TO: The Camp Commandant (or equivalent officer)

1. This List is compiled from Retention Reports filed with CROWPASS over a considerable period. In all cases the Filing Authority has omitted to complete para 13 of the Report - "Where Detained" and despite exhaustive efforts it has not been possible to determine the nationalities of the Authorities who have originated the Reports.

2. It is requested that you compare these names with your records of POWs/Internees at present in your Camp/Internment Centre/Prison and also of those now transferred or released. Should any persons listed be identified please complete the column headed "Where Detained" indicating the full postal address of the place of Detention and adding "as at ..." (date).

3. When all names have been checked will you please return the List direct to Berlin Command, Office of Military Government US, Central Registry of War Criminals and Security Suspects, 7771 Document Centre, APO 742, US Army.

1. The attached lists of War Criminals have been forwarded to MTCUSA by the American Representative together with the second Progress Report of the United Nations War Crimes Commission.
2. The second Progress report states that the persons on these, and other lists, which do not include Italian Nationals, are "believed to have committed or been responsible for a War Crime as to whom the Commission is satisfied that there is, or will be, at the time of trial, sufficient evidence to justify a prosecution". The report also states that the persons appearing on the lists "are to be apprehended and surrendered to the appropriate authority".
3. No instructions to act on this report have been received from the Combined Chiefs of Staff or from the War Department or War Office and these last named have been requested by signal to indicate action which is to be taken.
4. Pending specific instructions it is not considered that action should be taken to seek out and apprehend the persons listed but that if such persons are captured by the Allies or Italians those appearing on the lists should be detained for the decision of the United Nations War Crimes Commission and should not be tried by any tribunal until directions as to their disposal have been received.
5. When sufficient lists are available for circulation and instructions received as to the methods to be employed in seeking out the persons named, a directive on the subject will be issued from this HQ.
6. Pending such directive the lists must necessarily be treated with discretion as to the instructions quoted in para 2 of this letter.

UNITED NATIONS WAR CRIMES COMMISSION

SECOND PROGRESS REPORT

Adopted by the Commission on 28th March, 1945

The present report is a continuation of the First Progress Report (Doc. C.48(1)) which was adopted by the Commission on 19th September, 1944, for presentation to the member Governments. It deals with the progress and development of the Commission's work since that date.

HISTORY

On 4th January, 1945, Sir Cecil Hurst was obliged by ill-health to resign his position of United Kingdom representative and thus ceased to be Chairman. The Right Hon. Lord Wright, representative of Australia, was elected as his successor in the Chair on 31st January, 1945.

A welcome increase in the membership of the Commission has occurred through the decision of the Government of the Dominion of Canada to be represented upon it. The first meeting at which the Dominion was officially represented was that of 14th March, 1945. For some weeks previously the Commission's proceedings had been followed by a Canadian observer.

Liaison has been established with the 2.1 and G.5 Branches of the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force, the Control Commission for Germany (British Element) and the U.S. Group C.C., and steps are being taken to extend these contacts to all agencies concerned.

The Governments represented on the Commission and their representatives are at present as follows:

INVESTIGATION OF WAR CRIMES

The Commission is an international body representing sixteen United Nations Governments. In the investigation of war crimes it embodies the impartial decision of these Governments that there is a case justifying apprehension of the accused by the arresting authorities who are thus not called upon to act upon ex parte statements of a single Government. The Commission in this particular proceeds in a manner somewhat similar to that of a committing magistrate; its acts are the expression of the joint will of the Governments that justice shall be done.

In performing its function of investigating and recording the evidence of war crimes, the Commission's method continues to be primarily that described in the First Progress Report. The National Offices set up at its request by the member Governments submit evidence which is examined by the Commission with the assistance of a representative of the Office. This process is inevitably hampered by the difficulty of obtaining precise information from Allied territories which are still in enemy occupation, and last autumn discussions took place in the Commission as to whether its responsibilities made it desirable to adopt additional methods in carrying out its work.

As soon as possible after the enemy was expelled, the French Government took the lead in establishing an admirable system for the investigation of war crimes throughout the country, and the other Governments in the same position are following the same course. Moreover, the Australian Government presented cases against Japanese War Criminals which arose in the Pacific area. There has thus been a great change in the situation and a considerable increase in the inflow of information to the Commission.

This change, however, does not exonerate the Commission from the responsibility of making every effort to improve its machinery for the investigation of war crimes. With this object it decided on 20th December, 1944, that it would add to its staff a Central Investigation Officer who would in due course be provided with the necessary assistants and whose functions are defined as follows:

"It is recommended that in view of the increase in the number of cases which may be expected, and of the further fact that in many instances the work of the National Offices will be carried out from their own countries, and not from London, close contact between the Commission and the National Offices should be maintained where necessary, by the appointment by the Governments of officials for the purpose, or in some other appropriate way.

