political parties in Congress as a result of the recent elections now stands at 243 Democrats to 190 Republicans, with two minor party members, in the House; and 57 Democrats to 38 Republicans, with one Progressive Party member, in the Senate.

The Senate's business today included the consideration of nominations of three Federal board and commission members submitted by President Roosevelt: Paul A. Porter to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission; Harry D. White to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Guy M. Gillette to be the third and final member of the Surplus War Property Board.

On Saturday, Congress will hear President Roosevelt's annual message on «The State of The Union,» a report on domestic and foreign affairs.

Two major issues facing the new Congress are those of an international organization for peace and the provision of post-war jobs for servicemen and other war working Americans, press dispatches said.

The chief immediate issue to be discussed by the Congress is the increase of the Army by about four million men whose physical condition is below standards for active service. These men would be given limited service assignments or jobs in war production plants. Such a move was recommended on Monday by James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization, and later endorsed by President Roosevelt.

Post-war peace proposals will probably occupy a major portion of the session. Already a move is under way to have the Senate approve legislation that will clearly place the United States behind international action for peace with the submission of the charter of the Dumbarton Oaks conference.» (OWI)

BRITAIN'S WAR WORK LEADERS HONORED

LONDON, January 3 — More than 1,000 men and women, representing all phases of Britain's war effort, were named today in the second part of a list of New Year's Honors conferred by King George.

Workers in the factories and at the ports were foremost. Then there were the scientists and the technicians. Many received recognition for their part in the battle for transport on the railways, the roads and at sea. More than 150 men of the merchant navy, including engineers, stokers and deck hands, were also named.

For their part in the battle for fuel, 13 colliery managers and coal miners received awards, while several defence workers and firemen won decorations for their devotion to duty during the flying bomb raids.

Women figured prominently in the list. General Eisenhower's car driver in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, and now on the Western Front, Mrs. Kay Somersby, was listed. Also named was one woman who trained crews for canal boats, an 84-year-old cotton worker and Mrs. J. B. Priestly, wife of the author.

ANTI-FRANCO RALLY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, January 3 — American legislators, educators, writers, artists, clergymen and liberal and labor leaders called on the United States Government last night to sever diplomatic relations with the regime of Generalissimo Franco of Spain.

They spoke at a public rally at Madison Square Gardens here during which they heard a message from Juan Negrin, last Premier of the Spanish Republic, who sent a cable to the meeting from London.

The keynote of the protest meeting was contained in an address by Representative John M. Coffee, Democrat of Washington, who urged Americans to write to their representatives in Congress to demand abrogation of all relations with the «Nazi-Falangist government of Spain.»

«We (the U.S.) have much more than an ordinary moral responsibility in Spain,» Congressman Coffee said. «Our military security, our political stability and our economic well-being in the post-war world are all intimately tied up to the gate of Spain.»

Negrin, in his message, said that the only request by the Spanish Republicans of the United Nations is that they «cease international recognition of the rebel regime as being contrary to the will of our nation and opposed to human honor.»

He asserted that this action is necessary to prevent «our being relegated to the corner of the vanquished when the world is readjusted after the defeat of the Axis.»

Osubka-Morawski, addressing the Council, reaffirmed that the Provisional Government would follow the lines of the democratic Polish Constitution of 17 March, 1921, until such time as Poland has been liberated and all power turned over to a government elected by universal suffrage.

Osubka-Morawski said that he would strive for closest relations with Soviet Russia and lasting friendship with Britain, the U.S., France and Czechoslovakia.

He emphasized Poland's claims to German territory and said these have support in Russia. The dispatch quoted Osubka-Morawski as saying that in Poland all opposition will be ruthlessly quelled. He asserted that all Poles, including the underground organizations in Poland which owed their allegiance to the Polish Government in London, had been led astray by that government.

The sponsors said that individual support to the purpose of the rally was given by Thomas Mann, by Senator Joseph Guffey, Democrat of Pennsylvania, and by Harold L. Ickes, U.S. Secretary of the Interior.

The sponsors announced that they would urge the U.S. Government not only to break diplomatic and economic relations with the Franco government, but to afford « moral and financial support for the Democratic elements within Spain and in exile, » and obtain freedom of movement and communication for Spanish Republican leaders abroad.

Fascist Government

Many speakers at the meeting drew a parallel between the Franco regime in Spain and the former Mussolini regime in Italy. They asserted that the current Spanish government is as Fascist as the Italian Fascism of Mussolini and that as long as fascism exists anywhere in the world it will remain « a threat to security and freedom of thought. »

This thesis was expounded by Dr. Francis E. McMahon, an instructor at the University of Chicago; Frank Kingdon and Allan Chase, political commentators; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, former secretary of the World Peace Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO.

Dr. McMahon said that Franco came into power « because Hitler and Mussolini put him there. » He added: « It has been argued that military exigencies for a time required toleration of his regime by the democracies. Whatever be the soundness of that argument it cannot be denied that time has certainly passed.»

Chose accused Spain of assisting Germany in furtherance of Germany's war effort, and Carey asserted: «The world cannot be united in a great anti-Fascist crusade while we prop up Franco.»

Bishop Oxnam asked for severance of relations with Franco Spain because «Fascism is the utter rejection of Christianity,» and Kingdon called for «action by the United Nations to outlaw the present government of Spain.» (OWI)

INSIDE GERMANY

GERMAN LABOR PROBLEMS MOUNT

LONDON, January 3 — Germany's labor problems are mounting as slave laborers grow restive at the approach of their countries' liberating armies and the ranks of Nazi workers are drained by the Wehrmacht, press dispatches from neutral sources indicated today.

In a remedial measure, German authorities have militarized all Austrian railways; all railway employees, irrespective of age, sex, or state of health are included in the German armed forces. In this manner, the Germans have sought to impose military restrictions and discipline on their own civilian workers, a dispatch from Geneva said today. Civilian traffic has been discontinued on all Austrian railways and transport facilities have been taken over for the exclusive use of the German High Command.

Following the recent German order conscripting Czech peasants between 18 and 45 years of age to construct fortifications, the Czechoslovak Press Bureau said today that the Germans are forcing all men in the Slovak capital of Bratislava between 43 and 50 to dig trenches.

In the Czechoslovak capital of Prague a state or emergency has been declared as a result of riots on New Year's Eve, the Stockholm Aftontidningen said in a dispatch today. During the riot many quisling security officers were shot and the Imperial Hotel, not far from the city's center, was demolished.

A Nazi economic periodical recently disclosed a shortage of clothing for foreign workers in Germany, according to reports reaching here. Observers commented that the German textile industry has been seriously hit and the resultant shortage of clothing is being reflected throughout Germany. Foreign workers in the future will receive new clothes or serviceable old clothes only in return for unrepairable clothes.

German youth is not at all as enthusiastic for war service as officials proclaim, confidential circulars of Nazi authorities which have fallen into Allied hands revealed.

Worries of German authorities were reflected in a report of the Kreisleiter (party district leader) of Gotha, who said that high school boys at a labor service camp in Mansfield «are no longer conforming to our conception of faith.»

A New York Times correspondent, in a dispatch from Stockholm today, told of a new and never officially announced Nazi organization whose purpose is to «watch» the Gestapo which in turn «watches» other Germans. The correspondent said that the organization, called the Sicherheitdienst, was recruited by Himmler from German intellectuals who had proven themselves absolutely trustworthy. (OWI)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 3 — Today's communique:

Enemy attacks supported by tanks southeast of Bitsche forced our units to give some ground initially but all thrusts were either slowed down or halted. Strong enemy pressure continued in the Lower Vosges Mountains where hostile attacks were launched and attempts to infiltrate were made at several points in the area about five miles north of Reipertsweiler.

Farther east, patrolling was active and was particularly aggressive in the vicinity of Berg near the Rhine. An enemy pocket west of the Rhine farther south was generally quiet. Our troops captured a strongpoint north of Kemps and held it against counter-attacks.

In the Ardennes salient fighter-bombers attacked enemy armor in the Bastogne and St. Vith areas. Medium and fighter-bombers struck at communications and transport in the salient, including a rail junction at Gouvy. Other medium bombers bombed railway bridges at Eimmern and Bad-Munster.

More than 1,000 heavy bombers escorted by 650 fighters attacked six rail bridges mainly in the Coblenz area, communication centers, including road and rail junctions and detraining points at Prum, Bitburg, Kyllburg, Daun and Mayen, railway yards at Gerolstein, Ehrang and Bad-Kreuznach, tank and equipment concentrations, northeast of Saarlautern, and other targets in western Germany.

Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked troop concentrations and defense positions in the Neunkirchen and Kaiserslautern areas, destroyed several tanks near Pirmasens and struck at rail and road transport and communications in the Homburg and Kaiserslautern area. Medium bombers attacked supply dumps and troop barracks at Nunschweiler, Thaleischweiler and Oos.

In the course of these operations 13 enemy aircraft were shot down. Eleven fighters and 10 bombers are missing according to reports so far received. A very strong force of heavy bombers last night attacked the industrial and railway center of Nurnberg and chemical works at Ludwigshafen. Berlin was also bombed. (Reuter)

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 3 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

Northwest of Ravenna Canadian infantry and tanks of the 8th Army have gained ground between the River Senio and the Fosso Vecchio against strong resistance.

On the 5th Army front patrols have been active.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Aircraft of the Tactical Air Force yesterday, out in considerable strength, again concentrated their attacks on enemy communications, mainly in the northwest area of the Po Valley, and on a large variety of targets in the battle areas of north Italy. Targets included bridges, rail lines, enemy-occupied buildings, rail and road transport, guns and defended positions. Many rail cuts were effected, and two airfields were strafed.

Coastal aircraft attacked shipping in the Gulf of Genoa and bombed an enemy barracks on the Italian Riviera.

On the night of January 1/2, light bombers and intruders attacked enemy road and rail transport in north Italy.

One of our aircraft is missing from these operations.

MAAF flew approximately 1,000 sorties.

WAR COMMUNIQUES

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 3 — Today's communique:

Allied forces in the Ardennes salient have made some gains and repulsed a number of enemy counter-attacks.

In the St. Hubert-Bastogne sector of the southern flank we have made progress in the areas of Bonnerue and Hubermont against resistance varying from moderate to heavy.

We have taken Gerimont and Mande. Fighting is in progress in Senonchamps.

Northeast of Bastogne we have reached a point on the railway three miles beyond the town. Mageret is in our hands and we are in the immediate vicinity of Michamps.

Heavy fighting is going on in the areas of Neffe and Wardin. We have made some gains east and south of Lutrebois and are encountering heavy shelling in Hannville.

In the Saar Valley, enemy activity has increased. Southeast of Saarlautern a small-scale infantry attack in the area of Geislautern was repulsed and our units cleared the area northeast of Saargemünd. Near Neunkirchen an infantry attack supported by one tank was contained.

Between Habkirchen and Bliesbrücken enemy attempts to cross the Blies River were repulsed. Far her east five companies of German infantry gained one kilometer from the area south of Obergailbach to a point just west of Rimlingen.

Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked troop concentrations and defense positions in the Neunkirchen and Kaiserslautern areas, destroyed several tanks near Pirmasens and struck at rail and road transport and communications in the Homburg and Kaiserslautern area. Medium bombers attacked supply dumps and troop barracks at Nunschweiler, Thaleischweiler and Oos.

SOVIET

MOSCOW, January 3 — Tonight's communique:

During today, on the territory of Czechoslovakia, our troops advancing towards Lucenec from east and south, captured the populated localities of Ozhdyany, Dvoykerektu, Golo, Pinsenc, Saher, Kalonda, Veliki Salesz, Maley Salesz, Parlak, Raroszmulak, and Velikiye Zlebtsi, and the railway station of Ozhdyany.

In battles during January 1/2, in this area, our troops captured 2,320 German soldiers and officers.

In the area of Budapest, our troops continued fighting for the annihilation of encircled enemy groupings, in the course of which they occupied 136 blocks in the eastern part and 31 blocks in the western part of the city.

Southeast of Komárno, our troops were beating-back large forces of tanks and infantry of the enemy, which were attempting to break-through to help his encircled groupings in the city of Budapest. With the price of enormous losses in manpower and equipment, the enemy succeeded in occupying a few populated localities on the southern bank of the Danube.

On other sectors of the front, there were no essential changes.

During January 2, our troops disabled or destroyed on all fronts a total of 61 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 21 enemy planes were shot down (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 3 — Today's communique:

Patriots repelled, without loss to themselves, an enemy infiltration operation carried out at the Parma Province town of Varano de' Melegari, in the Emilia region. Eight Germans were killed; many were wounded and 23 taken prisoner. Attacks launched by the German garrisons at Calestano and Fugazzolo, also in Parma Province, were effectively opposed by Patriot forces.

On December 18 a Patriot patrol attacked the German headquarters at Lama Mocogno, also in the Emilia region. The Germans took to flight, leaving behind three prisoners. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS January 3 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the Bastogne area, the battle continues in fluctuating fighting. The stubborn American attempt at smashing the German front west of Bastogne with four tank and as many infantry divisions and enveloping our front bulge east and southeast of the town from three sides resulted in only slight gains for the enemy and the loss of another hundred tanks. According to preliminary reports, the enemy lost more than 400 guns, 1,230 tanks and armoured vehicles as well as 24,000 prisoners in the winter battle. The losses suffered up to now amount to more than 50,000 casualties.

On the Saar and in eastern Lorraine, the fighting makes satisfactory progress. The Saar bridgehead northwest of Forbach was broadened and fortified. The frontier area northeast of Sarreguemines was cleared of the enemy.

In the Lower Vosges, our attack also makes satisfactory progress.

Liége and Antwerp continued to be subjected to the bombardment by our long range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, in the Romagna and on the Adriatic coast, formations of the British 8th Army launched isolated attacks and thrusts. All attacks failed. West of Ravenna, enemy forces which had temporarily penetrated into our positions, were driven back in a counter-attack.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, the fighting around Budapest increased in fierceness. The German-Hungarian garrison, supported by bombers, repulsed the incessant Soviet attacks in part by counter-thrusts and in part in grim fighting at close quarters.

On the southern frontier of Slovakia, between the Gran and the upper reaches of the Sajo, our troops are engaged in grim and successful defensive fighting against intensified Soviet attacks. Eighteen enemy planes were brought down in dogfights.

On the Eastern Front reaching from eastern Slovakia up to Courland, there was only minor fighting.

Air:

Yesterday, American terror bombers dropped bombs on western Reich territory hitting particularly residential districts of various towns. Planes flying at a low level continued to attack the civil population with their guns.

In the evening hours, the British launched a terror attack on Nürnberg which caused big damage to buildings and losses among the population. Irreplaceable cultural

GERMAN

Sertorius on Western Front: The report from the correspondent Sertorius today lays stress upon the importance of both the Ardennes and the Bastogne regions. « The battle in the Ardennes has obviously not yet reached its climax. Further developments may see a resumption of a major German attack... The main pressure from the Americans is still directed against the German positions in the Bastogne region. »

Allied Lack of Ammunition Alleged: Perhaps the most important strategic factor raised in the German military analyses of today is the claim of Sertorius concerning the consequences of a supposed ammunition shortage on the part of the Allies:

« It is interesting that the Allies obviously did not make use of their often-applied concentration of artillery in the course of the winter battle in southern Belgium. This indicates difficulties in supplying munitions, which are partly due to unknown miscalculations of Allied armament production and partly due to direct German action against enemy supplies. »

The use of flying bombs is cited as one of the means by which Germany supposedly reduced Allied ammunition production.

Allied Contradiction on Air Losses: A Transocean dispatch points out a glaring contradiction in reports from Allied news sources:

« The blow directed against the Anglo-American airfields in the Belgian-Dutch area by the German Air Force resulted in curious contradictions within the Allied reports. According to one report, German formations allegedly lost 364 planes. » Yet, according to « competent German sources, » this German attacking force was described by other Allied reports as consisting of a total of merely 200 to 300 planes.

Eastern Front: The correspondent von Olberg tonight reports: « Aside from the violent struggle for Budapest and the sending of Soviet troops to the southern and eastern frontiers of Slovakia, there was no large-scale fighting along the entire eastern front. »

Southern Front: « No outstanding events have taken place in the last twenty-four hours... » according to the Fascist Radio, which goes on to say: « From the arrival of reinforcements it may be gathered that the British will make further efforts to reach the Senio River. Spampanato of Radio Fante considers the decree from three viewpoints: economically, by the abolition of expensive menus, it calls a halt to the devaluation of the lire; practically, as regards the organisation of food supplies, more equal distribution will result in an improvement in the general food situation; and socially, it will put an end to luxury, « an insult to the fighting people... »

7TH ARMY REPELS NAZIS ALONG SAAR

LONDON, January 2 — The Germans appeared today to have switched their counter-offensive to the 7th Army front as their Belgian salient continued to shrink under the continued attack of American infantry and armor.

SHAEF announced tonight it was discontinuing the 36 hour time lag on news from the Western Front.

Late press dispatches tonight reported increasing pres-advanced a total of eight miles since Sunday. Their deepest penetration has occured at Moircy.

As they spread out from Bastogne, the Americans captured the town of Wardin, three miles to the southeast. Nesse, two miles east of Bastogne, also was taken.

A SHAEF spokesman today described the series of separate counter-attacks which the Germans have launched in the Bastogne area in the last two days as an effort to keep the 3rd Army from developing an attack against the waist of the German salient, now narrowed to about 14 miles. An accelerated American drive directly north from Bastogne would sever the salient and isolate German forces to the west.

American patrols late today penetrated the northern flank of the German salient to a depth of 3,000 yards without encountering resistance, a front-line correspondent reported.

On other sectors of the Western Front enemy artillery harassed towns on the Alsace plain and hostile patrols were turned back at several points east and northwest of Mulhouse.

SHAEF said the Germans increased their artillery fire in the area south of Duren while Allied artillery dispersed enemy patrols which again were active across the Maas River in the Roermond area.

A German attempt to cross the Maas at its northern end was reported. Correspondents said that the enemy succeeded in ferrying two artillery pieces to the southern bank at a point near Kapelle. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

NON-STOP AIR ATTACK ON GERMANY

LONDON, January 2 — More than 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 650 Thunderbolts and Mustangs, were over Germany today for the 11th successive day, attacking three marshalling yards, five road and rail junctions, six bridges and enemy troops concentrations. They dropped more than 3,000 tons of bombs.

The railyard targets were at Geralstein, east of Prum; Bad Kreuznach, south of Bingen, and Ensang, south of Trier. All the communication centers were attacked in the area east of the German salient in Belgium, while the bridges were mostly in the Coolenz area. German tank and infantry concentrations were bombed in a wooded area near Saarlautern and within 10 miles of the present front lines.

Although the weather was clear and the heavy bombers were able to bomb the majority of their targets visually, the Luftwaffe, which suffered heavy losses yesterday, made no attempt at interception.

7TH ARMY REPELS NAZIS ALONG SAAR

LONDON, January 2 — The Germans appeared today to have switched their counter-offensive to the 7th Army front as their Belgian salient continued to shrink under the continued attack of American infantry and armor.

SHAEF announced tonight it was discontinuing the 36 hour time lag on news from the Western Front.

Late press dispatches tonight reported increasing pressure along the 7th Army's Saar front with the spearheads of the attacks near Wolferdingen, on the German frontier, and near Saargemünd.

The attacks began before daybreak yesterday and are growing in intensity, press dispatches said. Although reluctant to call the enemy activity along the Saar the beginning of a major counter-attack, correspondents quote the SHAEF report today of increasing action in the area from the town of Bitsch to the Rhine River, a distance of 40 miles. The SHAEF communique said the Germans had gained some ground in their attacks in the wooded region south of Bannstein, which is five miles southeast of Bitsch.

Another German counter-attack was repulsed at Dambach, five miles northeast of Bannstein, and one German thrust cut the road running east from Bitsch.

Meanwhile, the perimeter of the German salient has become small and misshapen under the continual pounding of American armor and infantry, which has made advances into its flanks and forced an eastward withdrawal of the enemy.

Third Army troops have beaten back German attempts to cut the Bastogne-Arlon supply road, along which U.S. infantry and armor have been pouring through Bastogne, and have recaptured the towns of Remagne and Hubermont, some six miles west of Bastogne. The 3rd Army, which punched into the southern flank of the German thrust, has miles. An accelerated American drive directly north of Bastogne would sever the salient and isolate German forces to the west.

American patrols late today penetrated the northern flank of the German salient to a depth of 3,000 yards without encountering resistance, a front-line correspondent reported.

On other sectors of the Western Front enemy artillery harassed towns on the Alsace plain and hostile patrols were turned back at several points east and northwest of Mulhouse.

SHAEF said the Germans increased their artillery fire in the area south of Düren while Allied artillery dispersed enemy patrols which again were active across the Maas River in the Roermond area.

A German attempt to cross the Maas at its northern end was reported. Correspondents said that the enemy succeeded in ferrying two artillery pieces to the southern bank at a point near Kapelle. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

BATTLE FOR MANDALAY IMMINENT

WASHINGTON, January 2 — Brigadier Stephen Irwin, Chief of Staff for the British 14th Indian Army declared here today that "we are on the eve of the battle for Mandalay." The Japanese, he hinted, may be forced to withdraw from the city while offering only rearguard action. They are faced with the choice of abandoning their positions northwest of Ye-U or of being cut off by the British 36th Division south of Kanbulu. The recapture of Mandalay will mean the virtual retaking of Burma, Brigadier Irwin stated. (Reuter)

1,000 RAF BOMBERS HIT GERMANY AT NIGHT

LONDON, January 2 — The RAF Bomber Command tonight dispatched more than 1,000 aircraft against important targets in Germany, it was officially stated.

The chief objectives were the industrial and railway center of Nuremberg and the I.G. Farben chemical works at Ludwigshafen. Berlin also was bombed.

Out of 900 German aircraft sent over the Allied lines yesterday, 364 were destroyed by Allied fighters and anti-aircraft fire. This was the greatest defeat for the Luftwaffe during the entire war. (Reuter-ABSIE-OWI)

Coblenz and Frankfurt areas shooting up 16 locomotives, 25 freight cars, five trucks, a rail station and a staff car. Nine U.S. heavy bombers and two fighters failed to return.

Planes of the Allied Tactical Air Forces were active over the battle area today. Fighter-bombers and fighters of the 9th USAAF flew 300 sorties by noon striking at a column of enemy motorized infantry, including tanks, five miles east of Saint Vith. Sixty-nine vehicles were destroyed and many troops killed. Near Saint Vith, marshalling yards were heavily attacked.

In other attacks, 42 motor transport were destroyed in the battle area, 22 tanks and armored vehicles were knocked out and 23 damaged.

Today's assault on German targets by the 8th USAAF followed a night in which RAF Bomber Command aircraft continued their offensive against the enemy supply lines with an attack on the marshalling yards at Vihwinkel, just south of the Ruhr.

RAF Halifaxes hit the Minetersiein benzol plant near Dortmund. Fires and large explosions were observed.

This plant is another of the large coking plants in the Ruhr which produces benzol as a by-product. Several of them have previously been attacked.

Attacks were also made on Hanover and the railway center of Hanau, 10 miles east of Frankfurt. Night fighters and intruder aircraft of the Bomber Command supported the bombers and attacked enemy airfields, destroying at least four enemy aircraft in combat.

Mosquitos of the 2nd TAF took advantage of the clear night to make concentrated attacks on enemy movements in the Zulpich, Mayen and Clervaux areas. They paid particular attention to troop concentrations in forests and woods.

Aerial photographs of the Dollbergen oil refinery, which was attacked yesterday by the 8th USAAF, showed that it was severely damaged. (OWI - Reuter)

NAZIS ATTACK ALONG SENIO RIVER

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 2 — German forces, continuing their struggle to keep the 8th Army from massing against the Senio River defenses across the southeastern end of the Lombardy Plain, yesterday crossed the river from their outposts along the Canale Naviglio in a series of small scale attacks, it was announced here today.

The two principal enemy attacks were at the northern and southern edges of the sector protecting the rail-junction town of Lugo, which lies 27 miles east of Bologna along the routes from Ravenna and the Adriatic coast.

Although official reports did not locate the point of the enemy thrusts exactly, both seemed to have been within a two-mile radius of Lugo, the center point of the German defenses north of the main Po Valley Highway and athwart the north approach road to Bologna from the east.

A German raiding party, supported by mortars, struck across the Senio along the sector between Lugo and Fusignano, four miles northeast, in the first of the two attacks. This force was driven back, after suffering casualties and leaving prisoners.

The second German attack was launched from the northern edge of the enemy salient east of the Senio, along the stretch between Lugo and Cotignola, two miles to the southeast.

This attack also was halted, and prisoners taken.

Still a third enemy counter-attack, launched across the Canale Naviglio, an artificial watercourse connecting the Senio and Lamone rivers, and aimed at an Allied strongpoint between Cotignola and Villa Quaglia, three miles southeast, likewise failed. German forces still hold in this sector a sliver of land nearly-five-mile-long between the straight course of the Canale Naviglio and the winding Se-

Hostile patrols were active in the area of Monte Grande and Monte Cerere, and brisk small arms skirmishes were reported from nearby Monte Castellaro and the hamlet of Parecchia. Heavy enemy shellfire was directed against Monte Grande, a key bastion in the Allied positions in this sector some 11 miles southeast of Bologna.

In the Serchio River valley, where reinforced 5th Army forces have retaken most of the positions evacuated in the face of the German counter-thrust of last week, enemy artillery fire was reported to have increased, although the sector north of Lucca was generally quiet, with only minor patrol clashes.

On the extreme right flank of the 5th Army's long mountain battle line Allied forces reported the hamlet of San Martino, six miles south of Imola to be clear of the enemy. (PRO)

TAF USED IN DIRECT SUPPORT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 2 — Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday concentrated on enemy battle line positions. Three quarters of the total MAAF operations were in direct support of the Allied 5th and 8th Armies, it was announced here today.

In attacks on a day in which bad weather cancelled all operations of the Strategic, Coastal and Balkan Air Forces, South African Air Force Kittyhawks attacked a German headquarters building at the eastern end of the 5th Army front, knocking off the roof and most of the upper story of the structure. American Thunderbolts hit in two successive waves at an enemy fuel dump near Fidenza, midway between Piacenza and Parma on the Bologna-Milan rail route.

Medium bombers struck two rail bridges east of Milan and one at Parma, as well as an ammunition dump just south of Pavia in the Valley of the Po. Bombs hit the center of the mass of munitions, causing a great explosion.

In other attacks, enemy rail lines were cut in 23 places, and further toll was taken of enemy transport. (PRO)

BUDAPEST CIVILIANS STARVING

MOSCOW, January 2 — The Red Army today almost completed the battle for Buda, western half of Budapest, but bitter German resistance continued on the east bank of the Danube as Russian artillery and rocket-firing planes began levelling the city block by block. The Russian High Command, throwing responsibility for the destruction of the Hungarian capital squarely on the Germans, ordered the enemy's remaining defense positions destroyed.

Meanwhile, northeast of Budapest, the Red Army advanced northward into Czechoslovakia. Advanced Russian elements broke into the streets of Lucenec (Losonc), a road and rail junction six miles north of the Hungarian border, on the flank of the principal German grouping in Slovakia. German counter-attacks northeast of Komarno were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Correspondents described the fighting in Budapest as surpassing in fury that at Stalingrad. In Pest, the eastern part of the capital, the Germans have the advantage of substantially-built buildings which can stand up against all but the heaviest artillery, and the battle there has turned into hundreds of separate sieges. Firing machine guns and tommy guns from behind heaps of rubble, the Germans fight house by house and room by room.

The Manchester Guardian's correspondent here said in a dispatch today that the German decision to sacrifice Budapest in an effort to delay the Russian advance is bringing slow starvation to two million Hungarians, apart from the damage caused to the city itself.

Fires in the city have been swelled by blazing fuel tanks, which are choking the streets with thick black smoke, the dispatch added. Deadly Russian 'Katushkas' (multi-barreled mortars), with their flaming, rocket-like

German forces still hold in this sector a sliver of land nearly-five-mile-long between the straight course of the Canale Naviglio and the winding Senio River, from a point south of Bagnacavallo southwestward to the vicinity of Sant'Andrea, three miles northeast of Faenza.

Strong concentrations of machine guns, supported by tanks, self-propelled guns and artillery, have enabled the Germans to hold this fragment of their former delaying positions despite almost continuous British attacks from the south during the past two weeks.

Patrol Actions

German forces on the 8th Army Front have been engaged in a series of skirmishes and delaying actions along the Senio River and to the east since mid December, when New Zealand forces first broke through the enemy's Lamone River defenses to reach the Senio all along the sector south of the main Po Valley Highway. Even after Canadian forces, after passing through three enemy water defense lines, penetrated to the Senio at its northern end, the Germans tried to delay an assault on their unfinished Senio defenses.

IWO JIMA ATTACKED FOR 25TH DAY

PEARL HARBOR, January 2 — American Liberator bombers attacked the island of Iwo Jima in the Volcanoes, on Sunday for the 25th consecutive day, it was officially announced at Pacific Fleet headquarters tonight.

A lone Japanese bomber dropped one bomb on Saipan yesterday, the announcement said, indicating the effectiveness of the «neutralization attacks» on Iwo Jima from which the Japanese had previously launched bombers against Saipan's Superfortress installations. The Japanese bomber which appeared over Saipan yesterday represented the eighth raid on the island since the Superfortresses began attacking the Japanese homeland, an American press dispatch said.

In Sunday's attack on Iwo Jima, the Liberators encountered only moderate anti-aircraft fire, headquarters announced.

Ground fighting on Leyte continued yesterday and 995 enemy troops were killed and 11 prisoners taken during the day's fighting, General Douglas MacArthur's communique said today. Total number of Japanese casualties in the Philippine campaign has reached 118,982.

Heavy bombers based in the Philippine area hit fuel storage dumps yesterday at Sassa airfield on Mindanao, while medium bombers attacked shipping off Samar Island. Bomb-carrying patrol planes set fire to five Japanese coastal freighters and downed four enemy planes in the Philippine area.

In other air action, medium bombers and fighters bombed and strafed enemy aircromes on Panay, Negros and Cebu Islands, starting fires, the communique added. Shipping off the islands of Formosa was attacked on Sunday.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet, told a press conference yesterday that the Allies should be prepared to invade Japan and «we will undoubtably have to occupy enough of it to win the peace.»

Nimitz, who recently returned to Hawaii from a tour of the Pacific fighting areas, said he believed it «is essential to obtain bases on the China coast in order to secure land masses necessary for deployment of the huge Allied forces. He said he saw an «unhappy 1945 for the Japanese.»

YUGOSLAVS CUT VIADUCT

LONDON, January 2 — Yugoslav Partisan units continued their attacks against German communication lines, especially in the Dinkovo Osijek district and in the Nasice-Vukovar sector, where the Germans are suffering great losses both in men and artillery, today's communique reported.

After a heavy fight, all German lines on the Babic sector have been knocked out and with the liberation yesterday of Mokra Gora, fortified Nazi strongpoint, Tito's troops have cleared the last German defenses, closing the approaches to Praca Valley and protecting communications to Sarajevo.

Allied aircraft destroyed a viaduct near Brovnica, halting all traffic on the Trieste-Ljubljana line.

Allied aircraft played havoc with the enemy's vital communications system by destroying an important viaduct between Ljubljana and Trieste, cutting enemy traffic along the railway line into northeastern Italy.

ADMIRAL RAMSAY KILLED IN AIR CRASH

SHAEF, January 2 — Admiral Sir Bertram H. Ramsay, Allied naval commander-in-chief of the Normandy landings, was killed today in a plane crash in France, it is officially announced. He was 61 years old.

At the time of the accident, Admiral Ramsay was en route to a conference in Belgium.

One of Britain's most brilliant naval men, he played a leading part in planning the Allied landings in North Africa, Sicily, Italy and Normandy. It was his job to organize water transport for huge armadas of troops and supplies and to assemble the fleets of protecting warships and landing craft.

Admiral Ramsay was responsible for the evacuation of the British Expeditionary Force from the beaches of Dunkirk. One of the last operations he planned was the invasion of the Dutch island of Walcheren at the mouth of the Scheldt Estuary, opening the way to the port of Antwerp.

He retired from the Navy in 1938 after 40 years service but was called back into service after the outbreak of the war and immediately found himself handling the direction

CHINESE DRIVE TOWARD WANTING

CHUNGKING, January 2 — Chinese troops, in a revitalized triple-pronged drive toward the China-Burma border town of Wanting, have killed over 200 Japanese and captured large quantities of military supplies, the Chinese High Command communique said today.

As American airmen carried out night bombing sorties in the combat area, Chinese ground troops struck hard toward Wanting from the north, east and west.

The columns striking from the north have retaken a vital wooded area, the high command announced. Those driving from the east have captured three enemy strongholds, and those from the west have seized six strongpoints, cutting the Japanese communication line on the northern bank of the Shweli River from Wanting to Mengmao.

In a series of widespread blows against Japanese positions in northern and southcentral China, 14th USAAF planes destroyed a train partially loaded with gasoline, two locomotives, and two tanks and damaged three other tanks. Troop concentrations and enemy river shipping were bombed and strafed.

Fort Bayard, on Luichow Peninsula in southern China, was hit by heavy bombers in a night attack.

In Burma, British 14th Army troops, driving southeast from the Chindwin valley, have taken the village of Kaduma, about 85 miles northwest of Mandalay. This latest advance puts them 17 miles from the railhead of Ye-U, from where a direct line runs to Mandalay. Fairly flat country lies ahead of the advancing British troops.

Heavy bombers of the Eastern Air Command maintained their offensive against Japanese communications with successful attacks yesterday on bridges of the Burma-Thailand railway.

Medium and fighter-bombers on New Year's Eve maintained their heavy attacks on the main enemy supply road to the Arakan sector on the Burma west coast and hit enemy positions and troops. (Reuter-OWI)

BLINDED PILOT GUIDED HOME

CHUNGKING, January 2 — A wounded pilot, his eyes bleeding from fragments from a Japanese shell, was guided safely back to his base by the radioed voice and barely visible wing-tip of a comrade in another fighter plane, an American correspondent said in a dispatch today.

The pilot was hit during a strafing mission. Noticing his plight, a fellow pilot flew his plane so that the wounded pilot could see the wingtip, only a few feet away from his cockpit. In this manner they flew for about an hour, the guiding pilot leading his blinded comrade back to the base and on to the runway, climbing up and out of the way just as the wheels of the wounded pilot's plane touched the ground, the correspondent said. He is the fourth Allied military leader in this war to be killed in an airplane mishap — Maj. Gen. Charles Orde Wingate, General Wladyslaw Sikorsky and Air Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory having met their deaths in similar circumstances.

For his work at Dunkirk, he was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath. Later for his exceptional services in planning and executing the Allied operations which led to the liberation of Sicily, he was made a Knight Commander of the British Empire. (Reuter - OWI)

AIRMEN WRECK 800 NAZI VEHICLES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 2 — A count of wrecked and abandoned enemy motor vehicles along the stretch of Montenegrin mountain road between the town of Podgorica and Kolasin, on the German escape route from southwestern Yugoslavia, shows that more than 800 vehicles, the major part of the transport of the German 21st Mountain Corps, was destroyed as a result of Allied air attacks, it was reported here today.

AUSTRALIA PREPARES FOR BRITISH FLEET

LONDON, January 2 — Preparations are now being made in the Australian ports for the accommodation of the British Pacific Fleet which will be based there under the command of Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser.

Australian shipyards at present are repairing merchant ships, handling a monthly average of one and a quarter million gross tons of shipping.

At the same time it is reported that during the past year anti-submarine forces of the Royal Australian Navy have escorted 25 million gross tons of Allied merchant shipping without a single loss from enemy submarine attack.

Australia's naval and ship repair personnel and resources being thus engaged, a force of volunteer dockyard workers from Britain are being sent to Australia to help service the fleet. Nevertheless, the Commonwealth government is making an allocation of 3,000 workers for the same purpose.

Admiral Fraser, in a visit to Admiral Nimitz at Pearl Harbor, reached agreement on future operations.

Correspondents point out that, however far from Japan the main bases of the British Pacific Fleet may be, there is nothing to prevent the creation of advance bases at intermediate points in the East Indies or on the mainland coast of Southeast Asia. This would give the Fleet a wide range of action, provided that it was accompanied by store ships and tankers together with depot and repair ships. (MOI)

SOUTH AFRICAN JOURNALIST KILLED

LONDON, January 2 — Lt. Col. George Lauder Steer, former South African journalist, was killed in a motor car accident Christmas Day while on active service in the South-east Asia Command, it was announced today. Colonel Steer was 35 years old. Born in East London, South Africa, he won many scholastic honors at Worcester and Oxford before beginning on a journalistic career. He covered the Spanish Civil War for The Times. In 1936 he was expelled from Abyssinia by the invading Italians and later wrote a book, «Caesar in Abyssinia.»

In Finland when the war started, he joined the armed forces when South Africa declared war on the Axis.

POGEBEN WAS TORTURE CAMP

MOSCOW, January 2 — Graves with the bodies of 10,000 Russian citizens were found on the site of the concentration camp at Pogeben after the Germans were driven out, Radio Moscow announced today. The victims had been shot, starved to death or buried alive, the broadcast said.

A survivor said the mass shootings began in October, 1941. The Germans, wishing to cover up their crimes, put the whole camp in quarantine and no one was permitted to leave. Food was rationed with such calculation that, no matter how strong a person was, he was doomed to death from starvation. The prisoners were so hungry that they ate garbage, he said.

A group of 59 to 60 persons was forced to plunge into icy water in a so-called bath house and then forced to lie on the bare ground. Some froze to death and most of the others died of pneumonia. In November and December, 1941, as a result of starvation, exposure, torture and epidemics, 150 to 200 persons per day died.

In an attempt to cover up the crimes, the Germans demolished the camp and all its buildings.

MAF LOST 400 PLANES LAST MONTH

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 2 — The Mediterranean Allied Air Forces lost nearly 400 planes in action during December, some 220 of them heavy bombers, it was reported here today.

The Allied losses were incurred in the course of 42,831 sorties, in which strategic bombers struck heavily at Germany's «big five» oil-producing plants in Silesia and the Sudetenland, and key enemy rail lines, and tactical bombers concentrated on enemy supply networks and battle positions in Italy and Yugoslavia.

In air encounters during December, 88 enemy planes were destroyed, as well as 59 others smashed on the ground.

problem of the present Socialist policy and of Nenni's temperament — to what point is this 'direct action' on the masses and this pressure on the Government frankly and politically democratic?»

Risorgimento Liberale (Liberal Party) says: «We had hoped and expected, when the Socialists participated in the first and later in the second coalition government, that certain old formulas which had already been fatal to Socialism and to Italy in 1922, and which in the present situation may be interpreted as a call to civil war, had finally been forgotten.

«The recent Government crisis has re-introduced them again with extreme crudeness, and Nenni insisted on hammering them home again on Sunday. We understand perfectly the idealistic passion that animates the words and writings of a man who, during his long exile, saw the tragedy coming and could do nothing to prevent it.

«Therefore certain feelings of sterile revolutionism seem to us a proof of political immaturity which a great party like the Socialist Party ought to overcome if really it wants to prepare itself to become a Government party.»

Socialist Giuseppe Saragat thus comments on Nenni's speech in Avanti! (Socialist Party): «The Socialist Party intervenes in the political discussion out of which the destiny of future generations will be decided to offer the constructive contribution of its doctrine, its experience and its actions. This is not the time for tactics, but for intransigence on fundamental principles. It is the time for coherence in great things as in small ones. From this point of view the ministerial crisis itself was but an episode of the greater drama of which Nenni yesterday traced the bitter and painful outlines.»

COLLABORATION CHARGES MADE

ROME, January 2 — Ulderico Daniele, Carmelo Nencioni, Federico Federici and Lapo Cordellini have been denounced to court authorities by the Rome police on charges of collaboration with the Germans, it was announced today.

The court will investigate the charges and decide whether a warrant for their arrest shall be issued.

Daniele, former vice secretary of the Fondi, Littoria province, section of the Fascist Republican Party, is accused of having ordered round-ups of Italians for forced labor in Germany. Nencioni is charged with anti-Semitic activities. Federici and Cordellini are accused, respectively, of carrying out «anti-national propaganda» and of revealing to the German SS the hideout of a Patriot soldier.

LIBERATED ITALY

ROME PRESS DAILY REVIEW

ROME, January 2 — Pietro Nenni's Sunday speech on the current Italian and international situation produced wide comment in the morning press here today.

Italia Libera (Action Party) in its leading editorial says: «The problem of conciliating the attitude which the Socialist Party has taken and will take in the Italian crisis, from time to time, and the attitude the Communist Party intends to take is and will remain the specific responsibility of the Socialst Party. It is exactly on this point, to be quite sincere, that Nenni's speech did not furnish the desired information.»

Il Tempo (Independent conservative), under the caption «A Socialist Policy,» writes: «Nenni has said 'Politics above everything else' and has often spoken against a 'reconstruction' of a purely administrative and bureaucratic nature. But the word 'politics' has a peculiar sound and accent in so far as Nenni is concerned. The word 'politics' is peculiar to his temperament. Nenni is a born agitator, and therefore politics is for him, whether within or outside legal bounds, a question of affinity of forces, of a collision of interests and of men and a conquest of positions and power.

«One of the reasons for the passing of the Socialist Party to the opposition, after the recent crisis, is to be sought precisely in the more openly agitative and popular tactics assumed by him. But — and this is the central its actions. This is not the time for tactics, but for intransigence on fundamental principles. It is the time for coherence in great things as in small ones. From this point of view the ministerial crisis itself was but an episode of the greater drama of which Nenni yesterday traced the bitter and painful outlines.»

ROME, January 2 — Ulderico Daniele, Carmelo Nencioni, Federico Federici and Lago Cordellini have been denounced to court authorities by the Rome police on charges of collaboration with the Germans, it was announced today.

The court will investigate the charges and decide whether a warrant for their arrest shall be issued.

Daniele, former vice secretary of the Fondi, Littoria province, section of the Fascist Republican Party, is accused of having ordered round-ups of Italians for forced labor in Germany. Nencioni is charged with anti-Semitic activities. Federici and Cordellini are accused, respectively, of carrying out «anti-national propaganda» and of revealing to the German SS the hideout of a Patriot soldier.

NEW GOVERNOR OF BANK OF ITALY

ROME, January 2 — Professor Luigi Einaudi has been appointed governor of the Bank of Italy, it was announced today.

Since he is a Senator, it was necessary to issue a special decree suspending the law under which members of the parliament are barred from executive posts in the bank.

Professor Niccolò Introna, who temporarily acted as director of the bank following the arrest of Vincenzo Azzolini on charges of collaborating with the enemy, is to be appointed general director.

Azzolini was convicted of having handed over Bank of Italy funds to the Germans and was given a 30 year sentence.

TRIAL OF SENATORS POSTPONED

ROME, January 2 — A postponement in the trial of six Senators charged with accepting bribes and spying on members of the Senate for the Fascist Ministry of the Interior was granted today by the High Court of Justice.

The defense had asked for the postponement on the grounds that three of the Senators are too ill to stand trial and the others are living in northern Italy.

The Senators are Cesare Genovesi, Paolo Vinassa De Gegny and Giuseppe Guadagnini ,now in Nazi-occupied Italy; and Alfredo Felici, Giacomo Curatolo and Stefano De Rugglero, reported ill.

ITALIAN FAMILY SAVED FLYER'S LIFE

WITH THE 5TH ARMY, January 2 — An Italian family of the village of Bitorco, who sheltered and cared for an American pilot whose plane was forced down, will be rewarded by the Allied Military Government.

The pilot, Captain Chester Kingsman was hidden by the Italians while the Germans occupied Bitorco. When the town was liberated Kingsman returned to his unit and later to the United States.

The AMG officer at Marradi, Capt. N. M. Mackenzie told a correspondent today that it is AMG policy amply to reimburse such a family for the time they sheltered an Allied soldier.

EX-FASCIST CONSUL ARRESTED

ROME, January 1 — Antonio Arrivabene, former consul-general in Algiers for the Fascist government, has been arrested on charges of having been the leader of Fascist terrorism in the Province of Mantua, the Questura announced today.

He had previously been egurated from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. (UNN)

US NAVY FEED SICILIAN CHILDREN

A U. S. NAVAL BASE, SICILY, January 2 — More than 45,000 hot meals have been served by the United States Navy at this base to more than 2,000 needy children, it was disclosed today by Captain C. L. Nichols, USN, commandant of the base. The meals were served daily beginning in November in what Navy men said was the largest «soup kitchen» in the Mediterranean theater.

The meals are prepared and served by Italian civilians, all of whom volunteered their services. The Navy provides a truck and two men and each morning they stop at Navy kitchens ashore and visit all ships in the harbor, picking up surpluses from the galleys. (UNN)

SMALL INDUSTRIES SEEK AID

ROME, January 2 — Representatives of medium-sized and small metal-processing industries of the Lazio region, meeting in session here yesterday, adopted a resolution asking for money from the Government and from private banks and credit firms.

The resolution said financial aid was especially necessary in the case of industries which have suffered as a result of the war. Allocation of the necessary power and raw materials was also urged. (UNN)

ROME, January 2 — The position of the Holy See with regard to Italy's Christian Left Party was defined today in a note published by the Vatican semi-official party daily Osservatore Romano, which said: «In order to reply to the many queries which have been made to us, we are authorized to declare that the principles and tendencies of the so-called Christian Left Party, despite the former adjective, are not in conformity with the teaching of the Church.

The public prosecutor at the trial will likely be Assistant General Crown Attorney Corradino Berardi. General Roatta will be defended by Bruno Cassinelli. (UNN)

FASCIST CORRUPTION REVEALED

ROME, January 2 — A story of widespread corruption and graft in the allocation of war contracts through the Fascist Italian War Ministry between 1937 and 1939 today was revealed with disclosure of a report made by Lt. Col. Ettore Faga, of the Carabinieri, at the request of the SIM (Italian Military Intelligence) in 1940.

The report, which covers the tenure of office of War Under Secretaries General Alberto Pariani and General Ubaldo Soddu, is one of the documents in the forthcoming trial of Lt. General Mario Roatta, former Foreign Affairs Under Secretary Fulvio Suvich and 12 others on charges of contributing to the maintenance in power of the Fascist regime. The trial is to open January 22.

Seven of the defendants are in custody and will appear at the trial. The other seven are to be tried in absentia.

Colonel Faga's report discloses that firms favored with war contracts promised to pay sums of money to former Under Secretary for War Ubaldo Soddu and other officials of the War Ministry and to build villas for them. These deals fell through, the report adds, when Soddu was replaced by General Antonio Sorice. Other firms were called in and they, in turn, took over the contracts in exchange for luxurious apartments for their protegés.

General Soddu is reported to have been given a villa, worth half a million lire near Lake Garda, by a firm supplying arms to the War Ministry. He is also mentioned in the report as having eliminated General Amoroso from his post as commander of the Bolzano Army Engineers' unit «for not knowing how to deal with firms previously contacted» by his office.

Colonel Faga's report was sent to Mussolini, who in turn forwarded it to War Minister, General Alfredo Guzzoni. As a result, Colonel Sante Emanuele, SIM chief, was «liquidated» from this post. (UNN)

PLASTIRAS TO FORM GREEK GOVERNMENT

ATHENS, January 2 — General Nicholas Plastiras, former Greek Liberal leader who returned here December 12, has agreed to form a new Greek government, the Athens radio said tonight.

General Plastiras, was responsible in 1922 for forcing the abdication of King Constantine of Greece, correspondents said. He had been in France since March, 1933, being forced into exile after an abortive coup d'état, press dispatches reported.

The EAM delegation which conferred with General Scobie in Athens yesterday did not bring any confirmation of the EAM's acceptance of the General's truce conditions, according to a British Foreign Office statement today.

DEPENDANT IN ROATTA TRIAL ARRESTED

ROME, January 2 — Major Efisio Ligas of the Carabinieri, one of the 14 persons who will be tried here on January 22 on charges of helping to keep Fascism in power, has been arrested, Mario Berlinguer, Deputy High Commissioner for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes, announced here today.

Berlinguer also announced that the High Court of Justice had officially acceded to his request that the Roatta group, comprising 10 persons, and the Suvich-Jacomoni-Benini-Cortese group be tried jointly.

Berlinguer added that the inquiry and the decisions of the High Court would be limited to the specific charges preferred against the 14 accused persons. In the case of Lt. Gen. Mario Roatta, he said, the court will confine itself to offenses allegedly committed between 1934 and 1939, the period during which Roatta was head of the Italian Military Intelligence, and will not deal with his alleged responsibilities for Italian war operations in the Balkans, with his alleged failure to defend Rome against the Germans, or with activities of other sections of the Military Intelligence.

Of the 14 involved in the trial, eight are now under arrest. They are General Roatta; former Foreign Affairs Under Secretary Fulvio Suvich; Francesco Jacomoni, former Lieutenant General in Albania; Carabinieri Colonel Sante Emanuele; Army Captain Manlio Petragnani; Vincenzo Ber-

PLASTIRAS TO FORM GREEK GOVERNMENT

ATHENS, January 2 — General Nicholas Plastiras, former Greek Liberal leader who returned here December 12, has agreed to form a new Greek government, the Athens radio said tonight.

General Plastiras, was responsible in 1922 for forcing the abdication of King Constantine of Greece, correspondents said. He had been in France since March, 1933, being forced into exile after an abortive coup d'état, press dispatches reported.

The EAM delegation which conferred with General Scobie in Athens yesterday did not bring any confirmation of the EAM's acceptance of the General's truce conditions, according to a British Foreign Office statement today.

General Scobie had asked that arms be laid down and that ELAS forces be withdrawn from the Athens area.

The official statement said that, at the conference the EAM delegation maintained that they had accepted these conditions in a memorandum to Prime Minister Churchill on December 18 which General Scobie had later asked them to clarify.

This memorandum had again raised the question of the future of the mountain brigades of the Greek National Guards and gendarmerie. General Scobie reaffirmed his readiness to return the Greek Mountain Brigade to barracks as soon as the truce conditions were complied with, but pointed out that the future organization of the regular Greek national forces was a matter for the new Greek government to decide.

The EAM delegation then asked to see the regent, Archbishop Damaskinos, Metropolitan of Athens, who immediately replied that a new government was being formed and that he would be delighted if the EAM Central Committee felt they could arrange for an immediate cease fire.

The Archbishop said that the Greek Government had to settle the questions of the national guards and gendarmerie, and that it would not be proper for a regent to anticipate their decisions.

In transmitting the Archbishop's message, General Scobie made a final appeal that hostilities be brought to an end within the next few hours by fulfillment of its two truce conditions.

Meanwhile there was little fighting in Athens today. (BBC-Reuter)

ALLIED LEADERS TO MEET «SOON»

WASHINGTON, January 2 — President Roosevelt today met Congressional leaders, telling them during the conference that he plans to meet with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin «sometime soon.»

Primary purpose of the White House meeting was a discussion of legislative business for the impending session of Congress. Meeting with the President were Vice President Elect Harry Truman, Vice President Henry A. Wallace, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, and House Democratic Leader John McCormack.

The President said today that very close coöperation exists between Russia, Great Britain and the United States but that there are some differences. He made this statement in response to a news conference request for a discussion on the subject.

Speaking on the Greek situation, President Roosevelt said that the thing which seemed most important at the moment was that the Greek population did not starve.

The Congressional leaders arranged to receive the President's annual «State of the Union» message next Saturday — the day the Senate and House meet jointly in the formal count of the presidential electoral ballots.

The President's budget message will be delayed until next week, probably reaching Congress around Tuesday, press dispatches said.

He is not expected to deliver either message in person. (OWI)

ESCAPED U-BOAT PILOTS HUNTED

NEW YORK, January 2 — Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, together with military security officers, were reported tonight to be searching the southwestern area of the United States for a group of German U-boat commanders who escaped last week from a prisoner of war camp near Phoenix, Arizona, a Reuter report said.

The report said that 19 submarine commanders had made their escape but that six were later captured.

The FBI announced here late last night that two men had been arrested on charges of being German spies after they had been landed from a U-boat on the coast of the state of Maine on November 29. Federal agents and Coast Guard patrols along the Atlantic coast were searching the shoreline for evidence of further landings of German saboteurs.

The two men arrested yesterday were identified as William C. Colepaugh, 23 years old, a native of the state of Connecticut, and Erich Gimpel, a 35-year-old German. They had been trained in German spy and saboteur schools and were given the specific assignment of gleaning information in the United States from servicemen and civilians and transmitting that information back to Germany.

When arrested the men had in their possession 7,000 dollars, a short-wave radio set, special ink for transmitting messages and a number of fraudulent documents. The latter included blank military service call-up cards and U. S. Navy discharge papers for Colepaugh, who had formerly been in the Navy. Gimpel was identified as a native of Merseburg, Germany.

After landing from the submarine in a rubber boat, the two men stayed briefly in Boston and then travelled to New York and made their headquarters here until arrested. A loaded revolver was taken from the person of each man at the time of arrest. (OWI-Reuter)

SOVIETS MAKE GOOD USE OF U. S. STOCKS

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI, January 2 — Vast quantities of Lend-Lease war materials are being sent to an appreciative Soviet government and are being put to good use against a common enemy, the Post-Dispatch said in an editorial yesterday.

The editorial continued: «Secretary of State Stettinius has set to rest rumors that Russia was about to depart from the list of United Nations receiving war supplies under Lend-Lease.

«In a little over three years we have found means to move tonnage to the embattled Soviet Union which is now running at more than six million tons a year. NEARLY 12 MILLION IN U. S. FORCES

WASHINGTON, January 2 — War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes announced last night that 11,950,000 Americans are now in the armed forces. Of this number, 8,100,000 are in the Army and the remainder are in the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard.

These figures were contained in the first report on war mobilization and reconversion to President Roosevelt yesterday. The report reviews and summarizes the accomplishments of war mobilization thus far and points out the problems which lie ahead in production and in preparing for reconversion.

Calling on American war industry to keep up the supply of munitions for the fighting men, Director Byrnes revealed

CARE OF REFUGEES ON WESTERN FRONT

LONDON, January 1 — Shelter, food, clothing, and transportation for thousands of refugees and displaced persons moving behind Allied lines in Holland and other areas on the Western Front are being provided as far as the military situation permits, a SHAEF report made public today disclosed.

A special section of the SHAEF General Staff — the Displaced Persons, Refugees and Welfare Branch — has been set up to deal with the problem. The report points out that large-scale movements of displaced persons from battle areas and from one center to another are going through on schedule with a minimum of sacrifice and suffering on the part of the individuals concerned.

The SHAEF report said: Operations in Holland and Belgium included the establishment of border control stations and skeleton welfare organizations on the frontier. While supply shortages have precluded the organization of large-scale refugee centers in Holland, a few camps have been organized in co-operation with the Netherlands Red Cross and local welfare organization.

At Eindhoven, a temporary clearance center has been set up, with all rations thus far locally supplied. The original ration has recently been increased, while soap, blankets, clothing and delousing facilities have been provided by military organizations, in some cases being drawn from Army stocks.

At another camp, all food is being supplied from civilian sources and includes bread, milk, butter, jam, hot cooked foods and tea. Expectant mothers and the sick get a pint of milk a day, while babies receive a quart of milk. (OWI)

AMG WORKS DESPITE GUNFIRE

WITH THE 5TH ARMY, ITALY, January 2 — Allied Military Government officers do not let weather or battle conditions interfere with their task of helping liberated Italian communities get on their feet.

Lt. Mario Borvarino told a United Nations News correspondent today, on the icy roads of Marradio Pass, that he was investigating the financial needs of the many liberated communities in the area.

He found a sindaco (mayor) who had been unable to cash his AMG check for 500,000 lire because the bank had not been repaired in his badly-battered town.

A postmaster had run out of smaller denomination bills from the money advanced by AMG for the payment of pensions.

Lt. Borvarino said both difficulties would be immediately remedied, so that pensioners and Italian workers could receive their money promptly.

The AMG officer had spent the previous night in the cellar quarters of a neighboring sindaco whose town was still under fire. (UNN)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, January 2 — Today's communique:

Allied artillery has dispersed enemy patrols which again have been active across the River Maas in the area of Roermond. There has been increased enemy artillery fire in the area south of Düren.

In the Ardennes salient the Allied forces along the southern flank reached points less than two miles south of St. Hubert. Progress has been made northeast of Moircy. We have entered Remagne and taken Houmont and Chenogne.

Two enemy counter-attacks in the Bastogne sector have been repulsed — one in the area of Champs and the other near Villers-la-Bonne-Eau. We are in the vicinity of Wardin, three miles southeast of Bastogne.

Stiff fighting is in progress near Mothum, southeast of Wiltz, following enemy counter-attacks. Enemy artillery was active in the vicinity of Roumgen just south of Wiltz.

We have made small gains in the Saarlautern bridgehead.

Yesterday morning between 250 to 300 aircraft, mainly single-engine fighters, strafed our aircraft on a number of airfields in Holland and Belgium. A few bombs were also dropped. Fighters and ack-ack guns engaged the enemy and 125 of the enemy attacking force were shot down.

In Holland, troop quarters north of the River Maas, barges east of Dordrecht and two bridges near Utrecht were among the targets for our rocket-firing fighters. Escorted heavy bombers in great strength attacked railway bridges and marshalling yards in the Cologne area and an oil refinery at Dortmund, east of Hannover, and other targets in north central Germany. Heavy bombers operating with fighter cover again breached the Dortmund-Ems canal.

Medium and light bombers attacked targets in the Ardennes salient including objectives at St. Vith, Laroche and Dasburg, and fighter-bombers struck at railway communications and armored vehicles south and west of Trum. Other fighter-bombers hit railway yards and local points in the enemy's supply and reinforcement route in the areas of Trier and Karthaus, southwest of the Trier road, and a railway bridge over the Moselle River at Bullay and barracks, storage dumps and workshops at Kaiserlautern. Thirty-five enemy aircraft were shot down in addition to 125 destroyed.

From all of our air operations during the day, according to incomplete reports, two medium bombers and 27 fighters are missing. Last night heavy bombers were over Germany with a marshalling yard at Vohwinkel and a benzol plant among the objectives.

Our intruder aircraft attacked enemy movements in the area of Zulpich Mayen and Cierzaux. Night fighters shot down five enemy aircraft.

From the area of Bitsche to the Rhine, enemy ground forces were aggressive. One of a series of enemy attacks made a slight gain in the wooded area south of Bannstein. Other attacks in the vicinity of Bitsche and Dambach were repulsed.

Enemy artillery harassed towns in the Alsace plain.

