TRANSLATION

Rovereto, 29 July 1946

TO: Honorable Allied Commander!

You will be surprised in receiving this letter. I beg you to bear with me as I am a desolate mother whose sorrow is beyond expression.

My son, Riccardo Gandelberger, has been held for four months in the Merano jail, contrary to your order ~~whereas~~ he was to be interned only. This would have been a different thing.

I have received very sad news from my son inasmuch as he is suffering from heart attacks. His doctor has pronounced the following exact words: "if he is not released from this place the affair may become serious".

I am prostrating myself before you, Sir, and am beseeching you to prevent my son from dying by ordering him released as soon as possible. My strength has been exhausted by this grievous catastrophe and I am thus unable to reach Merano to visit my unfortunate son, being also prevented to do so by my dire financial conditions.

I apologise for my daring and my long writing. The grief makes me forgetful of most basic rules of good breeding.

I entertain the hope that you will do something towards heading the application of a poor mother. While invoking God's mercy on you I send you a million thanks.

yours truly

s/ Maria Gandelberger
Rovereto - Via Grotto 79 8

Onorevole Comandante nostro Alleato!

Testata sorpresa al ricevere questa mia. Mi compatisca e la preghi, d'una madre desolata, che passa dei giorni che uguaglian, anni di dolore! - Il mio figlio Riccardo Candelpergher, si trova da quattro mesi, nelle carceri di Merano, mentre l'ordine Loro, era di inturarlo, questo sarebbe stato altra cosa - Questo sepi di recente. Giorni fa ricevetti notizie da Merano, dove mio figlio, si trova; notizie assai sconsolanti. - Il Medico chiamato d'argenza parecchie volte, causa forti attacchi cardiaci. Questo si è espresso colle testuali parole; "se il poverello, non vien presto liberato da quest'ambiente, la cosa può farsi seria, si deve evitare che non si ripeta. Io Onorevole, grido e grido forte, invocando, supplicando in ginocchio, la Sua Clemenza, onde possa ottenere avanti sia troppo tardi, la liberazione, onde poter rabbracciare presto il mio unico figlio. Le mie forze sono esauste, causa questa dolorosa catastrofe, non posso adempire al mio sacrosanto dovere, e desiderio, di portarmi a Merano a visitare questo disgraziato figlio e neppure le mie attuali circostanze finanziarie, me lo permettono. - Prego scusi il mio ardire, e il lungo scritto. Il dolore mi fa dimenticare le più severe regole di convenienza. Nutro fiducia, che non mi vorrà negare ad una vecchia Madre angosciata, questa supplica.

Ringraziandola umilmente mille volte. La ricon-
ferma L'Aspetti da Dio

No. 1590

SUBJECT : Trial of enemy agents by Italian Authorities.

TO : G-2(OK), AFHQ

1. In view of the gradual hand-over of territory to Italian administration, and in order that there may not be a disparity in the treatment of individual cases, HQ.C.S. has requested this office that those enemy saboteurs and agents who have been interned for reasons affecting the security of our war-effort, may now be brought to trial according to Italian law.
2. It has been stipulated that cases will not be prepared against those agents who were interned by the Allies for reasons reserved to Allied Security, until such time as it is indicated by Allied authorities that those reasons cease to exist.
3. With regard to the type of internment mentioned in para. 2 above, it has been requested in particular that those captured agents belonging to the Abwehr Im (CAPALBI-ROTA-GRADARZI etc), who were interned for reasons known to your headquarters, may now be brought to trial before an Italian Military Tribunal.
4. May this office please be informed at an early date of your decision in regard to the above requests.

SUBJECT : MUSCATELLO Domenico.

TO : A. C. Public Safety Sub-Commission
(Security Division).

Your SD/149-399 of 4 Jun 45.

It is recommended that subject's relatives be informed of the dates of his arrest, trial and execution. Information on the reasons for his being sentenced to death should be confined to saying that he was found guilty on a charge of espionage.

There is no trace here of any letters written by subject. It is presumed that such effects if they exist will be in the hands of the AMG authorities responsible for his custody prior to execution, believed to be TOSCANA Region.