"In view of the developments contemplated in the preceding paragraph, the Commission decides that a Central Investigation Officer be appointed at the headquarters of the Commission for the purpose of assisting the National Offices at their request in the investigation of war crimes, of collecting evidence which is available to the Commission in order to transmit it to the National Offices and of coordinating evidence.

"The Central Investigation Officer will be directly responsible to the Commission."

(Docs. M.43. pp.1-4, and C.66(1)).

The Commission, for its own purposes, has prepared reports concerning the systematic and deliberate criminal character of the German actions in the occupied countries. These have been made available on

As soon as possible after the enemy was expelled, the French Government took the lead in establishing an admirable system for the investigation of war crimes throughout the country, and the other Governments in the same position are following the same course. "The Central Investigation Officer will be directly responsible to the Commission."

(Docs. ML 43, pp. 1-4, and C.66(1)).

The Commission, for its own purposes, has prepared reports concerning the systematic and deliberate criminal character of the German actions in the occupied countries. These have been made available on request to the National Offices of the member Governments.

The staff of the Commission has been enlarged to provide assistance in the screening of charges before they are examined by the Commission and in the discharge of the Commission's function to investigate war crimes.

Not only is the Commission charged with the investigation and recording of evidence of war crimes, but it has the duty of reporting to the Governments concerned cases in which it appears that evidence might be expected to be forthcoming sufficient to justify, in its opinion, the apprehension and trial of those responsible.

The following Lists have been presented for appropriate action:

In December 1944: First List of War Criminals (Germans) - Charges by Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia.

Second List of War Criminals (Italians) - Charges by France, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia.

In March 1945: Third List of War Criminals (Germans) - Charges by France, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia.

Fourth List of War Criminals (Japanese), together with List of Suspects and List of Witnesses - Charges by Australia.

Fifth List of War Criminals (Albanians, Bulgarians, Hungarians, Italians and Rumanians) - Charges by France, United Kingdom, and Yugoslavia - with which are included the Second List of Suspects listed on charges formulated by the Commission itself and the Second List of Witnesses.

The Lists of War Criminals consist primarily of the names or descriptions of individuals believed to have committed or to be responsible for a war crime as to whom the Commission is satisfied that there is, or will be at the time of trial, sufficient evidence to justify a prosecution. The persons appearing on them are to be apprehended and surrendered to the appropriate authority. The Commission has, however, also applied the principle that wherever a crime has been committed by a unit or detachment of a larger organization, acting in concert, and, after investigation, the identity of the offenders has not been ascertained, membership in such unit or detachment at the time of the crime constitutes prima facie evidence of participation therein, and that all members of such unit or detachment may be charged with responsibility, and will be listed as accused war criminals.

The List of Suspects and List of Witnesses which accompany the third of the above lists mark a new and necessary departure in the Commission's procedure. They are the object of a Recommendation to the Governments adopted by the Commission on 7th March, 1945 (Doc. C.82), which asks that all necessary instructions may be given to ensure:

- (1) The taking into custody of the individuals and units named in the Lists of Suspects and their maintenance in custody until it has been possible to identify the persons who should be handed over for trial as war criminals;
- (2) The maintenance of contact with the persons named in the Lists of Witnesses until their evidence has been taken, and the taking of measures to protect them against other enemy nationals;

In December 1944: First List of War Criminals (Germans) - Charges by Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia.

Second List of War Criminals (Italians) - Charges by France, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia.

In March 1945: Third List of War Criminals (Germans) - Charges by France, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia.

Fourth List of War Criminals (Japanese), together with List of Suspects and List of Witnesses - Charges by Australia.

Fifth List of War Criminals (Albanians, Bulgarians, Hungarians, Italians and Rumanians) - Charges by France, United Kingdom, and Yugoslavia - with which are included the Second List of Suspects listed on charges formulated by the Commission itself and the Second List of Witnesses.

The Lists of War Criminals consist primarily of the names or descriptions of individuals believed to have committed or to be responsible for a war crime as to whom the Commission is satisfied that there is, or will be at the time of trial, sufficient evidence to justify a prosecution. The List of Suspects and List of Witnesses which accompany the third of the above lists mark a new and necessary departure in the Commission's procedure. They are the object of a Recommendation to the Governments adopted by the Commission on 7th March, 1945 (Doc. C.82), which asks that all necessary instructions may be given to ensure:

- (1) The taking into custody of the individuals and units named in the Lists of Suspects and their maintenance in custody until it has been possible to identify the persons who should be handed over for trial as war criminals;
- (2) The maintenance of contact with the persons named in the Lists of Witnesses until their evidence has been taken, and the taking of measures to protect them against other enemy nationals;
- (3) The maintenance in custody, if they are prisoners of war, of persons named in the Lists of Witnesses until their evidence can be taken and, in proper cases, segregation of such witnesses from other enemy nationals who are in custody.