Hostile patrols were turned back at several points west and east of Mulhouse. (Reuter)

In his address, the text of which was released today, the Pope made indirect reference to the fact that the German authorities during the Nazi occupation of Rome had stopped their troops from attending audiences.

The Pope said: «If the war has brought great misadventures and obstacles to the free communication of the Vicar of Christ with the Catholic world, on the other hand it has brought and brings to us from everywhere crowds of sons of the Church and also of non-Catholics, to whom we similarly offer in the house of the Common Father, our friendship and a sense of peace.

«Young men in great part, they came from both sides of the terrific conflict.

«We have received with love not only Our Italian youth, but also, while they have been allowed to be together with us, the sons of that people among whom we have passed long years of fruitful work...

«Then on the other belligerent side, they came to us and are still coming from all the continents, from the remotest lands, from the sky, a population whom only the war has enabled to cover the great distance to Rome. To give them welcome and benediction day by day was for Us a pleasant burden, not a burden, but a pure joy and an intimate consolation.»

Earlier in his address, the Pope said: «Body Guards for the defense of the Holy See and the Holy Father, you showed a bold readiness of vigilance and protection, when a year ago the well-known vicissitudes came to disturb and endanger Our small Vatican City State, which is destined to guarantee visibly the independence of Our Apostolic Ministry.» (UNN) airfields in Holland and Belgium. A few bombs were also dropped. Fighters and ack-ack guns engaged the enemy and 125 of the enemy attacking force were shot down.

In Holland, troop quarters north of the River Maas, barges east of Dordrecht and two bridges near Utrecht were among the targets for our rocket-firing fighters. Escorted heavy bombers in great strength attacked railway bridges and marshalling yards in the Cologne area and an oil refinery at Lowbergen, east of Hannover, and other targets in north central Germany. Heavy bombers operating with fighter cover again breached the Dortmund-Ems canal.

Medium and light bombers attacked targets in the Ardennes salient including objectives at St. Vith, Laroche and Dasbourg, and fighter-bombers struck at railway communications and armored vehicles south and west of Trum. Other fighter-bombers hit railway yards and local points in the enemy's supply and reinforcement route in the areas of Trier and Karthaus, southwest of the Trier road, and a railway bridge over the Moselle River at Bulay and barracks, storage dumps and workshops at Kaiserlautern. Thirty-five enemy aircraft were shot down in addition to 125 destroyed.

From all of our air operations during the day, according to incomplete reports, two medium bombers and 27 fighters are missing. Last night heavy bombers were over Germany with a marshalling yard at Vohwinkel and a benzol plant among the objectives.

Our intruder aircraft attacked enemy movements in the area of Zulich Meyen and Clerzaux. Night fighters shot down five enemy aircraft.

From the area of Bitsche to the Rhine, enemy ground forces were aggressive. One of a series of enemy attacks made a slight gain in the wooded area south of Bannstein. Other attacks in the vicinity of Bitsche and Dambach were repulsed.

Enemy artillery harassed towns in the Alsace plain.

Hostile patrols were turned back at several points west and east of Mulhouse. (Reuter)

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 2 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

Patrols have been active on the fronts of both the 5th and 8th Armies.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Despite adverse weather that caused cancellation of most air operations, Tactical Air Force medium bombers yesterday bombed bridges and an ammunition dump in northern Italy.

Light bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters supported the armies in Italy, attacking enemy gun positions, troop concentrations and supply routes.

On the night of December 31/January 1, light bombers attacked supply targets in northern Italy.

From these operations five of our aircraft are missing.

MAAF flew approximately 850 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

There have been no major developments in Athens during the past 24 hours, but in the Piraeus, clearing of sectors northwest of the harbor is progressing well.

Recruiting for the National Guard in Athens and the Piraeus continues satisfactorily.

Elsewhere in Greece the situation remains unchanged. (PRO)

MOSCOW, January 2 — Tonight's communique:

During today, in the area of Budapest, our troops were fighting for the annihilation of the encircled groupings of the enemy, and occupied 232 blocks in the eastern part and 63 blocks in the western part of the city.

Southeast of the town Komârno, our troops were repulsing large forces of enemy infantry and tanks and inflicted on him huge losses in manpower and equipment.

On other sectors of the front, there were no essential changes.

During January 1, our troops disabled or destroyed 19 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 4 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT COMMUNIQUE:

ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS, 15TH ARMY GROUP January 2 — Today's communique:

From latest information received it is learned that the attacks launched by the enemy in the Veneto region toward the end of November had for their main objectives the Udine Province localities of Clauzetto, Redona, Claût, Tremonti di Sopra and Chievolis.

The enemy destroyed the food reserves found in these villages and set fire to the buildings in the path of his advance. Patriots effectively counteracted the enemy's operations, however, and inflicted notable losses on him.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, Juanuary 2 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Southwest and south of Bastogne, the fighting increased in intensity. The American 3rd Army which attacked with strong forces, suffered heavy losses without achieving the attempted breakthrough toward Houffalize. It lost a total of 43 tanks.

The total of the enemy armoured vehicles either captured or destroyed between the Meuse and the Moselle rose thus to more than one thousand.

On the Saar front and at the northeastern frontiers of Lorraine, the gains made on New Year's eve were increased, our bridgehead northwest of Forbach was broadened and the Blies crossed northwest of Sarreguemines. North of Rohrbach and in the Lower Vosges, in several front sectors, the enemy was ousted from his positions. South of the Maginot line, our divisions pressing on captured several localities.

In the morning of January 1, strong squadrons of German bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters struck in a surprise attack at enemy airdromes in the Belgian-Dutch area. According to preliminary reports, at least 400 enemy planes were destroyed on the ground and another 100 seriously damaged in this major attack. In addition, the airdromes themselves and their installations were also seriously hit. Grim dogfights developed during these raids which resulted in the destruction of another 79 enemy planes, thus bringing yesterday's enemy losses in the West to at least 579 and even probably more planes.

Liége and Antwerp continued to be subjected to our long range bombardment.

Italy:

In central Italy, the fighting lull continues in most front sectors. Yesterday, the fighting flared up only north of Faenza.

Eastern Front:

In the Hungarian battle area, southwest of Felsoegalla, our troops repulsed strong Soviet attacks. Nothing of moment has been reported from the sectors between the Drava and the Slovak frontiers.

On the eastern and western fronts of the city, the Budapest garrison repulsed fierce Bolshevik attacks which were supported by bombers and cleared up some local penetrations by counter-attacks.

On January 1, Anglo-American terror bombers flew into western and northwestern Reich territory. Particularly in the residential districts of Kassel, serious damage was caused to buildings by numerous high explosive and incendiary bombs.

The region west of the Rhine was the target of intensified attacks by planes flying at a low altitude and fast fighters which dropped bombs indiscriminately on small localities and machine-gunned the civil populations.

British night attacks were launched particularly on the Rhenish-Westphalian area.

Yesterday, Air Defense forces brought down 25 enemy planes, most of them four-engined bombers, over the Reich territory.

Greater London continues to be bombarded.

GERMAN

Dittmar on Western Front: In his long-awaited analysis of the German drive in Belgium and Luxembourg, General Dittmar states that the « strategic aims of the German counter-offensive are for the general public still shrouded in darkness, but great successes are already shaping themselves unmistakably. The Americans were forced to halt their attacks; and here and there they had to give up previous gains... Their losses in men and materials are already weighing heavily. But above all, the moral repercussions of this obvious defeat upon the western enemies can hardly be rated high enough. »

Sertorius on Western Front: The report on this front by the correspondent Sertorius says that the situation has not changed much over New Year's day and is « still characterized by continuous heavy American attacks against the German front-line bulge in southern Belgium and northern Luxembourg... Particularly in the regions around Bastogne and Rochefort, the Americans, constantly increasing their use of tanks, are attacking almost without interruption. »

Budapest: DNB tonight reports: « The Soviets now seem to be concentrating all their strength on winning the Hungarian capital at any price... They have brought up further artillery regiments and trench mortar brigades in order to shell the whole Budapest front as well as the heart of the city. »

5TH ARMY REGAINS SERCHIO VALLEY POSITIONS

In further fighting in this narrow stretch of lowland between the Senio River and the Canal, British troops took up positions along a mile of road leading from Faenza to Solarola, five miles northwest.

A strong force of Canadian troops, supported by artillery and tanks, drove toward the Senio River, main enemy delaying position, in the area between Bagnacavallo and the German stronghold of Alfonsine in the Ravenna-Ferrara road. In this first large-scale raid against the enemy line, the Canadian troops wiped out several German machine-gun positions guarding the east banks of this stream, just east of Fusignano.

Fifth Army patrols which attempted to penetrate enemy defenses along the southern end of the Senio River line, were turned back by heavy German fire in the area of Rivola, south of Imola. (PRO)

AMERICANS ATTACK WEST OF BASTOGNE

LONDON, January 1 — Fighting of the greatest intensity continued to rage today around the perimeter of the Germans' Belgian salient, while in the south, enemy troops in battalion strength struck heavily at the 7th Army sector in the Bitsch area in a blow which may develop into another full-scale enemy counter-offensive.

Following the capture of Rochefort and Libramont, western and southwestern anchors of the enemy salient on the 1st Army front, American troops today were revealed to have thrown strong forces against the enemy's right flank guarding the vital Bastogne supply gap. Hitting the dug-in Nazi troops on a 10-mile front west of the American-held city, 3rd Army units have advanced two miles since the start of their drive Saturday.

The SHAEF announcement of the offensive contained no indication of the immediate positions of the advancing American forces. Press reports, however, said that the attacking troops, now two miles south of Nazi-held Saint Hubert, were heading northeastward along one of the major enemy supply roads.

This would put the troops in position to link up with other units north of Bastogne striving to close the 18-mile wide Bastogne gap and trap all enemy forces west of the area.

Yesterday's communique reported that the Germans were strongly dug-in between St. Hubert and Bastogne, and supplied with tanks and self-propelled guns. The American drive apparently has reached this German line and severe fighting was reported in late dispatches. Several enemy Tiger tanks already have been knocked out.

Details of the new German blow on the 7th Army front were lacking at a late hour. The official announcement from SHAEF said that five attacks already have been made, two of them in battalion strength, on a 10-mile front north and south of enemy-held Bitsch. The area has been the scene of heavy fighting in the past few weeks, and is located in the midst of Maginot Line forts and pillboxes.

A SHAEF spokesman said that it is still too early to [illegible] the weight and scope of the new Nazi blow.

5TH ARMY REGAINS SERCHIO VALLEY POSITIONS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 1 — Reinforced 5th Army troops yesterday drove forward nearly a mile and a half to reoccupy the village of Sommocolonia. Virtually they restored their positions on the eastern edge of the Serchio River Valley, where German forces had penetrated the American lines on a six-mile front, it was announced here today.

The 5th Army forces drove the enemy back across the Corsonna Creek, a tributary of the Serchio River, and pushed northward into the Apennines to a point a mile and a half north of Barga. Barga was recaptured by resurgent Allied forces on Saturday, gaining nearly four miles in two days.

It was disclosed today that Sommocolonia, a tiny village a mile and a half east of the Serchio River, and some three miles northeast of Gallicano, was one of the first 5th Army positions captured by the enemy in its counter-drive of last week.

The strengthened 5th Army forces also made limited advances to the west of the Serchio River. The town of Gallicano, however, remained in enemy hands, covered by heavy protective fire from German artillery positions in the surrounding hills.

On the 8th Army front, British troops continued their attacks to reduce the enemy hold on the long stretch of land between winding Senio River and the Canale Naviglio. Troops thrust across the Fosso Vecchio, a disused drainage ditch parallel to and a mile west of the Canale Naviglio, and occupied a group of buildings employed as enemy strong-points.

A SHAEF spokesman said that it is still too early to determine the weight and scope of the new Nazi blow.

Full-scale enemy attacks, employing elements of six divisions with strong air support, were intensified on the American Bastogne supply corridor, now about six miles wide, but all attacks were repulsed.

The Germans are paying heavily for these desperate attacks to isolate the Americans in Bastogne once more and thus remove one of the strongest threats to Nazi armies in the area. A BBC report said that already upwards of 40 enemy tanks have been destroyed on either side of the corridor, not including those knocked out by the garrison itself in its seven-day stand before relief reached it.

The major German attacks have been reported centered at Lutrebois, a few miles southwest of Bastogne.

On the eastern wing of the Germans' southern flank, American units were reinforcing their positions along the south bank of the Sure, while driving closer to enemy-held Wiltz, they reached a point within a half-mile of the town. Wiltz is 25 miles north of Luxembourg City.

Scattered German activity continued along the Roer River, north of Aachen, and also along the east banks of the Meuse, in Holland. Enemy patrols made forays into Allied lines at several points on the west bank of the Roer.

LUFTWAFFE LOSES 225 PLANES

LONDON, January 1 — In what one officially described as "all-out attacks against new and more concentrated airfort strips" in an effort to "redefine Allied air supremacy on the Western Front, the Germans today lost at least 208 of their carefully-husbanded fighter aircraft in attacks against Allied airfields in France, Belgium and Holland. In addition, 8th USAAF fighter pilots, escorting heavy bombers of the same command raiding Germany, accounted for 17 aircraft.

Of the estimated 400 enemy fighters and fighter-bombers used, 100% destroyed and many by 8th USAAF fighters accounted for, and anti-aircraft gunners destroyed 41. Four RAF planes were lost.

In the past seven days, Allied planes in the west have flown nearly 20,000 sorties for the loss of less than 300 aircraft. Luftwaffe losses in the same period were total more than 1,000 from less than 2,000 sorties.

In the past 36 hours, more than 231 enemy planes have been destroyed as the Allied air forces rose more than 11,000 aircraft against the Germans.

Coming in at tree-top level in groups of 30 to 75 planes, the enemy aircraft dropped a new bombs, concentrating mostly on low-level strafing of scores of airfields.

At some airfields, the Germans achieved surprise but one combined Thunderbolt and Spitfire outfit shot 33 Nazi fighters out of the air without the loss of a single pilot and only one aircraft.

German planes fell at the rate of one a minute, although Allied pilots had no warning that the Nazis were coming. One group of Thunderbolts had just taken off from the field on a mission and had not gained enough altitude before they were set on by 60 German fighters and fighter-bombers swept in strafing and bombing. The Thunderbolts shot down 21 enemy planes, while the Thunderbolts accounted for another 12.

Dogfights swirled all over Holland, Belgium and France, some German planes penetrating as far west as Brussels where they were engaged by RAF Spitfires in a 30-minute battle over the Belgian capital. One Allied general director the fighting over Brussels, crashed on the roof of a house firing a number of Germans.

While the TAF pilots were gaining their great victory, more than 800 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th USAAF attacked an oil refinery at Dollbergen, northwest of Brunswick, and railway and industrial targets in north and central Germany. Other targets hit by the American heavy bombers were rail bridges on the Cologne area.

The 8th USAAF bombers, completing their 10th successive day of bombing German industrial targets, were supported by more than 800 Mustangs and Thunderbolts.

Clash to give the German capital its last pounding for 1944.

At the same time, a force of RAF Lancasters bombed railwelling yards at Osterfeld, east of the Rhineland city of Duisburg.

During the night, other Allied medium bombers attacked the Eindhoven area and reported hits on 12 targets, 650 rail cars, engines, transports, a barracks, a radio station, two rail [illegible] and two factories. Five enemy aircraft were shot down.

In daylight yesterday, 1,200 heavy bombers of the 8th USAAF, escorted by 700 fighters, bombed targets in northwest Germany, and shot down 40 German interceptors. The escorting fighters shot down 20 enemy fighters, while the bombers accounted for 20.

Photographs taken during these attacks showed heavy damage to three German oil refineries, submarine repair depot facilities at Hamburg and a jet-propelled aircraft plant at Wesermunde.

TAF HITS ENEMY SUPPLY LINES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, January 1 — TAF yesterday finished the year by a round-the-clock bombardment of enemy supply lines in northern Italy, it was announced here today.

Medium bombers struck with good results at the Ponte Rovereto, Mezzana North, Piacello and Galliano rail bridges and the Padua North rail diversion route all along into southern Germany. Although bombers scored a direct hit in the centre of the Adige rail bridge at Canale D'Agordo, 75 miles northeast of Verona.

In night attacks, Tactical aircraft struck the gas works at Piacenza, and at railyard areas at the Villafranca, Ghedi and Villafora airfields, as well as carrying out bomber-direct attacks on yards at Sacile, Conegliano and Pordenone. (PRO)

Canal Walls Breached

Shortly before noon today, RAF Lancasters opened delayed-action shots from a low level on the important Dortmund-Ems canal.

Later reconnaissance photographs showed that the canal was once more out of action. The wall on the west (inland) bank had been breached for a distance of 60 yards. There was also new damage today in the earlier breaches.

This is the fourth time that the RAF Bomber Command has put this important part of the German east-west system of communications out of action.

Despite the German interference, RAF planes today continued their hammering of targets along the Dutch road, rail and canal systems and attacked a village on the east bank of the River Maas where Nazi troop concentrations had been reported.

The air attacks against the supply lines leading to the German salient in the Ardennes were continued today by RAF Mosquitos, who, in a series of low-level attacks, dropped 4,000-pound bombs on a number of railway tunnels in western Germany through which main lines lead to the battlefront.

Last night, one of the largest forces of Bomber Command Mosquitos ever sent out arrived over Berlin just after [illegible]

Marshall bombers struck with good results at the Borgoricco, Martellago North, Piazzola and Galliano rail bridges and the Padua North rail diversion route all along into northern Germany. Marshall bombers scored a direct hit in the centre of the 300-foot rail bridge at Casale D'Irouzo, 20 miles northeast of Venice.

In night attacks Fortress pounded the rail marshalling yards at Florence and Verona, the Villafranca, Ghedi and Villorba airfields, as well as carrying out bombardment of railyards at Sacile, Conegliano and Treviso. (PRO)

NAZIS' BALKAN ESCAPE ROUTE ATTACKED

[illegible], January 1 — Snowstorms and hurricanes [illegible] today hindered extensive operations in Yugoslavia, although fierce battles still raged in the Bosna valley, today's communique from the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation said.

In the area of Zenica, northwest of Sarajevo, the Germans launched strong attacks which the Yugoslavs stubbornly resisted. The German attack was aimed at Travnik, 12 miles west of Zenica.

Yugoslav forces attacked the German escape route between Bosko Polje and Priboj in the Lim valley of Montenegro on Sunday. In Slovenia, the Germans continued their attempts to reach the Adriatic coast and in Croatia German columns joined in their attempt to dislodge Yugoslav forces from the Zagreb-Karlovac communications line. The Karlovac-Zimje railway line was cut in several places.

The towns of Sarajevo and Mokra Gora in the Vrhdi [illegible] sector of western Bosnia were liberated today by the Yugoslav Army of National Liberation, it was announced in a special communique.

Mokra Gora is west of Uzice and about 60 miles east of Sarajevo, important enemy base at the southern end of the German retreat corridor in western Yugoslavia. (OWI)

JAP WARSHIPS SUNK IN LINGAYEN GULF

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, January 1 — Two Japanese destroyers, three small transports, a destroyer escort, and two cargo ships were sunk or probably sunk in Lingayen Gulf, off Luzon island, on Saturday, it was officially announced here today.

The attack was the deepest land-based American aircraft penetration since operations began in the Philippines, press dispatches said. All the enemy vessels not definitely sunk were so seriously damaged that it was believed they must have gone down.

On the island of Iwo Jima, in the Bonins, airstrips and other installations were attacked on Saturday by Liberator bombers in their 24th consecutive strike against the base. It was from this base that the Japanese launched planes against the Superfortress base on Saipan.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported today that 14 enemy vessels of a force of 19 that raided Mindoro Island were sunk or driven down.

In continued mopping up operations on Leyte, 1,191 more Japanese dead were counted and 15 prisoners were taken.

Pacific Fleet headquarters also reported that Mitchell bombers hit targets in the northern Kurile Islands and that in the Palau group fighters strafed supply dumps and other objectives on Babelthuap.

The communique from Gen. MacArthur reported the sinking of a small freighter and three coastal vessels and the strafing of another under construction at Sandakan, on the northern coast of Borneo. Airfields and petrol refineries on the island were bombed. (OWI)

BATHEDAUNG TAKEN BY INDIAN TROOPS

KANDY, CEYLON, January 1 — Indian troops of the 15th Army have occupied Bathedaung, key Japanese defence point 25 miles north of the port of Akyab. This port was used by the Japanese to supply their troops when they held Buthidaung, the Southeast Asia Command communique reported today.

Meanwhile, British patrols, driving down the road from Shwegyin, toward the port of Kyaukse on the Kodumbi, 10 miles from Ye-U, 70 miles south of Monywa.

In Arakan, [illegible] road blocks and attacks on road lines and struck at enemy [illegible] 12-mile stretch of road southeast of Maungdaw.

Other attacks were made on tanks in the Shweli River area in northern Burma and on Ledwin airfield. Communication lines near Lashio and Kyaukme were bombed and strafed.

It was stated in New Delhi today that Allied air action in Southeast Asia is stated to be unprecedented since during the past week, American Liberator bombers, Mitchell bombers, Beaufighters and Hurricanes made continuous attacks upon the Japanese and their installations there.

Admiral Sir Geoffrey Layton, commander-in-chief [illegible] since early in 1942 announced today that he will relinquish his post shortly.

GEN. J. C. CANNON CONGRATULATES TAF

ADVANCE ALLIED ITALY, January 1 — (AP). Gen. John K. Cannon, commander of the Mediterranean Allied [illegible] today congratulated the officers and crews of the veteran force for their unparalleled achievements in the [illegible] it was announced here today.

General Cannon, who took command of the force a year ago, said in an order that planes of the TAF had flown more than 350,000 sorties during the past year, dropped 427,000 tons of bombs, and destroyed or damaged more than 1,000 enemy aircraft.

In the course of the year the force, composed of American, British, South African, and Brazilian pilots and crews, destroyed or damaged nearly 65,000 enemy motor vehicles, tanks and armored cars, nearly 17,500 rail cars and 2,745 locomotives. Troop carrier aircraft of the force evacuated 127,000 wounded men from the battle areas in the past year. (PRO)

SWEDISH [illegible] SUNK IN BALTIC

STOCKHOLM, January 1 — The 1,000 ton Swedish [illegible] ship Vemyrsberg has been sunk off southeast Sweden, it was announced here last night.

The Vemyrsberg is the second Swedish ship sunk in the Baltic since the Germans declared it a zone of war operations. (OWI)

SHOOTING OF SOVIET ENVOY'S DOOM'S BUDAPEST

LONDON, January 1 — The Times, in an editorial today, said the shooting by the Nazis of the Russian truce envoy in Budapest has spurred the Hungarian capital to a race like that of Stalingrad and Cassino.

The editorial said: "One result (of the shooting) will be to render the temper of the Russian armies investing Budapest more implacable. A general result upon the ground else was ordered yesterday. All possibility of relief has been eliminated for many days. Honorable terms of capitulation having been so carefully rejected, the garrison can hardly accept any choice save between extermination and unconditional surrender.

"A desperate resistance has presumably been decreed from Berlin by a regime that spares nothing for the lives of German soldiers who can no longer be extricated to help on another front. Its motive can only be to gain time.

"Budapest is by now of only secondary strategic value. The tide of war has rolled past it toward Vienna and ice should render the Danube useless for navigation.

"Although, however, the enemy can only expect to impose a very short delay upon the Russian advance at a terrible cost to his besieged army, it is undeniably in his power to subject the city of Budapest to the utmost rigours of war. Munitions, Malinovsky and Tolbukhin, by [illegible] of tactics have forced this issue to save Budapest [illegible] fate of Stalingrad and Cassino. The decision has now passed out of their hands." JAP PLANES ATTACK; RESULTS "OBSCURE"

WASHINGTON, January 1 — The Japanese radio would like to forget the results of an assault by mounted enemy planes [illegible] against Allied shipping in the Sulu Sea, it is revealed today, the radio complained that pilots were ordered "because none of the Japanese planes came back.

"All the enemy fighters were kept busy by American fighter, and the special attack planes did not come back. We do not really know what happened," the broadcast said. (OWI) other installations were attacked on Saturday by Liberator bombers in their 27th consecutive strike against the base. It was from this base that the Japanese launched planes against the Superfortress base on Saipan.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported today that 14 enemy fighters out of a force of 50 that raided Hollandia Island were shot down.

In continued mopping up operations on Leyte, 1,101 more Japanese dead were counted and 15 prisoners were taken.

Pacific Fleet headquarters also reported that Mitchell bombers hit targets in the northern Kurile Islands and that in the Palau group, fighters strafed supply dumps and other objectives on Babelthuap.

RATHEDAUNG TAKEN BY INDIAN TROOPS

KANDY, CEYLON, January 1 — Indian troops of the 14th Army have captured Rathedaung, key Japanese defence point 25 miles north of the port of Akyab. The port was used by the Japanese to supply their troops when they held Buthidaung, the South East Asia Command communique reported today.

Meanwhile, British patrols, developing the southern thrust Shwegyin toward the great river port of Myohaung, entered Kaduma, 16 miles from Yeshi 70 miles south of Myohaung.

In Arakan, fighter-bombers and naval ships attacked road objects and struck at enemy strongholds along a 12-mile stretch of coast southeast of Rathedaung.

Other attacks were made on targets in the Shweli River area in northern Burma and on Lashio airfield. Communication lines near Lashio and Mandalay also were bombed and strafed.

It was stated in New Delhi today that Allied air strength in Southeast Asia mounted to an unprecedented pitch during the past week. American Mitchell bombers and RAF Mosquito, Beaufighter and Hurricane aircraft continued attacks upon the Japanese and their communication lines.

Admiral Sir Geoffrey Layton, commander-in-chief here since early in 1942, announced today that he will relinquish his post shortly.

On the China front, an American communique from Chungking reported attacks by the 14th USAAF on shipping near Henkow yesterday. Two enemy freighters in the Yangtze River were destroyed, one probably sunk and a tanker left burning. Two enemy bombers were destroyed in the air, two others on the ground, and one damaged during these operations.

In southern China, pilots of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's Chinese-American Wing hit the Kunming-Haikow railroad, destroying three locomotives and damaging seven.

Supporting the Allied ground troops in Burma, planes of the 14th USAAF bombed bridges at Nengtang, Mongpiang and Tengta in east and central Burma. All Allied planes returned. (Reuter - OWI)

U. S. PILOT DESTROYS 25TH GERMAN PLANE

PARIS, January 1 — Lt. Col. John Meyer, an American pilot, yesterday destroyed his 25th enemy plane, thereby making him the highest-scoring ace now fighting in Europe, an American news agency reported today.

Col. Meyer's latest victory was over a twin-engined, jet-propelled German fighter. Thus far he has destroyed 22 Nazi planes in the air and 18 on the ground. (OWI)

SHOOTING OF SOVIET ENVOYS DOOMS BUDAPEST

LONDON, January 1 — The Times, in an editorial today, said the shooting by the Nazis of the Russian truce envoys to Budapest has doomed the Hungarian capital to a fate like that of Stalingrad and Cassino.

The editorial said: "The result (of the shooting) will be to bring the ring of the Russian armies investing Budapest more implacable in general result upon the doomed city was opened yesterday. JAP PLANES ATTACK: RESULTS "OBSCURE"

WASHINGTON, January 1 — The Japanese radio would like to know the results of an assault by vaunted enemy aircraft "Divine plan" November 25 against Allied shipping in the South Pacific, the radio complained today, but the word was "obscure" because none of the Japanese planes came back.

MORE FRENCH UNITS TO FIGHT NAZIS

PARIS, January 1 — General de Gaulle said last night that the Allies were supplying help to put a great number of new French units in the field against Germany. He added that victory will find France in the first rank, with weapons in hand, and with full liberty restored to her citizens.

The general said that municipal and departmental elections will be held in the spring provided that war circumstances permit.

He warned that economic recovery cannot be swift, but gave hope that the spring would see ships putting into French ports no longer laden exclusively with troops, arms, ammunition and military relief.

Happiness would be the first year among France's greatest for during 1944 France, resolved, confident and master of herself, had reappeared between the Atlantic and the Rhine, de Gaulle said.

"We are wounded, but we stand erect," he continued. "Before us stands the enemy who, in the course of 1945, will clear all the traces he made. All France realizes that setting their pastures has with the chance of recovering by a growing war effort. We have started to rebuild a great army and until the total destruction of the enemy our sword will become more weighty every day.»

Of the internal situation, de Gaulle said: «I have good reasons for asserting that 1945 will bring us slow but constant progress. Today we must make do with what we have, but we must also carry out, as we have begun to do, a certain number of fundamental reforms which will meet the demands of modern economy and those of social progress.

«This supreme effort for victory, liberty and renewal calls for unity among all Frenchmen — the kind that dictates one's actions.» (OWI)

RUMANIA TO CONTINUE WAR ON ALLIED SIDE

BUCHAREST, January 1 — Rumania is concerned «not only with the execution of the armistice terms but with the continued prosecution of the war on the Allies' side,» Premier Nicolae Radescu told correspondents here on Saturday, according to the Rumanian radio.

The number of Rumanian divisions fighting in Transylvania and Hungary has been increased from 12 to 14, Radescu said. The Government is determined to carry out purge proceedings «completely and mercilessly,» to increase production and to insure discipline and order in Rumania, he said.

Difficulties faced by the Government include shortages of food and fuel in the capital and some difficulty in coördinating provincial administration with the central Government, he added. Shortage of communications and transport are at the root of these difficulties. (OWI)

HITLER SPEAKS, PROMISES VICTORY

WASHINGTON, January 1 — After more than five months of silence, Hitler's voice was heard by the German people early today. He expressed his determination to keep his people at war, despite the hardships of 1944 and the destruction and casualties that still faced them.

In a catalogue of Germany's disasters, he said that Hungary had been written off along with other satellites while the battle for Budapest is still in progress.

The halfhour speech was made from Hitler's headquarters, and was believed to have been a recording.

He asked the German people to «continue to trust German leadership» and «to fight with extreme fanaticism.»

Hitler said that other states had no conception of the ideals of the national socialist state, no understanding of the greatness of the German nation and no knowledge of the real Germany, when they expected it to «capitulate like other characterless states.»

«We know from what happened in the past,» he said, what Bolshevists and international Jews would do with the German people if they could. The alternatives are life and freedom or death in bondage. Faced with such a fate, we are resolved to go to the limit. The world has got to know that this state will never capitulate. And assurance goes to everyone else who turns against this state or dares to lift his hand against us, that he will be annihilated.

«The entire German people know what fate is mapped out for them if they were to lose the war. They will not lose the war. They will win it.

«We now know of a little clique of politicians and generals who, completely disregarding their own importance, try to make the world believe they would be in a position to seize power and capitulate as has happened in Finland, Rumania, Bulgaria and elsewhere.»

«Hard War»

«The end of the war will not come before 1946 unless by German victory.»

Himmler predicted a great German victory in 1945 in an address to the SS.

While a German radio spokesman was appealing for «mad desperation rather than surrender,» just before Hitler's address, a powerful ghost voice interrupted shouting, «You want to destroy what remains of Germany. Are more millions to be slaughtered? Hitler means more death and destruction.» The voice continued to interrupt while Hitler was speaking. (OWI-Reuter)

NIMITZ REVIEWS WAR AGAINST JAPAN

NEW YORK, January 1 — U.S. Admiral of the Fleet Chester W. Nimitz, in a Christmas Day interview with correspondents, said that the joint American-British operations against Japan in 1945 would grow in volume as the enemy was squeezed tighter.

«The war to come will consist of obtaining bases closer and closer to the Japanese Empire from which we can reach the enemy with all the weapons we have,» the Admiral said. He warned, however, that «the war will be far from won even when the Pacific is crossed, for then the war would enter its toughest phase.

Referring to his recent conferences with Admiral Sir Bruce A. Fraser, commander of the British Pacific Fleet, Admiral Nimitz said: «The British Fleet is not coming over here for any specific purpose. They will carry their share of the load and they will be aggressive. I look forward to seeing the British working in close coördination with the U.S. Pacific Fleet.»

Admiral Nimitz said he was very pleased with the rebuilding of Guam as a base for future operations.

The war, during the last year, had traveled westward from the Marshall Islands to the Philippines and northward from the Solomons and New Britain almost to the Bonins. It was gradually changing in character. «Each action with the Japanese fleet has resulted in a considerable loss to them,» he said. «The Japanese surface forces are no longer the tremendous threat they were at the beginning of the war. Of course we still have to make adequate dispositions of our forces to meet them, but I expect our margin over the Japanese fleet to increase.» (OWI)

HITLER ORDER ADMITS ALLIED STRANGLEHOLD

WASHINGTON, January 1 — The Allies have a stranglehold on Germany, Adolf Hitler said yesterday in an Order of Day to the German Army. He called for renewed hope and stated that in 1945 the war «would become harder still.»

The Order of Day, broadcast by the German radio, preceded Hitler's address to the German nation.

Hitler said that Germany had been in «this battle for existence for five years already and this battle may make ever greater demands in the sixth year of war.» He then said that «the German people and their armed forces have successfully resisted the stranglehold of the enemy.»

Hitler blamed the woes of the German people on unfaithful allies and made special reference to the loss of Rumania and Hungary and «the miserable capitulation of the Finnish government.» (OWI)

«Hard War»

«The end of the war will not come before 1946 unless by German victory.»

Hitler said that «sad military consequences» had been suffered by his armies in the past six months.

Discussing the air war against Germany, he said: «Our enemies thought that by devastating the German cities they would not only kill German women and children but, above all, remove all evidence of a 1,000-year-old German culture that the enemy himself was unable to produce.

«This war has been for the German people the hardest and most fateful struggle which ever has been faced by a people. A people which can endure such immeasurable sacrifices can never go down.»

Hitler claimed that thousands of Volkssturm battalions have been created and are still being formed. «More and more new divisions have been created» he added. «Peoples' artillery corps, mortar and assault gun brigades and tank units, have been conjured up from nothing.»

Hitler made no mention of current Western Front operations.

«Other high German officials made speeches yesterday. Admiral Doenitz, in an order of the day to the German navy, said that the navy «shall attack the enemy in the coming year.»

Goebbels, in a New Year's message to the German people, said that 1944 was "terrible" and that 1945 might be worse.

Bruce A. Fraser, commander of the British Pacific Fleet, Admiral Nimitz said: «The British Fleet is not coming over here for any specific purpose. NAZIS MURDER AMERICAN PRISONERS

SHAEF, January 1 — An official statement today by SHAEF told of the murder in cold blood of 115 U.S. officers and men captured by Germans in the Western front counter-offensive.

«Evidence resulting from preliminary investigation leads U.S. 1st Army authorities to believe that, on December 17, a German tank detachment deliberately shot down in cold blood approximately 115 United States officers and men,» the statement said.

The Americans were mainly from a battery of field artillery and an observation battalion which had been in advanced positions at the opening of the German counter-attack.

All the personnel of the battery were captured and rounded up by the Nazis. They were searched for cigarettes and other valuables and lined up six ranks deep.

Two German tanks then began spraying the Americans with machine gun fire.

The killed and wounded prisoners fell to the ground, including those who were not hit. But it is thought that the majority of the last were killed later, the statement said.

Leaving the field, the tanks drove past the bodies, pouring additional bullets into those already killed and wounded. German infantrymen on top of the tanks fired small arms into the helpless mass.

The 20 to 25 Americans remaining alive, some of them wounded, made a run for it, but only 15 escaped. (OWI)

LIBERATED ITALY

MAYOR OF NAPLES NAMED

NAPLES, January 1 — Gennaro Fermariello, lawyer and a member of the Action Party, today was named Mayor of Naples by Brig. Gen. J. K. Dunlop, Allied Commissioner for the Southern Region, after having received the unanimous vote of the various parties represented in the Naples Committee of National Liberation.

Fermariello, who is president of the Naples CNL, is scheduled to take office January 8.

The new mayor will administer the city's affairs with the aid of a council composed of two representatives of each party in the local CNL, in addition to two representatives of the Naples Association of War Wounded. (UNN)

BRAZILIANS GIVE FOOD TO ITALIANS

ROME, January 1 — The Brazilian Expeditionary Force in Italy has given the needy among the Italian civilian population a New Years' gift of chocolate and meat, it was disclosed today when Alcide De Gasperi, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, sent a message of thanks to General Giovan de Moraes, commander-in-chief of the BEF.

The gift, sent from Brazil through the Brazilian Embassy here, included 451 cases containing 10,872 tins of meat and 36 cases containing 2,960 bars of chocolate. (OWI)

FLORENTINE CHILDREN ENTERTAINED

FLORENCE, January 1 — Five thousand needy children saw movies and received gift packages at parties organized for them by Allied Forces' personnel here yesterday. The parties, which were held in 10 districts of the city, were visited by Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, head of A.M.G. and Colonel Michie, military governor of this city. (UNN)

RECONSTRUCTION IN PALAZZUOLO

ADVANCE HQ, 15th ARMY GROUP, January 1 — Palazzuolo, making strides toward its own reconstruction, is already aiding other communities in liberated Italy.

Sixty orphans and 19 Sisters, evacuated from Casola, have been given shelter in a convent in the town. Food for them has been provided by Allied authorities.

A shipment of chestnut flour is ready for delivery to Florence as soon as transportation, now held up by icy roads, is available. An Allied Military Government officer told a UNN correspondent that the grain had been stored in many small farmhouses where the Germans had been unable to find it.

The flour is now being collected by the local committee for general distribution, but each producer retains enough for his own use.

The water system, which was knocked out when the Germans blew the aqueduct, has been restored, and the bridge, also bombed by the Nazis, has been repaired under AMG supervision. Minor damage to rooftops has been repaired by local citizens who used flat stones when slate was not available.

One hundred and twenty men of Palazzuolo are working on roads used by the Allied armies, the AMG officer said. (UNN)

ROSSELLI MURDERED ON CIANO'S ORDERS

ROME, January 1 — French Cagoulard terrorists, acting on orders of the late Count Ciano, Mussolini's ex-in-law and Italian Foreign Minister, murdered Carlo Rosselli, militant Italian anti-Fascist who had taken refuge in France, according to a confession made by Colonel Sante Emanuele.

Emanuele recalled: «I was asked by Colonel Paolo Angioi to give my agents the order to have Carlo Rosselli killed.»

Angioi was assistant to General Roatta, head of SIM, the Italian Military Intelligence organization. Roatta was in Spain at the time commanding an Italian Army unit, and the SIM was temporarily in charge of Angioi.

Emanuele said that Roselli's murder was an important part of Italian sabotage operations against the Spanish Republicans. In the orders for such activity was mention of the necessity of «removing troublesome persons in various localities.» Rosselli was deemed such an individual, but murder of the brother was not in the original plans.

«Unpleasantly Surprised»

Emanuele said in his deposition: «I was unpleasantly surprised at the news of the double murder because the order given was for murder of only one of the Rosselli brothers. I remember that as soon as I received news I was called to the Foreign Affairs Ministry by Ambassador Filippo Anfuso (Ambassador to Berlin and one of the 14 defendants). There I also found Ciano. Both asked for details, which, however, I could not furnish before the arrival of Major Navale (head of the counter-espionage service in Turin). Navale arrived in Rome the next day and said he had utilized the «Cagoulards», a clandestine movement headed by Pétain and Darlan.»

Emanuele was positive of Ciano's hand in the Rosselli murders. He said: «As a result of my conversation with Ciano after the assassination of the Rosselli brothers I can say that Ciano's attitude was such as clearly to show that the decision for the Rosselli assassinations was his.»

At the time, Emanuele said, Ciano was directing all military and political services connected with the Spanish war, while Anfuso was his chief assistant and trusted collaborator. Anfuso is one of the defendants to be tried in absentia.

Emanuele quoted two reports dated February 3, 1937, and April 2, 1937, in which he said that Major Navale, head of counter-espionage in Turin, had established the contacts with the secret French nationalist organization engaged in sabotaging war supplies to the Spanish Republican government.

One report stated: «The collaboration of the DD organization is carried out, among other things, by the suppression, at our request, of troublesome persons on the sole condition that the game is worth the stakes. The first objective designated was Carlo Rosselli. One of the leaders of the DD has come expressly to Nice and has asked to speak to me. He promised to carry out the coup against Rosselli, who is being watched, in exchange for help in purchasing 100 Beretta rifles. I believe it would be advisable to consign the requested compensation through a third person intermediary and that the guns be held on this side of the border and that they be handed over only after the Rosselli coup will have been carried out.»

Emanuele reported that payment was to be in cash, augmented by a special fee for the intermediary, who was covering up for the Italians. He concluded the report by pointing out the advantages of the agreement, which did not call for compensation, but involved only the promise of the guns. The report added, however, that 20,000 lire was needed «to bring the operation to a successful conclusion» and that 50,000 lire put aside for that purpose had already been spent. The money, Emanuele said, was needed by the French, who wanted to use it further to organize their Nationalist groups.

Emanuele recalled that contacts between the SIM and the Ciano-Anfuso group were rare. Those between the SIM and the military were established through the Under Secretary of War, Alberto Pariani, another defendant who will be tried in absentia. (UNN)

FLORENTINE CHILDREN ENTERTAINED

FLORENCE, January 1 — Five thousand needy children saw movies and received gift packages at parties organized for them by Allied Forces' personnel here yesterday. The parties, which were held in 10 districts of the city, were visited by Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, head of A.M.G. and Colonel Michie, military governor of this city. (UNN)

RECONSTRUCTION IN PALAZZUOLO

ADVANCE HQ, 15th ARMY GROUP, January 1 — Palazzuolo, making strides toward its own reconstruction, is already aiding other communities in liberated Italy.

Sixty orphans and 18 Sisters, evacuated from Casola, have been given shelter in a convent in the town. Food for them has been provided by Allied authorities.

A shipment of chestnut flour is ready for delivery to Florence as soon as transportation, now held up by icy roads, is available. An Allied Military Government officer told a UNN correspondent that the grain had been stored in many small farmhouses where the Germans had been unable to find it.

The flour is now being collected by the local committee for general distribution, but each producer retains enough for his own use.

The water system, which was knocked out when the Germans blew the aqueduct, has been restored, and the bridge, also bombed by the Nazis, has been repaired under AMG supervision. Minor damage to rooftops has been repaired by local citizens who used flat stones when slate was not available.

One hundred and twenty men of Palazzuolo are working on roads used by the Allied armies, the AMG officer said. (UNN)

ROSSELLI MURDERED ON CIANO'S ORDERS

ROME, January 1 — French Cagoulard terrorists, acting on orders of the late Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law and Italian Foreign Minister, murdered Carlo Rosselli, militant Italian anti-Fascist who had taken refuge in France, according to a confession made by Colonel Sante Emanuele, of the Italian Military Intelligence at the time of his arrest last September. The confession was made public today.

Colonel Emanuele told the whole Rosselli murder story in his confession which was in the form of a pre-trial deposition. He and 13 other defendants, including Fulvio Suvich, former Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, will go on trial January 22 before the High Court of Justice. They are charged with co-operating with Count Ciano in acts contributing to maintaining Fascism in power, and acts which led Italy into the war.

Rosselli was murdered June 9, 1937, at Bagnoles-sur-l'Orne. His brother, Nello, also was murdered at the same time, but Colonel Emanuele said that Nello's murder was unavoidable. The French terrorists, known as «D», could not afford to have any witnesses to the murder of the more important Rosselli.

The murderers of the Rosselli brothers were later arrested on orders of the French Ministry of the Interior and convicted. But the murderers were released after Marshal Pétain took power in France in June, 1940.

Plans for Rosselli's murder were laid in January, 1937, when Ciano became worried about Carlo Rosselli's activities, which included publication of a newspaper, Italia Libera. It advocated recruiting of Italian volunteers to fight against the Spanish Fascists.

ELAS READY TO CEASE FIRE

ATHENS, January 1 — The ELAS central committee has sent a memorandum to the Regent of Greece, Archbishop Damaskinos, stating that it is prepared to issue a «cease fire» order immediately so that negotiations for a settlement of the Greek crisis can begin, press dispatches said tonight.

The memorandum stated, however, that it will not order the laying down of arms until political questions are settled.

ELAS' message to the Regent came in answer to Archbishop Damaskinos' request for an immediate laying down of arms issued yesterday soon after he was sworn in. The request was addressed to the Greek people and called for a truce in the fighting «as a preliminary condition to the solution of the Greek crisis.»

At the same time, a BBC broadcast said that Georges Papandreou, former Greek premier, who resigned along with his cabinet yesterday, has announced that he will not take part in a new Greek government.

Calling for the laying down of arms, Archbishop Damaskinos said:

«In a truly democratic state there can be no solution by the use of force. We appeal to all those who may inspire the masses to contribute to the establishment of order with all means at their disposal.

«In the name of the suffering fatherland we invite all armed persons to agree to lay down their weapons immediately and to have confidence in the Regency and its government for a solution by just and democratic means.»

Discussions for the formation of a new Greek government began yesterday when the Archbishop received Themistocles Sofoulis, Liberal Party leader.

U.S. Secretary of State Stettinius, today characterized the creation of a regency for Greece as an important step toward the solution of the situation.

The latest communique from Lt. Gen. Scobie's headquarters said today that only a few isolated snipers are now left in the southeastern area of the city. The whole of this area, including the marble stadium which had been an ELAS strongpoint since the trouble started, has been cleared.

In the port of Pirneus, British troops have reached the coast north of the electric power plant. An ELAS attack on the radio station at Pallini, seven miles from here, was repulsed but not before the station had been put out of operation. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

U. S. RECOGNIZES LONDON POLISH GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, January 1 — The United States government will continue to recognize the Polish government in London, Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius Jr. announced today.

At the same time, Stettinius characterized the creation of a regency for Greece as an important step for the solution of the situation there. (OWI)

KING GEORGE GREETS POLISH PRESIDENT

LONDON, January 1 — King George VI, in a New Year's message to Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, President of Poland, expressed the hope that the struggles of the Polish nation would soon be ended.

The King said: «The forces of the United Nations have forged a ring of steel which is closing inexorably around the foes of liberty and justice. Though the final stages of the present conflict may be prolonged and bitter, I am confident that the ordeal of the heroic Polish people will be ended before long.»

In reply, Raczkiewicz said: «May the coming year see the final triumph of the ideals for which Britain took up her arms and is making such gigantic efforts and such immense sacrifices at the home front and in so many heroic battles all over the world.» (OWI)

ROOSEVELT PRAISES FRANCE

WASHINGTON, January 1 — President Roosevelt, in an exchange of messages with M. Henri Bonnet, French Ambassador to the United States, reasserted today the intention of the Dumbarton Oaks representatives to insure France a place in the future world organization «to which her traditions, her ideals and her importance entitle her.»

Mr. Roosevelt's message to the French Ambassador stated: «The return of a French Ambassador to the United States is an event which gives to me and will give to the people of this country, a feeling of very special gratification. To you personally I extend a warm welcome and my best wishes for the full success of your mission.

Difficult Years

Bonnet's letter of reply stated: «On this occasion I am happy to tell you of the value which today more than ever France sets on the traditional friendship which unites her with the United States and of her profound wish that this friendship shall become ever stronger and more vital.

«During the difficult years of trial through which she has passed, while remaining with all her soul on the side of free peoples, France has followed with admiration the immense effort realized by the United States in order to overthrow, in partnership with our Allies, the powers of aggression responsible for the world war. She is proud to have organized her resistance in the face of atrocious persecutions and to have participated at the side of your powerful forces in the liberation of her territory. She holds no will more dear than to contribute with all her restored strength to the final defeat of our common enemies.

«New ties are thus created between our two countries which were already united by a deep affinity and by a common democratic ideal of progress and liberty.

«This solidarity in war appears to me as a sure promise of reciprocal understanding and of close co-operation on the morrow of victory.

«You may be assured that my Government will spare no effort in order that the peace which has been won at the price of so many sacrifices shall be guaranteed by a solid system of security. To this end it is ready to bring its full contribution to the work of an international organization which will unite the peace-loving nations in mutual respect and justice.» (OWI)

FRANCE SIGNS UNITED NATIONS PACT

WASHINGTON, January 1 — France today was the 26th nation to become a full-fledged member of the United Nations when Ambassador Henri Bonnet affixed his signature to the document, which embraces the Atlantic Charter. The ceremony today at the White House took place on the third anniversary of the signing of the document.

Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius Jr., read a message from President Roosevelt which said that all the brutalities of four years of Nazi occupation could not quench the flame of France nor her unconquerable spirit.

The President's message continued: «France now stands beside us — a strong ally once more in the first rank of peace-loving nations. I know well how important France's contribution will be to Europe and the world.»

Stettinius said the signatories of the declaration pledged themselves to employ all their resources against their enemies, to co-operate with each other and not to make a separate armistice or peace.

Earlier, when Bonnet presented his credentials as French Ambassador to President Roosevelt, he pledged France's full participation in readiness for world security.

«You may be assured that my government will spare no effort in order that the peace which has been won at the price of so many sacrifices shall be guaranteed by a solid system of security,» he said. «To this end it will bring its full contribution into the work of the international organization which will unite the peace-loving nations in mutual respect and justice.» (Reuter-OWI)

LLOYD GEORGE MADE A PEER

LONDON, January 1 — On his retirement from Parliament, after representing the division of Caernarvon, Wales, for 54 years, David Lloyd George, former Prime Minister, heads this year's Honors List with the grant of an earldom.

Lloyd George was born in humble circumstances in 1863. He taught in schools, became a solicitor and, before becoming Premier and First Lord of the Treasury in 1916 — positions he held for eight years — he held the posts of President of the Board of Trade, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Minister of Munitions and Secretary of State for War.

He plans to take the title of Earl Lloyd George of Dwyfor, after a mountain stream that runs near his farm.

Other new peers are Lord Portal, Minister of Works, who becomes a viscount, and Sir Arthur Grey Hazelrigg, who becomes a baron for public services in his home county of Leicestershire.

Two new Privy Councillors are both women — Miss Florence Horsbrugh and Miss Ellen Wilkinson, respectively Parliamentary Secretaries for Health and Security.

LUBLIN COMMITTEE ASSUMES GOVERNMENT

LUBLIN, January 1 — The Polish National Committee of Liberation in Lublin proclaimed itself the provisional government of liberated Poland yesterday after a bill decreeing the change was passed unanimously by 150 members of the committee meeting in plenary session, Lublin Radio said today.

The bill declared that the new government was formed after the liberation committee had taken cognizance of the will of the nation as expressed in declarations, resolutions, and appeals of social and economic organizations and meetings of peasants, factory workers, youth, intellectuals, and of conferences of cooperatives, trade unions and political parties.»

The broadcast said the committee had decided «to break forever» with the Polish government in London. The latter promptly challenged the action of the Lublin group as «attempts against the sovereign rights of the Polish nation.»

A statement by the Polish Government in London said that in existing circumstances the Polish nation had no means to express its will and that the administration of liberated Polish territories by the Lublin Committee was in the hands of a party which never played an important part in Polish political life.

The Lublin committee chairman had said that the Polish government in London had lost all touch with the nation.

After taking oath, the new government declared its aim was to lead a liberated Poland into a new and better future based on the principles of democracy. Temporary President Boleslaw Berut, former chairman of the Polish National Council, pledged his government to cooperation with the United Nations. Proposals were made that the new government at once conclude a formal alliance with Soviet Russia.

The vote was taken in the presence of 500 delegates from liberated Poland who rose to their feet and cheered the decision, the broadcast said. The Lublin representative of the French Provisional Government and U.S. and British correspondents attended the session.

New Ministers

The meeting also approved ministerial posts which Berut filled as follows:

First Premier and Foreign Minister, Edward Osubka-Morawski, former Liberation Committee President; First Deputy Premier, Wladislaw Gomolka, former Secretary General of the Communist Polish Workers Party; Second Deputy Premier, Stanislaw Janusz, vice-chairman of the Polish Peasant Party; War Minister and Commander-in-Chief of the Polish Armies, General Rola Zymiersky, formerly head of the Liberation Committee's Department of National Defense.

The statement by the Polish group in London said that the Lublin Committee came into existence only as a result of the military situation and that the responsibility for the direction of Poland's fight against the Germans rested with the Polish government in London. It said that after all of Poland is cleared of Nazis, an election should be held to enable the Polish people to choose a political system for

On the southern flank of the salient, west of Bastogne, Allied armor and infantry have launched an attack to the northeast.

Several enemy counter-attacks by tanks and infantry near Chenogne and another north of Lutrebois have been repulsed. In the engagement at Lutrebois our forces destroyed 18 enemy tanks. Enemy artillery in this area has been more active.

South of Wiltz we made gains against heavy enemy resistance. In the area south of the Sauer River, between Diekirch and Echternach, we have occupied Reisdorf.

There is aggressive patrolling by our forces along the Moselle and Saar Rivers.

In the Saarlautern bridgehead, there has been increased enemy artillery fire.

The main impetus of our air attack yesterday was laid on the enemy's communication and oil supplies. Fighter-bombers attacked three railway bridges between Hertogenbosch and Utrecht, and struck at road and rail transport in the Amersfoort area to the southeast of Venlo, and over the German border northeastward to Dorsten and Coesfeld.

Railway yards at Hamm also were attacked. Near Amersfoort a vehicle repair shed was bombed. Railway yards at Vohwinkel were attacked by escorted heavy bombers in the afternoon. Fighters shot down seven enemy aircraft in the Rhein-Menster area. In the Ardennes salient fighter-bombers and a small number of medium and light bombers attacked enemy armored and motored vehicles and struck at his communications.

Farther south fighter-bombers struck at rail transport and communications and bombed railyards at Bad Kreuznach, Kaiserslautern, Homburg, Pirmasens and Neustadt. Near Kaiserslautern six enemy aircraft were shot down.

More than 1,300 heavy bombers escorted by 700 fighters attacked oil refineries in the Hamburg area and at Misburg, submarine yards at Hamburg, the jetplane factory at Wesendorf, two railyards near Düsseldorf and junctions and detraining points between the Rhine and Ardennes salient. In the course of these operations 78 enemy aircraft were shot down.

Targets in enemy-occupied villages in the area north of Maas and gun positions west of Dulken were attacked by fighter-bombers. According to reports so far received 25 of our bombers and 19 of our fighters are missing.

Last night light bombers bombed Berlin and heavies attacked railway yards at Ostenfeld.

During the night five enemy aircraft were shot down by our fighters.

Enemy counter-attacks north and west of Colmar were repulsed. Nearly 300 prisoners have been taken in this sector during the past two days. (Reuter)

Medium bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday attacked rail targets in the Po Valley, the Brenner Route and in northeast Italy. Fighter-bombers and fighters, flying almost 1,000 sorties, concentrated against communications in northern Italy and targets in and just behind the battle areas. Bridges, rail and road transport, enemy-occupied buildings and gun positions were destroyed, and many rail cuts made.

On the night of December 30-31, intruder aircraft successfully attacked rail and road traffic in the area of the Po Valley, while light bombers also went for fortified buildings, rail and road transport, bridges and an ammunition dump.

Eight of our aircraft are missing from these operations.

MAAF flew approximately 1,370 sorties.

During today, on the territory of Czechoslovakia, our troops advancing in direction of Lucenec, occupied in fighting the populated localities of Velikiye Dravce, Boykovce, Nikra, Gaisha, Perdelovce, Mikushovce, 3 kilometers south of Lucenec, Rakovce, Perlesko-Bravce, Ieri, Gushentse, Maliye Izlevtse, Maliye Trasini, Velikiye Trasini, and Plavshinise, and the railway station of Rakovce.

In battles during December 31, in this area, our troops captured 515 German soldiers and officers.

In the area of Budapest, our troops continued fighting for annihilation of the encircled groupings of the enemy in the city, occupied over 200 blocks and the railway station of Raposz, in the eastern part of the city.

On other sectors of the front, there were no essential changes.

During December 31, our troops disabled or destroyed 49 German tanks. In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 4 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, January 1 — Despite heavy snowfalls and increasingly difficult weather conditions, Patriots are continuing their sabotage activities against enemy lines of communication.

Two spans of a bridge near Bologna were blown up. It is estimated that it will take at least 20 days to repair the damage.

In Piedmont, during the night of December 15/16, Patriots destroyed a southbound train composed of a locomotive and seven cars loaded with munitions. Service on the railway line was interrupted for 20 hours. (UNN)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, January 1, 1945 — The High Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Between the Meuse and the Moselle, on the southern front of our penetration, fierce fighting is in progress. South and west of Bastogne, fresh American attempts at smashing our positions with strong tank forces remained unsuccessful and cost particularly high losses in men and material. During the fighting lasting throughout the whole day, our seasoned formations destroyed one hundred and twenty one tanks and armoured reconnaissance cars and wiped out numerous enemy columns.

In Alsace Lorraine, our troops made a certain number of thrusts on the American front which now has been drained of strong forces. On both sides of Bitsche, they attacked the positions of the advanced enemy posts on a broad front and pushed them back towards the enemy main lines.

In northern France and Belgium, last night, our fighters and bombers effectively struck at the enemy communications.

Liege and Antwerp are incessantly bombarded by our long range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, south of Imola and in the Romagna, enemy reconnaissance thrusts were frustrated and British movements and troop concentrations heavily shelled.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, on the whole front between the Drau and the frontiers of Slovakia, as well as at Budapest, the situation remained unchanged despite repeated Bolshevik attacks.

The focal points of yesterday's fighting lay in the Slovak frontier area between the Gran and the upper reaches of the Eipel. The enemy attacks collapsed already in front of our positions except for some penetrations which have been sealed off in the meantime.

In the other parts of the Eastern Front up to the Memel, the day went by without anything of moment.

In Courland, the enemy resumed his attacks only northwest of Doblen. Our divisions smashed the Bolshevik attempts at breaking through, made after an intense artillery, American bombers, most of them four-engined bombers, were destroyed by fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force.

In the morning of December 31, over the eastern Friesian Islands, anti-aircraft batteries of the Navy brought down nine four-engined bombers. Thus, in the whole of December, the Navy and merchant Navy together brought down a total of 99 enemy planes. (Radio Berlin)

Nazi Hierarchy: On the occasion of New Year's Eve, many leading figures of the Nazi Hierarchy, including Hitler himself, sent messages to the German people. All of them expressed their faith in an eventual German victory, though the tone of the messages varied from the sombre, dark coloring of Hitler's speech to the relatively light optimism of the soldiers.

Hitler: The Fuehrer appealed to the German army through an Order of the Day and to the entire German people in a midnight broadcast to share his own faith in German victory. The two messages were almost identical in content. — The Fuehrer spoke for about half an hour, giving a cursory analysis of Germany's position and making no attempt to conceal the seriousness of the situation. In fact, he repeatedly emphasized that Germany was fighting alone, at the same time making no mention of Japan, omitting Mussolini's name and ranking Hungary with Italy, Finland, Rumania and Bulgaria, as ex-satellites which deserted and turned against Germany.