Records here show that subject was arrested 3 Dec 44 at LEVIGLIANO near LUCCA, sentenced to death on 8 Feb 45 at FLORENCE and confined in LE MURATE Prison there (your 1271 of 10 Feb 45), and executed 31 Mar 45 (5th Army signal 4172 of 1 Apr 45 to this HQ, 15 Army Group, ALCOM, and AMG TOSCANA Region).

DRAHTFUNK OR "WIRED WIRELESS"

This paper is published to bring to the attention of all concerned the existence of Drahtfunk and the potential danger it presents as a means whereby the Nazis might communicate from territories still in their possession to agents and members of the Nazi Party remaining in territory overrun by the Allies.

1. Development of Drahtfunk.

The earliest system of "Wired Wireless" was a simple method of broadcasting music and programmes of general interest to subscribers on a telephone network.

With the development of radio a new system was introduced in 1936 which was called "Hochfrequenz Drahtfunk" (high frequency wired wireless). This permitted the simultaneous transmission of several programmes and listeners could choose whichever they desired. Further, the programmes were not interrupted by telephone calls as had been the case with the old system. The new system gained favour in spite of advances in normal radio because it offered reception free from atmospheric, distortion and interference from other stations.

The progress of Drahtfunk was keenly watched by Nazi Germany as it presented a means whereby the GERMAN population might be restricted to listening to propaganda broadcasts. Also in time of war the system offered the following advantages: -

- (a) A means of broadcasting which does not have to close down because of the presence of enemy aircraft;
- (b) Communication to selected groups e.g. civil defence, party officials etc;
- (c) A means of broadcasting which it is impossible to intercept from a distance;
- (d) An air raid warning system.

2. The Employment of Drahtfunk in GERMANY today.

It is known that in GERMANY there are in existence at present two Drahtfunk schemes, i.e. Direct and Indirect.

(a) Direct Drahtfunk (Fig 1)

This is the more elaborate scheme and is used throughout the Reich for transmitting three programmes (Deutschlandsender and two other Reichsenders) over the long distance underground

1. Development of Drahtfunk.

The earliest system of "wired wireless" was a simple method of broadcasting music and programmes of general interest to subscribers on a telephone network.

With the development of radio a new system was introduced in 1936 which was called "Hochfrequenz Drahtfunk" (high frequency wired wireless). This permitted the simultaneous transmission of several programmes and listeners could choose whichever they desired. - (c) A means of broadcasting which it is impossible to intercept from a distance;
- (d) An air raid warning system.

2. The Employment of Drahtfunk in GERMANY today.

It is known that in GERMANY there are in existence at present two Drahtfunk schemes, i.e. Direct and Indirect.

This is the more elaborate scheme and is used throughout the Reich for transmitting three programmes (Deutschlandsender and two other Reichsenders) over the long distance underground telephone cables to selected persons and offices such as Party leaders, government officials, etc.

The programmes are transmitted on frequencies of 150, 220 and 250 kcs (2000, 1360, and 1200 metres respectively) and are received, after passing through various Repeater and Distributing stations, by means of the Standard People's receiver or by Special Drahtfunk receivers.

SECRET

This is a local system which is independent of direct Drahtfunk. It is used to allow the local party officials to broadcast to the people in the area under their control. The broadcast is made by means of a microphone wired to a transmitter housed in or near the local post Office building and the programme is sent out over telephone lines emanating from the exchange.

Subscribers merely connect one end of a wire to the aerial terminal of their radio receiver, or Drahtfunk receiver, and wrap the other end of the wire round the incoming telephone cable (Fig 3).

The programmes are usually propaganda, pep talks, air raid warnings or defence instructions.

5. Potentialities of Drahtfunk for Illicit Communications, and Possible Countermeasures.

When considering the possible use of Drahtfunk by the Nazis for subversive purposes it is of considerable importance to note the following facts: -

The GERMANS are said to have satisfied themselves by practical test that

(a) In the case of Indirect Drahtfunk, breaks in a line up to 200 yds wide are jumped by the transmitters without appreciable loss in strength;

(b) On Direct Drahtfunk, stretches of disrupted cable up to nearly a mile in length do not prevent transmissions successfully bridging the gaps;

Secret listening to Drahtfunk transmissions will be greatly facilitated by virtue of the fact that a receiving set does not have to be electrically connected to the incoming telephone line.