Finally, the Commission on 14th March, 1945, resolved "to include in its Lists charges formulated by itself and to recommend that the Agencies apprehending the persons charged shall, if necessary, apply to the Commission for instructions as to their disposal." (Doc. M.52, p. 2). This procedure is intended to apply to cases in which for some reason evidence of a war crime is obtained by the Commission without being brought before it by the National Office of a Government, but it is nevertheless probable that when the time comes there will be a Government able and ready to prosecute the accused. An example is furnished by German crimes against Italians.

In respect of major criminals whose crimes have no geographical location who are referred to in the Moscow Declaration of 1st November, 1943, the Commission on the 26th September, 1944, unanimously decided that they should be included in its lists of war criminals without waiting for the initiative of any one Government on the matter. It was felt that their activities were sufficiently well-known to warrant the inclusion of their names on the Commission's lists (Doc. M.33, p. 5). Accordingly, their names have appeared in the Commission's List as persons about whom it is collecting evidence (List No. 1, Introduction, paragraphs 4 and 5). In many cases, the same persons are wanted for trial by particular United Nations. On 7th March, 1945, the Commission decided to issue a separate List or Lists of these criminals, accompanied by schedules of the crimes of which they can be accused (Doc. M.51, p. 3).

ACTION ON RECOMMENDATIONS MENTIONED IN THE FIRST PROGRESS REPORT (pp. 2 - 3).

Some member Governments (Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Netherlands, Norway) have been able to give effect to the Recommendation that they should supply the Commission with Lists of enemy military and civil persons in authority in their occupied districts (Doc. C.21). This information has been transmitted to the Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Forces.

The recommendation regarding the insertion in the various armistices (terms of capitulations) granted to the various Axis Powers of clauses to ensure the surrender of persons wanted for trial as war criminals (Docs. C.31 and C.34) has been submitted for consideration to the European Advisory Commission (See Doc. C.68 - Letter from Mr. Eden to Sir Cecil Hurst, p. 2).

PUNISHMENT OF CRIMES COMMITTED IN ENEMY TERRITORY.

With regard to the punishment of crimes committed in enemy territory on racial, political or religious grounds, Sir Cecil Hurst, on behalf of the Commission, stated in a letter to Mr. Eden on the 31st May, 1944 (C.23(1)):- "The Governments of the United Nations may already have in view some plan for bringing the authors of these crimes to justice, but if that is not the case, it is right that you should know that the Commission is prepared to take up this work if, by so doing, it can assist the Governments of the United Nations."

Replying in letters dated 23rd August, 1944, and 9th November, 1944, respectively, the Lord Chancellor and Mr. Eden expressed the view that the Commission should not take up the extra work although they wished to make it clear that it was not desired to preclude "the Commission from collecting any evidence which they feel would be of value in relation to the general extermination policy which has undoubtedly been carried out in occupied territory in circumstances which constitute war crimes".

On the 31st January, 1945, Mr. Law stated in the House of Commons that the United Kingdom Government would do their utmost to ensure that the crimes would not go unpunished and that the authorities in post-war Germany should mete out to the perpetrators the punishment which they deserved.

Amplifying Mr. Law's statement, Lord Simon declared in the House of Lords on the 20th March, 1945, that the United Kingdom Government did not contemplate that the tribunals would be composed of Germans "but that upon the defeat of Germany the Allies will set up the organisation and the tribunals under which such process might take place."

of which they can be accused (Doc. L.51, p. 3).

TRANSFERS OF WAR CRIMINALS.

The member Governments are understood to have under consideration the Convention for the Surrender of War Criminals and other War Offenders which with an explanatory memorandum was adopted by the Commission on August 29th, 1944 (Doc. C.47). The following Governments have already indicated their approval, namely, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

TRIBUNALS FOR THE TRIAL OF WAR CRIMINALS.

The Commission's proposals on this subject are discussed on pages 3-4 of the First Progress Report, but at the date of the Report the texts embodying them had not been finally adopted by the Commission.

On September 26th, 1944, the Commission adopted the text of a draft Convention for the Establishment of a United Nations War Crimes Court (Doc. C.50(1)), and on October 6th it adopted an explanatory memorandum which was to accompany the draft (Doc. C.58).