Goebbels: The Minister of Propaganda reiterated most of his Christmas message, glorifying the Fuehrer and stating that Germany would not lay down arms until victory was firmly within her grasp.

Guderian: The Chief of General Staff claimed that «German men, women and children, with their untiring efforts, had already built an impenetrable defensive system in the rear of the fighting line» while the enemy has failed «to shatter the resistance of German soldiers.» He then expressed his faith in the Fuehrer and in victory.

Goering: In an Order of the Day to the Luftwaffe, Goering emphasized the rebirth of the German air force and their unchanged devotion and loyalty to the Fuehrer.

Doenitz: The commander in Chief of the German Navy promised to attack the enemy wherever he may be found, «staking all», with «fanatical audacity.»

In the other parts of the Eastern Front up to the Memel, the day went by without anything of moment.

In Courland, the enemy resumed his attacks only northwest of Doblen. Our divisions smashed the Bolshevik attempts at breaking through, made after an intense artillery preparation, in grim fighting inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. Formations of the Army, of the Waffen S.S. and of Latvian S.S. volunteers, under the Command of Colonel-General Schoerner, outstandingly supported by the squadrons and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force under the Command of General of the Air Force, Pflugbeil, in eleven days of grim fighting, repulsed the onslaught of fourty-six rifle divisions as well as twenty-two tank and assault gun formations.

Owing to the brilliant achievements of the Command and the troops, the Courland front remained firmly under our control except for some slight losses. From December 21 to December 31, 513 tanks were destroyed, 79 guns and 267 machine guns captured. The enemy losses in manpower are extremely high. Anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force brought down 112 Soviet planes during the fighting. Another 145 were shot down by our fighters.

Air:

Anglo-American terror squadrons continued their attacks on western Germany and dropped bombs on cities in northern and northwestern German territory. Considerable damage was particularly caused in residential quarters of greater Hamburg and, by a British night attack, in Oberhausen. In the early evening hours, the Reich capital was the target of fast British bombers. Seventy-five Anglo-American bombers, most of them four-engined, were destroyed by fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force.

In the morning of December 31, over the eastern Frisian islands, anti-aircraft batteries of the Navy brought down nine four-engined bombers. Thus, in the whole of December, the Navy and merchant Navy together brought down a total of 93 enemy planes. (Radio Berlin)

Western Front: Walter Plato, the Transocean correspondent, writes that between the Meuse and Moselle fighting is « more and more becoming a battle of attrition » and admits at the same time the vigor and strength of General Patton's attack against « the southern flank of German penetration. » On the other hand, the German High Command, he states, « shows great reserve in naming localities or giving general indications about the actions taking place... » He also claims that owing to German longe-range weapons and the Luftwaffe « the supply-problem has no longer been one-sided since the beginning of the winter offensive. »

Budapest: Hannemann, the Transocean correspondent, denies Russian reports of Hungarians and Ukrainians deserting from the ranks of the defenders of Budapest, as well as the Russian story about two Soviet officers being killed while carrying an ultimatum to the commander of the Budapest garrison.

New Year's Messages: Mussolini sent a New Year's message to Italian workers in Germany, while Marshal Kesselring and Graziani addressed the German and Italian soldiers fighting on the Italian front.

SITUATION IN SERCHIO RIVER VALLEY «FLUID»

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 30 — Although German forces have not renewed large-scale attacks, the situation in the Serchio River Valley north of Lucca, where an enemy counter-assault scored gains of two to three miles a few days ago, is still «fluid,» it was announced here today.

The movement of enemy forces throughout the coastal sector of the 5th Army front has been increased, and enemy patrol forces have become more aggressive both in probing Allied positions, and warding off attempts to penetrate their own lines, reports said.

American forces now hold commanding positions on high ground in the area of the Serchio River Gap, and are apparently still being subject to enemy attacks, although on a smaller scale than the initial enemy drive on a six-[illegible] the narrow valley and its flanking

At the northern end of the Senio River line, 8th Army patrols again probed German defenses at the southern outskirts of Alfonsine, enemy strongpoint on the Ferrara Road some 9½ miles northwest of Ravenna. These patrol forces reported that the enemy had ringed the southeastern edges of the town with minefields.

Elsewhere along the Italian battle front, both Allied and enemy patrols were increasingly active. (PRO)

GERMAN RETREAT CORRIDOR NARROWED; HEAVY FIGHTING REPORTED IN ROCHEFORT

LONDON, December 30 — Two weeks after the Wehrmacht opened its major offensive against American lines in Luxembourg and Belgium, counter-attacking American troops today had apparently halted the Nazi push, and were compressing the enemy salient at several points around the giant perimeter.

In three sectors, American forces have driven strong wedges into the German positions.

On the western tip of the salient, German panzer units, which came within four miles of the Meuse, have fallen back under strong American pressure. No German units are now reported closer than 15 miles from the river.

Tonight, heavy fighting was reported in the strategic Belgian center of Rochefort. There, enemy troops, fighting with tanks and self-propelled artillery, are making a stand against the attacking Americans. Official reports said the attacking forces are already in the outskirts of the city, while press dispatches said that there is heavy fighting inside of the city.

Loss of the center would force a German retreat northeast to Marche or southeast to St. Hubert, where the enemy still has a strong garrison.

A second threat to the German penetration has been building up several miles to the east in the Bastogne sector. There, in what may be the critical battle of the campaign, 3rd Army and 1st Army troops continued to batter their way forward on a 35-mile front in an effort to bisect the German salient and to trap all of the German divisions to the west.

Officially, the American wedge at Bastogne was reported to be 16 miles from another column fighting its way down from the north through heavy opposition on the Nazi right flank. Press dispatches — covering events two days later than the communiques — reported the two counter-salients considerably closer to a junction. An American radio correspondent said late this afternoon that 3rd Army troops are already five miles north of the town, and within 12 miles of joining up with the northern column. No official confirmation of this report has been made.

On the left flank of the 3rd Army front, gains of up to six miles were officially reported today. Morcy, five miles east of the German stronghold at St. Hubert, has been taken, along with Remagne, Magerotte, Morhet, and Sibret, all west and southwest of Bastogne. Troops in this sector are within gun range of a main enemy supply route feeding

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 30 — Although German forces have not renewed large-scale attacks, the situation in the Serchio River Valley north of Lucca, where an enemy counter-assault scored gains of two to three miles a few days ago, is still «fluid,» it was announced here today.

The movement of enemy forces throughout the coastal sector of the 5th Army front has been increased, and enemy patrol forces have become more aggressive both in probing Allied positions, and warding off attempts to penetrate their own lines, reports said.

American forces now hold commanding positions on high ground in the area of the Serchio River Gap, and are apparently still being subject to enemy attacks, although on a smaller scale than the initial enemy drive on a six-mile-wide front across the narrow valley and its flanking mountains. No locations were given for the American positions, presumably centered on Monte Palodino, some two miles south of Gallicano and 13 miles north of Lucca.

On the 8th Army front, at the Adriatic end of the Italian battle line, German forces still clung stubbornly to their diminishing salient east of the Senio River south of Bagnacavallo, as British troops cleared German rear-guards from fortified houses northeast of Faenza, where the Germans have concentrated both tanks and defensive artillery.

The German hold on the lower stretch of the Canale Naviglio, connecting the Lamone and Senio Rivers, has been maintained for a period of two weeks, in which British and New Zealand forces have successively sheared off large sections of the enemy salient protecting the center of their unfinished Senio River defenses. Although this salient has now been reduced to a narrow sliver of lowland between the Canale Naviglio and the winding Senio River, little more that two miles wide at its greatest extent, and some five to six miles in length, the enemy has resisted savagely all attempts further to reduce it in penetrations from the south.

Although British forces occupied San Pietro in Laguna, two miles northeast of Faenza, on December 19, in subsequent bitter fighting they have progressed only a mile farther northeast of this village, at the edge of the enemy salient.

both west and east of the Bastogne-Arlon road were registered.

At the eastern wing of the front, American units are within two miles of the road center of Wiltz, seized early in the German drive. Strong enemy resistance near the Sauer River has diminished, and American patrols are officially reported inside of Echternach, though it is not clear whether the enemy has been completely cleared from this southern anchor of the Nazi salient. Eppeldorf, in the same area also has been taken.

A Columbia Broadcasting System report said that the 3rd Army had crossed the German-Luxembourg border on a six-mile front in this area, and that the Germans were retreating to avoid being trapped against the Sure River.

Third Army troops have already taken 5,351 prisoners since the start of their drive, an official announcement said.

The third American wedge, on the northern flank of the German salient, has apparently remained unchanged for the past 24 hours with its farthest advance officially reported to be at Grandmenil, north of Bastogne.

As the serious German thrust went into its third week, correspondents emphasized that the danger of the Nazi offensive had not yet been completely eliminated. They pointed out that the Germans still hold strong positions on their 200-mile front running around the perimeter of the salient.

Other reports said that the possibility still exists of a renewed German attempt to break out of either flank of the salient in a final attempt to smash through to key Allied supply centers, on which the armies fighting inside of Germany are dependent.

Intensified enemy activity has been reported on other sectors of the 400-mile Western Front, and there were official reports of heavy German patrol action probing Allied positions along the Roer, both north and south of Düren, and also along the British 2nd Army sector in Holland. All of these attacks have been beaten back.

Enemy activity was also reported in the Colmar area, to the south, and in the Saar Valley, east of Saarlautern.

Still another German attack, supported by infantry, was thrown against Allied forces near Gangelt, 15 miles northwest of Aachen. After making some initial gains, the attackers were forced back, with losses of 109 killed and 70 prisoners. (OWI - Reuter - BBC - CBS)

FIGHTING CONTINUES IN BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, December 30 — The Germans pinned in the elbow of the Danube north of Budapest have banded together in «shock columns» in an attempt to force a way out of the encirclement, and several of such columns have been wiped out almost to a man in a succession of tank and cavalry charges, press dispatches reported tonight.

In addition to this battle to the death, Russian troops are fanning out to the west along the Danube, with the city of Komorom as their next objective. Komorom is only 55 miles from the Bratislava Gap, corridor to Vienna.

In the fighting southeast of Sahy, between the Ipel and Hron Rivers, the enemy lost 7,000 men killed, tonight's Soviet communique reported. Great quantities of war material also fell into the hands of the Russians.

The Hungarian capital itself is reported to be becoming a German graveyard. German dead lie in the streets and in the narrow passages in the old quarter of Budapest. It is estimated that 10 German and Hungarian divisions are fighting desperately to hold Budapest, whose fall will expose the vital industrial region of Silesia, Bohemia, and Austria to the onslaught of the Red Army. Massed guns and tanks of the Red Army are firing down the streets at point-blank range.

Since May 23 of this year, 21 Japanese generals and 80 admirals have died, according to the most recent tabulation.

An American press service dispatch said today that General MacArthur has ordered military internment of Filipinos who «have given aid, comfort, and sustenance to the enemy.»

«Military necessity requires that such persons be removed from any opportunity to threaten the security of our military forces, or success of our military operations,» General MacArthur's proclamation added. (OWI)

CHINESE CROSS BURMA BORDER: ALLIED FORCES 100 MILES FROM MANDALAY

KANDY, CEYLON, December 30 — Chinese troops under the command of Gen. Daniel Sultan have crossed the northeast Burma frontier and liberated the city of Loiwing, on the Chinese side of the border, the Southeast Asia Command Headquarters announced tonight. The advancing troops also captured a town four miles from Namhkam on the Bhamo-Namkham road.

British troops of the 14th Army advancing down the Ye-U road have reached a point 35 miles northwest of Ye-U, the communique reported, while troops of the 15th Indian Corps made further progress down the Mayu River.

Earlier, it had been reported that Allied forces, driving toward Mandalay, had occupied Kanbalu, less than 100 miles from this key city, after a 46-mile advance along the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway corridor.

In the Wanting area, where the Burma Road crosses the Chinese border, a Chinese High Command communique reported the capture of several villages during fighting which resulted in casualties to the enemy.

There was widespread air action in the area. The Eastern Air Command reported attacks on Kani and enemy positions near Gengaw, while other planes hit Japanese targets in central Burma.

Japanese supply lines and installations in the Hengyang and Leiyang areas were blasted by American P-40 planes, resulting in the destruction of one locomotive and damage to six others. Enemy troop concentrations were strafed, and the Leiyang and Hengyang dock areas bombed.

In Indo-China, U.S. planes bombed Nanning airfield, Gialam airdrome northwest of Hanoi, and a third field at Haiphong.

Chungking dispatches said that Allied air blows have crippled the main Japanese supply system up the Yangtze River into central China. (OWI-BBC)

SCORE OF BRIDGES STRUCK IN ITALY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 30 — Fighters and medium and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force, rolling up a total of 5,471 sorties in four days, yesterday destroyed or damaged more than a score of road and rail bridges in continued attacks on enemy lines of communication in northern Italy, it was announced here today.

Heavies attacks were centered on the enemy rear areas northeast of the Serchio River Valley, where a dozen bridges were either destroyed or damaged yesterday, and where enemy concentrations at Vergemoli, Castelnuova, and Piazza, all on the road leading from the Serchio Valley to link with the coast road near La Spezia, were heavily attacked.

In attacks farther north, the Nervesa rail bridge was hit, and a bridge at Cismon, north of Basano, was severed by a direct strike which sent one span hurtling into the [illegible] Four direct hits by Thunderbolts also shattered a

It was reported tonight that the Russians have broken into Pest, the eastern half of the city, and have captured several blocks of streets, while, in Buda, the Soviets have seized other important streets. A Red Star dispatch said today that German resistance was increasing as the Russians pressed deeper into the western half of the city.

A cable from Helsinki stated today that German forces clinging to positions in the Lätäseo sector of northwestern Finland have resumed patrol activity. This sector is in the thumb of upper Lapland, lying between northern Sweden and northern Norway. (OWI - Reuter)

JAPS LOSE 116,770 ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 30 — Japanese losses on Leyte, the liberation of which was completed this week, now total 116,770 troops, it was announced today at General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters. Final remnants of the Japanese forces are being hunted down in the mountains of the northwest area of the island.

The increasing toll of Japanese forces was augmented today by three generals. In awarding a new series of posthumous awards, the Japanese War Ministry disclosed that Maj. Gens. Shigeyoshi Yamamoto, Akinosuke Oka, and Chuei Nojiri are dead.

Ye-U road have reached a point 35 miles northwest of Ye-U, the communique reported, while troops of the 15th Indian Corps made further progress down the Mayu River.

Heavier attacks were centered on the enemy rear areas northeast of the Serchio River Valley, where a dozen bridges were either destroyed or damaged yesterday, and where enemy concentrations at Vergemoli, Castelnuova, and Piazza, all on the road leading from the Serchio Valley to link with the coast road near La Spezia, were heavily attacked.

In attacks farther north, the Nervesa rail bridge was hit, and a bridge at Cismon, north of Basano, was severed by a direct strike which sent one span hurtling into the river. Four direct hits by Thunderbolts also shattered a span of the Latisana railway bridge, in northeastern Italy.

Medium bombers scored hits on a viaduct at Lavis and a rail span at Rovereto on the Brenner line, and also struck road and rail bridges on the Tarvisio route.

Heavy bombers yesterday struck at two new targets, Landshut, 55 miles northeast of Munich, and Passau on the Danube northwest of Linz, Austria, in attacks designed to cut by-pass lines for re-routing rail traffic around heavily-bombed Munich.

Heavy bombers also reported damaging the Bressanone rail bridge 20 miles north of Bolzano, along the Brenner line. (PRO)

MARSHALL CONGRATULATES T. A. F.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 30 — General George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief of Staff, has congratulated the officers and men of the 12th USAAF, under command of Major General John K. Cannon, for their «highly successful» support of the Allied ground forces in Italy, it was reported here today.

General Marshall's message was included in a personal letter to the commander of the 12th USAAF (PRO)

GERMAN RAIL YARDS HIT AGAIN

LONDON, December 30 — More than 1,300 Fortresses and Liberators of the 8th USAAF bombed railroads, bridges, and marshalling yards in western Germany today, in the eighth successive day of attacks on enemy communications, it was officially stated.

The bombers were escorted by 650 Thunderbolts and Mustangs of the same command. The marshalling yards attacked included those at Mannheim, Kaiserslautern, and Kassel.

The congestion wrought by the bombers in the attack had the expected effect farther north, where great quantities of priority traffic are held up in the Rhine-Münster-Osnabrück triangle.

Yesterday's attack by the heavy bombers damaged 1,500 freight cars and started numerous fires among munition and oil trains in the Frankfurt area.

No enemy fighter opposition was encountered by the bombers, and flak was only moderate.

Details of the successful attack by RAF fighter-bombers of the 2nd TAF on the same crowded German traffic bottleneck yesterday were announced today. The RAF planes shot down 32 German fighters in dogfights during the attacks, with the loss of seven of their own planes.

Foggy weather yesterday did not keep the fighter-bombers on the ground. They turned up in some areas well beyond the battlefield, where they were not expected, and correspondents stated that the result was 70 German railway locomotives destroyed or damaged, along with hundreds of trucks.

One entire train of 20 flat cars, loaded with brand-new motor trucks, was knocked out. A train loaded with ammunition was hit by Typhoon rockets and disappeared in smoke, together with all objects in the immediate vicinity.

Reuter Correspondent Denis Martin, writing of the vast scale of the Allied air attack, said today that if the dwindling force of German fighters is maintained over the front lines, the complete devastation of the German railway system is only a matter of time. On the other hand, he adds, if the attempt is made adequately to defend the railways, the front-line enemy troops will be hammered to pieces.

Damage and casualties were caused by German air activity against southern England during the past 24 hours, it was announced today. (Reuter)

FIERCE FIGHTING CONTINUES IN MONTENEGRO

LONDON, December 30 — Fierce fighting continues in Montenegro for Matosevo, and along the whole communication line toward Bijelo Polje, today's communique from the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation announced. Following strong flank attacks on the German units, their withdrawal to the Sandjak has been impeded. The Germans are forced to fight day and night, and to suffer from a shortage of food and ammunition, with heavy losses in men and material.

In the Bosna Valley, Yugoslav units smashed a German column on the Sarajevo-Bukovaca route, destroying one tank and 14 trucks. The Rosanski Kovi-Sunja railway was cut in several places, and three bridges were blown. Reports stated that the Germans in this region lack not only food, but all necessities. They are reduced to living on raw potatoes. The day's bread ration is one roll for 10 men.

The Germans tried to cut the Zagreb-Karlovac road, recently captured by the Yugoslavs, but the counter-attacks were all repelled. In Slovenia, an enemy group, composed of units of the Fascist San Marco Division and Ger-

GREW WARNS JAPANESE PEOPLE

SAIPAN, December 30 — Joseph C. Grew, Under Secretary of State and former U. S. Ambassador to Japan, broadcast a warning yesterday to the Japanese people on the new United States radio here, one of two new powerful transmitters — the other in Hawaii — which have been built to bring the news of the war to the Japanese people.

In his recorded speech, he said:

«I have today only the same advice that I gave you when I was in Japan — retrace your steps. Resume again your authority over your policies. Establish and safeguard the right of free discussion which free peoples enjoy, and create a government of free men which will have no place for war-mongering, and which will discharge its responsibilities to other countries.»

Grew then warned:

«Your leaders know they have lost the war. They know that they cannot hope much longer to stand against the power being brought to bear against them. Our power and might will be relentlessly applied, with mounting force, until your militarists give up the hopeless struggle, or until they are destroyed.

«Your militarists have concealed the truth from you. Hereafter, we shall send you the truth about the war by radio, so that you will understand how you have been deceived and duped by your militarists.»

Admiral Chester Nimitz, U. S. Pacific Fleet Commander, also broadcast. He said that the destruction of Japanese youth, shipping, and industry would continue, unless the Japanese people themselves called for a halt by throwing out their present leaders. (OWI)

CONFIDENCE EBBING IN JAPAN, SAYS «IZVESTIA»

MOSCOW, December 30 — Reviewing conditions in Japan, the Soviet newspaper Izvestia today reported a marked deterioration of the political situation and public morale as a result of defeats administered by American armed forces and continuous attacks on Tokyo.

The paper said that Japanese newspapers now are calling upon the Government to restore civil rights. For example, Asahi recently insisted that the Government «renew and reorganize various organs in order to guarantee freedom of the press and freedom of speech, and thus provide effective national unity.»

«The newspaper Mainichi was quoted as saying, «The time to lecture people on the national crisis is past. People do not want to listen to such lectures.»

Izvestia commented:

«The raising of such questions is significant. It shows that the long appeals of Fascist propaganda to give up liberal conceptions as alien to the Japanese spirit remained in vain.»

A quarrel between Japanese militarists and industrialists, Izvestia said, was reflected in a Tokyo paper which said that the disparity between the military situation and military measures is becoming greater, and that «unsatisfactory functioning of the state apparatus remains the cause of many deficiencies.»

The Soviet newspaper reported that Japanese industrialists want more freedom and, at the same time, are reluctant to invest more capital in war industries. Steady deterioration of the military situation makes many business men fear too-close ties with the militarists, and they oppose severe economic control imposed by the latter.

On the other hand, Izvestia said, the militarists probably will seek to impose greater economic controls, and it is likely that this will result in greater resistance by Japanese industrialists. The paper stressed the fact that Japan, as

GERMANS KILL RUSSIAN TRUCE NEGOTIATORS

MOSCOW, December 30 — Two Russian officers entering Budapest under the internationally-recognized white flag of truce were shot to death yesterday by the Germans, a special Soviet Government announcement said tonight.

The announcement said that the officers were emissaries delegated to present the German commander inside the city with the terms of an ultimatum, and were proceeding through the enemy lines in accordance with international convention.

The German act in killing the emissaries was described as «premeditated murder and a violation of the rules of war.» The announcement added that full responsibility for the eventual destruction of Budapest now lies with the Germans.

Following the announcement, Radio Moscow broadcast an ultimatum to the German garrison inside Budapest, laying down terms for surrender. The ultimatum was signed by Marshals Feodor Tolbukhin and Rodion Malinovsky. (OWI-BBC)

It said that anxiety was growing in Japan over this perspective, and that confidence was dropping. (OWI)

ALLIES MUST INVADE JAPAN, NIMITZ SAYS

SAIPAN, December 30 — Japan will have to be occupied to win the peace, Admiral of the Fleet Chester Nimitz said here yesterday at a press conference, when he spoke of winning air bases closer to the Japanese mainland as a prelude to invasion. He continued:

«Just how much we will have to occupy it, I do not know, but we must prepare to invade Japan by assault.

«We are just commencing a phase now, where we are pouring it on Japan. We are still some considerable distance away, but, with the passing of time, we will hit from bases much closer to Japan with an ever-increasing weight of bombs. I still believe that we have to have bases close enough to Japan to bomb at a rate comparable to that at which Germany is bombed.»

Stating that Japanese naval strength was gradually being reduced, Nimitz said:

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

« I think that the Japanese will continue to use the remainder of their fleet when the opportunity offers, such as the recent Mindoro raid in which they suffered losses and did very little damage. »

He reiterated that he planned to advance his headquarters to the western Pacific to be closer to the fighting, but declined to say when or where he would set up his new base.

The Admiral expressed the same astonishment at the rapid development of Saipan as he did at the development of Guam during a visit there last Sunday. He said:

« The change on Saipan is nothing short of a miracle. You have to see it to believe it. I consider that with each passing week, the Saipan, Tinian, and Guam naval bases will become more valuable and useful to us, not only for airplane facilities, but for fleet facilities. » (OWI)

SOVIET GENERAL AT SANDHURST

LONDON, December 30 — Maj. Gen. A. V. Vasiliev, head of the Russian Military Mission to Britain, took the salute today at the passing-out parade at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst.

This is the first time in the history of Sandhurst that a Russian officer has been invited to attend the ceremony.

In an interview after the ceremony, General Vasiliev said he had been much impressed by a most important training program with up-to-date methods. (OWI)

WILSON APPOINTED FIELD MARSHAL

LONDON, December 30 — General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, former Supreme Allied Commander, Mediterranean Theater, and recently-appointed senior British military representative on the Combined Chiefs of Staff Committee in Washington, has been appointed a Field Marshal, to date from yesterday.

The new Field Marshal has had a long and distinguished army career. He first joined a rifle brigade in the South African War (1899-1902), in which he became a lieutenant and was twice decorated. When the first World War started, he was a brigade major. From 1914-1917 he served in France and Belgium, became a lieutenant colonel, and won the Distinguished Service Order. From 1930-1933, he was on the staff of Sandhurst Military College and at the Staff College, Camberley.

At the outbreak of the present war, he was promoted to Lieutenant General and was sent to Egypt to command the British Army of the Nile.

Under Field Marshal Lord Wavell, he commanded this army in the brilliant campaign which drove the Italians from Egypt and Cyrenaica in the winter of 1940-1941. After the fall of Benghazi, he became military governor of Cyrenaica. Then followed the first campaign in Greece, when Wilson led a small British Army against overwhelming odds. When forced to evacuate Greece, he saved more than 80 per cent of his troops.

Field Marshal Wilson was next sent to Syria, to prevent that country's falling into the hands of the Nazis. In June, 1941, he was appointed commander-in-chief in Syria under General Sir Claude Auchinleck, and trained the British 9th Army.

In February, 1943, he became commander-in-chief of the British forces in the Middle East. On 24 December 1943, he was named Supreme Allied Commander, Mediterranean Theater, in succession to General Dwight Eisenhower, who

ROME BLACKOUT ENDS

ROME, December 30 — Three and a half years of blackout ended here tonight, when the Italian Ministry of the Interior announced the lifting of blackout regulations. The announcement was made following an agreement with the Allied Command.

Street lighting and all outside lighting are permitted, providing lights can be extinguished immediately in the event of an air-raid alert.

Rome had its first blackout in September 1939, when the Nazis invaded Poland, but it was lifted after five days. The city was again blacked out on 10 June 1940, when the Fascists declared war on Britain and France, and regulations were in force continuously until tonight. (UNN)

COMMUNIST PARTY CALLS FOR NEW ITALIAN ARMY

ROME, December 30 — A campaign for the formation, and subsequent speedy transfer to the northern battle zone, of a new, fully-equipped Italian Army has been launched by the Communist Party. The campaign's objectives are outlined in a resolution approved by the Communist Party's central directorate, together with a representative of the Party's northern directorate and representatives of the Communist Youth Movement, after meetings held here on December 21, 22, and 23. The text of the resolution was released last night.

The resolution reviewed the effect which, it said, the increased German resistance had had on general hopes for an early end to the war, maintaining that this meant the delayed liberation of northern Italians « suffering so cruelly and fighting so heroically against the German-Fascist oppressors. »

After expressing satisfaction at the victories of the three great democracies and the resurrection of France, the resolution said that, while in the zones of Italy still under occupation there was an increasing contribution to the war effort, this was not so in the liberated areas, and that, in spite of repeated promises, there had been an insufficient marshalling of Italian military forces at the front.

« This fact, » continued the resolution, « has had repercussions. It is not understood by our northern brothers, and is exploited by the Fascist Fifth Column, in order to sow discontent and to feed demoralization.

« The Communist Party reminds the representatives of the Allied Nations in Italy that the desire fully to participate in the war against Germany and Fascism was the main factor in allowing the creation of a satisfactory political situation and a representative government in Italy. »

The resolution declared that the Communist Party, « interpreting the wishes of the better part of the nation, takes the initiative of opening a campaign to form an Italian Army that may take its place in the battle zone in the fight against Nazism and Fascism. »

After calling upon the Committee of National Liberation and all anti-Fascist parties in the country to support this move, the resolution concluded:

« The campaign for an Italian Army must become the great interest of the whole nation — it must mark a new and victorious step along the road toward the destruction of Fascism and our people's rebirth. » (UNN)

CHURCHILL SEES VICTORY SOON

LONDON, December 30 — Germany will finally be beaten «before many months have passed,» said Prime Minister Churchill in a New Year message today to the Primrose League (a Conservative Party association) of which he is Grand Master. He said the Allies were entering a year «that should bring us victory in Europe,» and added:

«Before many months have passed, the evil gang that has long dominated that unhappy continent will be wiped out. Until that end has been achieved, there can be no return to our normal habits. It will be tragic folly to prolong by any slackening in the last phase the agony that megalomaniac ambition has loosed upon the world.» (OWI)

I.G.L.C. SENDS MESSAGE TO RUSSIAN WORKERS

ROME, December 30 — Trade union unity in Italy is «a fundamental achievement of the Italian proletariat» which «will be defended under any circumstances,» the Italian General Labor Confederation said today in a message sent to workers in the Soviet Union.

The message, signed by the three secretaries and members of the IGLC executive committee, expressed gratitude for the recent visit to Italy of a Soviet workers' delegation, and added that it would be the aim of the IGLC to «make sure that the unity which has been reached in our country soon becomes a reality in all other countries, thus giving birth to a strong, international trades union organization.»

«We realize that the economic reconstruction of our country must be brought about through the efforts of our people,» the message declared, after recalling the hardships suffered by Italy through 20 years of Fascist dictatorship and through the massacre and plunder by Germans which followed. «But we are a people of workers, a people which

PAY ASKED FOR WORKERS' FAMILIES

ROME, December 30 — A request that the families of workingmen deported from the Rome suburb of Quadraro, during the German occupation, be paid the salary that they would normally have received during the Christmas period, has been sent by the Italian Women's Union to the firms previously employing the men.

The Quadraro quarter of the city was subjected to one of the most widespread and thorough roundups by the German Command, on the night of April 18, when more than 400 families were ruthlessly deprived of their menfolk. (UNN)

EPURATION TO BE SPEEDED BY NEW LAW

ROME, December 30 — A law designed to speed epuration proceedings by increasing the personnel of the Central Epuration Commission was passed at a meeting of the Council of Ministers today. Another law passed by the Council bars Fascists who held executive posts from either running for office or voting.

The new epuration law calls for the reorganization of the Central Epuration Committee into four sections, each of which will be empowered to dispose of epuration cases.

January 30 was set as the deadline for the completion of epuration in the four highest civil service grades. Included in these categories are Fascists who held or are holding such posts as attorneys general, departmental heads of ministries and Supreme Court justices.

Among several pension laws passed by the ministerial council was one which gives a 33 per cent increase to pensioned state employees. Another law provided that a cost-of-living bonus be granted to persons receiving a state pension of 12,000 lire a year or less. (UNN)

ROME ELECTRIC POWER CUT BY FIRE

ROME, December 30 — Partial burning out of machinery at the electrical generating plant at Ceprano several days ago has lessened Rome's power supply somewhat, a survey showed today.

UNIVERSITY RECTOR TO GO TO LONDON

Barcelona «so as to provoke the closing of the French frontiers for sanitary reasons.» He also suggested «suppression of undesirable persons by means of poison.» His plan for sabotage called for explosives camouflaged as pieces of coal, thermos flasks, and suitcases, to be placed in trains and other transportation leaving France.

«Coal,» Emanuele wrote, «is particularly suitable for locomotives, while the other means can easily be placed inside railway carriages and trucks. Magnetic explosive devices are being prepared at the 'chemical center' at my request. They should be taken to France from Italy by diplomatic pouch.»

Emanuele gave detailed directions as to the sabotage of ships, particularly «Russian ships, transporting material for the Spanish 'Reds,' sailing from eastern Mediterranean ports.»

His second report stated that he had given directions for the first acts of sabotage, and that they were to take place in February and March of 1937. He asked for funds—50,000 lire to begin with—for the payment of his agents.

He gave details of the rates that these agents were to receive for sabotage in Spain. For the destruction of a ship, 25,000 lire were to be paid; for a locomotive, 15,000 lire; for a loaded railway truck, 5,000 lire; and for a motor van carrying men, 10,000 lire.

For the diffusion of infectious diseases and damage to defense and railway works, rewards were to be in ratio to the results obtained. Agents' families were to receive payments at a fixed scale, should «accidents» occur. For at least five months of arrest, the family would be given 5,000 lire; for at least a years' imprisonment, 10,000 lire; for imprisonment over that period, 25,000 lire; and for the death penalty, 50,000 lire.

Among the numerous acts of sabotage committed, according to the reports, were the following: placing of explosive coals aboard the ships Citta di Barcelona and Ville de Madrid in February, 1937; the exploding of a «metal tube» near the Spanish Consulate at Perpignon; and the explosion of numerous «flasks» in railway carriages. ARCHBISHOP APPOINTED REGENT OF GREECE; MORE E.L.A.S. PROOPS CLEARED FROM ATHENS

ATHENS, December 30 — Archbishop Damaskinos, Metropolitan of Athens, was appointed regent of Greece in a proclamation by King George II of Greece in London today.

Another important development in the Greek crisis was reported today in Reuter dispatches from here and from London, which said that Prime Minister Churchill has received a memorandum from the ELAS Central Committee, to which consideration is being given. The contents of the memorandum were not released to the press.

In the royal proclamation establishing a regency, the Greek King said that he authorized such an appointment because he felt that he would not return to Greece unless summoned by the free vote of the people.

The Greek King's decision to yield to the unanimity of leaders of all Greek parties for a regency pending a plebiscite followed his conference in London with Mr. Churchill at 10, Downing Street last night.

An announcement from Mr. Churchill's office this morning said that he and the Greek King conferred for «a considerable time.» No other details of the discussion were given.

Admiral Pession was Fascist director general of the post and telegraph services, as well as inspector general of radio. Lazzari was director general of arts in the Fascist Ministry of National Education. (UNN)

UNIVERSITY RECTOR TO GO TO LONDON

ROME, December 30 — The renewal of Anglo-Italian cultural relations will be the main concern of Professor Edoardo Ruffini, Rector of Perugia University and commissioner for the Italo-American study center, when he leaves shortly for London, it was announced here today. (UNN)

FASCIST INTERVENTION IN SPANISH WAR BARED

ROME, December 30 — Fascist plans to wage bacterial warfare in Spain during the civil war there, and to transport explosives into that country in diplomatic pouches, were revealed today in two reports which are part of the evidence gathered for the trials on January 22 of General Mario Roatta and the former Fascist Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Fulvio Suvich.

Both are under charges preferred by the Italian High Commissioner for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes.

The reports, written on 27 January and 3 February 1937, by Carabinieri Colonel Sante Emanuele (at present under arrest) to the head of the SIM (military intelligence service), uncloaked a complete scheme for the execution of large-scale sabotage against the Republican forces in Spain.

Colonel Emanuele, in his reports, advocated the introduction of germs into food leaving France for Republican territory, in the hope that this would cause an epidemic in [illegible] lying men, 10,000 lire.

For the diffusion of infectious diseases and damage to defense and railway works, rewards were to be in ratio to the results obtained. Agents' families were to receive payments at a fixed scale, should «accidents» occur. For at least five months of arrest, the family would be given 5,000 lire; for at least a years' imprisonment, 10,000 lire; for imprisonment over that period, 25,000 lire; and for the death penalty, 50,000 lire.

Among the numerous acts of sabotage committed, according to the reports, were the following: placing of explosive coals aboard the ships Citta di Barcelona and Ville de Madrid in February, 1937; the exploding of a «metal tube» near the Spanish Consulate at Perpignan; and the explosion of numerous «flasks» in railway carriages. ARCHBISHOP APPOINTED REGENT OF GREECE; MORE E.L.A.S. PROOPS CLEARED FROM ATHENS

ATHENS, December 30 — Archbishop Damaskinos, Metropolitan of Athens, was appointed regent of Greece in a proclamation by King George II of Greece in London today.

Another important development in the Greek crisis was reported today in Reuter dispatches from here and from London, which said that Prime Minister Churchill has received a memorandum from the ELAS Central Committee, to which consideration is being given. The contents of the memorandum were not released to the press.

In the royal proclamation establishing a regency, the Greek King said that he authorized such an appointment because he felt that he would not return to Greece unless summoned by the free vote of the people.

The Greek King's decision to yield to the unanimity of leaders of all Greek parties for a regency pending a plebiscite followed his conference in London with Mr. Churchill at 10, Downing Street last night.

An announcement from Mr. Churchill's office this morning said that he and the Greek King conferred for «a considerable time.» No other details of the discussion were given.

Greek King Meets Churchill

The meeting of the Greek King and the British Prime Minister was held immediately after the conclusion of a night meeting of the British War Cabinet, which was called soon after Mr. Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden arrived in London from Athens, where they spent two days while the conference of leaders of all Greek parties was taking place.

The announcement today said that at the War Cabinet session, Mr. Churchill reported on the results of his personal intervention in the Greek situation.

Archbishop Damaskinos will take oath to uphold the Greek Constitution tomorrow, and it is expected that immediately after that formality, consultations will begin for the formation of a new government. Meanwhile, Prime Minister Georges Papandreou's Cabinet will limit its activities to current affairs.

There also were several new developments on the fighting fronts in Greece today. Press dispatches reported that British and Greek troops, clearing ELAS forces from Athens, had their most successful day since the fighting began in the city.

More than half of the capital has been wrested from ELAS, it was said, and British and Greek troops have cleared virtually all of the southeastern area of Athens and are making steady gains in each of their simultaneous, three-pronged drives. As areas are being cleared, the new Greek National Guard is taking over control of the sectors, reports said.

Fighting was intense in all areas, and ELAS was resisting bitterly, press dispatches asserted. ELAS was faring better in the Epirus area, in northwestern Greece, than in the capital fighting, according to late reports.

In the Epirus area, Gen. Napoleon Zervas' right-wing EDES forces were still falling back under strong ELAS pressure. A Reuter dispatch said that about 3,000 EDES men had moved back to the small port of Preveza at the southern tip of the Preveza Peninsula, and that Zervas' troops have begun to evacuate the mainland in schooners and other small craft for the island of Corfu, which is held by British troops.

In the intensified fighting in the Athens area which yesterday opened the second phase of the British operations to clear ELAS forces, British and Greek troops took 800 prisoners and killed 800 ELAS men, a BBC dispatch said.

Meanwhile, an official announcement from the headquarters of Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, accused ELAS of mistreating prisoners and of not abiding by the Geneva Convention.

GREEK KING'S REGENCY PROCLAMATION

LONDON, December 30 — The following proclamation was made today by King George II of Greece in setting up a regency for Greece.

« We, George the Second, King of the Hellenes, having deeply considered the terrible situation into which our well-loved people have fallen through circumstances alike unprecedented and uncontrollable, and being ourselves resolved not to return to Greece unless summoned by a free and fair expression of a national will, and having full confidence in your loyalty and devotion, do now, by this declaration, appoint you, Archbishop Damaskinos, to be our regent during this period of emergency.

« We accordingly authorize and require you to take all steps necessary to restore order and tranquillity throughout our kingdom. We further declare our desire that there should be ascertained by processes of a democratic government the freely expressed wishes of the Greek people, as soon as these storms have passed, and thus abridge the misery of our beloved country by which our heart is rent. »

DAMASKINOS UNITED GREEKS ONCE BEFORE

ATHENS, December 30 — Press dispatches tonight found considerable significance in the rise of Archbishop Damaskinos to a position of new authority in Greece during one of the most critical periods in its history.

One outstanding point made by correspondents is that the Archbishop once before succeeded in uniting Greek factions — in 1930, on a special mission in the United States for the Greek government. On that occasion, when he was still a bishop, Damaskinos healed a breach between Greek royalists and democrats in America who were divided over political issues, which in turn had resulted in a rift among Greek groups in 300 Greek Orthodox churches in America.

Archbishop Damaskinos worked closely with U. S. officials on another mission he performed there for the Greek government and the Orthodox Church in 1922, when he raised funds to rebuild schools and churches in Corinth, which had been devastated by an earthquake.

The Archbishop is 53 years old. He became Metropolitan of Athens in 1941, soon after the Germans occupied Greece. Under him, the church played its traditional rôle as the center of Greek resistance against foreign suppression. He defied the Nazis many times, and repeatedly lodged protests

The correspondent wrote that plans for delaying the call-up because of the lack of military equipment and supplies had to be abandoned under pressure from the Consultative Assembly and the press. The dispatch went on to say that there is inadequate equipment for the French troops already under arms, and quoted some sources as saying that the new troops would be used primarily for France's « post-war obligations, » and not in the present fighting.

In voting the « dissolution of associations intended to prevent the reëstablishment of Republican legality, » the Cabinet yesterday abolished two organizations which have been spreading anti-Jewish propaganda: the « Inter-Professional Association of Merchants, Industrialists, and Artisans » and the « Association of Former Administrators of Jewish Property, » it was reported here. The two groups were composed of individuals aiming to retain their claims to Jewish property seized by Vichy.

Another American press dispatch told of a proposal submitted to the Cabinet from the Consultative Assembly providing for the establishment of labor-management committees throughout all industries in France employing more than 50 persons. The committees, advisory and consultative in character, would be kept informed of management problems, and would have the right to submit recommendations and proposals for improvement of individual industries' operations. They would also be empowered to audit company books.

Members of the committee would be present at all directors' meetings of the corporation, and would report to the workers on management problems.

Meanwhile, Socialist Minister of the Interior Adrien Tixier announced that provincial and local elections will take place in France by the end of April, at the very latest. Tixier also announced that no Vichy-appointed prefects and police intendants are left in office as a result of a complete shake-up in the Ministry of Interior personnel.

Jefferson Caffery, U.S. Ambassador to France, presented his credentials today to Gen. Charles de Gaulle at the War Ministry.

DAVIS SAYS NEW YEAR SHOULD BRING RESOLUTION

NEW YORK, December 30 — The New Year's resolution of all the people of the United Nations should be to take the great strides together in peace that they have taken together in war, Elmer Davis, director of the U.S. Office of War Information, said in a nation-wide broadcast today.

Davis reviewed the year's military events, which, he said, have reached a point where « our enemies can no longer hope to win an affirmative decisive victory. » He continued:

« But they can hope ... they may prolong war until dissension among the Allies might earn them a compromise peace, and time to get ready for the next war. There are two ways to defeat that hope, first by hard fighting in the field — and our soldiers and sailors are doing that; secondly, by maintenance of the utmost possible harmony among Allied nations...

« Things have happened lately in some liberated countries which have caused disquiet to many Americans. Our government's policy on these matters has been stated, and every effort is being made to make that policy effective. In the meantime, it might be hoped that people who talk about these differences will display some sense of proportion. Too many of these critics are actively malicious; most of them simply have not grown up, and have not learned the difference between primary and secondary objectives...

« Writers and speakers, some of whom sneered at the Atlantic Charter when it was first pronounced, now talk as if the war had been fought in vain unless every principle

Archbishop Damaskinos' stand against the Germans became so disconcerting to the invaders that in June, 1944, the Germans placed him under arrest. (OWI - BBC)

NORTHERN ENGLAND FEELS EARTHQUAKE

LONDON, December 30 — A considerable area of northern England was shaken by an earthquake at 0036 hours this morning. Buildings in Manchester shook violently, and the quake was felt at places 100 miles apart, Reuter said this morning.

There have been no reports of damages or casualties.

A British seismologist said that the shock "was a severe vibration for this country. The tremor began slowly, and built up for a matter of 45 seconds. The vibration continued for two minutes." (Reuter)

CABINET RESIGNS IN PANAMA CRISIS

PANAMA CITY, December 30 — The cabinet of Acting President Riccardo Adolfo de la Guardia resigned yesterday, an Associated Presse dispatch reported, in a crisis over the Government's decree dissolving the Assembly, which was to have selected three vice presidents January 2. One of the vice presidents would have succeeded automatically to the presidency.

At Panama Canal Department headquarters, Maj. Gen. Ralph Meyer ordered a full alert for all U.S. armed forces in the Canal Zone. The Associated Press said the immediate effect of the alert will be to keep U.S. personnel on their stations and military posts, and thus out of Panamanian jurisdiction. (OWI)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, December 30 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group.

North of Faenza, the 8th Army continues to reduce the enemy pocket east of the River Senio.

On the remainder of the 8th Army front and on that of 5th Army, patrols have been active.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Railyards in southern Germany and Austria and railyards and locomotive repair depots in northern Italy were attacked yesterday by strong forces of 15th USAAF escorted heavy bombers.

Strategic fighters conducted offensive operations over southern Germany, and strafed rail transport in Austria.

RAF heavy and medium bombers carried out supply missions to Yugoslavia.

Light bombers and intruders, on the night of December 28/29, bombed and strafed enemy communications in the Po Valley and northwest Italy, as well as attacking two airfields in northern Italy.

Medium bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday had excellent results in their attacks against enemy supply routes over northern Italy, while light bombers, fighter bombers, and fighters out in strength attacked communications in northeastern Italy and many targets in the western battle area.

Enemy road movements and communications in central Yugoslavia were attacked by aircraft of the Balkan Air Force.

Coastal units attacked military objectives in northwest Italy, enemy transport in Yugoslavia, and small shipping in the north Adriatic and Gulf of Genoa, and intercepted and destroyed one enemy aircraft and damaged others.

In these operations, one enemy aircraft was destroyed, and early reports show six of our heavy bombers and five other aircraft to be missing.

MAAF flew over 2,200 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

Considerable progress has been made by British troops clearing the southeast suburbs of Kaifariani, Pankrati, Kinosaryes, and Katsipodhi.

Our own ground troops were closely supported by artillery and aircraft making rocket and machine-gun attack against insurgent strongpoints, effectively silencing them.

There is little change in the Piraeus, where further mopping up operations are in progress.

Our patrols have penetrated into Echternach.

In the Saar Valley, enemy patrols were encountered by our troops in Fraulautern, east of Saarlautern.

Enemy rail and communications systems north of and leading into the Ruhr were heavily attacked yesterday by fighter-bombers which destroyed many locomotives and rail trucks.

Other fighter-bombers flew in an arc extending from the Ardennes Forest to the Saar River, and ranged as far east as Frankfurt, attacking motor transport, armor, and gun positions in Belgium and Luxembourg, and striking at rail and road transport targets in Germany.

Escorted heavy bombers in great strength attacked road and rail junctions, railheads, bridges, and marshalling yards in western Germany, severing communications to enemy units in the Ardennes salient. Targets included two marshalling yards at Coblenz, and marshalling yards at Frankfurt, Bingen, and Aschaffenburg.

Medium bombers attacked the communications center of Annweiler, while fighter-bomber attacked a storage dump at Achern and railyards in the upper Rhine Valley.

Enemy troops on the Dutch islands of Schouwen were attacked by fighter-bombers, while rocket-firing fighters struck at barges over Flakkee.

Escorted heavy bombers attacked E-boat and R-boat pens at Rotterdam.

In the days operations, 32 enemy aircraft were shot down, 10 of our heavy bombers and 25 of our fighters are missing.

Last night heavy bombers attacked railway junctions and yards at Troisdorf, near Bonn, and a synthetic oil plant at Scholven.

East and west of Wissembourg, artillery exchanges and patrol clashes were the principal activity.

North of Colmar, enemy troops infiltrated Sigolsheim and were mopped up.

A German foray across the Rhine north of the Swiss border was broken up. (Reuter)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 30 — Today's communique:

Allied forces have driven back an enemy attack launched with infantry near Gangelt, on the German-Dutch frontier, northwest of Geilenkirchen. The attack gained some initial success. Enemy losses were about 100 killed and wounded, and we took 70 prisoners.

In the Ardennes salient, we have made some gains, especially along the southern flank, and repulsed a number of enemy attacks.

Near the northern hinge of the salient, south of Monschau, the enemy formed up for an attack east of Elsenborn. This was broken up by our artillery before it reached our positions.

On the northern flank of the salient, our forces made a successful raid on enemy positions north of Lierneux, disorganizing the enemy and killing 30, including the commander.

Eppeldorf was cleared, although the enemy holds high ground east and southeast of the town.

A group of German tanks in the area of Bollendorf was dispersed by artillery fire.

Our patrols have penetrated into Echternach.

In the Saar Valley, enemy patrols were encountered by our troops in Frailautern, east of Saarlautern.

Enemy rail and communications systems north of and leading into the Ruhr were heavily attacked yesterday by fighter-bombers which destroyed many locomotives and rail trucks.

rail-cars, and 30 warehouses with ammunition. Our troops captured not 6,000, as had been announced earlier, but 7,550 German soldiers and officers.

In the area of Budapest, our troops fought stubborn battles for the annihilation of encircled groupings of the enemy, in the course of which they seized a few blocks in the western and eastern parts of the city.

Simultaneously, our troops were concluding liquidation of the encircled units of the enemy in the Danube Bend northwest of Budapest.

In battles during December 29, in this area, our troops captured 1,258 German and Hungarian officers and soldiers.

On other sectors of the front, there were no important changes.

During December 29, our troops disabled or destroyed on all fronts a total of 98 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 56 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15th ARMY GROUP, December 30 — Today's communique:

In Piedmont, over Christmas week, 3,500 German and Fascist troops launched attacks against Patriots in the Casale, Asti, and Alessandria zones, requisitioning rations from the civil population. The Patriots, however, succeeded in partially extricating themselves, and suffered very light losses.

On December 19, at Rimale in the Fidenza zone of Emilia, a Patriot patrol attacked three vehicles loaded with German troops. Enemy losses have not yet been ascertained. The Patriots lost one man. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 30 — The High Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the northern part of the Belgian-Luxembourg battle area, on both sides of Stavelot, the enemy shifted to the defensive.

Southwest of Bastogne, he tried in grim but unsuccessful attacks to smash this pillar of our front.

On the Sauer, the local fighting continues.

Yesterday, in Belgium and Luxembourg, our troops smashed 37 enemy tanks and armoured reconnaissance cars.

Last night, German bombers and fighter-bombers struck effectively at the enemy communications. Formations of an anti-aircraft corps joining in the ground fighting inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, and brought down 190 American aircraft ,15 of which were cargo gliders loaded with artillery ammunition, within the last 10 days.

In the other parts of the Western Front, there was only minor fighting.

London, Antwerp, and Liége are subjected to an incessant long-range bombardment.

Italy:

In central Italy, there were only encounters of little importance.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, in the Szekesfehervar and Felsögalla sectors, our troops repulsed numerous Bolshevik attacks. The enemy was seriously mauled by surprise tank thrusts and concentrated artillery fire striking at his reserves. He suffered heavy losses. Nineteen out of a force of 25 attacking enemy tanks were destroyed during the fighting for one locality.

In the Budapest sector, German and Hungarian formations repulsed grim Bolshevik tank and infantry attacks. North of the Eipel, the Soviets increased their pressure northward. At Szeczery and on the upper reaches of the Sajo, repeated enemy attacks remained unsuccessful.

In Courland, yesterday, the focal points of the grim defensive fighting lay north of Dobeln. Our troops, in exemplary steadfastness, frustrated all attacks. Sometimes the enemy troop concentrations were smashed by our artillery and trench mortar fire before they could attack.

GERMAN

Silence on American Protest: Without further details, Transocean announces: « The protest note concerning the treatment of American prisoners of war, which was sent to the Foreign Office, according to the press, has not been received. For this reason, the Wilhelmstrasse spokesman refused to comment on the subject ».

Göring Breaks Silence: For the first time since October, the long-silent Göring has again come upon the scene. Tonight, he issued a New Year's message to the German people, from which extracts are quoted by both Transocean and DNB:

« In attack or defence, we shall fight as Germans. Our glorious armed forces have warded off the general attack of our enemies at the frontiers of the Reich. Today, at the turn of the year, our forces on the Western Front again take the offensive...

« Under the leadership of Adolf Hitler, victory will be ours ».

Western Front: The correspondent Sertorius continues to stress the weight of Allied counter-attacks against the German offensive wedge. He raises the question as to whether the Allies dare withdraw troops from other sectors « lest the German Command start a second offensive some distance from the present battle. »

Eastern Front: Von Olberg reports that in the fight for Budapest, the « Soviets are trying to bring the operation to a conclusion as soon as possible, » but have so far been thwarted by « stubborn German-Hungarian resistance. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

German Communiqué Mentions Italians: Radio Fante notes with pleasure that the German war communiqués confirm the presence of Republican troops on the Italian Front.

The commentator says the day will come « when our own war communiqué will be issued... »

Racial Problems: The Fascist Radio condemns Bonomi for having abolished racial laws in 'invaded' Italy. It argues that the « colonial prestige of the white races » largely depends on the line of demarcation drawn between the white and colored races and Jews.

Bonomi's action it is said, « is not only anti-Fascist but brands him as openly siding with those who ... wish to

Last night, German bombers and fighter-bombers struck effectively at the enemy communications. Formations of an anti-aircraft corps joining in the ground fighting inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, and brought down 190 American aircraft ,15 of which were cargo gliders loaded with artillery ammunition, within the last 10 days.

In the other parts of the Western Front, there was only minor fighting.

London, Antwerp, and Liége are subjected to an incessant long-range bombardment.

Italy:

In central Italy, there were only encounters of little importance.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, in the Szekesfehervar and Felsögalla sectors, our troops repulsed numerous Bolshevik attacks. The enemy was seriously mauled by surprise tank thrusts and concentrated artillery fire striking at his reserves. He suffered heavy losses. Nineteen out of a force of 25 attacking enemy tanks were destroyed during the fighting for one locality.

In the Budapest sector, German and Hungarian formations repulsed grim Bolshevik tank and infantry attacks. North of the Eipel, the Soviets increased their pressure northward. At Szeczeny and on the upper reaches of the Sajo, repeated enemy attacks remained unsuccessful.

In Courland, yesterday, the focal points of the grim defensive fighting lay north of Doblen. Our troops, in exemplary steadfastness, frustrated all attacks. Sometimes the enemy troop concentrations were smashed by our artillery and trench mortar fire before they could attack.

Air:

Yesterday, Anglo-American bombers and fighters again continued their terror attacks on the civil population of southern and western Germany, particularly in the Rhine-Main region.

Serious damage was caused to buildings, particularly in Bingen, as well as in localities of the Rhenish-Westphalian area, during a British night attack.

During yesterday's attacks, the Anglo-Americans lost 47 planes, 24 of them four-engined bombers, by the action of fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force.

Silence on American Protest: Without further details, Transocean announces: « The protest note concerning the treatment of American prisoners of war, which was sent to the Foreign Office, according to the press, has not been received. For this reason, the Wilhelmstrasse spokesman refused to comment on the subject ».

Göring Breaks Silence: For the first time since October, the long-silent Göring has again come upon the scene. Tonight, he issued a New Year's message to the German people, from which extracts are quoted by both Transocean and DNB:

« In attack or defence, we shall fight as Germans. Our glorious armed forces have warded off the general attack of our enemies at the frontiers of the Reich. Today, at the turn of the year, our forces on the Western Front again take the offensive...

« Under the leadership of Adolf Hitler, victory will be ours ».

Western Front: The correspondent Sertorius continues to stress the weight of Allied counter-attacks against the German offensive wedge. He raises the question as to whether the Allies dare withdraw troops from other sectors « lest the German Command start a second offensive some distance from the present battle. »

Eastern Front: Von Olberg reports that in the fight for Budapest, the « Soviets are trying to bring the operation to a conclusion as soon as possible, » but have so far been thwarted by « stubborn German-Hungarian resistance. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

German Communiqué Mentions Italians: Radio Fante notes with pleasure that the German war communiqués confirm the presence of Republican troops on the Italian Front.

The commentator says the day will come « when our own war communiqué will be issued... »

Racial Problems: The Fascist Radio condemns Bonomi for having abolished racial laws in 'invaded' Italy. It argues that the « colonial prestige of the white races » largely depends on the line of demarcation drawn between the white and colored races and Jews.

Bonomi's action it is said, « is not only anti-Fascist but brands him as openly siding with those who ... wish to destroy Italy and infect all her future generations with the tainted blood of all the half-caste races of the world... »

Allies Refuse Recognition To 'Outlaws': The Fascist Radio reports that at a cabinet-meeting in Rome, Bonomi announced that the Allied High Command had refused political recognition to the 'outlaws' of northern Italy, adding that there was only an agreement along military lines concerning these « terrorist groups » behind the front line.

The commentator asserts that the announcement has caused misgivings in political quarters in 'invaded' Italy, condemning double-dealing British policy.

ATTACKS AGAINST 5TH ARMY GAIN MOMENTUM

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 28 — German forces yesterday continued their determined attack against American positions in the narrow Serchio River Valley north of Lucca, and, as the enemy counter-thrust gained momentum, American troops evacuated the town of Barga, on the eastern end of the shallow but six-mile-wide enemy penetration, it was announced here today.

Details of the enemy assault against the left flank of the 5th Army's long mountain battle line were still meager, but official reports indicated that the Germans were employing both medium and light artillery to support their thrust into the Serchio River gap in the coastal Apennines, and

GERMAN SALIENT HIT AT THREE POINTS; 3RD ARMY ATTACKS ON SOUTHERN FLANK

LONDON, December 28 — Powerful American counter-thrusts, which sent crack German panzer troops reeling back at three vital points, appeared tonight to have stopped the German forces which had driven 60 miles across Luxembourg and Belgium in less than two weeks in an all-out attempt to break through to Liége and Antwerp.

The greatest of these counter-drives occurred on the Germans' southern flank, where a massed 3rd Army force went on the offensive to relieve the 1st Army. Attacking on a 35-mile front between Echternach and Bastogne, the 3rd Army force moved ahead in advances of up to 16 miles during the past six days.

News of the 3rd Army's offensive came with dramatic suddeness late tonight in an announcement from SHAEF, after the six-day cloak of silence imposed on the advance by headquarters was lifted.

Elements of the attacking army were said to have relieved the Bastogne garrison, which, as much as any single factor, upset Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's timetable by clinging tenaciously to the seven highway road hub and rail center.

7 Villages Taken

While the official announcement failed to disclose further details of the offensive, a late Reuter dispatch from a forward correspondent said that seven villages have been taken, and that advances of up to four miles have been registered in the past 24 hours. Twelve hundred German prisoners were captured in the same period, the dispatch said.

On the northern flank, severe fighting was reported north of La Roche, where a second American force is on the offensive. A BBC dispatch reported the capture of Lamormenil, 18 miles north of Bastogne, but no further news of the attack was available at a late hour tonight.

This double-pronged American wedge into the 1,500-square-mile German salient — if it should merge — would mean encirclement of all German forces west of the position, and annihilation or capture of a substantial portion of the 20 Nazi divisions which have been thrown into the battle.

The two major German supply routes to forces on the west run through this narrowing corridor.

At the western tip of the Nazi salient, the third American attack was thrown against panzer forces which had advanced to the Celles-Rochefort area.

A SHAEF announcement revealed encirclement of a large enemy force in the area, and an American advance which pushed back the Germans three miles.

A late Reuter dispatch said that the encircled Nazi forces had surrendered under a heavy American artillery bombardment, and that large numbers of prisoners and armored equipment had been captured. SHAEF estimated the prisoners already taken at 1,000.