Drahtfunk might well be used for transmitting instructions to Nazi Agents or for the organisation and control of underground movements. For these purposes it provides a means for communication within Allied occupied territory or from territory held by the Nazis to areas captured by the Allies.

In order that countermeasures can be organised it will be necessary for thorough investigations to be made whenever equipment which might be connected with Drahtfunk is located.

Using a suitable receiver it should be possible to intercept

3. Potentialities of Drahtfunk for Ill-aimed Communications, and Possible Countermeasures.

When considering the possible use of Drahtfunk by the Nazis for subversive purposes it is of considerable importance to note the following facts: -

The GERMANS are said to have satisfied themselves by practical test that

- (a) In the case of indirect Drahtfunk, breaks in a line up to 200 yds wide are jumped by the transmitters without appreciable loss in strength;

In order that countermeasures can be organised it will be necessary for thorough investigations to be made whenever equipment which might be connected with Drahtfunk is located.

Using a suitable receiver it should be possible to arrest or intercept Drahtfunk transmissions at repeater stations or distribution points, e.g. Telephone exchanges.

It is wise to foresee the possibility of secret transmitters being installed for injecting transmissions into selected telephone lines at points away from the distribution stations. Detection would then become a laborious task by the "tapping in" method. It might, however, be achieved by wiring up each incoming cable on the main distribution frame of the telephone exchange to a high frequency lamp which would light up and act as an indicator if intercept transmissions were made.

It will be appreciated that Draftfunk presents a potential danger to Allied Security which cannot be overlooked. The Staff will realize the susceptibilities of normal radio to interception and it is certain that they will not hesitate to explore the possibilities of using other methods for Secret Communications.

Action.....

1. Although the main effort of G.I. work must now be directed toward the apprehension of GIB officials, nevertheless it should be remembered that post-occupational agents, particularly sailors, still constitute a potential source to aided crews, and that the Japanese will be anxious to ascertain the movements of Allied troops from ITALY to the PACIFIC.

2. Owing to this change in emphasis, and the consequent increase in work, less manpower and time will be available, particularly in forward areas, both for such extensive search for agents (as exposed to officials) and for such detailed attention to each case as has hitherto been possible. Interrogation in particular will require to be cut down to a minimum, unless the agent is known either to have been in contact with the GIB since the surrender, or to be of exceptional interest for any other reason.

3. In view of the above, 15 Army Group have arranged that, with regard to agents in their area, a revised procedure will be followed, the effect of which is to make the apprehension, interrogation and disposal of wanted agents the responsibility mainly of Italian G.S. personnel. Thus, with regard to agents whose precise whereabouts is indicated, 15 Army Group will write directly to the Army concerned and will not give the information full circulation; but with regard to those agents whose whereabouts is vague or unstated, it has been agreed that their particulars will be circulated in 15 Army Group area only to Italian G.S. personnel, and that for this purpose this will be responsible for communicating the details to Army Liaison Officer IAI.

4. With regard to arrangements in AFM area, there is not the same pressure of other commitments at present, since there are not likely to be many GIB officials or their agents located in AFM on the other hand, there will be fewer GIB/AFM available, and the same principle will therefore have to be followed of giving more use of Italian G.S. personnel.

5. Current procedure for circulation of agents' names in Enemy Agents lists will therefore continue. Similarly, procedure for disposal and for reporting of captures will remain unchanged. With regard to interrogation, however, it will only be necessary to submit a report on the lines of the attached pro-forma, unless