On October 3rd, the Commission adopted a Recommendation for the Establishment by Supreme Military Commanders of Mixed Military Tribunals for the trial of War Criminals (Doc. C.52(1)), together with Suggestions to accompany the Recommendation for the Establishment of Mixed Military Tribunals (Doc. C.59).

The institutions above mentioned are, of course, intended only to deal with war criminals who in virtue of a decision of the United Nations or for reasons of convenience or other grounds are not tried before National Courts.

The Commission directed that the above draft Convention and draft Recommendation should be transmitted to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the United Kingdom by a letter from the Chairman. The last paragraph of this letter expresses the Commission's unanimous hope that the Secretary of State "would be so good as to take the necessary steps to convene in the near future a diplomatic conference to consider and, if thought fit, to conclude a Convention for the Establishment of a United Nations War Crimes Court." In reply to this invitation, Mr. Eden's letter to Sir Cecil Hurst on 4th January, 1945, reproduced in Document C.68, after referring to certain difficulties felt by the United Kingdom said:

"It should be plain, however, that this is not a matter in which His Majesty's Government would desire, even if it were possible, to adopt a definite position without previous consultation with the Government of the United States, particularly as the military operations in Western Europe are on a joint basis and the Supreme Command is now in the hands of an American general. Moreover, until the two Commission on August 29th, 1944 (Doc. C.47). The Commission have already indicated their approval, namely, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

TRIBUNALS FOR THE TRIAL OF WAR CRIMINALS.

The Commission's proposals on this subject are discussed on pages 3-4 of the First Progress Report, but at the date of the Report the texts embodying them had not been finally adopted by the Commission.

On September 26th, 1944, the Commission adopted the text of a draft Convention for the Establishment of a United Nations War Crimes Court (Doc. C.50(1)), and on October 6th it adopted an explanatory memorandum which was to accompany the draft (Doc. C.58).

On October 3rd, the Commission adopted a Recommendation for the Establishment by Supreme Military Commanders of Mixed Military Tribunals for the trial of War Criminals (Doc. C.52(1)), together with Suggestions to accompany the Recommendation for the Establishment of Mixed Military Tribunals (Doc. C.59).

The institutions above mentioned are, of course, intended only to deal with war criminals who in virtue of a decision of the United Nations or for reasons of convenience or other grounds are not tried before National Courts.

The Commission directed that the above draft Convention and draft Recommendation should be transmitted to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the United Kingdom by a letter from the Chairman. The last paragraph of this letter expresses the Commission's unanimous hope that the Secretary of State "would be so good as to take the necessary steps to convene in the near future a diplomatic conference to consider and, if thought fit, to conclude a Convention for the Establishment of a United Nations War Crimes Court." In reply to this invitation, Mr. Eden's letter to Sir Cecil Hurst on 4th January, 1945, reproduced in Document C.68, after referring to certain difficulties felt by the United Kingdom said:

"It should be plain, however, that this is not a matter in which His Majesty's Government would desire, even if it were possible, to adopt a definite position without previous consultation with the Government of the United States, particularly as the military operations in Western Europe are on a joint basis and the Supreme Command is now in the hands of an American general. Moreover, until the two Governments had reached, at any rate in principle, some conclusion as to the desirability of establishing an international Court by treaty it was obviously impossible to pursue the suggestion made in your letter for the convocation of a conference to negotiate such a treaty. The matter has accordingly been the subject of full consultation with the Government of the United States, and as soon as the views of the two Governments have been definitely formed it is the desire of His Majesty's Government that the other Allied Governments concerned should be approached with a view to consultation as to the measures to be adopted."

INTERROGATION AND DETENTION OF PRISONERS OF WAR.

On 18th January, 1945, the Commission recommended that Prisoners of War be interrogated regarding war crimes (Doc. C.65(2)). A companion Recommendation of 14th February, 1945, recommended the detention of Prisoners of War after cessation of hostilities pending investigations of war crimes (Doc. C.77(1)).

PUBLICATIONS ON THE SUBJECT OF WAR CRIMES.

Without prejudice to the policy mentioned in the first Progress Report (p. 4) of eventually publishing reports on special classes of war crimes authenticated by evidence obtained in actual trials of war criminals, the Commission has under consideration the preparation for publication of popular accounts of certain types of war crime for the purpose of impressing upon the public the widespread and calculated nature of the atrocities committed by the Axis forces in this war and the necessity for the punishment of war criminals.

FAR EASTERN AND PACIFIC SUB-COMMISSION.