The withdrawal was described as «slight,» and as involving only «leading elements.»

An air force announcement declared that fighter-bombers of the 22nd Tactical Air Command had concentrated «much of their strength» against the German drive, which it described as «aimed toward Lucca.» Enemy gun positions and strongpoints were attacked by the close-support aircraft with «good results,» the statement said.

On the 8th Army front, Allied patrols reported contact with strong enemy positions on the southern outskirts of Alfonsine, focal point of German resistance on the Ravenna-Ferrara road, as the Canadians continued to clear enemy forces from the east bank of the Senio River.

On the central sector of the 5th Army front, strong enemy patrols attacked Allied positions south and southwest of Bologna. The encounters, in which the enemy patrols were repulsed with casualties, were reported to have occurred in the sector south of Monte Sole, some 12 miles southwest of Bologna and midway between the Reno and the Setta River Valleys, and southeast of the town of Pianora, on the main Florence-Bologna road seven miles south of the important Po Valley city.

There was little change of position along the remainder of the Allied front. (PRO)

Nazi columns desperately attempting to exploit their favorable positions before the full power of the American counter-blows could take effect. German patrols were reported constantly to be probing American positions on both flanks of the Nazi salient, seeking weak points for broadening of the wedge, while additional German armor was pouring into the Nazi positions.

With none of his major objectives attained, Von Rundstedt has paid heavily for his gains, and a minimum of 400 Nazi tanks already are said to have been destroyed or captured.

One of the most telling weapons in the 1st Army's arsenal has been American and British air power. Ideal flying weather has prevailed for several days, and thousands of Allied sorties have been flown daily against German supply points and transportation lines. Yesterday alone, more than 1,500 sorties were flown by the Tactical Air Forces.

A total of 129 armored vehicles were knocked out, along with 651 enemy transport vehicles. Fifty-eight Nazi planes were brought down, bringing Nazi losses to well over 500 planes since the start of the offensive.

Today, the weather turned against Allied fliers, and heavy, leaden clouds were reported over the front-line areas. Nevertheless, 1,200 Liberators and Flying Fortresses, with fighter escort, hit key supply centers behind the German front, while 500 RAF heavies went for other key targets. No Luftwaffe opposition was reported by the American fliers, for the first time in six days.

Earlier in the day, SHAEF announced the capture of Eschdorf, 12 miles southeast of Bastogne, and the establishment of three bridgeheads over the Sure River, a tributary of the Moselle, in the Diekirch area.

Beaufort, northwest of Echternach, has been encircled, and Berdorf, a few miles to the east, has been captured.

Late press reports, unconfirmed by SHAEF, said that Echternach is again in Allied hands. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

RED ARMY PUSHES CLOSER TO AUSTRIA

MOSCOW, December 28 — While one Red Army captured a suburb only one mile from the Royal Palace in Budapest, other Russian troops pushed on today through forest-covered mountains of south-central Czechoslovakia, in the northernmost Soviet action to clear a path in the general direction toward Bratislava Gap, gateway to Vienna.

The Red Army troops reached the east bank of the Hron River, chased the Germans from the entire area between the Hron and the Ipoly Rivers' intersection, and strengthened the position of other Soviet forces which yesterday captured Esztergrom on the Danube River, northwest of Budapest.

The Hron River is a northern tributary of the Danube, and virtually parallels the Ipoly, which is about six miles to the east. Both streams are about 20 miles northwest of Budapest, where they intersect the Danubian plain over which Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's troops are advancing toward Bratislava and Vienna.

In battles north and northwest of Budapest and in the south-central Czechoslovak sector, Soviet troops captured more than 2,200 German and Hungarian troops.

The squeeze on Budapest by the two Soviet spearheads continued successfully today, tonight's communique reporting that Red Army forces captured 12 more suburbs of the capital on the east bank of the Danube.

In the fight for the annihilation of encircled enemy units in the hilly and wooded terrain of the Danube Bend north of Budapest, Red Army troops occupied one locality and captured 800 Germans and Hungarians, including one general and eight colonels.

Southwest of Budapest, other Red Army units overran several places, including the town and railway station of [illegible] below a Szak stronghold, which had been captured Superfortress base on Saipan December 26, for the second time in three days, inflicting minor damage. Other enemy bombers struck Tinian.

In their fourth strike on the Marianas bases, the enemy sent over two formations of five and two planes, respectively.

Associated Press reported that these latest attacks were made from Japanese bases on Iwo Jima, in the Volcanos, 750 miles north of Saipan, despite the heavy bombardment of that island this month by American warships, and the almost daily attacks by U.S. planes, including Superfortresses. But the press service contrasted the size of the enemy attacks with American Superfort assaults on Tokyo, and commented that the weakness of the Japanese attacks indicated the difficulty of staging them from Iwo Jima.

Subs Sunk 3,500,000 Tons

Commenting on the recent sinking by U. S. submarines, planes and fleet units of 30 Japanese ships, including a large aircraft carrier, four destroyers, and a converted light cruiser, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal said yesterday at a press conference that American submarines have sunk more than 3,500,000 tons of Japanese shipping since 7 December 1941.

Forrestal said he regretted that the full story of submarine activities could not be told because of the need for keeping information from the enemy.

Admiral Ernest King, Chief of Naval Operations, also present at the conference, said that the most significant aspect of America's three years of war, was its global nature. He said that the Navy's record during the last three years speaks for itself, and will continue to speak for itself in the months ahead.

Recalling the tremendous amphibious operations that have taken place in all parts of the world, Admiral King remarked that this war might well be called the « war of amphibious operations. »

Rear Admiral D. C. Ramsey, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, also told the reporters at the press conference that the versatile power of the Navy's air arm is gradually being improved to meet tighter Japanese resistance.

He revealed that improved models of Japanese aircraft are being encountered in the Philippines, but that the United States is making every effort to rush large-scale production on several types of aircraft « which now show every promise of maintaining the technical lead which we have held over the enemy in the Pacific since the beginning of the war. »

ALLIES THREATEN BURMA PORT OF AKYAB

KANDY, CEYLON, December 28 — Allied troops, pushing up the west coast of Burma at the rate of two miles a day for the last 14 days, have reached a point four miles from the key Japanese port of Akyab, Admiral Louis Mountbatten reported today.

Akyab, situated on an island four miles off-shore, came under Allied guns after troops of the 25th Indian Division reached Foul Point, on the tip of the Mayo Peninsula.

A second Allied force, advancing southward toward the port, was reported fighting in a sector 22 miles southeast of liberated Buthidaung.

British troops driving toward Mandalay were tonight within 95 miles of the big supply base, with units in the vicinity of Kanbalu on the main north-south Burma railroad. A parallel force pushing down the Irrawaddy River to the east also has made satisfactory progress.

Dispatches from the Budapest fighting area reported today that flames are sweeping the beleaguered city. Russian assault troops are said to be pressing into the western section of it, and it was reported that artillery duels are going on in some sections of the city. No word of such fighting has been announced by the Russians. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

144 JAP PLANES DESTROYED IN THREE DAYS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 28 — American flyers today knocked out 20 more Japanese planes in action directed against Clark Field, outside Manila, bringing the past three days' total to 144 enemy aircraft wrecked or damaged, a communiqué from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced tonight.

Ground forces continued mopping up on Leyte and counted another 912 Japanese dead.

American heavy bombers struck enemy airdromes on Negros Island, and mediums destroyed enemy warehouses at Zamboanga on Mindanao.

There was no enemy ground or air action on Mindoro Island. A Pacific Fleet communiqué issued at Pearl Harbor reported that 28 Japanese bombers attacked the American

ALLIES THREATEN BURMA PORT OF AKYAB

KANDY, CEYLON, December 28 — Allied troops, pushing up the west coast of Burma at the rate of two miles a day for the last 14 days, have reached a point four miles from the key Japanese port of Akyab, Admiral Louis Mountbatten reported today.

Fourteenth Army units moving inland from the Chindwin River toward the railhead of Ye-U, 70 miles north of Mandalay, are now 42 miles up the road from the river, it was officially disclosed. The announcement followed several days of silence which cloaked the advance of the Allied troops.

In the past 10 weeks Allied troops have liberated 9,000 square miles in Burma, it was disclosed. British, Chinese, and American forces have all been active in the campaign, and an estimated 4,000 enemy troops have been killed.

In Chungking, Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of U.S. forces in China, following a three-week tour of the Yunnan border region, reported that the Chinese land route to India is almost cleared.

General Wedemeyer reported finding Chinese forces well-trained and equipped, and said that, while Japan has strong units dispersed all the way from Changsha to Indo-China, he did not think the enemy could match Allied air, sea, and ground power.

«China must fight her war,» he declared. «This is China's war. The assistance we give her is merely in keeping with the American policy of friendship and the ideals of democracy. It would be wrong for China to sit back and expect us to do the fighting. We do all we can to help China, but China has got to help herself.»

T. A. F. BLASTS GERMANS' SERCHIO DRIVE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 28 — Medium and fighter-bombers of the TAF, in the third day of their all-out assault on enemy communications and battle-area concentrations, today concentrated on targets in the area of the German drive in the Serchio River Valley, it was announced here this afternoon.

American fighter-bombers, including Thunderbolts and RAF and South African Spitfires, Kittyhawks, and Mustangs, attacked enemy concentrations in the villages of Barga, Gallicano, and Castelnuovo, in the Serchio River Valley north of Lucca. Fires and explosions were caused in enemy-occupied buildings, and roads in the area were cratered, the report said.

The Allied bombardment of Gallicano, 15 miles due north of Lucca and on the west bank of the Serchio River, was the first indication that the American 5th Army forces had evacuated this town.

Besides the fighter-bomber support for the American Negro troops bearing the brunt of the German push down the Serchio River Valley, Mitchell medium-bombers struck heavily at enemy troop concentrations near Aulla, 10 miles northeast of Spezia and in the immediate rear of the German push.

4,000 Sorties in 3 Days

Preliminary reports indicated that the TAF's three-day assault would total well over 4,000 sorties. Besides the Serchio River Valley action other TAF planes supported 8th Army forces at the Adriatic end of the Italian front, while others sought to disrupt communication lines in the German rear.

Fortresses and Liberators of the 15th USAAF today attacked scattered oil targets in Germany and Czechoslovakia, while Liberators again bombed German communication lines into northern Italy.

Yesterday, medium, light, and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force carried out 1,506 sorties to set a five months' record in their second day of all-out attack on enemy communications, transport, supply depots, and front-line positions in northern Italy.

The total for the two days' operations was placed at 3,028 sorties, the highest number of aircraft employed in a similar period since the landings in southern France in mid-August. Medium bombers struck at six rail bridges along the Brenner and the Udine rail lines, placed heavy bomb concentrations at both ends of a tunnel in the Brenner route, and attacked two German supply depots in the Bologna area with excellent results.

Liberator and Wellington bombers of the Royal Air Force last night bombed by light of flares the tracks and bridge at Nervesa, 30 miles northwest of Venice.

Total sorties of the MAAF yesterday were listed at more than 2,800, of which 17 planes, including five heavy bombers, failed to return. (PRO)

THIRD INDIAN SOLDIER AWARDED V.C. IN ITALY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 29 — The third Victoria Cross to be bestowed on an Indian soldier in the Italian Theater, and the 18th won by Indian troops since the war started, was awarded today posthumously to Sher Bahadur Thapa of the 9th Gurkha Rifles, it was announced here.

Thapa, armed with a Bren Gun, single-handedly held up a German attack from a ridge top overlooking the Marano River, fighting until the rest of his company could

ALLIED BOMBERS HIT 11 TRANSPORT TARGETS

LONDON, December 28 — The Allied drive to strangle the German salient on the Western Front by bombing out the lines of supply went into its sixth consecutive day, despite bad weather, today. At least 11 transport targets between the Rhine and Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's push were attacked by 1,200 American heavy bombers, escorted by 700 fighters.

Railyards, bridges, and critical links in the communications network sustaining the Nazi offensive were bombed with more than 4,000 tons of bombs dropped through clouds so thick that returning crews said they could not see the ground until they neared the North Sea. Anti-aircraft fire was described as generally ineffective, although intense. Nazi fighters did not rise to defend the targets, which an American press service said that the briefing designated as in the vicinity of Neunkirchen, Kaiserslautern, Coblenz, and Bonn.

Weather Curtails Close-Support

The bad weather curtailed close air support of the ground forces along the front today.

The RAF, following the attacks of the American air armada, this afternoon struck marshalling yards near Cologne.

Before dawn, 500 planes of the Bomber Command hit railway work shops at Opladen, 20 kilometers north of Cologne on the main Cologne-Düsseldorf and Wuppertal railway. No enemy fighter opposition was encountered.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Secretary of War Henry Stimson told his press conference that in the period from December 23 through 27, "our air forces destroyed 483 German planes; destroyed or damaged 507 armored vehicles and 3,177 motor vehicles."

Correspondents at SHAEF said the Allied air onslaught against Von Rundstedt's armies has recently reached an intensity never known before over and around a battlefield. The BBC reported that the German defensive air effort has diminished, due to fighter losses averaging up to 100 a day.

A spokesman at 8th USAAF headquarters said yesterday that the 8th alone had sent nearly 6,000 planes over German supply lines in the past week. He reported that reconnaissance photographs taken Christmas Day showed the main rail line from Berlin to the battle-front had been rendered completely useless, while some of Germany's largest freight yards at Hamm, Münster, and Osnabrück were empty.

All targets hit yesterday by the 8th USAAF were on the alternate southern routes which the Germans have been forced to use.

American fighter-bombers destroyed 146 German tanks and armored vehicles, and 590 German motor transport vehicles yesterday. The U.S. planes also cut highways at 60 places, silenced 41 German gun positions, and destroyed or damaged 300 rail cars.

RAF fighter-bombers resumed precision attacks on German V-weapons in occupied Holland today, attacking storage and maintenance depots without loss.

BELGIAN MAQUIS' OFFER TO FIGHT DECLINED

BRUSSELS, December 28 — Leaders of the principal Belgian underground army groups in areas threatened by the German advance came here yesterday to make a vigorous appeal to be allowed to take part in the battle now in progress.

4,000 Sorties in 3 Days

Preliminary reports indicated that the TAF's three-day assault would total well over 4,000 sorties. Besides the Serchio River Valley action other TAF planes supported 8th Army forces at the Adriatic end of the Italian front, while others sought to disrupt communication lines in the German rear.

Fortresses and Liberators of the 15th USAAF today attacked scattered oil targets in Germany and Czechoslovakia, while Liberators again bombed German communication lines into northern Italy.

Yesterday, medium, light, and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force carried out 1,506 sorties to set a five months' record in their second day of all-out attack on enemy communications, transport, supply depots, and front-line positions in northern Italy.

The total for the two days' operations was placed at 3,028 sorties, the highest number of aircraft employed in a similar period since the landings in southern France in mid-August. Medium bombers struck at six rail bridges along the Brenner and the Udine rail lines, placed heavy bomb concentrations at both ends of a tunnel in the Brenner route, and attacked two German supply depots in the Bologna area with excellent results.

Liberator and Wellington bombers of the Royal Air Force last night bombed by light of flares the tracks and bridge at Nervesa, 30 miles northwest of Venice.

Total sorties of the MAAF yesterday were listed at more than 2,300, of which 17 planes, including five heavy bombers, failed to return. (PRO)

THIRD INDIAN SOLDIER AWARDED V.C. IN ITALY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 29 — The third Victoria Cross to be bestowed on an Indian soldier in the Italian Theater, and the 13th won by Indian troops since the war started, was awarded today posthumously to Sher Bahadur Thapa of the 9th Gurkha Rifles, it was announced here.

Thapa, armed with a Bren Gun, single-handedly held up a German attack from a ridge top overlooking the Matano River, fighting until the rest of his company could withdraw to safety. Still undaunted, the Indian soldier held off the enemy until he could rescue two of his wounded comrades. He succeeded in saving one, but the enemy had closed in on him as he began to carry away the second of the two wounded men, and Thapa fell under a hail of German bullets. (PRO)

POSTHUMOUS D. F. C. AWARDED TO U. S. NURSE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 28 — The Distinguished Flying Cross has been awarded posthumously to American Lieut. Aleda Lutz, killed when a troop-carrier aircraft in which she was riding, along with 15 wounded, crash-landed in the south of France, it was announced here today.

This is the first award of the DFC to a flight nurse, it was said.

Lieutenant Lutz was on her 19th mission on November 1, when the crash occurred, and had already received the Air Medal with four oak leaf clusters, and the European and African Theater ribbon with five stars for the Sicilian, south Italy, central Italy, and south of France campaigns.

The citation declared her «selfless devotion to duty and outstanding proficiency have reflected the highest credit upon herself and the armed forces». (PRO)

The RAF, following the attacks of the American air armada, this afternoon struck marshalling yards near Cologne.

Before dawn, 500 planes of the Bomber Command hit railway work-shops at Opladen, 20 kilometers north of Cologne on the main Cologne-Düsseldorf and Wuppertal railway. No enemy fighter opposition was encountered.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Secretary of War Henry Sumson told his press conference that in the period from December 23 through 27, «our air forces destroyed 483 German planes; destroyed or damaged 507 armored vehicles and 3,177 motor vehicles.»

Correspondents at SHAEF said the Allied air onslaught against Von Rundstedt's armies has recently reached an intensity never known before over and around a battlefield. The BBC reported that the German defensive air effort has diminished, due to fighter losses averaging up to 100 a day.

A spokesman at 8th USAAF headquarters said yesterday that the 8th alone had sent nearly 6,000 planes over German supply lines in the past week. He reported that reconnaissance photographs taken Christmas Day showed the main rail line from Berlin to the battle-front had been rendered completely useless, while some of Germany's largest freight yards at Hamm, Münster, and Osnabrück were empty.

All targets hit yesterday by the 8th USAAF were on the alternate southern routes which the Germans have been forced to use.

American fighter-bombers destroyed 146 German tanks and armored vehicles, and 580 German motor transport vehicles yesterday. The U.S. planes also cut highways at 60 places, silenced 41 German gun positions, and destroyed or damaged 300 rail cars.

RAF fighter-bombers resumed precision attacks on German V-weapons in occupied Holland today, attacking storage and maintenance depots without loss. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

BELGIAN MAQUIS' OFFER TO FIGHT DECLINED

BRUSSELS, December 28 — Leaders of the principal Belgian underground army groups in areas threatened by the German advance came here yesterday to make a vigorous appeal to be allowed to take part in the battle now in progress.

The offer was rejected by the Government, which stated in a four-point answer that resistance forces could not be rearmed, that men of military age should present themselves at recruiting centers for the reorganized Belgian Army, that other men should offer their services to the police and gendarmerie and, finally, that men not in either of these categories should remain demobilized and await the turn of events.

Unconfirmed claims by the resistance groups stated that in various areas of the war zone the Allied authorities favor the use of resistance forces behind the front line for the maintenance of security and order. (Reuter)

TITO FORCES LIBERATE KORENICA IN CROATIA

LONDON, December 28 — Korenica, an important road junction in Croatia, has been liberated by the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation, after several days of bitter fighting, Marshal Tito's communique announced today.

Korenica is 75 miles southwest of Zagreb and 40 miles from the Adriatic coast. The town was an important link in the enemy's supply route to other German-occupied territory in the north.

The communique said that the Germans suffered «big losses» in the fight for Korenica, and that the enemy forces are moving toward Otocac, another important road junction 25 miles northwest of Korenica.

The pressure by Yugoslav troops to sever rail lines being used by the Germans in their retreat to northern Yugoslavia, continued successfully on an intensified scale. Two German strong-points were destroyed by the Yugoslav troops on the Zagreb-Karlovac rail line. The railway station at Bihac, 20 miles north of Korenica, was wiped out, and two miles of the railroad were destroyed. (OWI)

FREE HUNGARIAN ARMY TO BE ORGANIZED

ROME, December 28 — The Free Hungarian Radio in a broadcast tonight said the new Hungarian Government is reorganizing the army under the leadership of Col. Gen. Janos Woerces, the Minister of War and Chief of Staff, and urged the Hungarian people to supply the new force with «whatever their needs may be.»

The new state, the broadcast said, is based on a national armed force, and the new armed force «is lining up... against the German hordes occupying the country and trampling on our liberty.»

«The new Hungarian Army is fighting to restore Hungary's prestige before the freedom-loving nations,» the broadcast said. (PWB)

VON KLUGE SUICIDE ANNOUNCED BY NAZIS

LONDON, December 28 — The names of two more German officers—Field Marshal Günther von Kluge and General Ivan Vindy—have been added to the list of enemy military leaders killed on the Eastern and Western Fronts or suicide.

Marshal von Kluge, who was replaced by Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt as commander-in-chief of German forces of the Western Front, was relieved from that post after the Nazi defeat in Normandy and subsequently committed suicide, the German High Command announced today in an Order of the Day.

General Vindy, commander of Hungarian forces facing the Russians on the Eastern Front, was killed in action recently.

The suicide of another high officer of the German Command was reported tonight by Radio Moscow. The broadcast said that Lt. Gen. Eric von Rittenbach committed suicide, leaving a letter in which he asserted that Germany's defeat was impending. The broadcast added that the German High Command is trying to keep Von Rittenbach's

BRITISH CIVILIAN WAR DEATHS TOTAL 60,000

LONDON, December 28 — A BBC commentator told this morning of the losses suffered by British civilians under fire. Since the start of the war, nearly 60,000 have been killed and 80,000 seriously wounded. One house in every three has been damaged, and 200,000 damaged beyond repair, he added.

Nevertheless, the Germans never succeeded in halting the expansion of British war industry. The German air raids were not heavy enough to cause the permanent dislocation of industry, thanks to effective ground and air defense, but nothing could diminish the suffering involved. Hundreds of thousands of families were split up for evacuation. Factory workers remained in their shell-blasted towns, their wives and children moving out to the country where the local inhabitants shared their homes with them. (BBC)

COUNTERFEITING GANG ROUNDED UP

ROME, December 28 — The third roundup of counterfeiters this month in the Rome area has resulted in four arrests, the seizure of 785,000 counterfeit lire and about 750,000 genuine lire, and confiscation of a counterfeiting plant, it was announced today by Lieut. Col. Charles Frances, AMG public safety officer for the Lazio-Umbria region.

Following the roundup by Allied Military Police, who worked in cooperation with the Questura and Municipal Guards at Siena, the police reported that about seven million counterfeit lire had been printed on the photoengraving apparatus uncovered by them.

The breaking up of the counterfeit gang began several days ago in Siena, where bank cashiers had been warned to scrutinize carefully all Allied Military currency of 1,000 and 500 lire denomination.

In one case, 25 counterfeit 1,000-lire notes were deposited by a Siena tradesman. Major A. C. Saunders, AMG public safety officer in the Florence area, went to Siena to investigate.

Major Saunders found that a young man had entered the Siena tradesman's shop one morning and ordered 25,000 lire-worth of goods, promising to return in the late afternoon, when he would pay for the purchase and take the goods with him. He returned at 1700 hours, when the light was bad, and paid for the goods with the 25 counterfeit notes.

A warning posted with all Siena tradesmen finally trapped the young man December 29, when he ordered some coats for 5,000 lire, promising to return in the late afternoon to pay for the goods. When the young man returned, he found the Siena Municipal Guards awaiting him.

The prisoner identified himself as Andrea Cutroni, of Rome, and, when searched, 470,000 lire were found in his possession, 350,000 lire in counterfeit 1,000-lire notes.

Cutroni insisted that he was hired by a group of persons in Rome to pass the counterfeit notes. He was taken to Rome and, after a hurried conference, a group of Allied police in charge of Major Percy Coxhead began a search for the gang. They visited two houses without success, but in the third discovered 268,000 lire in false 1,000-lire notes and about 750,000 lire in genuine notes. The latter bundle, Allied police said, was the proceeds of exchanging the bad money for genuine notes. Also found were glass and cardboard used in cutting the counterfeit notes.

A visit to a fourth house yielded the front and back plates of the counterfeit 1,000 and 500-lire notes, several photographic prints and engravings, and an additional 142,000 lire in false money. The searches continued all that night, until four persons had been arrested, including the man who had photographed the notes. His apparatus also were confiscated.

Cutroni's chauffeur, who had also been arrested in Siena, was released two days ago after investigation disclosed that he was not involved. (UNN)

LANE GANG RECAPTURED AFTER JAILBREAK

ROME, December 28 — Seven American soldiers and one Canadian, who overpowered their guards and broke out of an Allied military prison early last Sunday, were recaptured yesterday, the Rome Area Allied Command announced today.

One of those retaken was Robert Lane, alleged leader of a gang which terrorized the Rome and Naples areas several weeks ago. He and the Canadian soldier were trapped at noon yesterday in an apartment, near Piazza S. Maria Maggiore.

Two other soldiers were apprehended Christmas Eve, shortly after the break, and the other was taken an hour later.

Lt. Col. William Huntzicker, American Provost Marshal for RAAC, said the three prisoners still at large were expected to be rounded up in the next few days. (RAAC)

CHURCHILL AND EDEN RETURN TO LONDON: WILL ASK GREEK KING TO ACCEPT REGENCY

ATHENS, December 28 — Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden left here today for London to recommend to King George II of Greece that he accept the plan for immediate establishment of a regency in Greece, evolved at the two-day conference of leaders of all Greek parties.

Rex Leeper, British Ambassador to Greece, announced here this afternoon that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden will make the recommendation to the Greek King on behalf of the British Government. Leeper said that the British Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary were asked to undertake this mission by Archbishop Damaskinos, Metropolitan of Athens, who presided at the two-day meeting, suggested by Mr. Churchill.

Archbishop Damaskinos called on Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden last night after the party-leaders conference was adjourned, pending decision on the EAM and ELAS terms for conciliation. The Archbishop reported to the British Government leaders the proceedings of the two-day sessions, and told of the «overwhelming desire of those present [at the conference] for the immediate establishment of a regency as an essential prelude to the solution of many problems before the conference,» the Embassy announcement said.

Soon after Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden departed for England, Archbishop Damaskinos asked all delegates who attended yesterday's session of the conference to submit in writing their views on the terms presented by EAM (National Liberation Front) and its militia, the ELAS.

Rightist Delegates Walk Out

A Reuter dispatch said that the leftists' proposals were not discussed at the meeting yesterday, because several delegates representing rightist parties walked out of the conference room as a protest against these terms before the session was completed. Foremost among the protesting delegates were representatives of the Popular [Royalist] Party, and General Nicholas Plastiras, Premier of Greece in 1922, who said the EAM conditions for settlement were unacceptable.

CHURCHILL AND EDEN RETURN TO LONDON: WILL ASK GREEK KING TO ACCEPT REGENCY

ATHENS, December 28 — Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden left here today for London to recommend to King George II of Greece that he accept the plan for immediate establishment of a regency in Greece, evolved at the two-day conference of leaders of all Greek parties.

Rex Leeper, British Ambassador to Greece, announced here this afternoon that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden will make the recommendation to the Greek King on behalf of the British Government. Leeper said that the British Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary were asked to undertake this mission by Archbishop Damaskinos, Metropolitan of Athens, who presided at the two-day meeting, suggested by Mr. Churchill.

Archbishop Damaskinos called on Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden last night after the party-leaders conference was adjourned, pending decision on the EAM and ELAS terms for conciliation. The Archbishop reported to the British Government leaders the proceedings of the two-day sessions, and told of the «overwhelming desire of those present [at the conference] for the immediate establishment of a regency as an essential prelude to the solution of many problems before the conference,» the Embassy announcement said.

Soon after Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden departed for England, Archbishop Damaskinos asked all delegates who attended yesterday's session of the conference to submit in writing their views on the terms presented by EAM (National Liberation Front) and its militia, the ELAS.

Rightist Delegates Walk Out

A Reuter dispatch said that the leftists' proposals were not discussed at the meeting yesterday, because several delegates representing rightist parties walked out of the conference room as a protest against these terms before the session was completed. Foremost among the protesting delegates were representatives of the Popular [Royalist] Party, and General Nicholas Plastiras, Premier of Greece in 1922, who said the EAM conditions for settlement were unacceptable.

A communique issued this morning by Archbishop Damaskinos said that before EAM presented its terms, Prime Minister Georges Papandreou repeated his statement to the conference that the Greek Government places its resignation at the disposal of the conference to facilitate a solution that would lead to pacification and would serve the true interests of the nation.

Among the terms presented by EAM is the formation of a new cabinet, in which EAM is to receive representation.

A Reuter dispatch said that there were reports here today that Premier Papandreou had telegraphed his resignation from the Government to the Greek King, and had suggested appointment of a regency of three members. Earlier reports suggested that Themistocles Sofoulis, liberal leader, would be asked to form a new government. There were no official confirmations of any of these reports.

The political deliberations, however, appeared to have had no immediate effect on the military phases of the crisis, as fighting continued unabated today and last night. All through the night, heavy gunfire was heard, and there were explosions in the outskirts of the city. This morning, gunfire was centered around buildings in the center of the city, and continuous machine gun clatter was heard after 0700 hours.

A BBC dispatch said that three more city districts were cleared or are being cleared of guerrilla forces, and that another large group of prisoners was taken by British troops. There was no indication as to whether this action included the clearing of a small area northwest of the Acropolis.

Another repercussion of the strife in Greece was the danger reported today of the possibility of a typhus epidemic. Allied medical officers said that unless conditions improve quickly, there is a strong likelihood of an outbreak. One officer described the disease situation as «sitting on a powder keg with the lighted fuse.»

There has been a light incidence of typhus in central Athens, and all precautions are being taken by the Medical Commission attached to Military Liaison (American and British Relief Organization in Greece) to prevent its spread into epidemic proportions.

Hospital personnel are being innoculated, and negotiations are under way with ELAS for the providing of ELAS hospitals with vaccine. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

ALLIES TO CONFER ON GREEK SITUATION

ATHENS, December 28 — Prime Minister Churchill told a press conference here last night that «an international trust might be necessary to rule» Greece, if the Greeks did not settle their difficulties.

Mr. Churchill said that the Greek question would be discussed soon at a meeting of President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, and himself.

Although he was hopeful that the conferences Tuesday and yesterday of leaders of all Greek parties would bring a solution, Mr. Churchill declared that the British «had enough troops on the spot and on the way to gain complete mastery over Athens,» and added that «it seems the other side would see this and stop fighting.»

He said that the British soldiers would not leave until they received «guarantees, in which we can believe, that a fair and decent government would be set up which would not pay off the old scores on either side.» He added that if the British had not intervened, there would have been a «serious massacre in Athens.»

Mr. Churchill said that there was no question of the King's returning to Greece until after a free plebiscite.

«We have driven away the rebels from the immediate center of Athens. We are absolutely determined that the whole of the built-up area must be cleared. We shall use whatever forces are necessary. Having gone into business, we have contracted many responsibilities. Thousands of Greeks who have shown us friendship would be liable to punishment by conquerors,» Mr. Churchill added.

After recalling that both President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin had approved the British plan to drive the Germans from Greece and bring in food, and that the military aspect of the question was settled at the Caserta Conference to which the British were invited by the all-party Greek Government, the Prime Minister said, «of course we feel ourselves to have been absolutely right.

Fear of a Massacre

«It is certainly clear to me that there would have been a massacre in this city if we had not intervened with our troops — few though they were then. How big the massacre would have been, what form it would have taken, what kind of government would have emerged from it, what personalities, what ideologies, I cannot tell. I have got my view, but everybody can form his own. Certainly, in my opinion, there would have been a very serious massacre.

«There is always a moment of great weakness when German tyranny is broken, when public men are few and far between, and when you have to set up something which enables the light of a country to burn again so that ordinary [illegible] can go about their business and walk the frontier of Germany, and to see if we could get started on some sensible settlement which could easily be reached in any country where people did not feel politics so intensely that they may ruin themselves thereby. We have done our best to bring them together in order to abridge fighting and misery.»

Asked whether there was any question of amnesty for ELAS leaders, the Prime Minister replied: «Obviously, if there is cessation of fighting there ought not be proscription either way.»

Mr. Churchill asserted that if the fighting continues, «peace and order» will be restored «in Attica by our troops.»

When asked what he considered to be at the bottom of the present crisis, Mr. Churchill said: «I have a very clear idea. But I don't want to use language which might give offense to any section in Greece at the moment. I am hoping that they will find some way of solving their difficulties. There is a moment of great danger in every country when it has been under German oppression and passes from that oppression into taking over its own affairs. There is no means of holding a fair and free elections of any kind.»

An ELAS sniper reportedly shot at Prime Minister Churchill outside the British Embassy yesterday. The bullet struck a girl about 300 yards away, according to press dispatches.

It was officially stated that Mr. Churchill had a long conversation in the afternoon with Lincoln MacVeagh, American Ambassador to Greece, and informed him fully of the present discussions here. (OWI - Reuter)

DE GAULLE APPEALS FOR NATIONAL UNITY

PARIS, December 28 — General Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Provisional Government, intervened in yesterday's home policy debate in the Consultative Assembly with an impassioned appeal for national unity.

Defending 84-year-old Jules Jeanneny against personal attacks by a Socialist delegate, De Gaulle said forcibly:

«One thing counts today — goodwill to preserve the country, and deeds. I ask you to ignore everything except the defense of the country».

Adrien Tixier, Minister of Interior, told the Assembly that the departmental committees of liberation are to be maintained, and that there will be a progressive return to Republican legality.

He said that 31,000 municipal councils have been reestablished, and that all the prefects appointed under the Vichy régime had already been suspended or dismissed. There had been 5,000 decisions to discharge, arrest, or suspend police officers.

Tixier pointed out the difficulty of effecting a purge among lower grade officials, and the need to temper severity with fairness. He also warned the Assembly of the disorganization entailed, since loyalty was not always synonymous with efficiency, and added, that at present, half of the higher grade posts were satisfactorily filled.

He said that much has been done to free innocent persons and to turn suspects over to the courts, but 32,000 persons were still interned by administrative decision, 5,000 of whom have not yet had their cases examined.

Incidents attributed to the Fifth Column, the Minister said, had been on the increase in the past month. In fact, he added, about half of them were directed against collaborators or black marketeers, but it was undeniable that Fifth Column activity had recurred. Police, however, made thousands of arrests every month, he said. Recently the Germans had dropped spies and saboteurs by parachute here and there though not in the Paris region, Tixier concluded.

In its vote of confidence for the Provisional Government yesterday, the Assembly urged concentration of all trust might be necessary to rule Greece, if the Greeks did not settle their difficulties.

Mr. Churchill said that the Greek question would be discussed soon at a meeting of President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, and himself.

Although he was hopeful that the conferences Tuesday and yesterday of leaders of all Greek parties would bring a solution, Mr. Churchill declared that the British «had enough troops on the spot and on the way to gain complete mastery over Athens,» and added that «it seems the other side would see this and stop fighting.»

He said that the British soldiers would not leave until they received «guarantees, in which we can believe, that a fair and decent government would be set up which would not pay off the old scores on either side.» He added that if the British had not intervened, there would have been a «serious massacre in Athens.»

Mr. Churchill said that there was no question of the King's returning to Greece until after a free plebiscite.

«We have driven away the rebels from the immediate center of Athens. We are absolutely determined that the whole of the built-up area must be cleared. We shall use whatever forces are necessary. Having gone into business, we have contracted many responsibilities. Thousands of Greeks who have shown us friendship would be liable to punishment by conquerors,» Mr. Churchill added.

After recalling that both President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin had approved the British plan to drive the Germans from Greece and bring in food, and that the military aspect of the question was settled at the Caserta Conference to which the British were invited by the all-party Greek Government, the Prime Minister said, «of course we feel ourselves to have been absolutely right.

Fear of a Massacre

«It is certainly clear to me that there would have been a massacre in this city if we had not intervened with our troops — few though they were then. How big the massacre would have been, what form it would have taken, what kind of government would have emerged from it, what personalities, what ideologies, I cannot tell. I have got my view, but everybody can form his own. Certainly, in my opinion, there would have been a very serious massacre.

«There is always a moment of great weakness when German tyranny is broken, when public men are few and far between, and when you have to set up something which enables the light of a country to burn again so that ordinary men and women can go about their business and walk the street in safety. It is this that we have endeavored to bring. The tale has been telegraphed all over the world that we supported the Fascist government, endeavoring to bring back the King, endeavoring to get some advantage or lasting control or influence for ourselves out of it.

«All these stories are absolutely without the slightest foundation. We seek nothing from Greece. We look for no selfish advantages. We want no territory. We did not require bases or anything like that. As for money, we would rather give it than take it. There is nothing we want from Greece except her friendship. That is all we want. I rely upon you to give publicity to an absolutely plain statement on these matters — as to whether we were right to intervene, to prevent what we believe would have been massacre.»

Mr. Churchill concluded by expressing a hope that «some good sense will come to these tortured people so that they will see there is some purpose in working together in giving Greece a chance to regain glories which she won in repulsing the attack of Italy, and that she must take her place among the United Nations, instead of being a society without integration or formation of any kind, as she is at present, torn to pieces by passions, jealousies, and rivalries to an extent most painful to those who wish her well.»

Mr. Churchill said there were «very simple reasons which led the Foreign Secretary and me to come at a time when everything is not entirely quiet in Belgium and on the

NEW U.K. TEACHER-TRAINING PLAN

LONDON, December 28 — British ex-servicemen and women between the ages of 21 and 35 who wish to become teachers are offered free tuition and a maintenance grant while they are studying, under the emergency training scheme just announced by the British Ministry of Education.

After an intensive 12-month course, the successful candidates will be recognized as qualified, but during a probationary period of two years they will take a further course of part-time study. The grant will vary according to the student's obligations and resources. The needs of the married students will receive special consideration. (Reuter)

WAR COMMUNIQUES

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, December 28 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

In the Serchio Valley sector on the 5th Army Front, the enemy continues to press the attack launched yesterday. A further slight withdrawal has been made by our leading elements.

Small patrol skirmishes have been made elsewhere on the front.

Eighth Army troops continued to clear the east bank of the Senio River.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Strong forces of 15th USAAF escorted heavy bombers yesterday attacked an oil refinery and rail yards in Austria, a rail yard in Yugoslavia, and rail lines and bridges in northern Italy. Fighters of the Strategic Force bombed rail bridges in northeastern Italy and strafed rail targets between Vienna and Linz.

Aircraft of the Tactical Air Force, out in great strength, concentrated against enemy communications in northern Italy and targets in the battle areas. Many bridges were destroyed and rail cuts made.

On the night of December 26, light bombers and intruders attacked bridges and rail and road transport in the Po Valley.

Balkan Air Force aircraft had great success in their attacks against enemy rail and road movement in Yugoslavia, while coastal units attacked a bridge and enemy-occupied buildings in northern Italy.

Last night, heavy and medium bombers attacked a railroad bridge in northeast Italy, and flew supply missions to Yugoslavia.

Seventeen of our aircraft are missing from these operations.

MAAF flew over 2,800 sorties.

Land Forces Greece (communique issued yesterday):

The process of clearing Athens and the Piraeus of insurgent forces is progressing slowly but satisfactorily.

There are indications that the insurgent troops who entered Athens and the Piraeus area this month are now moving out to positions in and astride the road leading into the city area, and that resistance within the built-up area is being offered by the original Athens ELAS Corps and their supporters. This force is concentrated in three main sectors — the Piraeus, and the northern and southeastern districts of Athens.

An insurgent attack early yesterday morning against an RAF landing ground in the area was repulsed.

In Epirus, General Zervas' forces continue to fall back under strong ELAS pressure, and he has been forced to evacuate Igoumenitza.

The situation elsewhere is unchanged. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 28 — Today's communique:

Allied forces in Holland continued to encounter active patrolling by the enemy along the River Maas, north of Tilburg and north of Venlo.

The enemy made a small local attack at Gerbroek, three [illegible] southwest of Maeseyck. Our troops, after a slight similar attack was contained later, and, in a third attack, the enemy lost four out of five tanks.

In the area southeast of Bastogne, we have cleared the enemy from Bonnal and Insenborn and have crossed the Sure River in three places near Bonnal.

Eschdorf has been cleared of the enemy after heavy fighting, and a strong enemy counter-attack with infantry was repulsed in the vicinity of Ringel.

Northwest of Echternach we have encircled Beaufort and are mopping up in Berdorf.

Strong formations of fighters and fighter-bombers operated in close support of our ground forces and attacked German armor, troops, gun positions, and road and rail transport.

Medium bombers attacked the railhead at Kell, and railway bridges at Ahrweiler and at Monnweiler, southeast of Trier.

Light bombers went for objectives at La Roche and Houffalize.

More than 600 heavy bombers, with an escort of more than 400 fighters, attacked railway communications in western Germany.

The targets included the railway junction at Gerolstein, 40 miles west of Coblenz; and the marshalling yards at Euskirchen, Andernach, Kaiserlautern, and Homburg, and at Fulda, 60 miles south of Kassel.

Some of the escorting fighters also attacked railway transport near Trier and east of Bonn.

Fighter-bombers attacked railway transport and communications over the area from St. Wendel southeast to Stuttgart, and struck at road bridges at Colmar and Endingen, and an ammunition dump at Freiburg.

Road and railway transport in the Rhine area were the targets for fighter-bombers and rocket-firing fighters.

Yesterday afternoon, escorted heavy bombers made a concentrated attack on the railway center at Rheydt.

During the night our intruder aircraft were over the battle front attacking railway and road transport.

According to preliminary reports, 99 enemy aircraft were destroyed in the air. Five heavy bombers and 23 of our fighters are missing.

Ground action in the Wissembourg area near the Rhine was limited to patrol clashes and artillery exchanges.

North of Colmar, we made local gains. (Reuter)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, December 28 — Tonight's communique:

During today, on the territory of Hungary, northwest of Gyöngyös, our troops, surmounting enemy resistance, captured the town and railway station of Szécseny, and also occupied the populated localities of Salvo, Zadbarona, Karanscsalya, Jedgesz, Nadget, and Gurti.

In Czechoslovakia, northeast of Sahy, our troops, operating in the difficult mountain-wooded terrain, occupied the populated localities of Ilihovce, Runa, Schovce, Oshovce, Ohovc, Gruha, and Sedyecs.

Simultaneously, southwest of Sahy, our troops, as a result of stubborn battles, cleared of the enemy the area between the Ipel and Hron rivers, and occupied the populated localities of Pasovce, Darmoti, Paul, Talka, Lelet, Halenba, Slesing, and Garon-Beresht and the railway stations of Halenba and Kovocshaze. Thus, our troops emerged on the eastern bank of the River Hron, from the town of Levice to the Danube.

In battles during December 28, in the areas northwest of Gyöngyös and southwest of Sahy, our troops captured 2,200 German and Hungarian soldiers and officers.

In the area of Budapest, our troops continued battles [illegible] of the enemy.

Allied forces in Holland continued to encounter active patrolling by the enemy along the River Maas, north of Tilburg and north of Venlo.

The enemy made a small local attack at Gerbroek, three miles southeast of Maeseyck. Our troops, after a slight withdrawal, counter-attacked and regained their original positions.

The Monschau-Malmédy sector semains quiet, with both sides carrying out active patrolling.

The enemy attacked at a number of places on the northern flank of his salient.

Heavy fighting continues at Grandmenil and Manhay, and we repulsed strong German attacks two miles northwest of Lierneux and near Humain and Havrenne.

Small groups of enemy tanks have been observed in the triangle Rochefort-Beauraing-St. Hubert, but enemy armored patrols, pushing from Rochefort toward Celles, have been less active. Those that have been encountered have been severely dealt with.

In the area of St. Hubert, which is in enemy hands, we have encountered mines, roadblocks and blown bridges.

Allied forces advancing from the south have made contact with the units holding Bastogne.

During the period of encirclement, our units in Bastogne inflicted severe damage on the enemy, and on the day before their relief they repulsed two German attacks.

In the first attack, made by an estimated two regiments of infantry and a large number of tanks, an estimated 27 tanks were destroyed and 250 prisoners taken.

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, December 28 — Today's communique:

The enemy offensive north and northeast of Udine, which began on December 8, can now be considered at an end. Patriot positions remain substantially unchanged. The enemy, who has concentrated notable forces around Caporetto, is conducting continuous patrol activity along the Subit-Carebola railway line.

In the Veneto, on December 15/16, Treviso Patriots destroyed two locomotives and six carriages, and damaged another 10 — part of train loaded with coal — near Albaredo. Traffic was still blocked two days later. (UNN)

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 28 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Apart from bringing relief to all other parts of the Western Front, the deep gap punched into the Belgian-Luxemburg sector by our attacking formations resulted in a major battle against enemy divisions which in the meantime had been brought up from other sectors.

On the northwestern front of the fighting area, our attack makes slow progress in the face of stubborn enemy resistance.

On the whole of the southern front, the enemy continued to exert a strong pressure.

Yesterday, another 21 enemy tanks were destroyed. According to incomplete reports the booty in guns and anti-tank guns captured since December 16 rose to more than 300.

Along the frontier of Alsace-Lorraine, our troops continued to clear the forefield of the western fortifications of the enemy.

Brisk positional warfare is reported from Upper Alsace, on both sides of Kaysersberg.

Yesterday, over the Western Front, German fighters brought down 23 enemy fighters in grim dogfights.

Yesterday, Liége and Antwerp were again subjected to an intense bombardment.

Italy:

In central Italy, in the Gallicano sector, the German and Italian troops consolidated their recently-captured positions and held them in face of enemy counter-attacks.

In the Faenza sector and in the Romagna, the British launched only isolated and unsuccessful attacks.

Eastern Front:

In northeastern Croatia, in the course of the last few days, grim fighting developed against partisans and Bulgarians who attacked between the Danube and the Save. The enemy, who had penetrated the region of the town of Otok, was repelled in a counter-attack and suffered heavy losses.

In Hungary, between Lake Balaton and the southern frontier of Slovakia, the battle grew in extent and grimness. The enemy swing round in westerly direction, proceeding from the region of Szekesfehervar-Felsögalla, and north of it, with strong forces.

In addition, he attacked Budapest fiercely from a westerly, southeasterly, and northeasterly direction. The German-Hungarian garrison offered grim resistance to the Bolshevik onslaught at the inner ring of the defences.

North of the Danube, our troops, frustrating fierce enemy attacks, fought their way through to the western banks

In the early morning hours the British, after some isolated nightly nuisance raids on northeastern Germany, attacked western German territory.

Finland-Norway:

The High Command further announces: The betrayal by the Finnish Government in September necessitated a withdrawal upon Norwegian soil of those German divisions which were located in central and northern Finland.

The Soviet Command, supported by the betrayed Finnish troops, endeavoured to prevent this withdrawal over several hundred kilometers, with few highways available.

All of these attempts were thwarted by the audacity of our troops and by the excellent German leadership under Colonel General Rendulic.

The enemy's intention, which was to hinder the withdrawal of the experienced and weathered fighters of woods and tundras, was thwarted with heaviest losses on the part of the Soviet and Finnish troops.

The German Army returning from Finland now stands in the north Norwegian area in full fighting prowess, ready for any assigned tasks. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Less German Optimism concerning Western Front: German broadcasts of this morning and afternoon in large part continued to adopt the optimistic tone of yesterday's propaganda.

Tonight (Thursday), however, a D.N.B. despatch partly reversed this propaganda trend by making the most reserved, even pessimistic, remarks which have emanated from German sources since the beginning of the new drive. Some of the more striking of these remarks, which may possibly mark a turning point in the war, follow:

«Eisenhower has considerably intensified the firing efficiency of his 1st and 3rd Armies... Moreover, he was able within the past 48 hours to display the full strength of his close-range air-borne fighting formations. In its most essential part, the battle yesterday changed into a battle of stationary character. The foremost German offensive spearheads have been withdrawn on the southern flank and in the west, in full accordance to plan, to the main fighting area ... Attacks launched by American infantry and tank formations in broad sectors ... forced German formations to yield some ground in central and eastern Luxembourg.»

German Admission concerning Bastogne: After a day of propaganda dwelling on the difficulties of the beleaguered Americans at Bastogne, the late despatch from D.N.B., quoted above, conceded the following state of affairs:

«The battle in the areas southwest of Bastogne was particularly fierce. The Americans in this sector succeeded, in the course of uninterrupted low-level plane attacks and unprecedented artillery fire, in temporarily tearing up the

Between the Eipel and the upper reaches of the Sajo, numerous Bolshevik attacks were frustrated and some penetrations sealed off.

In Courland, the Soviets, having brought up reinforcements, continued their attacks at the previous focal points. Yesterday the main lines remained firmly under our control, except for some slight losses north of Doblen.

Budapest: German sources now concede that Budapest has been encircled. However, all propaganda indications point to a desperate last stand on the part of the besieged forces. A German war correspondent, broadcasting from Budapest via the German Radio, exclaimed: « We are encircled, but not shackled! »

No Soviet Headway in Kurland: In news from the Eastern Front today, the Soviet Kurland drive shared the limelight with the Budapest drive. Concerning the former drive, D.N.B. made the following confident claim:

« Eight Soviet Armies have for seven days been hurling themselves against the deeply-echeloned German defence zone in Kurland, have sacrificed tens of thousands of men, and have lost more than two full tank corps and at least one tank brigade without making headway at any point. »

GERMAN DRIVE IN SERCHIO VALLEY SUBSIDES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 29 — The German counter-assault in the Serchio River Valley, after a maximum penetration of from two to three miles, has subsided, it was announced here today.

The fighting, which raged for more than two days in the narrow gap at the edge of the coastal Apennines, and in which strong forces of Allied medium fighter-bombers were employed to pound the advancing German troops, has died down, official reports declared. The critical sector was reported to have been «fairly quiet» yesterday, with harassing enemy artillery fire and patrol engagements [illegible] along the east bank of the Senio River, while, farther southwest, 8th Army infantry with tank support cleared the enemy from strongly-fortified positions in the village of Villa Quaglia. This hamlet, lying between the Faenza-Ravenna railway line and the Naviglio Canal connecting the Lamone and the Senio Rivers, has been utilized by the Germans as a southern anchor point for their stubbornly-held salient east of the Senio River, in the sector south of Bagnacavallo.

On the southern stretches of the Senio River, now the main German delaying line across the south eastern edge of the Lombardy Plain, both Allied and enemy patrols were active, probing opposing defenses across the narrow stream. (PRO)

AMERICANS HOLD ON ALL SECTORS IN WEST; 3RD ARMY OFFENSIVE GAINS

LONDON, December 29 — American troops on the Western Front, fighting from reinforced positions, held in check the powerful German panzer troops for the third day in a row today, and at several points threw against the enemy salient strong counter-blows which dug menacing wedges into the Nazi positions.

German forces continued to attack at several points, notably on the Stavelot-Hooten sector on the northwestern shoulder of the 50-mile-long salient, but in fierce artillery and tank duels the defending Americans held their positions.

At the center of this 25-mile line, 1st Army troops gained ground in their steady push toward Bastogne. With the capture of the German strongpoints of Manhay, Grandmenil, and Humain, American units are now officially reported within 20 miles of a junction with the reinforced garrison at Bastogne.

Third Army forces which relieved the besieged Bastogne garrison have steadily widened the supply corridor into the key communications hub, and are now said to have a six-mile wide communications route into the town.

While patrol activity has been reported north of Bastogne, there is, as yet, no evidence of an American drive toward the German right flank to cut the enemy salient and isolate all enemy troops west of the area.

Heavy fighting is reported in the sector and 3rd Army units, battling their way forward on a 35-mile front gained vital ground to the south and southwest of Bastogne, and also along the eastern stretches of their front.

Sibret, four miles southwest of the road hub, has been reached, and Salvacourt, three miles south of the town, recaptured. Surre, Boulaide, and Bavigne, all a few miles to the southeast, also have been taken.

GERMAN DRIVE IN SERCHIO VALLEY SUBSIDES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 29 — The German counter-assault in the Serchio River Valley, after a maximum penetration of from two to three miles, has subsided, it was announced here today.

The fighting, which raged for more than two days in the narrow gap at the edge of the coastal Apennines, and in which strong forces of Allied medium fighter-bombers were employed to pound the advancing German troops, has died down, official reports declared. The critical sector was reported to have been « fairly quiet » yesterday, with harassing enemy artillery fire and patrol engagements the only action.

The American troops of the 92nd Infantry Division, a Negro unit, were reported to have withdrawn from the area of Gallicano, 15 miles north of Lucca in the Serchio Valley, and to have taken up positions on high ground south of this village.

Highest ground immediately south of Gallicano is Monte Palodino, nearly 3,000 feet high. This mountain peak is two miles south of the evacuated village, and is some five miles southwest of the northernmost Allied advance into the Serchio Valley.

The rôle of the Tactical Air Force in stopping the German drive, apparently intended as a diversionary action, was evidently considerable, for the announcement today said that Thunderbolts, Spitbombers and Kittyhawks, flown by Royal Air Force, Brazilian, and American pilots, had destroyed or damaged nearly 100 buildings occupied by enemy troops massed for the attack down the Ligurian coast.

Along the sectors of the 5th Army Front south of Bologna, enemy artillery and mortar fire showed a marked increase, but elsewhere along the front activity was confined to patrolling.

On the 8th Army front also, yesterday was reported to have been quiet. Canadian troops continued to edge toward the German stronghold of Alfonsine, on the Ferrara road of the Lombardy Plain, both Allied and enemy patrols were active, probing opposing defenses across the narrow stream. (PRO)

LATE BULLETINS

AMERICANS ENTER ROCHEFORT

LONDON, December 29 — American troops have entered the Belgian town of Rochefort, the BBC reported tonight. Rochefort lies at the western end of the German salient, and is about 10 miles southwest of Marche. Earlier reports had told of heavy American counter-attacks in the area.

Third Army units have pushed four miles past Bastogne, and are now within 13 miles of a junction with 1st Army troops pushing down from the Nazi right flank, the Associated Press reported late tonight. Merger of the two wedges would cut the German salient in halves. (OWI-BBC)

CHURCHILL AND GREEK KING CONFER

LONDON, December 29 — Following tonight's meeting of the British Cabinet, King George II of Greece conferred with Prime Minister Churchill at 10, Downing Street. Soon after the arrival here of Mr. Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden from Athens, the night Cabinet meeting was called.

During their two-day visit in Athens, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden made their headquarters aboard the British cruiser Ajax. (OWI-Reuter - BBC) the narrow American supply line and to take Bastogne, which with seven main roads and a rail line, is vital to the supply of German forward units.

The seven-day stand of the American garrison in the town is being hailed in Allied quarters as the decisive factor in stopping the enemy push.

Without the town, it was pointed out, Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's supply problems were made immeasurably more difficult, and his entire position was jeepardized by the resulting American wedge into his southern flank. Only two main supply roads now lie open to the German forces to the west, and these are already within range of American artillery, from both the north and the south.

A SHAEF announcement revealed today that the garrison which held the town to the point where only a few hours' supply of gasoline and artillery shells were left was the American 101st Airborne Division, which had previously won fame for itself in North Africa, Sicily, and the Normandy landings, and at Nijmegen, in Holland. Its commander, Maj. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, was in Washington when his division was trapped. On Christmas Eve he boarded a plane and a day later in a jeep with an aide, went through the German lines to be with his besieged troops.

On the eastern sector of the 3rd Army front, the advancing Americans have crossed the Sure River at a number of points, and now have an eight-mile front on the river's northern bank. Between Diekirch and Echternach, SHAEF reported, American patrols reached the Saur River at three points.

Rosport, to the west of Echternach, also has been reached, putting the Americans on the Luxembourg-German frontier.

Encircled German troops a few miles east of the Meuse have been liquidated with the capture of over 1,000 men and large quantities of armored equipment, some of which was reported to have been abandoned due to lack of fuel.

American troops are reported to be attacking in the Rochefort area, apparently from the north, and now are near the Lesse River, southwest of the city. Humain, four miles southwest of Marche, has been taken, and a small pocket of German tanks and infantry mopped up.

French Troops in Action

A flare-up of fighting was reported far to the south, on the French Army front, and French troops liberated Le Gras, on high ground west of Colmar. A Reuter dispatch said that since the German drive had caused a drain on 3rd Army forces, the American bridgehead on the east bank of the Saar at Dillingen had been withdrawn to the opposite side of the river.

The withdrawal, made without loss, came after a 15-day battle in which the Americans had cleared out Siegfried Line positions in the city. The dispatch said the withdrawal was necessitated by Marshal von Rundstedt's offensive.

Air action was again held down by weather, but reports of the terrific toll of German equipment taken by Allied planes indicated that desperate German attempts to gain superiority on the narrow front had failed.

MINDORO ISLAND CLEARED OF JAPS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 29 — The Philippine Island of Mindoro, 95 miles south of Manila Bay, has been completely freed of Japanese ground and naval activity, an Associated Press dispatch reported tonight.

The initial and almost unopposed landing on the island, made by the American 6th Army December 15, split the Japanese-held Philippines in two, carried American forces to the shores of the China Sea, and cut off the Japanese Empire to the south.

The Japanese unsuccessfully attempted to bombard the Americans on the island Tuesday from a large surface battle force. Although a heavy battleship, a heavy cruiser, and six destroyers stood off Mindoro's western coastline at a safe distance to lob shells toward the airfields, they were not prepared to withstand the fury of an almost continuous air assault, according to Associated Press dispatches. A correspondent reported that not a single shell crater marred the field when he arrived after the enemy attack.

Every available night-fighter was ordered into the air when the bombardment started, and they pounded the Japanese surface force for three hours.

Brig. Gen. Donald Hutchinson, Chief of Staff of the 5th USAAF on Mindoro, said, "The almost continuous air attack broke up a sizeable Japanese threat. It was a highly successful action for us."

General Douglas MacArthur's communique reported tonight that eight of 23 Japanese planes attacking airfields and shipping on the island Wednesday night were destroyed, and confirmed the report that there was no enemy ground activity on the island.

Meanwhile, Mitchell bombers hit Japanese shipping in Lingayen Gulf, off the western coast of Luzon, and heavily damaged a 7,000-ton freighter.

In the mopping up of isolated enemy remnants on Leyte, another 912 Japanese dead were counted Wednesday, the communique said.

Iwo Jima Again Bombed

Action continued against Iwo Jima, in the Volcano Islands Wednesday for the 21st consecutive day, when attacking Liberators ran into intense anti-aircraft fire, the Navy announced.

An Associated Press dispatch said the heavy barrage failed, however, to prevent the force from planting its explosives on the airstrip and keep unbroken one of the most intensive neutralizing campaigns of the Pacific war.

Delayed dispatches from somewhere in the Marianas said Wednesday that P-38 Lightnings damaged two seagoing Japanese vessels, blew up a fuel dump, and bombed buildings, gun positions, and personnel in Tuesday's action against the Japanese base 750 miles south of Tokyo. Fleet surface units then opend up and set fire to an enemy landing ship, blew up a Japanese gunboat, and hit coastal defenses of Iwo Jima.