1. Although the main effort of C.I. work must now be directed towards the apprehension of G.I. officials, nevertheless it should be remembered that post-occupational agents, particularly sub-teams, still constitute a residual capacity to Allied forces, and that the Japanese will be anxious to ascertain the movements of Allied troops from Italy to the D.C.I.W.O.
2. Owing to this change in emphasis, and the consequent increase in work, less manpower and time will be available, particularly in forward areas, both for such extensive search for agents (as opposed to officials) and for such detailed attention to each case as has hitherto been possible. Interruption in particular will require to be cut down to a minimum, unless the agent is known either to have been in contact with the G.I. since the surrender, or to be of exceptional interest for any other reason.
3. As a result of the above, 15 Army Group have arranged that, with regard to agents in their area, a revised procedure will be followed, the effect of which is to make the apprehension, interrogation and disposal of captured agents the responsibility solely of Italian G.I. personnel. Thus, with regard to agents whose previous whereabouts is indicated, 15 Army Group will write directly to the Army concerned and will not give the information full circulation, but with regard to those agents whose whereabouts is vague or unstated, it has been agreed that their whereabouts will be circulated in 15 Army Group area only to Italian G.I. personnel, and that for this purpose this HQ will be responsible for communicating the details to their Liaison Officer HQ.
4. With regard to arrangements in AMG area, there is no the same pressure of other commitments at present, since there are not likely to be many G.I. officials or other agents located in the, on the other hand, there will be fewer HQ/AMG available, in the same principle will therefore have to be followed of making use of Italian G.I. personnel.
5. Current procedure for circularization of agents' names in Enemy Areas lists will therefore continue. Similarly, procedure for disposal and for reporting of captures will remain unchanged. With regard to interrogation, however, it will only be necessary to submit a report on the lines of the attached pro-forma, unless there is reason to believe that the agent has been in touch with either the enemy HQ or any enemy-inspired subversive group since 2 May 45. In this case, a full report will be submitted.
6. In connection with above reference should be made to our G.I.-569.701-2-2 of 3 May 45.

SUBJECT : Stay-behind Saboteurs in Underground Hideouts.

TO : See Distribution.

The following report has been received from 18th Army Group areas: -

1. A widespread plan was put into effect by "J. GUYARD" in "Paris" an organization directly controlled by Lt. Col. SWANWICK. Hideouts were arranged to leave behind saboteurs and terrorist parties.

A typical dugout is eight feet wide, eleven feet long and six feet high. It is entered by a trapdoor, two feet square and three feet thick, which is completely covered by sod and extremely difficult to find, even though the approximate location is known. The installation is equipped with two double-decker bunks, stove fuel, cooking utensils, food and various other articles.

2. Mission and Equipment. Experience to date indicates that the mission and equipment of the groups occupying these dugouts vary considerably. While the primary mission is sabotage, other missions including espionage and possible assassination of collaborators and high Allied officials are indicated.

2. In general, the sabotage mission of these occupants who have been organized has been to destroy US supply and communication lines by whatever means possible. In preparation for this mission, one of these four-man "troups" of saboteurs had attended a sabotage school at LEVERIE, near VILLERIE, which was established in November, 1944, and which produced three hundred graduates over a three week period. This school provided instruction in the destruction of bridges and railroad equipment, laying of S- and T-mines, use of hand grenades, destruction of vehicles, slashing of tires, and displacing of road and unit signs to cause confusion.

2. The following items are included among the equipment which has been found in these underground dugouts: -

Mauser automatic pistols and ammunition.

Panzerschutze.

88 mm handgrenades.

T-mines.

S-mines.

Square one-kilogram explosive charges.

5. In general, the sabotage mission of those occupants who have been organized has been to destroy US supply and communication lines by whatever means possible. In preparation for this mission, one of those former "Truppen" of saboteurs had attended a sabotage school at MARIENBURG, near WILHELMSTADT, which was established in November, 1944, and which produced three hundred graduates every three weeks. This school provided instruction in the destruction of bridges and railroad equipment, laying of S- and T-mines, use of hand grenades, destruction of vehicles, slashing of tires, and displacing of road and unit signs to cause confusion.

2. Orientals carried by captured agents have included not only the normal Churchill, SS or Volksturm Selbstschut, but also a Volksturm suspect upon which was entered a special description assuming the holder from examination by civil authorities upon the approach of Allied troops.

3. So far no evidence of such an organization in Italy has come to notice, but similar preparations may have been made in Germany or Northern Italian territory.