The Sub-Commission held its inaugural meeting on 29th November, 1944. The Governments represented on the Sub-Commission are those of Australia, Belgium, China, Czechoslovakia, France, India, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Poland, United Kingdom, and United States. Dr. Wang Chung-hui, the Chinese Representative, was elected Chairman. The Sub-Commission has now commenced the examination of Chinese charges against Japanese war criminals.

In response to a request for its opinion, the main Commission on 7th February, 1945, decided to inform the Sub-Commission that in its view the establishment of that institution does not preclude the creation of other branches of the Commission, that, subject to their terms of reference, neither the Commission nor the Sub-Commission are restricted in the scope of their work or their power of initiative and that the Sub-Commission should not limit its investigation to war crimes committed after a particular date but that it should consider each case on its own merits. (For the text of this opinion, see Doc. M.47, p. 2 (a)).

FUTURE ACTIVITIES.

In respect of the future work of the Commission, it is believed that the primary task will be the investigation of war crimes, including the forwarding of the names of war criminals to the appropriate authorities for apprehension. The task will indeed be a colossal one. As the various overrun countries are liberated and as Germany and the other Axis countries are occupied, the flow of information to the Commission is bound to increase. The Commission has this rather very much in mind and it is taking steps to supplement its own machinery so that it may efficiently cope with the work that lies ahead. It must never be forgotten that with the cessation of hostilities in Europe the responsibility of the

The task will indeed be a colossal one. As the various overrun countries are liberated and as Germany and the other Axis countries are occupied, the flow of information to the Commission is bound to increase. The Commission has this matter very much in mind and it is taking steps to supplement its own machinery so that it may efficiently cope with the work that lies ahead. It must never be forgotten that with the cessation of hostilities in Europe the responsibility of the majority of the matters of the Commission with regard to the Pacific War continues.

While, no doubt, there remains much to be done as to advising the Governments in regard to matters of policy, it is felt that the major part of the Commission's activities in this sphere have now been completed. Reference is made in the earlier portions of this Report to the recommendations which have been made. It is understood that discussions are at present proceeding between certain of the Governments with regard to a number of these recommendations. Moreover, as was pointed out by Lord Simon in a statement in the House of Lords on the 20th March, the subject of the major war criminals is to be dealt with by the American, British and Soviet Foreign Ministers at their next meeting.

The Chairman of the Commission, when he assumed office on the 31st January, made known in the course of a public statement his view that close co-operation with the Russian Extraordinary State Commission was very desirable. Both Commissions were working with the same end in view, and in his view their approaches to the common problem were not radically different. In addition, Lord Wright stated in the course of the House of Lords Debate on the 20th March: "In particular, however, I should very much desire to get into contact with the Russian organisation for dealing with war criminals. There is no possibility now, as I gather, of their becoming members of the Commission or members of an enlarged Commission. There are diplomatic reasons, I understand, which would make that impossible, but I see no reason at all why there should not be an intercommunication of counsel, advice and information, and I am doing what I can to bring that about." Supporting Lord Wright's view, Lord Simon stated: "On this subject I noticed the very important observations of Lord Wright, that he would like to feel he was in closer touch with the Soviet tribunals. I agree with him."

CONCLUSION.

In reporting the progress and development of the Commission an effort has been made to point out only the more important items which are included in the work of the Commission and its Committees as set forth in detail in several several pages of documents.

Such a report can do no more than suggest the credit which the present members of the Commission feel is due to many who, often unofficially, have assisted in making possible the work accomplished. Suffice it to say that the continued co-operation of all concerned in those many problems involving war crimes is essential, and the help of those who must join in the task as the hour of retribution nears both necessary and welcome.

Nor does the Commission feel that details as to its future programme should burden an already lengthy document. With full realisation that time is running out, a survey is now being made to determine the extent of the investigation of war crimes effected to date. The Commission plans to continue to take whatever steps are within its competence to assure full, complete and impartial investigation of all war crimes. It will continue to advise the Governments of cases which appear to justify apprehension and trial of accused war criminals.

Finally, in matters where direct action is not the responsibility of the Commission, additional Recommendations will be made to the Governments to the extent deemed necessary or advisable, or upon request of proper authorities. In this connection it is ventured that the information and experience of the Commission, resulting from more than a year's study of reports of hundreds of offences and the various problems involved, may be of assistance in steps now taken affecting international law in

To punish war criminals and to render them harmless is not only in the interest of justice, but in the interest of world security in general. It would be impossible to ensure lasting peace and world security without due punishment of men whose ambition was and still is to plunge the world into wars and to commit atrocities against peaceful nations. From this point of view the work of the Commission is more than simply to assist justice; by fulfilling its task the Commission is assisting world security.