ALLIES ADVANCE IN BURMA; JAP AIRDROMES IN CHINA ATTACKED

KANDY, CEYLON, December 29 — Continued Allied advances against the Japanese in western and central Burma were announced in Southeast Asia Command communique today. In the Mayu River Valley, in western Burma, Indian troops liberated three more villages, while, in central Burma, 14th units, which passed through Pyingaing, were reported nine miles farther southeast, despite stiff opposition.

The Indian troops are advancing down Burma's Arakan coast toward the important port of Akyab, in the Bay of Bengal. Many enemy dead were counted in a village about nine miles south of Ruthidaung, where Allied aircraft have been operating.

RED ARMY 60 MILES FROM BRATISLAVA GAP

MOSCOW, December 29 — Red Army units are now firmly established on a 90-mile front facing Vienna. They are a little more than 60 miles from the Bratislava Gap as they battle against the German's Hron Line.

The Germans are resisting fiercely from steel-hooded cupolas on the western side of the Hron — one of the main water barriers between the Red Army and the Austrian border, press reports said tonight. Russian troops are believed to have crossed the river in one sector at least.

News from Budapest said that the Russians have forced their way almost to the center of the city. The Germans are being steadily compressed under heavy artillery fire.

The capture of Budapest will provide the Red Army with a major line of communications for the southwestern front which faces Silesia, Bohemia, Moravia, and Austria.

Correspondents said that it will be impossible for the Germans to hold Budapest much longer, owing to the weight of the Russian pressure.

Front-line dispatches today said that 2,000 German prisoners had been taken in fighting north of the capital yesterday. The Russians are now «mouse-holing» through the walls of houses and passing over roofs in the hilly western section of Budapest.

In northern Hungary, the German press service admitted that the Germans have fallen back. On other sections of the front, patrol activity was reported.

The Red Army yesterday disabled or destroyed 99 German tanks, and 14 enemy planes were shot down.

The Indian troops are advancing down Burma's Arakan coast toward the important port of Akyab, in the Bay of Bengal. Many enemy dead were counted in a village about nine miles south of Buthidaung, where Allied aircraft have been operating.

Allied air forces also sent out fighter-bombers to pound the ferry-head at Monywa, and enemy positions near Gangaw, in the Chindwin region, the communique said.

In China, U. S. fighter aircraft Wednesday attacked airdromes in the Canton area of south China, said yesterday's communique from headquarters of the U. S. forces in the China Theater. Nine enemy planes were destroyed in air combats, and 20 on the ground.

It was also announced that enemy positions in the Wanting area, on the south Burma border, were heavily attacked in support of the ground offensive.

Japanese troops have opened a series of counter-attacks in this area, a Chinese military spokesman said, according to the Associated Press. The heavy enemy attacks, about 12 miles northeast of Wanting, were all thrown back, the spokesman said.

According to the dispatch, the Japanese have orders to fight to the death to keep the Burma Road supply route cut off from the Allies.

Chinese attacks from three sides against the rail town of Hochih, in Kwangsi Province, were also reported by the Associated Press. The dispatch added that the reinforced Japanese defense ring is still holding out.

Commenting on the fighting in the Pacific and Far East, the New York Herald Tribune today warned that, although the strategic picture in the Pacific is changing in Allied favor, the «war in the Far East, long and arduous as it has seemed, may be just beginning so far as major engagements on the ground are concerned.»

The newspaper cited Emperor Hirohito's statement to the Imperial Diet that Japan's war situation was growing more critical due to the increased aerial bombings of the Japanese mainland, but it warned that «it should be remembered that the hard core of the enemy resistance in Japan and China is almost untouched.

«All that we have won so far is a wide gap in the outer ring of Japanese defenses, and a sizable crack in the middle ring,» the Herald Tribune continued. «We still need all the cooperation we can get, especially from the Chinese, including the Communist Chinese.» (OWI)

M.A.A.F. HEAVIES AGAIN HIT BRENNER ROUTE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 29 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today attacked the Brenner Pass line from southern Germany into Italy for the fourth successive day, striking at piled-up freight yards at both the northern and southern ends of the key rail line, it was announced here today.

The rail yards at Verona, at the southern end of the main supply route for the German armies in Italy, were reported choked with freight cars and war material. Liberator bomber crews reported hits on these concentrations.

Yards at Innsbruck were also hit, with undisclosed results.

A highway bridge at Rosenheim, 32 miles southeast of Munich, was also bombed, as well as rail targets at Salzburg, and undisclosed objectives in southern Germany.

Fighters and fighter-bombers of the TAF concentrated on a series of 10 or more bridges along German supply links in the rear of the enemy force which had been driving down into the Serchio River Valley.

One group of Thunderbolts alone destroyed or damaged 10 road bridges between Spezia and Massa on the Ligurian coast, northwest of the German effort.

Refineries Hit Thursday

Yesterday, heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF severely damaged three large oil refineries in the Prague area and an oil storage depot at Regensberg, Germany, it was announced here today.

The official report, based on reconnaissance and bomb-strike photographs, stated that considerable additional damage had been achieved by the fighter-escorted Liberators at the Czechoslovak plants, which at the beginning of this year had a combined capacity of well over 200,000 tons a year. The Pardubice, Kolin, and Roudnice refineries and adjacent storage areas are all within a 60-mile radius of Prague. A fourth refinery, at Kralupy, 15 miles northwest of Prague, also bombed by Liberators, escaped without hits on the vital installations.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators also hammered important rail yards at Salzburg, one of the largest traffic centers in Austria, at Nurmburk, northeast of Prague in Czechoslovakia, and at Amstetn, southeast of Linz in Austria.

In attacks on rail lines into northeastern Italy, Liberators struck two spans and a pier of the Benzone bridge north of Udine, and cut tracks in an attack on two switchback bends of the Brenner Pass Line. An attack on the Bresanone rail bridge, also on the Brenner Pass Line, failed to register near hits. Long-range Lightning and Mustang fighters accompanying the bombers destroyed 31 aircraft on the ground, and destroyed or damaged 40 locomotives and 65 rail cars na, four other towns, 30 villages, and nearly 1,000 other inhabited places.

The Order of the Day stated Canadian troops had taken more than 1,600 Germans prisoner in this period, and had killed or wounded probably twice this number.

General Foulkes told his troops that although the going had been hard, their «determination, skill at arms, and guts» would bring the next stage of the operations in Italy to a successful conclusion. (PRO)

AMERICAN-FLOWN MOSQUITOES IN ITALY

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 29 — The first American-flown Mosquito night-fighters in service in the Mediterranean Theater have been in action against enemy aircraft and installations in northern Italy, it was announced here this afternoon.

AUSTRIAN ADVISERS TO CLARK APPOINTED

WASHINGTON, December 29 — Secretary of State Edward Stettinius announced at his press conference today the appointment of three American advisers on Austrian affairs to Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the United States armed forces in the Mediterranean Theater.

The advisers are John G. Erhardt, political adviser with the rank of minister; Cecil W. Gray, who was a personal assistant to former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, to be counsellor of the mission to Austria; and James L. Mac Camy, economic adviser.

MacCamy is now executive director of the Bureau of Areas in the Foreign Economic Administration, and will represent both the State Department and the FEA in the Austrian mission. (OWI)

1,500 U. S. BOMBERS POUND GERMAN SUPPLY LINES

LONDON, December 29 — For the seventh day, Allied aircraft pounded communications and supply targets feeding the now-blunted Nazi spearhead in the Western Front.

Fifteen hundred U. S. bombers and fighter-bombers dropped thousands of tons of bombs on road and rail junctions and bridges behind the German lines, especially in the Euskirchen-Trier sector.

RAF Halifaxes and Lancasters, escorted by fighters, hit two important railway marshalling yards at Coblenz in the Rhineland.

Other targets for the Americans included rail traffic in the Bingen-Frankfurt-Aschaffenburg triangle.

Last night, the Bomber Command attacked Bonn and München-Gladbach.

Fresh reports keep coming in about the tremendous damage done to German armor, transport, and aircraft by the Allied round-the-clock campaign to isolate the Ardennes battlefield, according to BBC. In the five days through yesterday, Allied planes destroyed nearly 2,000 mote-

Today, Allied headquarters announced that during the first 12 days of the battle, 1,000 German tanks were destroyed.

Elsewhere on the air front, RAF bombers this afternoon hurled 12,000-pound bombs on E and R-boat pens at Rotterdam.

Last night, the Coastal Command again struck the enemy's lifeline to Norway. Halifaxes bombed a medium-sized tanker in Oslo Fjord leaving it ablaze. A medium-sized merchant vessel also was hit, an explosion being seen. Beaufighters attacked two other vessels with torpedoes. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

U. S. PROTESTS NAZI MURDER OF DISARMED TROOPS

WASHINGTON, December 29 — The United States Government is sending the «strongest possible protest» to Germany against the shooting of captured and disarmed American troops, the State Department announced tonight.

Announcement of the formal protest followed confirmation of several incidents in the recent German drive when helpless American soldiers were murdered in cold blood. The latest of the shootings was disclosed today by a British news service correspondent who interviewed a survivor left for dead after he and six comrades had been shot by their German captors December 17.

The survivor recounted how a patrol consisting of a captain, lieutenant, and four enlisted men was ambushed by the Germans and captured. After a short interrogation, the men were lined up and shot. The lone survivor, left for dead, managed to crawl away, though seriously wounded.

The Nazis kicked the men in the face after the shooting, he said. His own face was seriously bruised and lacerated. (OWI)

GERMANS BOMB U. S. HOSPITAL

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY, December 29 — Two German planes, flying low in bright moonlight on Tuesday, bombed and strafed the American 23rd General Hospital at Mirecourt, injuring several patients, including soldiers awaiting surgery, a 6th Army Group communique said today.

The hospital formerly was used by the Germans, and 12 large Red Crosses, painted on the structure by the Germans, identified the site for the enemy flyers. Mirecourt is in the Vosges Mountains, and is more than 40 miles from the front lines.

The hospital consists of 20 buildings, in which there were 1,000 wounded U. S. troops at the time of the attack by the German planes. One civilian worker was killed and a Frenchwoman, living nearby, was killed.

The German planes swooped low over the hospital's power plant. A 500-pound bomb was dropped, missing the plant by 50 yards but shattering windows of adjoining wards. Later, the planes returned and strafed the hospital area for 10 minutes. (OWI)

FRENCH PORTS AGAIN IN USE

LONDON, December 29 — The French ports of Dieppe and Boulogne have been made ready for use once more, according to an official announcement, and have been put at the disposal of the French Navy by British Naval authorities.

The ports of Cannes and Antibes also will shortly be ready for use. (OWI)

PATTON GETS CLUSTER TO D. S. C.

WITH U. S. 3RD ARMY, December 29 — Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the 3rd Army, today was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Service Cross for his drive across France last summer. Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley made the award.

General Patton «has contributed immensurably to the success of Allied operations on the Continent,» the citation accompanying the award said. (OWI)

GERMANS IN YUGOSLAVIA REPULSED

LONDON, December 29 — Yugoslav troops made a surprise attack on a German armored column moving along the Nasice-Miholjac highway in Slavonia and, after hard fighting, drove back the enemy to Miholjac, a communique from the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation stated today.

In east Bosnia, fierce fighting continues on the Bjeljina-Brcko sector, where some important German strongholds have been seized, and in the Babina sector, where the town of Babina Glava, together with the villages of Livadica and

FRASER-NIMITZ MEETING SUCCESSFUL

SYDNEY, December 29 — Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander of the British Pacific Fleet, said here yesterday that his recent meeting with Admiral Chester Nimitz, U.S. commander-in-chief in the Pacific, had been most successful. He said that «the Japanese are the ones who will learn most of what our agreement was.»

Admiral Fraser added that he and Admiral Nimitz had reached agreement on all details, and disclosed that the British Pacific Fleet would work with the American Fleet as a task force, and that communiques on British and American fleet operations will be issued by Admiral Nimitz. (OWI)

GENERAL HOLMES DECORATED

LONDON, December 29 — Brig. Gen. Julius C. Holmes, newly appointed Assistant U.S. Secretary of State, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by General Eisenhower, for exceptionally meritorious services in a position of great responsibility.

General Holmes served as Chief of the Military Government Section at Allied headquarters from June, 1943, to February, 1944. He was instrumental in the planning and execution of military government operations in Sicily and Italy, and civil affairs operations in the liberated countries of northwestern Europe and in Germany. ITALY, NORWAY RESUME DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS

ROME, December 29 — Diplomatic relations between Italy and Norway have been resumed, and representatives for each country will be named within a few days, Foreign Minister Alcide De Gasperi announced today.

«The resumption of diplomatic relations with Norway widens the circle of nations with which Italy is resuming normal contact,» De Gasperi said.

«By this means, we are establishing a loyal and frank friendship, which is the basis for Italy's collperation in restoring peace to Europe.» (UNN)

ITALY MUST INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

ROME, December 29 — The Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs must restore confidence in its integrity, and demonstrate by facts that it condemns the policy of aggression and violence, Foreign Minister Alcide De Gasperi told officials and employees of his department in a New Year's address here today.

De Gasperi said that epuration measures currently under way in the Foreign Affairs Ministry «must be carried out with justice, equity, and understanding.» Through establishment of diplomatic relations with nearly all of the United Nations, he added, Italy will be able to resume «her difficult task of international collaboration» and her statesmen «to apply themselves to the work of reconstruction.» (UNN)

GENERAL AZZI RELIEVED OF COMMAND

ROME, December 29 — General Arnaldo Azzi has been relieved of the Lazio-Umbria-Abruzzi military command and placed at the disposal of the War Ministry, according to reports from official sources here.

At the time of the armistice, General Azzi was in command of the «Fiorence» Division in Albania, where he led

GERMANS IN YUGOSLAVIA REPULSED

LONDON, December 29 — Yugoslav troops made a surprise attack on a German armored column moving along the Nasice-Miholjac highway in Slavonia and, after hard fighting, drove back the enemy to Miholjac, a communique from the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation stated today.

In east Bosnia, fierce fighting continues on the Bjeljina-Brcko sector, where some important German strongholds have been seized, and in the Babina sector, where the town of Babina Gleva, together with the villages of Livadica and Tuka, were liberated. The enemy withdrew into the mountains, where the battle was continued.

In Montenegro, a vigorous Yugoslav attack inflicted 140 dead on the enemy. The Yugoslavs captured seven flame-throwers, 22 machine-guns, and a great quantity of other arms and ammunition.

The railway between Mostar and Konjec, in the valley of the Nreetva, in Hercegovina, was cut in several places, and communications were completely interrupted.

In Croatia, a two-day battle following a strong German attack from the direction of Zagreb toward Pisarovina was finally held up, and the Germans pushed back to their starting point. (PWB)

MITSCHER EXPECTS ANOTHER SEA BATTLE

PEARL HARBOR, December 28 — In another year, the Allied fleets «should have the Japanese Navy pretty well cleaned up», Vice Admiral Marc Mitscher, who directed the U. S. Navy's air arm in the two battles of the Philippine Sea, said today upon his return from a six-week leave in the United States.

«The Japanese have reached the point where they will throw everthing into the fight,» Admiral Mitscher predicted. «But if they refuse to commit their remaining fleet units in a sea battle, we'll be in a position to clean them out wherever they are». (OWI)

GENERAL AZZI RELIEVED OF COMMAND

ROME, December 29 — General Arnaldo Azzi has been relieved of the Lazio-Umbria-Abruzzi military command and placed at the disposal of the War Ministry, according to reports from official sources here.

At the time of the armistice, General Azzi was in command of the «Florence» Division in Albania, where he led his soldiers against the Germans. He and his men joined the Albanian Patriots against the Nazi-Fascists.

Azzi's dismissal follows a press polemic which arose out of his recent article in the Action Party newspaper Italia Libera advocating the change of the name of the Italian Army from «Royal Italian Army» to «Italian National Army»; the abolishment of the military salute; the replacement of the Royal March with the «Piave» Anthem; the discontinuance of the military chaplain's prayer for the King at the end of mass; and the annulment of the oath of allegiance to the King. DISMISSAL OF 12 SENATORS EXPLAINED

ROME, December 29 — The High Court of Justice today said that yesterday's dismissal from office of 12 more senators was ordered «on the basis of purely political considerations.»

The senators named by the court were Tommaso Arnoni, Ettore Bastico, Vincenzo Buronso, Alberto Calza Bini, Carlo Catalano, Alessandro Dudan, Agostino Guerreri, Isaia Levi, Ottorino Mezzetti, Teodoro Morisani, Emilio Sailer, and Antonio Trapani.

Ettore Bastico held the rank of Marshal of Italy, bestowed on him by Mussolini following the advance of German-Italian troops to El Alamein. He commanded Fascist troops in Spain in 1937/38, and in 1940 replaced

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, first as Governor of Libya, and then as commander of Italian forces in North Africa.

A pre-March-on-Rome Fascist, Calza Bini was for many years a member of the Chamber of Fasces and Corporations.

Count Alessandro Dudan, also a Fascist prior to Mussolini's advent to power, was a member of both the directorate of the Fascist Party and the Fascist Grand Council. (UNN)

FASCIST KIDNAP PLOT EXPOSED

ROME, December 29 — The Italian Fascist Government and Army in 1935 hoped to conquer Ethiopia the easy way by planning to kidnap Emperor Haile Selassie — an act which, the Fascists anticipated, would be such a demoralizing blow to the Ethiopian warriors that they would end their resistance against the Fascist invaders.

This plot was disclosed by Count Carlo Senni, former chief of the ceremonials section of the Italian Fascist Ministry of Foreign Affairs, in a pre-trial deposition he gave in evidence against Lt. Gen. Mario Roatta and his co-defendants.

Roatta, with Fulvio Suvich, former Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Filippo Anfuso, chief assistant to former Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, will go on trial on January 22 before the High Court of Justice on charges brought by the Deputy High Commissioner for the Punishment of Fascist Crimes. They are accused of cooperating with the late Count Ciano in acts contributing to the maintenance of Fascism in power, and acts which led Italy to war.

The contents of Senni's deposition were first disclosed today. They revealed that the Mussolini Government was so anxious to win the war in Ethiopia speedily that it offered a soldier of fortune of a foreign nationality the sum of 100 million lire, then worth five million dollars, to abduct the Abyssinian ruler.

According to the testimony, General Roatta signed a contract with the potential kidnapper, a man named Chukhy Jacir Bey, on 1 December 1935, and ordered payment of the 100 million lire for the mission. Senni said that the money was deposited in the Banco di Napoli by the Italian Government in the name of Jacir Bey.

Roatta, in his signed deposition, said he did not recall the details of the contract with Jacir Bey, "other than the plan to kidnap the Negus."

The plot was formulated at a time when sanctions were applied against Italy for its aggression in Ethiopia, when Mussolini was worried over the delays in the Ethiopian campaign, and when the Ethiopian invasion was having dire effects on the Italian people.

Three Plans Submitted

Senni said that Bey suggested the kidnapping to the Foreign Affairs Ministry, which seized on the idea as a means of ending the war quickly and thus terminating the mounting difficulties pressing the Italian Government and Army because of the Ethiopian campaign. The agreement with Jacir Bey contemplated three plans:

1. Voluntary surrender of the Negus, who was to be led to believe that he would be permitted to rule over a small part of his territory.

2. A spurious battle, which was to open a passage for Italian troops to Addis Abeba to enable Haile Selassie to justify a request by him for an armistice.

3. Outright kidnapping of the Ethiopian Emperor.

POSTPONEMENT SOUGHT FOR TRIAL

ROME, December 29 — Counsel for three of the six senators charged with espionage asked today for the postponement of the trial scheduled for January 8 before the High Court of Justice, on the grounds that the other three defendants, Senators Cesare Genovesi, P. Vinassa de Regny, and G. Guadagnini, are in enemy-occupied northern Italy, and thus cannot be brought to court.

The defense stated also that the physical condition of Senators Alfredo Felici and Giacomo E. Curatolo would not permit them to attend the trial. (UNN)

ROMAN MEN WILL VOTE IN THE SPRING

ROME, December 29 — It is estimated that half a million male Roman citizens will vote here in the spring, when Italy holds its first free election in 22 years. The preparation of the voters' roll has been started.

The only male citizens barred from voting will be those involved in epuration proceedings at the time the roll closes, persons convicted of major crimes, and those who evaded military service.

An appropriation of 100,000 dollars, or 25,000 pounds, has been made available for the employment of 500 persons on the registry staff. (UNN)

LIBERATED ITALY CENSUS COMPLETED

ROME, December 29 — A census of the 38 provinces of liberated Italy has been completed and will be collated early next month, the Central Institute of Statistics disclosed today.

Microfilms of 60 large charts containing the final figures on 24 of the 38 provinces have also been flown to Washington, to be used in determining relief needs.

When the results are compiled, a complete report will be given the Italian Government and the Allied Commission.

Despite difficulties of transport and adverse weather, the Italian census-takers finished their job, gathering figures on population, refugees, prisoners of war, houses destroyed by war, cattle, living conditions, clothing, and sanitary conditions. (UNN)

DENTAL INSTITUTE PROPOSES FREE TREATMENT

ROME, December 29 — Dental clinics to be attached to all the larger elementary schools in the outlying areas of Rome were proposed recently by the George Eastman Dental Institute, it was announced today.

The clinics would give free dental treatment to poor children who are unable, through lack of transport, to attend the central Institute in Viale Regina Margherita.

The George Eastman Institute, which was neglected under its previous Fascist management, and subsequently seriously damaged by air raids, is now functioning normally again under its new director Dr. Loris Gasparri.

In an interview with an UNN correspondent, Dr. Gasparri revealed that about 350 patients were treated daily by different dental sections, and that a staff of eight doctors last June had been increased to 31.

A special clinic was established over a month ago to give free treatment to the poor, the homeless, and refugees.

3. Outright kidnapping of the Ethiopian Emperor, who was to be abducted in a plane to be put at the disposal of Jacir Bey. This plan was to be adopted if the first two plans failed.

Whether attempts ever were made by Jacir Bey to work out any of the three plans is not known. Haile Selassie found refuge in England before the Italian invasion was completed, and returned to his country after Ethiopia was liberated by Allied troops in 1941.

When Roatta goes on trial beginning January 22, other defendants will be Francesco Jacomoni, former Governor General of Albania, and Zenone Benini, director of Albanian Affairs in the Fascist Foreign Ministry. Paolo Cortese, Republican Fascist Minister to Slovakia, and General Alberto Pariani, former Minister of War now in northern Italy, also will be tried, in absentia.

The inquiry into the activities of Roatta, Suvich, Anfuso, and Jacomoni revealed terroristic activities of the above-named defendants. (UNN)

ITALIAN PATRIOT AID TO FRENCH CITED

ROME, December 29 — The assistance given by Italian nationals in the liberation of Paris, and their present cooperation with the forces of General Charles De Gaulle, were described today by Dr. Domenico Russo, president of the Italian Committee of National Liberation in Paris, who is visiting here.

The ICNL, which is composed of all the anti-Fascist parties, was formed clandestinely during the German occupation of France and fought openly for the liberation of Paris, Dr. Russo said. The organisation operated the underground newspaper L'Italia Libera and also supplied false documents and financial aid to persons wanted by the Gestapo.

The money came from Italians living in France.

Pointing out that during the German occupation, Italians in France had organized Garibaldi units which fought with the FFI and had joined Partisan groups as soon as they were formed, Dr. Russo said:

«The participation of the Italians was particularly great in the struggle for the liberation of Paris.

«On the barricades behind which masses of the Paris population were fighting against the Germans, there were about 1,200 Italians, about 20 of whom were killed and 70 wounded; some are still lying in hospitals.»

Dr. Russo was arrested on the French-Italian border by the Fascists in 1942, and later by the German authorities at Ribbentrop's orders. Both his sons participated in the fight for the liberation of France. His older son was shot by the Nazis. (UNN)

NEW DRIVE BEGINS AGAINST «ELAS»

ATHENS, December 29 — British and Greek troops at dawn today opened a new drive from three directions against ELAS forces operating in the outskirts of the city. It was the second phase of operations designed to clear the embattled Greek capital.

No sooner had the political talks of the last three days been put temporarily in abeyance, than the fighting broke out on a new and enlarged scale as British troops began to press the guerrilla forces from the southeast and southwest sections of the city, and a Greek force advanced from the east.

Heavy firing was heard in the city, in the suburbs, and in the port of Piraeus throughout the day, and RAF planes joined in the revitalized campaign. Capture of large groups of ELAS men was reported from each of the advancing units, which were making steady progress tonight toward their objectives, according to press dispatches.

The British objectives were described as Ardetas Hill, one of the few remaining ELAS positions in central Athens; the stadium area of southeast Athens, where the fighting has been heavy for several weeks; and the Omonia Square section, in southwest Athens.

Almost Half Athens Cleared

Late dispatches tonight said that the British troops have overcome «very stiff» resistance by ELAS troops, and have cleared a large area in the southeastern suburbs. It also was reported that further successes were made by British forces in southwest Athens, with that area virtually cleared up to Omonio Square, and the likelihood that, before the night is over, the British may hold half of the entire capital.

A BBC dispatch said that the advancing British have cleared a hill where ELAS forces have a concentration of mortars, and that the guerrillas had been dislodged from almost all of the cemetery section, south of the stadium. The stadium is still held by ELAS forces, but the troops pushing down from the center of the city have almost linked up with other troops moving northward.

The new three-pronged movement began after a prolonged artillery barrage from 25-pounder batteries and Shermans. For nearly two hours, before the three forces began their push, there was steady tommy-gun fire, and ceaseless shell bursts. A pall of smoke was hanging over all of the southeastern suburbs, as, almost, simultaneously, one British prong drove toward the stadium area, another British column pushed into the cemetery area, and a Greek unit of regulars moved from the east.

A communique from Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, said that EDES forces,

U.K., U.S. PRESS DISCUSS GREEK REGENCY

LONDON, December 29 — Potential negotiations for settlement of the Greek internal crisis depend, in large part, on the stand of King George II of Greece on the question of creating a regency in Greece pending a plebiscite, British and American press comment said today.

One view was that, although the Greek King is reluctant to agree to a regency, he may have to yield on that question in face of the unanimity of all Greek parties on that issue. Another commentary was that acceptance by the Greek King of a regency would clear the way for further discussions of the EAM terms.

The Athens correspondent of the Manchester Guardian asserted that if a regency is established, «it should then be possible to proceed with formation of a new Greek government and further discussion of the terms» by EAM.

«That is the logical course, but it fails to take into consideration the implacability of ELAS representatives,» the correspondent continued. «Granted that a regent is appointed and a new government formed, the question then is, what kind of government would accept the terms put forward by ELAS.» (ELAS is the militia of EAM, the Greek National Liberation Front.)

Greek King Reluctant

The London correspondent of the New York Times said today that it may prove difficult for King George of Greece not to agree to a regency.

«King George II of Greece has been reluctant to agree to a regency because he fears that it will weight the results of the plebiscite, which all factions are agreed must precede any establishment of permanent government,» the dispatch said. «It may prove difficult for him to hold to his present course, however, in the light of the almost unanimous decision of the conference at Athens, backed by the recommendations of Britain's Prime Minister and Mr. Eden.»

A dispatch in the London Times today said that news that the Athens conference has adjourned indefinitely while heavy fighting continues «caused much disappointment in London,» and noted that «the desire for a regent goes deep in Greece today.»

An editorial today in the New York Times said that if Britain's interest in Greece is important to the lifeline of the British Empire, that interest can be paralleled by U.S. interest in small nations in Central America. The editorial said:

«Doubtless it will continue to be charged that Churchill's primary interest in Greece is not consultation of real wishes of the Greek people, but maintenance of Greece safely within the orbit of what is described as Britain's «sphere of influence.»

«This phrase has many meanings. If intended to mean that Britain seeks to dominate Greece politically and commercially, then there is nothing in the records of British relations with Greece to substantiate such a charge.

«If it means the lifeline of the British Empire runs through the Mediterranean, and that the British have a natural interest in wishing that Greece be orderly and prosperous and democratic, then we may remind ourselves that we have a similar interest in small countries bordering on the Panama Canal.

«This interest of ours does not necessarily bode ill will

A communique from Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, said that EDES forces, under General Napoleon Zervas, which were attacked last week by ELAS groups in northwest Greece, were fighting a hard rear-guard action while withdrawing to the port of Preveza in the Epirus sector.

Press dispatches reported that half of the 10,000 men originaly serving under General Zervas have gone over to ELAS.

The communique said that British and Greek regulars have taken 7,500 ELAS prisoners since the fighting began.

Two extremes in the fighting areas were described in press dispatches today. The industrial area west of Constitution Square in Athens is a mass of shell-shattered buildings, torn up roads, broken sewers, fallen tram-car wires, and ruined household belongings. In Piraeus, on the other hand, crowds milled in the squares in sections of the port which had been cleared of ELAS, and civilians went about their normal tasks virtually oblivious of their proximity to fighting areas.

On the political front in Greece, there were no new developments made known while the leaders of all Greek parties, who attended the two-day conference which ended Wednesday night, weighed the terms put forward by EAM as a prelude to settlement of the crisis. Archbishop Damaskinos, Metropolitan of Athens, who presided at the two-day meeting, asked the party delegates yesterday to submit in writing their views on the EAM terms.

«King George II of Greece has been reluctant to agree to a regency because he fears that it will weight the results of the plebiscite, which all factions are agreed must precede any establishment of permanent government,» the dispatch said. «It may prove difficult for him to hold to his present course, however, in the light of the almost unanimous decision of the conference at Athens, backed by the recommendations of Britain's Prime Minister and Mr. Eden.»

A dispatch in the London Times today said that news that the Athens conference has adjourned indefinitely while heavy fighting continues «caused much disappointment in London,» and noted that «the desire for a regent goes deep in Greece today.»

An editorial today in the New York Times said that if Britain's interest in Greece is important to the lifeline of the British Empire, that interest can be paralleled by U. S. interest in small nations in Central America. The editorial said:

«Doubtless it will continue to be charged that Churchill's primary interest in Greece is not consultation of real wishes of the Greek people, but maintenance of Greece safely within the orbit of what is described as Britain's «sphere of influence.»

«This phrase has many meanings. If intended to mean that Britain seeks to dominate Greece politically and commercially, then there is nothing in the records of British relations with Greece to substantiate such a charge.

«If it means the lifeline of the British Empire runs through the Mediterranean, and that the British have a natural interest in wishing that Greece be orderly and prosperous and democratic, then we may remind ourselves that we have a similar interest in small countries bordering on the Panama Canal.

«This interest of ours does not necessarily bode ill will for the people of these countries. It may well serve to their advantage.

LARGE REGISTRATION OF FRENCH WOMEN VOTERS

PARIS, December 29 — Contrary to early indications, a very large number of French women have registered as voters for the local elections next spring, a recent dispatch to the New York Times said. This will be the first time in the country's history that women will go to the polls. In several wards, women voters outnumber the men.

The Socialist and Communist parties, particularly the latter, have been very active in developing civic awareness among women, and appear to have attained much success.

An order of the day demanding the disenfranchisement of French collaborators was carried by 141 votes when it was proposed as a motion of confidence to the French Consultative Assembly yesterday by Emmanuel d'Astier de la Vigerie, former Minister of the Interior.

The order also called for the reorganization of public powers, the suppression of large financial trusts, monetary reform and the confiscation of illegal profits, and the socialization of bank monopolies and sources of wealth. The Assembly will meet again on the 23rd of next month. (OWI)

SEIZURE OF MONTGOMERY WARD PROPERTY

WASHINGTON, December 29 — President Roosevelt ordered the Army to seize Montgomery Ward Company properties in Chicago and six other American cities yesterday, because of the company's long refusal to comply with War Labor Board orders for wage increases and maintenance of union membership. No physical or outward opposition was reported.

In his seizure order, the President said:

« Strikes in war time cannot be condoned, whether they are strikes by workers against their employers, or strikes by employers against their government. All of our energies are engrossed in fighting a war on the military battlefronts; we have none to spare, for it is up to us to uphold and strengthen our machinery for settling disputes without interruptions of production. We cannot do this in a total war if we permit defiance to go unchallenged. »

He added that the National War Labor Board has had the support of all responsible elements in American management and American labor for nearly three years. « It has been a vital element in the attainment of our unparalleled record of war production, » the President said. (OWI)

CATROUX PROPOSED AS AMBASSADOR TO U. S. S. R.

U.N.R.R.A. TO OPERATE INDEPENDENTLY

WASHINGTON, December 29 — Herbert H. Lehman, Director General of UNRRA, who recently returned after six weeks in London, told a press conference today that, after some months under the direction of the military, UNRRA is now on the threshold of its first major independent operation.

« The highest authorities of the supply and shipping countries are aware of this, » he said. « We are counting on them to provide us with the goods and the ships. We know they will give us the fullest support. »

In Greece, Lehman said, UNRRA workers are active in the Salonika and Patras areas on the mainland, and on the Aegean and Cyclades Islands. He said that, although 30 UNRRA workers had been withdrawn from the Athens and Piraeus area after seven were wounded, 40 still remain assisting the military in the operation of soup kitchens, hospitals, and other relief works. MOSCOW, December 29 — Tonight's communique:

During today, on the territory of Czechoslovakia, southeast of Lucenec, our troops with battles forged ahead and occupied the inhabited localities of Shik Shomak, Gvena, Sherek, Gaynicska, Jablontse, and Staraya-Bashta, and the railway station of Sheet.

Northeast of the Czechoslovakian town of Sahy, our troops, as a result of offensive battles, captured the inhabited localities of Malaya-Csalamiya, Hrastchintse, Lesince, Apatovce, Batarova, Nemitce, and Seleny.

Simultaneously, southwest of Sahy, our troops forcing the Hron River, seized a bridgehead on the western bank, with the populated localities of Nana and Parkan.

According to verified data, in the battle for annihilation of enemy groupings between the Ipel and Hron, during December 27 28, our troops captured over 6,000 German soldiers and officers, of whom 4,500 were captured during December 28 alone. The enemy left on the battlefield up to 5,000 corpses of his soldiers and officers.

In the area of Budapest, our troops, continuing battles for the annihilation of encircled groupings of the enemy broke into the western part of the city and occupied a few blocks.

Simultaneously, our troops fought successful battles for annihilation of the encircled units of the enemy in the mountain-wooded area of the Danube Bend, north of Budapest, and occupied the inhabited localities of Lielupalu, Tahtupostali, Dunabogdan, Vicsegrad, Pilisentlastla, and Pilisentlelek.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and, at several sectors, fighting of local importance took place.

During December 28, our troops disabled or destroyed on all fronts a total of 99 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 14 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 29 — Today's communique:

Enemy patrols are still active across the Maas River in Holland.

Along the northern flank of the German salient in the Ardennes section, enemy pressure between Stavelot and Hotton has decreased, and Manhay, Grandmenil, and Humain have been retaken after hard fighting.

An enemy attack between Hotton and Marche was repulsed with heavy losses to the Germans.

Farther west, the enemy force, which had been surrounded, was mopped up. More than 1,000 prisoners and much equipment, including tanks and vehicles, were taken.

Isolated enemy units are offering stubborn resistance in the area of St. Hubert.

Allied forces which made contact with our units in Bastogne have entered the town.

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, December 29 — Today's communique:

15th Army Group:

Fighting has died down in the Serchio Valley, and activity on the front of both the 5th and 8th Armies has been confined to patrolling.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Strong forces of escorted 15th USAAF heavy bombers yesterday bombed oil and rail targets in Germany, Austria, and Czechoslovakia. Escorting fighters carried out successful strafing attacks on enemy airdromes and installations.

Medium bombers attacked enemy communications in northeastern Italy and Yugoslavia.

Tactical aircraft bombed communications in northern Italy and close-support targets.

RAF heavy bombers, on the night of December 28/29, bombed in the vicinity of Casarsa, in northeast Italy.

Coastal Air Force attacked shipping in the northern Adriatic, and Balkan Air Force carried out sweeps over Yugoslavia.

In these operations, eight enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground. Eleven of our planes are missing.

MAAF flew approximately 2,600 sorties.

Simultaneously, southwest of Sahy, our troops forcing the Hron River, seized a bridgehead on the western bank, with the populated localities of Nana and Parkan.

According to verified data, in the battle for annihilation of enemy groupings between the Ipel and Hron, during December 27/28, our troops captured over 6,000 German soldiers and officers, of whom 4,500 were captured during December 28 alone. Isolated enemy units are offering stubborn resistance in the area of St. Hubert.

Allied forces which made contact with our units in Bastogne have entered the town.

To the southwest, we have reached the outskirts of Sibret, and to the south we have cleared Hompré and Salvacourt.

Heavy fighting is in progress in the woods north of Assenois.

Our units continue to advance along the southern flank of the salient, and have taken St. Lizrchamps, Surre, Boulaide, Bascheleiden, Bavigne, and Kaundorf.

We have crossed the Sure River near Esch.

Between Diekirch and Echternach, our patrols have reached the Saur River at three points, including Rosport.

Unfavorable weather yesterday caused a stepping-down of air attacks. Operations were directed mainly against rail targets. A small number of fighter-bombers attacked road and rail transport in northern Holland and the area south of the Ruhr.

Heavy bombers in great strength, with strong fighter escort, struck at railway targets between Cologne and Saarbrücken, including railway yards and bridges in the vicinity of Cologne, Bonn, Coblenz, Neunkirchen, and Kaiserslautern.

Fighter-bombers attacked railway targets at Bonn and München-Gladbach.

Light bombers attacked communications in the LaRoche area.

Activity in the Wissembourg area was generally limited to patrolling.

ADVANCE HQ, 15TH ARMY GROUP, December 29 — Today's communique:

On the night of December 18-19, a brigade of Patriots operating along Highway No. 9, southeast of Piacenza, destroyed three enemy vehicles and killed 20 Germans. The Patriots suffered no losses.

In the Udine-Treviso zone, Patriots are continuing to sabotage enemy lines of communication, and north of Venzone, on the night of December 5/6, they destroyed a locomotive and four railway wagons.

On December 13, near Castelfranco Veneto, a locomotive and three carriages loaded with war material were wrecked. In other zones of the Veneto, Patriot activity has been curtailed by heavy snowfalls (UNN)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 29 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Yesterday, grim fighting developed in all sectors of the Belgian-Luxembourg sector, but the situation generally remained unchanged.

Twenty-five of the 44 American divisions in this theater of war, it has been ascertained, are in this area.

In the Ardennes, between Stavelot and Marche, further progress was made, and counter-attacks were smashed at Rochefort.

Southwest and west of Bastogne, and on the Luxembourg Sauer, fresh American relief attacks failed to succeed against our defense. Only in some sectors, the enemy made local gains.

Yesterday, 36 enemy tanks and armoured reconnaissance cars were either captured or destroyed in grim fighting. Besides, formations of the Army brought down 50 enemy planes and cargo gliders on December 27 and 28.

Only encounters of local importance are reported from the other parts of the Western Front.

London, Liège, and Antwerp continued to be subjected to a long-range bombardment.

Naval:

Storm Vikings of the Navy, with their midget submarines and small weapons, have for days been striking at enemy shipping, dealing it heavy blows at the risk of their own lives, off the Scheldt Estuary. According to preliminary reports, enemy supply vessels totalling more than 40,000 tons were sunk.

Italy:

Yesterday, in the whole of central Italy, there was only minor fighting.

Northeast of Faenza, isolated British attacks collapsed in front of our positions.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, between Lake Balaton and the Danube, renewed Bolshevik attempts at breaking through collapsed in the defensive fire of our divisions.

North of the Danube, our troops crossed the Gran River without considerable losses, though it carried much ice.

The garrison of Budapest held the centre of the city against grim Bolshevik attacks.

South of the Slovak frontier, between the Eipel and the upper reaches of the Sajo, the enemy attacks were denied a notable success.

The same commentator admits that these Allied counter-attacks are « increasing in violence, » and are reinforced by « strong Allied air attacks against roads leading into the German area of penetration. »

Eastern Front: Apparently preparing the German public for the loss of Budapest, the correspondent Von Olberg tonight begins his daily report from the Eastern Theatre with the claim that from the « purely military viewpoint, » the « violent fighting for the city of Budapest is no longer of decisive importance in the present phase of events. » He predicts a bitter fight to the end, however: « The German and Hungarian troops holding out in Budapest will yield parts of the city district to the Soviets only at the price of the highest sacrifices in blood. »

Apart from Budapest, the « happenings in the western Hungarian area, between Lake Balaton and the Slovakian frontier, are commanding the greatest interest at this moment. »

Article by Goebbels: Tonight, the German Radio has broadcast the text of the weekly political article by the Nazi Minister of Propaganda. This week's article is devoted to a glorification of the Führer with an extravagance of diction reminiscent of the earlier days, when Führer worship was at its height in German propaganda. Aside from this revival of the mystic cult of the « Führer Principle », the Goebbels article has the purpose of refuting rumors concerning Hitler's indisposition or demise.

Hitler is « Truth Itself »: Here are extracts from Goebbels' description of the German Chancellor: « Never does he utter one word of falseness or baseness. He is truth itself. He emits an unceasing current of faith and steadfast will... He is far ahead of all others in visualizing things to come. He surpasses them not only in genius and political instinct, but also in knowledge, character, and will power... He stands alone in the frigid loneliness of genius. »

Hitler's Health: Here are claims and admissions (from the same article) concerning the much debated topic of the Führer's mental and physical health. The strain of the war upon him is admitted by Goebbels, who refers to Hitler's « sleepless nights » (described as spent in making momentous plans with his collaborators) and to « the slightly bent position of his head, » which is explained as being « due to his perpetual study of maps ... It would be foolish to attempt to state that five years of war have not left their mark on the Führer [because] his soul is too deeply connected » with Germany's sufferings.

Nonetheless, he « has not aged more during the war than other men bearing his burden [and can] afford to remain silent for months, while his enemies want to force him to speak in order to deduce his intentions from his words...

« He alone is unexplainable, the secret and myth of our people. »

They again destroyed numerous enemy tanks.

Yesterday, the Anglo-American terror flyers dropped bombs, particularly on localities in western and southern Germany.

Damage was again caused in the residential districts of Coblenz and Kaiserslautern, which for the last few days had been several times subjected to attacks.

In the early evening hours, British terror bombers attacked the western Reich territory. (Radio Berlin)

GERMAN

Western Front: The same shift from strong optimism to reserved caution, which commenced yesterday, in treatment of news from this front, is continued today.

Sertorius stresses the defensive, rather than the offensive, rôle of the new German forward wedge: « The battle in southern Belgium and Luxembourg has entered a new phase, in which the Germans are mainly concerned with checking the Allied flank attacks. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Southern Front: Today Friday, the Fascist Radio minimised the recent Italo-German attack on the American 5th Army sector. One commentator warned listeners not to over-estimate the attack, which is « of little more than local character; » on the other hand, he says that « offensive operations on a larger scale... » may be carried out.

The commentator claims that in the Faenza sector, Axis troops have once more frustrated the contemplated breakthrough; he admits, however, that there, as well as south of Bologna, there are indications that the Anglo-Americans are about to resume battle.

Dissolution of Employers' Federations: In Friday's press review, Pennino quotes an article by Enzo Magnardi of the Gazzetta del Popolo, hailing this latest decree of the Republic as a step by which « Fascism solves to the satisfaction of all concerned a problem which no other countries have been able to solve. It has been settled in Italy according to the interests and demands of the workers... » The writer claims that the Republic has now entered the phase of total socialisation where « capital becomes an instrument of production. »

Farinacci Death: Pennino ridicules the news of Farinacci's death as spread by « all enemy broadcasting stations ». « Farinacci », he says, « is alive and in excellent health. » He adds that the Allies are at a loss to find news items « other than those concerning the victories achieved by the Germans on the Western Front. »

CANADIANS LIBERATE ROSSETTA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 26 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army have occupied the village of Rossetta, on the east bank of the Senio River, after bitter house-to-house fighting, and have pushed on to within two miles of Alfonsine, German strongpoint on the Ferrara road nine miles northwest of Ravenna, it was announced here today.

Other 8th Army forces continued to clear enemy rearguards from the area east of the Canale Naviglio between Faenza and Bagnacavallo.

No large-scale actions were reported along the southern stretches of the enemy's Senio River defenses, where the situation remains unchanged.

On the 5th Army front, deep in snow, Christmas day was reported as quiet, although patrols were active in the Tossignano area south of Imola on the right flank, and enemy artillery, mortars, and Nebelwerfer batteries kept up their drumming fire. (PRO)

GERMANS FOUR MILES FROM MEUSE; TWO MAIN ENEMY COLUMNS LINK UP

LONDON, December 26 — German troops have cracked

On the basis of the most authentic reports, the German thrust into the 1st Army lines now forms a giant arc, roughly 33 miles wide at its base, and about 50 miles deep. The salient extends almost from the German to the French border, and from southern Belgium to the center of Luxembourg.

But the picture was not all bright for the Germans. The American garrison at Bastogne, outnumbered and supplied by air for several days, still held out, while a relief column to the south gained vital miles in its drive to join up with the garrison. German counter-attacks at Chaumont, six miles to the south of the besieged city, were repulsed, and the relief troops, in a gradually tightening arc, drove to within five miles of the city. Warnach, nine miles to the south, was taken. Northeast of Martelange, Arsdorf was also captured by the Americans, and Neuenhausen, 2 ½ miles to the northeast, is threatened.

Northern Flank Stabilized

On the Germans' northern flank, the situation around Monschau and Malmédy was officially reported to be «stabilized.» A large-scale tank battle on Christmas Eve near the town of La Gleize resulted in a decisive American victory. Despite repeated German counter-attacks, Stavelot, key American strongpoint on the northern flank, remains securely in Allied hands.

For the fourth day in a row, Allied air power went out in strength for German supply bases, communications lines, motorized columns, and troop concentrations. Yesterday a total of 4,000 Allied sorties were flown against strong German air opposition.

Other 1st Army units renewed their attacks against the German defenses to Cologne, based on the Roer River line. Two villages south of the enemy stronghold of Düren were captured.

On the 7th Army front, near Wissembourg and around Colmar, enemy attacks supported by artillery, aircraft, and infantry were reported yesterday. Nazis in the Colmar pocket launched several strong attacks, and heavy fighting is still in progress in the area.

One press report said that German patrols had crossed the Rhine northeast of Strasbourg.

Officials at SHAEF said that the present German counter-offensive had been conceived and planned by Adolf Hitler in the three months preceding the drive. Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt has committed two armies to the offensive, the officials said, including the 7th Infantry Army and the 5th Panzer Army. It is possible that another panzer army also is involved. The immediate German objectives were Liége and Namur, with a solid front along the Meuse between these two cities. So far, the German timetable has been upset, it was said, but continued heavy fighting is in prospect. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

GERMANS FOUR MILES FROM MEUSE; TWO MAIN ENEMY COLUMNS LINK UP

LONDON, December 26 — German troops have cracked open the American defense line which stalled their westward push for two days, and in two powerful thrusts west and northwest of captured Rochefort tonight were officially reported to be four miles from the Meuse.

The SHAEF announcement made to correspondents late this afternoon covered developments up to 48 hours ago. It revealed that, in addition to pushing toward the east bank of the Meuse, German columns were 12 miles from the Liége-Namur highway, and were threatening to overrun this vital supply route feeding the American base at Liége.

From Rochefort, the advancing German divisions struck 11 miles due west, and were last reported in the vicinity of Celles, four miles southeast of Dinant, which lies on the river bank. Another Nazi column thrust northwest of Rochefort, reaching Cinsy, eight miles northwest of Dinant on the Liége road.

As of Sunday night, the announcement said, advance Nazi spearheads were 50 miles inside of Belgium.

The serious implications of the German drive were pointed up earlier in the day, when SHAEF announced that the northern and center columns of the three-pronged Nazi offensive had linked up, eliminating the counter American salient that for 11 days held tenaciously to its positions on a narrow front to disrupt the German timetable. This occurred when the American garrison at St. Vith, far to the rear, was forced to withdraw.

On the Germans' northern flank, the situation around Monschau and Malmédy was officially reported to be «stabilized.» A large-scale tank battle on Christmas Eve near the town of La Gleize resulted in a decisive American victory. Despite repeated German counter-attacks, Stavelot, key American strongpoint on the northern flank, remains securely in Allied hands.

For the fourth day in a row, Allied air power went out in strength for German supply bases, communications lines, motorized columns, and troop concentrations. Yesterday a total of 4,000 Allied sorties were flown against strong German air opposition.

Other 1st Army units renewed their attacks against the German defenses to Cologne, based on the Roer River line. Two villages south of the enemy stronghold of Düren were captured.

On the 7th Army front, near Wissembourg and around Colmar, enemy attacks supported by artillery, aircraft, and infantry were reported yesterday. Nazis in the Colmar pocket launched several strong attacks, and heavy fighting is still in progress in the area.

One press report said that German patrols had crossed the Rhine northeast of Strasbourg.

Officials at SHAEF said that the present German counter-offensive had been conceived and planned by Adolf Hitler in the three months preceding the drive. Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt has committed two armies to the offensive, the officials said, including the 7th Infantry Army and the 5th Panzer Army. It is possible that another panzer army also is involved. The immediate German objectives were Liége and Namur, with a solid front along the Meuse between these two cities. So far, the German timetable has been upset, it was said, but continued heavy fighting is in prospect. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

BUDAPEST ENCIRCLED BY RED ARMY

MOSCOW, December 26 — Russian troops have completed the encirclement of Budapest, Moscow reported tonight. Tonight's Soviet communique said that troops of the 3rd Ukrainian Front had emerged at the River Danube and captured the town and railway station of Esztergom, thus severing the last escape line left to the German garrison in the Hungarian capital.

Up to noon today, correspondents reported, there was the chance that the German garrison might flee through this gap. Radio Budapest broadcast a frantic message that

LATE BULLETIN

PARIS BOMBED

PARIS, December 26 — Unidentified planes began bombing this city following an air alert sounded here tonight, an American press association reported.

Meanwhile, the Allied air war to choke off supplies to the Germans driving against the Western Front continued. Four hundred and four German planes defending the target have been shot down during four days. Today's total was 104. Allied air forces have flown nearly 15,000 sorties since Saturday in the all-out attempt to isolate the battlefield. (OWI) all lorries, cars, ambulances, busses, and other motor vehicles should report within one hour. « Drivers must bring with them their warm clothes and rugs, and food for three days, » the broadcast said; but the appeal came too late. Soviet forces swept round the city and assaulted it with an overwhelming land and air bombardment.

Russian tanks smashed through the German defenses and sped on with such speed that the defenders fled back toward the city, despite the order of the German commander, General Friesner, to his troops: « You must not take one step backward. »

The 3rd Ukrainian Front forces under Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin are reported in the communique to be fighting in the western suburbs of the city.

There is every evidence, correspondents stated, that Hitler has decided to sacrifice his forces in Budapest. The Germans counter-attacked bitterly.

Thousands of German and Hungarian dead and hundreds of smashed guns and fire-blackened tanks lined the roads to Budapest. One report stated that 14,000 Germans and Hungarians already have fallen on the roads leading to the city since last Thursday.

The Russian Army newspaper Red Star said that the Soviet advance in Hungary is hitting hard at the vital sources of Germany's war supplies. Two-thirds of Hungary's agricultural supplies and a considerable number of oil fields were lost, the paper said, when the Hungarian plains were overrun. Now Germany has lost the important metal industries and deposit of coal in northern Hungary, as well as the output of factories in Budapest.

The Red Army now holds a continuous line stretching more than 100 miles from northwest of Budapest down to the eastern shore of Lake Balaton. This line is on the move in great strength, exerting great pressure on the « back door of the Reich. »

Farther north, the Red Army has captured Salgo-Tartan, on the Slovak border, according to the Soviet communique.

On all sections of the Russian front yesterday, the Red Army destroyed or disabled 48 German tanks and shot down 27 enemy planes. (OWI-Reuter-Radio Moscow)

MANILA AREA HIT 4 TIMES IN 5 DAYS

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 26 — A communique issued tonight from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters stated that land-based heavy bombers, in the fourth American air assault on the Manila area in five days, dropped 45 tons of bombs on Clark Field yesterday. Thirty-nine of 50 interceptors were shot down.

Mopping-up operations continued on liberated Leyte, the communique stated. A total of 899 Japanese were killed and 14 captured yesterday, compared with seven American dead and 21 wounded.

A Pearl Harbor bulletin stated that between 16 and 25 Japanese aircraft struck the airstrips of the Superfortress base on Saipan Island, in the Marianas, on Christmas Eve, destroying one American plane and damaging several others. Three of the enemy attackers were shot down by fighters, and a fourth by anti-aircraft fire.

Capture of the port of Palompon on Leyte's west coast by the U.S. 77th Division yesterday officially closed the campaign begun on this island a little more than two months ago, General Douglas MacArthur announced.

Japan's Greatest Defeat

With Japanese casualties totalling 113,221 and Japanese plane losses in the Philippines at 2,748 since October 20, when the U.S. landing was made, General MacArthur said General Tomoyuki Yamashita, the enemy commander here, had [illegible] the greatest defeat in the annals of the

An enemy destroyer escort, a patrol craft, and a medium-sized landing ship were sunk by U.S. Navy warships. Coastal defenses were shelled by surface units which encountered some enemy gunfire but suffered no damage. Liberator bombers, with Lightning fighters as escort, bombed and strafed the airport strips and shore defenses. One enemy plane was destroyed on the ground and six others damaged, the communique said.

Only two enemy fighters attempted to intercept the attacking planes, and some anti-aircraft fire was reported. All American planes returned safely.

On the same day, bombers also hammered Chichi Jima in the Bonins to the north of Iwo Jima. The airstrips were the major target. Marine fighter planes swept over Babelthuap Island in the Palaus group, setting several buildings afire, and Marine and Navy bombers continued neutralizing attacks on isolated enemy bases in the Marshall Islands. Japanese staging points, airfields, shipping, and supply depots throughout the southwest Pacific were also attacked. (OWI-Reuter)

BRITISH DRIVE DEEPER INTO BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, December 26 — Allied troops advancing out of northern Burma have made gains in the east, west, and center of their front, which stretches from the Bay of Bengal across to the China frontier, it was announced in a communique from Southeast Asia Command headquarters today.

In the center, the British 14th Army is pressing on to Yeu, railroad town on the Mu River, 70 miles northwest of Mandalay. An earlier advance of 10 miles toward Yeu by forward elements of the 14th Army was reported.

To the east, British troops who, for the first time, have broken into central Burma, are also thrusting toward Mandalay. They are keeping up their advance southwest of the Irrawaddy island town of Tigyiang, which was captured three days ago.

Near Burma's west coast, 250 miles southwest of Shwegying, Allied troops poured artillery and machine-gun fire against Japanese troops aboard sampans on the Mayu River, which flows into the Bay of Bengal near Akyab.

Chinese troops on the Salween front are within 12 miles of Wan ing, at the China-Burma border, in their drive down the old Burma Road.

The Supreme Allied Commander in Southeast Asia, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, has made a trip to the Arakan front.

During his trip, he addressed British and African engineers who had just completed a Bailey bridge across a river, telling them they were now the pursuers of the retreating Japanese.

Mountbatten's Christmas Message

In a Christmas message to his troops, Lord Louis said:

« The war is going our way, and we are surely and relentlessly breaking the Japanese grip on Burma. I have no wish to conceal the dreariness of our task. Much hard fighting and hard night marching lie before us. We are a long way yet from the end, and the foe is still strong and aggressive, but we know that the end is sure.

« I can assure you that the needs of this theater are now priority number one, and that after the German defeat, much greater resources will be made available as quickly as possible. »

Ten Mustang fighters of the 14th USAAF destroyed 38 Japanese planes, 37 on the ground, in an attack on Tsinan airdrome in Shantung Province on Christmas Eve.

With Japanese casualties totalling 113,221 and Japanese plane losses in the Philippines at 2,748 since October 20, when the U.S. landing was made, General MacArthur said General Tomoyuki Yamashita, the enemy commander here, had sustained perhaps the greatest defeat in the annals of the Japanese Army.

American losses were 11,217. Of these, 2,623 were killed, 8,422 wounded, and 172 are missing. A breakdown of the Japanese losses showed 54,338 abandoned dead; 18,500 estimated dead and not yet collected, including those buried by the enemy; 493 prisoners; 30,000 estimated lost at sea in the 10 convoys attempting reinforcement, and 9,890 naval fatalities in the crews of the 41 transports and 27 warships sunk.

A communique announced five days ago that all integrated Japanese resistance on Leyte had been ended with the destruction of the Yamashita Line, and that only scattered elements remained in isolated strongpoints.

The U.S. 77th Division captured Palompon by an amphibious movement from Ormoc. The landing in the enemy's rear took the Japanese completely unawares. Caught between this force and one advancing overland from the east, the Japanese were unable to offer resistance.

At Mindoro Island in the Philippines there was little enemy activity either on the ground or in the air, the communique said.

Climaxing 17 consecutive days of continuous attacks on Iwo Jima, an island in the Volcano group, B-29 Superfortresses based on Saipan combined with ships of the U.S. Pacific Fleet in a coördinated sea and air assault on the island on Sunday, a Pacific Fleet communique announced.

Ten Mustang fighters of the 14th USAAF destroyed 38 Japanese planes, 37 on the ground, in an attack on Tsinan airdrome in Shantung Province on Christmas Eve. Four other enemy planes were reported probably destroyed.

Other American air action over northern and central China included the destruction of more than 14 locomotives on Japanese-operated railways northeast of the Yellow River. Five enemy planes were destroyed in the course of these operations, which took place on December 21 and 22.

Other Mustangs were reported to have struck at shipping in Hong Kong harbor on Christmas Eve, sinking a large tanker and probably sinking four others. Two enemy fighters were shot down.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press said that Chinese sources declared today that all civilians have been ordered to quit Japanese-occupied Nanking as a result of recent American air attacks and the fear of further attacks.

Shanghai, also in the hands of the Japanese, was reported to be suffering from a severe coal shortage, as the American bombers had destroyed half of the available supply, and many factories there had been forced to close.

Mobile Chinese units attacked Japanese positions north of Hengyang, seizing large quantities of supplies and inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy, a Chinese High Command communique reported yesterday.

Other Chinese units, going over to the offensive, attacked Japanese positions west of the Chuansien railway. (OWI - Reuter - BBC)

BOMBERS ATTACK SILESIAN REFINERIES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 26 — Escorted heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today hammered again at the Oswiecim, Blechhammer, and Oderthal synthetic oil refineries in continuation of the campaign to blast every available oil producer in the Silesian coal basin, it was announced here late this afternoon.

Instrument target identification techniques were employed to locate all three of the refineries, two of which, Blechhammer and Oswiecim, have been heavily damaged in recent attacks. The vital oil sources were covered by protective smoke screens, which obscured observation of results but did not interfere with the instrument identification of the target.

The importance of the instrument bombing technique was emphasized by the statement in today's reports that of the two oil refineries most severely damaged in the intensive 15th USAAF campaign against German oil sources within range of Italy-based bombers, neither had been attacked visually for the past month or two.

Heavy bombers of the 15th USAAF today attacked also the Avisio and Ora bridges on the Brenner Pass line in the first bombardment of this vital enemy communication line by heavy bombers since November 12. The location of this line in deep chasms amid towering Alpine peaks makes it a dangerous target requiring excellent weather and visibility.

Today's improved flying weather also allowed fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force to strike the heaviest blow in days against German rail targets, guns, fuel and ammunition dumps, and front concentrations in the Valley of the Po.

The five-day campaign of 15th USAAF heavy bombers against German oil resources in Upper Silesia and in the Sudetenland has heavily damaged four of the «big five» German synthetic oil refineries within range of Italy-based bombers, it was announced here today.

Damage at the Brux refinery, rated before the attacks as the largest oil installation in German-controlled Europe, was especially heavy, reconnaissance photos indicated. This refinery is in the Sudetenland.

The other four refineries lie in the coalfields in the Upper Silesian basin in both Germany and Poland.

Three of them, at Blechhammer (North and South) and at Oswiecim, were also heavily hit, with the intricate refinery installations cratered by direct hits.

Only the Oderthal refinery, near Blechhammer, escaped heavy damage. Two buildings in the installation were hit, however, and the reconnaissance pilots reported considerable activity in the plant grounds.

Yesterday, fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force, striking at German communications and front-line concentrations across Italy, cut enemy rail lines in 75 places, it was announced here today.

Heavy bombers struck at nine strategic targets in Austria and Germany, including the already badly-damaged synthetic oil refinery at Brux, in Austria, where some 20 enemy interceptors were sighted but did not engage the Allied bomber formations.

Rail yards and storage sidings at Wels, Roszwein, Plattling, Villach, Schwaz Graz, and Innsbruck made up the remainder of the day's targets.

Out of more than 1,600 sorties flown, 12 heavy bombers and five other aircraft failed to return. (PRO)

ITALY-BASED BOMBERS HIT REICH OIL SUPPLY

WASHINGTON, December 26 — One-fourth of Germany's oil supply came from the five plants hit by Italy-based American bombers between December 16 and 20, the War Department announced here tonight.

More than 3,500 tons of bombs were dropped on the targets, the announcement said. Heavy damage was reported to a synthetic oil production plant in Czechoslovakia, described as the largest in German-controlled Europe, while three other plants also suffered heavy destruction. The fifth synthetic oil plant was slightly damaged in the attacks. (OWI)

U.S.A.A.F. HITS RAIL TARGETS

LONDON, December 26 — Allied planes today, for the fourth successive day, pounded communications targets supplying the German offensive on the Western Front.

Britain-based 8th USAAF planes and the Continent-based 9th USAAF struck two marshalling yards in the Coblenz area and bridges on rail lines between Coblenz and Bonn.

In contrast to the past three days, during which Luftwaffe fighters defended German targets in bitter dogfights, today's returning American pilots reported little opposition, according to the Associated Press.

BBC described the Tactical Air Force's campaign to cut off communications from Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's push as the biggest air offensive in support of land forces since the Falaise Pocket, and reported that one German spearhead collapsed for want of fuel.

In the 2½ days ending last night, more than 12,000 sorties were flown against communications and concentrations immediately behind the battle area. Nearly 1,700 motor vehicles were destroyed and 6,000 damaged. Three hundred and ninety-nine enemy aircraft were shot down, and a large number of tanks were destroyed.

The 9th USAAF today added 22 to the total number of German planes brought down, according to an official announcement. Ninth pilots were also credited with destroying six tanks and 237 motor transports.

American and British losses up to last night were 198 aircraft, of which 55 were heavy bombers, 39 medium bombers, and 104 fighters.

The 8th USAAF'S 56th Fighter Group, which has been providing cover for the air campaign, in bagging 37 enemy planes Saturday, was the first 8th fighter group to destroy over 300 enemy aircraft, according to an official announcement.

R.A.F. Gives Close Support

Four hundred Britain-based Liberators and Flying Fortresses, with an equal fighter support, yesterday dropped over 1,500 tons of bombs on railroad bridges west of the Rhine and road and rail junctions close behind the battle-front.

From the Continent, hundreds of Mustangs and Thunderbolts swept over western Germany to attack forward enemy troops and vehicles pressing the American lines in Belgium. Forty-one tanks, including three Tiger Royals, and 80 other armored vehicles were destroyed.

The 19th TAF accounted for 282 vehicles and 11 tanks in yesterday's operations.

NAZIS REPORTED BUILDING DEFENSES IN N. ITALY

ZURICH, December 26 — Construction of heavily fortified defense strips 12 miles wide both north and south of the Po River Basin, in anticipation of an Allied drive in the spring to free all northern Italy, has been ordered by German military leaders, reports reaching here from northern Italy said today.

The reports said that the defense zones will stretch from near the mouth of the Po, near Comacchio, to Turin. In addition, the reports stated, in anticipation of the fall of Bologna, now within the range of Allied big guns, the Nazi military has ordered the laying of large minefields in the province of Emilia. Beyond these fields, other defensive positions are available in the hill country surrounding Modena and just north of Bologna.

The Swiss newspaper, Journal de Genève, carried reports today of the building of defense strips and laying of the minefields. (OWI)

800,000TH GERMAN CAPTURED IN WEST

WASHINGTON, December 26 — The 800,000th German prisoner to be taken on the Western Front since D-day was captured on Christmas Eve, the War Department announced tonight.

GERMANS WEAR ALLIED UNIFORMS

LONDON, December 26 — The Germans, in their current counter-offensive on the Western Front, have resorted to the use of bogus Allied credentials and British and American military uniforms, a Reuter dispatch stated today.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

A majority of the offenders have been captured, and a close watch is being maintained by the Allied military police. The Germans pretend not to know that wearing of the uniforms, under the terms of warfare, is an offense punishable by the firing squad.

The special German task forces filter behind American lines to kill American Army leaders, the Reuter dispatch stated. One unit consisted of some members who drove British command cars, while others were apparently dropped by parachute.

The American uniforms worn by the Germans are known to have been taken from captured American officers, the dispatch added. (Reuter)

DE GAULLE SPENDS CHRISTMAS AT FRONT

PARIS, December 26 — General Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Provisional Government, accompanied by French Minister of War André Diethelm, spent Christmas at the front in Alsace and the Vosges, dispatches said today.

WAR MAY BE LONG, KRUG SAYS

PHILADELPHIA, December 26 — The War Production Board is operating on the theory that the war in Europe may go on indefinitely, Julius A. Krug, head of the board, said here today.

Krug said that the German offensive against the American 1st Army sector is resulting in the destruction of much Allied equipment, causing a sizeable boost in American production requirements.

As an example of American plans for the future, Krug declared that new trench-mortar production plants, costing 200 million dollars, are soon to be built, but will not be ready for operation before next August. If the war ends before that time, he said, the money will be lost. But if hostilities are not over by that time, «as they probably won't be,» the new plants will save many lives, he added. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE THREE TOWNS

LONDON, December 27 — Yugoslav forces, after three days' intense fighting, have liberated three German-held towns in the Koprivnica area of northeastern Croatia, just south of the Hungarian frontier, according to a communique issued today by Marshal Tito.

The towns are Klostar, Kalnik, and Ferdinanovic, east and southwest of Koprivnica, which is on a spur of the main Zagreb-Belgrade railway.

German attacks launched from Gospic, 15 miles inland from the Adriatic coast, were repulsed by Yugoslav troops in southern Croatia.

In the upper Una River Valley, Yugoslav units took strategic points which had been barring entrance into the valley.

In northwestern Yugoslavia, other Yugoslav forces destroyed a German military train on the Maribor-Celje line into Austria, and set fire to one engine and eight rail coaches, killing 160 German soldiers, and capturing much food and ammunition.

In central Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito's troops halted a tank-led German attack striking northwest from Zenica in [illegible] the three-way road junction of

O'CONNOR NAMED TO NEW POST

NEW DELHI, December 26 — Lieut. Gen. Sir Richard O'Connor, who escaped from an Italian prisoner of war camp following the collapse of the Mussolini régime, has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Eastern Command of the Indian Army, it was announced here today. This is an administrative command covering the area of eastern India up to the Burma frontier. Before this appointment, General O'Connor commanded an armored corps with the British 2nd Army on the Western Front. (Reuter)

FRASER RETURNS TO AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, December 26 — Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander of the British Pacific Fleet, returned to Australia after a conference with Admiral of the Fleet Chester Nimitz, commander of the U.S. Pacific Fleet operations, in which they reached «complete agreement,» Radio Melbourne said today.

Admiral Fraser said that he would confer with General Douglas MacArthur as soon as arrangements could be made.

Operations of the British Fleet will be covered in communications from Admiral Nimitz' headquarters, and no separate announcements will be issued from British naval headquarters in Australia, Admiral Fraser said. (OWI)

TASK FORCE AIDED MACARTHUR

PEARL HARBOR, December 26 — In direct support of General Douglas MacArthur's Leyte and Mindoro Island landings, Vice Admiral John S. MacCain's fast carrier task force put 1,521 Japanese planes out of action, and sank or destroyed 89 enemy ships and damaged 92 others in the last two months, an American press dispatch said to-day.

During the same period, the task force losses were 104 planes. The enemy ship sinkings included two heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, three destroyer escorts, two large troop transports, five large freighters, and 19 medium freighters.

Japanese aircraft losses were 315 shot out of the air by planes, and 13 destroyed by ships' guns; 706 were burned on the ground by planes, and about 500 were damaged on the ground.

The task force's effectiveness in support of the landings, the dispatch said, lay in the fact that its blows cut off the Philippines from the Japanese Empire and Formosa during the period of the greatest danger to General MacArthur's troops. At the same time, they wiped out most of the enemy's northern Philippine air strength and shipping. (OWI)

HIROHITO SAYS WAR BECOMING CRITICAL

WASHINGTON, December 26 — Japanese Emperor Hirohito, in a message to the Japanese Diet in Tokyo today, warned his people that the war situation is «becoming critical.»

Without mentioning the significant American victory on Leyte, in the Philippines, in which an estimated 113,000 Japanese troops were lost, the Emperor declared: «The war situation is becoming more critical, and now is the time for all to devote their total effort truly to repel the enemy...»

Shifts in the Japanese command, meanwhile, indicated far-reaching enemy attempts to salvage what they can from the bleak war picture confronting them. General Korechika Anami, a vice minister of war before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and more recently with the enemy armed forces in the field, has been named Inspector General of Army Aviation and also a member of the Japanese War [illegible] Lt. WAR MAY BE LONG, KRUG SAYS

PHILADELPHIA, December 26 — The War Production Board is operating on the theory that the war in Europe may go on indefinitely, Julius A. Krug, head of the board, said here today.

Krug said that the German offensive against the American 1st Army sector is resulting in the destruction of much Allied equipment, causing a sizeable boost in American production requirements.

As an example of American plans for the future, Krug declared that new trench-mortar production plants, costing 200 million dollars, are soon to be built, but will not be ready for operation before next August. If the war ends before that time, he said, the money will be lost. But if hostilities are not over by that time, « as they probably won't be, » the new plants will save many lives, he added. (OWI)

YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE THREE TOWNS

LONDON, December 27 — Yugoslav forces, after three days' intense fighting, have liberated three German-held towns in the Koprivnica area of northeastern Croatia, just south of the Hungarian frontier, according to a communique issued today by Marshal Tito.

The towns are Klostar, Kalnik, and Ferdinanovic, east and southwest of Koprivnica, which is on a spur of the main Zagreb-Belgrade railway.

German attacks launched from Gospic, 15 miles inland from the Adriatic coast, were repulsed by Yugoslav troops in southern Croatia.

In the upper Una River Valley, Yugoslav units took strategic points which had been barring entrance into the valley.

In northwestern Yugoslavia, other Yugoslav forces destroyed a German military train on the Maribor-Celje line into Austria, and set fire to one engine and eight rail coaches, killing 160 German soldiers and capturing much food and ammunition.

In central Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito's troops halted a tank-led German attack striking northwest from Zenica in the Bosnia Valley toward the three-way road junction of Travnik. Ninety Germans were killed, and one tank and five trucks were destroyed. Travnik is 40 miles northwest of Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital, and on the rail line between Sarajevo and Split on the Adriatic.

Yugoslav troops in the Matsievo area of Montenegro, 10 miles above the northern tip of the Albanian border, killed 280 Germans and captured 26 machine guns, six guns, seven vehicles, and other enemy material.

An earlier communique said that Yugoslav forces repelled the Germans in an intense battle in the Bosna River Valley in northern Yugoslavia. (OWI)

TASK FORCE AIDED MACARTHUR

PEARL HARBOR, December 26 — In direct support of General Douglas MacArthur's Leyte and Mindoro Island landings, Vice Admiral John S. MacCain's fast carrier task force put 1,521 Japanese planes out of action, and sank or destroyed 89 enemy ships and damaged 92 others in the last two months, an American press dispatch said to-day.

During the same period, the task force losses were 104 planes. The enemy ship sinkings included two heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, three destroyer escorts, two large troop transports, five large freighters, and 19 medium freighters.

Japanese aircraft losses were 315 shot out of the air by planes, and 13 destroyed by ships' guns; 706 were burned on the ground by planes, and about 500 were damaged on the ground.

The task force's effectiveness in support of the landings, the dispatch said, lay in the fact that its blows cut off the Philippines from the Japanese Empire and Formosa during the period of the greatest danger to General MacArthur's troops. At the same time, they wiped out most of the enemy's northern Philippine air strength and shipping. (OWI)

HIROHITO SAYS WAR BECOMING CRITICAL

WASHINGTON, December 26 — Japanese Emperor Hirohito, in a message to the Japanese Diet in Tokyo today, warned his people that the war situation is « becoming critical. »

Without mentioning the significant American victory on Leyte, in the Philippines, in which an estimated 113,000 Japanese troops were lost, the Emperor declared: « The war situation is becoming more critical, and now is the time for all to devote their total effort truly to repel the enemy... »

Shifts in the Japanese command, meanwhile, indicated frantic reaching enemy attempts to salvage what they can from the bleak war picture confronting them. General Korechika Anami, a vice minister of war before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and more recently with the enemy armed forces in the field, has been named Inspector General of Army Aviation and also a member of the Japanese War Council. His predecessor, Lt. Gen. Michio Sugawara, is being « transferred. »

Lt. Gen. Noboru Tazoe was made director of the General Affairs Bureau of Army Aviation Headquarters, succeeding Maj. Gen. Saichi Terada. The two appointments were interpreted as part of a Japanese effort to increase aircraft production and to counter the increasingly serious American Superfortress attacks on Nipponese industrial centers.

Meanwhile, U.S. Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal at a press conference here today said that the American plans for an unceasing heavy offensive against Japan have not been disrupted by enemy air attacks. Forrestal acknowledged that American naval forces in the Philippines area have suffered some damage, but said that announcements are delayed because « we do not wish the Japanese to know what ships they have hit, nor to what extent vessels have been injured, nor how soon they may be back in action. »

Forrestal pointed to the American landings on Leyte and Mindoro islands, in the Philippines, as concrete examples of American naval and air superiority in the areas.

« In spite of all the Japanese have been able to do, both with their navy and with their land-based aircraft, we, and not they, are winning the campaign for the Philippines, » he declared. « We now dominate the waters around those islands and the air over them, » he added. (OWI-BBC)

HEROIC STRUGGLES OF 14TH ARMY TOLD

LONDON, December 26 — The heroic struggles of the British 14th Army, which smashed the Japanese plans for the invasion of India, and how they were maintained on the war's most difficult front and under the worst possible conditions, were revealed to-day in the service paper S.E.A.C. Souvenir.

More than a half million men lived and fought in the jungles. How they ever existed there is one of the miracles of the war, the newspaper said. The major job was the feeding of 500,000 soldiers, plus 300,000 Chinese laborers. The Quartermaster's section planned to have its own farms totalling 18,000 acres, situated well forward. One such farm in Manipur was so well forward that it was overrun by the Japanese. A factory for salting fish and a brewery were established, but it still was necessary to bring in by rail, air, and water 1,800 tons of food daily.

Fourteenth Army drivers kept 50,000 vehicles moving along incredible jungle and mountain roads through dust storms, monsoons, and mud.

During the great battles of Imphal and Kohima, 30,000 non-combatant troops were flown out of Imphal, as were 30,000 casualties. Two and a half divisions, with all their equipment, were flown in, and almost as many more replacements, as well as 50,000 tons of supplies.

The hospital supply was staggering. Wounded men were borne sometimes 10 miles by stretcher through jungles, over mountains, and across torrents. They were carried out to rear area hospitals by mule, jeep, sampan, barge, hospital ship, truck, train, and aircraft.

All along this terrible, merciless front, hospital personnel earned the admiration of all ranks and the undying gratitude of the wounded. If there were 27,000 wounded in great battles, there were 10 times that number of malaria and dysentery cases. The curse was cut in halves by building up malaria discipline. (Reuter)

LABOR LEADERS BACK WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE

ROME, December 26 — The Italian General Confederation of Labor will support the Italian Women's Union request for inclusion of prospective women voters' names on electoral lists. This support was pledged in an interview given a UNN reporter here today by the Confederation's three secretaries.

Achille Grandi, of the Christian Democratic Party, said: "Italian women, because of their attachment to religious principles and to the family, constitute a guarantee for a healthy moral, economic, and political society."

Giuseppe Di Vittorio, Communist, said the inclusion of women in the election lists would provide "evidence of the announced intention to grant Italian women voting rights." It would be a humiliation for Italian democracy, he added, if women were excluded from the first free elections to be held in Italy since the fall of Fascism.

CONGRESSWOMAN ATTENDS CHILDREN'S PARTY

FLORENCE, December 26 — More than 700 children of Florence were given gifts of toys and sweets at a Christmas Day party organized here by personnel of the Allied Command. Present at the party was Clare Boothe Luce, American Congresswoman.

Local Allied officials have raised an additional 100,000 lire for the purchase of gifts to be distributed within the next few days. (UNN)

WALDENSIANS SEND RELIEF TO FLORENCE

ROME, December 26 — Representatives of the Waldensian churches, leading Protestant church group in Italy, with 90 congregations, have sent 100,000 lire to Florence for immediate relief among their co-religionists, it was learned today.

The funds were sent to Florence through the coöperation of Chaplain Frank W. Sprague, Protestant chaplain of the U.S. Army Air Corps, who visited Florence. Chaplain Sprague said the funds went for the support of two Waldensian orphanages, one caring for 40 boys and the other for 25 girls. Part of the funds also went for relief of a home for the aged, badly damaged by German shell fire, and for a number of Protestant ministers in need.

Chaplain Sprague said the money was raised among the Italians themselves, members of the two Waldensian congregations here. (UNN)

ALLEGED INFORMER ARRESTED

ROME, December 26 — Lazzaro Montelone was arrested here today on charges of having denounced to the Germans Professor Gustavo Sacerdote, well-known Socialist formerly associated with the old newspaper, Avanti!.

Police are looking for Gualberto Rigucci, in connexion with the same charges.

The two men are accused of having written to Nazi and Italian Fascist authorities in January, 1944, that Professor Sacerdote, who had left a Fascist concentration camp, was hiding with his wife, two sisters-in-law, and some well-known Communists at the Palazzo Massimo.

According to the police, Rigucci was prompted to inform on Professor Sacerdote because he wanted the professor's apartment. (UNN)

CHURCHILL OPENS DISCUSSIONS IN ATHENS; PLOT AGAINST SCOBIE HEADQUARTERS FOILED

ATHENS, December 26 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden who arrived here late yesterday, opened discussions today with Greek Government officials and EAM representatives. The Prime Minister was accompanied by Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean Theater, and Harold Macmillan, British Resident Minister in the Central Mediterranean. Also attending the discussions are Rex Leeper, British Minister to Greece, and Premier Georges Papandreou.

Disclosure of Mr. Churchill's and Mr. Eden's presence in the Greek capital came at a time when the struggle between British forces under Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie and ELAS (National Liberation Committee militia) was approaching a climax.

EAM representatives were especially invited by General Scobie and they were brought to the conference in British armored cars under safe-conduct terms.

It was also announced here today that the Archbishop of Athens, the Metropolitan Damaskinos, had consented to preside over a conference involving representatives from both sides.

A British patrol on a routine check-up today discovered almost a ton of dynamite hidden in a sewer just a few feet from the Grande Bretagne Hotel, headquarters for General Scobie and the Greek Government.

The discovery was made shortly before the Prime Minister and Mr. Eden were scheduled to confer this afternoon with Greek leaders from both sides, press dispatches stated. The explosives were wrapped in burlap bags, and wired so as to be detonated from a distance. British scources stated tonight that they thought the dynamite had been placed by ELAS forces, and that it apparently had been placed in the sewer some time last night after the arrival of the British leaders had been announced.

In connexion with the conference, high-ranking British officials stated that the discussions would be primarily a Greek affair, and that British participation would be limited to a speech by Mr. Churchill. A late press report tonight said that British tanks were in action in Omonias Square this afternoon about the time that the conference was scheduled to begin. Elaborate precautions have been taken to keep the exact whereabouts of the conference a secret.

General Scobie said today that throughout yesterday bitter fighting continued in this area and the port of the Piraeus. British reports said that paratroopers operating west of the Acropolis had retaken the gas works, and cleared out more ELAS troops from the half of the city still under ELAS control. British forces have also strengthened their hold on the Athens-Piraeus road it was stated today.

Answering an urgent request, rocket-firing Beaufighters yesterday destroyed a group of factory buildings on the outskirts of this city where ELAS forces were grouping for a counter-attack. British forces were 200 yards away when the Beaufighters came over and launched 30 rockets into the buildings and then resumed the attack with cannon fire. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

GERMAN PUSH BASED ON WISHFUL THINKING

LONDON, December 26 — German hopes that their current counter-attack on the Western Front will obtain a negotiated peace from the Allies are doomed to frustration, President Eduard Beneš of Czechoslovakia told his people in a broadcast from here on Christmas Eve. Beneš said:

«The Allied powers will carry on this war united and without respite until Germany's complete military defeat. The longer the war continues, the greater Germany's catastrophe.

«Leading German circles knew Germany was facing disaster, but hoped that, by prolonging resistance for another few months, they could obtain favorable peace terms. All these calculations are fictitious and wishful thinking.»

As proof that the Allies intend to bring the war to a harmonious and comman peace, Dr. Beneš cited the fact that the recent French-Soviet Pact was patterned after the Anglo-Soviet and the Czechoslovak-Soviet pacts.

He described the present war as «a powerful political and social revolution,» and said that Europe cannot return to the status of 1933. He added:

«Changes will take place everywhere, in some places lesser, elsewhere greater, depending on the régimes' political behavior since 1938. Consequently, in all of the liberated contries a struggle for new conditions is manifest, in the course of which those responsible for Fascism and Nazism have to be punished.»

Beneš added that Czechoslovakia, like the rest of Europe, could not return after Germany's defeat to what it was in 1938. He said that his country would have a new constitution and a decentralized administration with regional Czechoslovak and Ukrainian administrations joined in a national front government (OWI)

FRENCH JOURNALIST GOES ON TRIAL

PARIS, December 26 — Henri Beraud, 59-year-old French journalist, was scheduled to appear before a Paris court today on a charge of intelligence with the enemy.

A violent anti-British journalist, Beraud in June of this year published a small book defending his anti-British and anti-Semitic views. He was arrested by FFI men on the day General Charles de Gaulle entered Paris. Beraud is charged with having denounced one of the outstanding men in the resistance movement, Abel Glasberg, who saved hundreds of Jews from the Gestapo by his organization for producing false identity papers. (The National Association of Manufacturers' News said yesterday that top Government officials expect Russia to withdraw from Lend-Lease at the end of the commiitments. The NAM pubblication predicted AMTORG, Soviet Trading Agency, will take over all Russian buying and selling in the United States.)

Stettinius said there was no truth in the report, and added that shipment of supplies to the USSR under terms of the protocol now being negotiated has been continuing since 1 July 1944, even though the document is not actually signed. When the protocol will be completed is a matter of speculation, he said.

He pointed out that the proposed fourth protocol, like the third signed in October, 1943, is quadrilateral, involving Canada and Great Britain, as well as the United States and Russia. MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 26 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy.

Northwest of Ravenna, Canadian troops of the 8th Army have occupied Rossetta and are within two miles of Alfonsine.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

North of Faenza, all enemy resistance east of the Canale Naviglio is virtually at an end.

On the 5th Army front, activity was confined to patrols.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Medium forces of the 15th USAAF heavy bombers with escort yesterday attacked an oil refinery at Brux, Germany, and a number of rail yards in Austria.

RAF heavy and medium bombers flew supply missions to Yugoslavia.

Light bombers and Intruders of the Tactical Air Force on the night of December 24/25 attacked enemy supply lines in northern Italy.

Medium bombers carried out a successful attack yesterday on the Treviso railyards in northeast Italy.

Fighters and fighter-bombers concentrated against enemy communications in the Po Valley, and immediately behind the battle areas, as well as giving close support to the ground forces.

Many rail cuts were effected, and enemy road and rail transport were destroyed.

Four enemy aircraft were destroyed on an airfield near Milan.

Aircraft of the Balkan Air Force attacked enemy road transport in northeastern Italy.

In these operations, four enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground.

Seventeen of ours are missing.

MAAF flew more than 1,600 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

Our troops have made further progress in Athens and Piraeus, and large areas are now cleared. The issue of meals to the civilian population within these areas is progressing on a correspondingly wider scale.

In Epirus, General Zervas' troops continue to fall back under increasing pressure from ELAS forces.

There is nothing to report elsewhere in Greece. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 26 — Today's communique:

Allied forces in Holland have encountered enemy patrol activity along the Maas River north of Tilburg and in the Venlo area.

South of Düren, we pushed forward into the village of Winden, where fighting is still going on against strong opposition, and we cleared Obernaubach one mile farther south.

In the Monschau-Malmédy sector, following a quiet day, the Germans launched an attack in the evening with armor and infantry near Bullingen. This was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Our troops cleared La Gleize, three miles northwest of Stavelot.

Malmédy, Stavelot, and Stoumont remain in Allied hands.

In the area northwest of Lierneux, our troops made a slight withdrawal and the enemy reached Grandmenil, a few miles west.

More enemy paratroops have been dropped in the area a few miles west of Stavelot and north of Beauraing, five miles southeast of Givet. All these were mopped up.

The enemy's supply and reinforcement routes in and behind the battle zone were objectives for heavy, medium, and light bombers.

Rail bridges and road and rail junctions in the battle area were attacked by medium forces of escorted heavy bombers.

Road junctions at Münstereifel, in the Bitburg area, and at Vianden were attacked by medium and light bombers. At the latter place, a fuel storage depot was also hit.

Rail bridges at Konz Karthus, Taken, Keuchingen, as well as rail facilities in the S. Vith area and at Wengerohr, and communication centers at Hillsheim and Ahutte, were also attacked by medium and light bombers.

Farther south, medium bombers went for the rail bridge at Singen, while fighter-bombers attacked locomotives and rolling stock in the region of the upper Rhine.

In the Colmar area, fighter-bombers gave close support to our ground forces.

Seventy-eight enemy aircraft were shot down yesterday.

Thirteen heavy bombers, seven medium and light bombers, and 43 fighters are missing. Some of the fighters are believed to have landed in friendly territory.

Ground patrols were active in the Wissembourg area, and along the Rhine.

Nothweiler and Schweigen were shelled by enemy artillery.

North of Colmar, our troops reëntered Bennweir. (Reuter)

Four enemy aircraft were destroyed on an airfield near Milan.

Aircraft of the Balkan Air Force attacked enemy road transport in northeastern Italy.

In these operations, four enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground.

Seventeen of ours are missing.

MAAF flew more than 1,600 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

Our troops have made further progress in Athens and Piraeus, and large areas are now cleared. The issue of meals to the civilian population within these areas is progressing on a correspondingly wider scale.

In Epirus, General Zervas' troops continue to fall back under increasing pressure from ELAS forces.

There is nothing to report elsewhere in Greece. (PRO)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 26 — Today's communique:

Allied forces in Holland have encountered enemy patrol activity along the Maas River north of Tilburg and in the Venlo area.

South of Düren, we pushed forward into the village of Winden, where fighting is still going on against strong opposition, and we cleared Obernaubach one mile farther south.

In the Monschau-Malmédy sector, following a quiet day, the Germans launched an attack in the evening with armor and infantry near Bullingen. This was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Our troops cleared La Gleize, three miles northwest of Stavelot.

Malmédy, Stavelot, and Stoumont remain in Allied hands.

In the area northwest of Lierneux, our troops made a slight withdrawal and the enemy reached Grandmenil, a few miles west.

More enemy paratroops have been dropped in the area a few miles west of Stavelot and north of Beauraing, five miles southeast of Givet. All these were mopped up.

Rochefort has been occupied by the enemy and enemy pressure has been increasing east of Hotten near Rochefort, and near Marche.

Bastogne is still held by our forces, despite heavy pressure.

The enemy launched an attack with tanks and infantry near Marvie and, after making gains southwest of Bastogne, now holds Rosclère and Libramont.

Along the southern flank of the enemy penetration, gains have been made and enemy attacks repulsed.

Fighting is still in progress near Chaumont, and we cleared the enemy from Warnach.

Ground has been gained just north of Bigonville and in the areas of Neunhausen, Heiderscheid, and Arsdorf, which has been cleared of the enemy. German attacks near Heiderscheid and at Kehmen were repulsed.

Progress was also made south and east of Diekirch, where we took Mostroff, and south of Echternach, despite enemy counter-attacks.

Air operations were continued yesterday on a large scale.

Ground targets in the battle area, including motor transport, armor, strongpoints, and gun positions, were attacked throughout the day by fighter-bombers.

Ground patrols were active in the Wissembourg area, and along the Rhine.

Nothweiler and Schweigen were shelled by enemy artillery.

North of Colmar, our troops reëntered Bennweir. (Reuter)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 26 — Today's communique:

Enemy attacks against Ottone, in the Emilia region of Piacenza, have been effectively repulsed by Patriots.

Nazi-Fascist troops are concentrating at Perino, in the Noceto area and at Collecchio and Fornovo. The Bobbio-Marsaglia road is at present under enemy control.

Bitter fighting is now going on between Patriots and the enemy in the Piedmont region.

In the Langhe Hills, the enemy suffered 800 casualties, including 300 killed and 500 wounded. Patriot losses were also heavy. The Germans carried out reprisal actions against the civilian population.

According to an unconfirmed report, Patriots are said to have removed 1,200 pairs of shoes destined for Germany from a wholesale shoe business in Milan. (UNN)

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 26 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

In the West, the focal point of the fighting moved to central Luxembourg.

The enemy, having brought up fresh forces which he had to remove from other front sectors, tried to smash our southern wing in order to relieve his forces encircled in the Bastogne area. The enemy attacks were frustrated in grim fighting, and the ring around Bastogne was tightened.

West of the Ourthe, our spearheads advance after having repulsed numerous enemy counter-attacks.

Since the start of our attack in the West on December 16, more than 700 American tanks or armoured vehicles were either captured or destroyed, according to incomplete reports.

Yesterday, German fighter squadrons again engaged strong enemy fighter formations, and prevented them from accurate bombing.

Yesterday, the Anglo-Americans lost 44 planes by the action of German fighters and anti-aircraft batteries. Fast German bombers struck effectively at the enemy communications in areas near the front by day and night.

In Lorraine, our troops, in powerful forward thrusts, captured the Blies region east of Sarreguémines [Saargemünd]. They also recaptured the fort of Schiessack, which had been fiercely contended, in a surprise attack.

In upper Alsace, east of Kaysersberg, grim local fighting is in progress.

Yesterday, Liége and Antwerp were subjected to a bombardment.

Italy:

In central Italy, the fighting was limited to some unsuccessful British attacks in the Romagna.

Northwest of Ravenna, an enemy reconnaissance detachment was routed.

In Hungary, the grim defensive fighting continues. While the Bolsheviks, west of Budapest, succeeded in advancing northwest and northward, their attacks launched from an easterly direction on the bridgehead failed.

North of the Eipel and on the lower reaches of the Zagyva, the enemy continued to exert strong pressure.

At Gross-Steffelsdorf and east of Kaschau, our divisions repelled all Soviet attacks, with bloody losses to the enemy.

Yesterday, 22 enemy planes were shot down over the Hungarian theater of war.

From the Beskides up to the Memel, only reconnaissance and shock detachment activities were reported.

In Courland, the enemy extended his attacks up to the region north of Vainode. As at the previous focal points, south of Frauenburg and north of Doblen, he did not achieve any notable success.

Patrol boats of the German Navy set an enemy motor assault boat on fire off the coast of western Norway.

Again on Christmas Day, the Anglo-Americans continued their terror attacks on localities in western, southern, and southeastern Germany.

In western Germany, enemy planes flying at a low altitude bombed and machine-gunned the civil population.

of affairs is said have been immediately taken advantage of by the Germans; in the Saar region for instance, where they have already managed to establish several bridgeheads on the western bank of the river.

Battle of Hungary: — The Transocean correspondent Blücher writes from this front that the situation has become even more critical in the last 24 hours, especially round Budapest. While admitting that the Soviets have gained some ground southwest and northwest of the capital, he claims that the Germans have succeeded in preventing Soviet spearheads from joining between Lake Balaton and Budapest.

They also foiled an attempted break-through 30 kilometres northwest of Szekesfehervar. The Soviets, however, are, according to Blücher advancing northwest of the great Danube Bend.

Churchill and Eden in Athens: « The same Churchill », writes Dr. Siegfrid Horn, DNB diplomatic correspondent, « who only recently stated that the honor of the British Empire would be at stake if it entered into talks with street-robbers and gangsters, » has now arrived in Athens to negotiate with « this mob ». Horn also believes that the chaotic situation in Greece, as well as political opposition in England, have forced Churchill to take personal charge of Greek affairs. Churchill is said to be greatly concerned about political coöperation between the United States and Soviet Russia in the Eastern Mediterranean. All in all, Horn considers that the Churchill-Eden visit to Athens will probably result in further concessions to Moscow and prove to be an additional symptom of weakness and impotence on the part of the British Empire.

A spokesman of the Wilhelmstrasse made a statement to Transocean along the same lines.

American Losses: « Well-informed » quarters are quoted by Transocean as stating that the losses suffered by the Americans during the first week of the German offensive amount to no less than 150,000 to 180,000 men, corresponding to between eight and ten divisions.

Eisenhower's Responsibility: Transocean quotes the London correspondent of the Stockholm paper Expressen as stating that military quarters, as well as the public, are now frankly critical of Eisenhower's strategy. Dissatisfaction is felt over the « demotion » of Field Marshal Montgomery from C-in-C of all land forces to the command of an army group. It is, however, considered unlikely that Montgomery will replace Eisenhower, as this would further ruffle relations between Britain and the United States. Alexander would be looked upon as another possible candidate for the post, it is said, if his hands were not full with the revolt in Greece and the war in Italy.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

The Anniversary of Fiume: Both Spampanato of Radio Fante and Pennino of the Fascist Radio press review recall the Christmas day 25 years ago, when D'Annunzio defied the Allies, the King of Italy, and even the Italian Navy by bombarding Fiume. Pennino quotes a newspaper article which draws the conclusion that the Allies will not now treat a defeated Italy any better than they did the victorious country of 25 years ago.

Fascist Confederations dissolved: By a decree published in the official gazette, the Duce has dissolved all Fascist confederations of industrialists, agriculturists and tradesmen, and of credit insurance companies. In accordance with the plan for the economic reconstruction of the Social Republic, the above confederations to be absorbed in the general confederation of labor, technique, and arts.

Western Offensive: After stating that American counter-attacks against the flanks of the German offensive wedges have been warded off, the Transocean correspondent Walter Plato says that authoritative German circles reckon that these assaults have not yet reached their climax, and that extremely heavy battles may be expected. The same circles, however, believe that Eisenhower does not possess sufficent reserves in depth to man the fighting zone and that, unless he decides to wait for reinforcements from England he may be forced to draw troops from other sectors. « Situation in Budapest Critical. » The commander of the Budapest garrison has made this admission, while imposing further restrictions on and uttering further threats against the inhabitants of Budapest. There is to be a curfew from 1700 hours. SNOW BLANKETS ITALIAN FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 25 — A heavy fall of snow which blanketed the Italian Front from the Ligurian Coast across the Apennines to the lowlands at the Adriatic end of the Lombardy Plain yesterday stilled the activity of Allied Armies on the eve of the Christmas holiday.

With a snow mantle from three to eight inches in depth, only a few lone patrols broke the quiet of the long front. Temperatures were below freezing nearly everywhere along the battle line, reports from the front indicated.

In action Saturday, Canadian troops of the 8th Army cleared stubborn German forces from barricaded positions in the Rossetta area south of Alfonsine and the Ravenna-Ferrara road. Advance in this hotly contested sector was still painfully slow, with roads heavily mined, and enemy mortar and machine-gun fire intense.

In the sector north of Faenza, where Allied forces are gradually reducing the enemy salient east of the Senio River, 5th Army forces Saturday cleared the enemy from the entire area south of Pieve di Cesato, on the Lamone River five miles northeast of Faenza.

Patrol forces of the 8th Army again Saturday crossed the Senio River, principal German delaying position across the Po Plain, in the area south of Imola.

Although enemy forces have concentrated artillery and Nebelwerfer batteries in this sector, the patrols, including Polish troops, penetrated nearly a mile north of the River, to the Monte Ghebbio area, 4½ miles south of Imola.

On the 5th Army front, a patrol clash near Monterumici, midway between the Reno and the Savena Rivers, and just west of the main Florence-Bologna highway 12 miles south

While fighting slackened off slightly, correspondents said that both sides were pouring reinforcements and armor into the battle sector. The Germans are continually probing at the western reaches of their huge salient, and today's communique reported tanks and troop carriers moving into the area between Marche and Rochefort, eight miles southwest of Marche. Other heavy enemy attacks in the sector were reported to have been held. Marche is about 30 miles inside the Belgian border, and is one of the deepest points reached by the Nazis.

Stavelot, an American strongpoint holding the enemy's northern flank, is continually being subjected to German attacks, and heavy artillery duels are being fought in the area. More Nazi parachutists were dropped north and northwest of Stavelot, but were quickly rounded up by the Americans. In Bastogne, a surrounded American garrison, which has been holding out for several days, threw back all Nazi attacks. The town is 16 miles northeast of German-held St. Hubert. Some American gains were registered, and Chaumond, six miles south of the town, was cleared as a relief column fought its way toward the encircled garrison. Martelange, on the Bastogne-Arlon road, also has been partly cleared, and the Americans are three miles northeast of the town.

For the third day, the Allies were able to make their overwhelming air power felt in the heavy fighting. This afternoon, the 8th USAAF sent 400 Flying Fortresses and Liberators over Germany to hit road and rail bridges and junctions on the main German supply routes. An equal number of fighters accompanied the bombers. Clear weather was reported over most of the targets.

The attack followed the unprecedented blasting yesterday delivered against German key positions by over 2,000 heavy bombers, escorted by 900 fighters. Targets were 11 German airfields in the Frankfurt area, and communications and supply centers behind the Nazi front.

A Reuter dispatch estimated that 7,000 sorties were flown yesterday by the Allies, and that 11,000 tons of bombs were dropped.

In two days' air battles on Saturday and Sunday, the Germans lost a minimum of 326 planes. Allied losses in the same period are tentatively estimated as 86 bombers and 77 fighters.

The cost of this great air onslaught to the enemy continues to mount. No official figures have been released, but BBC reported that a minimum of 900 vehicles, including a number of armored cars, have already been knocked out by one attacking air force. One Thunderbolt formation alone was responsible for the wrecking of a fuel-supply column of 100 vehicles. (OWI-Reuter - BBC)

AMERICAN LINES CONTINUE TO HOLD; FLANK ATTACK GAINS ON 25-MILE FRONT

LONDON, December 25 — Unyielding American lines and one of the heaviest air onslaughts of the war combined today to stall the German push through the 1st Army front, and to frustrate Nazi hopes of presenting the German people with a major Wehrmacht victory as a Christmas gift.

For 48 hours, no important Nazi gains have been reported in front-line dispatches, although Rundstedt's troops continued to throw heavy attacks against the Allied lines. Yesterday's official announcement from SHAEF that the break-through attempt had been slowed almost to a halt, at least temporarily, still sounded the keynote of the present battle picture.

Regrouped American forces on the German southern flank were reported in correspondents' dispatches to have attacked on a 25-mile front north of the city of Luxembourg. Referring to this push, today's SHAEF communique said that there is fighting at Consdorf, 15 miles northeast of Luxembourg City, while other clashes were reported west and northwest of Diekirch, also in Luxembourg. Heidershied, eight miles southeast of Wiltz, taken by the Germans in the first surge of their offensive, has been recaptured, while further progress was officially reported a few miles west of Diekirch.

Stavelot, an American stronghold holding the enemy's northern flank, is continually being subjected to German attacks, and heavy artillery duels are being fought in the area. More Nazi parachutists were dropped north and northwest of Stavelot, but were quickly rounded up by the Americans. SOVIETS INCREASE THREAT TO VIENNA

MOSCOW, December 25 — Two great battles — each vitally linked with the fate of Vienna — are being fought tonight on the southern sector of the Eastern Front. Northwest of Budapest and within less than 100 miles of the Austrian capital, Russian troops are advancing up the Hron River, last natural barrier before the Austrian border, after decisively defeating a German armor attack against their flank.

LATE BULLETINS

LEYTE CAMPAIGN CLOSED

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 25 — The Leyte Island campaign has been closed, General Douglas MacArthur announced here tonight. The fighting ceased two months and five days after the initial landings on October 20.

General MacArthur said:

"General Tomokyuki Yamashita has sustained perhaps the greatest defeat in the military annals of the Japanese Army." (OWI)

NAZIS MAKE ADDITIONAL GAINS

LONDON, December 26 (Tuesday) — The Nazis have made additional gains southwest of Bastogne, and now hold Vaux les Rosiers, six miles southwest of Bastogne, and Libramont, six miles west of Vaux les Rosiers, it was reported late tonight in a press dispatch. (Reuter)

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

West of besieged Budapest, Soviet tanks and infantry, with mobile guns, are attacking and shelling the outer defenses of the city now almost completely surrounded. Other Red Army forces are striking for the Danube River north of the city in a bid to cut the German garrison's last escape route to the northwest.

Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's troops of the 3rd Ukrainian Front already have the two highways leading north and northwest from Budapest under heavy shell fire.

With the steady surge of the Russians, the margin of safety for the Germans still holding out in the city has vanished. Press dispatches tonight stated that the complete encirclement of the city appears imminent. (Reuter)

NIMITZ PAYS SURPRISE VISIT TO GUAM

GUAM (THE MARIANAS), December 25 — Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander of the Pacific Fleet, making a surprise Christmas visit to his forces in this forward area, told correspondents yesterday: «Until we have bases closer to the Japanese homeland, the tougher part of the war will still be ahead of us.» He added, in part:

«I don't want to give the impression that the Japanese Navy has been completely defeated. It has not, but it has not been able to stop our advance. We hope and expect that our advance will continue.

«As the war progresses, the supply problem grows, and the need for shipping increases. All this combines to make it a very major effort to defeat the Japanese.»

Declining to make any predictions regarding the immediate future, Admiral Nimitz said that Japan's means for defending herself had not been reduced.

«We may expect the most bitter opposition from the air as we advance to the homeland, and come within range of shore-based aircraft. They still have the capacity to deal damage with surface units, but we hope to be on hand always with superior naval forces to meet that kind of a threat.»

The admiral added that the Japanese Navy had not attempted counter-attacks since its defeat in the second battle of the Philippine Sea, «because it has been kept too busy by American forces in areas west of here.»

Meanwhile, a U. S. War Department communique said that all the Superfortresses which early yesterday made their second strike at Iwo Jima, Japanese-held island midway between Japan and Saipan, returned to their Saipan base after causing «heavy explosions on military installations.»

The Superfortresses were preceded Saturday by Liberators, based on the Marianas, which struck at Iwo Jima for the 16th consecutive day. Two Japanese interceptors came up, but offered only slight resistance.

From his Philippine headquarters, General Douglas MacArthur announced today that the 77th Division, pressing westward, is rapidly closing in on Palompon, last enemy stronghold in Leyte Island, in the east-central Philippines.

Fighters went in to support the advance with bombing and strafing. «Enemy resistance,» said the communique, «is weak and sporadic. Great quantities of enemy material are being captured, including hundreds of vehicles, trucks, tanks, heavy and light artillery, and thousands of tons of ammunition and construction equipment.

«Mopping up of the battle areas continues, and 2,640 of the enemy were killed during the day, and 28 captured.»

At Luzon, biggest and most northern of the Philippine group, escorted heavy bombers attacked Manila Airdrome, destroying an estimated 25 planes. There was no interception.

The communique also told of attacks on airdromes on

An American newsagency reported that in central China Allied bombers set afire three enemy oil dumps and damaged five parked Japanese bombers at Wuchang airdrome on the bank of the Yangtze River last Saturday.

Four intercepting enemy fighters were destroyed in other strikes against Wuchang and Hankow. Thirteen enemy aircraft were shot down during an air battle over Kukiang.

In a strafing attack on the Nanking waterfront on the lower Yangtze, American planes sank a Japanese naval vessel and a river steamer and damaged a cargo vessel.

A Japanese destroyer was sunk and a freighter damaged during attacks on Hong Kong last Thursday and Saturday. Six enemy aircraft were also shot down during these operations. (OWI-Reuter)

FIGHTER-BOMBERS ATTACK THIENE AIRDROME

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 25 — Fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday destroyed 15 enemy planes and damaged at least two others in an attack on the Thiene Airdrome, north of Vicenza in northwest Italy, it was announced here today.

Bad weather restricted air operations to approximately 125 sorties.

No Allied planes were lost. (PRO)

NAZI SUPPLY LINES ATTACKED AGAIN

LONDON, December 25 — Continuing the air blows against German armor and supply centers on the Western Front, 800 American planes, including 400 heavy bombers, today attacked railroad bridges west of the Rhine and road and rail junctions just opposite the bulge driven into the U. S. 1st Army's lines by Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's offensive.

Escorted by Mustangs and Thunderbolts, the Britain-based fleet of Flying Fortresses and Liberators dropped 1,500 tons of explosives on Nazi supply arteries. Most of the bombing was visual, U.S. Strategic Air Force headquarters said, indicating the good weather had continued at least into part of today. Crews reported good results.

At least 29 German planes were shot down in aerial combats by the American force, it was officially announced. Anti-aircraft fire generally was meager to moderate, and there were only a few scattered attacks on the bombers by German fighters.

RAF fighter squadrons were over Germany this afternoon, and one squadron damaged two military trains near Coblenz, it was officially announced.

One or two jet-propelled German fighters appeared, but did not attempt to engage.

Damage was reported from German air activity against southern England during last night.

BITTER FIGHTING IN YUGOSLAVIA

LONDON, December 25 — Forces of the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation yesterday continued to attack German troops endeavoring to retreat to the north in the Srem sector, causing heavy casualties, a communique from Marshal Tito's headquarters said today.

In Montenegro, Patriot troops liquidated several enemy strong points in the Matosevomojkovci district, and continued their offensive.

In Slovenia, a large bridge was blown on the communications line from Ljubljana to Kranj, and the line was cut in many places.

Elsewhere in Yugoslavia, many German counter-attacks were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy in men and

«I don't want to give the impression that the Japanese Navy has been completely defeated. It has not, but it has not been able to stop our advance. We hope and expect that our advance will continue.

«As the war progresses, the supply problem grows, and the need for shipping increases. All this combines to make it a very major effort to defeat the Japanese.»

Declining to make any predictions regarding the immediate future, Admiral Nimitz said that Japan's means for defending herself had not been reduced.

«We may expect the most bitter opposition from the air as we advance to the homeland, and come within range of shore-based aircraft. They still have the capacity to deal damage with surface units, but we hope to be on hand always with superior naval forces to meet that kind of a threat.»

The admiral added that the Japanese Navy had not attempted counter-attacks since its defeat in the second battle of the Philippine Sea, «because it has been kept too busy by American forces in areas west of here.»

Meanwhile, a U. S. War Department communique said that all the Superfortresses which early yesterday made their second strike at Iwo Jima, Japanese-held island midway between Japan and Saipan, returned to their Saipan base after causing «heavy explosions on military installations.»

The Superfortresses were preceded Saturday by Liberators, based on the Marianas, which struck at Iwo Jima for the 16th consecutive day. Two Japanese interceptors came up, but offered only slight resistance.

From his Philippine headquarters, General Douglas MacArthur announced today that the 77th Division, pressing westward, is rapidly closing in on Palompon, last enemy stronghold in Leyte Island, in the east-central Philippines.

Fighters went in to support the advance with bombing and strafing. «Enemy resistance,» said the communique, «is weak and sporadic. Great quantities of enemy material are being captured, including hundreds of vehicles, trucks, tanks, heavy and light artillery, and thousands of tons of ammunition and construction equipment.

«Mopping up of the battle areas continues, and 2,640 of the enemy were killed during the day, and 28 captured.»

At Luzon, biggest and most northern of the Philippine group, escorted heavy bombers attacked Manila Airdrome, destroying an estimated 25 planes. There was no interception.

The communique also told of attacks on airdromes on the Visayas, Mindanao, and the Moluccas — where nearly 300 tons of bombs were dropped — and other attacks on much-bombed Rabaul and Bougainville. (OWI-Reuter)

BRITISH PUSH DEEPER INTO CENTRAL BURMA

KANDY, CEYLON, December 25 — Troops of the British 14th Army yesterday advanced 10 miles toward Yeu, while in the central Burma sector Allied troops continued their advance southward from Kokogon, approximately 18 miles from recently-liberated Tigyiang on the Irrawady, said today's communique from SEAC headquarters.

In the northern combat zone, troops of the Chinese 30th Division yesterday occupied two villages about two miles south of the Namkham road near Daitik.

Allied heavy bombers last night attacked the railway yards at Phu Laang Thoung, northeast of Hanoi. Other Allied planes damaged or set fire to 70 river-craft on the Irrawaddy.

Planes of the 13th USAAF destroyed, probably destroyed, or damaged a total of 49 Japanese planes, and sank two enemy ships in the China Theater last Thursday, it was announced yesterday.

Troops in both southern Kwangsi Province, where Nanning airfield was attacked, and in the Wanting area in Burma, which was under attack by Chinese forces, were supported by Allied planes.

Bad weather restricted air operations to approximately 125 sorties.

No Allied planes were lost. (PRO)

POPE ATTENDS GIFT DISTRIBUTION

ROME, December 25 — Early this morning, Pope Pius XII left Vatican City to attend a Christmas day distribution of gifts to children of war refugees, in the main auditorium of the Pontifical Gregorian University here.

The Holy Father, on entering the hall, was surrounded by a throng of happy, eager children who made a striking background for the ascetic-looking white-robed figure of the Pontiff. The Pope spoke briefly, and imparted his benediction to the children.

Last night, Pope Pius celebrated what is believed to have been the first pontifical Christmas Mass ever to be said in the Basilica of St. Peter. Prior to 1870, the Popes celebrated the Mass in the Basilica of Santa Maria Maggiore; before that, the Mass was sung in the Popes' private chapel. During recent years, Christmas was observed by His Holiness in private prayer.

An estimated 50,000 people, including 15,000 Allied soldiers, jammed all available space in St. Peter's Basilica last night. Special transportation arrangements were made to facilitate attendance of the faithful at the history-making ceremony, and by midnight the approaches to St. Peter's Square were jammed with motor vehicles.

When the huge gates of the Basilica swung open, at 2200 hours, the crowd which had gathered in the square began to pour into the aisles of the church. By midnight, the great temple was filled to capacity, and thousands were turned away disappointed.

His Holiness descended into the Basilica at 2330 from the Paolina Chapel. He was met by the cardinals and priests attached to St. Peter's, and proceeded to the Bernini Canopy, where he celebrated the mass.

In celebrating last night the first midnight Christmas Eve mass at St. Peter's since the German occupation of Italy, the Pope gave communion to members of the Vatican City diplomatic corps, members of his own family, and Roman notables — some 300 persons in all.

The Polish Ambassador to the Vatican — as dean of that diplomatic corps — received the sacrament first. Among later communicants was the wife of the Japanese Ambassador, although the Ambassador himself did not take part. All other members of the Japanese Embassy to the Holy See also were present, as were the German Ambassador and his secretary; the latter two, non-Catholics, did not receive communion.

An American officer among those who received the sacrament at the hands of the Pope was Col. Joseph J. Davidson, chief of the Headquarters Placement Command.

Also among the communicants served by the Pope were members of the Ethiopian College.

When Pope Pius concluded, his place at the communion table was taken by Mgr. Ferreti, the chief chaplain of the Italian Army. (UNN)

ROME CHILDREN GET CHRISTMAS PARCELS

ROME, December 25 — Some 12,000 Christmas packages, each containing two garments, a kilo of pasta, a toy, candy, and fruit, were distributed today by workers of the High Commissioner for Refugees in Rome, and at Cesano, a town not far from the capital.

Twelve hundred similar parcels were distributed by members of the Italian Women's Union throughout the organization's clubs in the city. (UNN)

ATHENS ARCHBISHOP APPEALS TO GREEKS

ATHENS, December 25 — Archbishop Damaskinos, Metropolitan of Athens, who has been suggested as a regent, today made a moving Christmas appeal to the Greek people to stop the present struggle and cast away their arms.

The Archbishop was the leader of resistance during the German occupation, and he reminded his people how willingly he exposed himself to danger then, and how that gave him the right to appeal to them.

The yoke of slavery had been lifted from the Greek people with the help of their Allies, the Archbishop said, but, instead of uniting, they have become slaves to passion, and now struggle for political advantage. « Thus, » the Archbishop said, « we have produced a situation that holds great dangers for the destiny of our country.

« We are in danger of losing all the moral gains of four years of struggle at the side of our Allies, » he added.

Meanwhile, a BBC correspondent here said today there is no lull in the fighting, and British forces have cleared ELAS men from more of the city and the port of Piraeus. It was reported yesterday that British troops control

The King said: « At this Christmas time, we think proudly and gratefully of our fighting men, wherever they may be. We have rejoiced in the victories of this year, not least because they have brought nearer the time when we can all be together again with those we love.

« We do not know what awaits us when we open the door of 1945, but, if we look back to those earlier Christmases of the war, we can surely say that the darkness grows daily less. The lamps which the Germans put out all over Europe, first in 1914, and then in 1939, are being slowly rekindled. Let us hope that, before next Christmas Day, God willing, the story of liberation and triumph will be complete. »

The King went on to say that the defeat of Germany and Japan was only the first half of the task. The second was to create a world of free men, untouched by tyranny.

« We have great allies in this arduous enterprise of the human spirit, » he said. « I believe most surely that we shall achieve it. »

Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, in a message from Chungking, called upon the world to « make no truce with evil, » and said that a victorious end to the war against aggressor nations is « almost at hand. »

Chiang said: « The insane rapacity of Japan has brought unspeakable horror and misery. This is true of all the past eight years but particularly so this year. Yet nowhere in this suffering world is there greater confidence than among the Chinese people that the end of this era of conflict is at hand. »

The American commander in China, Maj. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, in a Christmas message to Chiang for the Chinese people, resolved to wage war so effectively that « we shall bring an early end to the strife in China. »

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 25 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Winter conditions, with a heavy fall of snow, have confined the activity on the front of the Allied armies in Italy to patrols.

Land Forces Greece:

British troops cleared a further area north of the road between Phaliron and Piraeus.

Stiff opposition continues to be met on the north side of the harbor.

Recruiting of the National Guard is progressing well. Approximately 10,000 men are now under arms.

In Epirus, General Zervas' forces are facing increasing numbers and further withdrawals have been made toward the coast.

Elsewhere in Greece, the situation is unchanged.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Tactical Air Force fighter-bombers Sunday attacked an airdrome at Thiene, north of Vicenza, in northeast Italy, destroying 13 enemy aircraft and damaging two others on the ground.

Other Tactical fighters attacked a small number of rail and motor transport in the Po Valley.

Bad weather seriously curtailed operations during the day.

Meanwhile, a BBC correspondent here said today there is no lull in the fighting, and British forces have cleared ELAS men from more of the city and the port of Piraeus. It was reported yesterday that British troops control practically the entire southern half of this city.

In northwest Greece, ELAS guerrillas have forced the right-wing EDES forces to withdraw to a peninsula on the coast.

Associated Press reported that RAF Beaufighters blasted ELAS forces concentrations with rockets and cannon fire today in the northern suburbs here, while artillery fire was heard resounding in the center of the city.

The ELAS forces were reported to be using 37-mm. anti-tank guns as field artillery against the British perimeter of defenses, but their firing has become less frequent.

In the square 1,000 yards from British headquarters and around the American billet, heavy mortar and sniper duels raged. Sherman tanks made a series of raids on snipers' nests west of the square, the agency said.

Earlier, the British forces in Piraeus captured the main refrigerating plant for the capital area after a stiff fight, during which the plant was damaged. (OWI-Reuter-BBC)

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 25 — Today's communique:

The Monschau and Stavelot sectors have been relatively quiet, although both Allied and enemy artillery fire have been heavy. No further progress has been made by the enemy in these sectors.

The Germans dropped parachutists in small groups in several places in the area north and northwest of Stavelot. These are being dealt with.

Very heavy enemy attacks directed to the northwest in the areas of Hotton and Marche have been successfully held.

Enemy forward elements have moved westward, and tanks and troop-carrying vehicles have been reported between Marche and Rochefort.

There has been only ground activity in the area of Bastogne, but enemy pressure continues to be strong just southwest of the town. German tanks are in the vicinity of Rosière, seven miles southwest of Bastogne.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789021

Chaumond, about six miles south of Bastogne, has been cleared, and fighting continued near the town following an enemy counter-attack.

Farther to the south, Martelange, on the Bastogne-Arlon road, is half-cleared of the enemy and we have made gains to the vicinity of Bigonville, three miles northeast.

In the area west and northwest of Diekirch, our troops have cleared the enemy from Heidersheid. A German counter-attack launched with tanks and infantry near Tadler resulted in heavy fighting.

Further progress has been made by our forces a few miles west of Diekirch.

There have been no substantial changes in the area south and southwest of Echternach, where fighting is under way in the vicinity of Consdorf.

Allied air operations were continued in great strength yesterday. German armor, troops, fortified positions, and road and rail transport in and behind the battle area were hit by fighter-bombers operating from first light. Attacks were also resumed on the enemy's reinforcement routes.

Medium and light bombers struck at railheads and communications at Nideggen, Zülpich, and elsewhere in this area, while, farther south, bridges at Konz-Karthaus, Konz, and Trier were targets for other medium and light bombers.

Forty-four enemy aircraft were destroyed in the air in the course of these operations.

According to preliminary reports, 45 of our fighters are missing, but the pilots of two are safe.

More than 2,000 heavy bombers, escorted by over 900 fighters, attacked 11 airfields in the Frankfurt area and road and rail junctions, bridges, and supply centers from Euskirchen to Trier. Seventy enemy aircraft were shot down by the escorting fighters, and 18 by bombers. From incomplete reports 39 bombers and six fighters are missing, but some of them are believed to have landed away from their bases.

Yesterday afternoon strong forces of heavy bombers with fighter escort attacked two airfields in the Ruhr. In the evening, heavy bombers struck at railway targets at Cologne and an airfield at Bonn.

Enemy patrols which crossed the Rhine northeast of Strasbourg were repulsed.

North of Colmar, an enemy counter-attack forced a slight withdrawal of our forward elements at Sigolsheim.

Medium bombers striking deep into Germany attacked a bridge at Lanenargen on the north shore of Lake Constance, and hit railway yards at Emmendingen, north of Freiburg.

Night fighters shot down six enemy aircraft last night. (Reuter)

SOVIET

MOSCOW, December 25 — Tonight's communique:

During today, on the territory of Czechoslovakia, northwest and west of Sahy, our troops occupied in fighting the populated localities of Lerovce, Bukovce, Tuhovce, Pecnenitse, Dolni-Sambor, Batonce, and Sech.

In Hungary, southwest and west of Budapest, our troops, developing their successful offensive, occupied over 40 populated localities, including Erd, Nadseki, Diosz, Telesbaren, Budapeti, Pat, Ione, Iliszaba, Lienevar, Csolnok, Dab, Uni, Somor, Zhandek, Man, Csaszki, Zamol, and Moha, and the railway stations of Erd, Zinne, Lienevar, and Moha. Thus, our troops cut off all railway lines leading westward from Budapest.

According to preliminary data, during the offensive battles from December 21 to 24, troops of the 3rd Ukrainian Front west and southwest of Budapest have inflicted to the enemy the following losses in manpower and equipment — Destroyed: 106 aircraft, 291 tanks and self-propelled guns, 147 guns of various calibers, and 724 mortars; the enemy left on the battlefield over 12,000 of his soldiers and officers killed.

During the same period, our troops seized the following trophies: 154 aircraft, of which a large number need repairs, 21 tanks and self-propelled guns, 101 guns of various calibers, 127 mortars, 168 machine-guns, 5,468 German and Hungarian soldiers and officers were taken prisoner.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During December 24, our troops disabled or destroyed on all fronts 110 German tanks, 61 of them southwest of Budapest.

In aerial combat and by anti-aircraft fire, 37 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ITALIAN RESISTANCE FRONT

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 25 — Today's communique:

From 8th Army headquarters comes the announcement that from December 3 to December 6, Patriot groups, cooperating with advanced Allied elements in the Ravenna-Porto Corsini area, have killed 37 Germans and wounded 27 others.

It is reported that small detached German units are advancing on the snow-covered mountains between Pontrenoli and Tizzano, but organized Patriot groups hidden in the mountains are continuously laying traps for the enemy columns attempting to pass through the area.

According to an unconfirmed report, a workers' strike compelled the Germans to abandon the intention to carry off a dynamo at Vigevano. (UNN)

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 25 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Both sides threw fresh forces into the winter battle of Belgium. The enemy pressure exerted on northwestern Rhenania and the Saar Palatinate is tremendous. The enemy's attempts at breaking through toward the left banks of the lower Rhine have been frustrated.

Yesterday, another 25 Soviet tanks, and numerous other vehicles, fell victim to German bombers.

The German and Hungarian escort fighters brought down 19 Soviet planes.

At Budapest, our forces are engaged in grim defensive fighting against Bolshevik forces which penetrated into the area west of the town. At all points of the extremely grim fighting, the enemy suffered heavy losses.

Northwest of Budapest, the enemy was repulsed farther northward by counter-attacks of an Hungarian division.

ENEMY PROPAGANDA TRENDS

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 25 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Both sides threw fresh forces into the winter battle of Belgium. The enemy pressure exerted on northwestern Rhenania and the Saar Palatinate is tremendous. The enemy's attempts at breaking through toward the left banks of the lower Rhine have been frustrated.

The Americans, after yesterday's defeat, were unable to continue their relief attacks between Elsenborn and Stavelot.

In the Bastogne sector, our troops started a concentrated attack on the strong American forces which had been encircled in this area.

In central Luxembourg, the enemy continued his attacks on the southern flank of our wedge on a broad front with strong forces.

Between the Saar and the Rhine, our troops ousted the Americans from many localities, and pressed hard on the heels of the withdrawing enemy.

Antwerp and London continued to be subjected to the bombardment by our long-range weapons.

Italy:

In central Italy, in the mountains south of Imola, on the Naviglio, and on both sides of Bagnacavallo, the British attacked. Yesterday, they again made slight local gains, at the cost of high losses, despite an extensive use of material.

Eastern Front:

In Hungary, between Lake Balaton and Szekesfehervar (Stuhlweissenburg), Bolshevik attacks, supported by strong tank forces, were frustrated.

In this sector, a German tank corps, from December 21 to December 23, destroyed 216 enemy tanks.

Yesterday, another 25 Soviet tanks, and numerous other vehicles, fell victim to German bombers.

The German and Hungarian escort fighters brought down 19 Soviet planes.

At Budapest, our forces are engaged in grim defensive fighting against Bolshevik forces which penetrated into the area west of the town. At all points of the extremely grim fighting, the enemy suffered heavy losses.

Northwest of Budapest, the enemy was repulsed farther northward by counter-attacks of an Hungarian division.

In the Isthmus of Ipolysag, north of the Matra Mountains, and on both sides of the upper Sajo, grim fighting is in progress.

North of Gross-Steffelsdorf, our grenadiers recaptured several localities.

East of Kaschau, renewed enemy attacks, launched with strong forces and supported by bombers and concentrated artillery fire, collapsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

On the fourth day of the defensive battle in Courland, at the previous focal points north of Frauenburg and north of Doblen, our troops maintained their positions in the face of unsuccessful attempts of Bolshevik divisions at breaking through.

Air:

Yesterday, Anglo-American terror bombers and fighters flew on a broad front into western and southwestern Reich territory. Serious damage was again caused in the residential districts of Trier.

On Christmas Eve, the enemy launched fierce air attacks, particularly in the regions on both sides of the middle Danube.

Yesterday, according to incomplete reports, German fighters and anti-aircraft batteries of the Air Force brought down 87 enemy planes, 43 of them four-engined bombers, over the battle area and during raids on the Reich. (Radio Berlin)

CANADIANS REACH SENIO ON 6-MILE FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 23 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, exploiting their large-scale breakthrough of the German defenses along the Fosso Munio, have reached the Senio River, principal enemy delaying positions northwest of Bagnacavallo, on a six-mile front, it was announced here today.

Shearing through four German water-defense lines in this sector in little more than a week, the Canadian forces are encountering strong enemy resistance from the fifth line of prepared positions on the Senio's west banks, today's reports stated.

Canadian artillery and machine-gun concentrations laid down heavy fire on German sappers felling trees by light of flares, as enemy forces worked frantically to complete their defensive works, it was said.

Eighth Army forces now face the entrenched enemy along a 20-mile total length of the Senio River across the Lombardy Plain, broken only by a rapidly-dwindling enemy salient north of Faenza, and extending from south of Imola northeast to within little more than a mile of Alfonsine, German stronghold on the road to Ferrara.

Press dispatches reported tonight that a large tank battle was fought in the area of Wiltz before the Germans withdrew and pushed westward. German forces have surrounded the American strongpoint of Bastogne, while farther to the south, other German forces have advanced to the vicinity of Arlon, just west of the Belgian-Luxembourg frontier. The enemy has cut the important lateral communications highway midway between the two cities. Allied aircraft dropped supplies to the surrounded American forces at Bastogne.

This third German spearhead was reported by correspondents to have joined with the forces who captured Clervaux, northeast of Wiltz, and was said to present a serious danger to the Allied supply lines in Belgium.

There were no further official or press reports about the German force which reached Laroche, but a large-scale armored battle at Vielsalm, 10 miles west of St. Vith, was reported to have prevented this second German thrust's joining with German forces 15 miles to the north at Werbomont.

Front Slowly Being Stabilized

Suggesting that the situation on the Western Front was slowly being stabilized, Radio Paris reported tonight that German attacks against American positions at St. Vith had failed. Other reports stated that the north and south flanks of the 60-mile-wide German break-through were being held by American forces, and that enemy attacks had been thrown back with heavy losses.

German paratroopers are still being dropped in the rear of American lines. Many German soldiers are in American uniforms, and carry sulphuric acid to throw in the faces of their captors. Captured German forces said that their casualties had been very heavy, and Allied correspondents reported that American losses were serious. A number of American units, some as large as battalions, were still cut off.

Hundreds of heavy bombers and fighter-bombers attacked German armored columns today, as greatly improved weather conditions over the Belgian battlefront enabled the Allied air assault against the German offensive to get under way. Pilots' reports revealed that the Germans sustained heavy transportation losses, but that Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt was bringing up strong reinforcements.

The Germans reported that the British 2nd Army had begun to change its front to face the northern flank of the German penetration, and that American 3rd Army had

CANADIANS REACH SENIO ON 6-MILE FRONT

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 23 — Canadian troops of the 8th Army, exploiting their large-scale breakthrough of the German defenses along the Fosso Munio, have reached the Senio River, principal enemy delaying positions northwest of Bagnacavallo, on a six-mile front, it was announced here today.

Shearing through four German water-defense lines in this sector in little more than a week, the Canadian forces are encountering strong enemy resistance from the fifth line of prepared positions on the Senio's west banks, today's reports stated.

Canadian artillery and machine-gun concentrations laid down heavy fire on German sappers felling trees by light of flares, as enemy forces worked frantically to complete their defensive works, it was said.

Eighth Army forces now face the entrenched enemy along a 20-mile total length of the Senio River across the Lombardy Plain, broken only by a rapidly-dwindling enemy salient north of Faenza, and extending from south of Imola northeast to within little more than a mile of Alfonsine, German stronghold on the road to Ferrara.

Most of the German rearguards who still cling to the area east of the Senio River have now been pressed back into the narrow triangle of land between the river and the straight course of the Canale Naviglio southwest of Bagnacavallo. Mezzeno, 2 1/2 miles northeast of Faenza and to the east of the Canale Naviglio, has been occupied by Allied forces, it was reported.

On the 5th Army front, American troops were reported to have improved their positions in the Monte Belmonte area, just east of Highway 65 and at the entrance to the Savena River Valley, main approach to Bologna.

The American forces reported gains of 500 yards due north of this lofty peak, towering center position in one of the most bitterly contested enemy defense lines in the entire Italian campaign. American forces of the 5th Army captured Monte Belmonte on October 24, at the conclusion of a gruelling, hard-fought offensive which smashed through the heart of the Goth Line fortifications along the Apennine ridges.

In the following two months, there have been only minor changes in 5th Army positions in this crucial sector, within eight miles of Bologna's southern outskirts. (PRO)

THIRD GERMAN THRUST GAINS 25 MILES

Supreme Headquarters announced today that the first German spies captured in American uniform during the German offensive were court-martialed and executed before a firing squad today. The German group, consisting of one officer candidate and two non-commissioned officers, had been trained to impersonate Americans and had admitted they were assigned to intelligence duties.

The French National Council of Resistance ordered all Frenchmen to join in the manhunt for German spies and saboteurs, and to watch out for suspicious foreigners. The Belgian underground army is again in action, the BBC reported tonight. They are searching for German suicide squads dressed as civilians or in Allied uniforms, and are clearing roads of barbed wire and roadblocks.

On other sectors of the 400-mile Allied Front, forward positions remained unchanged. German patrols, 30 to 40 strong, were sent across the Meuse River in Holland during daylight hours to identify units of the British 2nd Army. Correspondents reported that the patrols were driven back at all sectors.

The American 3rd and 9th Armies stopped a number of strong German counter-thrusts against their forward positions. Third Army troops have been withdrawn from Ensdorf, an eastern suburb of Saarlautern.

RED ARMY REACHES IPEL RIVER

MOSCOW, December 23 — The Red Army continued to advance in Hungary today over difficult, wooded country, and captured a ring of villages in and around the thickly populated area of Trishikator, according to tonight's communique.

North of Budapest, following heavy gun barrages, the Red Army reached the shores of the Ipel River. On other sections of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

The Reuter correspondent here, Duncan Hooper, said tonight, that big news is expected from the hardening of the East Front during Christmas.

«Moscow victory guns may mingle with Christmas chimes. Official confirmation of German reports of the Russian offensive in the Baltic is still lacking. Competent military authorities believe that the annihilation of 30 German divisions around Libau must precede even greater things,» Hooper wrote.

Reuter reported tonight that the only part of northeastern Hungary still in German hands has been reduced to a small area south of Losoncz. Considerable enemy forces, the report said, are concentrated inside the pocket.

200 AIRCRAFT ON CLARK FIELD DESTROYED

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 23 — The Japanese Air Force suffered another heavy blow Thursday, when escorted American heavy bombers attacked Clark Airfield at Manila and destroyed or damaged 200 parked enemy aircraft and shot down eight out of nine Japanese intercepting planes over the field.

An announcement tonight from Pacific Fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor said that widespread air strikes were carried out against Japanese positions ranging from the Kuriles to the Marshalls. The attacks were made Wednesday and Thursday against Onnekotan in the Kuriles, as well as against Iwo Jima, Yap, Pagan, Oroluk, and the Marshall Atolls.

On Leyte Island, American forces are advancing on Palompon, last escape route open to retreating Japanese ground forces. United States forces already have pushed more than three miles beyond Ormoc Valley, mopping-up opera-

Elsewhere in Burma, Indian troops driving south in Arakan have occupied Kwazon, 18 miles southeast of Maungdaw, and are less than a mile from other Indian troops pursuing the battered Japanese retreating along the Burma coast.

A communique from United States headquarters in China said that American aircraft have attacked Japanese troop concentrations near Wanting, a China-India link town on the Burma Road near the Sino-Burmese border, which is already threatened by Chinese forces.

In China, Chinese troops have maintained their pressure against enemy positions at Hochih on the northern Kwangsi front. Enemy resistance has stiffened with the arrival of strong reinforcements.

American Superfortresses shot down more Japanese planes in a running 55-minute fight over Nagoya yesterday than the combined total in all the previous attacks on the Japanese Island of Honshu, an Associated Press dispatch said today.

Japanese air opposition was strong. More than 150 enemy fighters waited over the great Japanese aircraft center for the Allied bombers, but more than 24 single and twin-engined fighters were shot down without loss, and many more probably were destroyed or damaged, the dispatch added.

T.A.F. DESTROYS SIX BRIDGES

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 23 — Nearly 1,000 fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force dived through cloud openings yesterday to carry out one of their most effective blows in more than a month against enemy communications, transport, and front concentrations, it was announced here today.

In the course of the attacks, six road and rail bridges were destroyed, 72 rail cuts effected, and 20 locomotives, 130 rail cars, 129 vehicles, and 24 enemy guns destroyed or damaged in the Valley of the Po.

In continuing attacks on fleeing German columns in Yugoslavia, Balkan Air Force planes destroyed or damaged 67 other motor vehicles.

These fighter-bombers also attacked German concentrations on Lussin Island, one of the northernmost of the Dalmatian chain in the Adriatic.

Heavy bombers were unable to operate yesterday, owing to bad weather.

TRIER BOMBED AGAIN; LUFTWAFFE UP IN STRENGTH

LONDON, December 23 — Escorted RAF Lancasters again struck at Trier, picking out targets in this railway town. More than 400 American Liberators and Fortresses, backed up by 700 fighters, bombed marshalling yards and roads near Trier, Ehrang, just north of Trier, and Kaiserlautern, behind the 3rd Amy front.

Trier is one of the major German supply centers for their counter-offensive against the American 1st Army.

Both the RAF and American bomber forces met a strong challenge from the Luftwaffe over the battle area. Preliminary reports said that at least 55 German fighters had been shot down.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 789221

Thunderbolts escorting heavy and medium bombers on another mission shot down 36 enemy planes.

A headquarters spokesman said that 9th USAAF fighter-bombers in direct tactical support of the 1st Army destroyed 12 tanks and armored vehicles and 30 motor trucks. In another area of the front, the fighter-bombers knocked out eight tanks and 14 trucks.

In the Lancaster attacks on Trier today, markers were accurately placed and the target area soon was covered by a dense cloud of dust and smoke from bursting bombs, the Air Ministry said tonight.

Mosquitos of the 2nd TAF operating on the Belgium battle front last night attacked ammunition trains and dumps, it was officially announced today. One goods truck was blown up, while other targets included enemy transport on the road leading to the front.

WHITE CHRISTMAS ON WESTERN FRONT

LONDON, December 23 — A heavy snowfall along the Western Front has guaranteed a white Christmas for the Allied troops, but only in that respect will it be like the traditional Christmas.

Enough turkeys have arrived in France for all American soldiers, but most of the men in the line will eat the usual canned rations. The Germans, too, may well enjoy American turkey, for they have captured much material, and the booty probably includes many Yuletide items.

The Christmas dinner planned for each soldier of the British 2nd Army consists of canned chicken, fig pudding, a box of cigarettes, candy, and a small flask of rum.

Many British families will share their holiday rations with Americans far from home. In Birmingham alone, more than 500 Americans will be entertained in private homes.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA EXPLOITS OFFENSIVE

LONDON, December 23 — The German propaganda machine is exploiting the German offensive in the West to the utmost, according to enemy radio transmissions. Propaganda Minister Joseph Paul Goebbels insisted in his latest Das Reich article that the Allies are now threatened with having the tables turned, and said that the military events pointed to a German victory.

Although introducing a cautionary note in his article, Goebbels did not tell the German people what could happen if the offensive failed.

The German press and radio, however, after four days of jubilation, adopted a slight undertone of pessimism, according to neutral correspondents in Berlin. One indication of German anxiety was that the press formerly credited Hitler as personnally planning and leading the offensive but now avoids mentioning his name in connexion with the German thrust.

Two German papers today published long reports about the large forces which the Americans are expected soon to throw into battle. Neutral reports said that the Germans were paying special attention to several thousand Allied bombers which may be put into action at all points now threatened by panzers.

The Germans are also concerned with what they call « Rhinoceros » tanks, which the American 7th Army is reported to be using on an increasing scale, a German military spokesman said, adding that the Germans expect a large-scale attack against the Siegfried Line. (OWI)

BELGIAN REFUGEES ON MOVE AGAIN

BRUSSELS, December 23 — Thousands of Belgian refugees, fleeing from devasted homes left in the wake of Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's westward drive, are again moving over bleak, shelterless country to areas behind the great battle now brewing on the Western Front, a Reuter correspondent reported today.

There is no panic and no repetition of the 1940 spectacle when roads crammed with refugees held up operations. But for women, children, and old people seeking safety, this is a bitter mid-winter trek, the correspondent said.

Civilian transport has almost ceased to exist, but the Allies have given some transport for the movement of refugees. The majority, however, are moving westward in horse and dog carts, barrows, broken-down cars and lorries, and on feet that years ago last knew the feel of a real pair of leather boots.

WASHINGTON, December 23 — All active members of the Fatherland Front parties in Bulgaria were called upon yesterday by Bulgarian Premier Kimon Georgiev to help stamp out the remaining Fascist elements still attempting to provoke trouble and disorder and committing acts of sabotage, Radio Sofia said last night.

The Premier said at a press conference that a «serious Fascist threat» was not within the realm of possibility because Fascism had been «abhorred» by the majority of the Bulgarian people, but he warned the police and Fatherland Front authorities that they must increase their watchfulness. Georgiev added that, despite considerable but natural and unavoidable difficulties following the complete reversal of political feelings in the nation, efforts to establish order and legality had and continue to have favorable results. U. S. ENGINEERS COMPLETE AIRSTRIP

NEW YORK, December 23 — American Army Engineers completed an airstrip on Mindoro Island in 3½ days while fighting was still going on in the vicinity, an American correspondent said in a dispatch from the Philippines yesterday. Mindoro Island is only 150 miles south of the Philippine capital of Manila.

The correspondent wrote: «Between Saturday and Tuesday, a field overgrown with sugar cane was transformed into a first-class runway of more than 5,000 feet with the Americans and Australians working under the direction of a task force engineer who formerly commanded one of the first engineer units to land on New Guinea... «A swarm of Lightning and Thunderbolt planes landed on the completed strip Wednesday, five days after American forces landed on Mindoro... «In 60 minutes of combat over the new airfield, the Americans shot down at least 11 bomb-carrying Japanese fighters attempting to hit runways and naval installations... 750,000 U.S. SOLDIERS GIVEN HOME LEAVE

WASHINGTON, December 23 — Between 70,000 and 80,000 American soldiers are returning from overseas each month and more than 750,000 have come home on leave in the past three years, Secretary of War Henry Stimson disclosed yesterday.

He described the current rate as «no mean achievement», but added that it could not be stepped up till Germany's defeat.

Italian currency situation, strengthened by Allied aid, will be stabilized as soon as the liberation of Italy is completed, he added.

The Council of Ministers today approved the agreement reached between employers representing industry, agriculture, banking institutions, and insurance companies, and the Italian General Confederation of Labor, to grant employees a bonus equivalent to one month's pay.

According to another provision made by the Council, a bonus of 2,000 lire is to be given to all state employees.

Another measure passed calls for a 70 per cent increase in old age pensions and a 49 per cent increase in workers' compensation. (UNN)

MINISTERS SEND GREETINGS TO ITALIANS ABROAD

ROME, December 23 — Christmas greetings to Italians abroad and in northern Italy were conveyed today in messages by prominent Government and political figures, including Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi, War Minister Alessandro Casati, and Minister for Occupied Italy Mauro Scoccimarro.

Prime Minister Bonomi addressed his message especially «to our far-off brothers, who, scattered throughout the world, anxiously await the day of their return.»

«Italy looks upon these her sons», said Bonomi, «she knows they are suffering, and therefore loves them, and she knows also that they will be companions in the hard work of reconstruction and is anxious to see them take their places here.

«To hasten their return, the war must be won, and therefore the best way to express our affection for them is to fight for victory.»

War Minister Alessandro Casati, addressing his message to the Italian Patriots, said, in part:

«Christmas finds you united in bitter struggle with the German oppressor.

«The new Italian Army has recaptured the heroic spirit of the Risorgimento, and, aided by generous supplies from the Allies, will soon be able to strike heavy blows against the foe.

«More than ever, in this moment does the spirit of all Italy's fighters turn to those who have the honor of bearing arms.

«In the hearts of these young Patriots — and the veterans of the Piave — burns brighter to-day than ever the light of hope — hope in supreme victory and the country's future.»

The Minister for Occupied Italy, Mauro Scoccimarro addressed his message especially to those «volunteers of freedom who, in the Alps and plains of the North, fight to free their motherland from the German and Fascist foe, and ask no more than to be able to give their blood in the common cause.»

«The heroic spirit of our fighters,» said Scoccimarro, «is the sign and expression of the awakening of Italy's new national consciousness in which there is a deeper feeling of national unity and a livelier desire for liberty and independence.

«For this reason, we look to the North as to a fount of light illuminating the way to our national rebirth, and giving to Italians the higher conscience and dignity of a free and independent people.» (UNN)

LIBERATED ITALY

TREASURY MINISTER GIVES BUDGET FIGURES

ROME, December 23 — Minister of Finance Marcello Soleri told the Council of Ministers today that for the period June 1, 1944, to June 30, 1945, Government expenditures are expected to total 76,013 million lire. Revenue for this period will amount to 14,168 million lire. The deficit for this period is expected to amount to 61,845 million lire.

Soleri said the total public debt on December 10 amounted to 600,000 million lire. Bank of Italy currency in circulation up to 1 August 1944, was 233,000 million which included currency issued by the Germans in northern Italy. Bank deposits are now close to 221,802 million lire, which goes to prove, said Soleri, that the country still has confidence in its currency.

Signs of financial recovery are already evident, declared Soleri. If the Italian people do not give way to panic, the world, anxiously await the day of their return.»

«Italy looks upon these her sons», said Bonomi, «she knows they are suffering, and therefore loves them, and she knows also that they will be companions in the hard work of reconstruction and is anxious to see them take their places here.

EXTRA COOKING GAS PROVIDED FOR HOLIDAY

ROME, December 23 — Allied authorities here have allocated extra coal to the gas company, so that Roman homes will have cooking gas on Christmas Eve and Christmas Night from 1900 to 2000 hours, it was announced today.

At the same time the Coal Division of the Industry Sub-Commission of the Allied Commission pointed out that coal needs of essential civilian and military consumers in Rome have risen sharply, from 1,400 tons a day in September, to 2,300 tons a day currently, a factor which still further reduces civilian prospects of obtaining coal for domestic use in the near future, the officials asserted.

Allied officers charged with coal supply have been confronted by a critical shortage of transport, bad weather that often washed out railroad service, and a scarcity of rail cars.

Of 2,300 tons of coal arriving in Rome daily, Allied military installations get 200 tons, the military railways (which must burn coal to haul in 120 carloads a day) 300 tons, and essential civilian users the remaining 1,800 tons.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Included in the last classification are the gas works, the electric light companies, hospitals, bakeries, pasta factories, cement works, dairies, and other key industries.

Of the 2,300 tons hauled in, 1,600 tons are being burned daily, and the other 700 tons must be stockpiled for emergencies among the three consuming groups.

Rome's coal supply includes 300 tons a day brought in Allied ships from the United States and Great Britain, about 1,000 tons from Sardinia, some 450 tons from the lignite mines at Ribolla, 350 tons from Pietrafitta, and nearly 200 tons from Morgnana. (PWB - AC)

She has been sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment. (UNN)

MARCHESI EXHORTS ITALIAN YOUTH

ROME, December 23 — Italian youth is the most reliable force for the reconstruction of Italy, and « selflessness » must be its badge, students of Rome University were told in an address today by Professor Concetto Marchesi in the Hall of the Chemical Institute.

Professor Gustave Colonnetti, Rector of the Interned Italian Students' Camp at Lausanne, and teachers from Rome University and other notables were present.

Professor Guido de Ruggiero introduced the speaker, who had returned to Italy from Switzerland some days ago. He recalled Professor Marchesi's open protest against the Nazi-Fascists in September, 1943, before the students of Padua University, where he was then Rector.

Bringing the Roman students greetings from their « exiled comrades, » Prof. Marchesi said he was confident that the students of Rome were animated with the desire to claim nothing for themselves, but everything for their country.

The day would soon come, he said, in which the Italians would prove whether they were worthy of regaining their liberty. Liberty was not a gift that one could receive at the hands of others, and a slave must break his bonds himself, he said.

« There are two kinds of liberty, » he went on, « which it is the task of Italian youth to conquer. There is a personal, spiritual liberty, besides that freedom in which all men are brothers. »

He appealed to the students to keep an open mind with regard to social innovations and not to judge them before they had been fully understood.

« Perhaps where you have been led to expect enemies, » he said, « you will find long-sought-for brothers. »

Stating that humanity was going through the worst spiritual and political crisis in history, the Professor said that all the forces of democracy were now united, for the first time, to make the principles of human liberty and social justice a reality. Italian youth, he urged, must take its place in the fight.

A Faenza priest said that the population was horrified at the behavior of the Germans. He said:

« They are more like beasts than human beings. Their treatment of the womenfolk was abominable. During the latter days of occupation, they were accustomed to move from cellar to cellar where the civilians sheltered from the artillery barrages. Any woman who caught their fancy was defiled before the other occupants. What sort of people can these be who, not content with blowing up churches and famous buildings, also ravage women like animals? »

FAENZA COMES TO LIFE AGAIN

FAENZA, December 22 — Battered very badly, but undaunted, this town, which was liberated Sunday by New Zealand troops of the Allied forces, already has begun restoration of normal life, as the influx of returning refugees increases daily.

It was officially estimated that between 5,000 and 6,000 of the 30,000 inhabitants of the town remained here during the months that the Allies were pressing hard to evict the Germans, and it is those hardy citizens who are forming the bulwark of the intensive movement to put Faenza back on its feet.

For several weeks, they lived in cellars which they never left while the battle was furiously fought. Now the town's residents stroll in the streets, and in the same dogged manner attend to their affairs virtually oblivious of the shells from German heavy artillery which occasionally drop on the main thoroughfares.

Residents who evacuated their homes are returning, trundling hand-carts with high piles of their possessions, and no sooner do they arrive in town than they, too, settle down to the business of rebuilding.

A leading businessman here told a UNN correspondent today:

« All we want is a chance to settle down again and, with Allied cooperation, of which we are assured, Faenza will be even more industrious than before in the shortest time possible. There is an incentive now: we know now that we are free to live and work democratically. »

Although some factory owners managed to outwit the German looters, and frustrated many attempts at wanton destruction of the town's industries by hiding machinery, which the enemy tried without success to find, Faenza has a gigantic task ahead if it hopes to achieve full normality rapidly.

Many buildings in the town are ruined beyond repair, but the center of the town, on the whole, is less damaged than the outskirts, where hardly a structure was not levelled as a result of shelling and fierce fighting. However, work is already well under way to clean up debris littering the streets.

Porcelain Factory Razed

The famous porcelain factory is no longer in existence — the building has been completely destroyed by artillery fire. But the citizens are determined to resume manufacture as early as possible, and expert workers already are striving to restore the world-famous industry.

It is believed that the museum, which contained virtually priceless ceramic antiques, has been damaged beyond repair. Before the fighting started in the area, the exhibits were moved out of the town to a place considered safe, but the refuge.

Allied military authorities took steps immediately to guard the demolished temporary shelter for the ceramics and a search of the wreckage has begun to uncover articles which may have escaped destruction.

ALLIES AID FAENZA

FAENZA, December 23 — Providing for the possibility of food shortage in this recently liberated town, Allied Military Government authorities have arranged the immediate importation of eight tons of flour, and yesterday rationing and distribution started for the needy.

Arrangements are now under way for import of essentials, such as sugar, salt and oil.

An Allied official told a UNN correspondent that the 6,000 inhabitants are not short of food at the moment, but that arrangements had been concluded for 600 refugees at a special camp.

A requiem mass and special funeral service were held this morning in Faenza Cathedral for Bishop Scarante Antonio, found dead in his bed at Villa Bucci when the liberating Allies arrived. He had been dead since December 7. Allied authorities arranged for a special casket and transport of the body to Faenza.

It is believed that the museum, which contained virtually priceless ceramic antiques, has been damaged beyond repair. Before the fighting started in the area, the exhibits were moved out of the town to a place considered safe, but the refuge.

Allied military authorities took steps immediately to guard the demolished temporary shelter for the ceramics and a search of the wreckage has begun to uncover articles which may have escaped destruction.

The former town hospital, which contained 300 beds, was found in shambles. It was learned that the patients were evacuated to Castel Ranieri, outside Faenza, where 50 bed patients were found — two of them dead and left unburied.

The Germans used this temporary hospital at Castel Ranieri as a machine-gun post. They barricaded all the windows and fought from there without consideration for the ill.

Immediately after the Allies liberated Faenza, they began to install a new hospital at the Salesian Seminary. The hospital will have 100 beds available, and space for 700 beds, if necessary.

Before they were evicted, the Germans looted every pharmacy in the Faenza district, and pillaged hospital facilities of linen, bedding, and other necessities. The Allied authorities now are salvaging, where possible, all medicines, drugs, surgical instruments, linen, and bedding in town. Medical supplies, rushed by the Allies, have begun to arrive.

When the Allies arrived, they found many evidences of the Germans' disrespect of Italians — even the dead. One of the most unpleasant discoveries was the body of Scarante Antonio, former Bishop of Faenza, who died on December 7. Bishop Antonio, 73 yers old, was found in a bed in Villa Bucci, near here, where he had sought shelter during the fight.

Yesterday, an AMG officer arranged for transportation of a special coffin to Villa Bucci. A funeral will be held later.

Bishop Battaglia, new head of the church in Faenza, told a UNN correspondent today that he is elated at the arrival of the Allies here. He promised he would cooperate fully to assist the liberated population in the reconstruction of the town and he pledged full support of the Allied war effort.

The exploits of many Partisans were described today to a UNN correspondent.

Their activities were most intensive in the four-day period beginning October 26 and in the area of San Stefano. First, they attacked a column of 30 mules loaded with supplies. They captured the supplies, killed several Germans, and took some prisoners. Later, in a surprise attack on a column of tanks and loaded lorries, they blew up one ammunition lorry with a hand-grenade. Then they pounced on a German detachment, killing several German soldiers and capturing 40 prisoners and three mortars.

Deputy Mayor Ferruci compiled the following list of some of the better-known monuments which have been demolished or badly damaged by the Germans:

The belltowers of the Servi and San Augustino Churches, blown up by mines — the ruins cover both churches; Torre dello Orlogio, completely destroyed; San Ippolito, the town's oldest church, of the Renaissance period, badly damaged; Communale Biblioteca, burned to the ground and many old books and manuscripts lost, and an outstanding collection of paintings at Villa Acquaviva, partly destroyed. Those paintings which were not damaged were stolen by the Germans. (UNN)

10,000 REFUGEE CHILDREN TO GET PACKAGES

ROME, December 23 — More than 10,000 children of war refugees and bombed-out civilians currently sheltered in Rome will get Christmas gift packages through the joint efforts of Italian and Vatican war relief organizations, the Under Secretariat for Press and Information announced today.

GERMANS HANG 10 VILLAGERS

WITH ALLIED ARMIES, ITALY, December 23 — Because they found four dead Germans in a truck parked by the roadside, the Germans took revenge on the inhabitants of the village of Ponte Felisio, a UNN correspondent said today. A massacre took place there in September, and details are now available with the liberation of the village.

The Germans blamed Partisans for the deaths, and took reprisals against 10 civilians. They erected poles on a bridge and publicly hanged their victims, leaving the bodies on display for two days before they allowed them to be cut down. (UNN)

Reuter correspondent Robert Bigio, now in Athens, said that stiff fighting was continuing between British troops and the ELAS contingents in the Piraeus area.

Stamtios Mercuris, veteran politician and Liberal who acted as courier in carrying the ELAS message to Lt. Gen. Ronald Scobie, was reported to have made this statement: «We have unwittingly been involved in a clash with Great Britain. If we give in, it is because we do not want British prestige to suffer in any way. The ELAS are ready to obey Britain's orders and hasten to join in the fight against Germany.»

A Reuter message reported that British tanks throughout the night and during today continued to attack ELAS positions in the northern part of the city. Occasional machine-gun and mortar fire also were heard during last night.

British headquarters announced a strong attack today by ELAS forces in northwest Greece against Rightist guerrillas led by General Zervas. The announcement said that the attack was in violation of an agreement signed by the opposing Greek forces before Allied forces landed in Greece to drive out the Germans. Zervas has asked for British reinforcements.

A British warship bombarded ELAS concentrations north of the Port of Piraeus in clearing operations yesterday on the west side of the main harbor.

Greek Prime Minister Georges Papandreou and General Scobie received a message today from the Greek commander-in-chief in Crete, General Papadakis, in which, on behalf of the Cretan people, he supported the measures taken by the Government «against terrorists in Athens.» (OWI-Reuter)

U.S. WANTS WORLDWIDE PROSPERITY, SAYS LANDIS

WASHINGTON, December 23 — America wants worldwide prosperity after the war, James M. Landis, director of the American Economic Mission to the Middle East, was quoted in a dispatch from Cairo as telling the Egyptian Royal Society of Political Economy today.

«We in the United States seek merely a decent living for ourselves and peace for the world,» Landis said. «But a prosperous America demands a prosperous England, a prosperous Egypt, a prosperous Brazil... Poverty, like war, is a disease that spreads, and against which united action must be taken if our dreams of freedom and security are to be realized.

BONNET LEAVES FOR UNITED STATES

PARIS, December 23 — Henri Bonnet, new French Ambassador to The United States, left France for Washington today.

In a statement made before his departure, the Ambassador praised French-U.S. friendship, saying:

« Today, we are united to destroy tyranny. We will remain united tomorrow, to give back happiness and prosperity to our citizens. » (OWI)

LAGUARDIA BOYCOTTS BLACK MARKET

NEW YORK, December 23 — Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia and the retail butchers of this City have combined in a great boycott of the black market in meat, alleged to involve from 60 to 65 per cent of all meat sold.

The ingenious plan put forward by the Mayor persuaded butchers overnight to cancel their proposed strike in favor of a joint refusal to buy meat from wholesalers above maximum prices. From next Tuesday on, all meat will be sold either to retailers direct, or to the city authorities.

It is estimated that as little as 15 per cent of the meat supplies will be available during the period of this « plan to drive the black market out of business in New York. » (Reuter)

FRENCH DEFINE COLLABORATIONIST CRIMES

PARIS, December 23 — The French Ministry of Justice has defined the categories of collaborationists who will have to face trial before the courts of justice, a press dispatch reported here to-day.

Giving what can be considered the first detailed list of collaborationist crimes for which punishment will be dealt, the dispatch added, the Ministry divided suspects into the following groups.

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 785021

Those who took up arms against the FFI or Allied forces; those who had contact with the enemy for military purposes; those who gave the enemy war material or military installations.

Also, those who exerted pressure on others to enlist in the German Army; those who betrayed military secrets or gave away information useful to the enemy; those who helped to demoralize the French Army and nation; those who maintained relations with the enemy, and all who traded with him; those who denounced Frenchmen to the German authorities; those who provided the Germans with labor or raw materiels for their war industry; and those who delivered to the enemy, in whatever circumstances, the country's economic resources.

Meanwhile, Angelo Chiappe, Chief of Police in Vichy during the German occupation, was sentenced to death for treason and collaboration with the enemy. The charges against Chiappe included the conveying of information to German General Heckel, and the internment and deportation to Germany of a number of French citizens.

ROOSEVELT GREETS MERCHANT NAVY

WASHINGTON, December 23 — President Roosevelt and Vice Admiral Emery Land, U.S. War Shipping Administrator, commended American merchant seamen in Christmas messages today. Mr. Roosevelt said:

« The men of our merchant marine form the essential link between the home front and the millions of men in the armed forces overseas. They have performed an heroic task in delivering goods. Since September, 1941, more than 5,800 casualties have been suffered by the U.S. Merchant Marine. »

Admiral Land said: « The dark days to Murmansk, to the United Kingdom, to the Mediterranean, and to the Pacific are not to be forgotten, nor are those whose lives were given in the cause of freedom. » (OWI)

NAZI-WEHRMACHT RIVALRY CONTINUES

LONDON, December 23 — New measures to extend Nazi Party control over the officer corps of the Wehrmacht were revealed in the latest German Army orders reaching Allied hands.

In special orders from the Führer's headquarters dated October 10, regarding the organization of the Volkssturm, Gauleiters were informed: « Retired and war-wounded officers not yet discharged are not to be considered for the post of battalion commander unless they have proved themselses to be reliable Party members in thei organizations. »

A previous ruling requiring certain Party members to place themselves at the disposal of the Wehrmacht « in case of acute danger » was reversed by Deputy Nazi Party Leader Martin Bormann on October 7, another document revealed. When asked by one of the gauleiters whether this rule still applied after the establishment of the Himmler-controlled Volkssturm, Borman replied that « as soon as the Volkssturm was ready for service, » the order for Party members to join the Wehrmacht ceased to apply.

Evidence that these, and other Party measures discriminating against regular army officers and soldiers are not received with enthusiasm was revealed in a recent report in a Hanover paper of an address to soldiers by another Nazi Party official, Willi Weimcke, who asserted that only

A Zurich dispatch received in Washington yesterday quoted travellers from Germany as saying that Dr. Krupp von Bohlen, head of the Krupp armament firm, together with one of his two daughters and her husband, has been arrested by Nazi authorities for defeatist utterances.

Despite the prohibition of mention of the anti-Hitler message from 50 German generals in Soviet captivity, it is widely discussed in various circles, including the officers corps, TASS said today. The Germans have been particularly impressed by the fact that the message was signed by Field Marshal Friedrich von Paulus and a number of other prominent German Army officers. (OWI-TASS)

MEDITERRANEAN

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 23 — Today's communique:

Allied Armies in Italy:

Northwest of Bagnacavallo Canadian troops of the 8th Army are meeting strong resistance from the west bank of the Senio, which river they have reached on a front of more than five miles.

North of Faenza, troops of the 8th Army continue to make steady progress in their drive between the Lamone and Senio Rivers.

South of Bologna, American troops of the 5th Army have made local gains near Monte Belmonte.

Elsewhere, patrols remain active.

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force yesterday operated in very great strength against Po Valley communications and close support objectives on the Italian battle front.

Medium bombers attacked bridges in northern Italy.

Coastal Air Force fighters operating against targets in northwest Italy bombed and strafed a bridge and German troop concentrations.

Balkan Air Force units again attacked motor transport in Yugoslavia.

Strategic aircraft flew supplies to Yogoslavia.

During the day's operations, one enemy aircraft was destroyed.

Six of our planes failed to return.

MAAF flew about 1,400 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

This morning early, our troops landed on the north side of Piraeus and from the vicinity of the wharf-side have made good progress in clearing insurgent forces.

In Athens, further operations have been carried out in clearing areas, taking a number of armed prisoners, and also capturing a quantity of warlike stores.

In Epirus, in northwest Greece, Greek guerrilla forces commanded by General Zervas have been attacked by ELAS troops. This is contravention of the agreement signed between General Sarafis, commander-in-chief, ELAS, and General Zervas at Caserta both generals declaring to refrain from hostilities.

General Scobie's orders have been obeyed scrupulously by General Zervas in spite of obvious concentrations of ELAS forces, to remain within the operational boundaries and to take no provocative action, as agreed at the Caserta Conference.

Evidence that these, and other Party measures discriminating against regular army officers and soldiers are not received with enthusiasm was revealed in a recent report in a Hanover paper of an address to soldiers by another Nazi Party official, Willi Weinicke, who asserted that only through close coöperation with the Party could the Army hope to win victory.

In Austria, the Nazis are speeding up the dismantling of Austrian industry and shipping the machinery off to unknown destinations, dispatches from Luxembourg said today.

Authoritative explanations that these removals have no other purpose but to transfer the industries to other locations have not prevented a widespread feeling of unrest in management and labor circles.

Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler has ordered the Gestapo to keep a close watch on all Germans who might try to get in touch with foreign diplomats or other influential foreign personalities. According to a Luxembourg dispatch, this move demonstrates clearly the open mistrust among high Nazi Party officials and their jockeying for power among themselves. Himmler apparently fears that other Nazi leaders, envious of his recently accumulated influence, might stage a "putsch" against him.

The disappearance of about 70,000 foreign workers has contributed to the Reich's domestic problem. The confusion in Nazi administrative offices has made the situation worse, and the manpower shortage is so great that there are not sufficient supervisors in factories to prevent slowdown work exercised by all those who oppose the Nazi régime.

WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 23 — Today's communique:

Allied forces in the Monschau sector continued local engagements, with no substantial changes in position.

In the vicinity of Hafen the enemy gained a small amount of ground.

No further attempts have been made by the enemy to break out in the Stavelot area, and the northern German thrust has been confined temporarily to areas of Saint Vith, Stavelot, and Malmédy.

All three of these towns are in our hands. The enemy drive that outflanked Bastogne from the north reached as far as LaRoche. Fighting continues in that sector.

A large-scale thrust is being made by the enemy in the Wiltz-Bastogne area. Wiltz has been encircled, and the enemy is pushing on after action at the town.

German armor continues its advance to cut roads north, south, and east of Bastogne, while a portion of the force by-passed Bastogne and continued west.

In the Echternach area the line has been stabilized. The enemy has been checked in the areas of Dickweiler,

Declassified E.O. 12356 Section 3.3/NND No. 795121

Osweiler, and Berdorf, west and south of Echternach. In the sector east of Saargemünd, we have occupied Osweiler.

Activity in the Alsace Plain was generally limited to patrol clashes. Further local gains were made in the High Vosges Mountains south of La Poutroie, where the village of La Chapelle was cleared.

Continued adverse weather yesterday again prevented the weight of our air power's being brought to bear on the enemy. Bombing through cloud, escorted medium-bombers attacked enemy troop concentrations and supply dumps, while fighters and fighter-bombers flew offensive patrols in support of our ground forces.

Enemy troops, communications, and rail-transport in the upper Rhine Valley were struck by fighter-bombers.

East of Freiburg, six enemy aircraft were shot down by our attacking aircraft.

According to reports so far received, four of our fighters are missing from these operations, but the pilot of one is safe.

Shortly after dark yesterday evening, heavy bombers attacked marshalling yards at Coblenz and Bingen. (Reuter)

MOSCOW, December 23 — Tonight's communique:

During today, on the territory of Hungary, north of the town of Gyöngyös, our troops, continuing their offensive in the difficult mountain-wooded terrain, captured the populated localities of Trishikator, Saloyka, Isztenmezive, Daroso, Jerdzekevesat, Ivak, Naduhalu, Kezah, Vizlasz, Ustakrako, and Totmarkhazu.

In battles during December 22, north of Gyöngyös, our troops captured 1,050 German and Hungarian soldiers and officers.

North of Budapest, our troops, in stubborn battles, overcame the mountain-wooded area between the Czechoslovakian town of Sahy and the Danube, and emerged at the River Ipel, thus occupying the populated localities of Bernitse, Nadherzen, Kespalak, Ipolitpeldesz, Lektes, Lelekhidi, Marionostra, Sok, Zebegen, and Nagymaros, and the railway stations of Nagymaros and Zebeden.

In the area west of Sahy, our troops were successfully beating back counter-attacks of large tank formations of the enemy, and inflicted on him heavy losses in manpower and equipment.

Southwest of Budapest, in the area of Szekesfehervar, our troops passed into the offensive and entered into serious battles with large infantry and tank formations of the enemy.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

During December 22, our troops disabled or destroyed 107 German tanks.

In aerial combats and by anti-aircraft fire, 59 enemy planes were shot down. (Radio Moscow)

ADVANCE HQ, AAI, December 23 — Today's communique:

In the Veneto, Patriot attacks and acts of sabotage against enemy lines of communication are becoming ever more frequent.

A total of eight locomotives and 24 carriages, four of which were loaded with munitions, were destroyed in various sectors of Udine province between December 2/11.

Finally, on the night of December 4/5, Treviso Patriots derailed a 30-carriage train headed for Germany, near Castelfranco Veneto.

Traffic along the Padua-Treviso line was blocked for six days.

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 23 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

The winter battle in southeastern Belgium continues in our favour.

At the northern side of the gap between Elsenborn and Stavelot, our troops repulsed relief attacks which were repeated up to 14 times.

On both sides of the Ourthe, strong German forces pressed hard on the heels of the defeated American formations.

In central Luxembourg, the German attacks also make progress. The number of the prisoners and the booty captured continue to increase.

On the Saar, the town of Dillingen and the right banks of the river were cleared of the enemy. The Americans suffered heavy loses at the hands of pursuing German forces and by our artillery fire during their retreat.

In the Bitsche sector, renewed attacks of enemy battalions failed.

Between the lower Vosges and the Rhine, our attacks resulted in the recapture of a certain number of heights and localities.

In upper Alsace, at Kaysersberg and Urbeis, the enemy attacks were repulsed or frustrated by counter-attacks.

East of Kaschau, the attacks of strong enemy forces collapsed, owing to the brave German defense with heavy losses to the enemy.

In the third battle of Kurland, south of Frauenburg, the Soviets continued their attempts at breaking through with strong and concentrated forces. Their attacks were frustrated with such heavy losses that one may speak about a great defensive success of our troops. Fighting is still in progress for some penetrations.

In the coastal sector, south of Libau, our grenadiers, in a surprise attack, encircled strong enemy forces and, having wiped them out, rectified the German front in this sector. They captured numerous prisoners and a large booty.

Air:

Yesterday, German bombers, by day and night joining effectively in the ground fighting at Stuhlweissenburg, destroyed numerous enemy vehicles, among them 32 Soviet tanks.

Yesterday, the Bolsheviks lost 77 planes, 40 of them over Kurland, by the fighters and the action of anti-aircraft batteries of the German Air Force.

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Atlantic Charter: Last night (Saturday), Augusteo of the Fascist Radio commented on President Roosevelt's recent declaration regarding the Atlantic Charter. « It sounds like a joke », remarks Augusteo; « Roosevelt said that the Charter does not exist... nobody ever signed it, and indeed, no actual document exists. The President went on to say that some notes had been jotted down, added to and changed by Churchill and Sumner Welles, but that the whole thing ended at that... »

Augusteo advises the Indians and the Poles to seek another panacea for their ailments. He also compares the atmosphere created by the Charter to the spirit of Locarno and prophesies the same end for it.

Fascists Aid Sicilian Separatists: The Fascists Radio reports « from enemy sources, received through neutral channels », that the revolt hitherto confined to Catania and Palermo has spread to other centres of the island. At Agrigento and Piazza Armerina, posters calling for military enlistment are said to have been destroyed, and demonstrations held against conscription for the Allies. The promoters of the revolts are supposed to be Fascists.

Italian-Allied Marriages: The Fascist Radio commentator expresses indignation over a recent decree by the Bonomi Government « favoring marriages between Italian citizens and Anglo-Saxon or colored soldiers. » The commentator calls this an infamy aimed at « eliminating the pride of the Italian race by a grafting operation... »

GERMAN HOLD ON LAMONE RIVER REDUCED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 21 — Eighth Army forces, attacking the flank and southern end of the stubbornly held remnant of the German Lamone River defenses, northeast of Faenza, have sheared off nine square miles of these outlying positions protecting the enemy's Senio River Line to the west, it was announced here today.

In concerted attacks, the 8th Army forces thrust north from Faenza and west across the Lamone River to drive the Germans back from their river defenses and to occupy the three villages of Formellino, San Silvestro, and San Pietro in Laguna.

New Zealand forces, in a night attack, struck deep into the enemy flank to establish a hold along a three-mile stretch of the Senio River northeast of the main Po Valley highway.

Allied forces have now moved up to the Senio River along a seven-mile sector fronting Castel Bolognese and astride the main road and rail line along the Po Valley to Bologna.

GERMANS 30 MILES INSIDE BELGIUM

LONDON, December 21 — Driving westward in small forces each of four tanks, six armored cars, and six troop-carrying armored cars, the Germans have advanced 30 miles inside the Belgian border to the town of Hablemont, 10 miles west of Stavelot and 20 miles south of Liége. More German parachutists were dropped in this area Monday night.

Although the Germans were making progress to the south, it was reported that reinforced elements of the American 1st Army had stemmed the northernmost prong of the offensive by recapturing Monschau, junction of the 1st Army's defensive positions to the south and offensive to the north. The American forces, supported by additional artillery, armor, and tank destroyers, advanced from recaptured Monschau to take the town of Rocherath and several nearby villages, 10 miles south of Monschau.

Allies Re-Take Stavelot

According to official reports 48 hours old, Stavelot was retaken by American forces as certain parts of the Allied front were stabilized. Using captured American trucks with Allied markings, the Germans are advancing over the same routes they followed in the spring of 1940. Late dispatches tonight reported that on the northern flank of the 1st Army around Malmédy and Stavelot American resistance had stiffened and had met numerous counter-attacks.

Supreme Headquarters said today that the German offensive was not likely to be halted this week, and a spokesman at 21st Army Group headquarters, said that, although the German attacks had made considerable progress, Allied counter-measures had taken effect.

Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt diverted five to six panzer divisions, as well as seven to eight infantry divisions — representing a force of 300,000 men — to the attack which press reports said was aimed at Liége, Namur, Bastogne, and Luxembourg to the south. The Germans so far have cut the Liége-Bastogne-Luxembourg road at a point as yet unidentified at Allied headquarters.

In southeast Belgium and in northwest Luxembourg, Allied positions showed no improvement, according to late press dispatches. St. Vith, on the main road leading south of Malmédy, was by-passed by German forces after the capture of Maspelt, five miles to the south. During a 12-hour period early today, the Americans repulsed 11 counter-attacks in this sector.

Driving three-quarters of the way across Luxembourg, the Germans have reached Wiltz, 12 miles west of Vianden.

Germans Continue Heavy Counter-Attacks

To the north, where Canadian troops have penetrated to within a mile of the Senio River, German forces continued their heavy counter-attacks against the Allied bridgehead across the Canale Naviglio, one of the numerous watercourses connecting the Lamone and Senio rivers.

Continuing 8th Army attacks have now reduced the enemy hold on the Lamone River to less than five miles, in the sector northeast of Faenza between the village of Ronco and the town of Russi. Allied forces have rolled back the southern flank of this once formidable enemy delaying line as far as the village of Felisio, on the Faenza-Lugo road, four miles northwest of Faenza.

In thrusts north of Faenza, along the line of the Canale Naviglio, 8th Army forces have occupied the hamlet of San Pietro in Laguna, two miles beyond the town's outskirts, and the village of San Silvestro, a half-mile to the south. The village of Formellino, a half mile northeast of Faenza, was taken in one of the two Allied thrusts across the Lamone northeast of Faenza.

On the 5th Army front, enemy patrols were active along the right flank of the long mountain line, but no changes were reported in forward positions. (PRO)

7TH ARMY WITHDRAWS UNDER HEAVY FIRE

LONDON, December 21 — Seventh Army forces which penetrated Siegfried Line defenses in the Bundenthal area northwest of Wissembourg were forced to withdraw to their original positions under a concentration of German shellfire, a late report said tonight.

The German bombardment of 200 heavy caliber shells fired within an hour was followed by a counter-attack by an unspecified number of troops. The counter-attack was reported to have been repulsed. (Reuter)

R.A.F. ATTACKS TRIER, COLOGNE, BONN

LONDON, December 21 — Three forces of Royal Air Force heavy bombers — one by day and two by night — attacked a German garrison and marshalling yards. In daylight today, escorted bombers attacked the garrison and railway town of Trier without loss.

Tonight, two forces of bombers attacked enemy marshalling yards at Cologne and Bonn.

The town of Trier serves as one of the major German supply centers for their present counter-offensive against the American 1st Army. (Reuter) and Clervaux, 10 miles northwest of Vianden. Farther south, the Germans have encircled the American force at Echternach and have driven five miles beyond through Consdorf. German tanks and half-tracks broke through American road-blocks in this thrust, but press dispatches reported that heavy battles were being waged in this area.

The French radio tonight broadcast a warning that German soldiers, wearing American and British uniforms and driving Allied vehicles, were infiltrating through the battle lines to rear areas. Their job, the broadcast said, was to sabotage and destroy vital war installations.

On the northern flank of the Allied lines along the relatively quiet Roer River sector, considerable enemy movement was observed, and northwest of Geilenkirchen, the Germans were reported to be particularly aggressive.

On the 3rd Army sector, the Germans were cleared from the Dillingen bridgehead after 15 days of hard fighting, while slow progress was made against heavily defended Siegfried positions elsewhere along the Saar Basin.

A sudden thrust by 7th Army troops into the first belt of Siegfried Line pillboxes, dragons teeth, and anti-tank traps along the Palatinate border caused the Germans to rush reinforcements of self-propelled guns into the threatened area. Seven miles north west of Wissembourg (Weisenburg), American troops are using German defenses as protection against heavy artillery fire and strong German counter-attacks.

At the most easterly point of the Allied advance into Germany, 7th Army forces were fighting German troops who infiltrated into the captured town of Berg, just west of the Rhine. (OWI - Reuter - AP - BBC)

SOVIETS MASS FOR ATTACK ON AUSTRIA

MOSCOW, December 21 — Russian guns today are shelling the fortifications around Kosice, important Slovakian town lying in the path of Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's drive toward a link-up with Russian forces in southern Poland.

Front line correspondents reported that the Germans are in general retreat before Soviet columns driving deeper into Czechoslovakia along an 80-mile front from west of Kosice to the border rail junction of Lucenec.

Winter has crossed the Carpathian Mountains and the consequent hardening of the roads and valley slopes has improved the fighting terrain. A dispatch from the front said that Soviet troops are infiltrating past powerful German positions on the foothills of the snowcapped slopes. If both Kosice and Lucenec can be liberated in the near future, it will be the beginning of a big crack in the Reich defenses.

With an estimated 70 divisions available on this sector of the front, the Germans still are alarmed at the possibilities of a sudden break-through, according to the Soviet press.

The battle of the Danube crossings is being duplicated to the north of the Hungarian capital, where Soviet airmen are battering at the Germans trying to get supplies across to feed the beleaguered Budapest garrison.

The Red Army has held open all the crossings over the Danube against heavy attacks, and the concentration of Russian troops continues. (OWI - Reuter)

U.S. PLANES USING MINDORO AIRDROME

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 21 — American planes are now using a Mindoro Island airdrome, giving them another base from which to harass Japanese shipping and supply lines in the struggle in the Philippines, it was announced tonight.

The 10-and 24th U.S. Army Corps have formed a junction in the Ormoc Corridor of Leyte Island, another communique said. It added that 2,032 enemy dead have been counted on Leyte.

Gen. Basilio Valdes, chief of staff of the Philippine Army, also commenting on the Mindoro landings, said the rapid construction of air strips there means another decisive setback for the Japanese. This puts American planes within easy fighter range of Manila, and bomber range of the Asiatic coast, he said.

The naval correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said yesterday that the recent American thrust onto Mindoro, together with the creation of the British Pacific Fleet and the increased Allied pressure on the Japanese in Burma, has brought the Far Eastern Theater of war into the foreground. He said that, as a result of her naval reverses «Japan has been compelled to establish overland lines of communication to compensate for the loss of her sea routes, but these new land routes are very exposed.» (OWI - Reuter)

SUPERFORTS HIT MUKDEN; CHINESE NEAR HOCHIH

WASHINGTON, December 21 — The «substantial» U.S. Superfortress attack this morning on Mukden struck the works of the Manchuria plane factory with «good results,» the War Department announced tonight. The crews enjoyed the advantage of visual bombing in clear weather, though haze and smoke obscured part of the bombing result.

Fifteen enemy planes were destroyed, seven probably destroyed, and 11 others damaged. Two Superforts were lost due to enemy action, which was «moderate to strong» while Japanese anti-aircraft fire was «meager». It was the 48th Superfort attack of the war upon Japanese industry.

Chinese troops are closing in on Hochih, important Kweichow-Kwangsi railway town 95 miles west of fallen Liuchow, former United States air base, the High Command announced today.

Meanwhile, Chinese units which had by-passed Hochih on the south reached the vicinity of Chin Chen Kiang along the railway 15 miles farther east.

The 14th USAAF was out in strength to support the Chinese advance. Supply lines all the way from northern Hunan Province to Liuchow and northwestward along the Lung River Valley were attacked, while enemy troop concentrations near Hochih and Chin Chen Kiang also were bombed.

One third of the Myitkyina-Rangoon railroad has come under Allied control with the capture of two key points, Wuntho and Nankan, today's Southeast Asia Command communique said.

Troops of the 4th Corps of the 14th Army Group captured the two towns in a continuance of their swift advance from Chindwin. Today's victories represent a 50-mile push down the railroad since the capture of Indaw 11 days ago.

Nankan lies 35 miles southwest of Indaw, while Wuntho is 16 miles farther down the rail line and 135 miles north of Mandalay.

Meanwhile, Chinese troops, fighting their way along the Bhamo-Namkam road, captured three small villages and reached a point within 50 miles of the old Burma Road. Two hundred enemy troops were killed in the drive and large supplies of equipment and ammunition seized.

On the west Burma coast, troops of the 15th Indian Corps continued their push beyond Maungdaw, while Allied aircraft were active in support of the drive.

Gen. Robert McClure, U.S. Chief of Staff in the Chinese Theater, said today that American air power will bomb every Japanese-held port on the China mainland with «the maximum tonnage of bombs and the greatest number of planes which can be obtained». Combined attacks of American and Chinese planes will continue, he declared. (OWI-Reuter)

Army Liberators of the Pacific Strategic Air Force bombed air strip installations on Iwo Island in the Volcano group Tuesday, in the 13th consecutive day of the neutralization offensive against enemy bases south of the Japanese homeland, Pacific Fleet Headquarters at Pearl Harbor reported today.

American aerial forces continued to pound the enemy's shrinking island defense triangle formed by the Caroline, Palau, and Marianas archipelago on a non-stop basis.

American patrol planes ranging over the coastal sectors of Borneo destroyed or damaged a small freighter, another unidentified vessel, three fuel barges, six oil storage tanks, and a grounded plane. Medium units, attack planes, and fighter-bombers strafed enemy airdromes, bivouacs, and supply dumps on the Molucca Islands and on Timor, while heavy and medium units expended 42 tons on concentrations at Wewak on New Guinea. Targets of opportunity at Rabaul, New Ireland, and Bougainville were hit.

Sergio Osmena, president of the Philippine Commonwealth Government, said that the American landing on Mindoro, another of the bold and decisive steps by General MacArthur, secures the first base on the China Sea and threatens Japanese sea lanes.

M.A.A.F. LIBERATORS ATTACK COMMUNICATIONS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 21 — Small forces of Mustang-escorted Liberator bombers today attacked enemy rail installations at Rosenheim, 39 miles southeast of Munich, despite bad weather which curtailed operations of the Strategic Air Force, it was announced here this afternoon.

The attack was carried out by heavy-bombers of the Heavy Bombardment Wing, commanded by Brig. Gen. Hugo P. Rush, which has conducted a campaign aimed at crippling German transport routes leading to the Italian and Hungarian fronts.

Continued bad weather over the Plain of the Po limited operations by the Tactical Air Force today.

Fighter-bombers again played the chief rôle in assaults against enemy gun positions and rail and road routes from the battle area to the Brenner Pass. (PRO) forces holding the Allied bridgehead across the Canale Naviglio northeast of Faenza, it was announced here today.

The 8th Army commander said that the «gallant endurance and determination» of the Canadian forces had enabled them to smash 13 enemy counter-attacks against their positions in nine hours. (PRO)

U.S. 751ST TANK BATTALION KILLS 100 TANKS

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 21 — The American 751st Tank Battalion has destroyed more than 100 German Panther and Tiger tanks in the course of its fighting with the 5th Army in Italy, it was reported here today.

The 5th Army statement said that the destroyed German tanks, if deployed at normal intervals, would form a column more than six miles in length. (PRO)

MINESWEEPING FLOTILLA COMMENDED

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 21 — Admiral Sir John Cunningham, commander-in-chief Mediterranean, has commended the officers and men of the 13th Minesweeping Flotilla, the second group of this service to leave the Mediterranean after two years of arduous service, it was announced here today.

With the elimination of all but a few strips of enemy-held coastline in the Gulf of Genoa, in the upper Adriatic, and around the few German-held Aegean Islands, these minesweeping forces are being disbanded or employed elsewhere. (PRO)

TWO R.A.F. PILOTS AWARDED D.F.C.

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 21 — Two RAF pilots have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for their aid to Allied ground forces in tactical-support attacks prior to and during the Allied offensive in Italy this spring, it was announced here today.

Brig. Gen. Thomas C. D'Arcy, deputy commander of an American Tactical Air Command, made the presentations to Group Captain P. H. Hugo and Wing Commander Anthony D. H. Lowell. Both pilots led Spitfire units operating from Corsica.

For their gallantry in rescuing an American pilot from his blazing plane, three RAF armorers, Leading Aircraftsmen William N. Martin, Thomas B. Logan, and George R. Montgomery, were awarded the American Soldier's Medal. (PRO)

CONGRESSMEN ARRIVE IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, December 21 — Fifteen members of the Military Affairs Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives who toured the Italian and Western Fronts returned here last night by airplane. The group completed its trip in Italy on Monday night.

The Congressmen told reporters at the National Airport here that they «found things in excellent condition» on the American battlefronts in Europe. They emphasized that «morale is very high» among the U.S. troops, and that the armed forces are doing «an exceptionally fine job.»

Members of the committee declined to make a formal statement on the findings of their inspection journey until they confer with Henry Stimson, Secretary of War, and Army officials.

Two members of the committee, which left Washington on November 20, did not return with this group. Mrs. Clare Booth Luce, Republican of Connecticut, remained in Italy under orders of a physician who is treating her for an earache, aggravated by plane travel overseas; Matthew J. «I have the utmost confidence in the wisdom, energy, and aggressive fighting attitude of General Eisenhower,» Secretary Stimson declared.

The Secretary said that the failure of the German drive will shorten the war. He based his statement on his recollection of events 25 years ago. Referring to the enemy offensives in the final stages of the last World War, Stimson said:

«I was there when the Germans drove almost to the Channel; again almost to Armentières; and again almost to the Marne. I remember how we felt — as if they would never stop. And then I remember how, suddenly on July 18, we bit into the German salient and it shrivelled up like a toy balloon. I remember, too, in what seemed like a very short time, how the surrender came.»

Continuing his review of the present war situation, the War Secretary said «the German High Command chose to gamble some of its divisions, rather than to await the inevitable end of a slow defensive. So the strike came Saturday. German air power was thrown in as a cover on a scale not seen since the early days of the Normandy fighting. These planes had been husbanded at the expense of German aircraft production centers which went unprotected, except by anti-aircraft fire, during many Allied bombing attacks.»

Stimson concluded by stating that Allied countermeasures were under way. Other than that, he declined any additional comment, asking for patience and restraint at a time when the stakes — the lives of Allied soldiers — are high. (OWI)

BROKEN GERMANS EMERGE FROM POCKET

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 21 — Broken German forces, straggling remnants of the German 21st Mountain Corps, are beginning to emerge from their isolated positions in the Podgorica «Pocket» just inside of the Yugoslav frontier from Albania, it was announced here today.

The long, toiling columns have left behind them extended stretches of mountain road strewn with twisted and charred wreckage of vehicles and equipment, as a result of continuous hammering from Royal Air Force formations ranging from fighter-bombers to heavy-fisted Halifaxes.

In attacks in the past two days, some 279 enemy vehicles have been destroyed or damaged, while official estimates indicate that at least 500 more vehicles have probably been so badly damaged that they will have to be abandoned.

RAF Wellingtons yesterday split into two forces, to attack German transport between Klopot and Mojkovac in Southern Yugoslavia, and again to strike at the bridge north of Matesevo, in the same area, where straggling remnants of the fleeing Germans are still pushing northward. (PRO)

Renewed German attacks were reported in the Bijeljina-Brcko sector, and heavy fighting still continues in the area.

In Montenegro, Yugoslav troops attacked strong German rearguards in the Morava Valley, pushing them northward toward Kolashin. Allied aircraft were reported active in supporting operations in the sector. They destroyed 40 vehicles and inflicted considerable losses on the Nazis.

Fierce battles were also raging along the communications route up to Bijelo Polje, 25 miles north of the Albanian border. A German column was attacked on the Sarajevo-Kiseljak road, and 208 Nazis killed.

Near Ljubijana, west of Zagreb, Tito's troops cut the rail line at several points and destroyed several small bridges.

ROOSEVELT SENDS YULE GREETING TO U. S. FORCES

WASHINGTON, December 21 — Christmas greetings have been sent to men and women in the U.S. armed forces by President Roosevelt and other American officials expressing gratitude for their efforts.

The President's message said:

«On behalf of a grateful nation, I send to the men and women of our armed forces everywhere warm and confident good wishes this fourth Christmas of the war.

«On Christmas Day, more than on any other day, we remember you with pride and with humility, with anguish and with joy. We shall keep on remembering you all the days of our lives. It is, therefore, with solemn pride that I salute those who stand in the forefront of the struggle to bring back to a suffering world the way of life symbolized by the spirit of Christmas.»

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson expressed the «admiration of a grateful nation for your courage and fortitude.» He added:

Meaning of Christmas Restored

«This year, because of you, the meaning of Christmas has been restored to persons in liberated areas whom you have rescued from the oppression and misery engendered by a savage foe.»

Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal asserted that the efforts of the U.S. armed forces «have brought us all nearer to the day of victory; to the day when we shall again know

«We may look forward to this new year assured that it will see new and more powerful blows dealt the enemy, and that it will bring us closer to victory and peace.. That is the priceless gift you are earning for your loved ones and all future generations.»

Other messages will be sent by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the USAAF, Lt. Gen. Ben Lear, commander U. S. Ground Forces, and Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commander of the U. S. Service Forces. (OWI)

PRESS HAILS FORMATION CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY

ROME, December 21 — Rome newspapers today commented favorably on the decision of the Italian Council of Ministers, announced yesterday, to set up a consultative assembly to advise the government on technical and political problems, and to function as liaison between the executive and the people.

Il Risorgimento Liberale said the procedure to be adopted for the formation of the assembly is unimportant. «What really counts,» the paper added, «is that its members, whether elected or appointed by the Government, be drawn from all sections of the country, and even from the opposition, so as to arrive at an expression of the will of the country and make that will felt in the Government.»

L'Italia Nuova an opposition paper, thus commented on the Government's decision: «Under present conditions, it [the assembly] would assume the characteristic of being the sole expression of the popular will.»

L'Italia Libera, Action Party organ, said the demand for a consultative assembly that will convey to the Government «the consent and the voice» of the population of liberated Italy, has been pressed for in the country for

The message of Gen. George Marshall, U.S. Chief of Staff, expressed the gratitude of the nation for «the victories of recent months, for the magnificent work and sacrifices of the men in the field.»

General Dwight Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander, today sent his personal Christmas greetings to all Allied soldiers in every service through a delegation of enlisted men from the British, American, Canadian, and French armed services.

The servicemen later relayed their greetings to the people on the various home fronts.

Admiral Ernest King, commander of the U. S. Navy, said that it is unnecessary to detail the progress the fighting men have made during the year.

«You have fulfilled every expectation; our enemies are harassed on all fronts,» Admiral King asserted. «While we all are pleased with our successes to date, we must be realistic about the future. We hope next Christmas may be celebrated in peace; but if not, I am confident that you will continue your efforts to achieve a complete victory as early as may be.»

Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander of the Pacific Fleet, said:

AUTONOMY EXTENDED IN SICILY, SARDINIA

ROME, December 21 — Regional autonomy in Sicily and Sardinia was extended by decree at yesterday's meeting of the Council of Ministers, the Under Secretariat for Press and Information announced here yesterday.

The measures approved aim at widening the powers of both island's High Commissioners, and setting up consultative bodies with the dual function of aiding the Commissioners and making known the wishes of the people on questions of autonomy and local government. (UNN)

CATANIA, December 21 — Normalcy has returned to this city after the recent riots, it was reported today. The local Committee of National Liberation has announced its willingness to collaborate with the civil authorities. (UNN)

PRESS HAILS FORMATION CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY

ROME, December 21 — Rome newspapers today commented favorably on the decision of the Italian Council of Ministers, announced yesterday, to set up a consultative assembly to advise the government on technical and political problems, and to function as liaison between the executive and the people.

Il Risorgimento Liberale said the procedure to be adopted for the formation of the assembly is unimportant. «What really counts,» the paper added, «is that its members, whether elected or appointed by the Government, be drawn from all sections of the country, and even from the opposition, so as to arrive at an expression of the will of the country and make that will felt in the Government.»

L'Italia Nuova an opposition paper, thus commented on the Government's decision: «Under present conditions, it [the assembly] would assume the characteristic of being the sole expression of the popular will.»

L'Italia Libera, Action Party organ, said the demand for a consultative assembly that will convey to the Government «the consent and the voice» of the population of liberated Italy, has been pressed for in the country for some time, and is now even more insistent. The paper cautioned against attempts to emasculate the proposal by confining it to the formation of a purely technical body.

The Communist L'Unità said: «In a progressive, democratic regime, such as we all want to build, between the actions of the Government and the actions of the mass of the people there is not only a convergence of efforts; there is also an identity of objectives. Only by governing with the people, and with the participation of the people in the political life of the country, can there be effective government for the people.» (UNN)

DEATH PENALTY ASKED FOR NAPLES GENERALS

ROME, December 21 — Public Prosecutor Pietro Traina this noon asked «with profound regret» for the death penalty for Lieut. Generals Riccardo Pentimalli and Ettore Del Tetto on trial for charges ranging from aid to the enemy to dereliction of duty in their failure to provide adequate defense of Naples.

The prosecutor concluded his three-hour summation to the court with the words: «With profound regret, but with a clear conscience, I ask for the penalty of death». The week-long trial will be resumed this afternoon, when the nine-man High Court of Justice is scheduled to reconvene at 1430 hours.

Traina summed up with a chronological recapitulation of testimony which tended to show that the generals had deserted their posts and failed to take proper measures for the defense of Naples following the Italian armistice on September 8 last year.

If found guilty on any one of three major counts against them, the pair will be executed before a firing squad. Seven violations of the Italian Military Penal Code are contained in identical indictments against them. (UNN)

JAIL TERM ASKED FOR MUSSOLINI'S FRIEND

ROME, December 21 — A term of 30 years' imprisonment was advocated today by the Public Prosecutor as the trial of Cornelia Pizzato Tanzi, charged with collaboration with the Germans, entered its second day in the Assizes Court. She is charged specifically with betraying Italian Patriots and war materials hidden in the Villa Strohlfern.

Today's proceedings opened with the reading of an unsigned document of which Signorina Tanzi is alleged to have been the author. Two letters — one from Fascist Republican Secretary Giuseppe Pizzirani to the former Governor of Rome, Giovanni Orgera, and the other from former Under Secretary Cucco to Orgera — which requested action on suggestions contained in the unsigned memorandum also were read in court. She denied having been the author of this memorandum.

Additional witnesses were called to the stand, and they testified of the accused's pro-German sentiments and further substantiated the charge that she expressed these feelings in two telephone conversations which were intercepted.

The verdict is expected tomorrow. (UNN)

NO STREET LIGHTS IN ROME FOR CHRISTMAS

ROME, December 21 — There will be no lifting of the blackout in Rome on Christmas and New Year's Eve, the Rome Allied Area Command announced today.

There will be, however, additional tram service during peak hours. The question of street lighting on Christmas Eve and tram service in the early hours of Christmas Day were considered at a recent meeting of the Electricity committee, which decided that one, but not both, could be arranged.

In view of the curfew extension and the fact that His Holiness Pope Pius XII is celebrating mass at St. Peter's at midnight, there will be a demand for increased transport facilities, and it was felt that provision of a tram service would be more important than street lighting. It was decided by RAAC officials that this service would be organized between 2230 hours on Christmas Eve and 0300 hours on Christmas Day.

Military requirements and essential civilian needs, the statement added, must be met first with whatever power is available. Among essential civilian needs are hospitals, power for pumping water, telephone exchange, tram service, and essential flour mills.

The Rome Allied Area Command said that statements that increased power is available should be disregarded. (UNN)

ROME TO CELEBRATE CHRISTMAS

ROME, December 21 — Amid an atmosphere of prayer, good cheer, and renewed hope, Allied troops, who have liberated two-thirds of Italy, will bring Christmas joy to Holy [illegible]e Society in Italy will give a series of parties for approx[illegible]ely 20,000 Italian children.

Pope Pius XII has given permission to the Society to use the Apostolic Chancery for the Catholic Allied soldiers' Christmas party for several thousand Rome orphans. The soldiers who will distribute the gifts to the children all are members of the American Catholic Club for Allied Forces, which has its headquarters just off St. Peter's Square.

Each child will receive a box of candy, a bar of soap, and a Christmas souvenir.

Allied Military Government officers of the Lazio-Umbria Region, of which Colonel Charles Poletti is Commissioner, will distribute approximately 10,000 packages of food, candy, and clothing to children in the region who are war victims. More than 6,000 children will witness what is probably their first cinema performance this week in Rome under the AMG auspices. Miss Fiammetta Sforza, daughter of Count Carlo Sforza, and Mrs. Titania Tolstoi Albertini, head the committee to bring the children to the movie theatre.

The U.S. Navy will play host to more than 30,000 homeless children throughout Italy. About 5,500 of the children are from 25 orphanages and other institutions near Rome. The children will receive toys made and repaired by American sailors during their free time.

Heading the committee arranging the Navy Christmas parties near Rome are Rear Admiral Ellery W. Stone, USNR, Vice Admiral H. Kent Hewitt, USN, and Commodore H. W. Ziroli, USN, who will direct the celebration in the Naples area.

Administrative personnel of the United States Consul General's office in Naples are organizing a special Christmas celebration for about 2,000 children at a Naples theatre Saturday.

American enlisted men will give a party Sunday afternoon at the American Red Cross club with each enlisted man invited to bring any number of Italian children he has befriended. Several thousand children are expected.

Parcels for Italians with Tito

The Union of Italian Women are preparing approximately 10,000 parcels of clothing for distribution among the children of Rome. The same organization is preparing Christmas packages for about a thousand Italian soldiers who are fighting in Yugoslavia with Marshal Tito's forces.

The Italian Girls' Union is making up about 100,000 packages for Italian soldiers.

In Rome, large crowds jammed the streets shopping for Christmas gifts, although the stocks were not too large and the prices were higher than usual. Vendors did a huge business in the sale of capitone, an eel-like fish, which is eaten during the Christmas feasts. There were brisk sales of cribs in the manger, the most popular symbol for Italians of the birth of Jesus. Piazza Navona was crowded with people seeking the cribs which come in paintings, in porcelain, in wood, and in plastic. Two bits of wood, said to be from the crib of the Child Jesus, will be carried in the Christmas procession of Santa Maria Maggiore.

One of the most picturesque of the ceremonies will be in the Church of Ara Coeli, conducted by the Friars Minor, where a statue of the Infant Jesus will be put on display for the faithful.

Christmas trees appeared in great numbers for the first time in Rome, due to the Allied influence. There were trees in various Allied messes, clubs, and billets. (UNN)

ATHENS SITUATION REPORTED EASIER

ATHENS, December 21 — British troops now have cleared about one-third of this city, it was stated today. A large area south of the suburb of Kallithea and also the Plaka district northeast of the Acropolis were cleared yesterday.

A majority of the ELAS forces within the city now are holding the northern section of the capital. ELAS forces in the whole of the Athens-Piraeus area are estimated at 20,000, compared with an estimate of 25,000 nine days ago. They are believed to have lost 5,000 men in casualties and prisoners.

A BBC correspondent said that, while the feeling here was more hopeful today, the political situation was so complicated that « no one is showing any undue optimism. »

Some 6,500 men have joined the new national guard and recruiting soon will open in the port of Piraeus. The men are being recruited by Greek authorities, but are being fed and equipped by the British.

The correspondent added that one reason why people are feeling happier is that food is being distributed. Today, 75,000 civilians in the central part of the city each will get more than two pounds of tinned meats. The meat comes from the stock of the British-American military relief organization. Soup also is being given, and about 10,000 were served yesterday until snipers interfered with the distribution.

The relief organization has supplied food to nearly 800,000 people in the past week.

A Reuter correspondent, referring to the warning given to local citizens by Lt. Gen. Ronald Scobie that he may be compelled to shell and bomb ELAS gun positions in built-up areas, said that a communique issued at noon today made no further mention of this warning.

ELAS Repel EDES

Another correspondent reported that clashes between EDES (Right Wing) and ELAS (Left Wing) have occurred 10 miles east of Annina, in three small villages inside ELAS territory. EDES supporters were driven back over the EDES boundary which had been laid down by the Caserta Agreement, but ELAS troops are reported to have stopped short of this boundary.

Fighting continued throughout yesterday in the neighborhood of Omonias Square north of the British wire entanglements. There was no shelling in the center of the city yesterday, but as night fell ELAS guerrillas opened heavy mortar fire on the square. When Sherman tanks raked a four-storey building in this square with machine-gun fire in an attempt to wipe out snipers, ELAS men dynamited the house to create a tank barrier.

Former Greek Premier Jean Rallis, who escaped on Monday from the Averoff Prison where he was imprisoned on collaboration charges, was arrested by the Greek police yesterday. Rallis broke out of the prison during the fighting there and had been at liberty for 48 hours when he sent word to the chief of police asking to be taken back into custody. He had been hiding in the house of a friend.

An Associated Press message said today that dissension has arisen in Premier Papandreou's cabinet with the Rightists and Royalists against the proposal to establish a regency and the Liberal ministers favouring it.

EDEN SAYS NO CHRISTMAS TRUCE FOR GREECE

LONDON, December 21 — Replying to a suggestion in the House of Commons today by Arthur Greenwood, Deputy Leader of the Labor Party, that there should be a Christmas truce in Greece, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said:

« I made a very full statement of the Government's position yesterday. I hope I made it clear to the House and all in Greece that our desire is, that this business should be brought to a speedy conclusion. That is the position of the British Government. That is the position on which we stand, and by that position we must hold. »

Another Labor member suggested a truce « for just one week, » to which Eden replied:

« Our object is not to stop it for a week, but to obtain a final solution of this business. With that purpose in view, I made a statement to the House yesterday which has been transmitted to Greece. I hope this statement will have the effect desired. I really cannot say more than that now. »

Under the terms, the vessels are transferred to the Greek Government, provisionally registered under the Greek flag and then time-chartered to the U. S. A. for operation with a Greek crew. The ownership of all vessels remain vested in the United States. (OWI)

FRENCH-SOVIET PACT TO BE RATIFIED TODAY

PARIS, December 21 — The French Council of Ministers will meet tomorrow morning under the presidency of General Charles de Gaulle to ratify the French-Soviet Pact, the French news agency reported tonight.

Georges Bidault, French Foreign Minister, opening the Consultative Assembly debate on the Franco-Soviet pact here today said: « We wish to deprive Germany of all possibilities of aggression.

« That is why we have agreed to cession to Poland of Silesia and Pomerania in compensation for provinces which she has had to cede to the Soviet Union. Germany must be deprived of the Silesian industrial bases, and also of the Rhenish-Westphalian bases, and of the Ruhr.

« Germany must not again have the power to concentrate her troops at Cologne, » he continued. « Factories of the Ruhr must not work for the Prussian war machine, but must repair the damage which has been caused. »

DE GAULLE PREDICTS PACTS WITH ALL ALLIES

PARIS, December 21 — General Charles De Gaulle, speaking to the French Consultative Assembly today, said the collective organization of peace will be based on pacts with all the Allies, similar to the one concluded between France and Russia.

The French-Russian pact, born of necessity, also is secured by a profound friendship between the French and the Russians, the General said. He added:

« We still have to win. France today does not conceive of victory or the organization of the world of tomorrow without alliance with London. Pacts like the French-Russian one will be at the basis of the agreements with all our Allies for the collective organization of peace. » (OWI)

Independent Member of Parliament, Clement R. Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, told the House of Commons today that he could not see the advantage of a general United Nations Commission to arrange and supervise elections. Answering a suggestion by Vernon Bartlett, Mr. Attlee reminded the House, however, that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said yesterday that the British Government would be prepared to help supervize elections in Greece and would welcome the coöperation of the Allies. He added:

«We would no doubt do our best to get similar assistance elsewhere if conditions demanded and if it were requested by the government and the people. The Prime Minister hopes that any such exceptional matters involving close intervention in the affairs of another state will not prove necessary in other countries.» (Reuter)

Mediterranean Allied Air Force:

Medium forces of escorted 15 AAF heavy bombers yesterday bombed targets in Germany, Czechoslovakia, and Austria. RAF medium bombers of the Strategic Air Force bombed road targets in Yugoslavia.

Weather limited the operations of the Tactical Air Force to attacks by fighters and fighter bombers on rail and road transport and a few close-support targets on the Italian front.

A small number of medium bombers, fighters, and fighter-bombers of the Balkan Air Force attacked road transport, bridges, and troop concentrations in Yugoslavia. Supplies were flown to the troops in Greece.

From these operations, 19 of our planes are missing.

MAAF flew approximately 1,400 sorties.

Land Forces Greece:

In clearing areas in Athens and Piraeus of insurgent forces, progress continues to be made, weapons and prisoners being captured.

The situation in the remainder of Greece is unchanged.

In Athens, the Greek Government decree is meeting an enthusiastic response in calling up age groups for National Guard battalions. (PRO)

HIMMLER VISITS RHINE FRONT

NEW YORK, December 21 — Heinrich Himmler, Deputy Führer and Gestapo Chief, was reported tonight to have visited the Breisach area of the Rhine Valley opposite the French city of Colmar, a New York Times dispatch said. The purpose of Himmler's visit was said to be the bolstering of the morale of the citizens in that region and the Wehrmacht facing the French 1st Army on the Alsace Plain.

During the past two weeks however, the panic and tendency to desert from Germany following the French breakthrough, has abated, and there was some speculation as to the true nature of Himmler's appearance on this sector so near the neutral Swiss border.

Meanwhile, Himmler has further extended his control over Germany by placing all civilian employees in the home defense forces under military criminal and disciplinary law, Radio Berlin said. Observers here recalled that the Nazis charged the home army, and particularly its administrative services, with being the center of the July 22 attempt on Adolf Hitler's life and the overthrow of his Nazi régime. WESTERN FRONT

SHAEF, December 21 — Today's communique:

Fighting continues in the area where the enemy attacked westward from the German borders of Belgium and Luxembourg.

Our positions east of Monschau were restored after German forces, which entered the town, were surrounded.

Enemy units making two thrusts from the east in the general direction of Malmédy reached Stavelot, southwest of Malmédy, and Butgenbach, east of Malmédy.

Another enemy drive in the area of Saint Vith cut off some of our forces east of the town, and enemy elements moved to within two miles of Saint Vith and to the vicinity of Maspelt, five miles to the south.

In the Echternach area, an enemy penetration was made to Consdorf, and Echternach itself was surrounded. The enemy force involved in the attack along the front includes five to six armored divisions and eight or nine infantry divisions.

There have been no changes in our positions to the north of Monschau along the Roer River, from Linnich to Düren.

In the Saar Valley, fighting continues in the Dillingen and Saarlautern bridgeheads.

Two small enemy counter-attacks northeast of Saargemünd were repulsed.

Fort Schiesseck, the second major Maginot Line fortification to be reduced in the vicinity of Bitsche, was cleared.

Farther east, the enemy was aggressive, and several of his patrols crossed the Rhine.

Northwest of Colmar limited progress was made in the High Vosges Mountains, and in a series of local operations approximately 800 prisoners were taken.

Enemy units making two thrusts from the east in the general direction of Malmédy reached Stavelot, southwest of Malmédy, and Butgenbach, east of Malmédy.

Another enemy drive in the area of Saint Vith cut off some of our forces east of the town, and enemy elements moved to within two miles of Saint Vith and to the vicinity of Maspelt, five miles to the south.

In the Echternach area, an enemy penetration was made to Consdorf, and Echternach itself was surrounded. The enemy force involved in the attack along the front includes five to six armored divisions and eight or nine infantry divisions.

There have been no changes in our positions to the north of Monschau along the Roer River, from Linnich to Düren.

In the Saar Valley, fighting continues in the Dillingen and Saarlautern bridgeheads.

Two small enemy counter-attacks northeast of Saargemünd were repulsed.

Fort Schlesseck, the second major Maginot Line fortification to be reduced in the vicinity of Bitsche, was cleared.

Further east, the enemy was aggressive, and several of his patrols crossed the Rhine.

Northwest of Colmar limited progress was made in the High Vosges Mountains, and in a series of local operations approximately 800 prisoners were taken.

Weather reduced air activity yesterday [Wednesday] to a minimum. (OWI-Reuter)

MOSCOW, December 21 — Tonight's communique:

During today, on the territory of Czechoslovakia, east of Lucenec, our troops, as a result of offensive battles, captured the town and railway junction of Rimovska-Sobota; the town and junctional railway station of Feledince (Feled); and also occupied in fighting over 30 other populated localities, including Tomasovtce, Bahti, Tomashova, Segbokor, Liukva, Godoyo, Gordvach, and Shikovtce, and the railway stations of Apaty and Godoyo.

In Hungary, north and northeast of Gyöngyös, our troops in stubborn fighting surmounted a mountain-wooded area, occupying over 50 populated localities including the town and railway station of Ozd; the large populated localities of Hangon, Godocselan, Oman, Cherne, Belapatfalva, Nikofalva, Bekeltse, Sucs, Tarnalelev, Buksekt, Tertesz, Saila, Rech, Matraberecske, Parad, Odon, Matraminsent, Mempki, Masenka, and Nadsbaton; and the railway stations of Hilva-Szvarad, Belapatfalva, Sharvacske, Parad, and Nadsbaton.

In battles during December 20, east of Lucenec and north of Gyöngyös, our troops captured 1,490 German and Hungarian soldiers and officers.

On other sectors of the front, patrolling and fighting of local importance took place.

WEHRMACHT COMMUNIQUE

FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, December 21 — The Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht announces:

Western Front:

Yesterday, in the winter battle of Belgium, the American troops occupying the Snow-Eifel were either wiped out or captured far behind the front. Seven thousand Americans were made prisoner.

In the forward parts of the attacking front, our troops penetrated into the Ardennes and crossed the big Liége-Bastogna-Arlon road on a broad front. Enemy supply columns, which fled toward the Meuse, were overtaken and rolled over by the German tanks, and fresh American units which had been brought up were cut into several isolated parts and did not succeed in stopping our advance.

We took more than 20,000 prisoners. Fourty three tanks and armoured vehicles, as well as 50 guns, were captured, and 136 tanks destroyed during yesterday's fighting.

At the previous focal points of the defensive fighting on the Western Front, the enemy continued his attacks unsuccessfully with smaller forces.

Only northwest of Bitsche, grim defensive fighting is in progress.

London and Antwerp continued to be subjected to our long-rang fire.

In the Scheldt Estuary, six big enemy supply vessels, totalling 30,000 tons, were sunk by weapons of the Navy.

Italy:

In central Italy, north of Faenza, the enemy prepared yesterday's major attack by an artillery drumfire of 100,000 rounds of all calibres in a sector 10 kilometers broad. By the evening, despite this heavy fire our brave troops had been pushed back only two kilometers.

Northeast of the town, the enemy attacks collapsed in front of our positions.

In the Bagnocavallo sector, yesterday, the heavily mauled Canadian formations launched only local attacks, which were frustrated with heavy losses, except for a minor penetration.

Eastern Front:

In the Balkans, the movements of our troops are being carried out, sometimes under the necessity of overcoming grim enemy resistance.

In Hungary, between Lake Balaton and the Danube, the Soviets attacked with strong forces and the support of numerous bombers. Grim fighting is in progress.

Between the Danube Bend and the southern frontier of Slovakia, the enemy pressure increased.

On the Eipel River, on the western slopes of the Matra Mountains, and on both sides of the upper Sajo, our troops

[illegible] the various claims of victories made in the Wehrmacht communique (see above), Sertorius observes that special weather conditions accompanying the German drive « have so far prevented the mass employment of enemy bomber fleets. »

Eastern Front: The Transocean correspondent, Colonel von Olberg, reports that the « lull continues on the Eastern Front ».

A DNB report, coming in later than von Olberg's, adds the perhaps significant warning that « the German Army in the East is quite capable of causing surprises » there, as well as in the West. « The German offensive in the West has not the slightest influence on the constellation at the Eastern Front.

Goebbels Predicts « German Victory »: DNB tonight has published the main substance of the weekly article by the Minister of Propaganda, appearing in full in the Nazi periodical Das Reich. Using the new German gains on the Western Front as a springboard to far greater optimism than has been the case in his recent articles, Goebbels says:

« The signs of the time, to a growing extent, indicate a German victory. One only has to know how to interpret them. »

However, if instead of this German victory, « the Germans would suddenly cease to exist as a European power of order, » then Goebbels predicts that « Bolshevism would sweep over our Continent like wildfire. » Thus, throughout, the propaganda trend is simultaneously to predict Nazi victory and to warn what Goebbels calls the « plutocratic » countries of the danger of a victory by the forces of « Bolshevik anarchy. »

REPUBLICAN FASCIST

Italian Front: North of Faenza and in the Bagnacavallo area, the British 8th Army managed to advance a couple of kilometres without succeeding in breaking through the German lines.

New Zealand troops, recently transferred to this part of the front, bore the brunt of the fighting and sustained heavy casualties.

Bonomi's Speech: In belated comment on Bonomi's recent radio address, the Fascist Radio indulges in rather abusive criticism of the Prime Minister of « invaded » Italy. It quotes a passage in his speech, reading: « We have no means of building up an army; we have no ships, no aircraft. Catania Riots: According to the Fascist Radio, the recent riots in Catania forced the Bonomi Government to grant Sicily and Sardinia concessions of both a political and an economic nature, including a certain measure of local autonomy, inspired by the Allied authorities. The latter are said to have inserted clauses which make all further attempts at separation punishable by law.

CANADIAN THRUST BREAKS GERMAN RESISTANCE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 22 — Canadian infantry and armored forces have breached the enemy delaying positions based on the Fosso Munio Canal and have thrust forward two miles to reach the Senio River, midway between the road and rail lines from Ravenna

strongpoint on the Ferrara road, and some three miles northeast of Bagnacavallo, focal point of enemy resistance on the Lugo-Bologna road. At the same time, other Canadian forces struck out from their positions west of the Canale Naviglio, a watercourse roughly paralleling the Canale Munio and, like it, linking the Senio and Lamone rivers. These forces reached the vicinity of the village of Abbadesse, two miles northeast of Bagnacavallo, where they were held in heavy fighting throughout Wednesday. Enemy forces counter-attacked both thrusts with infantry and tanks employed on a broad front.

Even while these counter-attacks were going on, and under continuous gunfire from enemy tank formations, Canadian sappers constructed a tank crossing over the Fosso Munio Canal, using a smoke screen for concealment. When Canadian armor began to roll across the water barrier, the enemy, weakened by his unsuccessful counter-attacks, began to fall back. By nightfall Wednesday, official reports said, « The back of the German resistance was broken, » and enemy withdrawal commenced along the entire sector.

Enemy forces were forced to relinquish Abbadesse, and the defenders of Bagnacavallo, dangerously outflanked, also withdrew. Canadian forces entered and cleared both communities yesterday.

Savage Delaying Actions

The Canadian attack, shearing through the left flank of enemy positions across the Po Plain after New Zealand assaults crumbled the whole southern end of the enemy's defenses based on the Lamone River, has hastened the enemy retreat to the Senio River Line, possibly before these positions are fully ready, judging from savage enemy delaying actions to hold the Allies east of this river. Many prisoners of war and much booty and equipment were captured by the Canadians, as the enemy fell back before the final relentless pressure of the 8th Army's westward advance.

On the 5th Army front, although no changes were reported in front-line dispositions, Allied patrols continued to probe enemy positions. Action focussed again in the sector south of Imola, on the right flank, where German forces still hold Tossignano, in the Santerno River Valley.

An enemy party was driven back from Allied lines southwest of Castel San Pietro, in the Sillaro River Valley, and enemy positions near Monte Grande were subjected to considerable mortar fire in the same area.

On the coastal flank, Allied troops harassed enemy concentrations near Monte Strettoia, three miles south of Massa and just east of the Ligurian coastal highway. (PRO)

CANADIAN THRUST BREAKS GERMAN RESISTANCE

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 22 — Canadian infantry and armored forces have breached the enemy delaying positions based on the Fosso Munio Canal and have thrust forward two miles to reach the Senio River, midway between the road and rail lines from Ravenna westward to Ferrara and Bologna, it was announced here today.

The Canadian attack, launched on a front more than a mile wide, and carried out against continuing enemy counter-attacks, has « broken the back » of German resistance north of Bagnacavallo, and Canadian forces have already entered this former enemy stronghold on the Ravenna-Lugo-Bologna road 9½ miles northeast of Faenza, it was reported.

Enemy withdrawal has been forced along the whole of a four-mile-wide sector north of Bagnacavallo, and latest reports indicated that the German forces were also beginning to evacuate the remnants of their Lamone River defenses, already perilously reduced by attacks against their exposed flank north of Faenza. Official reports here described the situation along this sector of five miles as « increasingly fluid. »

The Canadian thrust reached the Senio River, next of the enemy's defensive water lines, near the town of Fusignano, 11½ miles northwest of Ravenna and on one of the numerous connecting roads between the main highways leading to Ferrara and Bologna. The Canadian forces, including armor, are now deployed « on a broad front » along the east banks of the river opposite this town, today's reports stated.

The Canadian attack across the Fosso Munio was made at a point about four miles south of Alfonsine, German

GERMAN ADVANCE SLOWED BY U. S. PRESSURE

LONDON, December 22 — The German offensive against the center of the American 1st Army front has slowed down before stiffening Allied defensive pressure, and its speed has slackened in the past 48 hours, press dispatches reported

LATE BULLETINS

NEW GERMAN THRUST GAINS 22 MILES

SHAEF, December 22 — The German spearhead which thrust across Luxembourg to Clervaux, by-passed the Belgian communications center of Bastogne and swung northward to reach Laroche, an advance of 22 miles, it was officially reported tonight.

This southern spearhead is within 15 miles of the northern German flank at Werbomont, deepest German penetration into Belgium and 20 miles south of Liége. The Allied announcement said that both flanks of the new German drive were controlled.

Another late press dispatch said that soldiers from a battered infantry regiment staved off an attack by an entire German division this morning, and by their epic stand saved the city of Luxembourg. (OWI-Reuter)

« ELAS » REPLIES TO GENERAL SCOBIE

ATHENS, December 22 — ELAS leaders' reply to the demand of General Scobie that they lay down their arms was delivered to the general at 2000 hours tonight. (Reuter) tonight. Latest official reports said that the deepest penetration of German panzers into Belgium was 40 miles, but that the violence of the thrust had been checked.

A new German thrust was made yesterday about 20 miles south of the city of Luxembourg. The attack, involving 10 tanks and two companies of German infantry, was repulsed.

(The German news agency tonight interrupted a regular transmission to report that the German offensive in the West had been slowed down by a flank attack by the American 3rd Army. The German report said that spearheads driving southwest had defended themselves against increasingly furious counter-attacks by several divisions of the 3rd Army.)

Although news from Allied headquarters revealed positions up to noon Tuesday only, correspondents' dispatches said that the German advance had become more opportunist and less according to plan. As a result, they pushed into areas where there was least resistance, and by-passed American strongpoints.

The five to six veteran panzer divisions employed in the German offensive were slowed also because of the inability of newly-formed Volks-Grenadier divisions to follow the tank advance. The German infantry forces were not able to wipe out such American strongholds as Malmédy St. Vith, and Echternach — all necessary to the consolidation of the German salient.

Americans Stand Fast at St. Vith

The most important Allied position is the Belgian communications hub of St. Vith, in the center of the German advance. American forces holding the city, which compelled Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt to divide his forces, have thrown off frontal attacks by a German SS division continually, and have knocked out 55 tanks in the last 24 hours.

Press dispatches said that this American armored stand may turn the present dangerous situation into a mere military setback, as large German forces were being successfully stemmed.

American armor and infantry forces held the northern flank of the German breakthrough, and heavy battles were reported in the areas of Monschau, Malmédy and Stavelot. German half-tracks and tanks gained two miles in a westward advance, however, and were reported to be in Werbomont, cutting the important Liége-Bastogne highway.

A late press report said that American forces wiped out a pocket of 500 German parachutists just southeast of Eupen, a vital Belgian road and rail center 10 miles behind the battle line. The German airborne forces had expected to be joined by enemy armored forces driving westward from the Monschau area, but the German spearhead had been stopped early in the offensive.

On the southern flank of the German offensive, which correspondents said had not yet reached its climax, the fighting remained fluid, with the Germans attempting to push westward from Clervaux and Wiltz in northern Luxembourg. American troops continued to deny the town of Echternach to the Germans, but a German thrust to the southwest made some progress at Consdorf.

The entire battlefield was shrouded in low clouds, fog, and rain, which kept Allied aircraft from striking at the enemy's roving columns and from attacking German supply columns moving bumper-to-bumper toward the front.

The Belgian radio broadcast a warning that German soldier saboteurs wearing Belgian uniforms or civilian clothes were working on Belgian territory.

Supreme Allied Headquarters announced that no German paratroopers had been dropped in the immediate vicinity of Paris, but that the authorities were taking normal precautions to counteract any such attempt.

to rise now to new heights of courage, resolution, and effort. Let everyone hold before him the single thought — to destroy the enemy on the ground, in the air, and everywhere — destroy him.

«United in this determination, and with unshakeable courage and faith in the cause for which we fight, we will, with God's help, go forward to our greatest victory.»

RED ARMY CLOSING ON LUCENEC

MOSCOW, December 22 — German Alpine troops tonight are striving to hold off the Red Army from the last approaches to Lucenec, on the Czechoslovakian border. A Reuter correspondent reported that the Soviets are closing in from the east and south of the town.

The correspondent said that a considerable group of Germans are still trying to struggle away beyond the Matra Hills, and that many of them never will get back into Lucenec. More enemy reinforcements are reported on the southern front, which is regarded as a good indication of the success attending the Soviet plan.

The Germans now recognize that a big drive on the Reich border may come equally well from the south as from the north of the Carpathian Wall. This means a further dispersal of the German forces, and places the initiative in Soviet hands more securely than ever. The enemy cannot afford to leave any approaches to Silesia uncovered.

Tonight's Soviet communique reported the capture of 1,755 German and Hungarian soldiers east of Lucenec. Yesterday, the communique added, the Red Army destroyed or disabled 101 enemy tanks and shot down 68 enemy planes.

Meanwhile, a report from the German press spoke of a general Soviet offensive on the Baltic front. This report stated that the Red Army has attacked all along a 20-mile front in Latvia, and has penetrated their lines at some points. The Soviet communique was silent in regard to this move, and reported only the activity in Hungary southwest of Budapest. (BBC-Reuter)

AMERICANS ADVANCE 3 MILES ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 22 — American 77th Division troops have advanced three miles west of the Ormoc Corridor on the mountain road toward Palompon, escape port for the embattled Japanese remaining on Leyte Island, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced last night. Artillery fire killed 1,546 Japanese on the west coast of the island.

On Mindoro Island, Japanese air action is slackening off. A small Japanese convoy was attacked in Banka Sea by Dutch heavy bombers, which sank one freighter and damaged a second.

Two American warships lost off Leyte in the Philippines were identified by the War Department as the destroyer Mahan and the destroyer transport Ward. Loss of the ships, which raised to 236 the number of U.S. naval losses since the war started, had been announced previously by General MacArthur. They were not identified at that time.

General MacArthur has said that the vessels were heavily damaged by aerial torpedoes. There was no loss of life on the Ward. The Navy did not announce the number of casualties on the Mahan. (OWI)

49TH SUPERFORT ATTACK ON JAP INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, December 22 — U.S. Superfortresses today made their 49th attack on Japanese industry, when a sizable force of the giant bombers roared over Honshu, main island of Japan's home group. Only the day before, another force of Superforts had attacked the important

GERMANS MAKING «SUPREME EFFORT»

SHAEF, December 22 — General Dwight Eisenhower, in an order of the day addressed «to every member of the Allied Expeditionary Force,» said that «the enemy is making a supreme effort to break out of the desperate plight into which you forced him by your brilliant victories of the summer and fall.»

General Eisenhower also said:

«He is fighting savagely to take back all you have won, and is using every treacherous trick to deceive and kill you.

«He is gambling everything, but already in this battle your gallantry has done much to foil his plans. In face of your proven bravery and fortitude, he will completely fail. But we cannot be content with his mere repulse.

«By pushing him out of his fixed defenses, the enemy may give us a chance to turn his great gamble into his worst defeat. So I call upon every man from all the Allies further dispersal of the German forces, and places the initiative in Soviet hands more securely than ever. The enemy cannot afford to leave any approaches to Silesia uncovered.

AMERICANS ADVANCE 3 MILES ON LEYTE

LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, December 22 — American 77th Division troops have advanced three miles west of the Ormoc Corridor on the mountain road toward Palompon, escape port for the embattled Japanese remaining on Leyte Island, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced last night. Artillery fire killed 1,546 Japanese on the west coast of the island.

On Mindoro Island, Japanese air action is slackening off. A small Japanese convoy was attacked in Banka Sea by Dutch heavy bombers, which sank one freighter and damaged a second.

Two American warships lost off Leyte in the Philippines were identified by the War Department as the destroyer Mahan and the destroyer transport Ward. Loss of the ships, which raised to 236 the number of U.S. naval losses since the war started, had been announced previously by General MacArthur. They were not identified at that time.

General MacArthur has said that the vessels were heavily damaged by aerial torpedoes. There was no loss of life on the Ward. The Navy did not announce the number of casualties on the Mahan. (OWI)

49TH SUPERFORT ATTACK ON JAP INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, December 22 — U.S. Superfortresses today made their 49th attack on Japanese industry, when «a sizable force» of the giant bombers roared over Honshu, main island of Japan's home group. Only the day before, another force of Superforts had attacked the important Manchuria Plane factory at Mukden.

Nagoya, third-largest city in Japan, was the target today for the fifth time this month; a major Japanese aircraft plant is there.

Japanese troops holding the key railway town of Hochih, in northwestern Kwangsi Province, have been reinforced and are offering stiff resistance to Chinese troops attacking from three directions, a Chungking communique said today. Press dispatches added that the Japanese intend to make a determined attempt to hold Hochih as a bastion guarding their new corridor linking China with Indo-China.

Further, says the Associated Press, Japanese authorities have conscripted large numbers of laborers in North China to help move war factories from the Japanese mainland to Manchuria, as a result of increasing American air raids upon Japan. It is believed that 13 factories of military importance already have been transferred.

Meanwhile, a Southeast Asia Command headquarters communique from Kandy, Ceylon, said today that troops of the 14th Army in West Burma have occupied Kawlin, on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway, eight miles south of Wuntho. This southward advance by the British parallels the course of the Irrawaddy River, and is now just over 120 miles north of Mandalay.

On the Chindwin R[illegible] front, farther to the south and west, British troops advanced southeastward to a point 17 miles east of Shwegyin on the Shwegyin-Yeu road. Yeu lies on the Mu River, some 60 miles south of Kawlin.

On the 15th Corps front, naval craft heavily shelled Buthidaung, on the east bank of the Mayu River and about eight miles north of the Bay of Bengal.

In the northern combat area, command troops of the 38th Chinese Division consolidated yesterday's gains along the Bhamo-Namhkam road, which connects Bhamo with the Burma Road.

In the air, fighter-bombers of the Eastern Air Command swept a 70-mile stretch of the Mandalay-Lashio railway yesterday, damaging rolling stock and stores, while other bombers struck at military targets in the Lashio district.

The communique added that a strong force of fighter-bombers which attacked Japanese troop and supply concentrations behind the lines Wednesday caused much damage and started many fires.

Thunderbolts of the 14th USAAF yesterday attacked the Japanese airdrome at Tinan, 150 miles south of Tientsin on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad. Five of the 10-to-20 enemy intercepting aircraft were reported destroyed. No Allied planes are missing.

In south China, fighters bombed Hwaiyuanchen, west of Ishan, and struck at installations at Liuchow. A communique reported other air action against docks at Hongkong, Lucnam in French Indo-China, and Japanese positions in Burma.

80th Jap Admiral Dies

The death of Rear Admiral Tomojiro Kaneoka was announced yesterday by the Japanese news agency Domei. He is the 80th Japanese admiral to have died since May 17 of this year. No details of his death were revealed.

The « stand and die » attitude of the Japanese in Burma has been met by an equally determined and more effective offensive surge by the Allies, Major James Richardson, American military analyst, said today. « The Japanese must hold Burma if they wish to keep the Allies from gaining a back door to China. They must hold Burma in the face of a strengthening hold of the Allies on bases in the Philippines bordering on the South China Sea. They must hold Burma, or present the Allies with a gateway to Thailand and Indo-China, » he added.

A London Daily Telegraph correspondent in Burma estimated yesterday that the British troops driving toward Mandalay have advanced 170 miles over very difficult country in eight days.

Paying a tribute to American skill and daring, the London Times said today that no praise can be too high for the work of the mainly-American air transport services which have revolutionized the conduct of the Burma campaign. (OWD - Reuter - BBC - MOI)

R.A.F. STRIKES AGAIN IN YUGOSLAVIA

ADVANCE AFHQ, ITALY, December 22 — Liberator, Halifax, and Wellington bombers of the Royal Air Force yesterday again lashed at fleeing German troops in southern Yugoslavia, it was announced here today.

More than 15 fires were observed along the crowded Maresevo-Mojkovac road, where the bulk of the German 21st Mountain Corps is struggling northward to join scattered groups which have already effected a juncture with main German forces, it was reported.

Mustang fighter-bombers of the Balkan Air Forces dive-bombed and strafed the German stragglers and knocked out a temporary bridge thrown across the Tara River along the escape route north from Podgorica. Some 200 destroyed or abandoned German vehicles have been counted along a 45-mile stretch of road northeast of Podgorica, taken a few days ago by Partisan forces, the Air Force announced.

Although bad weather restricted Tactical Air Force fighter-bombers to only 225 sorties these hard-hitting air-

Masses of black smoke were seen today coming from the German synthetic oil plant at Pilitz, a few miles from Stettin, about 12 hours after last night's attack by a strong force of RAF bombers, the BBC reported tonight.

This oil plant is one of the largest plants of its kind in Germany. It covers about three-quarters of a square-mile. To achieve surprise, the raiding force took a long, roundabout route and, in all, flew about 2,000 miles. (BBC-Reuter)

YUGOSLAVS CONTINUE ATTACKS

LONDON, December 22 — In widespread attacks on German communications in Yugoslavia yesterday, 700 Germans were killed and an accompanying toll of German equipment captured or destroyed, Marshal Tito's communique said today.

In central Yugoslavia, fierce fighting was being waged in the Drina Valley on the 25-mile stretch of railway between Bijeljina and Brcko. The Yugoslavs are fighting here to stem a strong German attack toward Brcko, a rail junction west of Belgrade; 350 Germans were killed in this area, and considerable quantities of war material were seized.

West of this area, in the Bosna Valley, the Yugoslav forces destroyed several German strongpoints on the 20-mile stretch of rail line between Dovoj and Derventa, wrecking the line over a great part of its length.

The Germans were also being pushed back in the direction of Korenica in west-central Yugoslavia, after Marshal Tito's troops captured dominating positions.

Seven German trucks were destroyed along a rail line from Zagreb to Karlovac, the communique said.

In the Gorica sector, just below Zagreb, a German column was attacked; 40 Germans were taken prisoner and 70 were killed.

In southern Yugoslavia, above Albania, two villages were liberated and Yugoslav troops are approaching Matesevo, 12 miles north of the Albanian border. (OWI)

FIRST ALL-INDIAN BRIGADE IN ACTION

NEW DELHI, December 22 — An all-Indian brigade, led by Indian commanding officers, is in action for the first time in the history of the Indian Army, the Exchange Telegraph said today. It is fighting in Burma as part of the 25th Indian Division.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, commander-in-chief of the Southeast Asia Command, who recently visited the brigade, praised its fine leadership, the splendid spirit of its men, and the important part that it is playing in the fight against the Japanese. (OWI)

LIBERATED ITALY

2,000 MILLION LIRE APPROPRIATED

ROME, December 22 — Two thousand million lire will be spent for urgent repair work on dwellings throughout Italy damaged by the war, a spokesman for the Ministry of Public Works announced today.

The spokesman said 1,000 million lire will be expended directly by the Ministry. Part of the second half of the appropriation will be made available to assist private owners in cases where costs will not exceed 150,000 lire. Where repair costs go above this figure, as in the case of owners of apartment blocks, the Government will assume part of the mortgage payments on loans advanced by the banks or other credit firms. A.C. GIVES TRUCKS TO NEW ITALIAN POOL

ROME, December 22 — The Allied Commission will contribute its entire stock of military vehicles hauling civilian supplies in Italian Government territory to the temporary pool now being organized as the Ente Nazionale Autotrasporti di Cose, AC's Transportation Sub-Commission announced yesterday.

In the grave transport crisis affecting every section of the economy, and in particular disrupting food supply and causing ruinous prices, the Italian Government and the Allied Commision have agreed upon formation of ENAC.

ENAC will not operate trucks unless required to. It will be a Government-controlled coöperative enterprise, a sort of dispatching office, a temporary, emergency organization to be dissolved as soon as post-war stabilization begins.

The Sub-Commission's director is Merritt H. Taylor, a civilian on leave from the presidency of the Philadelphia Suburban Transportation Co.

Because of German looting and war's destruction of coastal shipping, railways, and trucks, truck haulage is the only practical means of transport left. Unless Allied experts, who themselves are wrestling with tire and transport shortages at home, are convinced that the Italian people are making a maximum use of all transport, Allied contributions of transport will not be forthcoming in the degree desired by Italians, AC officials said.

Regulations Listed

At present, trucks, the means least used in normal times here, have suddenly become the chief means of transport. Hence, ENAC will require all operators or owners of load-carrying vehicles to register them.

Other rules are:

1. All such vehicles must be enrolled and pooled in ENAC.

2. All trips will be made on assignment by pool officials.

3. Regional truck commissions, composed of food officials, chambers of commerce and large shippers, will be set up to control traffic.

4. Priority ratings will be given to essential commodities, with food leading the list, and reconstruction materials second.

5. Uniform tariff rates will be laid down, and paid to truckers by the pool, instead of being collected by the trucker from the shipper.

6. Standard work tickets will be used by all truckers.

7. Reporting points will be established where trucks returning empty can get return loads.

8. Rail stations will be used as collection centers to facilitate mass movement of goods on schedule.

9. Fuel will be allotted to truckers only through ENAC.

The Allied Commission will supply gasoline and oil from Allied imports, will create truck organizations of Italian personnel operating Allied trucks and will promote reëstablishment of tire re-treading factories in Italy. The AC will also arrange for supply of spare parts and tires to ENAC members, and will sell to the Italian Government for ENAC any trucks and equipment AC may wish to dispose of.

How inadequate Italian transport is, in its present uncontrolled conditions, can be seen from the following:

LIVORNO GROUP ASKS FOR NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

LIVORNO, December 22 — The Livorno Provincial Committee of National Liberation today distributed a circular letter to all similar committees in liberated Italy asking that the Central Committee of National Liberation be replaced by a national assembly.

The Livorno group stated that in the light of the recent government crisis, a national assembly is necessary for the "effective development of a government which will remain intact through the present conflict to the convocation of a constitutional assembly."

The letter added that the national assembly should be given the necessary legislative power to administer and develop a three-point program:

1. An increase in the war effort against the Nazi-Fascists.

2. Energetic and radical prosecution of the epuration program.

3. Formulation of laws for the election of a national assembly.

The Livorno proposal asks that the national assembly be composed of one or two representatives of each party in the regional committees, "possibly on a proportional representation basis." (UNN)

WOMEN DEMAND INCLUSION ON VOTERS' LISTS

ROME, December 22 — Women's suffrage and legislation providing for the immediate inclusion of women on voters' lists were demanded in an order of the day issued today by the Union of Italian Women.

The order of the day was in reply to a recent declaration made by Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi to Representative Clare Booth Luce, in which she said he was "heartily in favor of women's suffrage," and that he would, "at the earliest possible moment, support legislation to that effect."

The UIW welcomed Bonomi's recognition of the right of women to participate in the political life of the nation, but added that "such affirmation of principle has not been supported by any practical measures."

Delay in the inclusion of women in new voting registry lists might hinder the effective participation of women in the forthcoming elections, the order of the day said.

Asserting that in recent months Italian women had demonstrated their capacity for coöperation with Italian and Allied authorities for the solution of Italy's problems, the order of the day declared that no positive results could be achieved without the active collaboration of women, not only as functionaries, but also as leaders. RAILWAY WORKERS REINSTATED

ROME, December 22 — Thirty-nine railway workers have been reinstated to the jobs from which they had been discharged by the Fascists, the Press Office of the Ministry of Transport announced today.

The announcement said Transport Minister Francesco Cerabona has issued orders to the Railways Personnel Committee to speed up examination of many other cases of employees discharged for anti-Fascist activity. (UNN)

Preliminary reports from some other sections indicated today that 85 per cent of the 1942 load-carrying trucks had disappeared. Further, trucks have been used for carrying non-essential commodities, and uncontrolled use has encouraged the inflationary practice of using only part capacity of a truck but charging for a full load. RUMANIAN LEGATION RE-OPENS IN ROME

ROME, December 22 — Italy and Rumania must seek to coöperate with the great nations of the world in emerging from the ravages of war, the Rumanian Chargé d'Affaires said today on the re-opening of the Rumanian Legation here.

«Today, our peoples are faced with the difficult work of moral and material reconstruction,» he said. «Both nations must confront similiar problems of a political, social, and economic nature, with a view to making up for the disaster caused by a ruinous war, and to find the paths which lead to the peaceful and fraternal collaboration with the great nations of the world, faithful to the idea of peace.» (UNN)
